

Moving Out on Your Own

Whether it's moving
into residence,
renting an apartment,
or buying a home,
moving out is a big financial step — but we can help make the transition easier.

Costs of moving out: Rent, outfitting your new place and security deposits—our website lays out your possible expenses, so you can get a good idea of what the monthly costs will be. We also offer useful online resources, such as worksheets and a Budget Calculator.

Can you afford to move? You're probably itching to get out, but how's your credit? Are you in debt? Let us show you how to make a balanced budget and establish your financial needs before you sign a lease on that new condo.

Renting vs. buying: Many people say that you should invest in your own home, but this isn't always the best option. Visit our Moving Out Life Event Web page to see which approach is better for you.

Rental agreements: We know you're excited, but don't rush past all the fine print. We can show you what you're signing up for and, more importantly, what your rights and responsibilities are.

Housing frauds and scams: Don't get ripped off! Please take a minute to look at our website and learn how to protect yourself from deals that sound too good to be true.

Moving out worksheet: The easy-to-use worksheets on our website will make the process of moving out clear and more logical.
