STEAM RAILWAY EMPLOYEES AND THEIR COMPENSATION, 1926-1945

20-7040

Statistics of steam railway employees and their compensation for the twenty-year period 1926-1945 have been summarized in the present report. The data have been taken from the reports "Statistics of Steam Railways of Canada" published annually by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The classification of employees is that specified by the Board of Transport Commissioners and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in "Rules governing the Classification of Steam Railway Employees", effective January 1, 1926. Divisions 79 (express), 80 (communications, formerly radio) and 81 (outside operations) have not been included in the present compilation. In order to assist in the proper interpretation of the data the method of compilation used by the reporting carriers is explained below.

For the average number of employees, Tables 1 and 2, a count of all employees is taken at a fixed date each month. In the case of laborers and other classes whose numbers fluctuate rapidly counts may be taken four times a month and averaged to obtain a monthly figure. For divisions 67 to 78 inclusive (train crews) all employees on the roster available for service on the day of the count are included whether or not they are actually working on that day. The annual figure is the sum of the monthly counts divided by twelve. It is thus not the total number of persons employed by the railroads during a year. Such a figure would be meaningless for most ordinary purposes, and if used in statistical analysis would give misleading results, since a casual employee who worked only a week would have the same weight as a full-time employee. The ideal method of counting employees by taking a daily count and dividing the total by the number of counts, is not feasible, and the system of monthly counts is considered to provide a close approximation to the results that would be obtained under the more detailed method.

The wages and salaries paid, Tables 3 and 4, are the sums of amounts paid to all employees on the monthly payroll. Hours or days worked per year, Tables 5 and 6, comprise the total time actually worked, excluding constructive time, divided by the average number of employees as given in Tables 1 and 2. Salaries and wages per hour or day, Tables 7 and 8, are obtained by applying total hours or days worked to the total compensation paid.

The average yearly wage or salary, Tables 9 and 10, is computed by dividing total compensation by the average number of employees. It should be noted that the method of counting employees limits any distortion in the average yearly wage which the presence of part-time employees might be expected to create. Twelve employees who work only one month of the year count as one employee working for the full year. The average yearly wage, as shown, therefore represents the wage for a full year's work in each case.

In comparing the averages of Tables 7, 8, 9 and 10 as between the various divisions it must be kept in mind that each of the 78 divisions will group together employees on different jobs and at different rates of pay. Some of the divisions are fairly homogeneous but others lump together employees having a considerable range in rates of pay. Also changes in the proportion of higher-paid to lower-paid employees within a single division will affect the year-to-year comparison in this division.
