PRELIMINARY DATA: CYCLE 5

Background

The General Social Survey was initiated by Statistics Canada in 1985 in order to reduce gaps in the statistical information system, particularly in relation to socio-economic trends. Many of these gaps cannot be filled through existing data sources because of the range or periodicity of the information required. A similar demand for such data has brought about the introduction of general social surveys in many other countries including Australia, Japan, the Scandinavian nations and the United Kingdom.

The General Social Survey has two principal objectives: first, to gather data on trends in Canadian society over time, and second, to provide information on specific policy issues. To meet these objectives the content of GSS is made up of three components: Core, Classification and Focus.

Core content is intended to obtain information which monitors long-term social trends or measures temporal changes in society related to living conditions or well-being. Each cycle covers a specific Core content area, which will recur on a permanent basis. Classification content consists of variables which provide the means of delineating population groups.

Aussi disponible en français.

Focus content is aimed at meeting the second objective of GSS, namely to provide information touching directly on a specific policy issue or social problem. Focus content, in general, is not expected to be repeated on a permanent basis. Additionally, costs associated with Focus content are recovered from sponsors.

The General Social Survey is a continuing program with a single survey cycle each year. The current status of individual cycles is as follows:

Cycle	Status
1	Collected data on health and social supports in September-October 1985. Preliminary data released in June 1986. Public Use Microdata file available January 1987. Publication titled "Health and Social Support, 1985" released in January 1988.
2	Collected data on time use, language and social mobility in November-December 1986. Preliminary data on language released in January 1989. Preliminary data on time use and social mobility released in March 1989. Public Use Microdata file available December 1989.
3	Collected data on accidents and crimes in January-February 1988. Preliminary data released in April 1989. Public Use Microdata file released May, 1990. Publication titled "Patterns of Criminal Victimization in Canada" released March, 1990.
4	Collected data on education and work in January-March 1989. Preliminary data released January, 1990. Public Use Microdata file released July, 1990.
5	Collected data on family and friends in January-March 1990. Preliminary data released in this report.
6	Cycle 6 will be in large part a repeat of the health content first covered in Cycle 1 in 1985. Data will be collected on a monthly basis throughout 1991.

Cycle 5: Methodology

The majority of the sample for the fifth cycle was selected by random digit dialing and included persons aged 15 years and over distributed throughout the ten provinces of Canada. Exclusions comprised full time residents of institutions. In addition, Cycle 5 included an oversample of the elderly (65 years of age and over) that was drawn from the groups that rotated out of the Labour Force Survey (LFS). Interviewers dialed each computer selected telephone number and completed a Selection Control Form (GSS 5-1) for each one. When they contacted a private household, they enumerated all the members of the household on this form, and then randomly selected and interviewed one member aged 15 or older; or 65 and older for the elderly oversample. A total of thirteen thousand four hundred and ninety-five (13,495) individuals were interviewed and answered the Family and Friends Questionnaire (GSS 5-2), yielding a response rate of approximately 80%.

The survey collected the following types of information: aspects of the respondent's relationship with parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters, children and friends; birth history of their children, type of childcare provided and contact with children living outside the household; fertility intentions; household help and support; marriage and common-law history; satisfaction measures and background socio-economic questions for classification purposes. A copy of the questionnaire is included in the appendix.

Output

The attached tables present the first data to be released from Cycle 5. A Public Use Microdata file will be available in the spring of 1991. A publication presenting data primarily in the form of tables and charts, as well as initial analysis and findings, should be available in the winter of 1991 - 1992.

FAMILY AND FRIENDS

Selected findings related to marriage and common-law unions:

- o In 1990, 70% of Canadians aged 18-64 years had been married at least once, while 28%, compared to 16% in 1984, had lived or were living in common-law unions. Some 58% of the age group were married and living with their spouse in 1990, 9% were living common-law, 32% were living outside marriage and common-law unions. (See Tables 1.1A, 1.2A, 1.2B, 1.3)
- o Those living common-law make up 22% of all unmarried (never married, divorced, separated or widowed) Canadians aged 18-64 years. However, this proportion varies widely by province, from a high of 33% in Quebec to a low of 15% in the Atlantic provinces. Closer to the national average were the Western provinces of Manitoba (21%), Saskatchewan (20%), Alberta (22%) and British Columbia (19%). In Ontario, the proportion was 16%. (See Table 1.4)
- o Living common-law is often a prelude to marriage among younger Canadians. Some 37% of currently married people aged 18-29 years and 28% of those aged 30-39 years lived in a common-law union with their spouse before marrying. By contrast, common-law unions preceded marriage for only 12% of those aged 40-49 years and 4% of those aged 50-64 years. (See Table 1.6)

Selected findings related to raising children:

- o In 1990, as in 1984, two-thirds of women aged 18-64 years had given birth to children. However, the proportion of younger women having children has decreased: to 30% for women aged 18-29 years from 35% in 1984, and to 76% of women aged 30-39 years from 80% six years before. (See Tables 2.1A, 2.1B)
- o In 1990, nearly 6% of men and just over 3% of women aged 18-64 years had raised step-children, up from 4% for men and 2% for women in 1984. The higher percentages for men reflect the fact that after divorce women more often have custody of children and are more apt to bring them to a new marriage. (See Tables 2.1A, 2.1B)

Selected findings related to fertility intentions:

- o Of Canadians aged 15-44 years, 50% intend to have a child or have additional children in the future. Another 9% are uncertain of their future plans. The remaining 40% indicated they or their spouse/partner do not intend to have children and for more than half of these it was because of sterility or infertility. (See Table 3.1)

- o Some 76% of persons aged 15-44 years with no natural children intend to have children in the future; 48% of those with one child intend to have another child and only 9% of those with two or more children have such intentions. (See Table 3.1)

Selected findings related to support systems:

- o Among married persons, husbands (62%) were more likely to turn to their spouse for emotional support than were wives (51%). Wives (19%) were more likely to turn to friends than were their husbands (11%). (See Table 4.1)
- o Among unmarried persons, women (46%) were almost as likely to turn to friends for emotional support as men (49%). (See Table 4.2)

Selected findings related to second-generation immigrants:

- o More than one in three Canadians (37%) aged 15 years and over have at least one foreign-born parent and 18% were themselves born outside Canada. (See Tables 5.1, 5.2)
- o Older Canadians are more likely to have a foreign-born parent: 50% of those 75 years and older compared to only 32% those aged 15-24 years. (See Table 5.3)

APPENDIX

GENERAL SOCIAL SURVEY

CYCLE FIVE QUESTIONNAIRE PACKAGE

This package briefly describes the content, methodology and sample of the fifth cycle of the General Social Survey (GSS). Copies of the questionnaires used in Cycle 5 are attached as appendices: the Control Form (GSS 5-1) as Appendix A; and the 'Family and Friends Questionnaire' (GSS 5-2) as Appendix B. Another form was used, the GSS 5-1B, but is not presented here as it is nearly identical to the GSS 5-1.

Content and Questionnaire

The fifth cycle of the General Social Survey collected data from January 22, 1990 to the end of February 1990. The survey collects information on: the availability and frequency of contact with parents, brothers and sisters, children, and friends; children, and their living arrangements; fertility intentions; marriage and common-law history; division of labour in the household; and social support. Three questionnaires were used to conduct the interviews:

QUESTIONNAIRE	AGE GROUP	TITLE
GSS 5-1	All age groups	Control Form
GSS 5-1B	Age 65 and over (LFS oversample only)	Control Form
GSS 5-2	Age 15 and over	Family and Friends Questionnaire

The GSS 5-1 was completed for each telephone number selected in the sample. It lists all household members and collects basic demographic information, specifically, age, sex, marital status and relation to the head of the family. A respondent, 15 years of age or older, was then randomly selected and a GSS 5-2 was completed for this person. In the case of the elderly oversample, a GSS 5-1B was used to select a respondent from those 65 years and older.

The content of the main questionnaire is listed below:

Section of GSS 5-2	Content
A.	Parents and grandparents
B.	Brothers and sisters
C.	Children
D.	Fertility intentions
E.	Friends
F.	Household help
G.	Supports
H.	Marriages
J.	Common-law partnerships
K.	Satisfaction
L.	Classification
M.	Contacts for follow-up

Sample

The sample for Cycle 5 consisted of persons 15 years of age or older from across the ten provinces. The majority of the sample was selected through random digit dialing (RDD).

Each computer generated telephone number in the sample is called and an interviewer completes a Control Form. When they contact a private household, all the members of the household are enumerated and then one member 15 years and over is randomly selected and interviewed.

The target sample size for the survey was originally 10,000 individuals 15 years of age and older. In addition, there was an extra sample of approximately 2,000 for the province of Ontario that was funded by the provincial government in order to provide more detailed and reliable data for that province. In total, the sample interviewed using random digit dialing techniques is expected to be about 12,000.

Cycle 5 also includes an oversample of the elderly. The telephone numbers for the elderly sample were drawn from the groups that rotated out of the Labour Force Survey (LFS) in the month of December, and in addition, October and November for the province of Ontario. All households thought to contain at least one individual 65 years and older were contacted. Household members were enumerated and then a random selection was made of all those aged 65 years and over to determine who should be interviewed. Approximately 2,100 additional telephone interviews are expected from this oversample.

Cycle 5's total sample is expected to be 14,000 interviews.
