

Canadian Consumer Handbook

Being a wise consumer means being informed.

This handbook offers tips, questions and advice on consumers' rights, along with contacts for help with common problems.

Welcome to the Canadian Consumer Handbook

Ministers responsible for consumer affairs at the federal, provincial and territorial levels were committed to producing this reference book for you. They recognized the importance of consumers having access to reliable information when making difficult decisions in the marketplace.

Officials from all federal, provincial and territorial governments have pooled their knowledge of consumer problems and helpful consumer contacts into one volume. It is our hope that this cooperative effort will benefit consumers all across the country.

Today's marketplace offers consumers a broad array of products and services. To select among them wisely, consumers must understand their rights as consumers and the standards of quality they should expect.

This handbook offers information and advice to help you gain knowledge about consumer rights, make informed decisions and protect against unscrupulous merchants. You will find points to consider, questions to ask and steps to take as you make purchases and sign contracts, or, if you are a consumer affairs professional, as you help consumers do these things. Finally, for the most common type of consumer problems, the handbook includes corporate, consumer, and government and non-government contacts. These organizations are all part of the consumer affairs network.

We believe that this handbook will serve as a convenient reference as we strive to help consumers in the marketplace.

Michael Jenkin Judy Budovitch
Consumer Measures Committee Co-chairs

Preface

Consumer protection is an important goal for federal, provincial and territorial governments in Canada. In a spirit of cooperation, and to improve efficiency on the consumer front, the Consumer Measures Committee (CMC) was created under Chapter 8 of the Agreement on Internal Trade. The CMC, which has a representative from the federal government and every province and territory, provides a forum for national cooperation to improve the marketplace for Canadian consumers by harmonizing laws and providing information. Consumer information targeted to young Canadians between the ages of 18 and 30 is important, as these consumers are faced with first-time choices in a complex and changing marketplace.

Governments involved in this project were Canada, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba, British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Newfoundland and Labrador, and the Yukon, Northwest and Nunavut Territories. This handbook will be updated periodically in electronic format.

Notice to Readers

This handbook is intended to serve as a guide and cannot replace first-hand information. A listing in this handbook does not mean that the authors necessarily endorse or recommend the products and services of the agencies and organizations that are named.

The authors have made every effort to ensure that the information in this handbook is accurate at the time of publication (June 2002). Send corrections, comments and suggestions to the following address:

General Information

Canadian Consumer Information Gateway

The Canadian Consumer Information Gateway (<http://consumerinformation.ca>) is an online portal that gives fast and easy access to reliable information developed in the public interest. Information is gathered from partners, departments and agencies of federal, provincial and territorial governments, and selected non-governmental organizations, ensuring the consumer is accessing information that is both accurate and relevant. The Gateway is designed for easy navigation with a powerful search engine capable of quickly finding consumer information. The Gateway also provides e-mail addresses and phone numbers to instantly connect the consumer with the right representative from the right organization for further information. It is fast becoming the first place consumers look to find trusted, reliable information. Canadians can access the Gateway on the Internet from home, public libraries, community access points, or from federal, provincial or territorial service outlets.

Complaining Effectively

Consumers are often faced with several challenges when issuing a complaint. A first contact now offered via the Canadian Consumer Information Gateway (<http://consumerinformation.ca>) is a pilot project called the Complaint Courier. This powerful online tool provides you with instant access to resources you need to navigate the complaints process from start to finish. Complaint Courier currently focusses on three areas that receive consumer complaints: airline/travel, financial services and collection agencies. However, Complaint Courier also provides you with expert advice on how to make any type of complaint in a clear, organized and effective way. The following guidelines can also help you to complain more effectively.

First Things First

- Contact the salesperson, retailer or business when you have a complaint about the goods or services that you bought.
- If you still have a problem, ask for the address and telephone number of the company headquarters and contact the customer service department.
- If that doesn't work to your satisfaction, look through the sections of this handbook that list the government offices and consumer organizations that apply to your situation. If you don't know where to start, call the government office of consumer affairs where you live (see page 34). Someone there will direct you to the right group.
- Taking legal action should be your last choice. If you decide to sue, remember that there are often time restrictions on filing lawsuits. You may wish to check with a lawyer about any statutes that may apply to your case.

Strategies for Success

- Do not be afraid to complain. Good businesses will be pleased to correct any mistake on their part. They know that customer goodwill is still the best form of advertising.
- Always keep a file of important information. Include the sales receipts, repair orders, warranties, cancelled cheques, contracts and any letters you have written to or received from the company concerned.
- Do not procrastinate. When a product is defective or unsatisfactory, it is important that you return it quickly so that you do not lose the right to get your money back, as well as damages in some cases. Always check the return policy before you buy.

When You Have A Problem

- Give the merchant the first chance to solve the problem.
- When there is a complaints department in the store where you made the purchase, use it. When there isn't, talk to someone in authority, such as a manager. A face-to-face discussion is best. Be firm and businesslike, but polite. Calmly and accurately describe the problem and what you want the company to do to solve it.
- Request specifics about how and when something will be done, and get the other person's name in case you have to refer to this conversation later. Write down any details of your complaint and keep it in your file. Make sure to date your notes.
- If a personal visit doesn't produce satisfactory results, write a letter to someone higher up, such as the general manager or owner. Provide all the details of the problem and your efforts to resolve it. Ask for action. Send a copy of your letter to the manufacturer, and be sure to keep a copy of it yourself.

What Now? You've Talked and Written, but Still No Results?

If you feel you have given the company enough time to resolve the problem and nothing has happened, send a copy of your letter and copies of supporting documents (not originals) to, or file a consumer complaint with, your provincial or territorial consumer protection agency or Better Business Bureau.

Small Claims Court

Small claims court can be an informal and relatively inexpensive method of resolving disputes when the amount claimed is less than $3000, or up to $10 000, depending on the province. However, you will have to pay a fee to file a claim, and later you may have costs for such things as serving orders, payments to witnesses and travel expenses.

Legal problems can be presented in this court without a lawyer, although in most provinces the help of a lawyer is allowed. The court staff is experienced in helping consumers prepare the necessary forms, and the judges are capable of settling disputes. This court allows each side to explain its story, and does not expect consumers to know legal technicalities.

For information on how to proceed, contact the small claims or provincial court nearest you (look in the government listings in your phone book).

Class Action Suits

The purpose of a class action suit is to permit a large number of individuals who have suffered similar losses or injuries to band together in one efficient lawsuit. This means that individuals who may not be able to afford to sue on their own can act with others in the same situation against the same defendant. All the participants in the class action suit share both the costs and the outcome. With a class action suit, consumers with legitimate cases can afford what could have been an expensive legal procedure. All provinces and territories allow class action suits. Recently, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia made it easier for individuals to start them.

Consumer Tips

Being a wise consumer is your best protection in today's marketplace. That means becoming informed about purchases, understanding your rights as a consumer, and practising responsible management of your private financial and personal information.

This section on consumer tips covers a wide range of topics. While no book can address every issue, there is enough information here for you to educate yourself on the differences between proper and improper business procedures. "Buyer beware" is still the best advice to any consumer considering any purchase of goods or services.

Review these tips and remember that, while situations vary, the basic advice remains the same: be informed, ask questions, and proceed only when you are completely comfortable with your purchase.

Before You Buy

- Take advantage of sales, but always compare prices. Do not assume an item is a bargain just because it is advertised as one.
- Don't rush into an expensive purchase because the "price is only good today."
- Check whether the company is licensed or registered at the local or provincial level.
- Contact the Better Business Bureau for complaints recorded against the company.
- You can also contact your provincial consumer protection agency for any consumer information they might have on this type of purchase.
- Be aware of extra charges such as delivery fees, installation charges, service costs, and postage and handling fees. Add them into the total cost of your purchase.
- Ask about the company's refund or exchange policy.
- Read the warranty. Note what is covered and what is not. Find out what you must do and what the manufacturer or seller must do when there is a problem.
- Never sign a contract without reading it. Don't sign a contract when there are any blank spaces in it or when you don't understand it. In fact, do not sign any document that you do not understand.
- Before buying a product or service, contact your consumer protection office to see whether there are automatic cancellation periods for the purchase you are making. In some provinces and territories, there is a cancellation period for contracts for credit, dating clubs, health clubs, pre-need funeral and cemetery services, time shares, natural gas, electricity, and door-to-door sales (please also see the section on special contracts).
- Walk out or hang up on high-pressure sales tactics. Don't be forced or pressured into buying anything.
- Only do business over the telephone with companies you know.
- Be suspicious of post office box addresses. These might indicate that a business does not want to be found. If you have a complaint later on, you might have trouble locating the company.
- Do not respond to any prize or gift offer that requires you to pay even a small amount of money up front.
- Use unit pricing in supermarkets to compare what items really cost. Unit pricing allows you to compare the price gram-for-gram, kilogram-for-kilogram. As an example, bigger packages are not always cheaper than smaller ones.
- Use coupons carefully. Do not assume they are the best deal until you've compared the price you would pay with a coupon to the prices of competitive products.
- Do not rely on a salesperson's promises. Get everything in writing.

After You Buy

- Read and follow product and service instructions.
- Read the warranty so that you understand what is covered and for how long.
- Be aware that how you use and take care of a product might affect your warranty rights.
- Keep all sales receipts, warranties, service contracts and instructions.
- When you have a problem, contact the company as soon as possible. Trying to fix the product yourself might cancel your right to service under the warranty.
- Keep a written record of any contact with the company.
- When you have a problem, check with your consumer protection office to find out about the warranty rights in your province or territory.
- Check your contract for any statement about your cancellation rights. Contact your consumer protection office to see whether a cancellation period applies.
- When you take a product in for repair, be sure the technician or person taking it in understands and writes down the problem you have described. Ask for and keep a copy of the repair order. Get an estimate on the cost of repairs before allowing the work to go ahead.

Advance Fee Scams

Be cautious about ads promising guaranteed jobs, guaranteed loans, credit repair, debt consolidation or similar claims. Many of these offers are only a way to get you to send money in advance in exchange for little or no service (please also see the sections on contracts, electronic commerce, mail order, misleading advertising, multilevel marketing and pyramid schemes for information about other possible frauds).

- Be cautious when responding to any advertisements, particularly those that use 1-900 telephone numbers. You can be charged substantial and differing amounts for calls to 1-900 numbers.
- Be careful about giving out any of your personal information, including your social insurance number, credit card numbers and bank account numbers. Fraudulent businesses could use this information to make unauthorized charges to your credit card or to withdraw money from your bank account.
- Before you make any payment, ask the business to send you a contract and other information stating the terms of the service and whether you can cancel the service and get a refund.
- Ask how long the firm has been in business and whether it is licensed. Review all contracts carefully. When you are unsure about a contract, take it to a lawyer or trusted advisor for his or her opinion before you sign.
- Contact your provincial or territorial consumer affairs office and/or the Better Business Bureau to find out about a company's complaint record or whether any legislation applies to that type of business.
- When you suspect that advertising is fraudulent, contact the local police and consumer protection agency.

Collection Agencies

What is a collection agency?

When you owe money to a business and have not made payments recently, the business may turn your account over to a collection agency. A collection agency is a business that obtains or arranges for payment of money owed to either a person or a company.

How do I deal with collection agencies?

- When you are notified in writing that an account has been turned over to a collection agency, don't panic. The agency isn't in business to make life unbearable for you – it just wants to collect the money you owe to its client.
- When possible, pay the money you owe. You won't have to deal with the agency once the account has been cleared.
- When it's impossible for you to pay the full amount at once, contact the agency to explain why.
- Offer some alternative method of repayment, either in a lump sum or a series of monthly payments. Follow up in writing and, when possible, enclose an immediate good-faith payment.
- Never send cash. Always make payments in such a way that you have a receipt – either a cancelled cheque from your own bank or a receipt from the agency.
- Once the account has been officially turned over to a collection agency, you'll be dealing only with that agency when making arrangements for payment. Don't contact the original business – this just creates confusion – unless there's an error in the account. When this is the case, advise both the business and the collection agency.

Remember, your attitude towards paying your debt has a lot to do with how cooperative the agency will be. For example, when making payments to a collection agency, be sure not to bounce cheques and miss payments. When your financial circumstances change, contact the collection agency immediately and explain your current status. Follow up in writing.

Debts should not be treated lightly. They can result in court action, which could lead to money being taken from your pay cheque or seizure of your assets.

General information

I feel I'm being treated unfairly by a collection agency

While rules vary across Canada, generally collection agencies are forbidden from doing the following:

- trying to collect a debt without first notifying you in writing, at your last known address, that a collection agency has been assigned to the account;
- recommending or starting legal or court action to collect a debt without first notifying you and obtaining the creditor's (the company to whom you owe money) written permission;
- making telephone or personal calls of such a nature or frequency to constitute harassment of you or your family, or calling to collect a debt on a Sunday or statutory holiday, or before 8 a.m. and after 10 p.m.;
- implying or giving false or misleading information to any person that could damage you or your family;
- demanding payment of a debt without identifying themselves, saying who is owed the money, and stating the amount owed;
- continuing to demand payment from a person who claims not to owe the money, unless the collector has tried every way to ensure the person owes the money;
- taking over the debt from a creditor without first advising you; and
- contacting your friends, employer, relatives or neighbours for information, other than to get your telephone number or address.

When you believe a collection agency has breached any of the above regulations, contact the head of the agency. If you're still not satisfied, contact your provincial or territorial office of consumer affairs.

Consumer Privacy

With all the advancements in electronic business over the past 20 years, consumer privacy has become a very important issue. You must take steps to protect your personal information at all times. People who obtain very basic personal information about you can drain your bank accounts, or charge things to your credit cards or telephone, costing you a great deal of time and money. They can also bombard you with unwanted solicitations and marketing.

By taking some simple precautions, you can go a long way towards protecting your privacy, finances and peace of mind (please also see the sections on contracts, electronic commerce, fraud and advance fee scams).

- Pay for local purchases with cash, rather than by cheque or credit card.
- Ask manufacturers, catalogue or magazine subscription companies, charities and others with whom you do business not to sell your name to others for marketing purposes.

- When companies ask your social insurance number or for personal information that is not essential for the transaction, ask them why they need to know.
- Don't give anyone your credit card or bank account numbers unless you're making purchases with them, and don't put credit card numbers on your cheques.
- When filling out warranty or other information cards, don't include optional or unnecessary personal information.
- Companies promoting sweepstakes, contests and prize offers can easily obtain personal information. Be careful to check out the companies before deciding to do business with them or releasing personal or financial information. Contact your provincial or territorial consumer affairs office or Better Business Bureau to find out companies' complaint records.
- Always check your credit card, cellular phone, telephone or other bills to make certain that all the charges are for things that you have authorized.

For an online map to the privacy challenges and pitfalls of today's information age, visit <http://www.consumer.ic.gc.ca>.

Contracts

Contract law is a very complex topic and can be confusing to consumers and merchants alike. A contract is a written or spoken agreement between two or more parties, intended to be enforceable by law. Always read over a contract carefully and do not agree to it unless you are confident that you understand it completely. When possible, have your lawyer or another trusted person review anything that you intend to sign. Generally, a contract is binding when the following is true:

- the parties intend to make a contract;
- there is an offer and an acceptance; and
- the parties receive something (e.g. the company receives money and you receive a service) in return for their promises.

A contract may take many forms, such as an oral, written or standard form agreement. All are equally valid. Getting out of a contract is not an easy thing, but it can be done. For example, both parties could agree to end the contract. In some provinces and territories, there is an automatic cancellation period for contracts for credit, dating clubs, health clubs, pre-need funeral and cemetery services, time shares, natural gas, electricity and door-to-door sales.

Unless the other party agrees, consumers should not attempt to get out of a contract without seeking legal advice. An attempted cancellation may backfire and end up being more expensive than fulfilling the original contract would have been.

Please also see the section on fraud.

Special Contracts

Dating Services

When you choose to deal with a dating service, be sure to check the following:

- from how far away the referrals might come;
- that dates are club members;
- the opportunity you will have to review the video, profile or picture of a proposed date before your phone number is given or a meeting is arranged;
- that the information in your file is clear (e.g. your wishes, interests, requirements and “won’t accept”);
- the length of the contract and the number of dates and introductions promised;
- the cost of any additional fee to extend, renew or continue the membership;
- whether there are any extra costs associated with club functions (for parties, picnics or trips, for example);
- what the club promises to do for the basic fee (there might be little relationship between the cost and performance of the club, so beware of very high-priced companies);
- that all guarantees are in writing;
- for figures on its success rate and the average length of time needed to locate an acceptable spouse when the club promises to find you a spouse; and
- the cancellation policy; contact your provincial or territorial consumer agency to find about your legal rights, and with your local consumer affairs agency or the Better Business Bureau to file a complaint.

General information

Health Clubs

When you are considering whether to join a health club, be cautious of the following:

- joining clubs that have not opened: they might never open;
- low-cost “bait” ads: many “switch” you to expensive long-term contracts;
- promises that you can cancel any time and stop paying: check the written contract for the terms of membership and any other promises;
- the fine print: many low-cost ads and contracts severely restrict hours of use and services;
- signing long-term contracts: consumer protection agencies report that many consumers quit using the club within a few months; and
- unbelievably low one-time fees with no monthly dues.

Before you sign, be sure to do the following:

- check with your doctor (you should do this before you begin any exercise program);
- visit the club at the hours you will be using it;
- check that promised equipment and services are actually available;
- talk to current members about their satisfaction with the club;
- check out several clubs;
- consider your commitment to a long-term program: good intentions seem to fade as the reality of the hard work sets in;
- read the contract carefully to find out if interest is charged for a payment plan and that all promises are in writing; and
- check with your provincial or territorial consumer affairs office for any laws that apply where you live, cancellation rights or complaints against the company.

Timeshares and Campgrounds

Overvalued or misrepresented prizes and awards are sometimes used to promote timeshares and campgrounds. Free awards might “bait” you into driving a long distance to the property, only to attend a long high-pressure sales pitch to obtain your prize.

- Be realistic. Make your decision based on how much you will use the property and if it provides the recreational and vacation opportunities you want. Don't decide to purchase based on an investment possibility. The property might be difficult or almost impossible to resell.
- Ask about additional costs, such as finance charges, annual fees and maintenance fees. Maintenance fees can go up yearly.
- Compare your total annual cost with that of hotels or your normal vacation expenses.
- Ask about availability during your vacation periods. Ask what other timeshares or campgrounds you may use with your membership.
- Talk to individuals who have already purchased from the company about the services, availability, upkeep and reciprocal rights to use other facilities.
- Get everything in writing, and make sure verbal promises are in the written contract. Have an independent attorney review any contracts and documents, and make sure there are no blanks on papers you sign.
- Ensure you have cancellation rights.
- Check for any complaints against the company, seller, developer or management company with the local consumer affairs office or the Better Business Bureau.
- Check that the property complies with local laws.

Door-to-door Sales

Although this method of selling is not as popular now as it was in the past, it can still both provide a service and be an annoyance. If you do receive a door-to-door salesperson at your home, remember the following tips:

- Ask to see the salesperson's personal identification and licence or registration. Make note of his or her name, the name and address of the company, and whether the salesperson carries proper identification.
- Ask for sales literature and then call local stores that sell the same merchandise to compare prices. Some door-to-door products may be overpriced.
- Don't be pressured into buying anything. Watch for the warning signs: an offer of a “free gift” if you buy a product, an offer that is only good for that day, or a claim that a neighbour just made a purchase.
- If you feel threatened or intimidated, ask the person to leave. Don't leave the person unattended in any room of your home. When you are suspicious, immediately report the incident to the police.

In addition to requiring door-to-door sellers to be licensed, every province and territory gives you a specified number of days (a cooling-off period) during which you can cancel a contract you make with a door-to-door salesperson for any reason. To find out the length of the cooling-off period where you live, contact your consumer protection office.

Electronic Commerce

The basic rules for smart shopping at the mall or on Main Street will serve you well when shopping over the Internet. The extra challenge the Internet provides is that some of the clues you use, perhaps even unconsciously, when shopping in person are missing when you shop online. The electronic merchant you deal with may be in another town or province, or even on a different continent. You cannot walk around the premises and get a feel for the place, its products or personnel.

The Internet is ideally suited for sharing information, and you can use the Net to obtain extra details that will help you make better buying decisions. If you make sure to learn about the following key issues, you will be well prepared to protect yourself when shopping online.

Know Who You Are Dealing With

Reputable on-line merchants will post plenty of information about themselves, where they are located, their phone and fax numbers and details such as the following:

- links to objective evaluations of their products and services, such as product reviews in magazines;
- membership in organizations designed to guarantee standards, such as industry associations or the Better Business Bureau;
- certificates or seals of quality; and
- other options for purchasing the products or services listed on the Web site (by phone, at store locations or through a catalogue, for example).

When you deal with international vendors the risk is higher. Different laws and standards apply. In addition, it may be difficult to get local authorities to act on your complaint if you feel you have been dealt with unfairly by a vendor.

You may want to start shopping by buying something inexpensive. If you are unhappy with the product or the service, shop elsewhere.

Know Exactly What You Are Buying

You can't handle the product or see the person who will be providing a service when shopping online. The vendor should provide enough information for you to properly evaluate what you are buying, including details such as the size, colour, weight and texture of the product.

Know What You Are Agreeing To

Every time you choose to buy something online you are entering into a contract with the vendor. Any reputable vendor will provide the terms of this contract on its Web site. Read them and keep a copy for your reference. Insist on the following:

- information detailed and complete enough for you to understand the terms of sale;
- a description of the efforts the company is making to provide a secure connection to protect your credit card number and other financial information (by using a secure server, for example, indicated by <https://> in the address) and to protect your privacy; and
- an explanation of how the company handles complaints and returns.

Be concerned in these cases:

- when the company does not provide the terms and conditions on its site; and
- when the terms and conditions they do provide are so complex and detailed that they discourage you from reading them or are difficult to understand.

Know What You Are Paying

The final price for online items is often considerably different from the listed price. Any reputable vendor's Web site will calculate the shipping and handling costs for you before you make a final decision to purchase an item.

Foreign currency: Do the math and figure out what the price will be in Canadian dollars. Most people's sense of the relative value of currencies tends to be optimistic and they end up paying more than they hoped as a result.

GST and customs: Canada Customs will calculate and add GST to the cost of most purchases made outside Canada. The agency will also charge you an inspection fee for doing so that may be more than the actual GST on small purchases, such as books and compact discs.

Know What Information You Are Giving to the Vendor and Why

Never deal with vendors who do not post a privacy policy committing them to protect your personal information.

For many Internet vendors, your personal information is as important as the money you pay for a product or service. Make sure you know why vendors are asking for information and what they intend to use it for.

Online Shopping for Children and Teens

All the same considerations apply when children are shopping online, only more so. Children and teens are easily fooled by items that turn out to be not as big or as much fun as they looked online, or of acceptable quality. Children and teens often do not understand the real cost of some purchases. They may also give out personal information without realizing the consequences. Teach them to be aware of the risks and show them how to protect themselves when buying online.

Here are links to some Web sites that can help you and your family become Internet savvy:

- Media Awareness Network:
<http://www.media-awareness.ca>
- Canadian Marketing Association: <http://www.the-cma.org>
- Advertising Standards Canada:
http://www.adstandards.com/en/Clearance/Childrens_Code.htm.

Payment System Security

Before providing your credit card number or other financial information, make sure the merchant has a secure transaction system. Most Internet browsers indicate when you are using a secure Internet link. Look for one or both of these clues:

- an icon, often a lock at the bottom of the screen, which should be in the locked position
- whether the Web site address begins with <https://> – the s indicates that the site is secure.

Be Careful About

Online Auctions

- Online auctions can be risky. Verify who is selling the item. Know what you're buying, and get a description of the item in writing in case the product does not meet your expectations.
- When you are buying from a private individual, consumer protection laws do not protect you. Read the rules of the auction site: better sites will keep records of customer satisfaction and should also have dispute resolution mechanisms.

Buying Internationally

- Remember, buying internationally involves more risk. When calculating the price, factor in shipping and handling costs, taxes, duty and currency conversion. Ask about warranties. Check that products meet Canadian safety standards.

Warning Signs

There are a number of practices that no reputable vendor would use, including these:

- Asking for credit card information before a sale is made. Be especially wary of anyone who asks for your credit card number as a condition of entry to a site.
- Any attempt to rush you into a decision. Tags that warn that an item is in limited supply or warnings that prices will go up if you don't act immediately are good examples of these tactics. Mass-produced items, in particular, should be available in whatever quantity is required.
- Unsolicited offers that arrive by e-mail. There may be a few honest people doing this, but the vast majority of unsolicited offers are of little value, and many are outright fraudulent. In addition, unsolicited e-mail can contain computer viruses. The best approach is to delete all unsolicited e-mail offers unread. Do not reply to these messages, even to remove yourself from a mailing list.
- Things that sound too good to be true. They usually are. Watch out for get-rich-quick schemes, free vacations and fabulous job opportunities.
- Vendors who try to make you earn your way into doing business with them. Nobody should ask for a commitment from you to purchase before you make a decision or just to get into a site.

- Sites that seem to take over your computer. Be especially wary of vendors who use “browser traps,” which are designed to make it hard for you to get out of a site. A browser trap might, for example, disable the “back” button on your browser or eliminate all your recently visited site options. Other traps will open new windows every time you try to close one. Do not do business with anyone who uses these techniques, and never make a purchase to get out of the trap.

Fraud

Be aware of some of the common signs of fraud. Walk away from offers that sound too good to be true. They usually are. Toss out the mail or hang up the phone when you see or hear the following:

- Sign now or the price will increase.
- You have been specially selected . . .
- You have won . . .
- All we need is your credit card (or bank account) number; it's for identification only.
- All you pay for is postage, handling, taxes . . .
- Make money in your spare time, guaranteed income . . .
- We really need you to buy magazines (a water purifier, a vacation package, office products) from us because you can earn 1 ➤ extra credits . . .
- I just happen to have some leftover paving material from a job down the street . . .
- Be your own boss! Never work for anyone else again. Just send in $50 for your supplies and . . .
- A new car! A trip to Hawaii! $2500 in cash! Yours, absolutely free! Take a look at our . . .
- Your special claim number entitles you to join our sweepstakes.
- We just happen to be in your area and have toner for your copy machine at a reduced price.

Remember, the smart consumer always looks at the total price and checks out the company and product before buying.

If you do get caught in one of these traps, stop for a moment and relax, and then figure out how to get out. Usually, typing the address of a site you know well into your browser's “go to” window and pressing the Return key will do it.

Stay away from telemarketers who want to do the following:

- send a courier for your money;
- have you send money by wire;
- automatically withdraw money from your chequing account;
- offer you a free prize, but charge you handling and shipping fees;
- ask for your credit card number, chequing or savings account number, social insurance number or other personal information;
- get payment in advance, especially for employment referrals, credit repair or providing a loan or credit card (Alberta law prohibits a loan broker from asking for money before the consumer gets the loan); or
- have you join a pyramid or multilevel sales scheme.

These are all ways to separate you from your money.

To report telemarketing calls, get in touch with PhoneBusters at 1-888-495-8501. Funerals

Most people avoid thinking about funerals until faced with the death of a loved one. When you wait until this time of stress and grief, it can be hard to make the necessary decisions. In Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, funeral services are regulated by the provincial consumer affairs office.

For more information, please contact your provincial or territorial consumer affairs office.

What Kind of Casket?

The price of a casket can easily account for half the total cost of an average funeral service. Prices range from about $135 for a plywood casket to several thousand dollars for cloth-covered, metal or hardwood caskets. Discount casket stores have opened in some cities in Canada. Check with a funeral director to determine the advantages and disadvantages of using them.

You may have to ask to see less expensive caskets – often they are not on display. Plywood caskets can usually be purchased on request. In some areas, you can save money by renting a decorative casket shell for use during the funeral and graveside service. The shell is then lifted off the plain casket and returned to the funeral home for reuse. A homemade casket can also be used.

Sometimes, people go deeply into debt when they choose a casket because they want to do their best for the deceased. Think carefully about spending more than you can afford or have budgeted for in advance. Consider asking a trusted friend or relative to accompany you when you decide which casket to buy. Consider too that a casket is not required when the body is to be cremated (although a container must be supplied).

Embalming: Extra or Essential?

Embalming involves substituting a chemical fluid for blood to temporarily preserve the body. This is usually done for cosmetic and sanitation purposes when the body is to be viewed in an open casket. In most cases, embalming is not legally required.

Consider the benefits of embalming and the wishes of the deceased and next-of-kin. If you decide against embalming, inform the funeral home immediately. Unless you give instructions to the contrary, funeral homes will usually go ahead with this procedure and charge you for it.

Burial or Cremation?

Burial is the traditional way to deal with remains. Cremation, however, is gradually becoming more accepted. This method offers practical advantages in a time of urban sprawl. Cremation usually costs less than burial, and you won't have to spend money on a cemetery plot.

Burial

Bodies must be buried in approved cemeteries. There are two methods of burial. The first is the traditional earth burial, in which the body is placed in a casket and lowered into the ground. The second type of burial is relatively uncommon. It involves permanently placing the body and the casket in a mausoleum, or tomb, above or just below the ground.

Cemetery costs vary widely. Before you make an agreement to purchase a plot, ask for a written statement listing all costs.

Cremation

Before you receive permission to have a body cremated, the body must be examined by a medical examiner and a Medical Certificate of Death signed by the attending physician.

Funeral chapels and crematoriums most often request that the body be enclosed in a container that is combustible, of rigid construction and equipped with handles. You may supply your own homemade container.

After a cremation, all that usually remains of the body is two to three kilograms of pulverized bone and ash. These materials are pure and represent no health risk. You're free to take care of the ashes as you see fit. Most crematoriums and funeral homes will provide temporary storage until you decide what is to be done with them. The ashes may be disposed of by the crematorium, or returned to the next-of-kin in a container.

Cemetery facilities for receiving ashes vary. Some have an urn garden. Others have a columbarium, an above-ground structure where urns are held. Another option is to scatter or bury the ashes at a family plot.

Conventional Funeral Service

A conventional funeral involves a service in a church or funeral chapel, with the body present, followed by burial.

The following is usually included:

- removing the body to the funeral home;
- using funeral home facilities;
- embalming and cosmetic application;
- the price of the casket;
- using a hearse for transportation to the cemetery or crematorium;
- arranging religious services;
- registering the death and obtaining the Burial Permit; and
- preparing newspaper death notices.

Memorial Service

A memorial service is usually held when the body is not present. For example, the body may have been directly buried, cremated or donated for medical research.

A memorial service is most often held within a few days or weeks of the death. Memorial services, as with funeral services, can be large or small, and held in a church, funeral home chapel, hotel, private club or family home. Arrangements are usually simple. Embalming, viewing and other services associated with a conventional funeral are eliminated, reducing the cost.

Prearranging a Funeral Service

When looking for a prearranged plan, ask yourself the following questions.

- Does the funeral establishment have a good reputation? Ask friends for recommendations. Check the Better Business Bureau. Ask yourself if the funeral home is likely to be in business for many more years.
- Will interest be paid on the money in your prearranged plan? If so, compare rates at various funeral homes. Will you or your estate receive the interest, or will the funeral home?
- If installment payments are to be made, will there be an extra charge for late payment?
- Are all goods and services to be provided described specifically in the contract?

General information

- Does the plan meet your religious needs? Does it allow for a service in your own church, or must you use the funeral chapel?
- Is there any plan to cover the increased cost of the prearranged service due to inflation?

Buying a Cemetery Plot

You can also buy a cemetery plot and a grave marker in advance. Before signing a contract, get answers to the following questions.

- What happens if you move or change your mind for whatever reason? Would you be able to sell the plot or transfer ownership?
- How will payment be made?
- What penalty would be applied if you failed to make the payments?

Donating a Human Body or Organs

Medical science makes valuable use of donated tissues and organs for research, teaching and transplants. The entire body, or just certain parts, may be donated. It is quite easy to make such a donation. Just write out your instructions on a piece of paper and sign it.

Be sure to tell your next-of-kin about your wishes. It's also a good idea to carry a donor card in your wallet. Drivers' licences may have an attached universal donor card, which you must fill out and sign for your wishes to be followed.

Getting Help from Memorial Societies

Memorial societies are voluntary, non-profit organizations dedicated to helping people arrange simple, dignified and inexpensive funerals in advance. They encourage the donation of bodies or body parts for medical science.

Most memorial societies have either a legal contract or an agreement with one or more local funeral homes to provide services for members. These services may not otherwise be offered to the public, although consumers can ask for them. Memorial societies that are unable to get such an agreement from local funeral homes will give advice to people who want to prearrange their funeral. Members are given a form on which they indicate their desired arrangements. A copy of this form is then kept by the society and/or the cooperating funeral home. If you should move, your membership file could be transferred to the local memorial society.

Home Renovations

Before you start, you should keep in mind that there is no such thing as a small, simple renovation project. The process takes time and effort. It's also messy. However, the more planning and care that goes into the renovation in advance, the better your chances of having things turn out to your satisfaction.

- Understand your own abilities and the amount of time that you can spend on the project. This will help you decide what kind of professional help you should look for, ranging from an architect or general contractor, who will take charge of the project from beginning to end, to a one-person local construction company.
- Write a full, detailed list of the things that you want to achieve. If you change your mind part way through the project, the costs will change too.
- Check with your local building inspection department to find out which permits you'll need (this is not your contractor's responsibility unless that is spelled out in your contract) and with your insurance company to discuss any extra insurance requirements that will add to your final cost.
- Make a list of potential suppliers to interview. After you've followed the first two steps, talk to relatives, friends and neighbours to get recommendations, as well as local business associations. Some professional organizations such as architects and building associations keep a list of suppliers who specialize in renovation work. Check with your local Better Business Bureau, business association or provincial or territorial consumer affairs office to see whether any complaints have been filed against any firm that you are thinking of hiring.
- Contact at least six professionals by telephone to find a minimum of three to interview.

Interviews are a two-way conversation. The supplier should ask you a lot of questions about what you want. You should be prepared to ask the supplier about similar projects he or she has handled, the time required for the job, whether there will be subcontractors involved, what the stages of progress will be, and the requirements of permits. You should never be given a quote at the interview. Ask the supplier to send you a written estimate of all costs, including labour and any extra charges.

Review all the quotations carefully. They should outline your project and provide at least a partial cost breakdown.

Once you've decided on a supplier and you're satisfied with the details in the contract, sign it. Never allow work to proceed until you have fully reviewed, understood, agreed to and signed the contract.

The contract should include the following information:

- the type and amount of work to be done;
- any extras;
- who is to complete the work (including a list of any subcontractors and who is responsible for their payment and when);
- the total cost;
- the start date and date of completion;
- who is responsible for clean-up afterwards; and
- the name and address of the supplier and your name and address.

On major projects, attach a list of the sections of work to be done and their completion dates to the contract. A payment schedule should also be part of the contract.

Keep payments down to a minimum and check on construction liens legislation in your area. The law may require you to hold back a percentage of the payment until the date when the major work is finished (what's known as the substantial completion date). You'll be asked to sign a completion certificate. Don't sign it until the work is finished and you're satisfied with it. If a contractor asks for a deposit he or she may require a provincial licence. Check with your consumer protection office.

Door-to-door Home Repairs

Sometimes salespeople come to your door offering a deal on roofing, driveway resurfacing, or furnace inspection or repair, because "we just happen to be in your neighbourhood." Usually they insist that the contract must be signed immediately to get the "special" price.

This is a high-pressure sales tactic. Don't fall for it. If you were thinking of having the work done anyway, you should ask the salesperson for local references. Obtain quotes from other suppliers as well.

Although the majority of sellers are honest, some are not. The seller may ask for a deposit, then never return to do the work. Or the work he or she provides is substandard.

Unless you have personal references, you won't know what you're really buying until your money is gone (please also see the section on door-to-door sales). When you sign a contract in your home, the contractor may be required to be licensed and bonded, and there may be a cooling off period, during which you may cancel the contract for any reason. For more information, contact your provincial or territorial consumer protection agency.

Landlord and Tenant Problems

Landlord and tenant regulations vary considerably across Canada. Different departments in each province and territory administer the legislation. Check the government listings in your telephone book. If there is no specific reference to landlord and tenant, call the general government number for a referral.

Mail Order

Many consumers are taking advantage of the growing catalogue market in Canada. Catalogue shopping can be a timesaving and satisfactory way to buy goods. However, as with any type of transaction, there are still things that a wise consumer should keep in mind.

Ordering

- Keep a record of the name, address and phone number of the company, the goods you ordered, the date of your order, the amount you paid, and the method of payment.
- Keep a record of any delivery period that was promised.
- If you are told that the shipment will be delayed, write the date of that notice in your records and the new shipping date, if you've agreed to wait longer.
- To limit unwanted mail, sign up with the free Do Not Mail/Do Not Call Service operated by the Canadian Marketing Association, a private trade group. The Association will instruct its mail-marketing members to take you off their lists.

Unsolicited Goods

You are under no obligation to accept or pay for any merchandise you receive in the mail that you did not order. In most provinces and territories, when the sender asks for the merchandise back you must return it at the sender's expense; however, in some provinces and territories you cannot be required to pay for the goods or services unless you agreed to do so in writing. To complain about unsolicited goods, contact your provincial or territorial consumer protection agency.

Mail Fraud

- Read the offer carefully. Get the advice of another person whose opinion you trust.
- Deal only with companies or charities whose reputation and integrity are known.
- Never give out your credit card number or personal, financial or employment information unless you know with whom you are dealing.
- Never send money for any "free" merchandise or services.
- Be suspicious of "free gifts" that require a "tax payment" or "registration fee," sweepstakes requiring an entry fee or purchase, employment or work-at-home opportunities requiring a fee, offers requiring your credit card number or bank account number, loans that require you to pay a fee in advance, mailings that look like they are from official government agencies when they are not, and prize notices requiring you to call a 1-900 number.

General information

- Be careful about making impulse purchases.
- Keep a record of the order, notes of the conversation and copies of the advertisement, cancelled cheque, receipt, letters and envelopes.
- Take the time to compare the products, services and prices to those of similar products in local stores.
- Check out the company with your provincial or territorial consumer protection agency or the Better Business Bureau. Mail fraud is a crime.

Major Purchases

Many consumers may be smart day-to-day shoppers but are less confident when it comes to a major purchase such as a home or car. Please read this section carefully, as the suggestions below can help you make a wise decision.

Houses

Experts say that most consumers spend more time on a visit to the grocery store than they do inspecting the biggest purchase of their lives – their home.

The best way to shop for a new home is to prepare a “must have” list. Find an agent you trust and spend a lot of time inspecting all the aspects of any home that you’re serious about buying. When you have complaints about real estate agents, contact your provincial or territorial consumer affairs office or real estate association or commission.

Figure out what you can afford, based on a mortgage payment of up to 30 percent of your income. Talk to your regular bank, then compare mortgage rates, terms and conditions at a number of financial institutions. They vary widely. You can get a good idea of current prices in the newspaper. Decide which residential areas you want to consider and check the local prices.

Unless you’re in a building trade, you won’t necessarily see the faults in a home you’re considering. Find a competent home inspector. Ask friends and neighbours for references. Be prepared to follow the advice the home inspector offers. He or she should always provide a written report. Keep in mind that home inspectors are not regulated and they are not liable for giving you incorrect information.

New Homes

Talk to the local home builders association for general information. Many home builders associations provide brochures and sample contracts to help consumers understand the market. Provincial consumer and housing ministries and their Web sites are also helpful.

Condominiums

You may be considering a condo, but if you’ve never lived in one, you should check into all the restrictions and rules before you buy. Ask to see a copy of the corporation by-laws; they may include very specific conditions, such as whether you may put in a garden or hang seasonal lights outside. Talk to people in the community. Find out about maintenance fees and how often they have increased. Check whether there is a reserve fund in place for repairs and maintenance of major items, such as roofs, driveways and parking lots.

Motor Vehicles

Buying a new car can be a big thrill, but that thrill can quickly wear off when the car is not as it was represented. Before you start looking for a car, van or personal-use truck, think about what you require. Keep in mind the distances that you typically travel, the road conditions (highways versus unpaved roads) and the types of loads you carry. No matter how appealing the sports car is, you’ll end up unhappy if it doesn’t do the job.

Choosing the right dealer can make a big difference in avoiding problems both during and after the purchase. Take the time to check potential dealers and always comparison shop. Each dealer may offer you a different “deal” on the same make and model.

Unfortunately, high-pressure sales tactics are still a problem in many areas. Don’t let yourself be talked into something that you don’t want or can’t afford. If you’re not satisfied, walk out.

Please remember that once you have signed a contract with a dealership or used vehicle seller, the contract is binding. As soon as both sides have signed, the seller is not obliged to let you out of the contract if you change your mind. There is no cooling-off period.

Make sure that you discuss all the options that you want and be careful of dealers who want to sell you a vehicle that's "loaded." Although options are generally sold in packages, there are some options you probably won't require and shouldn't pay for. When you buy near the end of the season, you may not be able to get all of your choices.

Carefully consider the question of whether to buy or lease. You can't beat an outright purchase paid in full, but few people can afford that option in today's marketplace. Whatever you decide, read the contract carefully. Compare possible financing arrangements available from a number of lenders. The difference in interest rates and prices may surprise you.

Don't forget that the cost of driving includes service, parking, insurance and fuel, and should figure into your plans when buying. In urban areas, many Canadians find the option of renting a car only when they need it to be more cost-effective than buying.

Every so often, someone buys a car that is a "lemon." Check with your provincial or territorial consumer and auto protection agencies to see whether they can help. Also, the Canadian Motor Vehicle Arbitration Plan, listed in the directory of this book, provides binding arbitration that may be an alternative to court.

Misleading Advertising

As part of its goal to provide consumers with competitive prices and product choices, the Competition Act prohibits a number of marketing practices. Consumers may complain to the federal government about any of these practices even when they have no intention of buying the product.

- Misleading advertising occurs when a representation related to a product or service is deliberately false or misleading in order to persuade the consumer to buy it.
- Double ticketing (charging the higher of two prices) occurs when a seller represents two or more prices on a product or service and the consumer is not charged the lowest price.
- Pyramid selling is a multilevel marketing plan that uses certain specific deceptive means to obtain money.
- Bait and switch occurs when a seller attracts customers by advertising a certain product or service at a bargain price, but does not supply the advertised product or service in reasonable quantity with the purpose of persuading the customer to purchase a more expensive item.

Consumers may contact the Competition Bureau to file a complaint or obtain additional information at 1-800-348-5358 or compbureau@ic.gc.ca, or visit the Bureau's Web site at <http://www.competition.ic.gc.ca>. When the matter relates to the labelling of food, contact the Canadian Food Inspection Agency. You may also contact your provincial or territorial office of consumer affairs or consumer protection office to file a complaint.

Consumers who make a purchase are also protected by laws that prohibit unfair or deceptive trade practices (please also see the sections on advance fee scams, consumer privacy, contracts, fraud and multilevel marketing).

Finally, you have the option of complaining to a non-governmental body, Advertising Standards Canada. It is made up of advertisers, representatives from advertising agencies and the media, and consumers. It discourages false or misleading advertising by its members through codes of behaviour.

Multilevel Marketing and Pyramid Selling Schemes

Multilevel marketing (MLM) is a system for selling products whereby participants in a plan are paid for selling products to other participants who, in turn, are paid for selling the same products to yet more participants. This type of marketing is legal in Canada when the plan does not contravene any requirements of the Competition Act.

Referral selling, matrix marketing and binary systems are all similar types of marketing plans, though some may be illegal under the Criminal Code, the Competition Act and some provincial and territorial laws.

Under the Competition Act, MLM plans that make representations relating to potential compensation must also disclose the amount of compensation earned by typical participants in the plan.

Pyramid selling is an MLM plan that incorporates the following deceptive practices, which make it a criminal offence under the Competition Act:

- paying money for the right to recruit new members (who also pay money for the same right);
- requiring new recruits to buy products as a condition of participation;
- selling unreasonable amounts of inventory to participants; and
- having an unreasonable product return policy.

Anyone who wishes to set up a MLM plan may approach the Competition Bureau to obtain additional details or request an advisory opinion.

Product Safety

Knowing how to use products correctly, reading instructions and being alert to hazards will help to ensure a safe environment around you. You also should pay attention to product recalls in the news and consumer magazines.

- Read about major appliances, tools and other items before you buy them. There are several consumer magazines at the library, which give detailed information on the prices, features and safety of various products.
- Learn to use power tools and electrical appliances safely. For example, if you don't know what a ground

Pyramid selling is also a criminal offence under the Criminal Code.

When considering getting involved in a MLM system, ask yourself the following questions:

- Is this type of MLM illegal? You may want to seek independent legal advice before signing any documents or committing funds.
- How much of a financial and time commitment will this system require? Some programs require you to commit substantial sums of money up front; others will ask that you purchase a large inventory of their product.
- Are you aware of the legal and fiscal considerations of becoming a seller? You must observe consumer protection laws and, in some provinces and territories, obtain a sellers permit. Both federal and provincial revenue departments will also probably require you to collect GST and provincial or territorial sales taxes.
- Are the profit levels claimed by the representatives of the MLM system realistic? In some cases, when the amount of time spent selling the products, following-up with customers and recruiting new members is considered, the resulting "hourly wage" can be quite low. Some participants in an MLM never make a profit and even lose money.

Contact the Competition Bureau, unless the complaint relates to the labelling of food, in which case contact the Canadian Food Inspection Agency.

fault circuit interrupter (GFCI) is, find out. Read the instructions carefully before using the equipment.

- Don't use things for purposes the manufacturer never intended.
- Make sure toys are age-appropriate. Your 10-year-old's baseball bat can be a lethal weapon in the hands of your three-year-old slugger.

- It is recommended that children always wear bicycle helmets. Some provinces now require it. When shopping for helmets, look for the stickers from organizations such as CSA, ANSI and/or SNELL to ensure that you are buying a safe helmet.
- Small parts can present choking hazards to young children, who put things in their mouths. Beware of balloons, balls, marbles and older children's toys.
- Baby items demand special attention. Cribs, baby walkers and baby gates have changed dramatically because of new safety requirements. Don't buy used baby items that don't comply with current standards.
- Garage and tag sales are places where small appliances, power tools, baby furniture and toys with safety defects, lead paints or other hazards get passed along to new owners. Make sure these types of items meet current safety requirements.
- Read product labels. Some products can turn into deadly poisons when mixed with other products, stored improperly or used in poorly ventilated areas.
- Keep all medicines, cleaning products, wood finishes, toxic art supplies and paint out of the sight and reach of young children. Keep leftover products in their original containers. Post the poison control emergency number near your phone. Get rid of old and outdated products.
- Look for tamper-resistant packaging on foods and medicine.
- Watch out for lead crystal decanters and dinnerware decorated with lead paint or glaze. When there's no way to ensure the items are lead-free, don't buy them.

Refund and Exchange

While no legal obligation exists for businesses to accept returned items unless they are defective, it is generally accepted that offering refunds or exchanges is a critical part of developing and maintaining good customer relations. Ask about the seller's refund or exchange policy before you buy.

Rent-to-own

Although turning to rent-to-own sounds like a simple solution for when you're short of cash, it can be expensive. The rental charge can be three or four times what it would cost to pay cash or finance the purchase at the highest interest rate typically charged in installment sales.

Before signing a rent-to-own contract, ask yourself the following questions.

- Is the item something I absolutely have to have right now?
- Can I delay the purchase until I have saved enough money to pay cash or at least make a down payment on an installment plan?
- Have I considered all my credit options, including applying for retail credit from the merchant or borrowing money from a credit union or bank?

- Would a used item purchased from a garage sale, classified ad or second-hand store serve the purpose?

If you decide that rent-to-own is the best choice for you, here are some questions you should ask before you sign on the dotted line.

- What is the total cost of the item? The total cost can be determined by multiplying the amount of each payment by the number of payments required to purchase the item. Make sure to add in any additional charges, for example, finance, handling or balloon payments at the end of the contract.
- Am I getting a new or used item?
- Can I purchase the item before the end of the rental term? If so, how is the price calculated?
- Will I get credit for all of my payments if I decide to purchase the item?

- Is there a charge for repairs during the rental period? Will I get a replacement while the rented item is not in my possession?
- What happens if I am late on a payment? Will the item be repossessed? Will I pay a penalty if I return the item before the end of the contract period?

Comparison shop among various rent-to-own merchants. Contact your provincial or territorial consumer protection agency to find out if there are any complaints on record against the business. Check for any specific provincial or territorial laws. Read the contract carefully and make sure you understand all the terms and get all promises in writing.

Remember, know what you are paying. Compare the cash price plus finance charges in an installment plan with the total cost of a rent-to-own transaction.

Telemarketing

While many legitimate businesses use the telephone to make their sales, so do an increasing number of fraudulent companies. To report deceptive telemarketing practices, contact the Competition Bureau by telephone at 1-800-348-5358 or by e-mail at compbureau@ic.gc.ca, or visit the Bureau's Web site at <http://www.competition.ic.gc.ca>. You may also call PhoneBusters at 1-888-495-8501. PhoneBusters is the national deceptive telemarketing call centre operated by the Ontario Provincial Police and supported by industry and government partners. You can also learn about consumer scams and find advice on how to deal with them at <http://www.rcmp-grc.gc.ca/scams/ecbweb.htm>.

Tips for Smart Telephone Transactions

- When you are told that you have won a prize, do not commit to purchase any other product or pay any additional fee in order to collect your prize.
- Always keep a record of the name, address and phone number of the person and the company, the goods you ordered, the date of your purchase, the amount you paid (including shipping and handling) and the method of payment.
- Keep a record of any delivery period that was promised.
- When you are told that the shipment will be delayed, write the date of that notice in your records and the new shipping date, if you've agreed to wait longer.
- Don't give your credit card number, bank account number or other personal information to a telemarketer unless you are familiar with the company or organization, and the information is necessary in order to make your purchase.

Use Caution and Common Sense

- Don't be pressured into acting immediately or without the full information you need.
- When an offer sounds too good to be true, think twice before making your final decision.
- Shop around and compare costs and services.
- Report all fraudulent activity or check the company out with your consumer affairs office, PhoneBusters or the Better Business Bureau.
- To reduce telephone calls you do not want, sign up with the free Do Not Mail/Do Not Call Service operated by the Canadian Marketing Association.

Travel

An enjoyable holiday begins with careful preparation long before you pack your bags.

Choosing a Travel Agent

- Has the agent completed a training program?
- Has he or she travelled widely?
- How many years has the agency or operator been in business?
- Does the agency or consultant belong to a travel agents association or related organization (see below)?

Ask About Agency Affiliates

Many agencies belong to professional travel or trade associations. Members must usually meet certain requirements for training, staffing and financing. Here are some common examples:

- Canadian Institute of Travel Counsellors (CITC): This is Canada's national association for travel agents. It monitors professional standards and training, and offers approved courses for travel agents. Certified Travel Counsellors are members who have passed CITC-administered exams and worked three years as full-time agents.
- International Air Transport Association (IATA): Travel agencies displaying IATA designation are authorized to sell tickets for IATA-member airlines.
- Air Transport Association of Canada: Affiliated agencies are authorized to sell domestic airline tickets.
- Alliance of Canadian Travel Associations (ACTA): Members must follow a code of standards and ethics. When a member agency has a business failure, ACTA will try to assist customers who might otherwise suffer a financial loss.

Affiliation with these groups does not guarantee that you won't have problems if the tour operator that your agent booked goes bankrupt. But it does give some measure of security.

Check Your Insurance Needs

While most holidays go smoothly, it makes sense to protect yourself should problems occur. Think about what would happen if you lost your luggage, became ill in another country, or your tour operator or airline went bankrupt. Smart travellers protect themselves from financial loss by being insurance-wise.

Review Your Coverage

Before you buy travel insurance, check what coverage you already have.

- Your personal property insurance may cover lost or stolen luggage.
- Your car insurance may provide collision and liability coverage for rented automobiles.
- Your credit card may offer baggage, medical and other types of insurance.
- Your provincial or territorial health care plan gives some medical coverage while you are out of the province or territory. Once you travel outside Canada, you are responsible for any medical and hospital costs that exceed rates set by your province or territory. Be warned that in some countries, health services cost much more than they do here. You would be wise to buy additional medical coverage to pay for the difference. Also, you should contact your provincial or territorial health care plan when you plan to be away for three months or longer.
- Find out what various insurance companies offer. Many health and accident insurance policies do not cover medical problems you already have, such as a heart condition. Read the policies carefully.

Ask About Default Insurance

Ask your agent for default insurance. It protects your money when a tour operator or other service supplier goes out of business.

ACTA now requires its member travel agents to offer default insurance to their customers. People who don't want travel insurance have to sign a waiver saying it had been offered to them and they turned it down.

Default insurance is offered not only through ACTA agents; many other agents offer it as well. Ask for it specifically.

Default protection is usually sold as part of a trip cancellation policy, but not always. Make sure you specify that you want it. Read the policy before you buy to be sure you're getting what you want.

Sometimes travel agencies will "guarantee" your trip at no extra cost. Unless the agency's guarantee is backed by an insurance policy, however, you won't be protected if the agency collapses.

Unfair or Deceptive Business Practices

Most provinces have laws that protect consumers from unfair or deceptive practices. Generally, an unfair or deceptive practice can be thought of as a representation that has the tendency or effect of misleading the average person. When you believe you have been deceived, contact your provincial or territorial consumer affairs office.

Consumers are also protected against misleading advertising.

Consumers may also contact their local Better Business Bureau, or the Competition Bureau, unless the complaint relates to the labelling of food, in which case contact the Canadian Food Inspection Agency.

Warranties

Most contracts include specific warranties to protect consumers. When they do not, some provincial and territorial legislation says that implied warranties apply to every sales contract (unless the parties lawfully agree that the warranty does not apply). You should always check the warranty on any product before you buy it. To see whether a warranty applies in your case reread the contract, or contact the consumer affairs office in the province or territory where the contract was made.

Consumers may also contact the Better Business Bureau.

Competition Policy: Competition Bureau

The Competition Bureau promotes fair competition in the marketplace by discouraging deceptive business practices.

When you or someone you know has been the victim of deceptive business practices, you should call the Bureau or fill out an on-line Inquiry Form. (The form is placed on a secure server that is designed to protect confidential information.) The information goes directly to the Bureau's Information Centre.

Bureau staff will examine your complaint to determine whether it raises concerns under the Competition Act, the Consumer Packaging and Labelling Act, the Textile Labelling Act, or the Precious Metals Marking Act. When it does, the Bureau may contact other customers or competitors to obtain more information. When, after further study, there is evidence of a possible contravention of an Act, a formal inquiry may be opened. All inquiries are conducted in private.

Public Interest Advocacy Centre

The Public Interest Advocacy Centre is a registered charitable organization federally incorporated in 1976. It provides legal advice, representation and specialized research on a non-profit basis to groups and individuals who are voicing public concern, and who would otherwise not have access to such services. Since its inception, the Centre has made issues associated with the regulatory process a priority. In particular, the Centre has developed a reputation for providing effective advocacy in the areas of telecommunications, cable broadcasting, energy, transportation and privacy.

Since 1992, the Centre has become a membership organization with nine member organizations: Alberta Council on Aging, Canadian Pensioners Concerned, Consumers Fight Back Associations, Dying with Dignity, Manitoba Society of Seniors, One Voice – Seniors Network, Ontario Coalition of Senior Citizen Organizations, PEI Council of the Disabled, and Rural Dignity of Canada. The Centre's constitution provides that the members of these organizations are also associate members of the Centre. As a result, the Centre has 2 305 650 members. In addition, the Centre has 900 individual members, donors and supporters, provides legal services to approximately 25 national and provincial organizations, and distributes its newsletter to approximately 1500 individuals, companies and government agencies.

Better Business Bureaus

Better Business Bureaus (BBBs) are non-profit organizations supported primarily by local business members. The focus of BBB activities is to promote an ethical marketplace by encouraging honest advertising and selling practices, and by providing alternative dispute resolution. BBBs offer a variety of consumer services. For example, they provide consumer education materials, answer consumer questions, provide information about a company, particularly whether there are unanswered or unsettled complaints against the company or other marketplace problems, help resolve buyer-seller complaints against a company, including in some cases mediation and arbitration services, and provide information about charities and other organizations seeking public donations.

BBBs usually request that a complaint be submitted in writing so that an accurate record exists of the dispute. The BBB will then take up the complaint with the company involved. If the complaint cannot be satisfactorily resolved through communication with the business, the BBB may offer an alternative dispute settlement process, such as mediation or arbitration. BBBs do not judge or rate individual products or brands, handle complaints concerning the price of goods or services, handle employer-employee wage disputes or give legal advice.

When you need help with a consumer question or complaint, call your local BBB to ask about its services. Or you can go on-line to acquire information about the BBB through the Internet. The BBB World Wide Web server features consumer fraud and scam alerts and provides information about BBB programs, services and locations.

Automobiles

When you have a problem with an automobile, first try to work it out with the dealer. When the problem remains unresolved, contact the manufacturer. Contact information is listed below. Some companies have one customer service centre in the United States that serves both Canada and the United States.

Some companies ask that you have the following information available when you contact them. It allows them to better assist you:

- Vehicle Identification Number
- vehicle owner's name
- vehicle owner's address
- current odometer reading
- explanation of the problem.

When you still cannot resolve your problem, contact one of the dispute resolution services listed below.

For automobile-related information, you may also wish to contact a government office, a consumer group or non-consumer group that specializes in automotive issues.

Dispute Resolution

The Canadian Motor Vehicle Arbitration Plan (CAMVAP) provides a neutral third party to resolve disputes between consumers and vehicle manufacturers about alleged manufacturing defects or the implementation of the manufacturer's new vehicle warranty when the vehicle was made in the current or previous four model years. This service is available across the country. You can reach CAMVAP toll free at 1-800-207-0685, or go to CAMVAP's Web Site (<http://www.camvap.ca>).

Ontario residents may also contact the Marketplace Standards and Services Branch of the Ministry of Consumer and Business Services regarding car repair complaints. Staff review these complaints to see whether the company doing the repair has contravened the Ontario Motor Vehicle Repair Act. This includes reviewing warranty issues, old parts returned and estimates.

For complaints regarding dealerships, Ontario residents should contact the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council (OMVIC). OMVIC is a not-for-profit, self-managed industry council, delegated to administer the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. OMVIC regulates and registers dealers and salespersons of new and used motor vehicles. It also handles consumer complaints, dealership inspections and investigations.

Alberta residents should contact the Alberta Motor Vehicle Industry Council (AMVIC) regarding complaints about the sale, lease and repair of motor vehicles. AMVIC is a not-for-profit, self-managed industry council delegated to administer the licensing of automotive businesses and the investigation of automotive complaints relating to the sale, lease and repair of motor vehicles under the Fair Trading Act and the Automotive Business Licensing Regulation.

British Columbia residents who have problems with their auto insurance may take advantage of a dispute resolution service offered by the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia.

Financial Services

This category is divided into the four “pillars” of Canadian financial services:

- banks
- trust companies, credit unions, cooperatives and caisses populaires
- insurance companies
- securities.

Banks

If you have a concern or problem with your bank, the first thing you should do is try to address it with your branch or service centre. A customer service representative may be able to help you. If not, you should ask to speak with a supervisor or manager.

If your situation has not been resolved to your satisfaction, you should find out what to do next within your bank. In some cases, the next step is to contact a regional or area manager or local executive office. Ask a representative or manager at your branch or service centre for the number or address of the person you should contact, or call one of the numbers below.

When the problem still cannot be settled to your satisfaction, your next move is to involve your bank's ombudsman. An ombudsman's job is to help consumers resolve disputes with their bank. Below is a complete list of the ombudsmans' offices across Canada. Beyond your bank's ombudsman is the Canadian Banking Ombudsman (CBO). The CBO is an independent body that investigates complaints from individuals and small business about banking services. Its objective is to provide impartial and prompt resolution of complaints.

For information on bank self-regulation, contact the Canadian Banker's Association, and for information on government regulation, contact the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions.

Securities

Before purchasing securities (i.e. stocks, bonds and mutual funds), you may wish to seek out information and advice. Four sources – from consumer groups to industry associations – that answer securities questions are set out below.

Every province has a securities commission to administer and enforce securities legislation. Their mandates include protecting investors from unfair, improper and fraudulent practices. Complaints can be sent to the commissions. Given the confidential nature of the complaint, some commissions request complaints be sent in hard copy rather than electronically.

Investor Information

Canadian ShareOwners Association
The Canadian ShareOwners Association is an independent non-profit organization serving the needs of individual investors and investment clubs. Its mandate is to educate Canadians on successful investing, and it offers programs and tools to make investing easier for Canadians.

The association currently has approximately 10 000 members. Ten regional chapters have been formed in cities across Canada. It produces and distributes the bimonthly Canadian Shareowner magazine to its members.

Individual memberships are CAN$89 per year.
Investment club rates are available upon request.

You may subscribe to Canadian Shareowner without joining the association. Subscription rates: CAN$68 per year in Canada (including GST).

Payment may be made by Visa or MasterCard or cheque (payable to Canadian Shareowner).

Energy and Utilities

By employing suggestions from Natural Resources Canada's Office of Energy Efficiency, consumers can save money on their utility bills.

If you wish to complain about your utility bill, contact your utility company. If you cannot resolve the dispute, contact your provincial utility commission or board. These bodies regulate utility corporations.

In Ontario, users of natural gas may also complain to the Ontario Energy Marketers Association.

Tips on Energy Efficiency

Credit

If you wish to know the contents of your credit history, contact your local credit bureau by calling the toll-free number listed below.

Credit counselling is available in most provinces, either through a government office or a non-profit agency.

If you are contacted by a collection agent, be aware that all provinces set out rules that collection agencies must follow. For advice on how to respond to a collection agent, refer to the first part of this handbook on general information. Consumers who wish to complain about a collection agency may contact their provincial or territorial office of consumer affairs. Consumers in British Columbia should contact the Director of Debt Collection.

For those who declare bankruptcy, the Office of the Superintendent of Bankruptcy works to ensure that the bankruptcy process is conducted in a fair and orderly manner. Under certain circumstances the Office will assist debtors in finding a trustee in bankruptcy. It also investigates complaints from debtors regarding a possible wrong.

In Saskatchewan there is special help for farmers facing bankruptcy.

New Home Warranty Programs

New homebuyers may be interested in taking advantage of a new home warranty program. These programs are available in most provinces. For a fee, owners may purchase a limited warranty for their home. As well, homes built under these programs are built in accordance with the National Building Code of Canada. Potential homebuyers may be interested in seeking the assistance of a professional, including a home inspector or a real estate agent. Renters and those in need of housing assistance should contact their provincial office responsible for housing.

Health and Food

If you are concerned about food safety contact the Canadian Food Inspection Agency.

For general health information contact Health Canada. The department provides an extensive amount of health-related information on a variety of topics, including consumer products, seniors and healthy living. Health Canada can be contacted through its headquarters or one of the regional offices. For those who have access to the Internet, this information is more easily accessible on Health Canada's Health Promotion Online Internet site.

Several provinces also provide toll-free health information lines, as well as Internet sites.

Finally, consumers may wish to contact consumer and non-governmental organizations that provide health information.
