Working Conditions

The Regional Health Authorities of Manitoba, province-wide and Manitoba Government and General Employees' Union have agreed to convert a number of casual positions in home care to equivalent full-time (EFT) positions in order to promote stability and enhance retention in the home-care workforce. The plan consists of implementing a scheduling and delivery model to convert casual positions to permanent full and part-time status. While it is recognized that the maximum transition to equivalent full-time positions will vary from region to region, it is anticipated that the effort will result in an approximate average of 60% of home care service hours across the province moving to full- or regular part-time status, with a minimum of 50% per Health Authority.

The Government of Quebec and the Fédération interprofessionnelle de la santé du Québec (FIQ), which represents 46,730 nurses, agreed to a 40% reduction of independent labour from health employment agencies by 2015. This agreement aims to lower the percentage of private labour used, from 3.73% to 2.00%. The parties also agreed to set up a provincial committee to monitor this situation.

Health and Wellness

Cameco Corporation, Key Lake and McArthur River, Saskatchewan and United Steel, Paper and Forestry, Rubber, Manufacturing, Energy, Allied Industrial and Service Workers International Union (USW), have introduced a Long Service Recognition bonus that provides retiring employees with a lump-sum payment equal to $200 per year of continuous service. To be eligible for the payment, employees must be 55 years of age or older with a minimum 25 years' continuous service, and they must provide nine months written notice of their intention to retire. Benefit is not be pro-rated for last year of service and will be paid out following the employee's last day of work.

Pensions

The Government of Quebec and a number of unions representing a combined 375,440 Quebec government employees have agreed to raise the age of retirement. Employees will now be able to accumulate up to 38 years of service toward their pensions, instead of 35 years. Therefore, employees can increase their pensions to 76% of their average salary over the best five years, compared to 70% before.

The City of Laval and the Fédération des policiers et policières du Québec, which represents 500 Laval police officers, have agreed to create a retention program. Through this program, a single lump sum, based on the number of points earned, would be paid upon retirement. Points are the sum of the retiree's age and years of service. Employees may enter the program between January 1, 2010, and December 31, 2013, provided that they have at least 75 points before the latter date.

An employee would then receive a sum between $10,000 and $45,000 upon their retirement, for point totals ranging from 77 to 87 and above. This program aims to delay retirement, because an employee's lump sum will continue to increase until they decide to retire.
