REPORT OF THE DEPUTY SUPERINTENDENT GENERAL

OTTAWA, December 18, 1930.

HON. THOMAS G. MURPHY,

Superintendent General of Indian Affairs,

Ottawa.

SIR, - I have the honour to submit the report of the Department of Indian Affairs for the year ended March 31, 1930.

In the following pages will be found a brief outline of the more important administrative activities of the department during the period under review.

The Indians in common with other sections of the population have felt the effects of the prevailing lack of employment and low prices for agricultural products. The department, however, has taken all possible precautions for the prevention of hardship and no genuine appeal for relief is overlooked. The needs of the hunting Indians whose problem was treated at some length in last year's Report, continue to engage the closest attention.

FARMING AND STOCKRAISING AMONG THE INDIANS OF THE PRAIRIE PROVINCES

FARMING

In the spring of 1930 the Indians in the three Prairie provinces sowed 38,156 acres of wheat, 24,759 acres oats, 5,442 acres barley, and 2,918 acres of rye, as well as several hundred acres of gardens. They summer-fallowed approximately 32,273 acres of land, and at the time of writing they have about 112,000 acres under cultivation. The spring gave every indication of a good crop, but it was not long before reports reached the department that the blowing of soil had done considerable damage in certain parts, in fact at some points this blowing entirely ruined the crop. This was followed by rust, and the crop at other points, which had not been damaged by blowing, was reduced about 30 per cent from this cause. Sawfly and cutworm also injured the crops, but notwithstanding all this the Indians have reaped about 75 per cent of a normal year's crop. The price of threshing, and the cost of twine have remained the same as last year when prices were good. A large amount of summer-fallowing - 32,273 acres - has been done this year, and the work on this land is equal to that done by the white farmers. While there is the weed menace to contend with, the situation on many of the reserves would not appear to be so bad as in the white settlements. Every effort is being made by the department to control the weeds. The breaking of new land might be approximately 8,000 acres; the exact figures are not known, but a large acreage of land has been broken this year, and the work is well done. In most cases this work was performed under adverse conditions, as the season has been very dry, making it very difficult to plow new land.

A large quantity of hay has been put up this year, and a shortage of feed is not anticipated. All reserves report an abundance of hay, and great care has been taken to see that it was put up in good time. At the time of writing 90 per cent of the hay is in stack. This is a very satisfactory state of affairs. The Indians have made a special effort, and great credit is due them. The quality of the hay this year will be better than for many years, there being no rain to speak of during the haying season.

STOCKRAISING

The livestock on all reserves is reported to be in good shape, and according to our records dated June 30, there are 22,385 head of cattle of all classes owned by Indians. There will probably be a slight increase in this number when the calves are finally counted. The Indians provide for all their own beef requirements. The day of buying beef from outsiders to feed the Indians has passed, and the beef consumed by the Indians in the three provinces is valued at approximately $200,000. In addition to this our records show that they have sold between $160,000 and $170,000 worth of beef to outside buyers. This is a very satisfactory showing. The Department is doing its best to increase this branch of the work, as there is excellent pasture land on many of the reserves. There are reserves, however, where the cattle cannot be increased to any great extent owing to the fact that the amount of hay is limited.

Many of the Indians are now milking cows, and in some cases selling cream and butter. The number engaged in this work has increased during the last year.

The department has built about two thousand houses for Indians in the last three years on the various reserves in these provinces. Five hundred houses have been erected this year. These are of hewn logs, and many of them are placed on cement foundations. They have a door and from four to six windows and a second storey; certainly a great improvement over the old style of home. The whole situation in Manitoba and Saskatchewan has changed with regard to the condition of the Indian homes. These homes, as a rule are kept fairly clean; practically all are whitewashed once a year and some of them twice a year.

INDIAN HEALTH SUPERVISION

The Indians during the past year have been relatively free from the more common kinds of disease. Measles was prevalent along the pacific coast in the autumn of 1929, and spread to the interior to some extent. Smallpox appeared in one or two places, but gained no headway. There was no outbreak of influenza.

HOSPITALS AND NURSING STATIONS

No new hospitals have been erected by the department during the course of the year. Assistance has been given, however, in erecting some hospitals in remote places where the Indians form such a substantial part of the population that the department finds it necessary to assume a portion of the capital cost of establishing or rebuilding hospital institutions.

A nursing station has been built at the Fisher River agency in Manitoba. This is a residence for a public health nurse, and has no regular hospital accommodation except a bed for an emergency case. The department hopes to extend this type of activity, and is now establishing another similar unit at Hobbema, Alberta. The advantages of the nursing station unit are obvious. It is relatively inexpensive, and so may be provided for a larger number of reserves. It enables a nurse to reside at the reserve, where her work and influence may be continuous. It provides a centre where the sick may come to see the doctor at appointed times, and where the doctor may have the assistance of the nurse and the equipment of the station. The nurse is not confined to an institution caring for serious cases who require the treatment afforded by a completely equipped hospital, or, as is sometimes the case, chronic cases who can quite well be treated at home with the advice and occasional visits of the nurse and doctor. Most important of all, it provides a service to the mothers of growing children, who can profit by frequent instruction.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING SERVICE

Important additions have been made to the staff of public health or travelling nurses. Four such nurses have been appointed in British Columbia, two in Ontario, and one in New Brunswick. The standard of qualification for this and other classes of nurses has been raised, and the compensation increased, and the department is now in a position to attract the very best nurses to its service. Only those having a university training in public health are eligible for appointment to the highest grade. Particular attention has been devoted during the year to this phase of health work, and a study has been made of the methods of provincial and voluntary nursing organizations. The Victorian Order of Nurses very kindly lent the assistance of one of its field supervisors for a survey of the reserve nursing problem in British Columbia and Ontario, and for the initial instruction of some newly appointed departmental nurses. Very encouraging reports are being received of the increased efficiency of the nurses, and of the benefits they are carrying to reserves to which new nurses have been assigned.

PART-TIME DOCTORS AND LOCAL HOSPITAL SERVICES

There have been no notable changes or extensions in these services during the year. The department employs the available doctor and patronizes the local hospital to the extent of the requirements in each locality. Specialists' services are afforded for cases beyond the skill or facilities of the local physician. It is noted that there is a steady increase in the demand on the part of the Indians for modern medical treatment, and in the interest displayed by part-time doctors in their Indian work. The department finds it constantly necessary to revise the salaries of these doctors to correspond with their increasing services.

FULL-TIME DOCTORS AND DEPARTMENTAL HOSPITALS

A highly qualified doctor, who also acts as Indian agent, has been stationed at Moose Factory, on James bay. Hitherto the only medical service available in that area has been the annual visit of a doctor with the treaty paying officer, and a small hospital at Fort Albany, conducted by a religious order. The doctor has found it possible to perform some major surgical operations with very small facilities, and his visits may be expected to prove of very welcome assistance to the sisters at their remote station. The approach of the railway to Moose Factory holds out a prospect of substantially increasing medical facilities on the bay.

The departmental hospitals at the Six Nations reserve in Ontario and the Blackfoot reserve in Alberta have been patronized by the Indians to such an extent that it has been found necessary to provide more space. This is being done by erecting nurses' residences, thereby adding to the comfort of the staff, and making their rooms in the hospitals available for patients. The new hospital at the Blood reserve is operating with the greatest satisfaction.

A separate wing for Indian patients has been erected at Cochrane, Ont. It is conducted by the Lady Minto Hospital, the department paying the salaries of part of the staff and a daily per capita grant to the hospital.

There is a remarkable increase in the amount of medical attention demanded by the Indians of northern Ontario. At Cochrane, Chapleau, White River, Armstrong, and many other points they are reporting for treatment in large numbers.

TUBERCULOSIS

It is regretted that it is not possible to report more progress in combatting this the most important of diseases among Indians. The necessity far exceeds both the facilities and the funds available. There are several reserves where the number of infectious cases is so small that the disease might be stamped out if it were possible to devote the whole of the appropriation for this purpose to these reserves. But equally strong appeals for help come from almost every reserve. At the present time it is being found necessary to refuse applications for sanatorium treatment due to lack of funds for maintenance. The department appeals to the interest of Parliament for funds with which additional personnel and facilities may be provided. The proper course undoubtedly is to attack the disease in its weakest places, viz., on reserves where there are small numbers of cases, and where the resistance of the Indians to it is relatively high. This will involve intensive effort, carried out by personnel of more than ordinary training and experience, and, for this reason, costly. It will also involve, in some provinces, the provision of more sanatorium accommodation. At the same time the work now being done, and which consumes all available funds, cannot with humanity be lessened.

HEALTH SUPERVISION IN SCHOOLS

The appointment of more public health nurses has afforded new facilities for the examination of school pupils, and doctors have been requested to devote more attention to this phase of their duties. As a result, there has been a great increase in dental services for the growing children, and in remedying defects such as enlarged tonsils and defective vision. It appears that the removal of diseased tonsils is an effective measure in healing and preventing scrofula or tuberculous glands.

The usual health supervision of pupils in residential schools has been carried on and these pupils have shared in the increased service referred to above.

SPECIFIC DISEASES

Venereal disease exists among Indians as among the white population. During the year under review special effort has been made to discover and bring under treatment all cases of syphilis. It has not been found that there is any cause for alarm in the situation. Many reserves do not appear to have any cases, and where the disease does exist, the affected Indians submit willingly to treatment.

A survey of certain reserves in Alberta and British Columbia is now being carried out in order to discover the incidence of certain forms of eye disease. The work is being done by a highly trained specialist. His findings will not be available for the present report.

In the early summer of 1929 an Indian boy at Fort George, on the eastern shore of James bay, was accidentally injured in a shooting accident, receiving a compound fracture of the thigh, one of the most severe injuries which can occur without causing early death. There were no facilities for his immediate removal or adequate treatment at home, and in spite of the best efforts of the local missionary, the wound became infected, and the boy seemed sure to die. News of his condition reached Ottawa only after some weeks. At the time of its receipt, the Royal Canadian Air Force flying officer who had been carrying the treating paying party in northern Ontario had just returned to Remi lake, west of Cochrane. The flying officer was instructed to try to remove the boy. He left Remi Lake on the morning of August 1, flew to Fort George, and brought his patient into Ottawa the same evening. This flight of more than 1,000 miles was carried out in bad weather and over entirely uninhabited country. The boy was placed under the care of an Ottawa specialist, and has now entirely recovered. This case is referred to because it attracted a good deal of public attention at the time.

In concluding this part of the annual report, it is desired to acknowledge the co-operation of the provincial Governments, and of other departments of the federal Government, particularly the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

LANDS AND TIMBER

LANDS

The general situation with respect to the administration of surrendered Indian lands was not as satisfactory during the fiscal year 1929 - 30 as during the previous twelve month period. This was due mainly to the widespread depression culminating in the spring of 1929, affecting adversely both the purchasing power of the public and payment of obligations previously incurred. In addition, crops on the average throughout the western provinces were greatly below expectation and prices received in many cases actually under the cost of production. It is possible that more or less similar conditions will prevail during the ensuing season. The department at all times endeavours to collect all land payments as they fall due, but it has been necessary during recent months, to adopt an exceptionally lenient attitude both in the interest of the purchasers and the various local municipalities. Notwithstanding this the department is quite confident that any arrears which may accumulate in this manner will be quickly paid up, should one or two satisfactory crop years follow, as occurred in 1927 and 1928. The western farmer is a particularly optimistic individual and so long as he remains on the land he may be considered quite solvent.

Sales of surrendered Indian lands during the year reached the substantial figure of 29,222 acres, realizing $452,663.75, representing a very satisfactory sale price per acre. The total amount of surrendered lands as represented by current sales or available for sale is now 199,906.53 acres, in connection with which $1,165,980.63 in principal is outstanding. New land sales and receipts therefrom were practically double that of the previous fiscal year.

The principal sales during the year involved the disposition by public auction of the Little Black Bear reserve in the province of Saskatchewan and Beaver reserve and ten smaller Indian properties in the same locality, all in the Peace River district of Alberta. The Little Black Bear reserve contained 3,696 acres and was sold for $34,654.75, the initial cash payment amounting to $13,007.68. The Beaver and other reserves close by contained an aggregate area of 16,116.18 acres and were sold for the very satisfactory price of $321,868.38, the initial cash payment being $33,359.05. The terms and conditions in connection with both these sales was a cash down payment of ten per cent, the balance to be paid in nine equal and consecutive annual instalments with interest at the rate of six per cent. A sale of lots in The Pas townsite in Manitoba was also held for which the sum of $17,120 was realized, the initial cash payment being $8,813. Including the latter amount, the total receipts for the year from The Pas townsite were $30,874.89.

The amount received from the Blackfoot reserve crop shore leases during the year, was $28,227.85. This was substantially below the amounts received during the previous two years, but the reasons for this have already been indicated.

PETROLEUM AND NATURAL GAS

The department was greatly interested during the year, in rather extensive geological and investigational work carried out by interested parties on three of the larger reserves in the province of Alberta, with a view to petroleum and natural gas development. Already some drilling operations have been carried out on the Stony reserve near Morley, but results have so far not been satisfactory. Some test drilling was done during the year on the Sarcee reserve near Calgary, for the purpose mainly of defining the underlying rock structure, but no attempt has yet been made to sink a deep well. It is possible, however, that such action may be taken in the near future. The major interest, however, has really centered in test drilling operations being conducted on the north end of the Blood reserve, not far distant from the town of Lethbridge. A considerable number of leases of the petroleum and natural gas rights covering portions of the Blood reserve, have already been issued by the department but the only development work so far undertaken has been carried out by a company which controls by lease a considerable area of this particular part of the reserve. A large sum of money has been expended by this company in test drilling operations, the results of which are considered most encouraging and it is expected that a deep well will be started shortly. Should this test prove successful, there is little doubt but that the Blood reserve will prove to be one of the outstanding oil fields of Western Canada. Insofar as the investigational and development phases of the situation are concerned, the department is offering every possible encouragement in the hope that the Indian owners of this reserve will eventually benefit greatly from royalties on production.

LEASES

Under the provisions of section 11 of the Regulations for the Disposal of Indian Lands leases were issued to white men at the request of Indian locatees to the number of 127, and on March 31 last there were 1,297 leases current.

LOCATION TICKETS

Location tickets, granting title under the provisions of the Indian Act, to individual owners for lands on the reserves were issued during the past year to the number of 180 and on March 31 last there were current 2,740 location tickets.

ENFRANCHISEMENT

Under the provisions of section 114 of the Indian Act there were enfranchised during the past fiscal year 23 Indians, heads of families, comprising a total of men, women and children of 45.

TIMBER

The quantity of timber cut for sale from Indian reserves in the Dominion during the 1929 - 30 season was about the same as the previous year. A decrease in the quantity of log timber was more than made up by an increase in ties, poles and posts.

The kinds and quantities cut were as follows: -

Pine (white)	338,218 f.b.m.
Pine (red or Norway)	268,005 f.b.m.

The total quantity of timber cut for sale, in terms of board measure feet was approximately forty-five million f.b.m., and in addition to this the Indians cut about ten million f.b.m. for building, fencing and fuel.

Sales of timber during the year were: -

Zaimoetz reserve, B.C.	Deposit $1,550
Cowichan reserve Pt. B.C.	Deposit 500
Bucktum reserve, B.C.	Deposit 200
Ain reserve, B.C.	Deposit 300

Total	$120,798 76

There were 23 timber licences current on April 30, 1930, being the same number as the previous year, one having been relinquished, and one new licence issued.

Slight damage to timber on several reserves was sustained by forest fires last season, but special patrols were sent out during the hazardous season, especially in the Lake of the Woods area, and the loss of timber was by no means serious.

The destruction of timber by flooding of several reserves due to hydroelectric development is engaging the attention of the department, and compensation claims have been prepared and presented for settlement, one of which (Wabigoon reserve) has already been paid.

EDUCATION

During the year, 78 residential schools and 272 day schools were in operation, a total of 350 centres of Indian educational activity. The total enrolment was 15,743 and the average attendance 11,579 - a percentage of attendance of 73.55. The enrolment for the year is the largest and the attendance the highest yet reached. Ten years ago, the average attendance was 7,649, and it is gratifying to note that the increase since that time is over 50 per cent. In Part II of this report will be found a tabular statement, showing the location and indicating the attendance at all Indian schools.

The same number of residential schools were in operation last year and the results have been very encouraging. Vocational training is possible at these boarding schools and the department continues to emphasize this important phase of the work. Mention should be made of the rapid development of technical education in British Columbia - made possible by special funds which have been provided for the purpose. In Ontario and the Prairie Provinces, emphasis is placed on farming, gardening and the care of stock.

The co-operation of the churches in the management of these residential schools was as follows: -

Roman Catholic	43 residential schools

Church of England	20 residential schools
United Church	13 residential schools
Presbyterian Church	2 residential schools
Total	78 residential schools

Two new day schools were established where there was promise of real usefulness. On many reserves the Indian schools now secure as good attendance and results as rural white schools. Provincial curricula for public and separate schools are followed and fully qualified teachers are engaged.

All Indian schools were regularly inspected by officers of the department. Particular attention is paid to the general management, condition and care of property, vocational training and the health of the pupils. In addition, provincial school inspectors visited all classrooms and reported on the academic work, except in the provinces of New Brunswick and British Columbia, where there were special Indian school inspectors.

It is with much regret that the department reports the death of the Sister Superior and 12 children when fire destroyed the main building at the Cross Lake Indian residential school, in northern Manitoba. Renewed efforts have been made in the matter of fire prevention and protection and all principals of residential schools have again been instructed to examine fire-fighting equipment and escapes and to practise fire drill regularly. Fireproof construction is now being used in all new buildings where there are children's dormitories and at all schools the Department has provided adequate fire fighting equipment and escape facilities.

New main buildings were commenced during the year at four residential schools - Brandon, Man. (Brandon); Punnichy, Sask. (Gordon's); Gleichen, Alta. (Old Sun's); Grouard, Alta. (St. Bruno's). In addition, the department assisted the respective church authorities with the reconstruction of new buildings at Beauval, Sask., Wabasca, Alta., and Providence, N.W.T. The new buildings at Alert Bay, B.C., and Kenora, Ont. (Cecilia Jeffrey), were completed and furnished during the year.

The buildings for the new Maritime Indian residential school at Shubenacadie, N.S., have also been completed and furnished. This institution is for orphan and neglected children and for those who are unable, for one reason or other, to obtain an education at the reserve day schools. It already gives promise of much usefulness to the Indians of the Maritime Provinces. At eight Indian day schools in Canada new classrooms or teachers' residences were erected.

The practice of assisting the most promising and industrious graduates of Indian schools was continued. Approximately 160 young Indian men and women were helped to continue their studies or to establish homes. Except in those Indian communities where successful farming is found, the school graduate presents a problem which is very difficult of solution. The department and the churches interested are trying new schemes and searching for better methods of helping the young people to establish themselves.

In the past, the funds of certain Indian bands were used to meet some of the costs of conducting day schools on their reserves. The year under review is the second that all expenditure has been provided by parliamentary appropriation. The program of free education is now extended to all Indians in Canada. The expenditure for Indian education for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1930, amounted to $2,330,438.21, as follows: -

The centenary of one of our most important schools falls during the coming year, and, as a matter of historical interest in connection with the development of the work of Indian education, the following short history of the Mohawk Institute has been prepared by the Superintendent of Indian Education: -

THE MOHAWK INSTITUTE

The first Indian residential school in Canada to complete one hundred years of continuous service is the Mohawk Institute at Brantford, Ont. It would therefore seem fitting at this anniversary to write a short history of a school, which has had an interesting past and which has been an important factor in the development of the Six Nation Indians.

The story of the Mohawk Institute would be incomplete without a brief statement concerning the organization which was responsible for its establishment and which has supported the school, without interruption, for a period of one hundred years. In 1649, in Cromwell's time, the New England Company was established by Parliament and was chartered twelve years later during the reign of Charles II. The company was an evangelical organization, interested in the natives of the British colonies in America. Its earliest efforts in Canada were in New Brunswick, when its activities were transferred from the New England States shortly after the War of Independence. In 1786, the Lieutenant-Governor and the Chief Justice of New Brunswick were appointed commissioners, along with seven other "fit persons," to carry out the aims of the company. The commissioners believed that the economic welfare of the Indian could be served only by some industrial training and, as early as 1808, General Coffin arranged for the apprenticing of several Indian boys to British settlers. Sussexvale was the principal seat of the New England Company's labours at this time. In 1822, the company discontinued this scheme and decided to trust to the example and teaching of missionaries and school teachers as a more effectual means of civilizing and evangelizing Indians.

At this time, the New England Company sought fields of labour elsewhere in what is now Canada; and, in 1827, its main attention was transferred to the Six Nation Indians on the Grand river in Upper Canada, Chief Thayendanegea (Captain Joseph Brant) had secured a site for his people on the Grand river, and in 1785 had arranged for a church and a school at the Mohawk village. The school teacher's salary was paid by the Imperial Government from the military chest. At that time the administration of Indian affairs was more military than civil in character. The chief functions of the Indian Department of the day were to get the Indians settled and to distribute presents. It was not until after Union and responsible government in 1841 that the administration of Indian affairs was placed under the Civil Secretary (1844). The school at the Mohawk Village flourished for several years, part of the time under the management of an Indian master. In 1813, likely due to the disturbances caused by the invasion of Canada, the school was closed.

John Brant, principal Chief of the Six Nations, youngest and worthy son of his father, was instrumental in focusing the attention of the New England Company on the Six Nations. He visited England in 1822, one of his requests being the establishment of an Indian school. He returned to Grand river and, in 1824, a school was started with twenty-one pupils. Two years later, he asked the company for funds to rebuild the church, erect a parsonage and other buildings and, although there is evidence that the materials for the Mohawk Village school were on the ground the same year, it was not until 1828 that the school building was ready for occupation.

Brant had asked the New England Company for a resident missionary. The Rev. John West had been sent out from England to report on conditions in the British colonies and, following his report, Capt. John Brant was made lay agent for the company and was sent funds for commencing the Grand River work in earnest. The Rev. W. Hough was the first resident missionary. He remained only a few months and was succeeded by the Rev. R. Lugg, in 1827. The Company proceeded to establish four other schools for the Six Nation Indians.

In 1828, Rev. A. Nelles was appointed assistant missionary and was given the special care of the educational work. About 1,900 Indians were in the community when the New England Company commenced its work there and they supported it with a grant of approximately $750 per annum. The Mohawk Village was one mile from Brant's Ford, which had a white population of approximately 300.

In 1830, educational work at the Mohawk Village was extended to include a manual training school. A mechanic's shop was erected and two large rooms were occupied for teaching boys carpentering and tailoring. In addition, quarters were secured for the teaching of weaving and spinning to Indian girls. The activity was considered important enough to warrant the main attention of one of the missionaries, and the Rev. A. Nelles was placed in charge in 1831. It was not until six years later, however, when he was made chief missionary for the New England Company, that he moved his residence to the Mohawk Village. In 1834, the New England Company increased the establishment by opening residential quarters for 10 boys and 4 girls. These were taught along with the day pupils, both in the classroom and in the manual arts. It was at this time that instruction in farming was also added. The boarding school facilities were quite popular and the following year the number maintained had to be increased. The Indians were moving from the Mohawk Village to the present reserve and there was a great demand for space in the pupils' living quarters. This development of the work in the Mohawk Village was largely responsible for the increased cost to the New England Company of its missionary work on the Grand river. Approximately £4,000 per annum was necessary for its combined activities.

In 1838, there were suitable buildings and equipment for the maintenance and training of 30 boys and 10 girls. The older boys were trained as wagon-makers, blacksmiths and carpenters and the girls, in the duties of housekeeping and the arts of needle work, spinning and knitting. In 1843, when practically all the older Indians had left the village, the manual labour school was considered quite a successful institution and it was referred to by all interested in the betterment of the Indians' condition as a model institute. The pupilage was increased to 45 in 1844 and three years later there were 50 in attendance, with 50 on a waiting list. The average cost per pupil was stated to be £20 per annum. The chief instructor under the Rev. Mr. Nelles was a Mr. R.E. Clark.

The scheme of settling graduates on small farms near the Institute was tried shortly after the older Indians commenced to move away from the Mohawk Village. It is reported that in 1853 there were 40 adults practically all graduates of the school, residing near it, farming and following the trades which they had been taught. The day schools on what is now the reserve were only partly successful. Between 1820 and 1850, there is evidence of 13 or 14 separate day schools, most of them established by the New England Company, 3 by the Wesleyan Methodists and one by the Indian Department. Some of these were closed or were moved, as the Indians in those days were constantly moving from place to place. By 1853, the New England Company decided that the Mohawk Institute was meeting with so much more success than the day schools, that especial attention and funds should be devoted to its activities.

In 1859, the Mohawk Institute was rebuilt on the New England Company's 10 - acre lot, which was a few hundred yards from the old site near the Mohawk Chapel. The company had originally acquired this lot, the Manual Labour Farm of 200 acres and other land, by purchase from individual Indians. In 1843, patent to its holdings was requested and Order in Council dated August 31 of that year granted the 10 - acre lot to the company. Possession of the Manual Labour Farm was offered as long as it was used for school purposes. The company did not accept this offer until 1856, when it was apparent that undisturbed possession was in the best interests of the institute and the licence of occupation was then issued. By 1864, it was found inadvisable to continue intensive training in trades other than farming. More land was therefore required for farm purposes and the company purchased the Babcock lot (32.95 acres) between the school and the town.

The new white brick three-story building accommodated 90 pupils and another period of usefulness was commenced. By 1867, three of the boys gave such academic promise, that arrangements were made for them to take classes at the Grammar School in Brantford. In 1869, three girls - Helen Johnson, Susannah Carpenter and Jemima Maracle - and two boys - Henry Johnson and Nelles Monture - were sent to Hellmuth College, London. This appears to be the first real effort to give advanced academic training to graduates of the Institute. At this time, a Mr. Bouslaugh was superintendent of the school under Canon Nelles.

It is interesting to note that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII, visited the Institute and the Mohawk Chapel during this period (1860). The first Indian to be appointed to the staff was Isaac Barefoot, a former pupil, who returned as a teacher in 1869. Barefoot had taught at No. 2 School on the reserve and had attended the Toronto Normal School. While on the Institute staff, he was acting principal at different times. Later, Mr. Barefoot attended Huron College, became ordained by the Church of England and served his own people as incumbent of one or other of the churches on the reserve.

In 1870, the New England Company erected an addition to the main building. A few years later additional space for the staff was provided. About this time there was also built a new principal's residence. The school then had accommodation for 90 pupils and the necessary teachers and instructors. As before, the capital expenditure was undertaken largely by the company.

Archdeacon Nelles retired from the principalship of the Mohawk Institute in 1872 and devoted his remaining years to missionary duties only. Before he died, he had given nearly fifty years of his life to the Six Nation Indians. Mr. P. Ashton, who succeeded him, gave early promise of much success with the interesting work. A few years after his appointment, Mr. Ashton took Holy Orders. The new principal had an eye for beauty and he turned the uninteresting grounds in front of the building into lawns and planted shrubs and trees.

The Rev. Mr. Ashton saw the advantage of having the Six Nation Indians take an interest in the conduct of the day schools on the reserve. He was instrumental in the appointment of a school board in 1878. On the board there were representatives of the department, the various churches interested and several Indians. This was the beginning of what is now the only Indian school board in Canada. Its composition has changed from time to time - the members now being Indians of the band and the department's representative. Mr. Ashton was the first secretary of the board and the first meeting was held in the Mohawk Institute. It is interesting to note that practically all the teachers of the day schools on the reserve in 1880 were graduates of the Mohawk Institute.

In 1885, the New England Company decided to accept other than Six Nation Indians, and, from that date, a small proportion of the pupils has always been from other reserves. At this time, the Department of Indian Affairs allowed its first grant for what might be called current expenses. Earlier, any public funds that were given were used to assist with improvements. An Order in Council in 1885 approved of ten scholarships of $25 per annum for graduates of the Mohawk Institute who would attend high school in Brantford while in residence. It is interesting to note that Miss Susan Hardie was one of the first six to receive these Government scholarships. She made such good use of her opportunity, that in 1887 she was appointed teacher of the junior room.

Certain commissioners of the New England Company visited Canada in 1889, and they approached Mr. Vankoughnet, Deputy Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, in connection with a Government grant towards the maintenance of the Mohawk Institute. The following year, the Superintendent General, when in England, met the governors of the company in relation thereto. It was explained that the cost of conducting the school was $79 per pupil per annum, and the department was asked for a per capita grant of $60 - the company representing that the conduct of the Institute was a serious drain on their financial resources. An Order in Council approved of this grant as from July 1, 1891, and, since that date, the Department of Indian Affairs has undertaken the major portion of the current expenses and has shared the responsibility for the conduct of the school.

In 1891, as the department was assisting with current expenses, the New England Company's funds were released for a very necessary addition to the school and for other improvements. Accommodation was then available for 125 pupils. In 1895, 110 children were being maintained and educated, and four years later the school was filled. At this time, the department allowed grant for 91 children. The training of the boys in blacksmithing, carpentering, etc., was then practically discontinued. The farming and gardening operations were considered more valuable to the Indians and were certainly more important to the financial maintenance of the Institution. A second greenhouse was erected in 1897.

At this time the Cadet Corps of the Mohawk Institute enjoyed a fine reputation. At a military review on Dominion Day, 1896, the boys carried off a silver tankard, the chief prize of the day. Lieut. Ernest C. Ashton (now Major-General) was the instructor.

In April, 1903, the main building was totally destroyed by fire. It had been erected in 1859 but had been added to from time to time. A few weeks later the barns were burned, and a little later again, the boys' playhouse, temporarily used as a residence, was destroyed by fire. There is no doubt that incendiaryism on the part of pupils was responsible. In spite of the blow to its work and hopes, the New England Company decided to rebuild. The insurance on the old building was not sufficient for the reconstruction and the Department of Indian Affairs was asked for a grant towards the cost of a new building. In the interim, temporary provision was made for 85 pupils.

Before rebuilding, the company endeavoured to purchase the Manual Labour Farm, which had been secured by them from Indians and held under licence of occupation for many years. The Indian band was against the sale of its land and the company had to be content with the old arrangement. Two members of the court of the company, Lord Stamford and Mr. Wigram, visited Canada and decided that the new school should be erected on the old site. In 1904, $33,000 was expended on the reconstruction - the new building having been designed by the Rev. Mr. Ashton and his son, Ernest. The following year the department granted $3,000 towards the domestic water supply and fire protection. The new building was first occupied in October, 1904.

In 1911, the Rev. R. Ashton resigned from the principalship but continued as chaplain of the institute. His son, A. Nelles Ashton, was appointed principal. At that time, the department increased the per capita grant to $100 and provided this amount for 120 pupils. The New England Company, in view of this large increase in the grant for current expenses, accepted the entire responsibility for the buildings. At the outbreak of war in 1914, Mr. Ashton resigned and enlisted in the Canadian Expeditionary Force. His sister, Mrs. A.M. Boyce, was appointed acting principal. The following year, the New England Company sent out to Canada the Rev. C.M. Turnell, M.A., who was placed in charge. Mr. Turnell made efforts to improve the standards of maintenance and training. During his time music was emphasized. He resigned after three years as principal and was succeeded by Mrs. A.M. Boyce. At this time, General E.C. Ashton was appointed lay commissioner by the New England Company. The department allowed additional grant for 10 pupils in 1917 and again two years later, at which time $120 per annum was allowed for each of 120 pupils.

The New England Company was finding it difficult to finance the school. Some years earlier, when funds were required for the company's school at Lytton, B.C., some of the Glebe lot had been sold. (This money was later refunded and used for improvements at the Mohawk Institute.) The company sought permission to sell part of the Manual Labour Farm and to devote the proceeds to school purposes. When the department could not agree, the Babcock lot, which was owned by the company, was sold.

In 1918 the company was obliged to effect economies and, not wishing to retrench in their educational program, the Department of Indian Affairs was approached. It was explained that the company's income did not increase and that the purchasing power of money had been materially reduced. The department did not purchase the property of the school but the responsibility for current expenses was undertaken. The per capita grant was increased from $120 to $200 and the department, in conjunction with the principal, endeavoured to place the school on a sound financial basis. In 1921, it was possible to reduce the grant to $180 per child.

In 1922, it was determined by the courts that the Manual Labour Farm belonged to the Six Nation Indians. The department decided to pay a rental to the band funds of $500 as long as the property was required for the Institute. A few years earlier, the company had voluntarily relinquished possession of the Glebe lot, but the use of 90 acres of it for school purposes was continued.

Certain improvements were necessary, and before spending public money on the Mohawk Institute, the department decided to make some arrangement with the owners. Dr. Duncan Campbell Scott, Deputy Superintendent General, interviewed the Governor and the members of the court of the New England Company in London, England; and secured a lease of the Institute for a term of twenty-one years. The company gave the department an annual grant of £1,000 towards the stipend of the principal and the maintenance of the school. In 1922, the department enlarged the main building, at a cost of $43,000. The same year, Mrs. A.M. Boyce married Mr. S. Rogers, the assistant principal, and he was appointed to the principalship.

The per capita grant was placed at $160 per child in 1922, which amount was more in harmony with the departmental scale of grants to Indian residential schools. In addition, a special grant was allowed for every pupil that was attending high school in Brantford while living at the Institute. Three years later, grant was provided for five more pupils - a total of 125. In 1927 and 1928, a new barn was erected and other improvements effected by the Department, at a total cost of approximately $10,000. At this time, Mr. Chubb, a member of the court of the New England Company, and Major Bush, the charter clerk, visited Canada and made an inspection of the school. In 1929, upon the resignation of Major Rogers, the Rev. H.W. Snell, B.A., was appointed principal. Miss Susan Hardie, senior teacher, was given an address and a presentation by the Six Nation Indian Council. In 1929 she completed her forty-second year of continuous service in the classrooms at the Institute. The ex-pupils also presented her with an address.

At the time of this writing, the department is considering the finishing of the top story on the boys' side of the building, which improvement will provide accommodation for an additional twenty pupils.

Throughout the entire history of the school, the chief place of worship for the pupils has been that very interesting church known as "His Majesty's Royal Chapel of the Mohawks." Very few Indians, other than pupils, have worshipped there regularly since the desertion of the Mohawk Village, about ninety years ago. As mentioned earlier in this story, Chief Joseph Brant was successful in having His Majesty's representative provide a church for the Mohawks who were about to settle on the Grand river. In 1785, a contract was let for this, the first church to be built in Upper Canada and the first Protestant church in either of the Canadas. Alterations and improvements were made in 1829 and the following year the Chapel was consecrated by the Bishop of Quebec. In 1869, the building was again improved - the necessary funds having been collected by Archdeacon Nelles and others. The Six Nation Indians and the New England Company were contributors. It should be stated that the principal or the chaplain of the Mohawk Institute was always the chaplain of the Royal Chapel. In 1904, Rev. R. Ashton placed the facts concerning this interesting Chapel before the Governor General, praying that His Majesty King Edward VII might be pleased to call it "His Majesty's Chapel of the Mohawks." His Majesty graciously gave his consent.

The Royal Chapel is the possessor of some most interesting and valuable relics, including a solid silver Communion Service and a large Bible, the gifts of Queen Anne. In 1709, several Mohawks from the British colonies had been taken to England, where they were received by the Queen. She presented them with medals and promised further gifts. The Bible and the silver plate were presented to the tribe in 1712. The silver Communion Service bears the inscription, "The Gift of Her Majesty Ann (sic), by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland and of Her Plantations in North America, Queen, to Her Indian Chapel of the Mohawks." The date is not inscribed but the silversmith's hall-mark is that of 1711. During the American Revolution these treasures were buried in the ground for safekeeping. Later the Indians returned, recovered them and brought them to their new home in Canada. Part of the original Communion Set is now at the Tyendinaga reserve, near Belleville, on the bay of Quinte, where some of the Mohawks had settled.

Since the Bible and the Communion Service have been at the Mohawk Chapel, many notables have visited there and the flyleaf of the Bible has been signed by the following, among others: King Edward VII, King George V, Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, Princess Patricia, Lord Lisgar, the Earl of Dufferin, Sir John A. MacDonald, the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Earl of Minto, Earl Grey and the Duke of Devonshire. As the Prince of Wales wrote his signature, he remarked that it was the first time he had ever signed on the same page with his father and grandfather. Recently have been added the signatures of Prince George, Baron Byng of Vimy, Lord Willingdon and Premier Baldwin. There is also a Royal Coat of Arms, sent out from England by the Government in 1786. This also had been ordered by Queen Anne. Accompanying the Coat of Arms were tablets on which were inscribed, in Mohawk, the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments and the Apostles' Creed.

The grounds about the church have been used as a cemetery and contain the graves of many noted Indians, pioneers and loyalists. Probably most notable among these, is that of Thayendanegea, whose tomb has required protection from souvenir hunters. This tomb contains also the remains of his son, Captain John Brant. Outside the entrance to the church hangs the original bell, which was at one time rescued from the hands of a junk dealer by Chief George Johnson, the father of Pauline Johnson, the Indian poetess.

The Prince of Wales' first visit to the Royal Chapel was on October 20, 1919. The Mohawk Institute provided the guard of honour. His Royal Highness planted a pine tree at Brant's tomb. The school is the proud possessor of an autographed picture of the Prince, presented shortly after his visit.

The Mohawk Institute has always given prominence to student organizations and this has been responsible for the fine spirit among the older pupils. The work of the Cadet Corps has already been mentioned and the Girl Guide organization has been equally effective. The chief sports have been hockey, football, basket ball, baseball and track events. In the early days, lacrosse was popular. Peter White, of the St. Regis reserve, who graduated about forty years ago, became one of the most famous lacrosse players in Canada. Some of the boys have been quite prominent in distance running. Tom Longboat, who left school in 1901, achieved international fame as a marathoner. Two or three pupils who are now in their teens show great promise at the middle distances.

During the Great War, 86 graduates enlisted for overseas service - 5 making the supreme sacrifice. Fred Loft, a graduate of 1875, became a commissioned officer. Other Indian graduates were non-commissioned officers and practically all of those on the school's honour roll served with great credit to themselves and to their race.

There have graduated from the Mohawk Institute many Indian boys and girls who have made good, not only on their reserves, but in white communities. Some have been named earlier in this article, but there are others who are worthy of special mention. Approximately 55 graduates have proved successful teachers at Indian day schools. Sarah Davis, Lydia Lewis and Catherine Maracle, graduates of 1880, gave splendid service as teachers on the Six Nation reserve. The first named, who taught for 27 years, was a great reader and a well informed woman. Her influence and example have done much for the community. Elam Barefoot, a graduate of 1882, taught on the reserve for 20 years and for the past 12 years has had a good position with the Cockshutt Plough Works at Brantford. John Lickers, the present truant officer on the reserve, graduated in 1885 and taught school for many years.

The Mohawk Institute is still turning out teachers who give fine service among their own people. Wilma Smith, a graduate of 1918, obtained professional standing and taught very successfully for 10 years. She was the first Indian student to graduate in music and she has been organist, respectively, at the Mohawk Chapel and Sour Springs Church on the reserve. Miss Smith resigned her school a year ago, upon the occasion of her marriage to Andrew Jamieson, who will be the first Indian to graduate from the Agricultural College at Guelph. Elva Miller and Sylvia Jamieson should also be mentioned as having given good service in reserve schools. Jessie Osborne, a graduate of 1883, taught successfully in white schools.

Three graduates of the Mohawk Institute, in addition to Isaac Barefoot, have entered the Christian ministry. The Rev. Thomas Whitebeans, a graduate of 1888, is the United Church minister on the Sarnia reserve. S. Brigham pursued his studies at Huron College, London, and became a Church of England clergyman on the Walpole Island Indian reserve. Melchie Henry, who graduated as recently as 1917, is the incumbent of a Baptist Church on the Six Nation Reserve. Several graduates of the 80's made their living as artisans in white communities. In this connection, the names of Isaac Williams, John Russell, Harry Jones, and Louis Jacques might be mentioned. A great number of the graduates of the Mohawk Institute became successful farmers. Special mention might be made of Nelson Moses, a graduate of 1878, and Archie Lickers, Frank Miller, William Powless, Jesse Moses, and William Smith, who are prominent in reserve matters at the present time. Foster Lickers, a graduate of 1899, and an honoured veteran of the Great War, is now fruit farming near Grimsby. The business world claimed Joseph Deslile, Thomas Green, Jacob Miller, and John Elliott, graduates of the 70's. The last named had a fine reputation as an orator. One of the earliest graduates of the school was Chief George Johnson, who was interpreter to the missionaries and was assistant to the Superintendent of the Six Nations. He left the Mohawk Institute about 1835 and was one of the finest Indians on the reserve. He built a splendid home and named it "Chiefswood." It was here that his daughter, Pauline Johnson, the famous Indian poetess, was born.

Many Indian girls who have left the Mohawk Institute have been noted as successful homemakers and splendid mothers. Special mention should be made of Sarah Russell '88; Edith Styres '01; and Jessie Vanevery '09. Other graduates have made successful nurses. In this connection the names of Bessie Green '00; and Susanna Latham '06 should be mentioned. Business has claimed other girls when they left the Mohawk Institute. Outstanding successes were Floretta Maracle and Jane Osborne, graduates of '81; Beulah Styres '05; Phyllis Jamieson, Ida, Mary and Eva Curley, Pena Davis, Grace McNaughton, Alice Herkimer and Luella Moses, who left school during the war years.

Upon reviewing the history of the Mohawk Institute, which has served the Protestant Indians of Ontario for 100 years, it is evident that its contribution, particularly to the Six Nation Indians, has been of inestimable value. At least 1,300 Indian boys and girls have been maintained and educated in this Christian institution for a term of from five to eight years each. Special mention should be made of the service of Archdeacon Nelles and the Rev. R. Ashton, whose terms as principal total 80 years. Mrs. Ashton's long services are also worthy of recognition, as she took an active interest in the pupils of the school. The Church of England in Canada has always supplied a man in Holy Orders as principal or chaplain, and it may be stated that the Church and the New England Company have good reasons to be proud of their activity at the Mohawk Institute at Brantford.

The report of the Indian Commissioners re Adhesion to Treaty No. 9, was published in the Annual Report for 1929; the following is the report of the Indian Commissioners regarding the Adhesions to this Treaty taken in 1930.

REPORT OF COMMISSIONERS re ADHESION TO TREATY No. 9, FOR THE YEAR 1930

The Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, Ottawa, Canada.

The undersigned commissioners appointed under and by virtue of a commission dated the 30th day of May, 1929, in accordance with a minute of a meeting of the Committee of the Privy Council approved by His Excellency, the Governor General, on the same date, to negotiate with the Ojibway and other Indians in northern Ontario an extension of James Bay Treaty No. 9, respectfully submit this, their second and final report: -

The commissioners made a report dated August 30, 1929, upon the question of the extinguishment of the Indian title on the last remaining area unceded in the province of Ontario, if not in the whole of Canada, and a reference to such report, which may be found on pages 20 to 23 of the Annual Report of the Department of Indian Affairs for the year 1929, discloses the situation as regards the area involved, defines the purpose of the negotiations with the Indians and details the work accomplished.

The area in question, generally speaking, comprises all that portion of the province of Ontario lying north of the Albany river and extending to Manitoba on the west and the Hudson bay and James bay on the north and east, comprising approximately 128,000 square miles, and containing a number of important Indian trading posts or encampments where the Indians barter their furs, enjoy for a few weeks each season a limited communal life and receive their treaty payments.

The great distances these posts are from white civilization and from each other, without ready means of communication, enhance the difficulty of reaching the resident Indians regularly and conveniently by any means except that of air craft. To understand the problem of keeping in direct contact with them, studying their needs and co-operating with them in an attempt to protect them by maintaining their primitive pursuits for which by nature they are so successfully attuned, let it be said that the most northerly port of call this year, Fort Severn on the Hudson bay, at the northeast corner of the province of Ontario, is over 1,000 miles north of Point Pelee on lake Erie, the most southerly point of the province.

It is a long call from the primitive paddle to the palpitating plane but the latter device has helped to solve the problem by annihilating distances. Hence the flying machine is accomplishing in days now what required months and even years heretofore.

Last year, due to the magnitude of the area to be covered, and the inability to secure sufficient gas caches to supply the needs of the aircraft at the outlying points on the Hudson bay, Trout Lake and Lansdowne House were the only points at which Adhesion to Treaty was signed, the two other posts provided for in the program, Fort Severn and Winisk on Hudson bay, having been placed on the itinerary for the summer of 1930.

During the fall of last year and the spring of this year gas was transported by Hudson bay schooner from Montreal through the straits to the bottom of the bay, and then relayed to points on the west shore of James bay and to the trading posts at the mouths of the Winisk and Severn rivers. From Fort Severn 325 drums were conveyed by canoe transport 260 miles up the Severn river to Trout Lake which, however, by leakage, resulting from faulty shipment, had, much to the chagrin and keen discomfort of the commissioners and pilots, been reduced to a hazardous quantity of about fifty drums when the treaty party reached this post in July of this year.

As the annual payments under Treaty No. 9 had to be made to cover points at which the commissioners were required to call, the aircraft served the double purpose of conveying the commissioners and the treaty paymaster, the latter, H.N. Awrey, serving in the dual capacity of paymaster and commissioner, and with him Commissioner Cain collaborated in all payments. Under this arrangement an economy of time was effected and a joint provincial and federal check accomplished.

COMPANION FLIGHT

Last year the Dominion Government provided one plane and the provincial Government the other, but this year Ontario, due to the pressing demands made upon its flying fleet owing to the acute fire hazard, was unable to furnish one. Consequently the Royal Canadian Air Force, through the Department of National Defence, supplied two cabin planes, Fairchild's 71 with wasp engines, Nos. 113 and 114.

The instructions required each machine to keep in sight of its companion since much of the territory to be covered was far removed from contact with the older sections and was being air blazed and investigated for the benefit of future flying.

The officer in charge of the planes was Flight Lieutenant Dave A. Harding, with an important flying record of thirteen years to his credit, of which two and a half years was spent overseas for which he was awarded the Air Force Cross. Harding piloted plane 113 and Flying Officer Kingsley Rose, of Old Country experience, plane 114. Corporal Jerry McManus was the mechanic for the former and Rene Gauthier, A.C. 2, for the latter.

The itinerary provided for a hop-off from Ottawa to Remi Lake on July 2, and a return to Remi on or about August 4. This itinerary, however, made no provision for inclement weather, nor for a necessary and important detour or side trip to Sandy Lake narrows, near the Manitoba border, subsequently undertaken and fully referred to later on in this report.

The very unusual weather conditions of the spring of 1930 in Ontario, with its exceeding drought extending even beyond the middle of June, created an unprecedented fire-hazard in Ontario's distant sections and resulted in extensive areas being burnt. This period was immediately followed by one of electrical disturbances and uncertain weather types that operated rather disadvantageously for flying craft.

Such conditions pursued the treaty party most relentlessly and the intermittent spells of semi-favourable weather had to be cautiously seized. As a result the commissioners found it necessary at all posts, as last year at certain posts, to disregard formality of hours and work steadily throughout the day and far into the night. Notwithstanding the incessant rains, the variable winds, the ever-recurring low curtained skies and other handicapping features, the schedule tentatively arranged before leaving Ottawa was reasonably maintained and for this the commissioners desire to express their appreciation of and thanks to the capable and painstaking pilots and obliging and efficient mechanics.

When one considers the distances covered, the extensive areas observed, with the numerous uncharted lakes, rivers and streams without human habitation and with few established points for direction, the importance of the Air Service in its ability to annihilate distances and perform feats that make for human and economic progress is manifest, and with the experience of several flying seasons, but particularly the last two, the commissioners consider it opportune to comment upon that which should be quite obvious, viz.: the need of a dependable personnel in the Air Service. Sobriety, caution and resourcefulness with the airman, each in turn, begets in the passenger confidence, stability and peace of mind, and the commissioners hereby freely pay tribute to the crews for exemplifying such qualities and also for applying technical knowledge in trying circumstances. Absolute freedom of decision on weather forecasts and hopping-off times, was left to the pilots, subject to the convenience of the commissioners and the performance of their duties. Sympathetic cooperation throughout the whole trip between the individual members of the crew and between the crew and the commissioners added an effectiveness and pleasantness to the tedious and exacting though interesting and historic task.

The provincial Government, through the Hon. W. Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, very kindly intimated to the commissioners, prior to their leaving, that should any emergency occur the entire resources of the Ontario Flying Force were at their disposals considerate and practical suggestion, prompted by the spirit of sympathy traditional with the Ontario Government in its dealings with the Indians and fully appreciated by the commissioners.

A small 16 m.m. movie picture camera was taken by the Commissioners to make a permanent pictorial record of certain features of the trip, but unfavourable weather considerably interfered with the attempt and the pictures, the reels of which are lodged in the Department of Indian Affairs, are therefore limited.

JOURNAL RECORD OF TRIP

The two planes, with Commissioner Cain in No. 113 and Commissioner Awrey in No. 114, started from Rockcliffe Air port on the Ottawa river at 12.20 p.m. on July 2, 1930, in favourable weather, in the presence of Group Captain G.L. Gordon, Squadron Leader Major Godfrey, and Wing Commander G.O. Johnson, executive officers of the R.C.A.F., and a number of the relatives and friends of the treaty party, including representatives of the Department of Indian Affairs. After a delightful flight over the Ottawa valley and the picturesque country it embodies, Trout Lake, near North Bay, was reached at 2.20 p.m. Following luncheon the weather became bad and Officer Harding, upon learning by phone the weather situation at Moonbeam and Remi Lake, north of the Transcontinental railway six miles and west of Cochrane fifty miles, the objective for the day, decided to defer moving until next morning. The party, excepting the mechanics who remained with the planes, motored to North Bay and registered at the Empire Hotel.

About ten o'clock next morning, July 3, the weather cleared and the planes took off for Remi Lake where a landing was made at 1.30 p.m. At this point, the logical and only established air base in northern Ontario for hopping-off purposes in connection with flights to James bay and intermediate posts and locations up the Albany river, the Ontario Provincial Air Force have a comfortable and commodious lodge, an efficient set of officials and an excellent cuisine, financed and operated by the staff itself.

Dr. Mitchell of Sioux Lookout, representing the medical service of the Department of Indian Affairs, joined the party here. Certain equipment, including a "tank" of fly and mosquito spray, was secured and after a restful night the party, with Dr. Mitchell in plane 113, hopped off on Friday, July 4, with a clear sky and a glorious sun, for English River, the first Indian post where treaty money is paid under Treaty No. 9.

This post is at the confluence of several large rivers and the English river, which wends its way about one hundred miles northwards where it empties into the expansive Albany river, this route being the one generally taken by water, travellers to Fort Albany on James Bay from the line, Pagwa on the Transcontinental being the point of embarkation.

ENGLISH RIVER

On leaving Remi the pilots steered a course northerly of and paralleling the railway to Kabinagami and Pagwa rivers, then down the valleys of these serpentine waters to English River post, reached at 11 a.m.

The acquaintance made by the commissioners last year with the genial and hospitable representatives of the trading companies, and with the energetic Anglican clergyman, were renewed. Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5, were spent in paying treaty money and considering certain submissions of interest to the Indians. Addresses were given by the commissioners and the two pilots, whose recitals of their oversea experiences, in the Great War, with courageous Canadian volunteer Indians, were eagerly received. Over one hundred gathered, there being present a number from the Fort Albany band.

Dr. Mitchell urged care and attention to their health and gave them in simple, intelligible language a number of "don'ts." It was gratifying to learn that Chief Faries, an Indian of exceptional interest, reported a very decided respect for law and order, the good counsel sympathetically given by the commissioners last year having been graciously received and faithfully followed.

Saturday, July 5, was impossible flying weather, the order of the day being heavy rains, low-hanging, black clouds, interspersed with sunny spots which were seized by the Treaty party, after formal work was completed, to instruct and entertain the Indians in artful pastime games and amusing tricks. Special mention in this regard should be made of mechanic Gauthier whose wizard tricks, not only at this but at other posts visited, which included the freeing himself from knotted rope entanglements, and modern handcuff bracelets, gave the Indians a real thrill and solid enjoyment and netted Gauthier the sobriquet of "Wendigo."

OGOKI

The inclement weather continued all Saturday night and until noon Sunday, July 6, when a hop-off was made for Ogoki. The visibility was poor and the weather threatening, in consequence of which, along with an unexpected landing on the Albany river below the forks, arrival at Ogoki was delayed until 3.45 p.m.

Good lodging was secured at the home of the Hudson's Bay Company's factor, Mr. Anderson, who with his daughter courteously received the party and eminently supplied its needs.

On Monday, July 7, the commissioners arose at 7 o'clock and immediately after breakfast made payments to one hundred and forty-six Indians. The paymaster made a generous distribution of clothing and certain useful articles to old widows and dependent old men, Dr. Mitchell the while treating those requiring medical attention and dispensing drugs. The work was rushed to completion at 3.30 p.m., and there being a welcomed rift in the cloudy sky the party took for Fort Hope, and reached there at 4.45 p.m.

FORT HOPE

Fort Hope on the Albany river was, up to the year 1912, the most northerly point in the province of Ontario, but the pushing back of the frontier and extending the boundary to the bay has tended somewhat to give this post a modern aspect and with the advent of the aeroplane and the establishment of an air base and a wireless station by the Department of Lands and Forests of Ontario closer communication with the outside world has resulted. Fine buildings have been erected by the Hudson's Bay Company and Revillon Freres. An Anglican Mission is in charge of Rev. J. McDonald, a striking personality, while the school is presided over by his son, John. A Catholic Mission is periodically attended by Rev. Father Couture, O.M.I.

Members of the party were cared for at the trading posts, Mr. Flett, representing the Hudson's Bay Company, and Mr. Souter, Revillon Freres. Two Moth planes of the Ontario Air Force were met here, one in charge of Pilot Swartman from Sioux Lookout, and the other in charge of Pilot McCoy from Caribou.

After the evening meal baseball and horseshoe pitching were temporarily indulged in to the delight and satisfaction of the Indians present. Conferences with the trading companies at night touching on their relationship with the Indians were held.

Early on the following morning, Tuesday, July 8, the commissioners crossed the river to the clean and well prepared Council House on the reserve, where all day until 6 p.m. was devoted to paying treaty money. During payments several pagans, members of this band, appeared and it did not require a very discriminating eye to recognize this type. Less careful in their dress, cleanliness and manners than the Christian Indians they at once appear apart; even in their movements their primitive and unchristian customs are evident. One couple, claiming marriage according to pagan rites, by the great disparity in their ages, he being but 40 years and she over 80 years old, added a zest, if not a sentiment, to the occasion.

Tuesday evening, July 8, Dr. Day of Sioux Lookout arrived to substitute Dr. Mitchell who was called home.

Treaty payments were completed by noon Wednesday, July 9, and in the afternoon over two hundred and fifty Indians assembled on the south side of the river and patiently listened to addresses by Commissioners Cain and Awrey, the former emphasizing the necessity of complying with the fire protection and game laws, and the latter counselling the Indians on the need of thrift and additional display of energy by reason of the limited success in the chase the past year.

During the day the plane officials were busily engaged in making important repairs to plane No. 113, and overhauling the wiring on both. The pontoon of plane 113, while anchored in what was believed a safe zone, was damaged by Indians and half-breeds who were racing in outboard motor canoes, one of which sideswiped the plane and ripped the bumper several inches. For this culpable negligence they were severely censured by Commissioner Cain, an eyewitness of the occurrence.

LANSDOWNE HOUSE

Leaving Fort Hope on Thursday, July 10, at 1.50 p.m. the planes under fair weather proceeded to Lansdowne House about 60 miles due north. This point is situated on Attawapiscat lake, the headwaters of the great river bearing the same name that extends northerly and easterly over three hundred miles to James bay. It was at this point last year where fifty members of the Trout Lake band were enrolled and admitted to treaty, a number of them being present again this year. Commissioner Cain, who through illness last year was not present at the enrollment, desired to check them up and personally vouch for them.

Excepting the Trout Lake Indians mentioned, all those that encamp at Lansdowne House are members of and constitute practically fifty per cent of the Fort Hope band. As a concession to them they were privileged last year to elect from their number two of the four councillors to which the band by law is entitled, the other two being elected at Fort Hope. A request by the Lansdowne Indians to be granted a reserve in the vicinity of this post was refused as a reserve of complementary size had been regularly allotted at Fort Hope years ago, duly surveyed and its approval already recommended in the commissioners' report of 1929.

Dr. Day administered to the Indians on Friday, July 11, while the commissioners paid annuities and considered grievances. In the evening a general gathering took place, the commissioners and the doctor giving the usual admonitions. The Indians cast aside that reserve, more or less a characteristic trait, and freely asked questions pertaining to their welfare and evinced keen interest in the proceedings. After the meeting a short program of sports was run off for the benefit of the Indians, a number of whom, as previously remarked, had been admitted into treaty last year and were expecting some novel entertainment.

The following program of events was merrily disposed of: -

Event	Prize

All the prizes were donated by members of the party and purchased at the stores of the two trading companies.

Inspector Anderson of the Hudson's Bay Company was paying an official visit to the post while a young Mr. Smith had charge of Revillon Freres where the party was housed.

Saturday, July 12, offered very disagreeable weather, rainy, cloudy, windy, the wind having shifted several times during the day and for a long spell holding a velocity of 40 to 50 miles an hour. The air was chilly and the Hudson's Bay blanket in demand at bed time.

OSNABURGH HOUSE

On Sunday morning, July 13, at the first favourable moment the planes started for Osnaburgh on lake Joseph and arrived at 12.40 p.m. This post was the scene last year of the fatal accident to treaty plane WX, which crashed and sank in the lake carrying to his death an employee of the Hudson's Bay Company, one Sandy Morrison, upon whose grave in the little Indian burying ground upon the hill, beside the forlorn and neglected looking church, the commissioners upon arrival placed a wreath of native wild flowers as a silent tribute to Sandy's memory, and a submission to death's inescapable call.

Here was met the new factor of the post, Frank Harvey Aldous, an estimable English gentleman who has faithfully served the Hudson's Bay Company for thirty-five years, and who in less than one year has worked a noticeable transformation in the appearance and arrangement of the post and has radiated amongst the Indians an undeniable influence of cleanliness, neatness and thrift.

Mrs. Caron, another long and highly respected employee, a gracious lady, proved an excellent hostess and splendidly satisfied the most epicurean tastes of the inner man.

For the courtesy, attention and extreme hospitality shown by these officials the commissioners express their gratitude.

Pursuant to the practices of the white man in dealing with Indians under Treaty No. 9, the commissioners declined, though requested by some, to pay annuities on Sunday, but met the Indian worshippers on their reserve on the south side of the river and with Dr. Day delivered addresses applicable to Sunday service.

All day Monday, July 14, bad weather conditions limited the work to individual interviews and prevented the planes from proceeding to Sioux Lookout, where electrical overhauling of engines and the purchase of supplies were necessary.

During the morning of Tuesday, July 15, Commissioner Cain assisted Paymaster Awrey in paying annuities and determining cases submitted by the Indian Chief.

SIoux LOOKOUT

At noon the planes with Commissioner Cain left for Sioux Lookout, landing at the provincial air base within one and a half hours. Needed adjustments were made to the planes and certain replacement parts, sent from Ottawa at radio request of Officer Harding while at Fort Hope, were obtained. The night was spent in Sioux Lookout where Commissioner Cain purchased essential provisions to tide the party over its prospective and uncertain trips to Nikip and Sandy lakes in the interior and western portions of the Patricia District.

A heavy storm occurred at Sioux Lookout and a take-off was deferred until 2 p.m. Wednesday, July 16. Dr. J. O'Gorman, in substitution for Dr. Day called home, returned with the party to Osnaburgh House.

During the absence of the planes at Sioux Lookout Paymaster Awrey finished payments at Osnaburgh where Dr. O'Gorman upon arrival proceeded to the dispensary, conveniently provided by Mr. Aldous, and busily engaged himself until dark.

The next two points of call, Wendigo river, where it empties into Nikip lake, and Sandy Lake Narrows, had given the commissioners some concern. Nikip Lake was the fortuitous meeting place last year of the representatives of an Indian band with Commissioner Cain, whose forced landing due to diminished gas supply attracted the Indians encamped on the opposite side of the lake, about eight miles distant. The details of such meeting are recorded in the commissioners' report of last year.

These non-treaty Indians, supposed members of the Trout Lake band, had failed to appear for enrolment at Trout Lake in 1929, and while Commissioner Cain had advised them to report this year at Trout Lake it was subsequently deemed advisable for their tranquility of mind and future happiness to aggregate them into a separate and distinct band, meet them at a given spot, their own encampment, duly admit them to treaty and allocate them a reserve at the site tentatively selected last year by the Commissioners, or at such other one satisfactory to them, and to this end the commissioners had to direct themselves.

Added also to the agenda for 1930 was the question of providing a reserve for the Deer Lake Indians who are subject to Treaty No. 5 though resident at Sandy Lake, Northeast of Wendigo river and near the Manitoba boundary.

As the exact locations of these two Indian encampments were unknown to the pilots, and the supply of gas was a determining factor, it was decided to go to Wendigo via Kapikik, the most northerly air and radio base in Ontario, ideally appointed from both a practical and aesthetic point of view, and there refuel and notify Ottawa of intentions as the following three weeks would take the party out of further touch with the outside world.

Osnaburgh was left on Thursday morning, July 17, and Kapikik reached at 11.35. After refuelling a dead calmness prevented a rising and all luggage, except emergency rations and the money bag, was unloaded and deposited on the sandy beach for a return trip. Thus lightened the planes took the air and succeeded in picking out and arriving at the Indian encampment on the west side of the Wendigo river, about one-half mile above the point of its entry in Nikip lake, at 4.10 p.m. After a hurried lunch the crew left for Kapikik again to secure the luggage and then to proceed to Trout Lake to remove uncertainties of fuel supplies at that post.

WENDIGO RIVER AT NIKIP

The Hudson's Bay Company, through its outpost factor of Cedar Lake, John Wesley, prepared an office in the form of a new tent, 10 feet by 8 feet, for the commissioners, where the Adhesion was signed and the Indians enrolled. Two additional tents met the dormitory requirements, while an improvised table of rough logs and hewn pieces of spruce, supplemented by a rickety bench for adornment rather than practical purposes, satisfied refectory needs. That night all the Indians, 176 in number, headed by their chief, were summoned and addressed by the commissioners, who fully explained the purpose of their coming and sought the reason for the non-appearance of these Indians at Trout Lake last year. Desired band independence and traditional respect for the counsel of their former chief, now deceased, who urged them not to go that distance until treaty contract was made but rely on the Government's sympathy for and interest in them, accounted for their absence.

As these Indians with their squaws and papooses squatted around they presented a picture, in comparison with other bands, of unkempt, ill-clothed, rather penurious and distressed people. Their appearance indicated limited success in the hunt during the past year and their enrolment as wards of the Government should conduce to their improvement. Notwithstanding their seemingly underprivileged conditions their health was above the average, in which connection it is worthy of note that of all those appearing before Dr. O'Gorman for treatment not one was found with a tooth cavity, thanks presumably to the lack of sugar and sweet-meats.

In some respects these Indians are located at a point which is the most inaccessible of any Indian post in the province. To bring in supplies from the line involves a return trip by canoe of twenty to twenty-five days-the route being via Bucke on the Transcontinental and Osnaburgh on lake Joseph. A free trader from Osnaburgh occupied twenty-one days, making fifty-one portages, in coming to the post at treaty time to dispose of a few hundred dollars worth of goods.

Flour at 40 cents a pound, tea at $1.25, pork at 70 cents, rice at 40 cents, and other staple articles usually used for table purposes by the white man, are proportionately high and if the hunt is poor and the fish scarce the Indians must necessarily restrict their requirements and depend upon the trading companies for their rations or grub staking.

The commissioners adopted the same method taken last year at Trout Lake and had the band select from their number certain leaders. Six met the commissioners in the "Administration Hall" on Thursday night, July 17, and for several hours discussed the terms and conditions of Treaty No. 9, to which they desired admittance.

The commissioners, after a thorough explanation of the treaty was given, urged the leaders to present the case to the entire band and not to agree to a single proposition unless it was clearly understood, since it was the desire of the King's representatives to report understanding and unanimity amongst the Indians. John Wesley, whom they knew well and in whom they had confidence, acted as interpreter and being a graduate of the Winnipeg Indian school was quite competent.

Next morning, Friday, July 18, the leaders again met the commissioners and submitted many questions which were fully answered, after which they intimated readiness to sign the Adhesion. The Indians manifested the keenest interest in the mounted map used by the commissioners, and which was hung upon the flag pole of the "office."

The commissioners first signed, followed by the leaders - Apin Kakepeness, Jonas Wasakimik, Samuel Sawanis, John Quequish, Patrick Kakekayash and Senia Sakchekapow - each of whom used the Indian syllabics. The signing was witnessed by Dr. O'Gorman and John Wesley and a snap shot of the occurrence, showing the signing table with the chief by the side, forms part of this report.

The entire band, numbering 176, were then enrolled, all Indians personally appearing with their wives and families. The names and ages of all were recorded and payments of gratuity and annuity made. No less than seventeen widows were enrolled, ten per cent of the whole band. While certain gewgaw articles, such as cheap rings, to satisfy the curiosity and primitive fastidiousness of the squaw, comprised part of the purchases of the Indians from the traders, the large percentage covered the essential ones of food and clothing.

So far removed from the line are these Indians that many of them have seen but few white men. No itinerant missionary visits this encampment, although there is a simple building of rough logs, with roof partly covered with crumpled tar paper, used for Christian service, two lay Indian Gospel readers taking charge. The splendid framework of a large church had been constructed out of hand cut logs but the reserve for the band having been chosen elsewhere the building may not now be completed. The Anglican missionary, Rev. Mr. Garrett of Trout Lake, visits Weaagamow Lake, a day's journey from Wendigo, annually and some of these Indians attend Service there.

To these simple Christian people, solely dependent upon their aboriginal vocation, the chase, for their existence, the seaplane, the great "flying bird," was a source of interest. Even after feeling and examining it and observing it come through the air they were incredulous, concluding as it lay there - inanimate, like unto the bird that so often falls a victim to their aim, that it could never take on life again.

Up to the signing of the Adhesion, while claiming certain allegiance to the Trout Lakers, they were generally designated Wendigo and Round Lake Indians, but owing to the levity and humorous contempt in which the word "Wendigo" (Wandering Spirit) is regarded by the other bands within this expansive territory, and to the fact that Round Lake is not their summer rendezvous, they chose the name "Caribou Lake," where they selected their reserve, it being two days' travel eastward from their Wendigo encampment.

According to custom the Indians were given a feast, sufficient supplies such as flour, tea, lard, etc. having been procured from the Hudson's Bay Company. The men and boys, contrary to the expectations of the white men, made the bannocks for the feast, which consisted of these palatable cakes with fat pork juice and lard, tea and candies, all being spread before the squatting band upon the green sward, several of their leaders acting as hosts and standing with bowed heads in the offering of grace before partaking of the viands set before them

Elections were held and resulted in Apin Kakepeness being chosen chief and Samuel Sawanis and Senia Sakechekopow, councillors. The elected chief was the Indian who met Commissioner Cain last year, and proved such an enigma. Possessed of an attenuated frame and melancholy face he viewed everything, and surrounded himself with a veil of apparent mystery, not penetrated even by the enthusiasm of his followers, all of whom, including the children, congratulated him by shaking his hand.

The new council were presented with the Union Jack and appropriate medals, the significance of these having been explained by the commissioners.

Realizing the importance of a reserve they had carefully discussed the subject amongst themselves prior to the commissioners' arrival. Based upon their aggregate membership they are entitled to 35 1/4 square miles, which, with the approval of the commissioners, they selected on the south shore of Caribou lake, slightly to the left or west end, so that ample frontage of a somewhat extended bay will be included, the dimensions to approximate 8 miles in length by 4.4 miles in width.

The commissioners and the doctor concluded their work on Friday evening and patiently awaited the return of the planes which, however, did not appear on the horizon until Saturday, July 19, at 8.10 p.m. On arrival the pilots reported a safe landing at Kapikik on Thursday evening, impossible flying weather on Friday, a take-off on Saturday for Cat Lake for refuelling purposes, thence northeast to Trout Lake to investigate gas cache. Here to their amazement, and to the possible frustrating of plans, they found over eighty per cent of the R.C.A.F. gas, that had at extreme cost been freighted from Hudson bay up the Severn river 250 miles, a total loss through leakage, due to faulty packing. This criminal negligence involving such a loss, and placing pilots and passengers in grave situations, forced the relaying of gas from Cat Lake, a distance of 175 miles, and it was on the trip down from Trout Lake on Saturday they called at Wendigo with certain luggage and camera supplies of the commissioners, having left the mechanics at Trout Lake to reduce the load. Darkness setting in earlier than usual at Wendigo, the hop-off for Cat Lake was deferred until Sunday morning at 6 o'clock. The planes returned at 5.15 p.m. the same day, but because of the unpropitious weather, and the indefinite description of the next stopping point on elongated Sandy Lake, the trip there was left for Monday.

A band of Indians residing in the vicinity of Deer Lake within the territory included in Treaty. No. 5, signed Adhesion to said treaty on June 9, 1910, and under its conditions were assured a reserve in the proportion of 32 acres per capita. At this time the territory formed no part of the province of Ontario, it being then part of the Northwest Territories. A final selection of the reserve had not been made and although the band in 1910 resided in the vicinity of Deer Lake the members have since changed their abode and are now in larger numbers resident about Sandy Lake, situate within territory covered by the commission under which the undersigned commissioners are functioning.

In 1910 when this band was admitted they numbered 95, augmented the year following by 78 Indians transferred from the Indian Lake band resident in Manitoba. These numbers have now increased to 332 and as the Island Lake Indians have been allotted their reserve, and have had it duly surveyed on a basis excluding those transferred to the Deer Lake band, the latter are now entitled to a grant.

Under the Ontario Boundaries Extension Act, R.S.O. 1912, chapter 40, provision is made whereby Ontario will recognize the rights of the Indian inhabitants in the territory added to and now included in the province by the said Act. These Deer Lake Indians resident in such added territory desired their reserve.

In pursuance, therefore, of an appointment made by the commissioners to meet representatives of this band at an indefinitely described point towards the west end of Sandy lake, the planes took off from Wendigo at 7 a.m. on Monday, July 21, John Wesley, as interpreter, accompanying the party.

SANDY LAKE NARROWS

The distance being less than anticipated and the waterways somewhat different in size and shape from those shown on maps the encampment was reached in about one hour and was found situated at the "Narrows," a stretch of water lying between Sandy lake and lake Oo-pe-te-quah (little, short, squatty, woman). The entire band had been waiting for some days for the treaty party but the majority had left, shortly before the arrival of the commissioners, for Deer Lake where they receive their annuities under Treaty No. 5.

About 75, headed by their striking looking Chief Fiddler, arrayed in his official uniform with his large medal bearing the impression of the late King Edward VII, his prized insignia, presented their claims. The chief predicated his submission by asserting his intention to speak the truth and humbly petition the King, through the commissioners, to grant his people their belated reserve at the very site where the white men then stood with the red men.

The chief briefly reviewed the circumstances above recited and the commissioners concurred in the site selected but explained that the size could not be determined until an examination of the regular annual returns at Ottawa would satisfy the commissioners that their members transferred from the Indian Lake band were not already beneficiaries under any other reserve selection. Expressing the utmost confidence in the commissioners the Indians were assured that justice in respect of their reserve would no longer be deferred.

Having regard for the number in the band, some 332, verified by official records, the commissioners hereby approve of a reserve at this point, the Narrows, consisting of 10,624 acres, or approximately 17 square miles, to be laid out in a rectangle having a width of at least 3 miles with sufficient depth to satisfy the aggregate requirements, the understanding being that the chief, or his nominee, shall be present at the time of survey to indicate on the ground the location desired.

With rousing cheers from the Indians the commissioners said "Adieu," hopped into the planes and with the advantage of a tail wind returned to Wendigo in forty minutes.

John Wesley left for Cedar Lake by canoe and the planes loading up with part of the gas relayed from Cat Lake started for Trout Lake and arrived at 3.30 p.m.

TROUT LAKE

The commissioners, learning of the illness of Chief Beady of the Trout Lake band, immediately called upon him and extended sympathy. The Indians here wholeheartedly as last year received the party. Rev. Mr. Garrett and Mrs. Garrett, of the Anglican Mission, graciously received the commissioners with an invitation to be their guests during their stay at the post, which was reluctantly declined as reservations had already been made at the Hudson's Bay Company.

The new factor is J.F. Kighley, an energetic, genial and capable official, having as his clerk Horace Flett, son of the Fort Hope factor. The company have extended their improvements by the erection of new buildings, including an enlarged store, while the Indians have several small houses for occupancy in the summer. Several patches of potatoes were being cultivated by the Indians, the clay soil being rich and productive. The fine garden of vegetables at the company's house should be an encouragement to the Indians to cultivate the soil. A pit saw owned by the company and operated by two industrious Indians supplied building needs at the post.

Tuesday and Wednesday, July 22 and 23, were devoted to paying annuities, holding conferences, with the chief and councillors and enrolling a few delinquents from last year. The total number paid was 638. Twenty births and sixteen deaths occurred during the year. The health of the band was found by Dr. O'Gorman to be very good and apart from tubercular tendencies, more or less characteristic of the race, no pronounced organic troubles were found. The commissioners wish to emphasize the impression gained last year on admitting these Indians to treaty, that is, they evince in the main an intelligence and radiate an exultant joy of life that if existent in any other band met on the trip is obscured by a native stoicism and excusable indifference. The Indians challenged the whites to a football game, itching to revenge the defeat they suffered last year, but the tiring rains intervened and shattered their hopes.

Trout Lake Post was opened by the Hudson's Bay Company in the year 1793 and the barter in furs still continues with these Indians, numbering 638, of whom 627 were enrolled last year and 9 this year, with a natural increase of only 2. Fifty of them usually make Lansdowne House their camping grounds where they are paid with members of the Fort Hope band.

A feast, postponed last year due to the lack of supplies, was provided by the commissioners but the distressing rainy weather centred the preparations in the chief's scantily furnished log dwelling, which served as the "historical hall" last year, and thus the pristine glory and native glamour of outdoor open camp fire and teepee bakings were absent, although the enjoyment in partaking of the unusual delicacies was undiminished.

The Indians exercised certain concern regarding the survey of their reserves, three in number, selected last year, the fourth descending now to the Lake Caribou band, who selected it at Caribou Lake rather than at Round Lake where it had been recommended by the Trout Lake Council and tentatively accepted by the commissioners. Last year the non-appearance of the Wendigo and Round Lake Indians (now Lake Caribou Indians) resulted in an arrangement by which their reserve was to be the difference between the aggregate area to which the whole band was entitled and the area of the three reserves selected and referred to in the commissioners' report of last year. However, when these were selected the subsequent enrolment of fifty members at Lansdowne House was not anticipated, and consequently the area covered by the complete allotments was less than the band is entitled to under the treaty.

On an enrolment of 627 the band should obtain 125.4 square miles, or 14.4 square miles in excess of last year's allotment. To obtain this means an enlargement of Reserve 1, Trout Lake, from 70 square miles to 84.4 square miles, covered in the summary of this report.

Through an error the dimensions given in last year's report for Reserve 2, Sachigo, were incorrect, although the area, 14 square miles, was correct. These dimensions are now amended so that the block shall be 32 miles wide by 4 miles long. A rough description pending final survey is included in the summarized recommendations contained herein.

To allay the evident anxiety of the Trout Lake Indians respecting their reserves the commissioners gave them verbal assurance that a strong recommendation would be made for the taking of early adequate measures to have the areas approved and duly surveyed.

The commissioners visited the Anglican Mission school over which the painstaking Mr. Garrett presides, inspected over one hundred Indian children, listened to their splendid singing and freely paid tribute to the pupils and teacher on their remarkable showing. With only a few school weeks each year to their credit these Indian children show a keenness to learn and respond readily to the efforts of the teacher.

FORT SEVERN

Work at Trout Lake was finished at 11 a.m. on Thursday, July 24, when the party sought the air route once more and headed for the first Hudson bay objective, Fort Severn, down the Severn river 180 miles by air from Trout Lake, and over 250 miles by canoe. This post was circled at 12.50 p.m. and the party for the first time gazed from an elevation of five thousand feet upon the great inland sea that sweeps the northern shores and affords the Hudson's Bay Company access to lonely posts, including Fort Severn, it had established and in active operation in the latter part of the 17th century when the Bourbon Kings were trying to plant the Fleur-de-lis in the western wilds.

The post is on the west side of the river about four miles from where it empties into the Hudson bay. The few buildings erected, including the inevitable store, freight shed, factor's residence and small log houses that shelter the limited employees, are placed on level ground back some distance from the bank which rises thirty to forty feet from the water's edge. Accommodation was secured at the company's house, the factor being George Third, a competent and experienced official with an obliging clerk Henry Mann. The only other white man here is Harold Bland, a former employee of sixteen years' standing with the company, now a trader in his own right.

Dinner was served within an hour after arrival and consisted in part of young duck, a delicacy much appreciated by the partakers whose absence from the freshness of things for some time made the offering the more acceptable.

The weather being rainy and stormy the Indians were asked to assemble on the morrow. At nine o'clock Friday, July 25, some seventy-five, the entire membership, selected their leaders, three in number, George Bluecoat, Mumzie Albany and Saul Crow. Charlie Gray, a half-breed, acted as interpreter.

In the early stages of their conference with the commissioners the Indians under their natural restraint, or childish reserve in the presence of white men, displayed some hesitancy but gradually on realizing that the commissioners were present as friends to give that which they asked they took on an air of responsiveness and freely talked. A frank expression of ideas and opinions was exchanged, and the Indians who showed an understanding of Treaty No. 9 were satisfied with the points presented and retired for final instructions from the other members, who gave the leaders general direction to accept Adhesion. The official document was signed by the commissioners and the leaders and witnessed by all the members of the Treaty party and George Third, H.F. Bland and Henry J. Mann.

Seventy-five were then enrolled, these comprising 15 men, 15 women, 22 boys and 23 girls. Each was paid $4 gratuity and $4 annuity.

At the elections, following payments, George Bluecoat was elected chief and Mumzie Albany councillor, and to each was given a medal. The Union Jack was unfurled and accepted by the chief as a symbol of "law, order, peace and protection."

Their reserve, containing 15.2 square miles, was, with the approval of the commissioners, after due consideration, selected at the mouth of the Beaverstone river, where it joins the Severn river, and is to have a frontage of 1.5 miles on each side of the Beaverstone and a depth of 5 miles more or less from its mouth, the river being shown on map No. 20a, issued in 1926 by the province of Ontario, as Beaverstone, although it is called "Castorum" by the Hudson's Bay Company and "We-ke-mow" by the Indians.

The accustomed feast was provided and their "table" display was more palatable in appearance than that observed in certain other bands.

The hunt during the season just closed was nearly equal to that of the previous one, the predominant skins being beaver and otter. White fox, of which there has been a decided scarcity for several seasons, is again appearing and prospects for a good return are bright.

Goods at this point, because of lower transportation charges, are much less than at Trout Lake, flour for instance being only $20 a cwt. as against $38 at the inland post. Lake trout and whitefish are available, though not in abundance, at high tide. They generally follow the ice and go with the spring freshets to the bay, returning the last of September and October to the upper stretches of the river, their spawning beds. This trekking movement accounts for the obvious scarcity of fresh fish during the period of summer encampment. Speckled trout are procurable in certain fresh water streams a few miles from the post.

Commercial communication of Fort Severn with the outside world is by schooner of the Hudson's Bay Company, which calls twice a year. The Fort York from Churchill was eagerly awaited at treaty time but did not materialize - neither an outlook perched upon the roof of the factor's house, nor a scanning from the departing planes, having sighted the longed for cargo carrier.

Friday evening, July 25, saw the completion of work and early Saturday morning was fixed for a take-off to Winisk. Low tides prevented this, the planes being high and dry at the appointed time. They had been tied to shore due to the unsafe anchorage in deep water where the slippery clay bottom failed to hold the light anchors of the planes. Tides and variable winds are two important factors demanding the attention of airmen, who contemplate the use of Fort Severn as a port of call. Timely action on the part of the crew averted a serious mishap to one of the planes that had, with the outgoing tide urged by a wind, drifted from its anchorage down towards the mouth of the river.

Bad weather detained the party until Sunday, July 27, at 3.20 p.m. Pushing off for Winisk the planes skirted the southern shores of Hudson bay, the approach to which is a low-lying flat muskeg area, the last wash of myriads of streams and important large rivers draining extensive sections of the Patricia portion of the District of Kenora.

Countless wild ducks, several white whales and distant ice floes, were visible from the planes. Poor visibility and an approaching dense fog somewhat disconcerted the pilots after forty minutes of flying. As the fog thickened and lowered the planes were lost to the view of each other and an unusually low altitude was taken. An east wind speedily forced the fog into the face of the planes, now completely enveloped. A forced landing on the Winisk river near its mouth was decided upon and while the pilots had limited facts of the hazardous landing conditions certain data accompanied by a map had been obtained at Fort Severn and considered authentic enough to support an even chance on choosing this, in an emergency, as a safe alternative landing spot. To have waited another minute in the case of plane 113, and likewise 114, would have been flirting with grave danger, if not death, and Flight Lieutenant Harding turned the plane's nose into the terrifying fog up the river and somewhat jarringly though safely landed at the foot of long, flat rapids, the occupants of the plane expressing keen anxiety concerning their companions lost to view for some time. But within three minutes the fog was again pierced and down bolted 114, in a similar fashion, to a point perilously near 113. At that moment the flood gates of heaven opened and a lashing wind set up. As the fog lifted and the downpour lessened, only to be repeated with double force and fury a few minutes later, an opening in the fog between the points of two islands occurred and the party with a sigh of relief discerned, dimly silhouetted in the background on the mainland a few miles up the river, beyond the rapids, the little cross topped Catholic Mission and the flag-tipped official residence of the Hudson's Bay Company.

On the left were faint outlines of teepees from which there shortly issued several agile Indian braves who though never having seen nor heard the flying fire canoe were aroused by the swish of the air paddle, the whirr of the motor, and rushing down the sticky, slippery, slimy clay banks, leaped into their responsive transports, with their trusty blades, long spruce poles and tracking ropes, and were soon shooting the rapids to satisfy a keen longing to gaze on the expected flying machines and to appease their minds troubled by the thought that a landing at this location spelt disaster.

These Winisk Indians were joyfully welcomed by the commissioners, who with Dr. O'Gorman were paddled, poled and tracked up the treacherous rapids some four miles to the looked for post. The company's factor, John Harris, courteously received the Government officials and accorded all carte blanche possession of his tidy though restricted quarters. It was he who had mapped out a landing course and planted buoys for safe anchorage and take-off for sea planes about five miles above the post, which site later on the pilots were forced to use and record as the only safe one for this post.

Winisk post presents a dreary and depressing picture, situated as it is in a lonely position on the west bank of the Winisk river about four miles south of Hudson bay. This river takes its rise within a few miles of the headwaters of the Attawapiscat river and flows northerly and easterly three hundred miles into Hudson bay; like other rivers flowing into the bay it is subject to tidal conditions and has at its mouth a series of deltas that are being annually transformed. The clay soil with the constant lashing of the tidal waters and the recurring spring floods produces a handicap to shore activities.

The approach to the post both from up and down the river is via rapids navigated with difficulty only by the primitive though indispensable canoe.

Early Monday morning, July 28, the commissioners summoned the Indians, 85 in all, and hoped to conclude the work in order to take off on Tuesday. The band chose three leaders to act in treaty negotiations, Xavier Patrick, John Bird and David Sutherland. The interpreters were Rev. Father Martel and William Oman. These Indians possessed more knowledge of the terms and conditions of Treaty No. 9 than many members of other bands who had been admitted twenty-five years ago, and consequently discussions were shorter and explanations fewer. When the commissioners attempted to elucidate a certain point they were met by the interruption politely made, "We know perfectly all about this treaty."

Adhesion was readily signed by the contracting parties, the commissioners first and leaders second, followed by the witnesses, Rev. L.P. Martel, O.M.I., J. Thos. O'Gorman, M.D., John Harris, Hudson's Bay Company, and R.T. Wheeler, Clerk.

Elections resulted in Xavier Patrick as chief and David Sutherland, councillor. Dr. O'Gorman presented the Union Jack to the chief, appropriately explaining its significance, and the commissioners pinned upon the elected ones their medals and counselled them in divers matters.

A feast of ample proportions was tendered them but before partaking, these humble teepee inhabitants, with a Christian faith, approached the missionary requesting that they gather in God's Name and thank Him for all His goodness and seek His blessing.

Although poor in appearance and limited in possessions they did not complain. They found their means of sustenance while camping at this forlorn post sorely restricted. Fish was scarce, provisions were not in plenty and the general condition of the Indians demanded their early return to the bush where they could gain a livelihood.

A reserve, comprising 17 square miles, was selected at the old abandoned outpost of the Hudson's Bay Company up the Winisk river at its junction with what is known as the Asheweig river. This old outpost was formerly called "Sousahagen," by which name the Indians now identify Asheweig river.

The reserve shall be so laid out as to comprise a width of three miles, or 1 1/2 miles on each side of the west branch of the Asheweig river where it empties into or joins the Winisk river, and to follow along both sides of the Asheweig river to a sufficient depth, approximating 5.66 miles, to afford a total area of 17 square miles. While the reserve is 150 miles from the post it was chosen, as claimed by the Indians, because it is said to be a well wooded and good hunting section.

All day Tuesday, July 29, torrential rains fell, filling to overflowing the conglomerate holes of the boggy flat about the post which offers a haven to the wearied Indian trader. Black, low-hung clouds encircled the high heavens and Old Sol himself seemed to have forgotten the powers of penetration, while the term "visibility" was lost from the airman's vocabulary. To fly on such a day was impossible and the morrow offered but a faint hope for improvement as was indicated by Rev. Father Martel.

This missionary's humble bearing and quiet assurance greatly impressed the official party. From the moment of his greeting until his "au revoir" he was a human barometer predicting the weather, approximate or remote, with an uncanny exactitude. His philosophy, ripened by years of experience, and instinctive powers unostentatiously exercised, to discern and disclose the secrets of the elements, are of incalculable value to those who travel by paddle or plane. For the magnanimous treatment he accorded the party and the important data he so generously furnished the commissioners record their thanks.

On Wednesday, July 30, at 11.45 a.m., the party left the post for the planes below the rapids but found them high and dry upon the beach supposed to be unaffected by the tides. Slight repairs to the screws in the pontoons were undertaken and after exhausting efforts the crew, assisted by Indians, released and floated the planes in the hope of getting the advantage of a break in the weather for the trip to Attawapiscat on James bay. Unfortunately in the attempt to take-off from these waters, safe in appearance though treacherous in reality, damage was done to the pontoon of plane 113 and a delay of another day ensued. All luggage was unloaded and taken by canoe ten miles up stream to the safe anchorage previously selected by Mr. Harris. Repairs under the most adverse conditions were completed by Thursday night when the planes took off for the Harris buoys where they tied up for the night, another rainy one.

On Friday, August 1, at 8 a.m., the whole party, except the mechanics, who tented on the shore near the planes, left by canoe and occupied two and a half hours in reaching the machines, although the distance is about five miles, the intervening rapids requiring stiff paddling, poling and tracking.

A start for Attawapiscat was made at 11.45. A coastal course by the Hudson bay around cape Henrietta, and then down the west shore of James bay, as originally intended, was abandoned because of the hazardous fogs about the cape, where it was learned that up to the middle of August the ice packs render flying most uncertain. A cross-country flight was substituted and after about three hours over country, much of which was terrifying from the viewpoint of a possible forced landing, Attawapiscat was reached.

ATTAWAPISCAT

This post, situated at the mouth of the Attawapiscat river, has, like other James bay posts on the west side, the appearance of a modern community with its long line of coastal buildings, including those of the two trading companies, and the Anglican and Catholic Missions with the framework of a pretentious new church. An unique sawmill is operated by the lay brothers of the Catholic mission on a dual power system of gasoline and steam, this mill being the most northerly in the province of Ontario and used exclusively for the cutting of lumber for church purposes.

Rev. Father Belleau and his assistant, Father Langlois, ever solicitous for the welfare of the Indians, wholeheartedly co-operated with the commissioners.

The Attawapiscat Indians, formerly members of the Albany band, were detached from the latter and aggregated into a separate band at treaty payment last year. The number in all is 583, but of these only 100 met the commissioners, the others having decamped for their hunting grounds prior to the belated arrival of the planes.

Their chief, Xavier Chookomoolin, with the three councillors, Jacob Chookomoolin, Jacob Gull and John Nakooche, remained to receive the annuities for the absentees and to discuss the question of the selection of a reserve.

Commissioner Cain joined with Paymaster Awrey in paying annuities all day and at night conferred with the Indians on the reserve question, the determination of which, both in respect of its size and location, as indicated in the report of last year, was deferred until this year.

When Treaty No. 9 was signed the Albany band was admitted and a reserve, based upon the numbers then enrolled, 140 square miles, was selected at the mouth of the Albany river, duly surveyed by O.L.S. James S. Dobie, and shown on plan dated April 12, 1913, but never approved by the Ontario Government. The present membership of the Albany band (which excludes the Attawapiscat Indians formerly of the Albany band) is 688 and on an accurate mathematical basis they are entitled to 137.6 square miles, whereas the reserve they already hold, and over which they have exercised ownership, contains as above stated 140 square miles.

After mature consideration the commissioners deemed it advisable and in the interests, both of the Indians and the Crown, that such reserve remain intact and that the area to be allotted to the Attawapiscat band constitute the difference between the aggregate allotment to which both bands are entitled and the 140 square miles. The total membership of the two bands is 1,222, which, on the basis of one square mile for each family of five, is equivalent to 244.4 square miles, and this reduced by 140 square miles is 104.4 square miles, the size of the reserve allocated to the Attawapiscat band, or only two and a fifth square miles less than the exact mathematical requirement.

The Attawapiscat Indians accepted the arrangement with evident satisfaction and expressed thanks for the sympathy with which their requests were considered.

The reserve was selected at the junction of the Little Eqwan river and the main Eqwan river to start about 4 1/2 miles west of the said Junction and to consist of a block 6 miles wide and 17.4 miles long, extending down the main Eqwan and as far as possible including 3 miles on each side thereof. This inland site was justified by the Indians' contention, vouchsafed by others, that the coast trapping restricted mostly to foxes, had been lamentably diminishing during late years and the selected area would afford mixed trapping, good fishing and a centralized meeting point for the much scattered members.

Many questions, beyond the purview of the commissioners were presented, and while a sympathetic hearing was given the Indians they were referred to the resident Indian agent, Dr. Hamilton of Moose Factory, who had already paid the band an official visit and contemplated another at an early date.

The post factors, Mr. Ambrose and Mr. Graham, extended the usual courtesies to the party.

The elimination of so many individual annuity payments by making them through the chief and councillors, and the use of these representatives as the sole medium through which the reserve decision was reached, saved two days here and the work was completed on Saturday night, August 2.

Following church service on Sunday, August 3, the planes hopped off for Fort Albany and arrived there in less than an hour.

FORT ALBANY

The commissioners and Dr. O'Gorman registered at the Hudson's Bay Company, and the crew at Revillon Freres, Mr. Watt being the capable factor at the former and Mr. Horne at the latter.

The spiritual welfare of the Indians is amply provided for by the Anglican and Roman Catholic Missions. Rev. Mr. Northam, who last year was seriously ill and had to be transported by treaty plane to Sudbury for successful hospital treatment, warmly received the commissioners and during their stay at the post gave a delightful entertainment in the school house for the Indians and members of the party. By lantern slides and movie pictures he depicted "The Epic Indian Treaty Party Trip of 1929," and gave evidence of his whole-souled interest in his work.

The Roman Catholic Fathers, Belledeau and Decaire, are in charge of a large Indian school and have a convenient church and other substantial buildings. Due to spring floods their school and mission houses were flooded to the tops of the lower stories in 1928, and in constant dread of a recurrence the fathers have undertaken the erection of a more commodious school in addition to hospital and farm buildings up the river on the opposite side, about four miles, on higher and more dependable ground. Here they have a creditable sawmill and have completed a cement foundation for the new school, 100 feet by 40 feet, and an addition for a hospital 40 feet by 40 feet. They are methodically proceeding towards the establishment of an industrial farm, where they hope in due time to train the Indian youths in the art of producing for self preservation.

The commissioners were grateful guests at a splendid dinner at the mission where fine green vegetables from the mission's garden, and beautiful fresh milk from the first cows seen on the trip, were served.

On August 4 over four hundred Indians were paid and hearings given to many concerning matters within the domain of the resident Indian agent. The same plaintive tones as heard at most of the posts were poured out here, that the hunt was poor, the fish scarce, and earning a living hard. Appeals for relief measures had been previously investigated and provided for by Dr. Hamilton.

The program at Fort Albany was concluded late Monday night and on the following morning, August 5, after waiting until 11 o'clock for a clear sky, the machines hopped off and, with a favourable wind, in fifty minutes reached Moose Factory, the last port of call, at the bottom of the bay.

MOOSE FACTORY

Moose Factory and Fort Albany have a wealth of history and tradition behind them. Captured and recaptured in the latter part of the 17th Century, in the hectic struggle between the English and French, these posts remain sturdy examples of the great business venture undertaken in 1670 and carried on for over two hundred and fifty years by the great Hudson's Bay Company, whose history is replete with romance, adventure and mystery, and whose extending ramifications in diverse departments of the economic world are traceable to their original trading with the Indians.

The prominence of Moose Factory, hitherto largely related to the fur trade and the company, is now being accentuated and made permanent. It is the proposed terminus of the extension to the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, a provincially owned and operated railway, the extension of which will be completed within a year.

The commodious buildings of the Hudson's Bay Company are situated on Moose island, extending along the bank of the river for a mile or more, with the Anglican church and Indian school at the upper end. In charge of this mission is Rev. James Blackburn, B.A., recently installed. His experience amongst and association with the Indians of Western Canada serve him splendidly. He showed a kindly interest in the visit of the treaty party and attended in person at treaty payments. Although there is no Catholic Mission here a worthy representative of the Oblate Fathers was met in the person of Rev. J.E. Saindon, who is general director of all the Order missions on the bay.

Revillon Freres have their post on the mainland of the main branch of the Moose river, their buildings paralleling the shore line back about 150 feet for over half a mile.

Law and order are preserved: the very presence of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police conduces towards a healthy respect for all that is fair and just.

The appointment by the Department of Indian Affairs of a resident Indian agent, a medical man of many years' standing, was a commendable one, and will in the opinion of the commissioners offer a solution for many of the Indian problems arising in and about James bay that are difficult to understand, much less solve, at such long range as is the capital from the scene of wholesale, if not always wholesome, demands. The Indians consider the appointment not merely a gallant gesture but a practical step in studying their needs at first hand. The boat furnished for the Agent's use receives the highest praise and is expected in process of time to have an important effect for good upon the morale of the Government wards.

Tuesday afternoon, August 5, and Wednesday morning, August 6, were spent in paying annuities to the band members whose total registration is 360, a number of whom receive payments at other points whither they wander, some in search of work, others through a desire for shifting scenes, and a percentage to taste of the fruits of older civilization.

The developments during and resulting from the building of the railway to this historic post will, it is hoped, provide opportunities, to such of the Indians as are willing and industrious, of earning their livelihood and of gaining an independence which of late, due to the diminishing game in their narrowed area, is impossible.

By becoming virtually an inland seaport Moose Factory, with its prospective tourist and summer trade and the contemplated extensive construction work covered by the expanding program of the Ontario Government, will afford openings for the dexterous canoe man, the ready guide and the tourist's handy man.

An inspection of the Indian agent's boat, and a cruise of two hours in company with Dr. Hamilton, occupied the time of the commissioners until five o'clock when the party resumed its journey to Remi lake, which was reached in less than two hours on the evening of Wednesday, August 6, just two days behind the original schedule.

On Thursday, August 6, needed repairs to the engines were made by the mechanics, assisted by another member of the Royal Air Force, who fortunately was attached to the photographic planes operating in this region and temporarily stationed at Remi Lake. Friday morning, August 8, the planes took off for Trout Lake near North Bay, and, with floating mists at times harassing and low visibility, landed about noon. Immediately after dinner the party, excepting Commissioner Cain, moved off for Ottawa Air Port at Rockcliffe, and arrived the same afternoon, Commissioner Cain in the meantime having crossed Trout lake in canoe to North Bay, from which point he left for Toronto, reaching there Saturday, August 9, 1930.

Thus ended a decidedly interesting and important air trip which included practically a complete circuit of the hinterland of Ontario and an official visit to every Indian encampment along and north of the Albany river and on the coasts of Hudson bay and James bay in the province of Ontario, undertaken by the Department of Indian Affairs in the interests and welfare of the Indians inhabiting that extensive area.

PASSING OBSERVATIONS

It is worthy of remark that the general health of the Indians is good. Excluding tubercular trouble appearing in most bands their disorders were more or less negligible and their appearance in the main very respectable.

Contrary to occasional opinion, expressed by certain critics, magazine writers, feigned historians and pseudo experts on Indian matters, the early extinction of the Indian is not particularly evidenced in the Indians under Treaty No. 9, whose numbers approximate four thousand. These Indians during the last fifteen years, according to official figures, show a natural increase of fourteen per cent, thus disproving the theory that, because of alleged unchecked epidemics, the lack of ready applied medical science, with its modern conveniences and varied adaptations, extermination of this nomadic race is rapid. While the loss of close contact with medical and surgical science is regrettable though unavoidable, the periodic visits by officials of the Department of Indian Affairs, and their instructions on the care and cleanliness of the body and on general habits, the wide open spaces, exhilarating air and the carefree, enervating, nonchalant existence, are sufficiently compensating factors to maintain a fair balance in the scales of life and mortality.

Throughout the entire trip the party was accompanied by a medical man, sent under the directions of the Department of Indian Affairs. Dr. Mitchell was associated with the work from Remi Lake to Fort Hope, Dr. Day from Fort Hope to Osnaburgh, and Dr. O'Gorman for the balance, and the greater portion of the trip, covering all the newly enrolled Indians. Dr. O'Gorman proved a capable, painstaking and versatile advisor, not only in matters of his profession but in others of interest and value to the flying officials.

All three professional men have had a wide experience with Indians and their methods, though differing one from the other, of instructing and advising meet with a ready response.

MEAN'S OF LIVELIHOOD

Even in the far distant unsettled and unorganized sections the Indians, solely dependent upon the chase for a means of livelihood, are facing real trials in their efforts.

As civilization on the wheels of industrial and commercial progress pushes back the frontier the trapping fields are invaded and the product of the hunt diminished.

The commissioners, while fully cognizant of the continued perplexing problem confronting the Government, and students of sociology in respect of a satisfactory system of assimilation, always with due regard for the Indians' instinctive traits, believe that an intensive effort at a not too distant date should be made to teach the Indian to apply himself to the production of certain foodstuffs to provide at least for his own sustenance.

From observations during the last two summers the conclusions drawn indubitably point to the feeling that if the summer weeks, and in cases months, spent about the various posts by the Indians were devoted to the task of gardening small plots of ground upon the reserves the source of supply would be enlarged, the cry of starvation reduced, the demands made on the Government for relief lessened and a spirit of independence developed. Some church missions in the far-flung sections are already, with an extended vision begotten of a wide experience, admitting the advent of the day when necessity will compel the Indian to sustain himself partly by tilling the land, rather than attempting to do so wholly by the forest and stream, and are establishing farms in connection with schools, thus providing reasonable means of teaching and encouraging the Indian in cultivating and producing from the soil.

Unless and until the Indians affect some active interest in this direction they should be discouraged from loitering too long at summer encampments where their sources of supply are limited, and urged to return within reasonable time to their hunting grounds where they shall not face starvation.

SUMMARY OF INDIAN AFFAIRS BY PROVINCES AND TERRITORIES

The local administration of Indian lands, on the reserves scattered throughout the Dominion, is conducted through the Department's agencies, of which there are in all 116. The number of bands included in an agency varies from one to more than thirty. The staff of an agency usually includes various officers, in addition to the agent, such as the medical officer, clerk, farm instructor, field matron, nurse, constable, stockman, etc., according to the special requirements of the agency in question. At many of the smaller agencies in the older provinces, where the Indians are more advanced, the work is comparatively light, requiring only the services of an agent. The work of the agencies is supervised by the department's inspectors. There are Indian Commissioners at Regina and Victoria, acting in a supervisory capacity for the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia respectively.

ONTARIO

Agencies. - The Indian Agency offices in Ontario are located as follows: - Brantford, Cape Croker, Chapleau, Chippewa Hill (Saugeen), Christian Island, Deseronto, Fenella (Alnwick), Fort Frances, Gore Bay, Hagersville, Highgate, Kenora, Longford Mills, Manitowaning, Moose Factory, Muncey, Parry Sound, Peterborough (Rice and Mud Lakes), Port Arthur, Port Perry, (Scugog), Ruby (Golden Lake), Sarnia, Sault Ste. Marie, Sutton West (Georgina and Snake Island), Sturgeon Falls, Thessalon and Walpole Island.

Tribal Origin. - The great majority of the Indians of Ontario are Ojibwas, and are of Algonkin stock. The Oneidas of the Thames, the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte, the Mohawks of the Parry Sound district, and the Six Nations of the Grand River, are of Iroquoian stock. There is a band of Pottawattamies at Walpole Island, and Delawares at the Carodoc agency; these are of Algonkin stock.

Occupations. - The Indians in the western and central parts of Ontario engage largely in farming. The reserves generally are well suited to this purpose and the activity of the department's field agents has resulted in a steady improvement both in the methods of operation and the results achieved. The success achieved by the returned soldiers of this province has been especially creditable and they are rapidly developing prosperous communities.

During the summer months Indians find a profitable source of income as guides and canoe-men. Many are employed at various industries and trades, while railway and navigation companies employ a large number. As a rule they are excellent bushmen and many find employment in the various lumber camps. There is still an excellent market for snowshoes, canoes and moccasins, and these are usually manufactured by the other members of the community.

The women also have many sources of income; some are employed as domestics; others support themselves by making baskets and fancy work. In certain districts berry-picking is an important item and furnishes considerable income.

Dwellings. - The great majority of the Ontario Indians have comfortable farmhouses which compare very favourably with those of their white neighbours. Many own houses of brick and stone, although in the outlying and more remote districts the old log houses are in the majority. In the more settled districts the Indians have followed the examples of the whites and both houses and farm buildings are comfortable and of excellent construction.

New Ontario. - In the remote parts of Ontario hunting and fishing are still the chief sources of livelihood. Acting as guides and canoe-men during the summer months adds considerably to their income. While agriculture is not carried on to any extent, most of the bands grow considerable crops of potatoes and vegetables. They are, of necessity, more or less nomadic and consequently live in tents most of the year. This condition will greatly change as civilization progresses.

QUEBEC

Agencies. - The following agencies are included in the province of Quebec: Becancour, Bersimis, Caughnawaga, Gaspé, Lake St. John, Lorette, Maria, Mingan, Oka, River Desert, Restigouche, Seven Islands, St. Augustine, St. Regis, St. Francis, Temiskaming and Viger.

Tribal Origin. - The principal tribes found in Quebec are: Iroquois at Caughnawaga, Lake of the Two Mountains, and St. Regis; the Hurons of Lorette are also of Iroquoian stock; the Montagnais, who are of Algonkin stock, at Bersimis, Mingan, Lake St. John, Seven Islands; the Abenakis, also of Algonkin stock, at Becancour and St. Francis; the Micmacs, also of Algonkin stock, at Maria and Restigouche; and the Malecites, also of Algonkin stock, at Viger.

In the agricultural districts of the province the Indians are developing a keener interest in farming operations and are making decided progress. In the Gaspé peninsula the Indians find employment in the lumber camps and mills, but on the north shore of the gulf, fishing, hunting and trapping are still the principal sources of income. In the northern part of the province lumbering is the chief pursuit. One of the principal industries of the Indians of Quebec is making baskets, and many of the Indians spend the summer months at the resorts in order to dispose of the baskets, lacrosse sticks, racquets, moccasins, etc., to the tourists. Some of them, particularly in the Saguenay district, act as guides and canoe-men.

Dwellings. - In the older settled districts of the province the Indians own many excellent stone and brick houses. Generally speaking, the buildings are almost all of good construction, comfortable and sanitary. In the more remote districts, where hunting and trapping are still the principal occupations, the Indians necessarily live in tents during the greater part of the year.

The North Shore. - Along the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the Indians have been taking a marked interest in the fishing industry. At Mingan, Natashkwan, Romaine, St. Augustine and Moisie, the fishing is under departmental supervision. Salmon and cod are the principal marketable fish, and are a source of considerable income to the Indians. The land is not suitable for extensive cultivation, but many of the Indians have very creditable gardens.

NEW BRUNSWICK

Agencies. - There are three agencies in the province of New Brunswick, the Northeastern located at Richibucto, the Northern located at Perth, and the Southwestern located at Fredericton.

Tribal Origin. - The majority of the Indians of New Brunswick belong to the Micmac race, which is of Algonkin stock. In addition to these there are some bands of Malecites, also of Algonkin stock.

Occupations. - In the Northeast division the Indians are mostly engaged in fishing, hunting and trapping. Some farming is carried on, and the Indians have rather tended to increase their interest in this regard.

The lumbering industry employs quite a large number and the Indians all through the eastern provinces have become very proficient in the lumber camps, on the river drives and in the mills. In the northern division there is less, farming carried on, and the Indians during the summer months find employment generally as day labourers. In the Southern division they support themselves chiefly by the manufacture and sale of Indian wares.

NOVA SCOTIA

Agencies. - There are eighteen Indian agencies in the province of Nova Scotia, namely; Yarmouth, Digby, Shelburne, Lunenburg, Annapolis, Kings, Windsor, Shubenacadie, Halifax, Cumberland, Colchester, Pictou, Antigonish-Guysboro, Richmond, Inverness, Victoria, Sydney and Eskasoni.

Tribal Origin. - The Indians of Nova Scotia are of Algonkin stock, and bear the distinctive name of Micmac.

Occupations. - They follow various occupations, but, as a rule, do not confine themselves to any particular one. Many of them cultivate the land with indifferent success, but as there are exceptions in almost every case, so it is with our Indians; a few of them are succeeding very well as farmers. The majority of those living near industrial centres usually work as day labourers. Hunting, trapping, and acting as guides for sportmen are favourite occupations, more especially with Indians of middle age. Basket-making and the manufacture of fancy mocassins, etc., are confined mostly to women. A profitable employment among Indians in a few sections of Nova Scotia is the manufacture of hockey sticks.

Dwellings. - With very few exceptions, Indians in Nova Scotia occupy houses of frame construction, well finished on the outside, but unfinished inside. Every settlement, however, has a few comfortable dwellings well finished throughout. Other buildings owned by Indians - barns and storehouses - are mostly of frame construction also.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Agency. - One agency is sufficient for the purposes of the department in this province, as the total Indian population is only 295.

Tribal Origin. - The Indians of this province all belong to the Micmac tribe, which is of Algonkin stock.

Occupations. - But few of the Indians of Prince Edward Island are farmers. The principal industries are basket-making and fishing.

MANITOBA

Agencies. - The following agencies are included in the province of Manitoba: Birtle, Clandeboye, Fisher River, Griswold, Manitowapah, Norway House, Pas and Portage la Prairie.

Tribal Origin. - The majority of the Indians of Manitoba belong to the Ojibwa race, which is of Algonkin stock. Bands of Swampy Crees are found at the Norway House and Fisher River agencies and in the York Factory district; these are also of Algonkin stock. The Indians located at the Griswold agency are Sioux; there are also Sioux at the Birtle and Portage la Prairie agencies. There is a band of Chipewyans at Fort Churchill; this tribe is of Athapascan stock.

Occupations. - The reserves in Manitoba suitable for extensive agriculture are mainly within the Birtle, Griswold and Portage la Prairie agencies, and generally speaking progress has been satisfactory in recent years.

In the northern agencies the chief occupations are hunting, trapping and fishing. All of the northern Indians are expert guides and canoe-men, and many find employment in this way or with the transport or fur companies.

In the southern and more settled districts many of the younger people seek employment as day labourers, and owing to the high wages, have been fairly prosperous. The Indian women make needle-work, baskets, etc., for which there is a ready market.

Dwellings. - In recent years the Indians have adopted more sanitary methods of living. Their houses are more comfortably furnished and of better construction than formerly. In the north the nomadic life of the Indians does not permit of other than the old-fashioned log house, but even these are being greatly improved and in some cases are being replaced by suitable frame dwellings.

SASKATCHEWAN

Agencies. - The following agencies are included in the province of Saskatchewan: Assiniboine, Battleford, Carlton, Crooked Lake, Duck Lake, File Hills, Ile à la Crosse, Moose Mountain, Onion Lake, Pelly, Qu'Appelle and Touchwood Hills.

Tribal Origin. - The most numerous tribes among the Saskatchewan Indians are the Ojibwas, Swampy Crees, and Plain Crees, which all belong to the great Algonkin stock. In addition to these, Sioux Indians are found at the Assiniboine, Moose Mountain, Qu'Appelle and Carlton agencies, and on the Moose Woods reserve. In the Onion Lake agency there is a band of Chipewyans, who are of Athapascan stock. There are also a few Chipewyan Indians in the Ile à la Crosse district.

The principal occupation of the Indians of Saskatchewan is mixed farming and stock-raising. The close supervision which the department has had over these Indian has greatly improved their methods of farming. Most of the Indians are well provided with machinery of good quality. As a rule they have good stock and suitable houses. In the outlying districts, however, hunting and trapping are still the main sources of income and will so remain until civilization encroaches upon the hunting grounds.

Dwellings. - The dwellings of the Indians on the reserves where farming is carried on are now mostly of frame construction. The out buildings, however, are generally of logs, but even there there has been some improvement.

ALBERTA

Agencies. - The following agencies are included in the Province of Alberta: Blackfoot, Blood, Edmonton, Hobbema, Peigan, Saddle Lake, Sarcee, Stony and Lesser Slave Lake.

Tribal Origin. - The Alberta Indians are of Algonkin stock, with the exception of the Sarcees near Calgary and the Beavers and Slaves in the Lesser Slave Lake agency, who are Apathapascan; the Paul's band in the Edmonton agency, who are Iroquoian; and the Stonies, who are of Siouan stock. The Algonkin Indians of Alberta are subdivided into Blackfoot nation, comprising the Indians of the Blackfoot, Blood and Peigan agencies; Plain Crees found in the Lesser Slave Lake, Saddle Lake, and Hobbema agencies, and a band of Ojibwas at Moberly Lake, in the Lesser Slave Lake agency.

The principal occupations of the Indians of Alberta are farming and stockraising. Almost all the reserves in the settled districts of the province have large herds of horses and cattle.

In the northern parts of the province hunting and trapping are still almost the sole sources of income; there is practically no farming carried on and the construction of steamers on the Peace and Athabasca rivers, and of the railways to Peace River Crossing and Fort McMurray, have greatly lessened the wages of the Indians with the trading companies and transports.

Dwellings. - In the southern part of the province the dwellings and farm buildings are of excellent construction and quality. Almost all the reserves where extensive farming is carried on boast of up-to-date modern dwellings, comfortable and well constructed. In the northern parts of the province the majority of the Indians continue to follow their primitive nomadic mode of life, and many of them still live in tents and tepees during the greater part of the year.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Agencies. - The following agencies are included in the Province of British Columbia: Babine and Upper Skeena, Bella Coola, Cowichan, Kamloops, Kootenay, Kwawkewlth, Lytton, New Westminster, Nicola, Okanagan, Queen Charlotte, Skeena, Stikine, Stuart Lake, Vancouver, West Coast, and Williams Lake.

Tribal Origin. - The Indians of the Bella Coola, Cowichan, Kamloops, Lytton, New Westminster, Vancouver, and Okanagan agencies belong to the Salish tribe. The Kootenay tribe is located in the agency of the same name. The Kwakiutl-Nootka tribe is located at the Kwawkewlth and West Coast agencies; the Haidas, in the Queen Charlotte islands; the Tlingits, in the Stikine; and the Tsimshians in the Skeena agency. The Indians of the Babine, Stuart Lake and Williams Lake agencies belong to the Athapascan race.

In addition to these there are about 2,500 nomadic Indians in the province who cannot be correctly classified according to linguistic stock or tribal origin.

Occupations. - The occupations of the Indians of British Columbia vary with their habitat. The Indians situated along the coast earn their livelihood principally by fishing. In many instances they own their own motor launches, nets and gear, while others are supplied by the various canneries. Many of the women are also employed in the canneries or in the hop fields, and earn a steady income.

In the inland parts of the province some farming operations are carried on and particularly in the irrigated districts grain, fruits of all kinds, and vegetables have been raised with success. These Indians have been making marked progress in this regard and are now well equipped with modern machinery.

The Kootenay, Kamloops, Okanagan and New Westminster Indians own large herds of horses and cattle. While the Indians in the northern and remote parts of the province still depend upon hunting and trapping for their livelihood, the agents report a marked improvement in their manner of living.

Dwellings. - Except in the more remote districts the Indians of British Columbia have built comfortable and modern dwellings and outbuildings. Their progress in this respect has been rapid.

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES

Agencies. - The department has now three agencies in the Northwest Territories, namely, Fort Simpson, Fort Smith, and Fort Resolution.

Tribal Origin. - The principal tribes found in the Far North are the Slave, Hares, Loucheux, Sicannies, Dogribs, Yellow-knives, Chipewyans and Caribou Eaters. All these tribes are of Athapascan stock. There are a few Crees in the neighbourhood of Chipewyan. These are of Algonkin stock. The most northerly tribes are the Takudah, who extend to the Mackenzie Delta; and the Copper Mines, who are located along the Coppermine river. The territory occupied by these two last-named tribes is contiguous to that inhabited by the Eskimos.

These Indians depend entirely upon hunting and trapping for a livelihood.

Occupations. - A few have been induced to raise small plots of potatoes. They own no horses or cattle, transportation being almost entirely by canoe along the great waterways, or by dogs in winter. They catch and preserve large quantities of whitefish for their own use and for consumption by their dog-trains in winter.

YUKON

Tribal Origin. - The Forty Mile, Blackstone, and Moosehide bands belong to the Takudah tribe. There is a band of Slavies at Lancing Creek who migrated from Fort Good Hope, on the Mackenzie river; another band of Slavies, called Nahanies, is located at the headwaters of the Pelly river. All these Indians are of Athapascan stock. At Mayo, Selkirk, Little Salmon and Carmacks there are bands belonging to the tribe known as Stick Indians. Bands belonging to the Tlingit tribe are found at Whitehorse, Teslin Lake, Champagne Landing, and Carcross.

Occupations. - Hunting, trapping and fishing are the chief occupations of the Yukon Indians, and they have been fairly successful during the past year. The women also derive some revenue from the sale of moccasins and curios of various kinds, while the men are expert at making toboggans and snowshoes. Practically no farming is carried on owing to climatic conditions, but some of the Indians cultivate patches of potatoes and other vegetables.

FINANCIAL

At the close of the twelve months ended March 31, 1930, capital of the Indian Trust Fund, which at the end of the preceding year amounted to $13,629,403.74, had increased to $13,856,521.04.

The amounts expended from the Consolidated Revenue Fund were as follows: Voted by Parliament for the purposes of the department, $4,915,137.44, and annuities by statute, $219,416.

On March 31, 1930, the balance to the credit of the Indian Savings Account for the funding of the annuities and earnings of pupils at industrial schools was $219,970.42. Deposits and interest during the twelve months aggregated $42,248.84 and withdrawals, $34,866.62.
