ran a farm-equipment business. After working in positions with the Ontario and federal governments, he accepted a job at AAFC in 1989 with the International Programs Branch (now the Markets and Trade Team). "I fell into it when the opportunity came up," says Mr. Verheul. "And I found the job quite interesting, so I just stuck with it."

A big part of his job has been taking part in negotiations at the WTO in Geneva, Switzerland, where an important milestone was reached at a July 2004 ministerial meeting. These negotiations involved the 148 member countries agreeing to a framework for agriculture that will serve as a roadmap for ongoing negotiations aimed at leveling the playing field by reducing the levels of trade-distorting domestic support, eliminating export subsidies, and improving market access for all products.

Mr. Verheul and his team of 30 trade specialists draft proposals that reflect the goals and objectives of the Government of Canada and of the various sectors of Canada's agricultural industries. They then work tirelessly to drum up support for the proposals, both internationally and domestically, with the assistance of Canada's industry representatives.

Chicken and Turkey TQAC Meets

A meeting of the Tariff Rate Quota Advisory Committee (TQAC) for chicken and turkey, chaired by International Trade Canada (ITCan), was held on January 20, 2005 in Ottawa. The TQAC is made up of representatives of producers, processors, further processors, retailers, the restaurant and food service sector and importers.

The main issue discussed was the allocation of chicken Tariff Rate Quota (TRQ) for the 2005 calendar year. Based on last year's chicken production of 967,174,643 million kilograms (Mkg), the TRQ access level for 2005 will be 72,538,098 kg. The Committee was unable to reach a consensus on an allocation methodology. As a result, ITCan, in consultation with Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada, will review all stakeholder positions and propose a methodology to the Minister of ITCan for his consideration.

OMAF Hosts Agriculture Policy Conference

On December 6 and 7, 2004, the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food (OMAF) hosted a conference in Toronto on the WTO agriculture negotiations. The conference was titled "Agriculture Policy Considerations raised by the WTO Doha Round of Negotiations". This event, supported by Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada (AAFC) and the Ontario Federation of Agriculture (OFA), involved a number of trade experts from around the world, representatives of industry associations and government officials.

As part of a national consultation between government, industry and subject matter experts, this conference was an opportunity to understand and share information on agricultural trade issues, their complexities and the varied interests of the parties involved in the negotiations.

Presentations and debates provided the audience with useful knowledge and perspective regarding the future round of negotiations.

Agriculture and Agri-Food Minister Andy Mitchell highlighted the importance of such events, which draw together Canadians from all parts of the industry and governments to work in a "collective and collaborative way" to ensure a successful outcome of these negotiations for the whole agri-food sector and all Canadians.

In July 2004, all WTO members agreed on the framework on agriculture. This conference was part of Canadian agriculture negotiators' preparation for the next WTO ministerial conference, to take place in Hong Kong in December 2005. In the meantime, more discussions on developing rules for "technical issues" and "substantive issues" will take place in the coming months at all negotiating levels.

The Council is closely following the negotiations and will continue to keep you informed of new developments.

Chicken Processing Facility to Locate in Saskatoon

In late 2004, Prairie Pride Natural Foods Ltd. announced plans to build a $15 million chicken processing facility in Saskatoon. The 115,000 square foot state-of-the-art processing plant will be built on a 20 acre site in the north industrial area of the city and will be capable of handling over 600,000 birds per week. In addition, there will be a hatchery located in the Saskatoon area. The two facilities will have several hundred full-time employees. "This new plant will enable us to supply fresh and frozen poultry products to our customers in Saskatchewan and throughout Canada," said Barry Schneider, Manager, Prairie Pride. "We will break ground in early 2005 to be operational by fall of next year."

Bruce Arabsky, Director of Operations for Prairie Pride, said "We chose Saskatoon after reviewing many other locations throughout western Canada. We were impressed with the location, the infrastructure and the city in general. Saskatoon is a great location for servicing the growing needs of both local and national customers." He added, "This is a major investment and a great opportunity to significantly enhance and expand the poultry industry in Saskatchewan."

Olymel and Supraliment Join Forces

Olymel s.e.c., a subsidiary of La Coop fédérée and Supraliment, a division of Group Brochu, have signed a partnership agreement amalgamating all of their assets and operations in the slaughtering, cutting, boning, processing and marketing of pork and poultry meats. This venture has been approved by shareholders of both companies and is subject to approval by the Competition Bureau. Until the transaction is approved, both companies will continue to operate independently.

Supraliment and Olymel market an extensive line of products mainly under the Olymel, Lafleur and Flamingo brands. The new company, as yet unnamed, will operate plants and distribution centres in Quebec, Ontario and Alberta, is expected to generate sales of $2.5 billion and will employ 12,000 workers.

Réjean Nadeau, president of Olymel, says this project has indisputable advantages. "We are focusing on the positive aspects of our differences while eliminating the roadblocks to our respective growth."

We are combining within a single structure, with all the necessary elements to become a leader in national and international markets."

Brazil's Poultry Industry Outshines Other Sectors in 2004

Of the three major sectors in the Brazilian meat industry, poultry had the strongest performance in 2004, according to the latest South American meat market report.

FOCUS Newsletter

With production growth of 9.2% in 2004, there was an opportunity to increase prices and profitability in the sector, as a result of new records achieved in exports, international prices and domestic demand.

The report says that chicken exports should finish 2004 at a level of 2.38 million tonnes, up 24% from 2003. The Safras e Mercado market analyst added, "reduced production costs and strong world prices also combined to offset the higher exchange rate."

The high production levels and good profitability of 2004 are already defining the production trend for 2005. Chicken production may hit 8.65 million tonnes, a 3.6% increase from 2004. Exports are estimated at 2.4 million tonnes.

The sector would need a better exchange rate as well as stable order levels in order to outpace 2004's record.
