Manufacturers' shipments in 1964 were estimated at $$ 31,183.9 \mathrm{million}$, an increase of 7.8 per cent as compared with 1963. In terms of value, the food and beverage industries with an increase of $$ 417.4 \mathrm{million}$ in the year, contributed the greatest portion of the total advance, that is nearly a fifth of the total increase of $$ 2,248.2$ million. Other major industry groups contributing to the increase were the primary metal industries, the paper and allied products industries and the transportation equipment industries which shared 12 per cent, 10 per cent and 8 per cent of the total estimated increase in value respectively.

Considering the magnitude of the total annual change within the major industry groups themselves, those groups which had the greatest shares of the total increment also had the larger relative increases over their shipments in previous years. However, the estimated amount of increase of $$ 123 \mathrm{million}$ in the non-metallic mineral products industries which represented only about 5 per cent of the total increase in manufacturers' shipments, in fact constituted a 16.6 per cent increase in the value of shipments in this group as compared with the previous year to reach a new peak. Other industry groups which had significant increases were the primary metal industries of 12 per cent and the machinery industries of 13 per cent; the metal fabricating industries and the rubber industries of 11 per cent each; and the leather products industries and the paper and allied products industries of 10 per cent each. Nearly all of the other major industry groups showed some amount of increase except the knitting mills which had no increase in the year as compared with 1963 and the petroleum and coal products and the tobacco products industries which registered declines of 0.8 per cent and 4.5 per cent respectively. Most of the durable goods industries showed greater increases than the non-durable goods industries both in terms of value and in proportion to the level of shipments. The increase was estimated at 6.3 per cent for the non-durable goods industries in total and at 9.7 per cent for the durable goods industries. In the non-durable goods industries the range was from the declines mentioned above for the tobacco and the petroleum industries to the increase of 16.6 per cent in the non-metallic minerals group; in the durable goods group the increases ranged from 5 per cent in the furniture and fixtures industries to 13 per cent in the machinery industries.

With the seasonal variation in manufacturers' shipments adjusted in a set of preliminary and unpublished estimates for the major groups; the predominant pattern in manufacturers' shipments in 1964 was the strong upward movement in the first quarter of the year followed by a slump in the middle rising again to a high level in the fourth quarter usually as high but not higher than the first quarter peak. The food and beverage industries group is an exception in that it has risen steadily for the past ten years with a slight slump at mid-year but a fourth quarter peak. The tobacco products industries and the knitting mills fluctuated rather more widely than other groups and an upward trend appeared only during the fourth quarter. Shipments in the petroleum and coal products industries also fluctuated widely, reached a peak in April and were lower again by the year's end. The strong upward movement in the rubber industries through 1963 continued up to mid 1964 but since then has fluctuated widely and on balance appears to be moving downward. The clothing industries, on the other hand, having shown a downward trend from mid 1963 to May this year, moved sharply upward during the summer, fell in the early fall and rose again during the fourth quarter. The furniture and fixture industry group fluctuated during the first three quarters around a fairly stable level but rose sharply in the last two months of the year. The machinery industries instead of continuing from a high fourth quarter level in the previous year climbed from a fourth quarter slump to a peak in the first quarter followed by the typical pattern mentioned above of a mid year slump with an increase in the fourth quarter. The transportation equipment industries which also followed the typical pattern during the year, ended however, with a decline in the last quarter.

In the month of December inventories owned by manufacturers were valued by preliminary estimate at $$ 5,176.0 \mathrm{milin}$, which was the highest value in the year 1964, and represented an increase of 0.5 per cent over November; but the seasonally adjusted estimate for the same month showed a decline of 0.6 per cent as compared with November which in the seasonally adjusted series was the highest value in the year.

The average inventories owned by manufacturers in 1964 were estimated at $$ 5,032.3 \mathrm{mili}$ ion, an increase of 4.0 per cent from the average of $$ 4,839.7 \mathrm{mil1}$ ion in the previous year. Both the unadjusted estimate and the seasonally adjusted estimate of manufacturers' owned inventories during the year indicated a rather significant upward trend, especially during the second half of the year, following the decline in March and the relatively slow advance in the second quarter. The durable goods industries, as a whole, appeared to have much stronger increases during the last five months. The non-durable industry group continued the increase from the high level in the last quarter 1963 through the first quarter in 1964, declined in the mid-year, and rose gradually again towards the last quarter of the year.

Unfortunately, a comparison of the component groups in the total inventory held, which differs from total inventory owned by the amount of inventory held mainly as goods in process under progress payments arrangements, cannot be made by individual industries with seasonally adjusted data. Since in many industries the accumulation of raw materials has a direct relation to the crop year which in turn is followed by intense activity and a build up of finished products, the seasonal pattern of raw materials and finished products may differ considerably and, of course, activity in certain durable goods industries depends on the temperature with the resultant effect on inventories as much as the textile and clothing industries do.

The differences between the components are striking with the lowest increase shown in finished products. In fact there is almost no difference between the durable and non-durable goods industries in this item which in December was 2.4 per cent higher in non-durables and 2.5 per cent higher in durables. The ratio of finished products inventory to shipments had fallen by December 1964 to 0.66 as compared with 0.70 in December 1963; the average ratio in 1964 was 0.68 as compared with 0.71 in 1963.

The increase in raw materials inventories over the year was 5.4 per cent with a wide difference between the increase of 2.0 per cent in the raw materials inventory of the non-durable goods industry groups and the increase of 10.3 per cent in the raw materials inventory of the durable goods industry groups. The increase was shown by all groups with however the wood industries showing an increase of on ly 1.0 per cent. The metal fabricating industries, the transportation equipment industries and the electrical products industries showed the greatest increases of 15,19 and 13 per cent respectively. The furniture and fixture industries and the non-metalifc mineral products industries each showed an increase of 6 per cent; the primary metal industries and the machinery industries each showed increases of 8.0 per cent in raw materials inventory in December 1964 as compared with December 1963.

The largest increase in inventories was in the goods in process component which in December 1964 was 7.6 per cent above the level of December 1963. Again the larger advance was in the durable goods group where inventory of goods in process was 9 per cent higher this December than in December 1953 as compared with the non-durable goods industries where goods in process at the end of December was 5 per cent above the level of December 1963. In the durable goods industry groups the inventory held but not owned was 5.4 per cent higher in December 1964 than in December 1963 and since, at a level of $$ 286$ million, could account for something up to 30 per cent of the total goods in process inventory of $$ 958 \mathrm{million}$ (some small amount would be held as raw materials), it is apparent that manufacturers' investment in inventory of goods in process had risen even more than 9.0 per cent over the year.

The difference between the major groups in the durable goods industries is fairly wide. Two groups, the wood industries which had only a very slight increase in raw materials, and the non-metalif minerals products industries where raw materials rose by 6 per cent, both showed declines in goods in process. The furniture and fixtures industries which was one, with the two above, to show the smallest increase in raw materials, had goods in process only fractionally higher at the end of 1964 than at the end of 1963. Goods in process in the machinery industries was also lower at the end of December this year than in December 1963 though raw materials were up by 8 per cent and inventory held but not owned was up from $$ 25$ million to $$ 42 \mathrm{million}$ over the twelve months. The remaining four durable goods industry groups showed goods in process up between 10 and 12 per cent over the year.

In the non-durable goods groups the increase in the level of goods in process in the food and beverage industries group at 5 per cent is the same as the increase in the non-durable goods total which is to be expected since the food and beverage industries account for 40 per cent of the non-durable goods industries. The level of activity in the tobacco products industries show much the largest increase over the twelve months with an increase of 25 per cent. Raw materials inventories are up only slightly but finished products also show an increase in December 1964 as compared with the previous December of 30 per cent.

Inventories of goods in process in the textile industries are 9 per cent higher this December than a year ago in contrast to inventories in goods in process in knitting mills which were 1 per cent lower than a year ago and in the clothing industries which were at the same level. In the leather industries goods in process were up by 2 per cent.

The rubber industries show an increase of 7 per cent in goods in process in December this year as compared with last and in fact during 1964 the level has been on the average 8 per cent above 1963. The paper and allied industries and the petroleum and coal products industries show goods in process inventorles up 10 and 11 per cent respectively; the chemical and chemical products industries are up by 6 per cent and the miscellaneous manufacturing industries show goods in process inventories up 4 per cent this December as compared with last.

INDUSTRIAL GROUPINGS

The industries shown in the Standard Industrial Classification Groups are listed below.
A single asterisk (*) preceding the individual industry title indicatea that che induscry is show separately in Table 4 - Statistics for Selected Individual Industries.

A double asterisk ( $* *$ ) preceding the individual industry title indicates that the industry is shown in Table 4 combined with one or more other industries. The industries grouped are listed in footnotes to the table.

The bracketed letters following the individual industry titles indicate the statistical aeries - shipments, inven. tories and orders in which the industry is included monthly: (s) means che industry is included in the shipnents series; (1) In the inventory series; and (o) in the orders geries. Industries for which monthly coverage is not indicated are included in the all-industry and group totals estimates.

CONCEPTS

Shipments - (Tables 1 to 4) - represent an estimated projection, on a monthly basis, of the latest available Census of Manufactures values.

New Orders - (Tables 2 and 3) - This series is designed to indicate the rate at which new business is being received. It is defined as all New Orders Received during the period, at estimated selling values. Thus 1 , covers total new orders, net of cancellations, regardless of whether the orders will be filled from stock or as a result of activity during the same month (and, therefore, will also be reported as shipments in the month received) or whether they will be added to existing backlogs.

Unfilled Orders - (Tables 2 and 3) - are defined $3 s$ orders on books at the end of the period stated. That is, they couer orders received but not yet shipped (or treated as a sale), irrespective of work done on them or of stocks from which they can be filled.

Total Inventory Owned - (Tables 2 to 4) - represents the estimated book Yslue of inventory owned by manufactureas in connection with the manufacturing operations of the establishment covered whether held at plant or elsewhere, at the end of the period stated. It is made up of: raw materials, goods in pracess, finished goods of own manufacture less the value of inventory held but not owned which cannot be assigned to specific components. Since the series relates to manufacturing inventory only, value of goods purchased for re-sale is not included.

Inventory Held but Not Owned - (Tables 2 and 3) - represents, as far as possible, the portion of manufacturers tatal inventory holdings which are no longer owned by the reporting manufacturers because of payments ade on long-term contracts as work on these progresses. This item is applicable only to the relatively few industries where long-term contracts are common el chough, because of the nature of the item, the value per industry is high.

Because of variations in accounting methods there are a few cases where it is not possible to obtain walues for this type of inventory. The estimated value shown for this item must therefore be considered to some extent incomplete.

Total Inventory held - (Tables 2 and 3 ) - represents the estimated total value of manufacturers inventory holdinga in connection with manufacturing operations, regardless of ownership; it differs from inventory owned by the inclusion of inventories held under progress payments arrangements.

Inventory Components - (Tables 2 and 3) - Raw Materials, Goods in Process, and Finished Products are reported and compiled as on the books of each manufacturer, 1 . e. there has been no attempt to define the components specifically for each industry.

The inventory components are always a breakdown of total inventory held, not of total inventory owned. In industries where these two items differ, due to the inclusion of inventory held but not owned (see above), it is not possible to obtain value of inventory owned by components since, where separate progress accounts are maintained, firms concerned can only state that, of total holdings, a certain amount is not longer owned by them. It is fairly obvious that the bulk of such payments apply to goods in process holdings but due to time lags in shipment and to prepayments some of the total value of inventory held but not awned would be applicable to finished products or raw materials.

Any comparisons of shipmenta/inventory ratios should be made using total inventory owned, not total inventory held, since the latter includes values which have already been written off to sales. If shipments/inventory ratios are desired using inventory components, rather than total inventory, a reasonable approximation to total inventory owned by components would be obtained by assuming that all inventory held but not owned had been included with goods in process.

Groupings - The Standard Industrial Classification groupings of fndustries used in Tables 3 and 4 are defined according to the Standard Industrial Classification Manual. A list of the industries included in the Standard Industrial Classification groups will be found on page 40 of the bulletin.

SOURCES

Monthly (or, in a few cases, quarterly) reports covering value of inventories and shipments are now submitted on a valuntary basis by 3,000 plants in 120 industries; in addition, 3,000 small plants in 100 of these industries report monthly shipments only. Of the first group, 1,025 plants $1 \pi 83$ industries also report new and unfilled orders. Four industries are included in the total shipments estimates by using data suailable from other Bureau series, and two of these are also included in the total inventory estimates.

FOOTNOTES TO TABLES

TABLE 1. - (1) Prince Edward Island, Yukon and Northwest Territories are not published separately. They are included in the total for Canada.

TABLE 2. - (1) Annual shipments values differ slightly from published Census of Manufactures totals due to inventory adjustments for certain industries where Census of Manufactures data represent production rather than shipments values.

(2) The value of Unfilled Orders and, therefore, of New Orders for industries in major groups $-1,2,6,8,9,10,17,18$ and 19 is small and sample coverage is not adequate to provide separate estimates for them.
(3) The value of inventory held but not owned in this group is very small, and sample coverage is not adequate to provide separate data. Estimates for this type of inventory are included with Total Inventory Held; for all practical purposes this can be considered the equivalent of Inventory Owned.

TABLE 5. - (1) Ratios for this group were calculated using values of Total Inventory Held instead of values of Total Inventory Owned. See footnote (3), table 3.
