INTRODUCTION

This supplement to the 1980 Standard Industrial Classification issued by Statistics Canada updates and corrects the 1980 SIC manual, Catalogue No. 12-501E.

This supplement contains amendments to the industry classification and an errata. Changes which have been made to the industry classification, titles, definitions and index items are listed along with the resulting changes to the alphabetical index. The errata lists the major corrections required to the published 1980 SIC-E manual.

Most of the newly identified industries are taken from a list that were formerly sub-industries called Kind of Business (KOB). As these sub-industries have been discontinued, classes from this list that are deemed to be viable industries according to the statistical criteria of the SIC, have been retained as new industries. These now constitute the new 4-digit industries 5221 and 5222 in the wholesaling of beverages and all of the new industries under retail trade.

Because of the growth in computer sales, a class has been set up for Computer and Related Machinery, Equipment and Packaged Software, Wholesale. This industry, while assigned to Division I Wholesale Trade Industries, also includes all establishments which retail these commodities because some of these establishments serve both wholesale and retail customers. This approach follows the precedent established in the cases of building materials and petroleum products. Also included among the amendments is industry 0412, Contract Logging, which was established some years ago.

The corrections shown in the errata are the same as those shown on the errata sheet supplied with the manual. They are reproduced here for the convenience of users.
