Data in Many Forms . . .

Statistics Canada disseminates data in a variety of forms. In addition to publications, both standard and special tabulations are offered. Data are available on CD, diskette, computer print-out, microfiche and microfilm, and magnetic tape. Maps and other geographic reference materials are available for some types of data. Direct online access to aggregated information is possible through CANSIM, Statistics Canada's machine-readable database and retrieval system.

Note of Appreciation

Canada owes the success of its statistical system to a long-standing cooperation involving Statistics Canada, the citizens of Canada, its businesses, governments and other institutions. Accurate and timely statistical information could not be produced without their continued cooperation and goodwill.

1. Highlights

- The following highlights are based upon data collected by the Case Characteristics component in seven jurisdictions (Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Saskatchewan, Yukon and the Northwest Territories). This represents approximately 34 percent coverage of adult criminal court caseload in Canada.
- Among participating jurisdictions the overall trend is toward a decrease in the number of Federal Statute cases disposed of in provincial/territorial adult criminal courts. Only one jurisdiction reported an increase in the number of cases disposed of in 1994.
- The median age of accused at the time of offence ranged from 27 to 31 years of age in reporting jurisdictions.
- Excluding cases committed for trial in Superior Court, a final disposition of guilty was reached in 60 to 75 percent of all cases.
- Impaired driving continues to be one of the most frequently heard offences in adult criminal court.
- Prison was the most serious sentence in 25 to 45 percent of cases resulting in conviction.
- There was significant variation in the median length of prison sentence associated with the most serious conviction. In 1994 the median prison sentence ranged from 14 days in Prince Edward Island to 60 days in Nova Scotia, Quebec, and Saskatchewan.
- A minimum of 30 percent of cases resulting in conviction received a probation order upon sentencing.
- Probation was the most serious sentence in 22 to 32 percent of all convicted cases.
- The median fine amount for all convicted cases ranged from $200 in Quebec to $700 in Prince Edward Island.

2. Introduction

The Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics (CCJS) is the focal point of a federal-provincial/territorial initiative dedicated to the production of national statistics and information on the justice system in Canada. The Courts Program at CCJS collects and disseminates statistical information describing the operation of adult criminal courts and youth courts in Canada.

This report is one in a series of annual data releases produced by the Courts Program. This report presents data from one of the two components of the Adult Criminal Court Survey (ACCS) - the Case Characteristics component. Provincial and territorial criminal court data for Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Saskatchewan, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories are presented for calendar year 1994. The report is designed to provide information on the characteristics and court processing of charges and cases.

The report also includes a number of appendices providing additional information for the benefit of the reader. A list of the Case Characteristics data elements is provided in Appendix I. A glossary of standardized definitions for units of count and other concepts form Appendix II. Appendix III, Methodological Notes, provides more detailed information on data quality issues and the error detection and correction procedures used in the Adult Criminal Court Survey.

A second report published by Statistics Canada and containing data from the ACCS is the Adult Criminal Court Caseload Trends Report (catalogue 85-219). It provides information on the changing number of charges and cases initiated, by type of offence; the number of charges and cases disposed of, by type of disposition; and the number of trial and non-trial appearances, by fiscal quarter. The report contains data reported to the Caseload component of the ACCS. Data are reported for the same jurisdictions presented in the Adult Criminal Court Statistics Report. Work is currently underway to develop interface software to generate ACCS data for British Columbia.

3. Adult Criminal Court Survey

3.1 Scope

The objective of the Adult Criminal Court Survey (ACCS) is to develop and maintain a national adult criminal court database of statistical information on appearances, charges and cases. The survey is intended to be a census of federal and provincial/territorial statute charges and municipal by-law infractions heard in adult criminal courts in Canada. The ACCS has two components: Case Characteristics and Caseload. The Case Characteristics component collects detailed data on completed charges, appearances and cases for federal statute offences. The Caseload component collects aggregate data on completed and pending charges, appearances and cases for federal and provincial statutes and municipal by-law offences.

3.2 Coverage

The ACCS currently collects Case Characteristics data from provincial/territorial courts in eight jurisdictions. They are: Newfoundland (2 courts), Prince Edward Island (5 courts), Nova Scotia (38 courts), Quebec (54 courts), Saskatchewan (16 courts), the Yukon (18 courts) and the Northwest Territories (66 courts). In addition, the Caseload component collects data from Ontario (92 courts). As a result, the coverage of provincial and territorial adult criminal court caseload in Canada is approximately 34 percent for the Case Characteristics component and 70 percent for the Caseload component.

Not all provincial/territorial court locations in the participating jurisdictions currently report to the survey. Data for Newfoundland are reported from two court locations, St. John's and Clarenville, which represent approximately 45 percent of federal statute charges heard in Newfoundland. Data for Halifax City Court, where approximately 15 percent of Nova Scotia's federal statute charges are heard, are not available. Quebec's 140 municipal courts do not report to the survey. Approximately 20 percent of federal statute charges in Quebec are heard in municipal court.

For the most part, the ACCS collects data related to adult criminal activities. However, information related to youths raised to adult court under the Young Offenders Act are included. As well, the Caseload component collects Summary Offence Ticket data for youths.

The absence of national coverage for provincial/territorial courts, and the unavailability of data from municipal, superior and appeal courts, represent limitations of the survey. Implementation of the ACCS at the provincial/territorial criminal court level is the current project priority due to the relatively large caseload at this court level and the extent of information system automation in the provincial and territorial courts. Municipal, superior and appeal courts may be added to the survey as local operational systems become automated.

3.3 Methodological Overview

The Caseload component of the ACCS collects aggregate court data on volumes of charges, cases and appearances from provincial/territorial management information systems, while the Case Characteristics component collects detailed appearance-level data. The data from both components are extracted using computer interface software and are submitted to the CCJS several times a year.

These data undergo assessment procedures in the provinces/territories and at CCJS. There is a CCJS edit system for caseload data that identifies duplicate and missing data, and any logical inconsistencies in the relationship among data elements or between time periods. Similarly, case characteristics data are processed by an edit and imputation system which identifies and, where possible, corrects errors and logical inconsistencies within a field and/or inconsistencies in the relationships among data elements or records. The data from each component are then compared to other related data sources, such as the annual reports produced by the jurisdictions. Data from two components of the survey (Caseload and Case Characteristics) are also examined for consistency. The results of this data assessment process are used by both the ACCS and the provinces/territories to monitor data quality and to make modifications where quality problems are identified.

For more information on data quality issues and the error correction procedures used in the survey, please refer to the Methodological Notes contained in Appendix III.

3.4 Units of Count

The basic units of count derived by the Case Characteristics component of the Adult Criminal Court Survey are the appearance, charge and case.

Appearance:

An appearance is a court event recorded by the type of hearing for an accused appearing in court in relation to one or more charges. Each appearance in provincial/territorial court is reported to the ACCS as a separate occurrence and later grouped into charges based on data elements such as the police laid information number.

Charge:

A charge, for the Case Characteristics component of the ACCS, is a formal accusation against an accused involving a federal statute offence. This offence must also have at least one appearance in provincial or territorial adult court and a final disposition. The Case Characteristics component only includes data on completed charges.

A charge is considered to be complete (disposed of) under any of the following conditions:

- a) the accused has been acquitted, or found guilty and sentenced (if applicable);
- b) the accused has been committed for trial in Superior Court;
- c) the accused has been found unfit to stand trial;
- d) the charge has been stayed, withdrawn, dismissed, or discharged as a result of a preliminary hearing, or;
- e) the charge has been waived in or out of the province or territory.

Charges are only considered to be completed if the accused has no further scheduled appearances in the same provincial or territorial court on the charge. Since an extension to comply with the final disposition occurs after sentencing it is therefore considered to be out of scope for the Case Characteristics component.

A case is one or more charges against an accused person or corporation, where the charges are first presented in the same court on the same date. Charges are linked to a case on the basis of court location, accused identifier and date of first court appearance.

This report uses one set of definitions for the basic units of count. However, the ACCS case characteristics data permit the derivation of counts defined in ways other than those described above. It is possible, for example, to derive cases using charge completion date instead of charge start date.

Aside from the basic definitions of appearance, charge and case, hierarchies are used for counting some data elements. Disposition, conviction, offence type and sentence data have been ranked according to seriousness for some tables, such that only the most serious in each category is represented. The rules for establishing these hierarchies are shown in Appendix II.

3.5 Data Limitations

ACCS data must be interpreted as indicators of caseload and case characteristics rather than as precise measures for the following reasons.

1. The extent of under-reporting -- that is, the degree to which all appearances, charges and cases have been reported to the survey -- is not known. Survey coverage and reporting are monitored and the provinces and territories inform the CCJS of suspected reporting problems or anomalies wherever possible.
2. Case data presented in some tables are reported by most serious disposition, most serious offence, most serious conviction or most serious sentence. Similarly, charge data presented in some tables are categorized by most serious sentence. Categorizing data by most serious disposition, conviction or sentence will result in an under-counting of less serious outcomes.
3. The Case Characteristics component counts a charge more than once for a province or territory under any of the following circumstances: a) where a charge is stayed and then restarted under different identifiers; b) where a charge is stayed in one reference period and restarted in the next reference period; c) where a charge is waived from one court location to another; or d) where an accused is committed for trial in Superior Court and then returns to Provincial Court with different identifiers. These situations result in an inflation of reported charge counts.
4. Differences in sectoral policies, administration, definitions, and data collection methods may also result in differences in counts.

The above-mentioned data limitations reduce the possibility of making accurate links with data from other sectors of the justice system, such as police and corrections. For these reasons, caution must be exercised when comparing ACCS data with data from other sectors of the criminal justice system.

3.6 Comparability of ACCS Case Characteristics and Caseload Data

Counts for completed charges and cases contained in this report are not directly comparable to counts presented in the ACCS report from the Caseload component. The following differences should be noted when examining counts from the two survey components:

1. The Caseload component considers a bench warrant to be a final disposition. Any subsequent appearances constitute the beginning of a new charge. This prevents pending at start counts from being inflated by inactive charges which are not being processed by the courts. The Case Characteristics component, however, considers any appearances subsequent to a bench warrant to be part of the same charge. This results in higher charge counts for Caseload than for Case Characteristics.
2. The Caseload component reports aggregate data that have been processed by provincial and territorial automated information systems. The Case Characteristics component collects microdata from the jurisdictions. It processes the data to eliminate uninterpretable or duplicate records, to correct errors, to impute missing data, and to derive the units of count. This difference in processing techniques may cause the Caseload counts to differ from the Case Characteristics counts.
3. The Case Characteristics component is offence based and the Caseload component is statute based. As a result, the two components employ different rules for counting cases having multiple charges. The Case Characteristics component employs a Most Serious Offence rule, while the Caseload component uses a Most Serious Statute rule.

For example, the Case Characteristics component has a case with two charges - one under the Narcotic Control Act (trafficking) and one under the Criminal Code (joy riding). According to the Most Serious Offence rule, the case would be counted under the Narcotic Control Act offence because it is a more serious offence. The Caseload component, on the other hand, would view this case as having two offences - one Criminal Code and one Narcotic Control Act. It would count the case under Criminal Code because, according to the Most Serious Statute rule, all Criminal Code offences are more serious than Narcotic Control Act offences.

4. The data for both survey components may be extracted at different times from the provincial/territorial operational systems. This may affect the comparability of the data for the two components due to updates made to the provincial/territorial databases.

3.7 Comparability of ACCS Data Across Provinces and Territories

Inter-provincial and territorial differences may be observed in the data included in this report. These differences may be the result of variation in court operations and recording procedures, the interpretation of statutes or legal concepts, sentencing practices and demographics. For this reason, caution should be exercised when comparing data for different provinces and territories.

3.8 Comparability of ACCS Data to Data from Other Sectors of the Justice System

Policing:

CCJS conducts the Uniform Crime Reporting Survey (UCR). This survey collects data on the crimes reported to the police. Counts from the UCR for offences cleared by charge are not comparable to ACCS figures for charges disposed of. There are many reasons for this. In part, it is the result of scoring rules used by the UCR survey. The UCR counts violent offences in terms of the number of victims in the incident; non-violent offences are counted in terms of the number of separate incidents. Furthermore, the UCR figures include offences involving youths, while the ACCS charge counts only include youth offences that have been transferred to adult court.

Counts for adult accused reported by the UCR Survey differ from the ACCS counts of cases disposed. Again, there are several reasons for the difference. ACCS counts for cases disposed include Criminal Code traffic offences while the UCR counts do not. Charges laid by police may be screened out of the system before reaching court - charges can be withdrawn or alternative dispute resolution activities may be employed. Finally, the time lag between the charging of an accused and the disposition of a case in court will result in differences in counts for the same reference period.

Corrections:

CCJS conducts an Adult Corrections Survey (ACS), which measures, among other things, the number of persons admitted to correctional facilities in Canada. ACCS counts for cases resulting in prison sentences will differ from corrections counts. The differences are attributable to a number of factors. Corrections admission counts include persons sentenced to prison in superior courts and fine default admissions, while the ACCS counts do not. Further, an accused may be sentenced to time served in remand custody prior to sentencing.

This may result in the corrections data showing no sentenced admission to prison, while the ACCS data will indicate that a prison term was ordered. Finally, the case definition used by ACCS may cause differences in the counts reported by the two surveys. For example, assume the ACCS data have two cases, both resulting in a prison sentence. It is possible with the ACCS definition of a case, that both cases are associated with the same accused. In this instance the ACCS would count two cases, whereas the ACS survey would count only one sentenced admission to prison.

5. Footnotes

1. Population estimates from Statistics Canada, Household Statistics Branch, Demography Division (Updated Postcensal Estimates)
2. The ACCS receives no further information on those charges for Quebec where a committal for trial in Superior Court is indicated on the last appearance. The majority of these charges will eventually return to provincial court for final disposition. The lack of complete information for such situations in Quebec results in an under-reporting of counts for the remaining disposition types. Approximately 10% of the total charge volume are affected by this under-reporting.
3. Revised figures reflect 1993 data processed after the release of the 1993 ACCS court Statistics Report.
4. Data for the Northwest Territories represents approximately 70% of territorial coverage for disposed of charges and cases. Transfers to other court locations have not been captured as final dispositions in this extract, which results in under counting of disposition type 'Other' (approximately 800 charges) in comparison to other jurisdictions. In addition, 10% of charges with a guilty disposition (approximately 200 charges or 5% of territorial coverage) are currently unavailable.

1. "Type of Charge" data are not available in this form for Nova Scotia and the Yukon.
2. "Type of Charge" data are not available for offence groups containing high proportions of unknowns.
3. The ACCS receives no further information on those charges for Quebec where a committal for trial in Superior Court is indicated on the last appearance. The majority of these charges will eventually return to provincial court for final disposition. The lack of complete information for such situations in Quebec results in an under-reporting of counts for the remaining disposition types. Approximately 10% of the total charge volume are affected by this under-reporting.
4. Data for the Northwest Territories represents approximately 70% of territorial coverage for disposed of charges and cases. Transfers to other court locations have not been captured as final dispositions in this extract, which results in under counting of disposition type 'Other' (approximately 800 charges) in comparison to other jurisdictions. In addition, 10% of charges with a guilty disposition (approximately 200 charges or 5% of territorial coverage) are currently unavailable.

1. "Sex" is determined on the basis of the accused's name in Quebec.
2. The ACCS receives no further information on those charges for Quebec where a committal for trial in Superior Court is indicated on the last appearance. The majority of these charges will eventually return to provincial court for final disposition. The lack of complete information for such situations in Quebec results in an under-reporting of counts for the remaining disposition types. Table 3a

1. The ACCS receives no further information on those charges for Quebec where a committal for trial in Superior Court is indicated on the last appearance. The majority of these charges will eventually return to provincial court for final disposition. The lack of complete information for such situations in Quebec results in an under-reporting of counts for the remaining disposition types. Approximately 10% of the total charge volume are affected by this under-reporting.

2. "Age" is the age of the accused at the time of the offence associated with the most serious disposition.
3. "Unknown" includes accused under the age of 18 at the time of the offence associated with the most serious disposition.
4. "Sex" is unknown for 18 percent of the cases resulting in conviction in Quebec. The age of the accused was between 18 and 24 for 27% of these cases, between 25 and 34 for 34%, and between 35 and 49 for 27%. The accused was over 50 in 9% and the age was unknown in 3% of these cases.
5. Data for the Northwest Territories represents approximately 70% of territorial coverage for disposed of charges and cases. Transfers to other court locations have not been captured as final dispositions in this extract, which results in under counting of disposition type 'Other' (approximately 800 charges) in comparison to other jurisdictions. In addition, 10% of charges with a guilty disposition (approximately 200 charges or 5% of territorial coverage) are currently unavailable.

1. For Prince Edward Island, Quebec and the Yukon, the offences reported in this table represent the charges which were initially presented in court. Information is not available on any subsequent changes or reductions in the offences.
2. "Guilty" includes conditional and absolute discharges, guilty pleas and found guilty.
3. "Other" includes, for example, acquitted on account of insanity, and waived in or out of province or territory.
4. The ACCS receives no further information on those charges for Quebec where a committal for trial in Superior Court is indicated on the last appearance. The majority of these charges will eventually return to provincial court for final disposition. The lack of complete information for such situations in Quebec results in an under-reporting of counts for the remaining disposition types. Approximately 10% of the total charge volume are affected by this under-reporting.
5. Data for the Northwest Territories represents approximately 70% of territorial coverage for disposed of charges and cases. Transfers to other court locations have not been captured as final dispositions in this extract, which results in under counting of disposition type 'Other' (approximately 800 charges) in comparison to other jurisdictions. In addition, 10% of charges with a guilty disposition (approximately 200 charges or 5% of territorial coverage) are currently unavailable.

Appendix II: Offence Groups

The tables and graphs contained in this report provide detailed information on the types of offences that are heard in Canadian Adult Provincial/Territorial Criminal Courts. A number of offence categories have been used to group several offences under a common title. The Criminal Code of Canada (R.S.C. 1985) sections included in each of these categories are listed below.

Sexual Assaults includes sections 271-273.

Assault, III, II, Other includes sections 244-248, 263, 265-269, 269.1 and 270.

Weap/Firearm/Explosives includes sections 78, 80-82, 85-91, 93-97, 100-105 and 113.

Other Violent Offences include sections 151-153, 155, 159-161, 218, 220, 221, 233, 237, 238, 242, 243, 279, 279.1, 302 and 346.

Theft Other includes sections 322, 324, 326-332, 342(1)a and 356(1)a.

Other Traffic Offences include sections 249-252 and 259.

At Large/Escape Custody includes sections 144, 145(1) and 146-148.

Attempt/Accessory/Conspiracy includes sections 21-24, 463-465, 240 and 241.

Administration of Justice includes sections 119-134, 136-143, 486, 487.2, 517, 539, 542, 605, 647, and 708.

Against Person/Reputation includes sections 215, 262, 263(3)c, 264.1, 276, 287-296, 299-301, 318 and 319.

Other (Criminal Code) includes sections 182, 184, 191, 193, 337, 338, 339, 340, 347, 352, 353, and 437-447.

Appendix III: Glossary

Unit of Count Definitions

Appearance is a court event recorded by the type of hearing for an accused appearing in court in relation to one or more charges, where all charges were first presented in the same court on the same date.

Example: Mr. Davis was charged with 1 count of mischief and 1 count of theft under $1,000. He appeared in court on July 20 for a judicial interim release hearing related to both of his charges (counted as one appearance). He appeared again in the same court on September 1 for a trial hearing in relation to both of his charges (counted as a second appearance).

A charge is a formal accusation against an accused involving a federal statute offence which has resulted in at least one appearance in Provincial or Territorial Adult Court. The Case Characteristics component of the ACCS only includes data on completed charges. A charge is considered as being complete under any one of the following circumstances:

- a) the accused has been acquitted, or found guilty and sentenced (if applicable);
- b) the accused has been committed for trial in Superior Court;
- c) the accused has been found unfit to stand trial;
- d) the charge has been stayed, withdrawn, dismissed, or discharged as a result of a preliminary hearing;
- e) the charge has been waived in or out of the province or territory.

Charges are only considered to be completed if the accused has no further scheduled appearances in the same Provincial or Territorial Court on the charge.

Example: Ms. Smith was charged with 1 count of theft over. She made three appearances in the same court, was found guilty and was sentenced to 1 year of probation (counted as one charge).

A Case is an accused person or corporation having one or more charges where the charges are first presented in the same court on the same date. Charges are linked to a case on the basis of court location, accused identifier and date of first court appearance.

Example: Mr. Davis, who was charged with 1 count of mischief and 1 count of theft under $1,000, made his first court appearance on July 15 in Court X for a judicial interim release hearing. His trial on these charges required that he make 3 subsequent court appearances. On the last appearance he was found not guilty of theft under $1,000 and found guilty of mischief and was sentenced to 1 year in prison (counted as one case).

Other Definitions

Age refers to the age of the accused at the time of the offence which received the most serious disposition.

Elapsed Time from First Appearance to Disposition refers to the time taken to dispose of all charges for a case.

First Court Appearance refers to the first court event recorded for an accused appearing in court in relation to one or more charges.

Most Serious Conviction rule applies in the event that a case includes more than one conviction. All charges resulting in conviction in a case are ranked according to an offence seriousness scale. The ranking of offences is as per the ordering of offence groups presented in tables containing Most Serious Conviction data. If two or more charges are tied at the level of offence seriousness, sentence type information is considered. If a tie exists at the level of sentence type, sentence magnitude information is considered.

Most Serious Disposition rule applies in the event that a case contains more than one charge. Dispositions are ordered from most to least serious as follows:

- 1) Found guilty as charged or guilty of a lesser or included offence
- 2) Committed for trial in Superior Court
- 3) Other (acquitted on account of insanity, waived in/out of province or territory, other)
- 4) Stay of Proceeding
- 5) Acquitted, withdrawn, dismissed, discharged at preliminary hearing
- 6) Unknown

Most Serious Offence rule applies in the event that a case includes more than one offence. All charges in a case are ranked according to an offence seriousness scale. The ranking of offences is as per the ordering of offence groups presented in tables containing Most Serious Offence data. If two or more charges are tied at the level of offence seriousness, sentence type information is considered. If a tie exists at the level of sentence type, sentence magnitude information is considered.

Most Serious Sentence rule applies in the event that more than one sentence is associated with a charge or the most serious conviction for a case. Sentences are ordered from most to least serious as follows:

- 1) Prison
- 2) Probation
- 3) Fine
- 4) Restitution/Compensation
- 5) Other (absolute discharge, conditional discharge, suspended sentence, payment of legal costs, and suspension of driver's license)

Number of Appearances to Disposition refers to the number of court appearances required to dispose of all charges for a case.

Appendix IV: Methodological Notes

Stages of Data Flow and Sources of Error

The Adult Criminal Court Survey data contained in this report have undergone numerous types of processing since the original data collection took place in the courtroom. Each process may introduce error, or a difference between the original court event and the final tabulated data. The following is a description of the four basic stages of data flow for the ACCS and the types of errors which may be introduced at each stage.

Stage 1. Collection of the Original Data

The initial stage involves the recording of court proceedings in some form of docket. The types of errors which may be introduced include:

1. Response and Measurement Error: Provinces and territories or court locations within the same province or territory may differ in terms of court operations, recording procedures, and the interpretation of statutes or legal concepts.
2. Non-Response Error: Data pertaining to some ACCS variables may not be collected if not required for operational or administrative purposes.
3. Data Coding Errors: There may be clerical errors in the recording of court proceedings.

Stage 2. Provincial/Territorial Processing of the Original Data

Data from court dockets are loaded into the provincial and territorial automated operational systems. From there they are loaded into automated information system files within the jurisdiction. The types of errors which may be introduced at this stage include:

1. Coverage Error: Data for certain court locations may not be captured for inclusion in the automated files.
2. Non-Response Errors: Data pertaining to some ACCS variables may not be captured for inclusion in the automated operational systems, though they exist in the court dockets.
3. Data Coding and Capture Errors: There may be clerical errors or delays in the coding of data on the docket or in the transformation of data from the docket into a machine-readable format.
4. Edit and Imputation Errors: The edit and imputation process used by the provincial/territorial systems may introduce errors.
5. System Errors: Processing of operational system files or information system files may introduce some error.

Stage 3. Transcription of Information into ACCS Format

Interface software selects the applicable records from automated court operational systems or management information systems in the provinces/territories. Records are then transcribed into the ACCS format and sent to the Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics (CCJS) for processing. The types of errors which may be introduced include:

1. System Errors: ACCS interface software specifications may be incorrect or misinterpreted or the interface software itself may contain errors.
2. Coverage Errors: The ACCS interface software may extract inappropriate records or miss records that should be covered by the survey.

Stage 4. ACCS Processing of the Transcribed Data

Data received from the provinces and territories are edited and, if necessary, data from the Case Characteristics component are imputed before being added to the ACCS master file. Automated standard tables are produced from the contents of these files. The types of errors which may be introduced at this stage include:

1. System Errors: ACCS processing specifications may be incorrect or misinterpreted. The processing programs themselves may also contain errors.
2. Edit and Imputation Errors: Although the Edit and Imputation systems are a tool for detecting and correcting errors, they may also be a source of error. The edit specifications may contain errors due to changes in court procedures, or legislation. The edit and imputation rules may be mis-interpreted or they may be too strict or too lax.

ACCS Tools for Assuring Data Quality

A number of tools have been developed for the ACCS to minimize or correct the errors identified above.

A. Interface Software Development Methodology

System error may be introduced during the extraction and transcription of provincial or territorial data into ACCS format. The ACCS has attempted to minimize this source of error by implementing a standard interface development methodology which requires a complete testing of the software by both the ACCS and the province or territory prior to implementation. Interface development must proceed through the following stages:

1. The feasibility of developing interface software is investigated. A test environment is established in the automated operational or case management system of the province or territory to assist in the feasibility investigation and in the development of interface software.
2. Provincial or territorial data elements are mapped to the ACCS data requirements.

3. The interface software is run in the test environment using test data and the results are verified by both the ACCS and the province or territory. Differences between actual and expected results are identified and the required corrections are made.
4. The interface software is run in the production environment and the results are verified by both the province/territory and ACCS. Errors are identified and the required corrections are made.
5. An evaluation exercise is undertaken to assess the extent to which the data extracted by the interface match the data contained in the original provincial/territorial court files and automated operational or case management system files. The review facilitates the investigation of response errors or discrepancies between the published data and the original recording of the court event.

B. Testing of ACCS Data Processing Systems

The ACCS data processing systems may introduce system error and edit and imputation error into the data. To minimize the impact of these errors, all systems developed at Statistics Canada, including the ACCS data processing system, are subject to logic testing by the developer, user acceptance testing performed by CCJS and/or the Methodology Division of Statistics Canada, and volume testing performed by the system developer. It should be noted, however, that these tests only approximate the infinite number of situations encountered in the real world. Periodic revision will also be required to reflect changes in court procedures and law. For these reasons, the ACCS data processing system requires continuous review and modification.

C. ACCS Edit and Imputation System

The main tool developed for the ACCS to identify and correct errors and to guide interface software development is an edit system for the Caseload component and an edit and imputation system for the case characteristics component. Erroneous data processed by the edit system may result in one of the following outcomes:

1. Data are Rejected: The types of errors that cause caseload data to be rejected include: missing or incorrect information in key fields (Province or Territory, Court Level, Court Identifier, Unit of Count, and Start or End Date) and duplicate records. There are three types of errors that cause case characteristics data to be rejected: missing or incorrect information in the key record identification fields (Province/Territory, Court Location, Information Number, Accused Identifier, Charge Sequence Number, and Court Appearance Date); charges not yet disposed; and duplicate appearance records. In most cases, records containing reject errors require respondent input to determine the appropriate action to be taken.
2. Data are Corrected: For the case characteristics component, a pre-determined correction is made based on the specific combination of data element values. This correction method applies when a value associated with a data element is incorrectly coded or a combination of data elements are logically inconsistent within an appearance record or charge.
3. A Warning is Issued: This occurs when there are inconsistencies in the combination of data elements or there is incorrect coding.

Data Assessment Procedures

Data assessment activities are undertaken by both the provinces/territories and the ACCS to monitor data quality and to provide direction for any modifications where data quality problems are identified. The data are subjected to year-to-year comparisons. ACCS Caseload data are compared to counts produced by the Case Characteristics component of the survey. Comparisons are made between the survey data and figures contained in the provincial/territorial reports of court operational or case management systems. The results of the data assessment process permit the identification of most types of errors occurring at all stages of data flow.
