

HOUSING MARKET OUTLOOK

Ontario Region Highlights

CANADA MORTGAGE AND HOUSING CORPORATION

Date Released: Third Quarter 2012

Figure 1

Figure 2

Resale

- Lower mortgage rates supported Ontario existing home sales early in 2012.
- Existing home sales will moderate during the remainder of the year as tighter mortgage market conditions dampen consumer demand.
- Less momentum in housing demand later this year and early 2013 prompted a downward revision to Ontario annual home sales this year and next. Owing to economic uncertainty, Ontario sales will range between 183,700 to 207,100 transactions this year and next.
- An improving job market and low interest rates should help existing home sales remain near recent year highs in 2013.

Resale Prices

- Ontario resale prices grew at an above inflationary rate early in 2012
- While the balance between demand and supply remained steady rising detached home sales kept prices growing early this year.
- A balanced market and fewer home sales at higher price ranges suggests Ontario price growth will slow.

Housing Starts

- High density projects were selling quicker and breaking ground faster suggesting activity will moderate later in 2012 and into 2013.
- After growing to over 67,821 unit starts, starts will show further growth and reach 75,100 starts in 2012 before cooling in 2013.
- Owing to economic uncertainty, starts will range between 56,800 to 78,400 units this year and 2013.
- High density housing will drive growth in 2012, before cooling in 2013.

Economic Forecasts

- Ontario's economy will fall short of growth in the rest of Canada in 2012/13.
- High commodity prices and a gradually improving US economy will support strength in traditional goods producing sectors.
- Northern and selected southwestern Ontario economies will benefit most from improving goods sector performance.
- Banking and public administration sectors will contribute less growth to the Toronto and Ottawa economy, respectively.
- Ontario's population growth will be driven by immigration.

Figure 3

- Migratory inflows from other provinces will moderate as Ontario's economic and job prospects fall short of the Canadian average in the near term.

expensive housing and an improving migration picture.

Housing Forecasts

- Housing activity will hold up better in northern and southwestern Ontario communities thanks to improving goods sector performance, relatively less
- Larger southern Ontario housing markets held back by high home prices, rising apartment inventories and less investor demand.
- Detached construction will outpace growth in higher density housing thanks to improving income growth, lower unsold inventories and tight detached resale market conditions.

Mortgage Rates

- CMHC uses publicly available information and the consensus among major Canadian forecasters regarding interest rates. Although there is significant uncertainty, mortgage rates are not expected to rise in the short term and will remain low by historical standards.
- According to CMHC's base case scenario, for 2012, the one-year posted mortgage rate is expected to be in the 3.2 to 3.4 per cent range, while the five-year posted mortgage rate is forecast to be within 5.2 to 5.3 per cent. For 2013, the one-year posted mortgage rate is expected to rise and be in the 3.5 to 4.2 per cent range, while the five-year posted mortgage rate is forecast to be within 5.1 to 5.4 per cent, reflecting more solid economic growth prospects as 2013 progresses.
