I. INTRODUCTION

A. Purpose of the Survey

The Overcoverage Survey is one component of a study to measure the incidence of overcoverage in the 1991 Census of Population.

Overcoverage occurs when people are counted more than once in the Census, or when people who should not be enumerated e.g., foreign residents, pets, fictitious people are counted as part of the Canadian population.

To obtain an exact count of the Canadian population, it is necessary to determine how many persons were counted more than once, and those who should not have been included.

The survey will also obtain information about the causes of overcoverage to be used in developing improvements for future censuses and in evaluating selected topics asked in the census.

B. Methodology

To achieve these objectives, a sample of 2,000 enumeration areas (EAs) has been selected across Canada. The sample includes 30,000 households or 80,000 persons enumerated in private dwellings during the census.

The address and telephone number of each selected household were transcribed from the census Form 2 to an Overcoverage Survey questionnaire, Form OC-1, in the Field Collection Unit. The name, date of birth, sex and relationship of each household member were also transcribed.

You will contact each selected household and complete the Overcoverage Survey questionnaire to determine where persons were counted on Census Day, June 4 and to get other addresses where they might have been enumerated. Households that cannot be contacted by telephone will be visited by field interviewers to complete a questionnaire.

C. Results of the Survey

The results of the survey will be used to:

1. provide official estimates of the rate of

overcoverage in the 1991 census;

2. evaluate the quality of data collected concerning language, ethnic origin and marital status;
3. improve the quality of the next census.

D. Your Responsibility as an Interviewer

Duties for the Overcoverage Survey will involve trying to contact the selected household by telephone to complete a questionnaire and, if this is unsuccessful, a field interviewer will try to contact the household and complete a questionnaire.

1. Telephone Interviewing

The Overcoverage Survey - Private Dwellings is planned to be conducted following the completion of sample selection and transcription in the Field Collection Unit. The exact starting date will depend upon the arrival of questionnaires from the Field Collection Unit but should be August 15 at the latest. Telephone interviewing will continue until approximately September 20.

Your responsibility is to attempt to contact each selected household in your assignment by telephone and to complete an Overcoverage Survey questionnaire, Form OC-1. In some cases you will have to trace the selected household to get a current telephone number. The objective is to complete as many questionnaires as possible by telephone interview.

2. Field Follow-up

The Forms OC-1 for households not contacted by telephone will be given to field interviewers for personal interviews. The interviewers will attempt to contact the selected household and complete a questionnaire, Form OC-1. This will likely occur after September 15.

You will visit each household identified on the list given to you by your supervisor and complete the questionnaire by interview.

E. Confidentiality

The Statistics Act provides that all information collected by the census and related studies be kept confidential.

The Statistics Act prohibits the disclosure of any information regarding an individual to any person, business, agency or an other department of the government. This also applies directly to you.

Disclosure of any information obtained under the Act is an offense and any person found guilty of this offense is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $1,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to both.

The security of all completed questionnaires and other survey material is your responsibility.

If respondents ask how to obtain access to the information they have given in this survey, tell them to contact Statistics Canada and to quote the following number: STC/P-PU-008.

F. Language Problems

1. Official Languages Act.

The Overcoverage Survey interview must be conducted in the language requested by the person being interviewed. The language of the Overcoverage Survey questionnaire (Form OC-1) is the same as the census questionnaire, but if you contact someone who wishes to be interviewed in the other official language follow these procedures:

- (a) If the person contacted is a household member, refer the case to your supervisor who will arrange for the household to be contacted in the preferred official language.
- (b) If the person contacted is not a household member, thank him/her and ask to speak to a household member.

2. Language Problems other than French or English

- (a) If the person being interviewed is a household member, try to interview another household member. If this is unsuccessful end the interview and refer the case to your supervisor.

- (b) If the person contacted is not a household member, thank him/her and ask to speak to a household member.

G. Questions from Respondents

If respondents have questions concerning the Overcoverage Survey or questions on the questionnaire (Form OC-1), refer to the Overcoverage Survey Rationale, Appendix B.

II. GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

A. Duties

1. During the period specified for telephone interviewing, you will:
 - (a) attempt to contact each household assigned to you at the telephone number in ITEM A;
 - (b) trace the household and attempt to obtain an up-to-date telephone number, if the household cannot be contacted at the census telephone number;
 - (c) interview a responsible household member to complete an Overcoverage Survey questionnaire for each case.
2. During the period specified for field follow-up by your supervisor, you will:
 - (a) attempt to contact each household assigned to you;
 - (b) interview a responsible household member to complete an Overcoverage Survey questionnaire;
 - (c) attempt to confirm that the household existed by obtaining the last resort information asked on the Form OC-1, if you cannot contact the selected household.

B. Guidelines for Interviewing

To successfully complete your assignment, follow the guidelines below when interviewing respondents.

1. Introduce yourself as a Statistics Canada interviewer.
2. Interview a responsible person in the household.
3. Ask the required questions in the specified order and exactly as worded on the questionnaire.
4. Do not interrupt the person being interviewed before he/she has finished, even if he/she hesitates. (This hesitation may simply mean the person is trying to remember some facts.)

5. At times you may feel the person's answer is doubtful. Make sure he/she understands the question, but be very careful not to antagonize the person by questioning his/her answer.
6. If an exact answer is not possible, a good estimate is acceptable, but a guess is not.
7. Follow the instructions on the questionnaire for questions with instructions to mark as many circles as applicable.
8. Thank the person for his/her time after completing the interview.

C. Supplies

To perform your duties, you will be given the following materials during your training class:

1. a list of the households you are to contact (Overcoverage Survey Sample Control List, Form OC-6);
2. a questionnaire (Form OC-1) for each household listed with the address and names and personal information of household members transcribed from the Form 2 in the Field Collection Unit;
3. an instruction card "HOW TO COMPLETE FORM OC-1";
4. a Census hourly employee account (Form 34) to claim payment for the hours worked (for telephone interviewers only).

III. TRAINING

A. General

You will be trained for one day scheduled prior to the start of telephone interviewing. The exact date will depend on the schedule for the Overcoverage Survey in each regional office.

B. Training Plan

The training is designed to familiarize you with the Overcoverage Survey - Private Dwellings questionnaire (Form OC-1), the Overcoverage Survey Sample Control List (Form OC-6), the procedures to follow, your account form, definitions and any general instructions.

C. Preparation of Assignment

During training, your supervisor will distribute the Overcoverage Survey Sample Control List, Form OC-6. The households in your assignment will be listed on the Form OC-6. The address and telephone number from the census questionnaire is included for each household in your assignment.

You will also be given an Overcoverage Survey questionnaire, Form OC-1, for each household listed on the Form OC-6. The identification, household address and telephone number, and the personal information for each household member were transcribed onto the questionnaire in the Field Collection Unit from the census questionnaire. To prepare your assignment follow the instructions below.

1. Ensure you have a questionnaire for each household listed on the Form OC-6.
2. Ensure the PROV, FED, EA and VN numbers on each Overcoverage Survey questionnaire, Form OC-1, match those on the Overcoverage Survey Sample Control List, Form OC-6.
3. Ensure the household number on each questionnaire matches the household number listed on the corresponding line in Column 1 of the Form OC-6.

4. Ensure the address and telephone number entered in ITEM A on page 2 of each questionnaire match those listed on the corresponding line in Columns 2 and 3 of the Form OC-6.
5. Ensure the number of persons entered across the top inside of each questionnaire matches the number of persons listed on the corresponding line in Column 4 of the Form OC-6.
6. If any identification numbers or entries do not match on the Overcoverage Survey Sample Control List (Form OC-6) and the Overcoverage Survey questionnaire (Form OC-1) tell your supervisor.
7. Assemble all the material needed to conduct your interviews.
8. Determine the selected person (SP) for each household. The selected person will be asked questions in Step 4 - Content section on page 12 of the Overcoverage questionnaire:
 - (a) Referring to the date of birth for each person (in the Day/Month/Year boxes in each Person block across the top of the inside of the questionnaire), select the person born in 1976 or before with the first birthday after January 1.
 - (b) If more than one person has the same date of birth, select the person with the lowest Person number.
 - (c) Mark "X" in the SP circle for that person.
 - (d) Print the selected person's name in the box in the Interviewer Check Item at the top of page 12 of the questionnaire.
 - (e) If date of birth is missing for any person, obtain it during telephone contact and select the SP before completing Section 4 of the questionnaire.

9. If a telephone number is not entered in ITEM A on page 2 of a questionnaire:
 - (a) Refer to a telephone directory, or directory assistance to obtain it and enter the number in ITEM A.
 - (b) If other sources are needed to obtain a telephone number, refer to Appendix A.

IV. INTERVIEW PROCEDURES

A. General

You will contact selected households by telephone to complete an Overcoverage Survey questionnaire, Form OC-1. If you cannot contact the household at the address taken from the census questionnaire, you will try to trace the household and obtain an up-dated telephone number by contacting alternative sources of information.

If selected households are not contacted by telephone, they will be assigned to field follow-up. Interviewers will either try to contact the household or, if unsuccessful obtain information from neighbours, a landlord, etc., to confirm its existence or whereabouts on Census Day, June 4.

If you are trying to contact the selected household by telephone, you will complete Steps 1, 3 and 4. Note that Section 4 is completed for only one household member, the selected person (SP).

If you are trying to contact the selected household during field follow-up, you will complete Steps 2, 3 and 4. Note that Step 4 is completed for only one household member, the selected person (SP).

Regardless of how you are trying to contact or trace the selected household, you will always try to obtain information about it from alternative sources of information, if possible.

Information concerning any situation will help determine if the household existed or not. Provide as much detail as possible in the Comments section on the back of the questionnaire, Form OC-1.

B. Step 1 Procedures

1. Telephone the selected household at the number entered in ITEM A. If no telephone number is entered, determine the number from telephone directories or directory assistance.
2. Determine if you have reached the selected household or obtain information as to where to contact them.
3. Enter any information in Step 1 on the questionnaire.

4. Always probe for a telephone number when trying to obtain information about the selected household.
5. If no information is obtained from a previous contact, trace the household as described in Appendix A, page .
6. Record any information obtained from the first telephone contact in STEP 1.1. Record the name, telephone number, address, and source of information for the second, third and fourth telephone contacts in Steps 1.2, 1.3 and 1.4.
7. When the selected household is contacted go to Step 3, the Coverage section of the questionnaire.
8. Make as many telephone attempts as possible on different days at different times (including Saturday morning) at the telephone number in ITEM A.

C. Step 2 Procedures (Field Follow-up)

1. Visit the address in ITEM A. If the selected household is contacted go to Step 3, the Coverage section of the questionnaire.
2. If it is impossible to contact the selected household, obtain information from other sources to confirm whether the household existed and lived at the address in ITEM A. The minimum information required is:
 - (a) one confirmation from a neighbour or other contact, or from data sources in Appendix A, that the selected household lived at the address in ITEM A on June 4, Census Day, i.e., a "yes" response to Question 27 or 37; or
 - (b) a visit to the address in ITEM A plus two different sources (neighbour, landlord or other contact, or data sources in Appendix A) stating they never heard of the selected household.
3. If the address in ITEM A is for a vacant dwelling, if the household is absent, or if the current occupants fail to confirm the selected household lived there on June 4 (i.e., do not answer "yes" to Question 27), contact another source of information and follow the instructions on the questionnaire to complete Step 2.2.

4. A third field contact attempt must be made with another source of information, if the second contact failed to confirm that the selected household lived at the address in ITEM A on June 4 (i.e., do not answer "yes" to Question 37. Complete Step 2.3 during the third field contact attempt.
5. If the person contacted in Step 2 of the Form OC-1 provides an address for the selected household that is nearby (e.g., an address across the street, or in the same building or neighbourhood), visit the address to contact the selected household and complete a questionnaire.
6. No field visit is made if the address from Step 2 is not nearby, or if no address was given by the contact.
7. If a local telephone number is provided during any field visit, attempt to contact the selected household and complete Steps 3 and 4 of the questionnaire.

D. Step 3 Procedures

Complete Step 3 - Coverage Section for each person listed on the questionnaire (refer to V. Section D., page 19).

E. Step 4 Procedures

3. Question 73:

If languages other than French or English are reported, mark "X" in the Other circle and specify the language in the write-in box.

APPENDIX A

TRACING HOUSEHOLDS

A. Possible Sources for Telephone Number or Address

Most households should be contacted by telephone using the information (name, address and telephone number) transcribed from the census questionnaire. However, some selected households may have moved since census day or the information from the census questionnaire may be incomplete or incorrect. For these cases you will have to trace the household to obtain a new address or telephone number. Section B, on the next page, shows sources used in other Statistic Canada surveys and studies to trace persons. It also indicates if the sources are available publicly.

Each regional office has established contacts with provincial authorities to have access to information. Your supervisor will tell you what contacts and reference material are available in your office. These sources will be used to trace households when other leads have been exhausted.

Before using a telephone number, confirm it is not unlisted, that it is from a telephone book, directory assistance, a municipal assessment book, etc. You do not have to confirm telephone numbers obtained from a family member, a household member or another member of the public. You do not have to confirm the number entered in ITEM A on the Form OC-1.

The following sources should be used until the household or person is contacted or until all possible leads are exhausted.

1. Local telephone and city/suburban directories are to be checked for persons with the same surname or for present residents living at the address in ITEM A of the Form OC-1.
2. Landlords, apartment managers or real estate agents may be able to provide a forwarding telephone number or address.
3. Neighbours may be able to provide useful information. The telephone number of neighbours may be on the sample control form, Form OC-6.

Refer to the next page for other possible sources.

APPENDIX BOVERCOVERAGE SURVEY RATIONALE*A. WHY THIS SURVEY IS BEING CONDUCTED*1. WHY ARE YOU CARRYING OUT THIS SURVEY?

Statistics Canada is doing a quality check on census population counts. We need to evaluate their accuracy because of their many important uses by governments, businesses and individuals.

For example, census counts are used to calculate payments from the federal government to the provinces and territories, and provincial grants to municipalities.

2. HOW WAS I SELECTED FOR THIS SURVEY?

Your address was part of a sample of addresses randomly selected from all across Canada to be included in this survey.

3. WHERE DID YOU GET MY TELEPHONE NUMBER AND ADDRESS? (if referring to ITEM A information)

Statistics Canada staff copied it from your Census questionnaire.

By using the telephone numbers on the census questionnaire we can directly contact the households we want to interview, reducing the costs and improving the completeness of the survey.

At the time of the Census, the public was informed that some census information would be used to locate respondents for post-censal surveys.

4. WHERE DID YOU GET MY TELEPHONE NUMBER? (if referring to traced number)

We use directories and contact landlords, relatives and neighbours etc. to get an up-to-date phone number. It is very important to contact all the people in our study so that we can produce accurate survey results.

5. WHY ARE YOU ASKING ME FOR INFORMATION TO TRACE MY RELATIVE, (NEIGHBOUR), (TENANT)?

It is very important to contact all the people in our study so that we can produce accurate survey results.

If we are unsuccessful at the telephone number or address that we have sampled, we try to get up-to-date information by contacting landlords, relatives and neighbours etc.

6. YOU SAID THE CENSUS INFORMATION I GAVE WAS CONFIDENTIAL, WHAT ABOUT USING MY NAME AND TELEPHONE NUMBER FOR THIS SURVEY?

Name, address and telephone number have been used only to help us carry out accurate post-censal surveys more cheaply than by any other method. No individuals will be identified when the data are published.

At the time of the Census, the public was informed that some census information would be used to locate respondents for post-censal surveys.

Only Statistics Canada employees, who have taken an Oath of Secrecy, have access to this personal information. They can be fined up to $1,000 or imprisoned for up to six months for a violation of their oath.

7. DO I HAVE TO ANSWER THESE QUESTIONS?

Like the Census, this survey is mandatory under the Statistics Act. It is important for the accuracy of the results to have high participation by the persons in the sample.

8. HOW DO I KNOW THIS CALL IS REALLY FROM STATISTICS CANADA

You can call our Regional Office (collect) at this number (____) ____-____-____ to confirm that I am a Statistics Canada interviewer. My name is _____.

9. IS THE INFORMATION I GIVE CONFIDENTIAL?

Yes, all information collected in any survey conducted by Statistics Canada is kept strictly confidential. All Statistics Canada employees, including the interviewer, take an oath to ensure that they never give out or use the personal information supplied by any survey respondent.

Statistics Canada does not give any personal information, including name, address or telephone number to any outside person or organization.

10. WHY DO YOU NEED ALL THIS PERSONAL INFORMATION?

We need information about places where you have lived or stayed so we can check whether you were counted in the Census at that/those address(es).

11. WHY DO YOU NEED TO SPEAK TO . . . (SP). I CAN ANSWER THE QUESTIONS (STEP 4) FOR HIM/HER? (when we ask to speak to the person marked in the "SP" circle).

The answers to some of these questions depend on a person's perception and feelings. Therefore, if possible we would like the selected respondent to answer on his/her own behalf.

B. WHY THE OC-1 QUESTIONS ARE ASKED.

1. GENERAL

STEP 1 and 2 - Contact and Tracing questions

It is very important to have a high response rate for this survey so that we can produce accurate results. Therefore some questions ask for information to help find people in the sample who have moved since Census Day.

This information will also help to confirm whether they lived at the address where they were enumerated on Census Day.

STEP 3 - Coverage section

The main objective of this survey is to identify cases when the same person is counted more than once in the 1991 Census of Population, or when persons who should not be counted have been enumerated.

Past experience has shown that double counting may happen when a person or family has moved close to Census day, or someone has two homes, such as a student with an apartment who also spends part of the year at his parents' home.

Thus, most of the questions in STEP 3 are asked to try to identify all possible addresses where members of the sampled household may have lived or stayed within a month of Census day.

As well, there may have been a few cases where names on the census form have been made up, or persons who should not be counted, such as foreign visitors, have been included in the Census. Some questions in STEP 3 are asked to identify these situations.

STEP 4 - Content section

Questions for one randomly selected household member, aged fifteen or over, are asked about language knowledge and use, ethnicity and marital status to help evaluate similar questions on the Census questionnaire.

2. REASONS FOR SPECIFIC QUESTIONS (STEPS 3 and 4)

Question 49

This is asked to confirm that the persons enumerated at the sampled address are known to the respondent, and not names that were made up.

Questions 50 to 56

These questions are asked to check the address information on the census questionnaire and to identify people who moved close to Census Day. If there are any other addresses given, a check will be done to see if the respondent was also enumerated on a census questionnaire there.

To carry out this check we need complete and accurate addresses. That is why we ask for Postal code.

Questions 57- 59

These questions are asked to get other addresses where any household member may have lived or stayed in May or June.

If there are any other addresses given, a check will be done to see if the respondent was also enumerated on a census questionnaire there.

We ask for the name of another adult living at that address because this name helps confirm that we have found the right household when we do this check.

Questions 60-62

These questions will identify other addresses where someone else may have included a household member's name on a census questionnaire. An example would be a child in a joint custody situation listed by both parents.

If there are any other addresses given, a check will be done to see if the respondent was also enumerated on a census questionnaire there.

We ask for the name of another adult living at that address because this name helps confirm that we have found the right household when we do this check.

Question 63

We ask respondents to state which address is their usual home so that, in the case where someone has been enumerated more than once, we can decide which address was the correct one.

Questions 64 - 67

The Census includes questions to identify Canadian citizens, landed immigrants and people who are in Canada on a student visa, work permit, Minister's permit or who are refugee claimants.

Questions 64 to 67 are asked to evaluate these questions and also to identify foreign visitors who may have been enumerated by mistake.

Questions 69 - 73

The answers to these questions will permit the evaluation of census data on "mother tongue". In the Census, this is defined as the language a person first learned at home in childhood, and still understands. If two languages were learned at the same time, the one that a person spoke most often as a child is considered to be the mother tongue.

With the responses to questions 69-73, mother tongue can be determined more accurately, confirming the responses given on the Census.

In Question 73, the term "understand a conversation" means to be able to follow a short conversation, for example one heard on the radio or television.

Questions 75(a), 75(b) and 76

Responses on the ability and frequency of use of the languages reported, and on the language in which the respondent feels most comfortable will permit a better interpretation of the Census data on language use.

Question 77 to 79

These questions, which obtain information on language(s) currently spoken at home by the selected person, permit a comparison with the languages learned in childhood.

Question 80

The Census question on ethnic origin provide information can be used extensively by ethnic or cultural association to study the size, location, characteristics and other aspects of their respective groups.

The question on the Overcoverage survey is asked to evaluate the responses in the Census and to obtain more information from persons who may have replied only "Canadian" in the Census.

Questions 80 and 81

These questions are asked to gather information that will help evaluate the 1991 Census marital status question which, for the first time, asks the respondent to provide both a legal marital status and a common law status.
