JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

The total number of Juvenile delinquents as shown by returns for 1924 is 7,952, being 7,332 boys and 530 girls. These are classified as Major offences, 4,469 boys and 253 girls; and minor offences, 2,863 boys and 377 girls. In addition to these there were 267 boys and 13 girls charged with major offences but were dismissed.

In classifying the offences into Major and Minor, a more or less arbitrary line had to be drawn.

The indictable and non indictable offences as prescribed by the Criminal code form the basis of the classification used, but instead of dividing certain classes of offences, such as assaults, damage to property and theft, etc., which in some cases are defined as indictable and in some cases not, by the Criminal code, all are taken as major offences with regard to Juveniles.

Respecting major offences details of delinquents are compiled concerning: number of previous delinquencies proven; Birth place, Religion and Occupation of delinquents and parents; age, sex and school grade of delinquent, together with the nature of the offence and the disposition of the case.

As to minor offences the sex, nature of the offences and disposition of the case is all that is shown in the tables. The returns from the principal cities for last three years show the following results:-

Juvenile Delinquency of the Principal Cities in Canada by Class of Offences, and by Sexes for 1922, 1923 and 1924. (concluded)

It is revealed by the foregoing table that with respect to major offences  $\phi_{A,a}$  the girls increased more than did the boys, but with respect to minor offences the reverse is the case. On the whole, however, the increase in girls is the greater.

It might be pointed out that, disregarding those "not given", labourers together with deceased fathers form 46 p.c. indicating that more delinquents are found among the poorer classes than among those of higher walks of life.

The ages and school grades are shown in the following tables by sexes. On account of the grading in the Roman Catholic schools of the province of Quebec differing from that of the other provinces, a summary of the whole of Canada is impracticable, therefore separate tables are shown as follows:

The above table represents about two-thirds of the total number of boys attending public and private elementary and secondary schools in Canada and also about two-thirds of the boy juvenile delinquents convicted of major offences in Canada in 1924. These proportions are consequently large enough to justify the belief that the school standing indicated represents actual conditions.

The data of only one year may not be sufficient as a basis for scientific deduction but points brought up by the above comparison between the school standing of the two classes of boys may be interesting and worthy of further investigation.

It is seen that up to the age of nine the juvenile delinquents show a higher standing than the normal boys, but from the age of ten up the latter outstrip the delinquents at an increasing pace. Among the points for investigation suggested by the phenomenan are the following:

1. Are there indications of significant differences between the types of offenders and the nature of the offences shown (on the average) by be at the ages of nine and under and those shown by older delinquents? It probable that the delinquencies shown by the younger group can be associsolely with psychological traits characteristic of their age and not permanent vicious tendencies? If so, it is possible to explain the educational status of delinquents under ten by the fact that the more difficult to control at the earlier ages in the case element; hence arise escapades which assume the proport the law. This point implies that the juvenile deling are a different class from those at ten and over.

2. As an alternative to (1) is i difference is necessarily revealed by the difference is necessarily revealed by the difference delinquents and normal children The backy ages may be due mainly to want of home school because of truancy, etc. and mo by distaste of prolonged application the individuals at nine and under me and over, and that the progressive due not so much to mental defic misplacement of energy.
