Resale

- Demand for resale homes will hold up better versus new construction demand over the forecast horizon.
- An improving Ontario economy is expected to contribute more to housing demand in 2015, given more modest job growth registered in recent years.
- Rising home prices will dampen demand, particularly for single detached homes, by 2016.
- Owing to economic uncertainty, Ontario sales will range between 188,800 to 220,500 transactions in 2015.
- Ontario existing home sales could be closer to the higher end of range should inflation pressures subside – keeping interest rates low longer.

Resale Prices

- Ontario prices grew above the general rate of inflation in recent years.
- Growth in home prices will converge closer to income growth over forecast horizon as markets remain balanced. As demand shifts to less expensive housing, price gap between detached and higher density housing will narrow.

Housing Starts

- Home starts will move modestly higher reaching 63,200 units in 2015 before slowing to 60,500 units in 2016.
- Row and apartment construction will hold up better particularly near the latter part of the forecast horizon.
- Rising home prices will dampen demand for single detached housing by 2016.
- Owing to economic uncertainty, starts will range between 54,800 to 68,100 units in 2015.
- Housing starts could be near higher end of range if job and resale markets strengthen above our baseline forecast.

Economic Forecasts

- After a period of modest growth during the post recession period, Ontario's economy will gain momentum and outpace growth in the rest of Canada in 2015 and 2016.
- A gradually improving US economy, low Canadian dollar and lower energy prices are expected to support Ontario's export and business investment sector.

Source: Statistics Canada and CMHC forecast (f)

- Ontario economic sectors better positioned to support growing US business and consumer spending should register stronger employment gains. This would include machinery manufacturing, automotive, tourism related and residential building material industries.

- Finance, Retail Trade and Public Administration sectors will contribute less growth to the Toronto and Ottawa economies.

Housing Forecasts By Ontario Region

- Restrained growth in public administration and natural resource sectors will limit job growth and in turn housing activity in eastern and northern Ontario housing markets respectively.
- Single family housing in less expensive markets bordering the GTA which include Barrie, Hamilton and Durham regions will benefit most from rising Toronto home prices.
- Demand for less expensive multi-unit ownership and rental housing will grow faster, particularly in Ontario's most expensive ownership markets by 2016.

Mortgage Rate Outlook

Mortgage rates are expected to remain at or close to current levels over the forecast horizon

- Mortgage rates will continue to be supportive of housing demand. Consistent with the view of Canadian economic forecasters, CMHC expects interest rates to remain at or very close to current levels over the forecast horizon. According to CMHC's base case scenario for 2015, the one-year mortgage rate is expected to be in the 2.60 to 3.80 per cent range, while the five-year rate is forecast
