It consists of several overlapping, semi-transparent geometric shapes, primarily triangles and quadrilaterals, in shades of teal, light blue, and red. The shapes are arranged in a way that creates a sense of depth and movement, with some shapes appearing to be layered on top of others. The overall effect is a modern, geometric design.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service (FMCS) was established to provide dispute resolution and relationship development assistance to trade unions and employers under the jurisdiction of the Canada Labour Code (Code). The Code governs federally regulated employees in key sectors of the economy.

The FMCS offers employers and unionized employees:

- ▶ dispute resolution support through the services of conciliation and mediation officers—third parties whose mandate is to assist both parties in reaching a mutual agreement; and
- ▶ relationship development services that are intended to prevent disputes before they occur. This is achieved by training workshops on collective bargaining and joint conflict resolution. The FMCS also provides grievance mediation services. These are all ways of resolving disagreements and improving industrial relations during the term of the collective agreement.

The FMCS also plays an important role in another method of conflict resolution: arbitration. It coordinates the appointment of arbitrators, adjudicators and referees to resolve certain types of disputes governed by the Code, such as grievances, unjust dismissal complaints and wage recovery appeals. The FMCS also coordinates appointments under the Wage Earner Protection Program Act (WEPP Act).

In Canada, the use of neutral third parties (conciliation and mediation officers) appointed by the government to resolve labour relation disputes dates back to the Conciliation Act of 1900. The Conciliation Act created the federal Labour Department with a mandate to assist unions and employers in the prevention and resolution of labour disputes.

Over the years, the FMCS and its forerunners have provided employers and unions with professional skills essential to the resolution of their collective bargaining disputes.

Conciliation and mediation: During fiscal year 2017–18, conciliation and mediation officers from the FMCS dealt with 245 collective bargaining disputes under the Code. Ninety-four percent of the disputes that were settled during the year were resolved without a work stoppage. Just less than twohundredth of one percent (0.02%) of all available work time was lost due to work stoppages during the same period. These negotiations involved companies in most of the industrial sectors covered by Part I of the Code and resulted in major agreements in such industrial sectors as road, air, rail and marine transportation, grain handling, port operations, aboriginal public administration, communications and broadcasting.

Maintenance of activities: The Code stipulates that during a strike or lockout, the employer and the employees of the bargaining unit must continue the supply of services, operation of facilities or production of goods to the extent necessary to prevent an immediate and serious danger to the safety or health of the public. The Code sets a process for the negotiation of a “maintenance of activities” agreement and provides a role for the Minister of Labour and the Canada Industrial Relations Board (CIRB) if the parties are unable to reach agreement. In 2017–18, the issue of a “maintenance of activities” agreement was not referred by the Minister to the CIRB under subsection 87.4(5).

Legislation: No special legislation was enacted to end a work stoppage.

Dispute Prevention and Relationship Development Services: During fiscal year 2017–18, FMCS continued to deliver dispute prevention and relationship development services to employers and unions, thereby contributing to better communications, more collaborative collective bargaining and overall improvement of their labour relations. During this period, 173¹ interventions were delivered, for a total of 325 days, including grievance mediation, diagnostics of parties' relationship, training workshops as well as facilitation of workplace issues and joint initiatives. Facilitation services represented the highest number of interventions, while workshop delivery and grievance mediation were also significant contributors. FMCS's flagship workshop, Labour Relations and the Negotiation Cycle, was successfully delivered again (after 5 consecutive years) and a new public workshop entitled Interest Based Negotiations was offered for the first time.

Appointments of neutral third parties – Part I, Part III and the WEPP Act: Arbitrators were appointed in 72 grievance arbitrations in 2017–18 under Part I of the Code. Under Part III of the Code, the FMCS also handled the ministerial appointment of 92 wage recovery referees and 380 unjust dismissal adjudicators and 3 appointments under the Wage Earner Protection Program Act during 2017–18.

Upcoming collective bargaining: Upcoming negotiations during fiscal year 2018–19 will involve, among others, Bell Canada, British Columbia Maritime Employers Association, Canada Post Corporation, Canadian National Railway Company, Canadian Pacific Railway Company, G4S Secure Solutions (Canada) Ltd., Garda Security Screening Inc., Halifax Employers Association, Jazz Air Limited Partnership, Maritime Employers Association, NAV Canada, Securitas Transport Aviation Security Limited, Swissport Canada Handling Inc. and VIA Rail Canada Inc.

¹ Note: Dispute Prevention and Relationship Development Services encompass the following: presentations, training, facilitation of joint initiatives, a diagnostic of the parties' relationship and grievance mediation. Any given service can be delivered over an undetermined period time and include more than one intervention varying in duration between one and three days.

1. Caseload Information and Activities

1.1 Collective Bargaining Disputes

In 2017–18, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service (FMCS) handled 245 collective bargaining disputes. Sixty-two disputes were carried over as ongoing disputes from previous fiscal years, and conciliation appointments were made in 183 disputes during the fiscal year.

1.2 Post-conciliation Appointments

Seventy post-conciliation mediation appointments were made in 2017–18.

1.3 Settled Disputes

In 2017–18, of the 245 cases that were handled by the FMCS, 138 disputes were settled. Of these, 47 cases were carried over from previous fiscal years and 91 were new disputes. Ninety-four percent of all settled disputes were settled without a work stoppage. FMCS has recorded settlement rates of 93 to 97 percent in the past 10 years.

Total caseload and settlement rates for the last 10 years can be found in Appendix A.

Percentage of Settled Disputes Without Work Stoppage from 2008–09 to 2017–18

1.4 Settlement Stage

The majority of settlements continue to be reached at the post-conciliation stage of negotiations. During 2017–18, of disputes that were settled during conciliation versus post-conciliation stages, 53 percent were settled at the post-conciliation stage and 47 percent were settled during conciliation. This trend began after the 1999 revisions to Part I of the Code, which limited the conciliation period to 60 days unless the parties mutually agree to extend it.

See Appendix B for a comparison of settlement stages since 2008–09.

1.5 Disputes by Industry

The largest number of disputes occurred in the road transportation sector (60) followed by the air transportation sector (55). When combined, disputes in the four transportation sectors (air, road, rail and marine) accounted for 68 percent of the total number of disputes handled during the fiscal year.

A breakdown of caseload and work stoppage by industrial sector can be found in Appendix C.

* Miscellaneous includes: Other Service Industries (Yukon and Northwest Territories), Fishing, International/ Interprovincial Bridges/Tunnels, Agencies-Public Policy and Hotels/Restaurants/Bars.

Initial appointments were made under Part III of the Code for 92 wage recovery (WR) appeal cases, 380 unjust dismissal (UD) complaint cases and 3 Wage Earner Protection Program (WEPP) appeal cases. In 2009, the FMCS first handled WEPP appeals after the Wage Earner Protection Program Act provisions came into force in July 2008.

A table showing adjudicator and referee appointment levels since 2008–09 is found in Appendix G.

6. Grievance Arbitration Appointments Under Part I of the Canada Labour Code

6.1 Grievance Arbitration Appointments

Initial appointments were made under Part I of the Code for 72 grievance arbitration cases during fiscal year 2017–18. These appointments are made when employers and unions are unable to agree upon an arbitrator or arbitration board chairperson to deal with grievances that relate to the application, interpretation, administration or alleged contravention of their respective collective agreements.

Grievance arbitration appointment levels since 2008–09 are included in Appendix G.

7. Dispute Prevention and Relationship Development Services

During fiscal year 2017–18, FMCS mediators continued to promote and deliver an array of dispute prevention and relationship development services to employers and unions across the country. The services currently being offered include:

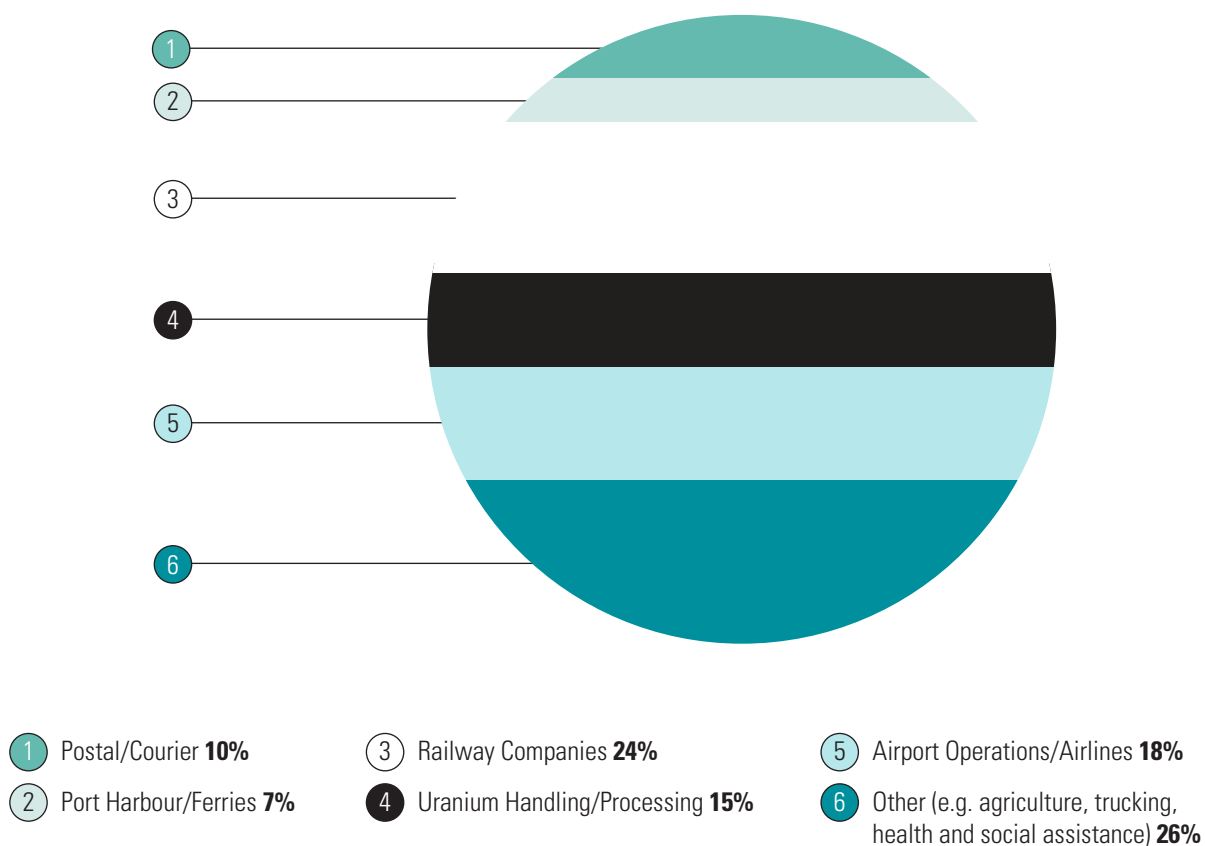

- ▶ grievance mediation;
- ▶ facilitation of committee meetings;
- ▶ facilitation of direct negotiations;
- ▶ relationship diagnostics;
- ▶ customized training workshops; and
- ▶ public workshops on Labour Relations and the Negotiation Cycle as well as on Interest Based Negotiations.

During this period, 173 dispute prevention and relationship development interventions were delivered, for a total of 325 days, including many joint customized training workshops and grievance mediation sessions, thus contributing to improved labour relations and long-term stability among unions and employers.

Relationship Development Program Services: 2017–18

Interventions by Industry: 2017–18

The largest number of services were provided to clients involved with Railway Companies (24%), followed by Airport Operations/Airlines (18%) and Uranium Handling/Processing (15%). The “Other” category (26%) includes other industries under the federal jurisdiction.

8. Other Key Activities

8.1 Status of the Artist Act Activities

FMCS handled one request, which was carried forward from the three previous fiscal years, for mediation assistance under Part II – Professional Relations, section 45 of the Status of the Artist Act. The parties involved are Groupe Media TFO and l'Union des Artistes.

8.2 Ministerial Referrals to the Canada Industrial Relations Board Under subsection 87.4(5) of the Canada Labour Code – Maintenance of Activities Agreement

The Code stipulates that during a strike or lockout, the employer and the employees of the bargaining unit must continue the supply of services, operation of facilities or production of goods to the extent necessary to prevent an immediate and serious danger to the safety or health of the public. The Code sets out a process for the negotiation of a “maintenance of activities” agreement and provides a role for the Minister of Labour and the Canada Industrial Relations Board if the parties are unable to reach agreement.

In 2017–18, no referral was made out of approximately 32 strike or lockout notices received.

8.3 Back-to-work Legislation

In some exceptional circumstances, where there has been a high-profile work stoppage ongoing for some time, the Minister may decide to intervene in a dispute by tabling legislation. This step is taken when there is a high level of public pressure on the government to terminate a dispute that is affecting the public interest or the economy. In 2017–18, back-to-work legislation was not enacted to end a strike or lockout.

9. The Industrial Relations Advisory Service

Industrial Relations Advisory Service (IRAS) carries out a variety of activities intended to ensure the maintenance of an appropriate framework for collective bargaining in the federal jurisdiction. This area has the responsibility for coordinating any legislative initiatives undertaken by the FMCS, including amendments to existing industrial relations legislation, and analyzes labour board and court decisions, government initiatives and representations by client groups to assess their implications for labour relations. Through its research, liaison and advisory activities, IRAS contributes to the overall FMCS mandate for dispute settlement and prevention. Research is conducted into current and emerging industrial relations problems and issues in order to develop strategies and initiatives that will support labour relations in the federal jurisdiction.

9.1 Technical Expertise for Interdepartmental Committees

IRAS provides industrial relations expertise for interdepartmental committees dealing with policy initiatives having implications for labourmanagement relations or government labour policies. Specific activities include:

- ▶ presentation of departmental positions;
- ▶ provision of an understanding of the government's labour relations philosophy;
- ▶ discussion and decisions which take account of legislative requirements, as well as acquired rights of both labour and management; and
- ▶ provision of information and data on specific industrial relations situations.

9.2 Coordinator of Legislative Initiatives

FMCS Program involvement in the legislative area can be ad hoc (e.g. emergency back-to-work legislation). IRAS is responsible for providing the Minister with the support and briefing material required for Cabinet deliberations and parliamentary consideration of Bills. Activities include:

- ▶ preparation of a Memorandum to Cabinet;
- ▶ instruction of Department of Justice drafters;
- ▶ preparation of Minister's speech and briefing material; and
- ▶ implementation of the Act, once proclaimed.

9.3 Specialized Research in Support of Dispute Resolution Initiatives

Operational research expertise is provided to conciliators and mediators, conciliation commissioners, industrial inquiry commissions, and other dispute resolution specialists on industrial relations and economic issues. This direct support is provided both in relation to specific needs arising out of ongoing dispute resolution or preventive mediation initiatives and, as well, on a continuing basis. Specific activities include:

- ▶ analysis of employer/union positions on key issues in dispute and the prevailing industry practices; and
- ▶ preparation of major industry bargaining histories which detail, over a time period, the bargaining relationship, the extent and nature of third-party assistance, changes in key issues and terms of settlement and any other significant economic or industrial relations variables.

9.4 Briefings for Ministerial Use

IRAS prepares, on a regular basis, briefing notes to support the Minister in the management of high profile labour disputes and to support the Minister when meeting with stakeholders.
