President's Message

I am pleased to present the 2013-2014 Report on Plans and Priorities of the Public Service Commission (PSC).

The PSC is responsible for promoting and safeguarding merit-based appointments that are free from political influence and, in collaboration with other stakeholders, for protecting the non-partisan nature of the public service. We report independently on our mandate to Parliament. We also administer programs on behalf of departments and agencies that recruit qualified Canadians from across the country.

Under the delegated, values-based staffing system envisioned in the Public Service Employment Act (PSEA), the PSC fulfills its responsibilities by providing clear policy direction, conducting effective oversight, delivering innovative staffing and assessment programs and services, and reporting to Parliament on the performance of the staffing system and non-partisanship in the public service.

The staffing system is adapting to changes and trends in the public service environment, most notably, a smaller public service and a reduced level of staffing activity. As we move forward in these changing times, the PSC will be guided by three organizational priorities.

Our first priority is to provide ongoing independent assurance to Parliament in relation to the performance of the staffing system under the PSEA. In doing so, we will continue to focus on, and further improve, our core activities.

We will continue to adapt our oversight activities, policies and services in line with a maturing and evolving staffing system, and to meet the changing needs of departments and agencies. Our plans will include the following:

Monitoring, Audits and Investigations

- Continuing to adapt and enhance our risk-based audit approach in order to support the needs of Parliament and organizations for feedback and assurance information
- Conducting a review of our investigations function with a view to enhancing processes and procedures, where possible
- Implementing a new, streamlined Staffing Management Accountability Framework

Policies

- Mining lessons learned from our oversight activities and interaction with organizations to adapt our policy guidance, as part of a preventative approach designed to enable organizational compliance with the PSEA
- Implementing a more cohesive policy approach with organizations in order to streamline and enhance our collaboration and support of their evolving needs and priorities

Staffing and Assessment Services

- Aligning services with the changing needs of departments and agencies
- Modernizing services using Internet-based tools

Our second priority is to continue to enhance the Priority Administration Program.

With the increase in the number of surplus employees who have a priority entitlement, our goal is to help the public service retain their valuable skills and experience, while making sure that their rights under the PSEA are respected. The PSC will continue to make policy, program and system improvements to provide greater access, fairness and transparency, and to ensure the placement of as many priority persons as possible, as quickly as possible. An on-line priority portal now allows priority persons to actively participate in the administration of their own priority entitlement, as well as their search for continued employment. We will continue to work in strong collaboration with stakeholders to rigorously manage this program.

Our third priority is to work with stakeholders to foster increased awareness of non-partisanship as a core value of the public service. We will continue to collaborate with organizations, communicate regularly and improve our tools to help public servants better understand their legal rights and responsibilities under the PSEA. We will also implement the revised self-assessment tool, to help public servants make informed decisions about engaging in a political activity.

As we implement these three priorities in the current environment of fiscal constraint, we will do everything necessary to create a more efficient and integrated approach to our oversight and delivery functions. In this regard, we now have seven years of experience in implementing our responsibilities under the revised PSEA and are nearing completion of our first full audit cycle of departments and agencies, so there is a unique opportunity to take fuller advantage of our experience to date to improve our processes.

In this context, we will work more closely and collaboratively with departments and agencies to help them build a stronger culture of prevention and compliance while we continue to deliver on our fundamental responsibility to provide independent oversight and assurance to Parliament. The priorities and actions for 2013-14 in this Report on Plans and Priorities have been designed to help us move along this path.

Implementing our priorities would not be possible without the dedication and professionalism of our employees. Their commitment will be crucial as we respond to the challenges and opportunities of a changing public service.

Section I – Public Service Commission Overview

Raison d'être

The Public Service Commission (PSC) is dedicated to building a public service that strives for excellence. The PSC protects merit and non-partisanship and the use of both official languages in a staffing context, while ensuring respect for the values of fairness, access, transparency and representativeness.

The PSC recruits talented Canadians to the public service. The PSC continually renews its recruitment services to meet the needs of a modern and innovative public service. The PSC also helps the public service retain and redeploy experienced and skilled employees with priority entitlement whose jobs have been affected by public service downsizing or for other reasons, for example, former members who have been medically released from the Canadian Forces.

Responsibilities

The PSC is responsible for promoting and safeguarding merit-based appointments that are free from political influence and, in collaboration with other stakeholders, for protecting the non-partisan nature of the public service. It reports independently on its mandate to Parliament.

The PSC is mandated to:

- Appoint, or provide for the appointment of, persons to and from within the public service, based on merit and free from political influence. The Public Service Employment Act (PSEA) allows the PSC to delegate to deputy heads its authority for making appointments, subject to certain terms and conditions. This authority is currently delegated to 82 deputy heads subject to the PSEA, across the federal government;
- Administer the provisions of the PSEA that are related to the political activities of employees and deputy heads. Part 7 of the PSEA recognizes the right of employees to engage in a political activity, while maintaining the principle of political impartiality in the public service. It also sets out specific roles and responsibilities for employees and the PSC related to political activities and the administration of the related political activities regime; and
- Oversee the integrity of the staffing system and ensure non-partisanship. This oversight role includes: the ongoing monitoring of the staffing performance of delegated organizations; the conduct of audits that provide an independent assessment of the performance and management of staffing activities; and, the conduct of investigations of staffing processes and improper political activities by public servants.

- 2. Enhancing and adapting our outreach, instruments and procedures to promote awareness of non-partisanship, to help public servants better understand their legal rights and responsibilities under the PSEA

Risk Analysis

Operating Environment

The PSC operates in a dynamic and complex environment that requires it to be efficient, adaptive and innovative. It uses integrated risk management, including the annual development of a Corporate Risk Profile, to identify and respond to challenges and opportunities. What follows is a brief assessment of the operating environment, and the identification of the three risk areas critical to achieving its Strategic Outcome for 2013-14.

Key Risk Areas

(1) Increased Volume of Priority Persons in the Priority Administration Program

The PSC has legal responsibility for, and plays a leadership role in, ensuring that persons who meet specific conditions to be appointed in priority to all other persons are referred to vacancies and appointed, if qualified. As a result of an increase in the number of employees declared surplus, the Priority Administration Program has experienced increases in the volume of priority persons. The Priority Administration Program helps the public service retain competent employees and provide hiring managers with access to qualified persons who can be appointed quickly and efficiently.

The PSC will mitigate this risk by reallocating resources to support any further changes in volume. Furthermore, the PSC will implement an enhanced priority appointment policy framework with related system and communication improvements to ensure the appointment of priority persons.

(2) Increased Demand for Policy Advice and Shifting Demand for Services

As a result of reductions to the size of the public service, the maturing of the staffing system and the continued modernization of staffing processes and systems, the PSC is experiencing changes in demand for some of its programs and services. Demand for certain staffing and assessment services is declining as the public service gets smaller and departments become more self-reliant, with stronger staffing systems and enhanced human resources (HR) capacity. At the same time, the PSC is experiencing an increase in demand for policy advice and guidance resulting from its proactive approach to supporting organizational capacity in an evolving environment. Adapting the PSC's policy advice and staffing services to meet this shifting demand poses a challenge to the PSC's capacity to reallocate resources in a timely and effective manner. In order to respond to these changes, the PSC will need to enhance its integrated approach to governance, corporate planning and resource allocation supported by the ongoing monitoring and analysis of the evolving environment.

(3) Maintaining Business Continuity in the Move to Gatineau, Quebec, and Changing Environment

The PSC will relocate its Headquarters to Gatineau in 2013. The move to Gatineau will support new ways of working and new work tools, including the adoption of workplace 2.0 standards. The move will pose the kind of risks that arise in managing any such change — managing costs, disruptions to PSC operations and potential challenges to helping people adapt to change.

The PSC is addressing this risk through improved governance, an integrated approach to planning, change management, careful project management and measures to sustain employee engagement and retain talent.

Further details about the PSC's corporate risk profile which includes risk mitigation strategies are available in the electronic version of this document, in the publications section of the PSC Web site, at www.psc-cfp.gc.ca.

Expenditure Profile

Spending Trend

The following graph illustrates the PSC's spending trend from 2009-10 to 2015-16. This graph includes planned spending for Assessment Services, for which the PSC has had authority from Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat since 2005-06 to use cost recovery.

<sup>* 2009-10 –</sup> the $1K difference in the total spending of $117,825K is due to rounding. ** 2013-14, 2013-14 and 2015-16 – the amount of $14,000K represents the PSC's maximum vote netting authority, not the forecasted revenues.

Analysis of the Spending Trend

The decrease in the spending trend is primarily due to the budgetary items listed in the table below, as well as fluctuations in the Vote Netted Revenues, the transfer of some IT activities to Shared Services Canada and Budget 2012 measures.

The planned spending of $89,950K in 2013-14 represents a decrease of $8,267K from the forecast spending of $98,217K in 2012-13.

The following table explains the variation between the 2012-13 forecast spending and the 2013-14 planned spending figures:

Item	Amount ($ thousands)
Severance pay, parental benefits and vacation credits payable upon termination of employment	(4,888)

*This variation will be offset by non-core organization funding, which can only be transferred through the in-year Supplementary Estimates exercise.

Program 1.3.0 – Oversight of Integrity in Staffing and of Non-partisanship

The Oversight of Integrity in Staffing and of Non-partisanship program provides an accountability regime for the implementation of the appointment policy. It also provides a regulatory framework for safeguarding the integrity of public service staffing and ensuring that staffing is free from political influence. This program includes monitoring departments' and agencies' staffing performance and compliance with legislative requirements; conducting audits and studies; carrying out investigations; and reporting to Parliament on the integrity of public service staffing and the non-partisanship of the public service.
