A. Introduction

Note: This introduction to Info Source is in large print to assist persons with visual disabilities.

Info Source: Sources of Federal Government Information will make it fast and easy for you to find out about the Government of Canada, its organization and its information holdings. It will help you determine where you should go, write or call to make government enquiries, and is likely to be the first and only step you'll need to take to locate the source of the information you want.

This book is also key to learning how to exercise your rights under two Canadian laws - the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act. See the section entitled "How to apply" to learn how to request information in accordance with these acts.

First, however, it is helpful for you to understand the basic differences between the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act. The information accessible under each Act is different and there are different procedures to obtain it. The following pages describe the essential details.

B. Inside Info Source

This Info Source book has three main components:

Table of Contents

The Table of Contents is organized alphabetically by the commonly used name of the department or agency, such as Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada or Health Canada, rather than by their legal titles, Department of Agriculture and Agri-Food or Department of Health.

Introduction

The Introduction includes:

- information about the terms used throughout the book, some essential points about the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act, and directions on how to locate information by using Info Source or by making a formal request under either Act;
- a summary of the roles and responsibilities of the federal government institutions that are either responsible for the production of Info Source or are responsible for the provision of input to the Info Source publications;

- a listing of Access to Information and Privacy Coordinators, which is organized in the same order as the Table of Contents, gives you the address and telephone number of all Access to Information and Privacy offices; and
- the description of the Standard Program Records — see definition under “Useful Terms” below.

Chapters

There is one chapter for each federal government department or agency subject to the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act, or to the Privacy Act only. Except for the institutions subject to the Privacy Act only, each chapter contains:

General Information about the institution, including:

- Background
- Responsibilities
- Legislation
- Organization

Information Holdings including:

- Program Records
- Standard Program Records
- Personal Information Banks
- Classes of Personal Information
- Manuals

Additional Information including:

- Address of a central information source, as well as regional addresses, if any
- Reading Room(s)

C. Useful terms

Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator: Each federal government department or agency has an Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator. The Coordinators' offices are staffed by people who can answer questions and help you identify the records you wish to see.

The Coordinators may be contacted in person, by telephone, by letter or through the completion of the Access to Information and/or Privacy Request form. If you send a completed Access Request form or letter, include as much information as you can to help the staff locate the records you want and send you a reply as soon as possible.

Administrative Purpose: The use of personal information in a decision making process that directly affects that individual.

Bank Number: (See "Program Record Number or Bank Number" below.)

Classes of Personal Information: Other personal information not used administratively or not retrievable by personal identifier, for instance unsolicited opinions, complaints or correspondence, is described under "Classes of Personal Information". This category was included to ensure that government departments and agencies account for all personal information that they hold.

Data Matching: An activity that involves comparing personal data obtained from a variety of sources, including personal information banks, for the purpose of making decisions about the individuals to whom the data pertains.

Information Life Cycle: The life cycle of information encompasses the stages of the planning, collection, creation, receipt, and capture of information; its organization, retrieval, use, accessibility, dissemination and transmission; its storage, maintenance, and protection; and its disposition and preservation.

Manuals: The manuals listed under this title contain the directives, instructions, guidelines or procedures that are used by the employees of a department or agency to carry out its operations, activities or programs.

Multi-Institutional Disposition Authority (MIDA): A MIDA is a Records Disposition Authority granted by the National Archivist to government institutions on a multi-institutional basis, which relates to records managed by all or a multiple number of government institutions, and which allows the institutions empowered to use the authority to dispose of records under certain terms and conditions. The Multi-Institutional Disposition Authorities are designed to eliminate the need for government institutions individually to prepare submissions for and negotiate agreements with the National Archivist for records that have similar administrative or operational status.

There are currently three categories of MIDA. They are:

1. Transitory Records

- The Authority for the Destruction of Transitory Records

2. Common Administrative Records

http://www.archives.ca/06/0610_e.html

- General Administrative Function (Authority No. 98/001)
- Real Property Management Function (Authority No. 2001/002)
- Material Management Function (Authority No. 99/003)
- Comptrollership Function (Authority 99/004)
- Human Resources Management Function (Authority No. 98/005)

3. Common Operational and Medium-Specific Records

- Institutional Records in the Office of a Minister (Authority No. 96/021)
- Records of Deputy Heads of Government Institutions (Authority No. 96/022)
- Electronic Imaging Systems (Authority No. 96/023)
- Poster-Creating Areas of Government Institutions (Authority No. 96/024)
- Audio-Visual Records Stored on Behalf of Client Departments (Authority No. 2001/004)

Questions concerning the application or interpretation of the Multi-Institutional Disposition Authorities may be addressed to the Information Management Centre of the National Archives of Canada (NA) at (613) 944-IMGI (4644) or by e-mailing imgj@archives.ca

Personal Information Banks: Personal Information Banks provide a summary of the type of information about individuals that is held by federal departments and agencies. The Privacy Act requires that Personal Information Banks include all personal information that is organized and retrievable by a person's name or by an identifying number, symbol or other particular assigned only to that person. Personal Information Banks must also include personal information that has been or is being used, or is available for use for an administrative purpose.

There are four types of Personal Information Banks (PIB), but this publication contains only one of the types of PIBs, a Particular Bank that describes personal information about members of the general public, contained in the records of the particular institution declaring that PIB. In addition, this type of Personal Information Bank may describe personal information about members of the general public and federal employees (current and former).

These Personal Information banks are identified with the unique identifier "PPU".

The other three types of Personal Information Banks (PIB) relate to current and former Government of Canada employees and these PIBs are contained the complementary volume to this publication — Info Source: Sources of Federal Employee Information. This book is available in the office of the Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator at each federal government department or agency, federal government personnel offices and federal libraries.

The Personal Information Banks contained within Info Source: Sources of Federal Employee Information are as follows:

Standard Banks: There are 23 Standard Personal Information Banks that describe the information that may be contained in the common administrative records that many government institutions maintain about their employees. Institutions may require several or all of these banks to describe the personal information contained within their records. The Standard Banks describe information about pay and benefits, training and development, performance, etc.

Standard PIBs are identified with the unique identifier "PSE" as part of the bank number contained within the PIB.

Central Banks: These records and their related banks are maintained by central agencies such as the Public Service Commission, Public Works and Government Services Canada, and the Treasury Board of Canada

Secretariat. They describe information about employees from all or several government institutions.

Central Banks are identified with the unique identifier “PCE” as part of the bank number contained within the PIB.

Particular Banks: Particular Banks describe personal information about employees that is specific to the requirements of each department or agency and is held within their record keeping systems.

Particular information banks are identified with the unique identifier “PPE” as part of the bank number contained within the PIB.

Program Records: The Program Records provide pointers to program information held by each federal government department or agency within their record keeping system. The Program Record descriptions identify the subject areas covered by these programs.

Program Record Number or Bank Number: This unique identifying number located at the end of each Program Record or Personal Information Bank helps the Access to Information and Privacy office to locate the information requested. This number is assigned by each institution as a finding tool to access the information contained in their records.

Reading Room: The Access to Information Act requires all government institutions to provide facilities where their manuals can be reviewed. The location of one or more reading rooms is provided under this heading.

Records Disposition Authority: In accordance with the provisions of the National Archives of Canada Act, a Records Disposition Authority is the instrument that the National Archivist issues to enable government institutions to dispose of records which no longer have operational utility, either by permitting their destruction, by requiring their transfer to the National Archives or by agreeing to their alienation from the control of the Government of Canada.

Accountability regarding the decision to destroy records and the timing of records destruction rests with individual government institutions. Records Disposition Authorities are normally applied when records are no longer required to support the business functions, operations and activities of the organization.

Retention Guidelines: Government institutions are responsible for ensuring that all information/records are managed within an established life cycle. The retention guidelines provide a timetable for the length of time institutional information/records are maintained within the institution, when the information/records are no longer required to meet operational, legal or other requirements, and when the Records Disposition Authorities can be applied to the information/record holdings for final disposition.

It is incumbent upon each government institution to understand and apply any legislation regarding the retention of information and more specifically, its own legislation. Each government institution is therefore required to determine the appropriate retention periods for its records, including those common administration records covered by a MIDA. The National Archives of Canada does provide guidelines on retention periods for common administrative records on their Internet site at www.archives.ca.

Standard Program Records: Many departments and agencies use Standard Program Records to list information on administrative subject areas which are common to many institutions, for example Accounts and Accounting, Budgets, Buildings, etc.

D. Roles and Responsibilities

Treasury Board

In accordance with the Access to Information Act, Treasury Board is responsible for the annual creation and dissemination of a publication that provides a description of government organizations, program responsibilities and classes of records with sufficient clarity and detail to enable the public to exercise its rights under the Access to Information Act.

Treasury Board is also responsible for the annual publication of an index of personal information that will both serve to keep the public informed of how the government handles personal information, as well as facilitating the public's ability to exercise its rights under the Privacy Act. Treasury Board Secretariat fulfils these requirements through the annual publication of Info Source that is comprised of the following publications:

- Sources of Federal Government Information
 - ◆ This publication describes the organization and its information holdings
- Sources of Federal Employee Information
 - ◆ This publication lists the personal information banks containing information related to federal employees

- Directory of Federal Government Enquiry Points
 - ◆ This publication contains contact information for federal departments and agencies
- Access to Information Act and Privacy Bulletin
 - ◆ This publication contains summaries of federal court cases and statistics of requests made under the ATIA and PA.

Info Source is distributed to libraries, municipal offices and federal government offices across Canada.

National Archives of Canada

Under the National Archives of Canada Act (1987), the National Archives is charged with various responsibilities regarding the disposition of information created by federal institutions in support of public policy, administration of government and program delivery. These responsibilities include the authorization of records destruction by government institutions and the preservation of records for their historical or archival importance.

Through the Government Records Disposition Program, the National Archivist issues Records Disposition Authorities (RDA) to enable government institutions to dispose of records which no longer have operational value, either by permitting their destruction (at the discretion of institutions), by requiring their transfer to the National Archives of Canada, or by agreeing to their alienation from the control of the Government of Canada.

Questions concerning the application or interpretation of the Multi-Institutional Disposition Authorities may be addressed to the Information Management Centre of the National Archives of Canada (NA) at (613) 944-IMGI (4644) or by e-mailing imgj@archives.ca

Individual Institutions

Government institutions are required to provide descriptions of their organization and information holdings to Treasury Board Secretariat on an annual basis. These descriptions are utilized in the production of the publications required by the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act. Consequently, each department and agency is responsible for the information it submits.

Government institutions are also responsible for ensuring that all information/records are managed within an established life cycle. It is incumbent upon each government institution to understand and apply any legislation regarding the retention of information and more specifically, its own legislation. Each government institution is therefore required to determine the appropriate retention periods for its records, including those common administrative records covered by a MIDA.

E. Access to Information Act

The Access to Information Act gives Canadian citizens as well as people and corporations present in Canada the right to have access to federal government records that are not of a personal nature. The Act complements but does not replace other procedures for obtaining government information. It is not intended to limit in any way the access to government information that is normally available to the public upon request.

Wide range of information

You can ask for information, no matter what form it is in, including letters, memos, reports, photographs, films, microfilms and computerized data. This Info Source book has been designed to help you pinpoint the department or agency where the information is held and assists you in obtaining it.

Using the Access to Information Act

Some information may be exempt or excluded under the Act.

Exemptions: Exemptions protect certain types of information that could cause harm if released. For example, some information on national security, law enforcement or trade secrets falls into this category.

Exclusions: The Access to Information Act does not apply to public information that is already available, such as publications and material in libraries and museums. It also excludes material such as Cabinet documents.

Note: Of course, the Act cannot give you access to records that are not controlled by the federal government, such as those maintained by provincial or municipal governments or by private organizations such as commercial banks and credit bureaus. Most provincial governments have legislation similar to the Access to Information Act. Consult the provincial government listings in the blue pages of your local telephone book.

How to apply

Once you have decided to make a formal request under the Access to Information Act, there are certain simple procedures to follow:

Consult Info Source to find the appropriate department or agency.

- Obtain an Access to Information Request Form from any location where Info Source is available (including the Web Site: www.tbs-sct.gc.ca/tbsf-fsct_e.html).
- If it is not convenient for you to fill in a form, you may send a letter, mentioning the Act (see details below).
- Enclose the application fee (see details below).
- Send the form or the letter to the Access to Information Coordinator at the appropriate department or agency.

If you decide to submit a letter, you must state clearly that you are requesting information under the Access to Information Act, and include the following:

- name of the government department or agency you believe has the information you want;
- description (be as specific as possible) of the records you want to see;
- preferred method of seeing the records (e.g. do you want to receive photocopies of the original documents or see the originals in the government office where they are located?);
- your name, street, address, city or town, province or territory, postal code, telephone number(s) and your signature;
- date of your request;
- application fee.

Fees and costs

An application fee of $5 (subject to change) applies and additional costs may be charged for each request. You will be notified in advance if there are additional costs and you may be asked to make a deposit. Cheques and money orders are payable to the Receiver General of Canada (unless otherwise stated).

Turnaround time

Government departments must acknowledge your request within 30 days under the Access to Information Act. However, in special cases, they may need more time to process your request. If you feel it's taking too long, you can submit a complaint to the Office of the Information Commissioner.

Information Commissioner

The Information Commissioner investigates formal complaints from members of the public arising from the Access to Information Act. If you have a complaint about the denial of access to information, fees charged for access, the time taken to respond to requests, refusal to give access in the official language requested, Info Source publications and other matters that relate to requesting or obtaining access to records, you may contact:

Office of the Information Commissioner

When the Information Commissioner's investigation is completed, an individual who is of the opinion that they have not been given access to all information which they are entitled to receive has the right to apply to the Federal Court - Trial Division for a review of the matter.

F. Privacy Act

In its day-to-day operations, federal government departments and agencies collect personal information from almost all Canadians. The Privacy Act gives Canadian citizens and people present in Canada the right to have access to information that is held about them by the federal government. It also protects against unauthorized disclosure of that personal information. In addition, it strictly controls how the government will collect, use, store, disclose and dispose of any personal information.

Most information is available when you ask

Because much of your personal information is available to you informally at your request, this Info Source book has been designed to help you pinpoint the department or agency where the information is held and assist you in obtaining it.

Types of personal information held

You probably already know about many of the programs and operations of the government that use personal information such as income tax at Canada

Customs and Revenue Agency, citizenship at Citizenship and Immigration Canada and the Employment Insurance program at Human Resources Development Canada.

Note: The Privacy Act does not control nor give you access to records that are not held by the federal government, such as those maintained by provincial or municipal governments or by private organizations such as commercial banks and credit bureaus. Most provincial governments have legislation similar to the Privacy Act. Consult the provincial government listings in the blue pages of your local telephone book.

Some personal information is confidential

The federal government must keep some personal information confidential under the Privacy Act, much of which relates to other people, national security or law enforcement.

How to apply

When you have decided to make a formal request under the Privacy Act, there are certain procedures to follow. Remember, you will find what you are looking for faster if you already have a good idea of which department or agency has the information you want.

- Obtain a Personal Information Request Form at any location where Info Source is available (including the Web Site: www.tbs-sct.gc.ca/tbsf-fsct_e.html).
- Fill out the form and identify yourself in such a way that the government can verify who you are, i.e. that it is you, and not someone else, asking for your information. The more precise the information you provide, the faster your request can be answered.
- Send the form to the Privacy Coordinator of the appropriate department or agency.
- There is no charge to apply for information under the Privacy Act.

To change the information

If you believe the information that a federal institution has on file about you is untrue or misleading, you can ask to have it corrected. Even if the department or agency does not agree to change this information, it must make a note that you have asked for the change and attach it to the file.

Safeguarding personal information

The protection of your personal information and privacy is also a very important purpose of the Privacy Act. The Act states how and when the government can collect, store and dispose of personal information. It also covers specifically why and how the information can be used or given out, as well as who can use or receive it.

Giving out information

The government can only disclose your information to someone else with your consent or when one or more of the criteria in the Privacy Act are met, such as to comply with a subpoena.

Turnaround time

Under the law, all or most of the information you ask for should be disclosed within 30 days of receiving the request. If a time extension is required, you will be notified within the first 30 days and told why up to another 30 days may be needed.

Privacy Commissioner

The Privacy Commissioner is a representative of the people with the power to look into complaints of improper collection, use, storage, disclosure or disposal of personal information. The Privacy Commissioner can also help if you are dissatisfied with the results of your formal application or the time it has taken to obtain your personal information.

When the Privacy Commissioner's investigation is completed, an individual who is of the opinion that they have not been given access to all of their personal information to which they are entitled, has the right to apply to the Federal Court - Trial Division for a review of the matter.

You can write or call the Privacy Commissioner's office at:

G. Using Info Source quickly and effectively

Determine the correct chapter

Turn to the chapter of the department or agency you think has the information, and check the Program Records and the Personal Information Banks.

If you are unsure about the correct department or agency, a telephone call or letter to any Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator's office should provide the answer.

For persons with disabilities

Individuals who are unable to exercise their rights using regular procedures may obtain further assistance from any Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator's office.

Immigration and Refugee Board

Chapter 75

General Information

Background

The IRB is an independent tribunal established by the Parliament of Canada. It is Canada's largest independent administrative tribunal. Its mission, on behalf of Canadians, is to make well-reasoned decisions on immigration and refugee matters, efficiently, fairly and in accordance with the law.

Responsibilities

Decision making is carried out by three divisions whose functions are quite distinct: the Immigration Division (ID), the Immigration Appeal Division (IAD) and the Refugee Protection Division (RPD).

Legislation

- Immigration Division Rules, SOR/2002-229
- Refugee Protection Division Rules, SOR/2002-228
- Immigration Appeal Division Rules, SOR/2002-230
- Immigration and Refugee Protection Act, R.S.C. 2001, c.27
- Immigration and Refugee Protection Regulations, 2002, SOR/2002-227

Organization

Immigration Division

The Immigration Division conducts admissibility hearings for people believed to be inadmissible to, or removable from, Canada. It also conducts detention reviews for people detained by CIC for Immigration purposes.

Refugee Protection Division

The Refugee Protection Division deals exclusively with claims to Convention refugee status and refugee protection. It is an independent, quasi-judicial tribunal that hears refugee protection claims within Canada. The Division is responsible for determining claims fairly and expeditiously, so that Canada can offer protection to Convention refugees.

Immigration Appeal Division

The Immigration Appeal Division hears appeals by Canadian citizen or permanent resident sponsors against the refusal of an application for permanent residence made by a close family member; appeals from removal orders issued against permanent residents, permanent resident visa holders, or protected persons (which includes Convention refugees) and appeals by permanent residents determined outside of Canada by an officer of Citizenship and Immigration Canada (CIC) not to have fulfilled their residency obligation. It also hears a small number of appeals made by the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration against decisions of the Immigration Division to grant admission or not order removal.

Legal Services

The Legal Services Branch is responsible for providing a full range of legal and policy advice to the IRB executive, management, decision-makers and personnel in an efficient and professional manner. Legal Services manages all litigation on behalf of the Board. Legal Services participates in appeals and applications before the higher courts as interveners in appropriate cases. Legal Services is responsible for drafting all the legal reference papers. Legal Services coordinates the Board's regulatory initiatives, including drafting the Rules of practice and procedure of the Board's three Divisions. Legal Services plays an active role in the training of Board decision-makers and staff. Legal Services produces a publication, RefLex, which contains digests of decisions of the Board and maintains electronic reference material for decision-makers and staff in Intranet, and for the wider public on the Board's internet site.

Executive Secretariat Branch

The Executive Secretariat is responsible for the following Directorates:

Access to Information and Privacy Directorate

The ATIP Directorate administrators the responsibility for the administration of the Board's access to information and privacy requirements, in accordance with the principles of open government and the protection of the privacy of the individual.

Communications Directorate

The Directorate provides communications advice, planning and support for all communications activities undertaken by the Board, including media relations, issue management, speeches, publications, public environment analysis, and information for the public. The Directorate coordinates writing services for senior management correspondence, briefing material and the production of corporate documents.

It also provides executive support services to the Office of the Chairperson of the IRB.

Editing and Translation Services Directorate

The Directorate manages the editing and translation services for the IRB, both for headquarters and the regions. This includes establishing quality standards and guidelines and providing editing and translation in both official languages, as well as multilingual translation services. The Directorate is also responsible for coordinating interpretation services, other than those for hearings, for the IRB.

Corporate Services Branch

The Corporate Services Branch is responsible for the following Directorates:

Improved Management Practices Office Directorate

In order to meet Treasury Board's requirement to implement a change-management agenda and modern comptrollership, the Improved Management Practices Office (IMPO) is responsible for coordinating and implementing an integrated management approach, bringing all of the improved management efforts and initiatives into one centrally focused and integrated action plan.

The IMPO directs the development of the Immigration and Refugee Board's modern comptrollership initiative, including integrating financial and business information, risk management and controls, internal audit and program evaluation, and values and ethics.

The Director is the IRB's "Senior Officer" within the scope of the government-wide "Policy on Internal Disclosure of Information Concerning Wrongdoing in the Workplace". In matters relating to this policy, the Director reports directly to the Chairperson.

Corporate Management Directorate

Finance

Finance is responsible for providing strategic advice and support to senior management on financial management matters including business and financial planning, policy interpretation, and cost accounting. It also develops and implements financial policies and procedures, manages the accounting operations, and is responsible for ensuring the integrity of IRB's financial systems.

Finance administers expenditure management within the IRB and prepares reports for internal and external purposes. It is the liaison with central agencies, including the Treasury Board Secretariat, the Receiver General and the Auditor General of Canada on financial policy, regulation, reporting and funding issues.

Administration

Administration is responsible for the planning, management, direction and delivery of national administrative services including the development of policies and procedures and specialist advisory services in the areas of accommodation, telecommunications, procurement and contracting, forms analysis and design, security, occupational health and safety. Administration also manages the monitoring and reporting for all administrative policies, procedures and systems to ensure compliance throughout the Board. Administration liaises with PWGSC (on accommodation matters and the management of the Board's space envelope, as well as contracting and procurement activities) and the RCMP, TBS and CSIS on security matters.

Recorded Information Management

Recorded Information Management (RIM) is the custodian of all the IRB's recorded information in paper, electronic, audio, video, and other formats. RIM strives to preserve the IRB's corporate memory and promote its usage through the application of effective management practices to the Board's information holdings that facilitate quick and effective access to this information for the benefits of IRB members and staff.

Information Systems

Information Systems (IS) provides an umbrella of technical services to the IRB on a local (Ottawa) and national basis. Along with conducting the majority of the Board's IT acquisitions, IS is responsible for supporting all IRB computers and servers, maintaining the network and telecommunication services, issuing IT policies and procedures and for all the aspects of IT security. IS is also responsible for the development, acquisition, testing and maintenance of automated systems in support of the Board's requirements, which includes the evaluation of new technological tools and approaches, and interdepartmental interfaces. In pursuit of these objectives, IS maintains relationships with various Central Agencies, including PWGSC, RCMP, CSE, and the TBS.

National Capital Region (NCR) Finance and Administration Services

The NCR, Finance and Administration Services Unit provides the following services to the National Capital Region and the Ottawa/Atlantic District offices: Accommodation (facilities management, parking, access passes, board-room reservations), Telecommunications (installations, voice mail, calling cards, line features), Security, Occupational Health & Safety, Financial (accounts payable, commitment, travel, reconciliation, relocation, reporting, banking), Contracting, Procurement, Cheque Distribution (salary and supplementary cheques, traveller's cheques), Printing, Stock-room supply, Forms Management (inventory and distribution), Mail and Courier.

Human Resources Directorate

The Directorate provides Human Resources direction, services and strategic advice to support the Board's programs, activities and initiatives. Human Resources services are delivered to Public Service employees and members across the Board, through four regional human resources offices. Services are provided in the areas of staffing and recruitment, employment equity/diversity, official languages, strategic human resources planning, human resources information systems, classification and organizational design, strategic workforce development, employee relations and compensation.

Policy, Planning and Research Branch

The Policy, Planning and Research Branch (PPR) is responsible for providing advice on strategic, policy and operational issues to the Chairperson and the Executive Director. It is accountable for developing and promoting the IRB's corporate policy positions with IRB's division heads, regional directors and with officials of PCO, CIC and other public, private and non-governmental organizations involved in the immigration and refugee portfolio. It provides functional expertise and oversight for the IRB national programs and operations and directs an international renowned research program.. This is achieved through the development of policies, tribunal procedures, service standards, performance measures, and monitoring systems, as well as through the strategic planning of operational resource utilization, that supports fair, efficient, and well-reasoned decision making in a consistent fashion across the country. The Research Program exists to meet the information requirements of those involved in Canada's refugee protection determination system. The Program produces and makes publicly available, current and reliable information related to human rights, refugee and migration issues by providing documentation that supports fair refugee protection determination. The Research Program also acts as an educational resource for organizations and individuals interested in these issues. Since November 1995, the Research Program has also been mandated to process research directives of a claim or claimant-specific nature in accordance with the instructions for the Acquisition and Disclosure of Information for Proceedings in the Refugee Division.

Indian and Northern Affairs Canada

Chapter 76

General Information

Background

The department was established under section 15 of the Government Organization Act, 1966, now the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development Act (RSC 1985 c. I-6, as amended). The department is an amalgamation of the responsibilities of the then Department of Northern Affairs and Natural Resources, and the then Department of Citizenship and Immigration pertaining to Indian people in Canada.

Responsibilities

The federal government's legislative responsibilities for Indians and Inuit derive from section 91 (24) of the Constitution Act (1867), formerly called the B.N.A. Act which gives the federal government the exclusive authority to pass laws relating to "Indians, authority, the Indian Act, which remains the major expression of federal jurisdiction in this area, was passed and a series of treaties was concluded between Canada and various Indian bands across the country. Federal jurisdiction for Indian peoples under the Constitution Act was subsequently (in 1939) interpreted by the courts to apply to Inuit as well.

Within this legislative framework, the department has a number of interlocking responsibilities and objectives. The department's principal emphasis is on pursuing initiatives to assist First Nation communities to overcome obstacles to their development and to help them marshal the human and physical resources necessary to build and sustain viable communities. Particular focus will be on: negotiating First Nation governance; settling land claims; supporting the development of communities to improve on-reserve economic opportunities and living conditions; achieving the transfer of provincial-type responsibilities to the territorial governments; and promoting northern environmental awareness and sustainable development. Increasingly, the department is devolving its powers and responsibilities to the First Nation peoples and territorial governments directly concerned.

This class contains personal information relating to the administration and enforcement of the Combines Investigation Act, the Competition Act, Consumer Packaging and Labelling Act, Textile Labelling Act, and Precious Metals Marking Act. The material may relate to the legislation in general, or to any category of product or service. Most filing is done according to standard industrial classification coding; the key reference for retrieval purposes is the industry or company involved. There is limited cross-referencing to and recording of incoming correspondence which may contain personal information. (Such correspondence includes complaints and requests for information as well as information obtained from the Canadian Police Information Centre, U.S. Department of Justice and from O.E.C.D. anti-trust authorities.) Personal information held by the Bureau may be provided to federal or provincial departments and agencies to ensure a proper level of service to the person identified.

Enterprise/Industrial Development and Assistance

The Department and its predecessor departments have administered a number of enterprise/industrial development and assistance programs. These programs have been aimed at encouraging enterprise and industrial development in a wide variety of ways. Personal information may be collected in the course of these departmental activities. Programs and activities which may have involved the storage of personal information include the Program for Export Market Development, the Defence Industry Productivity Program, the Microelectronics and Systems Development Program, the Technology Outreach Program, the Sector Campaigns, including the Prosperity Initiative, the St. Lawrence River Environmental Technology Development Program, the Advance Manufacturing Technology Application Program, the Strategic Technologies Program, the Science Culture Program, the Pharmaceutical Industrial Development Assistance Program, the Credit Reinsurance Program, the Shipbuilding Industry Assistance Program, the Advanced Technology Program — Waterloo Centre for Process Development, the Small Business Investments Grants, the Government Procurement Projects, the Industry Energy Research and Development Program, the Major Crown Projects, Aboriginal Business Canada and its earlier programming, the Western Transportation Industrial Development Program, the FEDNOR Core Industrial Program, the Rural Small Business Program — FEDNOR, the FEDNOR Loan Insurance Program, the FEDNOR Tourism Program, and Grants and Contributions to non-profit organizations to promote economic cooperation and development.

Personal information may include particulars such as the names, addresses, social insurance numbers, financial interests, management capabilities, employment histories, remuneration, age, health, marital status and educational background of individuals. Such personal information is stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided such as the program area, the corporate/project name, the location of a facility and the approximate date of submission/award.

General Development Agreements, Economic and Regional Development Agreements, Subsidiary Agreements and Related Initiatives

The Department has collected data needed for the administration of subsidiary agreements entered into with the provinces, consistent with the terms and conditions of general development agreements previously signed with all provinces, except Prince Edward Island, and the new economic and regional development agreements entered into with the 10 provinces. The general development agreements, which expired on March 31, 1984, established the framework for development and identified development opportunities for implementation under subsidiary agreements. The economic and regional development agreements with the provinces, as well as the subsidiary agreements signed under the economic development agreements with the Territories, provide a framework for co-operation and consultation on matters relating to economic development in each province and territory. As opportunities are identified, individual subsidiary agreements are formulated. These opportunities are normally unique to a province and, as a result, subsidiary agreements cover a broad range of specific programs.

Personal information may be stored in administering a number of subsidiary agreements. This information may include financial, employment, demographic and educational data on individuals. Such data, however, would be stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided such as the name of the project or program that may be related thereto and the approximate date of submission/award.

Inquiries (Bureau of Consumer Affairs)

This class contains inquiries concerning the following Acts, which are administered in whole or in part by the Department: Canada Agricultural Products Standards Act; Consumer Packaging and Labelling Act; Electricity and Gas Inspection Act; Food and Drugs Act; National Trade Mark and True Labelling Act; Precious Metals Marking Act; Textile Labelling Act; Weights and Measures Act. This class contains records on establishments that have been inspected with respect to the requirements or the legislation listed above. It contains inspection and incident reports, complaints, warning letters and other correspondence, and reports of prosecution. The names of individuals who are sole owners of companies appear in the files. These files are kept for several years in order to plan inspection visits and monitor the compliance level in relation to the regulatory requirements of the legislation administered by the Department.

Mailing Lists (Bureau of Corporate Policy and Strategic Planning)

This class of personal information contains the names and addresses of individuals who are on a mailing list to receive specific information or publications on departmental programs and activities. The lists are used by all bureaus to distribute departmental information and to respond to requests by individuals. The lists are updated on a continuing basis. The lists are maintained for a minimum of two years.

Ministerial Correspondence

This class of information contains correspondence addressed to the Minister, the Secretaries of State, the Deputy Minister and/or the Associate Deputy Minister from external organizations and individuals in the form of requests for information, complaints, opinions and other submissions related to a broad range of policy issues pertaining to Industry Canada's activities, wherein some unsolicited personal information has been provided by the correspondent. This form of information would be retrievable only if specifics of name, date of communication and subject were to be provided; it is not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. The retention periods of these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Other Programs and Agreements

This class reflects other programs and agreements not specifically covered under the other classes. These other programs and agreements are aimed at resolving specific problems of a limited nature or in specifically defined areas of the country. For example, a 15-year development agreement, the Prince Edward Island (P.E.I.) Comprehensive Development Plan, was signed by Canada and P.E.I. in 1969, under the authority of the Fund for Rural Economic Development Act. The plan has allowed for the design and implementation of a broad range of programs to stimulate economic growth, create jobs and raise per capita income. In addition, under the Federal Development Strategy, the Department has been involved in providing further economic development activities in P.E.I.

Personal information may be stored in administering programs falling within this class. This information may include financial, employment, demographic and educational data on individuals. Such data, however, would be stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided, such as the name of the program concerned, the name of the specific project and the approximate date of submission/award.

Public Opinion Research

This is a class of records generated by departmental officials who conducted public opinion research on a vast spectrum of topics related to the mandate and mission of the Department of Industry Canada. Retrievable records consist of data gathering instruments, such as, but not exclusively, questionnaires which may contain personal information that reveals the identification of the research subject. Data contained in this class of records are not used for administrative purposes. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the title of the research project in which they participated, the location and the date of the research, and any other data that may help to identify and locate the personal information they are seeking.

Technological Information Services Requests (Intellectual Property Directorate)

This class includes the names, addresses and telephone numbers of individual inventors and entrepreneurs who have submitted requests for technological information. Also included is background information relating to the requests, the purposes of the requests and the specific areas of interest. The purpose of this service is to provide a technology search to assist in the development of new or improved products and processes and to avoid duplication of research and development. Requests are received via intermediary agencies (such as provincial research councils), and files are maintained by agency, not by name of individual. Requests are retained for a minimum of two years.

Security Video Surveillance

This class includes video surveillance tapes for close circuit television (CCTV) cameras located on the perimeters of or within departmental facilities. The cameras record the image of employees and visitors entering and exiting some of the department's facilities or movements within certain restricted areas of the department. Access to the videotapes is strictly controlled by the Departmental Security Officer. Video information that reveals evidence of illegal activity, employee misconduct or accidents may be disclosed to appropriate staff relations, enforcement or investigative bodies for further investigations, charges or disciplinary actions. The tapes are normally kept for a thirty day period and are then reused. In the case of video information used in the conduct of an investigation, the video evidence will be kept as long as required by law or until no longer required as evidence.

International Development Research Centre

Chapter 81

General Information

Background

The International Development Research Centre (IDRC) was established as a public corporation by the International Development Research Centre Act of 1970.

Responsibilities

IDRC initiates, encourages, supports, and conducts research into the problems of the developing regions of the world and into the means for applying and adapting scientific, technical, and other knowledge to the economic and social advancement of those regions. It supports research principally in three program areas: Social and Economic Equity; Environment and Natural Resource Management; and Information and Communication Technologies for Development. IDRC is financed by the Parliament of Canada; its policies, however, are set by an international Board of Governors.

Legislation

- General Bylaw of the IDRC
- International Development Research Centre Act, 1970

Organization

IDRC's headquarters are in Ottawa where it has an international staff. Regional offices in Asia (Singapore and New Delhi), East Africa (Nairobi), West Africa (Dakar), Latin America and the Caribbean (Montevideo) and the Middle East (Cairo) link Ottawa with developing-country researchers and policy makers, encourage and assist the development of research proposals, and monitor ongoing projects within their regions.

IDRC's 21-member Board of Governors is appointed by the Canadian government. Under the International Development Research Centre Act, the chairperson, vice-chairperson and nine other governors must be Canadian citizens; the other ten are non-Canadians.

The president of the Centre holds the rank of deputy minister and is responsible to Parliament through the minister designated for that purpose by the Governor in Council (currently the Minister of Foreign Affairs). A management committee composed of officers appointed by the Board of Governors assists the president in the Centre's operations.

Program and Partnership Branch (PPB)

The Program and Partnership Branch implements the Centre's program of research support, which is defined in terms of development issues and the knowledge required to address them.

Military Police Complaints Commission

Chapter 87

General Information

Background

In response to two Supreme Court of Canada rulings and to the reports from the Special Advisory Group on Military Justice and Investigation Services and the Commission of Inquiry into the Deployment of Canadian Forces to Somalia, the Minister of National Defence introduced legislation in the House of Commons to substantially modify the National Defence Act. These changes reflected the need to separate, on an institutional basis, the system's investigative, defence, prosecutorial and judicial functions. In addition, it clarified the roles and responsibilities of the principal players in the military justice system as well as the charge-laying functions of the military police and the authorities of police units.

Responsibilities

The Military Police Complaints Commission is a civilian oversight body external to, autonomous and independent of, the Department of National Defence and the Canadian Forces. The Commission carries out quasi-judicial functions pursuant to the powers conferred by the National Defence Act. This Act includes several provisions allowing the Commission exclusive jurisdiction to closely monitor the way in which the Canadian Forces Provost Marshal deals with conduct complaints. A complainant who is not satisfied with the handling of a complaint by the Provost Marshal may ask that the Commission review the complaint. The Commission has sole responsibility for dealing with complaints of interference in military police investigations.

In the public interest the Commission Chairperson may remove a conduct complaint from the jurisdiction of the Provost Marshal, request that the Commission investigate and, if warranted, hold a hearing into the conduct complaint or an interference complaint.

Following a review, investigation or hearing, the Commission Chairperson formulates recommendations in relation to the conduct of those who are subjects of the complaint. These recommendations are intended first and foremost to rectify the situations leading to complaints in order to prevent their recurrence. Should the reviewing authority to these recommendations (as mentioned in section 250.51 of the National Defence Act) choose either to take no action or take actions different from those recommended, the reviewing authority must justify such decisions. A final report is then prepared and submitted by the Chairperson.

The Commission fulfills its mandate by rendering the handling of complaints concerning the military police more transparent and accessible.

Legislation

- National Defence Act, Part IV “Complaints about or by Military Police”, R.S.C. 1985, c. N-5, Part IV
- Complaints about the Conduct of Members of the Military Police Regulations, P.C. 1999-2065 (not published)
- Military Police Professional Code of Conduct, SOR/2000-14

Organization

The Commission consists of a Chairperson and not more than six other members to be appointed by the Governor in Council. The Chairperson is the Chief Executive Officer of the Commission and has supervision over and direction of the work of the Commission staff. The senior staff of the Commission consists of an Executive Director, a General Counsel, a Chief of Staff and Special Advisor to the Chairperson and a Director of Operations.

Military personnel and civilian employees of the Department of National Defence are not eligible to be members of the Commission.

Information Holdings

The information holdings of the National Archives of Canada are comprised of three main types of records: historical records (which are the most frequently requested records held at the National Archives), program records (records concerning the operations of the National Archives), and personal information banks (a summary of the type of information about individuals which is held by the National Archives of Canada).

Historical Records

The information contained in Historical Records is not only limited to records produced and acquired from the government of Canada, and records of national significance produced and acquired from the private sector. The majority of government records are subject to the Access to Information and Privacy Acts. The ATIP Acts do not apply to historical records which are acquired from the private sector such as private organizations, donors, or certain Crown Corporations. Access conditions for records acquired from the private sector are normally established by negotiation between the organization or donor and the National Archives of Canada.

National Defence

Chapter 94

General Information

Background

The Minister of National Defence has the control and management of the Canadian Forces and all matters relating to National Defence establishments and works for the defence of Canada. The Canadian Forces, besides forming part of National Defence Headquarters, are organized into seven major functional commands and one command with regional responsibilities. The Department is responsible for the administration of the Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, the Defence Services Pensions Continuation Act, the National Defence Act, and the Visiting Forces Act.

Responsibilities

The role and function of the Department of National Defence, and its principal component, the Canadian Forces, have historically been to ensure the security of Canada and to contribute to the maintenance of world peace.

Its basic roles and responsibilities are to supplement and support the civilian authorities in maintaining surveillance and preserving control over and security within the national territory of Canada and areas of Canadian jurisdiction, to assist civilian authorities in the event of emergency or disaster, to provide search and rescue services, and to contribute to national development. To enhance the security of Canada against military threat, the Department co-operates with the United States in the defence of North America, and co-operates in collective defence measures under the North Atlantic Treaty. The Department promotes international stability by contributing to peacekeeping activities in co-operation with other members of the international community, and by providing military training assistance to friendly nations. It controls, manages, and administers all activities of, and provides the services necessary to ensure adequate supply and technical support for, both the Department and the Canadian Forces. It also provides all levels of training for the Canadian Forces. Finally, the Department works to maintain and advance Canadian scientific and technological knowledge and analytical capability in the area of defence.

Organization

Deputy Minister of National Defence

The DM has primary responsibility for policy, resources and international defence relations.

The Deputy Minister of National Defence is appointed under the National Defence Act by order of the Governor-in-Council, on the advice of the Prime Minister. The Deputy provides the Minister with the broadest possible expert support in all of his or her responsibilities, short of partisan political activities, including consulting and informing Parliament and the Canadian public on defence issues. To this end, the Deputy advises the Minister on policy issues as well as on management concerns, and manages the Department on behalf of the Minister.

The Deputy plays the central role in formulating advice for the Minister on policy matters and on alternative means of achieving government objectives, as well as implementing effectively the government's policies and programs.

The Deputy is authorized in law to exercise on the Minister's behalf management and direction of the Department. In so doing, the Deputy is naturally subject to the Minister's direction. At the same time, the Deputy is required by law to observe financial, administrative and personnel management standards and practices established government-wide by the Treasury Board on behalf of the Ministry as a whole. The Deputy also exercises certain powers of personnel and financial management assigned by law or delegated directly by the Public Service Commission or the Treasury Board.

The Deputy is an important link for the Minister to the wider government machinery for policy development and decision-making. The Deputy participates in interdepartmental consultations as a contribution to coherent government. These interdepartmental activities also enable the Deputy to inform his or her Minister of initiatives of other departments which may affect the Minister's portfolio, and to advise the Minister (as the Minister chooses) on contributions the Minister may want to make to Cabinet or Cabinet committee discussions.

The Deputy therefore has a fundamental duty to support both the individual and collective responsibilities of the Minister. In so doing, the Deputy is responsible in the first instance to the Minister. As part of the Deputy's participation in the collective management of the government, the Deputy is also responsible to the Prime Minister for responding to the policies of the Ministry as a whole and to the Treasury Board and the Public Service Commission. This includes appropriate interdepartmental consultations where other Ministerial responsibilities are concerned. In this capacity, the Deputy is required to inform the Secretary to the Cabinet of any significant matter affecting his or her Minister's responsibilities.

The CDS is charged with the command, control and administration of the Canadian Forces and advises the Minister on all these matters - including military requirements, capabilities, options and the possible consequences of undertaking or failing to undertake various military activities. Whenever required, the Chief of the Defence Staff advises the Prime Minister and Cabinet directly on major military developments. The CDS is thus the senior military advisor to the Government as a whole.

The CDS implements government decisions involving the Canadian Forces by issuing appropriate orders and instructions. Manuals

Because of the wide range of manuals, regulations and orders used by the Department of National Defence to fulfil its functions, it is impractical to include a complete list of its holdings in this publication. The Department may, on request, provide a list of existing manuals relating to a particular subject or activity.

The bilingual publication entitled Defence Canada is published annually by the Department of National Defence. It is designed to provide an overview of current strategic considerations relative to defence planning, and to highlight departmental activities during the preceding year.

Reading Room

A section of the Department's library at National Defence Headquarters has been designated under the Access to Information Act as a public reading room. Its address is:

101 Colonel By Drive
 Ottawa, Ontario

Because of the security classification and the necessity to continually amend an unusually wide range of technical and training manuals, regulations and orders used by the Department of National Defence to fulfil its functions, it was found impractical to put all 90,000 publications on display. However, a complete list of its holdings is available in AIA Reading Room and the Department may, on request, provide for viewing a copy of existing manuals relating to a particular subject or activity, provided the material is releasable and sufficient time is allowed to retrieve the publication from the depot.

General Information

Background

The National Library of Canada, created in 1953, operates under the National Library Act (1969) and its amendments, and administers the National Library Book Deposit Regulations (revised 1995). The Library is a branch of government having the rank of a department and reports to Parliament through the Minister of Canadian Heritage. The National Library serves Canada from the National Capital Region.

To fulfil its responsibilities the Library collects, organizes and promotes all publications published in Canada, by a Canadian or dealing with Canada, in all formats and all languages, with a focus on Canadian historical, literary and musical heritage in its broadest sense. This includes describing, recording and listing the nation's publications to facilitate their retrieval and use; providing reference, information, referral and document delivery services to support similar services provided by other Canadian libraries, with special emphasis on Canadian-related subjects; making known the written and musical heritage of the nation through cultural events and exhibitions program; and facilitating the use of the nation's total library resources by coordinating and participating in national and international programs for sharing information about publications and for identifying and supplying needed documents on interlibrary loan.

National Parole Board

Chapter 100

General Information

Background

The National Parole Board, part of the criminal justice system, was created by the Parole Act in 1959. The Parole Act was repealed in 1992 and replaced by the Corrections and Conditional Release Act.

Responsibilities

The National Parole Board is an agency within the Ministry of the Solicitor General. Board members are appointed by the Governor in Council (Cabinet) to offices in the Atlantic, Quebec, Ontario, Prairies, and Pacific regions and to the Appeal Division at the National Office in Ottawa. The National Office also houses Legal Services, Corporate Services, Policy, Planning and Operations, Performance Measurement, and the Clemency and Pardons Division.

The Corrections and Conditional Release Act empowers the National Parole Board to make conditional release decisions about offenders in federal penitentiaries, territorial, and provincial prisons in those provinces which have not established their own board of parole. Ontario, Quebec, and British Columbia maintain parole boards for offenders serving sentences of less than two years in their provincial institutions.

The National Parole Board has adopted policies to guide Board members in making decisions; the Board uses information from police, prosecutors, psychiatrists, judges, officers of the Correctional Service of Canada, the offender, victims and others to assess risk. Many conditional release decisions are made after Board members hold a hearing with the offender. Some decisions are reached in the office after a thorough review of an offender's file.

The Criminal Records Act allows the Board to issue, grant, refuse to grant or revoke pardons for convictions under federal acts or regulations. Amendments to the CRA in 2000 also allows the Board to confirm that a pardon granted or issued to a person ceases to have effect.

If a pardon is in force, any federal agency or department that has records of convictions must keep the records of those convictions separate and apart. They may not disclose the information in the record without permission from the Solicitor General of Canada.

from NPB and/or Correctional Service of Canada staff; records of Board members recommendations and decisions and related documentation; memoranda and letters from other agencies, government departments and the general public. Social insurance numbers (SIN) are found in this bank in the cases of military personnel who request pardons from the Board, since the Department of National Defence (DND) used to use the SIN as a personal identifier for its personnel. Board usage of SINs is dependent on DND usage. It is often necessary for the Board to routinely share, when warranted, its information with other sources, including the Correctional Service of Canada, the RCMP, provincial and municipal governments, and members of the general public associated in some way with the individual to whom the information pertains. However, unless the pardon was subsequently revoked, personal information banks containing files of individuals who have been granted a pardon are kept separate and the content cannot be disclosed to any person without the prior approval of the Solicitor General of Canada who, before granting such approval, has to be satisfied that the disclosure is desirable in the interests of the administration of justice or for any purpose related to the safety or security of Canada. This information is also used for research, statistical, program monitoring and evaluation purposes, and for the purpose of presenting a defence when court actions are brought against the National Parole Board. Data matching: law enforcement agencies, Correctional Service of Canada and other federal institutions and provincial authorities. Retention and Disposal Standards: Pardon – for premature requests, files are kept for 2 years; for discontinued requests, files are kept for 2 years after the last contact with the applicant; for pardon granted, files are kept for 25 years after administrative activity ceases or 1 year after the death of the subject is confirmed by the RCMP; for pardon revoked files are kept for 5 years following the last administrative action; for pardons denied (all types) (except conditional pardon early CRA) – 10 years after last contact with applicant; for pardons denied – conditional pardon (early CRA) – 5 years after last administrative activity; for pardons cease to exist – 5 years after administrative activity ceases. It may be necessary for the Board to routinely share, when warranted, this information with other sources, including, the Correctional Service of Canada, the RCMP, provincial and municipal governments, and members of the general public associated in some way with the individual to whom the information pertains. (2) To demonstrate to the public the fairness of its decisions, the CCRA allows the general public to submit a written request for copies of the decisions of the Board as well as the general reasons supporting these decisions. Some information in these decisions may be exempted if its disclosure could reasonably be expected to (a) jeopardize the safety of any person; (b) reveal a source of information obtained in

Case Audits and Investigations

This group is a class of records on Case Audits and Investigations performed by the Case Audits and Investigations. Sector to inquire into the events surrounding incidents resulting in death or serious injury of someone in the community. Case audits, which consist of an in-depth review of file documentation and hearing tapes, are conducted on particular issues or into selective incidents. Board of Investigations are convened by the Chairperson and are generally conducted jointly with Correctional Service of Canada within the authority of the CCRA and the Inquiries Act. The reports of the investigations include the convening order with terms of reference, the facts pertaining to the situation being investigated, as detailed in a chronology; a description of the offender's criminal history and behaviour in the institution and the community, the issues developed during the investigation; the findings of the board of investigation; and the recommendations made on the basis of these findings.

Consistent with the need to ensure the safety and protection of the public, to provide a factual account of the incident and to demonstrate accountability that corrective action has been taken to ensure the continued safety of the community and public confidence in the parole system, these reports may be released under paragraph 8(2)(a) of the privacy Act to the media, Members of Parliament, Provincial politicians, Municipal leaders, other federal departments and agencies, law enforcement agencies, victims, victim organizations and other affected parties.

Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the location and approximate date it was initiated. Records are retained for ten years after the warrant expiry date of the offender involved in the incident. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives of Canada.

Background

Operating under the National Research Council Act since 1916, the National Research Council of Canada (NRC)'s goal is to promote scientific research for Canada, with a focus on industry. NRC offers Canadian industry and the Canadian scientific community a wide variety of R&D support services. This support includes collaborative research programs, access to major facilities and installations, technical advice and expertise, hands-on training of high-quality personnel, licensing opportunities, testing analysis, verification and calibration services and innovation activities, such as incubator facilities and access to S&T information.

Responsibilities

In pursuing the above activities, the Council, on occasion, is involved in the collection and use of personal information. Details of those instances where the information is used to make administrative decisions affecting the individual are described under Personal Information Banks – General Public. Persons wishing access to their own records should include their full name and address, and any additional information specified in each information bank. Where no additional information is indicated, only the full name and address are required.

Institute for Marine Biosciences (Halifax)

The Institute for Marine Biosciences (IMB) develops and applies knowledge in two key areas: Marine Bioscience and Genomics. Its mandate is national in scope. IMB's Marine Bioscience program contributes knowledge through research on finfish and shellfish and focuses on fish health and nutrition, early development and seafood safety. Specific research projects on diseases, rearing techniques, and the development of effective vaccines help the industry reduce costs and produce healthier organisms. Research on high-performance aquaculture feeds leads to improved nutritional quality of feed, fish health and sustainability and, more generally, the cost-effectiveness of finfish and shellfish aquaculture. IMB's analytical chemistry and marine toxins groups lead the world in these sectors.

Under its Genomics program, IMB conducts leading edge research and develops platform technologies in DNA sequencing, protein analysis, and bioinformatics that have applications for many Canadian industries.

The Institute provides innovative, multi-disciplinary research and problem solving to a broadly based client and collaborator community. Key industrial sectors include aquaculture, pharmaceuticals, life sciences, scientific instrumentation manufacturers, and analytical laboratories servicing the environmental and seafood safety sectors.

A number of high value-added global niche markets in Ocean Technology (OT) have emerged in recent years in which small, innovative Canadian firms are competitive. OT firms specialize in fields such as cold ocean environmental engineering, subsea systems, and ocean information systems with applications in the oil and gas, and ocean transport sectors.

Within this context, IMD increasingly concentrates its efforts on enhancing the competitiveness of the emerging OT sector in Canada, as well as the offshore oil and gas and marine transportation sectors. The Institute also plays an important role in collaboration with other government departments in ocean environmental protection, marine defence, and ocean safety systems.

Institute for Microstructural Sciences (Ottawa)

The mission of the Institute for Microstructural Sciences (IMS) is to provide leadership, in collaboration with Canadian industry and universities, in the development of the strategic base for information technology; that is, in the development of enabling technologies related to future hardware requirements for information processing, transmission acquisition and display.

The transfer of information between people, countries, through distance and time will irrevocably change within the next decade. The role of the Institute for Microstructural Sciences is to help keep Canada at the leading edge of the technologies that enable this information revolution.

The programs in Optical Communications, Wireless Communications, Multimedia Components, Exploratory Research and Special Applications include a high level of partnership and interaction with industry in areas crucial to the economic well-being of Canada.

Institute for National Measurement Standards (Ottawa)

NRC has a mandated responsibility for metrology, the development and maintenance of standards of measurements, and has well-established programs in this area.

The Institute for National Measurement Standards (INMS) draws together all activities related to metrology to provide a basis for the national measurement system of Canada. R&D is aimed at the realization of high accuracy primary standards compatible with those of other countries and at specific applications of measurement techniques, including contract research and development for individual clients, R&D conducted jointly with industrial partners, and R&D in the national interest.

A high accuracy calibration service is provided to industry, universities, hospitals, clinics and other government departments and agencies. A calibration laboratory assessment service (CLAS) is also provided to enable private and government laboratories to become accredited as calibration laboratories and become members of the Canadian Calibration Network. These services give industry easy access to calibrations facilities with traceability to national and international standards.

The Institute maintains active interaction with the international community, represents Canada in its obligation connected with the Convention du Mètre and acts as the Canadian focal point in the field of measurement science. Since international trade increasingly depends on internationally recognized measurement standards, this Institute provides an important national service, building on a foundation of basic research.

Institute for Research in Construction (Ottawa)

The primary strategic thrust of the Institute for Research in Construction (IRC) is the support of Canada's physical and technological infrastructure as applied to construction activities. IRC's expertise in the provision of safe and secure built facilities, effective urban infrastructure systems, structures and construction materials evaluation, energy efficiency technologies, indoor environment research, and the development of codes and standards are critical assets in support of this objective.

Construction activity in Canada is valued at over $100 billion. Although only a small fraction of those services or products is exported, efficient and safe built infrastructure is considered to be a critical factor in economic efficiencies for wealth generation through cost savings in energy, repair and replacement. IRC's close interactions with industry associations, professional societies, and national and international standards bodies provide it with the capability of having a pervasive incremental impact on a highly diverse and fragmented sector of the economy.

Integrated Manufacturing Technologies Institute (London, On)

The mission of the Integrated Manufacturing Technologies Institute (IMTI) is to be a leader in the research and development of integrated technologies for the manufacture of products and equipment.

Institute for National Measurement Standards (Ottawa)

Chemical Metrology

Description: This group is involved in the development of state-of-the-art methods and instrumentation for both organic and inorganic trace analysis, in the production of environmental certified reference materials (CRMs), and in various international activities related to the traceability of chemical analysis measurements. Facilities include an array of atomic spectroscopy instrumentation for inorganic trace analysis, mass spectrometry instrumentation for both organic and inorganic trace analysis, a variety of gas and liquid chromatography equipment for chemical separation, and "clean room" facilities for contamination-free sample preparation and manipulation. The CRMs produced in the laboratory are essential to both public and private sector laboratories routinely engaged in the analysis of environmental samples (e.g., water samples, sediments, biological tissues) as a means to ensure the accuracy of their results. The CRM production program provides the focus for many of the methods and instrument development research activities of the group. The group also offers analytical chemistry services on a contract or fee-for-service basis for selected industrial clients with needs which cannot be met by any private sector Canadian chemical analysis laboratory. A notable example is the glow discharge mass spectrometry (GDMS) facility for direct analysis of conducting and semi-conducting materials, in particular very high purity materials such as gallium and cadmium telluride, destined for use in fabrication of microelectronic devices. The group also seeks opportunities for collaborative research with manufacturers of instrumentation for chemical analysis, either through in-house development of prototype instruments or through "beta-site" testing of pre-commercial instruments. Program Record Number: NRC INM 535

Electrical Power Measurements

Description: This group is involved in the development of new state-of-the-art instrumentation and measurement techniques. These include revenue meters for electric utilities and calibration facilities for equipment such as instrument transformers, active/reactive power and energy meters under sinusoidal/nonsinusoidal waveform conditions, high voltage capacitors, high current resistors and shunts, and high voltage loss measuring systems transformers and inductive reactors. The group is also involved in the development of new diagnostic measurement techniques and instrumentation to assess the operating conditions of electric power apparatus in service and to predict their remaining life. An important element of this program is the development of new and improved measuring techniques and instrumentation to meet and anticipate the measurement requirements of the electrical power industry. Program Record Number: NRC INM 525

Electrical Standards

Description: Electrical standards of measurements play a basic role in maintaining compatibility, coherence and safety in all services connected to the field of electricity. In fact electricity touches essentially all sectors of the economy. The proper monitoring of electrical energy consumption at either the individual or the industrial level depends on the use of well calibrated reference standards. The fabrication of electrical instruments, their testing and the marketing of these instruments require internationally accepted electrical standards. These standards are developed and maintained by the Electrical Standards Group. The group is involved in the ac, dc and rf fields. It does basic research on primary standards of voltage and resistance using the Josephson and Quantum Hall effect and develops techniques and instruments connected with ac and rf measurements. The group also maintains a calibration service for high accuracy secondary standards and top of the line instruments. Program Record Number: NRC INM 530

Frequency and Time

Description: The demands of science have pushed the capability for accurate frequency and time determination to a very high level. Accuracy levels are available that might appear excessively high for everyday applications, yet they provide the basis of many modern systems such as navigation and communication, as well as the basis of measurements in diverse fields such as advanced physics, radio astronomy, geodesy, length metrology, voltage measurements, and electronics manufacturing and testing. The Frequency and Time Group designs, builds and maintains atomic clocks which serve as Canada's standards for frequency and time. The standard of length, the metre, is now also defined in terms of time. The Group therefore also maintains lasers whose wavelengths define the metre. Frequency calibration and laser wavelength calibration services are provided. Time is disseminated throughout Canada by various means, some of which include short-wave radio transmissions on NRC station CHU, digitally coded signals on telephone lines, the National Satellite (Parliament) Channel on cable television and by other direct satellite links. The Group conducts research to further extend the range and accuracy of frequency and wavelength standards to ensure internationally recognized, state-of-the-art standards for Canada. Program Record Number: NRC INM 545

Ionizing Radiation Standards

Description: Ionizing radiation plays a major role in modern medical practice, both for diagnostic Purposes (e.g. CT scanners, x-rays) and for therapeutic Purposes primarily in cancer therapy. The monitoring of radiation exposure is also very important in many industrial environments particularly in nuclear power production and uranium mining. In order to provide a degree of accuracy that ensures that radiation exposure levels are properly monitored and that therapy is done with maximum efficiency without endangering life, industrialized countries provide reference standards for the calibration of instruments or devices used in these various sectors. The national laboratories in charge of these standards make sure that they are accurate by comparison with those of other countries. This is done under the umbrella of the Bureau International des Poids et Mesures. This important activity which takes place on a continuous basis ensures uniformity of the national standards with the international measurement standards system. In Canada the standard in this field is provided by the Ionizing Radiation Standards Group of the NRC. The Group develops, maintains and promulgates Canada's primary measurement standards for ionizing radiation and provides calibration service as well as the link to the international measurement system. Program Record Number: NRC INM 555

Mechanical Metrology

Description: The Group is composed of three programs rooted in fundamental metrology. The Mass Standards Program is responsible for the maintenance and propagation of primary mass standards and derived standards of pressure and mass flow which are based on the kilogram mass unit. It establishes the mass scale for Canada which supports domestic and international trade in bulk commodities and ensures traceability of mass measurements to the international prototype of the kilogram. It realizes the SI unit of pressure, the pascal, and subdivides and multiplies it over sixteen decades in the interest of the avionics, power generation and transport industries. It is directly involved with industrial collaborators in the measurement of the flow of bulk commodities in the fluid states. The Dimensional Metrology Program establishes and operates measurement systems based upon the Canadian realization of the metre, the SI primary unit of length. It calibrates end standards, such as gauge blocks and line standards, as well as scales, engineering and surveying tapes and levelling rods for industrial use. It also calibrates angle standards, optical flats and parallels as well as roundness and diameter standards. General form, profile, roundness, and surface roughness are also determined in support of Canadian industry. The Acoustical Standards Program is responsible for the reciprocity calibration of condenser microphones and carries out ultrasound power calibration for medical applications. It offers a primary interferometric calibration service for accelerometers which is unique in Canada. This program plays a particularly important role in the area of normative standards directly related to the public good in Canada. Program Record Number: NRC INM 515

Photometry and Radiometry

Description: Radiometry (measurement of optical radiant energy) and photometry (measurement of optical [luminous] radiant energy as sensed by the human eye) are important to a large part of the public, manufacturing, and service sectors. Recent rapid expansion of electro-optical, photodetector, and optical fibre communications industries have produced a concurrent demand for more accurate and wider ranging radiometric measurements. It has been estimated that one-quarter of electricity consumption is for lighting; the enormous potential benefit of increased efficiency through improved photometric standards is obvious. Transportation (highway, air, marine) depends heavily upon visual signals and lighting where photometric energy and colour are of prime importance. Public health and safety require accurate measurement of such quantities as ultraviolet, laser, and phototherapeutic radiation levels. Other areas requiring photometric, radiometric, or colorimetric standards include paint, textile, and plastics industries; pulp and paper; television; agriculture; meteorology; environment; military and space agencies. To serve this wide and varied clientele, the Photometry and Radiometry section has developed and maintains the SI base unit of luminous intensity (candela) and basic standards for the measurement of light, colour, and optical radiation in the wavelength range from 200 nm to 50,000 nm. Program Record Number: NRC INM 540

Thermometry

Description: Temperature plays a most important role in everyday life as well as in the many specialized activities of industrialized countries. Processes such as those concerned with advanced materials preparation and growth, fabrication, analytical processes and diagnosis require either good temperature control or accurate temperature determination. Other important and diverse fields that require an excellent knowledge of temperature conditions include biology; biotechnology and clinical studies, analysis and diagnosis; aircraft industries; metallurgical industries; food industries, chemical industries; oceanography; pharmaceutical production. In order to ensure for these activities an accurate temperature scale, industrialized countries support a national laboratory which maintains accurate reference standards and provides a high accuracy calibration service based upon an International Temperature Scale. In Canada this role is fulfilled by the thermometry group of the NRC which does basic research in the field of thermometry, contributes to international activities in that field, and ensures through intercomparisons that its standards are compatible with those of other countries.

Chemical Biology Program

Description: Development of a molecular level understanding of selected biological processes and exploit this knowledge in collaboration with the NRC Biotechnology Group and the Canadian biotechnology sector. Chemical sciences are applied at the interfaces between chemistry, biology and medicine. Our research programs rely on core expertise in two areas. The first is the ability to design and synthesize compounds having the essential structural and functional elements of natural biomolecules, with particular emphasis on the development of combinatorial methodologies. The second is the ability to monitor and measure the functions and behavior of biomolecules and their mimics, with the long term goal of developing a quantitative molecular level understanding of biological processes. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 007

Femtosecond Science Program

Description: With femtosecond pulses, we have access to very strong fields and very short times. Time scales that match the time for nuclear motion in molecules and solids; fields that rival the fields that hold matter together. These pulses can severely modify and control any quantum system. We know and control the amplitude and phase of a broad spectrum so that we can synthesize any pulse shape as long as it falls within the spectrum of the initial femtosecond pulse. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 008

Functional Materials Program

Description: Research on the continuing development of materials with novel properties and improved processes for their production. The FM program explores new strategies in these areas with partner Institutes at NRC, and external partners in academia and industry. This includes the development of supramolecular strategies for materials design, synthesis and characterization, and also requires considerable effort to be directed at technique development for characterizing materials at the molecular level, including single crystal and powder X-ray diffraction, solid-state NMR and microimaging, and vibrational spectroscopy. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 011

Molecular Interfaces Program

Description: Expertise to catalyze scientific developments among physics, chemistry and biology by developing the tools and methodologies for creating and characterizing molecular structures on surfaces. Controlling and manipulating surfaces on the atomic or molecular scale is the key to the ultimate miniaturization of electronic devices and to the development of new devices that incorporate both solid-state semiconductor structures and molecular materials based on organic or biological components. The long term impact will be in the development of new molecular electronic devices and of highly miniaturized chemical and biochemical sensors. The focus is on the organic modification and characterization of semiconductor surfaces such as silicon and germanium using state-of-the-art scanning probe microscopies (both UHV and in situ electrochemical scanning tunneling microscopy and atomic force microscopy) to image and manipulate atoms and molecules on these surfaces. Solution and gas phase organic chemical reactions are developed to fine tune the interfacial properties of semiconductors. These properties are further characterized using a variety of linear and nonlinear optical probes such as ellipsometry and second harmonic generation. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 010

Molecular Spectroscopy Program

Description: Study of the structure, energetics, reactivity and internal dynamics of isolated gas phase molecules and clusters by means of high-resolution spectroscopy at wavelengths ranging from the ultraviolet to microwave regions and performance of kinetic measurements using spectroscopic probes. In addition to structure, energetics and dynamics, molecular spectroscopy provides the key to identifying molecules in remote sources and hostile environments by means of their spectral "fingerprints". It also gives detailed information on intermolecular forces. Work is targeted at molecules of chemical, biological and astrophysical interest. There is special emphasis on metal-metal and metal-ligand interactions and on weak intermolecular interactions. The objective is to develop and study model systems in order to provide a pertinent and reliable data base for the understanding of important phenomena such as molecular recognition, hydration, the role of metals in biology, reactions at metal centers, and aggregation and condensation. Expertise in laser chemistry to develop the field of carbon nanotubes and nanoparticles technologies and development of new synthesis methods and functionalization strategies. Work in collaboration with other NRC's Institutes and other Canadian Laboratories to develop new advanced materials for applications in fuel technologies, sensors technologies, and composite materials. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 005

Neutron Program for Materials Research

Description: Located at Chalk River, the Neutron Program for Materials Research (NPMR) operates Canada's only national neutron beam laboratory. The program provides 3 primary functions. (1) Ensure that Canadian and international researchers from universities, industries, NRC and other government laboratories can exploit neutron beam methods effectively at our collaborative user-facility. The knowledge generated by neutron beam experiments complements and amplifies our understanding in a wide range of scientific disciplines, including condensed-matter physics, chemistry, biology, materials science and engineering. The seven research officers of the NPMR interact with about 200 collaborators each year. (2) Develop and promote the application of neutron beam methods to support industrial R&D and stimulate a culture of innovation in Canadian companies. The Applied Neutron Detection for Industry (ANDI) program helps to enhance the performance and reliability of many engineering components, often addressing issues of public safety or industry competitiveness. (3) Maintain a forefront capability in the science of neutron scattering through continuous innovation and development, to attract talented researchers to Canada, and provide unique resources on which young scientists can build careers in advanced materials research. Students broaden their education through involvement with the NPMR's multi-disciplinary laboratory and interaction with the network of international experts whose research incorporates neutron beam experiments at Chalk River. Program Record Number: NRC SIM 009

Design of rational synthetic routes to new and interesting molecules; establishment of their structures, chemical and physical behaviour; and assess their potential in catalysis, for accomplishing novel organic transformations and as new molecular materials. The techniques used include: Schlenk and glove-box inert atmosphere methods of synthesis; chromatographic separations; multinuclear (¹H, ¹³C{¹H}, ³¹P{¹H}) solution and CP MAS solid state NMR and FTIR spectroscopies, full single crystal X-ray structure analysis and cyclic voltammetry. Theory and Computation

Description: The Theory and Computation Program uses analytical and computational methods to investigate the structure and dynamics of molecules and extended systems. New theoretical techniques are developed and applied to complement the research activities of the experimental Programs at the Institute and to engage the Technology Groups of NRC in identifying promising new strategic areas. A significant portion of the research effort of the Program is devoted to collaboration with experimentalists and in planning and supervising experimental projects. The Program has a dual mandate: (1) to perform fundamental and transformational science within the core expertise in order to advance the frontiers of knowledge in selected research areas, and (2) to assist and guide experimental efforts inside and outside SIMS. To satisfy this mandate, the Program requires a broad knowledge base. The research is focused onto five core projects: (1) Theoretical Spectroscopy, (2) Chemical Dynamics, (3) Materials, and (4) Quantum Chemistry of Macromolecular Systems, (5) Combining Density Functional Theory and other Tools to Model Complex Systems. National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy

General Information

Background

The National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy (NRTEE) was created in 1988 in response to the Report of the World Commission on Environment and Development (Brundtland Commission) and the recommendations of the National Task Force on the Environment and the Economy. In 1993, the National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy Act received Royal assent. The Act mandated the NRTEE to serve as a catalyst in identifying, explaining and promoting the principles and practices of sustainable development. This Act establishes the organization as a departmental corporation, reporting directly to the Prime Minister.

The National Round Table is a departmental corporation committed to providing decision makers and opinion leaders with reliable information and objective views on the current state of the debate on the environment and the economy. Specifically, the agency identifies issues that have both environmental and economic implications, explores these implications, and attempts to identify actions that will balance economic prosperity with environmental preservation.

Responsibilities

The mandate of the National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy, as stated in Section 4 of the National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy Act, is to play the role of catalyst in identifying, explaining and promoting, in all sectors of Canadian society and in all regions of Canada, principles and practices of sustainable development.

Legislation

- National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy Act

Organization

The National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy is a departmental corporation consisting of a chairperson and not more than twenty-four (24) other members appointed by Governor-in-Council for renewable terms of up to three (3) years. NRTEE's members are distinguished Canadians that represent a broad range of regions and sectors – including business, labour, academia, environmental organizations and First Nations.

An Executive Director, also appointed by Governor-in-Council, serves as the Chief Executive Officer. The Executive Director supervises and directs the work and staff of the Round Table. The Secretariat in Ottawa, provides analytical, communications and administrative support to Round Table members.

Activities are organized into a series of programs, each of which is overseen by a task force made up of one or more NRTEE members and a number of volunteers from business, government and non-profit organizations. The responsible task force commissions research, conducts national consultations, reports on areas of consensus and disagreements, and puts forward, for adoption by the full membership, reasoned recommendations for steps to be taken that will promote sustainability.

Natural Resources Canada

Chapter 103

General Information

Background

The Department of Natural Resources was created by the Department of Natural Resources Act on January 12, 1995. It combined the former departments of Energy, Mines and Resources and Forestry. Some groups in the department, such as the Geological Survey of Canada, have been in existence for more than a century. The mandate of the department is the sustainable development and use of natural resources: energy, minerals and metals, earthsciences, and forests, using expertise in science, technology policy and programs. The department is organized into five science-based sectors, one Corporate Services Sector and three corporate branches: Corporate Policy and Portfolio Coordination, Communications, and Audit and Evaluation.

Responsibilities

Under the Minister of Natural Resources Canada (NRCan) the department plays a pivotal role in helping shape the important contribution of the natural resources sector to the Canadian economy, society and environment. These sectors which includes our forests, energy, minerals and metals, and landmass, as well as related industries, are some of the most productive, high-tech sectors in the global economy. Through partnership and innovation, NRCan works with Canadians to make wise use of our resources, contributing to a better quality of life today and for the future. NRCan conducts innovative scientific research to generate and transfer ideas, knowledge and technologies. It continues to build a knowledge infrastructure of Canada's land and resources, and promote Canada's international interests to meet our global commitments related to natural resources. The department works to enhance the contribution of natural resources to Canada's economy and society, while protecting the environment and the health and safety of Canadians. Organization

The Department of Natural Resources Canada is organized into six sectors - Canadian Forest Services; Energy Sector; Earth Sciences Sector; Minerals and Metals Sector; Large industrial Emitters Group; and Corporate Services Sector – and three corporate branches – Corporate Policy and Portfolio Coordination Branch; Communications Branch; and Audit and Evaluation Branch. There are also a Crown Corporations (Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. and the Cape Breton Development Corporation) and several boards, commissions, committees and councils which report to Parliament through the Minister of Natural Resources, such as the Canadian Nuclear Safety Commission. In addition, the Climate Change Secretariat reports to the deputy minister of Natural Resources, as well as to the deputy minister of Environment.

Audit and Evaluation Branch

The Audit and Evaluation Branch is responsible for providing senior management with independent, objective professional advice and/or assurance on the performance of the management framework, performance information, departmental programs, policies, operations and the management of risks. The Branch also provides consulting services to management on the assessment of risks.

Canadian Forest Service Sector

The Canadian Forest Service (CFS) “promotes the sustainable development of Canada’s forests and the competitiveness of the Canadian forest sector for the well-being of present and future generations of Canadians.” The CFS evaluates approaches to sustainable forest management, monitors forest health, provides national forestry statistics and economic analysis, and conducts research on issues of national and international significance such as biodiversity, afforestation and climate change. The CFS synthesises and integrates information from all sources within the Canadian Forest Sector to report nationally and internationally. Well equipped with scientific, technical and policy development expertise, the CFS plays a lead role in addressing national and international issues that affect the sustainable development of Canada’s forests. To this end, the CFS brings together stakeholders to develop common strategies and national consensus on forestry issues. The CFS also establishes links with other federal departments, provinces, and territories industry and non-governmental organizations to address issues such as international trade, market access and sustainable forest management practices around the world. The CFS delivers its services through a network of five forestry centres and its headquarters in the National Capital Region.

Climate Change Secretariat

The Climate Change Secretariat (CCS) was created by the Prime Minister in February 1998, as a means to co-ordinate federal climate change resources and to work with provinces, territories and stakeholders to develop a national climate change strategy, following the 1997 Kyoto Protocol agreement. It reports directly to the Deputy Ministers of Environment Canada and Natural Resources Canada. On the National side and working with province and territories, it co-ordinates and guides the National Climate Change Process involving other levels of government, industry and other stakeholders. It monitors and assesses progress in implementing the National Implementation Strategy and associated National Business Plans. On the federal side, the CCS provides support and guidance to key departments in the development and implementation of integrated federal climate change policy, programming and communications. It supports sound decision-making by departments on project proposals to be funded under the Climate Change Action Fund (CCAF) and prepares integrated progress reports on federal climate change programs under Action Plan 2000, the CCAF and other relevant federal activities. The Domestic Emission Trading Analysis (DET-A) unit within the CCS provides direction and resources to analytical work on domestic emissions trading (DET) within the federal government for the consideration of DET options as part of potential ways to reach Kyoto targets. This group also provides secretariat services and contributes to the analytical work of the federal/provincial/territorial DET Working Group (DETWG). The Secretariat is an administrative mechanism and is not established through any specific legislation. It is funded as one of the initiatives under the Climate Change Action Fund which runs to 2003/04.

Communications Branch

The Branch is responsible for providing a full range of communications services to the Minister, Deputy Minister and senior management. It advises and helps different sectors in the Department plan and implement strategies to keep the public informed. It also analyzes public and media reaction to departmental initiatives.

Corporate Services Sector

Corporate Services Sector assists the Department by providing centres of expertise and supporting infrastructure in the areas: Financial Management, Human Resources Management, Information Management/Access to Information and Privacy/Information Technology, Real Property Management and, due diligence requirements in the areas of environment, health and safety and security.

Corporate Services Sector has a branch devoted to each of these major areas, each headed by a Director General.

Earth Sciences Sector

The Earth Sciences Sector was created as part of the 1995 reorganization of Natural Resources Canada. ESS includes Geomatics Canada (GC), the Geological Survey of Canada (GSC), and the Polar Continental Shelf Project (PCSP). GC, GSC, and PCSP have retained their identities under the Earth Sciences Sector umbrella. ESS provides a national focus for the acquisition, interpretation, maintenance and distribution of maps, information, technology, standards and expertise concerning the Canadian landmass and offshore in the fields of geoscience, geodesy, mapping, surveying and remote sensing.

Geological Survey of Canada (GSC)

The Geological Survey of Canada (GSC) is part of the Earth Science Sector. It fulfills a requirement of the Resources and Technical Surveys Act of 1949 and 1994 that the Minister “make a full and scientific examination of the geological structure and mineralogy of Canada”. GSC provides Canada with a comprehensive geoscience knowledge base that contributes to economic development, public safety dissemination and environmental protection by the acquisition, interpretation and of geoscience information concerning Canada’s landmass, including offshore. Aspects include mapping the regional geologic and tectonic framework of Canada’s landmass and offshore; developing an understanding of the nature, quantity, distribution and formation of Canada’s mineral and energy resources; developing an understanding of the contemporary geological processes affecting Canadian society; maintaining a national geoscience data-base (including appropriate archives and reference collections); and ensuring that all information is available as maps, reports or computerized databases in a timely fashion. These programs are national in scope and carried out in every province and territory and in the offshore 200 mile Economic Zone, from each of the GSC’s sites. Projects range from basic scientific research to the development of new methodologies and technologies for transfer to the private sector.

Geomatics Canada (GS)

Geomatics Canada is a division of the Earth Sciences Sector of Natural Resources Canada. It is part of what makes Canada one of the world’s “smartest” natural resources developers. Geomatics Canada is responsible for matters relating to surveying, mapping, remotely sensed data and geographically referenced information describing the Canadian landmass. This information is used in formulating public policy and in supporting internationally competitive Canadian geospatial enterprises. Primary activities include the acquisition and dissemination of topographical and geographical information and remotely sensed data, the development and transfer of associated technologies, and participation in related national and international partnerships. Recently, the Canadian Geospatial Data Infrastructure (CGDI) Web site was launched, giving a web-based access point for the latest Canadian environmental, geographic and scientific information. This project was developed in cooperation with other agencies of the Government of Canada, provincial governments, industry and Canadian universities.

Energy Sector (ES)

In partnership with all levels of government, universities, research institutes, the private sector and international organizations, the Energy Sector works to enhance the economic and environmental well-being of Canada by fostering the sustainable development and use of the nation’s energy resources to meet the present and future needs of Canadians. Its mission is “A better energy future for Canada”. The sector focuses on science and technology, policies, programs, knowledge and international activities in the areas of energy efficiency, renewables and alternatives, and energy resources to further sustainable development.

Minerals and Metals Sector (MMS)

The Mineral and Metals Sector (MMS) is the Government of Canada’s primary source of scientific and technological knowledge and policy advice on Canada’s mineral and metal resources and on explosives regulation and technology. In addition to housing three of Canada’s premier scientific research institutions, MMS has the government lead in promoting the sustainable development and responsible use of Canada’s mineral and metal resources. The sector is a leader in the generation and dissemination of knowledge on the Canadian minerals and metals industry and collaborates with, and provides research services to, governmental, institutional and industrial clients for the development of new technology with economic, environmental and social benefits to Canadians.

Corporate Policy and Portfolio Coordination Branch (CPPC)

CPPC supports the Minister, the Deputy Minister and the Departmental Management Committee (DMC) by working within NRCan and with other partners to develop departmental responses to government-wide policy priorities and policy research initiatives, and to position NRCan work strategically within the interdepartmental community. It develops and coordinates departmental policies on key horizontal issues, such as innovation, science in government, international, regional, environment, sustainable development, and Aboriginal issues and leads the department's sustainable development strategy. It develops integrated responses to northern Canadian resource issues. Through the Deputy Minister, CPPC provides advice and issue - management support to the Minister and the department. Cabinet Affairs,- Parliamentary Affairs and the Appointments Office are key to fulfilling these responsibilities. The Branch leads the development of strategic departmental policies and management approaches to S&T. It coordinates the department's S&T Management Framework and NRCan's response to the federal S&T strategy. CPPC also leads the department's strategic and business planning cycle as well as the values, ethics and excellence initiatives. The Branch is responsible for special projects, including the annual NRCan Senior Managers Conference. It also provides quality control for ministerial and deputy ministerial correspondence and documents through its Executive Documents Unit.

Large Industrial Emitters Group

The Large Industrial Emitters Group is responsible for working with key industry sectors to reduce annual greenhouse gas emissions. Through its discussions with industry, provinces and territories, and other stakeholders, the Large Industrial Emitters Group will design policies and measures that are effective in encouraging reductions of this magnitude, are administratively efficient and clear, and help to maintain the competitiveness of Canadian industry.

Geodetic Survey

Description: Geodetic Survey Division is responsible for providing and maintaining the national spatial reference system, standards and national networks of gravity and survey control points for Canada. Geodetic Survey Division ensures the availability of spatial referencing information, expertise and services that are responsive to the needs of clients. The primary role of the Geodetic Survey Division (GSD) is to maintain, continuously improve, and facilitate efficient access to what is now known as the Canadian Spatial Reference System (CSRS). The result is a national coordinate system, which serves, as a reference for all mapping, charting, navigation, boundary demarcation, crustal deformation and other georeferencing needs. While continuing to serve on-going requirements for survey control, the growing demands of Global Positioning System (GPS) users in particular have resulted in a focus on supporting positioning from space. The Canadian Active Control System (CACS) was established during this decade in order to provide users of GPS with access to the national standard for positions. A real-time capability under development is expanding that access. In 1994, development of the Canadian Base Network (CBN) was started to provide a high accuracy network of ground monumentation compatible with the increased precision available from GPS. Gravity and Very Long Baseline Interferometry (VLBI) are key elements of the program. While gravity observations satisfy geophysical needs, they also serve as the basis for defining the geoid model. And the geoid model, in turn, contributes to the vertical component of the reference system so that ellipsoidal GPS heights can be converted to orthometric elevations for practical uses. Finally, VLBI establishes the stable fiducial reference frame for the entire system, fixed with respect to deepest space, and contributes to the evaluation of crustal motion. In developing and carrying out the geodetic program, the Division collaborates with scientific agencies such as the International GPS Service for international standards and with stakeholders such as the provinces both for national standards and for delivery of services to clients. Contracts are let to industry for operational requirements, and research and development initiatives are often directed toward universities or industry. The result is a Canadian Spatial Reference System that is evolving rapidly with the integration of technologies of computers, communications and satellites, to meet the diverse positioning needs of the Canadian people.

Mineral Technology Branch (MTB)

Description: CANMET's Mineral Technology Branch (MTB) is a key research and technology development arm of Natural Resources Canada. MTB comprises three laboratories which focus on mining and mineral sciences, metals and minerals technology, and explosives. MTB's Explosives Regulatory Division administers Canada's Explosives Act and Regulations. The Mining and Mineral Sciences Laboratories (CANMET-MMSL) focusses on research and development in the following main areas of mining, processing, and related environmental issues: mining effluents; tailings and waste rock; metals in the environment; metallurgical processing; mineralogy; ground control; mine mechanization and automation; and underground mine environment. CANMET-MMSL's international reputation for technical excellence in conventional mineral processing is augmented by recognized leadership in developing technological solutions to reduce the environmental liabilities facing the minerals industry. Wherever possible, CANMET-MMSL works in partnership with industry, provincial/territorial governments, universities and other research institutes. Current activities focus on three principle strategic directions: promoting sustainable development by finding technically sound solutions to environmental problems; improving industry competitiveness through enhanced productivity; and improving health and safety in the underground mining environment. CANMET-MMSL is proud to have achieved ISO 9002 quality system registration in December 2000. The Analytical Services group and the Canadian Certified Materials Project of MMSL have been registered to ISO 9002 since March 1997. The Materials Technology Laboratory (CANMET-MMSL), in collaboration with industry, conducts applied research, and develops and deploys technologies, to improve all aspects of producing and using value-added products from minerals and metals. Specifically, CANMET-MTL uses its specialists and one-of-a-kind facilities in metal processing and joining, corrosion prevention, ceramic, and concrete technology, physical and mechanical testing, micro-characterization of materials, prototype fabrication, and advanced materials development to: help Canadian firms develop new products and services; achieve higher performance from metal alloys, ceramics, concrete, and metal-or mineral-based advanced materials; provide sound technical input to standards and codes development; assist Canadian firms to use more efficient production techniques, resulting in energy and cost savings; improve infrastructure, such as oil and gas pipelines and concrete bridges, with a resultant impact on public safety and enhanced effectiveness of public expenditures; and develop specialized materials for energy-efficient products that result in reduced greenhouse gases. The Canadian Explosives Research Laboratory (CANMET-CERL) is Canada's national centre for the advancement of technology related to the manufacture, storage and transportation of explosives. It is the only Canadian facility of its kind for testing equipment for use in hazardous locations. CANMET-CERL is accredited as a testing laboratory under ISO/IEC Guide 25. The Explosive Regulatory Division of Natural Resources Canada is one of its major clients because CANMET-CERL is mandated to perform explosives testing under the Explosives Act. CANMET-CERL provides a variety of services to clients including testing, hazard evaluation and development. Its strategic thrusts are to: develop, promote and deliver effective testing to clients; formulate innovative solutions to address explosive industry challenges; develop opportunities in the environmental field related to explosives and associated energetic materials; and evolve into a world-class one-stop testing centre for its clients. The Explosives Regulatory Division is responsible for administering Canada's Explosives Act and Regulations. This is done through a system of licenses and permits supported by a compliance inspection program. The importation, manufacture, storage sale and some aspects of transportation by road of propellants, fireworks and other pyrotechnics in Canada are controlled under this program. The division's principal thrust is public and worker safety throughout Canada. Other strategic thrusts include: delivery of easy-to-understand regulations in plain language; accessibility; consultations; and education.

Classes of Personal Information

Explosives Safety and Accident Statistics – Explosives Regulatory Division

The purpose of this class is to provide a record of statistics on safety measures in the explosives industry as well as on all accidents related to explosives. The files contain information on the nature of the accident as well as the victim's name, age and address, if applicable. Records are retained for 25 years after the date of the incident and are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention.

Human Resources Planning and Management

Personal information about employees is also maintained in other departmental files and data bases held by various organizations involved in the human resource planning and management functions. Such systems are used to provide aggregated reports for the purpose of human resource planning and management and to assist in analysis of trends or developments. Although some of the information may be retrieved by a personal identifier, the data bases are not used to provide information about individual employees nor to make any administrative decisions affecting individual employees.

Mailing Lists

This class includes correspondence and request cards from individuals regarding departmental mailing lists for publications. The information is used for amending addresses and to add or delete individual names on mailing lists, which are retained permanently. The correspondence and request cards are retained until the mailing list has been amended.

Ministerial Correspondence

This class of information contains correspondence addressed to the Minister and/or Deputy Minister from external organizations and individuals in the form of requests for information, complaints, opinions and other submissions related to a broad range of policy issues pertaining to Natural Resources Canada's activities, wherein some unsolicited personal information has been provided by the correspondent. This form of information would be retrievable only if specifics of name, date of communication and subject were to be provided; it is not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. The retention periods of these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Public Opinion Research

This is a class of records generated by departmental officials who conduct public opinion research on a vast spectrum of topics related to the mandate and mission of the Department of Natural Resources. Retrievable records consist of data gathering instruments, such as, but not exclusively, questionnaires that may contain personal information revealing the identity of the research subject. Data contained in this class of records are not used for administrative purposes. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the title of the research project in which they participated, the location and the date of the research, and any other data that may help to identify and locate the personal information they are seeking.

Research Agreements Program (CLOSED)

This class contains applications for grants submitted to the Department from candidates affiliated with Canadian research institutions. Applications contain information on the description and budget for the proposed project and the applicant's curriculum vitae. The information is used to select and award grants in the natural, physical and social sciences and engineering, which can contribute to the Department's purpose. The information is also used to compile general statistics of interest to the Department with respect to the program as a whole, and not in relation to individual applicants. The program was terminated in April 1994. Accepted applications are destroyed after a period of six fiscal years (until April 2000) and those not accepted are destroyed after two fiscal years (until April 1996)

Security Video Surveillance

This class includes video surveillance tapes for close circuit television (CCTV) cameras located on the perimeters of, or within, departmental facilities. The cameras record the image of employees and visitors entering and exiting some of the department's facilities or movements within certain restricted areas of the department. Access to the digital recordings is strictly controlled by the Departmental Security Officer. Video information that reveals evidence of illegal activity, employee misconduct or accidents may be disclosed to appropriate staff relations, enforcement or investigative bodies for further investigations, charges or disciplinary actions. The digital recordings are normally kept for a thirty-day period and are then reused. In the case of video information used in the conduct of an investigation, the video evidence is kept indefinitely.

Technical Enquiries – Canada Centre for Mineral and Energy Technology (CANMET) (CLOSED)

This class includes technical enquiries, comments and opinions of individuals corresponding with the Department regarding issues related to mining and mineral technology. The information is used for reference purposes regarding any subsequent enquiry by an individual. Correspondence is retained for a minimum of two years.

Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada

Chapter 104

General Information

Background

The Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (NSERC) is the national instrument for making strategic investments in Canada's capability in science and technology. NSERC was established in 1978 as a departmental corporation, a specialized agency that operates at arm's length from government. It is responsible for the promotion and support of research in the natural sciences and engineering, other than the health sciences. NSERC supports basic university research through research grants and project research through partnerships of universities with industry, as well as the advanced training of highly qualified people in both areas.

Responsibilities

NSERC's mission is to foster the discovery and application of knowledge through the support of university research and the training of scientists and engineers. The Council promotes the use of this knowledge to build a strong national economy and improve the quality of life of all Canadians. NSERC fulfills its mission by awarding grants and scholarships through a competitive process and by building partnerships among universities, governments and the private sector.

Over 8,000 Canadian researchers benefit from NSERC support. In addition, over 3,300 Canadians hold an NSERC scholarship or fellowship. NSERC programs provide employment to about 14,000 persons, of which 80% are students and postdoctoral fellows; the remainder are skilled technicians and research professionals.

Legislation

- Government Organization (Scientific Activities) Act (1976)

Organization

President

The President, who is chief executive officer of Council, is responsible for the overall management and direction of the work of Council staff in the development and delivery of programs.

Communications

This division is responsible for publications, media relations and public affairs.

Research Grants and Scholarships Directorate

This directorate co-ordinates activities associated with support of the research base (research grants in support of a spectrum of research activities, grants for the purchase, operation and maintenance of research equipment, facilities and installations) as well as the prestigious E.W.R. Steacie Memorial Fellowships. It also administers awards to undergraduate and graduate students, postdoctoral fellows, and scientists and engineers for advanced study and research training in Canadian universities, industry, and government laboratories.

Common Administrative Services Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the systems and services which support NSERC's officers and staff and facilitate the implementation of programs. In general, this includes administration, finance, human resources management and information management.

Council Secretariat

The Secretariat co-ordinates Council's parliamentary requirements and administers a complex network of committees which form the basis of NSERC's operations. The office plays an important co-ordination role in corporate policy within NSERC and in liaison with central agencies and external organizations. It is also responsible for the administration of the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act and for ethical issues related to research.

Policy and International Relations

This division co-ordinates strategic planning, program policy development, evaluation, internal audit, international relations and special research projects.

Research Partnerships Directorate

This directorate administers programs intended to promote research in selected fields of national importance and to forge closer links between the university research community, research-oriented government departments

Personal Information Banks

Research Grants and Scholarships Directorate

Collaborative Research Initiatives

Description: This bank contains information related to applications for support of collaborative research initiatives submitted by individuals who hold academic appointments in eligible Canadian academic institutions. It also contains information related to the administration of these types of awards. It includes details of applicants' post-secondary education, professional experience, and proposals, as well as referee and committee assessments, decisions, reports and recommendations. Class of Individuals: Individuals who apply to NSERC for support of collaborative projects and third parties from whom NSERC has requested assessments of proposals. Purpose: All personal information related to applicants is used to review applications and to administer and monitor awards and programs. Consistent Uses: Consistent with these purposes, applicants should also expect that personal information about them held by NSERC may be used and disclosed in the following ways: 1. As part of peer review, applications are disclosed to selection committees composed of experts recruited from the academic, private and public sectors. In some cases, applications may also be reviewed by external referees, members of ad hoc review committees or site visit committees. Reviews and selection committee comments about a proposal are accessible to co-applicants. 2. NSERC uses personal information about applicants in its files and databases to identify prospective committee members and reviewers for specific grant scholarship or fellowship applications. 3. Because NSERC has a single corporate database, NSERC staff are generally aware of applications submitted by the same individual to different NSERC programs. Some selection committees are provided with multi-year summaries of an individual's NSERC applications and awards in all programs. In cases when, for example, there is a question of possible overlap in the support of an applicant's research activities by two or more NSERC programs, application material submitted to one program may be used during the review of an application submitted to another program. Similarly, applications may be disclosed to program staff in the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council or the Medical Research Council for the purposes of determining the most appropriate funding jurisdiction or to monitor overlap in federal support. 4. NSERC routinely publishes and disseminates certain details about successful applications. These include name of the applicant(s), award type, amount awarded, institution and department, the discipline or field of research, the project title and, beginning in 1996 for grant programs, a summary of the research proposal prepared by the applicant for public reference. 5. Files and databases containing personal information may also be used by NSERC for program planning, evaluation and review and in audits and for generating statistics for these activities. 6. Information submitted to NSERC is subject to the Tri-Council Policy on Integrity in Research and Scholarship and may be used and disclosed consistent with that policy. 7. NSERC collects data on the gender of applicants on a voluntary basis only and uses it to promote the increased participation of women in NSERC programs and on NSERC committees. 8. NSERC also uses the information in its files and databases to generate mailing lists in order to disseminate its publications and other information to the research community. Retention and Disposition Standards: NSERC is in the process of developing these standards. RDA Number: 2002/007 Note: These programs were discontinued in 1996. Related to PR#: SER 031 TBS Registration: 002573 Bank Number: SER PPU 055

General Support Programs

Description: This bank contains applications, forms and correspondence related to NSERC's research support and other programs which provide support for research personnel. This would include the Attachés de recherche du CRSNG*, the E.W.R. Steacie Fellowships, and some Miscellaneous Grants*. They may also contain administrative and financial documents related to the administration of awards. Class of Individuals: Individuals who participate in NSERC's Research Support and other general support programs and third parties from whom NSERC has requested assessments of proposals. Purpose: All personal information related to applicants is used to review applications and to administer and monitor awards and programs. Consistent Uses: Consistent with these purposes, applicants should also expect that personal information about them held by NSERC may be used and disclosed in the following ways: 1. As part of peer review, applications are disclosed to selection committees composed of experts recruited from the academic, private and public sectors. In some cases, applications may also be reviewed by external referees, members of ad hoc review committees or site visit committees. Reviews and selection committee comments about a proposal are accessible to co-applicants. 2. NSERC uses personal information about applicants in its files and databases to identify prospective committee members and reviewers for specific grant scholarship or fellowship applications. 3. Some selection committees are provided with multi-year summaries of an individual's NSERC applications and awards in all programs. In cases when, for example, there is a question of possible overlap in the support of an applicant's research activities by two or more NSERC programs, application material submitted to one program may be used during the review of an application submitted to another program. Similarly, applications may be disclosed to program staff in the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council or the Medical Research Council for the purposes of determining the most appropriate funding jurisdiction or to monitor overlap in federal support. 4. NSERC routinely publishes and disseminates certain details about successful applications. These include name of the applicant(s), award type, amount awarded, institution and department, the discipline or field of research, the project title and, beginning in 1996 for grant programs, a summary of the research proposal prepared by the applicant for public reference. 5. Files and databases containing personal information may also be used by NSERC for program planning, evaluation and review and in audits and for generating statistics for these activities. 6. Information submitted to NSERC is subject to the Tri-Council Policy on Integrity in Research and Scholarship and may be used and disclosed consistent with that policy. 7. NSERC collects data on the gender of applicants on a voluntary basis only and uses it to promote the increased participation of women in NSERC programs and on NSERC committees. 8. NSERC also uses the information in its files and databases to generate mailing lists in order to disseminate its publications and other information to the research community. Retention and Disposition Standards: NSERC is in the process of developing these standards. RDA Number: 2002/007 Note: Programs marked * discontinued in 1995. Related to PR#: SER 041; SER 045 TBS Registration: 002574 Bank Number: SER PPU 060

Northern Pipeline Agency Canada

Chapter 105

General Information

Background

The Northern Pipeline Agency (NPA) was created with the proclamation of the Northern Pipeline Act in April 1978, to oversee planning and construction of the Canadian portion of the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline Project by the Foothills Group of Companies. Pending resumption of planning and construction of the pipeline, the only office in the Agency that is staffed is the Office of the Commissioner, which maintains a small support staff.

Responsibilities

The Agency's mandate is twofold. It is required to carry out federal responsibilities in relation to the pipeline and facilitate the efficient and expeditious planning and construction of the pipeline taking into account local and regional interests, in particular those of native people. It is also responsible for maximizing the social and economic benefits from the construction and operation of the pipeline while at the same time minimizing any adverse effect on the social and environmental conditions of the areas most directly affected by the pipeline.

The Agency was designed to act as a single window between federal authorities and the Foothills Group of Companies, and between provincial and territorial governments, and the Government of the United States. In keeping with the Act, many regulatory powers of other federal departments and agencies related to the pipeline project have been delegated to the Agency. This is not the case for those powers reserved exclusively to the National Energy Board or shared between the Board and the Agency.

Legislation

- Northern Pipeline Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. N-26

Organization

Office of the Commissioner

As Agency headquarters, the Office provides support to both the Minister responsible for the Agency and the Commissioner. The Office is responsible for developing and consulting on major policy issues between the United States, the provinces, and federal departments and agencies, concerning the planning and construction of the Canadian portion of the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline Project.

Office of the Administrator

The Office exercises such powers and performs such duties and functions as the Minister may specify.

Office of the Designated Officer

The Office carries out responsibilities as required under the Northern Pipeline Act, and as may be delegated by order of the National Energy Board from time to time.

Chapter 109

General Information

Background

The position of Chief Electoral Officer was created in 1920 by the Dominion Elections Act, primarily to ensure public confidence in the neutral administration of federal elections. The Chief Electoral Officer is appointed by a resolution of the House of Commons so that all parties represented there may participate in the selection process. Once appointed, the incumbent reports directly to Parliament and is thus independent of government and political parties. The Chief Electoral Officer serves until he/she attains the age of sixty-five years and can only be removed for cause, by the Governor General on address of the Senate and House of Commons.

Anyone who has reasonable cause to believe that a provision of the legislation has been violated should send a written complaint to the Commissioner. Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions Canada

Chapter 114

General Information

Background

The Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions (OSFI) was formally established by the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions Act, 1987. OSFI is divided into a Supervision Sector, a Regulation Sector, a Corporate Services Sector, and the Office of the Chief Actuary.

Responsibilities

OSFI is responsible for regulating and supervising federally registered financial institutions including banks, insurance, trust and loan companies, and fraternal benefit and co-operative credit societies. It also supervises employer-sponsored pension plans that are subject to the Pension Benefits Standards Act, 1985. OSFI has a mandate to protect the rights and interests of depositors, policyholders and pension plan members and to advance and administer a regulatory framework so as to contribute to public confidence in a competitive financial system. Through the Office of the Chief Actuary, OSFI also makes available actuarial advice to other departments of the federal government and provides extensive actuarial services in the valuation of government pension and insurance programs.

Legislation

- Bank Act
- Co-operative Credit Associations Act
- Insurance Companies Act
- Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions Act
- Pension Benefits Standards Act, 1985
- Trust and Loan Companies Act

Organization

Supervision Sector

This sector organizes supervisory work for all federally regulated financial institutions and pension plans. Divisions within the Supervision Sector are responsible for overseeing the overall safety and soundness of the institutions and plans by:

- analysing risks and identifying trends and practices within the financial services industry;

- within the OSFI Supervisory Framework, developing a supervisory plan for each federally regulated financial institution that includes examining and monitoring the financial condition and effectiveness of oversight and control of those entities;
- making recommendations and following up on corrective action, consistent with OSFI's early intervention mandate.

DTI Conglomerate Group

This group supervises federally regulated conglomerate deposit-taking companies, including all the federally regulated entities in each conglomerate. The responsibility for each conglomerate is assigned to a Relationship Manager, who carries out the supervisory work with a team of supervisors.

Financial Institutions Group (FIG)

This group supervises non-conglomerate deposit-taking institutions and insurance companies. It is divided into four sections. Two focus on deposit-taking institutions (Schedule II Banks and trust and loan companies) and two supervise companies in the insurance industry.

Insurance Conglomerate Division

This division supervises federally regulated conglomerate insurance companies, including all the federally regulated entities in each conglomerate. A team reports to the Relationship Manager of each conglomerate. However, the Group operates within a matrix structure and each team borrows staff from other teams in the division, as necessary, for support and expertise when performing on-site examinations.

Private Pension Plans Division

This division is responsible for supervising private pension plans that fall under federal jurisdiction. These include pension plans for some federal Crown corporations, banks, companies involved in interprovincial and/or international transportation and communications companies, among others. The mandate of the group is to protect the rights and interests of plan members by determining whether pension plans are in sound financial condition and in compliance with the requirements of legislation and OSFI policies and guidelines. The division relies on plan administrators for good governance and prudent management of the pension plans for which they are responsible. In addition, the division intervenes, when necessary, to ensure that appropriate corrective actions are taken.

Capital Markets Division

This division evaluates the risk management practices used by financial institutions to measure and monitor capital market-related risks, approves the use of capital market-related internal Value at Risk (VaR) models, conducts ongoing research into capital market-related risk issues, supports the development of OSFI policy, and promotes understanding of capital markets' operations by supervisory and regulatory staff.

Credit Risk and Service Technology Division

This division has two areas of responsibility:

Credit Risk provides credit risk management expertise in support of OSFI's regulatory and supervisory functions.

Financial Services provides information technology risk management expertise in support of OSFI's regulatory and supervisory functions.

Strategic Initiatives Division

This division provides project management support to the Supervision Sector.

Supervisory and Regulatory Practices Division

This division develops and recommends effective regulatory and supervisory practices and assists in the implementation of approved practices. The division is committed to ensuring that OSFI practices are up-to-date, effective and adjusted on a timely basis, both in Canada and internationally.

Regulation Sector

This sector is comprised of ten divisions that develop regulatory policy and guidelines, prepare recommendations with respect to applications for regulatory consents under the legislation, work on rulings that set precedents, and draft technical aspects of financial sector legislation. The sector also co-ordinates OSFI's relations with other regulators and supervisors and works with a number of domestic and international organizations that deal with financial stability issues. The sector also provides legal support to OSFI.

Accounting Policy Division

This division is primarily responsible for maintaining the integrity of accounting and external reporting policies and practices within federally regulated institutions. This duty derives from OSFI's legislated authority to specify the accounting standards to be applied by institutions and the auditing standards to be applied by each institution's external auditors, and is comprised of two distinct streams of activity. First, the division engages with various standard setters, regulatory organizations and others to assess and influence the direction of evolving standards and governance structures of the accounting profession.

Second, the division supports OSFI's risk assessment and intervention, rule making and approvals functions by providing field support, interpretations, guidance and professional training.

Actuarial Division

This division ensures that appropriate actuarial knowledge, advice, and standards are applied to OSFI's regulatory and supervisory functions. Capital Division

This division develops capital standards for domestic financial institutions, contributes to the development of sound international capital standards, approves capital precedents, provides specialist support on capital issues to the supervisory and regulatory functions, and promotes understanding of capital requirements by OSFI staff and external stakeholders.

Compliance Division

The division evaluates the effectiveness of corporate governance and the compliance function of financial institutions supervised by OSFI, with due regard for emerging risks. It also monitors the effectiveness of financial institutions' anti-money laundering and anti-terrorist financial procedures, and collects corporate information from institutions.

International Assistance Group

The International Assistance Group was formed in 2001 to provide technical assistance to countries seeking to strengthen their supervisory and regulatory practices. This group works primarily with supervisors in the Caribbean, Asia and Latin America. IAG's responsibilities are to develop, implement and administer technical assistance programs, including hands-on advice and training, seminars and workshops.

International Liaison Division

The division works with supervisory agencies in other jurisdictions to enhance on-going co-operation and appropriate information exchange, and, with major international financial institutions, supervisory standard setters and training centres, works to develop and implement sound international supervisory principles, standards and practices. The division also briefs supervisors and government officials from other countries on OSFI's methodologies and practices.

Legal Services Division

This division provides or obtains all legal advice and legal services required by OSFI, including interpretation of statutes, regulations, and other legal instruments and preparation of draft legislation and regulations, contracts and legal documents. It also provides advice on policy development and lends support to litigators acting on behalf of OSFI. The division processes requests made to OSFI under the access to information and privacy legislation.

Legislation and Approvals Division

This division has two principal areas of responsibility:

1) It contributes to the development of legislation and regulations that maintain or strengthen public confidence while allowing an appropriate competitive market to develop, including the review of transactions and related developments that are precedent setting.

2) It prepares recommendations related to applications made by financial institutions for regulatory consents under the legislation and provides rulings and interpretations pertaining to legislation, regulations and OSFI Guidelines.

Research Division

This division provides, on request, on-going research support for OSFI projects. It brings research on financial sector issues to the attention of OSFI staff, identifies issues of interest to OSFI and manages external consultants who research projects concerning these issues.

Audit & Consulting Services

This division provides internal audit and consulting services to the Office. It assists senior management in assessing OSFI's risks and providing objective evaluations of OSFI's control processes.

Corporate Services Sector

This sector is divided into five divisions: Human Resources; Finance and Informatics; Office Management and Technical Services; Communications and Public Affairs; Data Management and Regulatory Data Systems.

Office of the Chief Actuary

The Chief Actuary and his staff provide a range of actuarial services and advice to the Government of Canada in respect of the Canada Pension Plan; the Old Age Security program; and federal public sector pension and insurance programs. In accordance with the Public Pensions Reporting Act and the Canada Pension Plan, this office prepares statutory actuarial reports on these programs for tabling in the House of Commons. The Office of the Chief Actuary (OCA) also provides actuarial information to government departments to assist in designing, funding and administering these programs. Beginning in 2001, OCA became responsible for undertaking the actuarial review of the Canada Student Loan Program.

Patented Medicine Prices Review Board

Chapter 117

General Information

Background

The Patented Medicine Prices Review Board is an independent quasi-judicial body created as a result of revisions to the Patent Act (Bill C-22) and came into force on December 7, 1987. Subsequent revisions to the Patent Act in 1993 (Bill C-91) shifted ministerial responsibility to the Minister of Health and increased the Board remedial powers.

Responsibilities

The Patented Medicine Prices Review Board was given a mandate to carry out two functions:

Regulatory: To protect consumer interests by regulating the maximum prices charged by manufacturers for patented medicines to ensure that they are not excessive. The PMPRB's mandate extends to all patented drugs, prescription and non-prescription medicines sold in Canada for human and veterinary use.

Reporting: To monitor and report annually to Parliament through the Minister of Health, on its price review activities, the price trends of all medicines in Canada and on the ratio of research and development in the patented pharmaceutical industry in Canada.

Legislation

- Patent Act
- Patented Medicines Regulations, 1994

Organization

The Patent Act provides that the Board is to consist of no more than five members, appointed, on a part-time basis, by the Governor in Council, including a Chairperson and Vice-Chairperson. The Board's Chairperson is designated under the legislation as the Chief Executive Officer of the Board and is granted authority and responsibility to supervise and direct the work of the Board, including the management of its internal affairs and the work of its staff.

The Executive Director manages the work of the staff. Senior staff consists of the Director of Compliance and Enforcement, the Director of Policy and Economic Analysis, the Director of Corporate Services, the Secretary of the Board and Senior Counsel.

The Staff provides an information and education program, data collection, storage and dissemination, economic and scientific analysis, case preparation and related services for the registry and administrative assistance to the Board. It also provides for hearings prior to the making of remedial orders by the Board.

Compliance and Enforcement Branch

The Board's patented medicine price review activities are central to the fulfilment of its Program objective which is to ensure that prices charged by manufacturers for patented medicines are not excessive. The price and Research and Development (R&D) information gathered by the Branch forms the basis of the Board's Annual Report to Parliament. The Branch is responsible for the implementation of the Board's Voluntary Compliance Policy and Excessive Price Guidelines. That policy includes ongoing review and analysis of prices of all patented medicines sold in Canada through evaluation of patentee submissions required under the Patented Medicines Regulations, 1994, specific Board directions (i.e. Guidelines) and other sources of price and scientific information as well as analysis of complaints respecting patented medicine prices. The Branch manages the application of the compliance and enforcement policy in cases where the prices are outside the Guidelines. In addition, the Branch oversees the analysis of R&D expenditures by pharmaceutical patentees.

The Branch also researches and analyses information and provides technical advice to support the development of Board policy and procedures.

Policy and Economic Analysis

The Branch is responsible for policy analysis and development, consultation, economic research and studies conducted by the PMPRB. In doing so, it liaises with other federal departments and agencies, the provincial and territorial governments and international agencies to obtain and share information on the regulation of drug prices and pharmaceutical research and development.

The Branch also provides economic expertise and conducts research studies to support the Board's mandate of reporting annually to Parliament on the price trend information of all drugs in Canada and on research and development conducted by patentees in Canada.

At the request of the Minister of Health, the Branch carries out detailed analysis and reports on price and expenditure trends, price levels and cost drivers to provide useful decision support tools and information to assist provincial and territorial drug benefit plans to better understand and manage public spending on medicines, as well as to provide greater transparency to the public on the prices and cost drivers that they face.

Corporate Management and Services

This group consists of three branches – Corporate Services, Secretariat and Legal Services.

The Corporate Services branch is responsible for the management of the Information Systems; the delivery and application of government-wide programs and policies in the area of official languages, finance, administration, internal audit, personnel, security, occupational health and safety; and, is charged with the development and evaluation of strategic activities within the Board.

The Secretariat is responsible for managing a wide range of communications and information services, legal registry and support services to the Board. The Secretariat is also responsible for Access to Information and parliamentary affairs.

Legal Services provide legal advice to the Board on its operations and legislation.

Public Service Commission of Canada

Chapter 122

General Information

Background

The Public Service Commission (PSC), an independent agency accountable to Parliament for the administration of the Public Service Employment Act, has been in existence since 1908 under various titles and legislations.

Responsibilities

The PSC ensures that the people of Canada are served by a highly competent Public Service that is non-partisan and representative of Canadian society. As such, it plays a leadership role in the Public Service renewal process, focusing on the people dimension of change, while promoting and safeguarding Public Service values.

The PSC administers the Public Service Employment Act (PSEA) which governs staffing in the Public Service. It develops policies and programs that shape staffing in the Public Service, establishes mechanisms for appeals against appointments, conducts investigations into complaints related to staffing, deployments and harassment in the workplace, monitors the conduct of delegated staffing and, on behalf of the Treasury Board, provides certain learning services to better equip public servants with the necessary skills for the present and the future.

Legislation

- Public Service Employment Act (PSEA)
- Public Service Employment Regulations (PSER)

Organization

Commissioners

The jurisdictional powers of the Public Service Commission rest with the three commissioners, one of whom is the President and Chief Executive Officer. Appointed by the Governor in Council for a ten-year term, the commissioners have the status of deputy head. Together, they set overall policy in accordance with the Public Service Employment Act.

Corporate Management Branch

The Corporate Management Branch provides services in support of the Commission and its programs. This includes financial, administrative and information technology systems and services; human resources management; corporate management; internal audit and assurance; administration of a number of provisions of the Public Service Employment Act; and access to information and privacy.

Learning and Development Programs Branch

This Branch offers a range of training and development programs and services for Public Service employees. Programs and services range from the identification of managers and executives with strong leadership potential to the teaching of French and English to Public Service employees. The Branch manages corporate and government-wide programs such as the Career Assignment Program, the Accelerated Executive Development Program, the Assistant Deputy Minister Prequalification Process. Its offerings include learning tools and approaches for employee personal and professional development to meet government needs and requirements, and courses and services provided by Training and Development Canada and Language Training Canada.

Merit Policy and Accountability Branch

This Branch is the focus for the PSC's independent oversight and reporting to Parliament on merit and integrity of the staffing process. It integrates the main PSC independent agency policy, regulatory, information management, monitoring and reporting functions together as well as non-delegated Executive Resourcing. The Branch also supports the medium- and long-term positioning of the PSC through strategic analysis, research, liaison with various stakeholders, and corporate communication services.

Recourse Branch

This Branch provides independent recourse processes in support of the merit principle in order to protect the public interest and to promote, through effective intervention and education, the application of merit, fairness, equity and transparency. It also ensures that appropriate independence of the quasi-judicial appeals and investigations function exists and is seen to exist. Part of its role is to provide training, advice and assistance to departments, unions, other organizations and individuals.

Recruitment & Assessment Services Branch

This Branch works with departments and agencies to provide a highly competent Public Service that is non-partisan and representative of Canadian society. The branch responsibility includes operational policy and program design, as well as the delivery of products and services through regional and district offices. Branch activities include recruitment to the Public Service, the Personnel Psychology Centre, priority administration and EE initiatives. The Branch is also responsible for the delivery of EE initiatives and certain corporate programs (e.g. Management Trainee Program) on behalf of Treasury Board.

Classes of Personal Information

General Administrative Documentation

In the course of conducting the activities and programs of the Public Service Commission, categories of personal information are accumulated which are not contained in the specific information banks described in this entry. Examples of such personal information include routine correspondence of an administrative nature, complaints and inquiries files as well as contracts for personal and professional services and unsolicited applications for employment. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Surveys and Studies

The Public Service Commission occasionally surveys individuals, private and other public organizations who have participated in PSC programs or made use of its services. These surveys usually form part of studies and are done to obtain individual's views and opinions on PSC activities such as training, staffing, appeals, audits and other departmental responsibilities. The information is used for program planning and to evaluate the effectiveness of training methods and of PSC operations. It is also used to respond to training needs; to obtain a basis for the establishment of policies and procedures; and to ascertain the quality of services, identify problems in those services and make the necessary improvements. The retention periods for this class of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject file in which they are stored.

Public Service Integrity Office

Chapter 123

General Information

Background

On November 30, 2001, the Public Service Integrity Office was established by the Treasury Board. The Office mandate is to act as a neutral entity on matters of internal disclosure of wrongdoing. In particular, the office assists employees who:

- believe that their issue cannot be disclosed within their own department; or
- raised their disclosure issue(s) in good faith through the departmental mechanisms but believe that the disclosure was not appropriately addressed.
- Wrongdoing is defined as an act or omission concerning:
 - a violation of any law or regulation; or
 - a breach of the Values and Ethics Code of the Public Service; or
 - misuse of public funds or assets; or
 - gross mismanagement; or
 - a substantial and specific danger to the life, health and safety of Canadians or the environment.

The President of the Treasury Board, under section 73 of the Access to Information Act and section 73 of the Privacy Act, has delegated the authority, in respect of records maintained by the Office, to the Integrity Officer. Requests for records are processed independently of the Treasury Board Secretariat Access To Information and Privacy Office. The Public Service Integrity Office deals directly with the Office of the Information and Privacy Commissioners.

Responsibilities

The Public Service Integrity Office provides public service employees with an independent and neutral, external review of disclosures of wrongdoing in the workplace. In addition to investigating matters in an equitable, timely and confidential manner the Office ensures that an employee who makes a good-faith disclosure is protected from job reprisal. The Public Service Integrity Office gives a high priority to confidentiality and will protect information to the extent possible. However, the Public Service Integrity Office is subject to the provisions of the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act. Please consult with the Public Service Integrity Office for more information.

The responsibilities of the Office are:

- to provide advice to employees who are considering making a disclosure;
- to receive, record and review the disclosures of wrongdoing received from departmental employees and/or the requests for review submitted by departmental employees;
- to establish if there are sufficient grounds for further action and review;
- to initiate an investigation when required, to review the results of investigations and to prepare reports, and to make recommendations to deputy heads on how to address or correct issues related to the alleged wrongdoing;
- in some special circumstances or in cases when the departmental responses are not adequate or timely, to make a report of findings to the Clerk of the Privy Council in his role as head of the Public Service;
- to protect from reprisal employees who disclose in good faith information concerning wrongdoing; and
- to monitor the type and disposition of cases brought to the attention of the Public Service Integrity Officer;
- to prepare an Annual report on its activities for tabling in Parliament.

(Further details on our responsibilities can be obtained on our website at Integritas.gc.ca or by contacting the Public Service Integrity Office.)

Treasury Board Policy

The Treasury Board Policy on the Internal Disclosure of Information Concerning Wrongdoing in the Workplace created the position of Public Service Integrity Officer and defined the role and mandate of the supporting office. The policy stems from the Treasury Board authority to manage the Public Service pursuant to the Financial Administration Act (FAA) and its authority as the employer of the Public Service under the Public Service Staff Relations Act (PSSRA).

Organization

The Public Service Integrity Officer

Appointed by the Governor in Council, the Public Service Integrity Officer acts under the authority conferred to the position by Treasury Board Policy. The Public Service Integrity Office is independent and operates at arms length with respect to the conduct of its activities. The Annual Report prepared by the Public Service Integrity

Officer is tabled in Parliament by the President of the Privy Council.

The Office is composed of an Executive Director, Senior Investigators, Legal Counsel and administrative staff. Senior investigators are responsible for reviewing and conducting investigations of alleged wrongdoing. Investigations may result in recommendations made to deputy heads for corrective actions when wrongdoing is established.

PWGSC Services for Parliamentary Precinct

The Client Service Team for Parliamentary Precinct was created in September 1991 to provide a single integrated service delivery window for the provision of real property services including accommodation planning, delivery of capital projects and operations and maintenance services for its clients.

Its main clients are the Senate, the House of Commons and the Library of Parliament. They occupy space within the Parliamentary Precinct, a geographical area encompassing all buildings and land north of Wellington Street, east of the Supreme Court and west of the Rideau Canal locks, and in Crown-owned buildings on the north side of Sparks Street, and in other leased and Crown-owned facilities throughout the National Capital Area. It also provides services to the Prime Minister's Office, the Deputy Prime Minister's Office, the Privy Council Office, the Governor General's La Citadelle residence as well as commercial and retail tenants, including numerous media outlets who occupy space in Crown-owned buildings on the north side of Sparks Street, between Bank Street and Elgin Street.

Over the years, work has been undertaken to develop a plan to address both the long-term accommodation requirements for Parliamentary clients and the condition of the assets they occupy. In 1992, a Long Term Capital Plan (LTCP) was approved. This plan focused on projects related to health and safety and maintaining essential operations of Parliament. However, as work progressed, it became apparent that the scope of the LTCP did not adequately address future needs. As a result, PWGSC initiated a process designed to develop a comprehensive plan to preserve the historic Parliament Buildings, bring them up to modern day standards regarding health, safety and efficiency, and prepare for future needs.

In 2001, Cabinet and Treasury Board approved The Long Term Vision and Plan (LTVP) for the Parliamentary Precinct, a detailed blueprint for renovations and new construction over the next 25 years that will meet accommodation requirements identified by the Senate, the House of Commons and the Library of Parliament, including putting in place the infrastructure required to bring the Parliament buildings into the 21st century.

Many of the LTVP projects are multifaceted with real property, procurement and informatics and technology components. Consequently, the restructuring of PWGSC is not only presenting PPD with opportunities to provide integrated PWGSC services, it will also aid in the implementation of the LTVP.

Because of the complexity of the client environment, the heritage value of the buildings and site of the Parliamentary Precinct, the importance of the area as a focal point for visitors and residents in the city and region, Parliamentary Precinct is continually striving to ensure that all stakeholders, including the Canadian public, are included, as appropriate, in decisions affecting the assets included in its portfolio.

PWGSC Services for PWGSC

The Client Service Team for PWGSC was created to serve as a leading example of the integrated approach to client service, and to meet the growing demands of the fourth largest federal department in Canada.

Working in collaboration with the Operations Branch management team, our regional counterparts, Corporate Policy and Infrastructure Branch (the "client") and the PWGSC Human Resource Branch, the CST has begun to take shape.

Its goal is to deliver integrated services within the CST while addressing the issues of affordability, efficiency, effectiveness, economy, value for money, transparency, prudence, probity and leadership. With the support of all directorates, the CST will develop and implement solid management frameworks that will define the parameters for client service. The objective is to avoid duplication of efforts and services. PWGSC Services for PWGSC will develop a system of checks and balances to track daily issues while keeping an eye on the horizon, and monitor and assess our client service strategy.

The CST has articulated a comprehensive client strategy, a statement of values, and have developed an organizational design. Its employees will provide the needed expertise to support information technology, procurement, real property and business management functions. Under the new organizational structure, the former Real Property Services Branch was split into Real Property Program Branch and Real Property Operations Sector of Operations Branch with the goal of providing a more seamless integrated service delivery. RPOS comprises two sectors: Real Property Operations Solutions Sector and Real Property Operations Portfolio Planning and Management Sector.

PWGSC is one of 15 departments designed as custodians of federal real property. In addition, regional PWGSC offices also produce socio-economic payments such as the Child Tax Credit, Old Age Security, Guaranteed Income Supplements, Canada Pension Plan, Canadian Jobs Strategy, National Revenue Income Tax refunds, Goods and Services Credit Payments and Census payments. A specialized branch in Shediac, New Brunswick, is responsible for superannuation services

Washington Region

The Washington Region, located at the Canadian Embassy in Washington DC, is the single window for procuring goods and services under the US Foreign Military Sales (FMS) Program.

Established pursuant to the U.S. Arms Export Control Act, FMS is the vehicle through which Canada, and other eligible foreign governments, may purchase defence articles, services and training from the US Government. U.S. material governed by ITAR (International Traffic in Arms Regulations) plays a significant role in the FMS regime. In this regard, the Washington Office must ensure conformance with associated export controls. FMS is used only where there is a demonstrable benefit that cannot be achieved through other acquisition methods, or when the articles, services, or training required are not available from commercial sources.

The Washington Region is faced with the challenge of addressing Canadian law, regulations and processes in concert with a U.S. FMS framework that requires observance of U.S. regulations and law in all sales transactions. This feature of the FMS system also demands that special attention be afforded to relationship building with the US Departments of State and Defence, which in turn has led to better service and improved performance for Canadian Government clients of FMS. As well, the Region has been a lead proponent of e-business solutions for the FMS process, and has achieved significant progress with the implementation of an electronic interface for all US services. This too has resulted in time savings and efficiencies for the Office's customers.

In addition to its core business of Defence acquisitions, the Washington Region supports the PWGSC International Cooperation Initiative. It is actively engaged in information gathering and collaborative efforts between PWGSC and its U.S. Government counterparts such as the General Service Administration as well as American and international industry associations headquartered in Washington DC. The Office is also well placed to contribute to the broader PWGSC agenda by providing ongoing assessments of U.S. Government civilian and defence procurement policy, both from the point of view of what Canada can learn from the U.S. experience and the implications that U.S. policies and practices may have for Canadian access to U.S. Government markets. The Washington Office assists the Canadian Embassy International Business Development Section in explaining and defending Canadian procurement policies and practices.

The Real Property Program Branch was created in November 2002 as a result of a department-wide restructuring. The RPP Branch is responsible for excellence in innovative program and policy development on a national scale, provides strategic advice and functional direction, and develops best practices, policies and strategies in the area of real property. RPP is also the point of contact for stakeholder relations with the real property industry, other governments and central agencies while providing a more prominent role in broad government agenda. RPP creates an enabling policy environment for the Operations Branch to deliver integrated services. RPP is also responsible for the approximately $400 million Payments in Lieu of Taxes (PILT) Program, professional appraisal services for the federal government, and the lead on the resolution of all real property policy issues, in particular on the divestiture of engineering assets.

Quebec Port Authority

Chapter 126

General Information

Background

In 1805, the Canadian government established Trinity House, whose mission was to administer the port, issue licenses to the St. Lawrence pilots and even be responsible for tending buoys. In 1858, the Canadian government created the Quebec Harbour Commission to restore order on the wharves. Trinity House was disbanded in 1873 and management of the port was then transferred to the Quebec Harbour Commission in 1875. The government established the National Harbours Board in 1936, which included the major Canadian ports and dissolved the Harbour Commissions. The National Harbours Board was an agent of the Crown and controlled the business and service operations. This organization reported on its activities to Parliament through the Department of Transport.

Around 1983, the federal government reviewed the Canadian port management legislation and passed the Canada Ports Corporation Act. The Port of Quebec Corporation was established in 1984, as well as six other Local Port Corporations. This new legislative stage resulted in the incorporation of the major Canadian port entities and brought decision-making power back to a local level.

On May 1, 1999, following the passage of the Canada Marine Act, the Canada Ports Corporation was gradually wound up to make way for a national port system managed by Canadian Port Authorities (CPA). Thus, the Port of Quebec Corporation has now become the Quebec Port Authority, a non-profit federal agency.

Responsibilities

The mission of the Quebec Port Authority is to promote and develop shipping and serve the economic interests of the Quebec region, taking consideration of the community and the environment while ensuring its profitability. To this end, it ensures that the Port is cost-effective, develops and manages its assets efficiently, stimulates industrial activity and business growth, innovates in the port and transportation fields and preserves the port's heritage.

Legislation

- Canada Marine Act

Organization

Board of Directors

The Quebec Port Authority is managed by a seven-member board of directors. The federal, provincial and municipal government each appoint one member. Executive Committee

The Executive Committee administers the Code of Ethics, reviews the compensation of the board members, the Chief Executive Officer and other officers and makes recommendations to the board in this regard.

General Management

As the administrative head of the Authority, the President and Chief Executive Officer shall discharge the duties conferred on him by the Act, the Regulations, the Letters Patent and the by-laws. He leads a team of managers consisting of the Vice-President, Operations and development and the Vice-President, Finance and administration.

Background

The Ottawa Mint was originally established in 1908 as a branch of the Royal Mint of London, England. Legislation

- Criminal Code
- Most federal statutes

Organization

The authority and accountability for executing the requirements of the RCMP Act rest with the Commissioner who reports to the Solicitor General of Canada. The Commissioner is supported by four regional Deputy Commissioners, and three Deputy Commissioner at the National Headquarters C responsible for Operations, Corporate Management and Comptrollership, and Strategic Direction C as well as an Assistant Commissioner responsible for National Police Services. The Commissioner also has a Chief Information Officer, a Chief Human Resources Officer and an Ethics Advisor who reports directly to him.

Records are retained in accordance with the subject content of the record, based on a central file classification system, rather than function or activity. Each Detachment, Sub-Division, Division and Headquarters, Ottawa classifies records under three main groups, Administrative, Operational Policy, and Sequential (Operational Investigative Records). The Administrative records are divided into seven sub-classifications. These are further categorized, as are the Operational Policy records, into sub-topics, which are standard throughout the RCMP. The Sequential (Operational Investigative Records) pertain to the general investigative records generated and retained at each site, and as the name suggests, each is sequentially numbered. The volume of records will vary from location to location, however the retention system is uniform. This system is centrally regulated and this enables the RCMP to describe its record holdings in the three distinct categories.

Requesters need only describe the record they wish to access. If the request pertains to a specific incident, the location of that incident is also required.

Solicitor General Canada

Chapter 138

General Information

Background

The Department of the Solicitor General was established in 1966 when Parliament enacted the Department of the Solicitor General Act, which assigned to the Solicitor General responsibility and accountability for the management and direction of reformatories, prisons, penitentiaries, conditional release, remissions, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Evolutionary additions and changes to this mandate resulted in the Department's reorganization into a ministry, incorporating the Department, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Correctional Service of Canada, the National Parole Board, the Canadian Firearms Center, the Office of the Correctional Investigator, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS), the Office of the Inspector General of CSIS, the RCMP External Review Committee and the RCMP Public Complaints Commission.

Responsibilities

The Department provides advice and support to the Solicitor General with respect to his responsibility for the provision of direction to the Agencies; enhancement of policy cohesion and coordination within the Portfolio; his accountability to Parliament for the Agencies; for his national leadership role in the federal activities in policing, national security, corrections and conditional release; and his role as the Minister responsible for Aboriginal policing.

The primary objective of the Department is to contribute to the public safety of Canadians through the promotion and maintenance of a just, peaceful and safe society.

The level, complexity and cross-jurisdictional nature of the issues addressed by the Department require that it work closely with others, including the Ministry agencies, federal departments such as Justice Canada, the provinces and other partners in the criminal justice system.

- Criminal Code of Canada

Standards Council of Canada

Chapter 139

General Information

Background

The Standards Council of Canada was established in 1970 by an Act of Parliament to promote efficient and effective voluntary standardization in Canada.

Responsibilities

The Standards Council carries out its task through the National Standards System (NSS). The NSS consists of individuals involved in the development and application of standards and of independent organizations accredited by the Standards Council to provide services related to standards development, certification, testing, quality systems registration and environmental systems registration. The system was created to provide a medium through which Canadian organizations involved in such activities may operate and co-operate to recognize, establish and improve standardization in Canada. It provides a comprehensive Canadian standardization capability to meet both national and international requirements and responsibilities.

The Standards Council ensures effective Canadian participation in the work of the International Organization for Standardization (ISO) and the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC). Both of these international agencies have as their objective the development of standards, with a view to facilitating international trade of goods and services. ISO work is concerned with standardization in many disciplines, except for the electrotechnology field which is IEC's responsibility.

The Standards Council works to secure the acceptance of Canadian conformity assessment results in foreign markets in order to facilitate international trade. It cooperates with its foreign counterparts in the development of mutual recognition agreements, and with other Canadian bodies such as the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade (DFAIT) in the development and implementation of bilateral, regional and international trade agreements.

Statistics Canada

Chapter 140

General Information

Background

Statistics Canada collects and provides statistical information on the characteristics and behaviour of Canadian households, businesses, institutions and governments for research, policy development, program administration, decision-making and general informational purposes. This is done under the authority of the Statistics Act which prohibits the disclosure of identifiable information to anyone without the consent or knowledge of the individual person, business or organization concerned.

The statistical information banks maintained by Statistics Canada contain some personal information that has been obtained from a variety of sources. Information is collected directly from individuals through the censuses of population and agriculture, from sample surveys such as surveys on income and expenditure, labour force surveys and special surveys. It is also collected through certain formal agreements the agency has entered into with large social institutions and various levels of Canadian governments. These arrangements give Statistics Canada access to administrative records for the purpose of extracting data on the client populations of the institutions of health, education and justice and on the activities of the population as it comes in contact with the state (e.g., the registration of births, deaths and marriages).

One of the most important of these agreements is one Statistics Canada has with Canada Customs and Revenue Agency (Taxation) to access taxation returns for statistical purposes, thus allowing the use of an administrative file of the federal government containing a wealth of information on the socio-economic fabric of the Canadian population. The access to tax records has allowed Statistics Canada to exempt many respondents, particularly small businesses, from filing multiple questionnaires.

Information banks maintained by Statistics Canada are largely automated. Since records in these banks are meant to be used for statistical purposes and not for administrative purposes, they are rarely organized by name. In fact, few data banks contain names. Some banks are organized by a unique identifier, be it a number assigned by Statistics Canada, a number assigned by the administrative source, such as a registration number, or the social insurance number. Records in other banks are classified geographically, or by the name of the company. It should be noted that many of the statistical data banks contain only a sample of the population. To locate a statistical record, Statistics Canada will require, in most cases, not only an identifier, but additional information such as the time period in which an individual has responded to a survey, or his/her street address, or his/her industry sector.

Responsibilities

The mandate and program objectives of Statistics Canada are: to collect and publish in aggregate formats statistical information on the characteristics and behaviour of Canadian households, businesses, institutions and governments for research, policy development, program administration, decision-making and general informational purposes; to collaborate with other participants in the broader national statistical system in extending the system's scope, usefulness and use; and to provide leadership, professional expertise and coordination in such efforts.

There are two basic programs, the Annual Financial and Taxation Statistics (AFTS) and the Quarterly Survey of Financial Statements (QSFS). The annual program includes data compiled for the entire incorporated business population as depicted on Statistics Canada (STC) Business Register. Such a census is made possible by supplementing data collected through QSFS, with data produced by a survey of provincial and federal level government enterprises from Public Institutions Division of STC and with administrative data program using data from the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency (CCRA). The coverage of the two programs differ slightly as the quarterly program (QSFS) excludes government-controlled and not-for-profit business enterprises, while these enterprises are included in the annual program (AFTS). In addition, the Division carries out the Survey of Suppliers of Business Financing (SSBF) on an annual basis. The SSBF targets banks, trust companies, credit unions and caisses populaires, finance companies, portfolio managers, insurance companies and leasing companies. The key objective of the survey is to provide a profile of the financing provided to small and medium-sized enterprises (SME) and firms in knowledge-based Business clients are classified by the amount of financing authorized, the instrument used, province and industry. Topics: The QSFS and AFTS statistical programs include variables such as assets, liabilities, shareholder's equity, revenues, expenses, profits and retained earnings. In addition, the annual program produces income taxes payable and a reconciliation of profits to taxable income and taxes payable. The National Population Health Survey (NPHS) collects information on the health of the Canadian population and related socio-demographic information. The first cycle of data collection took place in 1994-1995. The survey will continue every second year thereafter for 20 years. The NPHS has two components: the survey of households and the survey of health care institutions. The NPHS household component fulfilled both cross-sectional and longitudinal needs during its first three cycles, but with Cycle 4 (2000-2001) the component became strictly a longitudinal survey. The cross-sectional component of the Population Health Survey Program has been taken over by the Canadian Community Health Survey (CCHS). Survey results for the first four cycles of the household component have been released. A Cross-sectional Public Use Microdata File is available for each of the first three cycles. The NPHS Institution component fulfilled both cross-sectional and longitudinal needs during its first two cycles, but with Cycle 3 (1998-1999) the component became strictly a longitudinal survey. Survey results for the first three cycles of the Institution component have been released. A Cross-sectional Public Use Microdata File is available for each of the first two cycles of the Institution component. The Joint Canada/U.S. Health Survey is a collaborative effort between Statistics Canada and the U.S. National Centre for Health Statistics (NCHS). Statistics Canada will collect health data from a sample of adults in both countries. Collection ended in June 2003. Content includes disease burden, restriction of activities and access to and use of health care services. Survey results will be released in the Spring of 2004. The first cycle of the Canadian Community Health Survey, CCHS 1.1, was conducted in 2000-2001. CCHS 1.1 collected health data for Canadians aged 12 and over in 136 health regions across the country. Survey results were released in May 2002. A Public Use Microdata File is available. The Health Services Access Survey gathered information at the national level on the patterns of use of health care services and self-reported difficulties faced by Canadians aged 15 and over in accessing health care when they needed it. The survey was conducted in the Fall of 2001 as a supplement to the CCHS 1.1. Survey results were released in July 2002. Data collection for the Canadian Community Health Survey - Mental Health and Well-being (CCHS 1.2) was completed and the first results released in September 2003. The survey will produce provincial cross-sectional prevalence estimates of certain mental health disorders, utilization of mental health services, and will examine links between mental health and socio-demographic, geographic and economic characteristics. Survey results will be released at the end of the summer of 2003. A Public Use Microdata File will be available in 2004. Census of Population - Questionnaires

Description: This bank contains information obtained from the censuses of population taken since 1906. The records are identified by name and contain information on the social and economic characteristics of every person in the country. The records in this bank, which are organized on a geographical basis, are microfilmed copies of the original questionnaire dating back to 1906. To retrieve a record from this data bank, the precise address at the time of the census is required. The data collected, when compiled into statistics, are used for a wide range of purposes including the determination of economic and social policies, planning industrial development, and estimating needs for schools, roads and many other public services. Population figures are used to determine electoral district boundaries, and to calculate per capita grants to provinces and municipalities. Consistent Uses: A program has been established called the Census Microfilm and Pension Search Sub-Unit to provide proof of age, or length of residence in Canada from historic census records and 1940 National Registration Records. The service is normally provided in support of application for pensions, citizenship, passports and similar situations where other more preferred administration records are required but no longer exist or, as in a number of cases, were never issued. Census questionnaires may be used to draw samples for post-censal and other surveys addressing issues of current social concern, research purposes and studies that are part of the evaluation program for the Census of Population. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC COP 015 TBS Registration: 001839 Bank Number: STC PPU 005

It includes individuals living on and off Indian reserves and settlements. Purpose: The objective of the Post-Censal Survey of Aboriginal Peoples is to provide a social and economic profile of Aboriginal peoples, including such information as housing conditions, lifestyle and social issues, health, employment history, schooling, mobility, disability, etc. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC HFS 122 TBS Registration: 003014 Bank Number: STC PPU 116

Database on Persons With Disabilities

Description: This database contains information on persons with disabilities in Canada, including the number of persons with disabilities, the nature and severity of the disability and the barriers experienced by persons with disabilities in such areas as employment, transportation, education, community support services and housing. The information also addresses the need for, as well as the use and availability of, technical aids and services. Although the name and address of the selected respondent were collected at the time of the survey, they were not data-captured and, therefore, do not appear on the automated database. The database consists of the records from the 1983 Canadian Health and Disability Survey, the 1986 and 1991 Health and Activity Limitation Survey and the upcoming 2001 Participation and Activity Limitation Survey. Class of Individuals: Persons with disabilities living in households and institutions in Canada, at the time of the 1986 and 1991 Census, and in households at the time of the 2001 census. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to identify those Canadians who, for health-related reasons, are limited in the kind or amount of activity they can perform on a day-to-day basis, and the nature and severity of the disability and the barriers that they encounter in such areas as housing, employment, transportation, education and community support services. This information is essential, particularly to governments and private organizations, to the process of developing programs and policies to eliminate these barriers. Consistent Uses: With respect to the Canada Health and Disability Survey, five-sixths of the Labour Force Survey (LFS) sample was used to identify a sample of persons with disabilities who were subsequently interviewed. The output of the survey was linked back to the LFS to obtain labour force activity data which were not included in the questionnaire. With respect to the Health and Activity Limitation Survey, the 1986 and 1991, and to the Participation and Activity Limitation Survey in 2001, the 1986, 1991 and 2001 Censuses of Population were used to identify a sample of persons with disabilities who were subsequently interviewed. The output of these surveys was linked back to the 1986, 1991 and 2001 Census of Population files to obtain demographic data which were not included in the survey questionnaire. This would ease the burden on respondents since they had already provided these data for the Census. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC HFS 110 TBS Registration: 001862 Bank Number: STC PPU 115

It is also used by analysts to develop projection models of supply and demand of manpower by occupation, seeking out imbalances in the labour market. Other purposes include the evaluations of the extent to which graduates succeed in finding jobs related to their fields of study, and the extent to which retraining leads to career changes.

Canadian Vital Statistics Database

Description: This bank has information obtained from the universal systems of registration of births, marriages, deaths and stillbirths. These are originally recorded and accumulated by registrars of vital statistics in each province and territory. The information on births relates to place of birth, particulars on parents (name, birthdate, marital status of mother) and particulars of the child (surname and name). The marriage component of the database contains information on the bride and bridegroom (name, marital status, birthdate), particulars of parents (name, birthplace) and on the date and place of marriage. Information on deaths relates to name of deceased; date, place and cause of death. The information has been obtained through formal arrangements with the provinces and is to be used for statistical purposes only. Statistics Canada, therefore, is unable to respond to requests for information contained in this bank, pursuant to section 19(1)(c) of the Privacy Act. Any individual wishing to obtain information relating to the registration of births, marriages or deaths should contact the appropriate provincial or territorial registrar. Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to all individuals who were either born in Canada or the United States of Canadian residents; individuals who married or died in Canada or a Canadian resident who died in the United States or in another country. Purpose: The purpose of the bank is to provide input into the production of national statistics on births, marriages and deaths for Canada, the provinces and territories. These data are also used in special studies relating to, for example, mortality, fertility and life expectancy. Vital statistics are the prime components used in intercensal population estimates. Consistent Uses: The Mortality Database, which forms part of the Integrated Vital Statistics Database, is used as one of the input files in long-term medical follow-up studies. It provides information on date, place and cause of death for individuals in a particular study group (see Personal Information Bank STC PPU 076). Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for 100 years. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001844 Bank Number: STC PPU 035

Long-Term Medical Follow-Up Study Files

Description: The Long-Term Medical Study Files are comprised of information from four sources: input study files which are often from groups outside Statistics Canada; the Canadian Cancer Data Base which is created from STC PPU 065; and the Canadian Mortality Data Base which is created from the Integrated Vital Statistics Database STC PPU 035, and the Canadian Birth Data Base which is created from the Integrated Vital Statistics Database STC PPU 035 plus provincial files. The input files contain records of individuals which have been supplied by employers, unions, health surveys or other research groups. These input files are then matched to the Canadian Cancer Data Base to determine the cause of cancer, to the Canadian Mortality Data Base to provide information on date, cause and place of death, or to the Canadian Birth Data Base to provide birth and parental details. In addition, the outcome files may be matched (e.g. infant birth and death records). The input study files may contain from several hundred to many hundreds of thousands of records depending on the size of the study group. Individual identifying information includes names, birthdate, sex birthplace and place of residence. The name of the individual's parents or spouse may also be included where this information is required to confirm the validity of a linkage. Methodological studies are carried out to support the design and evaluation of mortality cohort studies. Records containing aggregated data from various sources regarding the vital status of the individual are used. The input study file and the file containing, say, the death records to which the study file records were linked are kept separately. An identification number is present on both files which can bring corresponding records together if necessary. The files are passworded and stored in the Statistics Canada tape library. Class of Individuals: This database contains records of individuals who form part of population groups identified by employers, unions, health surveys, or other research organizations, as well as all individuals in the national files. Purpose: Health statistics, in general, are used to describe the state of health of the Canadian people and the occurrence of illnesses. In particular, these files are primarily used to provide researchers with data they need to compare the rates and causes of death and/or cancer in groups exposed to different levels or types of chemicals, diet, medical treatment, x-rays, disease, etc. This in turn gives information needed by policy makers to set appropriate levels of exposure to toxic agents in occupational, environmental and medical settings. Risk factor concerns relating to child and maternal health, including socio-economic birth and mortality differentials are being investigated. Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are generally retained for a minimum of five years. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC HLT 095 TBS Registration: 001860 Bank Number: STC PPU 076

Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics (SLID)

Description: The Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics is a longitudinal panel study that will provide data on the demographic, income, family and labour market characteristics of Canadians. The first annual labour component of the survey was conducted in January 1994 and the first income survey was conducted in April 1994. Respondents will subsequently be contacted twice each year, for a period of five years. New panels are to be introduced into the study every three years. Class of Individuals: Individuals aged 15 and over. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide data about the way people's lives are affected by changes in jobs, in income, in place of residence, and other changes that influence the social and economic well-being of individuals and families. SLID will support research aimed at advancing an understanding of labour market behaviour and economic well-being, and ultimately support policy development. Consistent Uses: As a longitudinal survey, SLID will follow respondents over a 6-year period. Records for the same respondent, therefore, will be linked together over that period in order to identify changes experienced. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records will be retained indefinitely. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC HLT 038 TBS Registration: 003301 Bank Number: STC PPU 017

Survey of Financial Security

Description: The Survey of Financial Security collects information from a sample of Canadian households on their income, education, employment, assets and debts. Information was collected, using a paper questionnaire, in May and June 1999. At the moment plans to repeat the survey have not been finalized; it is possible the survey will be done on a three to five-year cycle and could potentially include a longitudinal component. Class of Individuals: Individuals aged 15 and over. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide data about the financial well-being of Canadians. Information on income alone provides only one part of this picture; data on a family's net worth is essential to fully understand the ability of Canadians to purchase the goods and services they require. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper questionnaire will be destroyed when the information is fully processed, about one year after collection. Electronic identifying information is stored separately from the rest of the data that are collected. There are no plans at this time to delete electronically stored identifying information; this decision can be made when it is known whether the survey will be longitudinal. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC HLD 047 TBS Registration: 004252 Bank Number: STC PPU 151

Information relating to an individual cannot be retrieved based on name alone. The requester must provide the month(s) and year surveyed and the precise address at the time of the survey. There are also a number of special surveys that are conducted as supplements to the Labour Force Survey covering a variety of topics including work patterns, leisure time activities, absence from work, travel to work, income, etc. To retrieve a record, the requester must provide the subject of the special survey, the year the survey was conducted, and the precise address at the time of the survey. Class of Individuals: Individuals who are employed, unemployed or not in the labour force. Purpose: The main purpose of the bank is to produce employment and unemployment figures. The data also enable a wide variety of additional information to be derived on the characteristics of the Canadian labour force and on the population age 15 and over in general.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records containing names have been kept since 1976, but records with name, address and phone numbers are only kept for five years. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC LAB 035 TBS Registration: 001841 Bank Number: STC PPU 015

Workplace and Employee Survey

Description: The Workplace and Employee Survey (WES) is a longitudinal business survey designed to provide current information of events occurring in firms, their evolution over time, and the link between these developments and practices with worker outcomes. This type of information is not available from any other business or household survey. The WES is in its fifth year of production and collects information from about 6,400 employers and 25,000 employees. The first release of data, for the reference year 1999, took place in February 2001. For this release, Statistics Canada and Human Resources Development Canada collaborated on a series of reports addressing topics on Human Resources Practices, Job Vacancies, Skill-Biased Technology Change and Gender Pay Differentials. The release of year 2000 data took place in June 2002. A remote access facility has been put in place for researchers and both employer and employee microdata for 1999 and 2000 are available in the Statistics Canada Research Data Centres. The microdata for 2001 will be released the 3rd of July, 2003. The employer questionnaire covers workforce characteristics, hirings and separations, compensation practices, human resource practices, training, technology use, business strategy and innovation. The employee questionnaire covers job activities, promotions, hours, earnings, training, use of computers and other technologies, education and family characteristics. Class of Individuals: Paid workers who receive a T4 from their current employer. Purpose: The survey supports research and policy development with respect to labour adjustment programs, workplace practices, social programs and education. The workplace, which is the salient unit of observation in the evolution of the knowledge-based economy, can provide the types of insight business planners and policy-makers need to better understand how the evolving demand and supply sides of the labour market, productivity and micro-economic factors influence global competitiveness. Retention and Disposal Standards: 2 years. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC LAB 075 TBS Registration: 003899 Bank Number: STC PPU 140

Community Employment Innovation Project (CEIP)

Description: The data bank includes a detailed account of labour market experiences. As well, respondents are asked to provide information on topics such as health and well-being, volunteer activities, education and skills and social network. To alleviate response burden and increase data quality, detailed information on income and profile of receipt of employment insurance and/or income assistance is obtained from administrative sources, with the written consent of the individual. The data bank also includes administrative details on project participation. Survey data will be collected over a five-year period; data from administrative sources for up to nine years. Class of Individuals: Individuals receiving Employment Insurance or Income Assistance benefits in industrial Cape Breton. Purpose: The Community Employment Innovation Project is exploring a new way to support employment for people receiving social assistance and employment insurance. The research experiment is sponsored by Human Resources Development Canada. The Social Research and Demonstration Corporation has overall responsibility for project design and coordination, research and this research demonstration. The data collection activities are carried out on a voluntary basis. The purpose of the research is to determine if the intervention had a positive impact on labour market outcomes (employment rate, earnings, lower rates of participation in Employment Insurance and Income Assistance programs), health and well-being of those participating. Consistent Uses: Informed consent is obtained from participants to obtain personal information from administrative sources and giving Statistics Canada permission to undertake linkages. As well, written consent is obtained for the release of research files to SRDC. Retention and Disposal Standards: 10 years. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC SSD 040 TBS Registration: 005084 Bank Number: STC PPU 121

Longitudinal Survey of Immigrants to Canada

Description: The Longitudinal Survey of Immigrants to Canada (LSIC) is a survey designed to study how recent immigrants adjust to living in Canada. Statistics Canada will collect this information to assist Citizenship and Immigration Canada as well as other organizations in determining how to better help immigrants settle in this country. The survey is based on a longitudinal design, with recent immigrants being interviewed at approximately six months, two years, and four years after landing in Canada. Approximately 20,300 recent immigrants from across Canada were selected for the first wave of collection. Interviews are conducted in one of 15 different languages, including English and French. Class of Individuals: Permanent residents aged 15 years and older arriving from outside Canada between October 2000 and September 2001. Purpose: The Longitudinal Survey of Immigrants to Canada is designed to improve our understanding of how immigrants adjust to life in Canada. Survey results will shed light on the association between the socio-economic background of immigrants and their adjustment to life in Canada. It will also show which services are most effective in helping newcomers settle into Canadian society and will provide information on how new immigrants use the resources available to them. Consistent Uses: Respondents were asked to sign a consent form (distributed through the Canadian Missions Abroad) to allow Statistics Canada to link to administrative files for the purposes of tracing.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Not yet decided. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC SSD 040 TBS Registration: 005005 Bank Number: STC PPU 018

National Longitudinal Survey of Children and Youth

Description: The National Longitudinal Survey of Children and Youth collects data on a sample of children across Canada every two years. The survey was initiated in November/December 1994 and February/March 1995. Information on over 23,000 children was collected during this first collection. Up to two children in each household were chosen from this initial sample to participate in the longitudinal portion of the survey, expected to cover a 25-year period. Interviews were conducted with the most knowledgeable person in the household about these children, usually their mother. Children who were 10 and 11 years of age in this first collection were asked to complete a questionnaire themselves. Information was also collected from the child's teacher and principal, with the consent of the parent. The original sample has been reduced for budgetary reasons and through attrition, number about 13,300 after the fourth cycle. Class of Individuals: Children aged 0-11 in 1994/95. During cycles 2, 3 and 4, a new sample of children aged 0-1 at the time of collection was added and followed in two subsequent cycles. As well, a cross-sectional sample of 5-year olds was chosen to top up cycles 3 and 4. In addition, a sample of kindergarten children has been selected periodically in a small number of communities as part of a related project. Thus far, one community was covered in 1999, five more in 2000 and seven in 2001. A follow-up of 12 or the original 13 communities is planned in 2004 and 2005. Purpose: The primary objectives of the survey are to determine the prevalence of various biological, social and economic characteristics and risk factors in Canadian children and youth; to monitor the impact of such factors, life events and protective factors on these children's development; and to provide this information to policy and program officers for use in developing effective policies and strategies to help children to live healthy, active and rewarding lives. Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada entered into a data-sharing agreement under section 12 of the Statistics Act with Human Resources Development Canada (HRDC) during the first four collection cycles of this survey. The information provided to HRDC has not contained personal identifiers, was kept confidential and was used only for statistical purposes. Each person responding to questions was given the right to refuse to share their information. From cycle 4 onwards, there will not be a share file provided to HRDC and only a Master file will be created. Various data collected for 0-3 and 4-5 year olds are summarized into Early Childhood Development Indicators, under federal-provincial agreements between HRDC and the provinces/territories. Retention and Disposal

Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC SSD 040 TBS Registration: 003635 Bank Number: STC PPU 014

Second Follow-up to the Ontario Child Health Study

Description: The Ontario Child Health Study (OCHS) is a longitudinal survey designed to evaluate the impact of early childhood on later adult health, quality of life and role functioning. It was in 1983 that Statistics Canada, in conjunction with McMaster University, first collected information on a group of 3,294 Ontario children living in 1,869 families. At this time, information was gathered on any children in the household between the ages of 4 and 16. Interviews were conducted with one of the parents of the child(ren), and the children themselves completed a self-complete questionnaire, if they were 12 years of age or older. In addition, information on these children was collected from the children's teacher. A follow-up of respondents to the 1983 study was conducted in 1987. The most current follow-up of the Ontario Child Health Study (OCHS2000) will go back to these children, who are now between the ages of 21 and 33 year, to collect further information about these individuals, their spouse/partner (if applicable) and any children they may have. During this round of collection, both the original OCHS respondent and their spouse/partner will complete questionnaires. Class of Individuals: Children aged 4-16 in 1983; 8-20 in 1987; and, 21-33 in 2000/2001.

Purpose: The objective of the Second Follow-Up to the Ontario Child Health Study is to link early childhood/adolescent experiences with early adult life, especially with respect to how well the respondent is performing in the three major roles of being a worker, a parent and a partner, and how satisfied they are in those roles. This second follow-up of the OCHS, along with the previous studies, will provide useful information for addressing many public health and developmental questions of interest to health scientists. Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada has entered into a data-sharing agreement under section 12 of the Statistics Act with McMaster University. The information provided to McMaster University does not contain personal identifiers and will be kept confidential and used only for statistical purposes. Each person responding to questions has been given the right to refuse to share their information.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC SSD 040 TBS Registration: 005006 Bank Number: STC PPU 019

Self-Sufficiency Project

Description: This bank contains information on the selected recipients' marital status, labour market participation, education and training, child care requirements, and family and parenting concerns. Several interviews were conducted, one at program intake, and up to four follow-up interviews, the last taking place 72 months after intake for some participants. In addition to collecting a wide array of information about the selected participant, a follow-up survey gathered additional information for up to two children between the ages of 4 and 18 in each household. Depending on the age of the child, they were asked to complete a vocabulary test, a math test or a literacy skill assessment. Children between the ages of 10 and 18 were also asked to answer a self-complete questionnaire. Class of Individuals: Income Assistance Recipients in New Brunswick and British Columbia. Purpose: The Self-Sufficiency Project is a multi-year research demonstration designed to test the effectiveness of an earnings supplement to Income Assistance recipients who take jobs and agree to leave public assistance. Statistics Canada is responsible for developing and implementing a data collection strategy and building the analysis files for the study. Consistent Uses: Respondents were asked to sign a consent form to allow Statistics Canada to link a variety of data sources including administrative files held by Canada Customs and Revenue Agency, Taxation and Employment Insurance and the provincial income assistance ministries. Respondents were asked for authorization to share this information with the research firm administering the project and affiliated researchers. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained indefinitely. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC SSD 040 TBS Registration: 003214 Bank Number: STC PPU 026

Special Surveys

Description: This bank contains social and demographic data obtained from special ad hoc surveys, conducted by the Special Surveys Division, which do not form part of the regular survey-taking activity of the Agency. They cover a variety of socio-economic topics, including health, housing, labour market, education and literacy, as well as demographic data. The information may include name, social insurance number, addresses or telephone number. Class of Individuals: Individuals selected to participate in the special surveys. Purpose: The data are used by sponsoring agencies or Statistics Canada to either evaluate or benchmark existing socio-economic programs, or in the development of such programs. The data collected may be one-time ad hoc measures, or a series of point-in-time measures, including longitudinal. Retention and Disposal Standards: The paper records are retained for five years. The machine-readable records are retained indefinitely. RDA Number: To be established. Related to PR#: STC SSD 040 TBS Registration: 002189 Bank Number: STC PPU 016

Classes of Personal Information

Administrative Files Obtained from Federal Government Departments for Statistical Purposes

The Statistics Act, under which Statistics Canada operates, gives to the Agency the authority to access records maintained in any federal department or municipal office, corporation, business or organization where the information sought relates to the mandate of this Agency. Accordingly, Statistics Canada has entered into a number of arrangements with other federal government departments to access administrative files of those departments for the purpose of extracting data for statistical purposes. This has allowed Statistics Canada to exempt many respondents, particularly small businesses, from the filing of regular questionnaires.

Since the use made by Statistics Canada of this information is secondary to the original purpose for which it was gathered, requests for access to personal information from these files should be addressed to the department responsible for the original collection of the data. Any requests received by Statistics Canada, either for a copy of an individual record or for corrections to a record, will be referred to the originating department for response.

The following is a list of the files obtained from each department. Statistics Canada may receive the entire file or only part thereof, depending on its requirements.

Business Statistics

The business database contains information which relates to the major industrial and services sectors of the economy. The information is obtained from establishments within companies through surveys, and from administrative records. It is used to describe the whole range of business activity in Canada, the goods and services produced, the cost structure of each industry and the location of industrial activity. It measures the kind and quality of goods produced, the costs of materials, labour and capital employed and the prices of both material and final products. The information is also a vital input to the System of National Accounts. As some of the businesses surveyed are unincorporated, there is personal information in this database relating to owners of unincorporated businesses who can be identified by a social insurance number. The business data bank may contain personal information in respect of unincorporated businesses in the forestry, mining, energy and resource and manufacturing sectors; in retail and wholesale trade; in rail, road and water transportation industries; in services, communications and tourism industries; relating to general and trade contractors; and to importers and exporters.

Consumer Finances Survey

This is an annual survey of households, conducted on a sample basis, designed to measure the distribution of income and to provide other yardsticks of the economic well-being of Canadian families and individuals. The records carry information on wages and salaries and other income, selected family and personal characteristics. To retrieve a record from this class of personal information, the requester must provide the year he/she was surveyed and the precise address at the time of the survey. For those years when the survey is carried out in conjunction with the Labour Force Survey, it may be possible to locate records relating to an individual. However, for those years when it is conducted independent of the Labour Force Survey, after the processing cycle is complete and the questionnaires are destroyed (usually after one year), it would be necessary to provide certain personal characteristics such as age and sex to permit the identification of an individual in a household group.

Household Surveys

The Household Surveys Division is responsible for a number of household surveys including surveys on family expenditures, household facilities and equipment, and incomes of Canadian families and individuals. Transportation Safety Board of Canada

Chapter 146

General Information

Background

The Canadian Transportation Accident Investigation and Safety Board Act was proclaimed in 1990, establishing an independent multi-modal agency which is known by its applied title, "Transportation Safety Board of Canada (TSB)".

The TSB's sole object is the advancement of transportation safety. It has a mandate to do so in a number of ways, chiefly by conducting independent investigations and studies in order to identify transportation safety deficiencies and make recommendations designed to eliminate or reduce these deficiencies.

With the Board, transportation accident investigation and related functions are carried out by an agency which is independent of the government agencies responsible for the regulation and operation of transportation facilities and services.

Responsibilities

The Board's responsibilities are set out in the Canadian Transportation Accident Investigation and Safety Board Act.

The object of the Transportation Safety Board of Canada is to advance transportation safety. This is achieved by: a) conducting independent investigations and if necessary, public inquiries into air, marine, rail and pipeline occurrences in order to make findings as to their causes and contributing factors; b) reporting publicly on its investigations and public inquiries and on the related findings; c) identifying safety deficiencies as evidenced by transportation occurrences and d) making recommendations designed to eliminate or reduce any such safety deficiencies.

When it investigates an occurrence, the Transportation Safety Board of Canada has the exclusive jurisdiction to investigate for the purpose of making findings as to the causes and contributing factors; other federal agencies cannot investigate for this purpose when the TSB is investigating. The Board reports publicly on its investigations and public inquiries and on the related findings. Board reports must, wherever possible, include safety recommendations.

In making its findings as to causes and contributing factors of a transportation occurrence, it is not the function of the Board to assign fault or determine civil or criminal liability. But, the Board must not refrain from fully reporting on the causes and contributing factors merely because fault or liability might be inferred from its findings. The Act provides that no finding of the Board shall be construed as assigning fault or determining civil or criminal liability, and the findings of the Board are not binding on the parties to any legal, disciplinary or other proceedings.

The Board reports annually to Parliament through the President of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada.

Legislation

Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat

Chapter 148

General Information

Background

The Treasury Board, a committee of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, was established in 1867. The Board consists of the President of Treasury Board, the Minister of Finance and four other ministers nominated by the Governor in Council. The Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat (TBS or the Secretariat), the administrative arm of the Treasury Board, is headed by a Secretary and Comptroller General, who reports to the President of the Treasury Board. The Secretariat was part of the Department of Finance Canada until 1966, when it became a separate department.

Responsibilities

The Secretariat has a dual mandate: to support the Treasury Board as a committee of ministers and to fulfil the statutory responsibilities of a central government agency. This entails providing operational programs to carry out the legislated responsibilities of the Treasury Board. These responsibilities derive from the broad authority of sections 5 – 13 of the Financial Administration Act, as well as the authorities in other Acts, including: the Public Service Staff Relations Act, the Employment Equity Act, the Official Languages Act, the Access to Information Act, the Privacy Act, the Federal Real Property Act, and the Public Service Employment Act. The Secretariat's responsibilities for the general management of the government cross all policy sectors managed by 22 operating departments and many other organizational entities as reported in the Main Estimates.

The role of the Secretariat is to define and develop modern governance at the federal level. Although the accountability for Public Service management increasingly rests with departments, the Treasury Board of Canada and its Secretariat provide strategic leadership in Public Service management and reform through a management board role. That role emphasises results-based management and facilitation, essential central controls, and intervention when necessary.

The mission of the Secretariat is to support the Treasury Board and to help the Government of Canada operate effectively within available resources. The Secretariat implements the policies developed by the Treasury Board as the manager of the Public Service and manages the human, financial, information technology, and material resources that support it. This is carried out by several sectors of the Secretariat, described below under "Organization".

Organization

Access to Information Review Task Force (ATIRTF)

The Access to Information Review Task Force was established in August 2000 by the President of the Treasury Board and the Minister of Justice. Its mandate is to conduct a broad review of the Access to Information Act and the way it is administered within the federal government. The Task issued its final report in June 2002. The information holdings will remain at the Treasury Board Secretariat under Government Operations Sector.

Chief Information Officer Branch (CIOB)

The Chief Information Officer (CIO) is responsible for providing strategic direction and leadership in leveraging information management and information technology to improve public access to government services and to meet public service renewal. To that end the CIO ensures government-wide coordination of initiatives to meet the 2005 Government On-Line and Service Improvement targets. The Deputy Chief Information Officer and the following seven divisions of the Chief Information Officer Branch work together to support the CIO in her/his role: Government On-Line and Service Strategy Office; Infrastructure and Architecture Security Division; Business Development; IT/IM Stewardship Division; Communications and Public Relations Division; Organizational Readiness Office; and Strategic and Business Planning Division.

Communications and Executive Services (CES)

CES is the focal point in the Secretariat, for ensuring that the President, Secretary and Associate Secretaries and exempt staff are provided with the briefing, correspondence and logistical support related to Treasury Board meetings, parliamentary affairs, and dealings with other government departments and non-governmental organizations. It manages and coordinates the Treasury Board's meetings; coordinates the Secretariat's access to information and privacy activities; tracks and assists in the preparation of replies to correspondence addressed to the President and the Secretary. It also acts as a clearing house and maintains the official file for all submissions received by the Treasury Board from all government departments. It maintains tracks and distributes all Treasury Board submissions and cabinet documents and papers from the Privy Council Office to the Secretariat.

CES also provides strategic communications advice to the President and the Secretary of the Treasury Board as well as to other branches within the Secretariat. As part of this effort, it provides policies and guidelines on communications, advertising, and publishing advice and service, and public opinion research. Its communicators provide strategic direction through communications plans, write and produce news releases, media lines, speeches and presentations in support of Secretariat communications activities. CES provides an electronic media monitoring service to the Secretariat through the TBS NewsCentre, as well as research and analysis of current issues and media trends. Media relations activities are also provided to facilitate the department's communications needs and to address specific questions from national and local media. It provides advice and assistance in producing corporate communications products and services. It also manages the TBS Web site and is the departmental lead on Government On-Line (GOL) and "Common Look and Feel" (CLF) standards.

CES liaises with the Privy Council Office and other departments on government-wide activities and issues. It also serves as the Treasury Board policy centre responsible for the Federal Identity Program (FIP) and the Communications Policy of the Government of Canada.

Comptrollership Branch (CB)

The CB's primary goal is to support "getting government right" through modern comptrollership. Modern comptrollership implies vigorous stewardship of public resources, a high standard of ethics, and provision for appropriate parliamentary oversight. To deliver affordable and high quality services to Canadians, managers need flexibility, incentives, and information. The focus of modern comptrollership, therefore, is on results, accountability, and managing risk.

The CB consists of the Deputy Comptroller General (DCG) and the Associate Deputy Comptroller General (ADCG) and nine Directorates: 1) Internal Audit Directorate: leader in liaison with the Office of the Auditor General, policy, special projects and the Community Development; 2) Expenditure Operations and Estimates Directorate: leader in the Estimates Production and Expenditure Operations; 3) Procurement and Project Management Policy Directorate: leader in contract policy and procurement; 4) Risk Management Directorate: leader on the Integrated Risk Management Framework; 5) Real Property & Materiel Policy Directorate: leader in Realty and Asset Management; 6) Results-Based Management Directorate: focal point for performance measurement and results reporting and leader in evaluation policy, standards and community development; 7) Comptrollership Modernization Directorate: leader in implementing Modernization of Comptrollership in the Government of Canada; 8) Financial Management & Accounting Policy Directorate: leader in financial management policies, government accounting, external charging, financial and economic analysis, partnering with the voluntary sector, management of accounts receivable, and financial community development; 9) Strategic Systems Infrastructure Directorate – leader in strategies for comptrollership systems.

Corporate Services Branch (CSB)

The branch assists both the Deputy Minister of Finance and the Secretary and Comptroller General of the Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat in the internal administration of their departments. Management and advisory and support services are provided to two departments in the area of financial management, human resources, informatics, security, information, facilities and material management. The Corporate Services Branch is also responsible for a number of other activities, such as task force organization and co-ordination of the Canada Savings Bonds Campaign. The Branch is composed of following divisions: Finance and Administration, Directorate; Human Resources Division; Information Management & Technology Division; Security Services; Internal Audit and Evaluation.

Expenditure and Management Strategies (EAMS) Sector

EAMS has a lead responsibility within TBS for its role in the government's expenditure management system. In playing this role, the Sector acts as the primary point of liaison with PCO and Finance on matters related to the fiscal framework and on the management of expenditure pressures. Current EAMS activities in support of this role include:

Coordinating TBS-wide expenditure management initiatives.

Examining potential benefits and consequences of options for adopting accrual budgeting.

In Addition, EAMS is responsible for supporting the implementation of TBS's Alternative Service Delivery policy and for developing policies and briefing on issues related to Crown corporations as a group. The latter responsibility also includes preparing the President of the Treasury Board's Annual Report to Parliament on Crown Corporations and Other Corporate Interests of Canada.

Government Travel Modernization Office (GTMO)

The Government Travel Modernization Office (GTMO) was created in 2002 to guide the modernization of travel in the public service and to manage the procurement and implementation of a new government-wide travel service based on automation-the Shared Travel Services Initiative (STSI). In January 2003, Public Works and Government Services Canada's (PWGSC'S) Government Travel Services program joined GTMO in order to bring all government travel-related services under one group. The GTMO is responsible for all general information related to government travel, including the Travel Directive. Travel information for specific employees is the responsibility of individual departments.

Human Resources Management Office (HRMO)

The HRMO focuses and strengthens the capacity of the Treasury Board Secretariat (TBS) to fulfil its responsibilities as 'employer' for the core public service. This is an essential part of a human resources management framework that enables the federal public service to manage more efficiently the people who deliver government programs and services to Canadians, and that promotes effective employer-employee relations in the Public Service of Canada. Within its three main business lines, Policy, Compensation and Leadership. The HRMO's areas of responsibility include: general personnel management; human resources analysis and planning; negotiation of collective agreements; employment equity; labour relations, pensions and insurance benefits; policy development and administration; leadership, training and developmental programs; performance management; HR risk management; equal pay for work of equal value; pay administration; employer representation; job classification; compensation; workforce adjustment; and values and ethics.

Leadership Network (The)

The Leadership Network was designated as a Division or Branch of the Public Service under the Financial Administration Act by Order in Council P.C. 1998-952 in June 1998 and extended by Order in Council 1999-1832 in October 1999. The Leadership Network had also been designated as a department for the purpose of the Public Service Employment Act, until April 11, 2001 when it became part of the Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat by Order in Council P.C. 2001-609.

The mandate and mission of The Leadership Network are to promote, develop and support networks of leaders throughout the Public Service of Canada, and to assist them in the ongoing challenge of public service renewal. The Leadership Network develops close partnerships and horizontal links with departments, agencies, regions, functional communities, the Public Service Commission, the Treasury Board Secretariat and the Canadian Centre for Management Development, and complements and supports existing networks. The Leadership Network is also responsible for supporting the collective management of the Assistant Deputy Minister community. The Leadership network is responsible for the development of and advice on Executive Group Organization and Classifications Policy and the Classification of all EX-4/5 positions in the government.

Legal Services

Treasury Board Legal Services provides legal advice to the Treasury Board and the President with respect to their powers and duties. The Unit, staffed by Department of Justice lawyers, supports the Treasury Board Secretariat in its role as board of management of the Public Service of Canada by ensuring that the conduct of government affairs is in accordance with the law.

Legal Services lawyers give specialized legal advice to the Treasury Board Secretariat and the Government of Canada in connection with the Secretariat's central agency functions pertaining to the legislation for which the Treasury Board and the President of the Treasury Board is responsible. The Legal Services Unit provides advice with respect to the enactment of and the amendment to legislation and regulations, as well as strategic advice concerning policy development and other initiatives. The Unit conducts labour and employment-related litigation before the Public Service Staff Relations Board and other administrative tribunals, the Federal Court – Trial Division, the Federal Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court of Canada representing the employer

Official Languages Branch (OLB)

Under the Official Languages Act, the mandate of the Official Languages Branch (OLB) is to provide strategic orientation and to co-ordinate the Official Languages Program in federal departments, agencies, Crown corporations, and certain privatized organizations. The OLB is responsible for overseeing federal institutions and ensuring that they serve Canadians in the official language of their choice at offices with an obligation to do so, create and maintain a work environment conducive to the effective use of both official languages in designated bilingual regions, and provide equal employment and advancement opportunities to English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians within the Public Service.

The OLB prepares and communicates official languages policies and directives and supplies the necessary interpretation and support. It establishes the management framework within which federal institutions fulfill their legislated responsibilities. The OLB develops program management tools and systems and encourages their use in federal institutions. It identifies information needs and interprets related statistics. Also, it oversees the implementation of programs, in conjunction with federal departments and agencies, and produces an annual report that the President of the Treasury Board tables in Parliament.

The OLB also supports Canadian Heritage in enhancing the vitality of the official language minority communities, supports and assists their development, and fosters full recognition and use of English and French in Canadian society.

The OLB is comprised of an Executive Secretariat and the following three divisions: Policy and Strategic Planning; Marketing, Promotion and Champions and Performance Measurement and Liaison.

Program Sectors (Government Operations, Economic and Social and Cultural Sectors)

The Program Sectors support the Treasury Board in its role as a management board by providing analysis and advice on strategic resource allocation for the departments and agencies of government. In fulfilling this role, the Program Sectors provide advice on the effective use of resources; program design, viability and responsiveness; funding pressures and mitigation strategies; and broad government operations issues and management strategies. The Program Sectors also play a lead role in relation to the oversight of the operations of Crown Corporations. These three sectors, along with the Expenditure and Management Strategies Sector and the Expenditure Operations and Estimates Division of the Comptrollership Branch, work together in making recommendations to the Treasury Board on allocating financial resources in light of government priorities, fiscal targets, pressures relating to existing programs and results achieved; developing and maintaining accountability frameworks within which Parliament approves resources and in light of which departments and agencies report on their use, thereby co-ordinating the process whereby the government obtains funds from Parliament; monitoring the implementation of approved policies and programs, and advising the Treasury Board on success in achieving intended results; advising the Treasury Board President, in her role as a member of Cabinet, on the resource implications of new government policy and project initiatives while promoting innovative management and increased efficiency and effectiveness in delivering programs; and providing analysis and recommendations to the Treasury Board on Crown corporation corporate plans and budgets.

The Government Operations Sector is also responsible for information policy responsibilities related to the Access to Information Act, the Privacy Act and the Security Policy of the Government of Canada. In this capacity, it supports the President of the Treasury Board, as “designated Minister”, who is responsible for government-wide administration of the Acts pursuant to sections 5 and 70 of the Access to Information Act and sections 11 and 71 of the Privacy Act. The Security Policy addresses the safeguarding of government personnel and assets. It includes the following components: general administration of security; security screening; protection of personnel from violence; physical security; information technology security; security in contracting; contingency planning, and security training and awareness.

Secretary and Associate Secretaries' Office

The Secretary and Comptroller General is the deputy minister who directs the work of the Secretariat and advises the President and the Treasury Board on the organization and management of that part of the Public Service under the Treasury Board's jurisdiction. The Office of the Secretary and Comptroller General is responsible for the daily administrative functions of the organization.

General Information

Background

Nearly 1,750,000 men and women served in wartime for Canada. Approximately 116,000 died and 229,000 were wounded as a result of war. Canada has long recognized the hardship, suffering and sacrifice experienced by Veterans, Canadian Forces personnel, civilians and their families during our nation's periods of armed conflict and peacekeeping. The Veterans Affairs Portfolio exists to serve them. The Portfolio also carries out commemorative activities aimed at instilling in Canadians an appreciation for the sacrifices made by veterans and others during periods of conflict, and for assisting eligible persons who belong to any of the following groups:

- Certain civilians who are entitled to benefits because of their wartime service;
- Allied Veterans who had Canadian pre-war domicile;
- Former and, in certain cases, current members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; and
- Survivors and dependants of the above.

Veterans Affairs Canada

The Veterans Affairs Portfolio delivers two programs:

The Veterans Affairs Program, delivered by Veterans Affairs Canada, provides a wide range of benefits and services principally in the areas of health care, disability pensions and income support and commemoration programming. In 2002-2003, activities were delivered by a staff complement of 3,286 full-time equivalents from a decentralized organization consisting of a Head Office in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, the National Capital Office in Ottawa, Ontario, and a national service delivery network across Canada. The Department also operates a hospital in Sainte-Anne-de-Bellevue, Quebec, and maintains battlefield memorials in Europe.

The Veterans Review and Appeal Board Program is delivered by the Veterans Review and Appeal Board, a separate independent administrative tribunal. The Board adjudicates on the review and appeal aspects of Disability Pensions and hears final level appeals for War Veterans Allowance claims. The Board also has the authority to reconsider decisions at the review and appeal levels. It ensures due process through sound, timely and effective quasi-judicial adjudication in accordance with the governing legislation. The activities of the Board, delivered by 106 full-time equivalents in 2002-2003, included 17 full-time members in Charlottetown and 12 full-time members located in major cities across Canada. The Board holds review hearings in over 40 locations across Canada and appeal hearings primarily in Charlottetown.

The formal program structure of the Portfolio reflects the required independence between the Department and the Board as an administrative tribunal. It emphasizes the autonomy each has in representing the rights of clients and serving their needs.

Veterans Affairs Canada is made up of three branches (Veterans Services Branch, Public Affairs Branch, and the Corporate Services Branch), two divisions (Policy Coordination and Ottawa Headquarters and Corporate Planning Division) and six other organizations, two of which (Bureau of Pensions Advocates and Senior Legal Council) report to the Deputy Minister of Veterans Affairs, and four of which (Audit and Evaluation, Office of Early Conflict Resolution, Health Care Coordination Initiative Secretariat, and the Strategic Partnership Co-ordination Initiative) report to the Associate Deputy Minister.

Veterans Services (VS) Branch

The VS Branch is responsible for and maintains functional and line authority over program operations of the National Operations Division, as well as for the activities of regional and district offices, Ste. Anne's Hospital, and special project teams. The branch provides veterans and other eligible clients with disability pensions, emergency and ongoing income support as well as health and social services in the form of the Veterans Independence Program, Treatment Benefits and Long-term Care. The branch is also responsible for administration of property agreements with participating veterans and assisting veterans under the Veterans' Land Act. Funding is provided to eligible clients for housekeeping and grounds keeping services, ambulatory care, pharmacy supplies, audio equipment, home adaptations and residential care. Health care is provided to eligible veterans in the departmental hospital at Ste.-Anne-de-Bellevue, Quebec, in contract hospital beds, in community beds, and in veterans' homes. Client services provided by the Veterans Services Branch include: counseling and assisting in the preparation of disability pension applications; medical exams; adjudication; payment; account maintenance; responding to inquiries; screening; assessment; social counseling; care planning; referral services; and health promotion.

Public Affairs Branch

The Public Affairs Branch is responsible for policy direction and effective management of all domestic (internal and external to the Department) and international communication programs; for keeping the memory of our veterans' and peacekeepers' achievements and sacrifices alive for all Canadians through community partnering, national memorials and public information; and maintenance and restoration of Canada's and international memorials and cemeteries.

Corporate Services (CS) Branch

The CS Branch is responsible for ensuring the effective and efficient use and protection of the Portfolio's financial, human, information, material and information technology resources; conducting internal audits, program evaluations and reviews for all Veterans Affairs operations; providing Portfolio support services, e.g. records and facilities management and video conferencing; planning and execution of business resumption, security and emergency preparedness measures; processing of requests and activities related to the Access to Information and Privacy Acts; employment equity and official languages programs; co-ordinating locally shared services initiatives; and providing corporate secretariat services for the Knowledge Economy Partnership.

Policy Coordination and Ottawa Headquarters

This division is responsible for providing executive services to the Minister, the Deputy Minister and the Associate Deputy Minister. It is also responsible for ensuring policy consistency in internal and external policies, and liaising with veterans' organizations, Parliamentary committees, and central agencies. The division also ensures that government policy is reflected in legislation and regulations.

Corporate Planning Division

The division supports the Portfolio by: carrying out long-term, strategic and operational planning; providing advice on resource management, planning methods and practices, and departmental issues; investigating options for alternative service delivery; and coordinating the development and implementation of Central Agency initiatives such as Quality Service (including service standards), Sustainable Development, and producing reports supporting the Expenditure Management System. It is also responsible for providing departmental statistics and other management information as well as for the ongoing development and maintenance of the Corporate Information System.

The mandate of the Audit and Evaluation Division is to review programs and operations and to recommend improvements. A seamless, single-window audit, evaluation and consultation service is provided.

Office of Early Conflict Resolution

This office is responsible for helping Portfolio managers and employees create and maintain a workplace free from all forms of conflict and harassment.

Health Care Coordination Initiative

The Health Care Coordination Initiative (HCCI) was established in 1994 to develop and implement a strategy to coordinate federal government purchasing of health care services and products for federal clients at the lowest possible cost through coordination of effort among departments and agencies. Ten departments and agencies formed a partnership with a view to minimize inefficiency and duplication in their delivery of health care programs, while maintaining or improving the quality of the services they provide. Veterans Affairs Canada is the lead department for the Initiative and provides executive leadership through the HCCI Secretariat.

Veterans Review and Appeal Board

Canada offers a wide range of services and benefits to qualified veterans and certain civilians, their dependants or survivors, in recognition of the sacrifices made by Canadians in this nation's war and peacekeeping efforts. These programs are carried out by the Veterans Affairs Portfolio which is made up of two organizations, the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Veterans Review and Appeal Board.

The Veterans Review and Appeal Board was created in 1995 by an Act of Parliament. The Board is an independent Board with full and exclusive jurisdiction to hear appeals from the decisions of the Minister of Veterans Affairs. The Board may affirm, vary or reverse the Minister's decisions, or refer decisions back to the Minister for reconsideration. The Board is completely independent from the Department of Veterans Affairs.

The Veterans Review and Appeal Board provides two levels of appeal on disability pension applications and the final level of appeal on allowance decisions. The Board's objective is to ensure veterans, Canadian Forces personnel, Royal Canadian Mounted Police members, certain civilians, and/or their respective dependants receive the disability pensions and benefits to which they are entitled.

Western Economic Diversification Canada

Chapter 152

General Information

Background

The Department of Western Economic Diversification (WD) was established by the Western Economic Diversification Act (S.C. 1988, c. 17) on June 28, 1988. Some of the programs now under the Department's mandate were transferred from the Department of Regional Industrial Expansion.

Responsibilities

The Department is responsible for federal economic development activities in Western Canada and works in partnership with provinces, business, industry associations and communities to stimulate and diversify the economy in the West. In pursuit of this mandate, WD administers eight core programs:

- Advocacy
- National Programs
- Targeted Business Services
- Service Partnerships
- Capital Services
- Legacy Programs
- Strategic Initiatives
- Information Services

These programs are then grouped into three main focus areas:

Representation

To represent western interest in national decision-making, WD administers a two-tiered advocacy program – the first one focus on federal procurements and the other on policies and programs affecting economic development in western Canada. Advocacy is central to the mandate of WD and integral to the delivery of all its program. WD also takes a leadership role in federal-provincial relations in the field of economic development and provides advice to the Ministers on western business issues and relevant provincial government concerns and priorities;

Coordination

WD coordinates federal economic activities in the West through the following:

Service Partnerships: alternative service delivery arrangements to meet the needs of small business; including the development of the Western Canada

Business Service Network: an alliance of Community Futures Development Corporations, Women's Enterprise Centres, Canada Business Service Centres and WD offices;

Strategic Initiatives: public-private partnerships, federal-provincial and tripartite economic development initiatives to address key competitiveness challenges;

National Programs: delivery of national economic development programs, including the Infrastructure Works Program and special community economic adjustment initiatives such as military base closures; and

Legacy Programs: administration and recovery of the portfolio of outstanding loans.

Development and Diversification

To develop and diversify the western economy, WD delivers three groups of direct services to clients:

Capital Services: targeted innovative loan/investment programs, offered in cooperation with private and public sector financial institutions and other assistance in accessing conventional loan financing and equity investment for SMEs. Currently, the loans funds offered are for nine different sectors: advanced materials and advanced manufacturing technology, advanced technology, agriculture, biotechnology, environmental technology, health, information technology, knowledge-based and tourism.

Targeted Business Services: assistance to SMEs to develop business plans, access exports and public sector markets and initiatives to streamline small business regulations. WD and its partners also offer four programs to provide assistance to entrepreneurs with their business goals. They are:

- Entrepreneurs with Disabilities Program – focused on providing entrepreneurs with disabilities the services they require to pursue their business goals;
- Western Youth Entrepreneur Program – assist youth between the ages of 18 and 35 who have a creative business idea or plan with access to loans up to $10,000;
- First Jobs in Science and Technology – provides SMEs with funding to hire recent science and technology graduates to help companies adopt new technologies;

International Trade Personnel Program (ITPP) – provides SMEs with qualified post-secondary graduates to work on international trade development projects.

Information Services: information products and services tailored to the needs of small business in western Canada.

Legislation

- Industrial and Regional Development Act
- Small Businesses Loans Act
- Special Areas Act
- Western Economic Diversification Act, S.C. 1988, c. 17

Yukon Surface Rights Board

Chapter 154

General Information

Background

The Yukon Surface Rights Board Act c.43 (the “Act”) was assented on December 15, 1994. The Act called for the establishment of a quasi-judicial tribunal, the Yukon Surface Rights Board (the “Board”). The Board resolves disputes regarding surface rights issues falling within its jurisdiction.

The Act was drafted to reflect the principles established in Chapter 8 of the Umbrella Final Agreement (the “UFA”), the framework comprehensive land claim agreement made between the Government of Canada, the Council for Yukon Indians (now the Council of Yukon First Nations – “CYFN”) and the Government of the Yukon. The Act and the Board’s Rules of Procedure guide the functions of the Board.

Responsibilities

The Board’s jurisdiction is derived from several federal and territorial (Yukon) statutes. The prime authority for the Board’s jurisdiction is the Yukon Surface Rights Board Act (Canada). Pursuant to this Act and as its primary mandate, the Board may hear and render decisions on access disputes between surface and subsurface rights holders in the Yukon. The Board may also hear matters relating to disputes concerning specified substances (e.g. earth, clay, shale, gypsum, gravel, and marl), quarries, and the expropriation of Settlement Land. In addition, matters relating to security and compensation for activities occurring on quartz and placer claims may be heard by the Board, as provided for in the Quartz Mining Act (Yukon) and the Placer Mining Act (Yukon).

Legislation

- Yukon Surface Rights Board Act (Canada)
- Quartz Mining Act (Yukon)
- Placer Mining Act (Yukon)

Organization

The UFA and the Act provides that up to 10 persons may sit on the Board, half of which are nominated by CYFN and the other half by the federal government. The federal government nominations are made in consultation with the Government of the Yukon. The Chair of the Board, upon the recommendation of the Board members, is appointed by the Minister of Indian and Northern Affairs

Canada. The Board is presently comprised of 4 members and a Chair.
