National Population Health Survey

2000/01

Results from the fourth cycle of the National Population Health Survey (NPHS), 2000/01, household component is now available. Begun in 1994/95 and conducted every two years, the NPHS is a longitudinal survey on the health status, determinants and outcomes, as well as related socio-demographic characteristics of Canadians living in households.

The NPHS household panel consists of 17,276 respondents across the 10 provinces. It provides provincial and national level information on a wide range of health determinants, risk factors and outcomes, such as alcohol consumption, smoking, chronic conditions, health care utilization, self-perceived health status, height, weight, physical activities, restriction of activities, stress and mastery.

The socio-demographic module provides age, sex, household composition, income, and labour force related information. The NPHS is a key source of information for researchers, policy analysts and decision makers.

Several analytical articles containing detailed findings from the longitudinal NPHS data will appear in an upcoming issue of Health reports (82-003-XIE, $15/$44; 82-003-XPE, $20/$58) later this year. See How to order publications.
