Canadian international merchandise trade

May 2005

Merchandise imports registered a big gain in May, fuelled by inbound energy products as well as heavy machinery headed for a boom in construction projects in Western Canada.

Canadian companies imported $32.3 billion in merchandise, up 2.3%, while exports slipped 0.5% to $36.3 billion. As a result, the trade surplus fell to just under $4.0 billion.

Trade balance

Imports of energy products soared 19.0% in May as refineries in Eastern Canada stepped up demand. However, a major factor in the import scene has been growing demand for heavy equipment in Western Canada, particularly in the construction, mining and oil sectors, leading to rising machinery and equipment imports.

Imports of machinery and equipment hit $9.1 billion in May, up 0.3% from April, their sixth consecutive monthly increase. May's level was the second highest since August 2001. Since November last year, imports of machinery and equipment have increased 9.3%.

Note to readers

Merchandise trade is one component of the current account of Canada's balance of payments, which also includes trade in services.

Revisions

In general, merchandise trade data are revised on an ongoing basis for each month of the current year. Customs basis data are revised for the previous data year each quarter.

Factors influencing revisions include late receipt of import and export documentation, incorrect information on customs forms, replacement of estimates with actual figures, changes in classification of merchandise based on more current information, and changes to seasonal adjustment factors.

Revised data are available in the appropriate CANSIM tables.

Imports from the United States rose 1.6%, while exports south of the border remained stable. As a result, the trade surplus with the United States slipped from about $8.2 billion to $7.8 billion.

Imports from all countries other than the United States went up 3.9%, rising in each principal trading area except Japan. At the same time, exports to the rest of the world fell 2.6%. Canada's deficit with countries other than the United States rose to $3.8 billion.

Imports: Construction boom also fuels forestry products

Canada's imports increased in all major sectors in May, except automotive products and agricultural and fishing products.

Imports of energy products hit more than $2.9 billion. The major factor was a 15.2% increase in imports of crude petroleum from Algeria and Norway, as well as rising imports of other energy products to meet the demand for fuel oil and coal.

The growth in construction also had an impact on imports of forestry products as Canadian companies complemented domestic materials with those from abroad.

Forestry product imports hit a record high $291.7 million in May, up 10.2% from the previous month. A rise in imports of wood fabricated materials, such as wood siding, flooring and doors, accounted for the majority of the increase.

Imports of consumer goods rose 2.2% to $4.2 billion, the result of increases in the pharmaceutical products and the printed matter sectors, with the later climbing 3.8% as Canadian retailers stocked their shelves with summer reading materials.

Imports of animal and vegetable oils and fats hit a record high $82.5 million. Rising demand for olive oil has pushed up imports, with both volumes and prices of the Mediterranean staple rising in recent months.

On the downside, imports of automotive products fell 1.8% to $6.3 billion. Imports of agricultural and fishing products slipped 1.7% from near-record highs in the first months of 2005. Strong commodity prices have been fuelling high commodity values.

Export gains confined to autos, consumer goods

Exports fell in all major categories except automotive products and consumer goods.

Exports of automotive products, mainly to the United States, rose 4.9% to nearly $7.1 billion, as exports of passenger autos and chassis rebounded after four months of decline. This was accompanied by a 3.3% gain in exports of motor vehicle parts.

Exports of consumer goods rose 2.7%, the third increase in the past four months.

The overall decline in exports was led by machinery and equipment, in combination with energy. Outbound shipments of machinery and equipment fell 1.9% to $8.0 billion, with aircraft exports cooling off after two strong months.

Energy exports fell 4.9% to $5.9 billion in May. A drop in exports of crude petroleum led the increase. Crude prices fell in May to just below US $47 per barrel but had increased to US $50 by the end of the month. There was also a slight decline in volumes exported. High stocks of crude petroleum in the United States may have been a contributing factor.

Exports of natural gas fell 3.1%, while other energy products declined 4.9%. In both cases, the decline followed strong gains earlier in the year.

Industrial goods and materials fell slightly in May, with declines in metal ores and metals and alloys offsetting increases in chemicals, plastics and fertilizers.

Gains in the chemicals, plastics and fertilizers sector were widespread, distributed among inorganic chemicals, synthetic rubber and plastics, fertilizer and fertilizer products and other chemical products.

Exports of forestry products edged down 0.1%, its third consecutive drop, while outbound shipments of agricultural and fishing products fell 2.4%.
