Consumer Price Movements, March 1971 (62-001, 10¢/$1.00)

The consumer price index for Canada (1961=100) increased by 0.3% to 131.3 in March from 130.9 in February. In the last three months, December 1970 to March 1971, the all-items index recorded a 1.2% increase, the largest advance for this quarter in over a decade. For the twelve-month period March 1970 to March 1971, however, the increase was 1.9%. All major components increased in the latest month, except tobacco and alcohol which registered no change. The clothing component advanced 0.7% mainly as a result of returns to regular from sale prices. The food index increased 0.5%, mostly because of higher prices for food consumed at home, while the transportation index rose 0.4% in response to price increases for local and inter-city transportation as well as for automobile operation. Both the housing and the recreation and reading components rose 0.2%, while the health and personal care index edged up 0.1%.

** Includes such items as new passenger cars, refrigerators, stoves, vacuum cleaner, sewing machine, television and radio set, furniture, floor coverings, and dishes.

Note: For comprehensive detail on these and other price statistics, see Prices and Price Indexes (62-002, 40¢ a copy, $4.00 a year).

Consumer price movements classified by commodities and services offer another view of the incidence of changes in prices. The services index advanced 0.3% in March to a level 5.2% above that of a year earlier. On the other hand, the commodities index rose 0.4% to a level 0.3% above that of a year ago. Within the commodity component, non-durables (excluding food) prices advanced 0.4% in March, durable prices 0.2%.

The food index increased 0.5% to 128.2 in March from 127.5 in February in response to a 0.6% price rise for food consumed at home and a 0.1% increase in restaurant meal prices. This was the third consecutive month in which the average level of food prices has risen, however, the March food index was still 2.8% below its August 1970 peak and 1.8% under its corresponding level of a year earlier. Within the food at home component, the price of fruits increased, in the latest month, by 4.2% and vegetables, by 2.2%, with fresh fruits advancing 6.6%, their largest February-March increase in over a decade, and fresh vegetables advancing 3.3%. On the other hand, canned fruit prices rose 0.3% and canned vegetable prices edged down 0.2%. The bakery and cereal products index advanced 1.1% with general price increases recorded for bread (1.5%), corn flakes (2.1%) and cookies (1.9%). Higher prices were also registered for sugar (2.3%), soft drinks (3.2%), infants' food (1.0%), tea bags (0.9%) and jelly powders (1.9%). The meat, fish and poultry component recorded its largest February-March increase (0.9%) in some time. A rise of 0.9% for beef reflected increases at the wholesale level, while in the same period pork prices advanced 0.6%, chicken 2.2% and fish (fresh and frozen) 1.8%. Whole milk prices decreased marginally in some major Ontario and Quebec cities while cheeses and canned milks registered general price increases. Egg prices decreased seasonally by 5.5% in the latest month to reach their lowest level since February 1965.

The housing index rose 0.2% to 134.8 in March from 134.5 in February reflecting increases of 0.1% in the shelter component and 0.3% for household operation. Within the shelter component, the new houses index advanced 0.4%, while rents edged up 0.1%. Mixed price movements were recorded among household operation components. Higher electricity rates in Toronto caused a 0.3% rise in the fuel and lighting index. Furniture prices advanced 1.0% with all items surveyed registering increases, largely as a result of return from sale pricing. Appliance prices rose 0.4% mainly as a result of higher prices associated with the introduction of new models and the removal of some sale prices. The household supplies component also increased 1.0%, mainly because of higher prices for toilet paper (up 4.5%), detergent (up 1.1%), bleach (up 2.5%) and waxed paper (up 1.0%). The components for floor coverings and textiles each edged down 0.2%, while that for utensils and equipment decreased 0.4% largely as a result of sales on dishes and glassware in Toronto. Between March 1970 and March 1971 the housing index advanced 4.3%, with the largest advances being recorded for home-ownership (8.3%) and fuel and lighting (5.0%).

The clothing index advanced 0.7% to 126.8 in March from 125.9 in February, reflecting increased prices for men's wear (1.3%), women's wear (0.2%), children's wear (1.4%), footwear (0.6%), piece goods (0.2%) and clothing services (0.9%). Among men's wear items, a return to regular from sale prices for suits, business shirts and pyjamas outweighed some price reductions for hats and work shirts. Most items of women's and children's wear rose in price over the month with women's street dresses, pyjamas and skirts, boys' dress slacks and jeans, and infants' diapers registering the largest advances. On the other hand, scattered sale prices were recorded for women's suits and girdles. Higher prices for men's and women's dress shoes caused the increase in the footwear index, while clothing service charges rose in a number of cities across Canada. Between March 1970 and March 1971 the clothing index edged up 0.6%.

The transportation index rose 0.4% to 128.8 in March from 128.3 in February. In the automobile operation component, most items, with the exception of tires and batteries, increased in price. In particular, new passenger car prices rose 0.3%, chassis lubrications 2.0%, and license fees 0.5%, the latter increase partly attributable to higher charges in Prince Edward Island and Manitoba. Among the other transportation components, local bus fares increased in London and Quebec city, inter-city bus fares rose in Saskatchewan and there was a general increase of about 8% in air fares on North American routes. In March 1971, the transportation index stood 3.9% above its level of twelve months previous with automobile operation rising 3.3%, local transportation 3.0%, and inter-city fares 16%.

The health and personal care index rose 0.2% to 141.0 in March from 140.7 in February, reflecting a 0.7% price increase for toiletry items. In particular, cleansing tissue advanced 4.6% and toothpaste prices 1.3%. In the twelve months to March 1971, the health and personal care index rose 2.4%.

The recreation and reading index edged up 0.1% to 135.0 in March from 134.8 in February. Increased newspaper subscription rates in Toronto and Victoria, and higher prices for phonograph records and T.V. repairs in a number of cities outweighed price declines for television sets. Between March 1970 and March 1971, the recreation and reading index rose 4.2%.

In March, the tobacco and alcohol index remained unchanged from its February level of 127.6, and stood 0.9% above its level of March 1970.

Urban Transit, February 1971 - Advance information

In February, 59 urban transit systems collected 82,365,463 initial passenger fares (excluding transfers) - a decrease of 0.1% from the 82,485,192 collected a year earlier. Initial fares on trolley coaches dropped to 3,023,797 from 7,010,068, while those on all other vehicles increased: motor busses to 59,648,949 from 56,481,840; street cars to 5,199,894 from 5,149,859; and subway cars to 13,837,632 from 13,119,746.

Total operating revenue increased 2.5% to $19,198,393 from $18,733,952 a year earlier.
