^{1/} Includes overseas clearances as reported by the Statistics Branch of the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada plus exports to the United States as compiled from returns of Canadian elevator licensees and shippers and advice from American grain correspondents.

^{2/} Grain only, excludes exports of milled products in terms of grain equivalent and excludes bagged seed. Monthly exports of milled products are shown in certain issues of this publication, usually in that issue covering data for the third week of the month.

^{3/} Includes grain milled for subsequent export but excludes grain used for seed and feed on farms where produced, inter-farm transfers and other transactions outside the jurisdiction of the licensed elevator system.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records.

2. It is essential to ensure that all data is entered correctly and consistently.

3. Regular audits should be conducted to verify the integrity of the information.

4. Proper labeling and organization of files are crucial for easy retrieval.

5. The use of standardized forms helps in maintaining uniformity across different sections.

6. It is also important to have a clear protocol for handling sensitive information.

7. Training staff on the correct procedures is a key component of successful record management.

8. The document concludes by emphasizing the long-term benefits of a well-maintained system.

9. Finally, it is recommended that a review be conducted periodically to update the system as needed.

10. The following table provides a summary of the key points discussed in the document.

11. The table below outlines the responsibilities of each department in the record-keeping process.

12. It is noted that the implementation of these measures will significantly improve efficiency.

13. The document also highlights the need for ongoing communication and collaboration.

14. In conclusion, a robust record management system is vital for organizational success.

15. The next steps include finalizing the guidelines and ensuring all staff are fully informed.

16. The document is intended to serve as a comprehensive guide for all relevant personnel.

17. Thank you for your attention and cooperation in this important initiative.

18. The document is effective as of the date of its issuance.
