MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE ETHICS OFFICER

This year, the office continued to be busy with the implementation of a series of amendments to the Conflict of Interest Code for Senators (the Code) that were adopted in May 2012 and which came into force in October 2012. These changes, many of which involved additional disclosure requirements for senators, continued to generate an increasing number of questions from senators.

In addition, the Code was again amended in April 2014. These latest changes were largely focused on the inquiries provisions of the Code. The Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators provided me with the opportunity to make submissions concerning this portion of the Code with a view to streamlining the inquiries process, enhancing the independence of the Senate Ethics Officer, and making this process more transparent and open.

I commend the Committee for the work its members have done in proposing these important amendments to the Code and recommending them to the Senate. I am of the view that these changes will significantly improve the inquiries process in the future. These amendments are discussed in greater detail later on in this report.

Of particular note this year, the office undertook its first inquiry since it was established. Given that the inquiries provisions of the Code had never before been interpreted and applied, a great deal of thought and work had to be done in order to build in processes where the Code was silent and to create practices and procedures for this and future inquiries. The office also received two other requests for inquiries. These were dealt with at the preliminary review stage.

This has been a momentous year for my office. The Senate expense issues led to increased public scrutiny of the Senate and this, in turn, led to an increased interest in the work of the office. We received a record number of calls from the media and members of the public and we had to address a number of challenging issues, including questions of overlapping jurisdiction.

Notwithstanding the increase in the volume of work, the office resources have not increased to date. This has proven to be a challenging situation at the best of times. I work with three full-time and two part-time staff.

In this second year of my term, I have had a great deal of cooperation and assistance from many, and I would like to take a moment to recognize them.

First, I would like to express my appreciation to the Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators for the leadership it has demonstrated in moving expeditiously to address areas of the Code that required change.

Next, I would also like to thank senators and their staff for their continued cooperation throughout the year as well.

Of course, I owe a debt of gratitude to my small but hardworking team for their commitment and dedication and for their continued support and assistance in what was a very challenging and unique year for the office.

Finally, I would like to express my continued appreciation to the Senate Administration for the quality services they have provided to my office. As in past years, certain services in the areas of security, finance, information technology and human resources were provided on a cost recovery basis, pursuant to a written agreement. I look forward to continue working with the Administration in the coming years.

As I look to the future, I am encouraged by the commitment and dedication I have witnessed by the members of the Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators to advance conflict of interest issues in the Senate. The Senate Code has been amended twice in the last two years and the last amendments concerning inquiries are particularly encouraging given that one of their main purposes was to increase the independence of the office in the context of inquiries. This ongoing study and assessment of the Code is important in order to ensure that it continues to respond to the changing expectations of Canadians. I look forward to continue to build in the future on the substantial changes that have already been made in such a short span of time.

I. MANDATE OF THE SENATE ETHICS OFFICER

The Office of the Senate Ethics Officer was established under the Parliament of Canada Act. The Senate Ethics Officer is responsible for the interpretation, administration and application of the Conflict of Interest Code for Senators (the Code). The Code was adopted by the Senate in May 2005, and, after a comprehensive review of its provisions, which is required under the Code, it was revised in May 2008. It was again amended in May 2012, and most recently in April 2014. The Code is a document that is distinct from, but of equal standing to, the Rules of the Senate.

A. Three Major Functions

The Senate Ethics Officer's mandate may be broken down into three major functions: (i) providing opinions and advice to senators; (ii) administering the disclosure process; and (iii) conducting inquiries.

(i) Opinions and Advice

The Senate Ethics Officer's primary function is to provide advice and guidance to senators with respect to the Code and, in particular, to assist them in understanding their obligations thereunder and to identify conflicts of interest – real, potential and apparent that could be relevant to their circumstances.

Under subsection 42(4) of the Code, written opinions and advice are required to be kept confidential but they may be made public by the senators to whom they relate, or by me with the particular senator's written consent. Some opinions related to contracts with the federal government must be made public under section 31 of the Code.

Along with many other Canadian conflict of interest commissioners in Canada, I recognize that the advisory function is essential to the success of a conflict of interest regime. It provides a means by which legislators are better able to understand how the conflict of interest rules apply to their individual circumstances, given that while the application of the rules may be clear in some situations, in other cases, it may not be so clear. This is where the advisory function is most useful.

Senators are encouraged to seek advice before acting. By availing themselves of the advisory services of the office, they are effectively avoiding conflicts of interest. This approach best serves the public interest because it avoids costly and time-consuming inquiries. It ensures that the system is preventative, not punitive. In other words, the focus is not on addressing conflicts once they have already arisen, but rather on preventing them from arising. Prevention is preferable to cure.

(ii) The Annual Disclosure Process

The Office of the Senate Ethics Officer is also responsible for administering the annual disclosure process, which begins in the fall of each year. This is a lengthy process that is also regarded as an essential feature of any conflict of interest regime. It ensures a measure of transparency and accountability and these, in turn, inspire public confidence in the system.

Under subsection 27(1) of the Code, senators are required to file, on an annual basis, a confidential disclosure statement on a date that is established by me with the approval of the Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators [subsection 27(2)]. Newly appointed senators must file their statements within 120 days after being summoned to the Senate [subsection 27(3)].

These statements include information concerning senators' activities outside their parliamentary duties and functions, their assets and liabilities over $10,000, their sources of income over $2,000, federal government contracts, as well as the outside activities and financial interests of their spouses or common-law partners. Subsection 28(1) sets out the list of interests that senators are required to report confidentially to the Senate Ethics Officer.

Once these statements have been filed, I provide each senator with a letter, which draws attention to any relevant provisions of the Code and identifies potential conflicts of interest that are relevant to his or her circumstances, while also providing advice on how these may be prevented. Of course, where senators have specific questions about a particular situation, they are expected to raise the matter with me and provide the information necessary to be able to provide helpful advice to them.

The Office of the Senate Ethics Officer then prepares a public disclosure summary for each senator based on the information that was provided in each senator's confidential disclosure statement. Section 31 of the Code sets out the list of interests that must be publicly disclosed. Again, this list includes senators' activities outside their parliamentary duties and functions, as well as their income over $2,000, and their assets and liabilities valued at over $10,000.

After the public disclosure summaries are prepared, senators are required to review, sign and return them to the Office of the Senate Ethics Officer. These summaries are then placed in both a paper public registry located at the office premises, as well as in an online public registry, which is available on my office's website. This registry contains all the information concerning senators that is required to be made public under the Code.

As a result of the most recent changes to the Code in April 2014, the public registry for the next annual review (2014-15) will include an additional document for each senator. Senators will be required to annually file, pursuant to subsection 45(1) of the Code, a statement of compliance confirming that they have read the Code within the last 30 days and that, to their knowledge and belief, they are in compliance with the Code as of the day the statement is filed.

Even after all senators' confidential disclosure statements have been filed and all senators' public disclosure summaries and statements of compliance are available to the public, the annual disclosure process is an ongoing process that continues throughout the year. Senators are required to ensure that their confidential disclosure statements are kept up-to-date throughout the year by filing material change forms with my office within 60 days after any material changes occur in their circumstances [subsection 28(6)]. These forms are included within each senator's public disclosure file if the information contained therein is required to be made public under section 31 of the Code.

In addition, when a senator receives a gift or benefit as a normal expression of courtesy or protocol, or that is within the customary standards of hospitality that normally accompany the senator's position, the fact of its receipt must be reported in a statement which forms part of a senator's public disclosure file, in accordance with paragraph 31(1)(j), if the value of the gift or benefit (or the cumulative value of all such gifts or benefits received from one source in a 12-month period) is over $500.00.

It should be noted that courtesy gifts are exceptions to the general prohibition in subsection 17(1) against senators receiving gifts and benefits that could reasonably be considered to relate to a senator's position [subsection 17(2)].

As in the case of gifts and other benefits, sponsored travel that falls under subsection 18(1) must be reported in a statement which forms part of a senator's public disclosure file, again under paragraph 31(1)(j), if the travel costs exceed $500.00.

Finally, throughout the year, senators must publicly declare any private interests that they have that may be affected by any matter before the Senate, or a committee of the Senate of which they are members. These public declarations are also placed in the public disclosure files of the senators to whom the declarations relate. This is required under paragraph 31(1)(i) of the Code.

(iii) Inquiries

One of the necessary functions of the Senate Ethics Officer is to conduct inquiries where there are allegations of misconduct in order to determine whether a senator has complied with his or her obligations under the Code.

Under subsection 48(2) of the Code, the Senate Ethics Officer must conduct an inquiry in either of the following circumstances: (a) where the Senate Ethics Officer determines that an inquiry is warranted after conducting a preliminary review; or (b) where the senator who was the subject of a preliminary review requests that an inquiry be conducted because the Senate Ethics Officer has made a finding that an obligation under the Code may have been breached but has determined that an inquiry is not warranted.

The Senate Ethics Officer must conduct a preliminary review under subsection 47(2) of the Code if he or she (a) has reasonable grounds to believe that a senator has not complied with his or her obligations under the Code; or (b) receives a request to conduct an inquiry from a senator who has reasonable grounds to believe that another senator has not complied with his or her obligations under the Code.

A preliminary review is conducted confidentially under subsection 47(5) of the Code but where the Senate Ethics Officer determines that an inquiry is not warranted, the preliminary determination letter is made public (unless the matter is not in the public domain) when the Chair of the Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators tables it in the Senate pursuant to subsection 47(17) of the Code [see subsections 47(16) and (17)]. If the Senate Ethics Officer determines that an inquiry is warranted, the matter remains confidential until the inquiry report of the Senate Ethics Officer is tabled in the Senate [subsections 48(17),(18) and (19)].

B. Other Rules and Laws

It is important to note that the Senate Ethics Officer's jurisdiction is limited to the Conflict of Interest Code for Senators. Having said that, the Code is not the only set of rules that governs the conduct of senators. There are a number of other rules and laws to which senators are subject. However, these additional rules and laws are outside the purview of my office.

For example, the Senate Administrative Rules relate to the proper allocation and use of Senate resources. These rules are within the jurisdiction of the Standing Senate Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration.

In addition, section 16 of the Parliament of Canada Act prohibits senators from receiving outside compensation, whether directly or indirectly, for services rendered or to be rendered to any person, either by the senator or another person, in relation to any matter before the Senate or the House of Commons or any of their committees, or for the purpose of influencing or attempting to influence any member of either House.

Sections 119, 121 and 122 of the Criminal Code are other examples of laws that relate to the misuse of a public office. Section 119 deals with offences that relate to bribery. Section 121 concerns frauds on the government and is aimed in part at influence peddling. Section 122 creates offences relating to fraud and breach of trust.

C. Independence of the Senate Ethics Officer

The Senate Ethics Officer is an independent, non-partisan Officer of the Senate. This independence is essential in order to ensure public confidence and credibility in the Senate conflict of interest regime. A number of provisions of the Parliament of Canada Act and the Code confer this status of independence and autonomy on the Senate Ethics Officer, including the provisions in the Act concerning the appointment process, the security of tenure, financial autonomy, and the management of the office of the Senate Ethics Officer.

For example, subsection 20.4(1) of the Act ensures that the Senate Ethics Officer alone has "the control and management of the office". Subsection 20.4(7) provides that the Senate Ethics Officer is responsible for preparing the estimate of the budget for the office. This estimate is separate and apart from the estimates of the Senate as a whole. Under subsection 20.4(8), the estimate of the Senate Ethics Officer is provided to the Speaker of the Senate who, after considering it, transmits it to the President of the Treasury Board who, in turn, lays it before the House of Commons with the estimates of the Government for the fiscal year.

My independence concerning the opinions and advice I provide to individual senators is also clear and is expressly provided for in subsection 41(2) of the Code. I am also independent concerning any inquiries I conduct under subsection 48(2) of the Code and any inquiry reports I prepare under subsection 48(12).

These, and other provisions, ensure that I am able to carry out my functions – providing considered advice to senators and conducting, where necessary, investigations and inquiries – in an impartial manner, free from any outside influence or coercion.

Provisions of the Parliament of Canada Act that secure the independence of the Senate Ethics Officer

- The Officer is appointed by the Governor in Council, by Commission under the Great Seal, after consultation with the leader of every recognized party in the Senate and after approval of the appointment by resolution of the Senate. This is to ensure that the appointment has the broadest support of the Senate irrespective of political party line.
- The Officer is appointed for a term of seven years as an Officer of the Senate and may be removed from his or her office only for cause, by the Governor in Council, on address of the Senate. These provisions again confer on the Officer a status of independence and autonomy rarely recognized to Government officials and they provide an effective shield against improper or inappropriate influence.
- The Officer has the rank of a deputy head of a department of the Government of Canada and has the control and the management of the office, which he or she runs independently from the Senate and its Internal Economy Committee. The Officer hires his or her own staff.
- The Officer has the responsibility for preparing the estimate of the sums required to pay the charges and expenses of the office. This estimate is separate from the estimates of the Senate. The Speaker of the Senate, after considering the estimate, transmits it to the President of the Treasury Board who lays it before the House of Commons with the estimates of the Government for the fiscal year. The Senate reviews the Officer's proposed budget as a part of the annual review of the Main Estimates. This procedure ensures the independence of the Officer and places the responsibility for the estimate of the office on the Senate Ethics Officer. It also emphasizes the direct relationship that Parliament has established between the Officer and the Senate itself, to which the Officer ultimately reports.
- The Officer is required, within three months after the end of each fiscal year, to submit a report of his or her activities to the Speaker of the Senate, who must table the report in the Senate.

D. Accountability of the Senate Ethics Officer

While I am an independent Officer of the Senate, I am also accountable to the Senate in a number of ways and this accountability is as important as my independence.

I am accountable to the Senate as a whole for my office's overall performance. For example, I am required to prepare an annual report on the activities of my office and this report is tabled in the Senate.

I am also accountable to the Senate for the financial operations of my office. The Senate may review my budget as part of the annual review of the estimates of the government. The office's financial statements are audited each year by an external auditor and the results are posted on our website once the audit is completed. In addition, my hospitality and travel expenses, as well as office contracts that exceed $10,000, are posted on the office's website.

I am also directly accountable to the Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators. The Parliament of Canada Act establishes this relationship in subsection 20.5(3), which provides that the Senate Ethics Officer carries out his or her duties and functions under the general direction of a committee of the Senate. The Senate Ethics Officer appears annually before this Committee in order to discuss the annual report of the activities of the office.

The Committee also has a role to play with respect to investigations and inquiries under the Code. It receives the inquiry reports of the Senate Ethics Officer and makes them public. It then considers these reports and thereafter prepares its own reports to the Senate, in which it may recommend appropriate sanctions.

The Committee also undertakes comprehensive reviews of the Code. During these reviews, the Senate Ethics Officer is provided with an opportunity to make submissions to the Committee concerning amendments to the Code. Again, this assures a further measure of accountability on the part of the Senate Ethics Officer in that it requires that the Senate Ethics Officer examine the Code with a view to recommending improvements on an ongoing basis. Of course, the Committee is ultimately responsible for recommending changes to the Code to the Senate, and the Senate is ultimately responsible for adopting any such changes.

II. THE YEAR IN REVIEW: 2013-14

A. Amendments to the Conflict of Interest Code for Senators

On April 1, 2014, the Senate adopted the Third Report of the Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators (the Committee), which recommended amendments to the Conflict of Interest Code for Senators (the Code) that would come into force on the date of adoption by the Senate. A copy of the Committee's report is included in Appendix B to this report and a copy of the new Code is included in Appendix C.

These amendments primarily made changes to the inquiries portion of the Code. While other portions of the Code have been amended since 2005 when the Code was first adopted by the Senate, the inquiries section had remained largely unchanged since then.

I was provided with an opportunity to make submissions to the Committee in this area and I appreciated the opportunity to do so.

The Committee described its objectives in recommending these changes to the Senate as follows:

- to establish and confirm that senators are aware of their obligations under the Code;
- to strengthen preventive measures under the Code;
- to establish a clear, fair and balanced inquiry process;
- to enhance the independence of the Senate Ethics Officer; and
- to increase the openness and transparency of the Senate conflict of interest regime.

More specifically, the new Code requires senators to annually file a statement confirming that they have read the Code within the last 30 days and that they are in compliance with it to the best of their knowledge and belief. This measure ensures that senators are aware of their obligations under the Code and continue to review these obligations annually. It is preventative in nature and builds on the principle that preventing conflicts is preferable to dealing with them once they have already arisen. This obligation did not exist under the previous version of the Code.

The amendments will also ensure that the preliminary review process is more formal and transparent. This is the preliminary stage at which the Senate Ethics Officer must review the information available to him or her in order to make a determination as to whether an inquiry is warranted under the circumstances.

Under the previous version of the Code, the decision of the Senate Ethics Officer at the preliminary review stage was not publicly available. Only in cases where the Senate Ethics Officer decided to proceed to the inquiry stage would the matter eventually become a matter of public record. This is because if an inquiry report is prepared, it is tabled in the Senate and, upon tabling, becomes a public document.

However, if the decision of the Senate Ethics Officer was not to proceed to the inquiry stage, then the reasons for this decision would not become public.

As a result of the amendments, the preliminary review decision letter will be made public where an inquiry is not justified if the subject matter of the inquiry is publicly known. If, on the other hand, an inquiry is justified, the preliminary review decision letter would remain confidential but the inquiry report would be tabled in the Senate, at which time it would become a public document.

The new changes will also alter the manner in which an inquiry may be initiated. Under the previous version of the Code, an inquiry could be initiated in one of three ways: (a) at the direction of the Committee; (b) at the request of another senator; or (c) at the initiative of the Senate Ethics Officer, with the approval of the Committee.

The amendments removed the Committee's authority to direct the Senate Ethics Officer to initiate an inquiry. In addition, the Senate Ethics Officer is no longer required to seek the approval of the Committee before self-initiating an inquiry.

Moreover, under the previous version of the Code, the Senate Ethics Officer could only self-initiate an inquiry if he or she had received "significant evidence" leading him or her to believe that an inquiry was warranted under the circumstances. Under the revised Code, the Senate Ethics Officer may self-initiate an inquiry if he or she has "reasonable grounds to believe" that a senator may have breached his or her obligations under the Code.

The amendments ensure that the Senate Ethics Officer is completely independent in his or her decision as to whether or not to self-initiate an inquiry ensuring that the Committee is at arm's length in respect of this decision. They also ensure that the evidentiary test for proceeding with an inquiry is the same as that that is applicable to inquiries conducted by legislative ethics commissioners in most other Canadian jurisdictions, i.e., "reasonable grounds to believe".

Building on the above-mentioned amendments to enhance the independence of the Senate Ethics Officer, the changes will also ensure that the Committee will no longer reinvestigate a matter already inquired into by the Senate Ethics Officer. Under the previous version of the Code, the Committee could conduct its own investigation of the matter after the Senate Ethics Officer had completed his or her inquiry report whereas, under the revised Code, the Committee's role is to recommend to the Senate the appropriate remedial measures or sanctions in any given case. These recommendations would be based on the findings of the Senate Ethics Officer in his or her inquiry report.

Again, these changes enhance the independence of the Senate Ethics Officer in the inquiry process because they leave the carrying out of the process to the Senate Ethics Officer and ensure that the Committee is at arm's length in terms of this process.

In addition, the previous version of the Code did not stipulate a list of remedial measures or sanctions that might be imposed on a senator who was the subject of an inquiry report that found that he or she had contravened one or more of the provisions of the Code. The amendments address this by providing a non-exhaustive list of possible remedial measures and sanctions that the Committee may recommend in its report to the Senate.

The changes will also clarify that, where a matter is under investigation by another authority, the Senate Ethics Officer will only be authorized to suspend his or her preliminary review or inquiry (and the Committee would only be authorized to suspend its study) where the review or inquiry (or study in the case of the Committee) could prejudice the other investigation that is underway. I should note, however, that though this was not explicit in the previous version of the Code, my policy was to suspend only where I believed there was a risk of prejudice in continuing to inquire into the matter under the Code while an investigation by another authority was running parallel to my review or inquiry into the same matter.

Finally, the amendments expressly authorize the Senate Ethics Officer to provide general information to the public about the conflict of interest regime for senators and to inform the public about the status of a preliminary review or inquiry. The changes also require public documents concerning inquiries to be posted on the office's website. These amendments increase transparency by ensuring that the public has more access to information concerning inquiries.

I commend the Committee for recommending to the Senate these sweeping changes to the inquiries provisions of the Code, and the Senate for adopting them. In my view, they significantly improve the inquiry process that existed under the previous version of the Code by making it more transparent and leaving the process to be carried out independently by the Senate Ethics Officer with the Committee's role limited to recommending sanctions and remedial action after an inquiry is conducted – a role which is consistent with that carried out by other legislative bodies in Canada in this area.

B. Opinions and Advice

As noted in my annual report of last year, the primary role of the Senate Ethics Officer is an advisory one. Opinions and advice are provided to senators in order to assist them in complying with their obligations under the Code.

This year, we provided approximately 350 opinions and advice to senators of both a formal and informal nature. This is an increase in the number of requests for opinions and advice received in previous years.

C. Annual Disclosure Process

The office continued to respond to a higher volume of requests from senators concerning their disclosure obligations as a result of the 2012 changes to the Code, many of which involved additional disclosure requirements concerning both senators and their spouses and common-law partners. These changes are still relatively new and, as such, senators continued to ask for guidance on the application of these new requirements to their individual circumstances.

D. Inquiries

The office is conducting its first inquiry since its establishment in 2005. This inquiry is based on a request from a senator under subsection 44(2) of the Code.¹ At the time of the writing of this report, it is still ongoing.

The office also received two other requests for inquiries under subsection 44(2) of the Code.² I conducted a preliminary review of these matters and, under the Code which was applicable at the time these requests were filed with my office, the preliminary review decisions were not to be made publicly available.

As a result of these requests, the office was, for the first time, required to interpret and apply the inquiry provisions of the Code.

E. Outreach and External Activities

The office participates annually in conferences and seminars that focus on conflict of interest issues, and ethics issues more generally. These activities ensure that the office continues to share best practices with other organizations that have responsibilities and mandates similar to our own and to ensure that we continue to engage in dialogues with other jurisdictions about these issues.

This year, the office participated in the annual conference of the Canadian Conflict of Interest Network (CCOIN), which took place in Ottawa, Ontario from September 4 to 6, 2013. CCOIN is comprised of the various ethics and conflict of interest commissioners across the country at the federal, provincial and territorial levels of government -- those who have jurisdiction over members of legislative bodies. We gather together as a group on an annual basis to discuss issues of common interest and to seek the thoughts and views of colleagues concerning matters related to conflict of interest and ethics.

The office also met with a delegation from Kenya on October 29, 2013 in order to provide information concerning the conflict of interest regime in the Senate.

On both November 6, 2013 and on February 12, 2014, I addressed the participants of the Parliamentary Officers' Study Program. This program is designed to provide opportunities for senior parliamentary staff from other Canadian legislatures and foreign legislatures to learn about the Canadian Parliament, and to discuss and exchange views with senior Canadian parliamentary officials on the various procedural, administrative and research services provided to parliamentarians. The program involves the Senate, the House of Commons and the Library of Parliament and takes place in Ottawa.

I also attended the 2013 annual conference of the Council on Governmental Ethics Laws (COGEL), which was held in Québec City from December 7 to 11, 2013.

¹ The reference here is to the Code adopted by the Senate in May 2012, which came into force on October 1, 2012.

COGEL is a professional organization for government agencies, organizations and individuals with responsibilities or interests in governmental ethics, elections, campaign finance, lobby laws and freedom of information. Membership is drawn principally from groups or individuals from the United States and Canada, with some European, Australian, and Latin American members as well.

In addition to sharing information about the Senate ethics regime through our participation in conferences and seminars, the office website is also a tool for providing information to those who are interested in this area and to the public in general concerning the mandate of the Senate Ethics Officer and the work of the office. Over the years, the office has received a fairly large number of visits to the website and this year was no exception with 18, 171 visits.

F. Budget

For the year 2013-2014, the Office's total authorities were $934,294. Actual expenditures were $765,918.

The office's financial statements for the year 2013-2014 are being audited by the firm Ernst and Young. The results of this report, as well as the financial statements, will be posted on the office's website once the audit is completed.

III. THE CODE IN PRACTICE: SELECTED EXAMPLES

The following is a list of examples of cases that illustrate how the Conflict of Interest Code for Senators (the Code) is applied to specific fact scenarios. They are intended to help the reader better understand the provisions of the Code and to highlight some of the more important rules with which senators must comply.

It should be noted, however, that these cases have been abbreviated and, as such, do not reflect the level of detail that may be provided in opinions and advice given to senators. The opinions and advice are based on a careful analysis of the provisions of the Code and of each senator's circumstances, whereas the cases below are for illustrative purposes only and are intended to be educational and informative.

A. Activities Outside Official Parliamentary Duties

General

1. Issue

To what extent does the Code permit senators to engage in activities outside their parliamentary duties and functions?

Considerations

Section 5 of the Code authorizes senators, who are not Ministers of the Crown, to participate in activities outside their parliamentary duties and functions, as long as they are able to fulfill their obligations under the Code. For example, senators are permitted to sit as members of boards of directors of not-for-profit and for-profit organizations provided these activities do not result in a senator running afoul of any provisions of the Code. In order to avoid this, certain restrictions and conditions could be recommended.

However, senators are required to disclose these outside activities to the Senate Ethics Officer, who then makes this information available to the public.

It is worth noting that the rules that apply to Cabinet ministers are much more restrictive than those that apply to senators and members of the House of Commons, reflecting the fact that Cabinet ministers have considerable executive powers. The role, responsibilities and powers of legislators are, however, quite distinct with the result that both senators and members of the House of Commons are permitted certain outside activities.

B. Sponsored Travel

Sponsored Travel (General)

2. Issue

Under what circumstances does the Code permit senators to accept sponsored travel?

Considerations

Subsection 18(1) of the Code provides that a senator and guests of the senator may accept sponsored travel if it arises or relates to the senator's position. Where the cost of any such travel exceeds $500 and is not paid for by the senator or any guests of the senator, or through international and interparliamentary affairs programs recognized by the Parliament of Canada, or by the Senate, the Government of Canada or the senator's political party, the trip must be disclosed to the Senate Ethics Officer within 30 days after the end of it. As well, paragraph 31(1)(j) requires that any such trip be publicly disclosed.

Parliamentary associations

3. Issue

Does a senator have to declare sponsored travel that is paid by a parliamentary association for the purpose of attending meetings abroad?

Considerations

Subsection 18(1) of the Code provides that sponsored travel paid through the programs for international and interparliamentary affairs of the Parliament of Canada need not be reported to the Senate Ethics Office, nor must it be publicly declared, since these associations are funded by Parliament.

Foreign governments

4. Issue

A senator is invited by a foreign government to attend meetings abroad as part of his or her parliamentary duties and functions. The host country is offering to pay the travel and accommodation costs. Is the senator permitted to accept the offer under the Code?

Considerations

Under subsection 18(1), sponsored travel that arises from or relates to a senator's position is acceptable. However, if the cost of the travel exceeds $500, the senator would be required to file a statement of sponsored travel with the Senate Ethics Office within 30 days after the end of the trip. This statement would include the name of the government paying for the trip, the purpose and length of the trip, as well as a general description of the benefits received [subsection 18(2)]. This information would then be placed on the senator's public file under paragraph 31(1)(j) of the Code.

C. Gifts and Other Benefits

Golf memberships

5. Issue

Is a senator permitted to accept a free membership in a golf club? This membership has been offered in his or her capacity as a senator.

Considerations

The senator is not permitted to accept this benefit since it could reasonably be considered to relate to the senator's position and, as such, would fall under subsection 17(1) of the Code.

Honorariums and Gifts for Speeches

6. Issue

Is a senator permitted to accept an honorarium for giving a speech at a conference?

Considerations

Whether the honorarium is acceptable depends on the particular circumstances. If the senator's participation at the conference is related to his or her parliamentary duties and functions and if the specific expertise was acquired in the Senate, the honorarium may not be accepted [subsection 17(1) of the Code]. However, the senator may accept an honorarium if the speech is given in connection with an outside or professional activity, the expertise was acquired before the senator was appointed to the Senate, and the honorarium cannot reasonably be seen to have been given to influence the senator. In cases of doubt, the Senate Ethics Officer should be consulted.

7. Issue

Is a senator permitted to accept a gift as an expression of appreciation for delivering a speech at a conference in which he or she participated in his or her capacity as a senator?

Considerations

The gift may be accepted under subsection 17(2) of the Code since it is "a normal expression of courtesy or protocol" and is "within the customary standards of hospitality that normally accompany [a] senator's position". However, if the value of the gift exceeds $500, a declaration must be filed with the Senate Ethics Office within 30 days after the receipt of the gift, in accordance with subsection 17(3) of the Code. This declaration must then be filed in the senator's public file under paragraph 31(1)(j).

8. Issue

Is a senator permitted to request that, instead of accepting a gift offered as a token of appreciation for having given the keynote address at an event, a donation be made to a charitable organization of the senator's choice? The senator is participating in the event as part of his or her parliamentary duties and functions.

Considerations

The senator may make such a request provided he or she does not receive any benefit, directly or indirectly, from the donation [subsection 17(1) of the Code]. The donation should be given directly by the event organizer to the charitable organization and any income tax receipt should be provided to the sponsor of the conference, not to the senator.

D. Federal Contracts

Federal Contracts (Family members)

9. Issue

Is a senator's spouse or common-law partner permitted to be a party to a contract with the federal government?

Considerations

A senator's spouse or common-law partner may be a party to a federal government contract under the Code. However, confidential disclosure to the Senate Ethics Officer is necessary under paragraph 28(1)(g) and a public declaration is required under paragraph 31(1)(g) of the Code. Furthermore, the senator would be advised to refrain from making representations, on behalf of his or her spouse or common-law partner, to the Government of Canada or any federal agency or body in order to obtain or extend contracts, or from acting in any way to further his or her spouse's or common-law partner's private interests, or his or her own private interests, as defined under subsection 11(1) of the Code. Under section 9 and paragraph 2(1)(c) of the Code, his or her spouse or common-law partner should not receive, or appear to receive, preferential treatment or unfair advantage in the awarding of federal contracts due to representations made by the senator on his or her spouse's or common-law partner's behalf.

E. Declarations of Private Interest

Procedure for Declaration of a Private Interest

10. Issue

What are the circumstances under which a senator must make a declaration of a private interest in the Senate or in a committee of which he or she is a member; the manner in which a declaration must be made; and the restrictions that would be imposed upon him or her under such circumstances?

Considerations

Under subsection 12(1), a senator must make a declaration of a private interest if he or she has reasonable grounds to believe that he or she, or a family member, has a private interest that might be affected by a matter that is before the Senate or a committee of the Senate of which the senator is a member. The senator must make the declaration at the earliest opportunity. It may be made orally on the record or in writing to the Clerk of the Senate if the matter is before the Senate, or to the Clerk of the committee if the matter is before a committee. The declaration will be recorded in the Journals of the Senate if it was made in the Senate, or in the Minutes of Proceedings of the committee if it was made in committee. It is then sent to the Senate Ethics Officer, who must file it in the senator's public disclosure file [subsection 12(3) and paragraph 31(1)(i)]. This file is in the Public Registry, along with all other senators' public disclosure files, at the Office of the Senate Ethics Officer, as well as on the office's website [section 33].

Once the senator makes a declaration of a private interest in the Senate or in the relevant committee, he or she may not participate in debate or any other deliberations in the Senate or in a committee with respect to that matter [subsections

13(1) and (2)] and he or she may not vote on the matter but may abstain [section 14]. In addition, if the matter is before a Senate committee, the senator must also withdraw altogether from the proceedings in question [subsections 13(2)].

Matter specifically relates to Senator's Company

11. Issue

Is a senator required to make a declaration of a private interest where he or she is a member of the board of directors of company "A" and a matter before the Senate specifically relates to company "A"?

Considerations

A declaration of a private interest would be required under subsection 12(1) of the Code since the subject matter being discussed in the Senate affects the senator's private interest as defined under subsection 11(1) of the Code. The senator may not participate in debate on the matter [subsection 13(1)] and may not vote [section 14]. A declaration of a private interest may be made orally on the record or in writing to the Clerk of the Senate, in accordance with the procedure set out in subsection 12(1) of the Code.

Not Official Committee Member

12. Issue

A senator is not an official member of a particular committee of the Senate; however, he or she does participate in its proceedings from time to time. A matter is before this committee in which he or she has a private interest. Since the senator is not an official committee member, what are the rules that apply to him or her under the circumstances?

Considerations

Notwithstanding that the senator may not be an official member of this particular committee, he or she is still prohibited from participating in its proceedings if they concern a matter in which he or she has a private interest [subsection 13(3)]. In fact, the senator would also be required to withdraw from the relevant proceedings altogether [subsection 13(3)]. With respect to voting, he or she would not be entitled to vote on the matter given that he or she is not an official member of the committee.

F. Furthering Private Interests

Influence

13. Issue

In what circumstances would section 9 of the Code (use of influence) be relevant?

Considerations

Section 9 of the Code is aimed at ensuring that senators do not use, or attempt to use, their position as senators in order to influence the decisions of individuals, entities, or governments in order to benefit themselves or their family members or to improperly benefit another person or entity in any manner listed under subsection 11(1) of the Code. The provision is very broad and is not limited to influencing decisions of governments to further private interests, although the use of influence in regards to decisions of government respecting the awarding of contracts or other financial benefits is always of particular concern.

The advice provided to a senator concerning how to ensure that he or she remains in compliance with section 9 would depend upon the particular facts of the case. However, in cases involving decisions of government, senators would, for example, be cautioned against personally having any dealings with government officials in order to obtain, or seek to obtain, a financial benefit, including contracts or financial assistance, on behalf of themselves, their family members, or on behalf of any entities where to do so would be improper (for example, on behalf of a private corporation in which the senator, or a family member of the senator, holds a position on the board of directors). This would include arranging or facilitating meetings with government officials. Taking this precaution also addresses the perception of a conflict [paragraph 2(1)(c)] under section 9.

G. Investigations and Inquiries

Process for Making a Complaint against another Senator

14. Issue

What is the process for initiating a complaint against another senator?

Considerations

A senator who has reasonable grounds to believe that another senator has not complied with his or her obligations under the Code may request that the Senate Ethics Officer conduct an inquiry into the matter under paragraph 47(2)(b). The request for an inquiry must be in writing and must be signed by the initiating senator; it must also identify the alleged non-compliance and the reasonable grounds for the belief that the Code has not been complied with [subsection 47(3)]. If such a request is received, the Senate Ethics Officer is required to conduct a preliminary review of the matter [paragraph 47(2)(b)].

The Senate Ethics Officer must, pursuant to paragraph 47(4)(b), notify the senator who is the subject of the preliminary review and provide him or her with a copy of the request received from the senator who made the request. In addition, the Senate Ethics Officer is required to provide the senator who is the subject of the preliminary review with 15 days within which to respond to the request for an inquiry [subsection 47(7)].

The Senate Ethics Officer must then conduct a preliminary review confidentially under subsection 47(5) of the Code in order to determine whether or not an inquiry is in fact warranted [subsection 47(1)]. If the Senate Ethics Officer determines that an inquiry is not warranted, the preliminary determination letter is made public (unless the matter is not in the public domain) when the Chair of the Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators tables it in the Senate at the first possible opportunity, pursuant to subsection 47(17) of the Code. If the Senate Ethics Officer determines that an inquiry is warranted, the matter remains confidential until the inquiry report of the Senate Ethics Officer is tabled in the Senate [subsections 48(17), (18) and (19)].

APPENDIX B

Third Report of the Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators, Wednesday, March 26, 2014 (proposed amendments to the Conflict of Interest Code for Senators)

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE

Wednesday, March 26, 2014

The Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators has the honour to present its

THIRD REPORT

Your committee, which is responsible on its own initiative for all matters relating to the Conflict of Interest Code for Senators, pursuant to rule 12-7(16) of the Rules of the Senate, has undertaken a study on the provisions of the Code, and reports as follows:

The Standing Committee on Conflict of Interest for Senators exercises general and constant oversight over the conflict of interest regime applicable to Senators. As part of this mandate, the Committee is regularly assessing and reviewing the Code to make improvements that respond adequately to events that come to light and to changes in our society. Accordingly, the Committee is now proposing amendments to the inquiry process under the Code.

The objectives of these amendments are

- to establish and confirm that Senators are aware of their obligations under the Code;
- to strengthen preventive measures under the Code;
- to establish a clear, fair and balanced inquiry process;
- to enhance the independence of the Senate Ethics Officer (SEO); and
- to increase the openness and transparency of the Senate conflict of interest regime.

Inquiry Process — General

Current Provisions

The current provisions of the Code on the inquiry process have remained mostly unchanged since the adoption of the Code in 2005. The Committee considers that amendments to the current provisions would result in a better, clearer and more structured inquiry process.

Proposed Amendments

The inquiry process would be streamlined. Each stage of the process (that is, the preliminary review, the inquiry by the SEO and the study by the Committee) would be established step by step, in clear and unambiguous language.

Rationale

These amendments would establish a clear, fair and balanced inquiry process.

Preventive Enforcement

Current Provisions

Under the current Code, Senators are not required to make an express periodic statement affirming that they have read the Code and are in compliance with it to the best of their knowledge.

Proposed Amendments

Senators would be required to file annually with the SEO a statement affirming that they have read the Code within the previous 30 days and stating that they are in compliance with it to the best of their knowledge.

Rationale

These amendments would establish and confirm that Senators are aware of their obligations under the Code. They would also strengthen preventive measures under the Code. This provision is the evolving norm in conflict of interest codes.

Preliminary Review

Current Provisions

A preliminary review is conducted by the SEO to decide if an inquiry is warranted to determine whether a Senator has not complied with his or her obligations under the Code. Under the current provisions of the Code, the SEO does not have to prepare an official document stating his or her conclusion as to the necessity of an inquiry.

Proposed Amendments

The SEO would prepare a preliminary determination letter stating his or her reasoned decision on whether a full inquiry is justified to determine whether a Senator has not complied with his or her obligations under the Code. This letter would be made public if the subject-matter of the inquiry is known publicly and no inquiry is justified. The preliminary determination letter would in all cases be provided to the Senator who is the subject of the review and, if applicable, to the Senator who initiated the review.

Rationale

These amendments would clarify the inquiry process by making clear the outcome of the preliminary review. They would also increase the openness and transparency of the Senate conflict of interest regime.

Initiating an Inquiry by the SEO

Current Provisions

Under the current Code, an inquiry is conducted by the SEO to determine whether or not a Senator has complied with his or her obligations under the Code. There are three different ways to initiate an inquiry:

- the Committee may instruct the SEO to conduct an inquiry;
- a Senator may request that the SEO conduct an inquiry, and the SEO will conduct such an inquiry if, after a preliminary review of the matter, he or she decides that an inquiry is warranted; or
- the SEO may self-initiate a preliminary review and, with the approval of the Committee, conduct an inquiry if he or she believes it is warranted.

Proposed Amendments

The Committee would no longer be empowered to instruct the SEO to conduct an inquiry. The Committee would also no longer have to approve an inquiry where the SEO believes an inquiry is warranted after having conducted a preliminary review.

Rationale

These amendments would establish a clear, fair and balanced inquiry process. They would enhance the independence of the SEO. They would keep the Committee at arm's length from the inquiries and related processes conducted by the SEO.

Role of the Committee

Current Provisions

Under the current provisions of the Code, the Committee conducts its own investigation once the SEO has completed his or her inquiry report. Existing provisions were updated in May 2012 to ensure the integrity of the SEO's inquiry report.

Proposed Amendments

The role of the Committee in the inquiry process would be clarified. It would no longer reinvestigate a matter already inquired into by the SEO. The role of the Committee would be to recommend the appropriate remedial measures or sanctions, based on the findings made by the SEO in his or her report.

Rationale

These amendments would establish a clear, fair and balanced inquiry process. They would enhance the independence of the SEO, and address the risk of interference in a fair hearing by the Senators on the Committee.

Sanctions and Remedial Measures

Current Provisions

The current provisions of the Code state that the Committee may recommend remedial measures or sanctions in its report to the Senate. They do not, however, enumerate remedial measures or sanctions that the Committee may recommend.

Proposed Amendments

The Code would list remedial measures or sanctions that the Committee may recommend after inquiry; measures would range from no action to suspension of senators.

Rationale

These amendments would clarify the inquiry process, and ensure the Committee's role in assessing what is in the best interests of the Senator, the Senate and the public.

Suspension of Process

Current Provisions

The SEO and the Committee are authorized to suspend their inquiry or investigation when the same matter is investigated by proper authorities or charges have been laid. In practice, the process is suspended as soon as the matter is investigated.

Proposed Amendments

When a matter is under investigation by proper authorities, the SEO and the Committee would be authorized to suspend their preliminary review, inquiry or study only when it could prejudice the investigation by proper authorities or pursuant to a written request by proper authorities. However, once charges are laid, the preliminary review, inquiry or study would be suspended until final disposition of the charges.

Rationale

These amendments would clarify the circumstances justifying the suspension of the inquiry process. They would also strengthen the inquiry process by ensuring that the examination of a matter is suspended only when the circumstances so warrant, and would draw a distinction between a criminal matter (under other authorities) and disciplinary process for the Senate.

Public Communications

Current Provisions

The Code provides that the summary and other related documents of each Senator's disclosure statement are made public and available on the website of the SEO. Aside from these provisions, the Code is silent on the information the SEO may provide to the public.

Proposed Amendments

The SEO would be expressly authorized to provide general information about the Senate conflict of interest regime to the public. He or she would also be authorized to inform the public of the status of a preliminary review or inquiry. Public documents relating to the general inquiry process would be posted on the website of the SEO.

Rationale

These amendments would make more information respecting the Senate conflict of interest regime available to the public. They would increase the openness and transparency of the Senate conflict of interest regime.

Recommendations and Coming into Force

These proposed amendments would replace the provisions of the existing Code dealing with inquiries and investigations with new ones, while also making some minor consequential amendments to other. The Code, with the recommended amendments integrated into it, is attached as an Appendix to this report.

Your Committee recommends that these proposed amendments be adopted.

Your Committee further recommends that these amendments come into force upon their adoption, provided that matters already under preliminary review or inquiry by the SEO or under investigation by the Committee remain governed at all stages of the process by the provisions of the Code as they read before these amendments come into force.

Finally, these amendments to the Code would require consequential amendments to the Rules of the Senate. Your committee further recommends, therefore, that the Standing Committee on Rules, Procedures and the Rights of Parliament undertake a study with the view to recommend the appropriate consequential amendments to the Rules of the Senate.

Respectfully submitted,

RAYNELL ANDREYCHUK

Chair
