May 2009

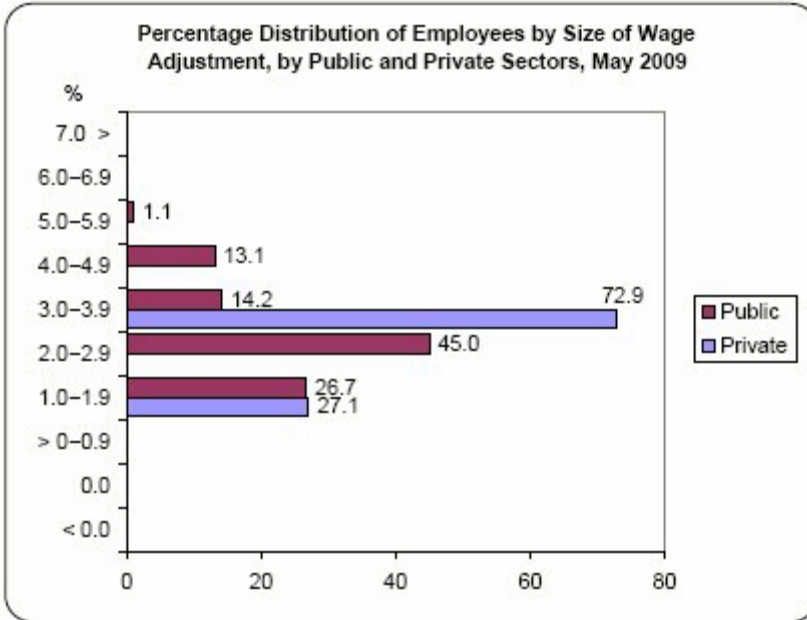

Major collective bargaining settlements reached in May 2009 provided base-rate wage adjustments averaging 2.7% annually over the contract term. The results are based on a review of 34 settlements and cover 77,120 employees.

When the parties to these settlements previously negotiated, contract durations averaged 42.8 months and the wage adjustments, 3.0%, compared to 40.6 and 2.7% in their current round of settlements.

The May figure was largely influenced by 23 agreements covering 37,780 employees in the education, health, and social services sector (accounting for 68% of the total number of agreements and 49% of the total number of employees). This sector recorded an average annual wage increase of 2.7%. The vast majority of the agreements were in the Ontario education sector, most with wage adjustments averaging 2.5%, while a few had wage adjustments of 3.0 to 3.5%.

The majority of agreements (91%) and employees (96%) in May 2009 were in the public sector. The results are based on a review of 31 settlements and cover 74,170 employees, and the wage adjustments averaged 2.7%, the same as in the previous month.

The public sector includes the 23 agreements in the education, health, and social services sector mentioned above. Private-sector wage adjustments averaged 2.9%, an increase from the 2.0% figure recorded in the previous month. The results are based on a review of 3 settlements and cover 2,950 employees.

On a jurisdictional basis, Newfoundland and Labrador recorded the largest average wage adjustment at 5.0% (1 agreement covering 810 employees). The smallest average wage adjustment was recorded in the federal jurisdiction at 1.8% (1 agreement covering 12,790 employees). The largest concentration of agreements (74%) and employees (66%) was in Ontario where wage adjustments averaged 2.5%.

On an industry basis, average wage adjustments ranged from a low of 2.2% in the manufacturing sector (2 agreements covering 1,450 employees), to a high of 4.5% in the transportation sector (1 agreement covering 1,800 employees).
