

HOUSING MARKET ASSESSMENT

Moncton CMA

CANADA MORTGAGE AND HOUSING CORPORATION

First Quarter 2019

Sales-to-new listings ratio above threshold for first time

- A record 3,092 homes were sold in 2018, representing a 5.7% increase from 2017. Active residential listings at the end of 2018 were at a nine-year low, decreasing 17.3% from the end of 2017. Consequentially, the sales-to-new listings ratio went above the 70% threshold for the first time.
- Total employment grew 4.6% in 2018 compared to 2017 and was mostly driven by gains in full-time employment.¹ More importantly, there was strong employment and population growth among young adults who typically have a higher propensity to seek housing.
- However, overheating vulnerabilities indicating when demand is too strong relative to supply remain low as this is the first occurrence and the indicator was only marginally above threshold.

Low evidence of vulnerability maintained across all indicators

- The sharp decline in home listings amidst an unprecedented level of sales pushed the average MLS[®] price 7.3% in 2018 compared to 2017. As a result, the overvaluation factor is trending upwards due to this price growth despite rising interest rates and lack of growth in disposable income.
- Nonetheless, indicators for price acceleration, overvaluation and overbuilding all remain below levels of concern.

“Recording breaking sales, amidst very low active listings has the Moncton CMA market on the brink of overheating. However, market indicators all still remain below levels of concern.”
