A CLASSIFICATION OF INDUSTRIES AND SERVICES

INTRODUCTION

In the introduction to the "Classification of Industries" prepared for the census of 1931 in Great Britain, the following statement appears: "Mankind in its working capacity may be classified for statistical purposes according to two classifications, the one 'occupational' and the other 'industrial' . . . . The occupation of any person is the kind of work he or she performs; and this alone determines the particular group in an occupational classification to which the person is assigned. The nature of the factory, business or service in which the person is employed has no bearing upon the classification of his occupation, except to the extent that it enables the nature of his duties to be more clearly defined. . . . As a single business will employ a number of individuals of widely varying occupations for the purpose of affording a particular service or creating a particular product, it will be seen that the industrial classification differs essentially from the occupational in that the latter only takes account of the nature of the work performed by the individual, while the former has regard only to the nature of the service or product to which his labour contributes. The man who is occupationally a carpenter, for instance, is classified industrially to building, if employed by a builder, or to brewing, if employed by a brewer. . . . It is a person's occupation, i.e., the nature of his work, which determines the type and degree of the strains, physical or mental, to which he is subjected. This is in the main independent of his industrial association. Hence it follows that a satisfactory occupational classification must ignore the irrelevant consideration of industry, grouping together, e.g., all clerks, whether employed in insurance, trade, or railway transport, etc. But industrial association, grouping together all persons, whatever their occupation, who contribute their labour to a particular service or product, is also of prime importance, largely from the economic point of view, e.g., as affecting unemployment, and as in the aggregate affording a record of industrial development."

This statement clearly indicates the difference between what may be termed the occupational and the industrial associations of the worker. It also suggests the purposes that these two classifications may serve.

The classification of industries and services which has been devised here, is based upon the classification in use in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the manufacturing group of industries being classified according to the chief component material of the principal product. Where it was felt necessary to adhere to broader groupings for census purposes, sub-groups were combined. In addition, certain departures from the classification were made. "Garages" were removed from the "Custom and Repair" group of industries and classified under "Transportation and Communication." "Sporting Goods" were transferred from "Wood Product" industries to the "Miscellaneous Products" group. Again "Laundries" will be found under "Custom and Repair" and not in the "Textile Products" group.

The main industrial divisions of the present classification are: Agriculture; Forestry; Fisheries and Trapping; Mining, Quarrying, Oil and Salt Wells; Manufactures; Electric Light and Power; Construction; Transportation and Communication; Trade; Finance; and Service. These divisions have been re-divided into subordinate groups, and, where advisable, into sub-groups. The total number of classes for which the classification provides is 210.

INSTRUCTIONS TO CODING CLERKS

1. The schedules are to be coded in the column headed industry (col. 29) in regard to the industry or service with which the person is connected.

2. In assigning code numbers to the industries and services appearing on the schedules, the coders will consult the Alphabetical List of Industries and Services. Each industry or service listed here is provided with a code number designating the class to which it belongs, i.e., its place in the Classified List of Industries and Services.

3. If an industry is expressed by more than one word, and is not found under the first, it should be sought under each successive word.

4. Sometimes an industry not appearing in the Alphabetical List may be found under a description which is only a slight variation from it. For example, "Flower Store" or "Florist's Shop" may be found under "Florist (dealer)".

5. It is not uncommon to find the description of a person's business in the occupation column (col. 28). For example, one may meet such a case as "Lumber Business" in the occupation column, with no entry in industry column or perhaps some such term as "Broker," "Agent", etc. In this instance the information in the occupation column indicates the industry in which this person is engaged.

6. It should be added with reference to instruction 5, that the expression "Lumber Business" does not completely describe the individual industrially. It merely suggests that the person is engaged in trade or lumber dealing. In this case, however, if one of the terms "Broker", "Agent", or "Factor" appears on the schedule it is likely that this person is a wholesale dealer or merchant in lumber.

7. The last instruction should make it clear to the coder how important and necessary it is in many instances to observe the occupational description if the nature of the industry is to be determined. Sometimes when no further information than the term "Factory" is found in the industry column, the occupational description will disclose the kind of factory. For example, the occupation "Glass Blower" would suggest "Glass Factory"; "Cigar Maker" would indicate "Cigar Factory", and so on.

8. The industry may sometimes be inferred solely from the occupational description. For example, "Postman" would be assigned to "Postal Service"; "Coal Miner" to "Coal Mining"; "Street Car Conductor" to "Electric Railways", etc.

9. Where the information in Column 30 shows that the person is an "Employer" or "Working on Own Account", the occupation will again denote the industry. For example, "Hotel Keeper" will be coded industrially to the class "Hotels & Restaurants";

"Shoe Repairer" (own account) to "Boot & Shoe Repairing"; "Garage Owner" to "Automobile Garages"; "Building Contractor" to "Buildings & Structures"; and "Laundress" (own account) to "Laundering".

10. If a person is described in the occupation column as a "Servant" and in the industry column such expressions as "Domestic Service", "Family" or "House" appear, such a case is to be coded to "Lodging and Boarding Houses" and not "Personal Service", if the number of lodgers, as enumerated on the schedule, residing with this family, or at this house, exceeds the number of members in the family.

11. On schedules where there are lodgers in excess of the number of persons in the family and no person on the schedule is returned as a "Lodging House Keeper", the head of the house, or, if the head is returned as following a definite occupation, his wife or near female relative is to be coded industrially as a "Lodging House Keeper". Any other relatives returned as engaged in Home Duties are also to be coded as employed in a Lodging House.

12. Persons employed in cafes or restaurants attached to Department Stores, Office Buildings, Railway Stations, etc., are to be coded to "Hotels & Restaurants". Lumbermen employed at a Log Camp operated by a Pulp and Paper Mill are to be coded to "Logging", not "Pulp and Paper Mills". Workers in the Repair Shops of a Railway are to be coded to "Railway Rolling Stock, Car Shops" in the Iron and Steel group of industries and not to "Steam Railway Transportation". However, men doing maintenance work at a Depot or Car Barn would be coded to "Steam" or "Electric Railways" and not to "Car Shops". Further, where a person states that he is working for a "Copper Mining Company", for example, and yet the evidence on the schedule, such as his occupation, which may be Furnaceman, Tapper, etc., or the locality, would suggest that he is employed at a Smelter, he should be coded to "Non-Ferrous Smelting & Refining" and not to "Copper Mining".

13. Where the entry in the industry column does not convey any idea as to the nature of the industry or service in which the individual is employed, e.g., "Labourer—Odd Jobs, or General Work", and "Helper—Boiler Room", the coder may be able to infer from other information on the Population Schedule the nature of the industry concerned. For example, the entry "Helper—Boiler Room" may occur on a schedule where most of the preceding and immediately following entries assign the persons enumerated to a Pulp and Paper Mill. Hence it would seem likely that the case of the vague description "Boiler Room" might rightly refer to a worker in the Boiler Room of a Pulp and Paper Mill. However, the coder should refer all such doubtful cases to a supervisor.

14. An entry such as "Stenographer—Hardware" does not specify exactly whether this Stenographer is employed in a Hardware Factory or, perhaps, by Wholesale Hardware Merchants, but the occupations "Machinist", "Filer", "Toolmaker", etc., with the expression "Hardware" in the industry column would suggest "Hardware Factory". Cases requiring like analysis may occur rather frequently due to the tendency for descriptions denoting products, such as "Oil", "Rubber Tires", "Drugs", etc., to appear in the industry column of the schedules.

15. Where an expression such as "Stationary" is found in the Industry column, and the term "Engineer" in the occupation column there is no direct evidence as to the industry. In this case "Stationary Engineer" should have appeared in the occupation column. Again the coder must seek a clue as to the industry from other information on the schedule. The same is true where the descriptions "Box Factory", "Bag Factory", etc., occur. The coder must endeavour to ascertain whether they are Paper, Wood, or Tin Box Factories; Leather, Paper, or Cloth Bag Factories, etc.

16. The coder must refer all doubtful cases immediately to a supervisor and to no one else. Good coding will depend largely on willingness to ask questions. Moreover, the supervisor will learn the most frequent sources of difficulty of the coders and take them up with all.

17. Finally, the coders must report all industry descriptions not in the Index to the supervisor.
