Introduction

Genealogy and Family History at the National Library of Canada

The National Library of Canada offers a number of collections and services of interest to genealogists and family historians undertaking research on Canadian ancestors. The collections include published sources such as family and local histories, transcriptions and indexes of parish registers, cemetery transcription lists and the periodicals of genealogical and historical societies from across Canada. As well, the National Library holds an excellent collection of Canadian newspapers in microform format. Many of these items are available for interlibrary loan through the intermediary of a public or other library. Bibliographic information about these publications is included in AMICUS, the National Library's online database.

Historical and current directories for Canadian cities, counties and provinces are housed in the National Library's Reference Collection and are available for onsite consultation. The Reference Collection also includes sources such as handbooks and directories for genealogical research, biographical and genealogical dictionaries, newspaper indexes and bibliographies of family histories. Bilingual reference librarians are available to assist researchers in the use of these sources.

Researchers unable to visit the National Library in person may submit questions relating to Canadian genealogy via the telephone, regular or electronic mail. We will attempt to locate relevant publications in our collection and/or to refer researchers to other organizations which may prove helpful.

The National Library has also prepared a number of publications of use to genealogists. These include:

Checklist of indexes to Canadian newspapers (1987) and Canadian directories, 1790-1987: a bibliography and place-name index (1989).

It is hoped that this bibliography of reference sources for Canadian genealogy will also prove useful. Most of the items described are held in the Reference Collection of the National Library of Canada, while a few are housed in the general collection. Several items (without call numbers) are not presently held by the National Library. This bibliography is also available in French under the title: Ouvrages de référence en généalogie canadienne.

Illustrated historical atlas of...

Illustrated historical atlases were published in Canada during the period 1875 through 1881. The largest number were published for the counties of Ontario. Generally they include a historical sketch of the county, maps of the townships, towns and villages which often note land holders' names, illustrations of public buildings, a directory, portraits and business cards of subscribers. Many of these atlases have been reprinted with revisions. A few have been reproduced on microfiche by the Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions. Genealogical indexes have been compiled and separately published for others. A bibliography of the atlases was published under the title: County atlases of Canada : a descriptive catalogue = Atlas de comtés canadiens : catalogue descriptif ([Ottawa] : National Map Collection, Public Archives of Canada, 1970).

Data of genealogical and historical interest collected from registers of baptisms, marriages and burials, census returns and other sources such as marriage contracts, lists of immigrants, confirmations, hospitalized persons, etc. Undertaken as a demographic study of early Quebec by the Programme de recherche en démographie historique of the Université de Montréal. Approximately 300,000 baptisms, marriages and burials are noted. Volumes cover the following time periods: vol. 1-7, 17th century; vol. 8-17, 1700-1729; vol. 18-30, 1730-1749; vol. 31-45, 1750-1765; vol. 46-47, addenda, 1700-1765. Revised second editions of volumes 1-7 were published in 1991.

For each time period, parishes governed by the cities of Quebec, Trois-Rivières and Montreal are grouped. Within each parish, baptisms, marriages and burials are listed in separate chronological sequences. Information from census returns and other sources are listed separately. Separate indexes of names are provided for parishes and for other sources included in each volume. A general index of names is provided for each time period.
