CANADIANS AND OTHER NATIONALS

The tables contained in this bulletin give for the first time in the Canadian Census a complete analysis of the nationality of the people, cross-classified by birthplace and country of allegiance.

The population is primarily segregated into three classes: (a) Canadian Nationals, (b) British born of less than five years residence, and (c) Aliens.

Canadian Nationals - The basic legal definition of Canadian nationality is to be found in the Immigration Act, which defines a Canadian citizen as including three categories: (1) any person born in Canada who has not subsequently become the citizen of a foreign state; (2) any British subject who has been domiciled for five years in Canada; (3) any subject of a foreign power who has become naturalized and has not subsequently become an alien or lost Canadian domicile. (R.S. Canada, 1927, Chap. 93.)

The part which Canada played in the negotiating of the Peace Treaty and her subsequent enrollment as a member of the League of Nations necessitated an enlargement of the terms of the Immigration Act above cited. In other words, there arose the need of an official definition of the term "Canadian citizen" as distinct from "British subject" - a definition that would be internationally recognized. An act was accordingly passed by the Parliament of Canada in 1922 entitled "An act to define Canadian nationals and to provide for the renunciation of Canadian nationality" (R.S. Canada, 1927, c.21). It defined a Canadian national as (1) any British subject who is a Canadian citizen within the meaning of the Immigration Act; (2) the wife of any such person; and (3) any person born out of Canada whose father was a Canadian national at the time of that person's birth, or, with regard to persons born before the passing of the Act, any person whose father at the time of such birth possessed all the qualifications of a Canadian national as defined in the Act.

It will be seen from the above that Canadian nationality has several bases. Of course the sum total of Canadian nationals is not ascertainable through the Canadian Census alone. That total includes Canadians who have left Canada for permanent domicile elsewhere, retaining their Canadian citizenship. The only source of information for these individuals is the censuses of the countries in which they are living. We know, for example, that in 1930 there were 1,278,421 persons residing in the United States who had been born in Canada. Of these, 368,557 had retained their Canadian citizenship. The Bureau of Statistics has in process a compilation of Canadian nationals resident in other countries but it is not yet complete.

British Subjects - As above stated, there is now a statute establishing a class of "Canadian citizen" within the wider class of "British subject". No one can be a Canadian citizen without being a British subject, but there was a time when persons were admitted to naturalization in Canada who could not qualify as British subjects outside of Canada.

What is known as the Imperial Naturalization Act came into force on the 1st January, 1915; and since January 1st, 1918, it is the only method of naturalization. Persons naturalized under this act shall be entitled to all the political and other rights, powers and privileges, and be subject to all the obligations, duties and liabilities, of a natural-born British subject, and as from the date of naturalization have to all intents and purposes the status of a natural-born British subject.

The Naturalization Act (R.S. of Canada, Chap. 138, as amended by 21-22 Ges. V.C. 39) provides that the following persons shall be deemed to be British subjects and therefore require only domicile and not naturalization to become Canadian citizens.

- (a) Any person born within His Majesty's dominions and allegiance; and
- (b) Any person born out of His Majesty's dominions whose father was, at the time of that person's birth a British subject, and who fulfils any of the following conditions, that is to say, if either
 - (i) his father was born within His Majesty's allegiance, or
 - (ii) his father was a person to whom a certificate of naturalization had been granted, or
 - (iii) his father had become a British subject by reason of any annexation of territory, or
 - (iv) his father was at the time of that person's birth in the service of the Crown, or
 - (v) his birth was registered at a British consulate within one year or in special circumstances, with the consent of the Minister, two years after its occurrence, or, in the case of a person born on or after the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, who would have been a British subject if born before that date, within twelve months after the first day of August, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two; and
- (c) Any person born on board a British ship whether in foreign territorial waters or not; and
- (d) The wife of a British subject shall be deemed to be a British subject, and the wife of an alien shall be deemed to be an alien (The Census being as of June 1st, 1931, the amendment to the Act, regarding the "National Status of Married Women" does not apply as it did not come into force until January 15, 1932.)

Aliens - "Alien" means a person who is not a British subject. Under this term are included all foreign born persons who have not become naturalized Canadians, also Canadian and British born persons who have renounced their British citizenship (by naturalization or marriage) and are of allegiance to a foreign country.

Table I summarizes the population under three heads: "Canadian Nationals"; "British born of less than five years residence in Canada"; and "Aliens".

Table II deals with citizenship of the Canadian born population residing in Canada at the date of the Census and shows that of the total (8,069,261) native born population 8,052,459 were "Canadian nationals" and were made up of 8,051,142 persons with uninterrupted citizenship and 1,317 naturalized repatriates.

Of the total native born resident in Canada at the date of the Census, 16,802 were aliens owing their allegiance to some foreign country; in the case of females usually as the result of marriage. The table also shows that of this number (16,802) of Canadians of alien nationality, 5,991 owed allegiance to various European countries, 286 to Asiatic countries and 10,477 to the United States.

Table III shows that of the total number (1,184,830) of British born in Canada on June 1st, 1931, all were not "Canadian nationals" within the meaning of the Immigration Act already quoted, there being 135,426 with less than five years residence in Canada who were liable to certain disabilities. (These however may exercise the rights of citizenship in Canada as provided in Chapter 53, Section 29, Sub-section C, Revised Statutes of Canada 1927). In general this table deals with the British born in the same manner as Table II deals with the native born Canadians.

In Table IV the nationality of the foreign born population is classified according to their country of birth. The table shows that in a large measure persons of foreign birth have either become Canadian subjects or have retained allegiance to the country of their birth. While this is generally true, yet in some instances the country of birth of the European population does not always indicate their nationality. For example, of the total number of persons (17,033) born in Belgium 8,465 were of Canadian nationality, while of the remainder (8,656) claiming Belgium nationality only 8,258 were born in Belgium, leaving 183 born in contiguous countries - France, Germany or Holland, while 114 were born in the United States. In the printed reports the statistics dealing with the nationality of the foreign born population will be shown by provinces.

Table V classifies the population 21 years of age and over according to citizenship. The table divides the population of Canada, 21 years of age, into two classes, "Canadian" and "Alien". The term "Alien" in this table refers to citizenship rather than to nativity. As for example, Canadian and British subjects who have ceased to be either Canadian or British are, together with persons of foreign birth who are not naturalized Canadians, classed as aliens.

NOTE: The term "Alien" in this table has reference to nationality and not exclusively to nativity; it includes persons born in Canada or elsewhere in the Empire who were resident in Canada at the date of the Census but who owed allegiance to a foreign country. In the case of married females their classification was determined by the nationality of their husbands, (Section 13, Chapter 138, Revised Statutes of Canada, 1927).
