Q. If that is the case, why didn’t you tell Mottishaw to send the telegram himself?—A. In the first place, he is a poor writer; it was only a matter of convenience.
Q. But you could have signed Mottishaw’s name to the telegram?—A. Yes, I could have; I cannot just say now why I signed my own name. I am willing to confess my name was signed.
Q. I don’t see why you make so much mystery over the matter, Mr. Shenton. You would naturally like to see a union at Ladysmith, as a union man?—A. Yes.
Q. And you would naturally do all you could with Mr. Baker to suggest the best way of doing it, would you not?—A. Well, that was not the reason why he was sent for to come to Nanaimo.
Q. What was the reason why he was asked to come to Nanaimo?—A. As I have said, I don’t know that there was any special reason that I could give.
Q. Then you don’t want us to infer that it was the intention that you and he should have a talk over the matter before he proceeded to Ladysmith?—A. No, I don’t.
Q. Yet, is it the obvious inference, is it not? Is that not so?—A. Well, it may appear to be so, but at the time, as far as my knowledge goes, that was not so.
Q. Why was he to come immediately to Nanaimo? What was the urgency?—A. Well, of course that meant immediately to Ladysmith I guess
Q. What was the urgency?—A. The only urgency that I know is that the men had stated they wanted to organize at Ladysmith, and they wanted him there to organize them.
Q. Now, did Mr. Baker show you a telegram which he sent to Moyer asking Moyer to come to Nanaimo?—A. Yes, I believe I have seen the telegram. (This telegram was in cipher.)
Q. So that Mr. Baker and you were discussing this matter together evidently?—A. Well, at times of course, naturally so. Mr. Baker and myself talked the matter over; that was only natural.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. Did you see Mr. Baker before he went to Ladysmith, when he came to Nanaimo?—A. If I did see him it was just on matters of his business there. I don’t remember having any conversation with him at all when he came to Nanaimo.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. He would naturally want to know why you sent for him?—A. Of course the Ladysmith men—that is Mr. Mottishaw—knew he was coming and the time he would be there, and we waited and received him there, to conduct him down to Ladysmith.

By His Lordship:

Q. Did Mr. Baker show you a telegram dated March 14, in which Moyer tells him he has full power to act for the Federation?—A. Yes, I think I have seen that.

Q. So that there is no doubt that Mr. Baker and you were consulting frequently about the organization of these men at Ladysmith, and about the strike generally?—A. Mr. Baker often came to me with either letters, communications or telegrams from Moyer, and would read them to me.

Q. And Baker was taking advice from you as to how to conduct the affair?—A. Not that I am aware of.

Q. He would naturally take advice from somebody on the subject?—A. I don’t know as to advice; we simply had talks over the matter.

Q. He was consulting with you from time to time? That is the evidence by this correspondence, is it not?—A. Well, if he took advice from any discussions that we had. Of course I don’t know anything about it.

Q. Well, he was discussing the matter with you anyway?—A. Yes.

Q. Who else did he discuss it with? I mean of the Nanaimo men?—A. He had a few conversations with the president; I cannot say how many times they met.

Q. That is Mr. Neave?—A. Yes.

Q. And I suppose you and Mr. Neave had discussions about the situation?—A. Yes.

Q. He is president, and you are secretary of the union?—A. Yes.

Q. When did Baker get to Nanaimo?—A. I don’t remember the date of that.

Q. About the 11th or 12th of March, was it not? Because he sends a telegram to Moyer on the 13th from Nanaimo, and you asked him to come on the 9th, so he must have come between the 11th and 12th?—A. Yes, somewhere between those dates.

Q. Were you at Ladysmith about that time?—A. No.

Q. How long before that were you at Ladysmith?—A. I don’t know how long before that.

Q. You had a conversation with Mottishaw about the advisability of organizing the Ladysmith men?—A. He had a conversation with me regarding the matter, yes.

Q. When was that?—A. Previous, I think, to the time of organization; I cannot just remember the date. He had a conversation with me.

Q. I suppose you suggested it would be a good idea to organize the men?—A. I simply did not volunteer the suggestion that it would be.

Q. You coincided in the view that it would be?—A. That was dependent on the fact of their seeking for organization. As I stated in my evidence previously, there had been several representations made to Nanaimo.

Q. You were favourable to the idea of them organizing, were you not?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you discuss the matter with anybody besides Mr. Mottishaw—I mean among the Ladysmith men?—A. No person that I know of outside. I may have discussed it once with the son—with the father and son; I don’t remember any individual in particular.

Q. Did you have any correspondence by letter or telegram with anybody in Vancouver about the strike here, or about the strikes on the Island?—A. I had one about a strike here.

Q. With whom?—A. We had one in connection with the union—J. H. Halton, I think, is the agent.

Q. Who is J. H. Halton?—A. Agent for the U. B. R. E.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.
Q. What was the nature of that communication?—A. As near as I can remember—Of course as I stated before, I would like to say that I am taking the responsibility of doing what our union has really forbidden we should do.

Q. We understand all that. We understand that you are giving evidence under compulsion, but it is in the public interest that the whole matter should be set forth. What was in that communication?—A. The communication was to the effect that coal was coming from Nanaimo to Vancouver.

Q. Yes, what else?—A. Well, simply asking that we look into the matter, that is all.

Q. Have you got that telegram you have been subpoenaed to produce here?—A. Yes.

Q. These are all the papers you are producing under the subpoena?—A. Yes.

(Papers produced marked Exhibit 24.)

Q. Just read that please—Coal coming to Vancouver said to be from Nanaimo; please say.—A. Yes, that is it.

Q. What reply did you make?—A. The reply I gave was underneath—well, the reply I did not take a copy of. The reply is contained in the report given to the meeting there. It follows in the report.

Q. You informed them of the fact that no coal was coming from Nanaimo?—A. Yes.

Q. Had the Nanaimo mines been supplying coal to Vancouver, what would you have done—I mean to the C. P. R.?—A. Well, all I could say is, to take the responsibility in that connection—all I could say was that the feeling was of course to persuade the company from sending coal by reasonable methods.

Q. You would feel it your duty to endeavour to dissuade the company from supplying coal?—A. Yes.

Q. And I suppose if the company didn’t fall in with your view you would have considered it a proper thing to strike, on a certain length of notice?—A. It is hard to relate what would be done under that circumstance.

Q. Would you consider your union would be justified in doing that?—A. I don’t think they hardly would. That is the feeling of the men.

Q. Why don’t you think so? There is a difference of opinion among union men as to that?—A. Yes.

Q. Would you say it would not be justified?—A. Well, locally it is looked upon by a large body of our men that it would be injuring the local industry to some extent, assuming they were consistent with us—that we had no right to injure the local industry in that regard.

Q. Did you have any further correspondence with any of the strikers in Vancouver?—A. No, I have no other; that is all the correspondence at present.

Q. Did you have any correspondence with Moyer?—A. Yes, it is there.

Q. You got this telegram: ‘March 3, T. J. Shenton—Use your best efforts to prevent the C. P. R. from getting coal at Vancouver. Assist strikers all you can’?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Bodwell:

Q. What is the date of that, your Lordship?

By His Lordship:

Q. It is probably March 3 or March 5—it may possibly be March 6. And you answer that on the same day?—A. Yes.

Q. So it was agreed March 6—We will render all assistance possible—’ That is right?—A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Now, what did you do?—A. That is contained in the report. We approached the company and asked them if that was so, and they stated they had not supplied any coal to the C.P.R. for the last four or five years. Of course, the matter dropped right there.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.
Q. There is a telegram here from Craig, of March 30. Who is Craig?—A. I think I replied to that in Nanaimo; he is at Fernie.

Q. Oh, yes: that is where you say there were some men in Nanaimo whom it advised not to go to Fernie looking for work?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Can you explain why that telegram should have come to you. I notice that Mr. Baker wired that same day to Fernie, March 30, the date before the strike apparently was closed?—A. Why that telegram was sent out by Mr. Craig?

Q. Yes?—A. Well, I could not answer that, Mr. Rowe. It was simply sent to me. It was just as much a surprise to me. I have had very few communications with Mr. Craig at all in any way.

By His Lordship:

Q. Was this a matter of the supplying of the coal, about which you reported, discussed in the union meeting?—A. The matter was laid before the executive at first.

Q. Discussed before the executive?—A. Yes.

Q. In an open meeting?—A. That is where I got my instructions to see the company.

Q. The matter was not discussed in an open meeting of the union?—A. It was laid before the meeting in a report, as stated there.

Q. Was the matter discussed at the general meeting?—A. No lengthy discussion passed upon it to the best of my memory, any further—

Q. When the request came to use all efforts to prevent coal from being supplied to the C.P.R., was that request submitted to the men in open meeting, or was it acted on by the executive?—A. That was submitted to the men. That came after the letter from here, I think.

Q. No, that telegram of Moyer is March 6, and your report is March 28?—A. Yes.

Q. The telegram of Mr. Moyer was laid before the union or just the executive?—A. Before the union.

Q. I mean before the executive took action on it, was it laid before the union?—A. Yes.

Q. At a meeting specially called?—A. No, a general meeting.

Q. And was there discussed. Were the executive instructed by the meeting to do anything?—A. Not in regard to the Moyer telegram. Simply the action was initiated by the executive regarding the reply given.

Q. Did the executive go to see the management with the sanction of the union?—A. Yes, they sent me to see the management.

Q. Did the union deal with the matter without consulting the union as a whole?—A. They simply advised me that I ought to see whether that was true.

Q. You say, Mr. Shenton, that when you got this telegram the executive instructed you to see the management?—A. Yes.

Q. And you got your instructions from the executive without the union having first been called to consider the matter?—A. Yes, the executive suggested that I had better approach the management, and then it could be introduced to the meeting on the following Saturday which was closely following. That was what was done.

Q. I understood you to say that this telegram from Moyer to Baker of April 22 instructing the organization of the Chinese and Japanese was not shown to you?—A. No, not at all. Until you showed it to me, I never saw it before I was at Nanaimo.

Q. Well, Barber told you in confidence about this telegram?—A. No.

Q. Did you have a conversation with Richards up at Cumberland about organizing the Chinese?—A. No.

Q. No conversation whatever with him on that subject?—A. No.

Q. You gave an account to Richards of your conversation with Baker, didn’t you?—A. Gave an account to Richards?

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.
Q. Yes—of your conversation with Baker at Nanaimo?—A. I did in the connection of being sent there, the reason why I was sent, &c.
Q. You state you gave Baker a full report of how matters were coming up in Cumberland?—A. Yes.
Q. And you say you had no conversation with Richards about the Chinese?—A. No.
Q. And that he didn’t think the idea of organizing the Chinese a good one?—A. I cannot remember any expression of opinion from him along that line at all.
Q. Did you have a conversation with anybody else besides Mr. Hall up there about the Chinese?—A. No, I am not aware that I had any conversation there with any one outside of Mr. Hall on that subject.
Q. Have you confidence in Baker, as a leader of this union?—A. Well, up to the present time I cannot say that I have had anything to tempt me to feel that I could not have confidence in him.
Q. Do you think he is a safe man to be entrusted with the powers that he has?—A. Yes, I think he is a fairly safe man, as far as I know Mr. Baker.
Q. I think you told us that you knew nothing of his intention to organize the Chinese or Japs?—A. No, I don’t know anything.
Q. You were never consulted about that at all?—A. No.
Q. There is no one in the Nanaimo union who has a better right to be consulted on such matters than you, is there?—A. No, I guess there is not.
Q. So that it is not likely that he would consult anybody if he didn’t consult you?—A. Well, he didn’t consult me; I cannot say whether he consulted anybody else.
Q. You saw this telegram from Baker to Moyer of 13th March, which is in cipher—“Can you come here, important, answer” —that is what it means when translated?—A. I never saw the telegram.
Q. You never saw the telegram of March 13?—A. Not in connection with his asking him to come. He informed me regarding the matter.
Q. He told you he had sent a telegram?—A. He told me he had asked Mr. Moyer to come; I don’t know whether by telegram, letter or how.
Q. He didn’t show you the telegram he sent?—A. No.
Q. Did you see any telegram from Russell to Baker of May 9?—A. Russell?
Q. Yes?—A. What is the initial?
Q. F. J. Russell?—A. No.
Q. I suppose you kept yourself posted in relation to what was going on in relation to the U. B. R. E. strike?—A. Well, I don’t know that I have, your Lordship; I don’t just exactly know.
Q. You felt an interest in the struggle, did you not?—A. I felt an interest this way—the same as any man would be as a union man.
Q. Naturally desirous of seeing them succeed, I suppose?—A. Yes.
Q. Is this all the correspondence you have had with any of the U. B. R. E. men?—A. Yes.
Q. Have you had any correspondence of any account with Estes?—A. We had a letter at the commencement, I think—the commencement of the strike—from Mr. Estes—just one, to the union.
Q. Where is that letter?—A. I have not got it here. I looked it over. I could have brought it if I thought there was anything in it, but there is nothing relating to the situation, no more than to intimate something about the strike, giving the men encouragement, &c., anything in the form of working for encouragement.
Q. Mr. Shenton, that letter is distinctly covered by the subpoena; that letter should be here?—A. I can send it on. There is nothing more in it than any of the letters that I have brought.
Q. You had better telegraph for that letter, Mr. Shenton, and any further correspondence that you have. I don’t understand why you came to consider that that letter was not required. We will have to allow this examination to stand until you can produce that letter. You had better get it by wire?—A. I can get it.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. And any further correspondence that you have?—A. There is no more.

Q. What time does the boat come in to-morrow?—A. Between ten and twelve, I expect.

Q. Then your examination will have to stand until you produce the letter. You will send a wire for that to-night, Mr. King will pay the expense of the telegram?—A. Yes, I can send for it.

Mr. Bodwell.—Might I ask Mr. Shenton one or two questions?

His LORDSHIP.—Very well.

By Mr. Bodwell:

Q. I understand you to say that Mr. Baker was in Nanaimo in February?—A. Yes, I believe so.

Q. You will know. Was he not in Nanaimo in February?—A. I am not clear upon the dates.

Q. I mean generally—a week or ten days, or as long as that?—A. Yes, two or three weeks.

Q. And he came from Sandon to Nanaimo?—A. I don’t know what point in particular he came from.

Q. Do you know whether he came by way of Vancouver to Nanaimo?—A. Yes, I think he did.

Q. And do you know whether he stayed in Vancouver for any length of time on his way to Nanaimo?—A. Well, I could not answer; I don’t know, Mr. Bodwell; I don’t remember.

Q. Do you know whether or not he saw Mr. Estes in Vancouver, didn’t he tell you he did?—A. No.

Q. Didn’t he talk to you about a strike in Vancouver? The strike in Vancouver was in February?—A. Yes, in February.

Q. Didn’t Mr. Baker talk to you about the situation of affairs in Vancouver when he was in Nanaimo in February?—A. I had the least of talk with Mr. Baker regarding the situation in Vancouver.

Q. Here on March 6, you get a telegram from Moyer to use all your efforts to assist the strike in Vancouver. Did Mr. Baker talk to you about the strike in Vancouver when he was in Nanaimo in February, and don’t you know of communications between him and Moyer on the subject?—A. He talked the least to me about the strike in Vancouver it was possible to talk at any time.

Q. Yes, but didn’t he talk to you about it, and about the plans of the Western Federation in regard to it?—A. Not at all.

Q. You must have known the plans of the Federation when you got this telegram on the 6th of March?—A. I didn’t know their plans.

Q. That is all you got?—A. Yes, that is all I got.

Q. You had no conversations?—A. No conversations.

Q. Is that reasonable? Here is Mr. Baker, the organizer—By the way, why didn’t you tell me about this telegram from Moyer, when I was asking you in Nanaimo about Estes?—A. I said that—that does not refer to Estes.

Q. Yes, but if you had said you had a telegram from Mr. Moyer it would have opened this whole thing up?—A. If you had asked me about it I would have produced it.

Q. Didn’t you know about this telegram at that time?—A. Yes.

Q. And didn’t you know this was in consequence of a communication from Estes to Moyer, asking him to call out the Western Federation that you got this telegram?—A. No, I didn’t know that.

Q. Don’t you know it now?—A. I would have to surmise it.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3
Q. Don't you remember that I asked in Nanaimo whether Estes' statement that he had communicated with Moyer or the Western Federation as to calling them out was true or not?—A. Yes, I remember that quite well.
Q. And you said you didn't know anything about it?—A. Yes, I did.
Q. Do you think that was a frank answer, in view of the fact that you have this telegram asking you to assist the strike in Vancouver?—A. The question you placed before me was in reference to the telegrams produced by Mr. Estes.
Q. Didn't I ask you if you believed it were true that Estes had communicated with Moyer or the Western Federation, asking them to come out? What answer did you give to that?—A. If you asked me if it was true?
Q. I asked you if you believed it was true. What answer did you give?—A. I recollect you asking me if I believed it was true, if he had power given him by the Western Federation to call out the men, and I said, no.
Q. I asked if you believed it was true that Estes had communicated with the Western Federation, asking them to do this. Do you believe it is true that Estes communicated with Denver, asking them to call out the Western Federation in sympathy with the strike in Vancouver?—A. It looks as though he must have done it.
Q. Don't you know, outside of anything you have told us yet, that this is the exact state of affairs?—A. No, I don't know from real facts.
Q. You want us to believe that, having all these communications from Mr. Baker, and having all these conversations with Mr. Baker, he never alluded to that subject?—A. No, he never alluded to that subject, that I know of.
Q. What are you keeping back now?—A. I am keeping nothing back.
Q. But you kept this back?—A. Did you ask me that?
Q. I am asking you now whether you are pursuing the same line you did before? Are you simply answering questions, and keeping back all the necessary information?—A. I am answering questions.
Q. I am asking you to tell this Commission what you know about the actions of Estes towards the Western Federation in connection with the Vancouver strike?—A. I am telling this Commission everything I know to be true and the fact. I cannot remember every detail and every point.
Q. You had several conversations with Mr. Baker when he was in Nanaimo in February, you telegraphed Mr. Baker when he came to Nanaimo in March, you were sent by Baker to Union when he left Nanaimo, and you had conversations with Baker during the time he was in Nanaimo, after this Commission began to sit, and before he went to the convention at Denver. Now, I want you to tell us if, in any of these conversations, Baker did not allude to the situation at Vancouver?—A. I am not aware of any allusions being made in my presence.
Q. I want you to tell the Commission whether you discussed with Baker the subject of this telegram from Moyer to you of March 6, to assist the strikers all you could?—A. No, I don't think not.
Q. You never mentioned it to Baker?—A. No, I don't think so.
Q. And you had no instructions from anybody as to what policy was to be carried on by you in carrying out these instructions?—A. From nobody.
Q. Then it was left entirely to your discretion as to how you were to assist?—A. Our own executive.
Q. I am speaking about the executive officers of the Western Federation—Baker or some other executive officer?—A. I say I had no instructions whatever.
Q. And did you at no time know what the plan for assisting the strike at Vancouver was?—A. No, outside of financial support, which they might be expected to give in due season.
Q. Don't you know that Estes said the Western Federation had promised him to call out all the coal miners on Vancouver Island? Didn't you have any conversation with Baker on that subject?—A. None whatever, at no time.
Q. Never heard that that was the plan?—A. No, from Baker or any one else.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Well, on March 6 Moyer telegraphs you to assist the strikers at Vancouver all you can; on March 9 you telegraph Baker to come to Nanaimo; on March 10 Baker arrives at Nanaimo; on March 13, 14 and 16 he organized the miners at Ladysmith, and there is a strike; on March 16 the Steamshipmen's Union are called out and the C.P.R. steamboats are tied up, or an attempt made to do so. Did you know nothing about the relation which these movements had one to the other—A. None whatever.

Q. And prior to that Estes had said in Vancouver that he was going to close all the coal mines on Vancouver Island, so as to stop the C.P.R. getting coal, and on March 25 F. J. Halton telegraphs from Vancouver, asking you where coal is coming from that the C.P.R. are getting. I want to know what you know about all these coincidences, and the relation they had from one to the other?—A. I have simply stated what I know.

Q. Then we are to understand that Baker was treating you in the same way as he treated the men of the joint executive, when they met in Nanaimo, and did not disclose to you, as he did not disclose to them, the fact that the union miners were to be called out in sympathy with Ladysmith. Are we to understand that; that Baker was deceiving you or misleading you in the same way as he misled the joint executive?—A. Well, you may put whatever construction upon it you may; my answer is still the same. I knew nothing whatever and neither did the executive board know anything to that effect.

Q. Don't you believe now, from what you have seen in the correspondence, that Baker was acting under instructions from the Denver executive in conjunction with Estes, and that the plan was to prevent coal coming to the C. P. R. Don't you believe that now?—A. Well, it has a likeness to that. But, why should I be made responsible for believing that?

Q. I ask you if you don't believe it from what you have seen, and from what you know—if you don't believe that Baker and Estes were acting together?—A. I prefer to believe not, until I have had an opportunity to approach the proper quarters—in this case of being misled. While things point to that possibly being true, yet up to the present time we have had no opportunity of getting particulars in that direction, I won't take the responsibility of saying I do believe.

Q. What steps will be necessary on your part to ascertain whether your belief is well founded or not?—A. The necessary steps of course would be to approach the Western Federation or Mr. Baker himself.

Q. Did you write anything to Mr. Moyer in response to this telegram of March 6? Did you make a report to him?—A. The report is there.

Q. 'We will render all assistance possible'—A. That is all.

Q. Didn't you have any letter from him?—A. No more than we have there; I produced all the letters.

Q. When you stated you would render all assistance possible, what did you refer to?—A. I referred to just the action taken.

Q. But your instructions were to use your best endeavours to prevent the C.P.R. from getting coal at Vancouver; you said 'We will render all assistance possible'. What did you intend to do to prevent the C.P.R. getting coal at Vancouver?—A. Simply to ask the company to abstain from sending coal.

Q. Didn't you intend to organize the Cumberland and Ladysmith miners with what end in view?—A. Not at all.

Q. Is it not a strange coincidence, that you were engaged in organizing the Ladysmith miners?—A. Me? No.

Q. You say Mr. Mottishaw came to you with reference to organization at Ladysmith?—A. He came to me, and indicated to me—

Q. When did he come—about March 9 or March 6? I want you to note these dates. On March 6 you got a telegram from Moyer, to use your best efforts to prevent the C.P.R. getting coal at Vancouver. On March 6 you answer: 'We will render all assistance possible.' On March 9 you telegraph to Baker: 'Your presence urgently needed at Ladysmith.' Now, was that telegram sent to Baker in pursuance of your promise to Moyer in the telegram of March 6?—A. Not by any means; no connection, as far as I can see.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.

Q. Then, when Mr. Mottishaw came to ask you to telegraph to Baker to organize Ladysmith, you did not think that that move would prevent the C.P.R. from getting coal?—A. Irrespective of that or not. That was not the idea or thought at all. It had no connection whatever.

Q. And the fact that on the 16th the Ladysmith miners were organized and insisted in pressing a demand on the company which you knew the company would not accede to—you knew the company at Ladysmith would not recognize the Western Federation, didn’t you?—A. I didn’t know.

Q. Were you not sure of it, with all the experience you have had with Mr. Dunsmuir—were you not sure he would not recognize it?—A. There was still a possibility.

Q. Were you not thoroughly convinced he would not recognize a union?—A. No.

Q. And didn’t you know that if you got the Western Federation organized at Ladysmith, they would demand recognition, and there would be a strike immediately—didn’t you believe that?—A. I believed these things were possible in the trend of things.

Q. Didn’t you think that was going to happen? Didn’t you think in your own mind that that would be the result of the action? If the Western Federation was organized, they would demand recognition, Dunsmuir would refuse it, and there would be a strike—didn’t you think that was the course?—A. I foresaw that was possible, but we didn’t expect that.

Q. Will you swear that you did not expect that result would follow?—A. Well, we were hopeful it would not.

Q. Did not you expect it—that is the answer I want from you?

_by His Lordship:_

Q. If I were you, Mr. Shenton, I would give such an answer as would commend itself to the intelligence of the audience?—A. I am trying to do that, but I don’t want Mr. Bodwell to argue it into a position where I shall make a false statement. I did not expect that Mr. Dunsmuir, under these circumstances, would, so long as the men continued at their work, that he would do as he had done in the past. We were hopeful that he would do better.

_by Mr. Bodwell:_

Q. Well, you have not answered my question. You have been in Nanaimo how many years?—A. I was away some four years; I came early in ’93.

Q. You knew Mr. Dunsmuir had refused to recognize the union when it was started at Wellington, from common report anyway?—A. Yes, common report.

Q. You knew, as a matter of history, that he had refused to recognize a union at Union mines?—A. Yes.

Q. And at Alexandria mines?—A. Yes.

Q. And you knew that he had expressed himself, over and over again, to the effect that he would not have a union among his men?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, I ask you, if you did not expect, when you organized the union at Ladysmith, that they would demand recognition?—A. Yes. I expected they would demand recognition.

Q. And didn’t you expect that Dunsmuir would refuse it, as he had always done in the past—did not you look for it?—A. It was most likely, of course.

Q. Well, if the union was organized at Ladysmith, and demanded recognition, and it was refused, there would be a strike—did you not expect that? If they demanded recognition and Dunsmuir refused, there would be a strike?—A. I don’t know; if Mr. Dunsmuir preferred to allow the men to work without demanding recognition of the union.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. You know the kind of man Mr. Dunsmuir is, so you know it would be refused, and didn’t you expect a strike would follow?—A. Well, of course, I did.

Q. And would not a strike at Ladysmith shut off the C.P.R. supply of coal, to the best of your knowledge and information?—A. Yes, it would.

Q. And would that not be carrying out your promise to Moyer that you would all you could to prevent the C. P. R. getting a supply of coal?—A. As I say, it was irrespective of that—that was not the intention. Organization alone was the intention.

Q. Does it not strike you as singular that it works out in that way?—A. Yes.

Q. And now you tell us that subject was never mentioned or discussed between you and Baker?—A. Never.

Q. What did you discuss with him as to the steps you would take to carry out your promise to Moyer to do all you could to shut off the C.P.R. coal?—A. Did not discuss anything.

Q. Then this was a plan originated by you—is that right?—A. No, it is not a plan originated by me with regard to the organization.

Q. Well, but the organization at that particular time, to produce that particular result was a plan originated by you?—A. No.

Q. It was not suggested to you by anyone else, or if so, who suggested it?—A. Representations were made from Ladysmith asking for organization.

Q. Yes, but the plan of organization at Ladysmith just at this particular juncture—who suggested that?—A. No one.

Q. Then it was a plan originated by you?—A. No, it was not.

Q. You and Mottishaw were the two men who consulted between you as to how the thing was to be done in Ladysmith?—A. It had its origin long before that.

Q. Well, we know not so very long; but the conversation between you and Mottishaw occurred at this particular juncture?—A. Yes.

Q. And Mottishaw came to Nanaimo to ask you to get the organizer there just at this particular juncture?—A. No.

Q. Well, he came on March 9?—A. It was decided at a meeting in Ladysmith to send for Mr. Baker.

Q. It was not decided at a meeting at Ladysmith until after the 11th or 12th?—A. That is, of the telegram.

Q. But the telegram is on the 9th, so it could not have been that time—it could not have been on the 9th. I think the 15th is the date. The meeting was on the 9th.

Mr. Rowe.—Sunday, the 8th.

Q. So that was simply a coincidence then?—A. So far as I know.

Q. You say there was a great deal of soreness in the Dunsmuir mines about organization being started in Nanaimo?—A. Yes.

Q. Mottishaw is practically a Nanaimo man?—A. Yes.

Q. He lives there, but has not been really working in the mines much in the last year?—A. I don’t know whether that is true or not.

Q. You at any rate are a Nanaimo man. Now, who else was taking an active part in the preliminaries leading up to that organization?—A. I cannot tell you.

Q. You would know, would you not?—A. I have stated previously, quite a number of men came from Ladysmith reporting the fact that the men felt desirous of organizing.

Q. Who were they? Can you tell me the name of any man who was permanently fixed in Ladysmith, and had been working in the mines for any considerable time, who came in and made that report?—A. I said there were men who had been down there, and they were informed to come in and report.

Q. Was Mr. Higney one of them?—A. I don’t know the gentleman at all.
Q. When did this report begin to come in, in February?—A. Probably earlier than that—I am not sure.
Q. Don't you think it was in February?—A. It might have been before that time.
Q. But was it before that time to the best of your recollection?—A. I cannot say exactly.
Q. And was it not during the period that Baker was in Nanaimo that you began to get these reports that the men at Ladysmith were desirous of organizing?—A. Several reports came in during that time, yes.
Q. And that is another coincidence?—A. Yes, that is another coincidence.
Q. And your recollection is that Baker stopped at Vancouver on his way over to Nanaimo, when he came in February?—A. I cannot say that; I cannot recollect.
Q. You think it is so, as a matter of fact?—A. I cannot think so; I don't remember.
Q. Who sent for Baker, when he came to Nanaimo on that occasion in February?—A. That is the point regarding the dates of the different telegrams that I got confused on, and I am sorry to say I don't clearly recollect, but I know there was a telegram sent from ourselves asking, in almost similar words, for Mr. Baker to come regarding the dispute that was on.
Q. You can't remember how he came, or what route he took to get there?—A. I don't know the route he took.
Q. You saw Mr. Hall at Union and had a conversation with him?—A. Yes.
Q. And didn't you tell him you were deputized by Mr. Baker to organize the Chinamen and Japanese?—A. No.
Q. Although he says so, you deny that?—A. If he says so, yes.
Q. Let me call your attention to one or two further coincidences. Here is a telegram from Moyer to Baker, telling him 'we approve of calling out any and all men necessary to win at Ladysmith—organize Japanese and Chinese, if possible.' That is on April 24?—A. I asked to be excused from the responsibility of saying that I saw that telegram, when I have declared—
Q. I mean you have seen it in court. You say you didn't see it at the time?—A. No.
Q. Apparently, as far as the evidence goes, it was received in response to a telegram from Baker sent to Moyer at the time of the joint meeting of the executive at Nanaimo, of which you were a member.
Mr. Rowe.—It would have to be earlier; the joint meeting did not meet until the 24th.
Mr. Bodwell.—It is the 22nd they had the meeting at Nanaimo.
Mr. Rowe.—As a matter of fact, the meeting was on Saturday and Sunday, April 25 and 26.
Q. On May 12, Mr. Baker writes to the secretary of the union at Cumberland: 'It was owing to the circumstances above mentioned that I did not go to Cumberland, as I wired you, I would get Brother Shenton to go instead.' So, you went to Cumberland in pursuance of a request from Mr. Baker?—A. Yes.
Q. Didn't he request you to go there, to carry out the instructions from Moyer to organize the Chinese and Japanese, if possible?—A. Not at all—never mentioned.
Q. Well, you had a conversation with Mr. Hall, the missionary among the Chinese and Japanese?—A. Yes.
Q. But he has sworn that you requested him to assist you to take preliminary steps to organize the Chinese and Japanese at Cumberland?—A. I have stated previously, and state again, that there must have been a mistake. It is untrue.
Q. He says you talked to him as if you had got a sudden excess of zeal to uplift the Chinamen, and that he considered the best way was to get the Chinamen into a union!—A. Place the responsibility on him; I say we had a conversation.
Q. What was the conversation, according to your idea?—A. He introduced the idea of the elevation of the Chinese by giving them the benefit of organization, and

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.
I said also that it seemed to be a hobby with Mr. Hall. We were speaking generally—not as applied to the situation at all.

Q. Did you make a report to Baker of your trip to Cumberland?—A. Yes.

Q. In writing?—A. No, verbally.

Q. When and where?—A. I gave it to him in the Windsor Hotel.

Q. What did you say about the steps which had been taken to organize the Japanese and Chinamen?—A. I didn’t say anything regarding that; I could not say anything.

Q. You did not mention the fact of your conversation with Mr. Hall?—A. Yes, I mentioned my conversation with Mr. Hall. I gave him the idea of Mr. Hall regarding the organization of the Chinese, and also that Mr. Hall suggested that copies of some constitution be printed in the Chinese language, in order to get them to understand and to get an appreciation of what organization meant.

Q. Then, we are to understand that, although Mr. Hall made the suggestion, you approved of it?—A. No, my own opinion is as stated. One serious objection that I have is, that they are an alien race and a menace to the white man in general.

Q. At what other time did you discuss the organization of Chinese, except in the conversation with Mr. Hall?—A. Well, as I have stated now. In Nanaimo I have heard the men, and possibly I have said some few things regarding organization of Chinamen.

Q. Did you think that if the Japanese and Chinese could be organized at Cumberland at this juncture that they would assist the strike at Cumberland?—A. Well, if they had been organized it would have assisted.

Q. That is another coincidence. That the idea of organizing the Chinese should come to your mind at this particular juncture?—A. The reason, as I have stated, that it was really through the papers, that the Western Federation of Miners had taken up the idea of organizing the Chinese and Japanese.

Q. And you went to Cumberland as a representative of the Western Federation of Miners, under Mr. Baker’s instructions and you took up the subject of organization?—A. It was suggested to me.

By His Lordship:

Q. Did you go to Mr. Hall’s house, or did he come to you?—A. I went to Mr. Hall’s house.

By Mr. Bodwell:

Q. What did you go to Mr. Hall’s house for?—A. He was recommended to me by some friends I had, and I went to see him.

Q. Mr. Hall says the first thing you asked him to do was to give evidence before the Commission—is that true?—A. That is not true.

Q. And the second subject of discussion was to organize the Chinese and Japanese?—A. That was not true—the first thing I said was that I advised Mr. Hall to go before the Commission. Mr. Hall had gone on discussing the Chinese and uplifting them by organization, and I said the Commission is coming up here, and I would suggest, as you understand the Chinese, that you go before the Commission and give them the benefit of your view.

Q. That is another coincidence. That at this particular time you went to Cumberland to call on Mr. Hall, that he should suggest the elevation of the Chinese?—A. Yes.

Q. And you approved in your conversation, of the elevation of the Chinese?—A. To some extent, yes.

Q. To what extent?—A. To the extent that as they are in the country we will have to deal with them.

Q. The first step in uplifting them was to organize them into some kind of body which a labour union could use. Is that right?—A. Well, we didn’t organize them.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.
Q. Was that not the line along which your conversation proceeded?—A. The conversation proceeded along the line of uplifting the Chinese to an appreciation of organization.

Q. That was the line then? And you approve of uplifting the Chinese to such an extent that they could appreciate organization?—A. Referring to the future.

Q. At what time in the future was this process to begin?—A. As soon as they came to an appreciation of it.

Q. When were you to begin educating them?—A. There was no time stated.

Q. When were you to begin educating the Chinese and Japanese at Cumberland?—A. I don’t know that that referred to Cumberland at all—it is the Chinese and Japanese of the whole of the country.

Q. You were talking in general terms of the whole of British Columbia?—A. Yes, their presence as affecting the white men.

Q. Did not charity begin at home, and was it not to begin in the field of the Reverend Mr. Hall?—A. Not as far as I am concerned.

Q. You didn’t approve of that process of education and elevation?—A. Yes, I approved of it.

Q. Why should not Mr. Hall begin immediately to educate the Chinese at Cumberland to an appreciation of the benefits of organization?—A. He was quite ready to do that.

Q. He says the only thing that prevented him doing it was that you would not give a sufficient guarantee on behalf of the Western Federation?—A. Something was said about guarantees.

Q. He wanted you, on behalf of the Western Federation of Miners, if he organized the Chinamen to help your strike, that you would see that they got union wages?—A. Some such guarantee was mentioned.

Q. That if he organized the Chinamen to help your strike there you would guarantee on behalf of the Western Federation that the Chinamen would get union wages—is that not so?—A. I told him I could not be responsible for that.

Q. Is that not the condition that he wished to impose?—A. That is the condition he wished to impose.

Q. And you would not give it on behalf of the Western Federation?—A. I could not give it—certainly not.

Q. You didn’t think the Western Federation wished to elevate the Chinamen to that extent?—A. I was not responsible in that regard.

Q. You told Mr. Hall you were there representing the Western Federation?—A. Yes.

Q. And he asked you on behalf of the Western Federation to guarantee union wages to the Chinamen? You stated you had no authority to do it?—A. He said, if the Japanese and Chinese were to be organized, it would be a natural thing they would have to get support.

Q. And if they were organized at Cumberland for the purpose of helping the strike, you should guarantee them union wages—is that right?—A. Well, yes.

Q. And you, on behalf of the Western Federation, were not authorized to give that guarantee?—A. Yes.

Q. And consequently the negotiations for organization fell through?—A. Not consequently; I knew nothing of it.

Q. The negotiations between you and Mr. Hall did fall through?—A. Certainly they did.

Q. They were broken off at the stage of the conversation when you refused to give that guarantee?—A. They never began, as far as Cumberland is concerned.

Q. You are contradicting yourself. Five minutes ago you said, in answer to a question from me, that Mr. Hall made it a condition of helping the strike, that they should be guaranteed union wages, and you could not give that?—A. Yes, I said that and more; I said I was not authorized to deal with that question at all.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 362

His Lordship.—Then, he is mistaken. The question was: 'Did you understand from Shenton that the executive of the Western Federation of Miners at Denver would approve of the idea of organizing the Chinese?' And Hall said, 'Yes.'

By Mr. Bodwell:

Q. And that Moyer had telegraphed to organize the Chinese and writes that you were there to represent him, and yet we are to understand that you told Hall you had no instructions whatever on the question?—A. I told him I had no instructions whatever.

By His Lordship:

Q. Then, Hall was wrong when he said 'Yes' to that question?—A. Yes, he must have been.

By Mr. Bodwell:

Q. Then, why did you proceed with the negotiations?—A. I didn't proceed. He said that nothing of that nature should transpire; he took the whole matter in his own hands regarding the organization and uplifting of the Chinese. He said that if anything transpired in that direction, that the Chinamen would have to be treated right. I said I had no responsibility, and that I was not sent there for that purpose.

By His Lordship:

Q. Then, you say, Mr. Shenton, you went to Hall; he did not come to you?—A. Certainly I went to Hall.

Mr. Bodwell.—I suppose we have got all the light on the subject we can.

By His Lordship:

Q. Mr. Shenton, you will see that any documents you have in relation to these matters are sent over?—A. I thought I had collected all. I remember the one I spoke of; it does not really seem to relate to the situation.

Q. We will be the best judges of that. Please go with Mr. King and send that telegram.

Mr. Foley.—I would like to ask a question or two. My learned friend tries to make it appear, as far as I can see, that the organization or their officers in Nanaimo are receiving instructions from an alien organization in this matter. Now, I desire to disprove that.

His Lordship.—If you are going into that, perhaps you had better wait until the whole examination is concluded. There will be some evidence coming from Nanaimo which may throw light on this question.

Mr. Foley.—I wish only to ask two questions.

Q. You received your telegram from Moyer after you had effected organization; that is, this telegram to use your influence to prevent coal going to the C.P.R.?—A. Yes, before organization on December 20.

Q. Then, your purpose in organizing was not for the purpose of obeying the alien organization; your purpose was not to obey them and assist the U.B.R.E. in preventing coal from coming in?—A. No idea at all.

Mr. Rowe.—You refer to the organization at Nanaimo?

Mr. Foley.—I refer to the Western Federation. He receives a telegram from Moyer, president of the Western Federation, requesting him to use his influence to prevent coal from coming here. This was after they had been organized at Nanaimo, which goes to show that they did not organize with the deliberate purpose of following instructions from Denver.

Mr. Bodwell.—It was after they organized at Nanaimo, but before they organized at Ladysmith and before they organized at Cumberland.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 3
Mr. Foley.—It struck me that my friend here was trying to convey the impression that they organized in obedience to instructions for the purpose of assisting the U.B.R.E. instead of their own interests.

His Lordship.—Of course it was in their own interests too.

Mr. Rowe.—Of course Mr. Foley understands that that telegram was previous to the Ladysmith organization and the Cumberland organization.

Mr. Foley.—I did not understand that.

Vancouver, June 4, 1903.

Mr. Bird.—I file an affidavit of documents and an affidavit of F. J. Halton.

(Exhibits 25 and 26.)

I presumed yesterday, Mr. Commissioners, that when an order was made that each party file an affidavit of documents that such affidavit would conform practically to the rules of the Supreme Court. The document filed as a declaration by Mr. Richard Marpole does not pretend to conform to the practice of the Supreme Court.

His Lordship.—Let me see the document.

Mr. Davis.—That is a declaration, your Lordship, that purports in clause 1 to set out certain documents referred to in schedule 1 of the declaration. It includes all other documents in the possession of the C.P.R. in schedule 2 as they stand together in a bundle marked 'A.'

His Lordship.—It certainly does not comply technically with the rules.

Mr. Davis.—I would urge upon your Lordship what I said yesterday, that there were certain documents which we objected to produce, that we would produce them to the Commission and they could look them over and decide. My learned friend objects to producing certain documents. I think it is not necessary to argue about it, but I would suggest as to both the correspondence that the same course be adopted.

His Lordship.—The difficulty is you don't tell us under oath what you have got; you don't show that. You say you have a bundle of correspondence and telegrams, but there is no way of identifying them.

Mr. Davis.—The same is in their affidavit; you can set out the documents in a bundle.

His Lordship.—Provided you give the dates.

Mr. Davis.—It is not a matter of any importance. But what I suggested was, and I suggest that the same course be followed by the other side, that these documents we object to produce, on both sides, be put before the Commissioners, and for them to decide whether or not they are to be produced.

His Lordship.—Yes, that is all right, but I want the oath of some competent person that the documents brought before the Commission are all the documents.

Mr. Davis.—You have that. It states that the documents set out in the affidavit and referred to under bundle 'A' are all the documents. I would suggest that the other side put the documents which they object to produce, in the hands of the Commission, and if the Commission thinks that any should be produced, all right, the same as our own.

His Lordship.—You had better put in that bundle, Mr. Bird. The Commissioners will look over that.

Mr. Bird.—What I particularly want is the blacklist of the C.P.R. against employees, and I want special service reports of special constables. I set out in the affidavit of Mr. Halton that these special service reports are not prepared under any ground that would ordinarily obtain privilege for them. They are not prepared for the advice of solicitors or in any way that would entitle them to privilege.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

His LORDSHIP.—You want what?
Mr. BIRD.—The C.P.R. blacklist.
Mr. DAVIS.—The C.P.R. never had a blacklist.

His LORDSHIP.—What else besides the blacklist?

Mr. BIRD.—I want the special reports of the special constables and watchmen; all telegrams with relation to proposed settlements between Mr. Marpole and his officials here, and Mr. McNicholl and Mr. Leonard, and the general officers of the company. I want the production of the appearance book from the local freight office, and way-bill book between February 26 and March 1. I think, Mr. Commissioners, up to the present time that is all I know that we require, but it may be necessary to ask your Lordship to get other documents.

His LORDSHIP.—Have you got your bundle?
Mr. BIRD.—I will have them; they are on the way down.

Mr. DAVIS.—In reference to the way-bill book, that cannot go out of the possession of the company very long, as it is being used. If my friend will state any particular time, we will have it up, so that it can be looked at, or it can be seen at the office at any reasonable times.

His LORDSHIP.—You would allow them to inspect it?
Mr. DAVIS.—Yes, my Lord.
Mr. BIRD.—I understand there are tissue copy books which could be produced.
His LORDSHIP.—If you find there is anything you want to bring before the Commission, we will see to that. What about that appearance book?

Mr. DAVIS.—That will be gotten.

His LORDSHIP.—You don’t object to produce that?

Mr. DAVIS.—No.

(Mr. Bird hands in bundles of documents for which privilege is claimed—six bundles.)

His LORDSHIP.—There are six bundles there?

Mr. BIRD.—Yes, they are all marked separately.

His LORDSHIP.—There seems to be a large amount of work, even in connection with a strike!

Mr. BIRD.—I think there is a good deal of correspondence that is absolutely useless to anybody—mere acknowledgments of payments, but they may bear on the strike.

Mr. DAVIS.—Are there any letters from Estes produced?

Mr. BIRD.—I believe so.

Mr. DAVIS.—They are all that have passed.

Mr. BIRD.—As far as I know, yes.

Mr. DAVIS.—Because in this affidavit there are only one or two, and you must have had a great number.

Mr. BIRD.—I don’t know as to that, I am sure. I am informed that the communications from Mr. Estes are not a great number. He was either here or in Victoria, and the communications were mostly verbal. He was kept so busy by the C.P.R. that he had no time to write more than a few letters.

His LORDSHIP.—Is it intended that Mr. Estes shall be here to give evidence?

Mr. BIRD.—I understand, my Lord, that Mr. Estes is attending a convention at Denver. If your Lordship desires him here, he shall be here.
His Lordship.—We certainly would like to have him here.

Mr. Bird.—The secretary of the organization, I undertake, will wire for him at once. He will be here by the close of the Commission.

His Lordship.—How long before the convention concludes?

Mr. Bird.—It is a convention of the American Labour Union, with which the U.B.R.E. is affiliated. I could not say exactly when it concludes.

His Lordship.—Is it being held at Denver?

Mr. Bird.—Yes, it is in session there, and I understand the convention will last probably ten days longer.

His Lordship.—You had better find out just when it is likely to end, because we would like to suit his convenience as much as possible; and when he can get here.

Mr. Bird.—Yes.

His Lordship.—Because it seems to me that it is of prime importance to the proper presentation of the case of the men, that the leader should be here.

Mr. Bird.—As a matter of fact, I think the evidence will disclose that he was no leader in connection with this strike.

His Lordship.—I understand he had a good deal to do with it.

Mr. Bird.—He had something to do with the working of it, and advising, as under the constitution he was bound to do. I understand he had no part in the direction of the strike, except in an advisory capacity. He had no authority to take any part whatever, and he did not sit on the executive and had nothing whatever to do with the strike; it was in the hands of the local union.

His Lordship.—There is a danger that the public may misinterpret some of the movements of the men, unless a leader like Estes, whose counsel and advice was taken from time to time, is not here to give evidence. It is only fair to the men, I think, that he should be here.

Mr. Bird.—I agree with your Lordship.

His Lordship.—You can find out when he is likely to be here?

Mr. Bird.—Yes, we will wire at once.

His Lordship.—I suppose we had better go on with the evidence.

Mr. Bird.—I did start with one witness, my Lord, but he is not here. I was really waiting until the conference was over. I will go on in the ordinary course, and will call David B. Johnstone.

David B. Johnstone, sworn.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Have you formerly been in the employ of the C.P.R.?—A. Yes sir.

Q. In what capacity?—A. I have been weigh-master for the C.P.R.

Q. What particular division of the service is that called?—A. With the weighing of cars.

Q. Is that among the freight handlers?—A. Exactly.

Q. Have the freight handlers had a union heretofore, prior to the inauguration of the U.B.R.E.?—A. Yes.

Q. And as such you made arrangements with the C.P.R.?—A. Yes.

Q. You had a wage schedule with the company?—A. Yes.

Mr. Bird.—I will file the wage schedule if my learned friend will produce it (Exhibit 27.)

By His Lordship:
Q. You are out on strike at present?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. When did you join the U.B.R.E.?—A. I personally joined the U.B.R.E. to the best of my knowledge in August, 1902, but I would like to explain that the freight handlers as a body did not join the U.B.R.E. at that time.

By His Lordship:
Q. When did they join?—A. Your Lordship, I cannot give you the date definitely, but I think it was during the month of November, the same year.
Q. You were the pioneer in joining?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. Is that what you call your wage schedule?—A. Yes, I identify that as the wage schedule—a copy of it at least—between the freight handlers and the C.P.R.
(Exhibit 27.)

By His Lordship:
Q. That is the wage schedule of the freight handlers?—A. Yes.
Q. Is that the wage schedule in force?—A. Yes.
Q. What time?—A. If my memory serves me rightly it should expire on June 21, 1903.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. Article 8 says that this schedule shall come in force in three weeks from date, and May 21 is the date of the document, and three weeks from that date would be June 21.
Q. According to this document you appear to have received concessions as a union—I mean increased rates?—A. Yes.
Q. An increase of pay all along the line—to everyone?—A. Yes.
Q. Of course when I refer to all along the line, I mean to the members of the union?—A. To the members connected with the Freight Handlers’ Union.
Q. Did the freight handlers join the U.B.R.E. as a body later?—A. Yes.
Q. When?—A. To the best of my knowledge during the month of November, or the early part of December; I could not give the date positively.

His Lordship.—Just let me understand this—this so-called freight handlers’ schedule. Was that a request which was acceded to, or is it an agreement?

Mr. Bird.—It is ordinarily spoken of as an agreement, but I understand it is nothing but a wage schedule.

His Lordship.—I want to know whether it is a document or a memorandum.

Mr. Bird.—Apparently there is no signature of the union there; I have not got the original.

Mr. Davis.—It is an agreement, your Lordship, binding on both parties.

His Lordship.—As between the company and the United Brotherhood of Railway Freight Handlers?

Mr. Davis.—Yes.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. You had a conversation with Mr. Beasley early this year?—A. On the first day of March, I believe I had.
By His Lordship:

Q. Who is Beasley?—A. He is the Divisional Superintendent of the C.P.R.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. What was the substance of that conversation with Mr. Beasley?—A. Well, he approached me in the shed. It was the last day I worked for the C.P.R.—with reference to the outlook which appeared at the present time to exist between the freight handlers and the C.P.R. with regard to working in connection with what are commonly called scabs.

By His Lordship:

Q. What date was this?—A. On the 1st March this year. And he inquired of me if we had had a meeting the night previous to decide on some way of getting over this deadlock, and I told him I did not know whether a meeting had been held or not—that I had not been present. Our conversation then drifted to the U.B.R.E.—

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Before going to that conversation, you referred to a deadlock; what did you mean by that?—A. Your Lordship, the freight handlers refused to work, as I have said, with what they called 'scabs.' The office men were out on strike, and their places were being taken by scabs, and in the local freight sheds a man who acted as foreman was not a member of our organization and was out on strike, and our men could not take his place without acting as scabs, or yet could not consent to working with a man taking his place as a scab.

Q. Why could you not do that, Mr. Johnstone? Why could you not work with a man you call a scab?—A. It is contrary to all the rules of unionism.

By His Lordship:

Q. What is a scab?—A. A scab, in my estimation, is a man who refuses to go on strike when a strike is declared, or who takes the place of a union man when he is on strike.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. When you say a man who refuses to go on strike after a strike is declared—a man who is not a member of the union would not be a scab?—A. Possibly not.

Q. That is, a union man who refuses to obey union methods would be a scab?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. A union man who refuses to be bound by the action of the majority?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. But a man taking his place, whether a union man or not, would be considered a scab, would he not?—A. Yes, he would be considered a scab in any case.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Then will you proceed with the conversation with Mr. Beasley?—A. And Mr. Beasley assured me that he did not want to have any trouble with the freight handlers' organization. He wanted us to go on as we were at the present time, but that the company was entirely opposed to the U.B.R.E., in fact it would not stand for it, because they considered the organization impracticable, and at the same time said that the company would not stand to have a man like Estes interfering with their business.

Q. Did he explain what he meant by impracticable?—A. No, he did not.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. That was the substance of the conversation that took place?—A. Yes, there might have been other remarks passed, but those are the facts that have been impressed upon my memory.

Mr. Rowe.—I have not got it clear in my own mind as to the condition at this time. Had the strike been declared by the U. B. R. E.?

By Mr. Bird:

Q. When did the Brotherhood go on strike?—A. The Brotherhood, as represented by the clerks and office men, bagagemen and office men generally, and the men at the stores also, went on strike at noon on the 27th day of February.

By His Lordship:

Q. You say the clerks, office men and bagagemen went out on the 27th February. Did any of the U. B. R. E. men remain? What about the freight-handlers?—A. I wish to explain that: the freight-handlers, working with this schedule with the company, decided that, so long as conditions were such that we should live up to our schedule, and we were prepared to hold up our agreement so long as it was possible for us to do so, notwithstanding that the others went on strike.

Q. Do you mean giving 30 days’ notice, by living up to the agreement?—A. No, we did not give 30 days’ notice. We were prepared to leave it open until the end of the term, if possible.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. You felt, however, that you could not live up to that agreement at the expense of working with scabs?—A. Certainly not.

By His Lordship:

Q. What do you mean by being unable to work with scabs? How near must a scab be to you before you will take offence at his presence?—A. Not very close.

Q. Yes, but what do you call working with a scab?—A. I mean handling goods that have been handled by a scab, coming directly in contact with a scab.

Q. That is, goods that have been handled, immediately before you handle them, by scabs, you would consider scab freight?—A. Yes, my Lord.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Would you have the same objection to delivering goods to those who were scabs?—A. For myself personally I would; that would depend on conditions, I presume.

By His Lordship:

Q. Suppose the stuff had been handled by a union man immediately before you handled it, and handled by a scab before the union man handled it, would you consider that scab freight?—A. Well, I would have a poor opinion of the union man.

Q. Yes, but he might have a different opinion of the nature of his agreement with the company?—A. Well, I suppose if they were handled by a scab and purified by being handled by a union man, I would think I should handle them.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. You would think they would be purified?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. And that the infection would not reach you?—A. Possibly not.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Then after the strike was declared by the U. B. R. E. the freight-handlers stayed at their work by reason of this schedule?—A. Yes.

DAVID E. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
Mr. Rowe.—Would the witness tell us what different class of employees are under this union?

Mr. Bird.—I was coming to that in a moment.

Q. I was asking you when the U.B.R.E. declared a strike you stayed on by reason of your agreement with the C.P.R.?—A. Yes.

Q. What was the occasion of the freight-handlers going on strike?—A. Our committee was sent for by Mr. Beasley, the divisional superintendent, and it was reported at a meeting of the freight-handlers that this committee had been told that Mr. Beasley wished to draw up a new agreement with them, and surprise, of course, was expressed at wishing to draw up this agreement when the old agreement had some length of time to run, and not only this, but the fact of having this agreement renewed was coupled with the stipulation that we should withdraw from the U.B.R.E., and these were factors which caused the repudiation of this agreement. Then the discharge of one of our members for refusing to handle what had been handled already by seabs, as we considered it.

Q. Who was this man who was discharged?—A. Edward Fowler. And the fact that men had been brought to the city and placed between the station and the wharf in cars, as we were informed by them, to take our places immediately we went out. We saw that the situation was up to us, when these men were there to take our places.

Q. You mean to say the C.P.R. had brought in men to fill your places in anticipation of your going on strike?—A. These men arrived here on the morning of the 28th day of February.

By His Lordship:

Q. How many men?—A. I could not give you the exact number.

Q. About how many?—A. I should say 20 or 25.

Q. You thought they were brought to take the places of the freight handlers?—A. So I was informed by some of the men, that they were truckers and checkmen.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. They did not, then, belong to the class of employees out on strike at that time, the clerks or the others you have mentioned?—A. No; I don’t think they belonged to any class at all.

Q. That is your personal opinion; but their alleged occupation was such as you have mentioned?—A. That was to be their occupation as they understood it, from what they told us.

Q. Did they go to work when they arrived?—A. No.

Q. When did they go to work?—A. Not until after we went on strike.

Q. That was on the 2nd of March you told us?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. The freight handlers went out on the 2nd of March because of seab freight and the discharge of one of their men—those were the causes?—A. The importation of the men and the demand that we withdraw from the U.B.R.E.; they would not have our contract renewed; and the discharge of one of our men.

Q. You went on strike for four reasons—the demand to withdraw from the U.B.R.E., the discharge of Fowler—what office did he hold?—A. He was night car checker; he was not an officer in the union to my knowledge.

Q. The third ground was what?—A. Working with seabs.

Q. By that you mean that this freight was handled in the baggage room by non-union men?—A. You mean the freight that Fowler was asked to handle?

Q. Yes.—A. No, it was his duty to send out freight trains, to make out bills for conductors, and these bills were made by men who had taken the places of strikers in the office. He was discharged because he refused to co-operate with these men. It was his duty to take the bills when the other men were through with them.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. So there is not only scab freight, but scab bills?—A. Yes.
Q. And scab bills would infect the labour men?—A. Yes.
Q. Have you got the constitution of the U. B. R. E.?—A. I have.

(Copy of constitution identified by witness, and filed as Exhibit 28).

By His Lordship:

Q. Is this the last edition?—A. That is the only edition in existence, my Lord, so far as I know.

Mr. Bird.—I might give you a better copy (handed in).

Q. What are the objects of your organization?—A. They are plainly set forth on the first page of the constitution.

By His Lordship:

Q. Where are the headquarters?—A. In San Francisco.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. The objects you say are set forth in the preamble?—A. Yes.
Q. I see by this that you are a fraternal organization?—A. Truly.
Q. Having, as one of your principal reasons of existence, the helping of members in sickness and distress?—A. Well, fraternally in this regard, that we have means of recognizing our brotherhood, and therefore it is a means of assisting the brotherhood if they should be travelling.
Q. Have you no other benefits?—A. Our organization is beneficial in this way, that it establishes a sick and death benefit fund for the members.
Q. You have an insurance department?—A. We have.
Q. And that covers accidents, and?—A. Death from natural causes.
Q. And a sick benefit similar to other fraternal societies?—A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever declared a policy in connection with the operation of the organization?—A. The policy of our organization is to be found on page 5 of the constitution.
Q. I see by this that you are forbidden to have any connection with any political party?—A. Truly.
Q. Have you any connection with any political party?—A. Not as a brotherhood.
Q. Have your members as a body pledged connection to any political party?—A.

No, sir.

Q. It is alleged by my learned friend that you are socialists—revolutionary socialists?

Mr. Davis.—When did I say that?

Mr. Bird.—In your statement of case.

A. I positively deny that statement.

Q. So as an organization you have no connection with any revolutionary socialist party?—A. Not as a society. If any of our men see fit to become socialists or anarchists, or anything else, they have a perfect right to do so.

Q. As a matter of fact, have you many members who have attached themselves to the political party known as the socialist party?—A. We have three, to my knowledge, who have ever been, as far as I know, attached to any socialist party.

Q. That is the numerical strength of the socialist party among the U. B. R. E.?—A. Who are or have been connected with the U. B. R. E. in this city, as far as I know.

Q. How many men are there in the city belonging to the Brotherhood?—A. I believe when we went on strike we had 215. Since then we have had some black sheep in the fold, so that we are possibly a little short of that now.
By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Can you tell us what the total membership of the U. B. R. E. is—the international organization?—A. I could not give you that information with any degree of accuracy. Approximately, I should say, we have in the neighbourhood of 30,000.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. That leads up, then, to a clause here called a strike clause. Sec. 19, page 24 of the constitution; sections 19, 20, 21 and some following clauses. Are these the only provisions made whereby a strike can be declared?—A. Those are the only provisions provided in our constitution for a strike.

Q. Now, who are eligible for membership in this order?—A. All white persons over the age of eighteen who are actually employed in railway service, or men who are not at present employed on railway service, who have served three years on a railway. The latter are not allowed to vote on matters pertaining to business with railway companies.

Q. Is that crystallized in any section of the constitution?—A. Yes, section 7, page 48.

Q. That section declares the people who are eligible for membership?—A. Yes.

Q. It is substantially as declared by you?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. I don’t see the form of oath given here?—A. The form of oath is not included in the constitution; it is in the ritual.

Q. We would like to have the form of oath.

Mr. Bird.—I will put this in as having come into my possession. The men feel bound under an obligation.

His Lordship.—We don’t care anything about the creed; we only want the oath; we want a copy of that.

Mr. Bird.—I shall file that.

(Exhibit 29, ritual of U. B. R. E.).

Q. Now, in this organization here, are there many alien members?—A. No, I believe that they are practically all British subjects; so far as I know.

His Lordship.—What was that question?

Mr. Bird.—He says they are all British subjects in this local division, so far as he knows.

Q. How is your business conducted here?—A. I don’t just understand.

Q. Well, is it conducted by a board or manager—what are your officers?—A. The business of the organization is conducted by the executive. I think that is—

Q. Consisting of whom, and how many in number?—A. The executive, according to our constitution, consists of one member from each department of railway service represented, or subdivisions thereunder, provided there are fifty members of that subdivision.

By His Lordship:

Q. Divided into classes?—A. Twelve classes in all.

Q. Yes, I sec, at page 13.

Mr. Bird.—That will answer Commissioner Rowe’s request of some time ago—at page 13.

Q. According to that your organization takes in twelve distinct classes of railway employees?—A. Yes.

Q. And I believe these twelve practically constitute the total organization?—A. Yes, the total men employed upon the railway.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
Q. Are there any exceptions at all to that?—A. It does not include officials of railways.

By Mr. Rowe.

Q. Are all these different departments represented in your union?—A. Not in this city.

Q. In other places?—A. In other places; on the Southern Pacific, I believe, all these departments are represented, and possibly on other roads in the United States.

By His Lordship:

Q. But here that did not include the engineers?—A. Our membership here is taken almost exclusively from the men who had no other organization unless possibly a local organization, prior to the introduction of this brotherhood—nearly confined to these departments.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. What are the classes here?—A. The freight-handlers, the clerks and office men, baggagemen, and the men from the stores, and the labourers.

By His Lordship:

Q. That would not include switchmen?—A. No, sir. The switchmen, as I understand it, are included in the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Are there any other international organizations represented in Vancouver?—A. The majority of the labour organizations in Vancouver are international in their nature.

Q. Can you tell me the names of international organizations in connection with the railway—that would include railway men?—A. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Order of Railway Conductors, Order of Railway Telegraphers, the International Order of Machinists, and the Brotherhood of Boilermakers, I believe, also is an international organization. These are all, at the present time, that I can remember who are connected with the railway.

Q. What about the Maintenance of Way men?—A. Yes, truly; they are international.

Q. So that, in addition to your organization, there would appear to be eight organizations having affiliation with brotherhoods beyond the line?—A. Exactly.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Did I understand you to say that your order was affiliated with the American Labour Union?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. Can you explain exactly what is meant by affiliation?—A. Well, I cannot explain; I don’t know, my Lord, that I have ever looked into that closely, but as I understand the term it means that we are connected with the American Labour Union, and would have in our power to render financial aid or otherwise to any other body affiliated with the American Labour Union.

Q. That is, the American Labour Union is a sort of parliament of unions?—A. Yes, on the same ground as the American Federation of Labour.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Does that institution have a constitution?—A. I think I have seen one.
Q. Do you pay anything to its support?—A. So far as we are concerned, as a division of the U. B. R. E., we pay nothing. Whether the central office of the organization, or the general division, as it is called, pays anything into the treasury of the American Labour Union, I could not say, but we as a division do not.

Q. What do the locals pay into the general division?—A. Our dues are 50 cents a month; 25 cents of this goes to the general division and 25 remains in the local treasury. Of course, the benefit department of our organization we handle exclusively ourselves.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. That has no connection with the general division?—A. No.

Q. So far as benefits derived by the general division from the local, how does it compare in money benefits sent away from here and received up to date?—A. I believe that the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees has expended $100 in the Dominion of Canada for every dollar they have received from the Dominion, since my membership in the brotherhood.

Q. So you have got $100 for $1.00 in this city thus far?—A. I believe so.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Do they contribute it in support of the strike?—A. Yes.

Q. What amount?—A. I could not give you the amount, I am not a member of the executive.

By His Lordship:

Q. We don't need the exact figures?—A. I was told by a member of the executive about $4,000.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. How many men have been on strike?—A. In our organization—215 went on strike.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. That $4,000 has been received by this local division?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. From San Francisco?—A. I presume from divisions of the U.B.R.E. in the United States.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. How long has the strike been in existence?—A. Three months the 27th of last month.

Q. Could you give, roughly, the average wage of the strikers?—A. They would receive if working—the average wage, my Lord, would not exceed $50 per month, in my estimation.

By His Lordship:

Q. That is something like $15,000 lost by the strike to the men so far?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Now these figures given by you—have you any certain knowledge of these matters—of the finances?—A. No. I have not the slightest positive knowledge. I am speaking approximately, and speaking of information which I have received.

Q. I propose to call further evidence which will give it correctly. I think the figures will show $8,000 or $10,000 received?

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

His Lordship.—We had better get these, so that the men will see what the organization is doing for them.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. When you say they average $50, does that mean all the men are in constant employment on the C.P.R.? Take your own organization—how many gangs have you at your disposal? You work in gangs?—A. Yes, a certain portion. We include delivery clerks in our organization, myself for instance. I didn’t work in a gang, but I should say we have about six gangs.

Q. Now, how many of these are constantly employed?—A. It is impossible to tell, because the work is at times irregular, and depends on the traffic and business doing.

Q. Can you average it up in any way? I have not the slightest doubt my learned friend will take the figures you may give. How many gangs would you say averaged employment?—A. I could not give you the average of that; it is very difficult. Gangs are working sometimes eight hours a day, sometimes 9, sometimes 10, and sometimes 15. It is almost impossible to strike an average. Our men are there if they are wanted, and when not wanted they are sent home.

Q. Is there fairly continuous employment for these six gangs?—A. Well, I could not answer that question with any accuracy.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I was going to suggest that it might be possible to find what the earnings of these men were from the corresponding period of last year.

Mr. Bird.—I may be able to get that information from officers of the C.P.R. My learned friend may voluntarily furnish it.

Mr. Davis.—We will furnish that, if necessary.

Mr. Bird.—I thought I could get it from this witness. My instructions are that there are a great many gangs, and that they don’t get anything like continuous employment. I should think a comparative statement of last year would show.

His Lordship.—I should think the best way would be to see how much they were entitled to under this agreement.

Mr. Rowe.—That is only in relation to permanent employees?

Mr. Bird.—Yes.

His Lordship.—The company could give us a very close estimate?

Mr. Davis.—Either that or the corresponding figures for the three months of last year, whichever you prefer.

Mr. Rowe.—In that statement, Mr. Davis, I suppose it could be determined by the amount paid out since the strike for the work. I suppose you would find out the amount lost in wages by learning the amount the company has paid for the work paid to the substitutes?

Mr. Davis.—We could give you the amount paid out last year in the same three months, and we could give you this year.

Mr. Rowe.—I was going to suggest, in connection with the latter statement, say the number of men employed?

Mr. Bird.—That covers the pay-rolls for the present year during the period of the strike.

Mr. Rowe.—Yes, I just asked for the number as well as the amount.

Mr. Bird.—I suppose the pay-rolls may be produced in corroboration of the statement prepared.

Q. Now, as to declaring strikes, you have 12 different classes of employees in your local union, all connected with the general division. Supposing one class of employees had a grievance, how would you proceed to get it remedied?—A. According to our constitution we have what is called a board of adjustment, which has three members elected from each branch of the railway service represented in our order. These men are elected by men who belong exclusively to that branch of railway service; that is, no one outside of that branch of service would be entitled to vote for these men. In discussing matters arising between that branch of the service, this board of adjustment would have the matter brought before them, and they would be asked to call upon the official in command of their department, and make an effort to adjust this grievance. Failing to effect an adjustment, after they have exhausted all their efforts, the matter is referred to the executive of the whole division—all of the branches of the division.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE.—Vancouver, June 4.

_By Mr. Rowe:_

Q. What does the division mean?—A. The division means the organization, the members, the lodge room, the officers having any connection with the lodge of the U. B. R. E.

_By His Lordship:_

Q. Then there is one division in the city of Vancouver?—A. Exactly.

Q. And one at Kamloops?—A. Yes. The specific divisions are as you find them classified in the constitution.

_By Mr. Rowe:_

Q. Yes, but what do you call them?—A. Departments.

_By His Lordship:_

Q. You say there are three men elected to the executive?—A. No, not the executive, the board of adjustment, and after they have exhausted all their efforts to produce a settlement with the official who is in command of their department, it is placed before the executive. They have it in their power to refer this back to the board of adjustment, or if they deem it advisable, they may place it before the entire division at a full meeting, and it is passed upon by a full meeting of the division as to whether this grievance is just or not. And after that, it would in the course of time be passed up to the president or vice-president in command of that district.

Q. What constitutes a district?—A. Well, a vice-president is appointed; there is no practical rule for a district.

Q. How many districts are there in British Columbia?—A. It forms one district, and Manitoba. We have just one district in Canada. The matter would be handed up to the president of the district, and possibly by him referred to the other divisions in the district, and before any action could in any way be taken by him, the vote of the membership of the entire system would have to be taken—the entire system of the railway, provided it is affecting one division of the railway system. According to the constitution the vote would require to be taken for the entire system, and if two-thirds of the membership on the entire system voted in favour of a strike, and due notice was served on the president—after this had been the case, he would be compelled to order a strike.

_By Mr. Rowe:_

Q. That is the president of the—?—A. Of the organization.

_By His Lordship:_

Q. At San Francisco?—A. At San Francisco, yes. He has no power to order a strike unless the power becomes mandatory on him by a two-thirds vote on the railway system.

_By Mr. Rowe:_

Q. When the freight-handlers joined the U. B. R. E. had they lost their connection with the Brotherhood of Freight-handlers?—A. Our United Brotherhood of Freighthandlers was a purely local organization. We had no other connection, except that we had a charter from the Dominion Trades Congress as a local union.

_David B. Johnstone—Vancouver, June 4._
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Was there more than one union on the C. P. R.?—A. Just one, as far as I know.

Q. Under the constitution of the U. B. R. E. is it possible for any separate craft to have connection with an international organization other than the U. B. R. E.?—A. You mean, could they be members of the U. B. R. E. and also members of some other organization?

Q. Yes?—A. I don’t know anything to prevent it.

By His Lordship:

Q. Referring to the question again, has the president the right to say over what area a strike should extend?—A. No, sir, only the railway system.

Q. That would be a district—could more than one district vote on it?—A. I presume it would, as a matter affecting them.

Q. Supposing one district passes a two-thirds majority vote as required, and sends in a request to San Francisco, has the president to declare the strike generally, or can he confine the strike to any district?—A. According to the constitution it says, ‘entire railway system.’

Q. He is only the mouthpiece?—A. Yes, of the organization.

Q. He has no power to direct over what territory the strike shall extend?—A. No.

Q. If a strike is commanded over the whole system, it must go in force over the whole system whether he likes it or not?—A. Yes, but there is a clause in our constitution at the present time which states that the president shall not declare a strike until the membership reaches 100,000 strong.

Mr. Bird.—That is at page 25, section 21.

By His Lordship:

Q. How are you people out on strike?—A. The president did not order our strike. There is nothing in the constitution for our going on strike. We went on strike because we saw the necessity of it. We felt that we were up against a hard proposition, and that we would rather die fighting than die without fighting.

Q. How is it you are getting money from headquarters if you went out against the will of the president?—A. We didn’t go against the will of the president; he sanctioned our action when he arrived here.

Q. Who—Estes?—A. Yes. He stated that he thought we had done right—that there was nothing else for us; he agreed with us.

Q. Then, to that extent the constitution was overlooked?—A. Well, it was not overlooked, my Lord, but I presume it was the intention of the framers of that constitution that no contention should arise on the railway systems until the membership was perhaps 100,000 strong.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Did you have votes in your locals in regard to the matter—on the question of going on strike in the division?—A. We did.

Q. With what result?—A. To the best of my knowledge there was one person dissenting, and I believe that he afterwards withdrew his dissent.

Q. So that it was unanimous?—A. Practically so.

Q. Was the matter of going on strike referred to the other divisions in the Canadian general division—the other divisions in Canada?—A. Not previous to going on strike, so far as I know.

Q. The divisions here took?—A. The initiative and took the burden of going out on themselves.

Q. Had they any compulsion or power of control over the other divisions?—A. None whatever.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
Q. So that each division in going on strike acted independently?—A. Truly.
Q. So that at Nelson, Revelstoke, Calgary, Winnipeg, votes must have been taken and a two-thirds majority obtained?—A. I presume they were.

By His Lordship:

Q. Did the divisions here have any correspondence with the president before they went on strike?—A. Not so far as I know, relative to going on strike.
Q. And you ignored him and the constitution both?—A. He had been wired to, but he did not arrive until some time afterwards.
Q. Then the men acted independently of the president and the constitution both?—A. Truly. As I said, there is nothing in the constitution to govern the fact of our going on strike at the present time.
Q. You are not an officer of the union?—A. I am not.
Q. Was it necessary to obtain the sanction of the president before any funds from the foreign jurisdiction could be available, or did you take that risk—that you would stand alone?—A. We took the risk on ourselves.
Q. You had no guarantee or assurance?—A. We had no guarantee of anything, my Lord.

Q. In fact, the president had not been communicated with before the strike took place?—A. He had been wired for. I presume he was wired for the night before the strike, and he arrived here about six hours after the strike took place.
Q. Did you have a three-quarter vote in favour of the strike over the whole system?—A. This division, as I said, took upon itself the initiative and went on strike without consulting any other divisions. The other divisions, as I presume, felt likewise.

His Lordship.—Have you any objection to the other side seeing the ritual?
Mr. Bird.—I put it in for your Lordship personally.

His Lordship.—I think the oath should be made public, but not the ritual.
Mr. Bird.—I leave it in the hands of the Commissioners. Perhaps if I read the oath it may cover the matter.

His Lordship.—We will look through it, and if there is anything we think should be brought to the attention of the government or the public we will do so.

(Witness reads the oath from Exhibit 29, ritual of U. B. R. E, as follows.)

'I do most solemnly and sincerely swear (or affirm) freely and voluntarily, upon the holy bible, and my sacred honour, that I will never reveal any of the secrets of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, which have been heretofore, shall be at this time, or may at any future time, be imparted to me as such, to any person whomsoever, unless under lawful authority of the Brotherhood; that I will never write, indite or print, or allow to be written, indited or printed, if in my power to prevent it, any of the unwritten work of the Brotherhood; that I will uphold and support its constitution and by-laws, and will obey and abide by all regulations and mandates issued through its various official channels, and will respect and comply with all decisions of its tribunals, when in accordance with its constitution and laws; that I will not knowingly wrong, cheat, nor defraud any member of this Brotherhood, or speak ill or slightlying of any member thereof; that I will assist all destitute worthy members of the Brotherhood who may apply to me for relief, as far as lies within my power; that, other things being equal, I will give employment to a member of this Brotherhood in preference to a stranger; that I will give members due and timely notice of any danger that I may know of, threatening them or their families; that I will recognize all signs, passwords, grips or signals which may be given me by members of the Brotherhood; that I will endeavour at all times to uphold and maintain the dignity of the Brotherhood; that I will not recommend any candidate for membership therein, whom I have reason to believe would prove unworthy. All this I most sincerely and faithfully swear (or affirm), and will steadfastly keep and perform without the least equivocation or mental reservation whatsoever, and will consider this obligation binding, whether I remain a member of the Brotherhood or not.'

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.

His Lordship.—The Commissioners will examine the balance of the book, and if there is anything of public interest to be brought out, we will do it, not otherwise.

Q. You say this strike was ordered by the division on its own initiative?—A. Yes.

Q. So that section 20 of the constitution was apparently disregarded. It says: ' Strikes cannot be declared unless two-thirds of the members in good standing on that railway system vote by proxy or otherwise in favour of a strike, such vote to be certified to the president over the signatures of the managers and agents, and with the seals of the divisions affixed, which certificates may be transmitted by telegraph or in such other manner as the president directs.'

—A. Yes, but the section of the constitution stating that no strike shall be declared by the president until the order has reached 100,000 strong, I think, has some bearing on that also.

Q. It seems to me that both sections 20 and 21 were disregarded in this case. You see the difficulty, in which the public is interested in considering, is this, that if the unions don't abide by their own constitutions, the public may feel in doubt as to when they will act under their constitution—don't you see the idea?—A. Yes, I understand, my Lord.

Q. If the unions are trying to get public opinion on their side, and I have no doubt that is what they are trying to do, it would be wise to abide by the constitution, especially when their constitutions are put in a reasonable way?—A. I agree with you there, but there was no other course open for us but to strike; there was no course laid down in the constitution which would govern the situation, as I see it, and as I saw it at that time.

Q. Would it not have been the best way if you had got your constitution amended before you went into this strike at all?—A. My Lord, it was a hurrying time with us. In my opinion there would have been no U. B. R. E. on the C. P. R. inside of ten days.

Q. You mean you would have all been discharged on one ground or other?—A. We would have been discharged, or our members intimidated to such an extent that we would have had to withdraw from work, as some had already done. So had we waited there would have been no U. B. R. E. to cause trouble to the C. P. R. had we waited until the time we were ready.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. You say by the terms of the oath, Mr. Johnstone, that you are not to reveal any of the secrets of the union—does that apply to revealing what takes within the lodge?—A. I presume that it does if the nature of the transaction is such that it requires to be kept secret.

Q. That is if the nature of the transaction is such that it would be to the disadvantage of the union to have it published?—A. Yes.

Q. What would happen supposing I asked you about occurrences which took place in the lodge in reference to this matter. Are you going to reveal them or not?—A. Well, I should use my own discretion in that respect, and if I saw fit to reveal them I would not reveal them without I had authority to do so from the constituted authorities under the constitution.

Q. I see. They also require you to adhere strictly to the provisions of the by-laws?
—A. Yes.

Q. Apparently about the first thing your lodge did was to disregard the provisions of the constitution by declaring that strike. Is it not so?—A. I don't agree with you altogether on that point. There is nothing in the constitution to govern the ordering of strikes at the present time.

Q. You say there is, Mr. Johnstone. How do you get over section 20, which states that no strike can be declared except on a two-thirds vote?—A. Except by the advice of the president.

Q. In this section 20 it must be two-thirds of the people on the railway system. Whereas, on your construction of the matter a strike could be brought on by a vote of one small division?—A. My reason for saying it otherwise is the fact that it is not always possible to live up to the constitution when you are opposed to a power as great as the C. P. R. As the noted leader, Eugene V. Debs, said, he would trample on any constitution in order to observe the rights of the people. That is sufficient excuse.

Q. You don't pretend to say any longer that it was in accordance with the constitution?—A. No, not according to the constitution as it stands there.

Q. So who has to decide whether the circumstances are such as to warrant a violation of your oath and the breaking of your constitution?—A. Who has to decide. The membership have the right to decide.

Q. The majority in an individual lodge could set that?—A. Not in every case.

Q. Well, you considered that was correct, did you not? That was what you did here?—A. In this case, up to the time we went on strike there was very little discrimination against other divisions of the brotherhood outside of Vancouver. I am not aware that there was any at Nelson, Revelstoke or even Winnipeg.

Q. Then your idea is that the lodge have it within its power to violate the oath of the members and violate the provisions of the constitution?—A. No, I don't consider in all cases that they have a right to do that. I consider that desperate means are required in desperate cases.

Q. That is putting the judge of the desperate case, the individual lodge?—A. No, I don't agree with that; what I call a desperate case is where the life of the union is in the balance.

Q. Who is to judge of that?—A. There is no one except the members of the organization.

Q. All the members of the particular lodge, because it was not the members of the organization. You only consulted one lodge?—A. No, I don't agree with you in all cases; circumstances alter cases entirely.

Q. And any particular lodge, if in its opinion the situation is so serious, can trample on its oath?—A. Do you find anything in the constitution to warrant that?

Q. I am asking you if, in your opinion, that is correct. Estes evidently thought that was the idea, did he not, when he sanctioned this strike?—A. Well, I cannot give you a decided answer on that point.

Q. That was clearly Estes' idea of what the constitution is for—evidently to be broken?—A. No, I don't think it is.

Q. Well, he sanctioned a very flagrant breaking of it?—A. There is nothing in the constitution to cover that particular circumstance.

Q. Yes, there is. Section 20 provides that no strike can be declared except by a two-thirds vote of all the members of the railway system?—A. Yes, but if we had an agreement with the C. P. R.—if we had been a recognized organization at that time, and had an agreement, that might be possible; under conditions as they were at that time, it was impossible.

Q. This constitution does not make any provision for that clause applying until there was an agreement?—A. No.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. So that it is clear that under this constitution, as it stands, the strike could be only legal after there has been a vote of two-thirds of the members of the railway system affected?—A. Yes, according to the constitution.

Q. Consequently, according to the constitution, a strike could only be legal after the brotherhood had a membership of 100,000?—A. In section 18 there is a considerable procedure to be gone through before there could be a strike by reason of a grievance; that is, the grievance must first be submitted to various people?—A. Yes, that is true.

Q. And that was not done in this case?—A. I believe that the grievance was presented to the chief officials of the C. P. R. in this city.

Q. Was the grievance submitted to the parties provided for by this constitution and passed on by them before a strike was declared?—A. This grievance was not a grievance in a single department. It was practically in every department, and therefore came to a head much more quickly than had it existed only in one department.

Q. So this grievance must be submitted to and passed upon by the parties who are made imperative in that respect by the constitution?—A. I cannot answer that positively.

Q. Look at section 18 and you can answer it. There is certainly a procedure which must be gone through. It goes from one to another, and so on until it gets up to the highest executive?—A. Yes.

Q. And before a strike can finally be declared the president must be on the ground and use his personal influence to adjust the matter. Now, scarcely any of these things were done?—A. A great many were overlooked.

Q. So far as the paper constitution goes, this strike is about as flagrant a violation of its provisions in carrying out a strike as one could have?—A. No, I don't think so.

Q. In spite of that the president, Mr. Estes, came here in response to a telegram. What was that telegram?—A. I could not say that; I did not send it. As I understand the telegram, it was a call requesting him to come and assist us.

Q. As president?—A. I presume. According to the constitution we have a right to call on him.

Q. And having violated the constitution in every possible way under the circumstances, the next step was to ask Mr. Estes to come and assist you in accordance with the constitution, and he came. And he approved of what you had done?—A. He would not have been here if he disapproved.

Q. Did he or did he not approve?—A. He certainly approved.

Q. And he subsequently called out the other divisions in British Columbia, the Territories and Manitoba, did he not?—A. I don't agree with you.

Q. Is it not the fact?—A. I don't know that it is.

Q. Did they come out without an order from him?—A. I am telling you I cannot give that information positively, because I don't know who called the other divisions out.

Mr. Bird.—We will produce the secretary to give this information.

Q. Who did you understand called them out?—A. I don't know; I could not answer that question.

Q. This was an illegal strike, as shown. Did the president take any action in the way of dismissing the people who had been responsible for this strike, for calling it—expelling them from the association? Did the president expel any one?—A. He has not the power to expel anybody.

Q. Look at section 24:

'Any member who does not comply with the president's strike order when legally given, or who resumes service in any department on the railway system when a strike is declared before officially called off by the president, or who incites an illegal strike, or commits any acts of violence during a strike,

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
shall be expelled forever from this brotherhood, and the expulsion shall appear in the “Railway Employees’ Journal”.

—A. Yes, but who expels him? It does not say that the president shall expel him.

Q. You think it does not mean that?—A. No.

Q. And the president, you say, sanctions the matter. Who is the person who makes the call for money in a case of this sort, what official does that, whose order is it?—A. A call for money for the other organizations?

Q. I am speaking of the U. B. R. E. For instance, you people want money, and you ask for money, but who decides whether the money is to be sent?—A. I presume the request comes from our executive.

Q. Who decides whether or not that request shall be granted?—A. The members of the division who are sending it.

Q. But don’t you send to the head office for funds?—A. I cannot say as to whether funds come from the head office or not.

Q. That is where they would come from, would they not?—A. Not necessarily; they could come from individual members.

Q. Yes, they would be voluntary contributions, but the money of the brotherhood would necessarily come from the head office, would it not?—A. I don’t know; I cannot answer that question.

Q. Well, you have the constitution?—A. Yes, but I believe it provides for the fact that the president may declare what funds shall be used for that purpose.

Q. That is in the hands of the president?—A. Yes.

Q. And did the president send any money in this case?—A. I could not say.

Q. Do you know, as a matter of fact, whether any money has come from the head-quarters of the U. B. R. E.?—A. I don’t know.

Q. Do you know if any money has come from anywhere from the U. B. R. E. in the United States?—A. What do you mean by the U. B. R. E.?

Q. I mean any lodge or division?—A. Yes, that is what I am speaking of.

Q. Has any money come from them?—A. Yes.

Q. What place?—A. I know that plenty of money has come from the division in San Francisco and other places; I have heard the letters read at the meetings.

Q. Is that the head—San Francisco?—A. No, a division, just as we are here.

Q. How much have you received of this strike money?—A. Five dollars; I would like to say I have not required any more.

Q. What have any other of the individual members received?—A. I could not answer for anybody except myself.

Q. Have they received the amount provided for by the constitution?—A. I could not answer that.

Q. What has been done with the money that has come from the outside to the treasury of the U. B. R. E.? What has it been spent on?—A. I could not answer the question; I am a member of the lodge, but not of the executive.

Q. Well, are not these things reported to the lodge?—A. Well, for me to enter into details would be impossible.

Q. It has been spent chiefly in the way of giving it to the members?—A. I presume in the way of assisting the individual members.

Q. When you say you presume—do you know positively?—A. No, I don’t.

By His Lordship:

Q. Have you had any inquiries in your lodge as to how it was spent?—A. I have heard statements read by the agent—monthly statements.

Q. Accounting for how much has come in, and how much disbursed?—A. Exactly.

Q. Have you had any audits?—A. We have an auditing committee and I presume they have gone over the work. You must remember I am not as well posted on this strike as I might be, for the fact that I have been away for some weeks working.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 1.
ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Where have you been working?—A. I have been working in a shingle mill, in Vancouver.

Q. Is there a union there?—A. There was after I left, my Lord; I saw that they were union men before I left.

Mr. Bird.—I think possibly, I might raise an objection in connection with the funds of the U. B. R. E. I understand the object of the Commission is to inquire into the causes of strikes, and I think, to go into the distribution of the funds is only satisfying the private curiosity of the C. P. R. It does not assist your Lordship in determining the cause of the strike.

His Lordship.—We are not simply confined to the cause of the strike; we are investigating the workings of the union generally, because it is expected that the Commission will make recommendations as to what legislation should be passed in this connection. In order to deal intelligently with the subject, we should know what the workings of the union are.

Mr. Bird.—There is no desire to keep back anything.

His Lordship.—It is in the interests of the union to see that the public get a right impression that they are really a beneficial thing. The only way to judge of that is to have all the workings disclosed.

Mr. Bird.—It might be a desire on the part of the C. P. R. to measure the strength of this organization.

Mr. Davis.—You remember speaking this morning with reference to a blacklist, and I stated at the time that the company had none. That is correct, but if my learned friend means certain reports issued at the end of every month by the general superintendent showing the names of men within his jurisdiction who have been discharged, and stating the cause, I may say there are such. The object is apparent; the same institution do not wish a discharged man on again.

Mr. Bird.—What I particularly desire, if it is not in the nature of a blacklist, is an agreement between all the railway corporations of North America, agreeing that they will employ no man who has been in the employ of a railway company, unless he produces a document in the shape of a clearance from the corporation he has previously worked for. I believe there is such an agreement in existence which has been sanctioned, if not signed, by all the railways in North America, so that a man, if he leaves here without such a clearance will apply in vain to any railway for employment.

Mr. Davis.—If there is any agreement such as that, we have no objection to producing it.

His Lordship.—If there is such an agreement it should be brought to the attention of the court.

Mr. Bird.—I have a witness here who will prove the statement made by an officer of the C. P. R. as to the existence of such an agreement.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. I see, Mr. Johnstone, under section 23 of the constitution, that each member who is out on strike, after the expiration of ten days, shall be paid the sum of $40, so long as that is not more than the salary he has been receiving. Has that been complied with?—A. It has not in all cases.

Q. In any case, as far as you know?—A. I am not aware of the fact.

Q. You don't know?—A. Perhaps they have received more than that.

Q. Do you know of any case?—A. No.

By His Lordship:

Q. What section is that?—A. Section 23, page 25.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
MINUTES OF EVIDENCE OF ROYAL COMMISSION

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

By Mr. Davis:

Q. What was the extremely urgent necessity for the strike which you spoke of, which led the brotherhood to override all the rules and regulations?—A. Do you wish me to go into that in detail, my Lord?

By His Lordship:

Q. Yes; you see, it seems at present as if this strike was outside the constitution altogether?—A. You wish to know the urgent cause. The fact that some of our members had been removed to Montreal. Some had been sent there apparently permanently, some temporarily.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Give the names?—A. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Dick had been sent apparently permanently, and Mr. Halton and Mr. Foulds temporarily. Reports were continually coming in of members being called before officers.

Q. The names, please?—A. I am not able to give all the names in this connection.

Q. Whatever you can?—A. I will state these cases as clearly as I can, and then if the counsel requires the names of certain individuals let him ask me.

Q. Where you know them, please mention them?—A. The fact that members of our organization had been called up by superior officers, and the fact intimated to them that the U. B. R. E. would stand in the way of their promotion.

Q. Do you know the names of any of these?—A. No, I cannot remember the names just now.

By His Lordship:

Q. I suppose the names could be got?—A. From our officers, certainly, my Lord. And they had been told that they would require to get out of the U. B. R. E. or else get out of the company’s service; the fact that we as a body of freight-handlers had been told that our agreement would not be renewed—

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Told by whom?—A. By Mr. Beasley, so our committee reported. Would not have our agreement renewed unless we withdrew from the U. B. R. E., and the fact that it was apparent to anybody and everybody who was conversant with the facts of the case, that the company was preparing for a strike.

Q. For what reasons?—A. From the fact that we had reports of men being engaged to come here; from the fact that we had been told by men who had been secured as special constables; that they would likely be called as special constables. The name of one of them was Squires. He was afterwards, I believe, employed.

Q. Who made these reports to you?—A. Is it necessary to mention these names?

His Lordship.—Yes.

A. I am relating what took place in our division meetings, and I don’t consider it altogether in compliance with my oath that I should reveal these names.

Q. You see, Mr. Johnstone, the public are putting a large amount of money into this Commission, and its intention is to get at the facts. In order to do this, we must get at the reasons that actuated the men in going out on strike?—A. I know that, and I am anxious to give all the information I can, but I don’t like to divulge what took place in secret meetings of our organization. Besides the C.P.R. might be prejudiced against these men on account of these very things.

Mr. Davis.—We will undertake that that will make no difference. The fact would be very apparent that if the names of any men were given to the C.P.R. and anything was done to prejudice those men, that as officers of a corporation they would not dare to do such a thing, and would not.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

His Lordship.—Would you undertake to the Commission that no men would be prejudiced?

Mr. Davis.—Yes, I am authorized to give an undertaking that no man will be prejudiced by reason of any evidence which he gives here.

Witness.—If you will excuse me, I have had some experience in railway service, and I know that an excuse can easily be secured to discharge a man without apparent discrimination. No man is perfect at his work, and it is very easy to secure an excuse for dismissal against a man who has made himself obnoxious to an official of a railway company with apparent good cause.

Mr. Rowe.—What, exactly, is the object in getting these names?

Mr. Davis.—We want to follow it up. He says reports have been given from people he does not know.

Mr. Rowe.—He gives the name of the men to be engaged as a special constable.

Mr. Davis.—The question is whether or not the men had been engaged.

Mr. Rowe.—Have you got a man who would state as to that?

Mr. Davis.—In that particular case we have got a man.

Mr. Bird.—Perhaps, in order to avoid this witness divulging anything, I could have particulars of discrimination handed in to the Commissioners and to my learned friend.

His Lordship.—What is sufficient for our purpose is that you have a certain number of men, whom, in your opinion, were discriminated against on the ground of belonging to this organization, and taking an active part in its organization. These ought to be sufficient for the purpose.

Mr. Davis.—Quite sufficient, so long as this evidence does not go further than that.

His Lordship.—Of course any mere testimony without mentioning names could not amount to anything with the Commission, anyway.

Mr. Bird.—I think I can furnish the Commissioners and Mr. Davis a complete statement of the men who claim to have been discriminated against.

His Lordship.—You are getting it down to a definite issue; I am very glad of that.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Were there any further reasons besides those you have stated?—A. I am just trying to think; I have been considerably cross-examined, and I am just trying to collect these facts if I can.

By His Lordship:

Q. Had the U.B.R.E. as a body made any demand on the C.P.R. at any time?—A. Not at that time; the only demand that was ever made on the C.P.R. was in January. A request was made.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. I was going to ask him about that in a moment. It is rather a long story, and will interrupt this. No demand had been made prior to that time except the one in January?—A. That is the case of men being called in by their superior officers and asked to withdraw from the U.B.R.E.

Q. These are all the reasons you have for saying that the men went on strike. These are all the reasons?—A. All I can remember at the present time.

Q. I suppose the sum of the thing is, you are striking for self-preservation?—A. Truly; I look on this more in the nature of a lock-out than a strike.

Q. Now, why, Mr. Johnstone, was it necessary to strike at that particular time, rather than ten days later. You said the Brotherhood would have been destroyed if the strike had been allowed to stand for ten days longer?—A. Yes, from the fact that some of our members would have been forced by their position, I believe, to withdraw from the organization, rather than sacrifice their position, and others would have been discharged, and others transferred.

Q. That is what you think would have happened within ten days?—A. Yes.

Q. But you would have had, if you had waited the ten days, a lock-out, which would have been no worse than a strike for you, and I should think, better. Why didn't you wait the ten days and make it a lock-out instead of a strike?—A. In other words you would advise the U. B. R. E. to allow the C. P. R. to crush them out, rather than make an effort in their defense?

Q. I am asking you why you did not do that?—A. My reason is, as I told you, that our members would have been discriminated against, and some of them forced to withdraw, others removed, and our forces would have been generally disorganized.

Q. Then it was absolutely necessary for the life of the Brotherhood that they should strike on the very day they struck?—A. As I see it, and as I saw it then.

Q. There was nothing in these suggested reasons that they struck because Forrest had not been properly treated?—A. No, that is a case I did not mention. So far as his case is concerned we have always been willing to take his case up on its merits.

Q. But you didn't ask that? They were willing to investigate it?—A. I don't know about that.

Q. You know their rule is that whenever any charge is made against an employee, they suspend him temporarily, investigate the charge, and if he is found guiltless he is reinstated and paid for the time lost?—A. That is supposed to be the rule, but I have never experienced it.

Q. Did you understand that to be the rule?—A. Yes.

Q. The U. B. R. E. did not allow that course to be pursued with Forrest, did they?—A. There is always a point at which things culminate. This case of Forrest's was the last thing that broke the camel's back.

His LORDSHIP.—We know nothing about this Forrest case.

Mr. DAVIS.—The details are not of any particular importance.

Q. But you understand they set out in their statement of case that the reason they struck is because Forrest was suspended?—A. That is not as I stated it.

Q. Did the U. B. R. E. allow the C. P. R. to follow the usual course in the case of Forrest?—A. The U. B. R. E. was not considered in the case.

Q. Is that your answer?—A. The C. P. R. have never agreed to recognize the U. B. R. E. in that respect.

Q. Is that your answer?—A. Does that answer satisfy you?

Q. Is it the best answer you can give?—A. What answer do you wish?

Q. Whatever other answer you can give?—A. If you mean that the U. B. R. E. did not consent to suspension you are perfectly correct in believing that they did not consent to it.

Q. They were not willing that his case should be investigated in the usual way, but they required his immediate reinstatement?—A. That is one of the requests, I believe.

Q. They said that unless that were done they would go on strike?—A. Coupled with other clauses.

Q. But unless they reinstated Forrest the employees would go out on strike, would they not?—A. That was one of the clauses, I believe.

Q. In fact, it was the only condition given, was it not?—A. No.

Q. I will read you a notice—you recognize it, I presume?—A. Yes.

(Exhibit 30 read).

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.

ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

VANCOUVER, FEBRUARY 26, 1903.

R. Marpole, Esq.,
General Superintendent,
Canadian Pacific Railway,
Vancouver.

Dear Sir,—We, the undersigned committee of employees, have been instructed to write you requesting the immediate withdrawal of the suspension of H. P. Forrest of the local freight staff issued subsequent to your cancellation of his suspension by Mr. Beasley.

We further request a cessation of the policy of intimidation lately pursued against the employees of various departments by your various officials because of their membership in the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

A satisfactory reply hereto is requested by 11.30 o’clock to-morrow, 27th instant, otherwise the employees represented by this committee will cease work at 12 o’clock, noon.

Yours truly,

(Signed.)

Robert Brooke,
F. J. Walker,
David Laverock,
A. G. Denison.

Acting—

Q. That is the notice?—A. Yes.

His Lordship.—That letter is dated February 26th, the strike took place when?

Mr. Bird.—The clerks went out on the 27th, and the freight handlers on the 2nd.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. This committee of employees mentioned in the notice were U.B.R.E. men?—A. I presume they were.

Q. The people striking were the U.B.R.E.?—A. Yes.

Q. Unless Forrest were immediately reinstated the U.B.R.E. would immediately strike—is that not a fact?—A. I presume. I want to draw your attention to the fact that Mr. Forrest’s case was supposed to have been fully investigated previous to that by the C.P.R. or else how could they arrive at the decision to suspend him.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. When was the suspension in the first place?—A. Five o’clock on the 26th.

Mr. Davis.—The ordinary procedure is to suspend a man, and then investigate the charge. If the charge is not proved, he is reinstated and paid for all the time he is suspended.

His Lordship.—I would like to get these dates in order. The same day the letter was written to Mr. Marpole, on the 27th, the clerks went out; then on March 2 the freight handlers went out. Now, who else went out, if anybody?

Witness.—That was all in the city, I believe, in connection with that.

Mr. Rowe.—I understand that the clerks, the office men, the baggage men and shop men went out on February 27, and the freight handlers on March 2?

Witness.—Yes, the total number of men being 215.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. From what you say the U.B.R.E. would have struck irrespective of this Forrest question?—A. No.

His Lordship.—We would like to get the chain of events, and the dates. I suppose we can get these.

Mr. Davis.—Yes.

His Lordship.—What about the teamsters and longshoremen?

Mr. Bird.—I think these facts will come out in due course with the examination of the other witnesses.

His Lordship.—We would like to get the dates now.

Mr. Bodwell.—Could not a list be put in for the use of the Commissioners by to-morrow morning?

Mr. Bird.—Yes, I can do that.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Now the strike would have taken place at the same time apart from this question of Mr. Forest?—A. No, I think not.

Q. If it were necessary for the Brotherhood to strike exactly then, why would it not?—A. I cannot say positively in that case; that is a circumstance that I have not considered.

Q. That is the best answer you can give to that?—A. Yes; I cannot say whether it would have taken place or not.

Q. The U.B.R.E. had held the company up in a similar way in the preceding January?—A. I don't know that you could call it a hold-up.

Q. That was what Mr. Marpole called it at the time?—A. Possibly, I don't know.

Q. How much notice did they give them?—A. I could not say as to that.

Q. Both occasions were picked out with a social view—the Empress was coming in?—A. No, I think not.

Q. It was a mere coincidence that the demand was made within 24 hours of the arrival of an Empress?—A. I don't know.

Q. Do you think it was a coincidence or intentional?—A. I suppose it was a coincidence.

Q. What notice was given in January—January 6, I think it was?—A. I could not give the date.

Q. Do you know the details of that January meeting?—A. Partly, I do.

Q. They demanded there again that a certain man should be reinstated without investigation, did they not—Halton?—A. Yes, I remember the circumstance.

Q. That is true, is it not? That he should be reinstated without investigation?—A. Yes, certainly, reinstatement was requested.

Q. And it was not denied that what he had been suspended for had taken place—that he had left his employment without giving notice?—A. That is denied.

Q. That he went to Seattle without permission?—A. That is denied.

Q. He claimed to get permission to stay at home because he was sick?—A. When I ask for leave of absence from the C. P. R. or my employer at any time, I claim I have a perfect right to use it as I see fit, so long as I don't exceed the absence which I have obtained, and I consider no man in the employ of the C. P. R. can do more.

Q. So that is your idea of things as a straightforward way of dealing with your employer, to obtain leave on the ground of sickness, and then go to Seattle?—A. I don't know that he asked that.

Q. I am putting this fact to you?—A. I don't know they are facts.

Q. If they were, would you consider that honest or straightforward way of dealing?—A. I don't consider it any business of an employer how an employee spends his leave of absence.

Q. Would you consider it was honest dealing with his employer?—A. I think he was perfectly within his rights.

Q. Now, the U. B. R. E. then demanded his reinstatement?—A. Yes, I think it was requested; I don't know about demanded.

Q. Well, or they would strike?—A. I don't remember whether that clause was in the request or not.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. And that was a day or two before Mr. Marpole was going away, in addition to this other trouble?—A. I believe it was shortly before he went away.

Q. You heard what Mr. Marpole stated at the time—that he would have to give way and reinstate this man because a pistol was being held at his head?—A. I think that was another occasion, when the pistol was held at his head.

Q. What was that occasion?—A. That was during a little controversy in the freight office with reference to an increase of pay.

Q. You are in error as to that. But you would think that Mr. Marpole could properly use such language?—A. No, I think not.

Q. When did Mr. Estes first come into this country?—A. The first time, I think, was on November 15, 1902.

Q. He was here in January at the time of the threatened strike?—A. Yes.

Q. And he interviewed Mr. Marpole?—A. Yes.

Q. And you are aware that he was told by Mr. Marpole that if the U. B. R. E. were going to treat him that way that he would have to protect himself?—A. I am not aware of that.

Q. You think it wise that they should make some provision against a similar thing happening—having been held up that way before?—A. I don't know.

Q. Do you think any company or business man could run his business with discipline in that way?—A. The question is who decides the discipline, the C.P.R.?

Q. Now, this U. B. R. E. were going to strike in January. In January, had the necessary steps been taken to have a strike of the U. B. R. E.?—A. What do you refer to?

Q. I am referring to just what I ask. On January 6, at the time that the U.B.R.E. threatened strike, had they put themselves in a position to strike legally under the constitution?—A. They did not strike.

Q. Please answer the question that I ask?—A. If you mean, did they carry out the constitution as it is laid down, no.

By His Lordship:

Q. That was in connection with the Halton case?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. The constitution seems very much like the proverbial pie-crust. You say, Mr. Johnstone, that there are only two or three socialists among the U. B. R. E. You are not, I presume, a socialist?—A. I am not a member of any socialist party, but if you ask me if I believe in socialism, probably I will tell you I do to a certain extent.

Q. Perhaps this would be your idea. I am going to read you an extract, and ask you what you think of the sentiments expressed in that, whether or not you would approve of them in your president, Mr. Estes?

Mr. Bird.—What is that extract from?

Mr. Davis.—It is an extract from a letter written by Mr. Estes, the president of the U. B. R. E., to Mr. Harold Poore, the organizer of the U. B. R. E.

Mr. Bird.—I suppose my friend will produce the letter?

Mr. Davis.—I may say, for my learned friend's benefit, that we are taking steps to have the original here.

His Lordship.—If he undertakes to have the letter here, that is enough. At any rate the witness can give his answer conditionally, on the hypothesis that that was the letter.

Mr. Davis. —(Quotes from Exhibit 31).

'In all your writings carefully word your articles so as to develop a public sentiment for the U. B. R. E.—the Industrial Union Plan—the A. L. U., and against the reactionary and capitalistic party now temporarily in control of the A. F. of L. and not against the masses of members comprising the A. F. of L. Continually separate the administration of the A. F. of L from the A.F. of L itself, and give all possible praise to the masses of the A.F. of L., but without being personal or vindictive, condemn the temporary capitalistic administration of the A. F. of L. in the shortest terms you can possibly employ.'

'In this way you will constantly stimulate and augment a great public sentiment for the U. B. R. E., for the Industrial Union, for the A. L. U. and for socialism (but don’t use the word) and against the capitalism and Gompers faction which is working in harmony with Marcus A. Hanna, and the infamous civic federation to keep down the masses of the people.'

Q. Is that in accordance with your own idea?—A. Well, I could not say. I have not looked into that question thoroughly. I have my own idea of socialism, and I am not prepared to judge Mr. Estes’ idea of socialism, as I don’t know what his idea may be.

Q. You don’t disapprove of socialism so long as the word is not used?—A. Not necessarily that the word should not be used, or that I should entertain his idea.

Q. You don’t then object to the word being used?—A. No, I don’t.

Q. And you have no objection to what Mr. Estes says?—A. As I said before I don’t object to the word, nor so far as I can see, to the general tone of the letter.

Q. I understand from you that the freight handlers who went out on the 2nd of March had an agreement in writing with the company binding them to work for the company at certain agreed wages, up to the 21st June, 1903, and not to leave that agreement without 30 days' notice?—A. That agreement is not binding as I understand it. It is merely a schedule of prices, and that these prices shall not be departed from without thirty days' notice, as I understand it.

Q. When did you arrive at that understanding?—A. I have always had that understanding.

Q. That is not an agreement to work for the C.P.R.?—A. No, because we were employed by the hour, and we had a right to terminate our employment at the end of any hour.

Mr. Bird.—I understand there is no document signed by the union; that it was intended to be a mere memorandum of schedule of rates.

Mr. Davis.—What took place was that there was an agreement arrived at verbally. They agreed to it, and a letter was written by Mr. Marpole setting out the terms.

His Lordship.—As I gather, it was simply a notice agreeing as to the wages paid.

Mr. Davis.—But really in force until the 21st June unless notice is given. It means, I think, that the men should remain working, otherwise it would amount to nothing.

His Lordship.—It seems to me that the length of notice which the men must give is provided for so that as long as they are at work, the wages are not to be cut down without thirty days' notice. There is certainly no agreement. I don’t suppose there could have been any agreement, because this body is not incorporated.

Mr. Davis.—There are written agreements with all these associations. As a rule they are made with a committee of the men signed by the committee and binding on the men.

Q. Then do I understand from you that this was not considered to be an agreement which required the men to remain working for the company for any particular length of time?—A. Not as I understand it.

Q. I want to know what your understanding was then?—A. As I have always understood it, that schedule was merely a schedule of prices.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Was it binding on the C. P. R.?—A. The C. P. R. had a perfect right to discharge me at any time if they saw fit, or any member of the freight-handlers' association.

Q. That is your understanding of the arrangement?—A. Perfectly.

Q. I understood you to tell my learned friend Mr. Bird that the freight handlers did not wish to go out at first on account of that agreement. What did you mean by that?—A. I meant just what I said; that although we did not consider the agreement actually binding, that the agreement was there.

Q. Was it an agreement or not?—A. The agreement there is with regard to prices. We did not wish to terminate that or interrupt the harmonious relations which had existed between ourselves and the company, without we were compelled to do so.

Q. And the mere striking of the U. B. R. E. was not sufficient?—A. No.

Q. Then what was sufficient?—A. From the fact that we as freight-handlers had decided to continue at our work.

Q. The striking of the U. B. R. E. was not sufficient to induce the freight-handlers, who were members also, to go out?—A. Yes.

Q. What then was sufficient to induce you to come out?—A. As I said already, this morning, the fact of our being placed in contact with scabs.

Q. In what way?—A. The fact of our members having to handle bills which had been made out by scabs, men who had taken the places of strikers.

Q. That is, the U. B. R. E. men, on strike two or three days before?—A. Exactly; and from the fact that men were there, as I said before, waiting to take our places, and that one of our men was discharged—Fowler, and from the fact that I myself, the last day I worked there—it has been my duty for some years to take charge of the freight office on Sunday—the last Sunday I worked I was shadowed by a scab from the time I entered the office until I left it; that man was at my elbow all the time.

Q. Who was the man?—A. I don't know, and I don't care to know him.

Q. Any other reasons?—A. No, I think those reasons are sufficient. There was a reason from the fact that the company wished to force upon us a new agreement before the old one had expired, coupled with the amendment that our agreement would not be removed unless we withdrew our membership from the U. B. R. E.

Q. What difference would it make? You say the old agreement was not binding at all? How could there be a question of it expiring?—A. I don't know what was the reason of bringing that up.

Q. How could it make any difference?—A. If that agreement was not renewed I expect that our wages would be reduced.

Q. Why did you object to their wanting to renew it?—A. Because the old one had not expired. I assure you it is a new procedure on the part of the C. P. R. to try and rush agreements; they usually stand them off.

Q. Did not they want to make that agreement with you prior to the strike?—A. They knew it was coming.

Q. Was it not prior to the 27th?—A. It was on the evening of the 26th, I believe.

Q. That could not have been the reason why?—A. Yes, it was.

Q. Well, what was I going to say?—A. You were going to say that was the reason why they did not want to renew it.

Q. No, I was not going to say anything of the kind. If that was the reason for your striking, why didn't you strike with the rest of the U. B. R. E.?—A. We had not been shoved up against scabs.

Q. How could anything else result after these went on strike? How could anything else happened, but that somebody else should take their places and do that work?—A. That is not our affair.

Q. You might just as well have struck with them?—A. Possibly.

Q. Then it looked as though you were looking for some technicality to get over this agreement?—A. I don't look at it that way.

36a—36½

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
Q. As a matter of fact this constitution requires you to take the position which you did take?—A. I don't think that it does.

Q. I will read section 25. I think it goes a great deal farther even that you would go: (Quotes)

'Whenever a reasonable satisfactory adjustment of grievances of a member or of members of the Brotherhood, or of the Brotherhood, or any division or department thereof, is refused by the management of any railway, notice of refusal to adjust grievance may be given by the joint order of the president and Board of Directors, and upon the same being made, and until the same is revoked no member of the Brotherhood shall perform any labour or service in or upon any such railway or upon or in connection with any of the business, property, freight or passengers thereof either while actually upon said railway, or upon premises owned by the corporation owning the same, or under the control or direction of such corporation or its management, or that may be destined for or to be carried upon any such railway or any part thereof, or that may be coming from or to be transported from the same or from any part thereof, and while such notice is in effect and until the same is lawfully revoked by the authority issuing the same, no member of the Brotherhood shall in anywise handle, transport, or be in any way connected with the handling, transmission or transportation of any of the freight, or passengers or property of said railway or of the railways affected by and specified in said order, under penalty of expulsion.

Q. That would cover pretty nearly everything?—A. It covers a good systematic strike.

Q. For instance, lumber that was being brought over the C.P.R. for the building of houses—no member of the U.B.R.E. would have anything to do with that?—A. I presume not.

Q. It is about as sweeping as anything possibly could be, in brief.

Q. You have spoken of the discharge of Fowler. What was he discharged for?—A. As I understand it, for refusing to accept bills made out by scabs.

Q. Do you consider the travelling agent, Mr. Bell, a scab?—A. I consider any man or official who goes outside of his own department to perform labour, a scab.

Q. Do you consider the travelling agent a scab?—A. Yes, if he went out of his own department to scab.

Q. And the land agent, Mr. Forrest, a scab?—A. Yes.

Q. And because Fowler was dismissed for refusing to handle bills made out by these old officers of the C.P.R. they would go on strike?—A. One of the grounds; I don’t know that it would be a ground by itself; I won’t say that it would not, either.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. These are documents that would not usually be made out by these officials?—A. Yes, these men were outside their own department; came into that department to take the place of men on strike.

Mr. Bird.—My learned friend is proceeding on the assumption that these bills were made out by Messrs. Forrest and Bell. I am informed that they were made out by the scab employees who were put in substitution and not by officials of the company.

Mr. Davis.—I am not putting that in as evidence. As I understand, my instructions are that the document which Fowler refused to have anything to do with was made out by Bell and Forrest. I put it as hypothesis.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. The official paper, as I understand it, is the Railway Employees’ Journal?—A. Yes.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Published where?—A. In Frisco, I believe.
Q. Do the members of the U.B.R.E. subscribe to it, as a rule?—A. Every member of the U.B.R.E. gets a copy of it. I believe there is a copy once a week.
Q. Then you have been taking it yourself?—A. Yes.

(Copy of Railway Employees' Journal dated May 28, 1903, handed in, identified by witness. Exhibit 32.)

Q. This contains, among other items, the following:—

'The U.B. of R.E. has established a strong union in Great Falls. Some of the hardest workers in the new union are old members of the A.R.U. An ice-cream social was given on the west side, where the aims and objects of the new union were explained to the railway men. It is thought the U.B. of R.E. will shortly extend over the entire system. The plan of organization appeals to the workers. It embraces every employee of the railroads, from the man on the track to the clerk in the auditor's office. It believes in political action on the part of the unions; is affiliated with the A.L.U. and the Western Federation of Miners; has a membership of over twenty-five thousand, and is in a better position to give protection to its members than any other railway organization in existence.'

Mr. Bird.—I believe that statement is absolutely correct. I would like to see if it is an editorial or not.

Mr. Davis.—I put in the issue of May 21, which contains, among other things, the following:—(Exhibit 33.)

'The strike of the Comox miners, at instance of Western Federation of Miners, and really in support of the U.B.R.E., shuts off the C.P.R. coal supply at the coast, as the company got 15,000 tons a month from this source.'

By His Lordship:

Q. Is that the official organ of the U.B.R.E.?—A. That is published in San Francisco.

Mr. Davis.—That is the official organ in the constitution. At page 36, article 12, section 1, 'the Railway Employees Journal shall be the official organ of the Brotherhood.'

Q. That is the issue of March 19, is it not?—A. Yes.

(Put in, marked Exhibit 34.)

Mr. Bird.—Is that an extract from any newspaper? The former was only an extract from a newspaper, without comment.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. This is the issue of March 12, is it not?—A. Yes.

(Exhibit 35.)

Mr. Davis.—My learned friend cannot take any exception to what I am going to read. It is an editorial of the first water, headed: 'The American Labour Union Takes a Hand.'

'The United Brotherhood has not been prone to boast of its power or its achievements, but it has gone steadily forward, and has so brought its members together that the spirit of fraternity and brotherhood is firmly engendered in their hearts and, if this fact has ever been questioned, the manner in which all are interesting themselves in the cause of their brothers in Canada would prove the contrary. Within a few hours after the members in Vancouver had severed their connection with the C. P. R., other divisions in Canada had signified their willingness to lend every aid to the cause.'

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
There on Make. The. The beginning. Against course, and U.B.R.E.?

Mr. Bodwell.—That is the same date that Mr. Shenton telegraphed to Mr. Moyer, and the U. B. R. E. publish it as showing the connection between them and the Western Federation.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. That is the edition of April 23, is it not?—A. Yes.

(Exhibit 36.)

Q. It is more with a view of showing the light in which they treat this question of a strike. You have seen Mr. Estes’ sheet ‘from headquarters in the field’ on the 27th?—A. I don’t know that I have; I could not say that I have seen it.

Q. Just take a look at it?—A. Yes, I presume that is his circular, although I could not be positive, because I don’t remember having read it before.

(Put in as Exhibit 37.)

Mr. Davis.—It is headed ‘Executive Office, President’s Headquarters in the Field,’ and also ‘General Offices, 210 Parrott Building, San Francisco,’ and is addressed ‘To all unions affiliated with the American Labour Union.’ I am putting this in to show that Mr. Estes was practically at the bottom of this strike, practically from beginning to end.

His Lordship.—It seems to be a fairly truthful account of matters up to date.

Mr. Davis.—Yes, with the exception of a certain amount of exaggeration. ‘The Trades and Labour Councils at Vancouver, Winnipeg, Nelson, Calgary, Revelstoke and Victoria have endorsed the strike and are doing all in their power to help the movement, morally and financially. . . . There are one thousand men out (Of course, that is a little stretched). . . . Make all remittances to Fred. J. Halton. . . . Your for industrial unionism, Geo. Estes, President U.B.R.E. We approve and endorse the above appeal.’—Signed by the officers of the American Labour Union.

Mr. Bird.—I understand, Mr. Commissioners, that this document is not in yet. I am not prepared to admit that that was prepared by Mr. Estes. In fact, it appears on the face of it that it is not so. That was prepared by Mr. Halton, the secretary of the union here. He signed Mr. Estes name to it. If that is sought to be put in as capital against Mr. Estes I cannot admit the document.

His Lordship.—There is nothing in the document you repudiate?

Mr. Bird.—I repudiate the fact of the authorship of George Estes.

His Lordship.—It is supposed to embody the true facts?

Mr. Davis.—With the exception of 945 instead of 1,000 out,

His Lordship.—Is there anything in it you wish to repudiate on behalf of the U.B.R.E.?

Mr. Bird.—It is sought to be put in by counsel for the C.P.R. from George Estes, representing the fact that he has controlled and managed the strike from the beginning.

Mr. Davis.—Mr. Halton will be in the box, and we can see if he has his authority.

Mr. Bodwell.—A copy of this circular has already been put in as an exhibit at Victoria, I think. It is marked Exhibit R.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Have you ever seen this (Exhibit 33, Letter from Committee of Employees to R. Marpole, dated 5th January, 1903)?—A. No, I believe that is the first time I have seen it.

Q. Will you swear to that?—A. I will swear that I have no recollection of it.

Q. Or this sheet by Estes?—A. I know nothing about that circular.

Mr. Davis.—That is all.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. All communications, some of which have been filed by my learned friend, did they emanate from your union, or how were they presented to Mr. Marpole previous to the strike?—A. They would emanate from the executive under instructions from the union, I presume.

Q. Was there any necessary connection between that committee of employees who signed, and the union?—A. That would be acting on and by authority of the union.

Q. Did all the members of the U. B. R. E. come out on strike at the first instance on the 27th February? You told us the clerks—were there any exceptions?—A. Yes. There was, I believe, a man by the name of Burns, who did not go out, a man named Ferris, and a man named Dangerfield who did not go out at that time.

Q. Where there any members who were not called out?—A. Yes.

Q. How is that?—A. Because we had some members, one in particular whom I have in my mind, who was past the age of retiring according to the C. P. R. pension scheme, and for him to desert his employment would expose him to the penalty of losing his pension.

Q. Were there any more besides this one man who were allowed to stay in, although the union men went out?—A. Yes, there was one, a C. P. R. police officer.

Q. I don’t want the names, but how many were there, do you know, members of the union allowed to remain at the present time?—A. Four I have in my mind at the present time.

Q. Why was an exception made in their case—you have told us one on account of age?—A. Yes.

Q. Any circumstances in connection with the others?—A. Two of them were on account of being the only two men in their department, I believe, and the other one was a police officer, and they did not want to interfere with him.

By His Lordship:

Q. Do you approve of sympathetic strikes, Mr. Johnstone?—A. I do not, my Lord.

Q. Then so far as you had any view or opinion in the matter you would not have approved of calling out the miners at Vancouver Island in sympathy with the U. B. R. E.?—A. No, I could not say that I would approve of it.

Q. Do you approve of the boycott?—A. I do, my Lord, where it becomes necessary.

Q. I notice a statement in to-day’s paper that a woman keeping a boarding house was forced to exclude scabs, as they are called by union men, in this way—that the union men threatened to leave unless the other people were expelled?—A. I would consider that would be perfectly right. I would be sorry to sit at the same table as a scab.

Q. You cannot sit at the same table as a scab?—A. No, sir; not if I know it.

Q. And you think it is right to bring pressure on this woman to expel these people?—A. I consider that a scab is nothing more or less than a murderer, pure and simple. A scab comes and takes the bread out of my mouth and my children’s mouths.

Q. Would you say that a man has a right to belong to a union or not, as he pleases?—A. I don’t believe in forcing a man into joining the union.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
Q. You think he should have the privilege of joining or not, if he sees fit?—A. Yes.

Q. Then if he sees fit he need not belong to a union?—A. Not in my opinion, so long as he lives up to union principles.

Q. Supposing he does not approve of union principles; he has a right to his opinion?—A. He is a traitor to his class.

Q. But I am talking of non-union men?—A. I would not approve of forcing a man to join the union.

Q. And there are plenty of men who don’t approve of joining unions?—A. Not reputable workmen.

Q. You think the great majority are in favour of joining a union?—A. Yes.

Q. A non-union man, or scab as you will call him, has a right to live, has he not?—A. Yes.

Q. If a non-union man has a right to get work, has not another man a right to give him work? One involves the other, does it not?—A. Well, yes.

Q. Then, if an employer has the right to employ a non-union man, the union has no right to force an employer to employ union men; is that right?—A. My Lord, that is a very broad question. It is almost impossible to force an employer to employ union men, but on the other hand it is not impossible to educate employees into joining the union.

Q. We can grant that the men have a right to form a union, but have they the right to force it on an employer?—A. If it is found necessary; in a great number of cases it is necessary.

Q. But you have admitted that an employer has the right to employ non-union men?—A. The position is this; I would not like to discriminate against a man because he objected to becoming a member of the union, or see him forced out of his position. I would go that far.

Q. If an employer has the right to employ a non-union man it follows that the union has no right to force an employer to employ them to the exclusion of everybody else, because if that principle were adopted a non-union man could not get work?—A. He could easily become a union man.

Q. Yes, but he might not want to. It is a free country?—A. Yes; the sooner he becomes a citizen of some other country the better.

Q. Now the position a union takes when it tries to force an employer is this: you must either do business with us or nobody else?—A. Well, the effort, I presume, is along this line, to prevent, if possible, an employer doing business with somebody else. But at the same time it cannot always be done.

Q. But that is the position which the union virtually takes?—A. To prevent, if possible, the employer doing business with anybody else.

Q. So that the right of choice with the employer to employ union or non-union men is stopped. That is, you don’t concede the right to an employer to employ non-union men when you strike for recognition?—A. That is in the limit of the union. They might permit an employer to employ non-union men, and still be treated with an employer as a union.

Q. At all events the object of unionism is to force employment to employ union labour to the exclusion of non-union labour?—A. Certainly.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I understand you would not refuse work to non-union men?—A. No, I would not, but I would endeavour to see that they became union men as soon as possible.

Q. What do you understand by sympathetic strike?—A. As I understand, it means that one organization goes out in sympathy with another, without having any direct interest or connection with that organization. A sympathetic strike is a strike purely from sympathy. These men are fighting for what they consider their rights. and another union stands by and says, that is not right, we are going to get in and assist these men.

Q. When there is no connection between the two, how can a sympathetic strike do any good?—A. It might do some good by hampering the man who is employing them to such an extent that they would insist on the party causing this strike to settle.

Q. Would you consider, for instance the British Columbia Steamshipmen’s Society justified in striking with the U.B.R.E.?—A. Not if they had no other occasion, but of course, as we know they had connection with our action in being asked to handle scab freight to and from ships.

Q. Why would the railway societies that had to deliver freight to substitute men, feel bound to strike?—A. I could not answer that question.

Q. Do you think the obligation upon them to strike, from the union standpoint, was as great as the steamship men?—A. There is, I understand, a difference in the position of the organization.

Q. A difference in their sensitiveness to the needs of the union?—A. Possibly.

By His Lordship :

Q. There are a large number of railway employees that do not sympathize with the U.B.R.E.?—A. Yes.

Q. And did not approve of this strike?—A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And were requested to assist in this strike?—A. Possibly they may have been; I don’t know.

Q. Would you say that these people were not good union people?—A. I would say that men who took the places of our strikers were not good union people, although they belonged to a union organization.

Q. And suppose they, on the other hand, considered that you had no justification for going out, from their standpoint it would be right for them to take their places?—A. No, I cannot see any reason that will excuse a union man scabbing on his fellow workmen.

By Mr. Rowe :

Q. To refer to another matter, I am not quite clear upon in reference to the Forrest case. You say there had been time given to investigate the case of Forrest before action was taken by the U.B.R.E.?—A. What I said was this: that the company must have already investigated the charge against him, or they would not have been in a position to suspend him.

Q. The company say the custom is to suspend, investigate and reinstate with pay for loss of time, if the charge is not founded?—A. I think you will have evidence to show that Mr. Forrest was not only suspended, but also threatened with pressure in the courts.

Q. Do you assent to the statement that proceedings were taken against him on the morning of February 26, by the company—that was the time?—A. Yes, on the 26th, as I remember it.

Q. Do you think unions should be incorporated?—A. No, my Lord, I don’t.

Q. Why?—A. That is a very sore point with union men—the suggestion of incorporation. If a union is incorporated, it becomes immediately a target for legal actions by corporations such as the C.P.R.

By His Lordship :

Q. Don’t you think were a union has power it should have corresponding responsibility?—A. Yes, but the question is, that corporations like the C.P.R. who engage their solicitors by the year, it costs them practically nothing to be in court all the time. What society could stand up against actions brought on possibly the most trivial charges, and we would have to fight these and spend a lot of money which we would lay by for sick benefits would be spent and used.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
Q. The anthracite mine workers had nine counsel in their strike?—A. My Lord, it costs money.

His Lordship:—I guess it does.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Would it be good business for the transportation company to be constantly at litigation with its employees?—A. I don't know. The public seem to have considerable confidence in the C.P.R., although they have been in trouble with their employees here for three months, and we have had considerable difficulty with them.

By His Lordship:

Q. You think the C.P.R. should be got at in the courts, but that the union should not?—A. No, I don't agree with you altogether. The reasons which I have stated I think are good.

Q. How do you expect that an employer is going to recognize a union which cannot live up to its contract?—A. I believe it is the intention of the members of a union generally, when a contract is made, to live up to it, and I believe as a rule they do, but there is no contract, your Lordship, which I would consider should ever bind a union man to work among scabs.

Q. The obligation of the union is higher than the obligation to a contract?—A. Not necessarily, but if you bind a man down to a contract that he is to work a certain length of time, and a body of men go on strike, and he may be forced to work along with a scab.

Q. Yes, but the object of unionism is to prevail on employers to make a contract with them as a union, and not as individuals. How do you expect them to do this, unless it is shown by experience that unions will keep their contracts?—A. I believe that experience has shown that unions do keep their contracts as a rule.

Q. No one can tell when an exception is going to occur?—A. That is quite true.

Q. The difficulty is that there is no redress in the courts for the breaking of contracts. That is a proposition you cannot reasonably expect?—A. In the matter of incorporation the advantage is all on the side of the employer. He has the advantage, especially a large corporation. He has the advantage of being in the courts without it costing him a particular amount of money, and suppose something trifling occurs he has the option of entering action against the union for damages, and as we know, these cases go up from court to court and cost money. If an action of that kind could be settled in the county court it is a small matter, but if it goes to the Supreme Court or the Privy Council, it takes money to follow it through.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. But the company could not attack a union for the acts of its individual members, unless in violation of some form of contract?—A. I don't know, why not.

Q. How do you think disagreements or strikes should be settled between employers and employees?—A. That is a serious question, and if some just means of arbitration could be arrived at, it is the proper course to pursue, to my mind, in settling these matters, but, to my mind, the difficulty is to secure an impartial board of arbitrators.

Q. Why?—A. Well, in a controversy between say a transportation company and its employees, the company have so many means of showing favours, which could not be considered as such, or perhaps even intended that way. If it were in the hands of an arbitrator for any length of time, I would fear of him continuing impartial; for instance we will say, transportation across the continent in a private car, a few months at a summer hotel, and things of that kind. I would be very loth to put my case before an arbitrator who had been taking advantage of anything of that kind.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. You feel that the difficulty in arbitration is that there is not enough moral stamina in the race to produce men immune to bribes?—A. No, there are such men, but the trouble is to find them.

By His Lordship:

Q. They are very scarce?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I suppose until we get a higher moral development we will have to go on striking?—A. I hope not.

Mr. Bird.—The socialists say that private profit is at the root of the evil.

His Lordship.—Well, it is remarkable, the very few socialists that are rich!

Mr. Davis.—I would ask my learned friend to give particulars of the intimidation that is mentioned in this list. He alleges that we have intimidated certain men, mentioning them. There is not a date whatever, by which we can get any evidence.

His Lordship.—Probably the best thing would be to put your men in the box.

Mr. Bird.—The most of these men whom I have mentioned will be witnesses before this Commission.

I have been instructed by the committee of the U. B. R. E. who are engineering these proceedings on behalf of their organization, to state that, so far as the arbitration is concerned, that we are content and have confidence in the present Commissioners arbitrating the matter, if it was thought well by the C. P. R., to allow them to sit as a board of arbitrators as well as Commissioners in regard to this investigation, subject to the action of the executive in this regard being sanctioned at a meeting to be called to-night. I might add that the case of the U. B. R. E., should my offer be accepted by the C.P.R., may be left with your Lordships to deal with as a board of arbitrators, and the U. B. R. E. will agree to be bound by such award as you will agree to.

His Lordship.—I understand the difficulty is that the C. P. R. won't recognize this union.

Mr. Bird.—We don't ask that. We are not before your Lordships to ask recognition at the hands of the C. P. R. All we ask is the privilege to work, and the privilege after working hours, of being left alone by the C. P. R. or any body of employers for whom we agree to work; to use our spare time just as we please, and as long as we give the company faithful service and they treat us properly there will be no trouble. But out of these hours we don't want to be called on the carpet and given to understand that advancement will be postponed, if not completely blocked. That is the position of the U. B. R. E. to-day. And in all fairness such an offer as is now made might well be accepted by the C. P. R. if they desire to appear before the public as fair-minded men. I ask that the offer be considered by them, and that they let us have an answer to-morrow. It was suggested yesterday that an offer of settlement was to be submitted to the general manager of the company. We have heard nothing in reply. The company have not condescended to give us any reason as to whether the matter would even be considered.

Mr. Davis.—Mr. Marpole has not received any answer. There is no question of discourtesy about that.

I will just simply say that the suggestion of your Lordship hits the trouble exactly. My learned friend chooses to take a different meaning out of the word recognize. There is no use of our quarrelling about words. He takes a different position than his clients took originally. Things have got in such a position that the men can go back, but they must withdraw from the U. B. R. E., and a number of men have gone back in that way, and the company would not feel that they were acting fairly to these men if they did not continue to insist on the same conditions as to any other men going.

DAVID B. JOHNSTONE—Vancouver, June 4.
back. That being so, practically, as your Lordship says, leaves nothing for the Commission to consider, because my learned friend says they are not complaining about anything.

Mr. Rowe.—That is to say, that men belonging to the U. B. R. E. cannot get employment on the C. P. R.

Mr. Davis.—At the present time.

Mr. Rowe.—That seems to me to be very strong.

Mr. Davis.—We have been forced into that position. That was not the position taken at the time the men struck. At that time it was sought to have the union recognized in a still higher sense than now. They are not pressing that now, but things have got into such a shape, and we have seen so much of the workings of the U.B.R.E. it would create interminable confusion on the C. P. R. with the other unions, and the company have decided that the other unions and this union could not work together. Our experience has been—well, I don’t want to go on and say what conclusions we have drawn—we are going to put the evidence in, and at the close of it we think any reasonable man will draw the conclusion we have drawn, that it is an absolute impossibility for the U. B. R. E.—for reasons which we think will be patent, and which I don’t want to state at the present time—and the company to get along, and there has been no railway in the United States or in Canada that has been able to get along with that organization. The C.P.R. feel that the public good of Canada itself would be threatened by that organization, and I think we will be able to satisfy your Honours of that from the evidence.

His Lordship.—Sufficient appears, Mr. Bird, to show that the C. P. R. are not prepared to submit anything of that sort to arbitration. As far as I can see, it is a matter very difficult to arbitrate; it is a question of policy.

Mr. Bird.—My learned friend says, at the conclusion of the evidence any reasonable man will come to the conclusion of the C. P. R. I don’t know whether my learned friend wishes to imply that the Commissioners are not reasonable men. If it is shown that the life of the C. P. R. is in danger, they are prepared to drop out of the organization, that is, if the members of the U. B. R. E. may go back. If my learned friend is willing to say that any reasonable man will agree with the proposition of the C. P. R., I say that they should submit it to reasonable men and substantiate it by evidence in the box. I believe the points of difference are not very great. By the kindness of certain gentlemen who acted as an absolutely independent committee, the U. B. R. E. side and the C. P. R. side were put down in writing, and there is very little difference between the one and the other; practically, it is a mere matter or whether these men if they go back will be allowed to remain members of the order of their choice. That is substantially the only difference.

His Lordship.—There is, of course, a very clear distinction between the union demanding recognition by a committee of the union and simply desiring to be left alone as far as the union is concerned. It is one thing to try and force an employer to recognize a union by means of a committee, and another thing to ask an employer not to interfere with them by reason of their being members. As far as I can see, the demand for recognition is not susceptible to arbitration. That is taking away from the employer the choice of who he shall employ.

Mr. Bird.—That would, I presume, have to be left in the hands of the C.P.R. ?

His Lordship.—And allow the U. B.R.E. to remain in existence as heretofore, unrecognized ?

Mr. Bird.—We ask that the status quo, which was disturbed by the C.P.R. be replaced. It was disturbed without justification, we say, and we propose to show it. It was disturbed by a committee only, and not as a committee of the U.B.R.E. We ask that that condition be replaced.

Mr. Rowe.—You took action as a union ?
ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Mr. Bird.—Only as a committee of employees, and this action of the committee of employees was sanctioned by the union, and the union went out. I understand the constitution does not allow any strike really, and this strike was owing to the life of the union being at stake. The constitution does not allow a strike until it is 100,000 strong. It is only 25,000 now, and I think the prospects are, with the relations heretofore existing, that these men may be at peace for years. I propose to show that this body of clerks have been imposed upon in a manner which will explain the necessity of organization in employees of such a body as the C.P.R.

His Lordship.—Of course both sides must consent before we could even consider this proposition.

Mr. Bird.—There is another thing. The C.P.R. are a corporation which a few hundred dollars does not weigh an ounce to. To the U.B.R.E. a few hundred dollars, such as the expenses to which Mr. Estes might be put in coming here, amounts to a good deal. They are out of employment; they have been seeking funds, and have been getting them in no stinted amounts. At the same time it will cost a large amount of money to bring Mr. Estes from Denver. And if the C.P.R. want a full disclosure, I ask that his expenses be paid, and that he be granted protection. I ask that with the knowledge of certain proceedings that have been instituted.

Mr. Davis.—I am surprised at my learned friend taking that position. There is no more desire to have the facts brought out here on the part of the C.P.R., than there is on the part of his client. The only desire is that the facts be placed before the Commissioners. Anything we can do to present our side of the case, we consider it our duty to do, and we will do. I think if my learned friend's clients do not wish the expense of bringing Mr. Estes here, they should appeal to the government for that purpose.

His Lordship.—I think it would be a good thing for the government to pay the expenses.

Mr. Davis.—Mr. Estes ran away from here about the time the Commission was expected to be here.

Mr. Bird.—I don't believe that to be a fact. We had no idea of when the Commission would be sitting here, and I think my learned friend should retract that.

His Lordship.—Do you think Mr. Estes will come back if his expenses are guaranteed?

Mr. Bird.—I do. I understand he is a very busy man, and that he is worth a good deal to the U.B.R.E., and has dates ahead of importance.

His Lordship.—If Mr. Estes has got the welfare of the U.B.R.E. at heart he should not leave them in the lurch; you must know the U.B.R.E. is on trial here.

Mr. Bird.—I do believe that, and I believe if he does come across the line he may be on trial himself. I would ask safe custody as under subpoena might be granted him.

Mr. Davis.—We will undertake that we will not proceed against him criminally, if that is what you mean.

His Lordship.—Mr. Estes may unwittingly have committed some breach of Canadian law, but I don't suppose anyone wants him prosecuted for anything of that sort. Certainly, the Commission think he should be here, if for no other purpose than to see that the men's case is put properly before the Commission. He is certainly one of the leaders of this party, and knows a good deal about its workings.

Mr. Bird.—That is so, but as your Lordship has been apprised by the evidence, the U.B.R.E. is 25,000 strong, and he has other duties to perform.

His Lordship.—The order has been established there, and it is a fight for its existence going on there. This is really the place where he should be.

Mr. Rowe.—Have you heard from him?

Mr. Bird.—We have no reply yet.
Vancouver, June 5, 1903.

(Mr. Bird puts in document showing dates of strikes of U.B.R.E. at Vancouver and other striking unions, and dates at which the branches at Nelson, Revelstoke, Calgary and Winnipeg went out.)

(Documents for which privilege not claimed put in by both sides.)

WILLIAM J. McMillan, sworn.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. What is your occupation, Mr. McMillan?—A. Wholesale grocer.
Q. Carrying on business where?—A. In the city.
Q. Do you ever remember, during the progress of the present strike, having a conversation with any of the officers of the company in regard to a black list?—A. Not in regard to any black list.
Q. Just tell us—had you a conversation with any officers of the company in regard to this strike?—A. I had a conversation somewhere about the 10th of June with Mr. Greer—the 10 of March I mean. With Mr. Greer and Keith, with regard to the condition of the company as to freight. They came down to my office, and we had a general conversation on their ability to carry on business.
Q. What was said there in regard to the strike?—A. They said that as far as the city here was concerned, they had sufficient force to carry on their business, and could look after it all right. I expressed doubt as to the other unions not joining the U. B. R. E. and put the company practically out of business. They said there was no danger—that they had agreements, the effect of which would be, if the other unions went on strike they could not get a situation on any other road in North America. That is the only conversation I had.
Q. That the company had an agreement the effect of which would be if these men went on strike, they could not get positions in North America?—A. Yes.
Q. With whom was this agreement supposed to be?—A. I did not question them any further. Mr. Peters made the statement. I did not question as to who the agreement was made with. I just took the statement as given to me.

By Mr. Daris:

Q. Which one was it said this?—A. Mr. Peters.
Q. Mr. Peters was reassuring you that there would be no difficulty as to freight?—A. Yes, certainly.
Q. And you don’t remember anything more of the conversation than what you have stated?—A. The conversation was general.
Q. The general effect of it was that you need not be concerned—the C. P. R. would be able to handle the freight?—A. Yes.
Q. The strike was causing considerable anxiety to business men in the city here?—A. Certainly.
Q. At that time what bodies had struck?—A. I am not in a position to state as to what bodies had gone on strike. I understood that the freight handlers and the teamsters had refused to take C. P. R. freight. I think that was about the condition.
Q. Did the builders strike in sympathy?—A. I don’t know.

WILLIAM J. McMillan—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. To tie up all the C. P. R. offices for a short time would be a serious thing for Vancouver?—A. Their purpose in visiting me was—we had been delivering some freight by the Great Northern, fearing they would be tied up in some way, and that was the occasion of their visit.

Q. That if there was a strike on the C. P. R. the result would be a diversion of business to the American railway?—A. Entirely, yes.

Q. If the C.P.R. really was tied up it would be a very serious thing to the city of Vancouver?—A. Certainly.

Q. To the whole of Canada?—You see the C.P.R. runs through territory you cannot reach by any other route.

Q. And it would be not only for Vancouver, but the whole of Canada?—A. Certainly.

Q. It would be a very good thing for the American roads?—A. I suppose they would reap some benefit from it.

Q. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good! We have had a great deal of trouble with reference to strikes, in British Columbia lately?—A. Seems to be.

By His Lordship:

Q. What is your idea as to the method of handling these things?—A. That is a pretty serious question.

Q. Have you ever considered it?—A. I really do not care to express an opinion. I don't think I am competent enough to do that.

Q. You don't know anything about the U. B. R. E. yourself, I suppose?—A. No.

Q. Can you give us any idea of the losses of the wholesale trade by reason of the strike which commenced on February 27?—A. I don't think there has been any serious loss occasioned by it. Business has moved right along. There has been some loss, but business has gone on just the same.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. If the C.P.R. had not been able to handle it, the loss would, of course have been very heavy. Can you give any approximate idea of the loss that would result to the wholesale business of the city if the C.P.R. were tied up for, say, two weeks?—A. Two weeks, I don't suppose, would occasion a very great loss, because the supplies would tide us over for that time.

Q. Well, say a month?—A. The trouble would be occasioned by the points that the C. P. R. touched—the interior. Business would be naturally shut off, and what the loss would be it would be hard to estimate. Several points where other railroads touch could be handled by other roads.

Q. The loss would be greater where the American roads don't touch?—A. Yes. It would be a hard thing to estimate.

Q. Did the merchants agree to handle their own stuff from the wharf in order to get over the teamster’s strike?—A. There was no different arrangement than before.

Q. Didn't the merchants make an agreement among themselves that they would go down and handle their own freight, or by non-union labour?—A. There was an agreement that was drawn up, but that was not the scope of the agreement. It was that the merchants would support the master teamsters as against the striking teamsters.

Q. There was such an agreement as that?—A. Yes.

Q. And the reason was what? It was, in the first place, they considered the teamsters had struck without a grievance—is that not right?—A. I don't think that was so.

Q. But the teamsters did not pretend to have any grievance—it was a sympathetic strike?—A. It was a sympathetic strike. I don't know of any grievance which they had.

WILLIAM J. Mc MILLAN—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. And the merchants had to come to that conclusion for their own protection?
—A. Well, there is a difference of opinion there.

Q. They thought they had?—A. Some did, I suppose.

Q. What would be the result if one merchant got a non-union man to handle his freight, so far as the striking unions were concerned?—A. They have been handling their freight with non-union teamsters, and I have not seen any results.

Q. You think there would be no resentment shown if a single merchant had got non-union men to handle the freight?—A. The non-union men have handled the freight, and I have seen nothing.

Q. What was the case of Davidson & Woodward being blacklisted?

(Mr. Bird objects.)

His Lordship.—We want to get a thorough appreciation of the exact condition of affairs as affecting all classes of the community.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. What was the reason of Davidson & Woodward being blacklisted?

His Lordship.—What do you mean by being blacklisted?

By Mr. Davis:

Q. You understand what is meant?—A. There is what they call an unfair list. I saw in some of the papers an unfair list printed, and I don't know anything further than that list has been printed.

By His Lordship:

Q. An unfair list of grocers?—A. Whatever particular business they are employed in—different trades.

Q. What paper is it printed in?—A. I think in the union paper, the 'Independent' or the 'Clarion'—I don't remember which.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. You understand what the publication of that unfair list means. For instance, you will see a list of people published as unfair, like Davidson & Woodward, also men who went back to the C. P. R. have been published as unfair. You understand what that means?—A. I understand it means they are unfair to union labour.

Q. And the result of that you understand, don't you?—A. If your shop were put on the unfair list would you expect union people to deal with you?—A. Naturally I would not.

Q. So, that being put on the unfair list means to establish a boycott against that individual?—A. I suppose so.

Q. You know that Davidson & Woodward were put on the unfair list—by whom?
—A. I suppose by the unions of the city.

Q. Do you know what unions?—A. I don't remember. I did not read the article with sufficient interest.

Q. You know Cook the contractor who was building a departmental store—was there not some trouble with him over Davidson and Woodward—that is correct?—A. Yes.

His Lordship.—Had we better not get this from Cook?

Witness.—I could not give my evidence on a matter of that kind.

By His Lordship:

Q. Have you ever been threatened with blacklist yourself?—A. No, sir.

Q. Was the agreement between the merchants in writing?—A. Yes, between the merchants and the master teamsters.

Q. Where is that agreement?—A. I don't know. They sent it for my signature and I did not sign it.

WILLIAM J. McMILLAN—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. How many merchants did sign it?—A. Quite a number.

Q. Where is that document—can you give us any idea? Who would be likely to have it?—A. It was presented to me by Mr. Pilkington, I think.

Q. Had the merchants any secretary or officers acting for this purpose?—A. I think it was drawn up in the establishments of the merchants, without any organization at all.

Q. Can you give us any information which would lead us to discover where this document is?—A. I think it must be with the master freight handlers.

Q. How was this freight handled?—A. It is handled by union teamsters, and by some non-union teamsters.

Q. What master drayman could you get this agreement from?—A. I think the transfer company will be able to furnish you with a copy.

Q. Can you give us any estimate of the consequence of men being put on the unfair list?—A. I cannot give any opinion on it at all. I cannot see any consequence in it very much.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. If you refuse to employ any class of labour yourself, Mr. McMillan, would you expect as a merchant that that class of labour would deal with you?—A. I would expect they would not.

Q. Supposing you singled out any class of this community and let it be known that you would not employ them, you could not expect to see their names on your books, or them to deal in your store?—A. Certainly not.

Q. Now, if John Smith refused to employ union labour, would you expect that union labour would not take notice of that fact and let it be known among themselves that he was considered unfair?—A. Certainly, I think such a procedure would be reasonable.

Q. So that if Messrs. Woodward & Davidson let it be known that they would not employ union labour you think it would be reasonable for union labour—that it would be well for union labour to recognize that fact?—A. Certainly.

Q. And such a statement to the public as an unfair list is a statement of fact to union labour—By the way did you see the list published in any but recognized labour papers?—A. No

Q. You say that such a statement appearing in the paper would be an announcement of the fact that these men had refused to employ union labour?—A. Yes.

Q. And that is what constitutes an unfair list?—A. I could not express an opinion as to that constituting an unfair list. I am not conversant with the matter.

Q. The C. P. R.'s position here in this province, is practically that of a monopoly, is it not?—A. Yes, practically.

Q. That is to a certain territory in this province at all events, the C. P. R. can dictate what rates they please?—A. Well, I think it is subject to some legislation. I don't know how far they can go, as to what rates they can charge, but I suppose they make the rates as much as the people can stand.

Q. Now, Vancouver has a certain competitive system. There is a possibility of getting freight in here without bringing it over the C. P. R.?—A. From eastern points, yes.

Q. Has that been taken advantage of?—A. Yes, all the time.

Q. So that the mere fact of your shipping over the Canada Northern or any line does not necessarily indicate a condition of strike?—A. Oh, no, we have done that heretofore.

Q. And you have altered your position materially by reason of this strike?—A. I did regarding the difficulty occasioned by the strike.

Q. For how long?—A. It has not hardly changed yet very much.

Q. How do you mean—changed much?—A. That we are shipping both ways—over the C. P. R. and the Great Northern.

36a—37 WILLIAM J. McMILLAN—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. And the strike has not altered your arrangements in regard to shipment to a great extent? — A. No, sir.

Q. I understand you stated to His Lordship that you refused to sign this agreement in regard to upholding the master draymen in regard to the striking teamsters? — A. Yes.

Q. And did you find that it was absolutely necessary for you to make a stand against labour in order to get your goods transhipped? — A. No, I did not.

Q. You found the union men reasonably fair in connection with handling your goods? — A. We found them more fair than the others—the non-union labour.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Why did you refuse to sign the agreement? — A. We wished to allow any firm to control their own business.

Q. What was your reason? — A. Simply that we did not wish to sign it.

Q. Why? — A. That was the reason—that we took upon ourselves the right to con-tral our own business. Simply that we wished to control our own business without interference from the outside.

Q. Signing the agreement would not interfere? — A. Certainly it would, because we would agree to employ certain draymen.

Q. Was that agreement to employ certain draymen? — A. The agreement was between certain master draymen and the merchants, and you had to employ these draymen set forth in the agreement.

Q. And the reason you refused to sign it, you wished to be free to employ any draymen you pleased? — A. Yes.

Q. Do you believe that the strike was intended in any way to advance the interests of the American railways against the Canadian interests? — A. I don’t think so.

Q. Do you think it had any connection with a desire on the part of the U. B. R. E. to curry favour with the American railway interests or otherwise? — A. I don’t think so.

By His Lordship:

Q. You say you found the union men more fair than the non-union? — A. Yes.

Q. How did you get your freight handlers? — A. After the strike occurred we had to employ certain non-union teamsters. They charged us double rates, where the union charged regular prices.

Q. How did you get them to handle the freight? — A. They handled anything that did not affect the C. P. R.

Q. You say that non-union men took advantage of the trouble to charge double rates as far as the C. P. R. was concerned? — A. Certainly.

Q. Can you tell us a little more specifically what the rates were? — A. The regular rates charged upon drayage is 50 cents. They charged us $1.00.

Q. Was this charged to the people who entered into the agreement with the master draymen? — A. I don’t know what effect it had with the other merchants; I only know what effect it had with ourselves.

Q. What proportion of the merchants of the town entered into this agreement?
— A. The agreement when it was presented for my signature possibly had about fifteen names on it. It was an agreement between the merchants and the master draymen. I may say that the names of the merchants attached to the agreement were about fifteen, I think.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Did any refuse to sign that agreement except yourself? — A. I cannot answer that question.

Q. Don’t you know as a matter of general note that you are the only merchant?
— A. I have not heard that. I cannot answer that question.

Q. Did you ever hear of any other merchant who did not sign? — A. I did not.

WILLIAM J. Mc MILLAN—Vancouver, June 5.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. You say you were charged double by the non-union men to haul for the C. P. R.; that was on account of the strike?—A. Yes.

Q. Men were taking a certain amount of risk?—A. I could not see what risk they were taking.

Q. Don't you think that a union man who is handling freight for the C. P. R. was taking a certain amount of risk?—A. If a man treated me unfairly I would not care to deal with him.

Q. I am asking you whether they were not taking a business risk apart from any other reason?—A. I know of no other risk.

HARRY WILSON, sworn.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Are you one of the ex-employees of the C. P. R. and a member of the U. B. R. E.?—A. Yes.

Q. What position did you hold in the company's service?—A. Chief clerk in the car service department.

Q. Are you a striker?—A. I am not; I was dismissed from the service.

Q. How long have you been in the employ of the company?—A. Seven years at two different periods. Of course the first service does not count; three years up to the time I was dismissed.

Q. And where?—A. In Vancouver.

Q. When did you join the U. B. R. E.?—A. In June, 1902.

Q. Were you an officer of the Brotherhood?—A. Not at that time. I was a member of the first adjustment, as they called it.

Q. As a member of the committee you were brought into contact with the officers of the C. P. R.?—A. Yes.

Q. When?—A. In January of the present year.

Q. Please relate the circumstances that brought you there?—A. The adjustment committee was formed to appear before the general officers of the company with regard to a case of two clerks.

Q. What were their names?—A. Mr. Halton and Miss Code.

Q. Whom did you see on behalf of them?—A. Mr. Marpole.

Q. How many members were there on that committee?—A. Sixteen of them.

Q. You made a demand on Mr. Marpole at that time?—A. Yes.

Q. Was it in writing?—A. Yes, in writing.

Q. I would ask my learned friend to produce the demand.

(Produced Exhibit 38.)

Q. There was another matter brought up by this committee as to another employee besides these two mentioned, was there not?—A. There was some reference made to it, but I think it was not expected to have any adjustment with regard to that matter at the time.

Q. Now, as the result of this interview what occurred?—A. Well, the demands we made were acceded to.

Q. And I see by the letter from Mr. Marpole that it is stated that he has inquired into the matter, and on hearing the explanation of Mr. Halton, he is reinstated?—A. Yes.

Q. So doubtless there was no opposition at that time to an inquiry being made into Mr. Halton's case; the inquiry was made and he was reinstated?—A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Did anything happen to you as a consequence of this—of your acting on this committee?—A. Nothing directly at that time.

364—374

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. Anything directly or indirectly subsequently?—A. I had reason to think so.
Q. Just explain?—A. Well, on February 25, a message was received by my chief here from the head of our department in Montreal, to send me east, and the statement was made that it would be a permanent position.
Q. Might I ask my learned friend for the production of that telegram; I don't see that it is produced.
Mr. Davis.—Look among the papers.
Mr. Bird.—They are not produced in your documents.

By His Lordship:
Q. You say there was a telegram sent from Montreal to your chief officer here?
—A. Yes.
Q. You saw the telegram?—A. Yes, I asked to see it.
Q. Did you see it?—A. I did see it.
Q. Well, give the contents of it?—A. As far as my memory serves me it read like this: 'Send Wilson east at once. Have position for him here. Will advise you later reasons for change.' That is about the way it read.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. How soon did you leave Vancouver?—A. About two and a half hours after the message was received.
Q. Was that at the request of the company that you should leave on that notice?
—A. It was insisted upon.

By His Lordship:
Q. Who insisted on it?—A. My chief officer, Mr. Miller.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. This was February 25, the strike was declared on the 27th?—A. So I believe.

By His Lordship:
Q. What was your answer to Miller's demand that you go east?—A. I asked for at least a day's notice in order to make some preparation. I understood the situation was to be permanent, and required me to sever connection here altogether.
Q. Are you a married man?—A. No.
Q. How long did you want?—A. One day, the following day, Thursday; it was on Wednesday, just about two and a half hours before the train left.
Q. That was refused?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. You went that same day. And upon arrival in Montreal whom did you see?—
A. I reported to Mr. Cantlie according to instructions; he is superintendent of the car service.
Q. That was your department in Vancouver?—A. Yes.
Q. What did Mr. Cantlie say?—A. He told me in the first interview that we had that he was not then in a position to place me in the position he had promised, owing to recent changes in his staff, but that he expected very shortly to be able to do so.
After this he discussed my connection with the U.B.R.E.
Q. Did you tell him you were a member of the U.B.R.E.?—A. No, he knew of it;
he did not ask me directly if I was a member.
Q. What did he say about your connection with the U.B.R.E.?—A. He discussed it from a friendly, and as he put it, unofficial standpoint, and pointed out how my connection with that organization would be detrimental to my advancement in the service, and endeavoured to induce me to sever connection.
Q. Any promise made by you that you would?—A. None whatever.

Harry Wilson—Vancouver, June 5.
ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Did you get a job with the company?—A. Not immediately; about five days from the first interview, five or six days.

Q. Did you have any further interview with Mr. Cantlie?—A. I had every day following, I think, until he left for England, practically going over the same ground.

Q. Of advising you to leave the U.B.R.E.?—A. Exactly.

Q. Did you get to work at Montreal at all?—A. Yes, in the car accountant's department.

Q. Under whom?—A. Mr. Gascoigne.

Q. Prior to this time before you went to work, did you see anything about the strike having occurred in Vancouver?—A. Yes, I saw different reports.

Q. Did you see any particular report in any of the Montreal papers. Have you got any clippings from any Montreal papers in your possession?—A. I have one.

(Witness produces clippings from Montreal 'Daily Star' of March 18. Exhibit 39.)

Q. This is a reported interview in the Montreal 'Star':

(Exhibit 39.)

'C.P.R. STRIKERS RETURNING TO WORK.'

'The strike on the Canadian Pacific steamer Charmer, plying between Vancouver and Victoria, is not considered serious by the officials here. It seems that some few firemen and deckhands, five or six, left the ship at Vancouver with a view of preventing her sailing. These men, says an official, have no grievance whatever against the company, and simply refused to work, to show their sympathy with the clerks whom the company refuse to reinstate. However, their desire did not succeed, as the Charmer not only left Vancouver on time, but also reached Victoria on time. These men made no demand for any increase of their wages; they are now earning $60 a month and the cost of board, and are simply acting in this manner to endeavour to compel the company to recognize the union. Mr. Estes, president of the new organization known as the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, is back of the whole thing, but will not succeed any better in the future than he has in the past. The service has not been greatly affected so far. Many of the strikers are returning to work, and many who wish to return are being refused re-employment.'

'Clerks DISMISSED BY CANADIAN PACIFIC.'

'A sensation was caused on Monday by the dismissal of eight clerks in the department of the auditor of statistics of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Windsor Street Station, and two in the office of superintendent of car service. These gentlemen say that the reason the company gave for discharging them was that the staff had to be reduced, but they claim that the real reason is because they had become members of a union of railroad employees.'

'Mr. A. A. Goodchild, auditor of statistics, said to-day: There is no foundation for the statement that these men were discharged because they belonged to the union. I was instructed to reduce my staff, and did it in the best interests of the company. There is no rule forbidding a clerk belonging to the union.'

Q. Were there other members of the U.B.R.E. at Montreal at this time—members of Division 81 from Vancouver?—A. At the time that appeared yes, one other, Mr. Dick.

Q. Did you make any reply, or publish anything by reason of this statement in the paper?—A. Yes.

Q. Have you a copy of it?—A. I have.

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
The following letter explains itself:

To the Editor of the 'Witness':

Sir,—In the issue of the Daily 'Star' on Wednesday March 16, some prominence was given to a report purporting to come from Vancouver, stating that a number of the striking members of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees were returning to work at that place, also that a number of others desirous of doing so, could not, from the fact that the railway company refused them re-employment.

We are glad to be able to state that there is no truth whatever in the report quoted, and that not a single item enumerated has any foundation in fact. Emphatic denial has been received from the executive committee of the Brotherhood in Vancouver, and it is entirely with a view of removing any false impression created by this report at the present status of the strike, that we desire you to give publicity to this denial.

Trusting that you will find space for this, and thanking you in anticipation, we are, sir, yours,

(Sgd.) H. WILSON,
Cert. 87, Vancouver Division, No. 81, U.B.R.E.

(Sgd.) JAMES DICK,
Cert. 22, Vancouver Division, No. 81, U.B.R.E.

By His Lordship:

Q. What office do you hold, if any, in the union?—A. None whatever.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. You had received communication from Division 81 to the effect that these statements were wrong?—A. Yes, sir.
Q. And that document written by you—did you believe what you state there?—A. Yes.
Q. And the reports from this division corroborated your belief?—A. They did.
Q. That in fact there were no men being refused employment who desired to return from the U.B.R.E.?—A. That is what I believe
Q. And that they were not going back in the wholesale manner indicated?—A. No.
Q. What took place on the morning after that appeared?—A. I was told that I was dismissed from the employment of Mr. Gascoigne, on March 23.

By His Lordship:

Q. The day after the appearance of the letter?—A. No, two days after. That appeared on Saturday, March 21. I was told on the Monday morning following that I was discharged.
Q. Did you have to go immediately?—A. I was discharged at noon on that date.
Q. And what cause was assigned for your dismissal?—A. Publishing that denial.
Q. Did you receive any pay for your time—?—A. Up to that time, and two weeks in lieu of notice.
Q. Did you receive any voucher?—A. It was paid by time check.
Mr. Bird.—I ask for the production of Mr. Wilson's time check.
His Lordship.—Does anything turn on that?
Mr. Bird.—I think so; I would ask for the time check.

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

By His Lordship:

Q. Did it make any statement of the reason?—A. 'Dismissed for publishing false and lying reports detrimental to the company's interest.' As nearly as I can remember those are the words.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. During any interview with Mr. Gascoyne, did he give you any idea why you had been brought there?—A. Yes, he said I had been brought there to be out of the way, to be kept out of trouble.

Q. And did he say that there was a permanent position such as you had been promised when you left Vancouver?—A. He doubted very much if there was.

Q. While you were working down there was there anything to indicate that there was a job there for you?—A. No.

Q. Did you ever get a clearance from the company, or have you one?—A. I had at that time; it is a certificate of service.

Q. In accordance with this agreement that is supposed to exist, a man could not get on another railroad unless he produced a clearance from the last company he worked for; so this clearance that you asked for was for the purpose of getting work in another company?—A. I presume so.

(Clearance produced and put in as Exhibit 41.)

Q. The reason assigned is 'Dismissed for publishing without the authority of the company, incorrect statements damaging to their interest'? His Lordship.—That is the certificate of character he got!

Mr. Bird.—Might I ask that this certificate be handed out, and not filed—it might be necessary to get employment!

By His Lordship:

Q. Did you object to that being inserted?—A. No, I asked particularly for the clearance.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Did you object to that reason being assigned?—A. Certainly, I objected to the officer who gave me the clearance, Mr. Gascoyne.

Q. Did you attempt to get anything?—A. I attempted to get an interview with Mr. McNichol and failed.

Q. What did Gascoyne say?—A. He told me he had instructions, in case I wanted a clearance, to give that reason; although he told me personally he did not like to put that on the clearance, he had instructions to do so.

Q. Have you tried to get employment on any other railroad since?—A. No.

Q. Have you ever been at work on other railways?—A. Yes, four years on the Grand Trunk system, previous to coming to Vancouver.

Q. Did you get a clearance from the Grand Trunk?—A. No, they did not issue clearances.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. That is a recent scheme of the companies—this issuing clearances?—A. Yes, that form particularly. It came into effect the latter part of 1901, I think.

Q. Prior to your joining this union, were the clerks in this western division suffering any grievances? Take, for instance, as to hours?—A. They had a good deal of overtime to do, and I believe they considered that a grievance.

Mr. Davis.—I understand my learned friend does not allege any grievance whatever except the recognition of the union.

His Lordship.—We are not going to confine either of you to what appears in the statements.

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 3.
Mr. Davis.—It is rather a wide inquiry when they allege there were certain grievances of the company which in any way contributed to the strike, when they state they were not striking on account of grievances and had no grievances that they wished to discuss.

His Lordship.—I think, Mr. Bird, you should confine yourself, as far as possible, to the grievances you have stated. It means of course that the other side would have time to answer.

Mr. Bird.—I desire to do everything fairly, and to give notice of every intended objection to the service of the company being brought out.

His Lordship.—The real issue is the recognition of the body.

Mr. Bird.—Yes, and the necessity for unions on the C.P.R. These men are fighting for the life of their union. They say it is absolutely essential to their welfare on the road. They say that sometimes they have to work whole nights and sometimes have to go without meals absolutely by the command of their superior officers, and that they have never received one dollar for the time they have worked.

Mr. Davis.—These statements are absolutely incorrect, as far as our instructions go. Let him give instances, and we will be prepared to offer witnesses on the subject.

Mr. Bird.—I will give written instances and prepare particulars.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Did you get in Montreal the same rate of wages as in Vancouver?—A. Exactly the same.

His Lordship.—We had better let this witness stand down; we want to go on with another witness.

Mr. Bird.—I have asked for the appearance book; that will give particulars of overtime; all the company have to do is look in that appearance book, and they will find particulars.

Mr. Davis.—If you want the appearance book, we will agree to produce it, as I have said, at any reasonable time, for inspection, but I believe it is in use.

Mr. Bird.—I understand that this particular book has not been in use for twelve months.

His Lordship.—You had better utilize this recess to go down and look at the books, as we have to examine a witness from Nanaimo.

Mr. Davis.—We will produce it after lunch.

(Witness stands down.)

Vancouver, June 5, 1903.

By His Lordship:

Q. Please identify and describe these documents, just briefly what they are?—A. (Exhibit 42.) This is a document in connection with a committee appointed by our union for the purpose of looking into the merits of the different organizations. (Exhibit 43.) This is a report of the joint board, Cumberland, Nanaimo and Ladysmith, that met in Nanaimo on April 26.

Q. That is the meeting which has been referred to so much in your evidence?—A. Yes, and the names of the committee are there. (Exhibit 44.) This is dated April 29. It embodies a report of the three delegates chosen from that joint board to Thomas J. Shenton.—Vancouver, June 5.
wait upon the government and ask their assistance in regard to trying to arrange a settlement at Ladysmith. (Exhibit 45.) This is a letter from Mr. Estes, received at our lodge, dated March 1, 1903.

Q. Now, just describe this bundle. I understand, Mr. Shenton, that bundle contains all the documents in your possession in any way relating to the matters before this Commission?—A. (Exhibit 46.) This bundle contains all the documents relating to all the matters being investigated by the Commission—the whole of them.

His LORDSHIP.—These will be returned to you after the Commission is through with them.

Q. Would you like to make any statement regarding anything you have said before?—A. I understand that during my replies, I think to Mr. Bodwell on the last occasion—on Wednesday—I misstated—or else I did not hear the question correctly—it was something regarding my mission when I went to Cumberland, relating to the arrangement of things necessary for the Commission while there, and I think, and I am told that I replied—‘No, I did not do anything when I went there.’ I wish to right that. I did not hear the question; I must have replied in connection with some previous question. I did not remember the question, and I wish to state in that connection that that was one—I was not authorized by Mr. Baker who sent me up there for that work.

Q. You mean to say you were not authorized to go and organize the Chinese?—
A. No, not authorized to get up there case for the Commission, to make any arrangements regarding the Commission going there. But I was authorized in connection with the joint board, and in connection with our own lodge, to make a statement to the effect of what had been done between the other two lodges—Nanaimo and Ladyssmith—to the effect that we had arranged certain conditions and also that we had decided to employ counsel, and ask them to fall in line. That is what I wish to say.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. What is the significance of the fact that Mr. Richards before the Commission stated you were not authorized by the local union to do anything?—A. I conclude that that is from the treatment I received there. The significance lies in the fact that they disputed my authority, simply because I had no written credentials from Mr.
Baker. They refused to admit me to that meeting as the proper representative of Mr.
Baker until a late hour in the evening, and I had not time to get any word.

By Mr. Bodwell:

Q. What date were you there, Mr. Shenton?—A. I think I started for there about the 12th, I think.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. On the 12th Mr. Baker writes—‘Owing to circumstances I could not come to Cumberland as I wired you I would, but got Brother Shenton to go instead?’—A.
Yes.

Q. ‘I considered this necessary for the reason that all these men were too new in the organization to be well enough posted to defend it against the bombardment they were preparing for us.’ That has reference to the sittings of the Commission?—A. I suppose so.

By His LORDSHIP:

Q. Who are meant by ‘they’?—A. I cannot say, your Lordship, who is referred to by ‘they’.

Q. Do you gather, from what you now know of all that has taken place, that you have been treated with full confidence with which a labour leader should have been treated by the officers of the Federation?—A. No, I have not; far from it.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 5.
By Mr. Rowe:

Q. That is true also of your treatment in Cumberland?—A. Yes.

Q. How do you account for your treatment in Cumberland?—A. Possibly I may have, in some matters, felt disposed to differ with them.

Q. What matters?—A. Well, one matter was relating to the—he, Mr. Baker, for instance, knew very well in connection with the men up there, about the time that the trouble was on—how much I pressed that it should be the last thing we should do to call the men out up there. He was well aware that I was disposed to feel that only under extreme circumstances should we call the men out.

Q. Do you think that was in reality a sympathetic strike?—A. Well, I don’t think so. I don’t think that the lodges understood it so. I don’t see how they really could understand it so. At least our lodge, as far as I know, and all the men in connection with our lodge, have not understood anything of the kind.

By His Lordship:

Q. You understand that the strike was caused by laying off the officers of the union—the strike at Cumberland?—A. Yes, it is proposed that that is the reason.

Q. At all events, you had no idea that the strike was being engineered as a sympathetic strike?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Do you think now that it was so engineered?—A. I am rather afraid it was. That is the reason I feel that my position has been so awkward. Possibly Mr. Bodwell has not been able to understand, thinking that I knew these things were so, why I did not know.

Q. So you think you were kept in the dark regarding the purpose of the Western Federation as to calling out the Cumberland men, and as to the organization of the Chinese and Japanese?—A. Yes, certainly.

Q. And that you would have objected to both of these things had you known?—A. Yes, certainly.

By His Lordship:

Q. You see, I suppose, Mr. Shenton, that this telegram was shown to some of your leaders but not to you?—A. I realize that.

Q. Because it was given to Barber and taken up to Cumberland?—A. That is the most convincing thing I have.

Q. And you were the secretary and the most active officer of the Nanaimo union, and if the matter was being managed correctly you are one of the men who should have been taken into his confidence?—A. Yes, there is no doubt about that. I may say further, that the same feeling prevails among our own men regarding these matters which have developed before this Commission. We are opposed in every regard to being practically deceived.

Q. The men should have a meeting shortly to consider their decision with reference to the Federation?—A. Possibly that may be one of the questions taken up. It has a special meeting Saturday.

Q. What was the object of calling it?—A. The object was to hear, of course, the reply to a telegram asking the Federation what they were going to do in this crisis, and that is one of the questions to be taken up. We have also the matter of the agreement with the company. That is now about expired, and that is another matter.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. In your conversation with Mr. Hall at Cumberland, did he say to you that he had a conversation with Mr. Baker?—A. Not that I remember.

Q. You don’t know whether he had a conversation with Mr. Baker when he was in Cumberland?—A. No.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 5.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Did Mr. Baker mention Mr. Hall's name to you when he was sending you to Cumberland?—A. The way I came to know Mr. Hall was through a recommendation from my friend Wilkinson up there. I went down to see Mr. Hall in a friendly way. They said they went to see him and I was persuaded to go down.

Q. Did Mr. Wilkinson say to you that Mr. Hall had an idea about Chinese union?—A. No.

Q. But he said, generally speaking, that Mr. Hall was friendly to labour, and advised you to have a conversation with him?—A. Yes.

Q. When you went there had you any idea of taking up the question of unionizing the Chinese?—A. No, I was not aware at that time that he was interested in the matter.

Q. That had nothing to do with your visit to Cumberland?—A. Nothing whatever.

Q. Were there any other reasons, a difference of opinion between the Cumberland men and yourself that would account for their treatment of you as a representative of Mr. Baker?—A. Yes, a difference of opinion regarding the present system of government; its powers and what it might do for us, and especially referring to the delegation that I spoke of that went down to Victoria, as authorized by that joint board, to approach the government to use their power to get an arrangement at Ladysmith.

Q. Was there a disagreement on that delegation?—A. Well, yes, on the delegation, certainly. There were three of us, two against one.

Q. Did these men who objected to you at Cumberland, hold different views from yourself as to whether unions should be a political power or not?—A. Yes.

Q. And do you think their objection to you was because you were not a socialist?—A. I believe so.

By His Lordship:

Q. There is a considerable struggle going on internally in these unions as to this question of socialism?—A. Yes, a serious struggle.

Q. It is coming up all the time in discussions?—A. Yes.

Q. In fact it looks as if the struggle was now between legitimate trade unionism and revolutionary socialism?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Did it ever occur to you that the action at Ladysmith was taken in order to help the strike of the U.B.R.E. at Vancouver—I mean previous to the meetings of this Commission?—A. I could not say that I thought of it at all. Of course it may have been, but I don't think so, for the simple reason that had we known that we would have opposed it. I speak for the union I represent.

By His Lordship:

Q. They don't approve of that kind of thing?—A. No.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. You had several conversations with Ladysmith men previous to the unionizing of Ladysmith?—A. Yes.

Q. Did any of them suggest that this would be the proper time to take action in view of conditions at Vancouver?—A. No, I cannot say that I heard any one say that.

By His Lordship:

Q. Then if you were satisfied that the idea of the leaders at Denver was to engineer these strikes as sympathetic strikes to assist the U.B.R.E. strike, you would have set your face against it?—A. Certainly.

Q. And the majority of the union would have opposed it?—A. Certainly.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. You can see how the Commission was regarding some of your evidence as suspicious: it was natural that holding Mr. Baker’s confidence as you did, that he should have take you completely into it?—A. Yes, I realize that.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Was it ever proposed to the Nanaimo union that there should be a strike in sympathy with Ladysmith?—A. I could not say officially; it is only by hearsay. I heard it was proposed in Ladysmith by some individual there that Nanaimo should go out in sympathy.

Q. Did Nanaimo ever consider that question as a union?—A. No, it never would have got consideration.

Q. Are the socialists, so-called, in the majority in your union?—A. There may be 50 out of 850.

Q. In reference to the Moyer telegram of March 6, concerning the bringing of coal to Vancouver, that was put before the lodge?—A. Yes.

Q. What action was taken by the lodge officially in reference to it?—A. The action that was taken was to the effect of rendering any assistance that we could, in a legal way, of course.

Q. How could you render assistance?—A. By the method carried out that was stated and reported to the meeting. We approached the management and inquired whether there was coal going from that point.

Q. You were instructed by the union to approach the management in that manner?—A. Yes.

Q. Supposing you had learned that the management were furnishing coal to the C.P.R., would the matter have been further admitted in the union then?—A. Well, there might have been action taken in regard to asking them to desist.

Q. You have asked the company to desist?—A. Yes, I think so.

By His Lordship:

Q. And if they had refused?—A. Well, we would have considered we had gone as far as we could.

Q. You would have been really subjecting yourself to an unnecessary injury, without doing the other people much good?—A. In the agreement that we have with our company the paramount issue would be whether this would affect the industry that was employing our men that was not reasonable; that would be the question.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Would you consider your obligation under the union contract such as could not be broken merely by reason of the fact that your employers were supplying coal to the C.P.R.?—A. I should not think so. Our agreement with the company we would regard as being binding thoroughly.

Q. And you would not think of breaking a contract of that kind simply because your employees were sending coal to the C.P.R.?—A. No.

Q. Is there anything further you would like to say, Mr. Shenton?—A. I don’t know that there is any further statement to make. I might say before this Commission that I saw a report in the ‘Colonist,’ I think of yesterday, regarding these telegrams that is not hardly right. I would like to have it corrected.

By His Lordship:

Q. Which telegrams?—A. Regarding both these telegrams that were turned in here.

This is the article:

‘Vancouver, June 3.—At the sittings of the Labour Commission here to-day, Shenton, secretary of the Nanaimo union of the Western Federation, was further examined. In the course of his evidence he produced a telegram from Moyer, president of the Western Federation at Denver, dated March 6, asking Nanaimo to do all they could to prevent the C.P.R. from getting coal on Vancouver Island.

THOMAS J. SHERENTON—Vancouver, June 5.'

The latter clause of that is not correct; it was to prevent coal coming from Nanaimo, not Vancouver Island. It goes on further:—

'\nIt was also shown that on March 9 that Shenton wired for Baker to organize at Ladysmith, and the strike there was immediately precipitated.'

I disagree with the language that 'Shenton wired.' The only part I took in that was to write the telegram out.

Q. I suppose it was a natural desire on your part to see Ladysmith and Cumberland organized from the standpoint of a union man, but that you did not take any part in it for the purpose of engineering a sympathetic strike?—A. Yes, that is my position.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I understood you to say, Mr. Shenton, that you did not take any active part in the organization at Ladysmith at any time or any place?—A. No.

Q. You told us when Mr. Baker was there Mr. Mottishaw was there to meet him. Had they met previous to that time?—A. Yes, many a time.

Q. When?—A. They met a number of times during the time that Mr. Baker was there, in February.

Q. Do you know whether they had discussed the question of organizing Ladysmith then?—A. Yes, I believe they must have, but I have never heard much of the discussion itself.

Q. How do you account for the fact that Mr. Baker left the strike at Fernie, which was in operation at the time your telegram was received, and came to Nanaimo, without having any idea of what he was wanted for? There was a strike at Fernie, which he was managing, and you sent him a telegram saying he was urgently required at Nanaimo, without any further explanation. Is it not strange that he should leave under those circumstances? Had there been any previous correspondence?—A. I could not say.

By Mr. Bodwell:

Q. He probably knew, from what might have been between Mottishaw and Baker, without your knowing?—A. I would not know of the arrangement there might be between them at all.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Did you know where Mr. Baker was, when you telegraphed?—A. The telegram went to Slocan, and was forwarded I suppose; we did not know.

By Mr. Bodwell:

Q. What I cannot understand is, what reason did Mottishaw give you for asking you to send the telegram?—A. The only reason I have already expressed. He is a poor writer, and he asked me to write it. I asked him to write it, and he said he was a poor writer and he would rather I fixed it up.

Q. It might come out afterwards that he had been the one to get Baker here?—A. There might be something in that.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. You acted merely as a friend of Mr. Mottishaw?—A. Yes; I never asked any question. I know, from reports that had passed, that it was proposed to send for Baker, and he dropped into town and asked me to assist him. He asked me if I would do that work for him.

THOMAS J. SHENTON—Vancouver, June 5.
Mr. Bodwell.—He and Mr. Baker must have had an understanding, because Baker came immediately.

By His Lordship:
Q. I think you must feel gratified, Mr. Shenton, that you have had an opportunity of settling yourself right before the public?—A. Yes, I did not do justice to myself the last time I was here. The feeling prevailed, I felt, that there was some connection between these things.

Mr. Bodwell.—I hope Mr. Shenton will understand that I withdraw any suggestion contained in any previous questions of mine, as to the effect of his not giving truthful evidence.

His Lordship.—That will do, Mr. Shenton. You will have the papers back when the Commission is through with them.

Mr. Bird.—I would ask the Commission to have inserted, as paragraph 5a, a memorandum, a copy of which I have handed in, for the purpose of covering the points raised just before the adjournment.

(Statement handed in—5a—as appendix to statement already put in.)

His Lordship.—That will be added.

Mr. Bird.—I just learn that instead of 9 o'clock, as mentioned in the statement, it should be 8.30 in the morning.

Harry Wilson, recalled.

Mr. Bird.—I have just been consulting my learned friends and they desire that I should recall this witness as to the question of overtime, furnishing particulars of which I expect to be able to do by to-morrow morning. We are working at it.

By Mr. Bodwell:
Q. You understand there is an arrangement between the different railway companies by which they will not receive a man discharged for cause?—A. I understand that.

Q. And that when a man is dismissed a clearance is given him containing the cause of dismissal, all over the railway systems?—A. Yes.

Q. Where did you get that opinion?—A. It is just a matter of general knowledge—the fact that I was given a clearance.

Q. The fact of the clearance itself does not prove anything. Where did you get the opinion that this arrangement exists between the different railway companies? What authority have you for that belief?—A. I have no special authority, except the fact that I got a clearance of that nature, and I have a general understanding.

Q. What is the general understanding founded on? Do you know of any fact or circumstances which justifies that general understanding?—A. Yes; the fact that a clerk dismissed from the C. P. R. employ, a member of this Brotherhood applied for a position in Seattle on the Northern Pacific, and I believe was turned down for that reason.

Q. What was the clerk’s name, and where did he come from?—A. His name is—I cannot recollect it.

Q. When did this happen?—A. I think about three weeks ago.

Q. And they asked for his clearance from the C. P. R.?—A. They did.

Q. Who told you that?—A. A friend of the gentleman in question.

Harry Wilson—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. Does the man who told you live in Vancouver?—A. Yes.
Q. What is his name?—A. I could not state his name; I don’t know him intimately; he told me he was a friend.
Q. You didn’t ask for his name?—A. I had no particular curiosity.
Q. Do you know the man to see him?—A. No, I don’t.
Q. Tell me how he came to give you this opinion?—A. I met him here casually and asked him, as I understood he was a friend of this gentleman.
Q. You must be able to tell me the name of the man he was the friend of?—A. I don’t know the gentleman.
Q. How long ago did you have a conversation with his friend?—A. It would be less than three weeks ago.
Q. And you have forgotten since that time the name of the man about whom you were asking the information?—A. I would know it if I heard it; I cannot recollect it.
Q. You knew it three weeks ago, and don’t know it to-day?—A. Yes, that is so.
Q. Did you have any memorandum?—A. No.
Q. Where did you get the information about the man not being able to get employment, because you knew it when you spoke to the friend?—A. No, I didn’t know. I asked him how this gentleman was progressing, and he told me what I have said.
Q. I understand you to say you went to this friend and that you understood he knew the circumstances why this man did not get employment?—A. No, I simply asked about the man because he was a member of the organization.
Q. Are you an officer of the organization?—A. No.
Q. No duty to look after these?—A. No, not necessarily.
Q. So your interest must have been in the man as a friend?—A. Yes.
Q. How long had you known him?—A. Possibly since I joined the organization.
Q. Was he working for the C. P. R.?—A. Yes, in the stores department, I believe.
Q. Where did you meet him—in the lodge?—A. Yes; I did not meet him very often.
Q. What was there about the man that induced you to take an interest in him?—A. Nothing particular.
Q. Why did you ask about his welfare?—A. I don’t know; I knew he had gone to Seattle, and I liked to know what the chances were and how he had succeeded.
Q. How did you know he had gone to Seattle?—A. I heard it casually.
Q. Who told you?—A. I cannot tell who told me.
Q. Did that person who told you he had gone to Seattle know his name?—A. Yes, he mentioned the name, but I have forgotten it.
Q. Who was the man who told you his name?—A. Well, as far as that goes, there were quite a number.

By His Lordship:
Q. Is this a circumstance that was well known to the Brotherhood here?—A. I think it is.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. I could give the name—A. Harriday is the man I refer to.

By Mr. Rodwell:
Q. Harriday is the man who could not get employment at Seattle?—A. Yes.
Q. Had he no clearance?—A. I think not. He gave references as to previous employment, I believe; but he did not have a clearance.
Q. Well, if there is this arrangement between the different railways, how do you account for this man having no clearance?—A. The fact that he was out on strike.
Q. Had he asked for it?—A. He would not get it if he did ask for it.
Q. Why would they not give him a clearance?—A. Well, I can give no reason for that.
Q. Can you give me any reason why a clearance should be refused this man, because a clearance is simply a statement of why he left the employment?—A. Yes, that is so.

Q. Tell me any reason why they should not give a statement saying the real reason he had left?—A. Simply from the fact that he had left on strike.

Q. Could they not give him a clearance saying that?—A. No, I don’t think so.

Q. Is not the real reason that the man who went to Seattle had no references as to previous employment? Is that not the real reason?—A. No, I think not. I think the real reason was that when he referred to his previous employment they asked him where he worked, and he said the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Q. And he said he was on strike?—A. I am not sure about that.

Q. He said he was a member of the U.B.R.E.?—A. I don’t know that.

Q. And they refused to employ him because he was a member of the U.B.R.E., as far as your friend told you?—A. Yes, I should think so.

Q. Assuming, for the purposes of my question, that you are perfectly right—that there is an agreement of this kind between the different roads, the railroads would expect from each other that the real reason why a man left should be stated in the clearance?—A. Yes.

Q. And when you went to get your clearance you could not expect the railway to put any statement in except the right reason?—A. No.

Q. Now, the real reason, as stated here, is ‘Dismissed for publishing without authority incorrect statements damaging to their interests.’ As a matter of fact, you were dismissed?—A. Yes.

Q. And the reason given for your dismissal, that you had published a certain statement in the newspaper?—A. Yes.

Q. Over your own signature, and you published it voluntarily?—A. Yes.

Q. That statement consisted in a denial of certain other statements in the Montreal ‘Star’?—A. Yes.

Q. So the question is, whether the statements in the Montreal ‘Star’ were correct or not?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, here is the item—Exhibit 29—in the Montreal ‘Star’:

‘The strike on the Canadian Pacific steamer Charmer, plying between Vancouver and Victoria, is not considered serious by the officials here. It seems that some few firemen and deckhands, five or six, left the ship at Vancouver with a view of preventing her sailing—.’

You did not know whether that is true or not, as a matter of fact?—A. No.

Q. ‘These men,’ says an official, ‘have no grievance whatever against the company, and simply refused to work to show their sympathy with the clerks whom the company refused to reinstate—’ Is it true that state they had no grievance—is that statement true?—A. I cannot tell you.

Q. As a matter of fact, the Commissioners have had some evidence on that point already. We will take the next statement—

‘However, their desire did not succeed, as the Charmer not only left Vancouver on time, but also reached Victoria on time. These men made no demand for any increase of their wages—.’

Is that statement true?—A. I have no means of knowing.

Q. ‘They are now earning $60 a month and the cost of board, and they are simply acting in this manner to endeavour to compel the company to recognize the union—’ Is that true? Is it true that the men on the Charmer were acting as they did to compel the company to recognize the union?—A. I cannot state of my own knowledge.

Q. ‘Mr. Estes, president of the new organization known as the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, is back of the whole thing—.’ Is that true—that Mr. Estes is back of the whole thing?—A. Would you mind defining ‘back’?

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. How would you define it? Here is the statement:

‘Mr. Estes, president of the new organization known as the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, is back of the whole thing.—’

Now, is that statement true? It is no use to fence with the answer.—A. I would give a qualified yes to that.

Q. What qualification do you put on the word yes?—A. That he was undoubtedly interested in such a procedure, but that he was not the instigator of the action.

Q. The man who would profit by it—the one individual who would reap material benefit from this strike—is Mr. Estes?—A. No, I don’t mean to infer that.

Q. Well, is it not true? Mr. Estes is president of the U.B.?—A. Yes.

Q. He wants to make that a large and powerful organization?—A. I believe so.

Q. In order to do that, it must be recognized by the railway company?—A. Yes, that is so.

Q. The strike here was for recognition?—A. Yes.

Q. And the scheme was to make the Brotherhood 100,000 strong at any rate—that is right, too?—A. Yes, they wished to do that.

Q. So that, if the organization were 100,000 strong and were recognized by the railway companies, Mr. Estes would be a very powerful man, as the head of that organization?—A. Not necessarily.

Q. The strike here was for recognition, and nothing else?—A. You might add to that, leave to organize.

Q. It is all included in the word recognition, and recognition of the union is a great benefit to Mr. Estes, is it not?—A. Do you mean of material benefit?

Q. I should think it would be very material to satisfy the ambition of an ambitious man—that is right—and the salary, too?—A. It is hardly worth mentioning the salary.

Q. One hundred and fifty a month, though?—A. I don’t think he has drawn that.

Q. Don’t you think it is a very satisfying thing to an ambitious man to have his organization recognized by an institution like the C.P.R.?—A. Yes, I should think it would be.

Q. Can you tell me any corresponding benefit that would ensue to you as a member of that Brotherhood—by the fact of its recognition here?—A. Well, yes, I think I could.

Q. Did you expect that it would get you greater wages than you had before?—A. I thought it might help to that end.

Q. Are we to understand that the next step, after recognition, on the part of the organization, was to be a demand for increased pay?—A. No, not the next step.

Q. So that was not before the Brotherhood at the time they struck?—A. No.

Q. Well, for shorter hours?—A. No.

Q. Well, pay for overtime?—A. Not at that time.

Q. Did they intend to compel the C.P.R. to make any change in their discipline?—A. I think not.

Q. Tell me what benefit there was accruing to the members of the organization from the strike here?—A. The power and freedom to organize the entire system.

Q. Has the C.P.R. ever refused class organization among its employees?—A. They did in the present instance.

Q. Has the C.P.R. ever refused to recognize a union formed among its different employees—class unions?—A. Yes, the trackmen’s union.

Q. Do I understand you to say that the trackmen’s organization is not recognized by the C.P.R.?—A. No, you don’t.

Q. Under what circumstances was it that the C.P.R. refused to recognize their union?—A. Under the circumstances that the trackmen wanted a schedule of wages.

Q. But the trackmen didn’t have a union composing the majority of their body?—A. I think so.

HARRY WILSON, Vancouver, June 5.
Q. Well, you are mistaken. That is the only instance you know?—A. It is only from hearsay. Take the O.R.T.—Order of Railroad Telegraphers—on this C.P.R. system.

Q. Did they have a union comprising the majority of the telegraph operators on the line?—A. I think so.

Q. Where did you get that information?—A. Well, from no special source.

Q. How long have you been working for the C.P.R.?—A. Seven years altogether—three continuously.

Q. At that time, did the C.P.R. refuse to recognize a union of the class to which you belonged?—A. No.

Q. I ask you if during the period you were working for the C.P.R. they had refused to recognize a union of the class to which you belonged?—A. Yes, just previous to the time I was dismissed—not otherwise.

Q. So you had no reason to believe that if the employees of your class desired to organize and got a majority of the members that the C.P.R. would refuse them?—A. No, I had no reason to believe that.

Q. I am still at a loss to know what material benefit was to accrue to you from the organization of the U.B.R.E.?—A. I have told you already.

Q. Simply they could be allowed to have that organization?—A. Yes.

Q. And you thought that was better than any other organization?—A. That was the only organization I could have belonged to.

Q. Was it not possible to have organized the class to which you belonged as a separate union?—A. It might be possible.

Q. Well now, there is no use going any further with that. The statement here is that:

'Mr. Estes is back of the whole thing, but will not succeed any better in the future than he has in the past. The service has not been greatly affected so far—'

Is that statement true?—A. I think not.

Q. To what extent can you tell us about the service being affected? The statement is that the service of the C.P.R.—and I suppose it may mean service only on the steamer Charmer—has not been greatly affected so far. Was that statement true? That the service had not been greatly affected up to that?—A. No, I don't think it is. The freight service, for instance, has been affected to some extent.

Q. We have had the evidence of a merchant in Vancouver who said he did not think business was affected at all?—A. I think he was speaking of his own business.

Q. Tell us how you think freight was delayed?—A. The fact that freight was being delayed on route and also undelivered.

Q. What information on that point did you have when you made your statement?—A. General information—newspaper information.

Q. From what newspaper did you get the information—from the U.B.R.E. journal?—A. No, I was not in receipt of it at that time. I think the Montreal Gazette was one, the 'Herald' and some others.

Q. And you undertook to contradict this statement on what you saw in the newspapers?—A. No, I didn't.

Q. Well, tell us what information you had to contradict that statement in the newspaper. This is what you say—Exhibit 40—

'We are glad to be able to state that there is no truth whatever in the report quoted, and that not a single item enumerated has any foundation in fact.'

—A. Will you repeat the report that we quoted?

Q. 'In the issue of the daily Star,' on Wednesday, March 18, some prominence was given to a report purporting to come from Vancouver, stating that a number of the striking members of the United Brotherhood were returning to work at that place, also that a number of others desirous of doing so could not, from the fact that the railway company refused them re-employment.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

' We are glad to be able to state that there is no truth whatever in the report quoted, and that not a single item enumerated has any foundation in fact. Emphatic denial has been received from the executive committee of the Brotherhood in Vancouver, and it is entirely with a view of removing any false impression created by this report at the present status of the strike that we desire you to give publicity to this denial.'

—A. Yes, that report that we quote.

Q. You want to limit it now to that portion of the report which related to the employees returning. Why did you write that not a single item in the report was true?—A. There is more than one item.

Q. Do you think that it was necessary to say 'not a single item' of that report?

—A. Yes, that is the way it struck me at the time.

Q. Here you have a report in the Montreal 'Star.'

'Some prominence is given to a report purporting to come from Vancouver, stating that a number of the striking members of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees were returning to work at that place, also that a number of others desirous of doing so, could not, from the fact that the railway company refused them re-employment. We are glad to be able to state that there is no truth whatever in the report quoted—'

That plainly refers to the men?—A. Yes.

Q. Why could you say that not a single item enumerated has any foundation in fact?—A. There was more than one item quoted.

Q. No, I don't think so.

Mr. Rowe.—Is that extract from the 'Star' of March 18?

Mr. Bodwell.—Yes, Wednesday, March 18.

Q. I don't think your explanation will be borne out by the document. Listen to it again—A. I have it off by heart.

Q. Do you say, when you refer to a report containing about half-a-dozen items, when you say that not a single item of that report has no foundation in fact, that you do not mean what you say?—A. No, I meant exactly what I said.

Q. Give me a reason for putting in that additional statement?—A. The fact that it was an item to contradict. It was not intended to contradict everything in the report quoted.

Q. You won't admit it meant that not a single item had any foundation?—A. The report quoted.

Q. And you contradicted part of it expressly, and part of it generally—is that not so?—A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Did you draw that letter up yourself?—A. I did.

Q. And settled it with the other men before you signed it?—A. Yes, he perused it.

Q. And you did not want the people in Montreal to believe that the men on the Charmer had not struck work for a good cause?—A. I did not want the people to believe any more than what we contradicted—the report quoted.

Q. What an unfortunate man you are, not being able to express yourself in better language?—A. It is too bad.

Q. Who asked you to put that letter in?—A. The acting agent in Vancouver at that time—Gurnham.

Q. In what way did he make the request?—A. He telegraphed.

Q. Have you the telegram?—A. I have.

Q. Will you produce it?—A. Yes.

(Telegram produced and read—Exhibit 48.)

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
To H. Wilson,
76 Mackay St.

From Vancouver, B.C., Mar. 18.

'Deny report emphatically; all firm and fight going in our favour.
(Sgd.) S. Garnham.'

Q. Did you telegraph to him?—A. Yes, for confirmation of the report.
Q. That is what you telegraphed to him?—A. No, that is the reply—in response to the telegram I sent.
Q. From whom did Mr. Garnham take his instructions?—A. I understand, from the executive committee.
Q. How is the executive committee formed? Do you know anything about that?
—A. I think I could give you a little information.
Q. By the executive committee you mean the headquarters committee?—A. Yes.
Q. How was the headquarters committee formed?—A. It was formed by a member in good standing who represented different divisions or departments of the railway service—a man from each department, say—representing each individual department.
Q. Were there not on that headquarters committee representatives from the other striking unions?—A. Yes.
Q. Do you know how many compose the headquarters committee?—A. I could not tell you.
Q. Can you tell me what proportion the U.B.R.E. had, as compared with the other unions? How many came from the Brotherhood on that headquarters committee?—A.
I am not certain, but I think two.
Q. How many from the Longshoremen's?—A. Only one.
Q. How many from the Steamship's Union?—A. One, I think.
Q. And those were all the unions represented, were they not?—A. No, I think not.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. The Teamsters' Union—one from that?—A. I believe so.

By His Lordship:
Q. Two from the Brotherhood, one from each of the others acted on the committee?—A. I believe so.

By Mr. Bodwell:
Q. Who was president of the committee?—A. The chairman would be—I am not certain who was acting at that time; I was not here.
Mr. Bodwell.—Mr. Bird says these numbers are not correct. We will have to get that from somebody else. I won't take any time over that.
Mr. Bird.—I just produce to my learned friend a telegram which I asked him to produce this morning. It is the original, which this witness had in his possession and handed to me.

His Lordship.—The theory is, Mr. Bird, that you have no papers—that they are all in the possession of the Commission.
Mr. Bird.—Well, all in the possession of the executive have been before the Com-mision, but this witness had this in his pocket, and handed it to me to hand to the Commissioners, and that my learned friend might have the benefit of the cross-examination.

(Exhibit 47.)

By Mr. Bodwell:
Q. Now, you say you were told after you got to Montreal that the reason you were brought there was to keep you out of trouble?—A. One of the officials said that to me.

Harry Wilson—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. You left here on the 25th?—A. Yes.
Q. The strike took place on the 25th?—A. So I believe.
Q. So, if you had stayed here until the 27th, you would have been out on strike?
—A. Very likely.
Q. Or else in trouble with the union?—A. Naturally.
Q. So you would have been in trouble either way?—A. I suppose so.
Q. Now, you don’t want—seriously—the Commissioners to believe that it was a hardship to ask you to leave on two hours’ notice?—A. Yes, it was, for the reason that I was told, and fully believed at the time, that I was leaving here for good; and you can understand that after three years’ connection with this place I would have various things to attend to. Two hours is a short time.
Q. Yes, but the service requires it?—A. Well, they usually give him a little longer than that.
Q. Well, what was in that telegram that you spoke of this morning?—A. As nearly as I can remember, it read: ‘Send Wilson east at once; have permanent position here for him; will write you reasons for change—’ something to that effect.
Q. What makes you think it said they would have a permanent position; what put that in your mind?—A. Well, if the message didn’t state it, the chief did.
Q. The man who told you when you got to Montreal?—A. Yes, and here before I left.
Q. This is the telegram, is it not (exhibiting document)?—A. Yes, that is it.
Q. There is nothing there about ‘reasons later’ or ‘permanent position’?—A. Permanent is not mentioned, nor reasons.
Q. ‘Owing to change in staff I have position here for Wilson. Would like you to send him east at once. Will send good man Thursday to replace. Answer.’

That is the telegram?—A. Yes.
Q. Have you reason to believe that you would not have a permanent position if you had kept out of the papers?—A. Only the statement of the official of the company.
Q. Here are the facts—you were sent for to go to Montreal?—A. Yes.
Q. You arrived there and reported to the proper officer. Who was the man who spoke about the Brotherhood?—A. Mr. Cantlie.
Q. He talked about that in a friendly manner?—A. Yes.
Q. He said it was in your interest?—A. Yes.
Q. But he didn’t say that they would not employ you?—A. No.
Q. And as a matter of fact, although this conversation was going on over several days they did employ you—gave you a position?—A. They gave me no position—they gave me work.
Q. Within five days after your arrival?—A. Yes.
Q. And you were paid for the five days while you were there and doing nothing?—A. Yes.
Q. And you were charged nothing to go to Montreal?—A. No.
Q. So the position is they sent for you to go to Montreal. Mr. Cantlie was a friend of yours besides being an official of the company?—A. Well, yes, I would regard it that he had a friendly interest in my welfare. I never met him outside of the office.
Q. You did not think he intended to be unfriendly when he advised you to go out of the Brotherhood?—A. No.
Q. But nevertheless you were taken into service and no conditions made that you should leave the Brotherhood?—A. No, nothing stipulated.
Q. So your position was as good, as far as salary was concerned, as the one you left?—A. Yes.

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. Would not the same money be worth more in the east than in Vancouver?—

A. There is very little difference.

Q. The cost of living is not as much in Montreal?—A. It cost me as much.

Q. Your family and your home is in Montreal?—A. Yes.

Q. Now then, don't you think there is something in that statement that they took you away at the time that you were going to get into the strike—took you to Montreal and give you a good position?—A. They didn't give me a good position.

Q. It was as good as far as money was concerned as here, and you were living at your own home?—A. There was nothing assured. No satisfactory conclusion was arrived at. I was told to work there temporarily.

Q. Did they say temporarily?—A. They did.

Q. They said to work in that position until they could give you something better?—A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Why did you say temporarily?—A. In that position temporarily.

Q. Yes, until a better one could be given you?—A. A better position was understood, but it was never stated that I could get it.

Q. At that time you had every reason to believe you were taken from Vancouver to Montreal to get a position there as good as the one here?—A. That is correct.

Q. And in addition to that you were with your own home?—A. Yes.

Q. And away from the influence of Estes and the combination surrounding him?—A. I don't know that Mr. Estes or a combination around him had any influence upon me.

Q. Is there not some justification for the statement that they took you away to keep you out of trouble?—A. You mean a friendly interest would justify them doing that.

Q. Do you think that under these circumstances discipline could be maintained if you, being in the position you were, rushed voluntarily into print, writing letters to the papers with reference to a strike with which you had no interest and occurring three thousand miles away?—A. No, had I had no interest.

Q. Well, we will leave that out. Don't you think the company could assume that you were employed inadvisedly?—A. No, I don't think so.

Q. And that it was detrimental to the service to permit a man to do that sort of thing?—A. No, not under the conditions.

Q. The conditions were these: that you had been removed to Montreal; that you had a good position, and that you had no reason whatever, from the company's point of view, for interfering with the position here. You are not an officer of the Brotherhood?—A. I am a member.

Q. But they had no local lodge in Montreal at that time?—A. No.

Q. And you knew the company were opposed to the Brotherhood?—A. Yes, perfectly well.

Q. And would not favour the inauguration of that society then?—A. I knew that also.

Q. Suppose you were an employer and the men treated you in the way you treated them, what do you think you would do?—A. It is very difficult to say.

Q. Of course it is, for the boot is on the other foot. Suppose you had several thousand of men among whom you had to maintain discipline—how do you think you would act?—A. I certainly would not regard it as a breach of discipline.

Q. Why?—A. For the reason that in the statement we made there was no wish or intention to bring the railway company into it. It was merely a contradiction of a press despatch.

Q. Don't you think that loyalty to the service is one part of discipline?—A. Yes, I think so.

Q. And do you think a man could be loyal to the service and do the things you were doing?—A. Yes, I think so.

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. You don't think it was detrimental to the company's service to do what you did?—A. No, not to any extent.

Q. To any extent at all? Was it in any sense detrimental to the company's interest to do what you did?—(No answer.)

Q. Well, suppose the company honestly thought it was detrimental to their service, do you think they should retain you there?—A. Yes, I think so.

Q. I say, suppose the company thought that your action was detrimental to the service, should they keep you employed?—A. Not if it was detrimental to the service.

Q. Not if they thought it was?—A. Well, they think a good many things.

Q. Suppose the management bona fide came to the conclusion that your action was detrimental to the service, what ought they to do?—A. Well, if they came to that conclusion, I should say they took the proper course.

Q. You were taking the whole risk of the company coming to that conclusion when you wrote that letter to the paper?—A. I did not consider there was any risk attached.

Q. Should you not have considered it, because the company were the persons to judge whether it was detrimental or not—that is right?—A. Yes.

Q. No one asked you to write the letter?—A. Yes.

Q. Well, the executive here asked you. Did you think your duty to the executive was greater than that to the company?—A. I did at that time.

Q. What do you think now? You are in the company's service and the Brotherhood requires an act of you which the company may think detrimental to the service. Is your loyalty to the Brotherhood greater than your loyalty to the company?—A. Under the same circumstances?

Q. I mean the same circumstances—that you are in the employ of the C. P. R. and that the U.B.R.E. make a demand which the company may take as detrimental to the service—to which organization are you going to be loyal?—A. Under the same circumstances I would be loyal to the organization.

Q. Then, can you object if the company turn you out of employment?—A. I can object to the manner they did it.

Q. How can you? You prefer the organization to the company and the company prefer some other man to you—what complaint have you got?—A. You are speaking very broadly when you say I prefer the organization. You mean probably with the company in their treatment of me.

Q. Well, I put you in this position: you are in the service of the C. P. R.; the U. B. R. E. make a demand on you to perform an act which the company may think detrimental to their service. You have got to choose between loyalty to the company and loyalty to the service right through?—A. Yes.

Q. Under these circumstances that I have stated you choose the organization?—A. Yes.

Q. Why can you complain if the company do not choose to employ you?—A. I have no complaint to make except with regard—

Q. You were a member of the Brotherhood, and the executive asked you to contradict a certain statement. They meant in the paper, didn't they?—A. They did not state, but I understood it that way.

Q. Had you no reason to believe that the company would object to your writing letters to the paper about this strike of the U. B. R. E.?—A. Well, no, I had no reason to believe they would object.

Q. Did you think they would approve of it?—A. No, naturally.

Q. Then, why did you do it?—A. I didn't do it subject to their approval.

Q. You did it because you thought your first duty was to the organization, didn't you?—A. Yes, I did.

Q. Do you understand then that the oath which you take when you join the U.B.R.E. compels you to take that position when the emergency arises?—A. Well, I have not given that consideration.
Q. Do you consider that the obligation which the oath of the membership places on you compels you to take that position when the emergency arises?—A. When the emergency arises, yes.

Q. Do you think that an organization of that kind is one that should be incorporated?—A. I see no reason why it should be discouraged.

Q. You see no reason why the organization should not act in this way?—A. In emergencies, yes; but you must admit there is a certain fault in the railway company in allowing the emergency to arise.

Q. What would you call an emergency?—A. The present state of affairs—previous to the lock-out.

Q. And in such a trivial thing as that the company is to be set aside for the interests of the Brotherhood?—A. I did not consider it trivial.

Q. That a common telegraphic despatch in the newspapers should go unanswered?—Not at that time.

Q. Are we to understand that you represent, in your way of looking at things, the opinions of the majority of the persons in the U.B.R.E.?—A. I could not tell you that.

Q. Would you, for instance, say that Mr. Brooke in the same position would have done the same as you did?—A. I don’t know I am sure.

Q. What do you think? Is that the principle which is inculcated in the lodge?
—A. Loyalty to the organization, yes.

Q. And loyalty to the organization first, and loyalty to the employers second?—A. Well, I could not express an opinion which one comes first.

Q. But you have given us an opinion as far as you are concerned. We will leave that to be argued by somebody else. I cannot take all day, much as I would like to. Did you form one of a deputation which waited on Mr. McNicholl in April in reference to the U.B.R.E.?—A. Yes.

Q. At that time was there a local lodge in Montreal?—A. No.

Q. From whom did you get your instructions to go?—A. From the executive, I believe.

Q. Did you get it by wire?—A. I didn’t.

Q. Who got the instructions?—A. Our agent, Mr. Halton.

Q. Who got the instructions here?—A. He got it from here—he was in Montreal at the time.

Q. Did you see the telegram?—A. No.

Q. Can you tell the date?—A. No.

Mr. Davis.—We wish that produced.

Mr. Bird.—I believe it is not in existence. It was over the C.P.R. wires.

Witness.—The date might be about March 11; it was signed by members of the organization.

By Mr. Bodwell:

Q. Would they act on their own initiative in demanding recognition of the Brotherhood in Montreal?—A. No.

Q. These instructions would come from the president?—A. I think so.

Q. And you know that Mr. Estes gave the order under which you ultimately acted?—A. No, I didn’t know.

Q. He must have given the instructions to the executive here?—A. Very likely.

Q. The demand you made was for recognition of the order in Montreal?—A. We made the demand in Montreal.

Q. Mr. Marpole could not recognize them until they were recognized in Montreal—that was said?—A. I believe so.

Q. You were one of a committee that waited on Mr. Marpole some time about January 10?—A. I was on a committee appointed by the local lodge.

Q. With reference to the ease of Mr. Halton and Miss Code?—A. That is correct.

Harry Wilson—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. How did the case of Mr. Halton come up in the lodge. Who brought that forward?—A. If I remember correctly, he reported the action of the company to the lodge.

Q. You say Mr. Halton reported the circumstances to the lodge—to the whole body of the lodge or to the executive?—A. To the lodge, I think.

Q. What did Mr. Halton say as to the fact—what statement of fact did he give you?—A. I cannot recall the exact words he used.

Q. Did he tell you that he had requested leave to stay at home on the ground that he was sick, and had gone to Seattle without leave on his own business?—A. No, I think not.

Q. Well, he did not tell you that?—A. I don't know exactly what he stated.

Q. If he had stated that he went to his superior officer and got leave of absence on the excuse that he was sick and had used that leave of absence for the purpose of making a trip on his own business, and had been dismissed on his own account, would the lodge consider it a grievance?—A. I am not prepared to tell you the view of the lodge.

Q. What would you yourself have done? Would you think he had cause for complaint? I am asking you what your opinion would be as an individual?—A. Well, I would think that the penalty was a little too harsh for the offence.

Q. You would admit that Mr. Halton had committed an offence, and the only thing would be whether the punishment was not too great?—A. I didn't say he had committed an offence.

Q. Well, you said you thought the punishment was too great for the offence?—A. Yes.

Q. That must mean that an offence had been committed?—A. Well, that follows naturally if I had stated there was an offence committed.

Q. I ask whether you think in that case Mr. Halton would have a legitimate ground of complaint?—A. Yes, he would.

Q. And you said you thought the punishment was too great for the offence. You think he would have cause for complaint on the ground that the punishment was more than he deserved?—A. Yes.

Q. That implies that there was an offence?—A. Not necessarily.

Q. Will you say he did not commit anything for which he should have been punished at all?—A. That is my opinion.

Q. Your opinion of the duty of an employee to his employer is that he has liberty to deceive him for his own purposes?—A. I am not aware that he did deceive his employer.

Q. But the statement—?—A. You are making the statement, you know.

Q. I am putting the case that Mr. Halton went to his superior officer and said he would like to remain at home because he was sick. He got leave of absence on that ground and used that leave of absence for the purpose of going to Seattle on other business?—A. Yes.

Q. I am asking you if that is not an offence from the employer's point of view?—A. I never looked at it from the employer's point of view.

Q. Well, I want you to look at it that way. Do you consider that man was doing the right thing?—A. I don't consider the man was doing anything wrong.

Mr. Rowe.—Was the man really sick?

Mr. Davis.—He went to Seattle.

By Mr. Bodwell:

Q. The position is this, that he made the excuse that he was sick for the purpose of getting time to go to Seattle—

(Mr. Bird objects—overruled.)

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. I suggest to you the case that the man, for the purpose of getting time to attend to his own affairs, goes to his employers and gets leave of absence on the ground that he is sick. I ask you if that is right, in your opinion?—A. If it were proven as an absolute fact that the circumstances were exactly as you state, I should say that it was not exactly right.

Q. Supposing, then, believing that state of facts to be true, the employer suspended the employee, do you think it is right to demand that he be taken back without an investigation of the facts?—A. No, there should be an investigation.

Q. Then, why did you demand that Mr. Halton should be reinstated without investigation?—A. Because I did not believe the facts were as you state.

Q. You say you believe in an investigation?—A. If the facts were as you state.

Q. Why did you demand reinstatement without investigation?—A. You are asking me to state definitely what action I would take in an entirely suppositional case.

Q. Here is the demand. I put you the question why did you demand Mr. Halton's reinstatement without investigation?—A. I told you because I had reason to think the facts were not as you stated them.

Q. Do you know?—A. I had reason to believe.

Q. Then what use was there of investigating?—A. I don't know that there was any at all.

Q. How do you know there was nothing to investigate?—A. From what I know of the facts of the case.

Q. What do you know of the facts of the case? Did you have anything beyond Mr. Halton's statement?—A. No, I had nothing but my own statement.

Q. Then you did not have Mr. Halton's statement?—A. We had it in the general lodge room.

Q. You mean what he said in the lodge? What did he say in the lodge?—A. I told you before, I was not in a position to exactly state. I am not certain, as I was not at the lodge meeting.

Q. Then you had no statement at all of the facts?—A. I had the statement drawn up in the agreement, I think.

Q. In the letter to Mr. Marpole you mean, but I am asking you what evidence you had of the real facts of the case?—A. We had Mr. Halton's statement.

Q. But you had not heard it?—A. Well, it was put to the lodge.

Q. You had not heard the statement at all?—A. I am not sure that I did hear it, I don't think I did. I don't think I did, from his lips.

Q. As far as you were personally concerned you had no real knowledge of the fact?—A. Yes, I did.

Q. You had no evidence—you had no statement from anybody?—A. Yes, we had a statement. The question was discussed.

Q. But you were not there?—A. I was there when it was discussed by the committee.

Q. Then what knowledge did you have of the facts?—A. From the facts that I was present at the discussion.

Q. I suppose at that discussion they stated what the facts were?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, what did they say?—A. As nearly as I remember, the facts were that Mr. Halton had applied for leave of absence, and had, during his leave of absence, taken a trip to Seattle, and that the company had dismissed him for, as he stated, being absent without leave.

Q. There was no investigation or statement as to why or on what ground he got leave of absence?—A. I cannot remember that any definite reason was given for obtaining his leave of absence.

Q. And it never occurred to you that there might be a ground upon which he had obtained his leave of absence? Now, what did Mr. Marpole say? Did he not tell you his side of the story?—A. No, he refused to discuss it at that time. He said if we intended to come before him as a committee of employees and so on he would discuss the question and give his reasons.

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 8.

Q. Then you refused to appear before him as a committee except as a committee of the U.B.R.E.—A. Except as a committee of the employees.

Q. And you demanded from Mr. Marpole that he should reinstate Mr. Halton, and that he should do it on your request acting together and as a committee of the U.B.R.E.?—A. That is about the size of it.

Q. Without any actual reference to the condition of the affair?—A. Oh, no.

Q. You have just said that Mr. Marpole would discuss the position if you would appear before him as a committee of your own men?—A. Yes.

Q. So the fact is you demanded Mr. Halton’s reinstatement without any discussion?—A. No, we certainly wanted a discussion if we could get it.

Q. You demanded that he should discuss it with you as a committee of the Brotherhood?—A. We requested that.

Q. You demanded it?—A. Oh, I don’t know.

Q. You demanded that Mr. Halton be reinstated immediately?—A. If my memory serves me correctly there was a clause in that which allowed investigation or discussion. I think there was.

Q. Why did you say that the reasons given in the case of Mr. Halton and Miss Code were not adequate?—A. Because we considered them in that light.

Q. ‘It is the firm belief of our membership at large that the Company’s action in the cases quoted are really because the parties mentioned are members of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, and to prevent any further trouble in the matter we beg to request that Mr. Halton be reinstated and that Miss Code be also reinstated—’

You also requested a statement. What did you tell Mr. Marpole would be the result of refusing?—A. I am not aware that we told him what action would be taken in the face of refusal.

Q. Didn’t you give him reason to know that if that request were refused the staff would strike?—A. We made no statement of that kind.

Q. Was Mr. Marpole willing to reinstate Mr. Halton?—A. Evidently so.

Q. Why then did he say, you are holding a pistol at my head?—A. I cannot tell you that he said that.

Q. Your idea would be the same way that a man would give up his purse to a highwayman? Is that the kind of willingness?—A. From outward appearances, yes.

Q. Don’t you think that Mr. Marpole knew that if he refused the staff would strike?—A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. How did he act. Like a man who had that impression?—A. Yes, I should say he did.

Q. And was it not as a matter of fact decided in the lodge the night before you made that request that if the request was refused the staff would strike?—A. No, I am not certain that it had been definitely decided.

Q. Had it not been practically decided?—A. No, I cannot admit that.

Q. What did you intend to do after the demand?—A. That would come up for discussion later.

Q. Will you swear that it was not decided, if not formally, practically, to strike, if Mr. Marpole refused. Was it not practically decided—A. I am trying to think. I am not certain one way or the other.

Q. Was it not understood that this was a demand, when you went there, on which you were going to take a firm stand?—A. We certainly intended to take a firm stand.

Q. If Mr. Marpole refused, didn’t you intend to strike?—A. I cannot say that definitely.

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. Is it not a fact that Wilkinson who didn’t happen to know the result of the meeting actually—did strike that day? He didn’t know that Marpole had decided to take Halton back. Ever hear about that?—A. No.
Q. Would you be surprised to know that that was a fact?—A. Yes, I would be; it is the first I have heard of it.
Q. Was Wilkinson present at the interview you had with Mr. Marpole?—A. No, I think not.
Q. What would you have done if Mr. Marpole had refused to take Halton back?—A. I cannot tell you.
Q. Did you have any intention at the time?—A. No, no decided intention.
Q. In what way did you know that Mr. Marpole was willing to take Halton back—you thought that?—A. Yes.
Q. In what way did you propose to enforce your demand if Mr. Marpole refused?—A. That would have been decided later.
Q. Do you mean to say you had not discussed it and thought of it before you went to Mr. Marpole’s office?—A. I certainly had not discussed it to any great extent.
Q. Can you tell me any way in which you could enforce your demand without a strike if it had been refused. It must have been give up or a strike?—A. Yes. I don’t know—
Q. Is it not a fact that just about that time the Empress steamer was due?—A. Yes, I believe she was.
Q. And that there were other conditions in the service which practically made it impossible for Mr. Marpole to dispense with the staff?—A. I don’t know that there was.
Q. Mr. Marpole was about to go to Montreal?—A. Yes, I heard that.
Q. Do you think he could let the whole staff go and still make this journey?—A. I didn’t think of the question at all at that time with regard to that particular point.
Q. Were any of these circumstances discussed, or some of them, before you went to Mr. Marpole’s office?—A. Yes.
Q. And they were known to the committee, some of them, at any rate?
Q. Mr. Marpole acted as if his mind was on that same subject?—A. Oh, well, I cannot tell you—
Q. And that he was practically forced to take Mr. Halton back against his own will?—A. He gave us to understand that.
Q. He said, ‘You are holding a pistol to my head?’—A. Yes, words to that effect.
Q. Did you think Mr. Marpole would have acted as he did if he had not thought he had some good reason for dismissing Halton?—A. Well, that I cannot say.
Q. I am asking you what you think. You have known Mr. Marpole for a good many years?—A. I know very little about Mr. Marpole.
Q. You know him as head of the service?—A. Yes.
Q. Do you think, or did you think, that Mr. Marpole would show that unwillingness to take Halton back if he had not thought there was a good reason for dispensing with his services?—A. Yes, I would think so.
Q. Why?—A. Well, I might have thought that he had reasons against taking him back for the reason that he was a member of the U.B.R.E.
Q. I am asking if you don’t think that he thought he had a good reason?—A. That is getting a long way off.
Q. That is an awkward way of putting it, but you know what I mean?

By His Lordship:
Q. Did you think he was acting bona fide in the matter?—A. Yes, I think he was.

By Mr. Bodwell:
Q. In your opinion, do you think a union has a right to force an employer the service of a man whom he bona fide thinks it is not in his interest to employ?—A. HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Well, I should think it would be necessary for the employer to state his reasons against employing him.

Q. But you did not give him any chance?—A. No.

Q. You said Mr. Marpole would discuss the question with you if you came to him as a committee of his men—that is right?—A. Yes.

Q. You said you would not appear in that capacity?—A. Yes, we told him we could not.

Q. And that he must reinstate Mr. Halton. That is written, so there is no question about that. So you told him to reinstate a man whom you say you think he bona fide objected to having. Now, do you consider that a union has the right to force upon an employer the service of a man whom he bona fide does not wish to have in his employment?—A. If the employer could give a good reason, I think not—a satisfactory reason.

Q. Do you mean a reason that is satisfactory to the union?—A. Certainly, in a case like that.

Q. So the only person to judge is the union—the employer has no voice at all?—A. Oh, yes, he has.

Q. I am giving you the case of an employer who has what seems to him to be a good reason for not wishing to employ a man. You tell me he has no right to force that upon him unless it is satisfactory to the union. Therefore, it is true that the principle of unionism is that the employer must take every man into service whom the union thinks he should take? That is right?—A. I would not put it as broadly as that.

Q. Where are you going to draw the line?—A. Well, you must admit that men on the union side are liable to be as fair-minded and impartial as an employer.

Q. Suppose I do admit that. You must admit that the employer is liable to be as fair-minded and impartial as the union?—A. Yes.

Q. Yet you say his reason may not be satisfactory to the union?—A. In a case of that kind, yes.

Q. Therefore, the employer has no voice in the matter at all?—A. Yes, he has considerable.

Q. His voice is only this: that he can persuade the union, if he has a good reason, but he has no capacity to act as judge?—A. Just as much as the other side.

Q. You say you have a right to force a man upon an employer, a man he does not want to employ, unless his reason satisfies the union?—A. Yes.

Q. And he can only argue the question?—A. Well, the union is in exactly the same position.

Q. Is that not the exact position that this union took in reference to the case of Mr. Halton?—A. They hardly arrived at that situation.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. That is, the union objected to the dismissal of its members for cause?—A. Not for satisfactory cause.

Q. I thought it was only when the dismissal had some connection with the person's membership in the union. Was it on account of this man's membership in the union?—A. Yes, that was considered a part of the reason.

By His Lordship:

Q. Why did you not give an opportunity to the management to investigate the matter?—A. Well, the opportunity was not discussed. They arrived at a satisfactory conclusion.

Q. The trouble appears to me that the union heard only one side of the story?—A. Mr. Marpole evidently, under the existing circumstances, was not prepared to give his side of the question!

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
Q. Certainly, I think it would have looked better if you had offered the management an opportunity of investigating before you threatened to strike.—A. We offered them opportunity.

Q. You didn't by that letter?—A. We did on the discussion following on the delivery of the letter.

His Lordship.—On the other hand, I don't see how you make out that this man was justly dismissed for sending this letter to the paper.

Mr. Bodwell.—That is a question of argument. Suppose that is not borne out by the facts. The company may reasonably object to any of their employees writing about the strike.

His Lordship.—It seems to me that what took place was this: that there was a press despatch sent to Vancouver to the effect that some reporter had a conversation with some official and they sent out what that conversation was. That official may have had no authority to make any such statement. These people are simply stating in a Montreal paper the position taken by their order.

Mr. Bodwell.—Suppose the officials read it the same way I did, without Mr. Wilson's explanation?

His Lordship.—But this is a statement over the signature of Wilson and Dick that this statement is denied by the Brotherhood in Vancouver.

Mr. Bodwell.—They pledged themselves to it.

His Lordship.—They say 'emphatic denial has been received.'

Mr. Bodwell.—They say that the thing is not true.

His Lordship.—They say that because of this reason.

Mr. Bodwell.—They undertook to be responsible for the statement from Vancouver.

His Lordship.—Suppose the company had rightly considered that there was a breach of discipline, it seems to me, having regard to what we heard here, that employees of railways when they go to other roads, are asked for their previous whereabouts and what they have been doing in previous years, and are asked for a certificate of this sort, it seems to me only justice to the man to state exactly what took place. By reading this certificate any man might get the impression that he was betraying the secrets of the company and therefore rightly dismissed. If they turn a man loose with a clearance of this sort they should state what had been printed in the papers and let people judge for themselves.

Mr. Bodwell.—Well, Wilson could have requested that at any rate.

Witness.—I had no way of knowing that they would grant the request.

His Lordship.—It is a stiff thing to have that in any way. If you had that presented to yourself you would naturally get the suspicion that this man was betraying the secrets of the company.

Mr. Bodwell.—I don't think I would. It is a serious thing to say that the company should be condemned for doing what they did in their own interest, and to say they were wrong because a statement which Mr. Wilson could have put on it was not put on it.

His Lordship.—There is a statement which had no imprint of authority at all. He may have had no authority to make that statement, and these people told the people in Montreal their side of the story.

Mr. Bodwell.—Mr. Wilson goes into print to contradict a statement which might have been made by the company. Suppose the report is really true and that was an official statement given out for the purpose of informing the public; would you consider it a breach of discipline for an employee to go into the case?

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

His Lordship.—I am discussing the cause of the dismissal of this man. It is brought before us as one of the reasons for which the men want a union, and this is given in evidence in support of that view.

Mr. Bodwell.—Your Lordship is assuming that this statement is not an official statement.

His Lordship.—There is no authority for it. It is simply a newspaper statement.

Mr. Bodwell.—Suppose it was an official statement given out by way of an interview? What right has Mr. Wilson to assume that it is not?

His Lordship.—By what right does the company prevent him from informing people in Montreal? One would think the company had the sole right of access to the newspapers.

Mr. Bodwell.—Have not the company the right to say their employees should not go into the papers to contradict that statement?

His Lordship.—I don’t think a man should be turned loose with ambiguous statements of that sort, especially if it hurts him in getting another job. They might have printed the full statement.

Mr. Bodwell.—Did Mr. Wilson request it?

His Lordship.—I think they could have done it without a request.

Mr. Bodwell.—Mr. Wilson should have pointed out the matter. And then, if the company had refused, there might have been some cause for complaint, but apparently that has not seriously affected Mr. Wilson. As a matter of fact these clearances only refer to different parts of the company’s work. When a man leaves Halifax and comes to Vancouver that shows that he left the other appointment. It is only prima facie evidence, and the evidence can be substantiated.

His Lordship.—On the other hand, Mr. Wilson, I don’t think you were at all justified in going to these people and saying they had to keep this man in a position whether they like it or not. I think you should have given them opportunity for investigation.

Witness.—The opportunity was offered.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. When you say that Mr. Marpole was acting bona fide in stating he had reasonable cause for suspending Mr. Halton, or dismissing Mr. Halton, you mean to say in making that statement Mr. Marpole gave you the real reason?—A. No.

Q. That letter you think correctly states the reason for dismissing Halton—that he was a member of the U.B.R.E.?—A. I think it does.

Q. And that was the solid truth behind the statement of Mr. Marpole?—A. I thought so at the time.

Q. What would you now say?—A. I have not changed my opinion.

Q. You mean to say that your opinion has always been that this matter of the U.B.R.E. was always the trouble in Mr. Halton’s case?—A. Yes.

Q. And that is why the U.B.R.E. took the determined stand they did, because the real excuse was that he was a member of the U.B.R.E., and that the existence of the U.B.R.E. was at stake, while on the other hand this flimsy excuse was put forward?—A. Yes, that is the position.

Q. Do you consider there is anything in your obligation to the U.B.R.E. that would make you a traitor to the interests of the company?—A. No, I don’t think so.

Q. Is there anything, from start to finish, either of the ritual or the constitution that would make you betray the secrets of the company while in the employ of that company?—A. No, I don’t think so.

Q. Do you mean to say if you were sent a report from the executive here and ordered by that executive to make a statement which to your knowledge was untrue, to contradict a true statement, would you feel that you had a right to publish an untruthful letter because the interests of the U.B.R.E. were behind it?—A. No, certainly not.

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.

Q. So it is not a fact that you have taken an oath that makes you a traitor to the obligations of the company?—A. No.

Q. The objects of the organization are for the purpose of encouraging the membership by every legitimate means, to obtain a higher standard of morality and to make you better servants in every department of the service. These are all the principal objects of the organization?—A. They are.

Q. Now, in a strike of this kind why do you resort to the public press at all? There is a great deal said in the press about strikes, for and against?—A. Simply as a means of acquainting the public with facts.

Q. Of influencing public opinion?—A. Certainly.

Q. I suppose the success of a strike depends on public opinion?—A. To some extent.

Q. Have the C.P.R. Company any advantage over the U.B.R.E. in relation to press despatches?—A. Well, I cannot state for a fact that they have.

Q. Have the papers of Vancouver given, in your estimation, a fair statement of the position and the respective interests involved in this strike?—A. Some of them.

Q. As to the others?—A. They are not given impartially.

Q. Now, was there any statement made by Mr. Marpole on January 6 about this pistol being put to his head, or was that a statement made on another occasion? Did you hear such a statement made by Mr. Marpole?—A. I have no recollection of it being made at the time.

Q. Have you any recollection of hearing Mr. Marpole say that?—A. No.

Q. Were you the only person at the meeting on January 6?—A. Yes.

Q. And you never heard Mr. Marpole make such a statement?—A. Not at that time.

Q. Nor any other time?—A. No.

Q. Do you consider a man has a right to work if there is work to be had? Do you consider a man has any right at all to demand employment?—A. Yes, I do.

Q. And you think a company such as the C.P.R. have an absolute right to refuse him employment if they have employment to offer him?—A. Not if they have employment to offer him.

Q. You believe there are thousands of men in this country who have the right to demand employment and have not got it—

His Lordship.—Do you mean to say, Mr. Bird, that the C.P.R. exists for the purpose of providing people a job who have not got a job?

Mr. Bird.—I say it is a crying shame that the employers feel no responsibility in regard to labour.

His Lordship.—Do you think that the C.P.R. should give a man a job simply because he is the first one who goes and asks for it?

Mr. Bird.—I was merely trying to point out to the Commissioners that such a state of things exists; that everything is in favour of the employer and that labour has no rights whatever.

Mr. Rowe.—In what respect?

Mr. Bird.—I mean he has no right to demand employment. He may be starving, but he has no right to demand it.

His Lordship.—Surely you must admit that employment is a matter of contract between people?

Mr. Bird.—It is a matter purely to be bought and sold.

Mr. Rowe.—Just that a man has something to sell, and if nobody wants it he cannot live.

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
Mr. Bird.—But who is to provide the market.
His Lordship.—Do you suggest that something should be provided?
Mr. Bird.—I merely state the case.
Mr. Rowe.—I suppose we have to deal with facts as they exist. We cannot hold one party responsible more than the other.

By His Lordship:

Q. What benefit is there in belonging to the U.B.R.E. more than a local organization?—A. No more than a local organization.
Q. What is the reason that so many men want to belong to the U.B.R.E.?—A. Well, possibly it would offer more strength of numbers than a local organization composed of a few.
Q. Have you ever apprehended the difficulty which an employer feels in employing men who belong to organizations controlled in the United States?—A. No, I have not.
Q. It is alleged by employers that one reason they don't like the men to belong to these foreign organizations is that their movements are directed and controlled from various points in the United States?—A. Well, I can hardly take that as a fact. I cannot say—
Q. Then it is quite clear from some of the constitutions that any settlements come between an employer and the men must be ratified by people in the United States before it can bind the men?—A. I believe that is so.
Q. Is it not a highly objectionable state of affairs, that our Canadian people should be subject in any way to the dictation or control of a few men in the United States?—A. Yes, I should think it would be where it existed.
Q. Don't you think that the incorporation of unions of railway employees in Canada would meet all necessities of the situation?—A. No, I don't think so.
Q. You think it is a necessity to belong to an American organization?—A. Under certain condition, yes.
Q. Now, I understand that under this constitution there is to be no strike until the membership has reached 100,000?—A. Yes.
Q. Does that mean there is to be a strike when they get to 100,000?—A. Not necessarily.
Q. It rather looks to me as if they were preparing for a strike of considerable dimensions when they reach 100,000?—A. How would you gather that, my Lord?
Q. I don't see why any limit should be placed on the number unless they had the intention of creating a strike when they reach a sufficient number?—A. It is usual, I believe, that a certain limit should be placed on the membership with regard to voting for a strike for or against, or any matters of that kind which may come up. Some organizations place it a little lower. Not that it is intended to follow that line of action when the membership reaches that point.
Q. Do you think the U.B.R.E. have a right to force the C.P.R. to employ them to the exclusion of other people?—A. No, and I don't know that they are seeking to do that.
Q. Your position is, you simply want to be left alone?—A. Exactly.
Q. You wish to be free to join this organization without interference from the management?—A. Yes.
Q. But you are intending to force yourselves on the management as a body—to have dealings with the C.P.R. as a union?—A. Yes.
Q. Do you think it is a sound position?—A. Yes.
Q. Does that not virtually mean you are telling the C.P.R. they must deal with you as a union or deal with nobody?—A. Not necessarily. The fact that the U.B.R.E. as a union made no demand on the C.P.R. would only be with reference to its own members.
Q. Yes, but you are endeavouring to force the C.P.R. to recognize you as a union and to deal with you by means of a committee of the union, and that involves the exclusion of people who don't belong to your organization. In other words, you are virtually telling the C.P.R., as far as you can, that you must deal with us or with nobody?—A. Of course such a situation as that would exist were the U.B.R.E. to take in all employees of the company.

Q. That is no doubt their purpose?—A. Well, as I understand it, that may be the programme in the future, but I don't know that there is any definite proposition now.

Q. There is no doubt, it is the purpose of this order to bring all railway labour into one organization?—A. Not already organized.

Q. That is the purpose, to consolidate the railway labour?—A. Yes.

Q. If all railway labour were consolidated on the C.P.R. it would have the power to stop every wheel from turning from one end to the other? In the power of two or three men?—A. I would hardly limit it to one or two or three men.

Q. Well, in the power of the executive?—A. Yes.

Q. So the action of a dozen men might throw thousands out of employment and paralyze business of the whole country?—A. It might.

Q. What guarantee is there that such a thing would not happen if all the railway employees of the C.P.R. are allowed to get into one organization? What guarantee is there that such a state of things would not happen?—A. There is only the guarantee that the men would act as men of some judgment and reason.

Q. You see as Commissioners we have to look to the aims of organizations, and we understand that the aim of this organization is to embrace all forms of railway labour, and the consequence of that would be to place the power in the hands of a few men called the executive, say a dozen men, and it would be in their power to bring the whole railway system to a standstill from one end of the country to the other. It would be in their power?—A. It would be under such conditions.

Q. What guarantee would the public have that such a thing would not happen?—A. Well, no guarantee that I know of except that you would expect men holding that office to exercise some common sense and judgment.

Q. If you had hot-heads?—A. I doubt if they would have hot-heads nominated for such positions.

Q. I may say we have had an instance of labour leaders coming before us already whom we were not very favourably impressed with, who seemed to have gone so far as to have deceived the local leaders?—A. Were such leaders in control of such power as you speak of?

Q. They were certainly supposed to be high up in labour circles. Is there not a danger that an order such as this might lead to confusion among the various classes of employees?—A. I think not.

Q. The interests, I should think, are widely opposed?—A. They are, but then separate interests would be looked after and controlled by members who are perfectly acquainted with the different conditions under which certain members work.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I suppose the idea is there would not be enough variation of interest to prevent that extreme harmony of interest which the Chief Justice has just suggested might develop?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. Well, the order would either act harmoniously, or it would not. I am assuming that it is working in harmony. It would certainly be in the power of a few men to bring the whole thing to a standstill?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I presume that would not be likely to happen unless the members of the order thought such action was desirable?—A. Certainly not.

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Are any of the other brotherhoods organized in international unions?—A. Yes.
Q. Are they all?—A. All that I know of. All I know of without exception.
Q. Has there been any opportunity for the organization of railway clerks before the institution of this Brotherhood?—A. Not that I know of.
Q. No international organization of railway clerks?—A. I am not aware of any.
Q. Has there been any of the other classes of workmen represented in the local union here? Baggagemen?—A. No.
Q. Or shopmen, or freight-handlers or labourers? I understand these have never had separate organizations?—A. The freight-handlers have had a local organization.

Mr. Davis.—The railway clerks have.
Mr. Bird.—I understand it was started and smashed up.
Mr. Davis.—How can the C.P.R. smash an American institution?

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. What I want to get at is this: whether this class of workmen have an opportunity of belonging to a union unless they belong to this?—A. Not at the present time.

By Mr. Bodwell:
Q. Did you make any complaint when Mr. Gascoycne entered this cause for your leaving the service?—A. I did.
Q. What did you say?—A. I told him that I thought that was a very poor reason to give me for dismissal, and asked him if he had any idea of the effect that would have upon my endeavours for future work in railroading, for instance.
Q. What did he state?—A. That gentleman admitted that it was a very scurvy reason to give, but that he was instructed to put it on by Mr. McNicholl.
Q. So then, it is not correct to say you didn't make any objection?—A. No, I did make an objection.
Q. You intended to contradict the news in your letter?—A. Just so.
Q. Did you know whether this item in the 'Star' of March 18 was a despatch or not?—A. From the way it was inserted, I had reason to believe it was a press despatch.
Q. There is no date or place mentioned?—A. No, but the first wording of it would give that impression.
Q. It didn't occur to you that it might have been prepared in Montreal?—A. No, it did not.
Q. Well, from the fact that the cities of Vancouver and Victoria are mixed up here, and the statement as to the Charmer would infer that the official who gave the interview didn't know much about the circumstances, because the strike occurred in Victoria, I understand, and not in Vancouver. The statement has it that the Charmer not only left Vancouver on time, but also reached Victoria on time. I assume the meaning is, left Victoria on time and arrived at Vancouver on time. I thought perhaps you thought it was not an authoritative despatch at all?—A. I supposed it was.

By His Lordship:
Q. Have you ever asked for re-employment?—A. Not since my return to Vancouver.
Q. Were you give untransportation back to Vancouver?—A. I was, transportation only.
Q. You preferred to come to Vancouver rather than stay in Montreal?—A. I did. I would prefer to be stranded here than in Montreal.
Q. Have you applied to any other railway for employment?—A. No.
Q. You had better experiment with this document?

HARRY WILSON—Vancouver, June 5.
Mr. Rowe.—Try it on the C.P.R.

By His Lordship:

Q. I would suggest that you keep both the newspaper clippings and paste them on the document as a commentary.—A. I did intend doing that in the event of using them.

Mr. Bird.—I file particulars of paragraph 5a.

(Exhibit 21 B. Appendix.)

I just notice, Mr. Commissioners, that some of these items in the particulars of 5a specify that the work was without extra pay. Now, that applies to all these paragraphs. Every one of these instances which I have been able to quote—twenty in number, I think—are all instances of working overtime and Sundays without extra remuneration.

Mr. Rowe.—In all cases, no pay for overtime?

Mr. Bird.—Yes. I am in receipt of a letter of the U.B.R.E asking me to bring to the attention of the Commission the one-sided and improper statements that are appearing in the 'Daily Province.' I don’t know to what extent the Commissioners have anything to do with the matter, but I have been requested to bring the matter to their attention, and thus publicly protest against the misrepresentation of the 'Daily Province,' in particular certain paragraphs appearing in Saturday’s issue.

His Lordship.—I don’t know that it makes any difference what appears in the papers. We all get our share of abuse.

Mr. Davis.—I think the reports in the ‘Province’ are very fair indeed.

Mr. Bird.—It looks as though they have passed under C.P.R. supervision.

His Lordship.—What would you say about what has appeared in the ‘Clarion’?

That is your organ?

Mr. Bird.—It is supposed to be the organ, but as a matter of fact there is no connection between the ‘Clarion’ and the U.B.R.E.

His Lordship.—The ‘Clarion’ seems to think fit, in its wisdom, to strike at the Commission.

Mr. Bird.—It is certainly by no prompting of the U.B.R.E., as far as I know. I will call Mr. James Dick.

Mr. Davis.—If it would not be any inconvenience to hold back witnesses with reference to the particulars, I wish he would, as those particulars were only served this morning.

His Lordship.—You are entitled to time. You cannot expect him to meet these things off-hand.

Mr. Bird.—I didn’t wish to take them at any disadvantage. It has been taken from their own books.

His Lordship.—Is this witness on this branch of inquiry?

Mr. Bird.—He was intending to depose in regard to that, but more particularly as to discrimination as an employee of the company.

JAMES DICK, sworn:

By Mr. Bird:

Q. How long have you been in the service of the C.P.R.?—A. Almost seven years.

JAMES DICK—Vancouver, June 8.
Q. Prior to February of the present year what was your position in Vancouver?
—A. Chief clerk of the claims department.
Q. When did you join the U.B.R.E.?—A. In August, 1902, I think.
Q. Are you an officer of that organization?—A. No.
Q. Did you ever appear on any committee?—A. Yes.
Q. What committee?—A. On the committee that approached Mr. Marpole in reference to Mr. Halton's reinstatement.
Q. In what spoken of elsewhere as the grievance committee?—A. Yes.
Q. As a member of that committee did you see Mr. Marpole?—A. Yes.
Q. The details of that have all been gone into before by other witnesses. I want you to tell us briefly what happened to you by reason of your connection with the U.B.R.E.?—A. On February 23 I was called to Mr. Marpole's room, and he told me he had a telegram from Mr. Bosworth stating that I was to go to the claims department in Montreal—Mr. Riddell's office—
Q. Was that on the same day that Wilson got notice?—A. No, that was before.
Q. You are a married man?—A. Yes.
Q. When did you leave Vancouver?—A. On the 26th February.
Q. What was the nature of this move to be?—A. I really didn't know.
Q. Was that stated to you?—A. Just that I was moved to Mr. Riddell's office in Montreal—the claims department there.
Q. Was it a temporary arrangement?—A. No, Mr. Marpole told me I must go down there prepared to stay.
Q. Had you been established here and bought property?—A. Yes.
Q. Inform Mr. Marpole to that effect?—A. Yes.
Q. Any protest lodged by you?—A. I said, I thought that was rather a big move; that I could not understand it.
Q. You went to Montreal?—A. Yes.
Q. Who did you see on arrival?—A. I first went to see Mr. Riddell but he was sick, and then I went to Mr. Bosworth, who was supposed to have sent the telegram to Mr. Marpole, telling him who I was. He said: I don't know anything about the telegram being sent to Mr. Marpole.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. What is Mr. Bosworth's position?—A. He is fourth vice-president of the C.P.R.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. Did you subsequently see Mr. Riddell?—A. Mr. Bosworth referred me to Mr. McInnis. McInnis is general traffic manager, I believe, of the C.P.R., and he asked me to see Mr. Riddell another day. I did so. I had met Mr. Riddell before and after shaking hands with him I told him I had been sent down to report for work, and his reply was, I'm damned if I know why you were sent down here, as there is no vacancy in my office.
Q. Was the U.B.R.E. ever mentioned in the course of this interview?—A. It was mentioned by Mr. Marpole previous to my going down. He said, I was surprised to see you amongst that committee the other day, Dick. He said, I would not have minded you belonging to a union of clerks, but a union going along the road picking up the rag-tag and bobtail and cannot get any others into the union and fellows with the bottom out of their trousers. I didn't say anything to that. Previous to my going to Montreal, when we were talking over matters he said he was sorry to see me connected with that union, but that when I went to Montreal it would be an opportunity to shake my feet of it.
Q. Were you put to work when you went to Montreal?—A. Yes.
Q. In what capacity?—A. I wrote up the commodity book, and did general work such as marking off files. I started shortly after I got there.

JAMES DICK—Vancouver, June 8.
Q. Was this commodity book an important feature in that office?—A. It would have been all right if it was kept up to date, but that book was not kept up to date. It was six months in arrear when I took it over.

By His Lordship:

Q. What is the commodity book?—A. The commodity book is an index of the overs and shorts on the division; of the commodities that are over and short at each station under classified heads.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Would it appear reasonable to you to take up these books? What would have happened to the overs and shorts during that period?—A. A great chance that they would have been placed together, that the overs would have been placed to fill the shortages.

Q. Was this work then an excuse for employment?—A. Mr. Riddell asked me what I thought of the commodity book. I told him it would be all right if kept up to date, but at the present time I didn’t think it was much use.

By Mr. Howe:

Q. What did Mr. Riddell say in reply to that?—A. He asked me if we used it on the Western Pacific Division, and I told him we did not. He said he thought it was a good book, handy for picking out the different parts that were short. For instance if you wanted to look for a stove, you would look for that source, if you went by the register you would have to go through the various pages to find the date at which the piece was lost.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. You remember seeing in the paper certain statements purporting to have been press reports in regard to the strike at Vancouver?—A. Yes.

Q. Are you the James Dick who signed that letter with Mr. Wilson?—A. Yes.

Q. Were you in court when the circumstances were related by Mr. Wilson?—A. Yes.

Q. And what about Mr. Wilson’s statement of these matters?—A. Well, it is all right.

Q. Now, when you went back to work on the Monday morning—that appeared on Saturday?—A. Yes.

Q. What occurred on Monday?—A. I was called aside by Mr. Riddell ten minutes to six on Monday night, and he asked me if I had come there with the intention of blocking his office. I asked him what he meant. ‘Well,’ he said, pointing to a long list, ‘these are errors in the commodity book. Now, I expected something better from you after being in the service such a long time.’ I said I did not believe these were errors. He said, ‘Well, I have gone over the book myself and looked it up.’ I said, ‘Mr. Riddell, it would be impossible to tell they were errors until you had every file to which you refer in your hands.’ After that we went on and discussed matters. He took up the point of a stove, I think it was. Stoves would be headed under stoves and parts. It might also be railway supplies, and also household effects, and after I had discussed that matter he said, ‘What you say may be true.’ He pointed to the bottom of the page, where I think the number carried was household effects, from page 7 to page 9. I had omitted to mention I had carried it to page 9, but I had entered it in the index, which was the proper place. That seemed to be all the things he could find.

Q. Were you discharged?—A. After that. I referred to Wilson having been discharged in the morning—

By His Lordship:

Q. Was this the same morning?—A. The same day. Wilson’s took place in the morning and mine at night. And I asked him if it was his intention to treat me the JAMES DICK—Vancouver, June 8. same as Wilson had been treated, and he said, 'Well, we will see.' Nothing particular passed from that time until a fortnight after that, when I was presented with my time book, which was marked discharged.

Q. You were not allowed to return with Wilson?—A. No.
Q. What reasons were given for your leaving?—A. I got no reasons.
Q. Did you ask for a clearance?—A. I did. I told Mr. Kiddell I would require a clearance paper. He said, 'Oh no.' Then I said, 'If I apply for another position, how about that?' He says, 'You don't need it.' I said, 'What am I discharged for?' He says, 'Don't be too inquisitive.' That was all the reply I could get of him.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. What was the date of your discharge, Mr. Dick?—A. The 3rd of April, I think.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. You worked until the end of your month—was that the idea?—A. And a fortnight afterwards. I arrived there on March 3 and left on April 3.

By His Lordship:
Q. You worked only a month?—A. Yes, but a fortnight from the termination of—
Q. You got paid for six weeks?—A. No, I got paid for the month, but that month included a fortnight which was evidently meant for a fortnight's notice.
Q. Did you ask to get back?—A. Yes, I asked for transportation back to Vancouver. I asked via Toronto, but they would not give it to me. They gave it to me via the main line.
Q. Did you have to pay for your own meals?—A. Yes, my Lord.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. Have you tried to get employment since?—A. Yes, I have.
Q. Have you been asked for your clearance?—A. No.
Q. Do you know how the C.P.R. operate this alleged blacklist?—A. No.

By Mr. Davis:
Q. What salary did you get in Montreal?—A. Seventy dollars a month.
Q. The same as you were getting here?—A. Yes.
Q. You received transportation down?—A. I did.
Q. Did you receive your expenses?—A. I did.
Q. Would seventy dollars a month in Montreal be worth more than it would here?—A. From what I could find out it would not.
Q. You think living is dearer in Montreal than in Vancouver?—A. I think it is just as dear.
Q. Then, as it turned out, you were just as well off as if you had remained here?—A. Yes, except as to climate.
Q. You would have gone out on strike with the rest of the U.B.R.E. if you had remained in Vancouver?—A. Yes, I would.
Q. So that you were better off financially than if you had remained in Vancouver?—A. Slightly.
Q. Your idea is that the company dismissed you on account of the letter published in the paper?—A. That is my belief.
Q. Do you see any reason why they should not give that reason to you the same as Wilson?—A. No.
Q. Your action in connection with the matter was the same as his?—A. Yes.
Q. There was a change in the running of the claims department when you were moved to Montreal?—A. Yes.

JAMES DICK—Vancouver, June 3.
Q. Formerly, the claims department had been under Darcy of Winnipeg?—A. Yes.
Q. And you were a clerk under him?—A. Yes.
Q. At the time you were removed there was a separate claims department established independent of Darcy?—A. No.
Q. What was the change then?—A. Mr. Larmour was appointed assistant claims agent, but Mr. Darcy—
Q. Your position was a different one from the one which Larmour filled. He came out in connection with the claims department?—A. Yes, certainly.
Q. And when you came back from Montreal to Vancouver, you got your transportation. Did you have to pay your meals and sleeper?—A. I did coming back.
Q. You say you had property. Do you mean you had a house?—A. Yes.
Q. You didn't bring your family?—A. No.
Q. So that you were at no expense of moving or anything of that sort?—A. No.
I would have got transportation for them anyway.
Q. I understand you got your position in the C.P.R. and have been holding your position largely through the influence of Lord Strathcona?—A. That is not so.
Q. Is that what you refer to in getting transportation?—A. Certainly not. It is the common practice. I mean for my wife and family going east.
Q. You say Mr. Bosworth knew nothing of the telegram. Did not Mr. Bosworth tell you the telegram was sent by Mr. McNicholl?—A. No, I am not positive.
Q. Have you got the telegram?—A. I have not. Mr. Marpole would not let me see it.
Q. In '97 you were in the paymaster's office?—A. Yes, at Winnipeg.
Q. And there you were receiving from $30 to $50?—A. Yes, up to $55.
Q. I think you are mistaken about the $55. Fifty was the highest you got at Winnipeg?—A. Fifty-five.
Q. You got $30, then $45, and then $50?—A. I believe it was $55.
Q. You then came to Vancouver and got $60?—A. Yes.
Q. And then increased to $70?—A. I was.
Q. In the position you occupied here, say the head of the claims department here, you should not belong to an association at all, should you, according to the rules of the C.P.R.?—A. As a clerk I claim I had a right to belong.
Q. Is it not a rule of the C.P.R. that any head of any department, and I mean a person at the top of any particular division, is not to belong to a union?—A. I believe it is a rule that officials are not.
Q. Is not the top of the department an official?—A. Certainly not.
Q. You were the head of the claims department here?—A. I was chief clerk for Mr. Darcy.
Q. And that was head of that department here?—A. On the Pacific division it was.
Q. And doesn't it strike you as an anomalous thing to have the head of the claims department a member of the union?—A. Not as long as he was serving as chief clerk.
Q. I am talking of you as you were?—A. I was chief clerk.
Q. In that position, doesn't it strike you as at all peculiar that you should belong to a union?—A. No.
Q. Do I understand you to say that the work at Montreal was entirely unnecessary—that it was simply to fill in time?—A. No, I would not swear to that. I reported there, and I got that work to do.
Q. Do you think it was unnecessary work?—A. I claim that the commodity book when it is left for six months is not necessary.
Q. I asked you if you considered the work you were doing to fill in time, back work?—A. Some of it was not back work. It was not all.
Q. Was any of it?—A. No, I don't think it was back work.

JAMES DICK—Vancouver, June 8.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Well, what did you tell us this long story about the work if you did not consider it necessary work?—A. I consider it was unnecessary to write a book that had been neglected for six months.

By His Lordship:

Q. You thought it was useless work?—A. Yes.
Q. Have you had any black marks against you by this company?—A. No.
Q. No complaints as to how you did your work?—A. Just the ordinary thing. You get called down for certain things you do, which is not quite according to what they think should be done, but that happens to every official on the road all the time.
Q. When you had this interview with Mr. Bosworth did he object to your joining the U. B. R. E. on the ground that you were an official?—A. He said I enjoyed the privileges of an official, but I deny that.
Q. What do you understand to be the privileges of an official?—A. One of the privileges, to start with, would be the salary.
Q. What about that?—A. The present assistant claims agent chief, the position I would probably have been in if I had been in my position at all—as chief clerk the position I could possibly have would be Mr. Darcy’s assistant on the Pacific division, and the present man, Mr. Larmour, gets $125 a month to start with, whereas I had only $70.
Q. You say that a man to rank as an official ought to have at least $125?—A. That is the salary they paid the official in my position when they appointed one.
Q. Were your duties supervised by this man Larmour?—A. For a short time prior to my going to Montreal.
Q. Who would be the man who would instruct you in your duties?—A. Previous to Mr. Larmour’s arrival?
Q. When you were in the service?—A. That would be Mr. Darcy, in Winnipeg.
Q. Would you have to ask him for instructions?—A. Yes, he was the nearest officer I could report to.
Q. And Darcy at Winnipeg was your chief?—A. Yes, my Lord.
Q. Why did you join the U. B. R. E.?—A. Because I thought the clerks required a union as much as any other of the departments in the service.
Q. Why didn’t you go about the promotion of a clerk’s union without joining this union?—A. Well, naturally any person forming a union like that would look to the nearest position for sympathy as much as,—just in the same way as a company like the C.P.R. would look to the state for their co-partners in an agreement to protect their rights, or anything else.
Q. I understand the engineers and firemen and other employees of the railway are not in sympathy with the position taken by the U. B. R. E.?—A. So I believe.
Q. How is that?—A. I really could not tell you; I have not gone into that sufficiently.
Q. They have refused to belong to this union?—A. I don’t know that they were ever asked.
Q. How many clerks do you estimate there would be on the C.P.R, system eligible for a clerk’s union?—A. Really I could not say.
Q. Are there any clerks who have not joined the U. B. R. E.?—A. Yes.
Q. What proportion?—A. You refer to the Pacific division?
Q. Yes?—A. I could not tell what proportion in the outside parts who have not joined. I don’t know how many clerks they have at Nelson or Revelstoke.
Q. How many clerks have joined?—A. I could not even tell you that, my Lord.
Mr. Bann.—I will call the executive officers of the union as to that.

By His Lordship:

Q. Has it not occurred to you that there may be some reason in the objection by the company that their employees are belonging to a union controlled from San Fran—

JAMES DICK—Vancouver, June 8.
Cisco?—A. No. I see no reason why we should not have our headquarters there. The other unions, I understand, have theirs.

Q. The other railway unions?—A. Yes.

Q. The chief aim of the union is to bring in all railway employees?—A. Yes, we would like to.

Q. If all the employees of these unions were organized it would be a pretty formidable body?—A. Yes.

Q. Practically run the railway?—A. Not as long as the officers were just.

Q. It would really run the railway?—A. No, I don't think so. If the employees demanded too much it would be killing the goose that laid the golden egg, and that would not be in their interests.

Q. If the men at the head of the union were ill-advised in their movements a great disaster might ensue to the public?—A. If the heads of the union or the executive were like that, then these are the men that the C.P.R. are looking to have as officials, and if they were like that they would be apt to make just as big a mess. I believe the officers of the union are just as capable men as the officials.

Q. What advantages would you say clerks would have if they were allowed to join this union?—A. The social benefits which accrue to the members of other unions; they would have improved conditions; they would have a chance for bringing their grievances properly before the company, and they probably would have a schedule signed for a certain time, which would leave them to a certain degree in security.

Q. This strike is really for recognition of this union, is it not?—A. I call this a persecution—a lock-out.

Q. Leaving aside the phrase the gist of the matter is that the C.P.R. won't recognize the union?—A. So I believe.

Q. And you think they should recognize it?—A. I do, certainly.

Q. And the men have quit work for that reason?—A. Yes.

Q. Does it not occur to you that it is a difficult position to maintain to endeavour to force a railway to recognize a union? You see the position you take is to force the railway into recognizing the union?—A. Yes, but I maintain the company have forced our hands. Had they not done so we certainly would not have taken the step we have.

Q. But you undertook to interfere with the management, as a union, in the case of Halton, didn't you?—A. I understand Halton's case to be that he got leave of absence and went to Seattle.

Q. At the point is, you undertook to take up Halton's case as a union, and in that way you brought up the case of recognition?—A. Because we believed that the management was dealing with Halton on account of his connection with the union.

Q. They affirm it was on account of some contravention of duty?—A. I don't know as to the truth of that.

Q. And you, having heard only one side of the case, came to the conclusion that he was being persecuted, and took it up as union men and endeavoured to force the C.P.R. to discuss it?—A. I don't think we made any demand. We only asked them to discuss the matter with us, probably as a union, because we believed that one of our brothers in the union was being persecuted on account of his connection with the union.

Q. Had you ever, before this, made a demand as a union in connection with any person?—A. Not that I can remember.

Q. You did in connection with this same man Halton, in January?—A. That is the one I refer to.

Q. But that January matter had nothing to do with this?—A. Oh, no.

Q. So that there was a case where you came into collision with the railway management as to the union?—A. Yes.

Q. And you endeavoured to take up the Halton case as a union at that time?—A. At that time.

James Dick—Vancouver, June 8.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. So that was really an attempt to force the railway into recognition of the union?—A. I cannot see it in that light. We wanted to discuss it as a body of the union, and Mr. Marpole said he would not deal with us as a committee from the U.B. R.E.

Q. But you in your turn then threatened to strike then?—A. I believe they were determined to refer the matter to the body again.

Q. That was the up-shot of it?—A. I suppose the conclusion is that after we were taking attitude like that that most likely we would go out on strike.

Q. From your point of view Halton was being persecuted, and the union saved him on that occasion?—A. I believe so.

Q. From their point of view it was an undue interference with the management?—A. I believe that is the way they looked at it.

Q. You would not go so far as to say, I suppose, that the railway had not the right to employ people to take your places outside of the union?—A. Well, during trouble like this I think any person who would do that would be liable to get themselves called an ugly name.

Q. Such person would have a right to get a job and make a living?—A. Yes, certainly.

Q. You really have no abstract right to say to the railway that you must employ me on such and such terms or employ nobody?—A. No, I don't think we have, but we can ask the management not to do so.

Q. But when you asked the management not to do so, you took all means to prevent them doing so?—A. Yes, after we have been unjustly treated we take all means in our power to prevent it.

Q. I want to get at the real nature of the demand. You say unless you receive so and so we will go out, virtually saying to the railway company, you must employ us on our own terms or you cannot employ anybody?—A. That is virtually the position taken by all unions.

Q. As far as they consider it necessary to take that position?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you think that is a tenable position for a union to take?—A. Well, of course, if it is governed by—

Q. You say to the management you have to pay us so much wages or we go out. That is virtually saying you must employ us and no one else. I am getting at the justification for the strike. That is virtually going out on strike, saying to the company you won't employ us for the wages we ask, then you won't employ any one?—A. If we had a schedule we would give the company timely notice, and they would have opportunity of knowing exactly what we were going to do. We would employ all the best efforts we could to obtain our purpose. A strike means where a union is forcing the company's hand, and a lockout is where the company is forcing their hand.

Q. A strike virtually means, if you won't employ us you won't employ any one else—that is what it means?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. The question is whether the circumstances justified the strike?—A. Yes, they did; in my belief their demand is just; then I suppose they would feel justified in adopting the strongest means they possibly could to obtain that purpose.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Has anything been said to you by Mr. Riddell concerning the letter in the 'Witness'?—A. No, I referred to the matter myself.

Q. Do you believe that the complaints regarding the alleged errors in the commodity book were fictitious?—A. I believe that Mr. Riddell was asked to find some fault other than the publishing of that letter, and that he went to that commodity book and took up a lot of things which he supposed to be errors and submitted this list.

Q. Was any attempt made to find out whether they were really errors or not?—A. Not beyond discussion and the reference to the book which Mr. Riddell made of the books with myself. The result of that investigation was that he said, supposing that that is the explanation, you cannot get over this, and that was the fact that I had omitted to carry from page 7 to 9 where I had carried that distinguishing class over from the one page to the other. I had omitted to put at the bottom of page 7 that it was carried to 9. I carried it in the index, and I went over the work afterwards, and I could not see that there was anything to justify Mr. Kiddell's contention that I had come down to botch his office.

JAMES DICK—Vancouver, June 8.

Q. You say you cannot account for the different treatment accorded you and Wilson?—A. No. I cannot see that I had done anything more than Wilson.

Q. In the matter of clearances and in the matter of being kept two weeks afterwards.—A. Yes, but Wilson was paid for the fortnight, and I was kept to work mine out, so that the two of us could not go home together. I got no statement of the cause of my dismissal.

Q. You swear that you don't know from anything the company said why you were dismissed?—A. I do.

Q. When you were chief clerk here was your relation to Mr. Darcy the same as you would be to Mr. Larmour?—A. Yes, I would be simply chief clerk to both. I would have the same duties and the same relation to the rest of the staff.

Q. Had you anything to do with the payment or recommending for employment of the staff?—A. Yes.

Q. Had you the same powers in that regard as the head of the department would have for that division?—A. Well, yes, I would have that, certainly. The powers are very small, as far as that is concerned.

Q. Does the chief clerk have the same powers under Mr. Larmour, in reference to the staff?—A. No, Mr. Larmour would appoint them.

Q. Do railway clerks generally get the same pay as is given for work in other employment?—A. I don't believe so. From what I can learn the most of the bookkeepers in Vancouver are paid at the rate of $75 per month for chief bookkeepers.

By His Lordship:

Q. One reason for that would be the permanency in the case of the railways?—A. There was no permanency in my position.

Q. I mean to say there is not much danger of a railway bursting up, and there is of the merchants?—A. Yes, of course there is that.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Is there any provision for superannuation?—A. I believe there is, but it is very poor, I consider—the conditions of it. It is just left to the committee whether they will give it at the end of service. Left to their discretion, I believe.

Q. Do chief clerks generally belong to the union?—A. We have several chief clerks in the union, I believe.

By His Lordship:

Q. Have you tried to work elsewhere?—A. Yes.

Q. On a railway?—A. No.

Q. With what result?—A. Well, I didn't happen to strike it.

Q. You are still without work?—A. Yes.

Q. Who organized this union here?—A. I believe it was started by the clerks in the freight office.

Q. Did somebody come over from the other side to organize it?—A. Not so far as I know.

Q. Who started the thing moving?—A. I think it was several of the clerks in the freight office combined together and discussed the matter, but I really could not say. I was not there at the beginning of the union; it was considerably after I joined it.

Q. Did they send for an organizer from the other side?—A. I really could not say.

JAMES DICK—Vancouver, June 8.
Q. With reference to strikes: Do you know of any other means by which workmen can secure increases in wages unless by organizing into unions and striking?—A. That seems about the only means by which the labour men can get their demands. It is really the only power they have after they have made every just effort to get what they want.

Q. Would you say that the union is a sort of trust to force up the price of labour?—A. Trades unionism, I believe, is about the only solution of that problem.

Q. Do you think the clerks have suffered by reason of the fact that heretofore they have had no union?—A. Yes.

Q. In the matter of wages?—A. Yes.

Q. And would one purpose of the U.B.R.E. be to increase the wages of the clerks?—A. We would naturally seek to get similar wages at the coast here as was being paid across the line in other parts where the conditions were alike. Take Seattle, I believe the rate of wages is a great deal higher than they are here, yet the living is very much the same.

Q. Is the rate of wages higher in Seattle than say Chicago?—A. I was only taking Seattle with this, because it is coast town nd very much similar.

Q. How do wages in Vancouver compare with those in Montreal?—A. I believe they are much less in Montreal than they are here in certain groups. In Montreal a great many of the clerks employed by the C.P.R. are living at home with their own people. They get small wages and live at home, and in that way don't require the same pay.

Q. That would refer to junior positions?—A. Yes, and up to pretty nearly chief clerks.

Q. How about chief clerks?—A. They are paid much the same as here.

Q. That is about the same?—A. Yes, about that. The chief clerk in Winnipeg is paid a little higher than I was here, and the chief clerk in Montreal was paid a little higher than I was here.

By His Lordship:

Q. How many men were there under you—I mean who would have to take orders from you?—A. There was only a stenographer and a lost freight tracer who had to take orders from me out of 35 employees. The present man has a staff of five people.

Q. Would you regard a man who has five under him as an official?—A. He has an official title. It was assistant freight claims agent, and now it is claims agent. He got promoted within one month.

Q. I suppose that is their position, that a man who gives orders to others is an official and not eligible for a union?—A. Yes, but I claim that that would not be practical.

Q. I don't suppose it would be, because a conductor gives orders?—A. Yes.

Q. You don't hire or discharge the men?—A. I would not discharge anybody without referring it to the superintendent.

Q. You have got no power?—A. I really don't know. I never had anything, but before I would discharge a man, I would have certainly reported to the general superintendent and taken instructions from him.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. At the time the strike took place there was no complaint about wages of the clerks?—A. Not that I know of.

Q. Why do you say the clerks suffer on account of wages by having no union?—A. That does not refer to that time. I think if we had a union and it was recognized, that we would have had a schedule and a better class of prices.

Q. So there was no complaint about wages?—A. No.

JAMES DICK—Vancouver, June 8.
Q. Then if there was no complaint, the wages were satisfactory?—A. Well, wages were not mentioned at all.
Q. Why do you say that the clerks suffer over the question of wages through having no union?

Mr. Bird.—I was going to take up all this, but in deference to my learned friend's request not to go into these questions, I have not.
Mr. Davis.—I didn't understand that this man is to be recalled.
Mr. Bird.—Certainly he is to be recalled in that very connection.
Mr. Davis.—If that is so, I have nothing to say about it.
Q. Do you pretend to state positively that you say it is left to the discretion of the company whether pensions are given or not, because, I don't want to discuss it if you don't know? Do you know yourself, or are you merely stating that as something you have heard?—A. Merely as something I have heard.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. Just in that connection: Is this a copy of the pension scheme that is sent to each employee of the company?—A. Yes, I believe it is.
Q. You have a copy of that?—A. Yes.

(Copy put in, Exhibit 49.)

W. H. Browne, sworn.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. Are you a member of the U.B.R.E.?—A. Yes, I am.
Q. Were you previously in the service of the C. P. R.?—A. Yes.
Q. For how long?—A. Since January 9, 1889.
Q. That would be 14 years. What position were you in, say in January of the present year?—A. Revising clerk in the local freight office.
Q. You are one of the men who went out pursuant to the decision of the U.B.R.E. in February?—A. Yes.
Q. Have you tried to get a job since you left the employment of the company?—A. Several places.
Q. Where did you go among others?—A. Seattle.
Q. How long ago?—A. About six weeks ago.
Q. Where did you apply for a position?—A. Both with the Northern Pacific and Great Northern.
Q. What position did you apply for then?—A. There were two positions, one in the general freight office and another in the local freight office, and I had the choice of the two.
Q. How do you mean—you were sent down there?—A. I had a complimentary pass from the Great Northern.
Q. Who did you see there?—A. I met several of the boys belonging to the U.B.R.E. and I said I was down to take a position. One of them said, I bet you a new hat you don't get one. I said, I am not like you, I am on the inside. I thought I would go to the assistant of the traffic department. After I made myself known the first question was, you are from Vancouver. I said, yes. He said, you were mixed up in that U.B.R.E. business. I said, does that make any difference. He said, we understand one another, and I said, well, there is no use discussing it further. He says, not particularly. I says, how about these two positions, I am to have the choice of one of them. He says, I don't know anything about them. I said, there is a position vacant in the local freight office, would you mind giving me a letter. He said no, so he gave me a letter to Mr. Mackenzie, the agent there. He was not in, and I left it with the chief clerk. He says, you are from Vancouver, and I said, yes. Well, he says, I don't know, you had better come around about two o'clock. I said, where is Mr. Mackenzie. He said, he is not in. I went down to the Pacific coast dock and met Colonel Brinker. He says, what are you doing here. I said I was looking for a situation. He says, come over here and I will introduce you to Mr. Mackenzie. I commenced to discuss the matter with Mr. Mackenzie. He says, I got your letter all right. I says, how about giving me a position. I showed him a testimonial. He said, that is no good. I said, what do you want. He says, get me a good clearance from the C. P. R. and I will give you a position. I rang up the C. P. R. and asked if I could get a clearance. They said they would give me a clearance with the word strike in it, or something like that. I asked what was the matter, and they said I was picketing or something of that sort. I don't know what they meant by picketing.

W. H. Browne—Vancouver, June 8.

Q. Did you further attempt to get employment?—A. I tried other places around town. I tried the Pacific Coast Company, and when I went to Mr. Talbot, of that company, he said, you are just the man we want. I said, when can you find an opening. He said, I will let you know. I wrote him, and have received no reply.

Q. Can you recognize that as an official document of the C. P. R. (exhibiting Exhibit 50)—A. Yes, I have seen one or two of them on the corresponding list—similar documents.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. I may say that the signature is not that of Mr. Downie?—A. No.

Mr. Davis— I don't see how it can be a genuine document.

Mr. Bird.—It is a blacklist. Documents sometimes get into waste-paper baskets.

Mr. Davis.—And sometimes are taken from places not waste-paper baskets. I think it would be a good thing to explain how you got possession of it if it is a genuine document.

Mr. Bird.—Perhaps my learned friend will explain where he got Mr. Estes' letter.

Mr. Davis.—We got it from your organizer Poore, if you want to know. Now, will you explain where you got that? It was given also, it was not stolen.

Mr. Bird.—I doubt very much if Mr. Poore knew what he was doing when he did it. Mr. Davis.—I don't suppose any of your organizers know what they are doing.

By His Lordship:

Q. What do you make this out to be, a copy of a letter sent to the superintendent of the Northern Pacific?—A. I don't know.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Is it a common thing for clerks in the superintendent's office to sign the superintendent's name?—A. I have seen it that way.

(Document put in, marked Exhibit 50.)

His Lordship.—Where did that come from, Mr. Bird?

Mr. Bird.—That was handed in by an officer of the U.B.R.E. I think it was picked up in the waste-paper basket.

His Lordship.—It had better be traced. It might be a forgery. If necessary we might hold a sitting at Nelson. You had better trace it up the best way you know how.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Now, what was the outcome of your attempt to get work at Seattle?—A. I gave it up as a bad job.

W. H. Browne—Vancouver, June 8.
Q. Did you make any attempt to get a clearance?—A. When I found what was going to be put in I didn’t insist on having it.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. What you call a clearance is really a reference, a certificate of good character?—A. I suppose something to show that you left your last position in good standing. I made sure to get that.

Q. Do you think a person who has been just on strike would be entitled to that?—A. Certainly.

Q. Then the fact of being on strike is nothing against an employee, is it?—A. No.

Q. Then why should you object to the word ‘strike’ being put in?—A. I objected to nothing further.

Q. Why should you object to the fact of your being on strike going in?—A. I objected to other things.

Q. What did you say besides?—A. I said strike, agitators and other things were going in.

Q. But the party over the phone told you it was picketing?—A. No, that was a person on a newspaper here told me that.

Q. Who was the person that interviewed him. You had a conversation over the phone?—A. About an hour after this gentleman saw Mr. Beasley.

Q. Didn’t you have a conversation with Mr. Beasley?—A. Yes.

Q. And that was the one in which you asked him if he would give you a clearance?—A. Yes, I asked him if he couldn’t cut out that I was on strike.

Q. What did he say?—A. He said he was not going to get himself into trouble in Montreal.

Q. The reason why he would not keep out that you were on strike was for that cause?—A. Yes.

Q. Putting in that you were on strike would only be a statement of fact?—A. Yes, but the other things—

Q. What Mr. Beasley told you was that he would put in that you were on strike?—A. He said he was going to fix it to suit himself. He said he would put in what he liked.

Q. But he told you that he would have to put in the clearance that you were on strike?—A. Yes.

Q. But all that he told you he put in the clearance was that you were on strike?—A. Yes.

Q. Now that was only a statement of fact?—A. Certainly.

Q. And you don’t think that the fact that you were on strike should interfere with you?—A. I don’t mind if he would lift the blacklist.

Q. What do you mean by that?—A. When I went to secure employment I knew that there was some advice ahead of me.

Q. When you went in and asked they naturally inquired whether you were mixed up in the U.B.R.E.?—A. They knew I was coming. The first question asked me was whether I was on strike.

Q. Certainly it would be. Do you think they would want to get any man from another road on strike?—A. I was forced out.

Q. Oh, no, you were not. There was nothing remarkable that they should not wish to employ a man on strike?—A. When they first inaugurated the blacklist they should not take a man from employment after once placing him on the blacklist.

Q. What do you mean by that?—A. It was inaugurated on the American systems, I believe. It is a list of names furnished to all railways in all parts of North America, I suppose.

Q. What you meant is that the C.P.R. furnishes a list of men who have got into trouble with them to all railways in North America?—A. That is my opinion.

W. H. BROWNE—Vancouver, June 8.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. And when you talk of the blacklist you are referring to that—this supposed document?—A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. If it is merely a case of another railroad asking for references and wanting to get the history of a man's employment there is nothing in that?—A. No. It is only a system inaugurated in the last four years.

Q. For instance, if I employ a man in my law office and ask for references, that would be natural?—A. Yes.

Q. And if I found he had been dismissed for carelessness or taking money I would not employ him?—A. Yes, I suppose that is the rule.

Q. And it is very necessary for a bank to ask for references?—A. Yes.

Q. The strike of the U.B.R.E. was very well known?—A. Not very well known there.

Q. If this blacklist as you call it has nothing more than these things, just asking for reference, you would not object to it?—A. They may believe it was all right to take a position—

Q. Where is there anything in the shape of blacklist about this?—A. This prevents a man seeking employment elsewhere.

Q. What prevents a man seeking employment elsewhere?—A. A man takes umbrage at him, I suppose.

Q. You say the blacklist prevents it?—A. Yes.

Q. As you understand it, a list is sent out?—A. Yes.

Q. But if there is no list sent out, and if it is only a case of one employer requiring a reference from another—there is no objection is there?—A. I suppose that is the ordinary course.

Q. In every business, would it not?—A. I suppose that is right.

Q. It is a question of whether or not there is any such thing as what you call a blacklist. Does this (Exhibit 50) bear out your idea of the blacklist?—A. I have seen some similar documents to that.

Q. Where is there anything in the shape of blacklist about it?—A. This, the record, that means publishing a blacklist if it prevents a man working. In a certain way I consider that a blacklist.

Q. And that is your idea?—A. No, it is not my idea entirely.

Q. All this is, is a letter from Mr. Downie to Mr. Russell, superintendent of the Northern Pacific Railway at a point in the States, stating that a certain man has applied to Mr. Downie for a position in the railway and asks Mr. Russell for the references of that man. That is all?—A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Russell scuds back the record that the man had?—A. Yes.

Q. On the whole it would look as if that clearance were given with the view of not hurting the man?—A. Not given directly.

Q. It was on account of reduction of force?—A. Yes.

Q. The facts were not discovered until Mr. Downie wrote to Russell making inquiries?—A. Was the man in the employ of the C.P.R. when that was given?

Q. This man never worked for the C.P.R.? He worked for the Northern Pacific?—A. Why should the agent at Nelson ask for it?

Q. Benjamin Franklin Wood goes to Mr. Downie at Nelson and applies for a job on the C.P.R. Tells Mr. Downie he has formerly worked on the Northern Pacific. Mr. Downie thereupon writes to Mr. Russell, superintendent of the Northern Pacific, asking for his record—that is a reference of character. Mr. Russell writes back and says his clearance was on account of a reduction in force and gives certain information?—A. And lets a man out on account of reduction in staff. That is railroad practice.

His Lordship.—Why should the C.P.R. make inquiry at all, when the reason is given on the clearance?

Mr. Davis.—I take it that it is a rule when a man goes to the C.P.R. stating he has worked on another road that that form is sent to the other road to find out what they think about him.

36a—40

W. H. BROWNE—Vancouver, June 8.
His Lordship.—Why should the C.P.R. man go to work and inquire as to what the real cause of dismissal was when the clearance shows that it is made for cause that would not excite suspicion.

Mr. Davis.—I would understand that naturally, irrespective of anything that man brings, when he goes to the C.P.R. stating he has worked on another road, they send to the other road to find out what they have to say about him.

Mr. Rowe.—If not the clearance has no value?

Mr. Davis.—It may or it may not. The C.P.R. have established a policy irrespective of the clearance. The man may not have a clearance.

His Lordship.—This man had, according to that letter.

Mr. Davis.—A man may be dismissed and there may be no trouble, but it may be very useful indeed to find out what sort of a man he was. If I am employing someone surely there is something more to be found out than that the man worked for somebody else and dismissed, or any cause given. References usually go a great deal further than the mere statement that a man worked for somebody.

Mr. Rowe.—Then you understand that a man may leave a company with apparently a perfectly clear record, and still another road not want to employ him on account of something contained in his earlier character?

Mr. Davis.—There may be half a dozen different applications for one position. They send these out and pick out the man they want from these reports.

Mr. Rowe.—Apparently when this man left the company he left it at a time when there was not a strike, but that he had previously been engaged in a strike, and evidently the strike was over for he returned to work with this record against him.

Mr. Davis.—It was not against him until sent for. That proves on the face of it that there is no such thing as this blacklist; that the company sends out a list; that they are down on some one. All this shows is that it is the practice of the C.P.R. before they employ a man engaged on another road to get a certificate of character, whatever it may be.

Mr. Rowe.—And I suppose you will put in evidence before the Commission that the C.P.R. does the same thing with other roads upon request?

Mr. Davis.—I don’t know what the practice is, but I assume that if asked, they would state the facts. For instance, some one writes and asks me about my clerk, and I write and tell him. It is the same thing. There is no agreement about the matter.

His Lordship.—I don’t see why the C.P.R. should be so curious to inquire into the record of switchmen.

Mr. Davis.—That is one of the most important situations on the road.

His Lordship.—I would not think so, judging by the salary he is paid.

Mr. Davis.—I think they are very well paid.

His Lordship.—If this man was to be a chief detective or an official of some high grade, one could understand, but where a man’s clearance shows that he was dismissed on account of reduction of force, and is only a common switchman, it seems to me there is something behind it all.

Mr. Davis.—If a switchman were to drink, for instance?

His Lordship.—The clearance would show that, I should think.

Mr. Davis.—It might not be sufficient for that. Your Lordship cannot draw from that document any particular system that I can see. That only shows that it is the practice of the C.P.R. to inquire about railway employees before they employ them, and it seems to me that it is a good business precaution.

W. H. Browne—Vancouver, June 8.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

His Lordship.—Then it seems to be a ground of offence to the companies that a man is a strike agitator. Because a man took part in a strike and walked out he is debarred from being employed by any other road.

Mr. Davis.—An agitator is a very different thing, but I can understand that if two or three men were applying for a position, any company would prefer a man who was not an agitator to a man who was. The chances are there are several applications for this position, and they naturally want to get the best man.

His Lordship.—Evidently this man did not get the job because he was in the habit of getting drunk, but because he was an agitator.

Mr. Rowe.—Evidently the companies have the same objection to strikers as unions have to scabs.

Mr. Davis.—We have not applied such strong language to them. But a striker is one thing and an agitator is another.

His Lordship.—This man was apparently at the top of the list of crimes because he apparently was a sworn strike agitator and took part in the strike.

Mr. Davis.—They are statements of fact. I don’t know anything about that. We are not responsible for the Northern Pacific. What we are responsible for is that before employing a man they get a report from the other lines he has worked for, and that report is acted on accordingly. It does not mean that they will not employ a man because he is a striker, and I cannot see the objection. Any ordinary business man would do it, and why any offence was ever intended should be supposed to be lurking behind it I cannot see.

Q. Did you do any picketing?—A. No.
Q. What do you understand by it?—A. I don’t understand it at all.
Q. How do you know you didn’t do any?—A. I simply went out and interviewed people.
Q. What people?—A. To keep track of McLeod.
Q. He is not people. Where were you stationed—on the street going to the C.P.R. depot?—A. Once in a while.
Q. And you were interviewing people you thought were going to work for the C.P.R.?—A. No, I accosted several people I knew.
Q. And tried to persuade them not to work for the C.P.R.?—A. They told me they would not.
Q. You tried to persuade them and you did?—A. I didn’t know I made a success of it.
Q. Will you say you did not?—A. Well, after I talked to them.
Q. You say you were not able to get a job from the Pacific Coast Company?—A. No.
Q. Do you blame the C.P.R.?—A. I have an idea, that is all.
Q. That they were at the bottom of that?—A. Certainly.
Q. What makes you think that?—A. As I told you before, I was of the opinion that there was something behind everything down there. When I went there everybody knew all about it.
Q. You think the C.P.R. had been sending around to all employers of labour in the United States?—A. I surmised that. I had secured a position, and when I got there I could not enter upon the duties at all.

By His Lordship:
Q. Who had you secured it from—some official of the Great Northern?—A. Yes, he gave me a pass to go.
Q. You went immediately?—A. Within three days after I got the pass.

By Mr. Davis:
Q. Did you tell any one that you were going—any railway people?—A. Yes. One of the fellows in the freight office who went back to work knew about it.

W. H. BROWNE—Vancouver, June 8.
Q. You found when you went to Seattle you could not get it?—A. Yes.
Q. You went to the same man who asked you to come?—A. I went to J. E. Even, I was directed to go to him.
Q. Did you apply for the position?—A. Yes, I was told there were two positions; one in the general and one in the local freight office, and I had the choice of the two. The man who was to appoint me was J. E. Even.
Q. You had made a general application?—A. Yes.
Q. What about Even?—A. He would not discuss the matter at all. The first question he put to me was, you come from Vancouver and were mixed up in the U.B.R.E., and I said there was no use in denying it. Then I asked for a letter to Mackenzie. Even is assistant general freight and traffic manager. I got a letter from Wurtle.
Q. The Great Northern agent here?—A. Yes.
Q. How did you come to apply to him—did he advertise?—A. No, I went to him directly.
Q. Did you know the positions were open?—A. No.
Q. Did he give you a letter when you saw him?—A. No, he went to St. Paul from here. I got the letter before he went.
Q. How long after you first spoke to him did you get the letter?—A. In the course of four days.
Q. Did you leave the next day after you got the letter or the same day?—A. I left Sunday morning at nine o'clock, and I got the letter Saturday evening.
Q. Is it not altogether likely that he would write down reporting to the head office, and would state that you had been one of the U.B.R.E. strikers?—A. I don't know what he stated.
Q. Is it not reasonable that he should do so?—A. I supposed he would try and oblige a friend and not mention these things. I don't know what he said.
Q. There is nothing unreasonable about reporting that?—A. No.

By His Lordship:
Q. You are a freight clerk?—A. Yes.
Q. Why should he say anything about it at St. Paul?—A. I don't know.
Q. The man felt an interest in your behalf—he got you transportation?—A. Yes.
Q. Did that come from St. Paul?—A. No, I think it was issued in Seattle and sent up here.

By Mr. Davis:
Q. In sending you down it would be necessary to say if you had been in railway service before?—A. Yes.
Q. And he would say where, would he not?—A. I cannot understand why he would send the pass.
Q. He would naturally say what road you had been working on?—A. Yes, I suppose so.
Q. And he would have to explain why you were not working on it, and the explanation would be that you were on strike?—A. I don't know what conversation they had at all.
Q. How much have you been paid by the U.B.R.E. since the strike commenced?—A. About $25 or $30.
Q. Is that altogether?—A. I could not give the exact amount. That is altogether.
Q. You don't believe—or do you complain of the company objecting to employ U.B.R.E. men?—A. I don't see why they should object to employ them.
Q. Do you complain that the company are not willing to employ U.B.R.E. men?—A. Do I complain about it? I don't see why I should not.
Q. Do you complain?—A. In what respect?
Q. In any respect. Is it a complaint on your part against the company that they are not willing to employ U.B.R.E. members?—A. No.

W. H. Browne—Vancouver, June 8.
Q. You admit that the company has a right to employ anybody they like — A. If they are going to buy an article they should buy the best.

Q. What has that got to do with the C.P.R. being bound to employ them or not? — A. No one is bound to employ anybody, as far as I can see.

Q. Have they a right to employ or refuse to employ members of the U.B.R.E.? — A. They can use their own discretion.

Q. And there is no reason why they should not use their own discretion? — A. I don't see why they should not.

Q. Have they a right to dismiss a man because he is a member of the U.B.R.E.? — A. I don't think that has anything to do with the question. I don't think they have a right to dismiss a man because he belongs to an order.

Q. They have a right to dismiss a man if they don't approve of his habits? — A. Certainly they have.

Q. Would they have the right to dismiss a man who belonged to an organization which was injurious to the company? — A. In what respect would an organization be injurious to the company?

Q. Well, an organization which they think injurious to the company. Do you consider that the company have a right to dismiss a man who belongs to an organization which they deem dangerous to their interests? — A. The company consider every organization dangerous.

Q. What is your answer? — A. I don't think they have any right.

Q. Your idea is that no matter how dangerous the company may consider the existence of an organization is to their interests they still have no right to dismiss a member of that organization? — A. They consider all organizations to be dangerous.

Q. They must regulate their own actions according to their own idea of things? — A. Not until the company is brought into subjection can they regard this idea.

Q. What do you mean by that? — A. As I have said before, they have objected to other organizations on their system.

Q. Do the company object, or have they ever objected to class organization? — A. They have, yes.

Q. In what case? — A. In the conductors' case.

Q. What is your information? — A. When I was car-checker, Mr. Downie was assistant superintendent, and I used to come up at 9 o'clock to turn in my reports, and they had the conductors' book there, and Mr. Barnham I think was the conductor and he asked whether he was a member of that organization, and he said yes. Well, he said, you cannot take that train out. I said, what is the matter? He says, I am going to get my time check.

By His Lordship:

Q. When was that? — A. About 8 or 9 years.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Do you swear that Mr. Downie ever told this conductor that because he was a member of the conductors' union he could not take the train out? — A. Yes, I was there at that place. In their office there — in Mr. Downie's office.

Q. Here in Vancouver? — A. Yes. They were in the dispatchers' office.

Q. What time of the year — you say 8 or 9 years ago? — A. I could not give the exact date; I only remember the particular case.

Q. If he was in the dispatcher's office someone would be present? — A. I think Walter Miller was present.

Q. In what other instance? — A. I only heard newspaper reports. I don't know of any other.

Q. That is all you have for saying that the C.P.R. have refused to recognize all unions? — A. Newspaper reports and the case of the trackmen.

W. H. BROWNE — Vancouver, June 9
Q. Don't you know that the C. P. R. have agreements and recognize unions of all class organizations?—A. Yes, after having been compelled, I suppose, to submit to them.

Q. To come back to the question I asked you: Have or have not the company a right to refuse to employ or discharge a member of a union which the company considers dangerous to its interests?—A. They have a right to discharge anybody. They do it.

Q. Don't you think they would be foolish not to discharge an employee of a union which they considered, rightly or wrongly, to be dangerous to their interests?—A. They have the right to discharge anybody, I suppose.

Q. Is that an answer to the question?—A. I think that will do.

Q. It is the best answer you can give?—A. Yes.

Q. Will you swear that eight or nine years ago the conductors' organization was not recognized by the C.P.R.?—A. No, I won't say eight or nine years. I don't know the time.

Q. Will you swear that ten years ago—ten or twelve?—A. There is no use binding me down to time. It was only shortly after I was employed in Vancouver, and I won't let you bind me down to time.

Q. Well, there was nothing of that kind?—A. I was sent by Mr. Abbott with a letter to Gavin to take out the train, so I know.

By His Lordship:

Q. You complain of the blacklist?—A. Yes.

Q. You approve of unions speaking generally?—A. I think they are a benefit to men at the present age.

Q. They have blacklists, have they not?—A. I don't know of any.

Q. Have you heard of unfair lists?—A. I have read of them in the newspapers.

Q. That is the same thing as a blacklist?—A. I suppose it is something similar.

Q. It seems to be horse and horse?—A. I suppose so.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Do you think you were reasonable, Mr. Browne, that your 14 years of service with the C.P.R. should outweigh the fact of your being connected with the present strike?—A. It ought to.

Q. Did you have letters of recommendation as to your ability and as to your character and so on?—A. About three months ago I received information that a strike was about to be brought on and took the precaution to get a letter of recommendation.

Q. Did you use this letter of recommendation in connection with your employment?—A. Yes.

Q. That was not sufficient?—A. That was not sufficient.

Q. Can you get us your letter of recommendation?—A. I have it here.

(Copy handed in, marked Exhibit 51. Read by Mr. Bird.)

Canadian Pacific Railway Company,
Vancouver Station,
January 10, 1903.

To whom it may concern:

This is to certify that the bearer, W. H. Browne, has worked in the freight office of the C.P.Ry. for the last twelve years and is a competent clerk and is steady and reliable.

Yours truly,

(Sgd.) J. McCraery, Agnt.

W. H. BROWNE—Vancouver, June 8.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Why did you get that letter of recommendation?—A. Because various things had gone to show that something was going to happen, and I took the precaution.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. By the way, had you ever been a striker before?—A. No

By His Lordship:

Q. When you asked for that didn't it seem curious that the man should give it to you?—A. I told him the company were premeditating to bring on trouble and I wanted to be prepared.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Who did you say that to?—A. To McCreery, the agent. In ordinary conversation with the men at various times. One young man brought out from Nelson said the C.P.R. told him to call around in March, that they were going to give him a job. Another gentleman told me he was going to get a position in the freight office. I said, there is nothing there. He said, my brother is going to get one in March. It is an unusual thing to get an advance of $10 and one of the clerks wanted to get an advance, and the agent told him he would give him a position with the $10 in March. Everything pointed to March, so I knew we were going to get a shaking up and for this reason I went after a letter of recommendation.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. We have heard a good deal from unions about scabs. A man who took the place of you men who went out would of course be a scab?—A. Under that heading I suppose he would, taking the place of a striker.

Q. Would you go back and work with these men supposing this strike were over?—A. I don't know about that. There is always provision made in a strike for this kind of people.

Q. Would you go back to work with them?—A. I suppose I would have to work with them if I had to go back to my position.

Q. Would you be willing to go back and work in company with these men who had been willing to work in your place?—A. I would rather they would—

Q. Would you or would you not?—A. No.

Q. Would you go back and work with a number of these men who had taken positions formerly occupied by strikers?—A. I suppose they would have been white-washed some way or other.

Q. Answer the question?—A. Well, I would go back if the rest did; I would not go back alone.

By His Lordship:

Q. You don't approve of the unfair list?—A. I don't know much about it.

Q. You know the object of it; for instance, a grocer is put on the unfair list?—A. Yes, it is not to patronize him, or something like that.

Q. Well, the grocer may have children depending upon him for a living?—A. Yes, I suppose so.

Q. Why is it unfair that the C.P.R. should have a blacklist and the union have theirs?—A. Not if it didn't strike home, I guess.

Q. All depends on whose ox is gored.
GEORGE H. SMITH, sworn:

By His Lordship:

Q. You are the Western Union Telegraph agent here?—A. Yes, sir.
Q. You were subpoenaed to produce some documents in connection with matters before the Commission?—A. Yes, I have them.
Q. All of them?—A. As far as I know. It is a difficult matter for me to judge what pertains to the Commission or not. I have brought what I believe are pertaining to matters before the Commission. I object to the production of these telegrams, because telegrams are of a private nature, and I further object on the ground that the summons calls for a list of telegrams from one date to another of all telegrams, some of which might be private and some not.
Q. The subpoena protects you.—A. I will require an order of the court.
Q. The subpoena is a good enough order.—A. I am instructed by my company to ask an order of the court to file with them.
Q. You may keep the subpoena.—A. Why not an order?
Q. The subpoena is better than an order; it is a command of the Crown.—A. I would like to have an order. The regulations of my company require it—that I should have that to file with my report.

Mr. Bird.—I don't know how far the members of the Commission may be affected by this. It is certainly in the nature of a search warrant.

His Lordship.—To a certain extent that is necessary. We don't propose to be put off with part of the facts. We want them all.

Mr. Bird.—Certainly, as far as I know, the facts will all be brought out. Do I understand these documents will be for the perusal of the Commission alone?

His Lordship.—The Commission will go through the documents and if there is anything in them that we think ought to be made public we will make them public. We will look through them first.

Mr. Bird.—I understand that the C.P.R will not be allowed to inspect these documents that the Commission desire.

His Lordship.—They will have no right to access to them either.

Mr. Bird.— Might I ask if the Commissioners have decided upon the documents for which privilege is claimed?

His Lordship.—No, we have not.

Mr. Bird.—There are many matters I would like to bring forth had I access to these documents. The existence of certain documents I am not aware of. If I am allowed a search warrant in connection with the C.P.R. papers I can soon find what I want.

His Lordship.—We will look through them first.

Q. Have you got those telegrams?—A. I have not yet received a copy of the order.
Q. You will get the order. (Documents put in—Exhibit 52).

M. T. QUIGLEY, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. You are the agent of the Canadian Pacific Telegraph Company here?—A. Yes.
Q. You have been subpoenaed to produce all documents relating to the matters in question before this Commission?—A. Telegrams, yes.

M. T. QUIGLEY—Vancouver, June 8.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36

Q. Have you got them?—A. I have as many as I have been able to get. I am afraid the task set out for me is rather a large one. I have not been able to give more than about a third of it. I have not had time yet. It is a physical impossibility to do so with the time at my disposal.

Q. How long would it take you?—A. Our business runs about 1,000 telegrams a day, and it will take from forty minutes to an hour for each day. I am asked to give from four months—180 hours.

Q. If you require any assistants the Commission will provide them and pay the expense?—A. I have been doing it alone. Although I have several clerks in the office I did not think I should make them responsible for going through them. I have managed to get as far as March 4 by throwing everything aside and doing a little hard work.

Q. Up to March 4?—A. Yes.

(Telegrams put in—Exhibit 53.)

Q. You can arrange with Mr. King in the meantime?—A. All right.

Q. If you want a receipt for these you can have it?—A. Yes, I would like to have one.

Mr. Bird.—I presume these telegrams will all have to be proven. They are not intended to be proven.

His LORDSHIP.—Do you insist on technical proof of all these telegrams?

Mr. Bird.—I must say that some of them I don’t know anything about. Of course I understand the large jurisdiction of the Commission, sitting in the way you gentlemen are; but certainly I never saw telegrams put in in this way.

His LORDSHIP.—It is this way, Mr. Bird: The Commission propose to go through this material themselves and if they find any telegrams that will throw light on any subject before this Commission the Commission will notify both parties. You seem to be labouring under the misapprehension that we are investigating purely as between you and the C.P.R. We are here in the interests of the public and not in the interests of the U.B.R.E. or the C.P.R.

Mr. Bird.—I can understand that, but I find that in trying to prepare this case I am labouring under great difficulties in getting production from the C.P.R.

His LORDSHIP.—Any evidence we find in these documents which may affect your case for good or evil we are quite content to have them produced.

Mr. Bird.—I have asked several days ago in regard to documents. I asked for special service reports, and I want particularly the communications between an ex-member of the U.B.R.E., a man named Barron, and the secret service reports from a man named Leslie, also of the U.B.R.E. I ask for communications from Seattle. I would like the production of secret service reports from Montreal. I want every record book kept in Montreal which has a blacklist, in other words. It contains a history of each employee of the Canadian Pacific Railway for three years prior to entering the service and during the whole of his service. I want assistance in getting these documents—

Mr. Davis.—You had better let us have a list.

His LORDSHIP.—Yes, let us have a list.

Mr. Davis.—The secret service reports are among the bundle.

Mr. Bird.—I will try and have a list ready to-night, or by to-morrow morning at the latest.

Mr. Rowe.—Can you name the dates of the secret service reports?

Mr. Bird.—I can give as much as that subpoena states.

His LORDSHIP.—Just give us a list of these.

M. T. QUIGLEY—Vancouver, June 8.
Mr. Bird.—I understand there was a daily report from each special service detective in the service of the company during that whole time, and there were nearly 30 special men—during the course of the strike and prior to the strike.

Mr. Davis.—In that connection, I would like to have all the documents in the possession of Mr. Estes. If Mr. Estes is not able to get here, his documents can be got here, and as yet we have had no communications between Mr. Estes. There are one or two documents referred to, but they are of a public nature. And in connection with getting Mr. Estes here, I have asked Mr. Bodwell if Mr. Dunsmuir would undertake not to prosecute Mr. Estes criminally in case he came back, if Mr. Estes did not wish to come and take chances. Mr. Bodwell told me he would see Mr. Dunsmuir, and went to Victoria for the purpose of getting that undertaking, and he wires me Mr. Dunsmuir tells him to say that no prosecution will be taken against Estes, if he returns to give evidence before the Commission. So that, I think, all obstructions have been removed.

(Telegram from Mr. Bodwell to Mr. Davis put in as Exhibit 54.)

Mr. Bird.—I do not know how far that undertaking would give protection to Mr. Estes, if the technical wording of the telegram is to be looked at; it is no undertaking whatever.

His Lordship.—What has Mr. Estes to be afraid of?

Mr. Bird.—Mr. Estes is afraid that one or other of these corporations will take some action against him for the purpose of harassing the men here.

His Lordship.—Does he want to leave the men in the lurch here?

Mr. Bird.—No. Mr. Estes was here up to ten days before this Commission commenced sitting here.

His Lordship.—He was not being prosecuted then?

Mr. Bird.—No, he has fear of being harassed similarly to the manner he was in Victoria, and being put to expense such as it cost him there at a time when the funds of the U.B.R.E. needed to be husbanded, instead of squandered. I have a telegram from Mr. Estes that he will be here to support the U.B.R.E. case the minute he can get away. I don’t know how soon that will be, but I really believe that Mr. Estes desires to go before this Commission, had he no reason to expect harassing prosecutions.

His Lordship.—I don’t think he need fear anything on that score.

Mr. Bird.—One knows the power of railway companies, and when they undertake to conduct a prosecution, they don’t spare expense, and the harassing of the enemy is a part of their strong plan of operations.

His Lordship.—We fully understand that there is a steady war being prosecuted on both sides, and it is our business to find out to what extent these methods are being pursued, and, if necessary, to abate them.

P. G. Dennison, sworn.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. You are one of the ex-employees of the company ?—A. I am.

Q. How long had you, previous to your dismissal, been in the service of the company ?—A. Off and on for about ten years.

Q. You are a married man ?—A. Yes.

Q. What position did you hold in the union ?—A. No position at all; associate member.

Q. What was your employment with the company ?—A. Chief bill clerk.

P. G. Dennison—Vancouver, June 8.
Q. What was your first connection with unionism on the C.P.R. railway?—
A. Some time prior to last June, a year ago, some of the clerks in the local freight office thought it would be a good idea to have a little local union without affiliation with any other body. The object in forming that organization was to obtain from the local agent some protection in the amount of overtime we had been working, and failing that, to obtain recompense for that overtime. That was our sole object.

Q. Now I want you to explain that. Take up the question of overtime, for instance.

Mr. Davis.—(Objects to taking up question of overtime.) I had this morning a list of forty different charges of overtime put in my hands. I immediately handed this over to the company to have these looked into. It is absolutely impossible to have these looked into immediately.

Mr. Bird.—I will only take up clause 15.

His Lordship.—Will you look through that list, Mr. Davis, and see if there are any that you can go on with?

Mr. Davis.—I understand there is a lot of other evidence and that that could be gone on with now.

Mr. Bird.—Mr. Dennison is one of the men who knows the foundation of the strike and its causes from the beginning, and he is a man who can give a great deal of information from start to finish. I have held him off. He is one of the chief witnesses for the present time.

His Lordship.—It does not inconvenience him to have his evidence postponed?

Mr. Bird.—I think it would take a whole day to get his evidence.

His Lordship.—Is there some general witness?

Mr. Davis.—If my learned friend wants to go on we can go on, and we will look it up afterwards.

His Lordship.—You say Mr. Dennison is not an officer of the union and yet he is cognizant of everything?

Mr. Bird.—Yes, he is cognizant of everything. He has been acting by courtesy as a member of the executive, although not a member, and in that way many things have come within his knowledge.

Q. Will you explain what the conditions of your employment were prior to your forming this local freight union?—A. At that time my salary was $60 a month. I had charge of the billing which consisted of forwarding freight, that is, making the invoices which accompany the freight. My staff at that time consisted of two night killers besides myself. I was on in the day time. It was necessary to work a good deal of overtime. On the arrival of the boats from Australia or China I have had to work as much as 28 or 30 hours without any interval except for lunch which I generally carried with me.

Q. Was that at a stretch, without any sleep?—A. Oh, yes. On several occasions
I tried to have that condition changed to make it more satisfactory to me, and to give more satisfaction to everybody, for the reason that if a man has sufficient rest he can do his work properly. I always maintained that a man who works for 28 or 30 hours at a stretch was totally unable to handle responsible work, and the company was always making a man who does this work responsible for any mistakes he made. I had been to the agent on a great many occasions with the idea of trying to get additional help. I maintained that had I one or two men I would be able to carry on the work with satisfaction to the company and comparative ease to myself, being sure of doing accurate work. I was told that it was impossible to give more help, that the superintendent would not allow it—Mr. Beasley.

Q. When was this?—A. Prior to June of last year. This condition of affairs kept up and gradually became worse inasmuch as the cargoes from the Orient were becoming heavier all the time, and work at the general freight office had been going to the local freight office. A slight change was made in the amount of help given to me. A man was put on to help me for three or four hours at a time, but there was not enough difference to counterbalance the additional work. I continually kicked about it for the reason that I was not able to do the work satisfactorily. However, it was impossible to get the help and we dragged along as it was.

P. G. Dennison—Vancouver, June 8.

(Mr. Bird asks for production of appearance book.)

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Was this the usual thing, this working for these long stretches when the Empress boats were in?—A. Yes, at this time it was usual for those connected with the billing desk to have the long hours.

Q. So that this was not just one individual instance?—A. No, that was customary on the arrival of the Oriental cargoes. They would arrive every week or ten days.

Q. And the Australian steamers?—A. The Australian steamers didn't amount to very much. About ten hours overtime fixed that.

Q. What would your overtime average during the month?—A. I figured it up for months at a time and it averaged 30 hours a week. That is about 5 hours a day overtime counting Sundays.

By His Lordship:

Q. For how long have you been in the service?—A. Eighteen months at that work.

Q. You have asked for assistance or shorter hours?—A. I have asked for assistance in preference, and failing that I have asked for pay for the overtime worked.

Q. What were these hours?—A. From 8.30 in the morning until 15.00 o'clock. An hour off at noon.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Now, I would like you to inform the Commissioners as to what time that extends over, and show them as well as you can, what your time amounted to, where there is any note of it (producing clearance book.)—A. This book commences on November 19 last, and goes up to February 27, the day I left the freight office.

Q. What does it show?—A. It is the appearance book. The object of this book is to have a record of the attendance at the office of every man employed at the department, showing the hour he comes and the hour he leaves.

Q. Who keeps it?—A. Every individual as they report for duty and from duty, notes the time and the name in this book, and it is revised by the time-keeper. In my opinion the only reason that book is kept now is that the agent may know which of the staff attend to their duties or not. He can come out to the book and find out if a man is around or not. He is out a good deal of his time.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. There does not seem to be any mention of the hours worked?—A. There are only a few instances there.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Why does it not appear in every case?—A. As far as my case is concerned I noted the time when I left the office and the time I arrived. My object in doing that would be that the agent would know I would not be around the next morning.

Q. You noted that you had worked late. You would enter the time so that he might not expect you down early?—A. Yes. I had a great deal of dealings with the agent, and he could find out by going to that book whether I would be there or not.

P. G. DENNISON—Vancouver, June 8.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

By His Lordship:

Q. Did you enter in this book when you worked overtime?—A. When the agent came in in the morning then I did not bother entering it, because I had a conversation with him. Sometimes I got away before he reported, and in entering the time there I did so with the object of enabling him to ascertain whether I would be down that morning at a later hour.

Q. You went over that book the other day when we had the production of it from Mr. Beasley and you took out extracts did you, Mr. Dennison?—A. Yes.

Q. Just explain this date (indicating) what hours you worked overtime—that is a memorandum you personally made from the books, is it not?—A. On December 10 last, I went to work at five minutes after eight in the morning, left at eight o’clock next morning, had my breakfast and came back again.

Q. And worked that whole day?—A. Yes.

Q. That would show how long a day at a stretch?—A. It would show 32 hours, but of course out of that there has been at least two hours for meals.

Q. That is the period during which you were working and supposed to be attentive to duty?—A. Yes.

Q. Are there any other instances?—A. Yes, they run something the same. Here is another one: December 30, 8.30 in the morning to 2.30 the following morning. On December 31, from 13 o’clock to 5 o’clock—

Q. Five o’clock in the morning of New Year’s Day?—A. Yes. Then I came down at 8 o’clock the following morning on January 2 and left there at 18 o’clock. Here is January 8, from 8.30 in the morning to 5 o’clock the following morning.

(Statement of time of certain employees put in as Exhibit 55.)

Q. Do you mean to tell us that this was compulsory work?—A. Oh yes, certainly compulsory.

Q. In your conversations, when you would lay your protest before the officers of the company had they no knowledge of these facts?—A. They certainly had. I took good occasion to give them the information.

Q. Do you remember any particular occasion when this matter was brought specially to Mr. Beasley’s attention?—A. Yes, I recollect on one occasion that I saw him in connection with an increase, and I pointed out the amount of overtime, and I was informed at that time that the man who was there before me had the same amount of overtime and that the man who came after would have the same.

Q. What about your Sundays—you had them to yourself?—A. I cannot recollect any Sunday that I had fully to myself. Sunday was generally a very busy day for the reason that the Empress came in on Wednesday morning, and their cargo was loaded and completed Saturday night, with the consequence that the billing clerks were there until 6 or 8 o’clock Sunday morning, and we liked to sleep the balance of the time to get square. The Tartar and Athenaeum have arrived on Saturdays which necessitated working on Sundays. I have taken 30 hours a week, and it will run that way over a whole year. There is another reason probably for so much overtime and that is that during the past year for instance it has been necessary for me to break in four or five new billing clerks and I have to be there in the day time and do my own work and at night to post them. They no sooner would get posted than they would leave the service.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. How did that happen?—A. The miserable amount of salary paid and the long hours.

Mr. Bird.—I would ask my learned friend to produce the statement of wages paid on the Pacific Coast. It is produced in his affidavit on production. It is No. 12 I think, and No. 106.

P. G. DENNISON—Vancouver, June 8.
Q. How do you say the rates paid to the C.P.R. employees compare with railways on the Pacific Coast—railways of similar importance?—A. From information which I have gathered from time to time I think we are 30 or 50 per cent lower on the C.P.R. than on competitive roads; roads that handle goods at the same terminus and to the same destination.

Q. What particular time are you speaking of?—A. Take the present time, if the rates have not been changed at the local freight office.

Q. It would include the present unless there has been a change since you left?—A. Yes.

Q. Among other information furnished you these are data prepared for the use of the Brotherhood?—A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Bird.—I will file a statement showing schedule of rates paid at Vancouver and at Portland.

Mr. Davis.—Had you better not leave that until a man who can prove it is in the box?

His Lordship.—If you undertake to prove it it will be all right.

Mr. Bird.—Yes, Mr. Hamilton will prove it. I think it is fully corroborated by the statement my learned friend has.

(Exhibit 56.)

(C.P.R. statement put in as Exhibit 57.)

Q. Referring back to the organization of freight clerks you say—just give us a history of that organization, and how it was transferred ultimately to the members of the U.B.R.E.?—A. Early in June of last year we had perfected an organization consisting of the local freight office staff, some 25 in number, with the object of bettering our conditions as far as overtime was concerned. At that time the advisability of amalgamating with the freight handlers, who already had a union, was discussed, but owing to slight objection on the part of the freight handlers, who did not wish, evidently, to get tangled up with a poor gang of men such as the clerks were, that proposition fell through. They said we wore paper collars and that sort of thing. It was necessary for the clerks to protect themselves and affiliate with some body of men who would be strong enough to take care of them. We learned at this time also that the U.B.R.E. had a number of members in Winnipeg, and some of us being acquainted with some of the officers there we communicated with Winnipeg and ascertained that Mr. George Estes, the president, was in Chicago, but that our wish for amalgamation had been forwarded to him and he had replied stating he would come through on his way to San Francisco that month. He arrived here on the 14th June, 1902, at which time fourteen of the clerks of the local freight office joined the U. B. R. E. By doing so we were under the impression that we strengthened our position and at the same time we were joining an organization which already had a strong foothold on the C.P.R. and it was our expectation and hope that before many months had gone by to spread the organization between Vancouver and Winnipeg, thus forming a strong organization or the basis for one at any rate.

Q. This organization that was formed among the clerks—you had no charter, had you, from any local organization?—A. No, no outside affiliation at all—simply a local union.

Q. Did you present demands?—A. We did, about the 30th June; we went to the company and asked for 20 per cent increase in salary.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. That was after your affiliation?—A. We were affiliated then.

P. G. Dennison—Vancouver, June 8.
By Mr. Bird:

Q. Was this the U.B.R.E. that made the demand, or just the men in the freight office?—A. Just the men in the freight office.

Q. The U.B.R.E. were not behind this demand?—A. Not at all.

Q. It was just your original organization, the freight clerks in the freight office?

—A. That is all.

Q. Did you talk the matter over with your immediate superiors before making any proposition?—A. Yes, we had meetings; the result was, that we made a united demand. We did not send it by committee. Every man in the office made a round-robin. That was presented to the agent, Mr. McCreery.

Q. Did you have any interview with the general superintendent in regard to the matter?

Q. Tell us shortly what was said by Mr. Marpole in regard to this demand?—A. After we got a conference with Mr. Marpole—we didn't get to him for a day or two—he told us it was preposterous that we should ask for such an increase as 20 per cent, that he could not think of granting that. He subsequently told us if we insisted on the full amount asked for, he would grant it; but he said, if you hold a pistol to my head, I will give it to you, but that the time would come when we would have to pay for it. We told Mr. Marpole that we represented the balance of the men, that we were asking 20 per cent, and we thought we would have to have it, but if he could not grant it, we would go back and tell the men what was done. The committee was instructed to go back to Mr. Marpole and find out what he would do. Mr. Marpole told us to leave it to the arbitration of a business man.

Q. Who was to name the business man?—A. I suppose they would name him. We thought so. That was dropped, and it was left to the consideration of Mr. Peters, Mr. Curry and Mr. Beasley. They were to meet our committee, go over the pay-roll and figure out the best increase they could give us.

Q. Was the matter of the overtime brought to the attention of these gentlemen at this time?—A. I cannot say that it was to Mr. Marpole's attention. It was discussed fully in Mr. Peters' and in Mr. Marpole's office. We simply dealt with the 20 per cent demand. The outcome was that we got approximately 13 per cent, some men got 25 where others got 5; but Mr. Marpole had threatened us to a certain extent, and we knew that we were not prepared to insist on the 20 per cent unless we were prepared to quit the company's service, and we went back to the other men and managed to have it explained.

Q. What did Mr. Marpole say at this time?—A. At that time we didn't see Mr. Marpole. We went from him to Mr. Beasley. It was not necessary to go back to him, because Mr. Beasley said he had agreed to 13 per cent and would try and get Mr. Marpole to agree to it. He also said that Mr. Marpole was satisfied and would not make his threat good.

Q. Did you ever have a conversation with Mr. Beasley in regard to the U.B.R.E.?—A. Yes. He has told us that such an organization would not be stood for, that the company would not stand for it at all.

Q. When was the U.B.R.E. started here?—A. June 14, was the date the men joined.

Q. This is your charter (exhibiting it)?—A. That is our charter.

His Lordship.—You might put in a copy.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Signed on June 24?—A. The reason it is dated June 24 was, that it took 20 members, and we had to wait until we got the other six, and it was June 24 then.

Q. What is the black emblem for?—A. That is to commemorate the murder of Frank Rogers.

P. G. DENNISON—Vancouver, June 8.
By His Lordship:

Q. Just at that point, do you ever put emblems on charters when anyone is killed through the fault of the union?—A. As far as I can understand, there has never been an instance. The C.P.R. prosecuted a number of our men, and they never proved a conviction. Until the law proves a man guilty, he is innocent. I say, as far as our executive has been concerned, the strike has been conducted perfectly. There has been no violence on our part; I cannot recall one instance.

Q. I may say that I know of my own knowledge that a considerable number of complaints have been made by men who have alleged that they were attacked by strikers and showed it on their persons. The only trouble was the identity could not be discovered.—A. You must remember that the C.P.R. had brought in some 30 or 40 of the riffraff of the Sound cities. One of our sympathizers was shot and killed from the C.P.R. property.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Do you remember interviewing Mr. Marpole as a member of the committee in regard to the discharge of employees in January?—A. Yes, in Mr. Halton's case.

Q. Did Mr. Marpole make any observations in regard to unions at that time?—A. Yes, he said that was the damndest committee he had ever met. He says: I would sooner meet trackmen than this committee. He said, if you want to deal with the company go and organize and then come to the company and see if you receive recognition. He said if he could not recognize it it would go to Montreal.

Q. And you went and organized?—A. Yes.

Q. Was the matter of the U.B.RE. organization brought to his attention on that occasion?—A. No, I don't think so. We were careful in our dealings to avoid the U.B.RE.

Q. You were proceeding as a committee of employees and he said that he preferred to deal with a union instead of such a committee?—A. He asked us if we came as a committee of employees or as respecting that hybrid organization, the U.B.RE.

Q. Did he say in what manner he wanted you to organize?—A. No, that was not stated. We assumed, of course, that we would organize the unorganized men, that it did not matter what the departments were.

Q. Were you an applicant for any position that became vacant under Mr. Peters?—A. I was.

Q. Just tell us about that and anything of interest in regard to it?—A. I think it was last August or September that I applied for a position rendered vacant by a selling freight agent who had left the company's service. I applied for the position and from the conversation with Mr. Peters I was fully led to suppose that I would get the position, but a day or two afterwards he came to me and said that it was impossible to get it on account of the stand I had taken in getting the increase in the local freight office. He said, Mr. Marpole objects to your receiving any promotion for at least a year, and he said, while I am able to promote you to that position it would be over the advice of Mr. Marpole, and it would make them on bad terms; that Mr. Marpole had really nothing to do with the position, but it was his wish that I should not have it, and, therefore, I could not have it.

Q. So you were to be kept as you were without promotion?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Because you were asking for increases in July?—A. That was the reason given.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Do you come within the class termed officials of the company?—A. No.

P. G. DENNISON—Vancouver, June 8.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Would there be any secrets such as might be of interest to other railways doing business in Vancouver, come under your notice?—A. Yes, I am fully aware of arrangements that should not be known by competing lines, but I don't think I should mention them; I don't think it is necessary.

Q. Would your oath to the U.B.R.E. demand that they should be made known to the lodge if it was of interest to them?—A. Certainly not. That would be sufficient reason to expel me from the organization.

Q. You would be betraying the secrets entrusted to you as an employee of the company?—A. Yes.

Q. Had you any conversation with any officers of the company with regard to the previous attitude of the C.P.R. in regard to the U.B.R.E.?—A. Yes, on February 26 and 25 I had conversations with two officials of the company.

Q. Just before the strike?—A. Yes.

Q. Did they state the attitude of the company towards the U.B.R.E.?—A. One of the officials of the company told me Mr. Marpole had prepared his forces and was prepared to fight us, Mr. W. O. Miller, car service agent and Mr. J. McCreevy, freight agent. Miller said that Marpole had prepared his forces to fight us and that we had absolutely no chance to win. He also advised me to withdraw from the organization.

Q. When you were working these long over-hours that you have told us of, did any matter ever come up that required you to be censured or dealt with in a manner that would teach you a lesson in connection with your service?—A. Only one instance that I can recall. I had made a slight mistake in my work which was incidental in costing the company about $28 I think. I was billing a car of shingles to a point in the United States named New Canen, Connecticut, and in doing so I billed it Canen. That night I was working 18 hours and the day before. I billed the car to Canen, and it had to be switched to New Canen, the switching companies charging the company $28. Instructions came back to charge it up to the billing clerk at fault. I have some copies of some of the documents. The agent came to me and told me I would have to pay this $28. I told him I would quit first. He said he would try and get it commuted and reduced to a smaller amount. It ultimately ended up by my being fined $10. The word fine is used in the correspondence by the officials. I told them I would not put up with any such nonsense, that my amount of overtime should entitle me to consideration. It had no effect. Mr. Peters told Mr. Beazley that if an employee was loyal to the company a mistake of this kind should be overlooked, but if he was not loyal a little discipline was a good thing. So I got the discipline. That came about 40 days after the interview in the freight office.

Q. It came before the U.B.R.E.?—A. Yes. It was deducted in September, but the correspondence came to me in August. The error had been made about six or seven months before.

Q. And that is the slip you made. In these letters—?—A. Take Mr. Peters' letter. It is a good letter and will show just how the company looks at these things. I asked for a receipt for the $10 and it was refused.

By Mr Davis:

Q. It was deducted from your salary?—A. Yes, it was deducted from my salary.

By His Lordship:

Q. You got a decrease?—A. Yes.

Q. Where did you get these copies? Are the letter press copies?—A. It is taken from the original correspondence. As a rule railway service they don't put their correspondence through a letter book; they use carbon copies. The file of correspondence was given me by the agent in order that I might keep copies.

(File of correspondence put in as Exhibit 58.)

36a—41

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Then it appears to you that the fact of your having made a demand as one of a committee of employees for an increase in wages of recognition, that you were not properly paid or properly treated, was the reason you were disloyal to the company?—A. That is the way I considered it.

Q. You were a member of the committee that saw Mr. Marpole in regard to Halton?—A. I was.

Q. Do you know anything about the circumstances leading up to Mr. Halton's case?—A. Yes, I am fully aware, I believe. The company sent a man down to Seattle and other Sound cities on some kind of reason. We intended to find out what that reason was. We had advice from a friend down there stating this man was arranging to engage men; that he was covering his tracks by pretending to get a record of the rates paid in the Sound cities. It became necessary for us to be sure of that information. We wanted to know if they were getting men to take our places. In order to be exactly right we decided to send someone down, and in arranging that we looked about for a man to send and decided on another man I believe, but something turned up and he did not go and Mr. Halton, being our business agent took it in hand to either go himself or get some competent man to go. In any event he got a day's leave of absence from the head of his department. When he got that leave of absence he went away, and the company state he went away to Seattle to either dog the steps of this man they sent down or have someone else do it, but he was discharged for absenting himself from his office without leave. We knew he had left because his chief clerk gave us the information. Therefore we were satisfied we could convince Mr. Marpole that a mistake could be made. We were under the impression that his assistant Mr. Townley had misrepresented the case. We thought we could explain matters fully with the assistance of Mr Halton, and have Mr. Marpole admit that he was mistaken. I think we did that, because Mr. Halton was reinstated.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Could you explain where Mr. Halton was?—A. I believe he was at Seattle. I am not personally acquainted with the fact.

Q. What was the error in the information? In what way did you think Mr. Marpole was wrong?—A. We understood that Mr. Marpole thought that Mr. Halton had absented himself from his office without permission.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Do you know anything about any men having been brought in about that time, and from where they came?—A. Yes, we had information brought to us that 25 men, I believe it was, were coming up on the Seattle boat, the Mainlander, the night of the 27th, and we proved that to be true.

Q. Were no men brought from the east?—A. Yes, 37 men were brought here, arriving on Saturday afternoon. We struck on Friday.

Q. Where did they come from?—A. Some of them whom we managed to interview came from Montreal, stating they had been engaged there for two or three weeks prior to coming.

Q. So that this information you got from Mr. McCreery and Mr. Miller would appear to have been corroborated, that the men had been engaged in Montreal and elsewhere when there was really no strike?—A. That was the case. They had it made up for men to come on March 1.

Q. How do you know that?—A. That information came to us. We had to buy it, and I don’t like to give it away. In fact, I am not in a position to give it away. I can state that one man in the east sent us full particulars.

Q. Do you know anything about unionism in general and the number of unions in the C.P.R.?—A. I am aware that all employees of the C.P.R., with the exception of the clerks and freight handlers, and probably the station baggagemen, are members of international organizations recognized by the C.P.R. management.

Q. Have they attained that high honour without a strike?—A. No, you have to have a strike before you will be recognized. That is generally the history of all organizations, as far as I know. The company would not be prepared to recognize them unless they knew their strength, and they only know that by a strike.

Q. And so this getting one-half or two-thirds in all classes—that condition of affairs is only recognized after a fight?—A. When you get a schedule, you are bound to have two-thirds, because the men would hardly share in the benefit and not support, so, as a rule, 99 per cent of the men will join the organization, on account of the compensation which they expect to receive.

By His Lordship:

Q. Why do you suggest that the C.P.R. drew the line at your organization?—A. Because it is not a class organization. That is the simple reason, I believe.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Did you ever ask for a schedule when you had your local union?—A. We asked for a revision. We did ask for a schedule, yes, and we were refused. We were told before answering that to go back to work and Mr. Beasley would look into matters.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. That is the U.B.R.E.?—A. No, they never asked for anything.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. That was when?—A. July 1, 1902, when we asked for the increase of 20 per cent. We asked them to sign that at that time. We thought, if a change of officers were made, if it was signed, we would be in a position to insist on it.

Q. You wanted this arrangement incorporated in a written agreement?—A. We drew it up and presented it.

Q. As a matter of fact, you were members of the U.B.R.E. then?—A. Yes, we had been for ten days, but we didn’t go in that capacity.

Q. Had you any reason to suspect that the management would object to that organization?—A. We had an idea that we got from certain people, that they might object to us taking in three or four classes, because our scope was large, and we could form an organization which would be a very powerful one.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. What is the foundation for the statement that the U.B.R.E. is composed of revolutionary socialists?—A. That is a dream of somebody’s.

Mr. Davis has dreamed it—

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Estes seems to have had a nightmare of that sort, too?—A. It is nothing but a dream.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Are you a socialist?—A. You will have to define the term, before I can answer that.

Q. You have been publishing a strike bulletin through the pages of the Western Clarion?—A. Yes.

Q. Have you any connection with that paper other than this?—A. No; we had a strike bulletin which we published separately, but we found that we did not have the facilities for mailing it, and we thought if we could have it mailed to outside points at regular mailing rates we would gain an advantage. We cast about for some way of doing that and we decided to take the 'Western Clarion.' We thought that would be a good medium. They had some 3,500 names on their mailing list, and we thought that we could get our paper printed.

36a—41

P. G. DENNISON—Vancouver, June 8.

Q. Their subscription list is chiefly among the working classes of people? — A. Among the labouring classes. We decided if we could get our paper mailed or printed with theirs that we would reach additional readers. As it was we had some 3,000 or 4,000.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Have you got a copy of the constitution of the American Labour Union? — A. Our union has.

(Copy of constitution filed as Exhibit 59.)

By Mr. Davis:

Q. The U.B.R.E. are affiliated with this body? — A. At the head office, yes.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. At the time you left work on February 27, were you affiliated with the American Labour Union? — A. No, we were not. That did not come for at least six weeks later, may be two months.

Q. So as far as the local here is concerned, had they anything to do with affiliation? — A. We knew nothing until we got our regular mail advice.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I understand the American Labour Union has taken up the fight on your behalf? — A. I hope they have. I have heard it stated from C.P.R. sources that they have declared the C.P.R. unfair from one end to the other.

Q. Is that statement made in any of your papers? — A. I have never seen it in any.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Is your organization responsible for some criticism of the Commissioners in the 'Western Clarion'? — A. There is nothing in the 'Western Clarion' that has anything of the U.B.R.E. except the first three columns on the left-hand side of the front page. We have no editorial space.

Q. As far as you know there is nothing in the way of criticism of the Commissioners authorized by the U.B.R.E.? — A. No.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. By the way, Mr. Dennison, apropos of that socialism, let me read you a little from the preamble of the constitution of the American Labour Union:

'Believing that the time has come for undivided independent working class political action, we hereby declare in favour of International socialism, and adopt the platform of the socialist party of America in its entirety as the political platform of the American Labour Union, and we earnestly appeal to all members of the American Labour Union and the working class in general, to be governed by these provisions.'

That would look like socialism? — A. You must produce the platform before you talk about socialism. There is such a thing as revolutionary socialism and evolutionary socialism.

P. G. DENNISON—Vancouver, June 8.
Vancouver, June 9, 1903.

Prior to the time set for opening of sittings, counsel on both sides were called into the Commissioners' room to discuss the question of privileged documents. Subsequently their witnesses are also called in and the day was taken up in discussing a settlement.

Vancouver, June 10, 1903.

Mr. Bird.—I regret to have to report that the settlement that was proposed has not yet been accepted by the U.B.R.E.; that the further consideration of the matter had to be postponed until five o'clock this afternoon, on account of the short time necessary to get the men together. I trust that a full representative meeting may be held this evening, and that the matter may be definitely decided, so that the further prosecution, in an effective manner at all events, of this inquiry may be dispensed with.

It has been urged by my learned friend that the American Labour Union is affiliated with the U.B.R.E., and a copy of the constitution has been filed in support of his contention that this body is governed by revolutionary socialists principally. This is not recognized in the constitution, but its sentiments are probably entertained by some of the members of the union, and I think it might safely be admitted that labouring men, particularly in the province of British Columbia, look on revolutionary socialism as some means of gaining freedom which under the present system they are gradually being deprived of by railway and coal companies. I propose, if it meets with Your Honour's wishes, to call a revolutionary socialist or two to explain their views.

His Lordship.—I have no doubt that would be the best thing, under the circumstances at all events, someone who will refrain from dealing with the matters in direct issue. We would like to have the other side, too—the trade unionist standpoint.

Mr. Bird.—I think we will be able to get some information on that point as well.

George Dales, sworn.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. You are the editor of the 'Western Clarion'?—A. I am, yes.
Q. What are your politics, Mr. Dales?—A. I am a socialist.
Q. Have you been connected with other labour papers in Canada?—A. Yes, I was associate editor of the Winnipeg 'Voice' for between five and six years.
Q. And you took the position of editor of the 'Western Clarion' this spring?—A. No, February of this year.
Q. There are socialists who style themselves by different names, are there not?—A. Well, there are parties styling themselves by different names, but I should not agree in the idea that they are socialists.
Q. What do you understand by revolutionary socialism?—A. My conception of socialism is, that it is essentially revolutionary. There can be no intelligent or logical conception of socialism apart from a revolution, inasmuch as it seeks to change the economic structure of society, and the word is used in that sense.

George Dales—Vancouver, June 19.
Q. Well, using the word revolution, you don’t necessarily refer to such a revolution as would have to resort to arms?—A. Certainly not; the same sense as you would speak of a Democrat, or any other party. In the sense of a complete change of the economic structure of society.

Q. It has no particular significance referring to revolution, such as the French revolution?—A. Certainly not. That was only a partial revolution, anyway. Of course, that was advancing society by a stage, but it was only between two particular classes, not between the people.

Q. You say that that revolution put the reins of government into the power of the middle classes?—A. Into the hands of a class who now wield it—the middle class.

Q. So far as English society is concerned, has there been a similar revolution accomplished without resort to arms?—A. To a greater or less extent. It is common to all changes to society that there shall be more or less violence, but the word revolution in connection with socialism is not used in that sense, though it does not necessarily exclude it. We have to take our changes in the evolution of events.

Q. Do you distinguish between evolutionary and revolutionary socialism?—A. To my mind, it is a confusion of terms altogether, seeing that socialism anticipates such a sweeping and complete change. The revolution contemplated by socialism rounds off a period in history.

Q. Evolution you claim to be in effect and force?—A. Evolution, certainly; we must conceive that from the conclusions of science.

Q. When do you say that modern socialism had its rise?—A. About the middle of last century, that is, in contradistinction from Utopian socialism, which occupied the mind of the public in the previous century.

Q. Emanating from what particular source did modern socialism arise?—A. Speaking nationally, largely from a German source. Marx Engels and La Salle are regarded as classic authors of modern socialism. Marx is regarded as the founder, above all other men, of socialism.

Q. As a matter of fact all his data refers mostly to British industry?—A. Yes, he took his inspiration from the fact that England was more capitalistically advanced. It furnished the best data for forming his conclusions.

Q. Taking socialism as contradistinguished from capitalism, is there any line of interest or is there a necessary conflict between these two?—A. It is very apparent, both from study and experience, that there is an antagonism that can never be overcome or included in a united interest, that is between capitalists and workers. Socialism divides society into two classes.

Q. You say there is no unity between these two?—A. Only a partial unity, an exceptional one maybe but not a necessary one.

Q. So far as a capitalist or employer of labour is concerned his interests are opposed to labour?—A. Necessarily an underhanging antagonizing influence.

Q. As far as labour is concerned it is dealt with merely as a commodity by capitalists?—A. Yes, labour has been reduced absolutely to a commodity, as can be easily proved.

Q. Is labour the creator of all wealth?—A. That is our stand, and I believe the only one, unless someone can suggest some other source of wealth.

Q. Then apparently the creations of labour have become more powerful than the labour?—A. Yes, the tools of production in the hands of capitalists control the labour, as was not the case under the handicraft system.

Q. There was a time before the introduction of steam and electricity when men controlled their own implements of manufacture?—A. Yes.

Q. And what would you say as to the tendency of modern trusts and combines?—A. To more completely enslave labour by absorbing the greater amount of the products of labour.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
Q. What is the position with relation to capital and labour to-day?—A. The position to-day, as we have abundant evidence, is antagonistic. We have strikes practically everywhere.

Q. In what relation does the trade union stand between labour and capital?—A. As a kind of buffer, growing less effectual.

Q. Are you a trades unionist?—A. No, I never worked at a trade that would entitled me to be a member of a trade union.

Q. You are not a member of the Typographical Union?—A. No, I am not.

Q. What are the main principles of trade unions?—A. Well, the first, of course, is the principle of association. Men on the introduction of machinery and the consequent division of labour—of course we must date all exploitation from the introduction of machinery and the consequent division of labour—exploitation was hardly possible under the old handicraft system. A man controlled his own tools and consequently controlled to a certain extent the result. Under the old guild system there was undoubtedly a unity of interests between the master and the workmen. In most cases the master took but little toll from the production of his journeymen. But on the introduction of machinery and industry on a large scale the field for exploitation naturally opened out, and the workers began to feel the necessity for combination. The present form of trade union, while it is in history connected with the guilds, really occurred with the history of capitalism. Of course it was very naturally passed by a clause in the legislature in the early part of the last century. It was hardly settled until about the third decade of the last century.

Q. According to your statement trade unionism officiates in an intermediate capacity between the capitalist system and some system towards which you are looking?—A. Operating entirely in the realm of industry, it becomes less and less effectual as capitalism gets an increasing control over political and other institutions.

Q. Take for instance our own province, what do you say about political conditions in this province?—A. I am a comparatively new citizen of this province, and I think I have had some opportunity for observation, and conditions here are a little more advanced, inasmuch as capitalism is further advanced and somewhat different from central Canada. I find here what I would expect to find, greater antagonism between capital and labour.

Q. And you mean because capital is further developed?—A. Yes, I mean that the staple industries of this province such as mining, lumbering and fishing, are almost exclusively controlled by the capitalist class. There is nothing in any middle class such as we have in central Canada, little farmers and so on.

Q. And that is why you account for the condition of labour in British Columbia?—A. That is how I account for it according to the theory of socialism. There is necessarily some of that owing to the form of industry.

Q. Do you think that trade unionism offers any substantial remedy for the present condition of affairs?—A. I think its possibilities are practically limited, inasmuch as trade unions think that social justice can be established within the limits of the wage system, an idea that is exploded altogether by advanced sociologists seeing that capital absorbs the ever-increasing production of the products of labour.

Q. What is your contention as to the products of labour—that these products are not properly distributed to-day?—A. Certainly not. According to one of our doctrines, we believe that the product belongs to the producer, and that the capitalist is becoming more and more detached from the operation of industry, and is now becoming absolutely unnecessary. What I mean is that rent, interest and profit, which is the tripod on which our economic system rests, are not necessary to production. All that is intrinsically necessary is labour and natural production, and it follows that the product belongs to the producers. The capitalist class are distinctly privileged by every law which they themselves have made. It is the result of the domination of the middle class. They are naturally different from the line of any class that had domination in Europe. There was between them and the classes connected with them a feeling of responsibility. There is nothing but a money connection between the capitalist class, who control, and the producing class—what we call a cash-nexus.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.

Q. You say the present system has established an aristocracy of money?—A. I don't think any one can dispute that.

Q. It is, practically in the United States?—A. Having control of practically every industry. An aristocracy more odious than ever existed before in human society, to my mind.

Q. Is there any tendency among unions to advance in the direction of political action?—A. Yes, it is indicated on every side, both in America and Europe, particularly in the case of the Western Federation of Miners and the American Labour Union. They have avowed themselves in favour of strenuous political action.

Q. They have adopted as a political platform what particular political party?—A. The socialist party, necessarily, as a working class party.

Q. What do you say as to the Democratic party in the United States?—A. It is simply another section of the capitalist party, with no essential principle dividing them.

Q. From the Republican party?—A. Yes.

Q. You say as far as it is concerned, it is for what?—A. For plunder. They correspond exactly with our Conservative and Liberal party.

Q. You think the claim of the Liberal party to be a labour party in Canada is not well founded?—A. I think no reasonable person could ever claim that, looking on their actions, and even their professions.

By His Lordship:

Q. There is no party that has the interests of the labour people at heart except the Socialists?—A. Necessarily, inasmuch as there is no party that professes to understand their position or aspirations.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. The Liberal party of the Dominion claim they have passed more legislation in the interest of labour than any political party has attempted before?—A. Yes, but what are the results? Do we find industrial conditions any better for it? Do we find wages raised, except to a limited extent, except to those things directly under the government's control? In the public works, for instance, there has been some little modification of the trouble in that respect.

Q. How does the cost of living compare with the rate of wages paid in regard to the public works?—A. The government only contend for the current rate of wages obtaining in the district in which the work is being carried out—for the union local rate.

Q. Where do you find the most advanced type of unionism; I am just asking you the general question?—A. The most advanced and intelligent kind of unionism would be found in Germany and France, especially in Germany, where the labour movement has, from the beginning been associated with the political movement. The rise of socialism and unionism—that is as to industrial production, are contemporaneous in Germany.

Q. Heretofore in Great Britain, Canada and the United States has unionism been usually associated with political action?—A. Not directly. Of course it is beginning to move now. In the preamble of the constitution many of the unions are enjoined to study politics.

Q. As a matter of fact it has been an established fact that there should be no politics in the unions?—A. That means of more active politics—not to exclude abstract economic and social questions.

Q. Has it not been established as a principle by the Dominion Trades Congress or other recognized bodies of labour men that labour leaders appearing on a public platform in support of either of the capitalist parties as you call them is looked upon with some degree of doubt?—A. I think so.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. What would you say was the fundamental principle underlying that?—A. Their distrust of the capitalist parties from their previous experience and observation.

Q. The Alien Labour Law—is that a fair sample of capitalist legislation in favour of the labouring classes?—A. Yes, both of legislative and administrative.

Q. Can you give us a general estimate of that Act as entertained by the labour unions?—A. I believe the bulk of them regard it with indifference, and a good many with contempt. It has been practically inoperative since it was passed. I have heard it from the lips of men who have been entrusted with its administration who have told me they have been tied by departmental instructions which prevented them doing anything.

By His Lordship:

Q. Do you mean to say the operation of the laws thwarted by the action of government officials?—A. No, not by government officials, but I believe they are so tramelled by instructions that it is impossible to make it effective.

Q. But the law can be set in motion by any man affected by it?—A. It is not easy for the labour men to do. If there had been any real desire to help the men the department itself would have enforced it.

Q. It is an Act for the benefit of trade unions—surely they should take the trouble of seeing it enforced?—A. If it is passed for the benefit of trade unions its administration should be administered by the department.

Q. If you get attacked on the street there is no government official bound to take up your case. You go to a police magistrate and lay information. Why should you not lay information when there is a violation of the Alien Labour Law?—A. I am not well acquainted with the rules that govern that particular law, but I understand from persons who have known something of it that it is very ineffective.

Mr. Bird.—I desire to file some correspondence between Charles Wilson, K.C., written for the U.B.R.E., to Sir Charles Tupper in an attempt to get the Alien Labour Act enforced. The effect of the correspondence is that Mr. Wilson advised the U. B. R.E. that the whole Act is practically a dead letter and advising them to give up any attempt, that there are not in a position, financially or otherwise, to enforce the Act.

(Letter, Chas. Wilson, K.C., to F. J. Halton, and Sir Charles Tupper to Chas. Wilson, put in as Exhibits numbered 60 and 61 respectively.)

His Lordship.—Are you sure that Sir Charles Tupper saw the Minister of Labour?

Mr. Bird.—I have only the correspondence.

His Lordship.—I cannot see how that can be admissible. If you could show us some correspondence between Mr. Wilson and the Minister of Labour it would be different, but not as to correspondence between two unofficial persons without showing that there has been some correspondence between official persons. Why not show us that Sir Charles Tupper has interviewed the Minister or some member of the government. Perhaps Mr. King can tell us?

Mr. King.—I know as a matter of fact that the Department of Labour has never been appealed to. If an appeal had been made the department would have replied that an action could be taken by the parties themselves. The law was amended in that form in order to that action from Ottawa would be unnecessary. And it is so. I know, as a matter of fact, that no communication has come in regard to the Alien Labour Law in connection with this matter. The correspondence, I think, does not mention the Minister of Labour but the Solicitor-General, if am rightly informed.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. What effect would the affiliation between the U.B.R.E. and the American Labour Union have upon the former organization?—A. The effect upon the U.B.R.E.?
MINUTES OF EVIDENCE OF ROYAL COMMISSION

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

Well, in the first place it would naturally strengthen them by being affiliated with a large and progressive body of workers—strengthen them financially and benefit them all round.

Q. Would the members of one organization, necessarily, by affiliating be pledged to one another?—A. You mean by having in the preamble the socialist policy?

Q. Yes?—A. No, I don't think that would necessarily embrace it. Being in the preamble the principles are not emphasized necessarily upon every trade, any more than our British Columbia legislature is a Christian institution. It is opened by prayers, but it doesn't deal with every principle. There is no doubt that the fact of being associated with the American Labour Union having a socialistic programme in its preamble would suggest the idea that every man was committed to hard and fast socialism. I don't think that view is fair at all. There is no doubt that a number of the members of the A. L. U. are socialists, but it is one of the general principles, although they do their best to urge their members to look to the final remedy, to exercise their own citizenship politically.

Q. I understand it is in contemplation of the socialists to substitute instead of the present wage system some other system whereby the labourers, the producers may be remunerated. Will you kindly briefly emphasize what you desire to emphasize in respect of these conditions?—A. Well, the alternative principle to individualism and capitalism is co-operation—common enjoyment of common property. Wealth is now socially produced; it is impossible for one man to say what he does produce. It is impossible to equitably value a man's own production. No other alternative with the elements of justice in it is possible.

Q. You talk about production. Has production, as contradistinguished from distribution, proceeded further than any distribution of wealth?—A. Well, in production industry has proceeded to an almost incalculable extent through socialist industry, but the appropriation of profits remains as individualistic as it was a century and a half ago except in exceptional cases.

Q. The tendency in modern production in the United States is to gather into gigantic trusts and corporations all similar capitalistic concerns?—A. Undoubtedly.

Q. The tendency of socialism would be in the same direction. You recognize that the tendency of production in the United States by these trusts is in the direction of socialism?—A. Yes, in this form.

Q. Socialism fully realized would be carrying into effect in one gigantic organization control of the entire production system of the country?—A. It would undoubtedly facilitate the transition.

Q. When that state is reached, the production would be centralized to the extent that the socialist party desires?—A. Not necessarily. Centralization and absorption goes on now with no regard to anything but making a profit.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. If you have obtained a complete centralization of all production, under what system of distribution is it suggested?—A. Well, a man would be rewarded, I presume. That is no essential part of socialism how the wealth will be exactly distributed. It will be upon the plan found most advantageous to the whole community, but as to the exact form a man would be very cautious before he committed himself to any exact method.

Q. Is that an insupportable objection to the idealistic system which you are looking for?—A. I don't see that. If it does not accomplish more equitably than the numerous disparities which exist between wealth now, it would not have much to recommend it.

Q. Take the management of the C.P.R. We will assume my facts are correct. They have a superintendent of employees all along the line. They pay them money—an arbitrary rate of wages governed by local conditions. There would be, under cooperative commonwealth, similar distribution of labour. There would be superintendents of the several classes of labour?—A. Yes.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.

Q. It is contemplated that they should receive equal remuneration?—A. I don't see why they should not as long as there is abundance for everybody. The different wage with professions to-day result from the commodity production. So long as that commodity production lasts we shall have a different wage, which is part of the same system. We have made merchandise of everything—men, women and children—and we have become so brutalized that we cannot conceive of any other satisfaction than that of money.

Q. Under the conditions such as you dream of, there would be remuneration?—A. Undoubtedly, and ample remuneration for everybody.

By His Lordship:

Q. What kind of remuneration?—A. Material returns for services rendered.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. We are assuming that all would be provided with at least the necessities of life; over and above that would there be remuneration?—A. I think a man who would desire more than necessary than to give him a relatively better position in society than another—that is a wish not deserving of respect.

Q. It is claimed against socialism that the ordinary incitement to effort would be gone, that man must have a continual bribe in order to make him at his best?—A. It arises from the cause, I think, that we have come to think of no remuneration except that of money, that labour can only be rewarded in money.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. In your opinion, do men in important branches of work receive equal remuneration?—A. I believe not.

Q. What departments of important work receive small remuneration in the matter of education?—A. Particularly in the remuneration of art, science and literature. I think they are the three worst rewarded classes, relatively, in society.

By His Lordship:

Q. There are a number of inventors who are millionaires?—A. There are a great many more who have been made millionaires out of the inventors.

Q. Take the man who invented the telephone—he is a millionaire?—A. Bell?

Mr. Rowe.—I understand he is in poverty.

His Lordship.—That might be through over-speculation.

Witness.—Edison is an inventor who is not regarded as wealthy.

His Lordship.—He is wealthier than you and I.

Mr. Rowe.—That might not imply much.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Do you think such a state of society would be any solution of, say, the liquor problem, which is very materially affecting the labouring class?—A. Undoubtedly it would deal with the liquor problem. It is only a secondary matter, of course. It would not undertake to make every drunkard sober. But it would arrange the thing so that the best interests of all would be conserved.

Q. Would the elimination of profit be a good thing?—A. There is no more moral necessity for profit than there is for arson or small-pox. It is not necessary for production.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Do you think one nation could adopt socialism and continue to do business with others?—A. No, it is necessarily a national conception. It would not necessarily obliterate the national line. Ultimately, possibly it might.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. What do you say as to the charge against socialism that it intends doing away with the military system—is that a just one?—A. I hardly understand you.

By His Lordship:

Q. Is socialism incompatible with patriotism?—A. If by that is meant racial patriotism that is pumped into boys and girls, it would necessarily. It does not imply necessarily the sweeping away of racial or political lines. But it would establish a co-operation and fraternalism in the course of time.

Q. It has the disarmament of the world as one of its methods?—A. Yes.

Q. And carry into effect the dream of the former Czar of Russia—that might be obtained?—A. Yes, but these things are not necessarily a part of the teachings of socialism, but it is correct to suppose that it looks to the dissolution of war and the establishment of peace.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Don't you think if men were so that such a condition of society could exist that necessarily war would cease?—A. Undoubtedly, if men were so.

Q. That is to say, if socialism were possible, then war would be impossible?—A. No, they could not co-exist together. One implies a negation of the other.

Q. Then you would not hope for socialism until there was a condition of mind that made war impossible?—A. Until there was a common conception on the part of all mankind of their social relation with each other.

Q. Which would be largely a process of temperament and could not be brought by legislation?—A. Temperament and legislation combined in unity. Socialism would support any legislation that was in the right direction.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. What is the position of socialists in regard to natural resources such as coal mines, and then as regards developed industry such as great national highways?—A. Naturally those, whilst the most prominent, are included with the means of production generally. Having been created by social labour, they should be a social possession.

Q. That would apply to the wealth from any mine, and so on. Socialists claim, I suppose, that this is an inheritance to the people and should not belong to any individual?—A. Certainly not.

Q. Should be retained entirely to be worked by the people for the people?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. As far as the natural resources are concerned, the socialists claim that for the whole people?—A. Yes.

Q. Would you say it would be possible for a country to advance under a system of that kind, that capitalists would be required to go into the country for producing that wealth?—A. It certainly could not be under a capitalistic system. We are in that position now. We may have the greatest abundance of labour and could not do anything without money. We have come to regard capital as intrinsically necessary for production, and it is not. The two factors are labour and natural opportunity.

Q. Is money as a circulating medium a necessity under the socialist condition?—A. Certainly not. A medium of exchange is, of course.

Q. How are the labourers to be sustained until this wealth is made available? Take the opening of a coal mine, for instance. The capitalist may not be necessary, but the capital is surely?—A. He does it by virtue of greed.
Q. What I mean is that the government assume to do this, could advance money for the development of mines and enjoy the profits of the operation?—A. Oh, undoubtedly, but all the government itself now has been under the capitalist form.

Q. Yes, but the result is the same to the people; they enjoy the production?—A. Practically. The only advantage of state ownership is that it gives the public mind the idea of no political defects. We have an instance in the I. C. R. The conditions of employment, and the rates obtained there are pretty much the same as on the C.P.R. or any other system. Whilst there might be some advantages, political or otherwise, it is no substantial benefit to the community.

By His Lordship:

Q. How would that be improved by socialism?—A. It would be expropriated by the people.

Q. Yes, but it is owned by the people?—A. Yes, but interest is payable on the cost of it.

Q. Would you repudiate the interest?—A. I suppose they would be appropriating the industry.

Q. And one of the doctrines of socialism is confiscation, is it?—A. Restitution. Confiscation has been proceeding very rapidly now for centuries.

Q. Restitution to whom?—A. To the people whom the country and all its works belongs, to the class who produce.

Q. It seems to me it is a restitution to the people who have not produced.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. You say all wealth is produced by labour; how do you define labour?—A. I take rather a wide view; I would say every useful human activity; everything that conduces to the welfare of the community.

Q. What are the two classes?—A. The owning or presiding class and the useful class.

Q. Take, in the case of corporations like the C.P.R., what would be the members of the one class and one of the other in that connection?—A. We should discriminate distinctly between the stockholders and those who were administering the railway.

Q. The capitalist class in that case would be the stockholders?—A. The logical conclusion, apart from those who operate and those who use the railway.

Q. The class of labour would extend from the highest to the lowest position in the company?—A. It would mean the services of every man necessary to maintain the industry—they would all be workers.

Q. You spoke of the middle class. How would you describe the middle class today?—A. That has reference more to European communities. The middle class, as spoken of historically and socially is the class between the workers and the aristocratic class, but the governing class in this country corresponds to the middle class in Europe, I would think.

Q. What would you do, first speaking as a socialist, supposing you say they should take political action. How would socialists proceed if the power was in their hands?—A. That is a speculation I would not like to indulge in. I have no doubt it would depend on the condition of things for the time being.

Q. I don’t ask in a contentious spirit at all. What are the intermediate steps—legislative steps?—A. Well, the first thing a socialist would be pledged to in the legislature would be to do all he could to benefit labour by advancement of wages, shortening of hours, &c. Dealing with improved conditions and greater leisure would result in men coming to a more rational conclusion. At the same time, collective ownership of the means of production.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
MINUTES OF EVIDENCE OF ROYAL COMMISSION

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

By His Lordship:

Q. The amelioration of existing conditions has been brought about by men who were not socialists?—A. Undoubtedly under pressure from the working classes. My observation in England was that it was under extreme pressure from the working men, never voluntary.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Would you say that of the factory Acts?—A. Probably with the exception of Lord Shaftesbury. There is a similar factor at work in all classes of society.

Q. Then the socialist believes in progressive legislation?—A. He is in favour of progressive legislation so long as it leads directly to his goal.

By His Lordship:

Q. What is the actual goal to be obtained?—A. The collective ownership of all the means of production following necessarily from the socialist condition of industry.

Q. Does that involve equitable distribution?—A. It would involve equitable distribution, and probably equal.

Q. Who is to decide on these matters, as to how they should be divided?—A. I suppose the people would find their methods in some legislative body. There is no doubt that government could consist far more of administration than legislation.

Q. One of the difficulties I imagine that is in the way of socialists is that the majority of the people do not understand the objects to be attained, or that socialists cannot point out any distinct object that can be obtained?—A. It seems to me that the object is clear enough—that what is socially produced should be socially enjoyed.

Q. It is all right to indulge in these cloud-raising phrases, but what we would like is something that could be seen. What we want to know is the exact mode that will bring about this?—A. That is asking what might occur in twenty years time. I think no one could say what will happen twenty years since. We are satisfied for the time being with promulgating our principles, trusting to the future to work out the details.

Q. The object is to secure equitable distribution?—A. Yes.

Q. Does that mean equal distribution?—A. An equitable distribution would involve probably equal distribution, but I would not commit myself to that. Seeing that a man's needs are practically equal whether the man works on a contract or presides over the contracts, he wants about the same needs. He wants a bed just the same and three meals a day. There would not seem to me to be anything very extreme about an absolute equality.

Q. I suppose the socialist does not want to commit himself to any condition in the hope that there may be a better condition that he could adopt?—A. That is one reason.

Q. You would not suggest that all men should have the same kind of shack, live in the same bed, and have the same tooth brush?—A. Certainly not.

Q. It seems to me if that is the golden effect of socialism the world would be one vast lunatic asylum?

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Do you think that men are generally in the best positions they are fitted for in society?—A. No, a man is forced by economic circumstances to take whatever he can get.

Q. Do you think a man will have better opportunities for being in a position that he is better fitted for?—A. I do.

Q. Does the plan of socialism involve the destruction of the present system of society, such as the home?—A. Not by any means, rather tends to preserve the home. Conditions now are decidedly against the institution of home.

Q. Is marriage compatible with socialism?—A. Undoubtedly.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
Q. Is it regarded as a permanent institution by socialists generally? — A. Men differ much as to that. It is a subject largely discussed. It is evidently the best form of domestic life at the present time.

By His Lordship:

Q. In this Utopian scheme, because that is what it seems to me to be, would it be permissible for one man to live in a $50,000 house and another in a $500 one? — A. Some men’s aspirations run to houses, some to other things.

Q. I want to get an idea from you as a representative socialist just what your idea is. Could some men live in a fine house and others not? — A. Certainly, if they chose to spend their means that way.

Q. Then you admit it would be possible under the socialist system for some to accumulate more than others? — A. Some men would spend and others accumulate, but there would be no possibility of one man exploiting anything or making a profit out of one man’s work.

Q. I suppose it naturally remains that some would be idlers? — A. Yes.

Q. What would you with them? — A. Pretty much as now.

Q. You would have jails? — A. No. Some of them, the idlers, are pretty well cared for. We should not look upon poverty as a crime.

Q. I am talking of men who won’t work? — A. He would be regarded as insane, I believe. I don’t think that class is as bad as some people think. It is not work that men shirk.

Q. What would be the inducement under your system for a man to work? — A. In order to live.

Q. What would be the inducement for him to spend his full energy? — A. The idea that he would benefit society.

Q. Do you think that would be strong enough to keep him? — A. I think it has actuated all the best men who have ever lived.

Q. Do you think that all workmen should be in a separate political organization? — A. I think it is high time that organized labour should recognize its opportunities and decide for intelligent political action.

Q. What do you think is most productive of the spread of socialism among union men—successful or unsuccessful unionism? — A. No doubt as they come to see its limits and ineffectiveness beyond a certain point, it might be said, its ineffectiveness.

Q. Do you think recognition of unions by employers is calculated to produce socialism, or the opposite? — A. Well, for the time being, no doubt the disappointed man would more easily turn socialist. The man who was granted recognition on reasonable terms might for a time be contented.

Q. Don’t you think it injurious for men to adopt a political creed through a spirit of resentment and disappointment? Would it not be better to have them urge it by intelligent progress rather than driven to it under compulsion? — A. I think necessity has always been the advancement and improvement. They will simply adapt themselves to any line according to necessity.

Q. Having regard to the general necessity, would it not be better for socialists to proceed from the intelligence of men rather than by exciting their animosity? — A. Undoubtedly, and I think that is the usual way.

Q. Do you think it contributes to the benefit of society generally, or must we use what I was going to call strong language, having reference to the other classes of society? — A. Extreme cases sometimes call for strong language, but so long as it is logical and truthful it should be tolerated.

Q. Referring again to this doctrine of confiscation, supposing the socialists were in a position to acquire the C. P. R., I mean by virtue of political power, would it be right to take that railway over without paying the stockholders who are in Europe? — A. Inasmuch as it has been created out of the natural wealth of Canada, and by the labour in Canada, and used by the people in Canada, I think, it would be perfectly just to expropriate it.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.

Q. You understand that there are people of moderate means in Holland having money invested in connection with the building of the railway?—A. I don't think any injustice would be done. I speak more particularly of the men who have made their money without production.

Q. Would it be right to expropriate the money of the common people of Holland, which has been put in on the honesty of the company?—A. I think it would be right.

Q. Then, I gather that the matter of contract is a very small matter with socialists, that when a socialist considers a contract is unfair he is quite ready to repudiate it?

A. It is always, to my mind, safe to repudiate wrong.

Q. There is not much faith to be put on the contract of socialists?—A. That is a matter of opinion.

Q. Well, I gather that from what you say. And it is somewhat remarkable, Mr. Dales, in the case of contracts that have been entered into with unions that are socialist in their position, that it seems to be a matter of some difficulty to get these bodies to stand by their contracts. I simply want to get the idea of a representative socialist like yourself?—A. I don't claim to be that. If you wish to impute that a socialist repudiates any agreement that he has conscientiously and intelligently subscribed to, I wish to repudiate any such suggestion. My own experience amongst socialists and others is that the word of a socialist is as good at any rate as that of other men. They don't claim any moral superiority, but the obligation to their principles would involve things that a capitalist would look on as a breach of contract undoubtedly.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. You say a capitalist would look on it as a breach of contract, why not a socialist? Give us an instance.

By His Lordship:

Q. There is a large sum of money taken out of a foreign country, loaned on the faith of the people that they would return it, and yet you as a socialist on requirement of that railway would repudiate that debt?—A. To come to an intelligent and equitable adjustment of that, we would have to inquire how the money was made.

Q. What difference would it make to you how it was made, provided it was borrowed from these people in Holland?—A. The people in Holland would not be in a different position from any one here.

Q. You think it would be right to take the money from the people in Holland and repudiate that debt?—A. The interests of the few and a section of the community are always subservient to the welfare of the whole. If a contract to which the people of Canada have not acceded has been made as against their interests, they would be justified in repudiating it.

Q. And upon the same principle, a contract entered into with a union, if it has been entered into inadvisedly by the officers of the union, would, on the same principle, be repudiated without any moral wrong?—A. Not necessarily. There is a very essential difference between the two cases.

Q. I fail to see it?—A. One is a contract to which the men are intelligently and understandably entering into themselves and are morally bound to respect.

Q. They may have entered into it under pressure and necessity?—A. I would not try to defend any union breaking its contract.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I suppose you distinguish between a contract that binds the people and one that binds the people to make it on posterity?—A. Certainly.

His Lordship.—You would have great difficulty in determining the time at which posterity began.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Is the doctrine of confiscation, as set forth by you, generally obtaining among socialists?—A. I think so, although there are various suggestions made for transferring capitalist wealth to the working classes or to the useful class. For instance, Robert Blatchford, a very representative man, suggests that ownership terminate by death, and there are various forms of increasing taxation and extending succession duties.

Q. Would you assume that the succession duties and certain systems of taxes are systems of confiscation?—A. There is direct confiscation in compelling succession duties.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. On the whole, Mr. Dales, your explanation of socialism is what is usually understood by socialism in the usual acceptance of the term?—A. Of course, I am speaking for myself, but I think it represents a very large section of the socialist party.

Q. You say that socialism does not necessarily exclude violence. What is your attitude with reference to the question of violence?—A. In stating that, I had no suggestion that any violence was contemplated or formed any part of the socialist plan.

Q. What is your attitude with reference to violence?—A. I am entirely opposed to it.

Q. That is, if you got your desire as you outlined your theory, if that could not be obtained except by violence, you would let it go?—A. I was speaking from an historical standpoint. No revolution has ever been completed without more or less violence. The object of the socialist party will be to complete a peaceful transfer.

Q. I am not speaking about historical revolution. We know about that in history. I mean what would your doctrine and that of the socialist party you represent be towards the question of violence?—A. I say I am opposed to it; I am in favour of a constitutional method.

Q. And if you cannot obtain your goal without violence, you will give it up?—A. That is something that does not present itself.

Q. If you cannot get your goal without violence, will you use violence?—A. If force were necessary to institute justice it would and has been inseparable from movements—

Q. If force is necessary to obtain justice you will use force?—A. Justice is based on force.

Q. If it is necessary to use force would you, to obtain what you consider justice, use force?—A. Certainly, as soon as there was an opportunity for a successful issue, it is impossible to do otherwise.

Q. If you cannot obtain your goal without force, you will use force?—A. I suppose so.

Q. And as a matter of fact, from the doctrines that you promulgate, it is almost impossible to hope for this attainment without force?—A. On the contrary, the probabilities are strongly in the reverse direction.

Q. As I understand your theory for obtaining possession of these trusts, we will call them—what I mean is, large institutions such as railways, coal lands, smelting works, &c., which you think should be operated by the government, is what you call confiscation without appropriation, is that not so?—A. So far as it is for the benefit of the whole community.

Q. So far as it is necessary to obtain them at all?—A. One implies the other necessarily.

Q. Your theory of socialism is that all these should be owned by the state?—A. No, by the community in common.

Q. You say the 'community'; I mean the same thing when I use the word 'state'?—A. There is quite a difference.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 19.
Q. It is your theory that the community should own all these commodities?—A. Certainly, yes.

"By His Lordship:

Q. What do you mean by community; the whole country, or a section of it?—A. The whole people—a common ownership.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. What is the difference between that and state?—A. The state is only the functionary head of the community. The common property would be vested in the people rather than the government.

Q. That is the theory of all governments, only in the English government it is called ‘Majesty,’ in the States ‘The People,’ just in these words exactly. There is no use in our differing about terms.

By His Lordship:

Q. You mean public ownership?—A. Common ownership on behalf of the people.

Mr. Davis.—Government ownership would be ownership of the people.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. The essentials of your theory would have to be different?—A. I imagine it would work a great revolution in the form of government. It would become more administrative than legislative.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. What is your idea of the change of government which you would bring about?—A. Do you mean in the form?

Q. You say there ought to be a change of government?—A. It would be more administrative and less legislative.

Q. Will you please put that into some specific language. I don’t know exactly what that means myself?—A. To-day we are regulated by a multiplicity of laws that could not be except for antagonisms in society. These, to my mind, arise from the lack of a proper appreciation of right relationship between men. The socialists anticipate in the future, when matters are adjusted in relationship to each other, there will be less government according to statute law; that general principles will take the place, to a large extent, of statute law.

Q. All you mean by change of government is change of statute law?—A. Not necessarily.

Q. What more than that? What other change do you expect?—A. I believe it would be very largely decentralized.

Q. In what respect do you wish to decentralize it?—A. I mean that a greater autonomy would be granted to municipalities and localities.

Q. In what respects? What do you complain about in the province? What lack of power in the municipalities? What greater power would you give?—A. I would give them power to own the city.

Q. Is your theory as to the form of government of the ownership of property that each municipality should own all the territory within its limits?—A. Perhaps own would hardly be the correct word. They would have the right to administer it.

Q. Who would own it according to your theory?—A. The whole community.

Q. Who would represent the community?—A. Representatives, I presume.

Q. That would be the government, would it?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you propose to do away with government?—A. No.

Q. What is your objection to the word government?—A. I have no particular objection to the word government.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. The property would be owned by the government, according to your theory?—A. That would represent the people.

Q. That would be the government?—A. Yes.

Q. If you mean something by that, Mr. Dales, let us hear it. Would you change the form of government?—A. In many respects, no doubt.

Q. What?—A. By making the election laws more easily applied.

Q. That is not a change in the form of government; you will change the legislation. I understand you would rectify a great many things that are wrong. They are no doubt Utopian?—A. I object to the word Utopian.

Q. Do you advocate a change in the form of government?—A. Not necessarily. We advocate a change in the spirit and aim and purpose of the government.

Q. What is the spirit of government in a little hard to find out. We have been trying to find that out for a long time. But the form you would not change?—A. It would be the right form of government undoubtedly.

Q. Do you advocate a change of the present form of government?—A. Do you mean the executive?

Q. You are a newspaper man—don’t you understand what is meant by form of government?—A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you advocate a change in the form of government?—A. Our quarrel is very little with the form of government.

Q. Then, I understand you to say that practically you don’t advocate any change in the form of government?—A. No.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Would you have a king?—A. I don’t regard him as necessary.

Q. Do you advocate his abolition?—A. Not necessarily.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. You have no quarrel with the government as it exists to-day. The form of government is perfectly consistent with socialistic theory?—A. I hardly think it is.

Q. Then the socialists’ theory of government is not consistent with the idea of a monarchy?—A. No, I should not think it is, although we have no quarrel as to government at the time being.

Q. So if your theory were being applied to our country at the present time it would necessitate the doing away with the monarchical form of government?—A. Just as you say.

Q. Is it so?—A. I believe it would be so eventually.

Q. There is no other change in the form of government which you advocate? Is that right? Except what you were speaking of—that you would have it more decentralized?—A. No particular change in the form of government.

Q. You say the only change you have suggested as yet is that you would have the various municipalities own the property. You intend property to be owned by the government?—A. It is quite likely that municipalities and all local bodies would have a greater degree of autonomy in the administration.

Q. What I am asking is what you advocate, and when I say you I mean the socialist party?—A. You are asking for details of events that will probably happen in the future.

Q. If you say the socialists have no ideas on the subject, I won’t go further?—A. It seems, Mr. Davis, that you are trying to draw me out on some details that seem problematical.

Q. The question I started with was whether the socialists advocated any change in government. We found out that they do advocate the doing away with the monarchical form of government. Next we find out that they want more extensive powers to be given to municipalities. Now, I ask you what more extensive powers?—A. I say the power to administer the industries within the limits of their boundaries.

36a—424

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 20.
Q. That is the general idea, the main idea of socialism, that the government shall be the owners of all industries?—A. On behalf of the people. Not necessarily all industries. All that are socially carried out.

Q. What are these that the socialists say are necessary to be owned by the state?—A. All wealth socially produced.

Q. Tell me the industries that need not be owned by the state under your theory?—A. It is well known that practically all wealth is socially produced.

Q. I understand that the socialist idea is that all industries should be owned by the state. If there are any exceptions as you now admit, will you please tell me what they are?—A. I might mention the lawyers.

Q. I don't regard them as an industry. They are not industries?—A. It does not follow that individual initiative would be utterly excluded.

Q. Are there industries which, according to the socialists' doctrine ought to be excluded by the state?—A. No.

Q. Now, the central theory of socialists is that all industries should be owned by the state, and your idea is that the municipality should administer these industries?—A. Yes, in the interests of the entire community.

Q. The central government would not administer these at all, but they would be administered throughout the different municipalities?—A. According to general principles.

Q. But by the municipalities?—A. I believe that administration would be localized generally.

Q. They would not be administered by the government. For instance, all shingle factories administered by government under commission or something, but all the shingle factories here would be administered by this municipality, and so on?—A. Probably something like that, and not by individual owners.

Q. Not an administration by government, but by different municipalities?—A. Yes, by local bodies.

Q. Have you any theory as to changing municipalities?—A. Oh, no.

Q. Now, your idea being that all property is to be owned by the state, your second idea being that that property is to be acquired by the state without compensation—that is correct, is it not?—A. To be acquired by the state on behalf of the whole people.

Q. Don't you think it would be very difficult to carry out these theories without violence?—A. No, I don't.

Q. You think that the owners of property would tamely submit to their property being taken away?—A. Not perhaps very tamely submit. There would be resistance, no doubt, but I believe it would take, to a large extent, a peaceable form.

Q. Don't you think it would be a form of revolution—I mean a violent revolution?—A. No, I don't think so.

Q. You remember the American revolution arose out of a little tax on tea?—A. Yes.

Q. And you don't think that the taking away of all property of perhaps 50 per cent in the country would cause a revolution?—A. Do you think it reaches 50 per cent?

Q. Well, taking away property from the owners of that property, would not precipitate a revolution?—A. I don't think so, not necessarily a violent one.

Q. But if it did precipitate that revolution, you would be prepared to abide by this result?—A. We must be, we have no choice.

Q. You would carry it through in spite of the revolution?—A. I don't say that. I say I am in favour and believe that the revolutionary method will prevail.

Q. Then your idea of what is right is, as you said a little while ago, the interests of the majority?—A. The interests of the working and useful classes. I believe that when the legitimate claims of labour as the useful class are satisfied, there is no further legitimate interest in society to consider.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. And that must mean what the industrial and useful class, as you put it, consider to be their interests, must it not?—A. Yes.
Q. They will be the sole judges of what are their interests?—A. By the rule that society of all kinds rests upon.
Q. They will be the sole judges of what are their own interests?—A. We know of no law above majority rule.
Q. Are they to be the sole judges? If not, who is to be the judge?—A. The people themselves will judge.
Q. So that no matter what they decide is to be carried out?—A. Exactly as they do to-day.
Q. In taking away this property from people without compensation?—A. If an individual did that it would be stealing or highway robbery. It would be stealing, in the broad sense?—A. You are speaking of things as they are to-day.
Q. If an individual did it it would be to-day?—A. That is the logical interpretation of it.
Q. But if the industrial and useful classes considered it to be in their interests to take this property away, then it would be justifiable?—A. That is exactly how government operates to-day.
Q. That is, if the steal were wholesale it would be justifiable, but not if retail?—A. Certainly, if the interests of the community demanded.
Q. Then, the doctrine of socialism, if that is so, recognizes nothing above the laws passed by themselves?—A. By the majority.
Q. They cannot recognize any law of God as to right or wrong?—A. You are introducing a subject here which has no reference whatever to it.
Q. What is the attitude of socialism in that respect? Do they recognize any laws above or outside of the law of majority?—A. The attitude of the socialist is this with regard to property. I don’t know, you might as well ask me what it has to do with astrology.
Q. Do the socialists, or do they not, recognize any other law whatever than the law of the majority?—A. They are just like the rest of the community. There are all kinds of creeds held by socialists.
Q. Then, I understand that the socialists don’t know whether they recognize any law of the majority or not?—A. Just as much as the rest of the community. You might just as well ask me the colour of the hair of every socialist.
Q. That is getting a long way off. If you tell me you don’t know, and you can’t answer the question—A. I can answer the question with all the knowledge I have, and tell you there are men of all creeds. It is no necessary part of socialism.
Q. I asked you a simple question: Do the socialists in their theories, as you understand them, recognize any, and if so, what laws above or outside of the law of the majority, or are they the sole guardians of right and wrong?—A. You mean the socialists themselves, certainly.
Q. What does certainly mean, they do, or they do not?—A. They recognize no laws in respect of material things above natural laws.
Q. I am not limiting it. I want to know whether they recognize any other law?—A. They are like the rest of the community.
Q. So that as socialists themselves they have no view on the subject?—A. No.
Q. Then they would not know what to do if the law of majority as they understood contravened the divine law?—A. I can hardly understand how such a thing—
Q. I can give you an idea. Supposing the majority came to the conclusion that murder should be legal—consider executives to be imperfect or any other way you may take it. Would you justify such a law as that?—A. You are suggesting an extreme case.
Q. I am trying to find out whether the socialists recognize any law above the law of majority?—A. They are upholders of the moral law.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
Q. They don't recognize a law above the law of the majority?—A. Certainly not in practical affairs. You are confusing theory with practice.

Q. Would you consider laws that are passed practical affairs?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, you have just been advocating the passing of a law which would amount, to ordinary men, as nothing more than stealing. Supposing a law were passed making murder legal because it was passed by the majority?—A. Certainly not.

Q. Why do you draw a distinction between legalizing thieving and legalizing murder?—A. I would not regard it as thieving.

Q. The majority are to be the judges of right and wrong?—A. Yes.

Q. Then there can be no law?—A. Society rests upon the consent of its members.

Q. Your theory is, as I understand it, a good deal the same as that set out in Edward Bellamy's 'Looking Backward'?—A. No.

Q. The first thing is that all industries are to be owned by the state for the people—that is correct?—A. They are to be owned by the people collectively and administered by their representatives.

Q. Owned by the people and administered by the representatives of the people. Any profit arising from the administration of these industries will be equally divided among all the people?—A. I cannot tell you.

Q. What is the theory?—A. That the collective product will be used for the common benefit of the whole community.

Q. Cannot you give any closer view in theory as to how it should be divided?—A. I say for the benefit of the whole community, according to the common expression of opinion when such time arrives.

Q. The division of that money will be left in the hands of the representatives of the people?—A. Yes.

Q. You don't contemplate doing away with the legislature?—A. No.

Q. That the distribution of these profits is to be left in the hands of the legislature?—A. Not necessarily.

Q. Because if it did, I think the legislative assembly would get most of it?—A. Judging by what occurs in Victoria.

Q. How is it to be divided?—A. You might as well ask me about the weather. It will be divided according to the highest sense of justice prevailing in the community.

Q. Does the socialist doctrine vary like the weather?—A. No.

Q. Have the socialists any doctrine as to the disposal of these profits?—A. Not more than what I have said.

Q. Your highest sense of justice?—A. That of the reflected will of the people.

Q. That sounds awfully nice, but will you tell me how it is to be expressed?—A. Through their representatives.

Q. Then the distribution of this wealth is to be in the hands of the legislative assembly?—A. No.

Q. In whose hands?—A. Except as executive of the people.

Q. It is to left, as it were to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council?—A. No.

Q. What do you mean by executive?—A. I say the representatives of the people.

Q. Then in the hands of the legislative assembly to distribute?—A. Grant it so.

Q. They are to decide how these profits are to be divided up?—A. You are just speaking, Mr. Davis, as though the question would be reconsidered from time to time.

Q. I can easily understand that. Fresh assemblies would reconsider it?—A. Not unless the people voted.

Q. However, that is your idea, that these profits should be divided up in accordance with the wishes of the legislature——

HIS LORDSHIP.—They would be more liable to stay with the assembly than go to the people.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Do you think that would be any improvement on the present system of distribution of profits?—A. I think it would be.

Q. If you were existing at that time you would want to be in the assembly?—A. There is nothing to tempt me to that as far as I can see.

Q. Another fundamental principle I understand is that all men are equal. That is really the basis of the thing?—A. What do you mean by that, physically?

Q. Is that in accordance with your theory?—A. I believe all men should be socially classed as equal, but they are not physically, no doubt.

Q. In fact the statement that all men are equal is not true in any sense except as before the law. Are they in any other way?—A. Yes, they are practically equal in regard to their natural needs and desires.

Q. Are they equal in that respect?—A. I say they are practically equal.

Q. Did you ever meet any two people exactly the same?—A. No.

Q. Why do you say they are equal?—A. They are practically equal. The government could probably strike a balance that would satisfy them all—a balance for their physical needs, which are practically the same.

Q. Is that your idea of the division of things; that they shall strike one balance and all be treated the same?—A. Nothing of the kind. Too much prevails that way now.

Q. What other changes do the socialists recommend in society, beyond the confabulation by the state of the industries and the administration of these industries by the state or municipalities. What about the rest of the community. Will the grocery business be run by the state?—A. That will be decided by the people when industry is socialized.

Q. Is it a part of your theory that business such as the grocery business should be run by the state? I want to find out their theory. Is the grocery business to be run by the government?—A. The wealth socially produced shall be socially distributed.

Q. Under your theory is the grocery business to be run by the state?—A. Certainly, if it is decided on.

Q. What is the theory of socialists?—A. That wealth will be equally distributed; that the grocery business will be socialized.

Q. You mean by that to be owned and run by the government?—A. By the people's representatives.

Q. And the same way with painting and paper-hanging?—A. With every industry.

Q. Of every sort?—A. Yes, not doctors, probably.

Q. What about doctors?—A. I mean doctors would be public servants and have an interest in maintaining the health of the community, rather than an interest in epidemics.

Q. At the present time your idea is that medical men are interested in the spread of epidemics?—A. No, I don't know in the present form that they necessarily have an interest. I have a better opinion of the medical profession than that.

Q. You think they have an interest at the present time in the spread of epidemics?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. I suppose it is natural for a doctor to feel bad in dull times?—A. No doubt.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. The undertaking business would be run by the government, of course?—A. People, I think, would die under socialism.

Q. How about painting? Is there to be an equal wage given to each man on this work?—A. I don't know.

Q. What is the theory of socialists?—A. That all useful labour that contributes to the common welfare is uniformly honourable and valuable.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
Q. I want to get down to particulars. There is no use of their putting forth a theory that has nothing practical about it. You could not get followers if you cannot answer questions like these?—A. We are pretty successful in getting followers.

Q. I want to know what you are going to do. According to your theory the painting industry is to be run by the government who will distribute the profits in accordance with the legislative assembly. Are the men who do the work to be paid wages?—A. They will share in the common production.

Q. The legislative assembly might say that the men should not get any of it?—A. That is impossible.

Q. Your idea is, then, that the painters should not get anything until the legislative assembly distributed the profits?—A. I say they will share equally with others.

Q. Are they to wait for anything for their work until the legislative assembly vote it for them?—A. It would not be in the power of the assembly to vote a man out of his labour.

Q. How are they to get the reward of their labours?—A. I presume it would be administered by persons appointed for the purpose.

Q. Then they would be paid wages?—A. Not wages as we understand it now.

Q. They would be paid sums of money per day or per week or per month?—A. They would be remunerated undoubtedly.

Q. And any balance of profit there was over would be divided by the legislative assembly?—A. I said nothing about profit. The socialist system eliminates profit. There is an essential difference between profit and a system without profit.

Q. Now coming back to these sums of money which I call wages. These wages that are paid to the painters for their work—how are they to be regulated?—A. By the degree of productivity of their labour.

Q. How are you going to regulate them according to the degree of the productivity of the labour? How are you going to get at the wages to be given these painters?—A. It might be there would be a uniform wage.

Q. What is the theory of socialists on the point?—A. That they will divide the whole production equitably.

Q. You admit there are to be certain sums of money paid these men at certain specified times?—A. They will be paid.

Q. They don't have to wait until we see whether the government makes a profit or loss on the painting industry. Supposing there is no surplus. Suppose there is a loss. Would they get paid for their labour?—A. How could that be? It would not be possible, running things as we would.

Q. How are you going to arrange the amount of money to be paid these men?—A. I say the gross production will be distributed to those who contribute services in creating it.

Q. The gross production would not probably be known to a man for a year after he had done his work?—A. The gross wealth as the business progresses.

Q. How would they know how much to give these men?—A. They would know that from the gross income and the production of labour generally.

Q. At the end of each year they would figure out how much had been got in a preceding year and divide it up among the people in the state?—A. Something like that.

Q. How would they get at the proportion to give each man?—A. I suppose the laws of arithmetic would not fail.

Q. Would they divide the amount of money by the number of people?—A. I don't know.

Q. I want your theory?—A. I thought you wanted facts.

Q. You have no facts to give?—A. It is quite likely the results of labour would be summed up certainly according to their needs.

Q. Do you say it would be divided according to the needs or the number of people or equally?—A. Probably it would be equally divided.

GEORGE DALES—Vancouver, June 10.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. That is your idea of how it should be done, divided equally?—A. Equally as far as possible.
Q. Well, it would be quite possible to divide it exactly, is that your theory?—A. There is a good deal of difference. Personally, I am in favour of economic equality.
Q. You believe in dividing it equally?—A. I would not impose that on the socialists as a whole.
Q. It is your idea of having it divided equally?—A. I am personally in favour of it.
Q. Dividing the money up equally among all the people?—A. Yes.
Q. Every man gets the same amount—that is your theory? That pre-supposes or should pre-suppose the equality of all people in every respect, should it not?—A. Not necessarily.
Q. You are going to force everybody to live alike?—A. I would base that on the conception that all human needs—material needs—are practically equal.
Q. You think the material needs of all people are the same?—A. Yes.
Q. And your idea is that all people should receive the same amount of money and live in the same way?—A. Nothing of the kind.
Q. Don’t you think there are some people who like living in an inexpensive way rather than in an expensive way?—A. Undoubtedly.
Q. And others who would like to live in an expensive way rather than in an inexpensive way?—A. Yes.
Q. And yet you want them to get the same money?—A. I would have them get what is due to them. I mean the return for their labour. It would be set out by the consensus of opinion.
Q. Has your experience with the socialists been that there is such a thing as consensus of opinion among them?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. Where do you draw the line between capital and wages?—A. The labourer is remunerated by wages and not by the profits of any man’s labour.
Q. Would you say a man like the president of the C. P. R. is a capitalist?—A. In so far as he represents stock he is a capitalist, but as to his work he is a labourer.
Q. Would you say a man like that should get the same reward as a switchman or baggageman?—A. I don’t think that an equal reward would compensate for both, especially looking to the increase of productivity of labour under the socialist administration. The wastefulness now is something that is pretty hard to understand.
Q. A man would be ahead if he occupied the position of baggageman, if he got the same wages. He would not have the same responsibility?—A. Depends on the temperament. Others are happy in a simple and humble position.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I suppose a large share of the duties of the manager would be removed, he would not have any competition, no bargains to make, simply to organize and supervise?—A. I imagine a large portion of President Shaughnesssey’s work is in connection with the ownership of the directors. All that would be done away with. With competition limited and the sources going on it is calculated by comparative statistics that labour could be increased 1,000 to 1,200 per cent.

By His Lordship:

Q. Would you have to determine on that position by ballot?—A. That is a question in the community, whenever necessity existed in selecting the most useful man.
Q. How would that selection be arrived at?—A. I imagine by the selection of the most competent and useful man.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. There would be no bother about subsidies or land grants?—A. I don’t think...
By His Lordship:

Q. Would you say that the post office system as run under the Canadian government is a fair example of an industry being conducted without profit?—A. Yes, as far as it goes. It is by no means an ideal institution, but it serves for an illustration.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. You think the difference in rates, say for carrying a letter from here to Hong Kong and that the transfer of a parcel by express to Hong Kong would show a difference under the public ownership and under the profit system?—A. I don't quite comprehend.

Q. I am just going to illustrate. It takes two cents to send a letter to Hong Kong and probably $1.25 to send a parcel by express. Would you say under collective ownership that the parcel might properly be sent at approximately a cost of two cents?—A. It is quite possible.

Q. So you say the balance would represent waste?—A. Yes, waste in profits.

Q. My learned friend referred to confiscation of property. In time of war—we recognize the fact that it is a recognized policy that confiscation is properly the order of the day at time of war?—A. Yes.

Q. Would you say that that was an example where the law of God was overridden by the law of nations?—A. Undoubtedly it would be one of many.

Q. You don't think it is any more exaggerated example of disturbing the commands of the higher powers than what has been suggested by confiscation?—A. Certainly not; it is equally stealing. There are some clearer examples of that. For instance, whole blocks of the country are transferred to corporations without the slightest sense of justice.

Q. Now, if the majority decide in the legislature under the system you have indicated, if the majority decide in favour of socialism and the capitalists were to take up arms in favour of their rights, do you think the constituted authorities would be just and have the right on their side to resort to arms to maintain the position they had taken?—A. They would have no other alternative.

Q. So that in that way force might be compelled at the instance of the minority?—A. Yes.

Q. And if force is ultimately resorted to in connection with your ideal system it will probably be by some such system?—A. Every working change has been made with more or less force.

Q. How does the useful class as you term it compare numerically with the class of those not useful to society?—A. There are various estimates with regard to that. I imagine that the wage-earning class amount to something like seven-tenths of the entire community.

Q. So that they considerably outnumber the parasite class?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Which class do the judiciary fall into?—A. Not necessarily into the parasite class and not necessarily the lawyers, though, I find that elections for the most part are conducted by lawyers, the laws made by the lawyers, and one cannot avoid the inference that it has been largely in the interests of lawyers. That must occur to everybody. Four-fifths of the American Senate consists of corporation lawyers.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. You said something about a class holding morals as deduced from natural laws. Can you explain that?—A. I hold it to be a man's highest wisdom, from a study of natural laws, to govern ourselves as individuals and in association and aiming to trust ourselves to moral strength to conform to them.

Q. What is the standard?—A. Of morality?
Q. Yes.—A. We believe that the standard has changed from age to age and is very largely a reflex of economic conditions. It used to be held that honesty was the best policy. To-day it seems to be that policy is the best honesty.

By His Lordship:

Q. What is the view of the socialists' body towards the militia? Is it a proper thing for a socialist to be a member of the militia?—A. Seeing that the militia is used so largely to repress riots and to put down all endeavours on the part of the working classes, the militia has gained no favour with workmen generally and especially on the side of the socialists.

Q. Then you think that riots should not be put down?—A. No, but I think, they are deliberately put in effect sometimes to further the influence of the capitalist class.

Q. When they do occur it is necessary that they should be put down, shouldn't they?—A. The manner of putting them down is provocative of greater trouble, if the police were used more effectually.

Q. What do you mean by that?—A. I think that the militia have been called out prematurely.

Q. Militia are necessary to the preservation of order?—A. Yes, under the present condition of society, but, I think, that is a great reproach to us to think that the militia are really necessary in an intelligent community.

Q. The militia would have no place in a socialistic state?—A. I don't think it would be policy at the beginning. We don't propose to institute a new order of things altogether. No doubt the change in our social institutions will be gradual and more or less by degrees to a higher and more creditable form.

Mr. Bird.—I desire to put in two letters. I will read them:

(Exhibit 60.)

Vancouver, B.C., April 14, 1903.

F. J. Halton, Esq.,

Secy. U. B. R. E., City.

DEAR Sir,—We were instructed some few weeks ago with respect to a clear case of importation of alien labour. As you know, proceedings cannot be taken under the Alien Labour Act without the consent of the Dominion Attorney General. In order to ascertain the procedure necessary under these circumstances, we wrote to Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper for information on the subject, and ascertain what was to be done. We inclose you a copy of his letter, which explains itself. In other words, the Act is really a dead letter by reason of the means adopted for its enforcement.

Yours faithfully,

(Sgd.) Wilson, Senkler & Bloomfield, per C.W.

(Exhibit 61.)

House of Commons,

Ottawa, April 3, 1903.

My dear Wilson,—Immediately on receipt of yours of the 24th March, I saw the Minister of Justice, and his attitude confirms the general disaffection in regard to the Alien Labour Act. What he practically says is that these proceedings are under the administration of the Department of Labour, and applications to have proceedings taken must be considered there in the first instance. This means, of course, a formal presentation of your case to that department. Then, he says, if it be thought desirable for the Attorney General to intervene in any case, representation for that purpose should emanate from the Department of Labour.

George Dales—Vancouver, June 10.
I will see you shortly, as I leave to-morrow for the coast, stopping a day at Winnipeg en route.

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) 'Charles Hubert Tupper.'

Charles Wilson, Esq., K.C.,
Vancouver, B.C.

His Lordship.—Mr. King, you might go into the box and explain these letters.

W. L. Mackenzie King, sworn.

Witness.—I notice the first letter which Mr. Bird read from Wilson, Senkler & Bloomfield to Mr. Halton states as follows: 'We were instructed some weeks ago with respect to a clear case of importation of alien labour. As you know, proceedings cannot be taken under the Alien Labour Act without the consent of the Dominion Attorney General.'

By His Lordship:

Q. What is the date of that letter?—A. 14th of April, 1903. I may say that that contains a misstatement of the situation. Mr. Wilson says—'proceedings cannot be taken without the consent of the Dominion Attorney General.' The law as it was passed originally in 1897 contained a provision under section No. 8, 60-61 Vic., cap. II—'No proceedings under this Act, or prosecutions for violation thereof, shall be instituted without the consent of the Attorney General or some person duly authorized by him.' Mr. Wilson evidently had that section in his mind when he wrote the letter. In 1901, that section was repealed, expressly for the reason that it was regarded as an extreme method of enforcing the Act. The old Act required that any proceedings should first of all have the consent of the Attorney General of Canada. The Act assented to on the 23rd May, 1901, expressly repeals that section—section 8 of the Act—and a new section was substituted, which would put the law in such a position that any person could have it enforced without appealing to Ottawa, and without going through any difficult procedure, and that is the first section of the amended Act passed in 1901. Section 1 reads:

'Section 3 of chapter II of the statutes of 1897 is repealed and the following is substituted therefor:

'3. For every violation of any of the provisions of section 1 of this Act the person, partnership, company or corporation violating it by knowingly assisting, encouraging or soliciting the immigration or importation of any alien or foreigner into Canada to perform labour or service of any kind under contract or agreement, express or implied, parole or special, with such alien or foreigner, previous to his becoming a resident in or a citizen of Canada, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, nor less than fifty dollars.'

Here is the method in which the law may be carried out:

'2. The sum so forfeited may, with the written consent of any judge of the court in which the action is intended to be brought, be sued for and recovered as a debt by any person who first brings his action therefor in any court of competent jurisdiction in which debts of like amount are now recovered.'

In other words, all the procedure necessary is for the person wishing to enforce the Act, not a trade union or corporation, but any individual, simply to get in the first instance the written consent of the judge in the court in which he intends to bring the action and bring the action as for a debt. There is another clause by which persons are given another opportunity:
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

'Such sum may also, with the written consent, to be obtained ex parte, of the Attorney General of the province in which the prosecution is had, or of a judge of a superior or county court, be recovered upon summary conviction before any judge of a county court (being a justice of the peace), or any judge of the sessions of the peace, recorder, police magistrate, or stipendiary magistrate, or any fuctionary, tribunal or persons invested by the proper legislative authority with power to do alone such acts as are usually required to be done by two or more justices of the peace, and acting within the local limits of his or its jurisdiction.'

The reason there are so many parties named there was largely, I think, to meet conditions in British Columbia. It was pointed out that under the law as it was before the parties would first have to write to Ottawa and get the consent of the Attorney General to take proceedings. It was thought that instead of that the consent simply of some judge or some magistrate in the province interested, or in the locality itself, would cause the machinery not to be so cumbrous, and any individual would have it in his power to take action at once. It is clear that the section requiring the consent of the Attorney General was repealed altogether and this other put in its place. It is for this reason that I say Mr. Wilson could not have seen the amendment passed in 1901, or would hardly have advised that proceedings could not be taken under the Act without the consent of the Attorney General.

His Lordship.—One of the cases where the lawyers don't know the law!

Witness.—The communication goes on to state—'We wrote to Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper for information on the subject and ascertain what was to be done. We enclose you a copy of his letter, which explains itself. In other words, the Act is really a dead letter by reason of the means adopted for its enforcement.' Mr. Wilson says that the means are the consent of the Attorney General. Representation was made to the Dominion Government, that in view of that the Act was a dead letter, and it was in view of this that the amendment was put in, so that it would not be a dead letter.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper's letter to Mr. Wilson states—'I saw the Minister of Justice, and his attitude confirms the general disaffection to the Alien Labour Act. What he practically says is that these proceedings are under the administration of the Department of Labour, and applications to have proceedings taken must be considered there in the first instance.' Up to that point, I think Sir Hibbert is correct enough. It is provided that in case the conviction is obtained half of the penalty can be given to the party who lays the information. In case the party wishes to recover that amount he has to make application for it. That is turned over to the Department of Labour. We have the administration of that part of the law. When that application comes in the department advises the Receiver General what should be done. I might mention a case in point. At Rossland two actions were brought under this Act as amended, against a party named Geiser; in one case the conviction was $500 and in another case $50. That amount was paid in to the Receiver General. Mr. McDonald, the man who brought the action, sent in an application asking for that money, and the recommendation was to have that money turned over. One of the last letters I wrote under the instructions of the Minister was that as much as possible of those fines should go to Mr. McDonald. That is a case which the department had the administration of.

Sir Hibbert's letter says further: 'This means, of course, a formal presentation of your case to that department.' Sir Hibbert draws that conclusion himself. It is not stated by the Minister of Justice that a formal presentation must be made to the department. 'Then, he says, if it be thought desirable for the Attorney General to intervene in any case, representation for that purpose should emanate from the Department of Labour.' That is not a deduction drawn from what the Act says, but evidently from a conversation which he had had.

W. L. MacKenzie King—Vancouver, June 10.

I may say, if a representation had been made to the Department of Labour what the department would have done would have been to send to the parties a copy of the Act, and also a copy of the amendments, pointing out that the section which originally required the consent of the Attorney General had been repealed and that the machinery for enforcing the Act was set out in this new part. Their attention would have been called to the law and fully explained in that way. That step was taken. There was simply a reply that the law was a dead letter. In this case, which, as far as I know, has been the only one, the penalties were awarded and half the penalty given to the parties who laid the information.

By Mr. Foley:

Q. You speak of the alternative made in this law, and that is offered as an excuse for not enforcing it?—A. It is not offered as an excuse for not enforcing it. It is impossible for the government to initiate actions until the law is amended. The law was so put, I think, very largely at your suggestion.

Q. Why was not the old law enforced?—A. The old law as it originally stood was, to my knowledge, very much enforced. As a matter of fact through the Department of Labour some 70 odd persons were returned from this country to the United States, who were shown to have been brought over here in violation of the Act.

Q. I know we asked for a good deal more in Rossland and it was not complied with. I suppose you are aware of about 800 men being imported into the Slocan?—A. No, I am not aware of any such thing.

His Lordship.—If the labour law was broken to that extent, why didn't somebody lay an information?

Mr. Foley.—That was in the hands of the government at that time.

His Lordship.—I understand the consent of the Attorney General had to be obtained.

Mr. Foley.—This is a protective law. When we desire to have our tariff laws enforced is it necessary that some individual shall lay a complaint or prosecute the parties, or are there officials to look into it?

His Lordship.—That is a question of policy.

Witness.—I would say that the only effort made by the workmen in Rossland to bring the machinery to bear on the situation was in the case I have mentioned. You are speaking of the importation—

Mr. Foley.—No, previous to that, under the old law.

His Lordship.—That is a matter of political arrangement. There is no use going into what took place under the late law.

Mr. Foley.—The witness has stated that at the request of the labour men an alternative has been made. It was made because under the old system the law was being violated and the government was not attempting to enforce it. Then we desired to have it made enforceable.

His Lordship.—It is quite clear under the new law that any one can lay an information with the consent of the magistrate.

Mr. Foley.—Who bears the expense?

His Lordship.—I understand any man who wants to take the action.

Mr. Foley.—I understand this is a criminal complaint. We secured a conviction at Rossland and sustained it. The man affected was over the line before the decision of the judge was returned, and it was absolutely impossible to collect the fine.

Witness.—That is not so, the money was paid.

W. L. MACKENZIE KING—Vancouver, June 10.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

By Mr. Foley:

Q. Who paid the money in?—A. Undoubtedly the person whom the conviction was obtained against.

Q. The man I know went over the line. Have you any information as to the present violation of this law by the C.P.R.?—A. Has any information been laid before the department? Not that I know of.

Q. Did you have any information as to the law being violated in the trackmen's strike?—A. Yes, and if I remember rightly the parties were informed how they should proceed in connection with the alleged violation.

Q. Why didn't the parties take action?—A. It was in their hands. They evidently did not appear to take it. The law has been amended to do away with any poor working of it. It had been stated it was an extreme method to have to go to Ottawa whenever it had to be enforced, and the law was changed to bring it to every man's door if he wanted to put it into execution.

Q. Take the case of Rossland. Many of these men came from Missouri and Michigan. In order that you shall discover the exact facts of the case it is necessary that a man should be sent down to find out where these men come from. Why was not some arrangement made by the government to appoint some official?—A. Mr. Foley, I have not the making of the laws.

Q. Can you tell me why I was told by the Minister of Justice and Mr. Sifton that a man would go down to Missouri?—A. That is beyond my province.

Q. Is there no law either in the Dominion or provincial governments that forces an official to enforce this law? Was there any understanding arrived at between the Dominion and provincial government as to how this law should be enforced by officials?—A. Absolutely none that I know of. The law was simply passed by the Dominion government and certain machinery provided.

Q. Don't you think it was necessary, under these circumstances, that there should be some provisions made by which the Chief Justice should be compelled to take up this law? Mr. Eberts said the law was not worth the paper it was written on.—A. The law was so framed that in the event of your failing to win or not getting satisfaction there were other parties who could be appealed to. The Attorney General is only one party named for getting permission to enforce the provisions of the law. That very possibility was provided against in expressed terms. I don't know whether it was feared by the government that possibly in applying to one particular judge there might be some difficulty in getting consent, but at any rate the provision was altered enough to get over it—

'Such sum may also, with the written consent, to be obtained ex parte of the Attorney General of the province in which the prosecution is had, or of a judge of a superior or county court.'

If the Attorney General did not care to give his consent there was opportunity of appeal to a judge of a superior or county court. In the preceding section—

'The sum so forfeited may, with the written consent of any judge of the court in which the action is intended to be brought, be sued for and recovered as a debt by any person who first brings his action therefor in any court of competent jurisdiction in which debts of like amount are now recovered.'

There is no need of going to the Attorney General of the province at all. As a matter of fact, I think that representation was made to the government, that parties desiring to enforce this law might find it difficult in going before the Attorney General and getting consent, and these provisions were provided for the very purpose of that contingency.

Q. I may say that the union at Rossland appealed to the Attorney General and he refused to take the matter up. They took the matter up and secured a conviction, and before the conviction was returned the gentleman was on the other side. He came in under a contract to operate the company for the LeRoi. Don’t you think it would have been advisable under these circumstances for the government to go in and find out what connection Bernard McDonald had with it, instead of prosecuting others? I know that is our experience, that Mr. Eberts said it was not worth the paper it was written on.—A. The case you have cited shows the law was worth all it was intended to be worth.

W. L. MACKENZIE KING—Vancouver, June 10.

Q. Suppose a miner’s union had attempted to prosecute that man and had not secured a conviction and had gone to an expense of $1,000, who was going to re-munerate the miners’ union for their loss?—A. There would be time to consider that when such a case would arise.

Q. You can see how it would arise?—A. No, I could not. Every case has come out precisely in the opposite way. It seems to me that it was very unfair that a letter written saying the law was a dead letter and that no proceedings could be taken without the consent of the Attorney General, should be set before the Commission as a ground for believing that it was a dead letter.

His Lordship.—That letter was written in complete ignorance of the existing state of the law.

Mr. Foley.—And you tell me that this money has been paid into the hands of the government and had been paid over. As a matter of fact the money has not been paid, and it was the impression that the money would never be paid over.

His Lordship.—That is a matter for the electors. The government can only move within the limits of the law. If you want the union to be notified, why should the government be blamed for that? That question should be raised at the hustings and hot here.

Witness.—I said that one of the last acts I performed was to write to the Minister of Justice stating that it was the desire of the Department of Labour that the amount should be paid. Whether the amount has been paid or not I am not sure of. But the letter was sent in view of the fact that the money was paid over by the justice of the peace by whom the conviction was given, and had been sent to Ottawa, and an application was made for half of that money, and I believe that it is the intention of the government in every case, that the party who lays the information shall get all that the law will entitle him to have of the penalty, which is 50 per cent.

Christopher Foley, sworn.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. You are a trades unionist, Mr. Foley.—A. Yes, sir.

By His Lordship:

Q. At that point, are you also a socialist?—A. Not in the general acceptance of the term. As some one said here the other day, I want to know what you mean.

Q. You don’t belong to the socialist party?—A. I don’t.

Q. But you are a trades unionist?—A. Yes.

Q. You belong to what organization?—A. I belong to the Labourers’ Union.

Q. Are you a member of the Western Federation of Miners?—A. No, I am not. I have really never withdrawn, but I have not paid dues for about a year, and don’t think of going back to the mines, and hence feel that I have drawn out of it.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. You have had considerable experience in labour matters in British Columbia?—A. Yes.

Christopher Foley—Vancouver, June 11.
Q. Do you feel that labour organizations are here to stay, or is trade unionism developing into political action?—A. Yes, so far as I am able to gain information the idea of going into politics is rapidly becoming universal among trade unions.

Q. Have you noticed a spirit developing in labour circles in Vancouver?—A. I have.

Q. What is your idea of the necessity, or is there any necessity for labour men, in your opinion, to get into politics?—A. I certainly believe there is.

Q. Are they suffering under any grievances, or are their conditions such that they need protection or anything of that kind—legislative action?—A. I feel that there are such.

Q. You might explain yourself?—A. As one reason for looking at it from this standpoint, the labouring man is held equally responsible for the existence of the government. He is held equally responsible for the maintenance of this government with the manufacturer or employer. The manufacturer is protected in everything he produces in this country, while the labourer is really receiving no protection. That is one of the chief reasons I look at the matter from that standpoint.

Q. You referred to the Alien Labour Act as a measure of protection. Now, after Mr. King's explanation, you will admit that there is a measure of protection by the Alien Labour Act?—A. So far as I have discovered it is so small as not to be worth much.

Q. The machinery of the law is applied, and it is enforced. What is your objection?—A. Well, I would saddle that upon either the provincial or Dominion governments. When a crime has been committed there is an officer appointed for the special purpose of enforcing the law, and I cannot understand why crime committed against the interests of labour should not be brought to justice by the same process as men who violate and contravene laws against the interests of the employers.

By His Lordship:

Q. As a private prosecutor you would be entitled to put the criminal law into motion. For instance, if a man is guilty in respect of criminal liability you don't tell your trouble to a policeman. You set the law in motion yourself?—A. Yes. But I don't have to pay the expenses of the prosecution, as I understand we have been doing it here. Of course, Mr. King's statement puts the thing in a new light, if the money has been paid over—

Q. Would that make any difference?—A. I don't know that it would.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Do you think that labouring men should be afforded some extra measure of protection?—A. I do, by all means.

Q. In other words, you say that the machinery of the law if put in force at the expense of the Crown, would be workable? If an organization of reasonable men were enabled to make a requisition on the provincial authorities that the law should be enforced, you think that would assist matters?—A. I certainly think they should be removed from the expense of prosecuting the case, and I don't understand why they have not the right to lodge complaints.

By His Lordship:

Q. You mean without the consent of some officer?—A. Well, of course.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. If it were lodged by an individual it might be a ground of abuse to the individual prosecutor?—A. Certainly it might, and that is one reason why I looked upon it that there should be some law to protect the men lodging the complaint. The labouring man working for a corporation, such as the C.P.R., for instance, will very often hesitate about making a complaint because it may mean the chopping off of his own head.
Q. Then you think it should not be left to an individual to take the action?—A. No more than lodging the complaint. I think there should be some plan by which he can be sheltered. How, I cannot say. That should be left to men who know more about it.

Q. If the provincial authorities were bound to take up the prosecution at the instance of properly constituted labour men, you would think that would be sufficient to afford a measure of protection for labour?—A. That is probably as far as I can see.

Q. Is there any other protection of labour that you could suggest that would be an alleviation of present conditions?—A. Yes, there are very many of them to my mind. For instance, our manufacturers at present in the east have a lobby in Ottawa trying to force on the government the necessity of increasing the tariff laws. And this same lobby, as I understand it, have got a proposition before the government by which we shall have absolute free trade. I don't know what the result of that will be, but surely there will certainly be a strong opposition. But there should be some relief granted and I think the thing is manifestly unfair. I cannot understand why if a manufacturer is to be protected, labour should not be. They tell me when you protect the manufacturer you are protecting labour. I don't see it. When a manufacturer is protected he is intended to increase the price of the commodity, thus increasing the price of it to labour, while at the same time he is permitted to introduce the cheapest kind of labour to make this commodity, and the result is that only the manufacturer is benefited by protection. And I feel that whenever the manufacturing industry raise the price of a commodity there should be a proportionate increase in the wages of that particular industry.

Q. Now in regard to something that bears on the U.B.R.E. What is your idea of international organization?—A. I believe in the present system. They are absolutely necessary. So long as we have corporations with international affiliations the labour men should have them also. At the time of our trouble in Rossland, I may say—I may say I detest strikes on all occasions, because I believe if you win you are losing in the end. I would state that during our troubles in the Slocan, agents were sent to Michigan and there secured a number of men, the lowest class of labour to be found, many of whom could speak no English at all. These men were accustomed to the lowest form of living. They were brought in in contravention of the Alien Labour Law, the old law. During that time the Western Federation had agents in Michigan, but in spite of that fact I forget how many of them were brought in and placed on the Great Northern Railway. They came to the Canadian line and were transferred to the Canadian authorities, and a new crew put on board of each car. They were then taken on steamboats up the Kootenays, on boats chartered by the company, and sent from there to Kaslo. They were put in what we called the bull-pen until what we called seab-day, Sunday; the wires were not working that day and we were prevented from getting at the fact that they were brought in violation of the law and for the purpose of destroying Canadian unionism.

Q. You think your connection with the Western Federation of Miners helped you in this instance?—A. Yes, and there was another instance in Rossland a little while ago. It is not a matter of whether the men were right or wrong, but the rule seems to apply in that case. I think in the neighbourhood of 000 men were brought in in that case, and during the time that its agents were down working the business up on the other side of the line, the Western Federation had 7 or 8 men employed trying to counteract this movement and give information to these men. We boarded trains at Spokane and found that they were being brought in violation of the laws of the country and for the purpose of crushing Canadian unionism.

Q. You think the C.P.R. is strong enough to fight any organization?—A. I consider there is no labour organization on earth to-day, and it is not my opinion alone, that there is not a labour union that cannot be crushed if capital feels like expending sufficient money to do it.

CHRISTOPHER FOLEY—Vancouver, June 10.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Do you mean to say you think it is necessary that men on the C.P.R. should be entitled to join unions for the purpose of self-protection?—A. I certainly think it is in their interests to do so, and certainly so long as the government refuses to prevent employers from using the alien club to whip them into subjection, they should certainly be permitted to affiliate with those controlling that club on the other side of the line to protect themselves.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Then do you mean to say that a proper alien law would remove the necessity for international affiliation?—A. To a large extent it would, but we are living close to the boundary line, and in going down from here to Seattle you have got to join a new organization there. Men coming from the other side of the line are handicapped in the same way.

By His Lordship:

Q. You are aware that the miners at Fernie and adjoining places have surrendered the Western Federation charter?—A. I am. The reason, in my opinion, is that there are several of the most prominent leaders socialists, revolutionary socialists of the most dangerous order. What I mean by that is not what is called British Columbia socialists. I mean the socialist labour party. While there is a good many men among them who are not, I feel that there are a good many men who are a danger to the community. I consider there were a good many men who were dissatisfied with the settlement there, and because the Western Federation virtually refused to support them. After the evidence began they succeeded in pulling their members out of the union. While there is a considerable element of conservative men among them, over one-half of the men are Slavs and Dagoes brought in for the purpose of cutting American wages down. This class composes a very large portion of that organization and they are generally more aggressive and are better talkers and wield a powerful influence. At the time we effected that settlement there we were blackened men, particularly for the part we had taken in it, and I felt what occurred there demonstrates the necessity of compulsory investigation. We had worked there for nearly three weeks without effecting anything and finally decided to throw the matter up, but before doing so it was decided to take testimony under oath, and we got more than 33 different witnesses to give testimony. Previous to this we had been with Mr. Tonkin. I claim he was to blame for the strike, because of the bitter attitude he took toward the strike. He will not live up to his agreements unless he is compelled to. It was owing to the fact largely that he had persecuted these men that they became so radical. At any rate we managed to effect a settlement, and Mr. Tonkin conceded nearly everything the men asked for, with the exception of the wages. Then we went into an investigation of the wages and succeeded in demonstrating that the average wage was $3.69 a day. Having conceded everything else—and nearly everything he conceded was fair and just—we felt that with such a wage as that prevailing there that they would not be justified in striking. Mr. Doherty, who was elected president of the district union here, discovered that the wages were fully on an average with those prevailing on the Island and elsewhere and says, 'gentlemen, the Western Federation will not sustain you in a strike under these circumstances. The wages being $3.69, which is considerably over the average wage of the country, the Western Federation will not sustain you in a strike under these circumstances,' and it was largely owing to the stand taken by Mr. Doherty that these men have pulled out. Previous to this time the Western Federation had not only put up some $1,000 to the strike, and further than that, the Western Federation are not a mine, they have not got the money to fight these things that many people give them credit for. Their money is mostly raised by levying assessments on their members.

CHRISTOPHER FOLEY—Vancouver, June 10.
By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Is not the United Mine Workers a more conservative organization than the Western Federation of Miners?—A. I am not as familiar with them as I am with the Western Federation. I should judge they are more so, but I wish to call your attention to this fact, to show you that the Western Federation are not as black as they are represented to be. To show you the conception the Western Federation takes of these things: Although we have had trouble at the Cœur d'Alenes in which they are not in an enviable position. At the time we had trouble owing to what is known as the contract system, some three or four years ago I was a member of the executive board and was on that board for some two or three years. We succeeded in effecting a settlement under the contract system, and I would say one of the chief reasons why the labouring man is opposed to a contract system is because of the fact that each man is pitted against the other in the mine, and finally a point is reached where a man is doing everything possible to do. He has made a standard, and any man who cannot live up to that standard cannot hold his job. Men are marked at $5 a day who could tell you they are doing fully two days' average work to accomplish it. The men instrumental in introducing that, who were more or less the men at the head of this trouble, were imported from the other side of the line. Some of them we believe were imported because of their reputation as fighters in the past. At any rate we saw plainly that if we adopted—that is if we rejected the contract system coming before the committee, that such a rejection, unless the system was rejected by other mining camps in the country, would place us in a position where we would not get public sympathy. That is one of the reasons why myself and a few others accepted the offer of the management. I generally got the credit of settling this. No sooner was the matter settled than some five or six men—good Canadians, some Nova Scotia, others English, and two or three Irishmen—they were not Americans—than they commenced pulling wires at Denver, and began branding me as a traitor; I had sold out to the company, and all that sort of thing; some of them paid a visit to Denver, and when the next convention came on letters were heaped on me for the purpose of doing me up, as they put it. When this became known to the convention and they were electing members to the convention, I desired to pull out, because I knew I had had trouble enough, but they would not permit anything of the kind. A motion was made when they were electing members of the executive, again placing me on the board, and I declined the nomination, and they insisted that I should run. That motion was seconded and carried almost by a unanimous vote. The mover and seconder were 'Americans. And it was stated that those men had tried to get their auger into Mr. Foley, and we want to show how we think of Mr. Foley. That is the position they took.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. That is to say, they sustained you in preventing a strike?—A. Yes.

Q. Have you got any opinion as to the recent change in the constitution at the recent convention?—A. No, I have not, but the second last convention, the one before this, I believe, they endorsed the socialist platform; but in advising that platform, I don't consider they are altogether endorsing socialism. The principles of the socialist platform I am ready to endorse myself to a large extent, but the methods which the socialists have of advocating their case I entirely disapprove of. I believe in evolutionary methods of bringing these things about. My interest is with co-operation and that socially one shall be the equal of all, as a Christian holds to the universal brotherhood of man.

Q. Do you think one is possible without the other?—A. I don't. I believe that the two are interdependent upon each other, and I believe one of the reasons why the church has not succeeded in establishing the golden rule to a large extent is because they have neglected the economic aspect of these things too much. My idea of moving in that direction would be by the government expropriating, not confiscating, the railways, the coal mines, telegraphs, street railways, waterworks—all these things should become the property of the public. Then, I believe in the application of the single tax to the land, in order to compel the land-grabber to let go. I believe in establishing a condition under which the interest of each would be the interest of all. I think that is all we could expect to accomplish in this century, and by that time they will be able to take another step. That is my idea.

CHRISTOPHER FOLEY—Vancouver, June 10.

Q. In asking you about the constitution, I had reference to a passage printed in yesterday's paper in reference to a change in the constitution. Are you in a position to say anything about that?—A. I may have seen it, but I don't remember exactly what it was, now.

Q. You don't believe in strikes or sympathetic strikes?—A. Under certain conditions, but they have to be extreme conditions. I would not approve of a sympathetic strike only as a last extreme. Suppose it were demonstrated to me that a union were struggling for existence, as in the case of the U.B.R.E. here, say. If these men are demanding nothing but the right to exist as an organization, and if the C.P.R. are determined to crush them, I believe that is a matter that all labour unions should take up, and if they don't go on strike, it would be a matter of policy rather than of wrong.

Q. Is it not hard on the other, too?—A. Yes, but as General Sherman said, 'War is cruel at its best, and you cannot refine it.' The result of the strike is the lowering of the money power of the labourer.

By His Lordship:

Q. Do you think, where an employer has got a contract with a body of men, should this contract be broken by reason of a strike elsewhere?—A. No, I cannot say that I approve of that. I cannot say that I have seen a case yet that I would approve of.

Q. It seems to me that it would be a parody on all things, if we cannot get a position where a contract is absolutely safe, except in the case of war?—A. Yes, but if the existence of an organization is threatened by a corporation, and if the government refuses to protect them—either recognized by the government as being a legal body—then it raises the question, to my mind, whether serious and harsh measures should be resorted to.

Q. This is not harshness; it is a lack of faith?—A. We have international laws that are often broken also. I don't think our government has always lived up to their agreement. I cannot recall anything just now, but I know there are several in my mind, and if such method as that is to be by opinion they are setting a bad example.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. What agreement are you referring to as having been broken?—A. I said I could not recall a single instance, but I have not got them in my mind.

Q. I don't think you can produce one where the English government has broken an agreement?—A. I guess you will admit that the English government has not lived up to the Christian teachings. I was going to call your attention to the war of 1844 with China over the opium business.

Q. We were talking about contracts, and I challenge you to mention a contract broken by the British government?—A. I cannot recall one, but I am satisfied I can produce them. They may not have been broken in their entirety but certainly partially so.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Then I understand there are circumstances under which a union's regard for another union will be paramount to its own contract with its employers?—A. When a man's interests are at stake and a man has a knife to his throat he does not stop to think when he strikes back; he considers what the effect will be on his own brotherhood, and that is the case of the U.B.R.E. as I understand it. If these men demand anything further than recognition, and even if they ask for wages they have asked for nothing but the right to exist, I feel that the government is guilty of treason to that organization and the workmen to refuse protection to them in that position.

CHRISTOPHER FOLEY—Vancouver, June 10.

Q. What is your opinion as to incorporation of unions?—A. I believe they should be, but not until we have a compulsory arbitration law. I am a believer also in that.

Q. Then you think the government should not be compelled to take any interest in a body that has no legal interests?—A. I have not taken that into consideration. The government certainly recognizes the men's right to become an organization, and if a company as powerful as the C.P.R. attempts to deprive them of that right it seems to me it is the duty of the government to protect them in that position.

By His Lordship:

Q. That is up to the law-making body; the government has nothing to do with that?—A. I am not familiar with that.

Mr. Bird.—If the U.B.R.E. does not exist, the C.P.R. should have no objection to letting them exist. Why should they take into consideration the fact that these men claim they exist.

Mr. Rowe.—I guess the C.P.R. claim they do.

By His Lordship:

Q. Do you believe with the last witness that society is divided into the toilers and the spoilers?—A. No, there are a good many things that I don't endorse. I cannot say that I agree with this idea that all profit shall cease to exist until we have changed the whole system. I feel that a piece of machinery or anything else a man possesses, if honestly acquired rightly, belongs to him, and if that piece of machinery is engaged in co-operative production that man is entitled to the profit, I think the man with a machine is entitled to part of it, but it is the proportion of the division that I object to.

Vancouver, June 11, 1903.

His Lordship.—Owing to the fact that negotiations for settlement have not yet been finally reached, the Commission has thought it well not to enter into any contentious evidence. The evidence we would like to hear now would be evidence generally on the subject of conditions of unions or on the subject of compulsory arbitration. By the way, Mr. Quigley is here with some more telegrams, I understand.

M. T. Quigley, recalled:

By His Lordship:

Q. Have you any more telegrams?—A. Yes, I have 135. I have not had an opportunity of making a list of these telegrams. I would like to get a list and receipt. There were 17 on Friday and 135 to-day. I would like to ask if we will get the telegrams back sometime or other?

His Lordship.—I think so, after the Commission is through.

(Telegram put in as Exhibit 62.)

M. T. Quigley—Vancouver, June 11.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Christopher Foley, recalled.

Witness.—I would just like to read a letter that I received last evening from a man I mentioned here yesterday, who was instrumental, in my opinion, more than any other individual in the settlement of that strike at Fernie, and who is an American, or was at the time of the district union of the Western Federation of Miners in this province. I will just read some extracts from the letter to show the kind of men we have to deal with:—

'I might add that since my return from Fernie I have been accused of everything but murder, and possibly that if the truth were known; they are at present writing to all parts of the country, trying to find out where I scabbled and betrayed labour, and the only thing that makes me hang on is the fact that if I were to resign now they would say that I was afraid to have my record inquired into, but just as soon as they succeed in satisfying themselves that I am not what they have accused me of, I will resign, and then I will consider myself a free man, and will be in a position to give vent to my feelings, which I will do in no gentle manner. I have been referred to as Chris, Foley and Ralph Smith, and all the other labour leaders who are out for the pap.

'To give you an idea of the class of men that I have to fight in this locality, I need only refer to your esteemed and worthy friend, Mr. Fred Hazelwood, Mr. Mike McAndrew, a crazy butcher, and an insane telegraph operator.'

Now there is a class of men, and they are not Americans, but Canadians, Englishmen, Irishmen and Scotchmen. I am not using this to cast any reflection on any of these, but to show you that the assertion made here that all this trouble is the result of the position taken by American labour agitators is a mistake.

I desire to reply to a question asked me by my learned friend. He wanted me to point out a single instance where our government violated an agreement. I would recall the gentleman's memory to the case of the Alabama, a Confederate vessel built in English waters, and permitted to escape from those waters and prey upon American commerce for several years, destroying millions of dollars worth of property. After the war was over the Americans brought a claim against the British government for damages, and the arbitration awarded them some fifteen millions as near as I can remember, virtually admitting that they had violated their agreement with the American government. There is one. I will quote two more. During the wars of Napoleon at one time it was thought by the British government that Napoleon was about to take possession of the Danish fleet, and immediately the British government fleet was sent over to Denmark, taking the fleet by absolute force. Next we come to Cuba some few years ago. Some twenty-five Americans were under arrest and were to be shot. A British man-of-war laid out in the harbour, and she immediately trained her guns on Havana and told them that if these men were killed she would blow the city out of existence. I heartily endorse that stand taken by the captain, but we violated our agreement with the Spanish government just the same. I think that is a sufficient reply to that.

I may state, while speaking of this violation of agreements, at the time we settled our difficulties over the contract system in Rossland some few years ago, Mr. Kirby gave us his assurance, as did all the other managers, that they would not discriminate against any of their workmen, and yet I am positively certain he did so. He continued to gradually discharge one man after the other, while giving no particular reason for it, and finally he succeeded in replacing nearly every mucker in the mine with a Dago, and wherever practical every miner, generally with men who could scarcely speak the English tongue. Then again I would state that during that trouble in connection with alien importation, special police to the number of some 15 or 20 were brought in from the other side of the line, connected with the Pinkertons; not belonging to that force.

Christopher Foley—Vancouver, June 11.
but connected with it. These men were brought in and placed on the hill to intimidate Canadian citizens. These were foreigners. If a mining company is permitted to import a foreigner to intimidate Canadian labour, I want to know why we are not to be permitted to affiliate with organizations on the other side to protest against such things.

The next thing that occurs to me is this: It is said that to violate a contract is a great crime. It is true, and I am not here to defend the violation of contracts. I never violated a contract in my life that I remember of, because in doing so you are violating the golden rule, but there is a law higher even than the golden rule, and that law is the right to exist. The golden rule is absolutely useless if you have no right to exist. The foremost law of all is that a man shall have the right to exist, and in defence of that right I feel you have the right to appeal to almost every means to do so.

That is why I justify labour organizations when their existence is threatened with even breaking a contract to maintain their existence.

Here is another matter bearing on this: the Australian strike. I will show you the position held in these matters. The government owns the railways in Australia. They have paid their men there a higher wage rate than what prevails in other countries and they give them better conditions, but in Australia they had a drought for several years, and things have been in a deplorable condition, everyone out of employment and no money to be had under any condition. It was deemed advisable to reduce the wages of the employees on the railway. The employees, having a monopoly of that business refused and went on strike, with the result that they tied up all the industries in the country. This necessitated very drastic measures and they introduced a law something to this effect: making it a criminal offence for more than six men to assemble and discuss the question of going on strike. Had I been a member of the legislature of Australia they would certainly have received my support. But I would apply it the same way: when a man like Mr. Dunsmuir tries to tie this company up by refusing to recognize a union I would take that gentleman by the throat also.

Now our banks have got the rule, and it is practically in force, prohibiting the marriage of those men working for them until their salary reaches a certain point. This seems an interference to me with individual liberty. And yet if these men organized for the purpose of bettering their condition, of enabling themselves to marry, the Bank of Montreal would immediately discharge every one of them, and they would be called agitators for so doing. I would not work for any corporation that would deny me the right to marry, and I submit that a government that permits such a thing as this is not fulfilling its duties to its citizens.

Now I would like to call your attention to another thing. During our troubles in the Sloean the mine owners employed foreign newspaper men, among others Mr. O'Farrell from Montana, for the purpose of blackening the character of the labour leaders there. We were all represented as blacklegs and aliens and outcasts from the Cœur d'Alenes, and the English language was exhausted for something that would express the contempt they believed we should be held in. The statements were not true. There was not a single man in that move who were Americans. They were mostly all Canadians, and yet our Miners' Association went on to the other side of the line and hired aliens to blacken our character. Are we justified in affiliating with Americans on the other side in order to prevent this?

We are accused, again, of permitting violence. While we are unable to bring it directly home I feel there has been a little violence in this city, pointing in a certain direction, probably not endorsed by them, but they were instrumental in bringing it about and labour unions have never done similarly. They do not endorse these things, but violence has occurred rather outside of their administration because they have never endorsed such conduct.

We are told that union men should not be permitted to interfere with employers' business. I hold to that, and I hold also that the employer shall not interfere with the union men's businesses. This thing works both ways. I cannot understand why if Mr. Marpole wishes to interfere with this business of the U.B.R.E. they have not a right to interfere with his business. It seems to me the thing should work both ways. From what I can learn Mr. Marpole had spotters in the union. I don't know whether these gentlemen were spotted or not, our experience has been that these kind of men came from the other side. I don't know whether Canadians would do these things or not.

I am opposed, absolutely opposed to labour organizations in the abstract, and insist upon their existence only because it is absolutely necessary that they shall protect themselves. The principle is wrong, it is a monopoly, it protects the strong as against the weak. The same argument applies to secret societies as far as I am aware. If you join a secret organization the first thing you are asked to do is to have an examination by the best physician that can be got. If he decides that you are all right you are received with open arms, but you are rejected if weak. These organizations pose as Christian organizations. I don't believe it. Labour organizations protect the strong as against the weak, and that is one reason why I believe we should have a compulsory arbitration law in this country. Labour organizations as they are working to-day will very soon have brought about conditions by which only the strongest men can possibly obtain employment. This is certainly naturally wrong and it is time the government of this country adopted some method by which provision might be made for the weak and old. To-day have arrived at an age where I cannot obtain employment, and I think I have a right to live for a few years yet in this world. But it is necessary that men should organize in order to protect themselves and prevent these conditions from getting worse.

Now we are told by anti-compulsory arbitrationists that it interferes with individual labour. There is not a law on our books which does not interfere more or less with individual labour. Next we are told it is not workable, yet we learn it is working in New Zealand and in Australia. It has not had time there to show what it can do. We hear very little, in the reports from New Zealand of the unsatisfactory condition of affairs, but we don't hear of the repeal of the law which shows it is giving some degree of satisfaction. With the compulsory arbitration law under the present conditions, I fear that the arbitration board might be trying to have labour get the worst of it. In a deal of this kind it will pay labour to get into politics and see that judges are appointed who will do justice.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Do I understand, Mr. Foley, that you mean to imply that with the gentlemen we have on the bench now that it would be impossible to get a fair tribunal?—A. Not exactly that, but I would say this: That the power that wealth has got to create to-day, there is identically the same power to create judges to-day that there will be to create an arbitration board. That is no excuse for our repealing the laws.

Q. Were you ever impressed in any particular case that this power was used?—A. I do not know that I can mention a case just at present, but I certainly believe that the education of the judge and his surroundings has been such that he did not thoroughly appreciate the other side of the question. Having lived among a certain quality of the community, and our judges are as a rule largely the sons of men well-off—they belong largely to the upper class of society, and such men as that their natural sympathies would hardly be with the labouring men, as a rule, although there are exceptions.

Q. I don't know, but letting my mind run over the bench in several of the provinces, I think there are a few who have had that characteristic, but fellows of that class don't work hard enough to get to the bench?—A. They may not have a great number of men belonging to the middle class of society; a great many men have sprung from the lower classes of society. You take the workingman's son and place him in school. He is now in touch with the labour men. He goes from school to college and when he is graduated his natural tendency will be to associate with the more educated class, and his sympathy will naturally be with them instead of the lower classes.

CHRISTOPHER FOLEY—Vancouver, June 11.

Q. How are you going to remedy it?—A. We will just have to make a selection. I did not say they were all bad by any means, but we have to be in a position that if we have any positive or really good evidence to believe that a man has not dealt fairly with us we will be in a position to use our information, and have that gentleman removed and replaced by a man whom we would believe would be fair to us.

Q. Was there ever a judgment given in which you thought the issue was unfairly decided because the judge was influenced by the social condition of one of the claimants?—A. Yes, in Rossland. I cannot recall his name now.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. What court?—A. The police court.
Q. We are not talking of police court magistrates?—A. I did not understand but that this applied to all judges.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I was speaking of judges, and what I wanted to find out was whether you as a representative labour man held that position?—A. Judge Boulubee was the man I referred to, and the case was in connection with the Beamish case up there, where a man was arrested for violating certain laws. Returning to your question, I cannot recall of a single instance, although I am under the impression there are two or three in which I have a very strong suspicion that they were controlled by class prejudice or perhaps by a money consideration. I cannot recall them now. They are very few I will admit.

Q. You are a man who is a close observer, have a good memory and able to form an intelligent impression. From the fact that you cannot state a case, possibly there is not much ground for that impression?—A. I will call your attention to one instance in Rossland and you can judge for yourself. The judge is dead now, and probably it is wrong to mention his name, but at any rate we had an explosion up there in the Lo Roi mine. An engineer who was not onto his business ran the cage too high and broke the gate. The day before this explosion happened one of the guide rails had been taken out in order to repair the cage and the guide rail was not replaced. The result was the cage a few days later was run into the shaft and the clutches having nothing to clutch, the timber being removed, the cage went down. There were four men working in the bottom of the shaft. The bulkhead was immediately broken, according to the testimony of miners I know. The cage weighed about four tons and went down and knocked out a couple of carloads of timber. All this was piled on top of these men. None of them were killed, but several were crippled for life. The judge rendered a decision that according to the laws of British Columbia the company could not be held responsible for the mistake made by its engineer. In the next place he held that in the sense in which he read the law—and the law read that all reasonable provisions shall be made to safeguard the life and limb of the men in the shaft—he said that by no manner of means can you place the construction upon the reading of the law that the cage was falling material. It is possible under some circumstances it might not be falling material, but certainly when it broke loose it was falling material, and if that was not falling material, then the bulkhead, consisting of about half a carload of timber would certainly be falling material, and in addition to that there were tons of rock falling on the men. The case was thrown out of court, but on appeal was taken to the Supreme Court. In any case a decision was given for the complainant.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Surely you don’t suggest that the judge who tried that case was receiving anything?—A. I don’t pretend to say that he was paid, but I say these judges were not in a position to understand that position.

CHRISTOPHER FOLEY—Vancouver, June 11.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. You are setting up your knowledge of the law. It was a question of a point of law and nothing else, and because you think that he was wrong in his law, you think there is something behind it? — A. Why was the judgment reversed?

Q. They are reversed every day, but nobody suggests that there has been any bad motives on the part of the judges? — A. I am giving you my reasons for my suspicion. Can I help having suspicions. I understand that position better than the judges do. I do not quite understand the law but I understand the position, and I think I am better capable of judging whether that was falling material than they were.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Supposing your suspicions were justified, there are very few cases out of the total number of cases, but I wanted to get at your view. The difficulty in the men or in a court of arbitration is not as great as they think? — A. In my mind, I don’t think it is. I have a better opinion of the judges in this country than probably a good many have. Probably there may be cases where they err, at the same time I believe they are very rare, if we are to retain our present laws on our statute books and have our judges act on them there is no reason why we cannot employ another statute and have other judges appointed.

Q. Do you believe in compulsory arbitration? — A. Yes.

Q. I understand you would have a representative of each party and the third arbitrator a judge? — A. I consider a case of that kind cannot be tried in any other way.

Q. Would the parties to the complaint take the initiative or should the government? — A. I think the two parties.

Q. What about the state? Could the state intervene without invitation? — A. As I understand the New Zealand system the state does not intervene unless called upon to do so.

Q. You would have such a law involve the registration of unions? — A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you have this preceded by attempted conciliation? — A. I would.

Q. At what point would arbitration be brought in? — A. When conciliation failed.

Q. Would you make the law necessary to have notice given so that cases should be taken up before the strike really became acute? — A. I would. I wish to call your attention to one thing in connection with compulsory arbitration. I have always favoured it. When we had this experience in Fernie a short time ago we tried to deal with difficulty and failed until we took evidence under oath. Then the matter appeared in a different light and both parties became more amenable to reason. After we had very nearly effected a settlement, there were two men who both had previously been engaged doing dirty work for Mr. Tonkin, and bringing in men from the other side of the line. The union did not know these men were engaged in this business, and while looking over the papers we discovered this man’s name and commenced inquiry about it, and Mr. Tonkin said, that fellow — he called him by a little different name — has been in my employ some time, and he imported or at least shipped in here some 25 or 30 men sometime ago. He gave us a very bad reputation to the men. This matter was brought up by the executive a little later on. Here was this man a member of the executive board, and yet he had been playing into the company’s hands. My impression was that there had been some dispute with Mr. Tonkin over money matters, and he thought he would get even on Mr. Tonkin by advocating a strike, and having a tremendous influence over the Slav there he was in a position, between him and the other fellow, to tie that country up. He was in a position to have done this, and that is what convinces me that compulsory arbitration is absolutely necessary.

Q. Compulsory investigation — power to investigate troubles? — A. Yes.

CHRISTOPHER FOLEY — Vancouver, June 11.
R. MARPOLE, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. What office do you hold in the C.P.R.?—A. General superintendent of the Pacific division.

Q. Would you say succinctly the position of the railway company towards the question of forming unions on its road?—A. The matter of unionism with us is simply a matter pertaining to the men themselves. As I publicly declared, we are not antagonistic to unions. That would be evidenced by the fact that we have no less than 8 or 10 agreements at the present time with our men. We make contracts with men who are members of a union by means of a committee.

Q. Why with committees, rather than with the unions?—A. For the simple reason that a committee might be formed of non-union as well as union. We ask no questions of a committee of employees who come before us where all the members of that committee are members of a union, but we do recognize the right of a union to present grievances to us through the head of their order, and that any matter of investigation in the case of grievances shall be conducted with another member of the union present. As I said before, we have no contracts with any union.

Q. What difficulty do you feel in relation to the U.B.R.E. union?—A. For the good reason that it was unwieldy and something we had never seen before conducted. That is an attempt to form an order and take in every man on a railway as an order itself. We find that the difficulty would be that the majority of the men in the other unions—nearly all the unions would object to any such arrangement between us and them.

Q. The existing unions?—A. Yes.

Q. Then your position is that you don’t object to unions?—A. Not unions—not among men of their own class.

Q. What you call class unions?—A. Yes, class unions.

Q. And by class unions you mean bodies of men who are governed by some one official of the road?—A. Bodies of men engaged in one class of work.

Q. The idea being, I suppose, that these men in their various unions would have their grievances settled by the official of the department overlooking that class of work?—A. Exactly.

Q. And you find that that kind of union does not interfere with the management?—A. As far as I have experienced on this division.

Q. And the objection to a union like the U.B.R.E. is that the men unite indiscriminately?—A. It would be a union covering all class of employees, and necessarily, in my opinion, would be most unhealthy. It would also have the inherent difficulty of being controlled by a union on the other side of the line.

Q. Do you mean by unhealthy that it would be difficult for the officials of the departments to deal with?—A. No. I think it would be more difficult with the men in arriving at settlements of difficulties. In case of an engineman having a grievance: If we were bound to take a committee from the U.B.R.E. it might have for a leader a labourer in the shop, or a car-wiper might appear on the committee and know little about the matter, and who was subordinate to the men directly affected, as is the case now.

Q. And you think a committee of enginemen or firemen would be better able to deal with the matter, at all events from their point of view?—A. From mine too.

Q. I gather from what you say that the present unions objected to being engulfed by the U.B.R.E.?—A. They objected to an amalgamation.

Q. They prefer a class union?—A. As it is at present, yes.

Q. You have had considerable experience with strikes, I suppose?—A. Yes, in the last 6 or 8 years.

Q. Have you considered the question of how they can be best prevented?—A. Yes. I have thought seriously over it, and I have formed the opinion that they should differentiate between what I call public service corporations and ordinary industries. In the case of public service corporations, I think compulsory arbitration should be insisted on. I would call the railways, street railways, telephone and shipping, public service corporations.

R. MARPOLE,—Vancouver, June 11.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

685

Q. And you think compulsory arbitration is the proper method of settling strikes?—A. On public service corporations.

Q. How would you constitute the board?—A. I would constitute the board as I understand it is done in New South Wales, by the appointment of a Supreme Court judge. As I understand the law there, Chief Justice McMahon is chairman of the board, and my idea is that the same should be done in this country, if this is practicable to the other arbitrators appointed by each side to the dispute.

Q. And that the judge be chairman?—A. Yes.

Q. Would you have compulsory arbitration available at the instance of either party?—A. Yes, and to anticipate the trouble instead of waiting until it ensues—the strike, for instance. Unfortunately the public suffer while the two parties stand and look at each other. I saw an article by Mr. Charles Francis Adams which was clever, upon this subject, but it did not provide for anticipating trouble—

Q. You think some machinery should be provided when trouble is threatened?—A. That is my idea. I don’t think conciliation boards would do, particularly when each side knows they could have arbitration and settle it. It seems to me to be futile to attempt conciliation, particularly where large bodies are concerned, because the parties who think they are right would do nothing with the conciliation board.

Q. Would you say when three or four men demanded a raise in wages that the machinery of the state should be called in?—A. No, I am talking about incorporated unions.

Q. You think compulsory arbitration has this tendency—the incorporation of unions?—A. Certainly.

Q. Suppose you have ten men asking for a raise in wages?—A. You could not have a union of ten men. Individual troubles of that kind would rectify themselves. But I am speaking of any union incorporated, and representing a majority of the employees.

Q. In your opinion compulsory arbitration would be valuable only as against incorpored unions?—A. So far as I can see now. I cannot see where the responsibility would be on the order composed of only a few men.

Q. Would you have a special judge appointed as chairman of these bodies?—A. I would have one of the Supreme Court judges selected.

Q. Would you have the same man or a different man?—A. I would have the same judge. Because he would become identified and thoroughly understand labour or industrial troubles.

Q. From remarks dropped by the previous witness the fact seemed to be that the judge cannot appreciate the situation in this country?—A. That is a peculiar idea that some people have of the judiciary of this or any other country. I am glad to say it is not my experience personally.

Q. I am afraid that law would not meet with the approval of the labour people?—A. That is unfortunate certainly. It is certainly a fact that government will have to devise some law, because I take the ground that the president of the railway or the organization has no right to stop the public service. I have seen it done on very slight provocation. It has no right to let the third party suffer.

Q. What do you say as to compulsory investigation of disputes?—A. I have seen the suggestion made in the United States on some of these lines that rather attracted me. It would be for the purpose of giving the public a clear idea of the controversy, as I understand it. For instance, it has been suggested by Mr. Ramsay of the Wabash, that a law should be passed that no man engaged on the railways should throw up his job within thirty days, to allow of a public investigation. His decision in that came from the fact that an injunction was granted by the court to restrain men from striking, and the result was that the men came together, a statement was given and everything patched up. It came from their being prevented from striking.

R. MARPOLE—Vancouver, June 11.

Q. Have you ever considered how the award is to be enforced?—A. If they are incorporated?

Q. What is to prevent the men from soldiering, suppose they don't consider the award just? How can any court reach that?—A. They could do that in any case, if men as a body choose to do that, but I am pleased to say that we have had no man who has attempted to do that.

Q. Suppose the railway considered the award unjust?—A. They should be punished, of course. Under New Zealand conciliation, I understand there are penalties applied to either the men or the corporation. The framing of such a law would be something we should take from the experience of other countries, but the fact remains unmistakably that some such law is necessary, whether as a court to investigate for the purpose of showing which party is in the wrong, or else compulsory to settle disputes. I have not the slightest doubt but that an early investigation properly conducted, compulsory investigation, if you choose to put it that way, would have a beneficial effect on both sides, and certainly the side that is in the wrong.

Q. What would you say to compelling both parties to the controversy to file a statement of their grievances in some public office?—A. That would be a good thing to do. If compulsory arbitration cannot be had, if there is a law compelling them to publish their case that would be beneficial, and I believe would stop a lot of the troubles now existing.

Q. Suppose the men should give a certain number of days' notice before they should be allowed to go out on strike; that they should file a statement of their grievances in the office, say of the Supreme Court where everybody could see it, and a certain time afterwards the company be compelled to answer that statement, would that not be a good plan?—A. Yes, it would be.

Q. Then the attention of the public would at once be drawn to the controversy, and would soon begin to form an opinion about it?—A. Yes, and public opinion would have a great deal to do with determining the action of the corporation or the men.

Q. And failing a settlement you could have either compulsory investigation or compulsory arbitration?—A. Yes.

Q. To what class of undertakings would you apply this compulsory arbitration?—A. I believe, to public service corporations. I would take telephones—anything to which a franchise is given, or in which the public are directly interested. We have had experience in this city where the public suffered from these troubles. And the same with waterworks, and the same with the street railways.

Q. With the number of strikes occurring recently it would take a judge his whole time looking after them?—A. No, I disagree with you, my Lord. They would probably get together and avoid so many strikes. They would be afraid of the courts, at all events. I know it would be the last thing I would like to do, to appear before a court of arbitration with my case, unless I knew it was absolutely right. I would try to compromise before that.

Q. What do you say as to the fear of the union that they would be harassed with legislation?—A. The court would protect that. The law would be settled by arbitration the same as it is with disputes between myself and other men. You make a judicial investigation—there is no getting away from that. If no union or corporation is afraid of the law there is no use talking about any from of judicial investigation or arbitration.

Q. I think Mr. Russell's point was that there seemed to be a fear on the part of incorporated unions that they would be a target for instant litigation. They would be the weaker party and a corporation like the C.P.R. would keep them in hot water?—A. Yes, but the law is inaugurated in the Dominion or Federal House and surely the members of the cabinet are not going to permit that to occur. If such a thing would be done once or twice I fancy that law would be repealed or else corrected in such a way to make it difficult for the corporation to pursue such a policy.

R. MARPOLE,—Vancouver, June 11.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I suppose you would include coal mines?—A. Yes, I would for the reason that that subject would include public carriers.

By His Lordship:

Q. Would you make it possible for the state to initiate proceedings if necessary?—A. At a certain stage, I should think so. If it became apparent that the public were to be inconvenienced. That would be the time. As I mentioned a moment ago, it does not seem an honourable thing that an individual in charge of them or any individual should stop industry to the detriment of the third party who I say does suffer.

Q. I think there was a time here last summer when transportation was crowded, mines closed up, and fishing stopped?—A. Yes, in which the province suffered financially and by reputation.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. You think the state should step in and say, you have to operate these industries or give them to somebody who can?—A. That is my view.

Q. What effect do you think unionism has upon men?—A. The older they get the more conservative they are.

Q. How does it effect them as employees in relation to the company?—A. I don't notice any difference of that kind. I have noticed in some cases it has been an improvement in their habits. I know of several cases of men who have been poor workmen or disgracing themselves have been disciplined by their orders. Lots of the labour unions are very strict on that. They will not have in their union men of intoxicating habits to excess. I think if they are properly constituted and controlled they are of interest to the company. As I said the younger unions are inclined to be indiscreet with their powers. But in the older unions men become more conservative. That is my experience for twenty years.

Q. When you spoke about foreign control, does that not apply to the older unions? A. No, I don't know of any union extending from one end to the other in the same way as the U. B. R. E. You take the Western Federation of Miners, and the American Labour Union, they are all affiliated with U. B. R. E. or at least the U. B. R. E. is affiliated with them, controlled in a measure, but I know of no other union controlled that way.

By His Lordship:

Q. The engineers belong to an international union?—A. Yes, but they are not affiliated with any other.

Q. Their headquarters are in the United States?—A. Oh, yes, their headquarters are there, but Estes is the first international leader I have seen. They don't interfere. They settle the matter by their own local union. They refer to the international as a last resort. In the event of strike being threatened, they often call in their president or someone in authority.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. It is likely you would have seen the international leader if you had had a strike?—A. Well, we had strikes, but I never saw one. As I repeated to you, I never saw one interfere before.

Q. They seem to have autonomy?—A. Yes.
Q. The engineers could settle their dispute with you if they went on strike without referring the matter to headquarters?—A. Yes. You mean the engineers of this division could settle with me?

Q. Yes?—A. They could only come out with me on the question of rates, and without reference to anybody else. If it was a general strike over the system I don't know what the rules are.

Q. The men here don't have to get the approval of somebody outside to settle?—A. Not as far as I know.

His Lordship.—If there is anything more that Mr. Marpole would like to state we would be glad to hear it.

Mr. Davis.—Speaking of that thirty days' notice, here is an article in the 'Railway Age' which seems to deal with that very point. (Handed in.)

J. H. Watson, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. What is your occupation?—A. I am a custom-house officer at the present time. My trade is boiler-making.

Q. Are you a member of any union?—Yes, I am secretary of the Boilermakers' Union here.

Q. Have you any other position?—A. Organizer of the American Federation of Labour, and was organizer of the Dominion Trades Congress.

Q. How many unions have you organized?—A. About 36 or 37, I am not sure.

Q. Different trades or occupations?—A. All different.

Q. All under a common system?—A. I mean to say, the charters about alike?—A. Some are under the jurisdiction of the international union, some under the American Federation of Labour, some under what they call the National Union, and some under the Dominion Trades Congress, a purely Canadian organization.

Q. What are the advantages of these international unions?—A. Well, there are a good many advantages in the international unions—that is, the true international union. The first is that if they get out of work here they can go to the other side and get work in any shop in America.

Q. Could not that be done by affiliation?—A. It is doubtful whether they would do it. You cannot get work at the shops there unless you have your working card from the international union. Neither could you here if they carry out their affiliation strictly.

Q. In the case of the boilermakers—I suppose they are pretty well unionized?—A. Yes.

Q. I mean all over America. How many would there be?—A. About 30,000, all one union called the International Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders of America.

Q. I suppose they have a benefit fund?—A. No benefit, only a strike fund.

Q. Who determines the strike question?—A. The local union itself. The men can go on strike without consulting the international head at all, but they won't get any strike pay. They won't recognize a strike unless they get permission.

Q. When it comes to a settlement?—A. They can make their own settlement without interference from outside at all.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. What is that?—A. They make their own settlement without outside interference at all.

J. H. Watson—Vancouver, June 11.
Q. Well, we had a case in reference to the matter of the Garonne in Victoria. A number of the Boilermakers' Union said they wished to make an arrangement, but the headquarters at Kansas City would not permit them to do so?—A. I should not believe that without I saw the authority for it.

Q. Is Kansas City the headquarters?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. It has been given in a large body of evidence brought before this Commission with a view of suggesting that unions are not any too reliable in keeping faith with contracts with their employers?—A. They are not, I have to admit it. They don't think—that's the trouble; don't give themselves time to think.

Q. In some cases they are very prone to throw over a contract?—A. Yes, a good many.

Q. It occurs to me that if unions want to get the public on their side, the best thing is to show the public that they appreciate a contract?—A. Yes, there is only one way to do that.

Q. How?—A. I would make them incorporate and make them responsible for their actions.

Q. Then it is alleged by those who oppose incorporation that the benefit funds might be made a target. There is no real difficulty about that, is there?—A. There are very few of them that have benefit funds.

Q. The law at any rate could provide that these benefits should be exempt?—A. I don't see any difficulty in it at all.

Q. Have you under notice a case of unions breaking a contract with its employers?—A. Its own agreements? No, I don't know that I have.

Q. Have you any case in mind of a union threatening to do it and being prevented by any officers of the order?—A. Well, I have known of officers of the order going and compelling them to live up to their agreement. In the case of the U.B.R.E. strike in Revelstoke some of the machinists there that belonged to the International Machinists' Union, but who went out on strike and had already joined the U.B.R.E. They had made an agreement with the C.P.R. and these men had to give so long a notice. These men quit when the U.B.R.E. went out, quit work in spite of the contract.

Q. How long were they out?—A. Perhaps a fortnight. Then it was brought to the notice of Mr. O'Connell, the vice-president, and he ordered them back to work. After the vice-president inquired into it he ordered them back to work or else give up their card in the union.

Q. On the ground of breach of faith with their employers?—A. Certainly, it could not have been anything else.

Q. Did they go back?—A. Some did, and some quit rather than go back. Some left the town.

Q. What proportion of them went back?—A. I don't know. There are machinists in the shop can give that information better than I can. The blacksmiths were the same way in Revelstoke. They did not quit work, but would not work with helpers who were out on strike. They would not work with the helpers.

Q. Were the helpers breaking a contract too?—A. As far as I know they were under the same agreement as what they are in Vancouver, as far as I know.

Q. Were they ordered back to work?—A. There was no one to order them back. That is the trouble with the Dominion Trades Congress. There is nothing at the back of the Congress to compel that. That is were the international has the advantage.

Q. That if the international is headed by responsible men, that is the chief cause the local union are not allowed to break contracts?—A. Unions belonging to the international are not allowed to break contracts.

J. H. WATSON—Vancouver, June 11.
Q. If they were left to themselves there might be some danger?—A. In the case of our union, if it breaks its contract and goes out in sympathy they would withdraw the charter of the union.

Q. They don't approve of sympathetic strikes?—A. No. I have a copy of the international president's letter over this strike here, because our men at one time—there was such a state of excitement over the U.B.R.E. they were liable to come out at any moment. But we wanted to know just what powers we had from our head office. I had a letter from our international union to show. This is a copy of the letter that I got from our grand president in answer to a communication, so you will see how they stand in the matter.

(Copy of letter put in as Exhibit 63.)

Q. You might read that, Mr. Watson.—A. This is a copy:

'Now, in regard to the boilermakers working on the C.P.R., will say, that under no consideration will we allow any of our members to violate a contract, and if any of the men attach themselves to any dual organization, or go out in sympathy with any other organization and violate their contract, they will immediately annul their card and a lodge that will encourage them to do so, we will call in their charter. We appreciate the sanctity of a contract, and if we do not live up to contracts, in a very short time the employers will refuse to make any with us. I hope you will so notify those members, as you can rest assured that we will do just as stated in this letter.

Fraternally yours,

John McNeil,

G.P.O.'

Q. No doubt, Mr. Wilson, if all union men acted in the spirit of that letter there would never have been any antagonism to unions?—A. There are a number doing the right thing, but there are a number, I am sorry to say, who don't do the right thing. There is an element getting into them that is killing them off altogether.

Q. Will you just state what that is that is causing the trouble?—A. I think the socialist element in the union is causing the trouble.

Q. In what way?—A. They preach the doctrine of discontent. That is what they are able to preach, and that is what they preach in the union and out of the union.

Q. Their central doctrine is that there is an irreconcilable hostility between employers and the workmen?—A. They keep up that doctrine, that there is an antagonism between capital and labour.

Q. And that belief is not shared by trade union men?—A. Not by quite a large number, no.

Q. That is to say their belief is that there is a necessary antagonism?—A. They believe so, but that is not my belief.

Q. Have you any suggestion to make as to how that could be remedied?—A. They know my stand. I have told them lots of times. I would throw him out of the union. If I knew a man was a socialist I would not allow the man into the union. If they do they are only taking a viper into themselves, that is all.

Q. As a rule the socialists are opposed to the incorporation of unions?—A. I don't know. I never had much talk with them. They are sure to be opposed to it. If they are going to make them responsible for their actions they are going to be opposed to it.

Q. It seems reasonable that where there is power there should be responsibility?—A. Certainly, undoubtedly.

Q. I suppose the Canadian population is not large enough to have national unions. They would not be sufficiently strong?—A. They might be a good deal stronger than they are if these socialists were not trying to drag everything into these.

J. H. Watson—Vancouver, June 11.
railway unions. Every union that had not an international head, I put into the Dominion Trades Congress, and now they want to put it into the American Labour Union. It has been my aim to strengthen it, and that cannot be done by working them out of it.

Q. Would you favour national unions?—A. Yes, I am in favour of all unions that can be taken into the Dominion Trades Congress to go there, that is those that have no international head.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Why does the Trades Congress require this?—A. It is a matter of courtesy, I take it. For instance, I was not aware when I organized the laundry workers here that there was an international union for them, but when I sent the money to Mr. Draper for their charter, he sent the money back and told me to apply to the secretary of the International Laundry Workers' Union. It is a matter of honour between the two. They won't interfere with each other's jurisdiction.

Q. The Dominion Trades Congress does not hold absolute jurisdiction over the country, but only over such orders as have not international affiliation?—A. They have to do the best they can for the worker, and they know an international union is the best thing a worker can get into—that is a bona fide international.

By His Lordship:

Q. Then when a particular trade does get an international they withdraw from the Dominion Trades Congress and go into the international?—A. Suppose they organize here and take a charter, then suppose they grow strong enough to form an international union over there, then the Dominion Trades Congress would hand them over to the international union.

Q. Then the Trades Congress is a sort of parliament of unions where they discuss legislation?—A. Purely a legislative body.

Q. And where they discuss matters that should be dealt with in the legislature?—A. Yes.

Q. And that, of course, could be better done by them than international unions?—A. Certainly. You see the delegates that go to that congress are delegates from international unions.

Q. Are there any delegates from the other side?—A. One fraternal delegate from the American Federation of Labour, but the delegates who comprise the Trades Congress are made up of members of international unions.

Q. But they are all men working in Canada?—A. Yes.

Q. What is your view of the sympathetic strike? Is it ever advisable?—A. No, I don't think so, not under any condition.

Q. How would you advocate the settlement of labour disputes?—A. Compulsory arbitration is the only thing I see, and make unions incorporate. Make them responsible for their actions, that is the only thing.

Q. I suppose the boycott ought not to be employed?—A. Well, I don't know; it is employed. I am not in favour of it, but I know it is employed.

Q. What do you say as to the blacklist?—A. I don't know anything about it; I have heard about them in the press. I don't know anything from experience, but I believe a good many men have suffered from them in the States. Men have told me they have walked from street to street in the United States, walked from one store to another, from one town to another, and could not get employment.

Q. You mean by the union?—A. No, by employers. On account of taking part in some strike or something of that sort.

Q. Don't you think both the union and employer should be prohibited from blacklisting?—A. How do unions blacklist?

Q. By posting a list of unfair people?—A. Yes, I never looked at it in that way before. I suppose it is.

J. H. WATSON—Vancouver, June 11.
Q. Well, it might post a list of those who were fair, not post a blacklist? — A. They should only do to others what they want others to do to them; that is a sure thing.

Q. For instance, in a paper which is known by the name of the 'Western Clarion,' I think, published in Vancouver, we find a paragraph of this kind: 'The Betraying Hand and Blood Money. The following men have returned to work and are scabbing: E. V. Dangerfield, baggageman. John Ward, clerk—' and so on. That is not an honourable thing to do, is it? — A. Better look where it comes from.

Q. That sort of practice should be condemned on the part of both employers and unions? — A. I think so. If it is wrong in one case it is wrong in another. There is another thing in this paper. There were three men here boycotted or something of that kind through the contractor here, Mr. Cook, completing his contract with them. The very men that are condemning that very building or that contract are the very men that are encouraging this American Labour Union that was organized expressly to do an injury to the American Federation of Labour. They never lose an opportunity of doing it. I think if one is good the other is.

Q. Do the U. B. R. E. consider the engineers and firemen scabs because they did not come out? — A. They look on me as a scab too because I encouraged other men to keep in. I don't suppose any other man in this town had more abuse simply because I wanted the men to act the man and live up to their agreement. I am one of those fellows that believes if a man makes an agreement with an employer he has a right to live up to the letter of that agreement, and has a right to expect the employer to do the same. If he cannot live up to it, he cannot expect the employer to do it. If I was an employer and had a body of men working for me, and they ever broke their agreement, I would take fine care not to make another one.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. A member of your union who said that a contract could not stand against the interest of the union and authority of the headquarters is not saying what is your conception of that position? — A. No. If it was left to headquarters it is not true, because that letter proves it. There is a letter from the grand president of the same union.

Q. We had a case, nevertheless, where a body of men belonging to your order undertook to do certain work and at the command of Kansas City, through the invitation of an American lodge they ordered the men out and broke their agreement, and they did? — A. I don't think they went on strike. They had undertaken not to touch the work.

By His Lordship:

Q. What I have about that is: 'We asked Kansas City what we should do. We explained the facts, that we were willing to go to work; that the Seattle men thought it would help them if we did not go to work, and also that we had promised to go to work. The reply was we were to work in conjunction with Seattle, so long as Seattle regarded it as unfair we could not go to work. We had to consult both Seattle and Kansas City. If we disobeyed the Kansas City people our charter would have been lost, and we would have been called scabs and could not have got a job anywhere, only in a non-union shop.' Then he says: 'I think a Canadian organization would be strong enough provided we had a good alien law?' — A. I don't think it. There are only five lodges in Canada.

Q. That was a very extraordinary case because it seemed to go to prove this: that a number of Canadian workmen on a ship in Victoria were actually called out because of the action of some of people in Seattle, to which they were not in the slightest degree a party. That is a case which should not be allowed to continue? — A. I think they only refused to do the work. I don't know the circumstances of the case.

His Lordship.—But if these men could not touch that work it could not be done?

J. H. Watson—Vancouver, June 11.
Mr. Bird.—Was that not a case where the work was sent from Seattle to be done in Victoria?

His Lordship.—Yes.

Mr. Rowe.—The machinists were having trouble with Moran Brothers in Seattle, and the owner wanted to get the boiler work done. Morans had entered into a contract and he came to the Albion Iron Works, asking them to take the contract. The manager went into the matter with the men. They agreed to take the work. He went over and they still agreed to do it. Then the ship came over, and with it a committee from Seattle, who instructed these men not to do the work. The firm had taken the job on the faith of this promise made by the boilermakers. Kansas City and Seattle told these men in Victoria they were not to do it, and they did not.

By His Lordship:

Q. You see it is getting to be a grave question, Mr. Watson, as to how far a Canadian organization should be interfered with from the other side?—A. It is no good saying they were interfered with. Two or three men came over from Seattle, and if the lodge were not willing they need not do it.

Q. But the lodge at Victoria had received a reply from Kansas City that they were not to proceed under fear of losing their charter. If that sort of thing goes on the Canadian workman is a mere machine in the hands of somebody on the other side?—A. My experience has been, if men who take the offices in these different unions state the case fairly to the executive head of the union, there would not be so much trouble to come to the right decision, but the trouble is in referring these things to headquarters they have difficulty in getting at the right and the wrong and often jump at conclusions. At the same time, our international officers here and in every city should be very careful how they communicate things to the head office. There were two strikes here two years running in succession on the C. P. R. with the machinists. Our men came out on strike in sympathy with the machinists, and we had a telegram from the head office refusing that these men should come out on strike in sympathy.

Q. Was that obeyed?—A. No, the men took the bit in their teeth and went out.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Do you take an oath in your order on joining?—A. Yes, there is an obligation, an oath and obligation. The whole of them, as far as I have seen. I don’t think the oath is in any way detrimental. I have never come across one that was detrimental. Only an oath that they would be true to one another.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Do you believe in politics in unions?—A. Not in unions, no.

Q. You say that should not be introduced as part of discussion or part of any policy?—A. It should not be brought into the union.

Q. When did you come to that conclusion?—A. That has been my conclusion from experience gained within these last two years.

Q. Then before that you were of the opinion that politics were a proper thing in the union?—A. Not in the union.

Q. Do you remember writing a letter to the ‘Boilermakers’ Journal’ in June last?—A. I would like to see it.

Q. You did not state that ‘the sooner that labour gets into politics and gets in quickly to end the present economic system by declaring with a common voice for social democracy, the better’?—A. No, I don’t know that I held such opinions as all that.

Q. You didn’t write this: ‘The old chestnut of no politics in the union is all humbug—let us shout it everywhere. The workers must enter politics or die. Let us go to the polls, as on Labour Day we parade to show our strength, so on election day.

J. H. Watson—Vancouver, June 11.
let us march to the polls and record our solid vote as one man for one of our choice from our own ranks, who are workers like ourselves, and instead of showing the world our strength, let it be felt with a mighty blow that shall forever put an end to the present economic system and party government, which is giving away our inheritance and making slaves of all'?—A. That is not my language.

Q. Will you swear that you did not write that?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see an article in the 'Journal of the Boilermakers' Union' of June last appearing over your name?—A. I will swear that I did not write it.

Q. That you did not dictate it or send it?—A. I swear it never appeared in the 'Boilermakers' Journal' in the exact words you are reading.

Q. I hold in my hands what purports to be a quotation from the letter signed by you?—A. I have read it. The whole thing is a tissue of lies.

Q. You say the quotation is false?—A. I want to tell you this: that my whole action in this city contradicts it.

Q. Do you say this quotation is false?—A. Yes, that is false.

Q. You say that with full knowledge of having read it?—A. Yes, I have read it— the whole thing.

Q. You stated the fact that ugly names had been called you by reason of your recent position in connection with labour matters?—A. I never said scab, but know how I am looked on.

Q. You are looked upon as having sold out to a certain political party?—A. I don't know.

Q. You hold a position in the post office?—A. No, I don't.

Q. In the customs?—A. Yes.

Q. And you have recently been dismissed from the Trades and Labour Council?—A. No.

Q. You are still a member of the Trades and Labour Council?—A. No.

Q. You have been until recently?—A. Until about four months.

Q. You were politely told you were not required?—A. No.

Q. Was there any pressure brought to bear upon you to leave?—A. No pressure whatever. I left of my own free will.

Q. Don't you know that the Dominion Trades Congress passed a resolution stating that any man appearing on a public platform in support of either the Conservative or Liberal party was to be looked on with discredit?—A. Yes, that was a socialist move, done at the last minute.

Q. Apparently it has got in advance of your sentiments which have apparently changed as to socialists?—A. That would be an advance of mine. It is a long way from being socialist yet.

Q. At the same time by reason of all this you were a discredited member of the local organization, the Trades and Labour Council?—A. Well, I don't know.

Q. Were you not a delegate from the Boilermakers' Union?—A. Yes, and my union withdrew its delegates. There was no question about being turned out. My union withdrew its delegates. I don't want you to make insinuations against me, because you will get them back.

By His Lordship:

Q. There is one telegram here (indicating) you might tell us about?—A. That is right. One of our union was fined $25 for quitting his work and breaking his agreement in Revelstoke. That was done by the local union here.

Q. Was this man a member of the local union here?—A. Our jurisdiction extends to Nelson, because there are not enough to form a separate union. The union fined him $25 and they afterwards took it off, because they found he was only out from the old country and he was new to the business. He withdrew from the organization and that settled it.

J. H. WATSON—Vancouver, June 11.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. There is a telegram here from Kansas City apparently to you: 'Avoid sympathetic strike.' This order prohibits?—A. That was in answer to a resolution, or not a resolution, but an order made by my union at a special meeting called to discuss the U.B.R.E. affair. They arranged there the question that I was to ask the headquarters, and that was the answer, to avoid a sympathetic strike.

Q. What followed the word 'unless.' The words are blotted out?—A. I don't know. I took the telegram down to the men at the shops, and I have not seen it since. There was no sympathetic strike. Our men kept at work.

Q. Who is Mr. Garnham?

Mr. Bird.—I understand he was the former agent of the U.B.R.E. before Mr. Halton—the acting agent.

By Mr. Foley:

Q. You said under no condition would you approve of the violation of a contract?—A. No.

Q. Suppose that an employer violated his contract, would you consider the contract broken?—A. Certainly.

Q. Then if by any means he violated his agreement would you feel justified in violating yours?—A. Certainly.

Q. In your self-defence?—A. Certainly. I should not think the agreement was in existence if he violated it.

SARAH MCDONALD, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. You are the proprietor of a boarding house, I think?—A. Yes.

Q. You understand you are not here voluntarily—that you have been compelled to come here?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you been proprietor of this house?—A. Eight years in August, but I have been always keeping boarders since the fire here.

Q. What class of boarders?—A. Clerks and ordinary men working in foundries and places like that.

Q. Mechanics and clerks?—A. Yes.

Q. Some few days ago you were waited on by some men, were you not, regarding your keeping certain boarders?—A. Yes. It was the moulders that were boarding with me, that belonged to the union, the moulders' union. There were three of them.

Q. They came to you and said what?—A. They didn't want me to keep these men who came from the C.P.R.

Q. What men?—A. The men that were working for the C.P.R., that were working in the place of the strikers.

Q. How many of such men were there?—A. After they broke up the boarding house—the C. P. R. was boarding them there—about eight or ten. I had one for eight years and they wanted me to let him go.

Q. How many men?—A. Eight or ten.

Q. Including one man who had been with you for nearly eight years?—A. Yes, that was seven years last Christmas.

Q. It was on the ground that these men were scabs?—A. Yes. I told them I could not possibly do it. They were paying their way and were respectable men in the house, and for the men they wanted to go I told them that was impossible. I had no reason whatever. I told them if any of them had done anything dissatisfying to their union I could not do anything to have them go.

SARAH MCDONALD—Vancouver, June 11.
Q. What happened then?—A. They left me. There were five left altogether.
Q. Did they tell you if you didn’t send away these men they would go?—A. Yes.
Q. Anything else?—A. No. They didn’t say they would post me as unfair. I told them I had legal advice, and if they put my name up in lodge or union hall that I would have them prosecuted, which is what I was prepared to do.
Q. What did they say to that?—A. They didn’t say anything; they said they were going and they went.
Q. They didn’t say they would post you up?—A. No, they didn’t. Not that I ever heard.
Q. Was there any dispute between these men in your house?—A. No, they never said a word to the men, to my knowledge.
Q. What time was this? How long ago?—A. This was some time perhaps the last of April, I think, when this happened.
Q. About the time of the outbreak of the strike?—A. No, that was after the strike.
Q. The C.P.R. boarded the men—the seabs, as we call them?—A. Yes, until about that time.
Q. Is your boarding house near the C.P.R.?—A. No, my boarding house is on Richards street.
Q. Have any union men come to board with you?—A. No, I have union men with me who would not go.
Q. Did these union men who stayed with you say anything to the men who went out?—A. One of them said he thought they were a little hasty in doing what they did.
Q. You heard that?—A. No, one of them told me he said that.
Q. Have you felt any particular effect on your business?—A. No, I have always had my place full.
Q. So it has not affected you?—A. No.
Q. Did any of these men say they would not eat at the same table with these people?—A. No, I never heard anything of that kind said.
Q. They simply said they could not stay there?—A. Yes.
Q. That unless you turned them out they would go?—A. Yes, they said they could not stay.
Q. Do you know whether you have been posted up or not?—A. No, I don’t, because if it is up it is not interfering with my business. I was going to give it up altogether sooner than be beaten. I didn’t know what they might do.
Q. You were going to give up the boarding house?—A. Yes, sooner than I would be beaten. I don’t know whether they could do anything to hurt my business, and I didn’t like to have to give up.
Q. Are you dependent on the boarding house for a living?—A. Yes.
Q. Are you a married woman?—A. I am a widow since 1891.
Q. And you have no other way of making a living?—A. No other way.
Q. All I would say to you is that these three men are not fit to be in any decent boarding house.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. These were not U.B.R.E. men?—A. No, sir.
Q. It was just an individual instance of unionism carried to extremity?—A. Yes, the U.B.R.E. never said one word to me.

Mr. Bird.—I might say, Mr. Commissioners, that a better sentiment prevailed and that there has been no instance of fighting women by these unfair tactics.

His Lordship.—I think these three men are a disgrace to unionism and are not fit to be in any decent boarding house.

Mr. Bird.—There are lots of men claiming to be Christians. These are individuals examples.

SARAH MCDONALD—Vancouver, June 11.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 369

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. How many union men are there in your house?—A. I could not say; I never bothered so long as they were respectable and minded their own business.

Q. There were some union men remained when the others left?—A. Yes, I could not say how many.

WILLIAM D. MUIR, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. You are a baker?—A. Yes; I run a bake-shop at Mount Pleasant.

Q. That is a suburb of Vancouver?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you been in business?—A. I have been baking about eight years.

Q. Have you had any contracts baking bread for the C. P. R.?—A. Not the C. P. R., the C. P. N. I have been furnishing them bread for about two years, up to the present time. I am supplying them to-day.

Q. Have you had any difficulty, arising out of the fact of your having a contract, with any union?—A. Yes, there was some trouble with the C. P. R. and their men at the time of the U. B. R. E. strike, and I was supplying the Princess May with bread. I was advised by the union not to supply that ship any longer.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. What union?—A. The Bakers’ Union—the journeymen.

By His Lordship:

Q. To refrain from supplying bread to the Princess May?—A. Yes, I had a letter from the union, advising me that this boat was unfair.

Q. Have you got that letter?—A. I have not got it with me; I can tell you what is in it. It wanted to know about my contract, and if I knew they were on the unfair list. It was from the Journeymen Bakers’ Union.

Q. That is different from the Masters’ Union?—A. Yes. We have no Masters’ Union here. It was from the secretary, Mr. McLean.

Q. And that letter stated the Princess May was on the unfair list, and requested you to stop supplying bread?—A. Yes. He wanted to know if I was aware that these boats were on the unfair list, especially the Princess May. I am supplying a lot of the boats, but it was this one particularly. They wanted to know about the nature of my contract with the company. I replied that I kept no record or unfair list, except men who did not pay. About my contract, it was my business, and nobody else’s, and that I should keep on supplying them, which I have done and am yet.

Q. Any reply to that?—A. A few days after that the men were advised to boycott my shop.

Q. How do you know?—A. I had a second letter.

Q. What language did that letter use? Have you got that letter?—A. I have not got it with me; I think I have that one. Just about what was in it was that after Monday morning, if I continued supplying these boats, that my shop would be on the unfair list. Monday would be the 6th April—I believe that is the correct date.

Q. Were the men called out?—A. Yes.

Q. By whom?—A. By this union. A meeting was called and they were advised to quit. There were eight or nine in the shop. We employ nine now.

WILLIAM D. MUIR—Vancouver, June 11.
Q. Did you have any talk with the men before they went out?—A. Yes, I advised them what was coming. I showed them my letters, and the men agreed to stay with me—all but two.

Q. These two men went out—what did they say as to their reason for going out?—A. Because I was supplying these boats that were unfair.

Q. In the interests of the union or that they were compelled?—A. I believe it was.

Q. Was it because they had to obey the union, or because they thought the action of the union was proper?—A. I would suppose both, but I have nothing to show that.

Q. Was there anything passed in the conversation with you that would give some light on that?—A. I have not much to show. Of course, anything that was unfair we would not be supposed to supply it. For instance, I had a car of flour consigned to me, and as the teamsters were on strike I could not get it delivered. Consequently, I had to use a wholesale warehouse—have the flour put in there and get it delivered through that. I am showing this to show that I was not supposed to have anything to do with these boats because they were unfair.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Had you other boats besides the Princess May?—A. Quite a lot of the C.P.N. boats. Any that asked for it, got it.

Q. Do your contracts with the C.P.N. represent a large portion of your business?—A. No, I think a small part.

By His Lordship:

Q. Did you have a written contract with the C.P.N.?—A. No.

Q. Any written contract with your men?—A. Yes, they signed a contract with me last year. It runs from the 1st of July—to work with me for a certain time at certain wages.

Q. Anything about notice to quit?—A. No.

Q. Where is that contract?—A. I have it down at my office.

Q. We would like to have all these papers—will you look for them?—A. Well, I think I may not be able to find them.

Q. Have these men come back since?—A. No, they have been working for other people and walking around part of the time.

Q. Did you put men in their places?—A. Yes, I had no difficulty in getting men.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Were they union men?—A. No, non-union men.

By His Lordship:

Q. You have union men?—A. No, not now. All are non-union since that trouble.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Are these men who remained with you not union men?—A. They were, but they were discharged from the union because they remained in my shop. I believe there are six. One of the men who will follow me has got a paper to show the names.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Was your contract in regard to supplying the Princess May in existence prior to the strike?—A. Yes, I have been supplying these boats since I have been in Vancouver.

Q. Was not the chief difficulty in regard to this union that you were supplying the Yosemite and the Rithet, on which the scabs were being boarded?—A. I was supplying them too.

WILLIAM D. MUIR—Vancouver, June 11.
Q. You got the contract subsequent to the strike?—A. No. I have been supplying the Princess May and several of the others for the last two years—for the summer before this.

Q. Were the Yosemite and the Rithet not mentioned?—A. No mention of any boats at all; I simply went to the purchasing agent and asked him for this business.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. This letter you got from the union was in regard to the Princess May?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. You can produce this contract with the C.P.N.?—A. I have no written contract with them.

Q. Your contract is nothing more than your ordinary contract with people who buy bread tickets?—A. With anybody, yes.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. In the letter you got from the union there was no reference to the Rithet?—A. No, I don't think these boats were used as boarding houses then; I believe they were boarding in cars, but I would not be sure, and that shortly after this the boats were put here. I know about the Yosemite and Rithet afterwards, I think.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Did the action of the union in placing you on the unfair list affect your business?—A. A little. Some of the union men have quit buying bread. I probably lost forty or fifty private houses.

Q. Were you posted as unfair?—A. I have not been to their labour hall. There has been nothing in the newspapers.

By His Lordship:

Q. Who is the man in charge of the union?—A. I could not say.

His LORDSHIP.—I suppose Mr. Russell can tell us about this unfair list?

Mr. RUSSELL.—Mr. Muir, I believe, is posted by the Bakers' Union because he insisted on supplying bread to the scabs. The notice is there, on the blackboard, signed by the secretary of the Bakers' Union.

His LORDSHIP.—We will get a full account of that practice later.

WITNESS.—I might also say that at the time these men were taken out of my shop, several of the men belonging to the Bakers' Union went to a lot of places in the city—grocery stores—and went to the hotels, restaurants and other places, and solicited them to quit buying bread from me.

By His Lordship:

Q. What was your total income before this per month?—A. I could only give you the number of loaves. We were turning out before the strike about 20,000.

Q. And by reason of these forty or fifty families leaving you?—A. We are still turning out about 20,000. We have picked up all we have lost. We did not lose many stores. We lost three or four stores.

Q. Did they tell you so?—A. They told the drivers. Some restaurants quit us. No hotels quit us to my knowledge.

Q. Can you give us the name of one of these grocery stores?—A. Well, I could not at the moment. If I come back after dinner I could.

Q. Can you give us the names of any people who quit doing business with you?—A. I could bring a list, but I have not it with me. I believe I advised my bookkeeper to keep a record, so that we would know just what that list was. That was done purely for curiosity.

WILLIAM D. MUIR—Vancouver, June 11.
By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Did any of the customers say they stopped on account of this action?—A. Yes, there were either sons or fathers, or somebody in the house belonging to the U.B.R.E., consequently they could not buy bread of us.

Q. How many cases of that?—A. I could not say how many. I can get a list made out and give it to you pretty closely.

Q. What was your supply per month to the steamboats?—A. In winter time it amounted to very little. Previous to this these boats were not running north. We have a standing order for about 300 loaves every time she sails. They take about that. For the last two months I would say about 900 to 1,200 each month, say 1,000 to 1,200 loaves a month. That has been for the months of April and May, and June will be about the same.

By His Lordship:

Q. You had better bring these papers after lunch?—A. You want to know the names of the people who quit us?

Q. We want the names, we want the two letters, and we would like to look at that agreement?—A. I don't know about the letters, but I am satisfied I have the agreement.

Charles A. Wilband, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. You are a journeyman baker?—A. Yes.

Q. And you are in the employ of the last witness, Mr. Muir?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long?—A. For about two years.

Q. Are you now an employee?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have heard what the last witness said about the trouble he had?—A. Yes, I heard what he said all right.

Q. What have you to say about the action of the union?—A. Well, the union wrote to him and told him he was not to supply that boat or else they would call the men out. I was a member of the union.

Q. Are you now?—A. No, for I considered they were not doing what was right by the man, so I withdrew from the union and stayed with the shop.

Q. Were you told by the secretary of the union that you had to come out?—A. Well, he gave us verbal notice, but the rule is he should write us by written notice to attend a special meeting, and it was only just a verbal notice and we didn't go.

Q. You didn't go to the meeting?—A. No.

Q. How many journeymen bakers are there in town?—A. At that time there were 22 members in the union. I have been a member of the union for three years. The fact is I was a chartered member. I worked in the city previous to the time that there was a union.

Q. You didn't go to the meeting. Were you ordered out by the secretary or the union?—A. We get notice that we were to be called out, a verbal notice.

Q. Who gave it to you?—A. It was the secretary.

Q. Who is the secretary?—A. His name is McLean.

Q. Where did he give it to you?—A. At the shop. He said if we kept on working at that shop which supplied the company's men they would enforce a fine on us of $25 for each week we worked.

Charles A. Wilband—Vancouver, June 11.
Q. What did you say?—A. We told him we would stay with the shop and did not intend to go out. We told him the reason we did not intend to go out was that we didn't think they were running the union by union principles.

Q. And you think it is not good unionism to call you out on strike because your employer was supplying the Princess May?—A. No, for the simple reason that if he was supplying the boat it would not make any difference to us who he supplied the bread to, as long as we got our hours and our wages.

Q. How many men disobeyed this summons to come out?—A. Five men.

Q. Five stayed with the shop and two with the union?—A. There was one man working a day or two, and the other man, named Evans, he was the only man who went out.

Q. What has become of the union since?—A. I don't know for sure whether it is existing or not, but I heard it was running.

Q. This union is a branch of the International Bakers' Union?—A. Yes.

Q. Did none of you men complain to headquarters about the action of this union? A. Yes, as a body we wrote to headquarters for a decision.

Q. Have you got an answer?—A. We got an answer, and they turned us down, supporting the local union in their action.

Q. Have you the letter?—A. No, but that was the effect of it. The letter stated that the local union here had done right and that we had to go back, and all the fines would be clear if we went back in the union.

Q. Have you the letter?—A. No. There are some of them have it.

Q. I mean the letter you got from headquarters as well as the one you sent?—A. I have not the letter, but I guess some of the men have.

Q. It is important to know exactly what was done. You say you can get a copy of the letter sent?—A. Yes, and I am pretty sure I can get the reply.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Do you know a baker named Joseph Davidson has been on the unfair list?—A. Yes, ever since the union started.

By His Lordship:

Q. What was the ground for that?—A. The ground was that the men wanted to see him concerning an agreement in dispute, and he would not have anything to do with the union.

Q. He was a sensible man not to have anything to do with this kind of union.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Were you one of the parties voting to put Joseph Davidson on the unfair list?—A. No. I never voted to put him on the unfair list.

Q. Did you oppose it in any union meeting? Did you consider it a proper thing to do?—A. I didn't consider it a proper thing. I did not vote either way. I was only one of the members.

Q. You did not think it necessary to stand up for any man's privileges?—A. No, I didn't vote either way.

Q. If you had happened to be in any other shop and not in your shop you would have voted for posting Muir on the same list?—A. No, when I was working in another shop I voted to get Muir on the fair list. There had been previous attempts made of that sort.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. On what grounds?—A. On the ground of supplying this boat.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. How could that be? Were you working in another shop during the strike?—A. Not exactly during the strike, but some time before this.

CHARLES A. WILBAND—Vancouver, June 11.
Q. It was during some other strike?—A. Concerning other troubles.
Q. And Mr. Muir had been supplying scabs on other occasions?—A. I don’t know for sure; as far as the Journeymen Bakers’ Union is concerned it did not matter who the boss supplies. As long as you got the hours you ask for and the wages, it don’t make any difference to you who he supplies his stuff to.

By His Lordship:
Q. Then your union in putting anyone on the unfair list went beyond its constitution and beyond its rights?—A. Yes.
Q. Your union is only authorized to object to the question of wages and hours?—A. Yes, that is all. Of course, as far as finances are concerned they help other unions as well.
Q. Have they any benevolent purposes?—A. No.
Q. They merely contribute to the support of the Trades and Labour Council in Vancouver?—A. Yes.

Mr. Rowe.—It would be wise to know to what length this union would go in the case of bread. It seems to me there are some other people than scabs who would look like murderers who would refuse to supply bread.

Mr. Bird.—You shall not live by bread alone, it is said!
Mr. Rowe.—Has anyone got a copy of the constitution of that Bakers’ Union?
Witness.—Yes, I have a copy at home, I will bring it.

GEORGE NELSON, sworn.

By His Lordship:
Q. You are a journeyman baker?—A. Yes.
Q. You have been in the employ of Mr. Muir?—A. Yes, for two years.
Q. Were you a member of this Bakers’ Union?—A. Yes, sir.
Q. Were you called out at the time were we speaking of?—A. No, sir, I was expelled from the union two days before the shop was ordered out on strike because I wrote a letter to the headquarters to ask information.
Q. What reason was there for expelling you for that?—A. I wrote to headquarters to ask whether they could order me out on strike when my employer was acting up to agreement as to wages and hours.
Q. Did you have a written agreement with Muir?—A. So far as wages and hours are concerned.
Q. And you considered by going out you were breaking a contract?—A. Yes.
Q. And for that reason you wrote the headquarters to find out? Have you a copy of that letter?—A. No, but I have a copy of the letter that I got from headquarters. I simply wrote that I was a member of local union 46, and I asked in the letter if local 46 could order our shop out in sympathetic strike when my employer was acting up to our agreement and contract. That was all I wrote.
Q. You got a letter from headquarters?—A. Yes, I was expelled the same night I showed the letter to the union. A fine was put on me of $25. I would not pay it and I was expelled. That was four days after. The first meeting I brought up a copy of the letter I had written. When that was read, I was expelled. The expulsion was passed by unanimous vote. I was fined and would not pay, and then I was expelled.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. Did everyone vote in favour of the expulsion?—A. Yes, except one man from our shop—he did not vote at all. None of the rest of the shop were there.

GEORGE NELSON—Vancouver, June 11.
Q. Is he one of the men who have since gone out?—A. No, he is in the shop still.

By His Lordship:

Q. You say you have not kept a copy of the letter you sent?—A. No, sir.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Is it against the rules to write a letter of that sort?—A. No, we have the right to do that. I was also an officer in the union; I was the statistician.

His Lordship.—You can read this letter:

(Witness reads copy of letter received by him from headquarters of union—Exhibit 64.)

By His Lordship:

Q. They evidently upheld the action of the union?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Is that union affiliated with the American Labour Union?—A. No, sir. Their headquarters are in Cleveland.

Q. Then evidently you were to abide by the action of the union in one case and not in the other?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. What they said was that you should obey the orders of the union, but you had the right to ask information?—A. When they fined me they said I had no right. The secretary said he was the man, and if I wanted any information I had to ask the union. I studied the constitution book. This is not the only union I have joined. The constitution allows you to communicate with the headquarters any time you wish, and therefore I did it.

Q. Is this union still existing?—A. It is still going—two or three men in work in the union. Of course the New Westminster bake-shops are the same union—the two cities.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. The meaning of that is that you must break a contract if you make one, if the union orders it?—A. A contract on either side. No alterations to be made on either side under thirty days' notice.

Q. I mean the law of your union is that you must break a contract if the union orders it?—A. In the constitution it says: If any dispute occurs between master and servant, they must try and settle it as peaceably as they can. A strike is the last thing that must come on the board. By the way, they ordered us out on strike. You have to have two-thirds of a vote, and there was no two-thirds vote at the meeting that night.

Q. Who was the cause of your being ordered out?—A. The cause was because my employer was serving the Princess May.

Q. But did the secretary of the Bakers' Union have any communication with any other union?—A. Not that I know of.

Q. Why should they take up this matter without anybody asking it?—A. (None.)

Mr. Bird.—Mr. Russell will probably be here this afternoon, I suppose.

His Lordship.—We would like to find out about this blacklist.

Mr. Bird.—He told me he was going to see some of the members of the Bakers' Union and the Trades and Labour Council.

His Lordship.—We would like to have this unfair list fully explained.

Q. Does the constitution require a two-thirds vote before the men can be called out?—A. Yes.
Q. Did they have a two-thirds vote?—A. I was not there, but all the members have got to be at the meeting when the strike is called, and all members were not there. All members have got to be notified in written order, which was not done. No one in our shop got a written notice. I was expelled on Thursday afternoon, and this happened on a Saturday.

Q. You say there was no written notice for a two-thirds vote?—A. All the members were not at the meeting, and a written notice was not given at all.

Charles A. Wilband, recalled.

By His Lordship:

Q. You say you did not get written notice of this meeting?—A. No.
Q. Do you know by what majority the resolution was passed which called you out?—A. It was not a two-thirds majority.
Q. Were you there?—A. No, I was not there that night. The five who stayed out were not there at all.
Q. How do you know there was not two-thirds?—A. We were supposed to be notified in writing and we were not. We had meetings about every night of the week, and we thought we would not go unless we had a written notice.
Q. Did you object to the meeting considering the matter on the ground that you had no written notice?—A. Yes.
Q. Did you send written notice to the effect that you objected?—A. No.
Q. You did not go to any meeting?—A. No, we did not go to any meeting.

Vancouver, June 12, 1903.

Mr. Davis.—If the Commission will call Mr. Marpole for a moment—

His Lordship.—In view of the fact that I understand a settlement is practically assured—

Mr. Davis.—I understand that, owing to the good offices of the Commission in that regard, a settlement is practically assured.

His Lordship.—I would say that the time taken by the Commissioners would be very materially lessened if the same admission were made as in the Supreme Court, that is, that originals are originals and copies copies, and that the Commission can draw their own conclusion.

Mr. Bird.—I have also, on behalf of the U. B. R. E., to thank the Commission for their intervention. I feel that had it not been for them matters would not have been in so satisfactory a position to-day. I sincerely hope that the negotiations that have been going on may result in the announcement of a satisfactory settlement on behalf of the U. B. R. E.

Mr. Davis.—Of course, it must be remembered that the strike is settled between the C. P. R. and the striking men.

His Lordship.—I am very glad that the Commission has been of assistance in bringing about a happier relation between the men and the company. I hope our efforts will have something to do in bringing this about, and with troubles in the future.

Charles A. Wilband—Vancouver, June 11.
R. MARPOLE, recalled.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. Will you please say what were the reasons for certain men being sent east in February, first Wilson and Dick, second Halton, and third Foulds?—A. In the case of Wilson, as in the case of Dick, by the desire of certain officers of this company, who wished to do a good turn to both men, absolutely without the intention of hurting either of them. That I know for a positive fact. In the case of Messrs. Foulds and Halton, it was done from Mr. Ogden, without reference to me whatever. I simply received a telegram from Ogden to send these two men. The explanation of what it was for, and the matter was discussed months before, was that the accountant’s branch would be separate from my office. That is the reason they went east.

Q. Were other men in corresponding divisions called to Montreal at the same time?
—A. I understand so. From Winnipeg and somewhere else.

Q. There was an impression prevalent among some of the employees at one time that Mr. Purvis was sent south by you with a view of getting information in connection with the U. B. R. E. Why was Mr. Purvis sent south?—A. He was sent south for the betterment of the men’s position here. I was asked to try and find out the rates of pay on other roads south, and Mr. Purvis, my chief clerk, was selected for that purpose and made reports. I am glad you asked me the question, because I explained it fully to the committee, as I wanted to explain to the striking employees, that it was for the one special object of improving their condition, and the result was they got increases on the 1st of February.

Q. There has been some talk about blacklisting. Will you explain to the Commissioners whether there is any blacklist on the C.P.R., or what there is which might be considered as a system of blacklist?—A. The system on the road is that when a man is dismissed or suspended, I should say that a list is made up at the end of the month of all cases of discipline of that kind, and sent to each general superintendent on the system. That is all that is done, but the impression I gathered from the evidence here, and expressions I heard before, that this company sends a blacklist to every American road, is absolutely false.

Q. There seems to be an impression that there was an agreement between the C.P.R. and other roads with reference to something of that sort?—A. I never heard of it, and I never had any correspondence with American roads as to that. I simply answered questions as to cause of dismissal, that is all.

Q. As a result of Mr. Purvis’ visit south, do you know how the rates paid on the Pacific division to clerks, &c., compare with rates in Seattle, or south?—A. I attempted to estimate them as far as I could without knowing the specific duties of each man, and if there is any error in the figures it is mine. I went through what my chief clerk told me, and the evidence he produced, always having in mind what I considered was the extent of their work done here in comparison with theirs.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Is this information of the general superintendent collected in the head office of the company at Montreal?—A. No, by me here, and I may say, Mr. Bird, that I never did any since the strike began.

Q. Is there not a book kept in the head office at Montreal called a staff record book?
—A. There may be, but I don’t know it officially. Possibly, I should judge there would be.

Q. Is it not the custom of the company to keep complete records of a man’s career, which would include inquiry into his record for some years prior to his employment by the company?—A. Yes, we do that ourselves here.

Q. And for the sake of reference I should say these documents are filed in schedules similar to the system used by mercantile establishments?—A. Well, I know nothing.
Q. Supposing you want to get a man's record who has previously worked on any division of the railway?—A. On this division?

Q. Supposing a man has worked, say on the Atlantic division, and he is out here and applies for employment, what is the course you adopt?—A. He should produce a certificate of service when he applies.

Q. Then in regard to the clearance?—A. If we get a clearance we write to the superintendent and ask for his record there. We are guided by that. We have seen so many spurious forgeries that is one reason why we do that.

Q. Do you write to the Montreal office?—A. No. I have never communicated with Montreal about men.

By His Lordship:

Q. You say you have had forged clearances?—A. I have had them here. One from Kansas City—the late Mr. Deschenes' signature. They put in a dead man's signature.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Now, I am informed that your clearance papers do not always carry to the casual reader their true significance. That clearance papers are given 'left of his own accord.' Does that mean exactly what it purports to mean?—A. So far as I am concerned it would.

Q. I am informed that there is a file stating that a document bearing that means 'Employ him on no account.'?—A. Never heard of such a thing in my life.

Q. Where one of these clearances bears on the face of it, 'left of his own accord,' in regard to any employee, it really means, 'Don't employ him on any account.' When I said your views I mean Mr. Beasley?—A. I tell you if Mr. Beasley did that he would never work for me.

Q. You say that is not the case?—A. I say so distinctly.

Q. They say—I have heard from a gentleman who should be an authority in regard to superintendents that a water line with the crane's head struck off, appearing on the paper of the clearance means, 'Don't employ him on any account,' and although the testimonial is all right on the face of it, it is different when held up to the light?—A. That is a new phase of railway life for me.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. They will teach you bad practices if they keep on?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Apparently this document which was put in evidence some days ago from the Great Northern, so far as their practice is concerned, they don't pretend but what they give clearances on the face of them?—A. I saw that certificate, but as I said the man is employed, I have never seen the clearance. The question with me is how you got that document.

Q. Might not the fact of it getting into the waste-paper basket be the reason he is employed?—A. No, documents of that sort do not get into the waste-paper basket.

Q. Is it your practice to put the actual facts on the face of clearances?—A. No except dismissed for cause. We are bound to say that.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. You don't mean that you put anything that is not an actual fact?—A. Oh, no.

Mr. Bird.—I really think, Mr. Commissioners, that it would be unwise to proceed with a direct cross-examination seeing that friendly relations are about to be assured.
His Lordship.—I don't see much object in it. There are some statistics I would like to get.

Q. I would like to know what number went out on the road?—A. I should say about seventy per cent, but will give you the figures. I will give them to Mr. King.

Q. I understand some men went out at Nelson, Revelstoke, Winnipeg and other places. We would like to get the statistics?—A. I can give you them at each point—a statement.

Q. Were there any men went out at these points besides members of this U.B.R.E. organization?—A. I never inquired as to what they really were. I never asked the question. Some might have gone out in sympathy.

Q. There were some blacksmiths went out at Revelstoke?—A. The machinists and fitters went out, as Mr. Watson said yesterday. I fancy about 48 or 50.

Q. They went out in sympathy with the U. B. R. E.?—A. So I understand. They had contracts with us at all events.

Q. Tell us shortly what occurred about that?—A. These machinists and fitters went out in sympathy, as I understand it, with the U.B.R.E. strikers, and we then had to call in the aid of the Canadian head of that order to assist us in proving to these men that they were breaking their agreement. That was done in the case of the machinists and fitters, I think, by Mr. Holmes. This was reported to us by our officials. The blacksmiths did not come out, but they refused to work with the helpers we sent there, consequently, they were idle for a few weeks without pay. We were determined to live up to our agreement and we would not dismiss them. We had to call on the Canadian agent, Mr. Marshall, I think, of Winnipeg, and he came there and settled the matter.

Q. You say these blacksmiths and machinists would not help?—A. The machinists and fitters went out, but the blacksmiths did not. They stayed there and refused to work with imported labour.

Q. You don't mean labour imported from the other side?—A. Oh, no; labour brought from Montreal and Winnipeg.

Q. Will you give us some idea of what delay has been caused by the strike with reference to freight?—A. I would say there was very little. I could not claim, for instance, that a strike of a few men in Vancouver is going to delay things between here and Winnipeg. I should judge there would not be one per cent of the delay between here and Winnipeg.

Q. How much business has been delayed in the city by the non-delivery of freight?—A. I am not quite certain as to that.

Q. I have heard on the street, Mr. Marpole, that the projected additions in relation to the rebuilding of this hotel in the city has been retarded. Could you tell us anything about that?—A. Well, it was fully the intention of the company to proceed with those additions, and owing to the fact that the responsible contractors whom I approached would not undertake the work without a strike clause, and knowing labour disputes here I could not take the responsibility of advising the management to go on with it. Under orders from the management we decided to wait and see developments, and see whether we could get some responsible contractors to undertake it with a good bond, and we abandoned it for that reason.

Q. How long do you expect that state of affairs will exist?—A. Until some government action; I am not going to take the responsibility. It is too serious for me to answer.

Q. During the strike here was there any picketing?—A. Yes, probably I could show you some photos if you would like to put those in. They won't recognize the individuals, but will show how men were congregated on Cordova street and down by my own house, and particularly opposite the station.

Q. Was that practised during the whole strike?—A. Until they got tired, yes.
Q. Could you give us the number?—A. I cannot say how many were actual pickets. The photographs show from 30 to 40 men. I might say that no men over accosted me, and I have nothing to say as to what they did.

Q. Do you mean to say your house was watched?—A. No, I think they were searching the wharf or the platform next to my garden. I am aware that my house has been picketed two or three times during the trouble, I don’t know what for. Maybe to see whether the U. B. R. E. came to see me.

Q. I understand the C. P. R. has brought coal over from Japan?—A. We are bringing over 10,000 tons. The first cargo is in the harbour now. This was in consequence of the trouble on the Island. Our source of supply was practically cut off by reason of the strikes there.

Q. How much coal have you brought from there?—A. There will be 10,000 tons by this time, one ship in the harbour, one due on Monday, and two others following.

Q. What do you estimate you paid for that coal?—A. How much money is going out to the colliery for that?—A. About $55,000.

Q. It would have been earned in British Columbia?—A. No, I should judge about $37,000 less. That is what we would have paid for this 10,000 tons of coal delivered here, about $37,500.

Q. I suppose if it came to pass that these strikes were lasting an indefinite time, you would ultimately get coal much cheaper from Japan?—A. Certainly, my Lord. We had to get what we did in a hurry, and I suppose we could make contracts to get it here by some Japanese mines. I might add that we could get coal from Puget Sound, but it was of inferior quality, but we could not get a guarantee that that would be delivered to us.

J. McCreery, sworn.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. What is your position?—A. I am local freight agent.

Q. You have been freight agent for about a year?—A. Since June, 1902.

Q. There was something said the other day with reference to working overtime. The chief biller in your office is called the chief billing clerk?—A. Yes.

Q. What are the regular hours of your staff? Are the chief billing clerk’s hours—regular hours—the same?—A. The same hours, only we have to make it a rule that the chief billing clerk, on the arrival of steamers from the Orient, that he must be on hand to do any billing after six o’clock. Regular hours are 8:30 to 6.

Q. And when the Oriental steamers are in the rule is what?—A. That he must be down there in order to bill freight from the Orient to the east.

Q. About how often does that happen?—A. On an average about twice a month. That is, the arrival of the steamers.

Q. There are only five steamers, the three Empresses, the Tartar and the Athenæum?—A. Yes.

Q. And the Tartar and the Athenæum come about every ten weeks?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, on account of the necessity of the rule being put in connection with the chief billing clerk, is any allowance made to even that up?—A. Well, while the chief billing clerk is expected to be on duty every night on which this cargo is going east, he is not expected to be on duty again next morning. Sometimes, for instance, it will take him from one o’clock to six in the morning to get through with his work, on the arrival of the steamer. He goes home at six o’clock and does not come on duty again until probably six or seven o’clock, and then works again until one or six o’clock in the morning, probably until he gets through.

J. McCreery—Vancouver, June 12.
Q. With reference to clerks—clerks are not paid overtime, I believe?—A. No.
Q. As far as your experience has gone, have you ever known clerks in that position to be paid overtime?—A. No.
Q. Do clerks get any holidays to even up this overtime?—A. In June, 1902, this question of overtime came up, and it was agreed that all clerks one year in the service should have two weeks' holidays without deduction of pay to make up for overtime. We also allowed Saturday afternoon holidays, all except two.
Q. In reference to this overtime, was any increase in pay made to the chief billing clerk in June, '02?—A. In July, '02, there was a conference between the superintendent and the clerks at which Mr. Peters and I were present. The subject of overtime was brought up and it was considered that the increase in pay granted was supposed to thoroughly make up for any overtime the clerks had to work.
Q. Was the arrangement arrived at apparently satisfactory to Mr. Dennison?—A. Apparently it was. We heard no complaint from him.
Q. You are in the same office as Mr. Dennison?—A. Yes.
Q. About what was the average of his overtime per week, to the best of your knowledge, during the year he was there. What would be the average for the year per week of overtime?—A. I don't think it would be more than six or eight hours per week overtime.

By His Lordship:
Q. Do you pay clerks for overtime?—A. No.
Q. Why shouldn't you?—A. I don't believe personally myself in clerks working overtime, except it cannot be avoided.
Q. Why should they work overtime unless they are paid for it?—A. Of course the question of overtime came up last July, and it was considered that any little overtime the clerks had to work this increase in salary was to make up for it.
Q. Then you say they were virtually paid for overtime?—A. Yes, virtually.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. What was the amount of the increase?—A. I think it averaged all round about 13 or 14 per cent.

By His Lordship:
Q. And the increase was about six hours per week?—A. I say the overtime of the chief biller was, I believe, from six to eight hours per week.
Q. What are the regular hours?—A. From 8.30 to 6.
Q. How many hours is that?—A. Eight and a half hours, I think, and of course he had Saturday afternoons half-holiday.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. What about Sunday?—A. He had to come back every fourth Sunday and work about two hours in order to get out his time freight.
Q. Is it not possible to have matters so arranged so as not to have clerks work overtime?—A. I don't think it could be arranged in a freight office, on account of the work in progress. Not so long as all other work is done on a railway. Of course, if you stop freight work on Sunday you have to stop all work in connection with freight.
Q. Don't you think they should be given an allowance?—A. The clerks understand this when they are engaged to work. They accept the work under these conditions.
Q. It is these difficulties about hours that lead men to form unions?—A. They understand these conditions thoroughly, everyone of them.

Mr. Bun. I feel it is almost impossible to allow this witness to go without challenge, because the statements made by Mr. Dennison and this witness are so widely different.

J. McCREERY—Vancouver, June 12.
His Lordship.—Is Mr. Dennison the chief biller?

Mr. Bird.—Yes.

Q. I understand you are never on duty at night?—A. I am sometimes.

Q. Do your sometimes mean once a month or once a year?—A. Probably two or three times a month.

Q. So that as far as Mr. Dennison's claim for overtime, you know only once or twice a month?—A. I know when I go down in the daytime that he is not at his desk in the daytime.

Q. Do you mean to say if he stays over hours one night he is sure to be late the next morning?—A. Yes, he always is.

Q. So that he necessarily compensates himself in that way?—A. Yes.

Q. So that from the fact of having a tremendous amount of work to do he would surely take off the next morning?—A. Yes, and he most always did.

Q. Does not your course of reasoning show that his staying over hours is entirely unnecessary?—A. No, the reason is the work cannot be done in the day time. The men load up the freight in the day time, and it cannot be done.

Q. How long have you been there?—A. About a year. This last time about ten or twelve years.

Q. Mr. Dennison said he was always making complaints?—A. He has not made complaints to me.

Q. He states he went to Mr. Beasley at one time, and he was told that such overtime necessarily went with that desk?—A. There is some overtime to be worked. I think about eight hours might cover it, as far as I know.

Q. You judge so far as the one or twice a month that you might see him working overtime?—A. No, I am there every day, and while he works at night I can tell whether he is at his desk in the morning or not.

Q. If he is at his desk in the morning have you any notice that he is working overtime?—A. I know by the work being done. But he compensates himself by not appearing on duty next morning. He stays away until six or seven o'clock the next night.

Q. That is when he worked that day and night? That is when he worked for thirty hours at a stretch?—A. I never knew of any. He has worked a day and a night, that is to say 8.30 and worked all day and at night from one to six in the morning very often.

Q. And he states further that he has gone on duty at 8.30 in the morning and worked until 8 at night?—A. I never knew him to do it.

By His Lordship:

Q. I understand you to say that he has worked the eight and a half hours regular work, and then on to one or six?—A. Yes.

Q. So that he would be practically working 24 hours?—A. Well, yes.

Q. Do you think a man should be asked to work for a stretch of time like that?—A. Of course that would be rare. He would often get through at one or three o'clock.

Q. Do you think he should be fined when he makes a mistake under such hours?—A. Yes, I think so, to maintain the office.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. As a matter of fact, when a man works in Vancouver he gets double pay for overtime?—A. Only in manual labour.

Q. Because clerical labour has been so discredited they have not been able to get overtime?—A. I don't know as to that, but in any other office where clerical work is done you will find it the same way. I have never heard of it.

J. McCREEERY—Vancouver, June 12.
ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. And consequently you don't know that there is clerk's union in Vancouver, so far as the clerks are concerned?—A. They are a different class altogether, they are not office men.

Q. You don't think it is right that overtime is worth twice what it is ordinarily?—A. It is all right so far as labourers are concerned, you have to have it.

Q. You say Mr. Dennison got a raise of salary to compensate him for overtime?—A. That was partly the reason that that was given.

Q. So far as your mind was concerned. But no statement of that kind was ever made to Mr. Dennison?—A. That was the statement made between Mr. Beasley and Mr. Peters; that was what I understood it to be.

Q. As a matter of fact, all the men got a raise of salary?—A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Dennison came in for his share?—A. Yes.

Q. And it was not as chief biller that he came in for his raise?—A. Some of the men have just as much reason to ask for overtime as the billers.

Q. This really applies to others as well?—A. Probably five or six of them.

Q. Do you mean to say that Mr. Dennison—he has sworn positively before the Commission that he has hardened known what it is to have more than one or two Sundays in a year to himself?—A. In the event of the Tartar and Atheneum arriving. They generally arrive on Saturday night or Friday. In that case he would have to work nearly all Sunday.

Q. Mr. Dennison assures me they came in about three times a month?—A. I think about twice a month. I think we have about 25 ships a year.

Q. I suppose there are tramp steamers in connection with these?—A. No, we have no tramp steamers—regular steamers.

Q. In the twenty-five steamers you don't include the Australian boats at all?—A. No, there is very little eastern cargo.

Q. If Mr. Dennison had gone and made a kick about this overtime the probability is he would be dismissed?—A. Business is spasmodic, and this sort of thing cannot be avoided, but he is allowed to stay over the next day, and if work becomes slack he would get a couple of days off to make up for it, and very often got it, no doubt.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. This stuff that is necessary to be handled—these cargoes—does that occur several times during the month?—A. Yes, and when these big steamers come in there is extra help and assistance given to the billing desk.

By His Lordship:

Q. Would it be right for the country to inaugurate a law that these men should be required to work so much time and be paid for overtime?—A. I don't think it would be workable in an office, because the company, as a rule, try to avoid all the overtime as far as the clerks are concerned. I myself do not ask the men to work overtime except it cannot be avoided.

Q. What I want to get at is this: It seems to me that the men should not be in a position where they are forced to work overtime on pain of dismissal, that is, for such long periods of time as 24 hours. That is, no doubt, what would happen. You would tell these men, if you don't like it you can go, and I will get somebody else?—A. I am afraid some people overlook the fact that they are allowed time off nearly enough to make up for it.

Q. Yes, but you say they are kept busy most of the time?—A. In the daytime.

Q. You would not want them to work both day and night?—A. Well, in the instance of the chief biller, he would have the next day off.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Would he have to work the following night?—A. Yes, to get out the freight that was loaded that day.

J. McCREERY—Vancouver, June 12
Q. When it came to the final night would he have that off?—A. That is how I figure that the chief biller did not work over six or eight hours overtime. I think eight hours would certainly be the outside, and he gets Saturday afternoon holidays.

Q. What are the opportunities of promotion for the chief biller?—A. He is entitled to be made chief cashier, chief accountant or chief clerk.

Q. He is next in order?—A. Yes, the accountant and chief cashier and chief clerk are supposed to be superior to the chief biller, and he is supposed to be eligible for these as they become vacant.

Q. There are larger salaries attached to these positions?—A. Yes, sir, larger than the chief biller.

G. B. GRIER, sworn.

By Mr. Davis:

Q. What is your position in the Canadian Pacific?—A. General freight agent.

Q. About how many years' experience have you had in railway freight work?—A. Nineteen.

Q. Have you worked on other roads than the C. P. R.?—A. I have.

Q. Has it been a practice on any road that you have worked on to pay overtime to freight clerks or station agents, or men in corresponding positions?—A. No, sir; I never heard of it, that is in the office staff, no railway I have ever worked for.

Q. Do they at the present time, for instance, pay overtime to clerks in the offices of railways on the Sound?—A. No, sir.

Q. Just explain, Mr. Grier, why this is?—A. Well, for one reason, that the poor man would have just as much consideration as the good man. One man can do twice as much work in the same time as another man, and it would not be fair to give any man who shirked his work during the day overtime, because he had to go back at night. A good deal of the overtime is voluntary. I have done a good deal of it myself. We would consider, I can do this particular work better at night because I am not bothered, and I will leave that until to-night and go back and do it.

By His Lordship:

Q. You would go off then for part of the day?—A. No, but that particular work—they would do something else, but they could have done this just as well during the day if they had been fit to take hold of it. Some question coming up which you feel you can give better consideration to if you have got a moment at night to fight it out.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. For instance, when a cargo is being hustled away?—A. No, that is not the case when a cargo is being hustled away, but then if you pay one man working on this cargo, if you pay him overtime there will be others, and if you adopt a system of overtime you must make it general. You could not make it in any special case.

Q. Are the wages of the clerks arranged with a view to no pay being paid for overtime?—A. We have never considered the question of overtime at all.

Q. How do the wages paid in the freight offices here, to chief billing clerk and so on, compare with the south of here in similar positions?—A. Practically the same to my understanding.

Q. How do the hours of work compare in Vancouver with the regular hours in Seattle and Sound cities?—A. In Seattle they go to work fully one hour earlier than on this side.

Q. So that the hours are shorter with the same pay here?—A. Yes.

G. B. GRIER—Vancouver, June 12.
Q. And they work overtime?—A. I never knew a railway office in which there was not some overtime to be done. A train may be delayed and three days freight come in at one time. During that three days' delay there is practically nothing being done in the office, and after it arrives you have to put in overtime.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. The rates of pay in Vancouver have been raised since the strike?—A. Not that I know of.
Q. No general raise since the strike?—A. Not that I know of. Certainly not in my office.
Mr. Marpole.—It was on the first of February that the wages were raised.

By His Lordship:

Q. Can you give us any idea as to what extent the delivery of freight has been delayed during the strike?—A. When the strike was declared we were about two days perhaps that we were unable to make satisfactory freight arrangements.
Q. You mean in unloading freight off the cars?—A. Yes, and delivering to the consignees, taking the freight to the teams.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Do you consider that operators and agents are properly classed among the clerical staff?—A. No, sir.
Q. They receive time and a half for overtime, do they not?—A. I am not posted on that. That is out of my department.
Mr. Marpole.—Operators are paid for special calls for telegraph work. No agents are paid for overtime. A telegrapher is when he is called for telegraph duties only.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. How do you speak with authority on the rates in Seattle?—A. I have worked on Puget Sound.
Q. And you have worked here for ten years?—A. No, I have been in British Columbia for five years.
Q. So your knowledge of Puget Sound dates back how far?—A. Five years.
Q. You don’t know whether the same conditions prevail there now as during your time?—A. No.

By His Lordship:

Q. Have you had many complaints from merchants about inability to get their freight?—A. We have had a few, your Honour.
Q. How many?—A. I could not count them. Just practically—we had the same complaints right along in the regular course of business. Some freight might go astray.
Q. These complaints became much more numerous when the strike was declared, did they not?—A. Yes, I think they did.
Q. I might mention that several merchants in Victoria said they could not get freight?—A. Well, that is incorrect. We never had any trouble about Victoria freight. It was only in making local deliveries, and what caused that was probably the fact that the teamsters went out in sympathy with the freight-handlers and freight clerks, but our deliveries have been prompt with very few exceptions. I could name maybe a dozen cases where freight has gone astray owing to billing being lost or destroyed, or something of that sort.
Q. Considerable delay was caused by the teamsters going on strike?—A. Yes, at the time they first went out on strike.
Q. How long did the delay last?—A. I suppose it took them a week to get other teamsters and start the business moving to any extent.

G. B. GRIER—Vancouver, June 12.
Q. It was stated here by a baker this morning that he had to get his flour worked into a warehouse and taken from there to his shop?—A. I think that would be correct. I have heard of cases where a car has been switched down to a point in the yard where the teamsters would not have known that it had been teemed away.

Q. The non-union teamsters?—A. Yes, or the union teamsters.

Q. It would be done on the sly?—A. Yes.

Q. Were there many cases?—A. Yes, quite a few.

Q. That would be a case where the Teamster's Union was on strike and the men working?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Any case of demurrage on car lots?—A. Yes, a great deal.

Q. That is, they could not unload the cars in time to avert it?—A. Well, we never assessed it. If, through this strike they were unable to take delivery by reason of the teamsters, or temporary difficulty in procuring men, we did not assess the demurrage. Of course there is a great deal of demurrage all the time, but in these cases it would be given consideration.

William D. Muir, recalled.

By His Lordship:

Q. You have been sworn, Mr. Muir—have you got those papers?—A. Yes, sir.

(Papers produced and put in as Exhibits 65 and 66. Exhibit 65—list of firms. Exhibit 66—agreement.)

Q. Forty-three people in all ceased doing business with you?—A. Yes.

Q. On the ground that you were known as what is called unfair?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not your name was posted in the Trades and Labour Hall?—A. I don't know myself. Some gentlemen said this morning that it was.

Q. Well, I can tell you that it is, for I saw it there myself! We are now certain of it. Is there anything more you wish to say?—A. Yes, the case of the flour, why I had to take the flour through the wholesale house was because my union men would not take it if it was hauled by non-union teamsters. I had to do this way to get the union to handle it. They would take it from the sidewalk, but not from the track. I sent one of my men up and we brought it through this wholesale grocery.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. That disinfected it?—A. Yes, that is the idea.

By His Lordship:

Q. One of your men took it out of the car, and then the union men took hold of it. Your man was doing the scab act?—A. I guess it was.

Witness.—In the month of January, here before this trouble came up, I was notified one Saturday night about 11 o'clock. I was notified that no work would be done in the shop unless some action was taken. That was in the forepart of January. Some little difficulty among the men was the cause of that trouble, about pay or something. I gave in to that. On Monday morning, after I had lost about sixty dollars' worth of bread that was spoiled through want of notice of the trouble—

By His Lordship:

Q. Does the agreement call for notice?—A. Well, I am not just sure whether it does or not. It was for twelve months, and I never expected anything like that would happen.

William D. Muir—Vancouver, June 12.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. As far as I can see this is an iron-clad agreement for a full year?—A. Yes, and I lived up to that to the letter of the law. I understood that no party could change it. That's why I entered it.

Q. What were the circumstances?—A. The first trouble came up. I think there is a part in that that says so many hours per week. This particular week there was a holiday, and in that particular week they worked about five hours more, and they claimed overtime. This week they had worked some 48 hours and demanded pay for three hours over the 45. The agreement was for 54 hours.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. They thought forty-five was the maximum because of the holiday?—A. Yes, but it did not go over the fifty-four. It would be six hours less than the other week.

Q. I suppose they claimed that three hours of their holiday was taken off?—A. They claimed everything over 45 was entitled to time and a half. I claimed that it should be over 54.

By His Lordship:

Q. Apparently their view was that you broke the agreement by asking them to work on the holiday?—A. They didn't work on the holiday. They worked more than 45 on the other days. For instance, on Monday they worked eleven hours. They had been receiving payment from me. I explained that unless they went over 54 hours, no overtime would be demanded.

Q. There is no provision in this agreement by which they should give you any notice if you broke it?—A. No.

Q. Their contention, you see, was that you had not lived up to the agreement. The agreement makes no provision for giving notice in that event, so they were not called on to give you any notice if you were breaking the agreement?—A. There was no evidence that I had broken it. The second trouble came up over my discharging a man. I had about $40 worth of bread spoiled over that. When the third time came I made up my mind I would not give in.

Q. What did you do?—A. I kept on supplying the bread. I did not discharge any men. Six out of the eight stayed with me; the others left.

CHARLES A. WILBAND, recalled.

By His Lordship:

Q. Have you got the papers asked for?—A. Yes. This is the 'Bakers' and Confectioners' Journal.'

(Put in as Exhibit 67.)

Q. There is an article in this paper—this is the official organ of the International Bakers' Association?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. There is an article in it: 'Notice, the following men (giving the names) are expelled by order of the union.'

Q. What is the object of a publication of that kind?—A. Providing, you see, that we would go to other places in the States to seek employment, and in going to make application into any union they would have that paper, and we would have to go in under a big fine. That goes to every union man wherever there is a union; each individual man gets the paper.

Q. Then, this paper circulates gratis among the members?—A. Yes, that is for members only.

CHARLES A. WILBAND—Vancouver, June 12.
Q. And every bakers' union, I suppose, in the States would have a copy of this list? —A. Yes.

Q. And the effect of that is you could not apply for reinstatement? —A. Without paying a fine.

Q. That would be the effect if you didn't want to join the union in the States. Could you get work? —A. Well, the effect would be, if all the shops were union shops you could not get a job.

Q. You would have to go to a non-union shop? —A. Yes, or else pay a fine.

Q. How many people are there in the Bakers' Union? —A. I could not say.

Q. Do they form a majority of the bakers? —A. They form a big majority, but I could not say how many there is of them.

Q. You might identify this document? —A. That is the constitution of the Journeymen Bakers and Confectioners' Association. (Exhibit 68.)

CHARLES WOODWARD, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. What is your occupation? —A. I am in business, a general merchant.

Q. You got into trouble with the union here recently? —A. Yes, they put us on the blacklist.

Q. What do you mean by blacklist? —A. It is being unfair to union labour and to unions.

Q. Why was that? —A. I don't know any particular reason, other than that Mr. Hilton—we were putting up a building here—

By Mr. Rowe:

Have you got a copy of the poster blacklisting you? —A. Yes. (Put in, Exhibit 69.)

By His Lordship:

Q. This was posted where? —A. On a telephone pole at Keefe Street and Westminster Avenue.

Q. Have you seen any other posters? —A. Yes, I saw one that Mr. Hyman got off another pole in another part of the city.

Q. Is it put up in the union hall? —A. I don't know.

Q. Well, let me tell you that it is. I saw it myself. Tell us how this came about? —A. When we decided to build, Mr. Hilton, I think it is, the Trades and Labour delegate, or at least looks after the unfair people and sees that men are union men, and looks after union interests in general, he waited on me a couple of times and wanted to know if we would not have certain conditions incorporated with whoever took the contract of the building. We had not entered into a contract at this time, but had advertised for tenders. We agreed to that, provided it did not cost any more money.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. What were the conditions? —A. I have my own letter and Mr. Hilton's letter in answer to it.

By His Lordship:

Q. You had better read these two letters? —A. The letter from myself to Mr. Hilton is as follows (Exhibit 70):—

CHARLES WOODWARD—Vancouver, June 12.
March 6, 1903.

To Mr. Hilton:

Dear Sir,—Since talking with you in reference to our building and the best way of protecting union labour, our company has decided to go into this, and if possible try and carry out your views, believing as we do that the best interest of our city would be served, as well as the country at large.

Now, will you kindly give me in writing the different clauses you think desirable for the protection of union labour, and we will endeavour to have them incorporated in our building agreement with Mr. Cook, who has been awarded the contract of building our store. We hope to be able to fetch around a more friendly and better state of affairs between Mr. Cook and your respective unions, believing thereby to help advance the prosperity of our city.

Kindly let me have these suggestions of yours on or before Monday forenoon, say 10 o'clock. If it is not convenient for you to deliver them to me I will send for them. If you will let me know by 'phone.

I am, respectfully,

(Sgd.) Charles Woodward,
President.

The answer I got to that was on Monday from Mr. Hilton:

Vancouver, March 9, 1903.

Chas. Woodward, Esq.,
Department Store,
Westminster Avenue:

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of yours of the 7th inst., and note with pleasure the desire expressed by you on behalf of your company to bring about an understanding between Mr. W. Cook and this council, and would state that there is no contractor in the city of Vancouver that this council would wish to be on friendly terms with more than with the same Mr. Cook, who has proved to be a stout opponent, and would therefore make a strong ally.

The points that I would suggest for the protection of union labour in the building trade, are as follows:

Recognition of the Vancouver Building Trades Council and its card system, as now in force and effect, which of course carries along with it the rates of wages established in the various trades, or about to be established on the 1st of April; hours of work and overtime. All these minor points, however, are embodied in the point, viz., recognition of the council and running the job under the card system.

I am, dear sir, yours obediently,

(Sgd.) C. I. Hilton,
Business Agent.

Q. What office does he hold?—A. Business agent.

Mr. Blair.—As a matter of fact, he is the delegate of the Building Trades Council, business agent of that council.

By His Lordship:

Q. What became of this?—A. After I awarded the contract to Mr. Cook, at the same time we arranged with him to see if it were not possible to make some arrangement with the Trades and Labour Congress in reference to this card system and also about paying wages. Of course, he satisfied us that he was paying union wages, and more in some cases.

Q. What is meant by the card system?—A. If Mr. Cook had any men working for him they would have to have cards, and they could not have cards unless they be—longed to the international union, and of course Mr. Cook's men belonged to the local union, and could not have cards.

CHARLES WOODWARD—Vancouver, June 12.

Q. What kind of union?—A. It is a Canadian institution; they have a charter, I believe.

Q. What is the name of it?—A. I could not tell you the name of it.

Q. So Cook was employing union men?—A. Yes.

Q. But not men belonging to the international?—A. No. After discussing the matter with Mr. Cook, we said we wanted to have this thing arranged. It was injurious to our business, and we had a good many friends among the men. He agreed to meet a committee from the International Union, and we acquainted Mr. Hilton I don't know what the result of that meeting was, only what I gained from Mr. Cook, I asked him if ever that meeting took place, and he said no.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. And the next you heard of it was this?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:
Q. Is Cook going on with the job?—A. Yes.

Q. Has there been any interference?—A. Not that I am aware of. There have been no delays.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. Did you know he was hostile to the union, or that the union were out with him when you gave the contract?—A. Yes, and for that reason we reluctantly gave Mr. Cook the contract.

Q. What was the inducement?—A. There was considerable difference in the contract price.

By His Lordship:
Q. That is all you have had to do with it, that is the only reason why you are posted up as unfair?—A. So far as I know, I don't know of anything else.

Q. Have you found your business has suffered anything from being posted up?—A. No, I think it has increased.

Q. Been a sort of advertisement?—A. I don't think it has done any harm.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. It was not a deep-laid scheme of yours to get the advertisement?—A. No.

By Mr. Bird:
Q. I appear for the Building Trades Council. You say you knew Mr. Cook was hostile to the unions?—A. No, I did not say hostile, but they were opposed to Mr. Cook.

Q. Did you not know that Mr. Cook was a very active opponent of union labour in Vancouver?—A. No.

Q. That between Mr. Cook and the Building Trades Council there was a long-standing hostility—

His Lordship.—Why should that keep off Cook from securing work from Woodward? Do you mean to say the union men of this city are going to dictate to Mr. Woodward who he can and cannot employ? Is that what the country is coming to? The sooner we find it out the better.

Mr. Bird.—If your Lordship will permit me I will follow up a certain train of inquiry. It is alleged that this is a blacklist. We contend that it is nothing of the kind.

His Lordship.—What do you call it?

CHARLES WOODWARD—Vancouver, June 12.
SEMMONAL PAPER No. 36a

Mr. Bird.—A mere statement to every union man that Mr. Woodward and the other gentlemen there are not dealing with union labour.

His Lordship.—Allow me to say, Mr. Bird, that I consider it a gross piece of impudence for a body of men to take such a liberty with any man’s name on the street. It may be all right in their own hall, but to publish it on the street is very different.

Mr. Bird.—I know your Lordship has very strong views on the subject.

His Lordship.—Yes, I have. It it a piece of outrageous tyranny.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Your business, Mr. Woodward, is situated on Woodward Avenue, and you deal largely with labour men?—A. Yes.

Q. And most of them union labour men?—A. As far as I know, yes.

Q. The labour men might reasonably have thought, as they were almost entirely your customers, that you would support them in return. That would not be an unreasonable assumption?—A. I don’t know. A great many of these men individually, they did not think I was justified in taking any other course when I explained the circumstances to them.

Q. So far as you have come across them you have found union men reasonable?—A. Yes.

Q. And this may have arisen from a misunderstanding?—A. Well no, they could easily have found out the facts. I have been twelve years in the city, and everybody knows the stand I have taken. My sympathy has always been with the union and labour. I have always fought for them.

Q. Your letter premises that position?—A. Yes, I believe in good wages being paid.

Q. The only difference, so far as you are concerned, is you have assumed in supporting Mr. Cook you were supporting union labour?—A. I assumed this: This is the age of competition. I am not a socialist. I have to compete with other men. Our company would necessarily have to award that contract, all things being equal, to the men who would do that building at the lowest price, and we acted on that assumption. That is the reason the contract went to Mr. Cook, not that we had any friendly feelings particularly with Mr. Cook than others; in fact, we had not as much.

Q. You tried to get those contractors representing union labour?—A. As a matter of fact, I made an appointment with the man who had the tender in next to Mr. Cook.

Q. What was his name?—A. Shinidler. He is a man who is on the fair list and considered fair to union labour. In discussing this thing I said, supposing anything should occur that we could not give this to Mr. Cook, are you prepared to carry it on. In fact, he did not seem anxious about it, and in the next interview said he did not want it, or words to that effect. His contract, as far as my recollection goes—it would make a difference of between $1,300 and $1,500 between the two prices.

Q. This is an incorporated company you now represent?—A. Yes, I am the manager.

Q. And the three men mentioned in that list are incorporated?—A. We were the promoters of the company.

Q. Did you not feel that it would be in the best interests of your company and the shareholders of the company to give this to union labour which largely supports you?—A. Yes, we did. We thought they were the largest body and as a question of business it would be in the best interests of the company to make a sacrifice, and we were prepared to make a sacrifice. While this conversation was taking place with Shinidler we had not closed the thing with Mr. Cook.

Q. And you were prepared to do something in the interests of union labour in Vancouver?—A. We were prepared to make a sacrifice. I won’t say in the interests of the union. We don’t get all our business from the union, but it was in the general interest.

CHARLES WOODWARD—Vancouver, June 12.
Q. This is a pretty big contract of yours; $1,300 would not amount to much?—A. Yes, but the other man would not take it. If we had agreed to give it to him he would not have taken it.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I suppose the union men did not say they paid Mr. Woodward any more than they did anyone else?—A. No, we were selling to all alike.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Now, as a matter of policy, if a certain class of citizens in this city showed themselves unfriendly and would not desire to deal at your store, you would not as a natural consequence desire to deal with them?—A. I find it is natural that we desire to stay with our friends as much as we can.

Q. Is it not natural, under these circumstances, that the Building Trades Council should not desire to—A. How could they expect us, how could any man expect us to makes a difference of some thousands of dollars in a contract just because he was a friend of theirs. It is not common sense, it is not reason.

Q. In honesty to your stockholders and to yourself, you could not do it?—A. No.

Q. You spoke of international unions. Is this an American union, this Building Trades Council?—A. As far as I know, it has its headquarters in the United States.

Q. Now, would you be surprised to know that the headquarters of the Building Trades Council is in Manchester, I mean the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters. You would be surprised to know that the Building Trades Council is a purely local institution. I believe that that is the case?—A. How do you reconcile them being affiliated with the others who are international?

Q. Do you know as a matter of fact that that is the case?—A. No, I don't.

Q. The Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners, one of the principal signers of that, I understand, is an old country organization, and one of the strongest in the world, some 75,000 members?—A. Some of those unions that are listed there as endorsing this thing never came up before them at all.

Q. Do you know that as a matter of fact?—A. I know it from some of the members. I know also from a man, a member of the Trades and Labour Council, told me that that thing never came up before the Trades and Labour Council. I don't know whether that is a fact, but I can get the man to prove that.

Mr. Bird.—It may be necessary to challenge that.

Mr. Rowe.—It occurs to me that the constitution of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters would not permit them to do that.

His Lordship.—How did the name of that society get there? Judging by the representatives in Victoria, they would not support such an action as that.

Mr. Bird.—I am reading from the constitution of that very society:

'The Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners offers a bond of union to the trade in various parts of the world. Although oceans may separate us from each other, our interests are identical; and if we become united under one constitution, governed by one code of rules, having one common fund available wherever it may be required, we acquire a power which, if judiciously exercised, will protect our interests more effectually and will confer greater advantages than can possibly be derived from any partial union.'

Now, I understand that they feel here, in connection with this, that it is necessary to take some such measure to protect human interests.

Mr. Rowe.—I know that they have to give three months' notice before they can go on strike.

CHARLES WOODWARD—Vancouver, June 12.
ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

His Lordship.—Do you find anything in that constitution that warrants any placard ing a man up from pillar to post all over the city? Let us see the clause that warrants that.

Mr. Bird.—As to that, I may say that I am not entirely going by the constitution. I expected rather to show that case against the union might be defended—

His Lordship.—It would take a good deal of ingenuity on your part to defend such an action as that.

Mr. Bird.—That may be so. I had not gone into the matter as fully as I would have liked. There is a meeting to-night, and I will try and get information and present it to-morrow.

His Lordship.—That is a matter that ought to be threshed out. The power that will give a union power to do a thing of that kind on the public street ought to be pretty well defined.

Mr. Bird.—There may be circumstances—

His Lordship.—There is nothing so apt to provoke a breach of the peace as that sort of thing, a man being held up to public ridicule and insult.

Mr. Rowe.—I think that the true character of these things has not been realized I think they have been reached by easy stages.

Mr. Bird.—I agree with you, Mr. Commissioners. I think they don't realize the position; often when men are hot-headed and have been turned down and investigations of this kind, I think, are productive of good, in opening the eyes of men to the real facts.

Mr. Rowe.—I would be very much surprised if the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters would not express condemnation of that action, unless it was taken with more deliberation than appears from Mr. Woodward's evidence.

Mr. Bird.—I think the matter should be gone into. I suppose Mr. Woodward had better attend in the morning.

GEORGE BARTLEY, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. You are editor of a paper published in Vancouver?—A. Yes, sir, the "Independent."

Q. You are a socialist?—A. What is a socialist?

Q. Do you entertain the same view as Mr. Dales?—A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. He is the editor of the other paper, the "Western Clarion"?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you an advocate of trades unions?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. What do you say as to the incorporation of trades unions? Would it be a good thing?—A. That depends. In some instances it would be proper, and in some instances, I consider, it would be detrimental to the union. For instance, a union that is a stable institution, that is fixed and has property, they certainly should be incorporated, but a union that will spring into existence for perhaps three or six months, and the class of workmen engaged in this particular trade, will be hawked around from one part of the country to the other, I don't think incorporation would be a good thing simply because the same parties who predominated in the union would not have an opportunity at all times to have a say in the business of the union.

Q. Have you had any experience with strikes?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. What do you say as to the best method of settling them?—A. Arbitration.

GEORGE BARTLEY—Vancouver, June 12.
Q. By that do you mean compulsory arbitration?—A. Well, I believe that compulsory arbitration is all right, provided conditions are equal, in this regard: if there were a compulsory arbitration Act in force in the province in the present time, the great preponderance of union men would not have confidence in its administration, because the legislature is made up of a majority of men who are not in sympathy with their interests because their business prevents them throwing a certain amount of sentiment into conducting a board of arbitration. If there was a secretary equally advisable to the legislatures that make the law, who could see that the carrying out of it would be profitably done, I believe compulsory arbitration would be a good thing; but at the present time, I certainly would be opposed to compulsory arbitration.

Q. The advisability of compulsory arbitration would depend on the arbitrators, not the legislation?—A. You don’t have the drawing up of the act, and the appointing of the real arbitrator, the chairman of the board of arbitration.

Q. Who would you suggest he should be?—A. It is impossible for me to make a suggestion. These things would have to be worked out.

Q. Should he be a judge, or some other person than a judge?—A. That would depend a good deal on the case. I believe, if it was a case brought before a board of arbitration of purely technicalities, that is, discussions confined entirely to technicalities of the trade, I don’t think that a court judge would hardly be fitted for a position of that kind. When I say that I don’t think that the judges would be biased at all, but I don’t think their training would fit them to be proper persons to sit on a board of arbitration.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Well, in the practice before the courts they have a good deal of technical matters before them, such as medical matters. I should think they would be able to grasp the points of technicalities. It must be somebody who is trained to weigh evidence and grasp the facts?—A. That is a question which is agitating the greatest minds we have in the labour movement to-day.

Q. The fact that everybody seems to want to avoid strikes would seem to indicate that every help would be given to a court of arbitration and that the ambition of the arbitrators would be to reach a settlement agreeable to parties to disputes, they might soon lose their influence and be driven out of their position if they showed any bias?—A. I personally would be in favour of having an experiment in the matter.

Q. What do you say as to sympathetic strikes?—A. That would be entirely depending on the circumstances. The organization to which I belong are opposed to sympathetic strikes—the Typographical Union—because if we adopt the principle of going out in sympathetic strikes with trades with which we might possibly be allied, with any trades and labour council or central unions we would be in strikes all the time because the business in which the Typographical Society is involved is always mixed up with both sides to the controversy in the way of newspapers.

Q. In fact they could not carry on a strike if the printers quit work?—A. I presume they realize that. I might add too that we have got what we call the Printing Allied Council. That body is a purely local affair in each instance. It is composed of representatives of one or perhaps three from each body connected with the printing business, such as bookbinders, press-men, stereotypers and typograph men. If there was a strike brought on they would come out in sympathy with each other, because their occupation is practically one but under different departments, but say in the case of a strike between a railway, the printers would not be in a position to go out on strike with them. We have a schedule of wages wherever there is a typographical union, and that is lived up to very rigidly.

Q. Do you know any reason why there should be more labour troubles in British Columbia than other parts?—A. I could not say.

Q. How do you think the conditions here are as compared with other provinces?—A. I think, regardless of all troubles, that conditions here are the best on the contin-cut of America. Another thing I have noticed is, there is a sort of line of demarcation between the east and the west, and we might say that line follows pretty well the Mississippi and the Great Lakes. It seems when matters pass that particular line they become better. I think you will notice the difference in the labour movement as compared with that in the east. As near as I can make out by reading, the American Federation of Labour represent something like 2,000,000 workmen. West of the Mississippi I don't believe there would be much over a quarter of a million of organized workmen. You can see the difference in the organization. There is a spirit of political advocacy among the western classes of men which is almost obscured in the east, although they pretend to have their candidates, but the returns in the elections show that the sympathies of the people in the east are not with the political movement.

George Bartley—Vancouver, June 12.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Have you formed any theory as to this recent epidemic of strikes in the mines and railways?—A. I could not say as to that. I would say a good deal of inexperience is one thing. This is a new country, and there are hundreds of men in unions who have never been in a union. You take a number of unions, they have to get burned once or twice before they get sensible. Older organizations don't do that so much.

By His Lordship:

Q. When you give a boy a tin sword he is bound to try and do some mischief with it?—A. I look on trades unions as purely a business proposition, not one of sentiment.

Q. You think a strike is a thing to be avoided?—A. I certainly do.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Do you think there is any connection between the unstable political conditions and labour conditions?—A. I think to a certain extent, but not as much as one would suppose from the news we hear.

Q. I mean the actual political condition, and politically in British Columbia we have not had a stable form of government, as you know?—A. Yes.

Q. I was wondering whether you thought industry and trade were in any way aggravated by these conditions?—A. Well, we have to deduct out ideas from certain quarters. I believe that to a certain extent that the unstable condition of government is the cause of certain amount of discussion on these questions, politics that otherwise would not be brought up, and when they thrust politics upon the minds of the people, the mass of the people are not really fitted to reason while these things are on. But still we find troubles in the older countries also. At the present time there is no country that I know where the working class could control things like they could in British Columbia, if they could agree among themselves.

F. J. RUSSELL, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. You hold some office in the Trades and Labour Council?—A. Secretary.

Q. You are one of the members of what is called the headquarters committee of this strike?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who are the other members?—A. There are so many. Mr. Garnham, Mr. Turnbull, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Brooke, Mr. Halton, Mr. Capstick, Mr. Walker, Mr. Kerr, Mr. Soper, Mr. Johnston, Mr. Thompson—

Q. Is that C. II. Thompson?—A. Yes, sir. I think that is about all.

36a—46J

F. J. RUSSELL—Vancouver, June 12,
Q. Is Mr. Bulley a member?—A. No, he belongs to Victoria.
Q. What was the exact nature of this committee? Was it a joint committee of the different organizations?—A. That committee was appointed, as near as I can remember, about ten days after the strike came on. When the other unions came out, we added on one or two, so that the others would know what was going on.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. The nucleus was the U. B. R. E.?—A. Yes.

By His Lordship:
Q. Who are the U. B. R. E. men?—A. All I named down to Mr. Walker, I think. That was the executive.
Q. What office did Garnham hold?—A. At the time we went on strike, Mr. Halton was east at Montreal and Garnham was appointed acting agent.
Q. He would be the chairman of the committee?—A. No, Mr. Brooke was chairman.
Q. This committee was in constant communication with Mr. Estes?—A. More or less, yes.
Q. And I believe met frequently with Mr. Estes?—A. Yes, when he was here.
Q. How many organizations besides the U. B. R. E. went out on strike?—A. Three, the teamsters, longshoremen and B. C. steamshipmen, and there were fifteen men belonging to the Carmen came out about a month afterwards.
Q. Can you tell us how many were in the teamsters' union?—A. About 190, I think, as near as I can remember.
Q. They all went out?—A. About 80, I think. The rest were working at work where they were not mixed up with freight from the C. P. R.
Q. These 80 went out because they could not handle freight?—A. Yes, sir.
Q. And the longshoremen, how many were they?—A. About 135.
Q. Did they all come out?—A. So far as I know, yes.
Q. Why did they come out?—A. I could not tell you except for the same reason, except that they objected to working in conjunction with scabs handling scab freight.
Q. Neither the teamsters or the longshoremen had any difficulty with their employers? It was on account of scab freight?—A. As far as I know.
Q. Now, about the steamshipmen?—A. I cannot tell you as to that. Some 50 or 60, I believe, joined after the strike was on.
Q. Did they all go out?—A. I think so. I think it was 60 went out in the first place, and then there were a great many joined afterwards. I am not positive, however.
Q. These three organizations, the teamsters, the longshoremen and the B. C. steamshipmen went out in sympathy with the U.B.R.E.?—A. Well, I don't know as to that.
Q. That is what you would call a sympathetic strike?—A. I don't know. That is not my idea of it exactly.
Q. That appears to have been Mr. Estes' idea, judging from the correspondence?—A. I understand that in the case of the teamsters and longshoremen that their surroundings were made so that they could not stay in and be good union men.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. What about the others, the steamshipmen?—A. The same, I suppose. But I believe the real breaking off of negotiations between the C. P. N. and the steamshipmen was they claimed Captain Troupe had broken an agreement.
Q. Do you believe in sympathetic strikes?—A. If the work is all practically under one head I do. If the work is divided I don't. That is, I don't believe in men getting themselves misled if they cannot do any good.
Q. Now, it seems to be a practice in the Trades and Labour Council to post up people as unfair in their hall?—A. There is very few that we post up there.

P. J. RUSSELL—Vancouver, June 12.
Q. How long has that practice been prevailing there?—A. There have only been one or two instances with the Trades and Labour Council. That is left to the unions who are involved.

Q. I see you have room on two big blackboards?—A. Yes, there is room for lots of names. Those were left us by the Methodist Church.

Q. Are those official blacklists?—A. I don't know anything about those. Those are the Building Trades Council, that is a distinct council altogether.

Q. Those are on your bulletin board?—A. Yes, any union has the use of the boards.

Q. Any union can put up a blacklist of its own?—A. Yes.

Q. Yes, but this was endorsed by the Trades and Labour Society?—A. Yes, I was present at that meeting.

Q. How did the name of the carpenters get in there?—A. I don't know anything about that. I was not present at their meeting, so I could not tell what was done.

Q. This headquarters committee—what were the officers, chairman, secretary and treasurer?—A. Yes.

Q. Were they all U.B.R.E. men?—A. That is the U.B.R.E.—of course, all money that came in came from that source, but in paying out money for relief it was through the treasurer appointed by the whole committee. Mr. Melver, of the teamsters, was the first one. His name should have gone down on that executive. He was treasurer until he got a job and then, I think, Mr. Thompson took it.

Q. What was he, a steamship man?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you give help to the Teamster Union and the Longshoremen's Union?—A. Yes.

Q. You gave financial assistance to them?—A. Yes.

Q. That is, the money came first to them as U. B. R. E. money?—A. It was both U. B. R. E. money and money put in by different unions.

Q. The bulk of it was U. B. R. E. money?—A. Yes, and nearly all the money that came into the Trades and Labour Council came from the States. The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners was one of the biggest contributors to the U. B. R. E.

Q. Can you estimate how much money has been lost by the strikers by reason of the strike?—A. No, I never figured it up.

Q. Can you give us a rough idea of how much has come in the way of aid?—A. I should say, probably, somewhere about $8,000 or $10,000.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Did the U.B.R.E. ask these other unions to come out?—A. No, sir, not that I am aware of.

By His Lordship:

Q. Would it surprise you to hear that Mr. Estes had made arrangements with some of these other organizations to come out?—A. If he did, I don't know anything about it. In fact, the day before the teamsters went out I was talking to the president, and I said, I don't think it would do any particular good, but the next morning they were out.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. When did you first hear of the steamshipmen's strike?—A. The first I knew about it was the notice sent us from Victoria.

Q. From whom?—A. I don't remember whether it was from Mr. Bulley or not.

By His Lordship:

Q. Bulley was the secretary of that body, was he not?—A. I think he was the president of the Victoria body, or vice-president.

F. J. RUSSELL—Vancouver, June 12.
Q. Any moneys that the U. B. R. E. sent to that association would be sent to him, would they not?—A. I don’t know whether he was acting as treasurer or not. I was acting as secretary for the Trades Council advisory board. So many things turned up, it is pretty hard to remember just what did occur.

J. C. MEISS, sworn.

Mr. Bird.—I may state that I call this witness at his own request, as he is anxious to leave. My idea is to show there are combinations of capital as well as labour that do things that probably would not meet the view of the Commission as right.

Q. What is your occupation?—A. Cigarmaker.

Q. About the first of April were you in need of lumber?—A. Yes, for fixing up a cigar factory.

Q. Did you proceed about procuring it?—A. Yes, sir, we went to the Royal City Mills. We were told if we wanted any lumber we had to have it O.K’d by the British Columbia Milling Company. I think that is the name.

Q. Don’t you mean the B. C. Manufacturing Association?—A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. You had to have their O.K.?—A. Yes, sir.

By His Lordship:

Q. Why?—A. For the reason when we went down to get the lumber if we had a union carpenter working on the job, they would not allow us the lumber. There was trouble between the carpenters and employing contractors.

Q. A strike for better hours and better pay?—A. I think so, whatever it was.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Did you go to the B. C. Association?—A. I did.

Q. Have the Builders’ Exchange quarters there?—A. I believe so. They asked who was going to do the work and I told them, knowing that I was telling a falsehood, but knowing I had to do that to get the lumber. It seemed here that we should have to wait for weeks. They would O.K. it, provided we did the work personally.

Q. Did you know whether there was an arrangement made by the B. C. Builders’ Exchange that nobody should get lumber at all who was employing union labour?—A. I believed that was so.

Q. Who did you go and see?—A. I could not say just now the names of the men who O.K.’d it, but the first one of the Royal Mills, and I was told by the clerk in the charge of the mill that I could not get any lumber unless it was O.K.’d by the B. C. Association. He told me they could not sell any lumber unless it was O.K.’d, by the Milling Association.

Q. Why?—A. Because for the simple reason that if we put any union labour on. The clerk didn’t say that, but at the B. C. Association they asked me that.

Q. Who did you see there?—A. There was two of them. One of them was a young man about 22, or a little older. I stated our case, and he called someone else from the other room, I presume it was the manager. He put me some questions asking what we wanted the lumber for, and who we wanted to perform the labour on it. I told him we were going to perform the labour ourselves, and the next day after it arrived we employed a union to do it. When we had the lumber we thought we could do it as we saw fit.

J. C. MEISS—Vancouver, June 12.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Did the Milling Association give any reason why it had to be O.K.'d?—A. I was told at the mill.

Q. Did either of the men you saw say there was any arrangement of that sort?—A. No, they did not. I presume there was something between them because they would not give me any lumber at the mill until it was O.K.'d.

Q. Did you offer to pay for it?—A. Certainly, cash. Offered to pay for it at the mill. The lumber amounted to $14.40 and I gave him a $20 bill. I was told before I went down that if I said union men were going to do the work that I could not get the lumber. When I went to the man at the mill he went to work and figured out about what it would amount to. He asked me what we were going to do with it and I told him. He said, before you get the lumber you will have to go to the B.C. Association and have it O.K.'d.

Q. The cash question did not come up between you and the milling people?—A. No.

Q. What I want to get at is: Was there anything said, either by the Royal Mills people or the Milling Association people, to give any foundation to the fact that they would not supply any lumber to union men?—A. Yes, I was prompted before I went there to tell them I was going to supply the labour.

Q. If either of these people had told you it might have had some consequence?—A. Didn't he ask me in the B.C. Association who was going to do the work? I told him I was. I know if I had stated union men I would not have got it. Union men had gone down to get lumber and they would not supply them with it.

F. JOHNSTON, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. You are president of the Longshoremen's Union here?—A. Yes, my Lord.

Q. How long has that been in existence?—A. Since November 17, 1888.

Q. The longshoremen have been out on strike?—A. No, my Lord.

Q. They have not been working lately?—A. No, but we have not been on strike. We ceased work on principle because we could not handle scab material.

Q. When did you cease work?—A. On March 4, 1903.

Q. And how many of you ceased work?—A. 140 men.

Q. All the members of the union?—A. All the members of the union.

Q. How did you know that scab material was being handed?—A. Well, the day prior to us ceasing work the freight-handlers had ceased to work, and they were all union men, and any one taking their places was scabs.

Q. How did you know the freight-handlers had ceased work—who told you?—A. I saw it in the paper.

Q. Do you take for gospel everything you see in the paper?—A. Not if it is the C. P. R. organ, I don't.

Q. That is the only way you know that the freight-handlers came out, because you saw it in the paper?—A. Some of the members told me they were out.

Q. Who told you?—A. I cannot recollect the members' names particularly. I am not very good at remembering things, especially names. I don't take anything in my head more than I can help.

Q. Did you or the secretary of your union get any notice from the freight-handlers or any other organization that they had gone out?—A. I don't recall that.

Q. A matter of small consequence, I suppose?—A. Yes.

Q. What is your idea of a sympathetic strike?—A. I don't know anything about sympathetic strikes.

Q. You don't know anything about sympathetic strikes, never heard of one before; would not know a sympathetic strike if you ran up against it?—A. No, I would not.
Q. You do know about striking against seads and seab freight?—A. That is not striking, my Lord, that is principle.
Q. Did you have any communication with Estes about this trouble?—A. No communication with Estes concerning—
Q. Did you have any interviews with him?—A. As a personal friend, of course, I came in contact with Mr. Estes, but all conversations between Mr. Estes and myself were private, nothing concerning the strike at all.
Q. Have long had you known Mr. Estes before he came to Vancouver?—A. I did not know him until he came to Vancouver.
Q. He was a great friend of yours, was he?—A. Not a great friend, didn't say so.
Q. And you had a lot of private conversations?—A. Not a lot. I may have met him ten or twelve times.
Q. And the subject-matter of the strike never came up?—A. Not in my presence.
Q. Never talked about strikes at all?—A. No, strikes did not interest me.
Q. Never talked about ceasing work, he did not discuss the question of your coming out?—A. Decidedly not, it had nothing to do with him that I know of.
Q. Did you get any financial help from Mr. Estes?—A. No.
Q. From the U.B.R.E.?—A. Not from them as a body.
Q. From whom?—A. From whatever financial aid has come in. It has not come from headquarters, it has come by subscriptions from different union men, not only from the U.B.R.E. but other unions who felt it their duty to assist one another as unions. It is not the sympathetic part of it, it is the principle.
Q. Who did you get the financial aid from?—A. I have no record of the different unions who subscribed.
Q. The U.B.R.E. gave you some as well as the others?—A. Not that I know of.
Q. The executive committee did?—A. From the executive, certainly.
Q. Were you on the executive?—A. Yes.
Q. Did you have consultations with the other members of the executive as to the strikes?—A. Very little, because I had too much to do looking after my own body.
Q. You mean the men who went out?—A. The men who went out, the longshoremen.
Q. Did you have any understanding with Mr. Estes how long the men were to remain out?—A. I told you, my Lord, at the first, that I had no conversation with Mr. Estes about the strike or the men.
Q. No conversation with any other members of the headquarters committee about that?—A. No, my Lord.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Did your union have a meeting before they quit work?—A. Well, we must have a meeting to declare the thing unfair. It was our ordinary meeting. It happened it was our ordinary meeting the night before we ceased work, so we called no special meeting for that at all. It came in the ordinary routine of business.

By His Lordship:

Q. And at that meeting a resolution was adopted to the effect that the C.P.R. was unfair?—A. No, but that the freight we should handle would be unfair, being handled as it was the day before we declared to come out, by unfair or sead men, men who take the union men's places.
Q. Have you gone back to work?—A. Yes, we resumed work yesterday.
Q. There are some of these seads still handling this freight?—A. For the time being.
Q. You can stand the sead freight for a few days?—A. Well, my Lord, you know the agreement is not signed between the C.P.R. and the employees yet. We have gone.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

back to work pending the decision which we know will be accepted anyhow. I take it of course that the freight handlers will resume work about the 22nd of this month.

Q. All I desire to know is whether you can handle scab freight for a few days, because if you can, it seems to me you can stand it for a few months?—A. If you force it along that line—

Q. What I don’t understand is, you cease work on principle, and it appears to me you are prepared to surrender your principle for a few days?—A. Certainly.

Q. If for a few days, why not for a good long time?—A. One is a commencement of the trouble, and now, as I take it, this is a cessation of hostilities.

Q. You say you went out on principle to prevent handling scab freight?—A. Yes.

Q. And you are handling it to-day?—A. Yes, but don’t you know at the time of strike there is a chance to give the company time to get rid of their substitutes and to give the union a chance to get men to take their places. If that thing had been called off yesterday with everyone concerned, things would be in a pretty mess.

Q. I guess it is not your fault, Mr. Johnston, that it is not in a bigger mess than it was?—A. What I mean is there would not have been any men here to perform the work. The substitutes would have walked off the docks, and there would have been no men here to replace them.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. At the meeting at which you decided the freight was unfair, was any member of the U.B.R.E. present?—A. No.

Q. No address made on the subject by anybody other than members of the union?

—A. No, we transacted all our own business.

Q. Did the resolution require the meeting to quit work next day?—A. Yes.

Q. Is your union affiliated with International Longshoremens’ Union?—A. Yes.

Q. Have you a copy of the constitution?—A. Yes.

Q. Was your union asked to appoint a member of the headquarters committee?—A. The headquarters of our international?

Q. No, the committee here of the strike?—A. It was the executive committee.

Q. And it was an enlarged executive of the U.B.R.E. Was your union asked to join that committee?—A. We were not asked to appoint one, but of course naturally the unions that came out, the B.C.S.S., the longshoremen, and teamsters naturally had members sitting on that committee.

Q. Were they there by the appointment of their respective lodges?—A. Well, certainly.

Q. Had your union any schedule with the men you worked for, any contract?—A. No, we have no particular schedule with any particular employer, because a good deal of ours is casual labour, but we have what is called a port wage, and all employers know that port wage.

Q. You have no contract as to the number of men you will furnish the contractor?—A. That all depends. If we have the men we supply them. It is not under a contract, it is an understanding.

Q. Any understanding as to notice to these men if you purpose not working?—A. No, if a man does not suit him an employer has the right to discharge that man at a minute’s notice, giving a reason, of course. Of course the men also have the same option. The same sword cuts both ways.

By His Lordship:

Q. Do you know anything about picketing?—A. The only thing I ever knew about picketing is out on the prairie. If you have no stable for your horse, you drive a stick—

Q. It seems to me, Mr. Johnston, you are pretty green for the president of a longshoreman’s union?—A. I may be a little green, but I’m not cabbage-looking anyhow.

George Noonan, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. You are secretary of this longshoreman's union?—A. Yes, my Lord.
Q. You, with 110 members of the union, quit work on March 4 last?—A. Yes.
Q. What is your principle?—A. The principle is that I could not as a union man handle freight if the freight-handlers had gone out on strike.
Q. Could not handle scab freight?—A. No.
Q. Did you notify the company that you were going out?—A. No, my Lord.
Q. Went out without giving any notice. How was this question of coming out decided by the union?—A. On principle.
Q. Yes, but you had a general meeting?—A. At our ordinary regular meeting.
Q. You mean the meeting of the executive or the meeting of the whole?—A. Of our union.
Q. How was that meeting called?—A. It was our regular meeting night. It came up in the ordinary course of business.
Q. How often do you meet?—A. Every other Tuesday.
Q. And this matter came up at a regular Tuesday meeting?—A. Yes.
Q. The Tuesday before you went out?—A. Yes, my Lord.
Q. Does not the constitution provide for a special meeting to be called for the purpose of considering a strike?—A. This is not a strike.
Q. What do you call this?—A. We just ceased work on principle.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I suppose a strike is not on principle, then?—A. I don't consider this a strike.

By His Lordship:

Q. Would you give us your idea of what a strike is?—A. I presume if we made an advance to the company for an increase in wages or if we laboured under any particular grievance connected with our own organization, which would not be rectified, it would be brought before a special meeting, and if the grievance could not be adjusted we would strike.
Q. And you call this, what?—A. Ceasing work on principle.
Q. That is something different from a strike. How many of the men of the union decided to cease work on principle?—A. It was unanimous.
Q. By ballot?—A. Open vote.
Q. Don't you think a grave question of this kind should be by ballot?—A. It is not what I think, it is what the majority of the organization think.
Q. What do you think?—A. No, I don't think it odd.
Q. Was it unanimous?—A. Yes, my Lord.
Q. How many were there of the whole 140?—A. I don't recall, I cannot give an answer.
Q. Were there 20?—A. Oh, yes.
Q. Were there 40?—A. I should say over 40.
Q. Were there 50?—A. Well, going into figures—
Q. You cannot work it up higher than 50?—A. I could not say, my Lord.
Q. I will put down 50?—A. I don't say there were 50 or not, or over.
Q. Well, you cannot say that there were over 50?—(No answer.)
Q. Now, you were the man who got the men on the Empress to come out, were you not?—A. No, my Lord.
Q. Did you have any negotiation with any Empress scamen?—A. No, my Lord.
Q. None whatever?—A. No.
Q. Are you sure about that?—A. Quite sure. It was a question that did not concern the longshoremen's union whatever.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Did you have any communication with Bulley, of the Steamshipmen’s Association, about the strike?—A. Not as a member of the Longshoremen’s Union, my Lord.

Q. In your private capacity?—A. No.

Q. In what capacity, then?—A. Well, I might say as a member of the B.C.S.S.

Q. You were a member of this headquarters committee, were you? The joint board of these unions that quit work, we won’t say struck?—A. Yes, my Lord.

Q. Had you any negotiations with Estes about quitting work?—A. No.

Q. None whatever, no interview or conversation with him?—A. No.

Q. Did you ever have any correspondence with Estes?—A. No, I never wrote a line to Mr. Estes in my life.

Q. Ever receive any letters from Mr. Estes?—A. No, my Lord.

Q. Would you be surprised to hear there are some letters in our possession?—A. Written by me to Mr. Estes?

Q. By Mr. Estes to you?—A. It would, my Lord, if there was a letter written by Mr. Estes to me.

Q. Did you have any conversation with any man coming out from the east to go on the Empress?—A. No, my Lord.

Q. On the C.P.R. train or elsewhere?—A. No, never had any conversation with any of the seamen coming out from the C.P.R. Never was on the company’s property after the men came out.

Q. You had no conversation on the train with any men who were coming out to take the places of seamen who were leaving the Empress?—A. No, my Lord.

Q. Did the B.C. Steamshipmen’s Association receive any money from the executive?—A. I cannot say as to that, my Lord, I am not in a position to say.

Q. Do you know anything about that?—A. No.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. I see a reference to an officer called a delegate, what does that mean?—A. Mr. Rowe, our delegate is our foreman. For instance, when a boat comes in our delegate interviews the chief officer. The chief officer tells the men how many he wants and where to place them. The delegate calls off the men and directs the placing of them.

Q. And I see that a union man cannot take a job on the ship except at the instructions of the delegate?—A. Our contention is that it is to prevent unnecessary trouble. The chief officer tells the delegate how many men he wants. On most boats the delegate stays there and superintends the men, and assists the chief officer in placing the cargo. The delegate—where he doesn’t do that, where the matter is left entirely to the chief officer’s hands, he generally appoints a member of the union to act, and if the chief officer wants any more men he generally tells this member. That is done to prevent unnecessary confusion by men coming to work out of turn. We have a list. It begins with No. 1. If the ship wants twenty men the delegate calls down to twenty, and the rest of the men are told to go home. Then when that boat is finished and the next boat comes in, the delegate starts where he left off and so on down the list.

Q. And you would impose a fine on any man who proceeded differently to get work?—A. Yes.

Q. ‘No member shall take upon himself to commence work without permission of the delegate,’ and so on?—A. Yes.

Q. Under what article of your constitution did you take action at that meeting in which you decided not to work any more?—A. There was no article of the constitution brought into effect. It was solely on union principles.

Q. Would a member of the Longshoremen’s Union who worked after that meeting be subject to discipline?—A. He most assuredly would.

Q. What would his relation to the lodge be?—A. He had disobeyed an order of the union. He would, in my opinion, Mr. Rowe, be subject to discipline for the simple reason that he had gone against the wishes of the majority.

GEORGE NOONAN, Vancouver, June 13.
By His Lordship:

Q. That is a question outside of the constitution, according to you. This is not a strike — A. It was a rule of the union that the union cease work, and in the second or third article of our constitution, section 3, it says members shall obey all orders from time to time —

Q. There is nothing in the constitution about ceasing work? — A. If we were to print every detail in the constitution, like a copy of the law, it would be a big volume.

Q. That is an important matter — that all the men came out. That is not a mere detail. That appears to me to be about as important a matter as could be considered.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. When you say the rules of the union, what do you refer to, by-laws? — A. No, rules or motions, or any decision arrived at by the union.

Q. It says here that no part of the by-laws shall be amended except by notice of motion, such motion to lay on the table for a month. So if it became a principle for the men not to work there would have to be a month's notice before it could be had. The reason I ask this question is that if we find that unions don't live up to their constitutions it has the effect of creating a feeling of insecurity on the part of those who are dependent upon the proper observance of these rules. I see here the constitution says, "No strike or boycott shall be encouraged." What do you understand by boycott? — A. I don't know, Mr. Rowe, it is a thing I have never gone into. I have nothing to do with the adoption of the constitution. I presume that constitution was gotten up by a committee of the members. Personally, the word 'boycott' or anything of that kind is a thing I have never gone into.

Q. So you don't know what that means when it is here in the constitution? — A. No, I cannot say that I do.

By His Lordship:

Q. You see, Mr. Noonan, you have undertaken to tell us about a union principle. Surely if you understand all that, you understand what is meant by boycott. You say you are dealing with a question of union principle. Now, boycotting has been very frequently discussed in unions? — A. I have no knowledge in the organization that I belong to, that the word boycott was ever used.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Why did your union think it wrong to handle this freight? — A. They considered because the C. P. R. men had gone on strike, or had been forced out, that it would be wrong for us to go down there and handle that freight which had been handled by men they thought unfair.

Q. What effect would your action have upon the fortunes of the U. B. R. E.? — A. I don't know as we discussed that matter at all. We simply ceased work.

Q. Your ceasing work was not for the purpose of helping any union in this struggle? — A. Well, if you have a mind to take it that way, yes.

By His Lordship:

Q. Did you have any communication with Thompson of the B. C. Association about the Empress? — A. About the Empress, no. I want it understood that any communication I had with the B. C. S.S. related to their business. The business was never discussed by the longshoremen in any shape or form.

Q. What is your office in the B. C. Steamshipmen? — A. I am the secretary of the Vancouver division. I understood that I was subpoenaed here as the secretary of the Longshoremen's Union.

Q. You have not done anything in connection with this strike that you are ashamed of? — A. No, my Lord.

Q. Well, I don't see why you hesitate to tell us all you know.

J. C. Kerr, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. You are president of the Teamsters' Union here?—A. Yes.
Q. That union quit work on the 4th of March?—A. On the 12th March.
Q. How did they come to the conclusion to do that, how was it decided to quit work, and why?—A. Because it came in contact with scab freight and baggage on the wharfs.
Q. Have you got a copy of your constitution here?—A. No, sir.
Q. Can you get one?—A. Yes, sir.

(Copy of constitution put in—Exhibit 73.)
Q. Was this matter decided at a general or special meeting?—A. General meeting.

Q. One of the ordinary meetings?—A. Yes.
Q. No special notice given to consider this question?—A. No.
Q. How many men are in the union—the Teamsters' Union?—A. I think over one hundred.
Q. How many men were at the meeting?—A. I think they were nearly all there.
Q. Nearly 100?—A. Yes.
Q. Was the question decided by ballot?—A. No, by open vote.
Q. Were there any dissenting?—A. Just two.
Q. You went out on the 12th?—A. Yes.
Q. Why did you go out?—A. We were forced out by our employers.
Q. Have you got a copy of the resolution which permitted you to go out or the resolution transcribed in the minute book? Do you keep minute books?—A. Yes.
Q. Have you a copy of the resolution?—A. No.
Q. Do you remember how it reads?—A. No, my Lord, I don't.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. What did it require of the members?—A. A two-thirds vote.
Q. In general terms, what did it state, what men were to stop work?—A. All that came in contact with scab freight and baggage on the C. P. R. service.
Q. Is there anything about scab freight in this constitution?—A. I don't think so.
Q. So all the freight and baggage which came over the C. P. R. wharf was unfair?—A. Yes.
Q. There could not be any fair freight on that wharf?—A. No.
Q. Would that apply to freight sheds, too?—A. The local freight sheds, yes.
Q. How many men were affected by this order of the union?—A. I could not say exactly how many, I think about one-half of our union.

By His Lordship:

Q. Did you have any agreement with the C. P. R. about your wages, any written agreement?—A. We have nothing to do with the C.P.R.
Q. How did you know this was scab freight you were being called on to take?—A. We saw by the papers and by the members of the other unions on the wharf that they were out.
Q. Members of the freight-handlers told you they were out?—A. Freight-handlers, yes.
Q. Were you on this executive committee?—A. Yes.
Q. Did you get any money from the U. B. R. E. to help you?—A. No.
Q. Whom did you get money from?—A. From the executive.
Q. Where did they get it from?—A. From different unions.
Q. Some from the U.B.R.E.?—A. I don't think so.
Q. Nothing whatever from the U.B.R.E.?—A. I could not say.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. Who collected the money? — A. No person collected it.
Q. To whom was it sent from the various unions? — A. To the executive, I expect.
Q. Who decided the amount that was to be given to the various unions? — A. I could not say.

By His Lordship:
Q. You were a member of the executive? — A. Yes.
Q. The matter never came up? — A. To go to the different unions? No, there was not any amount specified.
Q. It was never decided at the executive meeting as to whether the Teamsters' Union should get a certain amount or the longshoremen? — A. No.
Q. On what basis was the money distributed? — A. Well, a person that was really needy and could not find work and asked for assistance, why they would get assistance.
Q. The individuals would make application? — A. Yes.
Q. What do you understand by sympathetic strike? Can you give us any light on that subject? — A. No, not very much.
Q. You would not call this a sympathetic strike? — A. No, I don't think I would call it a sympathetic strike.
Q. If you would not call this a sympathetic strike, tell us what you understand by a sympathetic strike? — A. I suppose you might call it a sympathetic strike. Some would and some would not.
Q. There is not much doubt about it, is there? You had no grievance with your employer? — A. No. We had a verbal agreement with our employer that we were to handle no freight or material — no seab material.
Q. When was this? — A. In case there was a strike on they were not to ask us——
Q. With whom was this arrangement come to? — A. With our employers.
Q. Who were your employers? — A. The master draymen of the city.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. They have an association? — A. They had.

By His Lordship:
Q. When was this agreement entered into? — A. I really don't know; to save trouble, I suppose.
Q. When did you arrive at this arrangement? — A. When we were recognized as a union.
Q. How long before you went out? — A. It was quite a long time before we went out.

By Mr. Rowe:
Q. Did your international union or general executive approve of the union's action? — A. We went out on our own stand.
Q. Didn't ask for approval of the general executive? — A. No.
Q. Did you get any assistance from the general executive? — A. Yes, sir. From the headquarters you mean?
Q. Yes. You got money from the defence fund, it is called that in the constitution. 'Money from the defence fund shall be drawn on only for the following purposes: for the purpose of strikes, for the purpose of defending the principles of unionism, &c., &c.' Is that the fund from what you draw assistance? — A. I expect so.

By His Lordship:
Q. Did you have any communication with Estes about this organization? — A. None whatever.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 35a

Q. Or any interview with him?—A. No.
Q. Did you have any discussions with any U.B.R.E. officers?—A. I don't recollect as I did, that is, the officers.
Q. Who did you discuss the matter with?—A. Not with any of them particularly, no more than members talking of the situation in general.
Q. I suppose the object of the teamsters was to help the U.B.R.E.?—A. No, not altogether.
Q. Was that one object?—A. I don't know as they figured it was going to help the U.B.R.E. any more than they refused simply to handle the freight. They considered it scab freight.

CHARLES WOODWARD, recalled.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Is this an article authorized by you: 'Protest of C. W. Woodward & Co. against Trades Council Manifesto.' (Quoting from Vancouver 'Daily World,' May 29, 1903)?—A. It must have been, so far as I know. (Article put in as Exhibit 74.)
Q. It appears in the 'World' of the 29th of May?—A. It is an interview.
Q. Now, I bring this to your attention because there is a statement here: 'What the action really means is that the company, to please the unions, should throw away from $5,000 to $8,000 on the price of their building. In this age of competition such a course would be suicidal and union men who hold hundreds of dollars worth of the stock of the company would be among the first to condemn the management for waste—'. I understood yesterday the only difference between them was $1,200 or $1,500?—A. What I said was the tender—Mr. Cook's was the lowest tender, and the next highest was from $1,300 to $1,500. The next one then was very much higher. It would run from $4,000 to $5,000 and then run from $4,000 to $11,000.
Q. Your explanation of that statement is that the man next higher than Mr. Cook did not want the contract?—A. I arranged an interview but he came to the conclusion in discussing the thing that he did not want it, and in fact he said words to that effect. He gave us to understand that he did not want it, even had we been disposed to give it to him, but still if we had sooner the figure of Mr. Cook possibly some arrangement might have been made. I will state that the company were prepared to pay some sooner than have any trouble, but there was one thing with Mr. Shindler which he did state and which we could not entertain, that he would not bind himself to complete it in a particular time. He would not bind himself in any way to build them in time through the labour trouble.
Q. Does that mean that Mr. Shindler insisted on a strike clause being inserted?—A. Oh, yes, he decided on that.
Q. You wanted a time limit with your contract?—A. Yes.
Q. Have you found that it is absolutely necessary to have strike clauses in contracts in British Columbia?—A. With Mr. Cook there is an agreement with a strike clause.
Q. That is deferring the ultimate completion in the case of strike?—A. Not with his own men, but in connection with something outside of his own union. I would like to make a statement here, misrepresented in the 'Advertiser,' that I said that Cook's men were non-union; they are union.
Q. As a matter of hearsay, you know nothing about this matter of union or non-union?—A. Only by what I hear.

By His Lordship:

Q. I see you say something in your article here about having trouble with the union over bread. What was that trouble about?—A. We were getting our bread in the store from Mr. Murray, and he was declared unfair by the unions. The unions waited on Mr. Wallace, who looks after the grocery part of my place about it. I did not know about this until they came to me. They came to me on Saturday night and made the same complaint, and gave me until Monday to decide what we were going to do. If we still continued to take Mr. Murray's bread, they would declare us unfair and boycott us. I had an interview with Wallace and I told him, I said, for the sake of having no trouble, you had better change your baker. I said, you had better change your baker! and even after that we were put on the unfair list.

CHARLES WOODWARD—Vancouver, June 13.

Q. Even though you changed your baker you were put on the unfair list?—A. Yes, and it was up a week.

Q. How do you account for that?—A. I don't know, that occasion was previous to this here, but we tried to have no trouble.

Q. What union posted you that time?—A. The Trades and Labour Council, the same as this—they have the running of advertisements now in the papers, one in the 'Clarion' and one in the 'Independent.' There is a running ad. in the 'Clarion.' It has been going for same weeks. They have one in the 'Independent,' I think, with Mr. Cook's name coupled with it. I have not got that one. I could not find it this morning.

Copy of 'Clarion' containing advertisement put in as Exhibit 73.)

Q. Have you ever had any union men come to you and tell you he could not do business with you on account of being on the unfair list?—A. Not to me. One of my men told me he had an order of $10 and that he would have to go by my store.

Q. Is that employee of yours here?—A. He is in the city, in the store.

Q. You don't think it makes much difference to your business being on the unfair list?—A. No, I think possibly we are making a special effort, the same as other merchants are, cleaning up between fall and spring goods, but we have a better business now than we have ever had in our history.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. This practice of placing on the unfair list is not unknown to you. Did you ever see a calendar like that?—A. No.

(Copy of 'Unfair' Calendar, Gurney Foundry Company, Toronto, put in as Exhibit 76.)

Q. Did you ever see anything like that (exhibiting), 'Refuse to buy Oxford stoves and ranges; on the unfair list throughout the Dominion?'—A. No.

(Copy of circular 'Refuse to buy Oxford stoves and ranges put in as Exhibit 77.)

Q. This sort of practice has been to your knowledge in vogue throughout the United States and Canada for some years?—A. Yes, I have heard of such things.

Q. So when you came up against it yourself you recognized it was not a very serious condition. This document that was circulated as against your stores was addressed to union men of the city of Vancouver and nobody else—the document you complain of?—A. I don't know, let me see it.

Q. It was not for general circulation, it was for private circulation among the men?—A. Yes.

His LORDSHIP.—Yes, but they stuck it up on telephone poles.

Mr. Bird.—The unions are not responsible for that.

His LORDSHIP.—Who is?

Mr. Bird.—I suppose somebody would have a spite against Mr. Woodward.

His LORDSHIP.—It is satisfactory to know that you disown the placing of it on the poles.

Mr. Bird.—As I see it, it was for circulation among labouring men only and intended to be brought to their attention only.

CHARLES WOODWARD—Vancouver, June 13.
ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Edward Cook, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. You are the contractor that built Mr. Woodward's building?—A. Yes, my Lord.
Q. Tell us about your version of this trouble?—A. Well, for some time back, some years I may say, we have had more or less friction with union labour here in the building trades.
Q. You are a builder?—A. Yes, and general contractor. At times matters were running very smoothly; we have had things fixed up at their dictation, and we would run along very smoothly for sometimes a week or so, sometimes longer, and the dictation would become so severe that it would become impossible to carry on operations—
Q. What trades do you refer to?—A. Well, all the trades in connection with building, especially bricklayers and stonemasons, carpenters, stoncutters. The result of that was that the men complained, a large number of the men who were fair-minded, reasonable men, they complained so bitterly of the treatment they were receiving that they would have to withdraw from the union in the Labour Council in Vancouver and organize a separate organization, that is, a Canadian organization. At certain times, a number of workmen would arrive from the other side of the line, south of the line, and finally the local men here had their meetings and decided on some radical change which would seriously affect the interests of the men residing here. They were decided on that, but at the same time a strike would be called or they would be called off the work, and were called off my work a number of times. Hence the agitation about a new organization, and I spoke of a national union.
Q. When was that formed?—A. I believe perhaps two years ago.
Q. Was that a union of allied trades?—A. All the trades that I spoke of are working under that organization now.
Q. What is the name of it?—A. They call it the National Union of Canada.
Q. National Union of what?—A. The National Union of Bricklayers, Masons and Carpenters.
Q. Separate unions of their own?—A. Yes.
Q. How did you get into trouble with the Trades and Labour Council?—A. They, of course, consider that every one else is wrong unless they follow their dictation. The man who doesn't follow it is considered to be a very poor type of man. They called the men off the work at every opportunity, and interfered with them as much as they could. Quite a large number of the men I spoke to in this organization refused to be governed by them and are working for me.
Q. How did they come to claim you were unfair?—A. Employing these local men.
Q. Were you notified by any of these bodies that you would be placed on the unfair list if you did that?—A. Yes.
Q. Have you got that notice with you?—A. I only have my name on the unfair list they sent me.
Q. You were notified by the Trades and Labour Council?—A. By their delegated authority. I think I have it in writing, but I am not positive.
Q. If you have it in writing you had better hand it in to the secretary?—A. I am certain about verbal notice.
Q. When was that given?—A. At different times.
Q. You have experienced the unfair list several times?—A. Yes.
Q. What wages do you pay these people?—A. The current rate of wages.
Q. Have you any difficulties with the men now in your employ?—A. None whatever. If I had, not at any time that the men were left to themselves.
Q. Who has been interfering with them?—A. The agitator or walking delegate goes around and gives them notice that they should not work for me.
Q. Who is the walking delegate?—A. Mr. Hilton is one of them. I think that is his name.

Mr. Bird.—He is in the room.

EDWARD COOK—Vancouver, June 13.
By His Lordship:

Q. And he goes around stirring up trouble among the men?—A. He goes around and calls the men aside, probably that may be working, and says, don’t you know you are working for so-and-so, and in the conversation tells them they should withdraw from the building and they might go away and not work any more.

Q. How many times does that occur?—A. A large number of times. About a dozen times in two years, within a couple of years.

Q. The same walking delegate?—A. The same, yes.

Q. As many as two dozen times in a few years?—A. He don’t come much when I am there. He would see the men at other times.

Q. On the work or away from the work?—A. Away from the work, I think. If I am on the works, I don’t permit anything of that kind.

Q. Have you had men quit work on you?—A. Yes, I have had men called off for no reason.

Q. How many?—A. About 20 or 25.

Q. All at once?—A. Sometimes, and sometimes singly.

Q. What explanation was given why they quit work?—A. They were told that they were working on building that was considered unfair, and for a contractor who was considered unfair by them.

Q. That is the excuse they would give you when they quit work?—A. Yes. In very many cases they came back and worked in a day or two, or a week, when they found that they had been misled.

Q. Do you find any trouble in getting men to work for you?—A. Not those under the national union. I have no trouble whatever. They are pleased to work and very much satisfied with the arrangements.

Q. Has the national union a charter?—A. From the Trades and Labour Council of Eastern Canada.

Q. The Dominion Trades Congress?—A. Yes, the Dominion Trades Congress.

Q. How many men do you employ as a rule?—A. Just now we have about 30 men on the pay-roll.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Were they out in the recent strike here?—A. No, my men were not out.

Q. Did they get the wages agreed on as a settlement of that strike?—A. They were not demanding additional wages. They had received shorter hours sometime before, I think about the first of March, and they were not asking any demands of me.

Q. Are their terms and wages the same as other unions?—A. Their hours are the same, and their wages are the same so far as I know.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Could you give us a schedule of the rates of pay that obtains with your work, Mr. Cook?—A. Yes, I can give it.

Q. Give us the rate per hour of carpenters. How much do you pay the carpenters?—A. Carpenters get 40 cents.

Q. And bricklayers?—A. Bricklayers are 50 cents.

Q. Labourers?—A. Labourers vary from 25 to 35, I suppose.

Q. I understand your men work 9 hours per day, Mr. Cook, is that right?—A. They are paid by the hour.

Q. They work 9 hours a day—A. Not all of them.

Q. Do they have Saturday afternoon off. When they work more than 8 hours a day are they paid for overtime?—A. They are paid extra.

Q. But not at the excess rate for overtime charged by other men. They get the same 40 cents per hour?—A. Yes, they are paid for all the time they work.

Q. But not at overtime. They don’t get holidays on Saturday afternoons if they work overtime?—A. That is optional with them.

EDWARD COOK—Vancouver, June 13.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. They can work or not, but they are not entitled to time for overtime hours?—A. That is arranged between the men and myself.

Q. They just get their ordinary rate of pay?—A. Not always, sometimes they are paid extra.

Q. For instance, Saturday afternoons; I understand your men always work Saturday afternoons?—A. No, the carpenters and bricklayers don't.

Q. They have been working on the afternoons since you started the Woodward department store?—A. Some days, when there was broken time.

Q. Now, you have been an opponent of unions for over two years?—A. Not as an opponent of unions—

Q. You have been on the unfair list for about that length of time?—A. No, I was not on the unfair list until about a year and a half ago.

Q. You are a union man yourself, are you not?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you belong to this union with your employees?—A. No.

Q. You believe in strikes, don't you, to enforce what you believe to be correct demands?—A. No, I think they are very injurious.

Q. Never engaged in a strike as a union man yourself?—A. No.

Q. Ever remember being engaged in a strike in Winnipeg?—A. No, I don't.

Q. It is reported you struck three times in one day on a certain job, Mr. Cook?—A. It must have been some other person of the same name.

Q. Do you know any Mr. Sault, in Vancouver?—A. Yes. I worked for him in Winnipeg.

Q. And did you ever, when you were working for him and had him in a tight place, make a demand and succeed in getting better terms?—A. I never had any trouble.

Q. Was there one day that you and another workman held out and got three separate conditions during one day?

His Lordship.—Three times! We all strike for grub three times a day.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. You say that is not correct that you never went on strike at any time?—A. No.

Q. Do you know anything about this national union? I am informed that your statement is not correct that these men have a charter from the Dominion Congress, that they were turned out and refused a charter.

His Lordship.—That is, for a technical reason.

Mr. Bird.—For the reason that where there is an international union they could not join.

His Lordship.—Yes, but it appears that these people were not satisfied with the union. That does not make them any the less non-union men.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Would you correct your statement that they did not get a charter from the Trades Congress?—A. I would not do that.

Q. Was it not the National Trades Congress?—A. Well, it may be. I am informed that they have a charter from a Trades Congress in eastern Canada. There may be more than one.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. There is a National Trades Congress in Canada?—A. Yes.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Now, attempts were made by Mr. Hilton and other members of the union to meet you and endeavour to discuss grievances, and for the purpose of having your men placed as proper union men, as understood by the Trades and Labour Council in Vancouver. Meetings were arranged with you?—A. Yes, Mr. Hilton met me at different times.

EDWARD COOK—Vancouver, June 13.
Q. And endeavoured to show the situation from his point of view? — A. He stated their terms.
Q. He wanted you to adopt on your building the card system, as approved by the Building Trades Council of Vancouver? — A. Those were impossible terms.
Q. In what sense, and where did injustice lie in respect of this request? — A. One condition is that you must employ the men they supply to you.
Q. You make that as a statement of fact? — A. I have found it to be so.
Q. You have no choice in regard to your own men on any job? — A. No, we have no choice.
Q. Do you mean to say the ordinary procedure would be you would send up to the labour hall for any number of men, bricklayers or carpenters, and you would have to take the men assigned to you? — A. You would have to take the number assigned to you because the number would be so limited.
Q. I understand, according to your statement, that the union men were walking around town. You don’t mean that the union men are idle and that your men are working? — A. During the carpenters’ strike, do you mean?
Q. Generally? — A. My men have been at work during the strike.
Q. Have you continuous employment for your men? — A. Generally speaking, I have.
Q. You have fostered this union in order to have a certain number of men whom you could employ on your own terms? — A. They asked me if I would give them employment. I said certainly, if they would not create disturbances and be satisfied with fair hours and wages which would not be broken.
Q. Have you an arrangement in writing with your men? — A. No, I have not.
Q. No arrangement with the men collectively as a union as to rate of pay or hours? — A. No, they govern that themselves.
Q. Do you mean to say you accept the dictation of that national union in regard to wages and hours? They pay what they think is fair, or what you think yourself is fair? — A. They discuss the matter with their employers.
Q. Have you had any discussion with your men with regard to rates of pay, or are you an autocrat altogether and say I will pay you so much and you can work or not as you please? — A. There is no disturbance about wages or hours.
Q. Have you any terms with your men that they cannot go on strike? — A. They have a rule in their constitution or by-laws that they will submit everything to arbitration.
Q. Have you ever had any arbitration over any points of difference between you? — A. No, it has not been necessary. Nothing has arisen.
Q. In case they demand a privilege, has the matter ever been submitted to arbitration? — A. There has not been any dispute, but if there were it would be submitted to arbitration.
Q. Do you mean to say that Mr. Hilton, in your experience, is an agitator? — A. He is employed for that purpose.
Q. Is he not employed rather in a pacific capacity, in order that there would be no trouble? That is his contention and the contention of the union? — A. I have no quarrel with the union.
Q. And I understand in this present instance you don’t object to this unfair list? — A. Well, I have no way of preventing it, unless the Commissioners have.
Q. You mean to say it is a grievance you feel keenly, but have to submit to? — A. I don’t know that I can do anything more. I have been going a straight course from my point of view, and a large number of men are satisfied with the arrangement.
Q. You are a member of the Builders’ Exchange? — A. Yes.
Q. Is it true, the circulated report, that the Builders’ Exchange brought pressure to bear upon the lumber manufacturers of Vancouver, that they should refuse the lumber to union labour? — A. I was not on that committee.

EDWARD COOK—Vancouver, June 13.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Q. Do you know that as a matter of fact as a member of the Builders' Exchange I Α. I know there were certain arrangements carried out between the Builders' Exchange and the Lumber Association at that time.

Q. And that this arrangement amounted to a boycott of union labour Α.—Α. I know there was an arrangement, but I don't know what it was.

Q. You know by reason of certain arrangements no union man or anyone employing union labour could get one board from any of the mills in Vancouver Α.—Α. I don't know that to be the case, but I know that some of the executive were dealing with the matters in dispute at that time.

Q. Now a certain gentleman swore that he had applied for $14 worth of lumber, and he had to apply to the Builders' Association for a permit Α.—Α. I know there was an arrangement by which all orders for lumber were placed through the Builders' Exchange.

Q. What was the object of that Α.—Α. That is a point I am not clear about.

Q. Have you no absolute certain knowledge? Was not the object of that permit retaliation against labour for its position Α.—Α. Not as I understand it.

Q. Was it not to bring the union men to the terms of the contractors Α.—Α. If I had been present at the meeting I could give a clear answer, but I was not present.

Q. There was a large representative meeting of the Builders' Exchange and the Manufacturers' Association that the men's terms should be acceded to prior to the strike Α.—Α. I think I personally advocate that there should be a settlement made.

Q. That the terms asked for by the union should be acceded to? They were asking both larger pay and shorter hours Α.—Α. I think I was one who advised that a settlement should be made on some reasonable line.

Q. The matter was referred to arbitration Α.—Α. Yes.

Q. And the men succeeded in getting their demands Α.—Α. Yes.

Q. You don't know, after reference to arbitration, while the unions were at war with their employers, that these measures were adopted by the Builders' Exchange as a coercive system Α.—Α. Possibly; the executive were dealing with it, and you can get this evidence from some of them. I was not on the executive board.

Mr. Bird.—I have subpoenaed one of the executive for the purpose.

JAMES A. FULLERTON, sworn.

By His Lordship:

Q. What office do you hold Α.—Ship's husband of the C. P. Steamship Company.

Q. Has the company had any difficulty about men quitting work on the Empresses Α.—We have had in the past in connection with sailors on the ship. Of course, the longshoremen have been at loggerheads. In connection with that we engaged quite a number of men in St. John, in the east, and also from New York, but these men in transit were apparently tampered with, as some of the men told me, after leaving New York, that they were approached along the line in regard to the strike being on and requested not to join.

Q. Who was doing the tampering Α.—I don't know who the boys were, but I personally do know that a man of Vancouver, who I think belonged to the U. B. R. E., tampered with our sailors, men that I went out to meet. It resulted, I think, that four of them who had joined the Empress of India and signed articles, disappeared that night and left their clothes behind.

Q. When was that? Α.—That was the night they arrived on the train; I could not give the date exactly, probably three months ago. The India was the first ship that.

JAMES A. FULLERTON—Vancouver, June 12. arrived during the strike. Owing to the difficulty we had to take Chinese to make up the complement.

Q. How many men had left the Empress ?—A. Probably about 20, I should say, on her returning here.

Q. Had their articles expired ?—A. Yes, the most of them, I think.
Q. Had they signed articles for another trip ?—A. No, for six months.
Q. Did they make any complaint about wages ?—A. Not at all.
Q. No ground given for leaving ?—A. I can only say I think it was sympathy with the trouble; that is to the best of my knowledge.
Q. Have any of them gone back ?—A. Quite a few.
Q. How long ago ?—A. Some time after the strike, quite a few offered their services.
Q. Were any taken back ?—A. Some men of good character.

By Mr. Rowe :

Q. I suppose there are quite a number leaving at every trip ?—A. Yes, it varies from 6 to 10, sometimes less.

By His Lordship :

Q. How many men had quit you this time ?—A. I should say about 20. There were about 25 of the European crew and about 5 remained on the ship.

By Mr. Bird :

Q. Did any of these men leave on the ground that they had been employed without it being stated to them that they were asked to take strikers’ places ?—A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. You mean that excuse was given by nobody ?—A. I didn’t hear it.
Q. Don’t you know that that was really the excuse ?—A. I don’t.
Q. Were these men never informed, as far as you were acquainted with the fact, that they were going to take strikers’ places ?—A. Not that I know of.
Q. Do you think it would be fair to inform them of this ?—A. Personally, I think the strike was known from one end of the road to the other, and that any man engaged to join would know.
Q. Was there not a strike on the ships ?—A. Yes, there was a strike, I believe, against the C.P.R.
Q. Don’t you think it was the company’s duty to tell these men that there was a strike on here ?—A. That would depend on the party engaging them.
Q. Don’t you think it would be a fair policy to pursue ?—A. Yes, I think it would be, and if so, to say between man and man, you are going to take the places of striking seamen, although I would not consider it necessary.
Q. Don’t you think the same principle as between man and man should apply as between company and man ?—A. Yes, I think it is the only way to get along amicably, but I would not consider it was necessary to tell these men, mind you.

WALTER HEPBURN, sworn.

By Mr. Bird :

Q. I understand you are the secretary of the Builders’ Exchange ?—A. No, not secretary.
Q. What is your official position ?—A. President.
Q. You are an employing contractor in Vancouver ?—A. Yes.

WALTER HEPBURN—Vancouver, June 13.
Q. You had a good deal to do with engineering the contractors' side of the old dispute with the carpenters?—A. Something, yes.

Q. Now, I am informed that you found, among other measures that it was necessary to take for your protection, that there was a combination between the Builders' Exchange and the Manufacturers' Association and the mill owners of Vancouver in regard to not supplying lumber to union men?—A. Well, it was not exactly in that way. Of course, when the strike occurred we organized the Lumbermen's Association to protect us in that way, and of course we did not wish to have any of the strikers employed, because we considered offers we had made were fair, therefore we did not want to see them employed. Of course, that was our object, to have the strike over, and therefore, we asked the Lumbermen's Association, of course, not to supply the lumber and they agreed to do so.

Q. But not to supply any one with lumber—was that not qualified with who was going to employ union labour?—A. Any one on strike.

Q. Supposing I wanted to buy lumber, what course would I have to adopt?—A. We did not hamper any one any more than we possibly could.

Q. A certain gentleman said he went down to the mills and was referred to the Builders' Exchange for a permit?—A. Yes, we would grant it to anyone who was not employing a striker.

Q. In other words, to enable me to get the material, I would have to make a statement that I was not going to employ union labour?—A. Yes, that is, on strike; not necessarily a union, any men who were on strike. They were union men, certainly.

By His Lordship:

Q. Was a list of these strikers filed with the association?—A. No, we had no list.

Q. How could you tell?—A. We simply asked. Those who applied for lumber simply had to say they were not employing any man on strike.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. Do you think that was a just measure to take?—A. Yes, I think it was.

His Lordship.—Why should the union men complain. This is just a taste of their own medicine:

Mr. Bird.—Individuals under the present system are ground down by their employers until they are forced into taking these tactics.

His Lordship.—But there is tyranny on both sides.

Mr. Bird.—The tyranny starts with the employers. They are on the upper millstone and the men on the nether.

His Lordship.—And the public in between. The public have been drawn between the millstones as it were.

Witness.—I don't think the contractors have been on top. The board of arbitration decided everything as to wages.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. And the wages asked were given on the basis that the increased cost of living rendered the former rate an unfair rate of wages?—A. I don't think that is the basis on which they decided at all.

Q. Have you a copy of the award?—A. Yes, I don't think it supposes that.

Q. Was that not the whole contention before the arbitrators, that the cost of living having been gradually augmented during the last few years the present wage was not adequate?—A. I don't think that was proved before the tribunal at all.

Q. Was it not attempted to be proved?—A. Yes, but I don't think it was proved. It was left with the third man. I think he concluded that the wages were not likely to continue long. I certainly think that the case for the cost of living fell through. The evidence of their own witnesses went to prove that.

WALTER HEPBURN—Vancouver, June 13.
Q. You have been an employer of union labour for a great many years?—A. Sometimes, yes.
Q. Does the union compel you to keep any man who does not suit you?—A. Not at all.
Q. If you want men you send up to the union hall and they send down men?—A. I think, with the exception of one time, I never sent to union hall. Each man has his method of getting men.
Q. Mr. Cook alleged that he was practically compelled by union principles to take what labour that was offered to him. Have you found that to be your experience?—A. It all depends on the supply of labour. This spring it has been a very difficult matter. We have been compelled to pay 40 cents an hour to men who were not worth 20.
Q. That might be owing to the congested labour market at any time, but a union principle, you are not bound to keep any man the union supplies you?—A. No.
Q. You have your right of choice the same as any other occupation?—A. Certainly.

Charles Thomas Hilton, sworn.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. You have heard all Mr. Cook said. Is it your practice and the recognized practice of the unions for you to call men off that are working for men who are deemed unfair?—A. When they are working for men who are deemed unfair it is, that is, if they are union men under my jurisdiction.
Q. You are a paid employee of the Building Trades Council?—A. Yes, sir.
Q. You are a carpenter by trade?—A. Yes, and I work for the Building Trades Council.
Q. What is the composition of such Council?—A. It is a delegate body, composed of delegates of ten different unions.
Q. This is your constitution?—A. Yes.
(Constitution put in.—Exhibit 78.)

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. What is the name of your office?—A. Business agent of the Building Trades Council.

By His Lordship:

Q. That is what is called walking delegate?—A. Yes, sometimes.
Q. It is stated by Mr. Woodward that this is a document purporting to be a circular of the labour men in Vancouver, was not authorized by the union men whose names are subscribed?—A. I think that is incorrect, Mr. Bird.
Q. You have personal knowledge of the fact?—A. The matter was referred to the different unions, and their delegates all voted in favour of this particular action.
Q. That is intended for circulation among labour men only?—A. Yes, simply for circulation at the different meetings.
Q. Was there any authority to post it up on telegraph poles or anything of that kind?—A. No. I must say whoever did that had little more shame than common sense.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. How many copies had you printed?—A. I think about 1,500 were printed.

Q. How many labour union men are in Vancouver?—A. Between 3,000 and 4,000.

Q. So that there would not be enough to go round with them?—A. No, of course there could be a sufficient supply obtained.

Q. Don’t all unions visit labour hall?—A. Not all. It would not reach all unions by circulation in union hall. I would like to state that Mr. Cook said on the stand that I had visited men on his jobs and called men off. I would like to state that we have never had any men under the jurisdiction of the Building Trades Council employed by Mr. Cook. The job we considered unfair, and outside of our jurisdiction; we did not interfere with it.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Do you consider it an unfair job by these men working under the National Union?—A. We do.

By His Lordship:

Q. Why?—A. During the strike of the bricklayers about three years ago, which was ordered by a two-thirds vote of the union, certain leading men of that union seemed, some of them officers of the union, after the strike had been in progress for a few days; they went to certain strikers and made terms for these, and went back to work without submitting the propositions to the men on strike. These men have continued in what is known as the local union until some time last winter, when, hearing of the National Trades Congress they applied to that body for a charter, which I believe they have obtained, and of course since they have been in possession of that charter they have been advocating their demands to wipe out the records of the past and to get a good standing as good union men again.

By Mr. Rowe:

Q. Are not two orders of carpenters represented in your union?—A. The United Carpenters and Joiners had its headquarters in Philadelphia formerly and now in Indianapolis, and the Amalgamated Society, which has its headquarters in London, has branches all over the world.

Q. Why is there not room for a third?—A. I might answer that question by asking another. Why is there not room for legal or medical associations?

Q. Because they are legally constituted bodies, and it is supposed to be in the public interest that they should have such powers as they possess.

By His Lordship:

Q. As a matter of fact there are different legal and medical societies in the city?—A. Falling under one set. There are the boards of trade, for instance.

By Mr. Bird:

Q. They are all attempts to control an industry?—A. Yes.

Q. Have you any examination by which men seeking to become members of your union shall be subject to?—A. A stranger coming in has a certain length of time to work and he has to be vouched for by two members in good standing before he can obtain admission. Both the Amalgamated and the other.

Q. Does the Trades and Labour Council enforce any conditions of that kind?—A. Oh no. It is simply a delegate body.

Q. Are you referring to the Building Trades Council and Trades and Labour Council?—A. Whatever body is concerned under the circumstances.

Mr. Bird.—I would like to have gone into and explained the position of the Trades and Labour Council with respect to this unfair list.

His Lordship.—What it seems to me, Mr. Bird, is that it is a weapon of warfare, which the union men cannot object to having on the other side. What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and this idea about the British Columbia Milling Association coming to an understanding that strikers could not be employed, that is exactly the converse of the strikers who want to boycott the employers. 'If one method is illegal, then the other ought to be.

Mr. Bird.—I wanted to show that the same methods were adopted by—

His Lordship.—Both sides to the struggle. In fact it is a necessary thing arising out of the situation. It is war. The sword is a two-edged one.

Mr. Bird.—I have some copies of documents which have been handed to me to bring before the Commissioners in connection with the strike of factory employees here. They have been employed ten hours and are asking for nine hours, and I have been asked to put these before you. There is a notice here to employees stating that all employees who decide not to continue work after the 1st June, for 10 hours per day, are requested to remove their tools on Saturday and apply for their time. The demand for nine hours is a reasonable demand; it has been recognized in every trade, and this is the only case in which they stand out. The employers have considerable unskilled labour and Japanese, and feel that they are strong by reason to stand out against organized labour for what they consider their rights, and by reason of a demand which is unreasonable on the face of it. And they have received that notice, if they don't like it they can take their tools and go.

His Lordship.—If it is represented to the Commission that there is any further evidence of a nature that really ought to be brought before the Commission we will hold another sitting here.

Mr. Bird.—I have been asked to bring this matter before the Commissioners, and it is with a view to that that I have presented this. I think if this were ventilated it might result in a recognition of conditions that might probably be remedied.

His Lordship.—I think the Commissioners are satisfied that the great body of public opinion is with the right of men to combine. The only question is as to the limitations of that right, and how far the methods of warfare are admissible. Our cardinal duty in connection with this Commission was simply to inquire into these strikes and report to the government, and not to go into other troubles. We could, perhaps, sit for a longer period and probably not unprofitably, but we have been requested by the government to report by the end of June. It would be impossible for us to say definitely whether they would extend the time, and there are now several hundreds of pages of evidence to be transcribed. There will be notice given if we do not sit.
EXHIBIT 1.

Statement of the Wellington Colliery Company, Limited.

As a preliminary statement, and reserving to themselves the right to amend or add to it from time to time, the company desire to lay the following matters before the Commissioners:

1. The present difficulty has not arisen from a dispute between the company and its employees respecting the amount of wages paid to, or the quantity or kind of work required from, its employees. All questions of that nature have heretofore been amicably adjusted between the company and its employees without the intervention of any outside authority.

The employees are now insisting on their right to affiliate with a foreign union, commonly known as the Western Federation. They have also demanded that the company should recognize and treat from time to time with the said union.

The company, without pronouncing any opinion on the right of the men to associate themselves with the Western Federation, have declined to recognize that body in the management of the company's property here.

The reasons which have induced the company to take this stand are, among others, the following:

(1.) The society is a foreign association. Its headquarters are situate, and its executive meet in places outside the territorial limits of Canada.

(2.) The business of the Federation is so conducted that the men who come under its control may therefore be ordered on strike, although no grievance arises in the course of their own employment. They may be willing to work, yet they can be compelled to leave their employment in order to further the interests of the organization in some particular matter which is being agitated in a foreign country, and with which the owners of mines in Canada have no control whatever.

(3.) If the company recognize the Federation, they cannot consistently object if a strike is ordered according to the constitution, yet, for the reasons above stated, the company would, in such a case, place its undertaking in jeopardy in respect of matters with which it has no concern, and over which it can exercise no control.

(4.) An organization such as the Western Federation, if recognized here, may be used to close the mines in this country, not for the benefit of the men employed, but in order to increase the business or raise the price of coal produced by operators in the United States.

(5.) It is difficult to avoid differences leading to strikes in any trade or undertaking. It is admitted that strikes are disastrous from a commercial point of view, and therefore, on the broad ground of the general welfare and prosperity of the country, the company consider it unpatriotic to accentuate the evil caused by labour disputes by recognizing the right of a foreign authority to assume the position of a dictator in the industrial affairs of British Columbia.

Dated at Ladysmith, the 6th day of May, A.D. 1903.

(Sgd.) E. V. BODWELL,
(Sgd.) A. F. LUXTON,

Counsel for the Wellington Colliery Company, Limited.
EXHIBIT 2.

(Copy.)
Memorandum of grounds primarily responsible for the present trouble at Ladysmith.

LADYSMITH, B.C., May 6, 1903.

1. The mine owner's refusal to employ men affiliated with the Western Federation of Miners.
2. The mine owner's refusal to employ men connected with any union.
3. General hostility to any form of labour organization.
4. The mine owner insisting upon all his workmen residing at Ladysmith as a condition of employment.

(Sgd.) CHARLES WILSON,
Counsel for Local Union No. 181, affiliated with the Western Federation of Miners.

EXHIBIT 3.

Statement by Ladysmith Miners re Strike.

Whereas the Chief Justice and Members of the Commission to investigate the cause of the labour troubles in British Columbia, have suggested that pending the inquiry report by the Commission, the mines should be reopened and the men return to work.

And whereas this local union has taken that matter into its consideration and has arrived at the following conclusions:

That past experience has taught us beyond the shadow of a doubt, that if we at this time comply with the suggestions of his Lordship and the Commission we feel we would be at the mercy of our employer and that to now abandon our affiliation with the Western Federation of Miners, would be to lose its sympathy and active support and thereby destroy all unity among the workers. That, without the support of an union or organization there in sympathy with it, the men would now, as in the past, be discharged or in some manner forced to quit work. That no men would dare to move in the direction of organization for fear of discharge. Therefore, this union respectfully declines to abandon its affiliation with the W. F. M.

EXHIBIT 4.

Copy of Minutes of Ladysmith miners meeting.

LADYSMITH, B.C., March 8, 1903.

Mass meeting of the miners of Extension mines called to order. Mr. James Pritchard was voted chairman of the meeting. After numerous nominations for the secretary, Mr. S. Mottishaw, sr., accepted the position. The Chairman then explained the business of the meeting was, as far as he knew, to ask for an advance of 15 per cent, which was left for the meeting to decide on motion. However, it was decided to waive the demand of 15 per cent and to organize in the Western Federation of Miners. An amendment was made that a secret ballot be taken, which was seconded and was carried; finally the amendment was included in the motion. After much discussion it was decided to withdraw the motion and declare by a show of hands, which was done. The vote being unanimous, a motion was then made and carried that the secretary notify Mr. Baker, the organizer of the Western Federation of Miners, as quickly as possible, to establish a branch of that organization at Ladysmith. A motion was passed that we stand by any miner that may be discharged through taking steps to join the Western Federation of Miners.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

It was then deemed advisable to take up a collection to defray the cost of rent of the Finn hall, which was done; the receipts therefrom being $11.85.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Rent of hall</td>
<td>$3.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Telegram</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nanaimo return fare</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stamps and stationery</td>
<td>25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total expenses</td>
<td>$4.60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Balance</td>
<td>$7.25</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

A resolution was passed that the names be taken of those wishing to join the W.F.M., which was done with a satisfactory result.

SAMUEL MOTTISHAW,

Secretary pro tem.

LADYSMITH, B.C., March 12, 1903.

A mass meeting of Extension miners and mine labourers was held in the Pavilion, at 10 a.m.

Mr. James Pritchard voted to the Chair.

Meeting called to order, minutes of previous meeting read and adopted as read, the Chairman then asked if any one had any statement to make. A question was then asked if any men had been discharged owing to having taken part in Sunday’s meeting (March 8). On it becoming known to the meeting that Jas. Pritchard, S. Mottishaw, sr., S. K. Mottishaw, jr., and Robert Bell had been discharged, it was moved and seconded that we reaffirm our allegiance to motion passed on March 8 (i.e.) to stand by any man who may be discharged owing to having taken part in that meeting.—Carried.

Moved and seconded that the secretary be instructed to write Mr. Dunsmuir with regard to reinstating men discharged.

Amendment. That a committee be appointed to interview Mr. Dunsmuir in regard to reinstating men discharged.

Amendment to the amendment. Moved and seconded, that we stay as we are until Mr. Baker arrives and organizes us as a branch of the Western Federation of Miners before we approach the company with regards to reinstating men that were discharged.—Carried.

The meeting then adjourned until the arrival of Mr. Baker, organizer of the W.F.M.

LADYSMITH, B.C., March 14, 1903.

Mass meeting of the miners and mine labourers of Extension mines. Meeting called to order by the Chairman. Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted. Moved and seconded that the communication from Mr. Baker be received and filed.—Carried. Moved and seconded that this meeting adjourn until the arrival of Mr. Baker, the organizer of the W.F. of Miners.—Carried.

S. MOTTISHAW,

Secretary.
EXHIBIT 5.

Copy of agreement between Canadian Pacific Navigation Company and B. C. Steamshipmen's Society.

B.C. Steamshipmen's Society,
Federal Union No. 6, Trades and Labour Congress,
Vancouver, B.C., March 14, 1903.

(For Publication.)

An agreement has been made between Captain Troup of the Canadian Pacific Navigation Co. and the B.C. Steamshipmen's Society as follows:—"It is agreed that the C.P.N. Co. are not to carry any scab freight or baggage on any boats in the fleet of the aforesaid company, or to carry coal for use on the Empress line of steamers, known as the C.P.Ry. R.M. Steamships at Vancouver.' Should the company desire to break this agreement, 12 hours notice to the men is to be given by the company, and during which time no scab freight or baggage will be handled. This is to be in force during the continuance of the strike.

A. B. BULLEY, Chairman Victoria Division, B.C. S.S.

EXHIBIT 6.

Typewritten copy of simplified initiation ritual of British Columbia Steamshipmen's Society, of Vancouver and Victoria, B.C.

EXHIBIT 7.

Copies of telegrams (7 in number) sent or received by the Western Union Telegraph Company at Victoria, during March, 1903.

EXHIBIT 8.

Copy of Circular issued by President Estes, of U.B.R.E.

Notice! To all Union Men. The United Brotherhood of Railways Employees, International Longshoremens' Union No. 211, British Columbia Steamship Society and Teamsters' Union, of Vancouver, B.C., are involved in a strike with the C. P. Ry. Co. The United Brotherhood has ordered out the members of that organization at Vancouver, Revelstoke, Calgary, Kootenay, Rossland, Winnipeg and Fort William.

This strike was due to the C. P. Ry. Co. trying to destroy unionism on its lines.

The three above named organizations have struck in order to assist the United Brotherhood.

The Western Federation of Miners will be asked to stop the mining of coal on Vancouver Island, in order to deprive the C.P.R. of fuel, and they will strike within the next few days.

If you are a Union Man, or if you are friendly to unionism, stay away from British Columbia, and ask your friends to do likewise, as this is a fight to a finish, and the C. P. Ry. must give in or the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees with the assistance of the other organizations will carry on the battle indefinitely.

We ask the aid and co-operation of all unions in helping us to make this struggle a success, and in the end the victory must be ours.

GEORGE ESTES, President, U.B.R.E.

P.O. Drawer 675.

CANADIAN PACIFIC NAVIGATION COMPANY, LIMITED,
VICTORIA, February 3rd, 1903.

Captain Troup,
Manager C. P. N. Co.

Dear Sir,—This morning at a ¼ before 2, the delegate of the Firemen's Union came on board and called for me, and he told me that their was a man on board, that owed $5.50 to the union, and he would not pay it, and that he would have to go ashore, as the rest of the men would not go out with him. I sent for the engineer and I asked the delegate to give us 24 hours notice, he said it was against the rules of the union. I then sent the mate down to see what the deck hands were going to do in the matter. He came back and told me they would all leave if that man was not discharged. I told the engineer that he must let him go which he did and the delegate had a fireman ready to put in his place, and we got away at 2.15, and arrived at Vancouver at 8 o'clock. The train was on time to-day.

From your obedient servant,

GEORGE RUDLIN, A.S.

P.O. Drawer 675.

CANADIAN PACIFIC NAVIGATION COMPANY, LIMITED,
VICTORIA, B.C., February 5, 1903.

Captain Troup,
Manager C. P. N. Co.

Dear Sir,—Your favor of the 4th at hand and I send you Mr. Shaw's report regarding to the firemen's trouble and it looks to me a shame that the company should suffer on account of these unions, if we have a good man, and he does not belong to the union, it looks as if we would not be able to keep him. One of my paint scrubbers who is a good man, told me he would have to join the union against his wish, if not he would not be able to sail with the union men.

I remain your obedient servant,

GEORGE RUDLIN, A.S.

P.O. Drawer 675.

CANADIAN PACIFIC NAVIGATION COMPANY, LIMITED,
VICTORIA, B.C., February 5, 1903.

Capt. Rudlin.

Dear Sir,—In reference to the trouble with the Seamen's Union I beg to state that the fireman discharged on demand of the union had always given satisfaction here and that the man sent on board here by the union to take his place did not give satisfaction and was discharged next day—another union man taking his place. This latter was unable to keep steam up and another change will have to be made. I can apparently only take men belonging to the Union and if they are able to do their work properly, good and well, but if we cannot get good men in the union it will be necessary to take outsiders.

Your obedient servant,

JOHN SHAW.
EXHIBIT 9.

Memorandum re opening of mines at Extension.

Started to work No. 1 slope, November, 1895.
Started to work No. 2 slope, January, 1896.
Started to work at Main tunnel, January, 1898.
Started to build wharfs at Ladysmith, September, 1898.
Purchased land for townsite at Ladysmith, April, 1896.
Cost of $6,340.
Started to ship coal from Extension, September, 1899, about 200 men working.

---

EXHIBIT 9a.

Wage statement, Wellington mine—Total of pay sheets.

1902.
April ........................................... $73,549 85
May ........................................... 76,710 44
June ........................................... 65,116 52
July ........................................... 65,440 24
August ........................................ 71,723 21
September .................................. 64,172 50
October ...................................... 69,695 45
November .................................... 68,287 78
December .................................... 65,622 48

1903.
January ....................................... 71,527 32
February ..................................... 65,000 63

---

EXHIBIT 9b.

Agreement of Vancouver Coal Company with employees.

Memorandum of agreement entered into between the New Vancouver Coal Mining and Land Company, Limited, and the Miners and Mine Labourers' Protective Association of Vancouver Island, this 24th day of July, 1891.

1st. The company agrees to employ miners and mine labourers only who are already members of the Miners and Mine Labourers' Protective Association, or who, within a reasonable period after employment, become members of the association.

2nd. The company agrees to dismiss no employee who is a member of the association without reasonable cause.

3rd. The association agree that under no consideration will they stop work by strike without exhausting all other means of conciliation available.

4th. The association agree that they will not interfere with the company in employing or discharging employees.

5th. The association shall comprise all men employed underground, excepting officials and engine drivers, and above ground all day labourers, not officials, engine drivers or mechanics.

6th. This agreement can be terminated by 30 days' notice on either side.
EXHIBIT 10.

Proposed Agreement entered into between the Western Fuel Company and Nanaimo Miners’ Union No. 177, Western Federation of Miners.

1. The company agree to employ miners and mine labourers only who are already members of the Miners’ Union No. 177, W.F.M., or who within a reasonable period become members of the same.

2. The company agree to dismiss no employee who is a member of the union without a reasonable cause.

3. The union agree that under no consideration will they stop work by strike without exhausting all other means of conciliation available. Neither to demand an advance of prices, or change of other recognized conditions, by striking, without first giving a notice of thirty days to the company.

And the company agree to give thirty days’ notice before demanding a reduction of prices, or change of other recognized existing conditions.

4. The union agree that they will not interfere with the company in employing or discharging men without some reasonable cause.

5. The union shall comprise all men employed in and around the mines excepting officials only.

6. The company agree that in all deficient work, made deficient by following causes, low coal, bodies of rock, or dirt, whether measurable or not, or for any other such cause, to pay not less than three dollars per day per man, so long as such deficiency exists.

7. The company agree to pay for stringers in the pillar and solid work alike.

8. The company agree to allow pay for the removal of timbers, placing of timbers, or removal of rock in the breaking away of new places. Such pay to be agreed upon by the pit boss and the men affected, and if unable to agree, then the management and the executive committee of the union.

9. The company agree to allow some consideration of pay for dirt in contract places, and where the digger is by such cause hindered making what he otherwise could make, or an average wage under average conditions.

Handed to Mr. Russell by the committee at meeting, Friday, 27th February, 1903.
EXHIBIT 11.

Proposition from Mr. Dunsmuir to Miners re Settlement.

It is hereby mutually agreed by and between the 'Wellington Colliery Company, Limited,' (hereinafter referred to as the 'Company,' and (hereinafter referred to as the 'Miner') in consideration of the promise and agreement by the other of them herein contained, as follows:

1. The miner agrees to work continuously and exclusively for the company as a coal miner in their coal mines at or near Extension, British Columbia, for the period of years from the day of the date hereof in a workmanlike and proper manner for the remuneration and upon the terms of this agreement. (Provided that the company shall not be bound to find work for the said miner in case of fire, explosion or trouble in the said mine, or lack of market.)

2. The wages or remuneration to be paid by the company to the miner for the said work shall be three dollars per day for eight hours working day, to be paid weekly.

3. The company shall supply the miner with a helper, and with all things necessary for his working, except miners' machines.

EXHIBIT 11A.

It is hereby mutually agreed by and between the 'Wellington Colliery Company, Limited,' (hereinafter referred to as the 'Company'), and (hereinafter referred to as the 'miner'), in consideration of the promise and agreement by the other of them herein contained, as follows:

1. The miner agrees to work continuously and exclusively for the company as a coal miner in their coal mines at or near Extension, for the period of years from the day of the date hereof, in a workmanlike and proper manner and in accordance with the usual practice in the mine, for the remuneration and upon the terms of this agreement. (Provided that the company shall not be bound to find work for the said miner in case of fire, explosion or trouble in the said mine, or lack of market.)

2. The wages or remuneration to be paid by the company to the miner for said work shall be seventy-five cents for each and twenty-five hundredweight of coal mined and loaded in miners' boxes by the miner in the said mines. Provided that in all deficient places the price to be paid by the company to the miner for yardage shall be such as shall be agreed upon by the company's manager, the overman, and the miner, and provided also that the price to be paid by the company to the miner for narrow work, and for taking out pillar coal shall be such as shall be agreed upon between the said manager, overman and miner.

The said wages or remuneration to be paid monthly.

3. The miner shall employ in his said work at least one helper, and in case of taking out pillar coal, such further number of helpers as will enable him to take the same out as speedily as possible.

The company shall supply to the miner if and for so long as he performs the agreement on his part herein contained, one ton of coal per month for his own domestic consumption at the price of two dollars per ton at the bunker.
EXHIBIT 12.

Statement of vote on affiliation with W.F.M.

Ballot taken in Union Hall or 'Free Press' Hall, November 1, 1902.

For affiliation ........................................ 128
Against ................................................. 59
Total votes cast ........................................ 187

T. J. SHENTON, Secretary.
WILLIAM NEAVE.

Notice was given of two weeks duration. Said notice was posted at mine head.

EXHIBIT 13.

Statement of Cumberland Miners re Cause of Strike.

CUMBERLAND, B.C., March 27, 1903.

Secretary of the Royal Commission.

DEAR Sir,—I beg to submit the following reasons why we went out on strike. I now send you a copy of the resolution passed by a mass-meeting held on May 2.

Resolution.—Whereas we formed a branch of the W. F. of Miners on Sunday April 5, 1903, named the Cumberland Miners' Union, No 156 of the W. F. of Miners, and whereas since organizing some of our officers and most active members have one after another been denied the privilege to work in the mines of the Wellington C. Co., Cumberland. Therefore be it resolved that we the officers and members of the C.M. Union No. 156 of the W.F. of Miners in mass-meeting assembled do declare to proceed at once to take a ballot on whether or not we stop work until such times as the officials and members who have been discriminated against by the Wellington C. Co., are reinstated in their proper order with full recognition of the W.F. of Miners.

I may say, as you are probably aware, that the result of the ballot was almost unanimous, there only being 12 dissentient votes.

I have the honour to be,
Your obedient servant,
GEORGE M. RICHARDS,
Sec'y. C.M. Union.

EXHIBIT 14.

Copy of telegram from President of Western Federation of Miners to J. J. Baker.

Check 28
To J. J. Baker,
Nanaimo.

We approve of calling out any or all men necessary to win at Ladysmith. Organize Japanese and Chinamen, if possible.

CHAS. MOYER,
President, W.F.M.

W. D. HAYWOOD,
Secretary Treas.

36a—48
EXHIBIT 15.

Western Federation of Mines.

Letters to Cumberland Union from various parties.

NANAIMO, B. C., May 11, 1903.

To the Executive Boards of the Miners' Unions at Ladysmith, Nanaimo and Cumberland.

Dear Sirs and Brothers,—Owing to the fact that the vast amount of business I have in hand at the present time, in connection with our organization makes it necessary for me to absent myself from this locality for the present, it is with feelings of regret that I find this step necessary, but in doing so I feel that you will understand that you will not be deserted or neglected by our organization, and that either I or some one representing the organization will be with you in the near future. While regret to absent myself from here in the present emergency, yet I feel that our case is in good hands here, as I have the utmost confidence in the integrity, honesty of purpose, and ability to cope with the present difficulties, of our members on Vancouver Island, and in leaving you at this time I beg to offer the following counsel:—

I recommend that the Executive boards of the three unions as speedily as possible, form a co-operative arrangement so that you may be as closely in touch with each other as possible, and you will then at all times be in a better position to cope with the difficulties that confront us here, arrange some system that will enable you to speedily communicate with each other at all times, this, to my mind, is very necessary as we cannot afford to throw away any chance that will have a tendency to assist us in this struggle. This is a common cause amongst us and let us each say to himself this fight is mine and I am going to do all in my power to win it. The above recommendation is, in my opinion, the proper step at this time as it will enable us to better get the true benefits of our unity and co-operation. Above all things avoid jealousy and everything that savours of internal discord.

I am sending this letter to each of the three unions above mentioned and trust the same will meet with your approval.

Until you hear from me again, any communication will reach me at 625 Mining Exchange Building, Denver, Colorado.

Yours fraternally,

J. A. BAKER,
Member Executive Board, W.F.M.

EXHIBIT 15b.

ON BOARD STEAMER, May 12, 1903.

Mr. George M. Richards,
Secretary, Miners' Union,
Cumberland, B.C.

Dear Sir and Brother,—It was fully my intention to again visit Cumberland before going east, but owing to the fact of that Royal Commission sitting at Ladysmith, I felt that I did not dare neglect that, for the following reasons: While I have not the slightest hope that they will do us any good, and from what I could see of them I am of the opinion that such was not their intention from the beginning. But there is one point they are after 'public opinion,' and they are going to advertise the situation to the public, and for that reason I felt it to be my duty to see that we were not placed in a false light. I found the conditions to be this, that instead of this being a thorough and complete investigation into difficulties (past and present), that the fact was, the Western Federation was on trial for their right to exist. They had me on the stand six and a half hours altogether, and I don't think they scored a point; and one result of their work has been to unite the men of Ladysmith more firmly together than ever, for the reason that the true position we are in and how we are regarded by the powers that be was disclosed to them more plainly than they had ever seen it before. They informed me it was their intention to visit Cumberland; so, in my opinion, you had best be prepared to meet the issue, as they have power to summon witnesses and force testimony the same as any court.

I would have went up there after I got through if I had any time at my disposal at all, but I am expected to be in Denver on the 15th to meet with the Ex. Board, and I have to go home to get some statistics for my report, then I have to go to Fernie and investigate their late adjustment, and then go to Frank and see how those people are situated after that disaster and what may be necessary for us to do for them; so you can see how I am situated, and I have more important work to bring before the board and the convention I think than any other member of the board. It was owing to the circumstances above mentioned that I did not go to Cumberland as I wired you I would do, but got Bro. Shenton to go instead. I considered this necessary, for the reason that all those men were too new in the organization to be well enough posted to defend it against the bombardment they were preparing for us. I trust your union will appreciate the circumstances under which I was placed, and realize that there was no desire on my part to neglect you, and as soon as it is possible to get back from this work either I or some representative of the organization will be with you. In the meantime do not, if possible to prevent it, allow anything to bring discord into your ranks. The cases of necessity will have to be attended to. In order to do this, I request that without delay you elect or appoint a relief committee to look into the condition and necessities of our members with the view of relieving their necessities, and at the same time protect the organization from any imposition. Another necessary provision will be for your treasurer (or if not convenient for him, then some person to act as treasurer in this present emergency) to file a proper bond with the Ex. Board of the W.F.M., in compliance with sec. 1, art. 1, of the by-laws. Your executive can attend to getting this bond arranged, and I think it will be satisfactory to us.

Also write the Sec'y of the W.F.M. at Denver and give him full and complete details of your situation, when you need assistance, and your estimated amounts, &c. Don't neglect any of those details and thereby endanger the situation by allowing your members to acquire the fear that they are not going to get all the necessary support that the organization can extend to them, and thereby cause a division in the ranks. In my opinion, we have simply got to win this fight, and I don't want to see any stone left unturned to accomplish that end. I have recommended a unity of action between the three unions on the Island, and feel sure this step is advisable, yet I don't want to take the position of a dictator, but feel convinced you will agree with me in this matter.

With best wishes to yourself and the members of your Union,

I remain, yours fraternally,

J. A. BAKER.

Address me at 625 Mining Exchange Building, Denver, Colorado.
EXHIBIT 15c.

WESTERN FEDERATION OF MINERS.
DENVER, COLORADO, MAY 13, 1903.

Mr. George M. Richards,
Secretary Miners' Union No. 156, W.F.M.,
Cumberland, B.C.,

Dear Sir and Brother,—Your letter of May 7, with money orders for $180 in payment of per capita stamps is received. Enclosed, please find receipt. I am sending the stamps to you by registered mail to-day.

I have been advised by executive board member Baker that the members of Cumberland No. 156 were on strike. I am satisfied that you will have almost insurmountable obstacles to confront, but the right of men to organize for mutual interest and protection cannot be denied. I am glad to learn that you intend to protect yourselves where capitalistic tyranny prevails in that locality.

The action that you have taken in reference to engineers and mechanics is good, and the best that you could do under the circumstances, but in our opinion every pressure should be brought to bear to bring into the miners' union every man who is employed in and around the mine in whatever capacity. This is as provided for in section 1, article 1, of our constitution, and we find it is decidedly better to have all men in the organization than to be called upon to lay matters before them in some other union.

I note that you state there are some needy ones that will require assistance soon, and in reply to this, will say, that I telegraphed to brother Baker requesting him to reply to me what funds would be required at Ladysmith and Cumberland. I have just received a lengthy communication from brother Baker, a partial report of the Royal Commission. It seems that the Western Federation of Miners is on trial in Canada, but we have no fear of the results, as our loyal members will keep the banner of their unions flying wherever they have been established.

I would ask that you keep us acquainted with the situation and advise us of any new developments. Say to your members, one and all, they have the earnest and hearty support of the executive officers of the Western Federation of Miners, and we will aid you in every way possible to bring the controversy on the Island to a speedy and successful termination. With best wishes to you all, I remain,

Yours fraternally,

W. M. D. Haywood,
Secretary-Treasurer.

EXHIBIT 15d.

WESTERN FEDERATION OF MINERS.
DENVER, COLORADO, APRIL 14, 1903.

Mr. George W. Richards,
Secretary Miners' Union No. 156, W.F.M.,
Cumberland, B.C.,

Dear Sir and Brother,—I am just in receipt of a letter from brother J. A. Baker, with money order for $42.50 and application for charter for Cumberland Miners' Union. Enclosed, please find receipt for the amount. I am sending you 100 application blanks, 100 withdrawal cards, and one warrant book, by mail to-day, the other supplies having been given you by brother Baker, with the exception of stamps. These are the same as the payment of per capita tax and are at the same rate.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36

six for $1, remittance to accompany order. It is well in buying stamps to purchase a sufficient amount to supply your members for one quarter, also any new ones coming in. If you run short, however, they can be purchased at any time. I will send your charter as soon as I can have it engrossed and am ordering the seal made this afternoon. I am also sending a few samples of the Miner's Magazine, the official organ of the Western Federation of Miners, which contains the directory of all local unions affiliated with us.

Do not be backward about writing me for any supplies or information that we can furnish, as your letters will always be answered promptly, and with pleasure.

Wishing you the best of success, I remain,

Yours fraternally,

WM. D. HAYWOOD,
Secretary-Treasurer.

EXHIBIT 15e.

ENTERPRISE MINERS' UNION, No. 181, W.F.M.,
LADYSMITH, April 13, 1903.

GEORGE M. RICHARDS,
Secretary Cumberland Union.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am instructed by the members of Enterprise Miners' Union to convey to you and your union our hearty congratulations on your entry into the W. F. M. as an organized body of men. We feel you have strengthened our hands considerably by your doing so. I am sending you a copy of the 'Miner's Magazine,' at the request of Mr. Baker. Wishing you and your union the greatest success and prosperity,

I remain, yours fraternally,

SAMUEL K. MOTTISHAW,
Secretary Enterprise Miners' Union, 181.

P. O. Box 295.

EXHIBIT 15f.

TEXADA MINERS' UNION, No. 113, W.F.M.,
VAN ANDA, B.C., April 15, 1903.

MR. GEO. M. RICHARDS,
Secretary, Miners' Union,
Cumberland.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—On behalf of the Texada Miners' Union, No. 113, I take pleasure in forwarding congratulations. It takes courage to organize in face of such stern opposition as you have to deal with. May your union prosper and may we all, working together, bring about conditions soon that will overthrow the power of capitalistic anarchists of the Baer, McNeill and Dunsmuir type.

Bro. J. A. Baker has asked me to send a copy of our local constitution and by-laws, which I send with this mail.

With best wishes,

I am, your fraternally,

JOHN P. LAWSON,
Secretary Texada Union.
EXHIBIT 15g.

Nanaimo Miners' Union, No. 177, W.F.M.
Nanaimo, B.C., April 20, 1903.

Recording Secretary,
Cumberland Miners' Union, W.F.M.

Dear Sir,—A committee from Ladysmith Union attended our meeting of the 18th inst. From the statement of affairs detailed by the committee as existing in Ladysmith, it is evident that some method will have to be adopted to relieve any cases of pressing want. This, we might assume, is the function of the executive board of Western Federation. Owing to the fact that full board will have to meet in Denver one month from now, the Federation is seeking to avoid the expense of calling executive board together before that date. The Federation can only order levy after authority has been received from the executive board. If we could assume responsibility of the situation until that time, any levy ordered for some trouble later will not apply to us.

We are calling a meeting for next Saturday afternoon to go into the whole matter, and it was the opinion of the meeting that we endeavour to get one or more representatives of your union to attend, so that united action could be taken by Nanaimo and Cumberland. If you find it at all possible, please send some one or more down.

I am, yours fraternally,

Parker Williams,
Recording Secretary, Nanaimo Miners' Union, 177, W.F.M.

EXHIBIT 15h.

Nanaimo Miners' Union, No. 177, W.F.M.,
Nanaimo, B.C., May 16, 1903.

Geo. M. Richards,
Secretary, Cumberland Miners' Union,

Dear Sir and Brother,—Your letter and remitted postal order of the 12th inst. to hand, and in reply I desire to say that I am pleased to realize that the brethren at Cumberland are making so valiant a stand. As to ourselves at Nanaimo, well things are in fairly good shape, except the serious accident of a brother killed by the explosion of some dynamite and the burning of three others. Ladysmith brethren are all right as far as I know, and intend to see the fight through to a finish if the necessary support is given by the Federation. The Ladysmith brethren are doing all in their power to give the most effective evidence to the Commissioners, and, as stated by myself when at Cumberland, the fight before that Commission is waged in an attempt by Mr. Bodwell to bring into disrepute the W. F. M. I gave a full and encouraging report of matters with you and he was very pleased, and to me he stated that he was more than pleased that he had decided to attend that Commission, for the fight, as stated, was the W.F.M. versus the employers. He also stated that if proper recommendation was made by the unions here to the executive of the W.F.M. for assistance in the charges of employing counsel, that they would help. Our delegate was instructed to bring this matter to the attention of the executive at Denver and ask for aid. I am inclosing a copy of Act re Chinese and referring to our co-operation as executives, the thought is a good one. I take it to mean that in all matters relating to the general good of all three locals, we must keep each other posted and that whenever necessary for the three boards to deal with any matter conjointly that we should arrange a time and meet to deal with any such matter, and I can assure you that so far as Nanaimo is concerned, this will be strictly followed. If you are sending a delegate to the convention, please ask him to aid the delegate of Ladysmith and Nanaimo to make the petition effective for getting assistance for counsel on Commission. Yours truly.

T. J. Shenton,
Secretary.
ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

EXHIBIT 16.

File of telegrams, thirteen in number, having reference to strike, sent by officers of Cumberland Union from or received at Cumberland telegraph office during the months of April and May, 1903.

EXHIBIT 17.

Abstract of Wages paid at Cumberland.

EXHIBIT 17a.

WAGES—No. 4 SLOPE, MARCH, 1903.

1. Kirkwood & Crozette........... $ 3 55
2. Harwood & Ripley.............. 3 72
3. Horbury & Son............... 4 05
4. Johnson & Vass.............. 3 24
5. Tobacco Bros................ 3 45
6. Potter & Francolin........... 3 20
7. Bardisone Bros.............. 4 42
8. Reese & Stevens............ 4 70
9. Gibson Bros................ 4 10
10. Roy & Harbury.............. 4 80
11. Tobacco & Tanner........... 3 25
12. Hennessey & Edmondson.... 4 55
13. Anderson & Walker......... 5 72
14. Bennie & Son.............. 4 40
15. Harwood & Nicholson....... 6 48
16. White & Gray.............. 4 40
17. Robertson & Whyte........ 4 55
18. Pearse & Collishaw....... 4 97
19. Fairbrow & Whitefield.... 3 37
20. Coe & Son................. 5 00
21. Pollock & McNeil (19-year boy)........... 2 60
22. Gillis & McNiven......... 3 95
23. Bona & Bertholdi....... 2 88
24. Ducca & Perroni......... 2 65
25. Farmer & Son............. 3 70
26. McStephen & Co........... 3 25
27. Balagone & Lippatt........ 3 78
28. Stant & Son.............. 3 78
29. Issaur & Mackle......... 4 34

Average wages per man each day for about 7½ hours’ work, $4.13.

No. 4 SLOPE, APRIL, 1903.

1. Kirkwood & Crozette........... $ 3 65
2. Harwood & Ripley.............. 2 97
3. Horbury & Son............... 4 02
4. Johnson & Vass.............. 3 07
5. Tobacco Bros................ 2 92
6. Potter & Francolla........... 3 10
7. Bardisone Bros.............. 4 30
8. Reese & Stevens............ 4 65
9. Monnaco & Gibson............ 3 35
10. Godfrey & Edwards........... 3 92
11. Tobacco & Tanner........... 3 18
12. Hennessey & Edmondson..... 3 18
13. Anderson & Walker......... 4 12
14. Bennie & Son.............. 3 95

15. Harwood & Nicholson....... 3 70
16. White & Gray.............. 3 83
17. Robertson & Bickle........ 3 60
18. Pearse & Baird (Baird only)........... 5 13
19. Fairbrow & Lawrence...... 4 45
20. Coe & Son................. 4 10
21. Pollock & McNeil........... 3 59
22. Bona & Bertholdi........... 3 90
23. Ducca & Perroni........... 3 20
24. Farmer & Son.............. 3 65
25. McStephen & McNamara...... 3 05
26. Balagone & Lippatt......... 3 68
27. Stant & Son................ 3 85
28. Issaur & Mackle........... 3 90
29. Bauer & Mackle............ 3 90
EXHIBIT 17b.

SUMMARY OF WAGES.

Fire bosses, $3.25 per day, 8 hours shift.
Shot lighters, $3.25 per day, 8 hours shift.
Timbering, $3 per day, 8 hours shift.
Engine drivers, $3.30 per day, 9 hours shift.
Hoisting engineers, $4 per day, 12 hours shift.
Drivers, $3.50 per day, 8 hours shift.
Machinists, $3.50 to $3 per day, 9 hours shift.
Carpenters, $3.50 to $3 per day, 9 hours shift.
Blacksmiths, $5 per day, 9 hours shift.
All white men are paid from $2.50 to $4 per day for labour from 8 to 12 hours.
Chinese and Japanese receive for work of 8 hours from $1.25 to $1.50 per day.
Chinese and Japanese miners receive same price per ton as white miners, viz., 75c., and no discrimination is made.

APRIL, 1903.

4. Webber & Co. ........ 4 05 37. Berghlund & Co. .... 3 40
12. Berghlund & Co. ...... 3 70 40. Freeburn & Co........ 2 95
23. Reinald & Co. ....... 3 00 47. Kubryhet & Co. .... 2 40

Average wages for No. 5 shaft, $3.45.

No. 6 SHAFT, APRIL, 1903.

Per Day.

14. Farinoni & Co. ....... 3 27 27. Webster & Co......... 4 50

Average, $3.75 per day.
EXHIBIT 17c.

No. 4 Slope, February, 1903.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Per Day.</th>
<th></th>
<th>Per Day.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Kirkwood &amp; Co.</td>
<td>about...$ 3 75</td>
<td>23. Robertson &amp; Co.</td>
<td>about...$ 4 30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Harwood &amp; Co.</td>
<td>4 00</td>
<td>34. McNevin &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 4 40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. Horbury &amp; Co.</td>
<td>4 20</td>
<td>35. Ead &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 4 75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. Tobacco &amp; Co.</td>
<td>3 50</td>
<td>37. Horbury &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 3 85</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8. Reese &amp; Co.</td>
<td>4 20</td>
<td>40. McIntyre &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 3 30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9. Gibson Bros.</td>
<td>3 90</td>
<td>41. Wain &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 4 90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10. Collishaw &amp; Co.</td>
<td>4 70</td>
<td>42. Haddow &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 3 20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11. Tobacco &amp; Co.</td>
<td>3 55</td>
<td>43. Stewart &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 5 30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12. Hennessey &amp; Co.</td>
<td>3 75</td>
<td></td>
<td>(10 tons per shift.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15. Harwood &amp; Co.</td>
<td>3 55</td>
<td></td>
<td>(Yardage.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>17. Robertson &amp; Co.</td>
<td>5 55</td>
<td>47. Maxwell &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 5 15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>19. Fairbro &amp; Co.</td>
<td>3 90</td>
<td>49. Hutchinson Bros.</td>
<td>“ 4 30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20. Cole &amp; Son</td>
<td>4 15</td>
<td>50. Richardson &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 3 60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>22. Gillis &amp; Co.</td>
<td>4 15</td>
<td></td>
<td>(Yardage.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>23. Bona &amp; Co.</td>
<td>3 00</td>
<td>52. Leffey &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 4 55</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>25. Farmer &amp; Son</td>
<td>4 20</td>
<td>54. Balagno</td>
<td>“ 4 10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>26. Idle.</td>
<td>4 55</td>
<td>55. Ross &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 2 05</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>27. Bolzano &amp; Co.</td>
<td>3 90</td>
<td>56. Ruava &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 3 10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>28. Stant &amp; Son.</td>
<td>4 25</td>
<td>57. McKenzie &amp; Co. (Couldn't make up).</td>
<td>“ 3 10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>29. Bauer &amp; Co.</td>
<td>4 10</td>
<td>58. Caraboo &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 4 05</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30. Smith &amp; Co.</td>
<td>4 65</td>
<td>59. Barber &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 4 05</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>31. Hutton &amp; Co.</td>
<td>4 10</td>
<td>60. Read &amp; Co.</td>
<td>“ 4 65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>32. Heywood &amp; Co.</td>
<td>3 75</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

EXHIBIT 18.

Telegrams sent to and by Wellington Colliery Company at Cumberland during April and May, 1903, (46 in number), mostly in cipher. (Produced on examination of John Matthews, manager of company at Cumberland.)

---

EXHIBIT 19.

Telegrams (15 in number) sent or received by telegraph operators at Ladysmith, B. C., during the months of April and May, 1903, having any reference to strike.

---

EXHIBIT 20.

Copies of telegrams (29 in number), produced by telegraph operator at Nanaimo.

---

EXHIBIT 21a.

EXHIBIT 21.

In the matter of the Royal Commission to inquire into Labour Disputes in British Columbia.

STATEMENT OF CASE OF UNITED BROTHERHOOD OF RAILWAY EMPLOYEES.

1. The United Brotherhood of Railway Employees is a fraternal as well as an industrial union, and has the following for its objects:

(a.) To bring all classes of actual railway employees in closer contact with each other, for their mutual benefit and improvement, and to establish among them a fraternal society of the rail, binding all together for the purposes of friendship and mutual advancement, and to create among them more tolerance of the opinions, rights, duties, privileges and importance of each other in the world's transportation system, the accomplishment of which cannot fail to result in generally improved conditions for every railway employee.

(b.) To encourage its membership, by every legitimate means, to attain a higher standard of morality, especially as regards gambling, the use of intoxicating beverages of every character and all vicious habits.

(c.) To urge its members to greater efforts in better fitting themselves for the situations they occupy in their several departments of railway labour, and in preparing themselves for advancement to higher and more responsible positions, that they may reach the highest planes possible in their special lines of endeavour.

(d.) To assist its membership in sickness or distress, and to aid and comfort the families of members removed by death.

(e.) To prepare and publish a weekly journal for the full discussion of all technical and other questions pertaining to railway labour in its several branches, as an educational medium through which the membership may absorb special and general knowledge of railway matters, and of questions pertaining to the operations of this Brotherhood.

(f.) To provide a perfect and systematic insurance department, open to all railway employees, who are members of this Brotherhood, and who pass the physical examination prescribed by the Brotherhood, and their insurance against accidents and death, and to administer the same economically, expeditiously, and in accordance with the majority participating therein.

(g.) To promote, by every legitimate means in its power, favourable municipal, state and national legislation to railway employees, and while not opposing wholesome regulations of railways by law, to resist unjust, antirailway legislation tending to cripple the transportation systems served by its membership, which may be retailed injuriously to railway employees.

(h.) To limit, in a reasonable and conservative manner, by precept, practice, organization mandates, municipal, state and national regulations, the supply of skilled railway operatives, in every branch of the service, for the purpose of alleviating the privations and sufferings which bear heavily on unemployed railway wage-earners, the dependent members of their families and indirectly upon all engaged in transportation service, through the unnecessary overproduction of railway employees.

(i.) To protect, by every legitimate means at its demand, the interests of its members, under all conditions that may arise coming within the province of this Brotherhood.

2. The said Brotherhood is international in its organization.
3. At the time of the organization of the local division of the said Brotherhood in Vancouver on the 24th of June, 1902, the Brotherhood comprised a total membership of 25,000, of which there were approximately 300 in Winnipeg, Manitoba.

4. The organization is planned after the scheme of the following industrial unions: the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, having a membership of about 100,000, the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, having about 65,000 members, and the United Mine Workers of the Eastern States, comprising about 147,000 men.

5. The local organization is composed exclusively of employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the membership in Vancouver totals about 213.

6. On or about July 1, 1902, the local freight office employees, about 25 in number, all members of the said Brotherhood, requested improvements in their conditions of employment and increases in the rates of their remuneration. The initial demand was for an advance of 20 per cent. Committees waited on Mr. R. Marpole, general superintendent, and ultimately succeeded in obtaining an approximate increase of 13 per cent, although not evenly distributed. The wages, therefore, received by these freight office employees had for a minimum, thirty-five dollars per month, for men's wages. The increase of 13 per cent was accepted on the assurance of Mr. R. Marpole that the arrangement was agreeable to him.

7. The local organization thereafter employed one of their number, Mr. H. V. Poore, as organizer for British Columbia, and membership for the local organization was secured along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway in British Columbia.

8. In January, 1903, Mr. Marpole, general superintendent at Vancouver, suggested and advised that the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees should organize and present a wage schedule to the Canadian Pacific Railway, as other organizations had done, and immediately thereon, Mr. H. V. Poore was appointed general organizer for Canada and left for Vancouver, proceeding to Revelstoke, Nelson, and via Crow's Nest Pass line to Calgary and Winnipeg.

9. Contrary to expectations induced by this request of Mr. Marpole, Mr. Poore found that his progress from place to place was embarrassed by the presence of special detectives, who harassed his movements and by coercion, threats and promises attempted to prevent his obtaining members for the order.

10. About this date, Mr. Fred J. Halton, chief clerk in the accountant's office of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Vancouver, was discharged for alleged breach of discipline. The United Brotherhood of Railway Employees unanimously resolved to wait upon the general superintendent in regard to the dismissal of Mr. Halton and with the assistance and co-operation of the president of the organization, re-instatement was secured for Mr. Halton.

11. The Canadian Pacific Railway, therefore, on several occasions, discriminated against the members of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees and particularly against the committee and officers of the Brotherhood, and, employees who were members of the said Brotherhood were frequently subjected to rigid examinations accompanied with threats and intimidatory suggestions.

12. A statement was made by the divisional superintendent, Mr. H. E. Beasley, to a member of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, that one million dollars would be spent by the Canadian Pacific Railway to kill the organization.

13. The Canadian Pacific Railway, on or about the 26th day of February, indefinitely suspended by Mr. H. P. Forrest, the past manager of the Brotherhood, on a charge of conspiring to defraud the company. The alleged misdemeanor consisted of the commission of an act of courtesy to one George Hamilton, such as is customary from railway employees, and similar acts have been recognized by general freight agents repeatedly. The act itself never having been considered a ground for dismissal or discipline.
14. The members of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees thereafter held a meeting on account of the continued discrimination against their members and the dismissal of Mr. Forrest, and appointed a committee to call upon the general superintendent. This committee requested that the hostile policy that the company were pursuing should be discontinued, and in conjunction therewith that Mr. Forrest be reinstated.

15. The committee, acting for the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, in this instance informed the general superintendent that they did not desire the reinstatement of Mr. Forrest if any breach of the rules and common usage of the company had been committed by him.

16. Matters having been gone into exhaustively by the committee and the general superintendent, the former were dismissed and positively told that the Canadian Pacific Railway would not listen to any request made by their organization.

17. The members of the said Brotherhood thereupon ceased to work for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

18. The members of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees made no demand upon the Canadian Pacific Railway other than the right to belong to the organization of their choice without interference.

Delivered, pursuant to the order of the Commissioners, this second day of June, nineteen hundred and three, by

J. EDWARD BIRD,
Acting as Solicitor for the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

5a. On and prior to the 1st of June, 1903, and subsequent thereto, the conditions of employment with the C. P. R., particularly with relation to the clerks and clerical staff, were such as forced the said employees, and particularly the clerks and clerical staff, into the formation of a union for the purpose of securing protection, and for the purpose of relieving the abuses practised upon them by the Canadian Pacific Railway and the officers thereof, such as requiring them to work overtime without extra pay and requiring them to work as it was from 8.30 in the morning to 6 in the evening (without counting the overtime), at a rate of wage lower than that paid on any railway on the Pacific coast handling the same competitive business, and by the improper imposition of fines.

EXHIBIT 21b.

In the matter of Royal Commission to hear and investigate labour disputes in British Columbia.

Particulars of Paragraph 5a, United Brotherhood of Railway Employees’ case:

1. Robert Chance—Clerk, C.P.R. Telegraph office. At the end of every month and on the 1st and 2nd days of each month has worked until midnight and 1.30 a.m. on monthly balances, and always every fifth Sunday. Has not been paid for overtime; married man with family and salary $40 per month.

2. James Dick—Chief clerk, claims department, C.P.R. From August, 1896, to February, 1903, worked several hours overtime during nine months in each year.

3. Reginald V. Parker—Clerk, local freight office, C.P.R., Vancouver. From January 1st, 1900, to July 1st, 1902, worked until 10 and 12 p.m. almost every night. From July 1st to February, 1903, worked four and five hours overtime about three nights per week.

4. Harry Wilson—From December, 1901, worked several hours per week overtime without extra pay.
5. J. E. Baker, Clerk, local freight office. From September, 1901, to February, 1903, worked almost every night, with the exception of Sunday night, until 10 or 11 p.m. Sometimes until 2 a.m., and almost every Sunday morning during that time.

6. Walter J. Thicke—Clerk, general freight office, C.P.R., Vancouver, commenced work for C.P.R. June, 1898, averaged about 2 hours per night. During 1903 to February 27th, worked on an average two nights per week from 8 p.m. until 10 or 11 p.m.

7. S. S. Hewitt—Clerk, superintendent's office, started to work December, 1902, worked two hours every Sunday morning until February 27th.

8. William R. Fouls—Commenced work for the C.P.R. December, 1892; about nine years of this time worked in the accounting department at Winnipeg and Vancouver, worked overtime in every month. The most overtime put in during 1902. Several months in 1902 worked every night from two to five hours overtime. Worked ten nights overtime during each month, also worked Sundays and public holidays. Have never received pay for overtime worked.

9. J. N. Kendall—Clerk, local freight office, C.P.R. Started work October, 1900; while acting as assistant day biller worked two to four nights overtime on the arrival of each steamer from the Orient, and also every fourth Sunday.

10. E. H. Fowler—Started to work monthly salary September 1st, 1898; worked 10 hours every Sunday night until time of discharge, also worked nights of holidays. Never received any remuneration for overtime worked.

11. Walter H. Browne—Entered service of company January 9th, 1889; worked overtime in all positions filled particularly when "Transfer" clerk. Agent at that time informed Mr. Beasley, superintendent, that I was overworked; also worked overtime as assistant on billing desk.

12. W. J. Marshall—clerk, local freight office. Started work for company May, 1902. Worked overtime whilst billing and on customs desk almost every night from October, 1902, to February, 1903, several hours. Also worked Sundays when boats were in on that day. Never received extra pay for overtime worked.

13. James G. Robertson—Commenced to work for company September, 1900, general superintendent's office. Worked almost every Sunday. Transferred to accountant's office; worked much overtime while there. Transferred to paymaster's office and worked from 10 to 14 nights in every month from 7 to 12 p.m. Never received pay for overtime worked.

14. James A. Wood—Timekeeper, Revelstoke Stores, C.P.R. and mechanical department from December 26th to March 3rd. On December 31st, 1902, worked until 12 p.m., January 1st (New Year's Day) worked all day from 7 a.m. to 12 midnight, January 2nd, 3rd and 4th worked two hours' overtime each day. Worked every Sunday on an average about three hours. January 31st, 1903, worked until midnight. February 1st (Sunday) worked from 7 a.m. until 11 p.m. From February 2nd to February 27th worked on an average of from two to three hours' overtime. Never received any extra pay for overtime.

15. Percy G. Denison—Chief biller, local freight office, Vancouver. Commenced to work August, 1901, averaged about thirty hours per week overtime. This overtime was due to China and Australia boats. Never received extra pay for overtime. Have frequently worked twenty-eight hours without rest.

16. Fred. J. Winlow—Clerk, local freight office. Commenced working for company June 1, 1902. Worked some nights all night. Was never paid extra for overtime.

17. Stephen Garnham—Station baggageman, Vancouver. Commenced work May, 1902. Worked on many occasions until midnight. On nights of departure of boats to Skagway, worked until 11 p.m. Have also worked every Sunday and holiday during my service and have never received extra pay for same.
18. T. C. Holt—Clerk, local freight office. After commencing to manifest Skagway boats, worked from 14 to 18 hours per day. After steamers commenced to run on winter schedule worked some days twenty-two hours without receiving extra pay.

19. Harry Gage—From 1882 to 1900 worked 12 hours out of 24, and was required to be ready for duty at any time. Have been on duty sixty hours at one time.

20. Fred. J. Halton—Commenced working in accounting office, Winnipeg, as trainmen's timekeeper, July, 1899; worked from three to nine hours' overtime every night, from the 1st of the month to the 25th. During October, 1899, worked from 9 a.m. on the 17th to 10 a.m. on the 19th—49 hours, with intervals for meals, some of which were taken in office. Received $35 per month and had charge of all trainmen's rolls between Port Arthur and the Pacific coast, including branch lines. Worked all night on many occasions. Worked four or five hours every night in Vancouver from the 8th to the 25th of the month, and always on Sundays and holidays. Never received any extra pay for overtime.

The U.B.R.E. claim the right to furnish further particulars as the facts come to their knowledge.

Dated at Vancouver this sixth day of June, 1903.

J. Edward Bird,
Solicitor for U.B.R.E.

EXHIBIT 22.

In the matter of a Royal Commission issued to the Hon. Gordon Hunter, Rev. E. S. Rowe and W. L. Mackenzie King, to inquire into mining and transportation difficulties in British Columbia.

STATEMENT OF CASE FOR THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

1. At the time of the making of the request referred to in paragraph 6 of the statement of case of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, none of the officials of the company in Vancouver were aware of the existence of such a body as the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, and met the parties who made that request simply as a committee of the company's employees. The request for increased rates of wages was referred, by agreement between Mr. Marpole and the committee, to the consideration of Mr. Beasley, the company's superintendent at Vancouver, and Mr. F. W. Peters, the general freight agent at Vancouver, and the settlement mentioned was arrived at by them.

2. Mr. Marpole did not either suggest or advise in any way, shape or manner whatsoever that the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees should organize or present a wage schedule to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, as set out in paragraph 8 of the said statement of case.

3. As to paragraph 9 of the said statement of case the company admit that they exercised a certain surveillance over the movements of Mr. Poore, as they were entitled to do, but they deny all the allegations of harassing the said Poore by coercion, threats or promises. The company requires particulars of the various acts of harassing, coercion, threats and promises referred to in said paragraph.

4. As to paragraph 10 of the said statement, the company say that the services of Mr. Halton were properly dispensed with by the company on account of a serious breach of discipline on his part, but the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees threatened an immediate strike without notice, and at a time when a strike would be fatal to the interests of the company and the public at large, with the result that Mr. Marpole was forced against his will to reinstate Mr. Halton in spite of his breach of discipline.
5. The company deny the allegations set out in paragraph 11 of the said statement, and ask for particulars of the same.

6. It is absolutely incorrect that Mr. Beasley made any such statement to any one as that set out in paragraph 12 of the said statement.

7. With reference to paragraphs 13, 14 and 15 of the said statement, the facts are that Mr. H. P. Forrest was charged with defrauding the company by means of the position which he occupied with the company, a charge which the company then believed and still believes to be well founded. Thereupon, in accordance with the well-recognized rules of the company, Mr. Forrest was suspended pending an investigation, at the end of which, if found blameless, he would in the ordinary course be reinstated and paid for all loss of time. Before, however, such investigation could take place, the committee acting for the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees insisted upon an immediate reinstatement of Mr. Forrest irrespective of any investigation. At the time in question Mr. Marpole promised the committee that an investigation would be held and the usual practice of the company complied with. The committee left Mr. Marpole’s office with the understanding that they were to return in the afternoon for further discussion, but instead of returning, within twenty minutes after leaving the Brotherhood inaugurated the strike in question.

8. As to paragraph 18 of said statement, the company say that at the time of the strike and for long subsequent thereto the one principal demand made by the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, and the one which they stated was vital to them and for which they would fight to the last, was recognition of their union by the company, and it is only within a very recent time that the said Brotherhood have reduced their demand to that set out in said paragraph 18.

9. At the time the strike was inaugurated, Mr. Marpole could not recognize the union for the following reasons:—

(a.) That as a local manager he could not deal with a union extending over the whole line which had not received recognition at Montreal;

(b.) That no union in any event was entitled to recognition by the company until it could satisfy the company that it controlled two-thirds, or at any rate a majority, of the employees who were entitled to become members of such union, as otherwise the recognition of such a union would lead to interminable conflicts with other unions which were already established and recognized, and with which the company had contracts.

10. Since that time and during the progress of the strike facts have come to the knowledge of the company which justify the company in refusing not only to recognize the union, but also to allow any of its employees to belong to such union. The following are some of the reasons:—

(a.) The United Brotherhood of Railway Employees is an organization whose headquarters are situated in the United States, its executive officers are residents of a foreign country, and the organization is of such a character that it could be used by transportation companies of the United States as a means of hampering the trade of Canada and injuring, if not altogether destroying, the usefulness of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company as a public institution;

(b.) It has recognized as a part of its policy the principles of revolutionary socialism;

(c.) While the company favours the organization of unions among different classes of its employees, it objects to the organization of one union which will comprise all the different classes of employees who are entitled to become members of this union, on the ground that it is impossible to deal with them in a business-like way, and that such an association is impracticable and would lead to endless dissension among the employees themselves.

36a—49
11. The company's objections to this organization are good, as shown by the fact that it has never been able to obtain recognition in any other part of the world, not even in the United States itself.

12. The constitution of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees shows that it intends to carry its objects into effect by means of sympathetic strikes, and that the circumstances in connection with this strike show that it intends to use as a weapon, in case of trouble with employees, boycott and intimidation.

The company submit the above as a preliminary statement, and reserves to itself the right to amend or add to this statement from time to time as the investigation proceeds.

Delivered at Vancouver this 3rd day of June, A.D., 1903.

DAVIS, MARSHALL & MACNEILL,
Solitors for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

EXHIBIT 23.

AFFIDAVIT OF DOCUMENTS BY C.P.R. RE U.B.R.E.

Dominion of Canada.
Province of British Columbia,
County of Vancouver, To Wit:

In the matter of a Royal Commission issued to the Hon. Gordon Hunter, Rev. E. S. Rowe and W. L. Mackenzie King to inquire into mining and transportation difficulties in British Columbia,

I, Richard Marpole, of the city of Vancouver, in the province of British Columbia, general superintendent of the Pacific Division of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, do solemnly declare that:

1. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company have in their possession or power the documents relating to the matters in question in this commission set forth in the first and second parts of the first schedule hereto.

2. The said Canadian Pacific Railway Company object to produce the said documents set forth in the second part of the said first schedule hereto.

3. According to the best of my knowledge, information and belief the Canadian Pacific Railway Company have not now and never had in their possession, custody or power, or in the possession, custody or power of their solicitors or agents, solicitor or agent, or in the possession, custody or power of any other person or persons on their behalf, any letter, memorandum, paper or writing, or any copy of or extracts from any such document or any other document whatsoever affecting the questions, the subject-matter of this Commission, or any of them, or wherein any entry has been made relative to such matters, or any of them other than and except the documents set forth in the said first and second parts of the said schedule hereto.

And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing it to be true, and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of the 'Canada Evidence Act, 1892.'

R. MARPOLE.

Declared before me at the city of Vancouver, in the province of British Columbia, this 3rd day of June, A.D. 1903.

E. V. Bodwell,
A Commissioner for taking affidavits within British Columbia.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

SCHEDULE REFERRED TO IN THE WITHIN DECLARATION.

First Part.—

PART SECOND.—

1. Bundle of correspondence, telegrams, memoranda, &c., marked 'A.'

This is the schedule referred to in the declaration of Richard Marpole, declared before me this 3rd day of June, A.D., 1903.

E. V. BODWELL,
A Commissioner, &c.

EXHIBIT 24.

Correspondence produced by T. J. Shenton, being copies of certain letters received by him as secretary of the Miner's Union at Nanaimo, referring in no way to existing dispute.

EXHIBIT 25.

Affidavit of documents of U. B. R. E.

EXHIBIT 26.

In the matter of the Royal Commission to inquire into labour matters in British Columbia.

Affidavit as to documents:

I, Robert Brooke, recently chief clerk in the Canadian Pacific Railway Telegraph office of the city of Vancouver, B. C., make oath and say:
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

1. That I am the manager of the local division of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees at Vancouver, B.C.

2. That I have in my possession or power the documents relating to the matters in question upon the inquiry into the causes of the railway strike at Vancouver set forth in the first and second parts of the first schedule hereto.

3. That I object to produce the said documents set forth in the second part of the first schedule hereto.

4. That my grounds of objection are set forth accurately and correctly in the said second part of said schedule.

5. That I have had, but have not now in my possession or power the documents relating to the matters in question in this suit set forth in the second schedule hereto.

6. The last mentioned documents were last in my possession or power on or about the dates mentioned in the said second schedule.

7. That the said documents referred to in the second schedule were last heard of by me, or last in my possession on or about the time mentioned in the second schedule.

8. That according to the best of my knowledge, information and belief, I have not now and never had in my possession, custody or power or in the possession, custody or power of the secretary of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, or of the solicitor or solicitors for the said organization, or in the possession of any agent of the same, or in the possession, custody or power of any other person or persons on my behalf, or on behalf of the said union, any deed, account, book of account, voucher, receipt, letter, memorandum, paper or writing, or any copy of or extract from any such documents, or any other document whatsoever relating to the matters in question upon this inquiry or any of them, or wherein any entry has been made relative to such matters or any of them other than and except the documents set forth in the said first and second schedules hereto.

Sworn before me at Vancouver, B.C.,
this 4th day of June, 1903.

THOMAS MATTHEWS,
Notary Public, B.C.

This is the first schedule referred to in the affidavit of documents of Robert Brooke, manager of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, hereunto annexed and sworn before me to-day:

1. Charter of Division No. 81 of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, dated June 24, 1902.

3. Ritual of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

4. Souvenir History, published by Division No. 81, United Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

5. Pension scheme of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and circular signed by president, dated December, 1902.

6. Copy of contract, or wage schedule, between the freight-handlers and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, dated May 31, 1902.

7. Notice re strikers, dated February 26, 1903.

8. Letter from President Estes to all divisions, dated March 1, 1903.

9. Letter from J. R. Lawson to P. G. Denison, dated February 27, 1903.

10. Letter from the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths Union, No. 151, dated March 2, 1903.

12. Letter dated March 8, from the Shingle Weavers' Union, No. 8390.
13. Letter dated March 4, from the Cigarmakers' Union, No. 357.
15. Letter, undated, from the Bakers' Union.
18. Letter dated March 9, from the executive of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, addressed to the people of British Columbia.
19. Memo. dated March 10, giving statement of causes leading to strike.
27. Letter dated April 3, from Chas. H. Tupper to Chas. Wilson, K.C.
28. Letter dated April 3, from the four allied unions to E. A. Haggen.
29. Batch of correspondence dated April 10, regarding Mr. Haggen's endeavour to bring about a settlement.
31. Letter dated April 14, from Wilson, Senkler & Bloomfield.
32. Letter dated May 11, from Charles Clarke, Revelstoke.
33. Letter from City Clerk, Vancouver.
34. Copy of letter from agent Division 81, Brotherhood of Railway Employees, to Sam. Smith, Sydney, Australia, dated March 6.
35. Bundle of newspaper clippings from various newspapers, fastened together and marked letter 'Z'.
36. Copy of correspondence between R. Marpole and Colonel Prior, dated March 16, and copy of interview with Mr. Marpole attached thereto.
38. Letter from E. B. Smith, dated May 1, 1903.
39. Copy letter to superintendent at Revelstoke, signed by the executive committee, dated March 2, 1903.
40. Copy letter from agent Division No. 81, United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, to E. G. Prior, dated March 12, 1903.
41. Copy of letter from the President of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees to R. Marpole, dated March 5, 1903.
42. Letter from the agent of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees to W. J. Lameraek, dated March 7.
43. Copy of letter to W. Gault, dated March 4.
44. Copies of letters from agent Division No. 81, United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, to the Wholesale Grocers, dated March 2, 1903.
45. Telegram from George Estea to agent Division 81, United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, dated February 25.
ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

46. Memo. of terms and conditions under which strikers will return to work, dated March 6, 1903.

47. Comparative estimate of rates of wages paid, Vancouver and Portland.

THOMAS MATTHEWS,
Notary Public, B.C.

This is the second part of the first schedule to the affidavit of Robert Brooke, manager of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees referred to in the affidavit, hereunto annexed, and sworn before me to-day.

1. Bundles of correspondence marked 'A,' 'B,' 'C,' 'D,' 'E,' and 'F,' comprising in all about 2,000 letters bearing upon the question at issue, most of which are confidential between various members of order, communicated in confidence and under the sanction of the oath of organization.

Most of these communications are in regard to the collecting of funds for the Brotherhood and discussions and reports of progress of the strike, for all of which privilege is claimed.

THOMAS MATTHEWS,
Notary Public, B.C.

This is the second schedule referred to in the affidavit of documents of Robert Brooke, manager of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, hereunto annexed and sworn before me to-day.

1. The several letters referred to in the first part of the first schedule herefo, of which only copies are now in my possession, these letters were parted with and posted on or about the dates mentioned in the said first part of the said schedule.

2. The number of communications to various newspapers, of which clippings are now in my possession. These clippings bear the signature of an officer or responsible member of the union, and which clippings are referred to in the first part of the first schedule.

THOMAS MATTHEWS,
Notary Public.

EXHIBIT 26.

In the matter of a Royal Commission to inquire into the labour disputes of British Columbia.

Affidavit of documents of U. B. R. E.:—

1. Frederick Joseph Halton, of the city of Vancouver, in the province of British Columbia, ex-employee of the Canadian Pacific Railway, do solemnly declare:—

1. That I am secretary of the local division number eighty-one (81) of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

2. That I have an intimate knowledge of all matters pertaining to the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees' strike.

3. That I have read the declaration of R. Marpole disclosing certain documents.

4. That the documents consisting of bundle of correspondence, telegram, memorandum, etc., marked 'A' I believe to contain a number of special service reports which I am informed and verily believe are liable to production.

5. That the said special service reports are not made as I know for the information of solicitors or for the purpose of taking advice thereupon.
3-4 Edward VII., A.D. 1904

6. That hereunto annexed, marked as exhibit ‘A,’ is the heading of a special service report which came into my hands sometime ago.

7. That I believe a complete disclosure of these special service reports will show that the Canadian Pacific Railway have been influenced by lying reports, many of which are manufactured and which have constantly inflamed the minds of the officers of the said company against the organization of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, and that a disclosure of the same will enable our organization to put ourselves straight on many of these matters.

Declared before me at the city of Vancouver, in the province of British Columbia, this 3rd day of June, 1903.

FRED. J. HALTON.

THOMAS MATHEWS,
Notary Public, B.C.

This is the exhibit A referred to in the affidavit of F. J. Halton, sworn before me at the city of Vancouver, B.C., this 4th day of June, 1903.

THOMAS MATHEWS,
Notary Public.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

SPECIAL SERVICE DEPARTMENT.

DAILY REPORTS OF CONSTABLES AND WATCHMEN.

The following is my report for day, the day of 190

EXHIBIT 27.

LETTERS AND WAGE SCHEDULE OF FREIGHT-HANDLERS, VANCOUVER.

Canadian Pacific Railway Company,
Office of the Superintendent,
Vancouver, B.C., June 23, 1902.

Mr. J. McCreery,
Agent, Vancouver,

Dear Sir,—This to confirm my verbal understanding with yourself and committee of freight-handlers yesterday that we will grant the rates referred to in their letter of May 31, 1902, such rates to be applied in accordance with the conditions set forth in their schedule, with the exception of overtime for meal hours, which is not allowed.

You may, therefore, confirm this arrangement in writing to the committee. Please see that this is done promptly, as I promised the committee the increases should be covered by an official letter this morning.

Approved,

Yours truly,

R. MARPOLE,
General Superintendent.

H. E. BEASLEY,
Superintendent.
W. Brett, Esq., Timekeeper, City.

Dear Sir,—Under the new schedule for freight-handlers and checkers, the following changes will be made in the pay-roll for men working on monthly wages:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Occupation</th>
<th>Old Rate.</th>
<th>New Rate.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>W. B. Moffatt</td>
<td>Foreman</td>
<td>$60 00</td>
<td>$66 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. Harris</td>
<td>Checker</td>
<td>$60 00</td>
<td>$66 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. H. Silcox</td>
<td>Checker</td>
<td>$50 00</td>
<td>$55 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. Lavrock</td>
<td>Night car checker</td>
<td>$45 00</td>
<td>$49 50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Abrams</td>
<td>Day car checker</td>
<td>$50 00</td>
<td>$55 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John McDonald</td>
<td>Car sealer</td>
<td>$45 00</td>
<td>$49 50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. H. Fowler</td>
<td>Day car checker</td>
<td>$50 00</td>
<td>$55 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. J. Bedding</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. S. Dick</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Yours truly,

J. McCREERY,
Local Freight Agent.

UNITED BROTHERHOOD OF RAILWAY FREIGHT-HANDLERS,
FEDERAL UNION NO. 4, VANCOUVER, B.C.

Freight-handlers Schedule. Canadian Pacific Railway, Vancouver.

ARTICLE 1.

Section 1.—That the rate of pay for freight-handlers shall be 22 cents per hour day work, and time and one half for overtime.

Section 2.—That rate of pay for checking shall be 27 cents per hour day work and 33 cents per hour overtime.

Section 3.—That the rate of pay for wharfingers and all monthly men shall be increased 10 per cent.

ARTICLE 2.

Section 1.—That 10 hours shall constitute a day's work for freight-handlers and gang checkers, namely from 7 k. to 12 k., and 13 k. to 18 k.

Section 2.—That overtime shall constitute all Sundays, nights, New Year's Day, Good Friday, 24th May, Christmas Day, and any other day proclaimed by the Governor-General in Council.

ARTICLE 3.

Section 1.—That union men be given the preference.

Section 2.—That any one representing the union in any official capacity, shall not be discriminated against by the company.
ARTICLE 4.

Promotions shall be governed by seniority of service and ability to perform the duties required.

ARTICLE 5.

If any member of the union considers himself unjustly dealt with, the agent of the union shall be allowed to take the matter up with the foreman and superintendent.

ARTICLE 6.

That men wanted on the dock at any time shall be called.

ARTICLE 7.

This schedule shall be signed by both parties for twelve months, and if any change be required, thirty days' notice shall be given on either side at the end of twelve months from date of signature, to all of which we agree.

ARTICLE 8.

This schedule shall come into force three weeks from date.

Dated this 31st day of May, 1902.

Signed on behalf of the union.

President, Secretary.

EXHIBIT 28.

Constitution and By-laws of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees. The Star Press, 429 Montgomery St., San Francisco. 113 pages.

EXHIBIT 29.

Ritual of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees. San Francisco, 1902. 45 pages.

EXHIBIT 30.

Copy of letter to General Superintendent of C.P.R. at Vancouver, by Committee of employees:—

R. Marpole, Esq.,
General Superintendent,
Canadian Pacific Railway,
Vancouver.

Dear Sir,—We, the undersigned committee of employees, have been instructed to write you requesting the immediate withdrawal of the suspension of H. P. Forrest of the local freight staff, issued subsequent to your cancellation of his suspension by Mr. Beasley.

We further request a cessation of the policy of intimidation lately pursued against the employees of various departments by your various officials because of their membership in the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees.
A satisfactory written reply hereto is requested by 11.30 o'clock a.m., to-morrow, 27th instant, otherwise the employees represented by this committee will cease work at 12 o'clock noon.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) ROBT. BROOKE,
(Sgd.) F. J. WALKER,
(Sgd.) DAVID LAVEROCK,
(Sgd.) P. G. DENISON,
(Sgd) S. GARNHAM,
Acting Agent.

EXHIBIT 31.

'In all your writings carefully word your articles so as to develop a public sentiment for the U.B.R.E.—the Industrial Union Plan—the A.L.U. and against the reactionary and capitalistic party now temporarily in control of the A.F. of L. but not against the masses of members comprising the A.F. of L. Continually separate the administration of the A.F. of L. from the A.F. of L itself and give all possible praise to the masses of the A.F. of L but without being personal or vindictive; condemn the temporary capitalistic administration of the A.F. of L in the shortest terms you can possibly employ.

'In this way you will constantly stimulate and augment a great public sentiment for the U.B.R.E., for the Industrial Union, for the A.L.U. and for socialism (but don't use the word) and against the capitalism and the Gompers faction which is working in harmony with Marcus Hanna and the infamous Civic Federation to keep down the masses of the people.'

EXHIBIT 32.

Copy of 'Railway Employees' Journal,' dated at San Francisco, Cal., May 28, 1903.

EXHIBIT 33.

Copy of 'Railway Employees' Journal,' dated at San Francisco, Cal., May 21, 1903.

EXHIBIT 34.

Copy of Railway Employees' Journal, dated at San Francisco, Cal., March 19, 1903.

EXHIBIT 35.

Copy of 'Railway Employees' Journal,' dated at San Francisco, Cal., March 12, 1903.

EXHIBIT 36.

Copy of 'Railway Employees' Journal, dated at San Francisco, Cal., April 23, 1903.
EXHIBIT 37.

Copy of circular addressed by President of U.B.R.E. to all unions affiliated with the American Labour Unions:

UNITED BROTHERHOOD OF RAILWAY EMPLOYEES,
GENERAL OFFICES, 210, 211, 573, 574 PARROT BUILDING,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE,
PRESIDENT'S HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD.
VANCOUVER, B.C., MARCH 27, 1903.

To all Unions
Affiliated with the American Labour Union.

Brothers,—The United Brotherhood of Railway Employees is now passing through the fifth week of a tremendous conflict on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The U.B.R.E. was attacked by the C.P.R. during February last for the purpose of destroying it. Members were intimidated, transferred, reprimanded, suspended and discharged, and every possible effort made to disrupt the Brotherhood.

It was learned that men were being hired in large numbers in Montreal, Winnipeg, Seattle and other points to come to British Columbia under contract for the purpose of brushing away the last vestige of the Brotherhood.

The Division at Vancouver (No. 81) endeavoured to stay the destruction by sending a committee before General Superintendent Marpole, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, but to no purpose, and at noon, Friday, February 27, 1903, acting on its own motion as an emergency measure, the Division struck to save its own life and was quickly followed by the divisions at Revelstoke, Nelson, Calgary and Winnipeg.

The Longshoremen's Union at Vancouver, by reason of its working on the wharfs, where the C.P.R. freight-handlers were out, found itself immediately involved in the strike, and the British Columbia Steamshipmen's Society, also the Teamsters' Union of Vancouver, were at once drawn into the controversy by reason of their close connection with the work performed by the longshoremen and railway employees.

The freight business of the C.P.R. from Winnipeg to Vancouver, 1,500 miles, is more or less demoralized and at Vancouver is practically destroyed for the time being.

The Trades and Labour Councils at Vancouver, Winnipeg, Nelson, Calgary, Revelstoke and Victoria have endorsed the strike and are doing all in their power to help the movement, morally and financially.

There are now one thousand men out and the expenses of conducting the tremendous controversy are enormous.

The strike is only to preserve the union principle and nothing else. The members of the U.B.R.E. who are not out on strike are not asking for more pay or shorter hours of service, but are protesting against the destruction of their union.

The C.P.R. is having men arrested and is resorting to every possible form of petty tyranny to destroy the strike. It is prosecuting the President of the U.B.R.E. and endeavouring to send him to the provincial prison on a charge of inciting men to strike and delaying the mails.

Superintendent H. E. Beasley, of the C.P.R., stated four days before the strike began that the Canadian Pacific Railway would spend a million dollars to kill the U.B.R.E. and the railway is now losing enormous sums daily in its endeavour to crush the Brotherhood.

To win this fight we must have all the financial help possible and as quickly as possible, and we urgently appeal to all unions affiliated with the A.L.U., whose principles we believe in and uphold, to send us financial aid in as large amounts as possible, and to continue aiding us until the fight is won.
Make all remittances to Fred. J. Halton, Agent Division No. 81, U.B.R.E., box 635, Vancouver, B.C., and they will be acknowledged by him and distributed to all the points affected, which includes Victoria, Revelstoke, Nelson, Calgary and Winnipeg.

Yours for Industrial Unionism,

GEO. ESTES,
President, U.B.R.E.

Headquarters American Labor Union,
Butte, Montana, March 31, 1903.

We approve and endorse the above appeal.

CLARENCE SMITH,
Secretary, A.L.U.

DANIEL McDONALD,
President, A.L.U.

EXHIBIT 38.

Copy of letter to General Superintendent of C.P.R., by committee of employees.

Vancouver Division No. 81,
Vancouver, B.C., 10.A, January 5, 1903.

R. Marpole, Esq.,
General Superintendent,
C.P.R., Vancouver, B.C.

Dear Sir,—As you are probably aware, some six months ago, the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees came to take up its permanent residence in Vancouver, since which time the membership has grown to such an extent that it now numbers in Vancouver and immediate vicinity, several hundreds, embracing nearly every branch of the service.

You are also aware that J. W. Allan, of Nelson, was discharged from the service because of his membership in this union. At that time we refrained from taking up his case at his own request. Within the last few days the action taken by the company with reference to Miss Code and Mr. Halton, has been of such a nature as to lead us to suppose that it is the intention of the company to force matters to an issue. The reasons given in the cases of Miss Code and Mr. Halton were not adequate. It is the firm belief of our membership at large that the company's action in the cases quoted are really because the parties mentioned are members of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, and to prevent any further trouble in the matter we beg to request that Mr. Halton be reinstated and that Miss Code be also reinstated or be given a position with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at Vancouver equal in all respects to the position from which she was removed.

We further request that the company use no discrimination against any employee on account of his or her connection with the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

We, the undersigned, being bona fide employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company (duly elected a committee of the United Brotherhood of Railway Em-employees), will wait on you at 14.15 (fourteen-fifteen) o'clock to-day to receive your written agreement to these requests.

Yours truly,
H. P. FORREST, Local Freight Office.
ROBT. BROOKE, Telegraph Department.
JAMES DICK, Claims Department.
J. D. TURNBULL, Freight Foreman.
H. WILSON, Car Service Department.
P. G. DENISON, Local Freight Department.
JNO. ARMSTRONG, General Freight Department.
H. J. FERRIS, Purchasing Department.
W. R. FOULDS, Accounting Department.
R. ROBINSON, Baggage Master.
JOHN WALMSLEY, Local Freight Shed.
WILLIAM E. MOORE, Mechanical Department.
THOMAS PENNEY, Local Freight Department.
WILLIAM M. BEARN, Locomotive Department.
CLAIR MALCOLM, Stores Department.

Mr. W. R. FOULDS,
For the Committee of Employees.

DEAR SIR,—Regarding the interview between a committee of employees and myself this afternoon:

My understanding is that Clerk Halton is to be suspended one week for absenting himself without leave and deceiving you as to the reason for his absence on Wednesday last; this decision being arrived at after the explanation given by Mr. Halton and yourself as to the reason of his absence, which should have been forthcoming before; and that any similar breach of discipline will mean immediate dismissal.

As to Miss Code: There appears to be a misapprehension in her case, as she is still employed, and no intimation was given her that her services were not required.

Yours truly,
General Superintendent.

EXHIBIT 39.

Extract from 'Daily Star,' Montreal, re U.B.R.E. strike.

C.P.R. STRIKERS RETURNING TO WORK.

The strike on the Canadian Pacific steamer Charmer, plying between Vancouver and Victoria, is not considered serious by the officials here. It seems that some firemen and deckhands, five or six, left the ship at Vancouver with a view of preventing her sailing.

"These men," says an official, "have no grievance whatever against the company, and simply refused to work, to show their sympathy with the clerks whom the company refuse to reinstate. However, their desire did not succeed, as the Charmer not only left Vancouver on time, but also reached Victoria on time. These men made no demand for any increase of their wages; they are now earning $60 a month and the cost of board, and are simply acting in this manner to endeavour to compel the company to recognize the union. Mr. Estes, president of the new organization known as the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, is back of the whole thing, but will not succeed any better in the future than he has in the past. The service has not been greatly affected so far. Many of the strikers are returning to work, and many who wish to return are being refused re-employment.

CLERKS DISMISSED BY CANADIAN PACIFIC.

A sensation was caused on Monday by the dismissal of eight clerks in the department of the auditor of statistics of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Windsor Street station, and two in the office of the superintendent of car service. These gentlemen say that the reason the company gave for discharging them was that the staff had to be reduced, but they claim that the real reason is because they had become members of a union of railroad employees.

Mr. A. A. Goodchild, auditor of statistics, said to-day: 'There is no foundation for the statement that these men were discharged because they belonged to the union. I was instructed to reduce my staff and did it in the best interests of the company. There is no rule forbidding a clerk belonging to the union.

EXHIBIT 40.

Extract from Montreal 'Witness' re U.B.R.E. strike.

THE VANCOUVER STRIKE.

The following letter explains itself:

To the Editor of the 'Witness':

Sir,—In the issue of the daily 'Star' on Wednesday, March 18, some prominence was given to a report purporting to come from Vancouver, stating that a number of the striking members of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees were returning to work at that place also that a number of others desirous of doing so, could not, from the fact that the railway company refused them re-employment.

We are glad to be able to state that there is no truth whatever in the report quoted, and that not a single item enumerated has any foundation in fact. Emphatic denial has been received from the executive committee of the Brotherhood in Vancouver, and it is entirely with a view of removing any false impression created by this report, at the present status of the strike, that we desire you to give publicity to this denial.

Trust that you will find space for this, and thanking you in anticipation, we are, sir, yours, &c.,

H. WILSON,
Cert. 87, Vancouver Division, No. 81, U.B.R.E.

JAMES DICK,
Cert. 22, Vancouver Division, No. 81, U.B.R.E.
EXHIBIT 41.

Clearance given to H. Wilson by C.P.R.

Montreal, March 25, 1903.

Name, Harold Wilson.
Age on entering service, 19 years.
Total length of service, from September 1, 1899, to March 23, 1903.
Employed as clerk at Winnipeg, from September 1, 1899, to December 13, 1899.
Employed as chief clerk at Vancouver, from December 13, 1899, to Feb. 24, 1903.
Employed as clerk at Montreal, from February 24, 1903, to March 23, 1903.
Dismissed, for publishing without the authority of the company incorrect statements damaging to their interest.

(Sgd.) F. A. GASCOIGNE, Car Accountant.
GEO. S. CANTLIE, Supt. Car Service.

EXHIBIT 42.

Executive committee meeting held September 30, 1902, to consider the constitution of the different American labour unions.

(1) Moved and seconded, that the executive board meeting favours our affiliation with the Western Federation of Miners, and we thus recommend such affiliation.—Carried unanimously.

The reason your executive recommends affiliation with this body in preference to other bodies is, first, because this Federation is a body of metal and coal miners only, and secondly, because this body at present is not responsible for supporting of the great strike raging in the Pennsylvania district of United States, incurring upon its members a levy equally in the case of the United Mine Workers of ten per cent of the gross earnings of its members. Also, because this body is represented in our province, and is therefore the securest and most convenient body to join.

Moved and seconded, that the treasurer be placed under three hundred dollars bonds, and that the union pay the expenses of providing such bonds.—Carried.

EXHIBIT 43.

Minutes of joint board meeting of Miners' Unions at Nanaimo, April 26, 1903.

No. 177, W.F.M.

Nanaimo, B.C., April 26, 1903.

Conjoint delegate board meeting, held April 26.

Moved and seconded, that we send three delegates from this conjoint delegate board to wait upon Mr. McLunis and to approach the government and lay before them the situation at Ladysmith, and to ask them to use their powers with Mr. Dunsmuir to arrange a settlement at Ladysmith that will be in harmony with the recognition of the union and the reinstatement of men discharged, also reinstatement of any men who may have been discharged at Cumberland. Carried.

Delegates sent were J. Hutchison, T. J. Shenton and J. Pritchard.

No. 177, W.F.M.,
NANAIMO, B.C., April 18, 1903.

That this board recommend to the regular meeting that we tender assistance to Ladysmith by levying ourselves. Also that we seek to arrange a meeting of the Cumberland and Ladysmith unions executives.—Carried.

EXHIBIT 44.

Report of committee appointed by joint board, April 29, 1903.

NANAIMO MINERS’ UNION, No. 177, W.F.M.
NANAIMO, B.C., April 29, 1903.

REPORT OF DELEGATION FROM CONJOINT DELEGATE BOARD.

In accordance with the resolution passed by the conjoint delegate meeting held April the 26th inst., which authorized the appointment of three delegates to go to Victoria to interview Mr. Melinnis, also to approach the members of the House, and to ask them to use their power to arrange a settlement of the trouble at Ladysmith. We, the undersigned delegates, so appointed, desire to submit the following report: We went to Victoria by train, April 27th ultimo, and after our arrival we proceeded early to the legislative hall, and there interviewed Mr. Melinnis. We set before him the reason of our going down, and discussed with him matters relating to the trouble at Ladysmith. He asked us if we could meet him the following Tuesday morning and give him a copy of the resolution passed by the meeting sending us down. We thus arranged to meet him again, as stated, and in consequence we again met him for the second time on Tuesday morning, the 28th inst., and gave to him a copy of resolution spoken of. At this interview we discussed for some time the question of what could be done by him and the House, in arranging an amiable settlement at Ladysmith that would be in harmony with the recognition of the union, the reinstatement of the men discharged, also the reinstatement of the men who may have been discharged at Cumberland. He replied by outlining the method he intended operating to bring about a settlement of matters. He said that Mr. Dunsmuir was sorely afraid of the powerful institution of the W.F.M. and that if he consented to recognition thereof it would mean the destruction of his industry, and in order he said to remove this fear from his mind it was necessary to arrange some kind of agreement between the men and Dunsmuir, and that if this could be accomplished, which he had no doubt that it could, then a settlement could be got. If the men were willing to submit to such an arrangement, covering a period of a year or two then he felt sure the matter could be adjusted. Further, he stated that a caucus meeting was at this time going on among the cabinet, and that he would introduce the matter immediately before this meeting and that if we would see him later on then he would be able to tell us just what was done. Your committee then retired and again, later on in the afternoon of Tuesday, we held another interview with Mr. Melinnis, when he stated that he had brought the matter before the cabinet and they had decided writing Mr. Dunsmuir asking him to allow the appointment of a mediator looking to the settlement of the trouble at Ladysmith, and that if this be accepted then the case would be open for settlement. Our arrangement with Mr. McInnis on leaving, and after this last interview was that so soon as he got a reply from Mr. Dunsmuir he would then write us as early as possible. We waited upon the different members of both sides of the House and acquainted them of our mission, and asked them to do all they could in support of the scheme in arranging a settlement at Ladysmith, and they assured us that they would only be too pleased to do all they could in such a matter.

Each member seemed anxious to help us, and we were informed by them that if anything could be done by any one in the House with Mr. Dunsmuir that Mr. McInnis was the most likely man to do it. We are the conjoint committee.

JOHN HUTCHINSON,
JAMES PRITCHARD,
T. J. SHENTON.

EXHIBIT 45.

UNITED BROTHERHOOD OF RAILWAY EMPLOYEES,
VANCOUVER DIVISION, NO. 81.
VANCOUVER, March 1, 1903.

To the Western Federation of Miners,
United Brotherhood of Railway Employees.

Gentlemen and Brothers,—

Vancouver Division of the U.B.R.E. went on strike at noon February 27, 1903.
The causes which led up to the strike are disclosed in the clipping from the 'World,' a daily newspaper published in Vancouver and a copy of the clipping being attached.
I arrived here six hours after the strike was on.
The situation is very peculiar and was brought about by the determined efforts of the C.P.R. to destroy the U.B.R.E. in British Columbia before it should become powerful enough to secure for its members just consideration from that great railway corporation which pays the poorest salaries of any trunk line in North America.
The strike was called suddenly and quickly as an emergency measure to prevent the destruction of the Brotherhood in this section.
I believe that the division exercised its best judgment in taking the action it did pending my arrival.
The full particulars had been written, and wired me and I left Portland for this place at the earliest possible moment in order that I might be here to assist in this fight for existence in the province of British Columbia.
I will do my utmost to keep all divisions advised of the progress of the strike, which will likely last for some time and will be contested determinedly to the end.
The other unions in Vancouver are quite in sympathy with the movement and are affording us all the help in their power. The situation is improving from our point of view; we are getting all of our plans and methods thoroughly systematized, so that we may be able to handle the strike successfully.
The C.P.R. has imported twenty-five scabs from Seattle but our members at that point advised us of this movement before the scabs left that place, and most of them came out as soon as they arrived here and learned the true situation.
Superintendent H. E. Beasley, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, stated to our members that the C.P.R. would spend one million to kill the U.B.R.E., because its plan of organization would be too powerful for them to control it, as they are able to do with class orders on railways.
It is necessary, therefore, in order to preserve the life of the U.B.R.E. in Vancouver and British Columbia that we have help and have it as quickly as possible from every division of our Brotherhood, in order to make this great fight, which is the fight of all members of the U.B.R.E. wherever they may be found.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 35a

I earnestly appeal to every member of the Brotherhood to contribute as liberally as possible to this cause and not only that but such divisions as can do so, should raise additional money by any means at their command from among their members and in any way available and forward same to S. Garaham, Cashier, Vancouver Division No. 91, Vancouver, B.C.

All remittances will be acknowledged and a full accounting will be rendered of the division during this controversy.

Fraternally,

GEO. ESTES,
President.

Box 635, Vancouver, B.C.

'DAILY WORLD,'

VANCOUVER, B.C., Saturday, February 28, 1903.

Estes is in the city regarding the strike of the C.P.R. clerks. Gives out a statement.

The railway company declines to recognize the Brotherhood and says it cannot tolerate the interference of that body.

President Estes is here regarding the strike of the members of the clerical forces of the C.P.R., who are connected with the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees. The statement of General Superintendent Marpole was given in Friday's paper. Mr. Marpole says that he has nothing to add thereto. The U.B.R.E., he says, is not recognized by the headquarters of the company, and its interference with matters affecting the discipline of the office cannot be tolerated. The C.P.R. says that no trouble has so far been experienced in running any of the offices.

President Estes, of the U.B.R.E., arrived in the city on Friday evening, and all day he has been in consultation with the local executive.

The members of the executive committee to-day gave out the following statement:

'The strike which has occurred in the membership of the U.B.R.E. in the city of Vancouver was forced on the organization against its will by the C.P.R. in the hope of destroying it, to prevent its becoming stronger. No requests or demands for increased pay, shorter hours of service or conditions differing from those hitherto in force were made by the Brotherhood or by the division in Vancouver.

'Officers of the C.P.R. have been calling members of the Brotherhood into their offices and warning them against continuing as members thereof. They have been advised that further promotions would be denied them, and that if they considered their own welfare they should leave the U.B.R.E. immediately.

'In the case of the freight handlers, some 60 or 70 men, their committee was advised that the entire body must leave the U.B.R.E. immediately if they expected to have the present schedule of rates of pay continued for another year.

'C.P.R. detectives, including one McDonald, were placed on the track of Harold V. Poore, the general organizer of the U.B.R.E., who left Vancouver on January 1, under instructions from the Brotherhood to work through to the Atlantic coast. These detectives shadowed and followed his every movement, and did all in their power to dishearten him and cause him to turn back.

'They at first offered him, on behalf of the C.P.R., preferment and all kinds of concessions, provided he would abandon the work of organizing for the U.B.R.E., and at the same time advised him that his work would be made as difficult as possible, and every hindrance thrown in his way, if he continued.

'Statements, seemingly inspired by the C.P.R., were forwarded from Montreal, purporting to have been telegraphed from Winnipeg, to the effect that the great seven months' strike which the U.B.R.E. has been engaged in on the Canadian Northern railway, was settled on the understanding that employees of the C.N.R. were to withdraw from the U.B.R.E., when the opposite of this was the truth, and the C.N.R. employees are now very rapidly joining the U.B.R.E. at that point.

The local trouble, which had already become acute, culminated on the 26th inst. by the discharge of H. P. Forrest, outstanding clerk in the local freight office, and a very old and worthy railway employee, and one who is entirely competent in every way, and is so admitted by all who work with him. He was advised that his discharge was for the following reason: George C. Hamilton, also a member of the U.B.R.E., and a resident of Winnipeg forwarded a shipment of household goods, sometimes designated as settlers' effects, from Winnipeg to Ashcroft, and then came on here, and, deciding to have the shipment forwarded here, naturally called at the local freight office of the C.P.R., and presented the prepaid shipping receipt, which was issued to him by the C.P.R. at Winnipeg, and requested that the shipment be ordered to Vancouver. Mr. Forrest, who happened at the moment to be serving at the counter, complied with Mr. Hamilton's request by writing a letter in Mr. Hamilton's name to the agent at Ashcroft, requesting that the shipment be forwarded to Vancouver. The request was complied with by the Ashcroft agent, and for this Mr. Forrest has been discharged, and the allegation made to him by the C.P.R. officers that he had defrauded the company by this action, owing to the fact that the local rates on settlers' effects from Winnipeg to Ashcroft, plus the local rate thence to Vancouver, is cheaper than the through rate from Winnipeg to Vancouver.

Of this, however, Mr. Forrest had no knowledge, not being either a biller or reviser, and had he been in possession of that knowledge, his action was still proper and in accordance with established methods and practices on all railways in North America. That is to say, when patrons desire shipments forwarded, the local freight staff invariably complies with such request. The fact that the sum of the two local rates happened to be less than the through rate covering both local hauls cannot prevent a shipper from forwarding goods from Winnipeg to Ashcroft, and then re-shipping to Vancouver whenever he desires to do so, and moreover the through rate is not in excess of the combined locals, because of the fact that the general freight department of the C.P.R. has issued instructions to use for the through rate the combination of the locals, if such combination would make a lower rate. Therefore from every possible point of view the action of Mr. Forrest was eminently right and proper.

However, he was discharged and the charge of fraud hurled at him, but the real cause was to precipitate trouble with the U.B.R.E. and crush the organization if possible.

Following this, David Inches, jr., business agent for Division No. 97, U.B.R.E., at Revelstoke, was discharged without sufficient cause, and not only has abundant evidence thus been furnished of the intention of the C.P.R. to destroy this Brotherhood, but the officers of the C.P.R. have stated plainly that they will spend a million dollars to destroy the U.B.R.E., because the plan of organization is laid on a foundation so broad and deep that they are unwilling that it shall gain a footing in Canada.

There being no possible hope of an amicable settlement with a management whose open and avowed policy is the destruction of this organization, it has pursued the only course open to it, that is to say, after 48 hours' notice, the members of the clerical department of the C.P.R., connected with the U.B.R.E. have ceased serving that company, and earnestly appeal to all union men in Vancouver and British Columbia to support their just cause, which is merely to preserve the union principle, or the right of those men to become and remain members of the organization which they have selected.

A meeting of the general body of the U.B.R.E. is being held this afternoon.
ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

EXHIBIT 46.

Additional bundle of papers put in by T. J. Shenton relating to affairs of the Nanaimo Union, &c., correspondence re legislation, &c.

EXHIBIT 47.

Copy telegram G. R. Scantlie to W. O. Miller.

MONTREAL, Feb. 24, 1903.

W. O. MILLER,
Vancouver, B.C.

Owing to change in staff I have position here for Wilson. Would like you to send him east at once. Will send good man Thursday to replace. Answer.

G. R. SCANTLIE.

EXHIBIT 48.

Copy telegram, S. Garnham to H. Wilson.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Mar. 18, 1903.

H. WILSON,
76 Mackay St.

Deny report emphatically; all firm, and fight going on in our favour.

S. GARNHAM.

EXHIBIT 49.

Copy of Pension Scheme of Canadian Pacific Railway.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY,
OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT,
MONTREAL, December 8, 1902.

The company feels that a time has arrived when some provision should be made for officers and permanent employees who, after long years of faithful service, have reached an age when they are unequal to the further performance of their duties. With this object in view, the directors, with the approval of the shareholders, have, after a careful study of the question, determined upon a plan of superannuation, the particulars of which are set out in the accompanying rules and regulations.

The system adopted calls for no contributions from the employees themselves.

The company hopes, by thus voluntarily establishing a system under which a continued income will be assured to those who after years of continuous service are by age or infirmity no longer fitted to perform their duties, and without which they might be left entirely without means of support, to build up amongst them a feeling of support, to build up amongst them a feeling of permanency in their employment, an enlarged interest in the company's welfare, and a desire to remain in and to devote their best efforts and attention to the company's service.

T. G. SHAUGHNESSY,
President.
PENSION DEPARTMENT.

Rules and Regulations.

1. The administration of the Pension Department shall be under the direction of a committee to be composed of the following officers of the company:—The president, the vice-presidents, the chief solicitor.

A secretary shall be appointed who shall have charge of the records of the department.

The president of the company shall be ex officio chairman of the committee.

2. The office of the Pension Department shall be at Montreal.

3. All communications shall be addressed to the Pension Department.

4. Meetings of the committee shall be held at 10 o'clock in the morning of the first Monday in each month. Other meetings may be held if necessary at the call of the secretary.

5. The committee shall have power:

   To make and enforce rules and regulations for the efficient operation of the pension department;

   To determine the eligibility of employees to receive allowances;

   To fix the amount of such allowances; and

   To prescribe the conditions under which such allowances may inure.

   They shall make rules for their own government not inconsistent with these regulations, and from time to time, as required, make reports of their action to the board of directors of the company.

   The proceedings of the committee shall be subject to the approval of the board.

6. The benefits of the pension system shall apply only to those persons who have been required to give their entire time to the company, or to the company and some other railway company or railway companies jointly. In cases of joint employment, and when the whole salary is not paid by this company, the pension to be paid by this company shall be estimated upon the proportion of salary or wages received from this company.

   All officers and employees who have attained the age of sixty-five years shall be retired, and such of said officers and employees who have been ten years or longer in the company's service shall be pensioned.

   The committee, however, shall have power to vary the foregoing rule and retain in the service any employee who has reached the age of sixty-five years if in their opinion it is in the interest of the company to do so; provided, however, that no employee who has reached the age of sixty-five years without having served ten years continuously in the company's service, and who shall be retained in the service after he attains the age of sixty-five years, shall be eligible for pension allowance.

8. Officers and employees between the age of sixty and sixty-five, may at the discretion of the committee, be retired with a pension either upon the application of such employee or upon the recommendation of the head of the department.

   Under special circumstances the committee shall have the power to retire with a pension employees who have not reached the age of sixty years, and the committee shall also have the power in special cases to add additional years to the actual term of service, provided that in each case the approval of the board shall have been first obtained.
Physical examination shall be made of employees recommended for retirement who are under sixty-five years of age, and a report with the recommendation of the company's surgeon shall be transmitted to the committee for consideration in dealing with such cases.

Six months' previous notice shall be given to employees who are to be compulsorily retired.

9. Retirement shall be made effective from the first days of January or July in each year.

10. The terms 'service' or 'in the service' shall refer to employment upon or in connection with any other railways operated by the company, and the service of any employee shall be considered as continuous from the date since which he has been continually employed upon such railways, whether prior or subsequent to their control or acquisition by the Canadian Pacific Railway; provided, however, that in no case shall such service be counted for any period prior to the incorporation of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

11. In computing service it shall be reckoned from the day since which the person has been in the service to the date when retired.

12. Leave of absence, suspension, dismissal, followed by reinstatement within one year, or a temporary lay-off on account of reduction of forces, need not necessarily be treated by the committee as constituting a breach in the continuity of the service, and the time when so laid off or absent, unless the employee has during such absence entered other employment, may be allowed by the committee to count as part of such service.

Persons voluntarily leaving the employment of the company when their services are required thereby become ineligible for pension allowance.

13. The pension allowance authorized shall be granted upon the following basis: For each year of service an allowance of one per cent of the average monthly pay received for the ten years preceding retirement. For instance, an employee has been in the service for forty years and received on an average for the last ten years fifty dollars per month, the pension allowance would be forty per cent of fifty dollars, or twenty dollars per month.

In calculating the period of service upon which the pension allowance is based, the broken period following the completion of a year, when it is less than six months, shall not be counted, when it exceeds six months it shall count as an additional year.

14. When pension allowances are authorized, pursuant to these regulations, they shall be paid monthly during the life of the beneficiary; provided, however, that the company may cancel any pension in case of gross misconduct on the part of the pensioner.

15. Pay-rolls covering all pension allowances, showing the names of those to whom such allowances have been made and the amount of such allowances, shall be prepared at the close of each month by the secretary of the department; shall be certified by him; shall be countersigned by at least one member of the committee; and shall be forwarded to the accounting department for registration and payment.

16. The officer in charge of the staff records of the company shall report to the pension department on the first days of January and July in each year, the names, with the particulars of service, of all employees who will attain, during the ensuing six months, the requisite age for consideration for a pension allowance.

17. The secretary of the pension department shall keep himself informed of the whereabouts of all employees who have been retired from the service, and shall require satisfactory evidence from each of such employees, at least once a year, that he still comes within the rules of the pension department.
18. In order that the direct personal relations between the company and its retired employees may be preserved and that they may continue to enjoy the benefit of the pension system, no assignment of pensions will be permitted or recognized.

19. The acceptance of a pension allowance does not debar a retired employee from engaging in other business, but such retired employee cannot so engage in other business nor re-enter the service of the company, except with the consent of the committee, without forfeiting his pension allowance.

20. The establishment and continuance of this system of pensions is entirely a voluntary act on the part of the company, and as the employees do not in any way contribute towards it, neither the action of the board of directors in establishing such a system, nor any other action now or hereafter taken by them or by the committee in the inauguration or operation of the pension department, shall be construed as giving to any officer or employee of the company a legal right to be retained in its service, or any legal right or claim to pension allowance. While it is the policy of the company to encourage its employees to remain with it, and by faithful service to earn a pension, the company expressly reserves its right and privilege to discharge at any time any officer, agent or employee, when the interest of the company, in its judgment, may so require, without liability for any claim for pension or other allowance than the salary or wages due and unpaid.

21. These rules and regulations shall take effect on January 1, 1903, and may be altered or repealed from time to time as the committee, subject to the approval of the board, may hereafter determine.

MONTREAL, NOVEMBER 10, 1902.

---

EXHIBIT 50.

Copy of alleged blacklist of C. P. R.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,
OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT,
NELSON, FEBRUARY 9, 1903.

CHAS. RUSSELL, ESQ.,
Supt. N. P. Railway
Missoula, Mont.

DEAR SIR,—Benjamin Franklin Wood is an applicant for employment in the operating department of this company. He states he was employed by operating department as switchman, at Missoula, from July to December, 1902.

Will you kindly favour us with information regarding his record? Your reply will be treated confidentially.

Yours truly,
WM. DOVXIE,
Superintendent.

PLEASE REPLY HEREBY.

The person above named was employed by C. Russell, superintendent, as switchman at Missoula, from January 28, 1902, to February 9, 1902, with the following record: Struck during day switchman strike; agitator; took prominent part in strike. Clearance reads 'dismissed account reduction of force.'

C. RUSSELL,

Date February 12, 1903.
EXHIBIT 51.

Copy of recommendation given by C.P.R. to W. H. Browne.

Canadian Pacific Railway Company,
Vancouver Station, January 10, 1903.

To whom it may concern.

This is to certify that the bearer, W. H. Browne has worked in the freight office of the C.P.R. for the last twelve years and is a competent clerk and is steady and reliable.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) J. M. McCREEERY.
Agent.

EXHIBIT 52.

Telegrams put in by agent of G.N.W. Telegraph Company at Vancouver, B.C., being copies of all telegrams sent or received by that office during March, April or May, 1901, referring in any way to the strike.

EXHIBIT 53.

Telegrams put in by agent of C.P.R. Telegraph Company at Vancouver, B.C., being copies of all telegrams sent or received by that office during March, April or May, 1901, referring in any way to the strike.

EXHIBIT 54.

E. P. Davis, K.C.,
Vancouver, B.C.

Dunsmaur authorizes me say that no prosecution will be undertaken against Estes by E. & N. if he returns give evidence before Royal Commission.

E. V. BODWELL.

EXHIBIT 55.

Statement of time of certain C.P.R. employees.

J. E. Baker, November 24, 8 a.m. to 2 a.m.; on time following day.
P. G. Denison. December 10, 8.05 to 8k, December 11, out for breakfast.
J. X. Kendall, 8.30 to 8k, December 11.
P. G. Denison, 3 p.m., December 13, to 4 a.m., December 14.
Kendall. 3 p.m., December 13, to 4 a.m., December 14.
P. G. Denison. 10k, December 27, to 21.15.
W. J. Marshall, 10k, December 27, to 22.30.
P. G. Denison, 8.30, December 30, to 2.30, December 31.
J. N. Kendall, 8.30, December 30, to 2.30, December 31.
P. G. Denison, 13k, December 31, to 5 a.m., January 1, 1903.
J. N. Kendall, 13k, December 31, to 5 a.m., January 1, 1903.
EXHIBIT 56.
Comparison of Vancouver and Portland rates of wages.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Occupation</th>
<th>Vancouver Rates</th>
<th>Portland, Oregon, Rates</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>$</td>
<td>cts.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stationmen—</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Baggagemaster</td>
<td>75</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Depotmaster</td>
<td>70</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Baggageman</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Local Freight Office—</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Customs clerk</td>
<td>65</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stenographer</td>
<td>65</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abstract clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Timekeeper</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Statistical clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Accountant</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asst. accountant</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Expenses clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coastwise S. S. clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abstract clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>O. S. and D. clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Claims clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asst. O. S. clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Outstanding clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Night biller</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S. S. clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asst. cashier</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cashier</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>L. P. agent</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chief biller</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chief clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Collector</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Warehouse clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revising clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asst. claims agent</td>
<td>Pacific div. 936 miles</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Freight Sheds—</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>General foreman</td>
<td>85</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asst.</td>
<td>85</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Car checkers</td>
<td>65</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Checkers</td>
<td>65</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cashier</td>
<td>65</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Audit office—</td>
<td>Pacific division 936 miles</td>
<td>35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Accountant</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chief clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Statistical clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pay roll clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appropriation clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Voucher clerk</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>General—</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trainmen's timekeeper</td>
<td>Chief clerk in div. supt.'s office</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Engineer's</td>
<td>Chief in master mechanic's office</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Staff record clerk</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Roadmaster's clerk</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

This system is not used on the S. P. There is only one auditing office and it is at San Francisco and audits the accounts of 8,100 miles of railway.

Not in S. P. system.

Expenses clerk

Chief in master mechanic's office

None such.
EXHIBIT 57.

C. P. R. comparison of Vancouver and Portland rates of wages.

Vancouver wharf and local freight shed.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Agent</td>
<td>125 00</td>
<td>140 00</td>
<td>$ 190 00</td>
<td>140 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chief clerk.</td>
<td>80 00</td>
<td>80 00</td>
<td>83 00</td>
<td>110 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cashier</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>75 00</td>
<td>110 00</td>
<td>95 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asst. cashier</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>75 00</td>
<td>75 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S. S. clerk.</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>75 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chief biller.</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asst.</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Night</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>55 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Accountant.</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asst. accountant.</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>O. S. clerk.</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clerk</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Claims clerk.</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>O. S. &amp; D.</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asst. O. S. &amp; D.</td>
<td>40 00</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Transfer</td>
<td>00 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revising</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abstract</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>55 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Statistical.</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>55 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Timekeeper or warehouse clerk.</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Foreman's clerk.</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Customs</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. N. S. S.</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Warehouse local.</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>55 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abstract</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clerk</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>40 00</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stenographer</td>
<td>30 00</td>
<td>35 00</td>
<td>55 00</td>
<td>55 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Expense, local.</td>
<td>45 00</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cashier, local.</td>
<td>65 00</td>
<td>75 00</td>
<td>75 00</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wharf foreman.</td>
<td>85 00</td>
<td>80 00</td>
<td>90 00</td>
<td>80 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asst.</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>70 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Foreman</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Checkers.</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Truckers.</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
<td>60 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Labourers.</td>
<td>0 22</td>
<td>0 22</td>
<td>2 25</td>
<td>2 25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; overtime.</td>
<td>0 33</td>
<td>0 33</td>
<td>0 25</td>
<td>0 25</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Chief auditor.
Propose to equalize the rates now paid for clerical help with what is paid south of Nelson, to wit: at Spokane; but, of course, taking into consideration the class and volume of work done, but the rates are not in any case to exceed those we propose to pay at Vancouver and Revelstoke.

Unfortunately, have not Nelson and Revelstoke pay-rolls by me at the moment, but will ask you to authorize an increase not to exceed $40 per month at both places ($25 at Nelson and $15 at Revelstoke, distributed as I may determine).

EXHIBIT 58.

EXHIBIT 59.
Preamble and Constitution of the American Labour Union, adopted at Salt Lake City, May 10-16, 1898, 26 pages.

EXHIBIT 60.
Letter from Wilson, Senkler & Bloomfield to F. J. Halton, dated April 14, 1903, re Alien Labour Act.

F. J. HALTON, Esq.,
Secretary U.B.R.E.,
City.

Dear Sir,—We were instructed some few weeks ago with respect to a clear case of importation of alien labour. As you know, proceedings cannot be taken under the Alien Labour Act without the consent of the Dominion Attorney General. In order to ascertain the procedure necessary under these circumstances, we wrote to Sir Chas. Hibbert Tupper for information on the subject, and asked him to interview the Minister of Justice and ascertain what was to be done. We inclose you a copy of his letter, which explains itself. In other words, the Act is really a dead letter by reason of the means adopted for its enforcement.

Yours faithfully,
WILSON, SENKLER & BLOOMFIELD.
My Dear Wilson,—Immediately on receipt of your letter of March 24, I saw the Minister of Justice, and his attitude confirms the general disaffection in regard to the Alien Labour Act. What he practically says is that these proceedings are under the administration of the Department of Labour, and applications to have proceedings taken must be considered there in the first instance. This means, of course, a formal presentation of your case to that department. Then, he says, if it be thought desirable for the Attorney General to intervene in any case, representation for that purpose should emanate from the Department of Labour.

I will see you shortly as I leave to-morrow for the coast, stopping a day at Winnipeg en route.

Your sincerely,

CHARLES HIBBERT TUPPER.

Charles Wilson, Esq., K.C.,
Vancouver, B.C.

EXHIBIT 62.

EXHIBIT 62.

EXHIBIT 63.

Letter from John McNeil to J. H. Watson.
Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Shipbuilders of America,
Kansas City, Kas., April 11, 1903.

J. H. Watson, Esq.,
Cor. Sec. L. No. 194,
Vancouver, B.C.

Dear Sir—and Brother,—Now, in regard to the boilermakers working on the C.P.R., will say, that under no consideration will we allow any of our members to violate a contract, and if any of the men attach themselves to any dual organization, or go out in sympathy with any other organization and violate their contract, they will immediately annul their cards, and a lodge that will encourage them to do so, we will call in their charter. We appreciate the sanctity of a contract, and if we do not live up to contracts, in a very short time the employers will refuse to make any with us. I hope you will so notify those members, as you can rest assured that we will do just as stated in this letter.

With best wishes and regards, I remain

Yours fraternally,
(Signed) JOHN McNEIL,
G.P.O.
EXHIBIT 64.

Letter from headquarters of Bakers' International Union, to members of Bakers' Union, Vancouver.

BAKERS AND CONFECTIONERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION,
Cleveland, Ohio, May 17, 1903.

Brothers,—At the last session of the international executive board the matter in which Union 46, and above members are, or have been involved in for some time was taken up and carefully considered.

When any one joins an organization, he pledges himself to abide by the decisions of the union, of the majority, and the union on the other hand promises to protect its members and give justice to every one affiliated.

In reading the letters from both sides the international executive board finds that the members as named have not followed the instructions of their local union, and therefore the action of the union was upheld in this case.

But in the finding of S. A. Nelson, the international executive board decided to instruct Union No. 46, to annul that fine, because according to our constitution any member has a right to communicate with the officers of the International Union and seek information.

Per order International Executive Board,

F. H. HANZBECKER,
Int. Secretary J. B. & C. I. U. of America.

P.S.—Absence from headquarters delayed me sending you this letter.

EXHIBIT 65.

List of parties who quit buying bread at Muir's bakery, Vancouver, on account of labour troubles.

The following are the names of parties who quit buying bread at Muir's bakery on account of union troubles:

524 Church.
New York Kitchen, Abbott St.
Carleton's Grocery, Dunsmuir and Hamilton.
De Rosey, 528 Helmcken St.
Savard.
Ostrum, 1018 Burnaby.
Owens, 1214 Hornby.
McQuillan, 431 Rooson.
543 Homer.
Jefferson, 804 Homer.
Sims, 1227 Richard.
Davis, 712 Homer.
Yendall, Richard St.
1126 Pender.
1133 Pender.
Babcock, Broughton and Pender Sts.
Hornby & Dunsmuir.
Heming, 1700 Blk. Georgia.
1156 Davie.
W. Anderson, 110 Dunlevy.
830 Dunlevy.
837 Gore Avenue.

808 Gore Avenue.
Mrs. Young, 233 Barnard.
1214 Princess St.
1256 Princess St.
Victoria House.
Taggart's Grocery, Granville.
Mrs. Stevenson, 7 Ave., Fairview.
J. Courtney, 292 West Ave.
McCulloch Bros.' Grocery.
Mrs. Aldred's Grocery, West Ave.
Aldred & Son, grocery, West Ave.
Mrs. Greaves, 1133 Comox.
Mrs. Chamberlane, 717 Burrard.
Thomson, 552 Howe St.
Mathews, 564 Howe St.
The Norden Hotel, Cordova St.
S. Cocker, 539 Hamilton.
331 Robson.
251 Georgia.
230 Georgia.
533 Homer.
(43 names in all.)
EXHIBIT 66.

Agreement between W. D. Muir, Vancouver, and his Employees.

AGREEMENT.

This agreement, made and entered into this 28th day of June, A.D. 1902, by and between W. D. Muir, Vancouver, party of the first part, and Bakers' and Confectioners' International Union, No. 46, of the City of Vancouver, B.C., party of the second part;

Witnesseth, That said party of the first part hereby agrees that the following scale of wages and shop rules shall govern the bakery operated by said party of the first part:

1. All men shall be furnished by Local Union No. 46, should said union be in a position to furnish them; should, however, the master baker engage a baker from outside of the organization, no objection will be made if such baker will join our union, unless there are charges against him from some other union.

2. Nine hours shall constitute a day's work, the aggregate hours not to exceed fifty-four (54) hours per week of six (6) days. The hour of starting work shall not be earlier than five (5) a.m., except on Mondays, when it may be not earlier than three (3) a.m.

3. Nine hours shall constitute a night's work, the aggregate hours not to exceed fifty-four (54) hours per week of six days, at the same rate of pay as day work, but on and after September 1, 1902, the master baker hereby agrees to substitute day work.

4. Journeymen shall be paid a minimum wage of fourteen (14) dollars per week; foremen, a minimum wage of sixteen (16) dollars per week; men working in single-handed shops same rate as foremen; jobbers shall be paid a minimum wage of two dollars and seventy-five cents (2.75) per day.

5. Only in cases of necessity shall overtime be allowed and paid at the rate of time and a half.

6. Time and a half shall be paid for work done on legal holidays.

7. The union label shall be furnished the master baker on demand so long as the firm upholds the agreement with the union; but the union reserves the right to agitate for the union label whether the master baker adopts the same or not.

8. In case of any grievance a committee of the union shall try to adjust the same with the firm.

9. One apprentice shall be allowed each shop.

10. No member of this union shall work with Oriental labour.

11. These regulations shall be in force till the first day of July next, 1903, and no alteration shall be made at the end of that period without fifteen days' notice by the party desiring to make the change. If no notice be given, then these regulations shall continue for a period of twelve months, and so on from year to year.

12. A copy of this scale of wages and shop rules shall be posted in a conspicuous place in each shop.

REGULATIONS FOR APPRENTICES.

Article I.

Sec. 1. An apprentice shall serve three years, not to be indentured. He shall serve his whole time in the bakeshop.

Sec. 2. Nothing less than twelve (12) months in one shop to count part of the three years; but if an employer should from any unforeseen cause be unable to fulfil his obligation to an apprentice, it shall be lawful for such apprentice to complete his term with another employer.

Sec. 3. In case of an apprentice wishing to leave a place and being able to show justification for doing so, he shall come under Section 2, Article 1.
Article II.

The minimum rate of pay for apprentices shall be as follows: For the first year, four ($4) dollars per week; second year, seven ($7) dollars per week; third year, ten ($10) dollars per week, without board; overtime per rate of wages; hours of work to be the same as those of journeymen.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals this 28th day of June, 1902.

W. D. MUIR,
Party of the First Part.

Bakers' and Confectioners' International Union No. 46, Party of the Second Part.
By WM. H. BARNES,
S. H. WALKER,

Notice.—All inquiries, complaints or other communications should be made in writing and addressed to the secretary of the union or the president consulted.

Agreement between Master and Journeymen Bakers of Vancouver, B.C.

(Endorsed by the International Executive Board and the Trades and Labour Council of Vancouver, B.C.)

This Memorandum of Agreement, made at Vancouver, B.C., on the 22nd day of August, 1901, by W. D. Muir, at No. 2414 Westminster Avenue, Vancouver, B.C., party of the first part, with W. A. Woods, for Bakers' and Confectioners' Union No. 46, of the City of Vancouver, party of the second part, Witnesseth:

1. All men shall be furnished by Local Union No. 46, should said union be in a position to furnish them; should, however, the master baker engage a baker from outside of the organization to introduce a new kind of bread, etc., no objection will be made if such baker is a union man or will join our union, unless there are charges against him from some other union.

2. (a.) Ten hours shall constitute a day's work, the aggregate hours not to exceed sixty hours per week of six days.

(b.) Nine hours shall constitute a night's work, the pay to be the same as for ten hours day work and the aggregate hours not to exceed fifty-four hours per week of six days.

(c.) Time of hours in each case shall be arranged to suit both parties.

3. Time and a half shall be paid for work done on all legal holidays.

4. Journeymen shall be paid a minimum wage of $14 per week; foremen, a minimum wage of $16 per week; jobbers, a minimum of $2.50 per day. Any workmen laid off for any part of a week more than two days shall be paid jobber's wages.

5. Only in case of necessity shall overtime be allowed and paid for at the rate of 25 cents per hour.

6. The union label shall be furnished the master baker on demand so long as the firm upholds the agreement with the union; but the union reserves the right to agitate for the union label whether the master baker adopts the same or not.

7. In case of any grievance, a committee of the union shall try to adjust the same with the firm.

8. One apprentice shall be allowed to each shop.

9. No member of this union shall work with Oriental labour.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

10. These regulations shall be in force until 1st July next, 1902, and no alteration be made at the end of that period without thirty days' notice by the party desiring to make the change.

If no notice be given, then these regulations shall be kept in force for a further period of twelve months, and so on from year to year.

Signed on behalf of Firm,

W. D. MUIR.

Signed on behalf of Union,

W. A. WOODS.

Mr. W. D. Muir expects a week's notice.

EXHIBIT 67.

Copy of 'The Bakers’ Journal,' published at Cleveland, O., dated May 23, 1903.

EXHIBIT 68.

Constitution of the Journeymen Bakers' and Confectioners' International Union of America.—United Printing Co., Cleveland, Ohio, 1901.

EXHIBIT 69.

Copy of circular placing certain persons in Vancouver on unfair list.

UNFAIR TO UNION LABOUR.

To Union Men of the City of Vancouver, Greeting:

Some time ago the Charles Woodward Company advertised for tenders for the construction of their new departmental store building on the corner of Abbott and Hastings streets. Special delegations and committees were sent by the Vancouver Building Trades Council at different times to Mr. Woodward and others associated with him, viz.: Messrs. Davidson Bros. and R. G. Buchanan & Co., and were always met with the assurance that they did not propose to move their building out of the city in order to do business, but they fully intended to work in harmony with the union men of the city, with whom they fully expected to do the bulk of their trade.

Three times were tenders called for, the previous ones having been too much in excess of the amount appropriated by the company at its formation for the construction of the building. Finally, after considering the third set of tenders for some time the contract awarded to E. Cook, a bitter opponent of organized labour, a man who has persistently exploited little local unions in order to keep the workers fighting among themselves, and to throw dust in their eyes to blind them to the main issue. In consequence of this, the Building Trades Council have placed these firms on the unfair list and request all union men of the city of Vancouver not to patronize the Chas. Woodward Company, corner of Westminster avenue and Harris street, Davidson Brothers, jewellers and silversmiths, Cordova street, R. G. Buchanan and Company, glassware and crockery dealers, Hastings street.

36a—51
This action on the part of the Building Trades Council was endorsed by the Trades and Labour Council on May 14, 1903, and by the following subordinate unions:

The Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners—A purely national organization, headquarters at Manchester, England, and branches all over the English-speaking world.
The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners International Union.
The Bricklayers and Masons' International Union.
The Journeymen Plumbers' International Union.
The Painters' and Decorators' International Union.
The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.
The Stonecutters' International Union.
The Building Labourers—A purely national union.
The Plasterers' International Union.
The Sheet Metal Workers' International Union.
The Lathers—Canadian National Union.

EXHIBIT 70.

Copy of letter, Chas. Woodward to C. I. Hilton.

March 6, 1903.

To Mr. Hilton,

Dear Sir,—Since talking with you in reference to our building and the best way of protecting union labour, our company has decided to go into this if possible and try to carry out your views. Believing as we do that the best interest of our city would be served, as well as the city at large.

Now will you kindly give me in writing the different clauses you think desirable for the protection of union labour, and we will endeavour to have them incorporated in our building agreement with Mr. Cook, who has been awarded the contract of building our store.

We hope to be able to fetch around a more friendly and better state of things between Mr. Cook and your respective unions; believing thereby to help to advance the prosperity of our city.

Kindly let me have these suggestions of yours on or before Monday forenoon, say 10 o'clock. If it is not convenient for you to deliver them to me, I will send for them if you will let me know by phone.

I am, respectfully,

CHARLES WOODWARD,
President.

EXHIBIT 71.

Copy of letter, Building Trades Council, Vancouver, to Chas. Woodward.

Chas. Woodward, Esq.,
Department Store,
Westminster Avenue.

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of yours of the 7th inst. and note with pleasure the desire expressed by you on behalf of your company to bring about an understanding between Mr. E. Cook and this council, and would state that there is no contractor in the city of Vancouver that this council would wish to be on friendly terms with more than the same Mr. Cook, who has proved to be a stout opponent and would, therefore, make a strong ally.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

The points that I would suggest for the protection of union labour in the building trade are as follows:—

Recognition of the Vancouver Building Trades Council and its card system, as now in force and effect, which of course carries along with it the rates of wages established in the various trades, or about to be established on the 1st of April; hours of work and overtime. All these minor points, however, are embodied in the point, viz., recognition of the council and running the job under the card system.

I am, dear Sir,

Yours obediently,

C. I. HILTON,
Business Agent.

EXHIBIT 72.

Copy of Circular signed by Building Trades Council, dated February, 1903.

VANCOUVER BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL.
February, 1903.

The following firms in the building and kindred trades are declared to be unfair to union labour. Union men will not work for them, nor on the same job with them. Contractors who sublet work to any of them will also be considered unfair to union labour and their names will be included in the next issue:—

Carpenter Contractors: Carter, Albert E., 1140 Barclay street; McDonald, Duncan, Prior street; Cook, Edward, 1057 Nelson street; Findlay & Hardy, 1368 Hornby; McLuckie, John, 75 Sixth avenue; Strain, Frank, 867 Prior street; Williamson, George, 674 Seventh avenue, Fairview; Young, James, 1025 Comox street.

Bricklayer and Mason Contractors: Carter, A. E., 1140 Barclay street; Cook, Edward, 1057 Nelson street; Creason, George, 548 Sixth avenue.

Master Electrical Workers: Bushong, Ivan, 555 Hornby street; Globe Electrical Company (trades under two names), A. LePage, manager, 1025 Nelson street; LePage, Alfred.

Master Painters and Decorators: Davis, Wm., 472 Eighth avenue; Gray, ——, 1303 Hornby street; McLeod, ——, city; Parkes, S., 1777 Seventh avenue, Fairview; Tompkins, B. S., 229 Thirteenth avenue east; Tompkins, Charles, 146 Eleventh avenue west.

Master Plasterers: Barrett, P. L., 501 Gore avenue; Churchill, Joseph, city; Fleming, John, Cedar Cottage; Mitton Bros., Harwood street; Waite, Wm., city.

Master Plumbers: Morrison Brothers, Mount Pleasant.

By order,
BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL.

EXHIBIT 73.

36a—51½
EXHIBIT 74.
Copy of ‘Daily World,’ Vancouver, May 29, 1903.

EXHIBIT 75.
Copy of the ‘Western Clarion,’ Vancouver, dated May 23, 1903.

EXHIBIT 76.
Calendar for year 1903, with the words: ‘The Gurney Foundry Co., of Toronto, makers of Oxford stoves and ranges, are unfair to organized labour. This firm also make gas stoves, radiators and furnaces. This fight has been endorsed by Toronto District Labour Council, Federated Metal Trades of Toronto, Dominion Trades Congress, American Federation of Labour, Iron Moulders’ Int. Union, Metal Polishers’ Int. Union, Stove Mounters’ Int. Union.’

EXHIBIT 77.
Copy of Circular—'Refuse to buy Oxford Stoves and Ranges.'

If it is fair for the workingmen and women of Canada to support and purchase the goods of a fair manufacturer, why should we not condemn and refuse to purchase the goods of the unfair manufacturer? We appeal to the workingmen and women of Canada to help us in our fight against the Gurney Foundry Company, of Toronto. If you intend to buy a stove or range, bear in mind that this firm has tried to crush our organizations and is still fighting us; therefore be governed accordingly. All goods made by this firm bear the name of Oxford. You! Brother toiler, as a consumer, are the final arbitrator. You shall decide whether this firm shall have the right to crush our organizations to the earth, whether it is tyranny and oppressions or our unions, and their demands for justice, that shall triumph. Help us to win by telling your friends that Oxford stoves and ranges are on the ‘unfair list’ of organized labour. This fight will continue until it is won.

IRON MOULDERS’ UNION, No. 28.
METAL POLISHERS’ UNION, No. 21.
STOVE MOUNTERS’ UNION, No. 14.

Pass to a friend.

EXHIBIT 78.
Constitution and By-laws of Building Trades Council, Vancouver, B.C. ‘Independent’ Print. 12 pages.

EXHIBIT 79.
Correspondence and Statement re Factory Hands’ Strike, Vancouver.

May 14.

We, the undersigned employees, do hereby request that on and after the first of June the hours for labour be as follows—9 hours per day for 5 days; 5 hours on Saturdays; 50 hours to constitute a week’s work; pay to remain same as for the present day of 10 hours; all overtime to be paid at the rate of time and a half.

Signed by

ALL FACTORY EMPLOYEES.
ON INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

The British Columbia Lumber and Shingle Manufacturers' Association.
Vancouver, B.C., May 19, 1903.

Messrs. Royal City Planing Mills, City.

Dear Sir,—I am instructed to forward you the following circular.
Whereas at a meeting of the B.C. Lumber and Shingle Manufacturers' Association it was unanimously agreed that it would be impossible for members to successfully operate their factory plants for but nine hours in competition with others which are operated for ten hours.

It is hereby resolved unanimously that all factories, members of this association shall be operated for ten hours per day.

You are therefore, hereby notified of this resolution, and requested to post a copy of this communication in your factory for the information of your employees.

Yours truly,
R. H. H. Alexander,
Secretary.

Vancouver, May 22, 1903.

The Secretary B. C. Lumber Association,
Vancouver.

Dear Sir,—Referring to the request made by us on the 14th instant to the various factories, and to which you replied on the 19th instant, we have to inform you that at a full meeting of the factory employees held on the 22nd instant, it was unanimously resolved that we adhere to the resolution previously passed and forwarded to you.

In the event of a strike being declared all present employees to be reinstated.

I am, dear sir, yours faithfully,

Secretary, Royal City Mills Factory.

NOTICE.

May 28, 1903.

All employees who decide not to continue work after June 1, for ten hours per day, are requested to remove their tools on Saturday and apply for their time.

British Columbia Mills Timber and Trading Company
Royal City Planing Mills Branch
E. C. Mahony,
Local Manager.

Vancouver, May 29, 1903.

To . . . . . . . .

Gentlemen,—On the 22nd instant, as a result of a unanimous resolution passed at a meeting of the Factory Employees of the various factories we forwarded a letter to Mr. Alexander, the secretary of the British Columbia Lumber and Shingle Manufacturers' Association, conveying to you the terms upon which the employees would work at the various mills, but, at the present time no reply has been received by our committee.

The following notice has been posted up at the mills:—

Notice.—All employees who decide not to work ten hours per day after June 1, will kindly remove their tools on Saturday and call at the office for their time.

(Sgd).
MINUTES OF EVIDENCE OF ROYAL COMMISSION

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

Are we to understand by this notice that the resolution we forwarded to you in good faith has been ignored by the factories? At a meeting of the factory employees held this evening it was unanimously agreed upon that we respectfully request an answer to our former communication, and we regret to say that we cannot continue to work for the factories under any other conditions than those laid down in our letter of the 22nd instant. Be good enough to give us your decision by noon on the 30th instant.

Signed on behalf of the factory employees.

MESSRS. BOWMAN & DUNN.

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 30, 1903.

Dear Sirs,—Replying to your communication just handed to us by your factory foreman, Mr. Luke, re letter sent by you to Mr. Alexander, secretary of the British Columbia Lumber and Shingle Manufacturers’ Association, in connection with your request of a nine-hour day, and your suggestion that the employees have been ignored, inasmuch as no reply had been received from that quarter, we beg to point out that the communication from the secretary was not addressed to the employees, but, on the contrary, was in the nature of instructions to each establishment affected.

Therefore we feel that the ignoring is entirely on your part in not forwarding your communication direct to us.

Respecting the notice posted in our factory under date of 28th instant, we can only say that our decision is final, and we regret that employees who have been with us so long should see fit to sever their connections with our company.

Yours truly,

BRITISH COLUMBIA MILLS TIMBER AND TRADING COMPANY
ROYAL CITY PLANING MILLS BRANCH

E. C. MAHONY,
Local Manager.

THE FACTORY WORKERS’ STRIKE.

The factory workers of Vancouver and New Westminster, numbering about 90 in Vancouver and 37 white men and 20 Japanese and Chinese, in New Westminster, are on strike, with a demand that they be conceded a nine-hour day at the same rate of pay as at present. These men are at the present time paid at a minimum rate of 27½ cents per hour for mechanics, with a maximum of 32½ cents per hour to bench hands.

The labour represented by these men is skilled, and represents machine workers and bench hands.

Their demand is shortly, that they are able to turn out as good and as much work in a nine hour day, and should not be asked to work longer. They ask the same rate of pay as they are now earning in ten hours. They desire Saturday afternoons off, and that fifty hours shall constitute a week’s work.

This is not essentially a union strike, as all the factory workers now making demands are not necessarily union men. The demand has been made by the individual workmen upon their separate employers. The reply, however, has come to them from the Lumbermen’s Association, and their demands have been refused. Reasonable notice was then given by the factory men that on the first of June, unless their demand was acceded to, they would cease work. In reply they were each served with a notice that those of them who did not desire to work the full ten hours under the arrangements as heretofore existing, would be expected on the first of June to remove their tools and apply for their time.

All the factory hands in Vancouver and New Westminster, with the exception of one sticker man and a boy, have ceased work. This applies to the Royal City Mills, Vancouver and New Westminster; to Heaps & Co.'s mill, Vancouver; to the Vancouver Sash and Door Factory, Vancouver; and to Robertson and Hackett, Vancouver.

The carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers, and painters of Vancouver have all been accorded an eight hour day, their demands having so far as the carpenters been conceded as the result of a strike for better conditions this spring.

The millmen will meet the strike either by shutting down, or by importing labour from eastern Ontario, or from the United States.

The millmen have met the situation by a combination which has for its object the boycotting of the striking factory hands. As an evidence of this, H. D. and J. H. McGregor, two brothers, having applied to Stanley J. Stevens, foreman or partner with Mr. Limpkie, who is engaged on the construction of the Fee building on Granville Street, were turned off the said job after having started to work on June 3rd, by Mr. Limpkie.

Mr. Limpkie is a member of the Builders' Exchange, an organization composed of contractors.

It will be remembered that evidence was adduced on Saturday last, June 13, during the sitting of the Commission, to show that these contractors during their strike with the carpenters, had called the millmen to their assistance and established a boycott of union strikers by refusing to supply lumber or material of any kind to any one who employed union labour. It now appears that the millmen have obtained from the contractors assistance along the same lines, and the contractors are now, for the purpose of assisting the millmen, refusing to employ striking factory hands.

Mr. Limpkie, when discharging the McGregor brothers, stated that the Builders' Exchange, on the previous night, had passed a resolution to the effect that no striking workers would be allowed to work on outside buildings. This statement was made in the presence of E. H. Macey, who can corroborate the evidence of the Mc Gregors.

It is understood that the resolution passed by the Builders' Exchange for the purpose of helping the millmen, goes further, and states that none of the striking factory hands will be allowed to work at any factory other than the one where they have previously been employed.

It would appear that a combination of employers has been made for the purpose of meeting and resisting every demand of labour, whether the demand be a reasonable one or the reverse. It is difficult to foresee what the future will be if combinations of employers are made for the purpose of coercing the employees irrespective of questions of right or wrong.

The factory hands are willing to submit their position to the arbitration of a properly constituted board, and they urge the following considerations as reasons why their demand should be acceded to:

1. Ten hours, as in other trades and under like circumstances, are too long for a day's work.
2. That a man can do as much in nine hours in most cases as in ten.
3. That the factory dust, especially where cedar is exclusively used, is injurious to the health, the cedar dust containing much poisonous matter.
4. That if carpenters outside factories are worth 40 cents per hour, the factory man should be worth $3 31/2 to 35 cents per hour.
5. That no other trade or industry is working more than nine hours, and in many similar employments not more than eight hours.
6. Factory men, in addition to their long hours, suffer much inconvenience and some loss in the withholding of their earnings in the following manner:

The Vancouver Sash and Door Company pay semi-monthly, withholding two weeks' back pay. The Royal City Planing Mills pay on the 24th of the month, holding back 24 days' pay. Robertson and Hackett pay on the 20th of each month, holding back 20 days' pay. Heaps and Company pay on the 15th of each month, holding back 15 days' pay. The interest and use of this money would be of much value to the workmen. As it is, in addition to the grievances under which the men suffer, from $5,000 to $10,000 of their wages properly earned, are left in the hands of their employers or their bankers.
If blowers were kept generally in operation during working hours in all the mills, the danger to employees from the dust would be much reduced. To keep these blowers in operation, however, costs the employers something, and without proper enforcement of sanitary conditions in factories the men will continue to be laid off from time to time in ill-health on account of breathing the poisonous atmosphere.

Some of the factories recognize this condition, and work blowers part of the time. They should be worked continuously and generally.

To allow men a nine-hour day and a half day on Saturday would enable them to bring greater energy and more heart to their employment.

Where the action of the workmen depends entirely upon machinery, it may be conceded that more work can be got through in ten hours than in nine, but during the later hours of the day, or while a man is fatigued, much greater chance of accident and casualty is run.

When one considers the profits that the millmen are making as compared with the cost of production of the articles they have for sale, the demand of the factory workers seems not only reasonable, but trivial. The cost of living is rapidly increasing. The combinations of the trusts and of the employers have a tendency which has been exhibited in every line to raise the cost to the consumer. To labour must be ascribed the production of all commodities, and even a cursory examination will disclose the fact that they receive a mere trifle of what they produce.

The demand of the striking carpenters this spring resulted in a recognition that the wages did not keep pace with the increased cost of living.

A memorandum attached hereto gives a statement of the cost of production of some of the commodities offered for sale by the millmen, the commodities being those produced by the factory workers now on strike. These statements have been carefully prepared and their accuracy vouched for by the undersigned.

Dated at Vancouver, this 15th day of June, 1903, and signed on behalf of the factory workers by

J. EDWARD BIRD,
On behalf of the factory workers on strike.

BRITISH COLUMBIA TO WIT:

In the matter of the factory workers' strike and of their demands for a nine hour day with half holiday on Saturday.

I, Major S. Williams, of the city of Vancouver, in the Province of British Columbia, glazier, having had twenty-three years' experience in sash and door work in every branch of that industry, and, I, Alma Pengelly, of the same place, carpenter, do solemnly declare that I have gone into the statement hereunto annexed marked 'memorandum of cost of production of certain articles produced at the factories mentioned in the annexed memorandum,' and I say that the estimate given in such memorandum of the cost of production of the door and window and of the other things mentioned therein, is a fair and reasonable estimate, allowing every doubt in favour of the millmen. The figures therein set forth as an estimate of the cost of production of the articles is, if anything, excessive, and I believe that the articles mentioned can be produced at even a less cost, and I make this solemn declaration in conjunction with the other party above mentioned conscientiously believing the same to be true, and that this declaration has the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of the Act respecting 'Extra Judicial Oaths.'

Affirmed by Major S. Williams and Alma Pengelly, before me at the city of Vancouver, in the province of British Columbia, this 22nd day of June, 1903.

J. EDWARD BIRD,
A Notary Public in and for B.C.

MAJOR S. WILLIAMS.
A. PENGELLY.
MEMORANDUM OF THE COST OF PRODUCTION OF CERTAIN ARTICLES NOW PRODUCED AT THE FACTORIES MENTIONED IN THE ANNEXED MEMORANDUM.

1. A door 2 ft. 8 in. x 6 ft. 8 in. x 1½ in. can be produced at a cost of 71 cents. This includes material estimated at $22 per thousand, the labour and a reasonable allowance for the hire of machines. This door is sold at $2.75.

2. A window 24 x 30 x 1½ in., with two lights, including glazing and all complete, can be produced at $1.16 and retails at $2.75.

3. Two men working six hours and one man working ten hours will earn at a mauling sticker a profit of $65 clear, reckoning material at $22 per thousand. Their joint production sells for $100. The labour, material and hire of machines totals $35.

4. All other articles of commerce produced at the factories can be shown to be produced at about the same ratio of cost and profit.

EXHIBIT A.
Constitution and By-laws of the Western Federation of Miners, headquarters at Denver, Colorado.

EXHIBIT B.
Copy of Miners' Magazine, official organ of the W.F.M., for the month of April, 1903.

EXHIBIT C.
Constitution and By-laws of the Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders of America.

EXHIBIT D.
By-laws of Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders, Victoria Lodge, No. 191. G.S.R. Co. Print, Victoria, B.C., 4 pages.

EXHIBIT E.
Constitution and outline of the American Federation of Labour, headquarters, Washington, D.C.

EXHIBIT F.
List of organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labour, issued by A.F. of M., at headquarters in Washington, D.C.

EXHIBIT G.
Constitution and By-laws of the B.C. Steamshipmen's Society of Vancouver and Victoria, B.C., 28 pages.
EXHIBIT H.

Constitution and By-laws of Shipcarpenters and Caulkers' Association of the ports of Victoria and Esquimalt, No. 29. Victoria P. and P. Co. Print, 27 pages.

EXHIBIT I.

Constitution and By-laws of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Moline, Ill., 1901, 47 pages.

EXHIBIT J.

EXHIBIT K.

EXHIBIT L.

Constitution of Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees of America.

EXHIBIT M.

Constitution of International Typographical Union. International Typographical Union, Nos. 7 to 12 DeSoto Building, Indianapolis, 1903.

EXHIBIT N.

EXHIBIT O.

EXHIBIT P.

EXHIBIT Q.

Monthly Report of Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners for the American and Canadian District. Published at New York, April, 1903.

EXHIBIT R.

Copy of 'Railway Employees' Journal,' published at San Francisco, Cal., dated April 9, 1903.

EXHIBIT S.

Constitution and By-laws of the Journeymen Stonecutters' Association of North America. 32 pages.

EXHIBIT T.

EXHIBIT U.

The 'Miners' Magazine,' the Official Organ of the Western Federation of Miners for January, 1903. Published at Denver, Col.

EXHIBIT V.

Constitution and By-laws of the Nanaimo Miners' Union, No. 177, W.F.M. Nanaimo 'Free Press' Print, 20 pages.
Accidents at Trent River Bridge

(Accident at Trent River Bridge) .............................................. 502

Accidents, Mining, lack of proper precautions against—

(Accident of Hall) ................................................................. 495, 496
(Accident of Matthews) ........................................................... 503

Agitators—

Denounced—(Evidence of Dunsmuir) ........................................ 239
Objected to—(Evidence of Robertson) ....................................... 275
Objected to by Contractors—(Evidence of Cook) .......................... 738
Objected to by Railways—(Evidence of Browne) .......................... 627
Often have good reason—(Evidence of Kelly) .............................. 152
Only disadvantage of Unions—Evidence of Seabrooke) ................. 105
Should be Law against—(Evidence of Piper) ............................... 149
Suppression of, should be left to Unions—(Evidence of McXiven) .... 208
Unnecessary—(Evidence of Russell) ........................................... 190
Wrongly blamed—(Evidence of Foley) ....................................... 679

Agreements as to Notice of Strikes—

(Evidence of Bullen) .............................................................. 126
(Evidence of McNiven) ........................................................... 202
(Evidence of Neave) ............................................................... 306
(Evidence of Booth) ............................................................... 324, 325
(Evidence of Shenton) ............................................................. 329

Agreements as to Wages—(Evidence of Lauderbach) ....................... 285, 287
Proposed with Nanaimo Miners—(Evidence of Russell) ................. 344

Agreements, National, violations of—(Evidence of Foley) ............... 679

Albion Iron Works ................................................................. 101

Alexandria Miners' Union ....................................................... 41, 238, 366

Alien Labour—

Importation of—

(Evidence of Baker) ............................................................. 19, 74
(Evidence of Foley) ............................................................... 674, 675
International Unions a protection against—(Evidence of Mottishaw, sr.) 60
Should be excluded—(Evidence of Kelly) .................................... 153

Alien Labour Act—

Advantage of, if effective—(Evidence of Baker) ............................ 72
Consent of Attorney General not necessary for proceeding under—(Evidence of King) ................. 668, 669
Convictions under—(Evidence of King) ..................................... 669
Enforcement of by Department of Labour—(Evidence of King) ........ 670 Improved Law necessary—Evidence of Piper) .............................. 149

Ineffective—

(Evidence of Dales) ............................................................... 649
(Evidence of Foley) ............................................................... 673
(Wilson, counsel) ................................................................. 4, 19

Judges, Powers of as regards enforcement—(Evidence of King) ...... 671
Letter, Wilson, Senkler & Bloomfield to F. J. Halton, stating law inoper-ative ................................................................. 667, 796

Letter, Sir C. H. Tupper to C. Wilson, re enforcement of ............. 667, 797
INDEX

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

Allans, Shipwrights at Victoria, Strike over employment of..............122, 124
Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees—
B. C. Street Railway Unions affiliated with..................................193
Constitution of.................................................................193, 810
Powers of as to Strike...........................................................193
Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners.............................214
Benefit System of.......................................................................222
Constitution of...........................................................................222, 720
Membership of.............................................................................215, 223
Powers of Executive as to Strikes..................................................215, 720
Reports of....................................................................................310, 811
Representation in...........................................................................223
Rules of.........................................................................................810
American Academy of Political and Social Science—Extract from Annals of...209
American Federation of Carpenters and Joiners.................................214
American Federation of Labour—
Administration of criticised................................................................562
Constitution of...............................................................................129, 809
Difference between, and American Labour Union..................................94, 95
Membership of..................................................................................94
Organizations affiliated with............................................................809
Typographical Union affiliated with...................................................94
Western Federation of Miners preferred to—(Evidence of Shenton)........328
'American Industries'—Its Opinion of Trades Unions.............................27
American Labour Union....................................................................28 Affiliation of U. B. R. E. with—
(Evidence of Johnstone)...................................................................544
(Evidence of Dennison).....................................................................644
Circular by President Estes to Unions affiliated with..........................780
Constitution of................................................................................796
Co-operation of in U. B. R. E. Strike—(Evidence of Johnstone)............544
Co-operation of Western Federation of Miners with—(Evidence of Baker)...33
Rival of American Federation of Labour—(Evidence of Twigg).............94
Socialism in—
(Evidence of Dales)........................................................................650
(Evidence of Dennison).....................................................................644
(Evidence of Twigg).........................................................................94, 133
'Amphion' Contract............................................................................105
Anarchy attributed to Trades Unionism................................................27
Annals of American Academy of Political and Social Science—Extract from...209
Anthony, William, Evidence of..........................................................431, 436, 472
Blacklisting of Unionists....................................................................434
Compulsory Arbitration favoured.........................................................433
Cumberland Miners' Strike—
Ballot in favour of............................................................................433
Not sympathetic..................................................................................474
Recognition of Union demanded.........................................................432
Wages of Miners.................................................................................435
Arbitration—
Denounced by 'Miners' Magazine'......................................................252
Favoured—
(Evidence of Neave)........................................................................312
(Evidence of Penkith)........................................................................118
(Evidence of Twigg)..........................................................................92
Arbitration—Con.
Regarded as impracticable—(Evidence of Johnstone)............. 570
Satisfactory operation of—(Evidence of Russell)................... 189
Western Federation of Miners, position of respecting—(Evidence of Baker) 71 Arbitration, compulsory—
Approved—
(Evidence of Anthony)................................................. 433
(Evidence of Bolden).................................................. 218
(Evidence of Foley).................................................... 681, 683
(Evidence of Hall)..................................................... 200
(Evidence of McNiven)................................................. 211
(Evidence of Marpole)................................................ 685, 686
(Evidence of Smith)................................................... 261
Difficulty of enforcing Awards—(Evidence of McNiven)............. 213
Objected to by Unions—(Evidence of Bolden)......................... 218 Objections to—(Evidence of Robins).................................. 302
Opposed—
(Evidence of Bartley)................................................. 722
(Evidence of Carroll).................................................. 278
(Evidence of Halliday)................................................ 418
(Evidence of Hammond).............................................. 233
(Evidence of Kelly).................................................... 151
(Evidence of McKay).................................................. 234
(Evidence of Robertson)............................................. 276
(Evidence of Twigg).................................................. 96
Regarded as favourable to Employers—(Evidence of Barnes)........ 364
Regarded as impracticable—
(Evidence of Bryden).................................................. 267, 268
(Evidence of Matthews)............................................. 485
(Evidence of Shenton).............................................. 342
(Evidence of Woodburn)........................................... 271
Third Arbitrator—
Difficulty of agreeing on—(Evidence of Baker)..................... 73
Should be appointed by Judge—
(Evidence of Penkith)................................................ 118
(Evidence of Seahrooke)............................................. 110
Should be Business Man—(Evidence of Leiser)....................... 128
Should be Government Appointment—(Evidence of McNiven)...... 211
Should be Judge—(Evidence of Marpole)................................ 685
Should be Permanent Official—(Evidence of Bullen)................ 125
Archibald, W. F., Telegrams re production of Messages—(Evidence of King) 475
Archibald, W. F., Evidence of, production of Telegrams re Strike........ 506, 507
Armstrong, John....................................................... 205 Assaults on Non-unionists—
(Evidence of Bullen)................................................ 137, 138, 142
(Evidence of Troupe).............................................. 229
Astori, Louis, Evidence of; ordered to remove from Extension to Ladysmith, 85-87
Athenaum, Steamer.................................................... 637, 708
Attorney General, consent of not necessary to Proceedings under Alien Labour
Act—(Evidence of King).................................................. 608, 669
Australian Strike......................................................... 680
Awards under Compulsory Arbitration, difficulty of enforcing—(Evidence of McNiven)................. 213
Bailey, Mrs. J. W....................................................... 67, 245
Baker, James A.—
Correspondence of G. Richards with, re Ladysmith Strike—(Evidence of Richards) ........................................ 434-440
Letters from to Cumberland Miners' Union ........................................ 756, 757
Movements of—(Evidence of Shenton) ........................................ 527, 529
Organized Ladysmith Miners' Union—
(Evidence of Carroll) ........................................ 248
(Evidence of Pritchard) ........................................ 37
(Evidence of Shenton) ........................................ 521
Organized Cumberland Miners' Union—
(Evidence of Barber) ........................................ 383
(Evidence of Reed) ........................................ 461, 462
Statements of—
(Evidence of Lauderbach) ........................................ 285, 286
(Evidence of Mottishaw) ........................................ 289
(Evidence of Robertson) ........................................ 278, 279
Telegram from Moyer to, re Ladysmith Strike—
(Evidence of Barber) ........................................ 396, 474
(Evidence of Halliday) ........................................ 472
(Evidence of Hutchinson) ........................................ 445-448
(Evidence of Shenton) ........................................ 510, 586
Telegram to announcing Decision of Cumberland Miners' Union to Strike—
(Evidence of Richards) ........................................ 470
Telegram to Moyer asking Consent to Cumberland Strike in sympathy with Ladysmith—(Evidence of King) ........................................ 475
Baker, James A., Evidence of ........................................ S-36, 67-74
Alien Labour Act, should be effective ........................................ 72
Alien Labour, importation of ........................................ 19, 74
Arbitration, compulsory in New Zealand ........................................ 73
Boycotting ........................................ 34
Government interference in Strikes ........................................ 73, 74
Incorporation of Trade Unions ........................................ 30, 36
International Organization of Capital ........................................ 74
'Miners' Magazine' ........................................ 30, 31
Picketing ........................................ 34
Politics in Trades Unions ........................................ 34
Socialism Approved ........................................ 33
Universal Organization as a Remedy ........................................ 73
Western Federation of Miners—
Action of, in Ladysmith Strike ........................................ 23-28
Affiliation with other Bodies ........................................ 63
Membership and Finances of ........................................ 28, 29, 31, 33, 62
Militia, Attitude regarding ........................................ 29
Powers of, as to Sympathetic Strikes ........................................ 22
Purposes and objects of ........................................ 8-19
Socialism in ........................................ 27, 29
Strikes, Attitude towards ........................................ 71, 73
'Bakers and Confectioners' Journal' ........................................ 801
Blacklist in ........................................ 715
Bakers' Strike, Vancouver, in sympathy with U.B.R.E.—
(Evidence of Muir) ........................................ 697-700
(Evidence of Nelson) ........................................ 703, 704
(Evidence of Willand) ........................................ .700-702, 704
Bakers' Union. (See Journeymen Bakers' Union.)
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Bakery, Boycott of— .......................... 697-700
(Evidence of Muir) ........................................ 697-700
(Evidence of Wilband) .......................... 700-702
(Evidence of Woodward) ......................... 736
List of Persons who quit buying Bread at Muir's Bakery ... 798

Ballot, Strikes voted on by— .......................... 118
(Evidence of Penkitb) ......................... 118
(Evidence of Anthony) .......................... 433
Barber, O. W.— ........................................ 413
Barber, O. W.— ........................................ 413
Evidence of ........................................... 383-410, 473, 474
Chinese and Japanese—Instructions of W. F. of M. to organize. 396-398, 406-409
Cumberland Miners' Union— .......................... 393
Financial Aid to Ladysmith Strikers voted by. ............... 393
Membership of ........................................ 384, 402
Organization of ........................................ 383, 390-402
Cumberland Miners' Strike .......................... 385
Approved by Executive W. F. of M. .......................... 386
Cause of—Refusal of Work to Unionists. ................. 387
Interview of Union Committee with Manager .................. 398
Not a Sympathetic Strike .......................... 409, 410, 473
Recognition of Union refused .......................... 389, 403
Wages, no Complaint as to .......................... 392

Telegrams, Moyer to Baker re Ladysmith Strike .................. 474
Unions, advantages of .......................... 385

Barnes, Aaron ............................................. 246

Barnes, Aaron, Evidence of ......................... 351-369

Cavil system of assigning work in mines .......................... 354
Compulsory Arbitration, in favour of Employers ............. 388
Extension preferable to Ladysmith as Place of Residence .... 356
Favouritism by Employers .......................... 392, 393, 396
Internationalism favoured .......................... 392, 392

Ladysmith Strike—
Propositions for settlement of ......................... 356, 361
Rejection of, by Miners .......................... 327
W. F. of M. men refuse to abandon ......................... 327, 329, 362

Narrow Work in Mines .......................... 363, 364
Taxation of Land Values favoured .......................... 362
Unions, advantages of .......................... 351
Union officers at Comox discharged .......................... 351, 352
W. F. of M. Contracts with Employers referred to ............. 367

Bartley, George, Evidence of ......................... 721-723
Compulsory Arbitration opposed .......................... 722
Incorporation of Unions .......................... 721
Politics in Unions .......................... 723
 Strikes due to inexperience .......................... 723
Sympathetic Strikes opposed by Typographical Union ......... 722

Bate, Hugh .......................... 244

Beamish Case ............................................. 652

Beasley, Mr., C.P.R ........................................ 624, 639
Benefits, fraternal .......................... 192, 214, 216
(Evidence of Hammond) .......................... 222
(Evidence of Johnstone) .......................... 543

Bertha, Steamer, Dispute over repairing ......................... 122, 123

36a—52
INDEX

Bickell, Thomas .......................................................... 400, 413
Bird, J. E., Counsel for U.B.R.E. ................................. 514

Blacklisting (See also "Boycoting," "Unfair," &c.)—

By Canadian Pacific Railway—
Agreement with other Companies not to employ Men discharged for cause—

(Evidence of Browne) .................................................. 624-626
(Evidence of McMillan) .......................................... 574
(Evidence of Wilson) .................................................. 590

Clearance stating Cause of Discharge—

(Evidence of Marpole) ............................................. 706
(Evidence of Wilson) .................................................. 583

Copy of Alleged Blacklist ........................................... 792

Existence of, denied—(Evidence of Marpole) ................. 705

Striker refused Work at Seattle—(Evidence of Wilson) .... 591

Unionists—(Evidence of Browne) .................................. 630, 631

By Unionists—(Evidence of Browne) .............................. 630, 631

By Vancouver Trade & Labour Council—

(Evidence of Russell) ............................................. 725

In Baker's Journal—(Evidence of Wilband) ................. 715, 716

Of Contractor—(Evidence of Cook) ......................... 737

Of Gurney Stoves ........................................................ 804

(Of Evidence of Woodward) ...................................... 736

Of Merchant, by Vancouver Building Trades Council—(Evidence of Woodward) ............................................. 716-721

Of Unfair Employers—

(Evidence of McMillan) .......................................... 576
(Evidence of Muir) .................................................. 699

(Evidence of Wilband) ............................................. 701

Of Scabs—

(Evidence of Carroll) ............................................. 251
(Evidence of Mottishaw) ....................................... 294

Disapproved—(Evidence of Watson) ............................. 692

Of Unionists—

(Evidence of Anthony) ............................................ 434
(Evidence of Twigg) ................................................ 98

Blacksmiths, International Brotherhood of—

Constitution and By-laws of ..................................... 154

Blacksmiths' Journal, urges Employers to Organize .......... 810

Blacksmiths' Strike, Victoria—(Evidence of Ladingham) .... 154, 155

Cause of—Demand for increased Wage and shorter Hours .... 155

Strike successful ................................................... 155

Blacksmiths—Wages of—

Hours of Labour of .............................................. 155

Blind River ........................................................... 381

Barding-house, Boycott of, in U.B.R.E. Strike—(Evidence of McDonald) ............................................. 695-697

Bodwell, Mr., Counsel for Wellington Collieries Co. ........ 1, 88

Boilermakers' and Iron Shipbuilders' Brotherhood of America—

Action of in Victoria Boilermakers' Strike ................ 114
Boilermakers' Union, Victoria, affiliated with ............. 112
Constitution of ................................................... 112, 688, 809
Membership of ..................................................... 112, 688

Opposed to Sympathetic Strikes ................................ 690, 695
Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders, Victoria—
By-laws of .............................................. 809
Hours of Labour of ..................................... 109
Wages of .................................................. 107, 109, 156
Boilermakers' Journal—Letter to disavowed—(Evidence of Watson) .. 693
Boilermakers' Strikes, Victoria—
On job of repairing Ship Topeka—for 8 hours—Evidence of Seabrooke) .. 107
Union men refuse work on Contract in sympathy with Seattle Strikers—
(Evidence of Penkith) .................................. 112-115
(Evidence of Seabrooke) .................................. 101-105
(Evidence of Watson) .................................. 692, 693
Bolden, J. W., Evidence of .................................. 213-222
Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners—
Membership of ............................................ 215
Powers of Executive re Strikes .................................. 215
American Federation of Carpenters and Joiners—
Carpenters' Union .......................................... 214
Benefits, fraternal ........................................ 214, 216
Contractors, position of, in .................................. 216
Strike of .................................................. 216
Compulsory Arbitration—Unions opposed to .................................. 218
Conciliation ................................................ 219
Government interference sometimes beneficial .................................. 219
Incorporation of Unions ........................................ 217
Internationalism .......................................... 219
Socialism among Unionists ..................................... 221
Sympathetic Strikes, when justified .................................. 220
Technical Education ......................................... 222
Trades and Labour Council, Victoria—
Conditions of Membership ................................... 219
Policy as to Strikes ......................................... 219
Booth, Richard, Evidence of ................................... 317, 326
Agreements with Employers, how far binding .................................. 324, 325
Estes, George, power to order sympathetic Strike .................................. 323
Foreign interference, Objections to .................................. 322, 323
Sympathetic Strikes, limits of .................................. 324, 325
Western Federation of Miners—
Ballot of Nanaimo Miners on Affiliation with .................................. 317, 318
Socialism in ................................................ 330
Reasons for affiliation with .................................... 321
Boulthee, Judge .............................................. 652
Bosworth, Mr., C.P.R ......................................... 613
Bowes, Wallace, Evidence of, Telegrams produced by ....................... 505
Boyce, Edward .............................................. 370, 376
Boyce, Tully ................................................ 390, 403
Boyocoting (See also 'Blacklisting,' 'Unfair,' &c.)—
Advertisements of in newspapers .................................... 736
Approved of—(Evidence of Johnstone) .................................. 567
By Lumber Dealers—
(Evidence of Cooke) ....................................... 741
(Evidence of Hepburn) ...................................... 712-714
(Evidence of Meiss) ....................................... 736
By Western Federation of Miners—(Evidence of Baker) ....................... 34, 35 Considered legitimate—(Evidence of Twigg) .................................. 95
36a—524
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Boycotting—Con.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Disapproved of—(Evidence of Halliday)</td>
<td>415</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Of Bakery, by Vancouver Unionists—(Evidence of Woodward)</td>
<td>736</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Of Bakery supplying C. P. N. boats—</td>
<td>679-700</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Muir)</td>
<td>679-700</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Wilband)</td>
<td>700</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Of Boarding-house in U.B.R.E. Strike—(Evidence of McDonald)</td>
<td>695-697</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Of Gurney Foundry Co.</td>
<td>736</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shipwrights don't resort to—(Evidence of Piper)</td>
<td>147</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Union Labor as Substitute for</td>
<td>267</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bramley, Jonathan</td>
<td>243</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bramley, Jonathan, Evidence of respecting sale of lots in Extension</td>
<td>75-78</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bricklayers' Union, Victoria—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arbitration successfully adopted by</td>
<td>189</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Constitution of</td>
<td>187-810</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Withdrawal of from International</td>
<td>188</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bricklayers, Victoria, Wages of</td>
<td>189</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hours of Labour of</td>
<td>191</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bricklayers, Vancouver, Strike of</td>
<td>745</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brickmaking. Chinese employed in—(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>brick manufacturers, Victoria, Combine among—(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>191</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British Columbia Electric Railway</td>
<td>192-195</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British Columbia, Labour conditions of—(Evidence of Bulley)</td>
<td>169</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British Columbia Manufacturing Association, Boycotting by—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Cook)</td>
<td>741</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Hepburn)</td>
<td>742-744</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Meiss)</td>
<td>726</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British Columbia Marine Railway Co., Limited, Strike against</td>
<td>121-127</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British Columbia Mining Association</td>
<td>252</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British Columbia Steamshipmen’s Society (See also ‘Steamshipmen’s Strike’)—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreement with Canarian Pacific Navigation Co.</td>
<td>750</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Constitution of</td>
<td>184, 177, 171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Discharge of Member from Employment for non-payment of Dues</td>
<td>180-183</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Expelled Members, treatment of</td>
<td>184</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Incorporation of</td>
<td>180, 185</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Initiation Ritual of</td>
<td>750</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Membership of</td>
<td>185</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oath of</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strike of against C. P. Navigation Co., &amp;c</td>
<td>134-143, 158-171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brooke, Robert</td>
<td>559</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brooks, Thomas</td>
<td>252</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Browne, W. H., Evidence of</td>
<td>622-631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agitators, Objected to by Railways</td>
<td>627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Canadian Pacific Railway, Opposition of to Unions</td>
<td>629</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clearance System, Operation of</td>
<td>624-626</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Picketing</td>
<td>627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Refused Employment by American Railroads on account of connection with Strike</td>
<td>622, 623</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unions approved of</td>
<td>630</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blacklisting by</td>
<td>630, 631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bryden, Andrew</td>
<td>83, 237</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bryden, John, Evidence of</td>
<td>262-268</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coal Fields, Exhaustion of</td>
<td>263</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Compulsory Arbitration impracticable</td>
<td>267, 268</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Bryden, John—Evidence of—Con.
  Extension, disadvantages of as a Place of Residence
  Grievances, adjustment of
  Knights of Labour, refused recognition
  Pit Boss, authority of Removal of Miners from Extension
  Saloons supported by Workmen.
  Unions, considered useless
  Wages of Miners

 Builders’ Exchange, Vancouver.
  Building Contract, objected to by Unions.

 Builders’ Exchange, Vancouver—Blacklisting by—(Evidence of Hilton)
  (Evidence of Woodward)
  Constitution of.
  Correspondence with Woodward re building contract.

 Bullen, Harry F., Evidence of.

 Arbitration, Appointment of third Arbitrator.

 Internationalism, Objections to

 Loss of work owing to industrial disputes.

 Strike of Shipwrights employed by B. C. Marine Railway Company.

 Strikes—agreement with unions re notice of.

 Trade unions—Advantage and disadvantages of.

 Bulley, Alfred H.—Demand of union for discharge of.

 Bulley, Alfred H.—(Evidence of).

 Discharged for refusal to pay union dues.

 Steamshipmen’s Strike—
  Contributions in aid of.
  Danube Steamer—not tied up by.

 Steamshipmen’s Union—
  Expelled members, treatment of.
  Incorporation of.
  Membership.

 Bulley, Anthony B.

 Bulley, Anthony B.—(Evidence of).

 C. P. R. difficulty with U. B. R. E.

 Joan Steamer, unionists on, discharged.

 Labour conditions in B. C.

 Non-unionists, right to employ.

 Steamshipmen’s Society of British Columbia—
  Constitution of.
  Oath of.

 Steamshipmen’s Strike at Victoria against C. P. Navigation Co.—
  Assaults by union men.
  Causes of.
  Estes, George, Action of relating to.
  Picketting.
  Troupe, Capt., Agreement with not to handle unfair freight.
  U. B. R. E.—Connection with strike.

 Vancouver Trade and Labour Council—
  Assistance to Strikers by.

 Sympathetic Strikes, limits of.
INDEX

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>U. B. R. E.—Discrimination against by C. P. R.</td>
<td>136, 139, 143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unfair freight—objections by steamshipmen, &amp;c., to handle,</td>
<td>135, 136, 140, 143, 167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wages of Steamshipmen</td>
<td>169</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Burdette, Samuel, Telegram to re Cumberland Strike</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Business, Effect of Strikes on—(Evidence of Leiser)</td>
<td>127, 128</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>California Coal Market</td>
<td>199, 201</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Canadian Members of International Unions—Disabilities of—(Evidence of Carroll)</td>
<td>254</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Cook)</td>
<td>257</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of McNiven)</td>
<td>263</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>No prejudice against—(Evidence of Twigg)</td>
<td>90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Representation adequate (Evidence of Bolden)</td>
<td>210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Satisfied with position—(Evidence of Penkith)</td>
<td>117</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Canadian Pacific Navigation Company—Agreement of with B. C. Steamshipmen's Society</td>
<td>750</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Canadian Pacific Navigation Company—Strike against (See also 'Steamshipmen's Strike')—(Evidence of Bulley)</td>
<td>134-143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>—(Evidence of Shenton)</td>
<td>524, 525</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boycott of Baker supplying Bread to—(Evidence of Muir)</td>
<td>697-700</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Wilband)</td>
<td>700-702</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strikers propose to tie up Steamers</td>
<td>175</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Canadian Pacific Railway—(See also 'U. B. R. E. Strike,' &amp;c.—Action of Miners' Union Executive re supply of Coal to and from Nanaimo—(Evidence of Shenton)</td>
<td>524, 525</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreement with Freight Handlers' Union—(Evidence of Johnstone)</td>
<td>539, 562</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreement with other Companies not to employ men discharged for cause—(Evidence of Browne)</td>
<td>622, 623</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of McMillan)</td>
<td>574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>n (Evidence of Wilson)</td>
<td>590, 591</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alleged Black List</td>
<td>792</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Comparison of Portland and Vancouver—Rates of Wages</td>
<td>794, 795</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Difference of Opinion among Unionists regarding Strike—(Evidence of Thompson)</td>
<td>171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Discharge of Unionists by—(Evidence of Dick)</td>
<td>614</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Wilson)</td>
<td>581-583, 592-595, 606</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Discrimination against U.B.R.E.—(Evidence of Bulley)</td>
<td>136, 139, 143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Dennison)</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Documents produced by, Affidavits and Schedule of</td>
<td>770-772</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Effects of Strike on Business—(Evidence of McMillan)</td>
<td>575</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Marpole)</td>
<td>707</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Existence of Blacklist denied—(Evidence of Marpole)</td>
<td>705</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Freight-handlers, Letters and Wage, Schedule of</td>
<td>776-778</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Increase of Salary to Clerks—(Evidence of McCreery)</td>
<td>709, 711</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Letter of Committee re Suspension of Forrest</td>
<td>779</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nelson Freight Shed and Station Staff, Wages of</td>
<td>796</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Opposition to Unions by—(Evidence of Browne)</td>
<td>629</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Canadian Pacific Railway—Con.
Overtime Work of Clerks—
   (Evidence of Dennison) .......... 635-638, 641
   (Evidence of Grier) .......... 712, 713
   (Evidence of McCreery) .......... 708-712
Pension Scheme of .................. 789-792
Recommendation, W. H. Browne .......... 793
Statement of Case in U.B.R.E. Strike .......... 517, 768-770
Statement of Time of Employees .......... 793
Secret Service of, Affidavit of F. J. Halton .......... 775
Wages paid by—
   (Evidence of Grier) .......... 712
   (Evidence of Dennison) .......... 638

Canadian Pacific Railway Telegraph Co.—Telegram re Strike produced by .......... 793, 797
Canadian Pacific Steamship Co.—Sailors of quiet Work in sympathy with Strikers
   (Evidence of Fullerton) .......... 744
Cantlie, Mr., C.P.R. .......... 586, 597
‘Capital,’ by Karl Marx, largely read by Miners—(Evidence of Halliday) .......... 415
Influence of—(Evidence of Dales) .......... 649
Capital, Internationalism of—
   (Evidence of Baker) .......... 74
   (Evidence of Halliday) .......... 415
Capital, Obligations of, not recognized—(Evidence of Dunsmuir) .......... 379
Capitalism, necessarily opposed to Labour—(Evidence of Dales) .......... 646
Capitalists, Alleged promotion of Strikes by—(Evidence of Pritchard) .......... 44
   Privileged by law—(Evidence of Dales) .......... 647
Card, Union .................. 374
   Objected to—(Evidence of Cook) .......... 740
Carpenters’ Strike, Victoria—(Evidence of Bolden) .......... 216
Carpenters’ Union, Victoria .......... 214
   Benefits, fraternal. .......... 214, 216
   Contractors, position of, in .......... 216
Carroll, Henry .......... 353, 364
   Carroll, Henry, evidence of .......... 248-258, 349
   Blacklisting of Scabs .......... 251
   Compulsory Arbitration opposed .......... 258
   Conciliation favoured .......... 258
   Conversation of Woodburn and Shenton re Organizer’s Commission .......... 349
   Incorporation of Unions favoured .......... 256
   Ladysmith Miners’ Union, organization of .......... 248, 249
   Ladysmith, preferable to Extension as Place of Residence .......... 255
‘Miners’ Magazine,’ extracts from .......... 251, 252
   Pit Committee, duties of .......... 257
   Union Mines, sympathetic Strikes at .......... 259
   Unions approved of .......... 256
   Disadvantages of .......... 256
Western Federation of Miners—
   Controlled by Americans .......... 255
   Methods of .......... 252
   Not a Coal Miners’ Union .......... 263
   Strikes promoted by .......... 254, 255
   Withdrawals from .......... 255
Cavil System in Mines .......... 354, 364
Charmer, Steamer .......... 135, 140, 159, 172, 226, 581
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Pages</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Check Weighman, none in Extension Mine</td>
<td>53, 60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chinaman, fatal Accident to</td>
<td>495, 512</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chinese—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conversation of Shenton and Rev. L. W. Hall re organization of—</td>
<td>452-460</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Hall)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Shenton)</td>
<td>508, 512, 513, 532-535, 585</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Employed in Brickmaking—(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Engaged in place of Cumberland Strikers—(Evidence of Matthews)</td>
<td>482</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ill-treatment of—(Evidence of Hall)</td>
<td>454</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In coal mines—(Evidence of Robins)</td>
<td>298</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Instructions of Western Federation of Miners' Executive to organize—</td>
<td>406-409</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Barber)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Halliday)</td>
<td>426</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Number of, employed in Cumberland Mines—(Evidence of Matthews)</td>
<td>500</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wages of—(Evidence of Hall)</td>
<td>452</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cipher Messages re Ladysmith Strike</td>
<td>475, 505</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Class-consciousness—(See also 'Socialism')—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Carroll)</td>
<td>253</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Dales)</td>
<td>646</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of McNiven)</td>
<td>308-310</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Shenton)</td>
<td>335</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clearance system on Railways—(See also 'Blacklisting:')</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Browne)</td>
<td>622, 626</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Marpole)</td>
<td>706</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Wilson)</td>
<td>784</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clearance given to Wilson</td>
<td>500</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clergyman, Communications to not privileged</td>
<td>451</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clinton, Geo. W., Evidence of</td>
<td>501, 502</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Intimidation of Voters denied</td>
<td>502</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Resignation of manager, Thos. Russell, on account of politics</td>
<td>501</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coal business, as effected by Strikes—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Hall)</td>
<td>197, 198</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Kingham)</td>
<td>200, 201</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>California market for</td>
<td>199, 201</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Comox Coal</td>
<td>199</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Japan, importations from</td>
<td>198, 768</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Price increased</td>
<td>198, 201</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nanaimo output</td>
<td>200, 201</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seattle, importations from</td>
<td>198, 199</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coal fields—Exhaustion of</td>
<td>262, 304</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Code, Miss—Committee of U.B.R.E. ask for re-instatement of</td>
<td>579, 601-605</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Not suspended</td>
<td>732</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Colbert, Mr., plumber</td>
<td>91, 185, 187</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Collective Ownership (See also 'Socialism') advocated—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Dales)</td>
<td>652-655, 658</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Foley)</td>
<td>674</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Colonist, Victoria</td>
<td>185, 187</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Commission, powers of</td>
<td>450</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Procedure of</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scope of Inquiry</td>
<td>2, 87</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Comox Mines</td>
<td>127</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coal output of</td>
<td>199</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sympathetic Strike at</td>
<td>250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Union officials discharged</td>
<td>352</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Page.

Competition, shorter hours remedy for—(Evidence of Ladingham) ........................................ 157
Competitive system, waste of—(Evidence of Dales) ................................................................. 665, 666
Compulsory Arbitration—(See 'Arbitration, compulsory.') Compulsory investigation of Labour Disputes proposed—(Evidence of Marpole) 6:5
Conciliation—

Approved of—

(Evidence of Carroll) ................................................................. 258
(Evidence of Hammond) .............................................................. 223
(Evidence of Neave) ................................................................. 312
(Evidence of Robertson) ............................................................. 276
(Evidence of Smith) ................................................................. 261
Effective in Victoria Shipwrights' Strike—(Evidence of Bullen) .................................................. 124
Fernie Strike settled by—(Evidence of Bolden) .......................................................................... 219
Regarded as impossible—(Evidence of Halliday) ......................................................................... 418
Remedy for Strikes—(Evidence of Twigg) ..................................................................................... 96, 97
Should be tried before Arbitration—(Evidence of McNiven) .................................................... 211
Stone-cutters' Strike settled by—(Evidence of McKay) .............................................................. 234
Conciliation Act, B.C. ...................................................................................................................... 234
Conciliation Boards ....................................................................................................................... 271
Confidential Communications, objections to disclose, overruled ............................................... 450, 451
Confiscation, Socialist view of—(Evidence of Dales) ................................................................. 653, 656
Contractor, position of in Carpenters' Union .................................................................................. 216
Contracts—(See also 'Agreements.')

By Unions, considered binding—(Evidence of Dales) ................................................................. 656
Enforced by Unions—(Evidence of Watson) ..................................................................................... 689
Opposed—(Evidence of Foley) ....................................................................................................... 676
Violation of—(Evidence of Foley) .................................................................................................... 677, 679, 680
Individually—Proposed as settlement of Cumberland Strike—

(Evidence of Matthews) .................................................................................................................. 485-487
(Evidence of Little) .......................................................................................................................... 487
Refused by Miners ........................................................................................................................... 490-494
Cook, Edward—Contract with regarded as unfair—(Evidence of Woodward) 716-721
Cook, Edward, Evidence of ............................................................................................................. 737-741
Agitators foment trouble .................................................................................................................. 738
Blacklisted by Vancouver Trade and Labour Council ..................................................................... 737
Boycott of Unionists by Lumber Dealers ....................................................................................... 741
Difficulties with International Unionists ....................................................................................... 735
National Union of Bricklayers, Masons and Carpenters organized ........................................... 739
Union Card System objected to ........................................................................................................ 740
Wages in Building Trades ................................................................................................................ 738
Co-operation as Substitute for Wage System—

(Evidence of Dales) .......................................................................................................................... 650
(Evidence of Foley) ........................................................................................................................... 676
Cost of living, Vancouver .................................................................................................................. 169
Craig, F. B. ....................................................................................................................................... 511, 525
Cripples, treatment of, by Unions .................................................................................................... 146
Crew's Nest Pass Coal Co. ................................................................................................................ 74
Cumberland Miners' Strike ............................................................................................................... 71, 286
Cause—discharge of Union Officials—

(Evidence of Baker) .......................................................................................................................... 71
(Evidence of Barber) .......................................................................................................................... 387
(Evidence of Halliday) ....................................................................................................................... 420
(Evidence of Hutchinson) .................................................................................................................. 442, 446
(Evidence of Richards) ...................................................................................................................... 441
INDEX

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

Page.

Cumberland Miners' Strike—Con.
Considered sympathetic—(Evidence of Matthews) 481
Correspondence with Baker in reference to—(Evidence of Richards) 438-440
Documents produced—(Evidence of Matthews) 584
Interview of Union Committee with Manager—
(Evidence of Barber) 388
(Evidence of Halliday) 420
(Evidence of Matthews) 481
Intimidation of Non-unionists—(Evidence of Reed) 464, 468
Negotiations for settlement of—(Evidence of Richards) 490-494, 503, 504
Not a sympathetic Strike—
(Evidence of Anthony) 474
(Evidence of Barber) 409, 410, 473
(Evidence of Halliday) 472
(Evidence of Hutchinson) 471, 472
(Evidence of Hunden) 476-478
(Evidence of Richards) 470
(Evidence of Shenton) 586, 587
Recognition of Union refused—
(Evidence of Barber) 389, 403
(Evidence of Little) 488
(Evidence of Matthews) 481
Request for Strike by Ladysmith Miners—
(Evidence of Mottishaw, jr.) 289, 290
(Evidence of Robertson) 277, 279
Statement of Miners re causes—755
Settlement proposed by individual Contracts—
(Evidence of Little) 487
(Evidence of Matthews) 485-487
Telegram, Baker to Moyer asking Consent to Strike in sympathy with Ladysmith—(Evidence of King) 475
Telegram to Baker, announcing Decision to Strike—(Evidence of Richards) 469
Telegram to Burdette, Employment Agent, that Strike on—(Evidence of Richards) 470
Telegrams to and from Company re Strike—763
Wages, loss of—(Evidence of Matthews) 500

Cumberland Miners' Union—
Aid to Ladysmith Strikers voted by—
(Evidence of Barber) 393
(Evidence of Halliday) 420
Letters to and from various Parties—756-760
Membership of—(Evidence of Barber) 384, 402
Organization of—
(Evidence of Barber) 333, 399-402
(Evidence of Halliday) 411-414, 422
(Evidence of Hutchinson) 442, 443
(Evidence of Reed) 461, 467
(Evidence of Richards) 436
Wages of— 423, 761-763

Dales, George, Evidence of 645-667
Alien Labour Act, inoperative 649
Capitalist Class, privileged by Law 647
Contracts by Union, binding 656
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Index Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Dales, George—Evidence of—Con.</td>
<td>651</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Inventors, poorly rewarded</td>
<td>651</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Middle Class, absence of in B. C.</td>
<td>617</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Political Action by Workers advocated.</td>
<td>643, 655</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socialism—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Class struggle</td>
<td>646</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Collective Ownership of Means of Production</td>
<td>652-655</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Competitive System, waste of</td>
<td>665, 666</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Co-operation, as Substitute for Wage System</td>
<td>650</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Distribution of Products</td>
<td>654, 664</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Government changes in advocated.</td>
<td>658, 659</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Interest, repudiation of</td>
<td>653, 656</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Majority, rule of</td>
<td>661</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marx, Karl, influence of Writings of</td>
<td>646, 658, 659</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Militia, not favoured</td>
<td>667</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Post Office as example of Collective Ownership</td>
<td>666</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Relationship to Morality</td>
<td>654, 656, 666</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revolutionary</td>
<td>646</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rise of</td>
<td>646</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Violence opposed by</td>
<td>657</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>War opposed by</td>
<td>652</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trade Unions, losing efficiency</td>
<td>647</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In Germany and France</td>
<td>643</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Danube, Steamer</td>
<td>160, 175, 179, 184, 283</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Darcy, Mr., C.P.R.</td>
<td>617</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Davidson &amp; Woodward, blacklisted</td>
<td>576</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Davidson, Joseph, blacklisted</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Davis, E. P., Counsel for C. P. R</td>
<td>514</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Denison, A. G.</td>
<td>559</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dennison, P. G., Statements of re Overtime contradicted—(Evidence of Marpole)</td>
<td>708-712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Letters referred to by</td>
<td>796</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dennison, P. G., Evidence of</td>
<td>634-644</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>American Labour Union—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Affiliation with</td>
<td>644</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socialism in</td>
<td>644</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Overtime Work on C.P.R.</td>
<td>633-638, 641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Promotion withheld owing to connection with Union</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Railway Clerks, local organization of</td>
<td>638</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Demand for increased pay</td>
<td>639</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fines for mistakes of</td>
<td>641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Recognition, gained by Strikes</td>
<td>643</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rogers, Frank, Murder of</td>
<td>639, 640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>U.B.R.E. Strike Bulletin, publication of</td>
<td>644</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Affiliation of Railway Clerks with</td>
<td>638</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Demand of for Halton's reinstatement</td>
<td>640, 642</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Men engaged in anticipation of Strike of</td>
<td>642</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socialism in</td>
<td>643</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Departure Bay</td>
<td>263, 268</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Designs and Trade Marks Act</td>
<td>132</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Detectives</td>
<td>29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Devril, Wm.</td>
<td>168</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dick, James, Letter to Montreal 'Witness' re C.P.R. Strike by</td>
<td>582</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Transfer of, to Montreal—(Evidence of Marpole)</td>
<td>705</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
INDEX

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

Dick, James, Evidence of ........................................... 612-622
Discharged by C.P.R. without reason assigned ................... 614
Letter in Montreal re ‘Witness’ re Strike, signed by .......... 614
Interview with Marpole re reinstatement of Halton .......... 613
Railway Clerks, pay of ............................................ 616, 621
Transferred from Vancouver to Montreal ......................... 613
U. B. R. E.—
Action in Halton Case ........................................... 618, 619
Objects of ............................................................... 618
Railway Clerks join ................................................... 617, 620

Doherty, Thomas ....................................................... 246, 675
Doherty, Thomas, Evidence of—
Miners compelled to remove from Extension to Ladysmith.

Dominion Trades and Labour Congress .......................... 94
American Federation of Labour similar to—(Evidence of Twigg) .......... 97
Distrust of Politicians by—(Evidence of Dales) ................. 649
Duties of—(Evidence of McKay) .................................. 255
Locals chartered by must belong to International of their Trade—
(Evidence of Bolden) .................................................. 219
(Evidence of McNiven) .............................................. 265
Relation of to International Organizations—(Evidence by Watson) .......... 691
Victoria Boilermakers affiliated with ................................ 121
Victoria Shipwrights affiliated with ............................... 150
Withdrawal of Nanaimo Miners from—
(Evidence of Booth) .................................................. 325
(Evidence of Neave) ................................................... 304
(Evidence of Shenton) ............................................... 326

Dominion Trades Union Act ......................................... 270
Downie, Mr., C.P.R ..................................................... 625, 629
Drinking among Workmen ........................................... 268

Drunkards, how regarded by Unions—
(Evidence of Marpole) ............................................... 687
(Evidence of Piper) ................................................... 145, 146

Dunsmuir, James—
Alleged dismissal of Employees for opposing election of—(Evidence of Clinton) ................................................ 502
(Evidence of Hall) .................................................... 498-500
Attitude of, re Labour Organizations—
(Evidence of Jeffries) ............................................... 62, 63
(Evidence of Mottishaw, jr.) ....................................... 64
Negotiation for purchase of Extension property—(Evidence of Bramley) .......... 77
Orders Miners to remove from Extension to Ladysmith—(Evidence of Johnson) ...... 49
Propositions by, for settlement of Ladysmith Strike ............ 754
(Evidence of Barnes) .................................................. 356-361
Refusal of Manager Russell to support—(Evidence of Clinton) .......... 501 Undertaking by, not to prosecute Estes .......................... 634, 793

Dunsmuir, James, Evidence of—
Alexandra Miners' Union ........................................... 237-248, 378-382
Capital, Obligations of, not recognized .......................... 379
Extension Mines, development of .................................. 241, 242
Ladysmith, preferable as place of residence to Extension ....... 243, 244

Ladysmith Strike—
Arrangement to meet Committee representing individual Miners. 245-248
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Dunsmuir, James—Ladysmith Strike—Con.
  Pit Committees, objections to .................................. 240
  Proposition for settlement ...................................... 382
  Refusal to recognize Miners' Union .................................. 239
  Removal of Miners from Extension to Ladysmith ............................... 241-244, 380, 381
  Unions, objections to ........................................... 378, 379
  Members of discharged ........................................... 379
  Wellington Mine, Pay-roll of ...................................... 242
Dunsmuir, Martin .................................................. 353, 364, 479

E. & W. Co.—Strike against by Steamshipmen ......................... 134
  Employers' Organizations ........................................ 156
Empress, Steamer .................................................. 437, 708, 741
  Strikers propose to tie up ....................................... 175
  Engineers, marine, held aloof from other Workingmen—(Evidence of Bulley) ...... 137
  English Trade Union—Shipwrights' Union, Victoria, modelled after ................. 147
  English Typographical Society .................................... 374
Estes, George—
  Action of, in support of U.B.R.E. Strike—
    (Evidence of Bulley) ........................................... 139
    (Evidence of Johnstone) ........................................ 506
  Action of, relating to Steamshipmen's Strike—
    (Evidence of Bulley) ........................................... 164-166, 168
    (Evidence of Troupe) ......................................... 230, 232
  Asks support of Steamshipmen's Union for U.B.R.E.—(Evidence of Thompson) .... 173-175
  Circulars issued by ............................................. 541, 566, 750, 780, 786
  Letter to H. Poore re Socialism and A.F. of L .................................. 561, 623, 779
Power of, to order sympathetic Strike by Western Federation of Miners—
  (Evidence of Booth) ............................................ 323
  (Evidence of Halliday) ......................................... 428, 429
  (Evidence of Shenton) .......................................... 330-334
  Statement in Montreal 'Star' as to connection with Strikes ....................... 581
  (Evidence of Wilson) ........................................... 593
  Statement of, in Vancouver 'World' re Strikes ................................ 787
  Undertaking by James Dunsmuir not to prosecute .................................. 793

Extension—
  Disadvantages of, as place of residence—
    (Evidence of Bryden) .......................................... 262, 263
    (Evidence of Landerbach) ..................................... 280
    (Evidence of McMillan) ....................................... 288
    (Evidence of Woodburn) ....................................... 299
Miners compelled to remove from, to Ladysmith—
  (Evidence of Aston) ............................................ 85-87
  (Evidence of Bryden) .......................................... 264, 265
  (Evidence of Dunsmuir) ......................................... 241-244, 380, 381
  (Evidence of Fontana) .......................................... 83-85
  (Evidence of Halliday) ......................................... 424, 428
  (Evidence of Sherwood) ........................................ 78, 79
  (Evidence of Johnson) .......................................... 49-52
  (Evidence of Joseph) .......................................... 46-49
  (Evidence of Landerbach) ...................................... 285
  (Evidence of Mochar) .......................................... 79-82
  (Evidence of Myllymaki) ....................................... 82
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Extension—Miners compelled to remove from, to Ladysmith—Con.</th>
<th>Page.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Pritchard)</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Robertson)</td>
<td>278</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Tassin)</td>
<td>65-67</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preferable to Ladysmith—(Evidence of Barnes)</td>
<td>356</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extension Miners' Strike—(See 'Ladysmith Miners' Strike.')</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extension Miners' Union—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Members of discharged—(Evidence of Pritchard)</td>
<td>38</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Organization of—(Evidence of Mottishaw, senr.)</td>
<td>53, 56, 57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extension Mines—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Development of</td>
<td>241, 242</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Memorandum re Opening of</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>No check weighman in.</td>
<td>53, 60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wages</td>
<td>54, 57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Factory Workers' Strike, Vancouver, correspondence and statement respecting</td>
<td>804-809</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Favoritism, by employers—(Evidence of Barnes)</td>
<td>353, 355, 363</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Federation, Western, of Miners (See 'Western Federation of Miners').</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fernie Miners' Strike—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Effect of on Business—(Evidence of Leiser)</td>
<td>127, 128</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vote of Miners on—(Evidence of Baker)</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fernie Miners' Union—</td>
<td>255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Withdrawal of from W. F. of M.—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Foley)</td>
<td>675</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Shenton)</td>
<td>512</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Foley, Christopher, representative of U. B. R. E.</td>
<td>515</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Foley, Christopher, Evidence of</td>
<td>672-683</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alien Labour, importation of</td>
<td>674</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alien Labour Law, ineffective</td>
<td>673</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Australian Strike</td>
<td>680</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Collective Ownership advocated</td>
<td>677</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Compulsory Arbitration approved</td>
<td>681, 682</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Contracts, violation of</td>
<td>677, 679, 680</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Contract System opposed</td>
<td>676</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Foreigners employed to intimidate Unionists</td>
<td>680</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Incorporation of Unions favoured</td>
<td>678</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Internationalism favoured</td>
<td>674</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Judges influenced by Class prejudice</td>
<td>682</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Political Action by Unions approved</td>
<td>673</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socialism opposed</td>
<td>675</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sympathetic Strikes sometimes justifiable</td>
<td>677</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Violence, not approved by Unionists</td>
<td>680</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Western Federation of Miners—position of re Fernie Strike</td>
<td>675</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fontana, Joseph, Evidence of. Ordered to remove from Extension to Ladysmith.</td>
<td>83-85</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Forcimer, Benjamin, Evidence of. Conversation of Woodburn and Shelton re Organizer's Commission.</td>
<td>349</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Foreign Interference—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Against Unionists—(Evidence of Foley)</td>
<td>680</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>No Boundary recognized—(Evidence of Barnes)</td>
<td>367</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Objected to by Employers—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Hutchinson)</td>
<td>444</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Matthews)</td>
<td>483</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Seabrooke)</td>
<td>108</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Topic</td>
<td>Page(s)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>----------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>-----------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Foreign Interference—Con.</td>
<td>322, 323</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Objection to by Unionists—</td>
<td>737</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Booth)</td>
<td>119</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Cook)</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Piper)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prevails chiefly in newer Unions—(Evidence of Marpole)</td>
<td>047</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strikes caused by—(Evidence of Seabrooke)</td>
<td>108, 111</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Forrest, H. P., Suspension of</td>
<td>558, 559, 569</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Letter of Committee respecting</td>
<td>779</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fowler, Edward, Discharge of</td>
<td>542, 564</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Frank Miners' Union</td>
<td>22, 30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Free School Books advocated—(Evidence of Bolden)</td>
<td>221</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Free Speech, right of interfered with</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Anthony)</td>
<td>431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Hall)</td>
<td>469, 461, 493</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Halliday)</td>
<td>411, 412, 425</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Reed)</td>
<td>467, 468</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Freight-handlers, C.P.R. Letters and Wage Schedule of</td>
<td>776-778</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Freight-handlers' Union</td>
<td>539</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(See U.B.R.E.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreement of, with C.P.R.</td>
<td>539, 562</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Refusal to Work with Scabs—(Evidence of Johnstone)</td>
<td>540, 541, 564</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Friendly Societies Act, Incorporation under</td>
<td>180</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fullerton, James A., Evidence of. Sailors quit Work in sympathy with</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>U.B.R.E Strike</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Garnham, S., Telegrams from re U.B.R.E Strike</td>
<td>596, 789</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Watsan)</td>
<td>695</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Garonne, Ship. Strike over repairing</td>
<td>101-105, 131, 689</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gascoigne, Mr., C.P.R.</td>
<td>583, 611</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gladstone Miners' Union</td>
<td>22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gompers, Samuel</td>
<td>562</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Government, changes in advocated by Socialists—(Evidence of Dales)</td>
<td>658, 659</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Government interference in Labour Disputes (See also 'Arbitration, Compulsory')—(Evidence of Baker)</td>
<td>73, 74</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Approved—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Anthony)</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Leiser)</td>
<td>128</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Twigg)</td>
<td>97</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Wilson)</td>
<td>90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Proved beneficial in Fernie Strike—(Evidence of Bolden)</td>
<td>219</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Goward, A. T., Evidence of</td>
<td>192-195</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees, Constitution of</td>
<td>193</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Power of us to Strikes</td>
<td>193</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British Columbia Electric Railway Grievances, mode of adjusting</td>
<td>192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Profit-sharing arrangements with Employees.</td>
<td>192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strike, under former management</td>
<td>194</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Union, recognition of</td>
<td>184, 195</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wages of Employees</td>
<td>195</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seattle, Street Railway strike in</td>
<td>193</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Great Northern Railroad</td>
<td>622</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. N. W. Telegraph Co.—Telegrams re Strike produced by</td>
<td>793</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gregg, Charles A.—Evidence of—</td>
<td>Page.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>---------------------------------</td>
<td>-------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Correctness of reports, documents and statements by Rossland Miner re Strike.</td>
<td>.115, 116</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grier, G. B.—Evidence of Overtime work on C.P.R.</td>
<td>.712-714</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teamsters' sympathetic Strike.</td>
<td>.713</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>U.B.R.E. Strike, effect on trade.</td>
<td>.713</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grievance Committee. Of C.P.R. employees.</td>
<td>.570, 601-605, 613</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grievances, adjustment of— (Evidence of Boyden).</td>
<td>.266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Johnstone).</td>
<td>.548</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Neave).</td>
<td>.305</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Robins).</td>
<td>.295-297</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grieves, Fred.</td>
<td>.353, 363</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gurney Foundry Company, blacklisted.</td>
<td>.736</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Calendar, blacklisting.</td>
<td>.804</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Haggerty, James. | .280 |
Hall, Rev., L. W., conversation with re organization of Chinese—(Evidence of Shenton). | .508, 51, 513 |
Hall, Rev. L. W., Evidence of. | .450-461, 495-500 |
Chinaman, accidental killing of. | .495-497 |
Chinese, conversation with Shenton re organizing. | .462-460 |
Ill-treatment of. | .494 |
Organization, object of. | .450-458 |
Wages of. | .452 |
Free Speech, interference with | .497 |
Intimidation of coroner's jury. | .497 |
Intimidation of voters. | .460, 461, 498, 500 |
Objection to disclose confidential communications overcome. | .450, 451 |
Unionism a poor expedient. | .453 |
Hall, Richard, Evidence of. | .197-200 |
Coal business—Effect of Ladysmith strike on. | .197, 198 |
California market. | .199 |
Comox, supply from. | .199 |
Japan, importation from. | .198 |
Seattle, importation from. | .198, 199 |
Compulsory arbitration favoured. | .290 |
Halliday, David, Evidence of. | .410-430, 472 |
Boycott disapproved. | .415 |
Chinese and Japanese, organization of. | .426 |
Compulsory arbitration opposed. | .418 |
Conciliation impossible. | .418 |
Cumberland Miners' Strike— Discharge of Unionists. | .420 |
Interview with manager. | .420 |
Sympathetic Strike not discussed. | .472 |
Cumberland Miners' Union— Aid to Ladysmith strikers voted by. | .420 |
Organization of. | .411-414, 432 |
Wages of. | .425 |
Internationalism favoured. | .414 |
Militia. | .417 |
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Halliday, David—Evidence of—Con.
Recognition of Union—What implied by.................................417
Removal of miners from Extension to Ladysmith.........................424-428
Socialism favoured..........................................................414, 415
 Strikes disapproved.........................................................415, 418
Telegram Moyer to Baker re Ladysmith Strike...........................472
Trade Unionism ineffective..................................................418
U.B.R.E., Strike of..................................................................428-430
Western Federation of Miners—
Political policy of...............................................................414
Provision that Executive must sanction Agreements with Employers approved of.................................................................431
Relation of, with U.B.R.E......................................................428-430
Socialist party of B.C. aided by..............................................422
White, Wm., discharged for political opinions............................411
Halton, F. H.—
Affidavit by, presented..........................................................536, 775
Committee U.B.R.E. ask for reinstatement of—
(Evidence of Dennison).........................................................640, 642
(Evidence of Dick)..................................................................612, 618, 619
(Evidence of Wilson)..............................................................597, 601-605
Letter from Committee asking reinstatement of..........................781
Letter to from Wilson, Senkler & Bloomfield, declaring Alien Labour
 Act inoperative.......................................................................667
Suspension of by C.P.R.—(Evidence of Johnstone).......................560
Transfer of, from Vancouver—(Evidence of Marpole).....................705
Hammond, John, Evidence of...................................................222, 223
Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners—
Constitution of........................................................................222
Benefit system of......................................................................222
Representation in........................................................................223
Strikes—Power of Executive as to.............................................223
Compulsory Arbitration opposed...............................................223
Conciliation advocated................................................................223
Hanna, Marcus A.................................................................506
Harriday, Striker refused work at Seattle........................................591
Haywood, W. D.—Letters to Cumberland Miners' Union.............758, 759
Hazlewood, P.................................................................679
Hepburn, Walter, Evidence of—
Lumber Manufacturers refuse to sell to those employing Strikers.....742-744
Higney, James........................................................................411, 412, 422
Hilton, Charles T.—Correspondence of with Charles Woodward..802, 803
Building Trades Council, Vancouver—
Constitution of.................................................................744
Blacklisting by.........................................................................744
National Unions considered unfair by.......................................745
Horda, Ship—Albion Iron Works lose contract for repairing........108
Hough, John.........................................................................512
Hours of Labour—
More work done under Short Hour System—(Evidence of Russell)191
Shorter—Obtained by Bricklayers, Victoria................................191
Strike of Blacksmiths, Victoria, for reduction of.........................154, 155
Strike of Boilermakers, Victoria, for reduction of.......................107
Strike of Carpenters, Victoria, for Shorter................................216
36a—53
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Evidence of</th>
<th>Page(s)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Hughes, Harry</td>
<td></td>
<td>363</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunden, David</td>
<td>Evidence of...</td>
<td>476-478</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cumberland Strike not Sympathetic</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunter, Hon. G., Chief Justice</td>
<td></td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hutchison, John, representative of Cumberland Miners</td>
<td></td>
<td>382</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hutchison, John</td>
<td>Evidence of...</td>
<td>442-450, 471, 472</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cumberland Miners’ Strike not considered sympathetic</td>
<td>471, 472</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Officials of discharged.</td>
<td>443, 446</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Organization of...</td>
<td>442, 443</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Internationalism approved.</td>
<td>444</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Reference of agreements with Employers to W. F. of M. approved</td>
<td>444</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Telegram, Moyer to Baker re Ladysmith Strike</td>
<td>445, 448</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Socialist Party...</td>
<td>448, 449</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Imperial Government—Relations of Trades Unions with—</td>
<td>(Evidence of Kelly)</td>
<td>154</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Incorporation of Trades Unions</td>
<td></td>
<td>685</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Advocated—(Evidence of Marpole)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Effect of, under Taff Vale Decision—(Evidence of Thompson)</td>
<td>377</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Employers favour—(Evidence of Bolden)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Favoured—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Carroll)</td>
<td>256</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Foley)</td>
<td>678</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Matthews)</td>
<td>484</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Robins)</td>
<td>303</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>346</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Watson)</td>
<td>689</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Opposed—(Evidence of Thompson)</td>
<td>376</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Regarded as questionable—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Baker)</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Bartley)</td>
<td>721</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Twigg)</td>
<td>98</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Some B. C. Unions incorporated—(Evidence of Baker)</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Would facilitate Contracts—(Evidence of Kelly)</td>
<td>150</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Would prevent Boycotts—(Evidence of Mcl^iven)</td>
<td>207</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>'Independent,' Vancouver</td>
<td>152, 170, 721</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Blacklist published in.</td>
<td>736</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Industrial Union plan</td>
<td></td>
<td>561</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Internationalism—</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Advantages of—(Evidence of Thompson)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Approved—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Barnes)</td>
<td>352, 368</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Foley)</td>
<td>674</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Halliday)</td>
<td>414</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Hutchison)</td>
<td>444</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Ladingham)</td>
<td>157</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of McKay)</td>
<td>235</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Penkith)</td>
<td>115</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Twigg)</td>
<td>98</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Watson)</td>
<td>688</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Wilson)</td>
<td>609</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>As opposed to local Unions—(Evidence of Woodward)</td>
<td>717, 718</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Disadvantages of—(Evidence of Robertson)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion Trades and Labour Congress—Attitude respecting—</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Bolden)</td>
<td>219</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Twigg)</td>
<td>130</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Topic</td>
<td>Page(s)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>----------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>---------------</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Internationalism—Con.</td>
<td>300, 301</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>May be legitimate—(Evidence of Robins)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Objections to—</td>
<td>127</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Bullen)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Carroll)</td>
<td>255</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Of capital—(Evidence of Baker)</td>
<td>31, 74</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Opposed—</td>
<td>152, 154</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Kelly)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Reed)</td>
<td>468</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>188</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Smith)</td>
<td>259</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Principle of W. F. of M.—(Evidence of Baker)</td>
<td>13, 14, 25, 30</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Intimidation—(See also ‘Assaults, &amp;c.’)</td>
<td>497</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Of coroner’s jury—(Evidence of Hall)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Of non-unionists—(Evidence of Matthews)</td>
<td>450, 483</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Of voters, &amp;c.—</td>
<td>460, 461, 493, 500</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Hall)</td>
<td>502</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Inventors, poorly rewarded.</td>
<td>651</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Irvine, L., telegram from, to Samuel Burdette re Cumberland Strike.</td>
<td>469</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Isherwood, Thomas, Evidence of—</td>
<td>78, 79</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ordered to remove from Extension to Ladysmith</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Japan, Coal imported from</td>
<td>198, 708</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Japanese—</td>
<td>482</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Employed in place of Strikers—(Evidence of Matthews)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Number of, employed in Cumberland Mines—(Evidence of Matthews)</td>
<td>500</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. F. of M. Executive sends instructions to organize—</td>
<td>396-398</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Barber)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Halliday)</td>
<td>406-409</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jeffries, Joseph</td>
<td>230, 246, 448</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jeffries, Joseph, Evidence of—</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Refusal of Mr. Dunsmuir to recognize Trades Union</td>
<td>61, 63</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jenkins, Mr., Victoria</td>
<td>165</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Joan, Steamer—Union men discharged from—</td>
<td>168</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Bulley)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Thompson)</td>
<td>172</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Johns, John</td>
<td>33, 49, 64</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Johnston, George</td>
<td>242</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Johnston, George, Evidence of—</td>
<td>49-52</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extension Miners assured that place of residence made no difference.</td>
<td>50</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ordered to remove to Ladysmith</td>
<td>49, 51</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Johnston, F., Evidence of</td>
<td>727-729</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Longshoremen’s Strike—</td>
<td>729</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Financial aid to Strikers</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Refusal to handle unfair freight</td>
<td>727-729</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Johnston, John</td>
<td>56</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Johnstone, D. B., Evidence of—</td>
<td>538-571</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arbitration impracticable</td>
<td>570</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boycott favoured</td>
<td>567</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Freight handlers’ Union</td>
<td>539</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Incorporation of Unions opposed.</td>
<td>569</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Non-unionists, right to employ</td>
<td>568</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>‘Railway Employees’ Journal’—Extracts from</td>
<td>565</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

36a-53
Johnstone, D. B.—Evidence of—Con.
Sympathetic Strikes disapproved of.................................................. 567, 568
United Brotherhood of Railway Employees—
American Labour Union, affiliation with........................................... 544
Constitution.......................................................................................... 543, 549
Divisions of......................................................................................... 548
Fraternal benefits............................................................................... 543
Grievances, adjustment of.................................................................. 548
Membership of...................................................................................... 544
Oath of................................................................................................. 550
Socialism in.......................................................................................... 543, 561
U.B.R.E. Strike—
Agreement of freight-handlers with C.P.R........................................... 533, 562
American Labour Union, convention of.............................................. 566
Assistance received from Brotherhood................................................ 546
Causes of............................................................................................... 542
Constitutionality of.............................................................................. 551, 552, 564
Discrimination against Members......................................................... 556
Estes, George, action of........................................................................ 566
Circular issued by.................................................................................. 566
Letter from, to H. Pore......................................................................... 561
Forest, H. P., Suspension of.................................................................. 558, 559, 560
Halton, F. H., Suspension of............................................................... 560
Loss in wages by................................................................................... 546
Notice of................................................................................................ 559
Sanctioned by Executive........................................................................ 349, 353
Joseph, William—(Evidence of), Miners living at Extension compelled to remove to Ladysmith........................................................................................ 46, 49
Journeymen Bakers’ Union, Vancouver, sympathetic Strike by—
(Evidence of Muir).............................................................................. 697-700
(Evidence of Nelson)........................................................................... 703, 704
(Evidence of Wilband).......................................................................... 700-702, 704
Expulsion from Union—(Evidence of Nelson)...................................... 702
Journeymen Bakers and Confectioners’ International Union, Constitution of 801
Journeymen Plumbers’ Association, Victoria........................................ 91, 185-187
Journeymen Stonemasons’ Association, N.A.—
Constitution of...................................................................................... 233, 811
Powers of Executive re Strikes............................................................ 233
Victoria Branch...................................................................................... 236
Constitution of...................................................................................... 811
Judges—
Influenced by Class Prejudices—(Evidence of Foley)........................... 682
Powers of, under Alien Labour Act—(Evidence of King)...................... 671
Kelly, David.......................................................................................... 122
Kelly, David, Evidence of................................................................. 150-154
Agitators usually have good reason...................................................... 152
Alien Labour should be excluded......................................................... 153
Arbitration, appointment of Third Arbitrator...................................... 152
Compulsory Arbitration opposed......................................................... 151
International Organizations, disadvantageous.................................... 152, 154
Labour Literature................................................................................ 152
Navy, Unionists work with Carpenters of.......................................... 154
Shipwrights’ Union, Rule of as to preference of Local Men.................. 151
Kerr, J. C., Evidence of ................................................................. 733-735
Teamsters' Strike, Vancouver .................................................... 733
Financial Aid to ................................................................. 733, 734
Refusal to handle unfair Freight .......................................... 733
Knights of Labour, Disbanded in Nanaimo ............................... 321
Refused recognition .......................................................... 265
Kootenays, Business of, affected by Strikes .................................. 127
King, W. L., Mackenzie, Evidence of .................................................. 474-476, 686-672
Alien Labour Act—
Consent of Attorney General not necessary for proceedings under 668, 669
Convictions under .............................................................. 669
Enforcement of by Department of Labour ................................... 670
Judges, Powers of, regarding enforcement .................................. 671
Statements in letter of Wilson, Senkler & Bloomfield denied .......... 668
Telegram, Baker to Moyer, re Ladysmith Strike produced ............ 475
Telegram from, to C.P.R. Agent, Nanaimo, for Copy of Despatch, Baker to Moyer .............................................................. 475
Kingham, Joshua, Evidence of ..................................................... 200-201
Coal Business—
California Market ............................................................. 201
Effect of Ladysmith Strike on .................................................. 200
Increase of price ...................................................................... 200
Supply from Nanaimo ............................................................. 200, 201

Label, Union—(Evidence of McNiven) ............................................ 207
Should be protected—(Evidence of Twigg) .................................... 133
Labour, competition of, Shorter Hours remedy for—(Evidence of Ladingham) .................................................. 157
Labour, Department of, re-enforcement of Alien Labour Act by—(Evidence of King) ................................................................. 670
Labour, interests of, opposed to Capitalism—(Evidence of Dales) .......... 646
Labour Legislation of Liberal Party ............................................... 648
Labour Literature—
(Evidence of Kelly) ............................................................ 152
(Evidence of McNiven) ........................................................... 210
"Miners' Magazine", .............................................................. 20, 21, 251, 252
Labour Saving Machinery—(See 'Machinery.') ................................
Ladingham, Wm. J., Evidence of ................................................... 154-158
Blacksmiths' Strike, Victoria .................................................... 154, 155
Blacksmiths, Wages of ........................................................... 155, 156
Employers urged to organize by Unionists ............................... 156
Internationalism approved ...................................................... 157
Labour-saving machinery ......................................................... 157
Shorter Hours as a means of absorbing surplus Labour ............ 157
Unions, benefits of ............................................................... 156
Ladysmith, Miners compelled to remove from Extension to. (See 'Extension.')
Ladysmith Miners' Strike—
Alleged promotion of by Capitalists—(Evidence of Pritchard) .......... 44
Arrangement for Committee representing Individual Miners—(Evidence of Dunsmuir) .................................................. 239
Causes of, discharge of Union Men and anticipation of Lockout—(Evidence of Pritchard) ................................................................. 38, 43
Connection of, with U.B.R.E. Strike—(Evidence of Shenton) ............ 529-531
Correspondence of Geo. Richards with Baker—(Evidence of Richards) .. 438-410
INDEX

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

Ladysmith Miners’ Strike—Con.
Cumberland Miners asked to Strike in sympathy with—
  (Evidence of Mottishaw) ............................................. 291-293
  (Evidence of Robertson) ............................................. 277-279
Documents produced ..................................................... 584
Effect of, on Coal Business—
  (Evidence of Hall) .................................................. 197-200
  (Evidence of Kingham) ............................................. 200-201
Effect on General Business—(Evidence of Leiser) .................. 127
Lockout, Notice of given miners—(Evidence of Pritchard) ....... 38
Loss in wages of—
  (Evidence of McMillan) ............................................. 288
  (Evidence of Robertson) ............................................ 277
Mem. of grounds for .................................................. 748
Miners decline to work pending inquiry ........................... 7
Miners’ Executive, meeting in aid of—(Evidence of Sheiiton) ... 519 Minutes of Joint Board meeting at Nanaimo, appointing delegates re settlement ............................................................ 784
Proposition from employer re settlement ........................... 754
Proposition rejected by miners—(Evidence of Barnes) ............ 358, 361
Recognition of Union refused—
  (Evidence of Jeffries) ............................................... 62
  Evidence of Dunsmuir .............................................. 239
Report of delegates as to settlement ................................ 785
Statement by miners ................................................... 748
Sympathetic Strike at Union Mines, Comox—(Evidence of Shenton) 519
Telegram, Baker to Moyer, asking consent to sympathetic strike by Cumberland Miners—(Evidence of King) ............. 475
Telegram, Moyer to Baker ............................................. 755
  (Evidence of Hutchinson) ......................................... 445-448
Telegram produced by Ladysmith operators ........................ 763
Western Federation of Miners’ support—
  (Evidence of Baker) ................................................ 23
  (Evidence of Mottishaw) ........................................... 291-293
Ladysmith Miners’ Union, organization of—
  (Evidence of Shenton) ............................................... 336, 337
  (Evidence of Mottishaw, secr.) .................................. 53, 56
  (Evidence of Lauderbach) ........................................ 280
Ladysmith, preferable to Extension as place of residence—(Evidence of Carroll) ................................................. 255
  (Evidence of Dunsmuir) ............................................ 243, 244, 380, 381
  (Evidence of McMillan) .......................................... 288
  (Evidence of Smith) ............................................... 259
Land values, taxation of, advocated—(Evidence of Barnes) ...... 368
Larmour, Mr., C.P.R .................................................... 617, 620
Lauderbach, Samuel ................................................... 55
Lauderbach, Samuel, Evidence of ................................. 279-287
Agreements with employees .......................................... 285, 287
Baker, J. A., Statements of ........................................ 286
Cumberland Miners’ Strike .......................................... 286
Extension not desirable place of residence ........................ 280
Removal of Miners from Extension to Ladysmith .................. 285
Pit Committee ......................................................... 284
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Launderbach, Samuel</td>
<td>280</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ladysmith Miners Union, organization of</td>
<td>280</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unionism, advantages and disadvantages of</td>
<td>284</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Western Federation of Miners, objections to</td>
<td>283</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Laverock, David</td>
<td>559</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Laverock, David, Evidence of</td>
<td>517, 518</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Causes of U.B.R.E. strike</td>
<td>517, 518</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lawson, J. P., letter to Cumberland Miners' Union</td>
<td>759</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Leiser, Simeon—(Evidence of)</td>
<td>127-129</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arbitration, appointment of third arbitrator</td>
<td>128, 129</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Government interference in labour disputes approved</td>
<td>128</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strikes, effect of on business conditions</td>
<td>127, 128</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Le Roi Mine—</td>
<td>682</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Action by victim of accident in</td>
<td>682</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strike at</td>
<td>273</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Letter Carriers’ Association</td>
<td>219</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Little, Francis D.</td>
<td>369, 434</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Little, Francis D.—(Evidence of)</td>
<td>487-489</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Contracts, individual, offered to Cumberland Miners</td>
<td>487</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Recognition of Union refused</td>
<td>488</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lockouts—</td>
<td>727</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>At Ladysmith Mines anticipated by strike—(Evidence of Pritchard)</td>
<td>38</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of</td>
<td>124</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Locomotive Firemen, Brotherhood of</td>
<td>545</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Longshoremen's strike, Vancouver— (Evidence of Johnston)</td>
<td>727</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Noonan)</td>
<td>730-732</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>724</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Constitutionality of—(Evidence of Noonan)</td>
<td>731, 732</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Financial aid to—</td>
<td>728</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Johnston)</td>
<td>728</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Noonan)</td>
<td>730</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unfair freight, refusal to handle—(Evidence of Johnston)</td>
<td>727-729</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Noonan)</td>
<td>730</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Longshoremen's Union, Vancouver</td>
<td>163</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Longshoremen, wages of</td>
<td>181</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Los Angeles 'Times',</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lumber Dealers, Boycotting by</td>
<td>726, 741-744</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Luxton, Mr., Counsel for Wellington Colleries Company</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MeAndrew, M</td>
<td>679</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McBride, striker, fined for assault</td>
<td>137, 138</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McCloskey, Capt.</td>
<td>227</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McCloskey, W.</td>
<td>47, 242</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McCroery, J.</td>
<td>630, 631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McCroery, J.—(Evidence of)</td>
<td>708-712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Increases in pay, C.P.R</td>
<td>709, 711</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Overtime work by clerks</td>
<td>708, 712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McDonald, Bernard</td>
<td>116</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McDonald, Sarah—(Evidence of), Boarding house boycotted by unionists during U.B.R.E. Strike</td>
<td>695-697</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McInnis, Mr., C.P.R</td>
<td>613</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Topic</td>
<td>Page</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>---------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McKay, William—(Evidence of)</td>
<td>233-237</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arbitration, compulsory, disapproved</td>
<td>234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conciliation Act, B.C.</td>
<td>234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion Trade and Labour Congress, duties of.</td>
<td>235</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Internationalism advocated</td>
<td>235</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stonecutters’ Association of North America—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Constitution of</td>
<td>233</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Powers of Executive re Strikes</td>
<td>233</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Victoria branch of</td>
<td>236</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stonecutters’ Strike, Victoria</td>
<td>234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Caused by workman being required to pay for damage</td>
<td>234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Settled by conciliation</td>
<td>234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trade and Labour Council, Victoria, settlement of disputes by</td>
<td>236</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trades Unions, advantages of</td>
<td>237</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Moral effect of, beneficial</td>
<td>237</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McKinnon, Alex., charged with assault</td>
<td>138</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McMicking, R. N., Evidence of. Strike of Telephone Employees in Victoria in sympathy with Vancouver Strikers</td>
<td>195-197</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McMillan, Thomas—(Evidence of)</td>
<td>287-289</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ladysmith preferable to Extension as place of residence</td>
<td>288</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ladysmith Strike, loss of wages by</td>
<td>288</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unions not necessary</td>
<td>288</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McMillan, William, J.—(Evidence of)</td>
<td>574-579</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blacklist of C.P.R.</td>
<td>574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blacklisting by Unions</td>
<td>576</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teamsters’ Strike, Vancouver</td>
<td>576-578</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreement by Merchants to employ Non-unionists</td>
<td>576</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Double rates charged by Non-unionist teamsters</td>
<td>578</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>U.B.R.E. Strike, effect of, on business</td>
<td>575, 577</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McMurtry, Joseph—(Evidence of), Conversation between Woodburn and Shenton re Organizer’s Commission</td>
<td>350</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McNeil, John</td>
<td>690, 797</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McNiven, James D.—(Evidence of)</td>
<td>201-213</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agitators, should be suppressed by Unions</td>
<td>208</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>American Academy of Political and Social Science, views of, on Unionism controverted</td>
<td>209</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Compulsory Arbitration favoured</td>
<td>211</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conciliation</td>
<td>211</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion Trades and Labour Congress</td>
<td>206</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Difficulty of enforcing awards</td>
<td>213</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Incorporation of Unions would prevent boycotts</td>
<td>207</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>International, advantages of</td>
<td>204</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Label, Union</td>
<td>207</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Labour Literature</td>
<td>210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Politics in Union, advocated</td>
<td>208</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socialism, growth of, in Unions</td>
<td>210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strikes, feeling against among unionists</td>
<td>211, 212</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Typographical Union—</td>
<td>201</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapel, functions of</td>
<td>202</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grievances, how dealt with</td>
<td>203</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>International, constitution of</td>
<td>203</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>International, Powers of as to strikes</td>
<td>202-204</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Representation of local bodies</td>
<td>205</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
McNiven, James D.—Evidence of—Typographical Union—Con. .......................... Page. 202
Strikes, notices of, required. .............................................................. 202
Sympathetic strikes, powers of International Executive as to .......... 204
Unions encourage sobriety and morals ............................................ 209
Machinery, labour-saving ................................................................. 157
Machinists, International Order of .................................................... 545
Action of, in U.B.R.E. Strike— ............................................................ 689
(Evidence of Watson). .......................................................................... 689
(Evidence of Marpole). ......................................................................... 707
Machinists' Strike, Seattle ................................................................. 103
Maintenance of way men, Union of .................................................. 545
Maley, Mr. .......................................................................................... 479
Manual training, Unions opposed to .................................................. 580
Marion, Arthur—(Evidence of W. Wilson), employing plumber posted as unfair .............. 183-187
Marpole, R.— ......................................................................................... 163, 164
Agreement made by, with Strikers ...................................................... 163
Employment of spotters by—(Evidence of Foley) ............................... 681
Interview of U.B.R.E. Committee with, asking for reinstatement of Halton— (Evidence of Dennison) ................................................................. 640, 642
(Evidence of Dick). ............................................................................. 613
(Evidence of Wilson). .......................................................................... 601, 605
Notice of Strike to, by U.B.R.E. .......................................................... 559
Marpole, R.—(Evidence of) ................................................................. 684-688, 705-708
Blacklist, C.P.R., denied ........................................................................ 705
Clearance system, operation of ........................................................... 706
Coal, importation of from Japan .......................................................... 708
Compulsory arbitration favoured ......................................................... 685, 686
Third arbitrator should be Judge .......................................................... 685
Compulsory investigation of labour disputes proposed ....................... 685
Trades Unions— .................................................................................... 687
Approved .......................................................................................... 687
Attitude of C.P.R. towards ................................................................. 684
Incorporation of, advocated ................................................................. 685
Moral influence of ................................................................................ 687
U.B.R.E., objections to ......................................................................... 684
U.B.R.E. Strike— ................................................................................... 707
Effects of, on traffic .............................................................................. 707
Extent of ............................................................................................. 707
Picketting by Strikers ........................................................................... 707
Marx, Karl, influence of works of .......................................................... 415, 646
Master Plumbers' Association, Victoria ............................................... 91
Matthews, John—(Evidence of) ............................................................. 478-487, 500-504
Chinaman, accident to .......................................................................... 502
Chinese, employed in place of Strikers ............................................... 482
Number of, in mines ........................................................................... 500
Compulsory arbitration, impracticable ............................................... 485
Cumberland Strike, considered sympathetic ...................................... 481
Employees, Cumberland Mines, number of ...................................... 500
Foreign interference objected to ........................................................ 483
Incorporation of Unions, favoured ...................................................... 484
Individual contracts, company prepared to accept ............................. 485-487
Interview with Union Committee ......................................................... 481
Matthews, John—Evidence of—Con.
Intimidation of Non-unionists........................................ 480, 483
Japanese, employed in place of Strikers.......................... 482
Number of, in mines..................................................... 500
Loss of wages by Strike.................................................. 500
Recognition of Union refused......................................... 481
Unionists discharged.................................................... 479, 481
Voters, not intimidated.................................................. 479
Wages of miners.......................................................... 478
Warring, Arthur.......................................................... 479
White, Walter, discharge of........................................... 479
Meiss, J. C.—(Evidence of)............................................. 726-727
Boycotting by capitalists............................................... 726
Lumber refused to employers of Union labour....................... 727
Michel Miner’s Union.................................................... 22, 265
Sympathetic Strike by—(Evidence of Baker)........................ 16
Middle class, absence of in B.C....................................... 647
Militia—
Attitude of W. F. of M. respecting—
(Evidence of Baker)..................................................... 29
(Evidence of Halliday)................................................... 417
Not favoured by Socialists—(Evidence of Dales).................... 667
Objections of Unionists to—(Evidence of Twigg).................... 133
Mine Owners’ Association—Evidence of Baker)....................... 74
Discrimination against Unionists by—(Evidence of Thompson).... 370, 371
Miners’ and Mine Labourers’ Protective Association, Nanaimo..... 295, 332
Agreement of Vancouver Coal Company with.......................... 752
Miners’ ‘Magazine’........................................................ 809, 811
Extracts from................................................................... 20, 21, 251, 252, 325
Socialism inculcated by.................................................... 27, 252
Miners’ Strike (general) in 1901—(Evidence of Thompson)........ 372
Miners’ Western Federation of. (See ‘Western Federation of Miners.’) 652-655
Mines, collective ownership of, favoured—(Evidence of Dales).... 652-655
Mochar, John—(Evidence of)’ compelled to remove from Extension to Ladysmith................................................................. 79, 82
Molly Maguires.............................................................. 265
Montreal ‘Star,’ extracts from, re U.B.R.E. strike.................. 581, 732
Montreal ‘Witness,’ Letter of C.P.R. employees to, re U.B.R.E. Strike 582, 614, 733
Morality, Socialist attitude respecting—(Evidence of Dales)....... 654, 661, 666
Moran Bros., Seattle....................................................... 901
Morrisey Miners’ Union................................................... 22, 255
Mottishaw, Samuel K., junr.—(Evidence of).......................... 38, 40, 239, 337, 364
Authorized request to Baker to organize Union—(Evidence of Shenton) 522
Letter of, to Cumberland Miners’ Union............................... 559
Mottishaw, Samuel K., junr.............................................. 38, 40, 239, 337, 364
Baker, J. A., statements of............................................. 289
Blacklisting................................................................. 294
Recognition of Union refused......................................... 64, 65
Resolution of Ladysmith Miners asking Cumberland Miners to strike. 289, 290
W. F. of M., financial aid from, to Ladysmith Strikers................ 291-293
Mottishaw, Samuel, senr................................................ 37, 40
Mottishaw, Samuel, senr.—(Evidence of)............................. 52-61
Alien labour............................................................... 60
Check weigh man, none in Extension Mine........................... 53, 60
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Mottishaw, Samuel, senr.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Evidence of</td>
<td>59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>International organizations</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>favoured.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Organization of Union at</td>
<td>53,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extension.</td>
<td>56,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wages of Miners.</td>
<td>54,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>57,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Moyer, Charles, President,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Western Federation of Miners—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Telegram from Baker to, asking</td>
<td>475</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>consent to sympathetic strike</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>at Cumberland.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>445-448, 755</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Telegram from, to Baker, re</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ladysmith Strike.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>510, 588</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Telegram from, to stop supply</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of Coal to C.P.R.</td>
<td>524, 589</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Muir, William D.—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreement with Employees.</td>
<td>799-801</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>List of parties who quit</td>
<td>798</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dealing at bakery of.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Muir, William D.—(Evidence of)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boycott for supplying bread</td>
<td>697-700</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>to C.P.N. Company boats.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Murray, baker, boycotted.</td>
<td>736</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Myllimaki, Jacob—(Evidence of)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ordered to remove from</td>
<td>82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extension to Ladysmith.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Nanaimo—

| Coal of.                      | 200, 201 |
| Conditions of labour at—     | 45     |
|                              | 763    |
|Telegram produced by operator | 30, 240, 248, 293, 352 |
|Nanaimo Miners' Union.        | 207, 316, 318 |
|Affiliated with W.F. of M.    | 584    |
|Documents respecting.         | 784    |
|Minutes of Joint Board Meeting.| 784    |
|Papers produced by Shenton re | 780    |
|affairs of.                   |        |
|Preferred to International    | 258    |
|organization—(Evidence of     |        | |Carroll).                     |        |
|Proposed Agreement of Western | 735    |
|Fuel Company, with.           |        |
|Report of Executive Committee.| 735    |
|Strike of.                    | 305, 343 |
|Statement of vote on affiliation with W.F. of M. | 755 |
|Nanaimo River.                | 381    |
|Narrow work in mines.         | 363, 364 |
|National Trades Congress.     | 124, 206, 739, 745 |
|National Union of Bricklayers,|        |
|Masons and Carpenters—        |        |
|Considered unfair—(Evidence of| 745    |
|Hilton).                      |        |
|Organization of—(Evidence of  | 737    |
|Cook).                        |        |
|Navy, Unionists work with     | 154    |
|carpenters of—(Evidence of     |        |
|Kelly).                       |        |
|Neave, William—(Evidence of)  | 304-316|
|Agreements, as to notice of    | 306    |
|Strikes.                      | 312    |
|Arbitration approved.         | 312    |
|Conciliation favoured.        | 312    |
|Grievances, method of         | 305    |
|adjustment of.                | 312    |
|Incorporation of Unions        | 312    |
|favoured.                     | 312    |
|Socialism, extent of, in       | 311, 314 |
|Nanaimo Unions.               | 315    |
|Various kinds of.             | 315    |
|Strike, caused by dispute over | 306    |
|payment for safety lamps.     | 305    |
|Unions, advantage of to       | 305    |
|Employers.                    | 312    |
|Wages of Miners.              |        |
|Western Federation of Miners— |        |
|Ballot of Nanaimo Miners on   | 307, 316|
|affiliation.                  |        |
|Contract with Employers referred to. | 308 |
Neave, William—Evidence of—Western Federation of Miners—Con. .......................... 307
Power of Executive to order sympathetic Strikes.................. 310
Qartz Miners, influence of, in.............................. 313
Socialism of........................................ 210
Nelson, George—(Evidence of).......................... 702-704
Bakers’ Union, Strike of—(Evidence of).... 703, 704
Expelled from Bakers’ Union for action in sympathetic Strike— 703, 704
New Vancouver Company, collieries.......................... 240, 351
New Westminster Street Railway Employees’ Union.................. 192
New Zealand, compulsory arbitration in—
Awards only favour men on rising market—(Evidence of Barnes)..... 368
Satisfactory operation of—(Evidence of Foley)... 681
System not suited to Canada—
(Evidence of Baker).................................. 73
(Evidence of Twigg)................................ 90
Non-unionists—(See also ‘Trade Unions Strikes,’ &c.)— Assaults on—
(Evidence of Bulley).................................. 137, 138, 142
(Edward VII., A. 1904 Page.)
(Edward of Troupe).................................... 229
Double rates charged by, during Strike—
(Edward of, desired).................................. 87
(Edward of McMillan)................................ 578
Intimidation of—(Evidence of Matthews).......................... 480, 483
Printers, position of—(Evidence of Twigg).................. 100
Right of, to employment—(Evidence of Anthony)..................... 432
(Edward of Bulley).................................. 168
(Edward of Johnstone)................................ 568
(Edward of Richards)................................ 438
(Edward of Thompson)................................ 174
Union men refuse to work with—(Evidence of Bullen)............. 122
Neenan, George—(Evidence of).................................. 730, 732
Longshoremen’s Strike.......................................... 730, 732
Constitutionality of........................................ 731, 732
Refusal of men to handle unfair freight.......................... 730
Northern Pacific Railroad........................................ 622, 625
Northfield.................................................. 303, 351
Northfield Coal Mine, closing of................................ 296, 303
Northport Smelter, Strike at..................................... 373
Oath—
Of Steamshipmen’s Society of B.C.................................. 134
Of U.B.R.E.............................................. 550
Of W.F. of M............................................ 30
O’Brien, Andrew.................................................. 86
O’Farrell, journalist............................................... 680
Organization—(See also ‘Trade Unions’)—
As solution to labour problem—(Evidence of Baker)..................... 73
Of employers, favoured by trade unionists—(Evidence of Ladingham) 156, 157
Right of...................................................... 5, 6
Organizer—
Commission of—
(Edward of Carroll)........................................ 349
(Edward of Forremer)..................................... 349
(Edward of McMurtry)..................................... 350
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Organizer—Commission of—Con.

(Evidence of Shenton) ........................................... 348-349
(Evidence of Woodburn) ........................................ 272
Executive of W.F. of M. act as—(Evidence of Richards). ..... 441
Salary of—(Evidence of Baker) ................................ 32
Otter, steamer ..................................................... 229
Overtime work on C.P.R.—(Evidence of Dennison). .... 635-638, 641
(Evidence of Grier) ............................................. 712, 713
(Evidence of McCreery) ........................................ 708-712
Oxford stoves and ranges, circular blacklisting ........... 804
Oyster Bay .......................................................... 280, 282

Pacific Coast Company ............................................ 623
Peacey, Albert H.—(Evidence of), Telegram relating to Strike, produced. 451, 487
Penkith, George—(Evidence of) ................................ 112-121
Arbitration, favoured ............................................ 118
Ballot, Strikes voted on by ...................................... 118
Boilermakers' and Iron Shipbuilders' Union of America, constitution and membership of. ................. 112
Boilermakers' Strike, Victoria .................................. 113
Garonne contract regarded as unfair .......................... 113
Strike due to decision of Executive in Kansas .............. 114
Boycotting ........................................................... 119
Dominion Trades Congress, affiliation with ................ 121
Internationalism, advantages of .............................. 115
Recognition of Union ............................................ 118
Shop Committee, duties of ..................................... 119
Unfair Employers .................................................. 119
Unionism, wages increased by ................................. 120
Pension scheme, C.P.R........................................... 789-792
Peters, Mr., C.P.R ................................................ 639, 640
Statement of re blacklisting by railroads—(Evidence of McMillan) ................. 574
Picketting—
(Evidence of Baker) ............................................ 34, 35
(Evidence of Browne) .......................................... 627
(Evidence of Twigg) ............................................ 95
In Steamshipmen's Strike—
(Evidence of Bulley) .......................................... 141, 142
(Evidence of Troupe) .......................................... 228
In U.B.R.E. Strike—(Evidence of Marpole) .................. 707
Pinkerton detectives .............................................. 29
Piper, Thomas—(Evidence of) ................................ 144-150
Agreements with Employers .................................... 149, 150
Alien Labour Law needed ...................................... 149
Boycotting ........................................................ 147
Cripples, treatment of by Unions ............................. 146
Dominion Trades and Labour Congress, affiliation of Shipwrights with ... 150
Drunkards, how regarded by Unions ........................... 145, 146
Foreign interference opposed ................................... 149
Incorporation of Unions ........................................ 150
Recognition of Union, what is meant by ..................... 147
Shipwrights' Union modelled after English Trade Union .... 147
Shipwrights' strike, Victoria, caused by employment of non-residents 144, 148
Socialism .............................................................. 147
Piper, Thomas—Evidence of—Con.
Sympathetic strikes opposed as an American institution... 149
Trade unionism, advantages of... 148
Wages of shipwrights... 147-148
Pit boss, authority of... 265-267
Pit Committee, Miners'... 240, 257, 275, 384, 344
Plumbers' Association, Journeymen, Victoria... .91, 185-187
Plumbers' Association, Master, Victoria... 91
Plumbers, Victoria, wages of... 91, 186
Political and Social Science, Extract from Annals of Academy of... 209
Political parties, Socialist view of—(Evidence of Ja.es)... 648
Politics in Trade Unions—
(Evidence of Baker)... 34
(Evidence of Wilson)... 90
 Advocated—
(Evidence of Dales)... 648, 655
(Evidence of Foley)... 673
(Evidence of Halliday)... 415
(Evidence of McNiven)... 289
By 'Miners' Magazine'... 259
By 'Railway Employees' Journal'... 565
American Labour Union engage in—(Evidence of Twigg)... 94
Characteristic of the West—(Evidence of Bartley)... 723
Disapproved—(Evidence of Watson)... 693
Disorganizing influence of—(Evidence of Thompson)... 370, 378
Should be excluded—
(Evidence of Booth)... 319
(Evidence of Shenton)... 335, 342
Poore, II., Letter of George Estes to, re Socialism and American Federation of Labour... 561, 623, 779
Porter, H. T., Evidence of. Cipher Telegrams re Ladysmith Strike... 505, 506
Posting as Unfair. (See 'Blacklisting' and 'Boycotting'.)
Princess Louise, Steamer... 135, 140
Princess May, Steamer... 135, 159, 173-175, 224, 258
Pritchard, James... 418
Pritchard, James, Evidence of... 37-46
Discharge of Union Miners... 38
Miners compelled to remove from Extension to Ladysmith... 45
Organization of Miners' Union at Extension... 37
Preference for International organization... 41
Strike on account of discharge of Unionists and in anticipation of Lockout... 43
Vancouver Coal Co.—Conditions of Labour... 45
Profit-sharing—B. C. Electric Railway adopt system of—(Evidence of Coward)... 192
Profit, unnecessary for Production—(Evidence of Dales)... 651
'Province', Daily, Vancouver... 612
Public Interests, how regarded by Strikers—(Evidence of Thompson)... 181
Purvis, Mr., C.P.R... 705
Quartz Miners... 22
Influence of in W. F. of M... 313, 316
Queen City, Steamer... 175
Quigley, M. T., Evidence of. Telegrams re U.B.R.E. Strike produced... 632-634
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page(s)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Railway Clerks, C.P.R.—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Demand for increase of Pay—(Evidence of Dennison)</td>
<td>639</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fines for Mistakes of—(Evidence of Dennison)</td>
<td>641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Organized in connection with the U.B.R.E.—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Dennison)</td>
<td>638</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Dick)</td>
<td>617, 620</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Overtime, work of—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Dennison)</td>
<td>635-638, 641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Grier)</td>
<td>712, 713</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of McCrery)</td>
<td>708-712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pay of—(Evidence of Dick)</td>
<td>616, 621</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strike of (U.B.R.E.)—(Evidence of Dennison)</td>
<td>642</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Railway Conductors, Order of</td>
<td>545</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>‘Railway Employees Journal’</td>
<td>779, 811</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extracts from</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Railway Telegraphers, Order of</td>
<td>545</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Railway Trainmen, Order of</td>
<td>545</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ramsay, Mr., Wabash Railroad</td>
<td>685</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Recognition of Union—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>By B.C. Electric Railway—(Evidence of Goward)</td>
<td>193</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cumberland Strike a fight for</td>
<td>504</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Only won by Strikes—(Evidence of Dennison)</td>
<td>643</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What is implied by—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Anthony)</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Halliday)</td>
<td>417</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Thompson)</td>
<td>174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reed, James—(Evidence of)</td>
<td>461-469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cumberland Miners’ Union—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Baker, J. A., Statements of</td>
<td>462</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Opposition to</td>
<td>163, 466</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Organization of</td>
<td>461, 467</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Free Speech</td>
<td>467, 468</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Internationalism opposed</td>
<td>468</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Intimidation of Non-unionists</td>
<td>464, 468</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unions approved</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rents in Vancouver</td>
<td>169</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revolutionary Socialism, exposition of—(Evidence of Dales)</td>
<td>615-667</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Richards, G. M., representative of Cumberland Miners</td>
<td>382</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Richards, George, Evidence of</td>
<td>436-442, 469-471</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cumberland Miners’ Strike—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cause of</td>
<td>441</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Correspondence with J. A. Baker in reference to</td>
<td>433-440</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Not a sympathetic Strike</td>
<td>470</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Telegram from L. Irwin to S. Burdette</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Telegram to Baker announcing decision to strike</td>
<td>470</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cumberland Miners’ Union, organization of</td>
<td>436</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Executive W. F. of M., duties of</td>
<td>441</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Non-unionists, right to employ</td>
<td>438</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Riddell, Mr., C.P.R.</td>
<td>613-615, 619</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bithet, Steamer</td>
<td>698, 699</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Robertson, Andrew</td>
<td>353</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Robertson, Andrew, Evidence of</td>
<td>273-279</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agitators</td>
<td>275</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Baker, James A., Statements of</td>
<td>278, 279</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Name</td>
<td>Evidence of/Con.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-----------------------------</td>
<td>----------------------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Robertson, Andrew</td>
<td>Compulsory Arbitration opposed</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Conciliation approved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cumberland Miners' Strike—Request for by Ladysmith Miners</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Internationalism disadvantageous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ladysmith Strike, loss in wage by.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Pit Committee</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Removal of Miners from Extension to Ladysmith</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Union, advantages of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Robins, S. M.</td>
<td>Evidence of Chinese labour</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Coal Mines, exhaustion of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Compulsory arbitration, objections to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Incorporation of Unions favoured</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Internationalism, may be legitimate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Nanaimo Miners' Union</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Vancouver Coal Co.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Agreement to employ Union men only</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Grievances, adjustment of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Miners, nationality of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Pit Committee</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sales of lots by</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Unions, advantages of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Unions, experience with</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Wages paid</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Wages, reduction of, accepted by Unions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Roger, Frank</td>
<td>Murder of Rossland 'Evening World'</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rossland 'Evening World'</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rossland 'Miner'</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Accuracy of Statements, reports, &amp;c., respecting—(Evidence of Gregg)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Effects of, on business—(Evidence of Leiser)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Rowe, Rev., Elliott S., Commissioner</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Royal City Mills</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Russell, F. T.</td>
<td>Evidence of U.B.R.E. Strike</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Blacklisting, in aid of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Headquarters of Committee of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sympathetic Strikes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Financial aid to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Russell, John</td>
<td>Evidence of Agitators regarded as unnecessary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Bricklayers Union, Victoria</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Arbitration, satisfactory working of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Constitution of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Hours of Labour, reduced</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Wages of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Withdrawal from International Union</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Brick Manufacturers, combination of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Chinese Labour</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Internationalism favoured by Victoria T. and L. Council</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sympathetic Strikes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Russell, Thomas</td>
<td>Resignation of as Manager for political reasons—</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Clinton)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Evidence of Hall)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Russell, Thomas, Evidence of .................................................. 343-347
Agreement proposed with Miners ........................................... 344
Incorporation of Unions favoured ........................................... 364
Pit Committee ........................................................................... 344
Strike of Nanaimo Coal Miners over allowance for safety lamps .... 344
Unions, advantages of to Men ................................................... 345
Disadvantages to Employers .................................................... 34

Sailors on Empress of India quit work in sympathy with Strike—(Evidence of Fullerton) ......................................................... 741-742
Saloon ......................................................................................... 268
Seals—(See also ‘Unfair,’ ‘Blacklisting,’ &c.)—
Posting of .................................................................................. 251
Refusal of Freight-handlers on C.P.R. to work with—(Evidence of Johnstone ........................................................................ 540, 541, 564
Unionists refuse to board with—(Evidence of McDonald) .... 695-697
Seabrooke, Bagster R., Evidence of ......................................... 101-112, 117
Arbitration—Third Arbitrator should be appointed by Judge .... 110
Boilermakers’ Strikes, Victoria—
For shorter hours (over contract for repairing Ship Topeka ........ 107
Sympathetic Strike over contract for repairing Ship Garonne, 101-105, 111
Wages, loss of by Strikes ......................................................... 112
Boilermakers, Wages and hours of ........................................... 109
Contract to repair Garonne signed before Seattle Strike .... 117
Foreign influence a cause of Strikes ......................................... 108, 111
Union Men preferred to Non-unionists .................................. 107
Seattle—
Coal imported from ................................................................. 198, 199
Machinists and Moulders’ Strike at ........................................... 102
Street Railway Strike at ......................................................... 193
Secret Service, C.P.R., Affidavit of F. J. Halton respecting .... 775
Sharp, Mine Manager ............................................................... 73, 83, 237
Shenton, Thomas J ................................................................. 447, 448
Conversation with M. Woodburn re Commission as Organizer—
(Evidence of Carroll) ............................................................... 349
(Evidence of Forcimer) ............................................................ 349
(Evidence of McMurtry) ........................................................ 350
(Evidence of Woodburn) .......................................................... 273
Conversation of, with Rev. L. W. Hall re organization of Chinese—(Evidence of Hall) ......................................................... 452-460
Letter to Cumberland Miners’ Union ........................................ 760
Papers produced by re Nanaimo Miners’ Union .................... 789
Shenton, Thomas J, Evidence of ............................................. 326-343, 348, 349, 507-514, 519-526, 584-590
Action re Supply of Coal to C.P.R. from Nanaimo ................ 524, 525, 588
Agreements with Employers as to Notice of Strike ............... 329
Baker, J. A., Movements of ..................................................... 527, 529
Chinese, organization of—
Conversation with Rev. L. W. Hall regarding ........................ 508, 512, 513
No steps taken for .................................................................. 532-535
Not approved .......................................................................... 508-510
Not authorized to organize .................................................... 585
Not discussed by Miners’ Executive at Nanaimo ................. 520
Class consciousness ............................................................... 332
Compulsory arbitration impracticable ................................. 342
36a—54
INDEX

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

Shenton, Thomas J.—Evidence of—Con.
Dominion T. & L. Congress—Withdrawal of Nanaimo Union from... 326
Document re Strikes produced........................................ 534
Estes, George—Circular signed by.................................... 341
Power to call out miners on sympathetic Strike..................... 330-334
Ladysmith Miners' Strike—
Connection of, with U.B.R.E. strike.................................. 529-531, 587
Executive meeting in Nanaimo in aid of................................ 519
Ladysmith Miners' Union—
Organization of..................................................................... 336, 337
Telegram to Baker respecting.............................................. 521, 589
'Miners' Magazine'—Extracts from........................................ 335
Politics in Unions.................................................................... 335, 342
Socialism among Unionists.................................................... 336, 587
Sympathetic Strikes.................................................................. 340
Unions, advantages of............................................................ 326
U.B.R.E. strike, correspondence with Estes respecting.............. 526
Western Federation of Miners—
Fernie miners withdraw from............................................... 512
Nanaimo Union affiliated with.............................................. 326-328
Powers of—As to sympathetic Strikes...................................... 328
Preferred to American Federation of Labour............................ 328
Socialism in.............................................................................. 327
Woodburn's statement re organizer's commission denied............ 348, 349
Ship Carpenters' and Caulkers' Association, Victoria and Esquimalt—Constitution of...................................................... 810
Shipping Act—Powers of employers under................................ 178
Shipwrights' Strike, Victoria—Caused by employment of non-residents—
(Evidence of Bullen).............................................................. 124
(Evidence of Piper).................................................................. 144, 148
Shipwrights' Union, Victoria—
Agreement of Employers with.............................................. 126
Constitution of......................................................................... 149
Rule that local men must have preference............................... 151
Shop Committee, duties of..................................................... 119
Sick Benefit Association, B.C. Street Railway employees........... 192
Slocan, importation of Aliens into.......................................... 674
Smith, Ralph, M.P................................................................. 318, 352, 679
Smith, William....................................................................... 353, 363
Smith, William, Evidence of.................................................. 258-262
Compulsory Arbitration approved.......................................... 261
Conciliation favoured............................................................ 261
Internationalism opposed...................................................... 259
Ladysmith preferable to Extension as place of residence............ 259
Unions, advantages of............................................................ 260, 262
Sniders, Non-unionists, assault on........................................ 137, 138
Socialism—
American Labour Union declare for—
(Evidence of Denison)............................................................ 644
(Evidence of Twigg)............................................................... 94, 133
Class-conscious, advocated—
(Evidence of Halliday)........................................................... 414, 415
Extent of, in Unions—
(Evidence of Bolden)............................................................. 221
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Socialism—Extent of, in Unions—Con.
  (Evidence of McNiven) ........................................... 210
  (Evidence of Neave) ........................................... 314, 318
Miners' Magazine inculcates ........................................... 27
  (Evidence of Shenton) ........................................... 336, 557
Opposed—
  (Evidence of Foley) ........................................... 675
  (Evidence of Watson) ........................................... 690
Relationship of, to trades unionism—
  (Evidence of Dales) ........................................... 647
  (Evidence of Twigg) ........................................... 133
Revolutionary, exposition of—
  (Evidence of Dales) ........................................... 645-667
United Brotherhood of Railway Employees—Position of, towards—
  (Evidence of Johnstone) ...................................... 543, 561
Letter of President Geo. Estes respecting .................................. 779
Varieties of—(Evidence of Neave) .................................. 312
Western Federation of Miners—Views as to—
  (Evidence of Baker) ........................................... 29, 33
  (Evidence of Neave) ........................................... 310
  (Evidence of Spencer) ........................................... 347
  (Evidence of Twigg) ........................................... 133
  (Evidence of Woodburn) ........................................... 271
Socialist Party, B.C.—
  Aided by W. F. of M—
    (Evidence of Halliday) ....................................... 422
    (Evidence of Hutchison) ..................................... 448, 499
  Favoured—(Evidence of Dales) ................................ 648
Somona Vessel—Difficulty of getting men to work on .................. 123
Southfield ................................................................. 364
Spence, Wm. ................................................................. 47
Spencer, Arthur, Evidence of ........................................... 347, 348
W. F. of M.—
  Affiliation of Miners with ....................................... 347
  Socialist Platform not binding on Members ....................... 347
Spotters, employment of—(Evidence of Foley) ........................... 681
Spratt, Thomas .......................................................... 353, 363
'Star,' Montreal, Statement in re C.P.R. Strike ................. 551, 752
Steamshipmen's Strike, Vancouver and Victoria—
  Agreement of Men to give 12 hours' notice of Strike—
    (Evidence of Bulley) ........................................... 159, 161
    (Evidence of Troupe) ........................................... 227, 230, 231
  Agreement with Capt. Troupe not to handle Unfair Freight—
    (Evidence of Bulley) ........................................... 135, 159-161
    (Evidence of Thompson) ........................................... 171, 172
    (Evidence of Troupe) ........................................... 224, 232
Approved by Vancouver Unions—( Evidence of Bulley) .............. 170
Assaults by Union Men—
  (Evidence of Bulley) ........................................... 137, 141, 142
  (Evidence of Troupe) ........................................... 229
Bakers' Strike in sympathy with—
  (Evidence of Muir) ........................................... 697-700
  (Evidence of Wilband) ........................................... 700-702

36a—541
Steamshipmen's Strike, Vancouver and Victoria—Con.

Causes of—Men in sympathy with U.B.R.E. Strike refused to handle unfair freight—

(Evidence of Bulley) .................................................. 135, 136, 140, 143
(Evidence of Russell) ................................................. 724
(Evidence of Thompson) ............................................. 171-173
(Evidence of Troupe) .................................................. 224

Constitutionality of—(Evidence of Thompson) ................................ 178, 179

Contributions in Aid of—(Evidence of Thompson) ................................ 182

Effect of on Business—(Evidence of Leiser) .................................. 127

Forced by Minority—(Evidence of Troupe) .................................. 233

Letters respecting ......................................................... 751

Loss of Wages by—(Evidence of Thompson) .................................. 181

Picketing—

(Evidence of Bulley) .................................................. 137, 141, 142

(Evidence of Troupe) .................................................. 228

Statements re in Montreal Newspapers ...................................... 581, 582

Support of Steamshipmen’s Union asked for U.B.R.E.—(Evidence of Thompson) ................................ 173, 175

Union Men on C.P.N. Boats called out—

(Evidence of Thompson) .................................................. 175, 176

(Evidence of Troupe) .................................................. 226

Stonecutters’ Association of N. A.—

Constitution of .......................................................... 233, 811

Powers of Executive as to Strikes ........................................ 233

Stonecutters’ Strike, Victoria, caused by requiring Workmen to pay for damage—(Evidence of McKay) .................................................. 234

Settled by conciliation .................................................... 234

Stonecutters’ Union, Victoria .............................................. 236

Constitution of .......................................................... 811

Street Railway Employees’ Union, B.C.—(Evidence of Goward) ............. 102

Affiliation with Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees . 103

Constitution of .......................................................... 810

Profit-sharing Arrangement with ........................................ 192

Recognition of Union .................................................... 194

Sick Benefit Association ................................................ 194

Strike of ................................................................. 194

Wages of ................................................................. 195

Strikes—

Agreements as to notice of—

(Evidence of Booth) .................................................... 324, 325
(Evidence of Bullen) .................................................... 126
(Evidence of McNiven) .................................................. 202
(Evidence of Nave) ...................................................... 306
(Evidence of Shenton) ................................................... 329

 Alleged promotion of by Capitalists—(Evidence of Pritchard) ............... 44

Ballotting on—

(Evidence of Anthony) .................................................... 433

(Evidence of Penkith) ...................................................... 118

Causes of—

Bakers, Vancouver, sympathy with U.B.R.E.—

(Evidence of Muir) ....................................................... 697-700
(Evidence of Nelson) ..................................................... 703, 704
(Evidence of Wilband) ................................................... 700-704
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Strikes—Con.</th>
<th>Page.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Blacksmiths, Victoria—Demand for increased Wages and shorter hours</td>
<td>154, 155</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Ladingham)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boilermakers, Victoria, on Garonne contract—Sympathy with Strikers at</td>
<td>112-115</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seattle—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Penkith)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Seabrooke)</td>
<td>101, 105</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boilermakers, Victoria on ship Topeka contract—Demand for shorter hours</td>
<td>107</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Seabrooke)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Carpenters, Victoria. Demand for increased Wages and Shorter Hours</td>
<td>216</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Bolden)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Factory workers, Vancouver—Demand for 8-hour day</td>
<td>806</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Johnston)</td>
<td>727-729</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Noonan)</td>
<td>730</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>725</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miners, Comox, in—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sympathy with Ladysmith Strikers—(Evidence of Carroll)</td>
<td>250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miners, Cumberland—Discharge of Union officials—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Baker)</td>
<td>71</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Barber)</td>
<td>387</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Statement)</td>
<td>755</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miners—in 1901—Discharge of unionists—(Evidence of Thompson)</td>
<td>371</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miners, Ladysmith—(Extension mines)—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Discharge of Union men and anticipation of lockout—(Evidence of Pritchard)</td>
<td>38, 43</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Recognition of Union refused—(Evidence of Dunsmuir)</td>
<td>239</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miners—Michel, sympathetic—(Evidence of Baker)</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miners, Nanaimo—Dispute over payment for safety lamps—</td>
<td>306</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Neave)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>349</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shipwrights, Victoria—Employment of non-residents—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Bullen)</td>
<td>124</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Piper)</td>
<td>144, 148</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Steamshipmen, Vancouver and Victoria—Refusal to handle unfair freight in</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sympathy with U.B.R.E.—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Bulley)</td>
<td>135, 136, 140, 143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>724</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Thompson)</td>
<td>171-173</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Troupe)</td>
<td>224-227</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stonecutters, Victoria—Workmen required to pay for damage—(Evidence of</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McKay)</td>
<td>234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teamsters, Vancouver—Refusal to handle unfair freight in sympathy with</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>U.B.R.E. strike—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Grier)</td>
<td>713</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Kerr)</td>
<td>723</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>724</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Telephone linemen, Victoria—Sympathy with Vancouver Strikers—(Evidence</td>
<td>196</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of McMicking)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United Brotherhood of Railway Employees—Refusal to work with scabs, and</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>discharge of Unionists—(Evidence of Johnstone)</td>
<td>540-542, 564</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conciliation as a means of settling—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Bolden)</td>
<td>219</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Bullen)</td>
<td>124</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
INDEX

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

Strikes—Conciliation as a means of Settling—Con.
   (Evidence of McKay) .......................... 234
   (Evidence of Twigg) .......................... 96, 97
Disappointed as ineffective—(Evidence of Halliday) .......................... 415, 418
Effects of, on business—
   (Evidence of Grier) .......................... 713
   (Evidence of Leiser) .......................... 127, 128
   (Evidence of McMillan) .......................... 574, 575, 577
   (Evidence of Marpole) .......................... 707
Foreign interference as a cause of—
   (Evidence of Seabrooke) .......................... 108, 111
Inexperience as a cause of—(Evidence of Bartley) .......................... 723
Loss of wages by—
   Boilermakers, Victoria—(Evidence of Seabrooke) .......................... 112
   Miners, Cumberland—(Evidence of Matthews) .......................... 500
   Miners, Ladysmith—
      (Evidence of McMillan) .......................... 288
      (Evidence of Robertson) .......................... 277
   Steamshipmen—(Evidence of Thompson) .......................... 181
   U.B.R.E.—(Evidence of Johnstone) .......................... 546
Machinists' International Union—Attitude of, respecting—
   (Evidence of Marpole) .......................... 707
   (Evidence of Watson) .......................... 689
Opposed—(Evidence of Anthony) .......................... 433
Powers of Trades Unions Executive respecting—Carpenters' and Joiners' Amalgamated Lodge—(Evidence of Bolden) 215
   Stone Cutters' Association, N.A. .......................... 233
   Street Railway Employees' Amalgamated Association .......................... 193
   Typographical Union .......................... 202, 203
   U. B. R. E. .......................... 549
   Western Federation of Miners .......................... 10, 73
Recognition, only means to gain—(Evidence of Dennison) .......................... 643
Rossland Miners—Accuracy of reports, &c., regarding—(Evidence of Gregg) .......................... 115
Sympathetic—
   (Evidence of Russell) .......................... 190
   (Evidence of Shenton) .......................... 340
Boilermakers' International opposed to—(Evidence of Watson) 690, 695
Disapproved—
   (Evidence of Johnstone) .......................... 567, 568
   (Evidence of Piper) .......................... 149
   (Evidence of Watson) .......................... 691
Limits of, how far allowable—
   (Evidence of Bolden) .......................... 220
   (Evidence of Booth) .......................... 324, 325
   (Evidence of Bulley) .......................... 169
   (Evidence of Foley) .......................... 677
Telegram from Moyr, President W. F. of M., consenting to, at Cumberland—(Evidence of King) 475
Typographical Union opposed to—(Evidence of Bartley) 722
Typographical Union—Power of Executive to order—
   (Evidence of McNiven) .......................... 204
   (Evidence of Twigg) .......................... 93
W. F. of M.—Powers of Executive to order—(Evidence of Baker) 12, 16, 22
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Page.

Strikes—Con.
  Trades and Labour Council, Victoria, Policy as to—(Evidence of Bolden) 219
  Typographical Union oppose—(Evidence of McNiven) 211, 212
  U. B. R. E. Constitution respecting 549
  Universal, advocated by 'Miners' Magazine' 252, 335
  Western Federation of Miners, Attitude towards—
    (Evidence of Baker 71, 73
    (Evidence of Carroll) 711
    Constitution respecting 10, 73

Succession Duties favoured—(Evidence of Dales) 657

Taff Vale Decision 377
Tartar, Steamer 637, 708
Tassin, Joseph, Evidence of. Miners forced to remove from Extension to Lady smith 65, 66
Taxation of Land Values advocated—(Evidence of Barnes) 368
Team Drivers' International Union, Constitution of 803

Teamsters' Strike, Vancouver—
  Agreement of Merchants to support Masteers against Strikers—(Evidence of McMillan) 575-578
    Effect of, on business—(Evidence of Grier) 713
  Financial Aid to—(Evidence of Kerr) 733, 734
  Refusal of Men to handle unfair freight—(Evidence of Kerr) 733 Supported by U.B.R.E.—(Evidence of Russell) 725 Sympathetic Strike—
    (Evidence of McMillan) 711
    (Evidence of Grier) 713

Teamsters' Union, Vancouver 163
Technical Education favoured—(Evidence of Bolden) 222
Tees, Steamer 175, 229
Telephone linemen 195

Strike of, Vancouver—(Evidence of McMicking) 196
Sympathetic Strike, Victoria—(Evidence of McMicking) 196

Thompson, Alex. C., Evidence of 369-373
Incorporation of Unions opposed 376
Internationalism, advantages of 374

International Typographical Union—
  Contracts with Employers enforced by 375, 376
  Disapproval of Agreements by 373
  Membership of 374
  Power to order Sympathetic Strikes 375

Mine Owners' Association discriminate against Unionists 370, 371
Miners' Strike in 1901 372

Loss of Wages by 372
Politics in Unions 370, 378

Western Federation of Miners—
  Boyce, Edward, President of 370, 376
    Executive refuse to sanction Strike for Recognition 370
    Financial Aid to Strikers by 372

Thompson, C. H. 175, 176, 231
Thompson, Sheff 226, 229

Thompson, Sheff, Evidence of 171-182
Bulkey, Alfred H., demand of Union for discharge of 180
Public interests—How regarded by Strikers 181
Thompson, Sheff—Evidence of—Con.
Steamshipmen’s Strike—
  Cause of .......................................................... 171, 172
  Constitutionality of .......................................................... 178, 179
Estes, Geo., asks support of Union for U.B.R.E. ....................... 173, 175
Loss of Wages by .......................................................... 181
Men on C. P. N. boats called out ........................................... 175-177
Unfair freight objected to .................................................... 172, 180
Steamshipmen’s Union—
  Constitution, provisions of re Strikes ................................ 177
  Incorporation of .......................................................... 180
  Oath of .......................................................... 171
Non-unionists, right to employ ............................................. 174
Wages of Steamshipmen .......................................................... 181
Tinsmiths’ Union, Victoria ..................................................... 187
Tonkin, Mr. .................................................................. 675, 683
"Topeka, Ship, strike of Boilermakers engaged on ...................... 107
 Trades and Labour Council, Vancouver—
  Assistance to Steamshipmen’s strike by ................................ 170
  Blacklisting by—
    (Evidence of Cook) .......................................................... 737
    (Evidence of Russell) ......................................................... 725
  Endorse U.B.R.E. strike—(Evidence of Bulley) ....................... 136
  Withdrawal of Boilermakers from ........................................ 694
Trades and Labour Council, Victoria—
 Conditions of membership ....................................................... 219
 Constitution of .......................................................... 810
Policy of re Strikes ............................................................ 219
Settlement of disputes by ..................................................... 236
Trades Unions—
Advantages of—
To employers—
  (Evidence of Barnes) ......................................................... 351
  (Evidence of Bullen) ......................................................... 125
  (Evidence of Piper) ......................................................... 148
  (Evidence of Neave) ......................................................... 305
  (Evidence of Shenton) ....................................................... 326
  (Evidence of Woodburn) .................................................... 270
To workers—
  (Evidence of Barber) ......................................................... 385
  (Evidence of Barnes) ......................................................... 351
  (Evidence of Carroll) ......................................................... 256
  (Evidence of Ladingham) .................................................... 156
  (Evidence of Lauderbach) .................................................... 237
  (Evidence of McKay) ......................................................... 237
  (Evidence of Piper) ......................................................... 148
  (Evidence of Robertson) .................................................... 275
  (Evidence of Russell) ....................................................... 345
  (Evidence of Shenton) ....................................................... 326
  (Evidence of Smith) .......................................................... 200, 262
  (Evidence of Twigg) .......................................................... 101
Approved—
  (Evidence of Browne) ....................................................... 630
  (Evidence of Marpole) ....................................................... 687
Trades Unions—Approved—Con.

(Evidence of Reed) ........................................ 469
Considered ineffective—(Evidence of Halliday) ................ 418
Considered useless—

(Evidence of Bryden) .................................... 264
(Evidence of McMillan) .................................. 288
Difficulties with—(Evidence of Cook) ..................... 737
Disadvantages of—

(Evidence of Carroll) .................................... 256
(Evidence of Launderbach) ................................. 284
Disadvantages to employer—

(Evidence of Bullen) ...................................... 125
(Evidence of Russell) .................................... 345
Experience with—(Evidence of Robinson) ................. 299
In Germany and France—(Evidence of Dales) ............. 648
International, as opposed to local—(Evidence of Woodward) 718
Objected to—(Evidence of Dunsmuir) ...................... 378, 379
Officials of, Comox, discharged. ........................... 351, 352
Members of, discharged—

(Evidence of Matthews) ................................. 479, 481
(Evidence of Dunsmuir) .................................. 379
Members of, preferred to non-unionists—(Evidence of Seabrooke) 107
Moral influence of—

(Evidence of McKay) ..................................... 237
(Evidence of McNiven) .................................... 209
(Evidence of Marpole) .................................... 687
Position of C.P.R. respecting—(Evidence of Marpole) .... 684 Recognition of—

Cumberland strike a fight for ................................ 504
Does not involve exclusion of Non-unionists—(Evidence of Goward) 193
Involves exclusion of Non-unionists—

(Evidence of Bullen) ...................................... 126
(Evidence of Piper) ....................................... 147
Only gained by strikes—(Evidence of Dennison) .......... 643
What is implied by—(Evidence of Penkith). ............... 118
Regarded as a poor expedient—(Evidence of Hall) ....... 453
Socialist view of—(Evidence of Dales) .................... 647
Wages raised by—

(Evidence of Dick) ........................................ 621
(Evidence of Ladingham) .................................. 126
(Evidence of Penkith) ..................................... 120
Trent River Bridge, accident at ................................ 502
Troupe, Capt. J. W., agreement of Steamshipmen’s Union with, as to unfair freight ........................................ 135, 159-161, 171, 372
Troupe, Capt. J. W.—(Evidence of) ......................... 224-233
Agreement of Steamshipmen to give 12 hours’ notice of Strike. 227, 290, 231
Agreement with men not to handle unfair freight ........ 227
Assaults by Unionists ....................................... 229
Estes, George, influence of in strike. ...................... 230, 232
Men on C.P.N. boats ordered out .......................... 226
Never violated agreement with men ....................... 232
Picketting by Unionists ..................................... 228
Refusal of Steamshipmen to handle unfair freight .... 224
Strike forced by minority .................................. 233
INDEX

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

Page.

Tupper, Sir Charles H., Letter of to Charles Wilson re Alien Labour Act... 667, 797
Twigg, Thomas H., conciliator in Victoria Shipwrights' Strike................. 124
Twigg, Thomas H.—(Evidence of)......................................................... 92-101, 129-133

American Federation of Labour—
Constitution of................................................................. 129
Difference between, and American Labour Union................................ 94, 95
Typographical Union affiliated with.................................................. 94
Arbitration................................................... ................................. 96
Blacklisting employees........................................................................ 98
Boycotting regarded as legitimate..................................................... 95
Canadian members of International Unions, position of.................. 99
Compulsory arbitration impracticable.................................................. 96
Conciliation......................................................................................... 96, 97

Dominion Trades and Labour Congress will not charter local unless they belong to International organization................................................... 130, 132
Government interference....................................................................... 97
Incorporation of Unions........................................................................ 98
Internationalism; advantages of......................................................... 98, 131, 132
Militia, objection of Unionists to........................................................... 133
Non-union printers, position of............................................................ 100
Organizer, duties of............................................................................... 129
Picketting............................................................................................... 95
Socialism, relation of to trades unionism............................................. 133
Strikes, remedies for........................................................................... 96

Typographical Union—
Constitution and membership of.......................................................... 92-94
Finances of............................................................................................. 99, 130
Power of Executive re sympathetic strikes........................................... 93

Unfair, posting employers as............................................................... 95
Union Label........................................................................................... 132
Chapel, functions of.............................................................................. 201

Grievances, how dealt with................................................................. 202

Unfair (See also 'Scab,' 'Blacklisting,' &c.)—
Bakery listed as—(Evidence of Woodward)........................................... 736
Circular placing persons in Vancouver on list......................................... 801
Gurney's stoves listed as......................................................................... 736
Posting merchant as—(Evidence of Woodward)...................................... 716-721
Posting employers as—
(Evidence of Browne).......................................................................... 631
(Evidence of Penkith)............................................................................ 119
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Unfair—Posting Employers as—Con. (Evidence of Seabrooke)</td>
<td>112</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Twigg)</td>
<td>95</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Considered legitimate—(Evidence of Marion)</td>
<td>185-187</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unfair freight—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Longshoremen refuse to handle—(Evidence of Johnston)</td>
<td>727-729</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Noonan)</td>
<td>730</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>On steamer Princess May—(Evidence of Muir)</td>
<td>697</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Steamshipmen refuse to handle—(Evidence of Bulley)</td>
<td>136, 140, 143, 159-161</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Thompson)</td>
<td>171, 172</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Troupe)</td>
<td>224</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teamsters refuse to handle—(Evidence of Kerr)</td>
<td>733</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Union Mines, Comox, sympathetic strike at</td>
<td>250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers</td>
<td>252</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United Brotherhood of Railway Employees—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>American Labour Union, affiliation with</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Dales)</td>
<td>650</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Johnstone)</td>
<td>544</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Constitution of</td>
<td>778</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Johnstone)</td>
<td>543, 549</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fraternal benefits—( Evidence of Johnstone)</td>
<td>543</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grievances, adjustment of</td>
<td>544</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Membership of</td>
<td>544</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oath of</td>
<td>550</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Objections to—(Evidence of Marpole)</td>
<td>684</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Railway Clerks join—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Dennison)</td>
<td>638</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Dick)</td>
<td>617, 620</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>'Railway Employees’ Journal,’ extracts from.</td>
<td>565</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ritual</td>
<td>778</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socialism in</td>
<td>543, 644</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extract from letter of President</td>
<td>561, 779</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, strike of—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Action of Miners' Executive re coal supply to C.P.R. from Nanaimo</td>
<td>524, 525</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreement of Freight Handlers with C.P.R.—(Evidence of Johnstone)</td>
<td>539, 562</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>American Labour Union, co-operation of—(Evidence of Johnstone)</td>
<td>566</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Assistance received from Brotherhood—(Evidence of Johnstone)</td>
<td>546</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boilermakers’ International Union opposed to.</td>
<td>797</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Watson)</td>
<td>690</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boycott of boarding-house—(Evidence of McDonald)</td>
<td>695-697</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bulletin, publication of—(Evidence of Dennison)</td>
<td>644</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Causes of, refusal of freight-handlers to work with scabs, demand on</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>to withdraw from Union, and discharge of Unionists—</td>
<td>540, 542, 564</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Johnstone)</td>
<td>542, 564</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Laverock)</td>
<td>518</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Connection of with other strikes—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ladysmith Miners—(Evidence of Sheuton)</td>
<td>529-531</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Longshoremen—(Evidence of Russell)</td>
<td>724</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Steamshipmen—</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Bulley)</td>
<td>136-141, 163-167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Troupe)</td>
<td>230, 232</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Wilson)</td>
<td>593</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
INDEX

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

United Brotherhood of Railway Employees—Connection of, with other Strikes—Con. Teamsters—

(Evidence of Grier) .......................................................... 713
(Evidence of Russell) ......................................................... 724
Constitutionality of—(Evidence of Johnstone) ..................... 551, 552, 564
Discrimination by C.P.R. against Unionists—
(Evidence of Bulley) .......................................................... 136, 139, 143
(Evidence of Johnstone) .................................................... 566
Documents re produced by C.P.R.—
Produced by U.B.R.E. ......................................................... 772-775
Effects of on traffic—
(Evidence of Grier) .......................................................... 713
(Evidence of Marpole) ......................................................... 707
Engagement of men in anticipation of—(Evidence of Dennison). 644
Estes, Geo., President—
Action of—(Evidence of Johnstone) .................................... 566
Circulars issued by ............................................................ 750, 780, 786
Correspondence with Shenton ............................................ 520
Statement in Vancouver ‘World’ ........................................ 757
Threat of, to call out Western Federation of Miners—
(Evidence of Booth) .......................................................... 323
(Evidence of Halliday) ....................................................... 423-430
(Evidence of Shenton) ....................................................... 330-334
Extent of—(Evidence of Marpole) ....................................... 707
Forest, H. P., suspension of—(Evidence of Johnstone). 558, 559, 569
Letter by committee respecting ......................................... 779
Halton, F. H., suspension of—(Evidence of Johnstone) .......... 560
Headquarters of Strike Committee ...................................... 723, 724
Intervention of Royal Commission for settlement of .......... 704
Loss in wages by—(Evidence of Johnstone) ........................... 546
Machinists’ Int. Union, action of—(Evidence of Watson) ....... 689
Negotiations for settlement ................................................ 645
Notice of—(Evidence of Johnstone) .................................... 559
Picketing—(Evidence of Marpole) ....................................... 707
Sailors quit work in sympathy—(Evidence of Fullerton) ......... 741, 742
Sanctioned by Executive—(Evidence of Johnstone) ............... 549, 553
Secret service of C.P.R.—Affidavit of F. J. Halton ............... 755
Statement of case by both parties. ..................................... 517, 763-770
Strikers blacklisted—(Evidence of Browne) ......................... 662-636
Telegrams re strike produced ............................................ 663-674
United Mine Workers .......................................................... 28, 512, 676
Co-operation of W.F. of M. with ........................................ 63

Vancouver, business of, affected by strikes—(Evidence of Leiser) 127
‘Rents in ................................................................. 169
Strikes at. (See ‘Strikes,’ &c.) ........................................ 136
Vancouver Board of Trade .................................................. 136
Threat to by President Estes to call out Western Federation Miners on sympathetic strike—
(Evidence of Booth) .......................................................... 323
(Evidence of Shenton) ....................................................... 330-334
Vancouver Building Trades Council—
Blacklisting circular signed by ........................................... 803
Blacklisting of merchant by—(Evidence of Woodward) ......... 716-727
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Vancouver Building Trades Council—Con.
  Constitution of ................................................................. 804
  Correspondence with Woodward re building contract ................. 717, 802, 803

Vancouver Coal Company—
  Agreement of, to employ only Union labour .......................... 752
    (Evidence of Robins) .................................................... 295
  Conditions of labour ..................................................... 45
  Grievances, mode of adjusting—(Evidence of Robins) ............... 293, 307
  Miners, nationality of .................................................... 298, 303
  Pit Committee ............................................................... 297
  Reduction of Wages accepted by Union ................................ 296
  Sale of lots to Miners by ............................................... 298, 299
  Unions, experience with—(Evidence of Robins) ....................... 299
  Wages paid by ............................................................... 59, 297

Vancouver 'Independent' ..................................................... 152, 170

Vancouver Trades and Labour Council—
  Assistance to Steamshipmen's strike by ................................ 170
  Blacklisting by—
    (Evidence of Cook) .................................................... 737
    (Evidence of Russell) .................................................. 735
  U.B.R.E. Strike endorsed by—(Evidence of Bulley) ................... 136
  Withdrawal of Boilermakers from ...................................... 694

Vancouver 'World' .............................................................. 804
  Interview of C. Woodward in ........................................... 735

Venture, Ship ................................................................. 122

Victoria, Business of, affected by strikes—(Evidence of Leiser) .... 127, 128
  'Colonist' ........................................................................... 185, 187
  Strikes at—(See 'Strikes,' &c.) .........................................

Victoria Trades and Labour Council—
  Conditions of membership ................................................ 219
  Constitution of .............................................................. 810
  Policy of, as to strikes .................................................... 219
  Settlement of disputes by ................................................ 236

Violence disapproved by Unionists—(Evidence of Foley) ............. 680
  Disavowed by Socialists—(Evidence of Dales) ......................... 657

Voters, Intimidation of, by employers—(Evidence of Hall) ........... 460, 461
  Intimidation denied—(Evidence of Matthews) .......................... 479

Wages—
  Blacksmiths, Victoria—(Evidence of Ladingham) ....................... 155, 156
  Boilermakers, Victoria—
    (Evidence of Seabrooke) ................................................ 107, 109
    (Evidence of Ladingham) ................................................. 136
  Bricklayers, Victoria—(Evidence of Russell) .......................... 189
  Building trades, Vancouver—(Evidence of Cook) ....................... 738
  Carpenters, Victoria—(Evidence of Bolden) ............................ 216
  Chinamen—(Evidence of Hall) ............................................. 452
  Coal miners—
    (Evidence of Boyd) ..................................................... 265
    (Evidence of Lauderbach) .............................................. 54, 57
    (Evidence of Neave) .................................................... 312
    (Evidence of Robins) ................................................... 297
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page(s)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Cumberland.</td>
<td>761-763</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Anthony)</td>
<td>435</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Matthews)</td>
<td>478</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plumbers, Victoria—</td>
<td>91</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Wilson)</td>
<td>186</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Marion)</td>
<td>616, 621</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Railway Clerks—(Evidence of Diek)</td>
<td>777, 794, 795</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Railway employees.</td>
<td>435</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shipwrights, Victoria—(Evidence of Piper)</td>
<td>147, 148</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Steamshipmen, Vancouver and Victoria—</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Bulley)</td>
<td>181</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Street railway employees—(Evidence of Goward)</td>
<td>470</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Walker, F. J.</td>
<td>559</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>War, Attitude of Socialists regarding—(Evidence of Dales)</td>
<td>652</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Waring Arthur.</td>
<td>101</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Waterhouse, Frank.</td>
<td>686-695</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Watson, J. H.—(Evidence of)</td>
<td>692</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blacklisting disapproved.</td>
<td>693</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>'Boilermakers' Journal,' Letter to, disavowed.</td>
<td>692, 693</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boilermakers' strike.</td>
<td>689</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Contracts with employers enforced by Unions.</td>
<td>691</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion Trades Congress, relation of to International organizations.</td>
<td>691</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Incorporation of Unions favoured.</td>
<td>693</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Internationalism approved.</td>
<td>690</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Politics in Union, disapproved.</td>
<td>691</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socialism disapproved.</td>
<td>691</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sympathetic strikes opposed.</td>
<td>694</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Telegram prohibiting.</td>
<td>695</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trades and Labour Council, Vancouver, withdrawal of Boilermakers from.</td>
<td>379</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wealth, obligations of, repudiated—(Evidence of Dunsmuir).</td>
<td>379</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wellington Collieries Company</td>
<td>1.88</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Coal of.</td>
<td>199</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mines closed down.</td>
<td>287, 263</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pay-roll, of.</td>
<td>128, 242</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Statement of.</td>
<td>717</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wage, statement of.</td>
<td>732</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Telegrams to and by, at Cumberland.</td>
<td>763</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Western 'Clarion'.</td>
<td>612, 643, 804</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blacklist published in.</td>
<td>692, 736</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Western Federation of Miners—</td>
<td>37, 53, 59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Affiliation of Ladysmith Miners’ Union with.</td>
<td>71</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arbitration, attitude respecting.</td>
<td>22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Branches of, in British Columbia</td>
<td>786</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Circular to by President Estes, of U.B.R.E.</td>
<td>809</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Constitution of.</td>
<td>394</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Contracts with employers referred to.</td>
<td>431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Evidence of Halliday).</td>
<td>386</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cumberland Miners’ Strike, approved by—(Evidence of Barber).</td>
<td>29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Detectives, attitude as to employment of.</td>
<td>512, 675</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fernie Miners withdraw from.</td>
<td>28-31, 63</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Finances of.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
INDEX

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 36a

Western Federation of Miners—Con.

Financial aid to strikes—
  (Evidence of Mottislaw) ........................................ 291, 293
  (Evidence of Thompson) ........................................ 372

Instructions of, to organize Chinese and Japanese—
  (Evidence of Barber) ........................................ 306-398, 406-409

Ladysmith Miners decline to withdraw from—(Evidence of Barnes) . . . . . . . 357, 359
Magazine published by ........................................ 29, 21, 231, 232
Membership of ................................................ 28, 33
Methods of ................................................... 252
Nanaimo Miners affiliate with ................................ 307, 316-318, 326-328, 347

Report Ex. Committee Nanaimo Union favouring .................................. 784

Statement of vote on affiliation ................................ 755

Oath of ....................................................... 30
Organizer, salary of ........................................ 32
Political policy of—(Evidence of Halliday) ................................ 414

Powers of Executive re Strikes—(Evidence of Baker) ......................... 12, 22, 71

Preference of, to A. F. of L ..................................... 328

Purposes and objects of—(Evidence of Baker) ............................ 8-19

Quartz miners, influence of ..................................... 313

Recognition of refused ......................................... 239, 490-494

Refusal to sanction strikes for recognition—(Evidence of Thompson) ........ 370

Socialism, favoured by—
  (Evidence of Neave) ........................................ 310
  (Evidence of Twigg) ......................................... 153

Not binding on members—(Evidence of Spencer) ............................. 347

Objected to—
  (Evidence of Launderbach) ................................... 283
  (Evidence of Woodburn) ................................... 271

Socialist party, B.C., aided by—(Evidence of Halliday) ................. 422

Stikes promoted by—(Evidence of Carroll) ................................ 254, 255

Sympathetic strikes, Power to order .................................. 307, 323

U.B.R.E. Relations with—(Evidence of Halliday) .......................... 428-430

Withdrawals from ............................................. 255

Western Fuel Co. ............................................ 290, 304, 343

Proposed agreement with Nanaimo Miners Union ............................. 755

Western 'Socialist' ........................................... 452

Western Union Telegraph Co., Telegrams received by ....................... 759

White, W. miner, Reasons for discharge of—(Evidence of Holliday) ...................................... 411
  (Evidence of Matthews) .................................... 479

Wilband, Charles A.—(Evidence of) ................................ 700-702, 704, 715, 716

Bakers' strike in sympathy with U.B.R.E ................................ 701, 704

Bakers' Union, International, action of ................................ 701

Blacklist in 'Bakers' Journal' .................................... 715, 716

Boycott of Muirs’ bake-shop ..................................... 700

Unfair list, unconstitutional ..................................... 702

Williams, Parker, Letter to Cumberland Miners’ Union ...................... 760

Wilson, David ................................................ 46, 73

Wilson, Harry, Clearance given to ................................ 784

  Telegram re transfer of ...................................... 789

  Transfer of to Montreal—(Evidence of Margole) ........................ 705

Wilson, Harry—(Evidence of) .................................... 579-584, 590-612
Wilson, Harry—Evidence of—Con. ........................... 590
C.P.R., Blacklist of ........................................ 590
Arrangement with other railways not to employ men discharged for 590 cause ....................................................... 590
Harriday refused work at Seattle ........................................ 591
Discharged for writing to the press re U.B.R.E. strike, 581-583, 592-595, 606, 611
Interview with Marpole asking reinstatement of Halton ............... 579, 601-605
Internationalism favoured ....................................... 609
Transferred from Vancouver to Montreal ........................................ 580, 596
Urged to withdraw from Union ....................................... 580, 597
Wilson, Chas., K.C., Counsel for Labour interests .................. 1, 3
Letter to, from Sir C. H. Tupper re Alien Labour Act ................. 667
(Evidence of King) ......................................... 669
Wilson, Senkler & Bloomfield, letter of, to F. J. Halton, declaring Alien 667
Labour Act inoperative ....................................... 669
Statement denied—(Evidence of King) .................................. 668
Wilson, William—(Evidence of) ..................................... 89-92
Boycotting by Trades Unions ..................................... 89
Government interference ........................................ 90
Organization of Employing Plumbers ................................ 91
Union Men, objections to ....................................... 90
‘Witness,’ Montreal, Letter to, by C.P.R. employees re Strike .......... 582, 614, 783
Woodburn, Moses, Conversation of, with T. J. Shenton re organizers’ commission— 582
(Evidence of Carroll) ........................................ 349
(Evidence of Forcimer) ........................................ 349
(Evidence of McMurtry) ....................................... 350
(Evidence of Shenton) ......................................... 248, 349
Woodburn, Moses—(Evidence of) .................................. 269-273
Compulsory arbitration impracticable ................................ 271
Conciliation boards .......................................... 271
Extension not a desirable place of residence ......................... 269
Organizer, Commission of .................................... 272
Unions, advantageous to employers ................................ 270
W.F. of M., Socialism in ....................................... 271
Woodward, Charles, Letter of, to C. I. Hilton ......................... 802
Letter, C. I. Hilton to ......................................... 803
Woodward, Charles—(Evidence of) ................................ 716-721, 735, 736
Bakery backlisted as unfair ....................................... 736
Building contract with Edward Cook, objected to by Unionists ......... 719, 735
Correspondence with Vancouver Building Trades Council ............. 717
International vs. Local Unions ................................... 718
Interview in Vancouver ‘World’ ................................... 725
‘World,’ Vancouver .............................................. 804
Interview of C. Woodward re blacklisting in ........................ 735
Statement by George Estes re strike ................................ 787
Yosemite, Steamer .............................................. 698, 699
SUPPLEMENTAL AGREEMENT

[37]

Between His Majesty the King and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company.

This agreement made this day of 1904.

Between:

His Majesty the King, acting in respect of the Dominion of Canada and herein represented and acting by the Honourable Henry Robert Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals, of the first part the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, of the second part.

And

Whereas a contract bearing date the twenty-ninth day of July, 1903, was made and entered into between His Majesty the King, of the first part, and Sir Charles Rivers Wilson and others, acting on behalf of the said Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, and providing, upon the terms and conditions in the said contract mentioned and set forth, for the construction and operation of the line of railway therein described;

And whereas the said Contract was afterwards confirmed by an Act of the Parliament of Canada, Chapter seventy-one of the Statutes of 1903, known as “The National Transcontinental Railway Act;”

And whereas the parties hereto have agreed, subject to ratification by the Parliament of Canada, to make certain modifications of the said Contract.

Now therefore this agreement witnesseth, that the said parties have contracted and agreed with each other as follows:—

1. Notwithstanding anything in the said Contract contained, the time for completion of the western division of the railway shall be and the same is hereby extended to the first day of December, A.D. 1911, and the tenth paragraph of the said Contract is amended accordingly and by inserting the word ‘strikes’ after the word ‘floods’ in the seventh line thereof.

2. Notwithstanding anything contained in the thirteenth and twenty-ninth paragraphs of the said Contract, the company shall, when it shall have completed the construction of the said Western Division in accordance with the terms of the said Contract as hereby amended, and shall have supplied rolling stock to the amount of fifteen million dollars ($15,000,000), if the Eastern Division shall not then have been constructed and completed by the Government, be entitled to the return of the deposit made under the twelfth paragraph of the said contract, or any part thereof which may then remain unforfeited in the hands of the Government under the terms of the said
Contract; and the company shall also be entitled to have the guarantee of the Government endorsed upon the said bonds issued in respect of the Western Division, pursuant to paragraph twenty-nine of the said Contract; and if it is shown to the satisfaction of the Government that the Western Division will be completed and rolling stock to the said amount of fifteen million dollars ($15,000,000) supplied before the construction and completion of the Eastern Division and that the application of the said deposit will enable the company to so complete the Western Division and supply rolling stock to the said amount and that the same will be so supplied, the said deposit shall be released by the Government in such instalments as may from time to time be agreed upon.

Provided, however, that, of the said rolling stock to the amount of fifteen million dollars ($15,000,000), rolling stock to the amount of five million dollars ($5,000,000), to the satisfaction of the Government, shall then have been marked in the manner provided by the twenty-second paragraph of the said contract, ready to be assigned to the Eastern Division under the said paragraph upon its completion and to serve all the purposes in respect of the whole of the said Contract intended to be served by the five million dollars ($5,000,000) worth of rolling stock in the said twenty-second paragraph mentioned.

3. Pending the completion of the Eastern Division by the Government, the company shall be entitled to lease from the Commissioners, to be appointed under the said Act, and to operate such portions of the said Eastern Division as may from time to time be completed, but upon such terms as may be agreed upon between the company and the said Commissioners, which terms are not to be more onerous than those of the lease of the whole division by the said Contract provided for, save in so far as may be necessary to give full effect to the paramount right of the said Commissioners next hereinafter mentioned, and subject always to the paramount right of the said Commissioners to use and operate the same without any payment of tolls or other compensation for such purposes as they may deem necessary or expedient in the execution of their commission.

4. The twenty-eighth paragraph of the said Contract is amended by striking thereout all the words following the word ‘not’ in the eighth line thereof and inserting instead thereof the words ‘in respect of the prairie section exceed thirteen thousand dollars per mile of the mileage thereof, although seventy-five per centum of such cost of construction may have exceeded the said sum of thirteen thousand dollars per mile.’

5. Notwithstanding anything in the said Contract contained, the government may and shall, preserving always the proportions in the said Contract provided as between the prairie and mountain sections of the Western Division, implement for the purposes and subject otherwise to the provisions of the said Contract, its guarantee of the bonds of the said company to be issued for the cost of construction of the said Western Division, in such manner as may be agreed upon, so as to make the proceeds of the said bonds so as to be guaranteed a sum equal to seventy-five per centum of the cost of construction of the Western Division ascertained as provided in the said Contract, but not exceeding in respect of the prairie section, thirteen thousand dollars ($13,000) per mile.

6. Notwithstanding anything in the said Contract contained, the government shall not exercise any rights in respect of possession, foreclosure or sale, by reason of non-payment of interest by the company under the thirty-first, thirty-second or thirty-third paragraphs of the said Contract, or under all or any of them, unless and until there shall be such default to the extent in the whole of a sum equal to five years of such interest, as the company is not relieved from payment of or permitted to defer or capitalize by the provisions of the said paragraphs.
7. In case of such default being made by the company in respect of the interest of the said bonds so guaranteed by the government as would, under the provisions of the said Contract as amended hereby, entitle the government to take possession of the said Western Division or to foreclose or sell the same, the remedy of the government shall, notwithstanding anything in the said Contract contained, be the taking possession thereof by and through an agent or manager to be appointed as hereinafter provided, whose powers and duties shall be to manage and operate the said Western Division, to receive all the tolls and revenues thereof, to pay thereout working expenditure as defined by 'the Railway Act, 1903,' including the expenses of such management or agency, and to distribute the surplus tolls and revenue, after payment of such working expenditure, pari passu between the government or other holders of the bonds secured as provided by paragraph 35 (a) of the said Contract and guaranteed by the government and the holders of the bonds secured as provided by paragraph 35 (b) of the said Contract and guaranteed by the Grand Trunk Railway Company, in the proportion of seventy-five per centum of such surplus tolls or revenues to the holders of the former issue of the bonds and twenty-five per centum to the holders of the latter issue, and the mortgage to be prepared under the said paragraph 35 (a) shall contain appropriate provisions in that behalf. The said manager or agent is to be appointed by the government, with the concurrence of the company, or, if they are unable to agree, by a majority of the Supreme Court of Canada.

8. Should possession be taken as aforesaid, the right of the government to such possession shall terminate if and when the application of the proportion herein provided of the said surplus tolls and revenues shall have paid off all arrears of such interest.

9. Notwithstanding anything in the twenty-seventh paragraph of the said Contract contained, the Grand Trunk Railway Company shall not, after the acquisition of the twenty-five million dollars ($25,000,000) of common stock therein mentioned (less shares held by directors, not exceeding one thousand), be prevented from making any such disposition of such common stock as the said Grand Trunk Railway may deem expedient, provided, however, that the said Grand Trunk Railway Company shall, during the delay mentioned in the said paragraph, continue to hold a majority of the said stock by such title as shall enable the said Grand Trunk Railway Company to control the policy of the company.

10. Paragraph twenty-one of the said Contract is amended by adding thereto the following clause:

'Provided, further, that, in the event of the government determining to undertake the operation of the said Eastern Division, the company shall be entitled for a further period of fifty years to such running powers and haulage rights as may be necessary to continuity of operation between the said Western Division and other portions of the company's system and the Grand Trunk Railway system upon such terms as may from time to time be agreed upon, or as may from time to time, in case of failure so to agree, be determined in the manner provided by paragraph 24 (2) hereof, which is hereby made applicable to cases arising under this paragraph.'

11. In case, during the currency of the lease of the Eastern Division, the company shall have constructed a branch line or lines running from a point or points in the said Eastern Division, the government shall, if at the expiration of the said lease, it shall determine to undertake the operation of the said Eastern Division, take over such branch line or lines as the company may elect not to retain, at such value as may be agreed upon, or as may, in case of failure so to agree, be determined in the manner provided by paragraph 24 (2) of the said Contract, which is hereby made applicable to cases arising under this paragraph. If any such branch line or lines shall have received any grant or grants under the provisions of any Act of the Parliament of Canada, the amount of such grant or grants, without interest, shall be deducted from such value
12. The said Contract, as modified by this agreement, is to be ratified by a general meeting of shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada on or before the eighth day of March, 1904, and the deposit required by the twelfth paragraph of the said Contract is to be made in cash or approved securities immediately after such ratification.

13. Save as herein expressly provided, the said Contract and each and every paragraph and provision thereof are not to be deemed to be in any way affected by the provisions of this Supplemental Contract, but are hereby expressly confirmed and ratified, and the words and expressions which are defined in the said Contract shall, except as herein expressly varied, be held to have the same meaning herein as in the said Contract, and particularly and without in any way limiting the generality of the foregoing, the words and expressions, 'government,' 'company,' 'eastern division,' 'western division,' 'prairie section,' 'mountain section,' 'cost of construction,' and 'bonds,' shall have the same meaning herein as in the said Contract.

14. The thirty-fourth paragraph of the said contract is amended by substituting the word 'thirty-five' for the word 'twenty-five' in the twelfth line thereof.

15. This agreement shall be submitted to and be subject to ratification by the parliament of Canada.

In witness whereof, the said Henry Robert Emmerson, Minister of Railways, acting on behalf of His Majesty the King, hath hereunto set his hand and seal, and the said company represented herein by Sir Charles Rivers Wilson and others, have also set their hands and seals.

Signed, sealed and delivered by the Minister of Railways and Canals, in the presence of

HENRY ROBERT EMMERSON,
Minister of Railways and Canals.

Joseph Proulx,
Secretary, Dept. of Railways and Canals.

L. K. Jones,
PROPOSED ALTERATIONS TO CONTRACT

(37a)

Re Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, and correspondence in connection therewith.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY COMPANY OF CANADA,
DASHWOOD HOUSE, 9 NEW BROAD STREET,
LONDON, E.C., December 15, 1903.

Rt. Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier,
Ottawa.

DEAR SIR WILFRID LAURIER,—I sincerely hope that we have now reached a solution of the question of the deposit to be made under the Grand Trunk Pacific agreement. I have fully appreciated the difficulties with which you have had to contend in the course of your most able conduct of the measure through parliament, and have shared your anxieties. I will only ask you kindly to bear in mind that I also have been confronted with many difficulties in bringing my colleagues to accept the view which I entertain on the general merits of the scheme, and that if there has been some hesitation and even doubt on this side, it is attributable to a sense of responsibility towards the shareholders of the company, and a consideration of the very large measure in which their interests are concerned.

It has always seemed to me that the Government of Canada and the Grand Trunk Railway Company, being in point of fact partners in the enterprise—the former actuated by considerations of national policy, the latter by the necessity for securing its share in the growing prosperity of the North-west—the burden of financial liability should be shared between the two in as equable proportions as possible, but I venture to think—and this view is strongly held by my board—that too large a portion of the burden has been imposed upon the Grand Trunk Company. I think I am correct in believing that this shifting of the balance was caused by the extreme, and I must say, in some respects unfair, opposition which the Bill met with in the House.

My Board feel that we could not ask the shareholders to affirm the agreement in its present precise form.

Mr. Hays, who has been with us in London for the last ten days, and who returns to Canada to-morrow, is in full possession of the views of the Board on the subject of the modifications which in our judgment should be adopted before meeting our shareholders, and I feel assured that you will listen to his representations with all your usual courtesy and indulgence.

I hope that you will understand that the chief amendments which we will propose will in no way affect the principles of the Act, or curtail the rights of the government. Their object is to allay any possible apprehensions of our shareholders, whose undertaking after many unfortunate vicissitudes has now been brought into a position of established prosperity, and who might hesitate to embark upon a new enterprise of such magnitude without reasonable safeguard being afforded for securing their interests in the event of the expectations of the promoters not being realized, or of our having to encounter a series of less prosperous years than those which we have been lately enjoying.

37a—1

Very truly yours,

C. RIVERS WILSON,
President.

PROPOSED ALTERATIONS TO CONTRACT RE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

Completion of Western Division.

Time for the completion of the construction of the Western Division, fixed as December 1, 1908, is considered short. Failure to complete within the time should at least not create a forfeiture of the deposit.

Deposit.

(1.) Upon the issue of the guaranteed stock now forming the deposit already made being approved by the shareholders of the Grand Trunk, legislation to be passed confirming its substitution and acceptance in lieu of that called for by the agreement.

(2.) The company to be entitled to a release of the deposit at least to the extent that it forms security for the construction of the Western Division upon the expenditure in such construction of five million dollars realized from the proceeds of bonds to be guaranteed by the Grand Trunk.

Lease of Eastern Division.

(1.) Upon the completion of the construction of the Eastern Division, the company should have the option of operating under lease the portions constructed upon undertaking to pay working expenses and to hand to the government a portion (to be fixed) of the net earnings.

(2.) Rental payable under the lease to be made by the company upon the completion of the Eastern Division to be made a charge only upon net earnings for the whole term or at least for a longer period than the three years provided in the agreement (section 20.)

Government Assistance.

Inasmuch as bonds issued by the company bearing 3 per cent interest and guaranteed by the government will not realize par. it should be provided either

(1.) That the government guarantee the payment of principal and interest of an issue of bonds bearing interest at 3 per cent to be made by the company for a principal amount sufficient to realize 75 per cent of the cost of construction of the mountain section and prairie section, respectively, or

(2.) Instead of the government guaranteeing bonds of the company for the purpose of assisting in the construction of the Western Division, they shall raise the aid proposed to be given by an issue of government securities bearing interest at 3 per cent and now quoted at or about par, and accept as security for the advances to aid in construction, bonds of the company secured by a first mortgage on all the property of the company, as described in paragraph 35 (a) of the agreement. Such bonds to form a portion of one issue, 75 per cent of which the government shall be entitled to receive and hold, and the balance to be when guaranteed by the Grand Trunk Railway Company used for the purpose of raising the additional 25 per cent required.

Note.—Such a mortgage might be created at once and to the extent of the aid granted by the government during the construction the bonds could be delivered to the government.
Payment of Interest on Bonds.

Interest should only be made a charge upon net earnings of the company, with a proviso that to the extent that such interest is not paid in any year it shall be charged up against the company and carried over, bearing interest, and be payable out of the first surplus of earnings in any year thereafter over and above the amount required to pay the fixed charges accruing due in that year. Failing the company being able to pay the interest as herein contemplated, the whole amount unpaid to be added to the principal of the mortgage and be payable when the same becomes due.

Grand Trunk Pacific Common Stock.

The terms upon which the Grand Trunk is to acquire the common stock of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the liability to be incurred by such acquisition to be fully determined and made the subject of an agreement.

Pretorian.

Bank of Montreal,
22 Abchurch Lane,
London, E.C., December 17, 1903.

The Deputy Minister of Finance,
Ottawa.

Sir,—We have this day received from the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, certificate for £1,000,000 four per cent guaranteed stock of that company, which certificate we hold on behalf of the Dominion government as instructed in the Secretary’s letter, copy of which is inclosed.

We also inclose copy of the certificate and conditional endorsement on the back thereof.

The secretary stated that it was not necessary for us to cable you of the deposit.

I have, &c.,

A LANG, Manager.

Copy.
Folio 65a.

THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY COMPANY OF CANADA FOUR PER CENT GUARANTEED STOCK.

Certificate No. 47351. £1,000,000. Registration No. 5.

This is to certify that the Minister of Finance, nominee of the Canadian Government of Ottawa, is the registered proprietor of one million pounds four per cent guaranteed stock of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada.

London, December 16, 1903.

I. S. NUGENT,
Registrar.

H. H. NORMAN,
Secretary.

This certificate of stock must be deposited with the deed of transfer, whether for the whole or any portion thereof, before a new certificate can be issued in exchange.

(See over).
Copy of endorsement on back:

The £1,000,000 stock comprised in this certificate has been allotted subject to the condition that unless such allotment is sanctioned and approved by a general meeting of the company the allotment is to be null and void.

Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada,
Dashwood House,
9 New Broad Street, London, E.C.
December 17, 1903.

Messrs. the Bank of Montreal,
22 Abchurch Lane, London, E.C.

Gentlemen,—At the request of the government of the Dominion of Canada, I beg to inclose you herewith a certificate of £1,000,000, four per cent, guaranteed stock of this company, which has been conditionally allotted to the Minister of Finance as nominee of the Canadian government, such certificate to be held by you on behalf of the Canadian government.

Kindly acknowledge receipt.

I am, &c.,

H. H. Norman.
Secretary.

Finance Department, Ottawa,
December 30, 1903.

The Manager,
Bank of Montreal,
London, Eng.

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter (per SS. Pretoria) of the 17th instant, with inclosure copy of certificate for £1,000,000, four per cent, guaranteed stock of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, held by the Bank of Montreal, London, on behalf of the Dominion government.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,

J. M. Courtney,
Deputy Minister of Finance.

Bank of Montreal,
Ottawa, March 9, 1904.

The Honourable W. S. Fielding,
Minister of Finance, Ottawa.

Sir,—I am instructed by my head office to inform you that they have, at the request of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, issued a deposit receipt to-day in favour of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General, for five millions of dollars.

I have, &c.,

W. J. Anderson,
Manager.
GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 37a

DEPOSIT RECEIPT, THE BANK OF MONTREAL.

Montreal, March 9, 1904.

$5,000,000.

This certifies that there has been deposited in this bank by or on behalf of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company the sum of five million dollars as and for the purpose of the deposit agreed to be made by the said Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company under the provisions of certain agreements, dated respectively, July 29, A.D., 1903, and February 18, A.D., 1904, which sum will be accounted for without interest by this bank to the Minister of Finance and Receiver General of Canada; six calendar months' notice to be given of withdrawal of said deposit. This receipt to be given up to the bank when payment is required.

For the Bank of Montreal.

H. V. MEREDITH,
Manager.

W. A. BOG,
Accountant.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM,
OTTAWA, MARCH 24, 1904.

Hon. W. S. Fielding,
Minister of Finance, Ottawa.

DEAR SIR,—Having reference to the deposit of $5,000,000 made by the Grand Trunk Railway Company in behalf of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, under clause 12 and 13 of the original agreement of July 29, 1903, and clauses 2 and 12 of the supplemental agreement of February 18, 1904. As under our agreement with the bank they are to pay no interest on the cash so deposited, the Grand Trunk Pacific Company hereby agrees to waive the payment by the government of interest at the rate of three per cent per annum on the cash so deposited, as provided in clause 12 of the agreement of July 29, 1903.

Yours truly,

CHAS. M. HAYS,
3rd Vice President and General Manager.

March 25, 1904.

Chas. M. Hayes, Esq.,
Second Vice President and General Manager.
Grand Trunk Railway System,
Montreal, P.Q.

SIR,—I have the honour, by direction of the Minister of Finance, to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 24th instant respecting the waiving of interest on the cash deposited as provided in clause 12 of the agreement of July 29, 1903.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,

WM. FITZGERALD.
Assistant Deputy Minister of Finance.
CORRESPONDENCE

RESPECTING THE

ALASKA BOUNDARY

No. 1.

The Marquess of Salisbury to Mr. Choate.

FOREIGN OFFICE, JULY 1, 1899.

Your Excellency,—The correspondence which has passed between the United States’ government and that of Her Majesty, as well as the negotiations and other diplomatic intercourse which have taken place both here and at Washington, have left on the minds of Her Majesty’s ministers a strong impression that no effective progress will be made in coming to an agreement upon the subjects which divide the two countries without the assistance of arbitration. This appears to be especially the case with respect to the Alaska boundary. The different signification which the two governments attach to the language of the Treaty of 1825 is not of a character which appears likely to be adjusted by the method of explanation or argument on the two sides. Some of the ablest men belonging to both nations have now for several months devoted the utmost erudition and acumen to this discussion, but the attainment of an agreement seems to be no nearer than when the communications began. Her Majesty’s government feel that no satisfactory agreement between the two countries can be arrived at until the difference with respect to the Alaska boundary has been adjusted, and that this adjustment can only be attained by the process of arbitration.

Much, of course, will depend upon the manner in which the subject of controversy is presented to the tribunal selected for arbitration, and upon the conditions by which the arbitrator’s decisions are shaped and limited. Upon this matter some preliminary discussion has already taken place between the two governments, but no formal expression of opinion on either side in this respect has as yet been arrived at. In order to ascertain whether any formal difference exists between them in this respect, and to pave the way, if possible, for an ultimate agreement, I have, on behalf of Her Majesty, to propose to Your Excellency that the treaty of arbitration adopted between this country and Venezuela, with the assent, and largely at the instance of, the United States, shall be applied to the determination of the Alaska boundary which is now under discussion. That treaty is now receiving its application at Paris, and during the three years which have elapsed since its conclusion no question as to its fairness or applicability has arisen between the contracting parties. I am not able to find in its terms anything which is inapplicable to, or which would be inconsistent with an equitable and conclusive solution of, the Alaskan controversy. It is possible that in some respects its details may be improved, but, such as they are, they appear to Her Majesty's government to be adequate for the purpose which we have in hand; and I have to request that Your Excellency will lay before the President the proposal of Her Majesty's government that the Venezuela treaty, as it stands, shall be applied to the determination of the Alaskan boundary between the Dominion of Canada and the United States.

*For the Protocol (No. 65) of the International Joint High Commission, dated 18th February, 1899, embodying the British proposals for the settlement of the Alaska boundary question by Arbitration, see Sessional Paper No. 59 of the year 1899.

I have, &c.,

(Signed) SALISBURY.

No. 2.

Mr. Choate to the Marquess of Salisbury.—(Received July 16.)

AMERICAN EMBASSY, LONDON, July 8, 1899.

My Lord,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Lordship's note of July 1, proposing an arbitration of the Alaskan Boundary question; and, in accordance with your Lordship's request, immediately upon its receipt I communicated the substance of it by cable, and by the first subsequent mail a full text of the note was transmitted to the Department of State.

I hope soon to have the pleasure of receiving and submitting to your Lordship the President's views.

I have, &c.,

(Signed) JOSEPH H. CHOATE.

No. 3.

The Marquess of Salisbury to Mr. Tower.

FOREIGN OFFICE, August 2, 1899.

Sr.—The United States' Ambassador called upon me to-day in order to discuss the proposal recorded in my note to His Excellency of the 1st ultimo, that the Alaska boundary question should be submitted to arbitration, and that the Treaty of Arbitration adopted between Great Britain and Venezuela should be applied to the determination of the present case.

Mr. Choate said that this proposal was being attentively considered by his government, but that on several grounds, which he proceeded to explain to me, the President felt unable to assent to the proposal as it stood, and desired a further exchange of views before formally responding to my communication.

As the question of the organization of the proposed Arbitral Commission is subordinate to that concerning the subject-matter to be arbitrated, and the terms and conditions on which its action is limited, and ought easily to be agreed upon when the latter are once settled, Mr. Choate said he would confine what he had to say to some of the reasons which, in the President's judgment, make the terms of the Venezuelan Treaty, as it stands, wholly inapplicable to the present subject of controversy, in which the issues involved are radically different.
The case of the Alaska boundary was. His Excellency said, entirely unlike the controversy with Venezuela, in that it was a new question, raised for the first time after the Joint High Commission had been agreed upon, up to which date the claim which it was now asked should be submitted to arbitration had never been put forward either by Great Britain or by Canada; whereas, in the case of Venezuela, the controversy originated a century and a-half ago, and had been in its entirety a subject of dispute and protest for sixty years.

The coast-line of the mainland (the lisière of the treaty), including the inlets, had been in the possession, or under the control of, Russia and the United States since the treaty between Russia and Great Britain in 1825, and the settlements on the inlets, especially those about the head of the Lynn canal, had been made with the authority, and under the jurisdiction of, the United States, without any protest or claim of territorial ownership on the part of Great Britain; whereas, in the Venezuelan case, the British occupation and settlements involved were upon territory claimed by Venezuela, and against the constant protests of Venezuela, thus constituting, as Venezuela alleges, a series of advancing encroachments upon what that country claimed to be her territory.

In support of the proposition, that from the treaty of 1825 to the cession to the United States in 1867, the Russian Government steadily maintained its claim to a strip of territory 30 miles in width on the mainland of the continent, beginning at 50° 40' and extending north-west around all the inlets and interior waters to the 141st degree of west longitude. His Excellency called attention to the maps issued by the Russian Government, to its lease or license, contained in the treaty with the United States of 1824, for the citizens of the latter to frequent with their ships, for ten years, the interior seas, gulfs, harbours, and creeks upon the coast, for the purpose of fishing and trading with the natives, and to Russia's refusal in 1835 to renew the privilege.

During the whole period of Russia's occupation of this strip of territory, Great Britain had, Mr. Choate said, made no claim to it and entered no protest; on the contrary, there were acts on her part of express recognition of the claim of Russia. By the treaty of 1825 she took from Russia the same privilege for British subjects to frequent the same inland seas, gulfs, harbours, and creeks, for ten years, as had been granted to American citizens by the treaty of 1824, and, after the expiration of the ten years' privileges, British subjects and vessels were excluded from these interior waters, and the British Government acquiesced in this without a protest.

In the same connection his Excellency called attention to the case of the Dryad, where the British Government presented and pressed upon the Russian Government a claim of the Hudson Bay Company for damages sustained by the detention of the vessel destined for some point on the Stikine River, which resulted in the Hudson Bay Company taking in 1839 a lease from the Russian American Company (these two companies representing their respective governments in the control of the country along the north-west coast) of the strip of territory, or lisière of the Treaty, for ten years, in consideration of an annual rent and the extinction of the claim. This lease was made with the authority and approval of the two Governments. The Hudson Bay Company entered and occupied under it for the term of the lease, and for an extension of another term, and then surrendered possession without objection or protest from any one.

Mr. Choate also called my attention to the special Parliamentary inquiry into this transaction in 1857, to the map submitted to the Committee, and to the testimony of the Governor of the Hudson Bay Company, showing the strip leased to have been 30 miles in width, and to extend around the head of all the inlets, including Lynn canal.

In the opinion of the President, the action of the two Governments during Russia's occupation of the strip of territory now in controversy makes a wholly different condition of affairs from that between Great Britain and Venezuela, and this difference has been maintained and made more distinct since the cession by Russia to the United States.

In support of this His Excellency called my attention to the map prepared and published by the United States in 1867 which delimited the boundary, and which traced the limits of the strip on the mainland in accordance with the uniform claim which Russia had made. Not only was no protest made against this map by the British Government, but the British map publishers and the Canadian Government had adopted the same boundary line in their publications. And, in accordance with this delimitation, the United States had, he said, exercised acts of sovereignty such as control of Indian tribes, establishment of post offices and schools, and the policing of the waters of the inlets by Government vessels, and the enforcement of revenue and other Federal laws.

Mr. Choate then called attention to the fact that, up to a very recent period, the boundary line has only twice been the subject of correspondence or discussion between our two governments: first in 1873-74, when there was a movement for having the boundary line marked by a commission of scientific experts, and it was then understood that the boundary line crossed the Rivers Skoot, Stikine, Taku, Islecat, and Chilean at some place above the point where they respectively emptied into the inlets of the ocean, and, shortly after that, when there was some question as to whether the boundary crossed the Stikine.

His Excellency referred incidentally to the case of Peter Martin, 1877, the correspondence in respect to which appears in "Foreign Relations of the United States, 1877," pp. 266-271, and to the Provisional Agreement for Customs purposes in 1878, the correspondence in respect to which appears in "Foreign Relations of the United States, 1878," pp. 339-346.

The slight conflict of jurisdiction in the vicinity of Lake Lindeman, shortly after the discovery of gold in the Yukon district, seemed, he said, to have but little bearing, as it related to territory between Lake Lindeman and the White Pass.

It appeared clear that not until after the Joint High Commission was created (30th May, 1898) did either Great Britain or Canada ever advance the claim to any portion of territory lying adjacent to the inlets of the ocean, nor to the waters thereof; nor had they objected to the occupation of the same by the Government of the United States or its citizens, and at no time had any part of the territory so lately put in dispute been held or occupied by Canadian or British authorities.

The towns, settlements, and industries about the head of Lynn Canal and the other inlets embraced in this strip of territory having been established under these circumstances, a wholly different situation had, in the opinion of the President, been created in regard to them from that involved in the Venezuela case, so utterly different that the government of the United States would feel that it was not properly guarding the rights of its citizens if it should consent to put these settlements in peril by applying to them the terms of the Venezuela Treaty, which was designed for a wholly different state of affairs; nor would the President feel justified in submitting the questions involved to any arbitration unless United States' settlements, made in good faith before this new claim was presented on the part of Canada, were expressly exempted from its operation.

Mr. Choate further called attention to a material difference between the questions to be decided by the two Tribunals. In the one case the disputed interpretation of a treaty definition of a boundary line, in a treaty made seventy-four years ago, and remaining undisputed through the long period of the Russian occupancy and administration of the Luisière, and through nearly all the time that the territory had been held by the United States under the cession from Russia, and only very lately brought in question; in this case the interpretation was to be made in the light of prior and subsequent historical facts of occupation, administration, and recognition, and of the acts and omissions of the parties concerned. Here, while the question of actual settlement and administration is collateral to the main subject of arbitration, and, being of great importance, is rightly to be guarded by the distinct understanding suggested by the President, it is not, as in the Venezuelan case, the essential point directly at issue. In the other case the controversy rested, he said, not upon the interpretation of any such treaty definition of the boundary line, but essentially upon the historical facts of occupancy and possession, out of which the arbitrators were to determine the boundary line in conformity to the rules prescribed to them.

The proposal of Her Majesty’s Government for an arbitration would, Mr. Choate said, be entertained by the President with that earnest consideration which its importance and the high source from which it came deserved; and having thus laid before me Mr. McKinley’s reasons for his judgment, that the two cases are radically different, and the terms of the Venezuelan Treaty, as it stands, are utterly inapplicable to the present case, he was instructed to express the opinion of the President that it would be wise, at this stage of the negotiation, to have a comparison of views, and to state that he would be much gratified if I would give my views in return upon the matter now presented, and would communicate the grounds upon which Her Majesty’s Government base their opinion, that ‘there is nothing in the Venezuelan Treaty which is inapplicable to, or which would be inconsistent with, an equitable solution of the Alaska controversy.’

Mr. McKinley hoped that, when the conflicting views of the parties were thus disclosed, they might, perhaps, be reconciled or adjusted by mutual concession, and that the way might thus be paved for an ultimate agreement.

I am, &c.,

(Signed) SALISBURY.

No. 4.

The Marquess of Salisbury to Mr. Tower.

FOREIGN OFFICE, October 14, 1899.

Sir,—In my despatch of August 2, I informed you of a communication made to me by the United States’ Ambassador, stating the grounds upon which the President felt himself unable to assent to my proposal for the reference of the Alaska boundary question to arbitration on the terms adopted in the treaty of February 2, 1897, between Great Britain and Venezuela.

Mr. Choate said, in conclusion, that he was instructed to express the opinion of the President that it would be wise at this stage of the negotiation to have a comparison of views, and to state that he would be much gratified if I would give my views in return upon the matter presented and communicate the grounds upon which Her Majesty’s Government base their opinion that ‘there is nothing in the Venezuelan Treaty which is inapplicable, or which would be inconsistent with an equitable solution of the Alaska controversy.’

I would observe at the outset that there appears to be some misapprehension on the part of the United States’ Government as to the nature and scope of the proposal submitted to His Excellency, who has treated it as if it only applied to the determination of the boundary in the neighbourhood of the Lynn Canal, instead of to the whole frontier of the lisière of coast defined in the IIIrd and IVth Articles of the Treaty of 1825.

No doubt it is in regard to that part of the boundary that the widest divergence of views has arisen between the two Governments, but it only needs a reference to the maps which purport to mark the boundary as claimed by the respective Governments to show that the difference is by no means confined to the region of the Lynn Canal, but extends throughout the whole length of the strip from Portland channel to Mount St. Elias.

The events of the last two or three years arising out of the Yukon gold discoveries have given exceptional prominence and importance to that part of the boundary, but it will hardly be maintained that prior to these events there was any reason why, while the whole line was undetermined, and its settlement was not regarded on either side as a matter of pressing importance, special attention should have been devoted by Her Majesty’s Government to that particular region.

It is necessary to bear this in mind in considering the various reasons put forward by the United States Government, on account of which they claim to distinguish the present dispute from that recently discussed before the Tribunal of Arbitration at Paris.

The general effect of the United States’ contention is that the claim put forward by Her Majesty’s Government that the boundary line should cross the Lynn canal in the neighbourhood of Berner’s bay, following the general line of the coast range of mountains indicated by the treaty as the position of the boundary, is a new one first put forward after the Joint High Commission had been created, and that before then Her Majesty’s Government had made no claim to the head waters of the canal, or any protest against various acts on the part of Russia and the United States inconsistent with that claim, and that the United States Government are therefore justified in refusing to allow the question of the possession of these waters to be adjudicated upon by an independent tribunal.

I wish to point out in the first place that there has been but little discussion of the boundary question between the two Governments, but whenever it has been referred to it has been on the admitted basis that the whole line was undetermined, and that the interpretation of the boundary articles of the treaty was entirely an open question as to which each Government was free to urge its own views.

This was the view accepted by President Grant in his Annual Message to Congress of December 2, 1872, and by Mr. Secretary Bayard in his despatch to Mr. Phelps of November 20, 1888, and, as was pointed out in that despatch, no question concerning the true location of the line stipulated in the treaty had ever arisen between Great Britain and Russia prior to the cession of Alaska to the United States. The only value of the region during that period lay in the fur trade, and during the first ten years after 1825 that trade was thrown open on equal terms to the subjects and citizens of Great Britain, Russia, and the United States by Article VII. of the treaty between Great Britain and Russia of 1825, and Article IV. of the treaty of 1824 between the United States and Russia, and before the expiry of the ten years the negotiations between the Hudson’s Bay Company and the Russian American Company which resulted in the lease to the former of the trade of the whole of the lisère southward and eastward of a line joining Cape Spencer and Mount Fairweather had been initiated. By that lease the exclusive right of trade and commerce in the lisère outside the line mentioned, covering practically the whole territory the boundary of which is in dispute, became vested in the company which enjoyed a similar monopoly in the territory on the British side of the frontier, wherever it might be, and, as it was a matter of indifference to it whether it derived its rights from its British charter or its Russian lease, no question as to the true location of the line could arise. The lease, though originally for ten years only, was renewed from time to time and terminated only on the date when Alaska was ceded to the United States.

When subsequently to that cession, the gold discoveries in the Cassiar district of British Columbia, to which the most convenient access lay through the Stikine River traversing the lisère, rendered it desirable to locate the boundary in that region, the discussion between the two Governments was entirely confined to the question of a joint survey, an indispensable preliminary to any attempt to fix the boundary, and never touched on the interpretation of the treaty. Indeed, in the complete absence of topographical information as to the country, it was obviously impossible to discuss that question, and it was tacitly avoided by both sides. Even when later Mr. Secretary Fish threw out the suggestion referred to by Mr. Choate that the points where the boundary crosses certain rivers might be surveyed with a view to a partial delimitation, he declared that it was doubtful whether Congress would vote the money necessary for the purpose, doubts which were speedily verified by the action of that body, and it can scarcely be a matter of surprise that a suggestion made in such circumstances failed to receive critical examination at the hands of the British or Dominion Governments, and that no attempt was made to initiate a discussion as to the interpretation of the treaty which, in the absence of a survey, must have been of a purely academic nature.

The case of Peter Martin in 1877, to which Mr. Choate also refers, does not appear to have any bearing on the matter, as it turned on the question of his unauthorized conveyance as a prisoner through United States' territory, and Her Majesty's Government have never questioned the right of the United States' Government to territory at the mouth of the Stikine River, though the question how far inland that territory extends remains in dispute.

Mr. Choate made no reference to the correspondence initiated by Mr. Bayard in his note to Mr. Phelps of the 20th November, 1885, which has already been mentioned. That note made no claim that the interpretation of the treaty as regards any particular part of the boundary-line was no longer open, and the Earl of Iddesleigh, in his note to Mr. Phelps of the 27th August, 1886, enclosing copy of the map of the Dominion of Canada, geologically coloured, for which Mr. Phelps had asked, and on which a line was shown separating the lisère from Canadian territory, stated clearly the attitude of Her Majesty's Government in regard to the position of the disputed boundary in the following words:

"In forwarding to you a copy of the map in question, I have the honour to invite your attention to the fact that the Alaska boundary line shown thereon is merely an indication of the occurrence of such a dividing line somewhere in that region. It will, of course, be readily understood that no weight could attach to the map location of the line now noticed, inasmuch as the Convention between Great Britain and Russia of the 28th February, 1825, which defines the line, makes, its location depend on alternative circumstances, the occurrence or the non-occurrence, of mountains, and as is well known to all concerned, the country has never been topographically surveyed. Her Majesty's Government therefore feel that they are bound distinctly to disavow the recognition of the correctness of the line shown, on the edition of the map in question forwarded herewith, as the boundary-line between the Province of British Columbia and Alaska."

The United States government took no exception to this declaration, which was followed later by the statement in the memorandum given to Mr. Bayard by Sir L. Sackville West on the 14th September, 1887, as to the action of Lieutenant Schwatka during his reconnaissance of 1885 in purporting to fix Perrier's Pass at the head of the Lynn Canal as a point on the boundary. It was there stated that although Her Majesty's Government have agreed in principle to take part in a preliminary investigation of the Alaska boundary question, they are not prepared to admit that the points referred to by Lieutenant Schwatka in any way fix where the line should be drawn. It is not sought to raise any discussion at the present moment in regard to the position of the boundary between Alaska and British Columbia; but in order that it may not be prejudiced hereafter by absence of remark on the points alluded to above, Her Majesty's Government have thought it expedient to call the attention of the United States Government to the foregoing observations."

Shortly after in the informal discussion of the boundary question between Dr. Dawson, on the part of Her Majesty's Government, and Dr. Dall, on the part of the United States' Government, during the sittings of the Joint High Commission of 1888, the former made it distinctly clear that Her Majesty's Government claimed that the boundary should, in accordance with the terms of the treaty, be drawn along the summits of the coast range, crossing all narrow waters which were of such width as to be within territorial jurisdiction.

When the Conference between the British Delegates and Mr. Secretary Blaine was held in February 1892, the views of Her Majesty's Government as to the boundary were fully stated, and it was proposed on the part of the British Representatives 'that a reference to some impartial authority be made by Great Britain and the United States for the purpose of ascertaining and deciding finally the true boundary, regard being had to the treaties relating to the subject, and likewise to the case which may be presented by either Government, and to the testimony which he adduced as to the physical features of that country.' &c.

The representatives of the United States, Mr. Blaine and General Foster, considered that it was premature to provide for a reference to arbitration until a survey had been made, and the two Governments had had an opportunity of considering and discussing the question in the light of the facts revealed by that survey, and they handed in a proposal which was accepted and embodied with slight verbal amendments in article 1. of the treaty of July 22, 1892. That article provided for a coincident or joint survey 'with a view to the ascertaining of the facts and data necessary to the permanent delimitation of said boundary line in accordance with the spirit and intent of the existing treaties in regard to it between Great Britain and Russia and between the United States and Russia,' and further, that 'The High Contracting Parties agree that, as soon as practicable after the report or reports of the Commissions shall have been received, they will proceed to consider and establish the boundary line in question.'

It is clear from this that the whole question of the interpretation and application of the treaty was, by common consent, left over for discussion, after the completion of the survey in the light of the facts which it disclosed, and it might fairly be argued from the express terms of the convention that both governments had estopped themselves from contending that the boundary should be run otherwise than in accordance with the 'spirit and intent' of the existing treaties in regard to it between Great Britain and Russia and between the United States and Russia.'

It is evident in any case that, at any rate in 1892, neither Government claimed to have any rights in the disputed territory arising out of possession, occupation, or political control. Nor does it appear that any such claims were preferred on the part of the United States until the meetings of the Joint High Commission.

The elaborate series of maps on which the results of the joint survey were embodied were not received by Her Majesty's Government until March, 1898, but in the meantime Her Majesty's Government, realizing the improbability of a settlement being reached by diplomatic discussion, as contemplated by the Convention of 1892, and the need of an early settlement, owing to the new conditions created by the Yukon gold discoveries, had instructed Sir J. Pauncefote to propose to the United States' Government a reference of the question to three jurists of high standing, one nominated by each of the two Powers, and the third by an independent Power, and that this Commission should proceed at once to delimit the boundary at the heads of the inlets through which the traffic for the Yukon entered, principally at the head of the Lynn canal.

This proposal was made by Sir J. Pauncefote to Mr. Sherman on February 23, 1898, and in making it he specifically alluded to the divergence of views revealed by the informal discussion which took place in 1888. On March 2 he reported to me that the United States' Government were anxious for a provisional boundary, the rights of both parties being reserved pending a final settlement, but were unwilling to proceed with a new convention providing for arbitration until diplomatic discussion had failed to secure a settlement.

A proposal for a provisional boundary was made by Sir J. Pauncefote on April 1st in a memorandum in which he stated, 'in view of the wide divergence of views existing on the subject of the Alaska-Canadian boundary, the Dominion Government fear that the suggestion to proceed with the demarcation under the Convention of 1892 would lead to no result. They are, however, prepared to agree that a provisional line should be fixed without prejudice to the claims of either party at the watershed of the first summit north of Dyca. Such a provisional boundary would be at a distance of considerably more than 10 leagues from the coast. In answering this memorandum, on May 9, Mr. Day stated: 'In consenting to the temporary marking of the boundary line in the method just indicated, this Government desires it to be distinctly understood, on the part of both Governments, that this arrangement is not to be construed as affecting in any manner rights under existing treaties for the ultimate consideration and establishment of the boundary line in question.'

When, therefore, the Joint High Commission met in August, 1898, to discuss the question, it was clearly understood on both sides that the line was to be determined 'in accordance with the spirit and intent' of the treaty, without restriction, the rights of both parties having been fully and distinctly reserved whenever any question of the interpretation or application of the treaty was discussed, and the fact of such reservation expressly recognized on both sides.

It has already been fully explained why no question as to the interpretation of the treaty was raised by either party until 1898, and that on the first occasion when the discussion of the matter was approached, Her Majesty's Government gave distinct notice that they entirely disavowed the correctness of the line shown on the maps to which the United States' Government appealed.

In view of these facts Her Majesty's Government are fairly entitled to claim that as a settlement of the question cannot be reached diplomatically, the interpretation of the treaty and its application to the facts ascertained by the survey should be submitted unreservedly to an impartial Tribunal, without any such restrictions as were contained in the Venezuelan Treaty, and in proposing to allow, as provided by that instrument, continuous adverse possession for fifty years, if such can be proved, to override treaty right, they have made a distinct concession to the United States.

They do not, of course, admit that there has been any such adverse possession, by way either of exercise of jurisdiction or of political control, and if the United States' citizens have settled recently at the head of the Lynn canal, they have done so in the full knowledge, as given in the documents inclosed in President Cleveland's Message to Congress of March 2, 1889, that they were settling in disputed territory, and Her Majesty's Government are unable to see any reason why such settlement should receive further or greater recognition and protection than the United States' Government considered should be accorded to British subjects who had settled in the area in dispute between this country and Venezuela.

It is not necessary to discuss in detail each of the various points advanced in Mr. Choate's communication in favour of the United States' interpretation of the Treaty. Facts and arguments of equal cogency can be advanced on the other side by Her Majesty's Government, and they are all points which can be submitted to an arbitration tribunal under the rules laid down in the Venezuelan Treaty, and unless there are other facts and circumstances upon which the United States' Government rely, but which might be excluded from the consideration of the tribunal by these rules, Mr. Choate has not, so far as can be seen, advanced any reason to warrant Her Majesty's Government in departing from the view expressed in my note of July 1, that there is nothing in the terms of the Venezuelan Treaty 'which is inapplicable or which would be inconsistent with an equitable solution of the Alaskan controversy'.

The question immediately under discussion is whether or not the dispute as to the boundary should be referred to arbitration, and it is difficult to understand why the length of time during which the rival claims to disputed territory have been matters of controversy should form an element to be taken into consideration in that connection. If it be desirable on other grounds to employ the assistance of an impartial tribunal as the best means of terminating the dispute, the length of the period of previous controversy appears to be immaterial.
The exercise of the rights of sovereignty within the area in dispute by control of the Indian tribes and establishment of administrative machinery therein was, as the United States' Government are aware, one of the principal grounds put forward by Great Britain in support of her right to the territory claimed by Venezuela and such grounds, if put forward by the United States' Government with reference to the Alaska boundary, would, no doubt, be fully considered by a Tribunal of Arbitration, and if found to be established for the period prescribed in the treaty, might settle the controversy in their favour.

But it is not admitted that such control was exercised by the United States until very recently, and after due notice of the claim of Her Majesty's Government, and in these circumstances, the fact of its exercise appears to be a reason in favour of, rather than an obstacle to, arbitration.

The fact that the starting point in the present controversy is a treaty, and that, in the dispute with Venezuela, the claims on either side were based on discovery and occupation, cannot, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government, constitute any essential difference between the two cases. The rules agreed to by Great Britain and the United States for the guidance of the tribunal were intended to provide for the admission in argument of every ground upon which an equitable claim to disputed territory may be based. As has already been pointed out, it is the Government of the United States who have imported into the present discussion other considerations than that of strict treaty right, and I trust that on full consideration they will not continue to object to these considerations being tested by rules which, with their approval, and with the consent of Her Majesty's Government, have been applied to a similar case.

If, however, the United States' Government still consider that the terms of the Venezuelan Treaty are in any respect inadequate to provide for an equitable settlement of the present controversy, such suggestions as they have to offer will receive attentive consideration from Her Majesty's Government.

You are authorized to read this despatch to Mr. Hay, and to leave a copy of it with him if he should so desire.

I am, &c.,

(Sgd.) SALISBURY.

No. 5.

Mr. Tower to the Marquess of Salisbury.—(Received November 9.)

WASHINGTON, October 30, 1899.

My Lord,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Lordship's despatch of the 14th instant, containing the reply of Her Majesty's Government to Mr. Choate's communication to your Lordship, as recorded in your Lordship's despatch of August 2, relating to the reference of the Alaska boundary question to arbitration on the terms adopted in the Treaty of February 2, 1897, between Great Britain and Venezuela.

I read the despatch to Mr. Hay this morning, and, at his desire, left a copy with him, in accordance with your Lordship's authorization.

I have, &c.,

(Sgd.) REGINALD TOWER.
THE ALASKA BOUNDARY

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

No. 6.

Mr. Choate to the Marquess of Salisbury.—(Received January 22.)

AMERICAN EMBASSY, LONDON, January 22, 1900.

My Lord,—Your Lordship's despatch to Mr. Tower of October 14, 1899, has been placed in my hands, with instructions to respond to your Lordship's courteous request to make further suggestions in reply bearing upon the question under discussion.

The United States' Government is not to be understood as refusing to submit to the adjudication of an independent tribunal the real question at issue between us in respect to the Alaska boundary. On the contrary, as I understand it, the present discussion contemplates the probability of such a submission. As I stated in my note of August 9,* to which your Lordship's note to Mr. Tower is an indirect reply, the President was prevented by the considerations there stated from assenting to the proposal that the Venezuela Treaty, as it stands, should be applied here, and that the subject matter to be adjudicated and the terms and conditions by which its action should be limited ought, if possible, first to be decided.

The Venezuela Treaty was calculated, and, as the result has shown, well and properly calculated, to enable the tribunal to make by compromise a boundary line in respect of which there has never been an agreement between the parties, and to evolve a fair adjustment of their respective claims out of the facts of discovery, occupation, and other historical circumstances in which their dispute as to the boundary had been involved for more than a century, during which the question had been always open. But in the present instance there is an express agreement of the parties defining the boundary—in the Treaty of 1825—which has subsisted ever since, practically without dispute as to its interpretation on the principal point. A clear and distinct interpretation on this point was put upon it by both parties in the written negotiations which resulted in the meeting of their minds upon it. This interpretation was regarded by both parties as vital and very important to their respective interests. It was publicly declared and acted upon by Russia from the date of the treaty until she conveyed to the United States in 1867, and all that time, at any rate, it was acquiesced in by Great Britain. The United States continued publicly to maintain and act upon the same interpretation, with the acquiescence of Great Britain, confessedly until 1855, and, as we claim, until 1898, when a new and wholly different interpretation on this main point is put forward by Great Britain. The two interpretations thus presented are absolutely distinct, and are not involved in any confused or doubtful historical explorations. One or the other is right, and can and should be ascertaincd and determined so as to be, to the exclusion of the other, and neither party wishes to acquire an inch of the territory rightly belonging to the other. Surely the tribunal which is to pass upon such a question should not be enabled to compromise it, but should be required simply to decide it. If the difference thus raised is to be compromised, it should be compromised by the parties themselves, so that they can know exactly what they are doing.

I have spoken of the interpretation of the treaty upon the principal point. By this, I mean the question whether the strip of coast ('la lisière de côte') which, by the treaty, is to belong to Russia, runs around the shores of the inlets or across their mouths—the former construction necessarily excluding Great Britain from the salt water at all points to a distance measured by the crests of the mountains parallel to the coast, if there are such, or by 10 leagues in the absence of such mountains, while the latter construction as necessarily gives to Great Britain so much of each inlet as extends above a point crossed by a line drawn from the crest of the mountains nearest to the coast. This is a question of construction between the two parties, to be determined in the usual way by the language of the treaty interpreted in the light of the acts of the parties before and after, and including any claim of either that the other is estopped to dispute the construction which it asserts. It is eminently a question for jurists to determine judicially, and it was with this view that the United States, through its Commissioners in the Joint High Commission, offered to submit it to a perfectly independent tribunal, to be composed of six learned jurists, three to be named by each party, and a majority of them to decide. It is not easy to see how any judicial tribunal could compromise it, unless expressly commissioned to do so, as in the Venezuela case. They must decide it one way or the other.

*The terms of this note were similar to the communication made by Mr. Choate on August 2 and recorded in the despatch to Mr. Tower of that date.

This is the question which we maintain was never raised by Her Majesty’s Government until 1898. Russia and the United States claimed the former interpretation from first to last; Great Britain realized its intrinsic importance from the beginning, but never disputed our interpretation, which was open, public, and uniform. These features of the case now presented differentiate it radically from the Venezuela case.

Your Lordship states that no question as to the interpretation of the treaty was raised by either party until 1885. It would be more in harmony with my view of the situation to say that Russia and the United States uniformly and publicly asserted an interpretation of the treaty which Great Britain did not dispute.

But assuming this fundamental and very important question, to be decided either by an independent tribunal or by agreement of the parties, another question remains still to be determined—one of great importance and which has always been open—namely, the exact location of the boundary line according to the spirit and meaning of the treaty and its precise distance at every point from the coast. This is a question of no small difficulty, growing out of the alternative provisions of the IIIrd and IVth Articles of the Treaty, by the former of which the width of the strip or the distance of the British possessions from the coast is to be measured to the crests of the parallel mountains, but by the latter, if no such mountains are found within 10 leagues, then by that distance or by a distance never exceeding that.

This minor or secondary question might, of course, also be referred to an arbitration; but it is obviously not, like the first, a question for jurists. It would properly be disposed of by a joint survey. And it is a question of such minor importance, after the first question has been once determined, that neither party would probably desire to go to the great expense and trouble of an arbitration about it, but they would either run the line by agreement or leave it to be run by a joint survey, as was once agreed between them. For if the first question were once determined in accordance with the present contention of Her Majesty’s Government, Great Britain or Canada would have in her own possession such a wide and ample stretch of sea coast, being the entirety of all inlets beyond a point crossed by a line drawn from the crests of the mountains nearest the coasts, that a few miles, or even leagues, more or less, would make no substantial difference; while, on the other hand, if that question were once determined in accordance with the uniform contention of Russia and the United States since 1825, Great Britain or Canada having no possible foothold on the sea coast through the whole length of the strip or lisière, a few miles, or even leagues, more or less, in its width at any point, would make no very important difference to either party.

The difficulty of locating the exact boundary line according to any interpretation of the treaty was in great measure removed by the report and maps of the joint survey created by agreement of Great Britain and the United States in 1892.

Before taking up your Lordship’s review of the facts and incidents since the date of the treaty between Great Britain and Russia, which are cited as confirming the view that the question of the interpretation of the treaty has been always open, I venture, with deference, to ask whether, in that review, the distinction which I have drawn between the question of the interpretation of the treaty and the question of the actual demarcation of the boundary line has not been lost sight of, for it appears very clearly to me that nearly all of them recognize as an open question the actual demarcation of the line, which must remain open until it is actually accomplished, and that they do not suggest or assume that the question of the interpretation of the treaty now raised and insisted upon by Great Britain was open.

It would be strange, indeed, if Her Majesty's Government, at the time of the exchange of the treaty with Russia—or the Russian Government of that day—could have regarded the question now raised by Great Britain as left open, or that any question under the treaty was left doubtful or open for future determination, except the actual demarcation of the boundary line so as to carry out the spirit and intent of the treaty as well known to them both and freshly in their minds from the protracted and very earnest struggle which they had had over its terms.

One persistent effort of Her Majesty's representatives in that negotiation was to get to the sea, in the interest of the Hudson's Bay Company. The equally persistent effort of the representatives of Russia was to set up a barrier in a strip of land which should keep Great Britain away from the sea at all points from the southern end of Prince of Wales Island to Mount St. Elias, so that the Russian establishments on the islands and the coast belonging to the Russian-American Company could by no possibility be interfered with, a point which the negotiators on behalf of Great Britain expressly and finally yielded.

I may not properly here enter upon an analysis of the protracted negotiations which culminated in the Treaty of 1825. They are now very familiar, and as we claim the whole course of the negotiation shows that the British plenipotentiaries, and Mr. Secretary Canning as well, had a perfectly clear conception of the lisière upon which Russia insisted so strenuously—that it was to be Russia's impenetrable barrier to any alien access to or from the inner region of the mainland, a strip of territory running parallel to the sinuosities of the coast, and necessarily around the inlets and not across their mouths, extending at all points from the water's edge to the interior possessions of Great Britain, beginning at the point of the continent where the line, ascending to the north along Portland channel, strikes the 50th degree of north latitude and extending to the intersection of the 141st meridian. It constituted a definite expanse of territory over which, and over the tide water along it, as well as over the islands outside of it, Russia possessed an exclusive jurisdiction—the same which she afterwards conveyed in its entirety to the United States. It could be pierced in favour of Great Britain only by rivers having their origin in British dominions, and flowing through the Russian territorial strip to tide water; and as to these, no judgment on the Russian shore, but only access to the interior, was granted to Great Britain. The provisions as to this strip of land in the 5th and 6th Articles of the original treaty, where it is referred to as 'la lisière de terre ferme' and 'lisière de la côte,' must have been understood by the negotiators on both sides in the same sense.

And the fact that, by the 6th Article of the treaty, Russia gave, and Great Britain took, a license for British vessels for ten years from the date of the treaty to frequent 'toutes les mers intérieures, les golfs, havres, et criques sur la côte' proves that the negotiators on both sides must have understood that all these interior waters, &c., were in Russian territory.

In view of this, we claim and insist that when the treaty was signed the question now raised and pressed by Her Majesty's Government whether the lisière ran around the inlets or sinuosities of the coast or across their mouths was not left open or understood by the negotiators on either side, or by either Government for which they acted, as an open question, and if not then left open, it was certainly never attempted to be opened until 1885—and, as we claim, not until 1885. Of course, the actual demarcation of the line, with whatever difficulties pertained to it, according to the spirit and meaning of the treaty, was necessarily left open, and could only be determined after the country was explored by competent survey.

Coming now to the references to the boundary question in subsequent correspondence between the Governments, which your Lordship regards as having been always upon the admitted basis that the whole line was undetermined, and that the interpretation of the boundary Articles of the Treaty was entirely an open question, I submit that in each instance, especially in view of what had preceded during Russia’s ownership, these references indicated or assumed no more than that the whole line was undetermined in the sense of not having been surveyed and marked, but not that the interpretation of the Treaty on the main point now under consideration was in any sense open.

Immediately after the making of the Treaty, the Russian Government proceeded with the preparation of a map, showing the respective possessions of Russia and Great Britain as fixed by the treaty. This map was published in St. Peters burg in 1827 by order of His Imperial Majesty. It runs the boundary line from the head of Portland Channel at a distance of 10 marine leagues from tide water around the head of all the inlets to the 141st meridian. And along this line upon the map is inscribed the words: ‘Numtres des possessions Russes et Anglais d’après le Traité de 1825.’ There could have been no more direct and peremptory challenge to Great Britain, if its government at that time regarded the interpretation of the Treaty as having been left an open question at the time of its signature, or as being then an open question as to which each Government was free to urge its own views.

The great importance of this location of the boundary as between the two nations, as represented respectively by the Hudson’s Bay Company and the Russian-American Company, must have been still very fresh and vivid upon the minds of His Majesty’s Ministers who had negotiated and concluded the Treaty, Russia thus proclaiming to them and to the world a clear and emphatic interpretation of the Treaty which conformed to that which the negotiators on both sides had put upon it. Was not that the time and the last time for Great Britain to speak? Could her Government lie by without a protest, and at any time afterwards claim a different interpretation which would nullify the whole object of Russia in making the Treaty? But Great Britain did not merely lie by without a protest; she and Canada also expressly adopted this location of the boundary exactly as Russia had defined it.

In 1831 the map prepared by Bouche, Deputy Surveyor-General of the Province of Lower Canada, ‘published as the Act directs by James Will, Geographer to the King, London, May 2, 1831,’ traces the Russian boundary on the continent exactly according to the Russian Imperial Map of 1827. And in 1832 the map of Arrowsmith, the most authoritative cartographer of London, whose earlier map had been used by the negotiators of the Treaty, does exactly the same thing, stating upon its face that it contains the latest information which the documents of the Hudson’s Bay Company furnish. And it will hardly be questioned that at that time the Hudson’s Bay Company possessed all powers of Government in the British territory in that region, and was in fact the only British authority there. Can it be claimed that at the time of the publication of that map, apparently by the authority of the Hudson’s Bay Company and of the British Government—at any rate, without a protest from either—they then regarded the interpretation of the Treaty on this cardinal point as an open question?

And on Canadian authority maps were subsequently published defining the boundary in the same way, excluding Great Britain from all access to tide water along the whole extent of the line—notably, Devine’s Map, published ‘by order of the Honourable Joseph Cauchon, Commissioner of Crown Lands, Crown Department Toronto, March, 1857.’ All the map makers of the world followed suit, and a careful search has failed to discover any map published anywhere prior to 1884, in which this boundary line did not conform to the original Russian Imperial Map of 1827.

Your Lordship suggests that the only value of that region during the period from 1825 to 1867 lay in the fur trade; that by the terms of the Treaty that trade was thrown open on equal terms for ten years to the citizens of Great Britain, Russia, and the United States; that before the ten years expired the negotiations between the Hudson’s Bay Company and the Russian-American Company, which resulted in the lease by the latter to the former of the Leaside, had been initiated; and that as that lease, though made at first for ten years, by renewals terminated on the date when
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

Alaska was ceded to the United States, it was a matter of indifference to that company whether it derived its rights from its British Charter or from the Russian lease. But to me it is hardly conceivable that the Hudson's Bay Company, backed by the whole power and prestige of the British Government, would, with its approval, have accepted that lease if either the Company or the Government had had the least idea that, under the Treaty of 1825, they were entitled, as of right, to what they took by lease and to what Canada now claims; and so I insist, with renewed earnestness, that the takings of that lease and the renewals were declarations to the world that neither regarded as open the contention now made on behalf of Canada.

The information conveyed in your Lordship's note, that before the expiration of the ten years' license provided in the VIIth Article of the Treaty, negotiations had been initiated between the Hudson's Bay Company and the Russian-American Company for the lease of the lisière, which appears to have been signed at Hamburg on February 6, 1839, and that by renewals it was terminated only on the date when Alaska was ceded to the United States, is the first to that effect that my Government has received. All the data in its possession, including the Alaska archives now in the State Department, had indicated that the negotiations for the lease had been brought about in the latter part of the year 1838, three years after the expiration of the ten years, by a note from the British Ambassador in St. Petersburg, revising the claim of the 'Dryad'—and the last record in the Alaskan archives of a renewal of it only extends it to 1865. But assuming your Lordship's information to be more accurate, we submit that both circumstances show that neither before the commencement of the lease, nor at its termination, did the Hudson's Bay Company or the British Government, which is so fully represented, regard the question now under consideration as open, or that the premises covered by the lease were in British territory; for, in the one case they would have entered upon no negotiations before the expiration of the license, and in the other would not have yielded possession without protest or murm, but in both cases would have held on as of right.

What took place in 1857, following the appointment of a Select Committee in the House of Commons, to consider the state of those British possessions in North America which are under the administration of the Hudson's Bay Company, or over which they possess a license to trade, is extremely significant to show that no one concerned on the part of the Company or the Committee had any doubt about the interpretation of the Treaty on the point now being discussed. Among the members of the Committee were Lord John Russell, Lord Stanley, Mr. Roebuck, Mr. Gladstone, and Mr. Ellice, who was a native of Canada, and a director of the Hudson's Bay Company. Chief Justice Draper, of Canada, attended its session as the representative of the Government of Canada; Sir George Simpson, Governor of the territory and President of the Company, was a principal witness. In connection with his testimonies he produced a map of the territory leased, saying, 'There is a margin of coast marked yellow on the map from 54° 40' up to Cross Sound which we have rented from the North American Company for a term of years, and the boundary as laid down on that map conforms to the present claim of the United States, being carried around all the inlets and interior waters. The map was printed by order of Parliament, and no objection to the validity of the lease or to the correctness of the map was suggested by anybody. The lease itself was not only made with the approval of both Governments represented by the two Companies, but shortly before this Parliamentary inquiry, it had been ratified anew by both Governments. During the Crimean war, at the request of the two Companies, the territory covered by the lease was by the order of both Governments exempted from the operation of the war.

I have thus carefully reviewed all the circumstances that intervened from the negotiations of the Treaty in 1825 till the cession to the United States in 1867, a period during which, I think, we may reasonably claim that this main question was not regarded as open by either Russia or Great Britain, but that the acts of both solidly confirmed the interpretation put upon the Treaty at the beginning by Russia and ever since by her and by the United States, not only because of their conclusive effect, but because it is necessary to bear this prior history in mind in considering the subsequent facts relied upon by your Lordship as indicating that both parties subsequently regarded this question as open, and also to keep clearly in mind the distinction between this fundamental question and the actual demarcation in accordance with the spirit and intent of the Treaty as thus uniformly interpreted by both parties, which was always open and never could be accomplished until after a complete survey of the region through which the line ran.

Bearing these things in mind, I submit to your Lordship that it is impossible to sustain the suggestion that President Grant, in his Annual Message to Congress in December, 1872, accepted the view that 'the interpretation of the boundary articles of the Treaty was entirely an open question as to which each Government was free to urge its own views.' On the contrary, no such idea can be read even between the lines of his message. Indeed, he asserts the boundary to be an 'admitted boundary,' and only alludes to the line as being undetermined in the sense of its never having been surveyed and marked down; and the message furnishes a very strong argument in support of our present contention that the main question was not open.

It will be remembered that the award of the Emperor of Germany in the San Juan case had just then been made. The questions involved were in some respects singularly like those involved here: first, whether the water boundary described in the treaty ran through Rosario Channel or through Haro Channel; and, second, whichever channel was decided to be the one, to survey and mark it out according to the spirit and intent of the treaty. The British Commissioners had proposed that the Arbitrator should have the right to draw the boundary through an intermediate channel. The American Commissioners declined this proposal, stating that they desired a decision and not a compromise; and the submission to the Emperor was to determine whether it ran through one channel or the other, and his award had been that it was most in accordance with the true interpretation of the treaty that the boundary-line should be run through the Haro Channel; but this left still undetermined the tracing out and marking of the line in conformity with the award.

President Grant, having in his Message stated the history of the case and his satisfaction with the award, and with the prompt and spontaneous action of Her Majesty’s government giving effect to it, and having already said 'The award leaves us, for the first time in the history of the United States as a nation, without a question of disputed boundary between our territory and the possessions of Great Britain on this continent;' proceeds:

'It now becomes necessary to complete the survey and determination of that portion of the boundary-line (through the Haro Channel) upon which the Commission which determined the remaining part of the line were unable to agree. I recommend the appointment of a Commission to act jointly with one which may be named by Her Majesty for that purpose.

'Experience of the difficulties attending the determination of our admitted line of boundary, after the occupation of the territory and its settlement by those owing allegiance to the respective Governments, points to the importance of establishing by natural objects or other monuments the actual line between the territory acquired by purchase from Russia and the adjoining possessions of Her Britannic Majesty. The region is now so sparsely occupied that no conflicting interests of individuals or of jurisdiction are likely to interfere to the delay or embarrassment of the actual location of the line. If deferred until population shall enter and occupy the territory, some trivial contest of neighbours may again array the two Governments in antagonism. I therefore recommend the appointment of a Commission to act jointly with one that may be appointed on the part of Great Britain, to determine the line between our territory of Alaska and the conterminous possessions of Great Britain. (For. Rel., U. S., 1897).'}
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

Is it not absolutely certain that no idea of there being any open question about the interpretation of the treaty had ever entered the President's mind? He declares it to be 'an admitted line of boundary,' and recommends, exactly as in the San Juan case upon the footing of the award, 'a joint commission to determine the line.'

President Grant's recommendation was occasioned by personal conference between the British Minister, Sir Edward Thornton, and the Secretary of State, Mr. Fish, in the preceding month, in which the former, under instructions from the Foreign Office, proposed the appointment of a Joint Commission for the purpose of defining the boundary between Alaska and British Columbia, and he reported, under date of the 25th November, that Mr. Fish stated that the President had determined to recommend in his annual message that a joint commission be appointed 'for the purpose of laying down the boundary.'

On the 25th December of the same year Sir Edward Thornton, referring to his previous conference with Secretary Fish, transmitted to the Foreign Office a copy of the Bill introduced in Congress 'authorizing the survey and marking of the boundary' (see Canadian Session Papers 1878, No. 123, pp. 6, 7, 8). In no part of this correspondence is there any intimation that the interpretation of the treaty was in dispute. It was merely a movement to have the boundary fixed by the treaty surveyed and marked.

When gold was discovered in the Cassiar region, which was reached through the Stikine, and the passage of miners up that river ensued, it was deemed wise to have the eastern boundary of the lisière where it crosses that river more accurately defined, which led to the movement in 1873-74 on the part of the two Governments for a joint survey. The cost of a survey of the entire boundary being objected to, it was suggested in a conference between Sir Edward Thornton and Secretary Fish, that it would be sufficient to fix the boundary at certain named points, viz., the head of the Portland Canal, 'the points where the boundary-line crosses the Rivers Skoot, Stikine, Taku, Islecet, and Chilkat, Mount St. Elias, &c.' The Legislative Assembly of British Columbia, in petitioning the Canadian Government for a survey, refers to it as 'the boundary of the 30-mile belt of American territory.' Dennis, Surveyor-General of Canada, to whom the matter was referred, restated the points to be determined, and named the rivers, viz., Skoot, Stikine, Taku, Islecet, and Chilkat. The Skoot was at no point nearer than 25 miles to tide water, and the points of crossing of the rivers were far above the heads of inlets into which they emptied. The survey was agreed upon, but failed because Congress made no appropriation: but it is clear that the British and Canadian authorities understood that the eastern boundary of the strip crossed the rivers named at some point above their mouths, which are at the head of inlets, including Lynn canal, and that the boundary could not therefore cross any of those inlets, which is quite inconsistent with the theory that the question was then regarded as open whether the lisière ran around the inlets or crossed their mouths.

In the years 1874 to 1876 questions arose as to the proper location of custom-houses of the two Governments on the Stikine River, and the point in dispute centered around the crossing of the river by the boundary-line 30 miles in a direct line from the coast. The British Minister, reciting the complaint, stated that the British custom-house was 'supposed to be within United States' territory—that is, within the 10 marine leagues from the coast.' The Privy Council of the Dominion of Canada, in moving the Governor-General to bring the subject of the survey again to the attention of the United States, recites that 'the Stikine river intersects the international boundary in the vicinity of the 57th degree of north latitude,' that is, 30 nautical miles from the coast in a direct line.

It is admitted by your Lordship that in 1873 the discussion between the two governments was entirely confined to the question of a joint survey, an indispensable preliminary to any attempt to fix the boundary, and 'never touched upon the interpretation of the treaty.' But my government cannot agree to the proposition that 'in the complete absence of topographical information as to the country, it was obviously impossible to discuss that question, and that it was tacitly avoided by both sides? What could the absence or presence of topographical information as to the country have to do with the question whether the lisière, by the true interpretation of the treaty, ran around the inlets or across their mouths? Whether it was intended to be a continuous border of solid land, which should serve as an effectual barrier against the access of the Canadians to salt water, or should be no strip at all, but a broken series of portions of the coast, admitting Canada to full possession and enjoyment of the interior waters in many places? And how could the suggestion of Secretary Fish as to the points where the boundary described in the treaty crossed the rivers, all of which were points of considerable distance above the inlets, fail to command the attention of Her Majesty's government if it had all this time been of opinion that the upper part of these inlets was in each case in British territory? If, as your Lordship concedes, the subject of the interpretation of the treaty was in that correspondence tacitly avoided on the side of Great Britain, may we not fairly claim that the reason for silence on the part of the United States was because the positive interpretation which had been publicly and uniformly asserted by Russia and themselves for nearly fifty years had never been questioned—in other words, because there was no question? Certainly the United States never avoided it, tacitly or otherwise.

My government does not regard what took place between the two governments in 1876-77 in the case of Peter Martin as having any conclusive bearing. My reference to it in my note of the 9th August was quite casual, as to one of the very few instances in which there had been any correspondence on the subject of the boundary; but there are certain features in that case which are relevant. No one can read the notice of Secretary Fish to Sir Edward Thornton of the 10th January, 1877, and impute to him any suspicion that the interpretation of the treaty definition of the boundary on the point now under consideration was open, or that anything was left undetermined except the exact location of the admitted boundary-line. He says:

'The absence of a line defined and marked on the surface of the earth as that of the limit or boundary between the two countries cannot confer upon either a jurisdiction beyond the point where such line should in fact be—that is, the boundary which the treaty makes the boundary. Surveys make it certain and patent, but do not alter rights or change rightful jurisdiction.'

It is quite true that the Minister of Justice recommended that the release of Martin be put upon the ground of the conveyance of the prisoner through American territory. But the British Chargé, in his note to Mr. Fish, did not state the ground upon which the release was ordered; and the proceedings seemed to involve a tacit concession on the part of Great Britain that the place of the assault was in American territory. The demand for his release was upon that ground, and the British Minister so understood it. In examining the Canadian documents in relation to the case, it appears that the surveyor who was sent by the Canadian Surveyor General to visit the locality, reported four months before the release of Martin that the assault for which Martin was tried was committed in the territory of the United States 13 miles from the mouth of the Stikine river; and the Minister of Justice, to whom the case was referred for investigation, reported to the Privy Council that the assault was upon American territory, and no suggestion to the contrary was made by any one on the part of Great Britain.

In my note of August 9 I made no reference to Mr. Bayard's note to Mr. Phelps of November 20, 1885, and to the correspondence which that note initiated. This omission was not from overlooking that note and correspondence, but because a careful reading of it had satisfied me; and now that Your Lordship has brought it up, I submit to your candid judgment that Mr. Bayard did not there take the view that the interpretation of the boundary articles of the treaty was an open question, but only that the demarcation of the line was undetermined and was full of difficulties in the then state of topographical knowledge. Of course, Mr. Bayard in that note made no claim that the interpretation of the treaty as regards any particular part of the boundary line was no longer open, for nobody, so far as we can discover, had up to that date claimed that it was open. Certainly no one on the part of Her Majesty's Government had done so.

Undoubtedly Mr. Bayard did point out in that note that 'no question concerning the true location of the line stipulated in the treaty had ever arisen between Great Britain and Russia prior to the cession of Alaska to the United States.' But in the same paper and in the same connection he had already said, 'It is certain that no question has arisen since 1867 between the Governments of the United States and Great Britain in regard to this boundary,' thus covering the whole period from 1825 to 1885.

In view of these emphatic declarations, my Government is at a loss to understand how he can be held to have sustained the view that at the latter date the interpretation of the treaty as to the boundary was an open question between the two governments.

All the statements of Mr. Bayard and Mr. Phelps in the correspondence that followed must be read in the light of these declarations and the view of the object at which they were aiming, viz., to obtain, not an arbitration to interpret the treaty, but a Joint Commission which should make a survey of the line stipulated by the treaty, or, as Mr. Bayard afterwards limited it (in his subsequent instruction of March 19, 1886, to Mr. Phelps), to 'an agreement for a preliminary survey of the Alaska boundary with a view to the discovery of such natural outlines and objects as may be made the basis for a future formal convention for the survey of the boundary line.'

He was deeply impressed with the extreme difficulty and enormous expense of a survey of the boundary line—difficulties and expense which we think have been very greatly reduced by the report of the Joint Commission appointed in 1892 and the maps prepared by that Commission—but all that Mr. Bayard and Mr. Phelps said may be read in vain for any indications of a doubt in the mind of either, whether the lisière was a continuous and solid strip of land running around the inlets and excluding Great Britain from access to the sea in every part of its length, or a congeries of broken strips interrupted at the mouth of every inlet and admitting her to exclusive possession of all parts of every inlet above a point crossed by a line drawn from the crests of the mountains nearest to the coast. The difficulties of which Mr. Bayard treated at great length were the same which Mr. Fish and the experts of both Governments then consulted had encountered in 1872, but neither then nor in 1885 did they suggest a divergence of views as to the interpretation of the treaty.

When the Earl of Iddesleigh sent the Canadian map to Mr. Phelps with his note of August 27, 1886, and felt called upon to disavow the correctness of the line of boundary as marked on it, he raised no question about the interpretation of the Treaty of 1825—certainly none as to whether the lisière ran around the inlets, so as to keep Canada at all points 30 marine miles from salt water—but pointed directly and exclusively to the doubt which had always existed as to the exact location of the boundary line, the eastern edge of the lisière, occasioned by the alternative clauses of the treaty defining it by parallel mountain summits, or in their absence by the 10 leagues. He says that the boundary-line shown on the map 'is merely an indication of the occurrence of a dividing line somewhere in that region,' and he goes on to explain what he means by that and why no weight could be attached to it, inasmuch as the treaty 'which defines the line makes its location depend on alternative circumstances—the occurrence or non-occurrence of mountains, and, as is well known to all concerned, the country has never been topographically surveyed.' Surely, considering that at that time, more than sixty years since the treaty, the question now raised had never been suggested, nor any question about the meaning of 'the coast' or 'the sinuosities of the coast,' the phrases employed in the treaty, he could not have intended covertly to raise it for the first time by the languages used, nor could he have believed that our government would so understand that language, which by the ordi-any rules applicable to diplomatic correspondence, or to any correspondence, must be limited to its obvious meaning; for after sixty years of silent acquiescence and occasional active concurrence in the interpretation publicly asserted by Russia and the United States, if he intended to raise such a radical question to the contrary, he should have done it in unmistakable terms. The Earl of Iddesleigh's language is in exact conformity with the inscription upon the map itself, which he inclosed, and which doubtless suggested to him the caution which he gave.

'The boundary between British Columbia and Alaska, as shown upon this map, is taken from a map of British Columbia published in 1871, under the direction of .... Surveyor-General for the province of British Columbia; but no steps have yet been taken by the Canadian government to verify what degree of accuracy may be attached to the boundary thus laid down.'

The same observations apply in full force to the language quoted by your Lordship from the memorandum given to Mr. Secretary Bayard by Sir L. S. Sackville West in September, 1887, There was no more reason why the United States' government should take exception to this declaration than to that of Lord Iddesleigh, already discussed.

In April, 1886, Sir L. West had been instructed by Lord Rosebery to inform the government of the United States that Her Majesty's government are prepared to take part in the preliminary investigation of the boundary question. And Lord Rosebery had notified Mr. Phelps that he did not propose to move further in the matter until he knew what action was taken towards an appropriation by congress.

In the meantime, Lieutenant Schwatka having been sent to Alaska, not by the United States' government, but by General Miles, then commanding the Department of the Columbia, and not to make any survey, but to gather information for military purposes, had made his report, and neither the report nor the map which accompany it delineating his route disclose any boundary survey on his part or the fixing of any points for the boundary. His report, however, casually stated that 'the country beyond Perrier Pass,' which by his map appears to be more than 20 leagues beyond the head of Lynn canal, 'lying in British territory, lessens the interest of this trail beyond the pass to the military authorities of our government.' This remark, which from the context is shown to be merely incidental to the narrative of his journey, has no further significance than an assertion on his part that the Kotush mountains are situated in British territory.

And Sir L. West, in his memorandum, so far from raising any question about the interpretation of the treaty, or claiming that the question now presented was open, expressly declined to raise any discussion even in regard to the position of the boundary, but merely called attention to Lieutenant Schwatka's statement, so that no prejudice might come from silence about it. There is no indication that either he or Lord Rosebery had any idea that any question of interpretation existed.

I venture to suggest that Your Lordship may have inadvertently, and without full consideration of the circumstances, laid too much stress upon Dr. Dawson's letter of February, 1888, which comes next in order of time. Your Lordship draws the conclusion that 'Dr. Dawson, during the sittings of the Joint High Commission of 1888, made it distinctly clear that Her Majesty's government claimed that the boundary should, in accordance with the terms of the treaty, cross all narrow waters that were of such width as to be within territorial jurisdiction,' and 'that United States' citizens who have settled recently at the head of the Lynn canal have done so with the full knowledge,' as given in that letter, 'that they were settling in disputed territory. It appears by the documents transmitted to congress by President Cleveland, the 2nd March, 1889, that Secretary Bayard reported that 'during the session of the Fisheries Conference of 1887-88 in Washington it was suggested that an informal consultation between some person in this country possessing knowledge of the question in dispute and a Canadian similarly equipped might tend to facilitate the discovery of a basis of agreement between the United States and Great Britain upon which a practical boundary line could be established.

Mr. Bayard then proceeds to state that to this end several conferences were held between Professor Dall, of the United States' Geological Survey, and Dr. Dawson, an eminent Canadian authority, but without any other result than that each of these gentlemen had given his account of these conferences—the former to the Secretary of State, the latter to Sir Charles Tupper—which, together with other documents including a letter of Dr. Dawson to Sir Charles Tupper on the boundary question, and memorandum of Professor Dall on the same subject, with maps, were submitted. Professor Dall, in his report of the interviews, says:—

"It was mutually announced and agreed that the meeting was entirely informal; that neither party had any delegated authority whatever," and it is quite clear that they had no governmental authority whatever on either side. "It was thought that if Dr. Dawson and myself could unite in recommending some plan as practicable, that opinion or plan would be entitled to some consideration." These conferences were not held "during the sittings of the Joint High Commission of 1888," and this, the first suggestion that has come to our knowledge "that the boundary should, in accordance with the terms of the Treaty, cross any waters, was not presented before the Commission, but in this "informal meeting" where "neither party had any delegated powers whatever." It appears by Dr. Dawson's letter, upon which your Lordship relies, that he did not put forward this idea as originally his own, or one for which he was responsible, or as a claim in any sense of Her Majesty's Government, but as the view of a Canadian land surveyor, General Cameron, which he says in his letter to Sir Charles Tupper "may be substantially adopted," and he courteously furnishes Professor Dall with a copy of the letter as stating clearly General Cameron's views. It was wholly immaterial whether Dr. Dawson adopted General Cameron's views or not; but Sir Charles Tupper, who was then in Washington, and was keenly alive to the importance of everything bearing on the Alaska boundary was in no mood to adopt them. He appears purposely to have refrained from doing so; for in communicating to the Secretary of State a copy of this letter of Dr. Dawson, he refers to it as explanatory, not of the views of himself, or of the Canadian or the Imperial Government, but of Dr. Dawson's own views.

I annex a copy of Sir Charles Tupper's letter.

Professor Dall describes them as "some very surprising claims" and as "the singular hypotheses regarding the boundary line which have been emitted by General Cameron of Canada, and which are formulated in the accompanying letter to Sir Charles Tupper." And Mr. Bayard refers to them as "certain views of General D. R. Cameron, as submitted in the letter of Dr. Dawson." Certainly, therefore, Her Majesty's Government made no such claim. And if there was any purpose on the part of the Canadian Government of making it, such purpose was very studiously and successfully disguised. I think it will appear that neither the Canadian nor the Imperial Government adopted or put forward this claim until after the Protocol of the 30th May, 1898.

If the views of Her Majesty's Government as to the boundary were fully stated at the conference held in Washington in February, 1892, with members of the Canadian Cabinet and the British Minister, and a suggestion was submitted for a reference of the question to arbitration, it does not appear of record in the Department of State, and no information of such a proposition is in its possession. No Protocol of the conferences was made, as it was understood in advance that they were to be of an informal and private character; but Secretary Blaine submitted to the President a report of some length in regard to the February conference, as did Mr. Foster with respect to the second conference in June—both of which were transmitted to Congress, and published (Senate Ex. Doc. 114, fifty-second Congress, first Session, pp. 3—43).

These conferences were brought about because of the protests of the Canadian Government against a Reciprocity Treaty with Newfoundland; and in the preliminary arrangements for the meeting, while a number of subjects were suggested for consideration, the Alaska boundary was not mentioned. Almost the entire time was taken up with commercial questions, of which Mr. Blaine makes full report, and very briefly refers to other questions, among them "a commission to fix the boundary separating Alaska from British territory," but there is no intimation of so serious a proposition as an arbitration of that question.

I am not able to perceive, therefore, that a proposition on the part of the British representatives, assuming it to have been made at such an informal conference in the terms quoted by your Lordship, but which the American representatives refused to consider, can be regarded as raising or opening the question of the interpretation of the treaty now under consideration. Undoubtedly, if that suggestion had been adopted and carried into an executed agreement, it might have been possible under it to raise before the tribunal any question whatever; but as a rejected proposition in the form stated it opened nothing, certainly not the question of interpretation of the treaty raised by Canada's present claim.

It is suggested by your Lordship that the Treaty which was soon afterwards signed by the secretary of State, Mr. Foster, and the British Chargé, Mr. Herbert, was, and was expressed to be, "with a view to the ascertaining of the facts and data necessary to the permanent delimitation of said boundary line in accordance with the spirit and intent of the existing treaties"; and that it was "agreed that as soon as practicable after the report of the commission shall have been received, they will proceed to consider and establish the boundary line in question." These facts and data were to be the result of the surveys of scientific experts, and no inference can be drawn from this convention that there existed any divergence of views as to the interpretation of the treaty of 1825, especially as to the point now under consideration. It brought no such claim to the attention of the American Government. What was postponed, to be taken up after the reports of the commission should come in, and upon the facts and data derived from such reports, was the consideration and establishment of the boundary line. And it is now believed that with the light thrown upon the topography of the country by the elaborate series of maps on which the results of the joint survey were embodied, if the question now raised whether the lisière runs around the inlets or across their mouth were decided, the actual location of the boundary in either view could be easily made by agreement or by the present Joint High Commission.

So far as the records of the State Department disclose, the first proposition submitted by the British Government for an arbitration of the Alaska boundary was contained in the note of the British Ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote, to Secretary Sherman, which it now appears by your Lordship's despatch he was directed to write before Her Majesty's Government had received the maps referred to. It is true that in this note he refers to "the wide divergence of views existing", but when he comes to explain this by particularizing the line respecting which his government is most concerned, he says:

"The great traffic which is now attracted to the valley of the Yukon, in the Northwest Territory, by the recent discovery of gold in that region, finds its way thence from the coast principally through certain passes at the head of Lynn Canal, and it becomes more important than ever for jurisdictional purposes that the boundary, especially in that particular locality, should be ascertained and defined."

This was the last statement of the views of the British Government before the creation of the Joint High Commission, and it developed the fact that up to that time the divergence now so much emphasized was more apparent than real, as it recognized that the line in dispute about the head of Lynn canal was in the neighbourhood of the passes. And this is the case in every instance cited in your Lordship's despatch where the British Government has made any declaration of its views. I have already commented on the Earl of Ildesleigh's letter to Mr. Phelps in 1886. In 1887-88 when the British and American customs officials came into conflict on the Skikine River, and Sir Edward Thornton submitted a proposition for a settlement, the question was whether the line in accordance with the treaty should be drawn across the river where the Canadian surveyor had placed it 20 miles from tide water, or 30 miles. In 1873, when the effort was made for the creation of a commission to mark the boundary, it has been shown that there was a concurrence of opinion between the two governments that the line should be drawn across the rivers named, among which was the Skout, which at no point was less than 25 miles from tide water. It is clear that in every instance when up to the creation of the Joint High Commission the British Government has made any representation to the Government of the United States respecting the boundary, it has related to the eastern or interior line of contact with Canadian territory, either on the rivers or in the mountain passes, and that whatever uncertainty or difference of views was manifested arose from the want of precise knowledge as to the topography of the country, and did not concern the interpretation of the treaty. It is also clear that at no time previous to August 3, 1898, has the British Government intimated to the Government of the United States a claim to the waters of the inlets extending into the strip of mainland set off to Russia by the treaty of 1825.

Certainly, until such claim was made, and the rights of the United States under the treaty in the territory now disputed were challenged, there was no occasion for them to refer to the subject of possession, occupation, or political control in any correspondence with Great Britain; but we maintain that possession, occupation, and political control of the territory now disputed were exercised continuously from 1825 to the present time by Russia and the United States in succession, and such exercise is in its nature claim of title.

I have refrained in this communication from importing any extraneous considerations and arguments in support of an interpretation of the Treaty of 1825, but have limited it to what seems to me to be cogent and conclusive grounds for the assertion that its interpretation on the point presented has not been open in the long period from 1825 to 1898. It is true that these views would be entitled to equal consideration before a tribunal appointed to interpret the treaty and settle the boundary, but the uniform acquiescence and occasional concurrence of one party in an interpretation openly proclaimed and acted on by the other seems to be a complete answer to the claim that that interpretation continues open.

If the British or Canadian government had at any time desired to enter a protest against the claim of the United States, abundant official data existed upon which such a protest might have been based. In 1867, immediately after the signing of the Treaty of Cession, the Department of State issued an official map of the territory of Alaska, on which the international boundary was traced, carrying it well beyond the sources of the streams emptying into Lynn canal, and this line has been accepted in all the cartographic publications of our government since that date. In 1883 the Secretary of State sent to the British minister in Washington, at his request, copies of the annual reports of the United States' Coast and Geodetic Survey for 1874 and for other succeeding years, containing boundary limits of a similar character.

The census publications of 1880 and 1890 not only contained a similar map, but also an enumeration of the Indian tribes of the territory, including those inhabiting the country about the head of the Lynn canal. Many other publications of a similar character might be cited. Her Majesty's government, however, held its peace during the time of these publications, and entered no claim to any part of the Lynn canal until after the protocol had been signed in 1898, providing for a Joint High Commission to adjust unsettled Canadian questions.

The first presentation by Her Majesty's government of the present claim of Canada was made in the instructions issued by the Foreign Office to the British members of that commission, bearing date the 19th July, 1898, which was received by the Secretary of State on the 3rd August in that year. During the conferences of that commission, the American delegates asserted that no such claim had ever been put forward by the British government previous to the creation of the commission, and the assertion was not called in question. Chairman Fairbanks, in his letter to Lord Herschell of the 14th February, 1899, referring to this claim, used this language:—

"Our first advices on this subject were received at your hands since our sessions began at Quebec. . . . If the views you now present have been urged upon the attention of the United States at any time prior to the original protocol (30th May, 1898), we shall esteem it a favour if you will be good enough to direct us to the fact and date: further, we shall be pleased if you will advise us at what time since 1825 the British government made claim on either Russia or the United States to any territorial rights round the upper part of Lynn canal."

To this Lord Herschell, in his letter of the 15th February, 1899, replied:—

"The statement that the views of the British government had not been made known till that time (the assembling at Quebec the 23rd August, 1898) is erroneous. The instructions given us by the British government made it perfectly clear that the upper part of the Lynn canal was claimed as British territory. . . . A copy of these instructions were sent on the 1st August, 1898, to the United States' Secretary of State."

To this letter Chairman Fairbanks, under date of the 16th February, 1899, responded as follows:—

"It is quite true, as stated in your letter of yesterday, that the instructions of your government were sent to our government a few days before the Quebec meeting, but they did not, in fact, come to the attention of the commissioners until they assembled at Quebec. You will no doubt recall the observation made by General Foster, during your presentation of the British case upon the boundary, that the view then advanced by you respecting the head of the Lynn canal was the first distant statement of the British claim. I do not recall that you seriously disputed it."

Thus the exact punctum temporis of the first assertion of this claim of Canada by Her Majesty's Government is fixed. Your Lordship says that "the question immediately under discussion is whether or not the dispute as to the boundary should be referred to arbitration, and it is difficult to understand why the length of time during which the rival claims to disputed territory have been matters of controversy should form an element to be taken into consideration in that connection." But I may be pardoned, at the expense perhaps of painful repetition, for saying that the precise question under immediate discussion is not whether there should be an arbitration, but assuming both sides to be so disposed, whether the terms and scope of the Venezuelan Arbitration, where the arbitrators were left free to wander over the whole breadth of territory which had been the subject of constant and open dispute for more than a century, and to make the boundary which they could not find, should be applied to this case, where a line fixed by a Treaty in 1825, a plain interpretation of which has been uniformly and publicly asserted by one party without question or protest by the other for seventy-three years, is at the end of that time assailed and a new line claimed—and where the one claim or the other must be right—leaving no middle ground on which to create a boundary in the place of the one fixed by the Treaty.

I am sure that these views, offered at your Lordship's suggestion, will receive consideration at the hands of Her Majesty’s Government.

I beg to assure your Lordship that the Government of the United States is under no misapprehension as to the nature and scope of the proposal for arbitration submitted by Her Majesty's Government. If I dwell almost exclusively in my note of the 9th August, as I have done in this communication, "upon the boundary in the neighbourhood of the Lynn canal," it was because I took that as the most striking example of all the inlets, and because I regarded the question whether the boundary of the Treaty runs around them or across their mouths as the most important and as the one which keeps us so far apart. For, if this question were once solved, neither the question of the water boundary, described in the Treaty as "ascending to the north along the channel called Portland Channel." nor the actual demarcation of the land line by mountain crests or by the 10-league measure would, I think, be difficult to settle either by convention or by the aid of the Joint High Commission. While the claim of Her Majesty's Government is not stated with absolute distinctness in your letter of instruction of the 19th July, 1898, it was to be inferred from its perusal that the British Commissioners would maintain that under the Treaty Great Britain should at least be titled to a portion of Lynn canal. And in the conferences of the Commission a map was submitted by them (doubtless the one referred to by Your Lordship) with a boundary line traced upon it setting forth the British claim, which developed a divergence of views as to the line, not only in the region of the Portland canal, but along the entire mainland of the lisière. It is therefore distinctly understood that the British proposal of arbitration relates not only to the entire line of the strip of territory from Portland canal to Mount St. Elias on the mainland, but that it embraces in the submission the British claim to a portion of all the inlets extending into the mainland, and to the greater part of Lynn canal.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

I need not repeat what I said in my note of the 9th August, as to the necessity of excepting from the perils of any arbitration settlements made by American citizens in good faith under the authority and actual jurisdiction of the government of the United States before the claim now made on the part of Canada was ever presented by Her Majesty's Government. Such necessity and the injustice of involving them in an arbitration are too obvious.

I have, &c.

(Signed) JOSEPH H. CHOATE.

Inclosure in No. 6.

BRITISH LEGATION, THE ARLINGTON, WASHINGTON, FEBRUARY, 11, 1888.

DEAR SIR,—In supplement of the Alaskan maps by Dr. Dawson, which I presented to you yesterday, I now beg your acceptance of the accompanying copy of Dr. Dawson's letter of the 7th instant explanatory of his own views on the subject of the British-Alaskan boundary.

Believe me, &c.

(Signed) CHARLES TUPPER.

The Honourable T. F. Bayard,
Secretary of State.

From Mr. Chamberlain to Lord Minto.

DOWNING STREET, February 12, 1900.

My Lord,—I have the honour to transmit to you, for any observations which your Ministers may have to offer thereon, copy in triplicate of a note from the United States Ambassador at this Court as to the terms on which the Alaska boundary question should be referred to arbitration.

Mr. Choate to F.O., February 22, 1900.

2. This note contains the reply of the United States Government to the arguments put forward in the despatch which was addressed by the Marquis of Salisbury to Mr.
Tower on October 14 last, and of which a copy was inclosed in my secret despatch of the 24th of the same month.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) J. CHAMBERLAIN.

Governor General
The Right Honourable
The Earl of Minto, G.C.M.G.,
&c., &c., &c.
Extract from a Report of the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency on the 6th December, 1900.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch, hereto annexed, dated 12th February, 1900, from the Right Honourable Mr. Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, transmitting copy of a note from the United States Ambassador at the Court of St. James, as to the terms on which the Alaska boundary question should be referred to arbitration.

The Committee have also had under consideration a report, hereto attached, upon the above-mentioned despatch, by the Honourable Sir Louis Davies, to whom the matter in question was referred.

The Committee concur in the said report of Sir Louis Davies and advise that Your Excellency be moved to transmit a certified copy of this minute and the said annexed report to the Right Honourable Her Majesty’s Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency’s approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

To His Excellency the Governor General in Council,

The undersigned, to whom was referred the despatch of the United States Ambassador to the Marquis of Salisbury, dated 22nd January, 1900, has the honour to express the satisfaction with which Your Excellency’s advisers have received Mr. Choate’s assurance that his government is not averse to a reference of the main difference between Great Britain and the United States in respect of the Alaska boundary to the adjudication of an independent tribunal, but rather contemplates the probability of such a mode of settlement of this long pending controversy. The undersigned concurs with Mr. Choate in thinking that what the Ambassador regards as the paramount issue, namely, whether the line should be drawn across inlets or round their heads, can best be decided by this means. He does not, however, share Mr. Choate’s view that the particular course which the line is to take when the above question has been settled can be satisfactorily determined by a joint survey. The undersigned would point out that a joint survey has already been made, and that if the differences between the two governments could not be settled by the aid of the very complete maps thereby afforded, he does not see much prospect of a fresh survey achieving a more definite result. It appears to the undersigned that what Mr. Choate terms ‘minor or secondary’ though ‘highly important’ questions, namely, the exact location of the boundary line and its precise distance from the coast, are analogous to those involved in the main issue and can only be determined by a similar process.

To illustrate his meaning the undersigned would suppose that the question of inlets has been decided, and a joint survey despatched to lay down the boundary in conformity with the provisions of the Treaty of 1825, which prescribes that the line shall follow the summit of the mountains situated parallel to the coast. The British surveyors would naturally interpret this to mean the summit of the mountains nearest the coast, while it is possible that the United States surveyors might contend for the highest range. How could the point be decided. Yet upon the decision would depend the possession of part of the town of Skagway, even supposing the ownership of the heads of inlets were decided adversely to the British contention. Again, if there should be a break in the mountain range which it is decided to follow, should the line cross the break parallel to the coast or should it run at right angles back from the coast until the ten league limit is reached. Controversies over these points, and others of a similar character, the least of which might turn out to be of far-reaching importance, would, it is to be feared, arise, and it is scarcely to be expected that surveyors in the field could reach an agreement upon them, nor indeed, would it be expedient to allow them such latitude. It appears to the undersigned that Mr. Choate's observations with regard to the question relative to the heads of inlets, namely, that of interpretations regarding it which have been presented by Great Britain and the United States respectively, 'one or the other is right and can and should be ascertained and determined so to be to the exclusion of the other' are equally applicable to many occasions of difference which surveyors sent to lay down the boundary would encounter. For these reasons the undersigned is of opinion that all questions which depend for their solution upon the interpretation of the treaty should be simultaneously referred to arbitration, to determine the true meaning of that instrument, and this, not merely with regard to the Lynn canal or any other particular point, but in respect of the whole line, throughout its entire length, from the southernmost point of Prince of Wales Island to Mount St. Elias. What is desired by both governments is the termination of this dispute, and in no other way, in the opinion of the undersigned, can it be satisfactorily and permanently settled.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

Mr. Choate's objection to the application of the Venezuela Treaty to the adjustment of the present controversy appears to be directed against the provision for compromise which that arrangement affords, and the latitude given to the tribunal constituted under it. The undersigned agrees with the view expressed in Lord Salisbury's despatch of the 14th October, 1899, that the circumstances of the Alaska boundary controversy are such as to warrant an unqualified submission to an impartial tribunal, and it was solely with the desire to meet the objections of the United States representatives that the British members of the Joint High Commission of 1898-9 proposed to allow that continued adverse possession should be recognized and full regard had to the equities of the case. With this object in view it appeared to them that the Venezuela Treaty offered a convenient and suitable precedent. Accordingly they proposed arbitration on those lines, but the Canadian Government is not wedded to a particular formula and is prepared to consider any reasonable modification of the rules suggested (not inconsistent with finality of decision) which the United States may consider the special circumstances of the case to call for. Towards such questions as the composition of the tribunal and its organization, as well as the terms of reference. Your Excellency's ministers, with the qualification above mentioned, have adopted no fixed attitude nor have they declined to reconsider the original proposal of the British side of the Joint High Commission, which at the same time, they conceive to be eminently fair to the United States.

But while the Canadian Government is thus prepared to acquiesce in every concession compatible with the maintenance of its self-respect, it must exclude from that category the stipulation contained in the last paragraph of Mr. Choate's letter, to the effect that all settlements made by American citizens in the disputed territory under the authority of their Government, up to a very recent period, shall remain the property of the United States. Mr. Choate has all along taken the ground that the only material question in this controversy is that which involves the ownership of the heads of inlets in general, and of the Lynn canal in particular. That canal derives its present importance from the fact of its forming the natural gateway to the gold-bearing regions of the Canadian interior, which are accessible by sea in those latitudes through the ports of Dyre, Skagway and Pyramid Harbour. The valleys in the rear of these ports are the only known avenues of approach to the interior which come down to the Lynn canal, and are consequently the measure of its value. Their ownership must, therefore, constitute in the view of the United States Government the chief object of the arbitration. Now, there cannot be a doubt that the proposal of the United States plenipotentiaries at the recent meetings of the Joint High Commission, here renewed by Mr. Choate, to except from the 'perils of any arbitration all towns or settlements on tide water settled under the authority of the United States and under the jurisdiction of the United States at the date of this treaty' was put forward with the object of securing Dyea, Skagway and Pyramid Harbour, for they are the only settlements on tide water leading to the interior that can possibly be embraced by the definition. So Mr. Choate's reservation amounts to this—that the United States Government will agree to arbitration only on condition that the principal objects of the reference shall be theirs in any event, and that Great Britain shall so covenant before the parties go into court. Your Excellency's advisers cannot doubt that Her Majesty's Government will never consent to any such arrangement.

This extraordinary proposal is based on the assumption that the settlements at the head of the Lynn canal were established under the authority of the United States prior to the annunciation of any claim to the territory in question on the part of Great Britain. So confident is Mr. Choate of the soundness of this contention, that several times throughout his despatch he emphasizes it by expressly including Canada, as distinct from the Mother Country, in his charge of having said or done nothing prior to 1898 to indicate her claim. This assertion has been dealt with in a memorandum prepared by the undersigned a few months ago, and printed confidentially for the use of the Colonial Office. It would serve no good purpose to recapitulate here in detail the proofs wherein advanced tending to show that for the last thirty years the Canadian Government omitted no opportunity of publicly asserting its claim to the territory in dispute. It will be within Your Excellency's recollection that ten years prior to the meeting of the Joint High Commission of 1898, the High Commissioner for Canada, at the instance of Sir John Macdonald, then Prime Minister, lodged a protest, through the Secretary of State for the Colonies against a rumoured attempt on the part of the United States Government to exercise sovereignty in the vicinity of what is now the town of Skagway, on the ground that the territory in question formed part of Her Majesty's Dominions. The undersigned is aware that the force of this protest was to some extent weakened in the course of its transmision to the United States Government, but he submits that the clearness and vigour of the language employed to affirm the well based contention on the part of Canada that the heads of inlets are within our territory and consequently form part of Her Majesty's Dominions, leave no doubt as to what the Canadian Government's contention was on this point in the summer of 1888.

Mr. Choate suggests that too much weight has been given to Dr. Dawson's letter of the 7th February, 1888, laid before the Fisheries Commission of that year, in which the same contention is advanced. He argues that the meetings between that gentleman and Professor Dall were wholly informal, that neither possessed any delegated authority whatever, and that their opinions could not be held to commit anybody but themselves.

The undersigned submits that while it is true the conferences between Messrs. Dawson and Dall were informal, these gentlemen were experts specially selected by their respective governments, and he maintains that their views must, therefore, be held to be those of the governments which they represented. That this was so understood at the time is evident from the map (No. 16) which accompanies the reports of both experts, submitted to Congress by President Cleveland on the 2nd March, 1889. That map is a reproduction of one prepared in Ottawa for the purposes of the Conference of 1887-8. As originally published, it showed no boundary lines, but upon a few copies lines were drawn in ink by Dr. Dawson showing: (1) a boundary line as given on the United States Coast Survey map of Alaska, 1884; (2) a boundary line approximately following the summits of mountains parallel to the coast, in presumed conformity with the text of the Convention of 1825 as understood by the Canadian Government; (3) one of the conventional lines discussed during the conferences and referred to in the printed correspondence between Dr. Dawson and Sir C. Tupper which the latter laid before the Commission. It was not possible to draw the second conventional line, as this depended upon geographical details not determined at the time. A note upon the face of the map states that the line from the United States Coast Survey map disregards both the treaty reference to mountains and that to the ocean coast.
A copy of the lithographed map, with the lines and notes above referred to, was supplied to Professor Dall and is reproduced in facsimile as Map No. 16 above referred to.

That the line following the mountains parallel to the coast, crossing all the larger inlets, must at the time have been accepted as embodying the Canadian view of the meaning of the treaty of 1825 is shown by the addition by the United States authorities to the facsimile (at the top and outside the border of the map) of the words—"Dawson's Canadian Map, 1887, showing conventional lines proposed by Canada." A copy of this map as originally prepared, and also a copy with Dr. Dawson's additions both of which were published by the United States Government and submitted to Congress are appended to this memorandum.

In these maps see Maps Nos. 15 and 16, in "Senate, 2nd Sess., 50th Congress, Ex. Doc. No. 146."

Mr. Choate says of the meetings between Messrs. Dawson and Dall that they were not held during the sittings of the Joint High Commission of 1888. An examination of the protocols of this commission discloses that on the 9th January, 1888, Mr. Chamberlain suggested that Dr. Dawson and Professor Dall should meet and endeavour to agree upon some definite suggestions for the consideration of the conference. On the 23rd January Mr. Bayard concurred in this suggestion, and on the 30th it was arranged that Dr. Dawson should be summoned by telegraph. On the 2nd February, Mr. Chamberlain announced that Dr. Dawson had arrived at Washington, and Mr. Bayard informed the conference that the necessary arrangements would be made at once for him to meet Professor Dall. On the 7th February, Mr. Chamberlain reported to the commission that Dr. Dawson and Professor Dall had not made any progress on the question of the Alaska boundary. The commission sat on 2nd, 3rd, 6th and 7th February. Obviously therefore Mr. Choate is under a misapprehension when he states that the conferences between Messrs. Dall and Dawson were not held during the sittings of the Joint High Commission. Mr. Choate's inference that Sir C. Tupper disassociate himself from Dr. Dawson, because in the former's note of transmission he refers to the latter's views as "his", i.e., Dr. Dawson's "own", appears to the undersigned to be based upon a misconception of Sir C. Tupper's meaning. Bearing in mind that on the same day on which Dr. Dawson's letter was written, Mr. Chamberlain reported to the conference that the two experts had failed to come to any agreement, it is not surprising that Sir C. Tupper should allude to Dr. Dawson's views as "his own", meaning thereby, his own, not as distinct from those of the government which he was there to represent, but from those of his fellow expert with whom he could not reach any agreement. They were his individual views in the sense that they were not shared by Professor Dall. Those views were known to the government of which Sir C. Tupper was a member, before Dr. Dawson was summoned to Washington. If the Canadian government was not in accord with them it is scarcely likely that he would have been selected to confer with the American expert, nor is it probable that Sir C. Tupper would have placed them before Mr. Bayard without, at any rate, some distinct and explicit disavowal of responsibility for them. The suggestion that Sir C. Tupper was in no mood to adopt General Cameron's opinions on the subject of the Alaska boundary is, the undersigned is in a position to assure Your Excellency, quite at variance with the fact. The undersigned ventures to remind Her Majesty's Government that it was at the instance of Sir C. Tupper, at that time High Commissioner for Canada, that General Cameron was selected by the Secretary of State for the Colonies to investigate and report upon this question of the Alaska boundary. That Sir C. Tupper in the year 1888 attached great weight to General Cameron's views on the subject of the Alaska boundary and that he entirely concurred in protesting against any attempt on the part of the United States to disregard Canada's claim to the heads of inlets, is apparent from his letter to the Colonial Minister, dated 1st August, 1888, in which he fortifies the protest of the Canadian Government by a memorandum from General Cameron's pen.
The undersigned would invite the attention of Her Majesty's Government to the message of the President of the United States, transmitting these reports and maps of Dr. Dawson to Congress, and to the memorandum of his Secretary of State which accompanied them, in which Mr. Bayard expresses the opinion that these documents are "of value as bearing upon a subject of great international importance and should be put in shape for public information."

50th Congress, 2nd Session, Senate Ex. Doc. No. 146.

The undersigned submits that in thus giving effect to this suggestion the United States publicly acquainted its people of Canada's claim to the heads of inlets more than eight years before anything in the nature of settlement was begun at the head of the Lynn canal, for, as the undersigned has already shown in his memorandum above referred to, beyond a few trifling acts of occupation on the part of private individuals, at periods separated by considerable intervals of time, no settlement was attempted in those localities until the mining rush to the Klondike in the spring of 1897. In the light of these circumstances Her Majesty's Government will perceive how impossible it would be for Canada to assent to any condition similar to that put forward by Mr. Choate in his concluding observations.

The undersigned confesses to some surprise at Mr. Choate's statement to the effect that the United States Government is not aware that at the conference held in Washington in February, 1892, the Canadian Ministers proposed "that a reference to some impartial authority be made by Great Britain and the United States for the purpose of ascertaining and deciding finally the true boundary, regard being had to the treaties relating to the subject, and likewise to the case which may be presented by either government and to the testimony which may be adduced as to the physical features and conditions of that country." The minutes of the proceedings of this conference, signed by the Canadian delegates and concurred in by Her Majesty's Minister to the United States, confirm the accuracy of this statement. These minutes, which were published by order of the Canadian Parliament in the sessions of 1892 and of 1893, also record that on the 12th February, 1892, "the various contentions relating to the boundary were then explained," thereby indicating that the existence of a divergence between the views of the respective governments as to the true meaning of the treaty was recognized at that date, and that each was acquainted with the other's claim.

In submitting these views for the information of Her Majesty's Government, the undersigned has the honour to remind Your Excellency that in the memorandum prepared by him in October, 1899, for the use of the Colonial Office, to which he has already referred, he detailed all the facts in connection with this controversy at considerable length, and appended thereto such official documents as in his opinion were necessary to the full understanding of this somewhat complicated subject. The supplementary observations herewith offered are for the further elucidation of the Canadian contention, and in disproof of the allegation that neither the Imperial nor the Canadian government adopted or put forward the British claim to the heads of inlets "until after the Protocol of the 30th May, 1898."

All of which is respectfully submitted:

(Signed) L. H. DAVIES.

OTTAWA, 29th November, 1900.
THE ALASKA BOUNDARY

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

No. 7.

DRAFT ARBITRATION CONVENTION.

Convention between the United States of America and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for determining by arbitration the true treaty-boundary between the Territory of Alaska and the British Possessions in North America.

(Communicated unofficially by Mr. Hay and forwarded by Lord Pauncefote, May 10, 1901.)

The United States of America and Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, equally desirous for the friendly and final adjustment of the differences which exist between them in respect to the true meaning and application of certain clauses of the convention between Great Britain and Russia, signed the 16th (28) February, 1825, which clauses relate to the delimitation of the boundary-line between the British possessions in North America and the territory of Alaska, now a possession of the United States, in virtue of the cession thereof to the United States by Russia by the convention between the last-named powers, signed at Washington, the 30th March, 1867, wherein said clauses are embodied as defining the said territory so ceded, have resolved to provide for the submission of the questions as hereinafter stated to arbitration, and to that end have appointed their respective plenipotentiaries as follows:—

The president of the United States of America, the Honourable John Hay, Secretary of State of the United States; and

Her Britannic Majesty, the Right Honourable Lord Pauncefote, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., Her Britannic Majesty's Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary:

Who, after an exchange of their full powers, which were found to be in good and due form, have agreed upon the following articles:—

ARTICLE I.

An arbitral tribunal shall be immediately appointed to consider and decide the questions set forth in Article IV. of this convention. The said tribunal shall consist of six impartial jurists of repute, each of whom shall before entering upon his duties subscribe an oath that he will impartially consider the arguments and evidence presented to the tribunal and decide thereupon according to his true judgment. Three members of the tribunal shall be appointed by the President of the United States and three by Her Britannic Majesty. All questions considered by the tribunal, including the final award, shall be decided by a majority of all the arbitrators.

In case of the refusal to act, or of the death, incapacity, or abstention from service of any of the persons so appointed, another impartial jurist of repute shall be forthwith appointed in his place by the same authority which appointed his predecessor.

The arbitrators may appoint a secretary, and such other officers as may be requisite to assist them, and may employ scientific experts, if found to be necessary; fixing a reasonable compensation for such officers and such experts. The tribunal shall keep an accurate record of all its proceedings.

Each of the High Contracting Parties shall make compensation for the services of the arbitrators of its own appointment, and of any agent, counsel or other person employed in its behalf, and shall pay all costs incurred in the preparation of its case. All expenses reasonably incurred by the tribunal in the performance of its duties shall be paid by the respective governments in equal moieties.

The tribunal may, subject to the provisions of this convention, establish all proper rules for the regulation of its proceedings.
ARTICLE II.

Each of the High Contracting Parties shall also name one person to attend the Tribunal as its Agent to represent it generally in all matters connected with the arbitration.

The written or printed case of each of the two parties, accompanied by the documents, the official correspondence, and all other evidence in writing or print on which each party relies, shall be delivered in duplicate to each of the Arbitrators, and to the Agent of the other party, as soon as may be after the organization of the Tribunal, but within a period not exceeding months from the date of the exchange of ratifications of this treaty.

Within four months after the delivery on both sides of the written or printed case, either party may, in like manner, deliver in duplicate to each of the arbitrators, and to the agent of the other party, a counter-case, and additional documents, correspondence, and evidence in reply to the case, documents, correspondence, and evidence so presented by the other party. The tribunal may, however, extend this last-mentioned period when, in their judgment, it becomes necessary by reason of special difficulties which may arise in the procuring of such additional papers and evidence.

If, in the case submitted to the tribunal, either party shall have specified or referred to any report or document in its own exclusive possession without annexing a copy, such party shall be bound, if the other party shall demand it, to furnish to the party applying for it a duly certified copy thereof; and either party may call upon the other, through the tribunal, to produce the original or certified copies of any papers adduced as evidence, giving in each instance such reasonable notice as the arbitrators may require.

Each party may present to the tribunal all pertinent evidence, documentary, historical, geographical, or topographical, including maps and charts, in its possession or control which it may deem applicable to the rightful decision of the questions submitted; and if it appears to the tribunal that there is evidence pertinent to the case in the possession of either party, and which has not been produced, the tribunal may in its discretion order the production of the same by the party having control thereof.

It shall be the duty of each party through its agent or counsel, within two months from the expiration of the time limited for the delivery of the counter-case on both sides, to deliver in duplicate to each of the said arbitrators and to the agent of the other party a written or printed argument showing the points and referring to the evidence upon which his government relies. The tribunal may, if they shall deem further elucidation with regard to any point necessary, require from either party a written, printed, or oral statement or argument upon the point; but in such case the other party shall have the right to reply thereto.

ARTICLE III.

It is agreed by the High Contracting Parties that the arbitral tribunal shall consider in the settlement of the questions submitted to its decision the conventions respectively concluded between His Britannic Majesty and the Emperor of All the Russians under date of the 16th (28th) February, A.D. 1828, and between the United States of America and the Emperor of All the Russians concluded under date of the 15th (30th) March A.D. 1876; and particularly the Articles III., IV., V. and VII. of the first-mentioned convention, which in the original text are word for word as follows:—

III. La ligne de démarcation entre les possessions des Hautes Parties Contractantes sur la côte du Continent et les Iles de l’Amérique Nord-Ouest, sera tracée ainsi qu’il suit:—

A partir du point le plus méridional de l’île dite Prince of Wales, lequel point se trouve sous le parallèle du 54° 40’ de latitude nord, et entre le 131° et le 135° degré de longitude ouest (méridien de Greenwich), la dite ligne remontera au nord le long de la passe dite Portland Chane, jusqu'au point de la terre ferme où elle atteint le 56e degré de latitude nord; de ce dernier point la ligne de démarcation suivra la crête des montagnes situées parallèlement à la côte, jusqu'au point d'intersection du 141e degré de longitude ouest (même méridien); et, finalement, du dit point d'intersection, la même ligne méridienne du 141e degré formera, dans son prolongement jusqu'à la Mer Glaciaire, la limite entre les possessions Russes et Britanniques sur le Continent de l'Amérique Nord-Ouest.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

IV. Il est entendu, par rapport à la ligne de démarcation déterminée dans l'article précédent:

1. Que l'île dite Prince of Wales apartiendra tout entière à la Russie.

2. Que partout où la crête des montagnes qui s'étendent dans une direction parallèle à la côte depuis le 56e degré de latitude nord au point d'intersection du 141e degré de longitude ouest, se trouverait à la distance de plus de 10 lieues marines de l'océan, la limite entre les possessions britanniques et la lisière de côte mentionnée ci-dessus comme devant appartenir à la Russie, sera formée par une ligne parallèle aux sinuosités de la côte, et qui ne pourra jamais en être éloignée que de 10 lieues marines.

V. Il est couvenu, en outre, que nul établissement ne sera formé par l'une des deux parties dans les limites que les deux Articles précédents assignent aux possessions de l'autre. En conséquence, les sujets britanniques ne formeront aucun établissement soit sur la côte, soit sur la lisière de terre ferme comprise dans les limites des possessions Russes, telles qu'elles ont désignées dans les deux Articles précédents; et, de même, nul établissement ne sera formé par des sujets russes au delà des dites limites.

VII. Il est aussi entendu que, pendant l'espace de dix ans, à dater de la signature de cette convention, les vaisseaux des deux puissances, ou ceux appartenant à leurs sujets respectifs, pourront réciproquement fréquenter, sans entrave quelconque, toutes les mers intérieures, les golfs, havres et criques sur la côte mentionnée dans l'Article III, afin d'y faire la pêche et le commerce avec les indigènes.

The arbitrators shall also take into consideration any action of the several governments, or of their respective representatives, preliminary or subsequent to the conclusion of said treaties, so far as the same tends to show the intention of the parties in respect to the limits of their several territorial jurisdictions under and by virtue of the provisions of said treaties.

ARTICLE IV.

The said Tribunal shall answer and decide the following questions:—

1. Referring to Article III. of said Treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, was it intended thereby that the line of demarcation should be traced from the southernmost point of the island, now known as the Prince of Wales island, along the parallel of 54° 40' north latitude to the passage now commonly known and marked on the maps as the' Portland channel,' and thence along the middle of said channel northward until said northward line shall reach on the mainland of the continent the 56th degree of north latitude?

If not, how should said line be traced to conform to the provisions of said treaty?

2. In extending the line of demarcation northward from said point on the parallel of the 56th degree of north latitude, following the crest of the mountains situated parallel to the coast until its intersection with the 141st degree of longitude west of Greenwich, subject to the condition that when such line should exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues from the ocean, then the boundary between the British and the Russian territory should be formed by a line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast, and distant therefrom not more than 10 marine leagues, was it the intention and meaning of said Convention of 1825 that there should remain in the exclusive possession of Russia a continuous fringe or strip of coast on the mainland, 10 marine leagues in width, separating the British possessions from the bays, ports, inlets havens, and waters. of the ocean, and extending from the said point on the 50th degree of latitude north to a point where such line of demarcation should intersect the 141st degree of longitude west of the meridian of Greenwich?

If not, how should said line of demarcation be traced to conform to the provisions of said treaty?

ARTICLE V.

The Arbitrators shall assemble for their first meeting at so soon as practicable after receiving their commissions, and shall themselves fix the times and places of all subsequent meetings.

The decision of the Tribunal shall be made so soon as possible after the conclusion of the arguments in the case, and within three months thereafter, unless the President of the United States and Her Britannic Majesty shall by common accord extend the time therefor. The decision shall be made in writing and dated, and shall be signed by the Arbitrators assenting to the same. It shall be signed in duplicate, one copy whereof shall be given to the agent of the United States of America for his Government, and the other to the agent of Her Britannic Majesty for his government.

ARTICLE VI.

When the high contracting parties shall have received the decision of the arbitrators upon the questions submitted, as provided in the foregoing articles, they will at once proceed with negotiations for the final adjustment and demarcation of the said boundary line in conformity with such decision.

Should there be unfortunately a failure by the majority of the Arbitrators to agree upon any of the points submitted for their decision, it shall be their duty to so report in writing to the respective Governments through their respective agents. Should there be an agreement by a majority upon a part of the questions submitted, it shall be their duty to sign and report their decision upon the points of such agreement in the manner hereinbefore prescribed.

ARTICLE VII.

The present treaty shall be ratified by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and by Her Britannic Majesty, and the ratifications shall be exchanged in Washington or in London so soon as the same may be effected.

In faith whereof we, the respective Plenipotentiaries, have signed this treaty, and have hereunto affixed our seals.

Done at Washington, in duplicate, this day of A.D. nineteen hundred.

Governor General the Earl of Minto to Mr. Chamberlain.

(Telegraphic.) P. Kingston, Ont., October 15, 1901.

With regard to draft treaty for settlement of Alaska boundary my ministers dissent to proposed terms of reference for following reasons:

Article No. 1.—They object to even number of arbitrators, but would acquiesce in proposed number if at least one of the American arbitrators shall not be a citizen of United States or a subject of any state directly or indirectly under protection of United States and vice versa for Canadian arbitrators.

They also think that last paragraph should be omitted.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

Article No. IV.—My ministers protest against language used in subsections 1 and 2, and are of opinion that the terms of reference should not give prominence to one contention over another, and that questions asked should be somewhat as follows:—
1. What is intended as the point of commencement?
2. What is Portland Channel?
3. What course should the line take from the point of commencement to the entrance of Portland Channel?
4. To what point on the 56th parallel is the line to be drawn from the head of Portland Channel, and what course should it follow between those points?
5. What are mountains referred to as situated parallel to the coast, [which] mountains, when within 10 marine leagues from coast, are declared to form the eastern boundary?
6. In the event of summit of such mountains proving to be in places more than 10 marine leagues from coast, should the width of lišière which was to belong to Russia be measured from coast of ocean, strictly so called, along a line perpendicular [sic] [? parallel] thereto, or was it the intention or meaning of said convention that where coast is indented by deep inlets forming part of territorial waters of Russia, the width of lišière was to be measured (a) from the line of general direction of coast; or (b) from the line separating the waters of ocean from the territorial waters of Russia; or (c) from the heads of before mentioned inlets?

Article No. VI.—My ministers submit that the decision of the arbitrators upon questions referred to them should be final and binding on all parties, and that scientific experts be then appointed to lay down boundary in compliance with such decision. They also consider that treaty should contain a stipulation that reference includes entire boundary at every point. Full particulars are being sent by despatch.

(Sgd) MINTO.

Governor General the Earl of Minto to Mr. Chamberlain.

OTTAWA, 6th November, 1901.

Sir,—Referring to my cipher message of the 15th ultimo, on the subject of the draft arbitration treaty for the settlement of the Alaska boundary question, I have now the honour to present to you in a somewhat more extended form the reasons which render the terms of this convention unacceptable to my ministers.

In a previous despatch I acquainted you with some of the objections to this proposed arrangement urged upon me by my Prime Minister. During the recent visit to Canada of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, Sir Wilfrid Laurier availed himself of the opportunity of discussing the whole subject with Sir John Anderson, with the result that my advisers determined to lay before you counter-proposals to those of Mr. Hay. The substance of those counter-proposals was contained in my telegram to you of the 15th ultimo. Before proceeding further to consider them, I would observe that it is with much regret that my advisers find themselves unable to agree to the proposals of the United States government for the settlement of this long-pending controversy. They are constrained, however, to dissent therefrom for the following reasons:—

Article 1. As regards the composition of the tribunal you have already been made aware of the disinclination of my government to refer this important subject to a court so constituted as not to insure a final award. Their objection springs from the fact that an even number of arbitrators drawn from either side does not afford security in the event of differences of opinion for a binding decision on the point submitted to the tribunal. Animated, however, by a strong desire to secure a reference to arbitration, my ministers are prepared to acquiesce in the proposed number of six, provided that at least one of the American arbitrators shall not be a citizen of the United States, or a citizen or subject of any state or power directly or indirectly under the protection of the United States, and that at least one of the British arbitrators shall not be a British subject, or the subject or citizen of any power or state directly or indirectly under the protection of His Britannic Majesty.

They agree to this in the hope that the neutral arbitrators, who are not likely to be influenced by national considerations, may unite and thereby secure a majority award.

Article 3. My ministers consider that the last paragraph of the article is unnecessary and should be omitted, though they are prepared to yield the point if pressed.

Article 4. They take exception to the terms of subsection 1 of Article 4. on the ground that the contention of the United States with respect to the course the line should take between Prince of Wales island and Portland channel is put forward as the natural and primary interpretation of Article 3 of the Convention of 1825, whereas so far from this being so, the words 'along the parallel of 54° 40' do not occur in the treaty as indicating the direction of the line between the points named above.

They protest against the language of the second subsection, wherein it is assumed in the recital that the line of demarcation might at places exceed the distance of ten marine leagues from the ocean, and they regard the placing of the extreme contention of the United States with respect to the location of the line, in the forefront of the reference, as open to the same objection they take in regard to the first subsection.

My advisers are of opinion that the terms of reference should not give prominence to one contention over the other, but rather should state in clear and unambiguous terms the questions whose determination can alone decide the issue.

Though not wedded to any particular form of words, they conceive that these questions might thus be formulated:

1. Referring to Articles III. and IV. of the convention of 1825,
   1. What is intended as the point of commencement?
   2. What channel is Portland channel?
   3. What course should the line take from the point of commencement to the entrance to Portland channel?
   4. To what point on the 50th parallel is the line to be drawn from the head of Portland channel, and what course should it follow between these points?
   5. What are the mountains referred to as situated parallel to the coast, which mountains when within ten marine leagues from the coast are declared to form the eastern boundary?
   6. In the event of the summit of such mountains proving to be in places more than ten marine leagues from the coast, should the width of the lisière which was to belong to Russia be measured from the coast of the ocean strictly so-called, along a line perpendicular thereto, or was it the intention and meaning of the said convention that where the coast is indented by deep inlets, forming part of the territorial waters of Russia, the width of the lisière was to be measured (a) from the line of the general direction of the coast, or (b) from the line separating the waters of the ocean from the territorial waters of Russia, or (c) from the heads of the aforesaid inlets?

These questions appear to my ministers eminently fair. They are framed with the object of placing the case before the arbitrators in such a manner as to secure a decision upon all the points at issue without bias or favour to one side or the other.

Article 6. My ministers do not understand why any negotiations between the respective governments should be considered necessary, after the decision of the arbitrators has been received by them. They regard this proviso as opening the door to further difficulties and delays, and suggest that Article VI. be remodelled as follows:

'When the high contracting parties shall have received the decision of the arbitrators upon the questions submitted as provided in the foregoing articles, which decision shall be final and binding upon all parties, they will at once appoint, each on its own behalf, one or more scientific experts, who shall, with all convenient speed, proceed together to lay down the boundary line, in conformity with such decision.

My government, recalling the disposition of the United States representatives on the International Joint High Commission of 1898-9 to limit the scope of the arbitration then proposed to certain portions of the line, consider that the draft treaty under present consideration, should contain a stipulation in precise and positive terms, to the effect that the reference is intended to include, and does include, the definition of the entire boundary at every point between the southernmost point of Prince of Wales island and Mount St. Elias.

My ministers do not overlook the possibility of an award by such a tribunal as is contemplated by the present negotiations being absolutely against Canada or absolutely against the United States, and that in the latter event certain portions of the disputed territory which have been settled under the authority of the United States government might turn out to be British territory. They realize that the ownership of these localities is the main contention at the present time, and they are willing to agree to any arrangement which shall equitably provide for the contingency I have indicated.

The precedent of Venezuela is exactly in point and no substantial reason can be advanced against its application to this almost identical case. My ministers recognize, however, that owing to the peculiar features of the American constitution concerning the treaty-making power, a settlement on the lines of that precedent might prove in the end impracticable of attainment. They have, therefore, refrained from suggesting any express stipulations on this head, preferring to leave to Lord Pauncefote full latitude to provide that if either of the contracting parties should be found to be in possession of territory belonging to the other, the arbitrators should be empowered to deal with such a condition of things as might seem to them best fitted to meet the equities of the case.

My advisers trust that these suggestions may commend themselves to His Majesty's government.

I have, &c.,
(Signed),
MINTO.

Canada.

Mr. Chamberlain to Lord Minto.

DOWNING STREET, February 14, 1902.

My Lord,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch of November 6 last, and of your telegram of December 23 last, relative to the draft treaty for the settlement of the Alaska boundary question privately submitted to Lord Pauncefote by Mr. Hay.

2. A copy of a despatch which has now been addressed to Lord Pauncefote on the subject is enclosed for the information of your ministers.

I have, &c.,
(Signed) J. CHAMBERLAIN.

Governor General,
The Right Honourable
The Earl of Minto, G.C.M.G., &c., &c.
No. 8.

The Marquess of Lansdowne to Lord Pauncefote.

FOREIGN OFFICE, February 5, 1902.

My Lord,—His Majesty’s government have carefully considered, in communication with the government of Canada, the draft convention communicated to your Excellency, unofficially, by Mr. Hay in May last, which provides for the submission to arbitration of the Alaska boundary dispute. While most anxious to reach a solution of this long-pending question by means of arbitration, they find themselves compelled to dissent from the terms proposed in the following points:—

Article I. As regards the composition of the tribunal, His Majesty’s government have always been averse from referring this important subject to a court so constituted as not to insure a final award.

Their objection in the present instance springs from the fact that an even number of arbitrators drawn from either side does not afford security in the event of differences of opinion for a binding decision on the points submitted to the tribunal.

Some doubt is felt, however, as to how far the United States’ government regard the constitution of the tribunal by an equal number of arbitrators appointed by each of the parties as vital. Mr. Choate, in his note of August 9, 1899, stated that his government regarded the question of the organization of the tribunal as subordinate to that concerning the subject-matter to be arbitrated, and the terms and conditions on which its action is limited. The advantage of having a tribunal constituted of an odd number of judges seems obvious, and His Majesty’s government would much prefer such an arrangement. Animated, however, by a strong desire to secure a reference to arbitration, they are willing to acquiesce in the proposed number of six, provided that at least one of the United States’ arbitrators shall not be a citizen of the United States, or a citizen or subject of any state directly or indirectly under the protection of the United States, and that at least one of the British arbitrators shall not be a British subject, or a subject or citizen of any power or state directly or indirectly under the protection of His Britannic Majesty.

The presence of two neutral arbitrators would seem to increase the chances of receiving a majority award; but this alternative would be adopted with reluctance, and the suggestion should only be put forward on behalf of His Majesty’s government in the event of the United States adhering fixedly to their proposal for a tribunal of an equal number of judges nominated by each side.

Article III. The final paragraph of this article provides that the arbitrators shall also take into consideration any action of the several governments or of their respective representatives preliminary or subsequent to the conclusion of said treaties, so far as the same tends to show the intention of the parties in respect to the limits of their several territorial jurisdictions under and by virtue of the provisions of the said treaties. This provision appears to His Majesty’s government unnecessary, and they would prefer that it should be omitted, though the point is one which they are prepared to yield if the United States attach importance to it.

Article IV. Sub-section 1 of this article, which prescribes the terms of the reference, runs as follows:—

Referring to Article III of said treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia was it intended thereby that the line of demarcation should be traced from the southernmost point of the island, now known as the Prince of Wales Island, along the parallel of 54° 40’ north latitude to the passage now commonly known and marked on the maps as the “Portland Channel,” and thence along the middle of said

* The terms of this note were similar to the communication made by Mr. Choate on the 2nd August and recorded in the despatch to Mr. Tower of that date (see No. 2).
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

channel northward until said northward line shall reach on the mainland of the continent the 56th degree of north latitude?'

His Majesty's government take exception to the terms of this sub-section on the ground that the contention of the United States with respect to the course the line of demarcation should take between Prince of Wales Island and Portland Channel is put forward as the natural and primary interpretation of Article III of the convention of 1825, whereas, so far from this being the case, the words 'along the parallel of 54° 40' do not occur in the treaty as indicating the direction of the line between the points named above.

They also feel bound to demur to the language of the second sub-section, which reads as follows:

"In extending the line of demarcation northwards from said point on the parallel of the 56th degree of north latitude, following the crest of the mountains situated parallel to the coast until its intersection with the 141st degree of longitude west of Greenwich, subject to the condition that when such line should exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues from the ocean, then the boundary between the British and the Russian territory should be formed by a line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast and distant therefrom not more than 10 marine leagues, was it the intention and meaning of said convention of 1825 that there should remain in the exclusive possession of Russia a continuous fringe or strip of coast on the mainland, 10 marine leagues in width, separating the British possessions from the bays, ports, inlets, havens, and waters of the ocean, and extending from the said point on the 56th degree of latitude north to a point where such line of demarcation should intersect the 141st degree of longitude west of the meridian of Greenwich?"

"If not, how should said line of demarcation be traced to conform to the provisions of said treaty?"

"It is assumed in the recital that the line of demarcation might at places exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues from the ocean, and they regard the placing of the extreme contention of the United States with respect to the location of the line in the forefront of the reference as open to the same objection which they take in regard to the first sub-section.

In the opinion of His Majesty's government, the terms of reference should not give prominence to one contention over the other, but rather should state in clear and unambiguous terms the questions whose determination can alone decide the issue.

Though not wedded to any articular form of words, they submit that these questions might preferably be formulated as follows:

Referring to Articles III and IV of the convention of 1825—

1. What is intended as the point of commencement?
2. What channel is Portland Channel?
3. What course should the line take from the point of commencement to the entrance to Portland Channel?
4. To what point on the 56th parallel is the line to be drawn from the head of Portland Channel, and what course should it follow between these points?
5. What are the mountains referred to as situated parallel to the coast, which mountains, when within 10 marine leagues from the coast, are declared to form the eastern boundary?
6. In the event of the summit of such mountains proving to be in places more than 10 marine leagues from the coast, should the width of the lisière which was to belong to Russia be measured (1) from the coast of the ocean strictly so-called, along a line perpendicular thereto, or (2) was it the intention and meaning of the said convention that where the coast is indented by deep inlets, forming part of the territorial waters of Russia, the width of the lisière was to be measured (a) from the line of the general direction of the coast, or (b) from the line separating the waters of the ocean from the territorial waters of Russia, or (c) from the heads of the aforesaid inlets?
These questions appear to His Majesty's government eminently fair. They are framed with the object of placing the case before the arbitrators in such a manner as to secure a decision upon all the points at issue without bias or favour to one side or the other.

Article VI provides that 'when the high contracting parties shall have received the decision of the arbitrators upon the question submitted, as provided in the foregoing articles, they will at once proceed with negotiations for the final adjustment and demarcation of the said boundary-line, in conformity with such decision.'

His Majesty's government doubt whether any negotiations between the respective governments should be considered necessary after the decision of the arbitrators has been received by them. They are disposed to regard this proviso as opening the door to further difficulties and delays, and would suggest that Article VI should rather be remodelled as follows:

'When the high contracting parties shall have received the decision of the arbitrators upon the questions submitted, as provided in the foregoing articles, which decision shall be final and binding upon all parties, they will at once appoint, each on its own behalf, one or more scientific experts, who shall, with all convenient speed, proceed together to lay down the boundary-line, in conformity with such decision.'

His Majesty's government, recalling the disposition of the United States' representatives on the International Joint High Commission of 1898-99, to limit to certain portions of the line the scope of the arbitration then proposed, consider that the draft treaty under consideration should contain a stipulation in precise and positive terms, to the effect that the reference is intended to include, and does include, the definition of the entire boundary at every point between the southernmost point of Prince of Wales Island and Mount St. Elias.

His Majesty's government do not overlook the possibility of an award by such a tribunal as is contemplated by the present negotiations being absolutely against Canada or absolutely against the United States, and that, in the latter event, certain portions of the disputed territory which have been settled under the authority of the United States' government might turn out to be British territory. They realize that the ownership of these localities is the main contention at the present time, and they are willing to agree to any arrangement which shall equitably provide for the contingency above indicated.

The precedent of the treaty between Great Britain and Venezuela, in Article IV of which provision was made for the case of previous occupation and for the recognition of other rights and claims, appears to them exactly in point, and its application to this almost identical case singularly appropriate. They recognize, however, that owing to the peculiar features of the American constitution concerning the treaty-making power, a settlement on the lines of that precedent might prove in the end impracticable of attainment. They therefore refrain from suggesting any express stipulations on this head, preferring to leave Your Excellency full latitude to provide by some means that if either of the contracting parties should be found to be in possession of territory belonging to the other, the arbitrators should be empowered to deal with such a condition of things as might seem to them best fitted to meet the equities of the case.

I should wish Your Excellency to communicate to Mr. Hay in such form as you may consider most suitable the views of His Majesty's government as above indicated, and to discuss with him the points in which the proposals of His Majesty's government diverge from those of the United States.

I am, &c.,

(Signed) LANSDDOWNE.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

Lord Pauncefote to the Marquess of Lansdowne—Received April 1.

WASHINGTON. March 20, 1902.

My Lord,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Lordship's despatch, No. 14, of January 23, transmitting copy of a letter from the Colonial Office, with inclosures from the Canadian Government, in which it was suggested that representations should be made to the United States Government in regard to certain storehouses marked on a chart of part of the Pacific coast, copy of which was inclosed, published by the United States Geodetic Survey.

On the receipt of this despatch I addressed a note to Mr. Hay, stating that I had been directed by your Lordship to make an inquiry as to the nature of these storehouses, and the reason for their erection in territory the title to which was, and still is, the subject of diplomatic negotiations between Great Britain and the United States.

Mr. Hay informed me, in reply, that he did not find, upon examination of the charts of the region referred to, any indication of storehouses marked thereon. He added, however, that the storehouses were upon territory which had been in possession of the United States since its acquisition from Russia, and that the designation of Portland canal was such as had been noted on all the charts issued by the United States since that acquisition. Mr. Hay further stated that he was not aware that His Majesty's government had ever advanced any claim to this territory before the signature of the protocol of May 30, 1898, preliminary to the appointment of the Joint High Commission.

Upon the receipt of this communication I addressed a further note to Mr. Hay, stating the number of the chart on which the storehouses in question were indicated.

I have now received a reply from the United States government stating that the omission of the storehouses on the later issue of charts was caused by an oversight of the draughtsman, and that they will appear on the charts to be hereafter issued. But he offers no further observation on the subject.

I have the honour to inclose copies of Mr. Hay's notes of February 25 and March 11, and I also return the chart transmitted with your Lordship's despatch.

I have, &c.,

(Signed) PAUNCEFOTE.

From Mr. Chamberlain to Lord Minto.

F.O. April 9, C.O. to F.O.

DOWNING STREET, April 23, 1902.

My Lord,—With reference to my secret despatch of February 14, I have the honour to transmit to you, for the information of your ministers, copy of a correspondence with the Foreign Office relative to the draft convention for the settlement of the Alaska Boundary question, privately submitted to Lord Pauncefote by Mr. Hay in May, 1901.

I have, &c.,

J. CHAMBERLAIN.

Governor General.

The Right Honourable

The Earl of Minto, G.C.M.G.
CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

FOREIGN OFFICE, April 9, 1902.

Sir,—With reference to the letter from this office of February 8 last on the subject of the draft convention for the settlement of the Alaska Boundary question by arbitration put forward unofficially by Mr. Hay in May last, I am directed by the Marquis of Lansdowne to transmit herewith for the consideration of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, copy of a confidential despatch from His Majesty's ambassador at Washington, in which His Excellency forwards a memorandum communicated to Mr. Hay, explaining the points on which His Majesty's government dissent from the terms of the draft convention.

Lord Pauncefote reports the language held by Mr. Hay and the attitude assumed by President Roosevelt with regard to the boundary question.

I have, &c.,

(Sgd.) F. H. VILLIERS.

The Under Secretary of State,
Colonial Office.

Section 1.

Lord Pauncefote to the Marquess of Lansdowne.

WASHINGTON, March 28, 1902.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of Your Lordship's despatch No. 2 of the 5th ultimo with reference to the draft of a convention, communicated to me unofficially by Mr. Hay in May last, providing for the submission to arbitration of the Alaska boundary dispute.

In that despatch Your Lordship informed me that His Majesty's government had carefully considered the draft convention in communication with the government of Canada, and you indicated the points in which they found themselves compelled to dissent from its terms, while most anxious to reach a solution by means of arbitration.

In accordance with Your Lordship's instructions, I communicated to Mr. Hay the views of His Majesty's government in the form of an unofficial memorandum based on Your Lordship's despatch. * * * * *

From Mr. Chamberlain to Lord Minto.

DOWNING STREET, April 18, 1902.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch No. 302 of October 31 relative to certain United States storehouses marked on the chart No. 3091 published by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, and to state that representations in the sense desired by your ministers have been duly made to the United States government by His Majesty’s ambassador at Washington.

2. A copy of a letter which has been received from the Foreign Office, communicating Lord Pauncefote's report of the result of these representations, is enclosed, for the information of your ministers. Before causing a reply to be returned to it, I shall be glad to be furnished with any further observations which they may have to offer on the subject.

I have, &c.,

(Sgd.) J. CHAMBERLAIN

Governor General,
The Right Honourable
The Earl of Minto, G.C.M.G., &c., &c.
No. 10.

The Marquess of Lansdowne to Lord Pauncefote.

FOREIGN OFFICE. April 8, 1902.

Sir,—In accordance with the suggestion contained in your letter of the 7th January last, His Majesty's Ambassador at Washington was requested to make representations to the United States government with regard to the storehouses marked with the numbers 1, 2, 3, and 4, on a chart of part of the Pacific coast, published by the United States Geodetic Survey, and to inquire as to the reason for their erection in territory the title to which was, and still is, the subject of diplomatic negotiations between Great Britain and the United States.

I am directed by the Marquess of Lansdowne to transmit to you, herewith, for the information of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, a copy of the despatch which has been received from Lord Pauncfote on the subject. (No. 8.)

It will be observed that, in reply to the ambassador's representations, Mr. Hay merely notes that the storehouses are upon territory which has been in possession of the United States since its acquisition from Russia, and that the designation of Portland canal is such as has been marked on all the charts issued by the United States since that acquisition. Mr. Hay further states that he is not aware that His Majesty's government have ever advanced any claim to this territory before the signature of the protocol of May 30, 1898, preliminary to the appointment of the High Joint Commission.

Lord Lansdowne will be glad to receive any observations which Mr. Chamberlain may have to offer on Lord Pauncefote's despatch.

The chart which accompanied your letter of January 7 is returned herewith as requested.

I am, &c.,

(Signed),

F. H. VILLIERS.

---

Extract from a Report of the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency on the 12th June, 1902.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch, dated April 15, 1902, from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, covering a copy of a report by His Majesty's ambassador to the United States of the result of the representations which he made on behalf of the government of Canada to the United States government on the subject of certain storehouses which have been erected by the United States upon the shores of Portland canal, and Wales and Pearce islands.

The Minister of the Interior, to whom the despatch in question was referred, submits that in relation to the statement made in the Minute of Council, dated 22nd October, 1901, that the territory on which these storehouses stand was, at the time of their erection, the subject of diplomatic negotiations, the Secretary of State for the United States states that he is not aware that the government of His Britannic Majesty ever advanced any claim to this territory before the signature of the protocol of May 30, 1898, preliminary to the appointment of the Joint High Commission.

The minister further submits that on March 18, 1891, however, the government of Canada called the attention of the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies to a passage in the report of the superintendent of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, in which it was said that congress had placed in charge of that bureau a preliminary survey of the frontier line between Alaska and British Columbia, that such survey would have to be carried through the Portland canal to the 56th degree of north latitude, thence northwesterly following as nearly as may be practicable the general trend of the coast, at a distance of about 25 miles from it, to the 141st degree of west longitude. The minute pointed out that the question of the boundary at this point was at the time the subject of some difference of opinion and considerable correspondence, and asked that the attention of the government of the United States should be called to this fact. This was done in a note dated June 5, 1891, addressed by Sir Julian Paunceforte to Mr. Blaine, Secretary of State of the United States. The representations of Her Majesty's minister, it will be seen, had direct and precise reference to the subject of the present Minute of Council.

The minister states that shortly after this followed the negotiations of February, 1892, and the convention of July 22 of that year by which provision was made for the delimitation of the boundary line in accordance with the 'spirit and intent of the treaties,' and agreement was entered into that 'as soon as practicable after the report or reports of the commissioners shall have been received they will proceed to consider and establish the boundary line in question.'

That the report of the commissioners was signed on December 31, 1893, and laid before the parliament of Canada and the congress of the United States early in 1896, but, in the same year, before the high contracting parties had met to consider the boundary line, and while the matter was still sub judice the United States erected these storehouses on part of 'the territory adjacent' which was the subject of the operations of the joint survey and of the diplomatic negotiations.

The minister, without going into the arguments upon which the claims of Canada to this part of the territory are based with which His Majesty's government is already fully acquainted, desires to say that he conceives that occupation effected under the circumstances above detailed would not in international law have any validity, but he is of opinion that, nevertheless, the government of Canada should not allow it to pass without protest.

The committee concurring in the above report advise that His Excellency be moved to transmit the substance of this minute to His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, with the request that the government of the United States may be informed of the views of the government of Canada.

All which is respectfully submitted for His Excellency's approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

No. 10.

The Marquess of Lansdowne to Mr. Raikes.

(Extract.)

FOREIGN OFFICE, July 16, 1902.

The United States' ambassador reminded me today that he had supplied His Majesty's government with a very full statement of his views on the boundary question in a letter dated January, 1900, to which, so far as he was aware, no reply had ever been made.

I told him that we had thought it desirable to refer the letter in question to the Canadian government, and that we had received their comments early in 1901. We had thereupon prepared a draft despatch containing a full rejoinder to his letter, but before we had had time to issue it we had received from Washington the draft agreement as to the Alaska boundary, communicated to Lord Paunceforte by Mr. Hay.

The document seemed to us to open a new and promising phase in the negotiation: and we had, consequently, thought it better, for the time at all events, to concentrate our attention upon it, rather than pursue a discussion, which might prove acrimonial, of the points dealt with in His Excellency's note. Now, however, as His Majesty's government were given to understand that the president was not disposed to accept the Hay-Paunceforte draft as a basis, I was prepared to resume the discussion of Mr. Choate's note, and I hoped to be able to send our rejoinder to it at an early date.
The Marquess of Lansdowne to Mr. Reikes.

FOREIGN OFFICE, August 18, 1902.

Sir,—The communication relative to the Alaska boundary, addressed to me by the American ambassador on January 22, 1900, received careful attention and a reply had been prepared, when Lord Pauncefote reported that Mr. Hay had handed to him the draft of a treaty for determining the question by arbitration.

This important proposal appeared to denote the commencement of a new phase in the negotiations, and it seemed to His Majesty's government that in the end no useful purpose would be served by precluding, at such a moment, a rejoinder to the ambassador's argument.

The government of Canada were accordingly consulted with regard to the draft treaty, and, in March last, Lord Pauncefote, in accordance with his instructions, presented to Mr. Hay a memorandum stating that His Majesty's government, while most anxious to reach a solution by means of arbitration, felt bound to indicate some points on which they dissented from the terms of the draft.

No definite reply was returned to this communication, but His Majesty's Government were given to understand that the president was not disposed to continue negotiations on the basis of Mr. Hay's draft. It was, therefore, considered desirable to take advantage of the presence in this country of the Governor-General of Canada and of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and some of his colleagues to discuss the present position of the question.

I took an opportunity of mentioning this to the American Ambassador, and, in the course of our conversation, he reminded me of his note of January, 1900, and remarked that, so far as he was aware, no reply had ever been made to it.

As the absence of a rejoinder might be considered to imply inability to meet the arguments advanced, it is desirable that I should place on record the following observations:—

His Majesty's government learned with satisfaction from His Excellency's note that the government of the United States were not averse to a reference of the main difference between Great Britain and the United States to the adjudication of an independent tribunal, but rather contemplated the probability of such a mode of settlement of this long-pending controversy. They agree that what the ambassador describes as the paramount issue—namely, whether the line should be drawn across inlets or round their heads—can best be decided by this means, but they are unable to share the view that the particular course which the line is to take when the above question has been settled can be satisfactorily determined by a joint survey. A joint survey has already been made, and if the difference between the two governments could not be settled by the aid of the very complete maps thereby afforded, it is scarcely to be anticipated that a fresh survey would achieve a more definite result. It seems rather that the 'minor or secondary' though 'highly important' questions, namely, the exact location of the boundary-line and its precise distance from the coast, are analogous to those involved in the main issue, and can only be determined by a similar process.

For instance, assuming that the question of inlets had been decided, and a joint survey despatched to lay down the boundary in conformity with the provisions of the treaty of 1825, which prescribes that the line shall follow the summits of the mountains situated parallel to the coast, the British surveyors would naturally interpret this to mean the summit of the mountains nearest the coast, while it is possible that the United States' surveyors might contend for the highest range. How could this point be decided? Yet upon the decision would depend the possession of part of the town of Skagway, even supposing the ownership of the heads of inlets was decided adversely to the British contention. Again, if there should be a break in the mountain range which it is decided to follow, should the line across the break be drawn parallel to the coast-line between the same degrees of latitude as the terminals of the break or parallel to the general trend of the coast line. Controversies over these points, and others of a similar character, the least of which might turn out to be of far-reaching importance, would, it is to be feared, arise, and it is scarcely to be expected that surveyors in the field could reach an agreement upon them, nor, indeed, would it be expedient to allow them such latitude. With regard to the question relative to the heads of inlets, Mr. Choate observed that of the two absolutely distinct interpretations which have been presented by Great Britain and the United States, 'one or the other is right, and can and should be ascertained and determined so to be to the exclusion of the other.' The same argument is equally applicable to many occasions of difference which surveyors sent to lay down the boundary would encounter. For these reasons His Majesty's government are of opinion that all questions which depend for their solution upon the interpretation of the treaty should be simultaneously referred to arbitration, to determine the true meaning of that instrument, and this, not merely with regard to the Lynn canal or any other particular point, but in respect of the whole line, throughout its entire length, from the southermost point of Prince of Wales Island to Mount Elias. What is desired by both governments is the termination of the dispute, and this appears to be the only way in which it can be satisfactorily and permanently settled.

The objection recorded by Mr. Choate to the application of the Venezuela treaty to the adjustment of the present controversy seems to be directed against the provision for compromise which that arrangement affords, and the latitude given to the tribunal constituted under it; but, for the reasons which have been already adduced in Lord Salisbury's despatch of October 14, 1899, His Majesty's government still consider that the circumstances of the Alaska boundary controversy are such as to warrant an unqualified submission to an impartial tribunal, and it was solely with the desire to meet the objections of the United States' representatives that the British members of the Joint High Commission of 1898-99 proposed to allow that continued adverse possession should be recognized, and full regard had to the equities of the case. With this object in view, it appeared to them that the Venezuela treaty offered a convenient and suitable precedent. Accordingly, they proposed arbitration on those lines; but His Majesty's government are not wedded to a particular formula, and are prepared to consider any reasonable modifications to the rules suggested (not inconsistent with finality of decision) which the United States may consider the special circumstances of the case to call for. Towards such questions as the composition of the tribunal and its organization, as well as the terms of reference, His Majesty's government have, with the qualification above mentioned, adopted no fixed attitude, nor have they declined to reconsider the original proposal of the British side of the Joint High Commission, which, at the same time, they conceive to be eminently fair to the United States.

But while they are thus prepared to acquiesce in every reasonable concession, it would be difficult to include in that category without some reciprocal concession or compensation the stipulation contained in the last paragraph of the ambassador's note, to the effect that all settlements made by American citizens in the disputed territory under the authority of their government up to a very recent period shall remain the property of the United States. The main question in this controversy is that which involves the ownership of the heads of inlets in general, and of the Lynn canal in particular. That canal derives its present importance from the fact of its forming the natural approach to the gold-bearing regions of the Canadian interior, which are accessible by sea in those latitudes through the ports of Dyea, Skagway, and Pyramid Harbour. The valleys in the rear of these ports are the only known avenues of approach to the interior which come down to the Lynn canal, and are consequently the measure of its value. Their ownership must, therefore, constitute, in the view of the United States government, the chief object of the arbitration. There cannot be a doubt that the proposal of the United States plenipotentiaries at the meeting of the Joint High Commission, renewed by Mr. Choate, to except from the 'perils of any arbitration all towns or settlements on tide-water settled under the authority of the United States and under the jurisdiction of the United States at the date of this treaty,' was put forward with the object of securing Dyea, Skagway, and Pyramid Harbour, for they are the only settlements on tide-water that can possibly be embraced by the definition. The suggested reservation therefore, seems equivalent to a declaration on the part of the United States government that they will accept arbitration only on conditions that the principal objects of the reference shall be theirs in any event, and that Great Britain will so covenant before the parties go into court.

The proposal seems based on the assumption that the settlements at the head of the Lynn canal were established under the authority of the United States prior to the announcement of any claim to the territory in question on the part of Great Britain. So confidently is the soundness of this contention assumed, that several times in His Excellency's not it is emphasized by the express inclusion of Canada, as distinct from the mother country, in the charge of having said or done nothing prior to 1898 to indicate her claim.

I will not recapitulate the arguments to the contrary which have been previously advanced. There is one point, however, with which I must deal in some detail. Mr. Choate suggested that too much weight had been given to Mr. Dawson's letter of February 7, 1888, laid before the Fisheries Commission of that year, and argues that the meetings between that gentleman and Professor Dall were wholly informal; that neither possessed any delegated authority whatever, and that their opinions could not be held to commit anybody but themselves. While it is true that the conferences between Messrs. Dawson and Dall were informal, these gentlemen were experts specially selected by their respective governments, and their views must therefore be held to be those of the governments which they represented. That this was so understood at the time is evident from the map (No. 16) which accompanies the reports of both experts submitted to congress by President Cleveland on March 2, 1889. That map is a reproduction of one prepared in Ottawa for the purposes of the conference of 1887-88. As originally published it showed no boundary lines, but upon a few copies lines were drawn in ink by Dr. Dawson, showing (1) a boundary line as given on the United States coast survey map of Alaska, 1884; (2) a boundary line approximately following the summits of mountains parallel to the coast, in presumed conformity with the text of the convention of 1825, as understood by the Canadian government; (3) one of the conventional lines discussed during the conferences, and referred to in the printed correspondence between Dr. Dawson and Sir C. Tupper, which the latter laid before the commission. It was not possible to draw the second conventional line, as this depended upon geographical details not determined at the time. A note upon the face of the map states that the line from the United States coast survey map 'disregards both the treaty reference to mountains and that to the ocean coast.' A copy of the lithographed map, with the lines and notes above referred to, was supplied to Professor Dall, and is reproduced in fac-simile as map No. 16 above referred to.

That the line following the mountains parallel to the coast, crossing all the larger inlets, must at the time have been accepted as embodying the Canadian view of the meaning of the treaty of 1825, is shown by the addition by the United States authorities to the fac-simile (at the top and outside the border of the map) of the words 'Dawson's Canadian map, 1887, showing conventional lines proposed by Canada.' This map, as originally prepared, and also with Dr. Dawson's additions, was published by the United States government and submitted to Congress.

The statement by Mr. Choate that the meetings between Messrs. Dawson and Dall were not held during the sitting of the Joint High Commission of 1888 seems to have been made under a misapprehension. An examination of the protocols of the commission discloses that on January 9, 1888, Mr. Chamberlain suggested that Dr. Dawson and Professor Dall should meet and endeavour to agree upon some definite suggestions for the consideration of the conference. On January 23 Mr. Bayard concurred in this suggestion, and on the 30th it was arranged that Dr. Dawson should be summoned by telegraph. On February 2 Mr. Chamberlain announced that Dr. Dawson had arrived at Washington, and Mr. Bayard informed the conference that the necessary arrangements would be made at once for him to meet Professor Dall. On February 7 Mr. Chamberlain reported to the commission that Dr. Dawson and Professor Dall had not made any progress on the question of the Alaska boundary. The commission sat on February 2, 3, 6 and 7. The conferences between Messrs. Dall and Dawson were therefore held during the sittings of the Joint High Commission. The inference that Sir C. Tupper dissociated himself from Dr. Dawson, because in the former’s note of transmission he referred to the latter’s views as ‘his’—i.e., Dr. Dawson’s—‘own,’ appears to be based upon a misconception of Sir C. Tupper’s meaning. Bearing in mind that on the same day on which Dr. Dawson’s letter was written, Mr. Chamberlain reported to the conference that the two experts had failed to come to any agreement, it is not surprising that Sir C. Tupper should allude to Dr. Dawson’s views as ‘his own,’ meaning thereby his own, not as distinct from those of the government which he was there to represent, but from those of his fellow-expert with whom he could not reach any agreement. They were his individual views in the sense that they were not shared by Professor Dall. These views were known to the government of which Sir C. Tupper was a member before Dr. Dawson was summoned to Washington. If the Canadian government were not in accord with them it is scarcely likely that he would have been selected to confer with the American expert, nor is it probable that Sir C. Tupper would have placed them before Mr. Bayard without, at any rate, some distinct and explicit disavowal of responsibility for them. Moreover, as His Majesty’s government can confidently state, it is not the case, as suggested, that Sir C. Tupper was in no mood to adopt General Cameron’s opinions on the subject of the Alaska boundary, for it was at the instance of Sir C. Tupper, at the time High Commissioner for Canada, that General Cameron was selected by the Secretary of State for the Colonies to investigate and report upon this question of the Alaska boundary. Sir C. Tupper, in the year 1888, attached great weight to General Cameron’s views on the subject of the Alaska boundary, and, in a letter addressed to the Secretary of State for the Colonies on the 1st August, 1888, he entirely concurred in protesting against any attempt on the part of the United States to disregard Canada’s claim to the heads of inlets. He fortified the protest of the Canadian government by a memorandum from General Cameron’s pen, of which a copy is herewith inclosed.

Attention must also be given to the message of the President of the United States transmitting these reports and maps of Dr. Dawson to congress, and to the memorandum of his Secretary of State, which accompanied them, in which Mr. Bayard expresses the opinion that these documents are ‘of value as bearing upon a subject of great international importance, and should be put in shape for public information.’

It appears to His Majesty’s government that the President thus publicly acquainted the people of the United States of Canada’s claim to the heads of the inlets more than eight years before anything in the nature of settlement was begun at the head of the Lynn canal, for beyond a few trifling acts of occupation on the part of private individuals, at periods separated by considerable intervals of time, no settlement was attempted in those localities until the mining rush to the Klondike in the spring of 1897.

It is desirable, before concluding this despatch, to allude to the statement in Mr. Choate’s communication that the United States government are not aware that at the conference held in Washington in February, 1892, the Canadian ministers proposed, as recorded in Lord Salisbury’s despatch of October 14, 1899, ‘that a reference to some impartial authority be made by Great Britain and the United States for the purpose of ascertaining and deciding finally the true boundary, regard being had to the treaties relating to the subject, and likewise to the case which may be presented by either government, and to the testimony which may be adduced as to the physical features and conditions of that country.’
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

The accuracy of this record is confirmed by the minutes of the proceedings of this conference, signed by the Canadian delegates and concurred in by Her Majesty's minister at Washington. These minutes, which were published by order of the Canadian parliament in the sessions of 1892 and 1893, also record that on February 12, 1892, the various contentions relating to the boundary were then explained, thereby indicating that the existence of a divergence between the views of the respective government as to the true meaning of the treaty was recognized at that date, and that each government was acquainted with the claim of the other.

The main facts in support of the British claim have already been fully set forth in previous communications, and it seems unnecessary, as I have before said, to repeat them; but His Majesty's government desire to place on record the foregoing supplementary observations in further elucidation of some points of their contention, and in disproof of the suggestion that neither the Imperial nor the Canadian government adopted or put forward the British claim to the heads of the inlets 'until after the protocol of May 30, 1893.'

You are authorized to read this despatch to Mr. Hay, and to hand him a copy of it should he so desire.

I am, &c.,

(Signed) LANSDOWNE.

Inclosure No. 11.

Memorandum.

By way of Lynn canal, of which the entrance is about 135° west longitude, 58° 20' north latitude, is at present the only practical route to gold mines being worked on tributaries of the Pelly river, some in British and some in United States territory.

The northern extremity of Lynn Canal forks—the western and eastern branches being formed respectively by the inflow of the Chilkat and Chilkoot rivers.

The route hitherto followed by miners entering the country has been by the valley of the Chilkoot—across the height of lands called Perrier or Payer portage.

The ascent to the portage is extremely tedious, but once overcome, there is gained navigable water connected with the Pelly river and the Yukon river. Lieutenant Schwatka noted Perrier portage as the point at which the boundary between United States' and British territory passed, the United States' territory lying seaward, the British territory inland. Lieutenant Schwatka had been employed to make a reconnaissance in Alaska, but finding that country most accessible through Lynn canal, continued his exploration down the Pelly river in British territory until it passed the meridian of 141° west longitude into United States' territory. Lieutenant Schwatka's report was published as a congressional paper.

It is not known that there has been any other official claim to Perrier pass as the point at which the international boundary runs.

From the ocean entrance to Lynn canal, the head of boat navigation up to the Chilkoot is about 80 miles; from this point to Perrier pass is somewhat in excess of 30 miles, or 10 marine leagues.

Lynn canal has waterways of less than 6 miles in breadth at no great distance from its entrance.

It is contended on the Canadian side that the 10 marine leagues given as the maximum breadth of the United States' coast territory in the second sub-section of Article IV, Russo-British convention of 1825, may not be measured from any point within an inlet not exceeding 6 miles in breadth, and that, consequently, it is not, under any circumstances, possible that the international boundary can be anywhere so far inland as Perrier pass.
To avoid the inconvenience of the ascent to the Perrière portage, a diverging route, called White pass, a little to the eastward of Perrier pass route, has recently been explored.

Speculators interested in the gold mines in the interior, and in transit of miners and their goods have for some time had their attention turned to the desirability of opening up the White pass route.

The greater part, if not all, of this divergent line is, it is contended, within British territory; and as affecting the principles which are ultimately to determine the whole of the British Alaskan boundary, as well as seriously affecting a British route which may hereafter, with advantage of the greatest importance, be opened through the Taku River Valley, it is submitted that the United States’ contention should be emphatically protested against.

---

DOWNING STREET, August 25, 1902.

My Lord,—I have the honour to transmit to you, for the information of your ministers with reference to Sir H. Strong’s despatch No. 221 of June 19 last, the papers noted in subjoined schedule.

I have, &c.,

(Sgd.) J. CHAMBERLAIN.

The Officer administering
The Government of Canada.

Date—1902. Description of Document.
16th August. F.O. to C.O. with inclosure.—The erection by the United States of storehouses on disputed territory in Alaska.

---

FOREIGN OFFICE, August 16, 1902.

Sir,—With reference to your letter of August 1, I am directed by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to transmit to you, to be laid before the Secretary of State for the Colonies, the accompanying copy of a despatch to His Majesty’s Chargé d’Affaires at Washington, respecting the erection of certain United States storehouses in the disputed territory of Alaska.

I am, &c.,

(Sgd.) T. H. SANDESON.

The Under Secretary of State, Colonial Office.

---

FOREIGN OFFICE, August 13, 1902.

Sir,—I communicated to the Secretary of State for the Colonies a copy of Lord Pauncefote’s despatch, No. 81, of March 20 last, which contained the reply of the United States government to the inquiry as to the nature of certain storehouses marked on a chart of part of the Pacific coast, issued by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, and the reason for their erection in territory the title to which is still the subject of diplomatic negotiations between this country and the United States.

I transmit to you, herewith, copy of a letter from the Colonial Office, including copies of further correspondence with the Canadian government on the subject.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

You will observe, that in reply to the statement of Mr. Hay, recorded in Lord Pauncefote's despatch above referred to, that he was not aware of any claim having been advanced by Great Britain to the territory in question previous to the signature of the protocol of May 30, 1898, preliminary to the appointment of the Joint High Commission, the Dominion government call attention to the note addressed by His Majesty's minister at Washington to the United States Secretary of State on June 5, 1891, in which, in view of a certain passage in the report of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, Mr. Blaine was reminded that the question of the boundary in the neighbourhood referred to was the subject of some difference of opinion, and that the actual line could only be properly determined by an intercolonial commission.

The Canadian government point out that shortly after that date provision was made, in the convention of July 22, 1892, for the delimitation of the boundary line in accordance with the 'spirit and intent of the treaties,' and an agreement was entered into that the boundary was to be considered and established as soon as practicable after the receipt of the report of the commissioners.

That report was signed on December 31, 1895, and laid before the parliament of Canada and the United States congress early in 1896. But, in the same year, before the high contracting parties had met to consider the boundary line, and while the matter was still sub judice, the United States erected the storehouses on part of the 'territory adjacent,' which was the subject of the operations of the joint survey and of diplomatic negotiations.

The Dominion government conceive that occupation effected under such circumstances would not in international law have any validity, but they are of opinion that nevertheless the matter should not be allowed to pass without protest. They therefore desire that the United States government may be informed of their views on the subject.

I have accordingly to request you to make a communication to Mr. Hay, in the sense suggested, and I would draw your attention to the opinion expressed in the enclosed letter from the Colonial Office that in dealing with the contention of the United States government, it might be advisable to refer to the observations with regard to the boundary line contained in Lord Salisbury's despatch, No. 213, to Mr. Tower, of October 14, 1899, as well as to the correspondence of 1891, cited in the accompanying minute of the Canadian Privy Council.

I am, &c.,

A. S. Raikes, Esq.,
&c., &c., &c.

(Sgd.) LANSOWNE.

No. 12.

Mr. Raikes to the Marquis of Lansdowne.—(Received September 25.)

WASHINGTON, September 12, 1902.

My Lord,—I have the honour to inform your Lordship that I to-day read your Lordship's despatch of the 18th ultimo, respecting the Alaska boundary to Mr. Adee, the Acting Secretary of State, and at his desire left a copy of the despatch with him. He assured me that it should have his careful consideration.

I have, &c.,

(Signed) ARTHUR S. RAIKES.

46a—44
No. 13.

Sir M. Herbert to the Marquis of Lansdowne.—(Received October 17.)

Washington, October 17, 1902.

In a short conversation of an unofficial character which I had to-day with the Secretary of State, he alluded to the question of the Alaska boundary.

He renewed the proposal made to Lord Pauncefote last March, viz., that a tribunal should be appointed, the members of which should merely place their reasoned opinions on record.

He still held the opinion he had expressed to Lord Pauncefote that a settlement would be facilitated by the appointment of such a tribunal.

No. 14.

Mr. Chamberlain to Governor General, the Earl of Minto.—(Received from Colonial Office, November 24.)

Downing Street, October 31, 1902.

United States' Secretary of State unofficially renews proposal for appointment of tribunal, members of which should merely record their reasoned opinions. Are your ministers disposed to consider this suggestion, which would at least afford opportunity to public in United States and Canada of comparing respective cases?

Lord Minto to Mr. Chamberlain.

Ottawa, November 18, 1902.

Referring to your despatch of October 31, concerning the proposal of the United States for the appointment of a tribunal of jurists to record their reasoned opinions upon the Alaska boundary question, my ministers, while declining to give final assent to such proposal, would be disposed to consider it favourably, provided the reference to the tribunal should include all aspects of the question. They think that such a reference as was outlined in my despatch of last November, 1901, might be acceptable.

Minto.

Sir M. Herbert to the Marquess of Lansdowne.—(Received December 22.)

Washington, December 8, 1902.

My Lord.—With reference to my telegram of to-day, I have the honour to report that, in obedience to Your Lordship's instructions, I called on Mr. Hay this morning, and informed him that His Majesty's government were prepared to entertain favourably the suggestion which he had made to me on October 17 last in regard to the appointment of an Anglo-American arbitration tribunal, composed of an equal number of judges nominated by each side. I stated at the same time that in agreeing to this proposal, Your Lordship made it a condition that the terms of reference should be so framed as to include all aspects of the question, and I suggested that they should be formulated on the lines of the inclosed memorandum, which I handed to him.
Mr. Hay expressed satisfaction at my communication and reiterated the opinion expressed to me on October 17 in favour of the appointment of such a tribunal as being the only means of settlement of the Alaska boundary dispute which would be acceptable to the people of this country. He promised that he would consult the President at once, and, if he approved, would prepare the draft terms of reference as soon as possible for submission to His Majesty's government.

I gathered from the conversation which subsequently took place that Mr. Hay is willing to consent, in the event of the judicial tribunal arriving at an agreement, that its decision shall be final, and I venture to express the opinion that, if the Senate will ratify such a stipulation, it would be preferable to the proposal that the members of the tribunal should record their reasoned opinions only.

In discussing the composition of the tribunal, I expressed the hope that all the American members would be judges of the Supreme Court of the United States, as their appointment would give the tribunal more weight.

Mr. Hay agreed with this view, but feared it would be difficult to carry out owing to the pressure of business before the Supreme Court, which could ill spare so many of its members at the same time.

I have, &c.,
(Signed) MICHAEL H. HERBERT.

Colonial Office to Lord Minto.

LONDON, December 11, 1902.

Alaska boundary. Referring to your cable of November 18, presume that in event of majority of tribunal agreeing on answer to the reference submitted, decision would be accepted as final by your ministers. Please cable reply.

Lord Minto to Colonial Office.

December 15, 1902.

Alaska boundary. Your cable 11th inst. Am asked by my ministers to state that they cannot give proper consideration to question submitted till exact text of proposed reference or the composition of tribunal is before them. On receipt of this information they will communicate with Sir Wilfrid Laurier (who is absent from Ottawa), and will send reply as soon as possible.

MINTO.

Personal.

WASHINGTON, December 18, 1902.

The Honourable John Hay, &c., &c.:

Since our interview this morning I have had time to examine the draft Alaska boundary treaty which you then handed to me.

You will remember that I told you on the 8th inst. that Lord Lansdowne was prepared to entertain favourably the idea of a judicial tribunal, provided that the terms of reference were framed so as to include all aspects of the question.

Section 5 of Article IV of the draft treaty does not, it seems to me, fulfill this requirement, for it only gives prominence to the American contention that the treaty of 1825 was intended to give Russia a strip of coast of at least ten marine leagues on the mainland, separating the British possessions from the bays, ports, inlets, havens and waters of the ocean. The point from which this strip of land is to be measured is not apparently mentioned as an issue, and the Canadian contention that the line shall follow the crest of the mountains parallel to the coast, but so as to include bays, ports and inlets, would be excluded.

Under this reference the jurists would hold that the only point to be decided would be the width of the strip which is to separate the British possessions from access to all waters, even to bays, ports, inlets and havens.

I fear, therefore, that Lord Lansdowne could never accept this section as it stands, and I trust that it will be possible for your government to agree to a modification of the draft, so as to leave it to the jurists to decide whether the boundary line should go round all bays, ports, inlets and havens, or whether it should, following the crest of the mountains, pass across bays, ports, inlets and havens.

As I have a messenger to-morrow afternoon, I should be glad to call at the Department of State to-morrow morning to discuss the matter, if you can spare time to receive me.

MICHAEL H. HERBERT.

WASHINGTON, December 19, 1902.

My Lord,—With reference to my despatch No. 333, confidential, of the 8th instant, Mr. Hay handed to me yesterday a draft treaty for the settlement of the Alaska boundary by a judicial tribunal. * * * * * He stated that all the terms of reference suggested by Your Lordship had been accepted, except section 6 (see memorandum inclosed in my despatch No. 333), which had been altered. I asked his permission to take the document home and study it, and I promised to let him know my views in regard to it as soon as possible. On examination of the treaty I found that with the exception of the addition of the words ‘if they exist’ between the word ‘what’ and the words ‘are the’ in section 5 of my memorandum, all the sections excepting No. 6 (which in Mr. Hay’s draft was made No. 5) were couched in the same language as the reference I had suggested. Section 5 of the draft, however, repeated exactly the wording of sub-section 2 of Article IV of the draft treaty submitted by Mr. Hay to Lord Pauncefote in May, 1901, and I accordingly sent a note to Mr. Hay in the evening, copy of which I have the honour to inclose, stating that I felt sure Your Lordship would be unable to accept this reference, as it only put forward the American contention, and that that of Canada would be excluded by it. I called at the Department of State this morning and repeated the arguments contained in my note, and after a short discussion Mr. Hay said that in view of my objections, and of his wish to arrive at a settlement, he was prepared to modify the draft in the following manner: To let the first five sections stand as proposed in his draft of yesterday, omitting the words ‘if not, how should line of demarcation be traced to conform to the provisions of the said treaty’ at the end of section 5. Then to take No. 6 as follows: ‘If the foregoing question (No. 5) should be answered in the negative, and in the event of the summit of such mountains proving to be in places more than ten marine leagues from the coast, the width of the lisière which was to belong to Russia be measured (1) from the mainland coast of the ocean, strictly so-called, along a line perpendicular thereto, or (2) was it the intention and meaning of the said convention that where the mainland coast is indented by deep inlets forming part of the territorial waters of Russia, the width of the lisière was to be measured (a) from the line of the general direction of the mainland coast, or (b) from the line separating the waters of the ocean from the territorial waters of Russia, or (c) from the heads of the aforesaid inlets?’ (Your Lordship will observe that the word ‘mainland’ has been inserted before the word ‘coast’ all through this section.)
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

Then to change the number of the original section 6 of Mr. Hay’s draft of yesterday into section 7 in the new draft.

I consented to this modification, and said I was now prepared to send the draft home for your Lordship’s approval.

The final paragraph of Article III. is identical with the language of Article III. of the May draft treaty.

* * * * *

Article VI. provides that the decision shall be final, and Mr. Hay has consented to use the same language as that contained in Lord Pauncefote’s memorandum of February last.

I have the honour to transmit copy of the draft treaty as amended, and I earnestly hope that its provisions will meet with the approval of His Majesty’s government and of that of Canada.

MICHAEL H. HERBERT.

ALASKA BOUNDARY.

The United States of America and His Majesty the King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, equally desirous for the friendly and final adjustment of the differences which exist between them in respect to the true meaning and application of certain clauses of the convention between Great Britain and Russia, signed under date of February 28-16, A.D. 1825, which clauses relate to the delimitation of the boundary line between the territory of Alaska, now a possession of the United States, and the British possession in North America, have resolved to provide for the submission of the questions as hereinafter stated to an arbitral tribunal, and to that end have appointed their respective plenipotentiaries as follows:—

The President of the United States of America; John Hay, Secretary of State of the United States; and

His Britannic Majesty; the Right Honourable Sir Michael Herbert, K.C.M.G., C.B., His Britannic Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary;

Who, after an exchange of their full powers, which were found to be in good and due form, have agreed upon the following articles:—

ARTICLE I.

A tribunal shall be immediately appointed to consider and decide the questions set forth in Article IV. of this convention. The tribunal shall consist of six impartial jurists of repute, who shall consider judicially the questions submitted to them, each of whom shall first subscribe an oath that he will impartially consider the arguments and evidence presented to the tribunal, and will decide thereupon according to his true judgment. Three members of the tribunal shall be appointed by the President of the United States, and three by His Britannic Majesty. All questions considered by the tribunal, including the final award, shall be decided by a majority of all the members thereof.

In case of the refusal to act, or of the death, incapacity or abstention from service of any of the persons so appointed, another impartial jurist of repute shall be forthwith appointed in his place by the same authority which appointed his predecessor.

The tribunal may appoint a secretary and a bailiff to perform such duties as they may prescribe, and may employ scientific experts, if found to be necessary, and may fix a reasonable compensation for such officers. The tribunal shall keep an accurate record of all its proceedings.
Each of the high contracting parties shall make compensation for the services of the members of the tribunal of its own appointment, and of any agent, counsel or other person employed in its behalf, and shall pay all costs incurred in the preparation of its case. All expenses reasonably incurred by the tribunal in the performance of its duties shall be paid by the respective governments in equal moieties.

The tribunal may, subject to the provisions of this convention, establish all proper rules for the regulation of its proceedings.

ARTICLE II.

Each of the high contracting parties shall also name one person to attend the tribunal as its agent.

The written or printed case of each of the two parties, accompanied by the documents, the official correspondence and all other evidence in writing or print on which each party relies, shall be delivered in duplicate to each member of the tribunal, and to the agent of the other party, as soon as may be after the organization of the tribunal, but within a period not exceeding two months from the date of the exchange of ratifications of this convention.

Within two months after the delivery on both sides of the written or printed case, either party may, in like manner, deliver in duplicate to each member of the tribunal, and to the agent of the other party, a counter case and additional documents, correspondence and evidence in reply to the case, documents, correspondence and evidence so presented by the other party. The tribunal may, however, extend this last mentioned period when in their judgment it becomes necessary by reason of special difficulties which may arise in the procuring of such additional papers and evidence.

If in the case submitted to the tribunal either party shall have specified or referred to any report or document in its own exclusive possession without annexing a copy, such party shall be bound, if the other party shall demand it, within thirty days after the delivery of the case, to furnish to the party applying for it a duly certified copy thereof; and either party may call upon the other, through the tribunal, to produce the original or certified copies of any papers adduced as evidence, giving in each instance such reasonable notice as the tribunal may require; and the original or copy so requested shall be delivered as soon as may be and within a period not exceeding forty days after receipt of notice.

Each party may present to the tribunal all pertinent evidence, documentary, historical, geographical, or topographical, including maps and charts, in its possession or control and applicable to the rightful decision of the questions submitted; and if it appears to the tribunal that there is evidence pertinent to the case in the possession of either party, and which has not been produced, the tribunal may, in its discretion, order the production of the same by the party having control thereof.

It shall be the duty of each party through its agent or counsel, within two months from the expiration of the time limited for the delivery of the counter case on both sides, to deliver in duplicate to each member of the said tribunal, and to the agent of the other party, a written or printed argument, showing the points and referring to the evidence upon which his government relies, and either party may also support the same before the tribunal by oral argument or counsel. The tribunal may, if they shall deem further elucidation with regard to any point necessary, require from either party a written, printed or oral statement or argument upon the point; but in such case the other party shall have the right to reply thereto.

ARTICLE III.

It is agreed by the high contracting parties that the tribunal shall consider in the settlement of the questions submitted to its decision the treaties respectively concluded between His Britannic Majesty and the Emperor of All the Russias, under date 28-16 February, A.D., 1825, and between the United States of America and the Emperor of All the Russias, concluded under date of March 30-18, A.D. 1867; and particularly the Articles III, IV, V, of the first mentioned treaty, which in the original text are word as follows:—
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

'La ligne de démarcation entre les Possessions des Hautes Parties Contractantes sur la Côte du Continent et les Iles de l'Amérique Nord-Ouest, sera tracée ainsi qu'il suit:

'A partir du point le plus méridional de l'Île dite Prince of Wales, lequel point se trouve sous la parallèle du 51me degré 40 minutes de latitude nord, et entre le 131me et le 133me degrés de longitude ouest (Meridien de Greenwich), la dite ligne remontera au Nord le long de la passe dite Portland Channel, jusqu'au point de la terre ferme ou elle atteint le 56me degré de latitude Nord; de ce dernier point la ligne de démarcation suivra la crête des montagnes situées parallèlement à la côte, jusqu'au point d'intersection du 141me degré de longitude Ouest (même Meridien), et, finalement du dit point d'intersection, la même ligne méridienne du 141me degré formera, dans son prolongement jusqu'à la mer Glaciale, la limite entre les Possessions Russes et Britanniques sur le continent de l'Amérique Nord-Ouest.

'IV. Il est entendu, par rapport à la ligne de démarcation déterminée dans l'Article précédent:

1. Que l'île dite Prince of Wales appartiendra toute entière à la Russie.

2. Que partout où la crête des montagnes qui s'étendent dans une direction parallèle à la côte depuis le 56me degré de latitude Nord au point d'intersection du 141me degré de longitude Ouest, se trouverait à la distance de plus de dix lieues marines de l'océan, la limite entre les Possessions Britanniques et la lisière de côte mentionnée ci-dessus comme devant appartenir à la Russie, sera formée par une ligne parallèle aux sinuosités de la côte, et qui ne pourra jamais en être éloignée que de dix lieues marines.'

'V. Il est convenu en outre, que nul établissement ne sera formé par l'une des deux parties dans les limites que les deux Articles précédents assignent aux Possessions de l'autre. En conséquence, les sujets britanniques ne formeront aucun Etablissement soit sur la côte, soit sur la lisière de terre ferme comprise dans les limites des Possessions Russes, telles qu'elles sont désignées dans les deux Articles précédents ; et, de Même, nul Etablissement ne sera formé par des sujets Russes au delà des dites limites.'

The tribunal shall also take into consideration any action of the several governments or of their respective representatives preliminary or subsequent to the conclusion of said treaties so far as the same tends to show the original and effective understanding of the parties in respect to the limits of their several territorial jurisdictions under and by virtue of the provisions of said treaties.

ARTICLE IV.

Referring to Articles III., IV. and V., of the said treaty of 1825, the said tribunal shall answer and decide the following questions:—

1. What is intended as the point of commencement of the line?
2. What channel is the Portland channel?
3. What course should the line take from the point of commencement to the entrance to Portland channel?
4. To what point on the 56th parallel is the line to be drawn from the head of the Portland channel, and what course should it follow between these points?
5. In extending the line of demarcation northward from said point on the parallel of the 56th degree of north latitude, following the crest of the mountains situated parallel to the coast until its intersection with the 141st degree of longitude west of Greenwich, subject to the condition that if such line should anywhere exceed the distance of ten marine leagues from the ocean, then the boundary between the British and the Russian territory should be formed by a line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast and distant therefrom not more than ten marine leagues, was it the intention and meaning of said convention of 1825 that there should remain in the exclusive possession of Russia a continuous fringe or strip of coast on the mainland, not exceeding ten marine leagues in width, separating the British possessions from the bays, ports, inlets, havens and waters of the ocean, and extending from the said point on the 56th degree of latitude north to a point where such line of demarcation should intersect the 141st degree of longitude west of the meridian of Greenwich?

6. If the foregoing question should be answered in the negative, and in the event of the summit of such mountains proving to be in places more than ten marine leagues from the coast, should the width of the lisière, which was to belong to Russia, be measured (1) from the mainland coast of the ocean, strictly so-called, along a line perpendicular thereto, or (2) was it the intention and meaning of the said convention that where the mainland coast is indented by deep inlets forming part of the territorial waters of Russia, the width of the lisière was to be measured (a) from the line of the general direction of the mainland coast, or (b) from the line separating the waters of the ocean from the territorial waters of Russia, or (c) from the heads of the aforesaid inlets?

7. What, if any exist, are the mountains referred to as situated parallel to the coast, which mountains when within ten marine leagues from the coast, are declared to form the eastern boundary?

ARTICLE V.

The tribunal shall assemble for their first meeting at London as soon as practicable after receiving their commissions; and shall themselves fix the times and places of all subsequent meetings.

The decision of the tribunal shall be made so soon as possible after the conclusion of the arguments in the case, and within three months thereafter, unless the President of the United States and His Britannic Majesty shall by common accord extend the time therefor. The decision shall be made in writing, and dated, and shall be signed by the members of the tribunal assenting to the same. It shall be signed in duplicate, one copy whereof shall be given to the agent of the United States of America for his government, and the other to the agent of His Britannic Majesty for his government.

ARTICLE VI.

When the high contracting parties shall have received the decision of the tribunal upon the questions submitted as provided in the foregoing articles, which decision shall be final and binding upon all parties, they will at once appoint, each on its own behalf, one or more scientific experts who shall with all convenient speed proceed together to lay down the boundary line in conformity with such decision.

Should there be, unfortunately, a failure by a majority of the tribunal to agree upon any of the points submitted for their decision, it shall be their duty to so report in writing to their respective governments through their respective agents. Should there be an agreement by a majority upon a part of the questions submitted, it shall be their duty to sign and report their decision upon the points of such agreement in the manner hereinbefore prescribed.

ARTICLE VII.

The present convention shall be ratified by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and by His Britannic Majesty, and the ratifications shall be exchanged in Washington or in London so soon as the same may be effected.
In faith whereof we, the respective plenipotentiaries, have signed this treaty and have hereunto fixed our seals.

Done at Washington in duplicate this 24th day of January, A.D. 1903.

MICHAEL H. HERBERT,
JOHN HAY.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies to Lord Minto.

LONDON, January 6, 1903.

Alaska.—Shall be glad to have as soon as possible views of your ministers on draft boundary treaty which was inclosed in Sir Michael Herbert's despatch, No. 347, of December 19.

Lord Minto to Sir Michael Herbert.

OTTAWA, January 12, 1903.

Referring to the last proposed Alaskan boundary treaty, a draft of which you submitted to me, my ministers are satisfied with the questions to be submitted to the tribunal, but they still have the same objection to the composition of the proposed tribunal, and before assenting to it, they would hope that another effort should be made to have the questions to be adjudicated upon submitted either to a board of arbitrators composed in part of independent jurists, not subjects of either state, as proposed in my despatch to Mr. Chamberlain of November, 1901, or to the Hague tribunal.

MINTO.

LONDON, January 12, 1903.

With reference to my telegram of January 6, relative to the Alaska boundary

Sir M. Herbert advocates strongly three judges of the United States Supreme Court with the Lord Chief Justice of England, the Chief Justice of Canada and the Judicial High Court of Great Britain on one side, as forming a tribunal which would command the highest confidence of all concerned.

Your ministers will doubtless give this matter their serious consideration.

Desired early expression of views of your ministers as to terms of draft treaty, final tribunal decision and its composition. Telegraph reply.

SECRETARY OF STATE FOR COLONIES.

Sir Michael Herbert to Lord Minto.

WASHINGTON, January 18, 1903.

I have despatched the following to-day to the Foreign Office:—

Re Alaska Boundary.—Secretary of State has again asked me for an answer to-day on the ground that present moment they might be favourable for ratification of treaty and, if the question is further postponed. Senators' attitude may change.

HERBERT.
Minto, Ottawa.

Washington, January 19, 1903.

Following sent to Foreign Office to-day. I informed Mr. Hay to-day that the Canadian government were satisfied as to terms of reference, but they objected to composition of tribunal and hoped that the United States government would agree to have the questions to be adjudicated upon submitted either to Foreign Office or to the Hague tribunal.

At the same time I pointed out that the Hague tribunal was especially intended to settle disputes in regard to interpretation of treaties. Mr. Hay said in reply that in view of the alterations he had made in regard to terms of reference he had hoped for a spontaneous acceptance of the treaty, and he regretted that the Canadian government still objected to the tribunal's composition. He could only repeat what he had often said before, that the form of arbitration proposed was the only one acceptable to the President, and that a treaty involving submission of question to foreign arbitration or to Hague tribunal would stand no chance of ratification by the United States Senate.

HERBERT.

Minto, Ottawa.

London, January 19, 1903.

Referring to Sir Michael Herbert's telegram stating that the United States government is unable to agree to modification of tribunal, I trust that your responsible advisers will now agree to his being instructed to sign the draft treaty. Please reply by telegram as soon as possible.

Secret.

Should be glad to give an early answer to my telegram of January 12 as to British Ambassador Washington's proposal that Chief Justice of England, Chief Justice of Canada and Judicial High Court of Appeal of Great Britain should be appointed as British members of the tribunal.

SECRETARY OF STATE.

Colonial Office to Lord Minto.

London, January 20, 1903.

Re British Ambassador at Washington's cable, stating that Mr. Hay would prefer London as place of meeting, I should be glad to receive early expression of your ministers' views as to this.

SECRETARY OF STATE.

Lord Minto to Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Ottawa, January 21, 1903.

My ministers, whilst still regretting that proposed tribunal will not be constituted so as to insure certainty of a final decision being reached on the reference, being satisfied with the terms of that reference, will agree to accept treaty as contained in the draft submitted to them.

With regard to composition of tribunal, my ministers are of opinion that it is premature to adopt any final arrangement; it is sufficient now to have it clearly understood that members of the court to be appointed by His Majesty shall be jurists of repute, and British subjects.

They will be quite satisfied if London is selected for sittings of the court.

Lord Minto to Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Ottawa, January 21, 1903.

My ministers, whilst still regretting that proposed tribunal will not be constituted so as to insure certainty of a final decision being reached on the reference, being satisfied with the terms of that reference, will agree to accept treaty as contained in the draft submitted to them.

With regard to composition of tribunal, my ministers are of opinion that it is premature to adopt any final arrangement: it is sufficient now to have it clearly understood that members of the court to be appointed by His Majesty shall be jurists of repute, and British subjects.

They will be quite satisfied if London is selected for sittings of the court.

Lord Minto to Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Ottawa, January 21, 1903.
To Lord Minto.

LONDON, February 18, 1903.

H.M. Ambassador, Washington, cables President will appoint Mr. Root, Secretary of State for War, and Senators Lodge and Turner, as American members of Commission Alaska Boundary.

Should be glad to have views of your ministers as to British commission.

SECRETARY OF STATE FOR COLONIES.

——

Lord Minto to Colonial Office.

OTTAWA, February 19, 1903.

Referring to your telegram of the 18th instant, my ministers respectfully but strongly represent that Mr. Root as a member of the United States government directly concerned is therefore one of the disputants in the case, and also that Senators Lodge and Turner cannot be accepted in the class of impartial jurists provided for in the treaty, having both already emphatically declared themselves against the Canadian side of the case.

Proposed appointments would be looked upon by my government as violation of important article in treaty.

(Signed) MIXTO.

——

Lord Minto to Colonial Office.

OTTAWA, February 21, 1903.

Supplementing my last despatch, my ministers call attention to the fact that they agreed to a court of six members on the stipulation conveyed in the treaty that members of said court would be impartial jurists, and in the hope that judges of the highest courts in the United States would be appointed as American commissioners, my ministers also agreeing that British commissioners should be judges of the highest standing.

My ministers most strongly represent that this consideration having been material in causing their assent to the treaty should be made good, otherwise the ground upon which they based their assent would be changed, and it is feared whole situation would require to be reconsidered.

My ministers would be ready to implement their part of the understanding as to the composition of British side of the commission, but do not think it advisable to submit their views until question raised about American commission is satisfactorily disposed of.

MIXTO.

——

Lord Onslow to Governor General, Ottawa.

LONDON, February 27, 1903.

With reference to your telegram dated the 19th and 21st of February, selection of American members of tribunal has been the source of as much surprise to His Majesty's government as to your ministers. Situation is full of difficulty, and His Majesty's government earnestly desire to have concurrence of your ministers in dealing with it.

It seems certain to His Majesty's government that it would be useless to press the United States government to withdraw names put forward, and arguments relative to the fitness of the three American representatives, however convincing, can have no practical results.
3-4 Edward VII., A. 1904

Correspondence respecting

His Majesty's government have, therefore, to choose between breaking off negotiations altogether or accepting American nominations, and appointing as their colleagues representatives who will meet the altered circumstances of the case. They would regard the first alternative as a grave misfortune to the interests of Canada, and would prefer that the inquiry should proceed, in confident hope that Canadian or British interests would not be prejudiced thereby, as, even in the event of failure, much important information upon controverted points would be collected, and placed before the public, and reasonable settlement at some future time thereby facilitated.

His Majesty's government earnestly hope that these considerations may be carefully weighed by your ministers, and that they will favour His Majesty's government, if they agree with the opinion stated above, with an expression of their views as to the most advantageous composition of the British side of the tribunal.

Onslow.

Sir M. Herbert to Lord Minto.

Washington, D.C., March 6, 1903.

Secretary of State has officially notified to me to-day the appointment of Messrs. Root, Lodge and Turner as American members of the Alaska tribunal.

Herbert.

Lord Minto to Colonial Office.

Ottawa, March 6, 1903.

Referring to your despatch of February 27, my ministers regard the situation with much anxiety. They desire to emphasize the fact that their assent to a treaty which provided for the creation of a tribunal so composed as not to insure finality was obtained on the stipulation in the treaty that the members of the court would be impartial jurists of repute. * * * * Their doubts as to the effectiveness of the contemplated arrangement as a means of settlement were in some degree modified by the assurance that the members of the tribunal would approach the subject with unbiased minds, and that a judicial interpretation of the treaty of 1825 would be obtained. The appointment to the tribunal by the United States government of gentlemen who are not judges, and whose known views leave no room for expectation of a judicial consideration of the question, changes the whole situation. If the whole question were now open to be dealt with entirely from the point of view of Canadian interests, my ministers would hesitate to advise any further participation in proceedings.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

My ministers have observed from the public press, and have also been officially informed that while the matter is still under their consideration, the treaty has been confirmed by His Majesty's government, and an exchange of ratifications has already taken place at Washington. It is presumed that this fact precludes further discussion, and my ministers will, therefore, proceed to do whatever is necessary on their part to make good the engagements of His Majesty's government, but they must reserve the right to submit to the Canadian parliament the whole correspondence, or such statement of the case as will fully explain the whole matter, and especially the manner in which the assent of Canada was obtained.

My ministers do not agree with the suggestion that the altered circumstances justify a departure on the British side from the disposition previously manifested respecting the composition of the tribunal. If members of the tribunal are to be appointed by His Majesty's government, my ministers are of opinion that only judges of the higher courts, who in the best sense of the words would be impartial jurists of repute, should be chosen.
THE ALASKA BOUNDARY

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

Minto, Ottawa.

LONDON, March 7, 1903.

The ratifications of the Alaska Boundary Treaty were exchanged on 3rd instant. Time for the preparation of the case, Article II, has consequently begun to run against us, and it is important that composition of British half of court, also appointment of British agent, should be settled without delay.

Hope, therefore, your responsible advisers will favour us with their views on these appointments as early as possible.

SECRETARY OF STATE.

Lord Minto to Colonial Office.

OTTAWA, March 7, 1903.

In view of the short time given for preparation of the case, my ministers desire to proceed immediately, and therefore suggest an early settlement of preliminaries.

As to the composition of tribunal, my ministers suggest Chief Justice of England and two Canadian judges, names to be telegraphed hereafter.

As to counsel, my ministers desire that Mr. Edward Blake, K.C., London, and Mr. Christopher Robinson, K.C., Toronto, be of counsel to uphold the British contention, and junior counsel.

Under that clause of the treaty which provides for the appointment of an agent to represent each party before the tribunal, my ministers desire that Mr. Clifford Sifton, Canadian Minister of the Interior, be appointed to fill such position.

MINTO.

Lord Minto to Mr. Chamberlain.

OTTAWA, March 17, 1903.

In addition to Chief Justice of England, my ministers propose Sir Louis Jetté, a retired judge of the Superior Court of the province of Quebec, and now Lieutenant Governor of Quebec, and Justice Armour, of the Supreme Court of Canada, as members of the Court of Imperial Jurists under treaty for settlement of boundary of Alaska.

MINTO.

Mr. Sifton to the Marquess of Lansdowne.

(Received October 22.)

ST. STEPHEN’S HOUSE, WESTMINSTER, S.W., October 21, 1903.

My LORd,—I have the honour to send herewith the original Award of the Alaska Boundary Tribunal, and the reasons for the judgment of Lord Alverstone, Messrs. Root, Lodge and Turner; also those of Mr. Aylesworth. The reasons for judgment of Sir
Louis Jetté having been written in French are, I am informed, being translated, and will be signed and filed by him in English. Upon receipt I shall at once forward them to be placed with the Award. I am also sending herewith two copies of the Award and two copies of the map which accompanies the Award. I beg to request that the proper officer of the Department of Foreign Affairs may be instructed to certify these copies of Award and maps as true copies, so that I can forward them to the Government of Canada, to be retained among the Canadian boundary records.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) CLIFFORD SIFTON.
AWARD OF THE
ALASKA BOUNDARY TRIBUNAL

Whereas by a convention signed at Washington on January 24, 1903, by plenipotentiaries of and on behalf of His Majesty the King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, Emperor of India, and of and on behalf of the United States of America, it was agreed that a tribunal should be appointed to consider and decide the questions hereinafter set forth, such tribunal to consist of six impartial jurists of repute, who should consider judicially the questions submitted to them, each of whom should first subscribe an oath that he would impartially consider the arguments and evidence presented to the said tribunal, and would decide thereupon according to his true judgment, and that three members of the said tribunal should be appointed by His Britannic Majesty and three by the President of the United States:

And whereas, it was further agreed by the said convention that the said tribunal should consider in the settlement of the said questions submitted to its decision the treaties respectively concluded between His Britannic Majesty and the Emperor of all the Russias, under date of February the 28th (16), A.D., 1825, and between the United States of America and Emperor of all the Russias, concluded under date of March 18 (30), A.D., 1867, and particularly the articles III, IV and V of the first mentioned treaty, and should also take into consideration any action of the several governments or of their respective representatives, preliminary or subsequent to the conclusion of the said treaties, so far as the same tended to show the original and effective understanding of the parties in respect to the limits of their several territorial jurisdictions, under and by virtue of the provisions of the said treaties.

And whereas, it was further agreed by the said convention, referring to Articles III, IV and V of the said treaty of 1825, that the said tribunal should answer and decide the following questions:

1. What is intended as the point of commencement of the line?
2. What channel is the Portland channel?
3. What course should the line take from the point of commencement to the entrance to Portland channel?
4. To what point on the 56th parallel is the line to be drawn from the head of the Portland channel, and what course should it follow between these points?
5. In extending the line of demarcation northward from said point on the parallel of the 56th degree of north latitude, following the crest of the mountains situated parallel to the coast until its intersection with the 141st degree of longitude west of Greenwich, subject to the conditions that if such line should anywhere exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues from the ocean, then the boundary between the British and the Russian territory should be formed by a line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast and distant therefrom not more than 10 marine leagues, was it the intention and meaning of the said convention of 1825 that there should remain in the exclusive possession of Russia a continuous fringe, or strip of coast on the mainland not exceeding 10 marine leagues in width, separating the British possessions from the bays, ports, inlets, havens, and waters of the ocean, and extending from the said point on the 56th degree of latitude north to a point where such line of demarcation should intersect the 141st degree of longitude west of the meridian of Greenwich?

6. If the foregoing question should be answered in the negative, and in the event of the summit of such mountains proving to be in places more than 10 marine leagues from the coast, should the width of the lisière, which was to belong to Russia, be measured (1) from the mainland coast of the ocean, strictly so-called, along a line perpendicular thereto, or (2) was it the intention and meaning of the said convention that where the mainland coast is indentured by deep inlets forming part of the territorial waters of Russia, the width of the lisière was to be measured (a) from the line of the general direction of the mainland coast, or (b) from the line separating the waters of the ocean from the territorial waters of Russia, or (c) from the heads of the aforesaid inlets?

7. What, if any exist, are the mountains referred to as situated parallel to the coast, which mountains, when within 10 marine leagues from the coast, are declared to form the eastern boundary?

And whereas, His Britannic Majesty duly appointed Richard Everard, Baron Alverstone, G.C.M.G., Lord Chief Justice of England, Sir Louis Amable Jetté, K.C.M.G., Lieutenant Governor of the province of Quebec, and Allen Bristol Aylesworth, one of His Majesty’s Counsel; and the President of the United States of America duly appointed the Honourable Elihu Root, Secretary of War of the United States, the Honourable Henry Cabot Lodge, Senator of the United States from the State of Massachusetts, and the Honourable George Turner, of the State of Washington, to be members of the said tribunal.

Now therefore, we, the undersigned, having each of us first subscribed an oath, as provided by the said convention, and having taken into consideration the matters directed by the said convention to be considered by us, and having judicially considered the said questions submitted to us, do hereby make answer and award as follows:—

In answer to the first question—

The tribunal unanimously agrees that the point of commencement of the line is Cape Muzon.

In answer to the second question—

The tribunal unanimously agrees that the Portland channel is the channel which runs from about 55° 50' north latitude, and passes to the north of Pearse and Wales islands.

A majority of the tribunal, that is to say, Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge, and Mr. Turner, decides that the Portland channel, after passing to the north of Wales island, is the channel between Wales island and Sitkkan island, called Tongass channel. The Portland channel above mentioned is marked throughout its length by a dotted red line from the point B to the point marked C on the map signed in duplicate by the members of the tribunal at the time of signing their decision.

In answer to the third question—

A majority of the tribunal, that is to say, Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge, and Mr. Turner, decides that the course of the line from the point of commencement to the entrance to Portland channel is the line marked A B in red on the aforesaid map.

In answer to the fourth question—

A majority of the tribunal, that is to say, Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge, and Mr. Turner, decides that the point to which the line is to be drawn from the head of the Portland channel is the point on the 56th parallel of latitude marked D on the aforesaid map, and the course which the line should follow is drawn from C to D on the aforesaid map.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

In answer to the fifth question—

A majority of the tribunal, that is to say, Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge, and Mr. Turner, decides that the answer to the above question is in the affirmative.

Question 5 having been answered in the affirmative, question 6 requires no answer.

In answer to the seventh question—

A majority of the tribunal, that is to say, Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge, and Mr. Turner, decides that the mountains marked S on the aforesaid map are the mountains referred to as situated parallel to the coast on that part of the coast where such mountains marked S are situated, and that between the points marked P (mountain marked S, 8,000) on the north, and the point marked T (mountain marked S, 7,950), in the absence of further survey, the evidence is not sufficient to enable the tribunal to say which are the mountains parallel to the coast within the meaning of the treaty.

In witness whereof we have signed the above written decision upon the questions submitted to us.

Signed in duplicate this 20th day of October, 1903.

(Signed) ALVERSTONE.
ELIHU ROOT.
HENRY CABOT LODGE.
GEORGE TURNER.

Witness:

(Signed) REGINALD TOWER,
Secretary.

OPINION BY LORD ALVERSTONE. (1)

Second Question.

WHAT CHANNEL IS THE PORTLAND CHANNEL?

The answer to this question, as indicated by the learned counsel on both sides, depends upon the simple question: What did the contracting parties mean by the words ‘the channel called the Portland channel’ in Article III of the treaty of 1825? This is a pure question of identity. In order to answer it one must endeavour to put oneself in the position of the contracting parties, and ascertain as accurately as possible what was known to them of the geography of the district so far as relates to the channel called the Portland channel.

There are certain broad facts which, in my opinion, establish beyond any reasonable question that the negotiators had before them Vancouver’s maps, the Russian map (No. 5 in the British, No. 6 in the American atlas), Arrowsmith’s maps (probably the map numbered 10 in the American atlas), and Faden’s maps (British Appendix, pp. 10 and 11).

I have, moreover, no doubt that the negotiators were acquainted with the information contained in Vancouver’s narrative. I do not think it necessary to state in detail the evidence which has led me to this conclusion beyond stating that, quite apart from the overwhelming probability that this was the case, there are passages in the documents which, in my judgment, establish it to demonstration, but for the purpose of my 46a—53 reasons, it is sufficient to say that I have come to that clear conclusion after the most careful perusal of the documents.

I will now endeavour to summarize the facts relating to the channel called Portland channel, which the information afforded by the maps and documents to which I have referred, establish. The first and most important is that it was perfectly well known before, and at the date of the treaty, that there were two channels or inlets, the one called Portland channel, the other Observatory inlet, both of them coming out to the Pacific Ocean.

That the seaward entrance of Observatory inlet was between Point Maskelyne on the south and Point Wales on the north.

That one entrance of Portland channel was between the island now known as Kannaghunut and Tongas island.

That the latitude of the month or entrance to the channel called Portland channel, as described in the treaty and understood by the negotiators, was at 54° 45'.

The narrative of Vancouver refers to the channel between Wales island and Sitkkan island, known as Tongas Passage, as a passage leading south-south-east towards the ocean—which he passed in hope of finding a more northern and westerly communication to the sea, and describes his subsequently finding the passage between Tongas island on the north and Sitkkan and Kannaghunut on the south. The narrative and the maps leave some doubt on the question whether he intended the name Portland canal to include Tongas passage as well as the passage between Tongas island on the north and Sitkkan and Kannaghunut island on the south. In view of this doubt, I think, having regard to the language, that Vancouver may have intended to include Tongas passage in that name, and looking to the relative size of the two passages, I think that the negotiators may well have thought that the Portland channel, after passing north of Pearse and Wales island, issued into the sea by the two passages above described.

For the purpose of identifying the channel, commonly known as Portland channel, the maps which were before the negotiators may be useful. This is one of the points upon which the evidence of contemporary maps as to general reputation is undoubtedly admissible. It is sufficient to say that not one of the maps which I have enumerated above in any way contradicts the precise and detailed situation of Portland channel and Observatory inlet given by Vancouver’s narrative, and the other documents to which I have referred. The Russian map of 1802 shows the two channels distinctly; and the same may be said of Faden’s maps, on which so much reliance was placed on the part of the United States.

I do not attach particular importance to the way in which names on the maps are written or printed, and therefore I do not rely upon the fact that, in the case of some of these contemporary maps, the words ‘Portland channel’ are written so as to include, within the name, the lower part of the channel which is in dispute. From long experience I have found that it is not safe to rely upon any such peculiarities.

After the most careful consideration of every document in this case, I have found nothing to alter or throw any doubt on the conclusion to which I have arrived, and there are certain general considerations which strongly support it.

Russia and Great Britain were negotiating as to the point on the coast to which Russian dominion should be conceded. It is unnecessary to refer to all the earlier negotiations, but it is distinctly established that Russia urged that her dominion should extend to 55° of latitude, and it was in furtherance of this object that Portland channel, which issues into the sea at 54° 45', was conceded and ultimately agreed to by Great Britain. No claim was ever made by Russia to any of the islands south of 54° 45' except Prince of Wales Island, and this is the more marked because she did claim the whole of Prince of Wales Island, a part of which extended to about 54° 40'.

The islands between Observatory Inlet and the channel to which I have referred above as the Portland channel, are never mentioned in the whole course of the negotiations.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

It is suggested on behalf of the United States that Portland channel included both the channels, namely, the channel coming out between Point Maskelyne and Point Wales, and that running to the north of Pearse and Wales islands, and that, upon the doctrine of the thalweg, the larger channel must be taken as the boundary. It is sufficient to say that, in my opinion, there is no foundation for this argument. The lengths and the points of land at their entrances are given in the case of each channel by Vancouver in a way which precludes the suggestion that he intended to include both channels under one name, and it must be remembered that he was upon a voyage of discovery, and named these channels when he had discovered and explored them.

Inasmuch as the question submitted to us only involves the determination of the channel described in the treaty by the words already cited 'the channel called Portland channel,' subsequent history can throw no light upon this question; but I think it right to say that the use in the year 1853 of the name Portland Inlet in the British Admiralty chart, upon which much reliance was placed on behalf of the United States, has, in my opinion, no bearing upon the question, and the references to Tongas Island in 1853 as being on the frontier of the Russian straits, and in 1863 as being on the north side of the Portland Canal, and in 1869 as to Tongas being on the boundary between Alaska and British Columbia, are strongly confirmatory of the view at which I have arrived upon the consideration of the materials which were in existence at the date of the treaty.

I therefore answer the second question as follows:—

The channel which runs to the north of Pearse and Wales Islands, and issues into the Pacific between Wales Island and Sitkian Island.

(Signed) ALVERSTONE.

October 30, 1903.

OPINION BY LORD ALVERSTONE (2).

Fifth Question.

Is extending the line of demarcation northward from said point on the parallel of the 56th degree of north latitude, following the crest of the mountains situated parallel to the coast until its intersection with the 141st degree of longitude west of Greenwich, subject to the conditions that if such line should anywhere exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues from the ocean, then the boundary between the British and the Russian territory should be formed by a line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast, and distant therefrom not more than 10 marine leagues, was it the intention and meaning of said convention of 1825 that there should remain in the exclusive possession of Russia a continuous fringe, or strip of coast on the mainland not exceeding 10 marine leagues in width, separating the British possessions from the bays, ports, inlets, havens, and waters of the ocean, and extending from the said point on the 56th degree of latitude north to a point where such line of demarcation should intersect the 141st degree of longitude west of the meridian of Greenwich?

Stated shortly, I understand this question to ask whether the eastern boundary whether fixed by the crest of the mountains or by a distance of 10 marine leagues, was to run around the heads of bays, ports, inlets, havens, and waters of the ocean or not. I have come to the conclusion in the affirmative, viz., that the boundary, whether running along the summits or crests of the mountains, or—in the absence of mountains—at a distance of 10 marine leagues, was to run round the heads of the inlets, and not to cross them.
The language of the treaty of 1825 does not of itself enable this question to be answered distinctly—on the contrary, it contains the ambiguities which have given rise to the discussion upon the one side and the other.

Paragraph 2 of Article III states that the line of demarcation shall follow the summit of the mountains situated parallel to the coast (‘parallèlement à la côte’). This is the clause upon which the question really depends, because in the event of mountains being found to exist, situated parallel to the coast within a distance of 10 marine leagues, no recourse need be had to Article IV. Article IV, however, is of importance, as it may tend to throw light upon what was the meaning of the word ‘coast’ in Article III; and the words in paragraph 2 of Article IV are ‘wherever the summits of the mountains which extend in a direction parallel to the coast from the 56th degree of north latitude to the point of intersection of the 141st degree of west longitude shall prove to be at a distance of more than 10 marine leagues from the ocean.’ It is, in my opinion correctly pointed out, on behalf of the United States, that the word ‘coast’ is an ambiguous term, and may be used in two, possibly in more than two senses. I think, therefore, we are not only entitled, but bound, to ascertain as far as we can from the facts which were before the negotiators the sense in which they used the word ‘coast’ in the treaty.

Before considering this latter view of the case, it is desirable to ascertain, as far as possible from the treaty itself, what it means, and what can be gathered from the language of the treaty alone. The parties were making an agreement, as the opening words of the treaty show, as to the limits of their respective possessions on the north-west coast of America, and there cannot be any question that the word ‘coast’ in Articles I and II refers to the north-west coast of America. In Article III the opening words, ‘upon the coast of the continent,’ also refer to the north-west coast of America. The first ambiguity arises upon the word ‘coast’ in the phrase ‘parallel to the coast,’ in the description of the boundary in Article III, and as to the word ‘coast’ in the words ‘parallel to the coast’ in the second paragraph of Article IV, and the words ‘the line of coast’ and ‘the windings of the coast’ in the same paragraph. Article V does not bear directly upon the question in dispute, but the words ‘or upon the border of the continent’ (‘lisière de terre ferme’), which follow the words ‘upon the coast,’ afford some slight guide to the meaning of the word ‘coast’ in Article III. The word ‘coast’ in Article VI evidently means the coast of the continent, as it is in contrast with the words ‘ocean’ and ‘the interior.’ I postpone the consideration of the meaning of the word ‘coast’ in Article VII, as it raises a very important question, which is in controversy. Considering these various passages, and the use made of the word ‘coast’ therein, do they enable one, without reference to the previous negotiations, to answer the question as to whether the strip of territory mentioned in Article III was to run round the heads of the bays and inlets, or to cross them? I am of opinion that they do not. The broad, undisputed facts are that the parties were engaged in making an agreement respecting an archipelago of islands off the coast, and some strip of land upon the coast itself. The western limit of these islands extends in some places about 100 miles from the coast, and the channels or passages between the islands and between the islands and the coast are narrow waters of widths varying from a few hundred yards to 13 miles. In ordinary parlance no one would call the waters of any of these channels or inlets between the islands, or between the islands and the mainland, ‘ocean.’ I agree with the view presented on behalf of Great Britain, that no one coming from the interior and reaching any of these channels, and particularly the head of the Lynn canal or Taku inlet, would describe himself as being upon the ocean; but, upon the other hand, it is quite clear that the treaty does regard some of these channels as ocean. For instance, to take points as to which no question arises, between Wrangell island, Mitkoff island, and Kupreanoff island, all of which are north of latitude 56, it cannot, I think, be disputed that, for the purpose of the treaty, the waters between these islands and the mainland were included in the word ‘ocean,’ and that the coast upon which the eastern boundary of the lisière was to be drawn was the coast of the continent, and the mountains referred to in Article III were to be upon that coast, and the line referred to in paragraph 2 of Article IV was to be measured from those waters. This consideration, however, is not sufficient to solve the question; it still leaves open the interpretation of the word 'coast' to which the mountains were to be parallel.

Now, it is to be observed that prima facie the eastern boundary is to be fixed under Article III; as already pointed out, it is not necessary to have recourse to Article IV unless the mountains which correspond to those described in Article III prove to be at a distance of more than 10 marine leagues from the ocean. Assuming that the boundary is being determined in accordance with Article III, the mountains which are on the continent are to be parallel to the coast, and a person fixing the boundary under Article III would not leave the line which follows the summits or crest of the mountains unless that line was situated at more than 10 marine leagues from the ocean. As I have already pointed out, for a considerable part of the distance referred to in Article III, namely, from the southern end of Wrangell island up to the northern end of Kupreanoff island, the distance must be measured from the shore of these inland waters, which, and which alone, are the ocean referred to in Article IV. I am unable to find any words in the treaty which direct that the mountain line contemplated by Article III shall cross inlets or bays of the sea. In so far as the language of Article III of itself is a guide, it does not seem to me to contemplate such a state of things. Of course, if the main contention of Great Britain can be adopted, viz., that the words 'line of coast' and 'windings of the coast,' in paragraph 2 of Article IV, should it be necessary to have recourse to that paragraph, mean the general line of coast or the windings of the general coast, excluding inlets, the difficulty would disappear; but, in order to establish that position, it seems to me that Great Britain must show that the treaty uses the word 'coast' in the second paragraph of Article III, and in the second paragraph of Article IV, in that sense.

I see some broad objections to this view. In the first place, it necessitates the word 'coast' being used with two different meanings in the same clause; and, secondly, it makes it necessary to assume a view of the geographical position as being known to the negotiators, or to postulate that they assumed some definition, or common understanding, as to what the general line of the coast was.

There is, as far as I know, no recognized rule of international law which would by implication give a recognized meaning to the word 'coast' as applied to such sinuosities and such waters different from the coast itself.

As I have said more than once, the locus in quo to which the treaty was referring precludes the possibility of construing the word 'coast' in any particular article in any special way, if it does not refer to the coast-line of the continent. I think the words 'upon the border of the continent (lisière de terre ferme) comprised within the limits of the Russian possessions;' in Article V, rather confirm the view that Russia was to get a strip all along the continent, but I do not think that such reliance can be placed upon this because of the provision as to rivers and streams in Article VI.

Before leaving the treaty, it is, in my opinion, necessary to notice the very important argument put forward by Great Britain, founded upon Article VII. It was contended by Great Britain that the words 'gulfs, havens, and creeks on the coast mentioned in Article III,' referred only to the gulfs, havens, and creeks on the lisière or strip bounded as described in that article. If Great Britain could have made good that contention it would, in my opinion, have afforded the strongest argument that the treaty contemplated that the lisière or strip might cross bays, inlets, and arms of the sea; but in my opinion the contention cannot be successfully maintained.

The coast mentioned in Article III is, in my opinion, the coast of the continent, and the coast referred to in the second paragraph of Article IV is also the coast of the continent. The lisière, ascertained by drawing the boundary in accordance with the directions in Article III, is a strip upon the coast, and would not, I think, be naturally described by the words 'the coast mentioned in Article III.' My view is that the provisions of Article VII are perfectly general, and gave mutual rights for period of ten years to Russia and Great Britain respectively in respect of their possessions upon the north-west coast of America.

Turning now from the consideration of the language of the treaty alone, what light is thrown upon this question by reference to the negotiations?

After most careful examination, I have been unable to find any passage which supports the view that Great Britain was directly or indirectly putting forward a claim to the shores or ports at the head of the inlets. This is not remarkable, inasmuch as no one at the time had any idea that they would become of any importance.

In March, 1824, among the objects desired to be secured by Great Britain are stated to be the ‘embouchures’ of such rivers as might afford an outlet. In the proposals referred to in the same letter the littière is spoken of as a strip of land on the mainland, also as a strip of land on the coast of the continent. In the same documents the boundary is spoken of as ‘the mountains which follow the windings of the coast,’ and in correspondence of July, 1824, as ‘following the sinuosities of the coast along the base of the mountains nearest the sea,’ and ‘the base of the mountains which follow the sinuosities of the coast,’ and ‘mountains designated as the boundary shall extend down to the very border of the coast.’ It is sufficient to say that these passages certainly do not suggest, or imply, that the line from summit to summit will cross any substantial arm of the sea; and that it was not so understood by the negotiators for Great Britain, seems to me to follow from the passage in the letter of the 24th July, 1824, in which Great Britain consented to substitute the summit of the mountains for the seaward base, and suggested that a stipulation should be added that no fort should be established, or fortification erected, by either party, on the summit or in the passes of the mountains. It is difficult to see how such words could be applicable if it was contemplated that there might be a gap of 6 miles between summit and summit crossing the water. I have only to add upon this point that the language of both the British and Russian representatives, in reporting the conclusion of the treaty to their respective governments, is in accordance with the view which I have suggested.

I have felt it my duty to express the reasons which have led me to the conclusion to which I have come, that the answer to the Fifth Question should be in the affirmative, because I am constrained to take a view contrary to that presented by the advocates on behalf of Great Britain; but it must not be thought that I am insensible to the fact that there are strong arguments which might be urged in favour of the British view. I have little doubt that, if shortly after the making of the treaty of 1825 Great Britain and Russia had proceeded to draw the boundary provided by the treaty in accordance with the terms thereof, the difficulties, and, in certain events, the impossibilities, of drawing a boundary in strict accordance with the treaty would have been made evident. If, for instance, it had become necessary to draw a boundary in accordance with paragraph 2 of Article IV of the treaty, I believe that the view expressed by both the American and British authorities, that it is impossible to do so, would at once have become apparent. And in the same way, if the contention of the United States be well founded that no mountains exist on the coast which correspond with the treaty, a further difficulty would have been made manifest.

I can, therefore, well understand and appreciate the contention of Great Britain, that, under the existing state of circumstances, difficulties in delimiting the boundaries described must arise in one view, and might arise in any view. But these considerations, strong as they are in favour of a just and equitable modification of the treaty, do not in my opinion enable one to put a different construction upon the treaty. I think that the parties knew and understood what they were bargaining about, and expressed the terms of their bargain in terms to which effect can be given. The fact that when, sixty-five years later, the representatives of the two nations attempted to draw the boundary in accordance with the treaty, they were unable to agree upon its meaning, does not entitle me to put a different construction upon it.

In the view I take of the terms of the treaty itself, it is not necessary to discuss subsequent action. Had the terms of the treaty led me to a different conclusion, and entitled me to adopt the view presented by Great Britain, I should have felt great difficulty in holding that anything that had been done or omitted to be done by, or on behalf of, Great Britain, or that any conduct on her part, prevented her from insisting on the strict interpretation of the treaty: nor do I think that the representations of mapmakers that the boundary was assumed to run round the heads of the inlets could have been properly urged by the United States as a sufficient reason for depriving Great Britain of any rights which she had under the treaty, had they existed.

I therefore answer this Question in the affirmative.

(Signed) ALVERSTONE.

October 20, 1903.

OPINION BY MR. AYLESWORTH.

As the majority of the members of the tribunal have arrived at a conclusion which is entirely opposed to what, 'according to my true judgment,' is the plain meaning of the treaty we have to interpret, it appears necessary that I should state as briefly as I am able a few of the many reasons which compel me to dissent altogether from their award.

With regard to the point of commencement of the boundary line no question arises, as all parties agree that it is Cape Muzon.

Upon the second question I quote the words of the President of this tribunal, the italics, except in one instance, being my own.

Among the facts relating to Portland channel he finds—

'that the latitude of the mouth or entrance to the channel called Portland channel, as described in the treaty and understood by the negotiators was at 54° 45'.

Among the general considerations which support his conclusion he states that—

'Russia and Great Britain were negotiating as to the point on the coast to which Russian dominion should be conceded. It is unnecessary to refer to all the earlier negotiations; but it is distinctly established that Russia urged that her dominion should extend to 55° of latitude, and it was in furtherance of this object that Portland channel, which issues into the sea at 54° 45', was conceded and ultimately agreed to by Great Britain. No claim was ever made by Russia to any of the islands south of 54° 45' except Prince of Wales island, and this is the more marked because she did claim the whole of Prince of Wales island, a part of which extended to about 54° 40'.

'The islands between Observatory inlet and the channel, to which I have referred above as the Portland channel, are never mentioned in the whole course of the negotiations.'

These extracts are from Lord Alverstone's memorandum, expressing his considered judgment on this branch of the case. These conclusions have been arrived at after full discussion among ourselves of the answer which, upon the evidence, should be given to the second question—in which discussion each member of the tribunal has stated, at length, his individual views. Concurring, as I do, in the findings of fact stated in this memorandum, I should have contented myself with differing from the conclusion reached but for the course our proceedings have taken.

Consideration of the second question has been to-day resumed, and by unanimous vote of the tribunal it has been affirmed that each member, 'according to his true judgment,' believes the Portland channel mentioned in the treaty to be the channel extending towards the sea from latitude 55° 50', and lying to the north of Pearse and Wales islands. But, notwithstanding this unanimous finding of fact, it has been, by the majority of the tribunal, decided that the boundary line, starting from Cape Muxon, shall run to the south, instead of to the north, of Kannaghumut and Sitkkan islands, and so shall enter Portland channel between Sitkkan and Wales islands.

This course for the boundary is directly opposed to the distinct findings made, and the whole line of reasoning adopted by the President in his memorandum of reasons for the decision. It is a line of boundary which was never so much as suggested in the written case of the United States, or by counsel, during the oral argument before us. No intelligible reason for selecting it has been given in my hearing. No memorandum in support of it has been presented by any member of the tribunal, and I can, therefore, only conjecture the motives which have led to its acceptance.

It is admitted by everybody as absolutely clear and indisputable that on the occasion of his naming Portland canal, Vancouver, in his exploration of that channel, traversed it from its head inland to its entrance into the ocean in latitude 54° 45', that, in so doing, he sailed down Portland channel, along the passage north of Pearse and Wales islands, and straight onward to the sea through the passage north of Sitkkan and Kannaghumut islands. Every one knows and admits that Vancouver never traversed the passage between Sitkkan island and Wales island, through which this boundary line is now made to run. No more can it be pretended that this passage (which is now called Tongass passage) was ever named by Vancouver, was ever treated by him, or by any mapmaker at any time, as in any way belonging to Portland canal, or was ever thought of by those who negotiated the treaty of 1825 as being any part of that channel.

The Lord Chief Justice finds as a fact, which the maps and documents establish, that one entrance of Portland channel was between the islands now known as Kannaghumut and Tongass. I concur entirely in this finding, but must add that this entrance to the channel is the only entrance to it ever known, or in any way treated as part of the channel.

There is simply not the slightest evidence anywhere, that I am able to find, that either Vancouver or any subsequent explorer or mapmaker ever considered, or so much as spoke of, Portland channel as having two entrances to the ocean, or as including the passage through which this boundary line is now made to run.

But even if there were two or more such entrances, Vancouver's narrative and maps absolutely fix the one he explored and named by giving its exact latitude to the minute—54° 45'. And the President finds, as a fact, that this mouth, or entrance, is the one 'described in the treaty and understood by the negotiators.'

By what right, then, can this tribunal, sitting judicially, and sworn to so determine and answer the questions submitted, reject the channel so 'described in the treaty and understood by the negotiators,' and seek for a totally different channel, which, until now, no one ever thought of as any part of the Portland channel mentioned in the treaty?

I point to the additional circumstances so forcibly stated by my Lord. The whole negotiations were as to the 'point on the coast' to which Russia's southern boundary should be carried. The treaty fixes as that point the promontory of the mainland immediately to the north of Kannaghumut and Sitkkan islands, the latitude of which is 54° 45'. The next point of mainland coast to the southward is Point Maskelyne, and it, of course, is undisputably British territory. The islands which lie between were never asked for by Russia. As the President's memorandum says, they were never so much as mentioned in the whole course of the negotiations. They lie wholly to the southward of 54° 45', wholly to the southward of that entrance to Portland channel which alone is described in the treaty,' or was 'understood by the negotiators,' that is to say, wholly to the southward of the true boundary, and yet the majority of this tribunal is prepared to take two of those islands from Canada and transfer them to the United States.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

How can such a determination be reconciled with our duty to decide judicially upon the question submitted to us?

It is no decision upon judicial principles; it is a mere compromise dividing the field between the two contestants.

The formal answer which the President's memorandum makes to the question submitted is alone sufficient to condemn the boundary the tribunal is making. Question: 'What channel is the Portland channel?' Answer: 'The channel which runs to the north of . . . the islands of Sitkln and Kannaghunut, and issues into the Pacific between Wales island and Sitkln island.'

This language simply disregards entirely the relative position of the islands in question. Wales island lies due east of Sitkln. But the channel which runs to the north of Sitkln and Kannaghunut joins the ocean there, and, therefore, of necessity issues into the Pacific at that place, and it is the undoubted mouth of Portland channel. The treaty makes Portland channel the boundary, and if, as this answer formally states, Portland channel is that channel which runs to the north of these two islands, such two islands are necessarily British soil.

The whole truth of the matter is simply this: that, as to Portland channel, the case of Great Britain before us has been demonstrated to be unanswerable. By unanimous vote of this tribunal it has been so declared. It was, therefore, impossible to avoid awarding to Great Britain the islands called Pearse and Wales. It is equally impossible upon any intelligible principle for a tribunal, acting judicially, to hold that Portland channel, immediately on passing Wales island, makes a turn at right angles to itself, and runs between the islands of Wales and Sitkln. The sole question presented to us for decision on this branch of the case was whether the Portland channel of the treaty lay north of the four islands or south of the four, and until to-day it has been uniformly admitted by everybody that all four of these islands belonged altogether, either to Great Britain or to the United States. Instead of so finding, the majority of the tribunal have chosen to compromise with the plain facts of the case, and, while awarding Pearse and Wales islands to Great Britain, have determined to make those islands valueless to Great Britain or to Canada by giving to the United States the island called Sitkln and Kannaghunut. The latter islands are of the utmost consequence, for they lie directly opposite to, and command the entrance to, the very important harbour of Port Simpson, British Columbia.

Upon such findings of fact as those above described, and after a solemn adjudication that the Portland channel of the treaty lies to the north of Pearse and Wales islands, the taking of two important islands, Sitkln and Kannaghunut, from Canada, and giving them to the United States by a proceeding said to be judicial is 'according to my true judgment,' nothing less than a grotesque travesty of justice.

In considering Questions 5, 6 and 7, the practical inquiry before us is where, upon the ground, the line of boundary described in the treaty ought to be laid down. That line, from the 56th parallel to the 141st meridian, is to follow 'la crête des montagnes situées parallèlement à la côte.' Our duty is, therefore, to find what mountains those are which the high contracting powers intended to describe by the words just quoted.

To do so we must first determine the meaning of the words 'la côte,' by reference to which the particular mountains meant by the treaty are to be identified.

It may be that the word 'coast' is generally used as meaning the edge of the land next the sea, or the line where the water and the land meet, though the double word 'coast-line' would more accurately express that idea, but the word 'coast' has another well-recognized signification. It frequently means the frontier of a country or territories near the sea.

'Herod . . . slew all the children that were in Bethlehem and in all the coasts thereof.'—Matthew ii, 16.

'The Jews . . . raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coasts.'—Acts xiii, 50.

Exactly the same usage obtains in French in regard to the words 'la côte.'
In the treaty of 1825 the word is used sometimes in the one sense, sometimes in the other, as the context will readily demonstrate.

The preamble speaks of the possessions of the two powers 'on the north-west coast of America.'

Article I. secures to the subjects of both powers the right to land for purposes of trade at any occupied places 'on the coasts.'

Article II. prohibits landing without permission at any establishment 'on the north-west coast.'

Article III. defines a line of boundary between the possessions of the powers 'upon the coast of the continent.'

Articles IV and VI each speak of 'la lisière de côte' which is to belong to Russia.

In all these cases the word is used in its territorial signification.

But in Articles III. and IV. the word is used as well in another sense. By Article III. the boundary line, on leaving the 56th parallel, is to follow the top of the mountains 'situées parallèlement à la côte.' By Article IV. if these mountains should anywhere turn out to be more than 10 leagues 'from the ocean,' the line is there to run parallel to the 'sinuosités de la côte,' but so as never to be more than 10 leagues away from it.

It is perfectly plain that 'la côte' here does not mean territorial possessions. The word is undoubtedly used in the same treaty and in the same article of the treaty in different senses.

With what signification then is the word used in the instances just quoted?

Plainly, in Article IV. the meaning is synonymous with the edge 'of the ocean.' The 10 leagues spoken of are to be measured 'from the ocean' or 'from the coast.' The result of the measurement must be the same in either case—the therefore, water which is not the ocean cannot have a 'coast-line' from which the measurement of the 10 leagues could be made.

This consideration alone seems to me to demonstrate that the head of such an inlet as the Lynn canal forms no part of the coast-line within the contemplation of this treaty. It would seem to me ridiculous to speak of a ship as making an ocean voyage while sailing along Lynn canal. It may be answered that the waters of Stephen's Passage, or at the mouth of the Stikine, are not ocean either, and I agree that such waters are, by reason of the outlying islands opposite, territorial waters, and not the open ocean, but in this treaty the powers were, with reference to the lisière, dealing with mainland coast alone, and, in that regard, speaking and contracting exactly as though no islands existed, and as though the shore of the mainland were washed by the open sea.

Lynn canal, from Point Couverden to Skagway, is some 90 miles in length, and of a width varying from 2 or 3 to 7 or 8 miles. It is occupied at its mouth by islands which divide the entrance into three channels, of which the widest is not more than three nautical miles across, and each of the other two less than half that size. It is simply a land-locked lake of salt water, literally one of 'les mers intérieures' mentioned in Article VII. of the treaty.

If it were a question of determining the coast line of Lynn canal itself, such line would undoubtedly cross these islands at the entrance, just as the coast line of Lake Ontario would cross from island to island where the waters of the lake, flowing through the Thousand Islands, become the River St. Lawrence.

Such line, crossing at its narrowest part the entrance of Lynn canal from shore to shore, passing over the islands which lie in such entrance and the three intervening channels of water, is literally the dividing line between Lynn canal on the one side of it and the ocean on the other. Such line, in my opinion, is part of the line of 'coast' mentioned in Article IV., and the descriptive portion of Article III., of the treaty.

The whole negotiations leading to the treaty of 1825 grew out of the Russian Ukase of 1821, prohibiting foreign vessels from approaching the coast of North-west America, within 100 miles. The language of the Ukase in which this prohibition is worded contrasts the coasts with the islands, and shows that the coast of the mainland was that from which the 100 miles were intended to be measured, and M. Poletica, writing to Count Nesselrode (November 3, 1823) so describes it, saying that this edict had extended the maritime jurisdiction of Russia to the distance of 100 miles 'des côtes de la terre ferme.'

The mainland coast line within the meaning of this Ukase would, beyond doubt, cross Lynn canal at the entrance, and Russia would have laughed at a foreign navigator contending that his ship off the entrance to Lynn canal, at say 30 miles distance, was not transgressing the Ukase. or that she was not within 100 miles of the coast, because she was more than 100 miles from the head of Lynn canal inland.

Ignoring the presence of the islands in front of the lisière, as we must do in considering what meaning the makers of this treaty attached to the words 'la côte' when applying them to the mainland of the continent, it is too plain for argument to the contrary that the waters of Lynn canal are territorial or inland waters, as distinguished from the main sea or the high sea.

It is the open unclosed waters of the ocean, and not waters within the fauces terre on the sea coast which constitute the high sea.

United States of America v. Grush (1829), 5 Mason 290.
Manchester v. Massachusetts (1890), 139 U.S., 139.

So, leaving the islands out of consideration, the mainland coast-line, from which, if the islands were absent, one would have to measure the 3-mile strip of territorial sea water over which the power owning the lisière would have jurisdiction would pass from headland to headland, following in a general way the windings of the natural shore, but never entering long and narrow inlets or departing substantially from the general trend of the coast.

That the plenipotentiaries who negotiated the treaty considered the coast as not ascending such an inlet as Lynn canal is abundantly evident from their language. They considered the head of Lynn canal as not ocean, but something very different. This is clearly shown by the language in which they speak of Portland channel, an inlet of practically identical character, though not extending so far inland.

In their observations on Sir Charles Bagot's amended proposal (February-March, 1824), the Russians speak of Portland Channel as having its 'origine dans les terres' at the 56th parallel.

In writing Count Lieven, under date April 5 (17), 1824, Count Nesselrode says the Russians were willing to fix as their southern boundary Portland canal 'dont l'embouchure dans l'océan est à la hauteur de l'île du Prince de Galles et l'origine dans les terres entre les 55 et 56e degrés de latitude.'

It certainly never could have been Count Nesselrode's idea that the head of Portland canal, 50 miles from its 'embouchure dans l'océan,' was none the less ocean, and no more ought any one now to think he could persuade an impartial mind that the head of Lynn canal, still further inland, was the Pacific ocean.

Reference may well be made also to the language of the Russian 'contre-projet' of August, 1824, by Article 1, of which it is proposed that the boundary line shall ascend Portland channel 'jusqu'au point où cette passe se termine dans l'intérieur de la terre ferme.'

In the draft of the proposed treaty forwarded by Mr. George Canning to Mr. Stratford Canning on December 8, 1824, the boundary line was described as to ascend Portland channel till it strikes 'the coast' of the continent in the 56th degree of north latitude. Translating this document into the French language, Mr. Stratford Canning submitted his final 'projet,' in which it is proposed that the boundary line shall ascend Portland canal until it reaches 'la côte de terre ferme' at the 56th parallel. M. Matusevitch, for the Russian Government, recognizing the impropriety of describing the head of such a channel as 'the coast,' changed the phraseology into 'l'endroit où cette passe se termine dans l'intérieur de la terre ferme.'
Surely, under such circumstances, Russia could never afterwards have pretended that the head of Portland channel, or of any similar inlet, was upon the coast or formed part of the coast.

It seems to me equally an utter misapprehension and perversion of language to term a long, narrow fiord such as Lynn canal a mere 'sinuosité de la côte,' parallel to the sides of which the treaty intended this boundary line to be drawn. The coast 'parallèlement' to which the mountains forming the boundary are situate is, in my opinion, clearly the general trend or direction of the mainland coast line, disregarding alike narrow inlets and narrow peninsulas—cutting off a headland, it may be, where physical features justify it, or crossing the mouth of an inlet as readily as though it were the mouth of a river. And it seems to me of much importance to note that this was the view adopted by the Superintendent of the United States' Coast and Geodetic Survey when issuing to his assistants instructions for their work of survey under the convention of July 22, 1892. It was upon this footing that the work of survey was done by the United States and British governments, and the object of such survey was to ascertain the facts and data necessary to the permanent delimitation of the boundary line. This work, done upon this principle by the parties now litigating, affords to us by their convention the information upon which the boundary line must now be established in accordance with the spirit and true intent of the treaty in regard to it.

From such general trend of mainland coast line the inner boundary of the ïsître can never be more than 10 marine leagues distant; it may be much less if, nearer to the coast, mountains exist such as the treaty contemplates.

Such a coast line will follow literally the windings of the coast ('les sinuosités de la côte'), but will not depart from such coast to penetrate the interior 50 or 90 miles along a salt-water inlet any more than it would ascend for that distance a fresh-water river of possibly equal width.

If this is the true meaning of the words 'la côte' as used in the treaty in describing the boundary line, such boundary line must inevitably cross any inlet which is deeper than the maximum width of the ïsître and leave the head waters of such inlet within British territory, and, in my judgment, the treaty itself furnishes conclusive inherent evidence that such result was exactly what the powers entering into it contemplated.

By Article VII. of the treaty the vessels of the two powers were for ten years to be reciprocally at liberty to frequent, for purposes of fishing and trading, all the inland seas, gulfs, havens, bays, 'sur la côte mentionnée dans l'Article III.'

What waters, then, were these, to frequent which the Russians were accepting from Great Britain a ten years' license?

If it can be shown that these waters were those of the ïsître, or that the Russians so understood, it follows that they contemplated the boundary line at least possibly crossing inlets, and leaving the upper waters of such inlets within British territory.

The waters are those 'sur la côte mentionnée dans l'Article III.,' but Article III. speaks first of the possessions of the high contracting parties 'sur la côte du continent,' and afterwards of the boundary of the ïsître on the mountains 'situées parallèlement à la côte.'

Is it, then, the coast of the continent or the coast of the ïsître to which Article VII. refers?

Let the history of the article as traced from the negotiations give the answer.

Mr. George Cunning first proposed it in his letter to Count Lieven of May 29, 1824, and in his draft convention forwarded from London on July 12 following.

As to the ïsître, the proposal was (Article III. 2) that British subjects should ever freely navigate and trade along its coast, nothing being offered to Russian subjects as to British waters there. But with regard to the other parts of the northwest coast of America, Article V. proposed that for years vessels of the respective powers and of their subjects should reciprocally enjoy the liberty of visiting for purposes of fishery and commerce the gulfs, havens and creeks in places not already occupied.

Article V. in this draft did not affect the lisière now in question, and made no mention of any power to fish or trade in 'les mers intérieures' of the other's territory. Article V., as so presented to Russia, was merely an offer by Great Britain of a temporary license to fish and trade in British waters south of Portland channel upon Russia according to Great Britain similar license in respect of Russian waters west of Mount St. Elias. But the Russians were unwilling to concede to Great Britain the right to navigate and trade along the coast of the lisière for ever, and with regard to the other parts of the continental coast, having never asked from Great Britain any privileges of fishing or trading south of Portland channel, they absolutely refused to grant to her similar privileges north of the 90th parallel, or, which is to say, west of Mount St. Elias.

In his letter to Count Lieven of Aug 31 (September 4). 1824 (App., Br. case at p. 98, last paragraph, and p. 99, first paragraph). Count Nesselrode is emphatic and indignant in his declaration that except as to the lisière, no concession whatever in regard to either fishing, hunting, or trading would be made to Great Britain. Adhering firmly to this determination, as the Russians did, refusing inflexibly to grant to Great Britain any fishing or trading privileges west of Mount St. Elias, with what grace could Russia have demanded what she had never before asked, viz., exactly such privileges in the British territories south of Portland canal?

Nor was any suggestion made. On the contrary, in the same letter Count Nesselrode was very careful to point out (App., Br. case, p. 99, last paragraph), that Russia was leaving free to the trade of future establishments which English companies might form on the north-west coast 'tout le territoire situé au midi du Portland Channel.'

After consideration of Count Nesselrode's despatch, Mr. George Canning, on December 8. 1824, instructed Mr. Stratford Canning to conclude the treaty, accepting in above respects the objections of Russia, and saying—

'We are content also to assign the period of ten years for the reciprocal liberty of access and commerce with each other's territories.'

This was in its very terms that which alone Russia had signified she would agree to, viz., reciprocity in access and commerce limited in time to ten years, and limited in extent to the waters between Mount St. Elias and Portland canal.' Between these points Britain could not possibly have any waters to give except the heads of inlets.

In the draft convention which accompanied these instructions to Mr. Stratford Canning, the article which is now No. VII of the treaty was amended by inserting therein the words 'the inland sea' before the words 'gulfs, havens, and creeks,' which alone had appeared in the corresponding article of the draft convention sent by the same Minister to Sir Charles Bagot five months before.

There is no body of water between Mount St. Elias and Portland channel of which these words are so apt a description as they are of Lynn canal.

In his 'projet,' submitted to the Russian plenipotentiaries, Mr. Stratford Canning changed the words 'the inland sea' to 'toutes les mers intérieures,' as they stand in Article VII of the treaty as signed.

In Mr. Stratford Canning's 'projet,' as amended by the Russians in the handwriting of M. Matusevich, it is absolutely clear that the Russians understood the ten years' license of fishing and trading they were giving to the British, and reciprocally receiving from the British, related to the waters of the lisière, and to no other waters whatever. The wording of the Article is 'toutes les mers intérieures, les golples, havres, et criques dans les parties de la côte mentionnés dans l'Article III.,' while in Article III, the only coast mentioned, and the only parts of the coast included, are the 'coast' and the parts of it between latitude 54° 40' and longitude 144.

In the treaty, as finally signed, the words 'dans les parties de la côte' become simply 'sur la côte,' and the possessions of the powers are, in Article III., described as 'on the coast of the continent' instead of as 'on the continent,' but the true meaning and intention of the parties has been in no way altered thereby, and from the time of Count Nesselrodé's refusal to treat as to reciprocal trading rights elsewhere than in the lisière, and Mr. Canning's acquiescence in such refusal, no further negotiations whatever on that subject took place.

I am, therefore, of the clear opinion that Russia, by the treaty in question, intended and understood that the boundary line might cross inlets which would penetrate and divide the lisière exactly as a river would, and that, in that event, the heads of such inlets would lie within British territory, exactly as the upper reaches of a river would where that river flowed across the lisière.

With reference to the seventh question, as the majority of the tribunal has decided that the mountains which shall form the eastern boundary of the lisière are to be sought inland at some place behind the head waters of every inlet, it is idle for me to express my views at any length.

Over and over again in the negotiations this 'lisière de côte' which Russia was asking and England giving was spoken of by the Russians as a mere 'point d'appui,' as extending inland only 'une très petite distance,' as being only 'une étroite lisière sur la côte même,' or 'une simple lisière du continent.'

Consistently with this understanding of the width of the lisière, the mountains which were to form the inner boundary are always spoken of as being very near to the sea. The only knowledge of these mountains the negotiators of the treaty had was derived from Vancouver's travels, and Vancouver had seen the mountains only from his ships as these explored the coast.

The mountains nearest the sea for the whole length of the lisière are, in fact, lofty peaks, 3,000 feet or more in height, often rising to double or treble that elevation, and sometimes exceeding 15,000 feet. It is manifest that from the water, and close to shore, as Vancouver's course lay, mountains such as these would completely shut out any view of the country further inland. Except for possibly an occasional glimpse between seaward peaks of another mountain further away, Vancouver could have no knowledge what the nature of the country was behind the mountains he saw, and the language used by those who negotiated the treaty of 1825 shows that the extent of their knowledge was in this regard equally limited.

Under such circumstances, it is difficult for me to understand how the treaty, when it speaks of 'montagnes situées parallèlement à la côte,' can refer to mountains miles inland, invisible from the sea, which lie far behind the seaward mountains, and which it is an admitted impossibility that Vancouver ever saw or the negotiators of the treaty ever knew the existence of.

The words of the treaty, 'montagnes situées parallèlement à la côte,' and the idea of parallelism thereby conveyed, imply the line of mountains next adjacent to the coast. Apart from the circumstance that no kind of reason can be assigned for skipping over one or two, or it may be half a dozen, lines of mountains between the coast and the boundary, the very fact that the treaty couples the boundary line directly with the coast line argues in favour of the first line of mountains being meant. I think any one who spoke of two lines as parallel one to the other would scarcely have in contemplation a third line parallel to each, but situate between the two.

In the present case we have, moreover, the circumstance that throughout the negotiations preceding the treaty, these mountains are invariably spoken of as near to the coast.

In February, 1824, the first proposal of Russia as to the line (p. 70, Br. Case, App.) was that it should follow Portland canal 'jusqu'aux montagnes qui bordent la côte.'

Repeating this proposal in their observations on Sir Charles Bagot's amended proposal, the Russians say they would make the limit of the lisière to the east the chain of mountains 'qui suit à une très petite distance les sinuosités de la côte.'
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

In narrating to Count Lieven, the course of these negotiations, Count Nesselrode, in his letter of the 5th (17th) April, 1824, says they were willing their eastern frontier should run along the mountains ‘qui suivent les sinuosités de la côte.’

On Sir Charles Bagot’s despatches reaching England, the Hudson’s Bay Company suggested that the boundary ought to be fixed at the ‘nearest chain of mountains not exceeding a few leagues off the coast.’

Thereupon, Mr. George Canning sent to Sir Charles Bagot a draft convention, with instructions to conclude the negotiations. In these instructions (July 13, 1824), Mr. Canning directs that the line of boundary be drawn along the ‘base of the mountains nearest the sea.’

This draft convention prepared by Mr. Canning shows very clearly his understanding of the trivial width the lisière would have, as it contains a provision (not carried into the final treaty, as the Russians objected) that the British should for ever have the right to trade ‘sur la dite lisière de côte, et sur celle des isles qui l’avoisinent.’

Mr. Canning’s proposal that the boundary should be drawn along the base line of the mountains was objected to by Count Lieven for the reason, among others, that, considering the little certainty there then was in the geographical knowledge anybody had of the regions they were negotiating about, it would not be impossible that the mountains they were fixing as a boundary ‘s’étendissent par une pente insensible jusqu’aux bords même de la côte.’

This language makes it absolutely certain that the Russians understood their boundary to be the mountains nearest the sea.

On their proposing to take the top instead of the base of these mountains as the line of boundary, Mr. Canning assented, and the existing treaty resulted. It is not pretended that any change in the particular mountains intended was ever made or suggested. Whatever mountains those were, the base of which the British proposed as the boundary, those were the mountains the tops of which, by the concluded treaty, are the true boundary to-day, and it is to my mind clear to a demonstration that these were the mountains nearest the sea.

Three days after the treaty was signed, Count Nesselrode, in advising Count Lieven of the fact, says it would have been more just if, without any occasion possibly arising for application of the 10-league limitation, the boundary line had all along its length followed the natural frontier formed by ‘les montagnes qui bordent la côte.’

Ten days later, in writing again to Count Lieven on the subject, he directs him to make this observation to Mr. Canning, then describing the boundary Russia would have preferred to have taken throughout as ‘la crête des montagnes qui suivent les sinuosités de la côte.’

I am therefore of opinion that, upon the true interpretation of this treaty, the mountains which constitute the boundary are those which skirt the coast, the more prominent peaks among which have been pointed out in the British case and in the argument of counsel before us.

Finally, I have merely to say this further, that the course the majority of this tribunal has decided to take in regard to the islands at the entrance of Portland channel is, in my humble judgment, so opposed to the plain requirements of justice, and so absolutely irreconcilable with any disposition of that branch of this case upon principles of a judicial character, that I respectfully decline to affix my signature to their award.

(Signed) A. B. AYLESWORTH.

LONDON, October 17, 1903.
ALASKA BOUNDARY TRIBUNAL

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

OPINION OF SIR LOUIS JETTE.

By a majority of four the Alaska Boundary Tribunal has come to a decision on the questions upon which it had to pass judgment in accordance with the provisions of the treaty signed between Great Britain and the United States on January 24, 1903.

My honourable colleague, Mr. Aylesworth, and myself, have been unable to concur in most of the findings of the majority, and, although the treaty does not call for any expressions of opinion by those who differ, I feel it my duty to place on record, as briefly as I can, a few of the reasons by which I have been guided in arriving at conclusions different from those adopted by the other members of the commission.

I have no intention of writing exhaustively on the different questions submitted to the tribunal, as it would be more than useless at this moment. I will, therefore, refrain from any comment which could only be a repetition of the able argument advanced by the distinguished counsel in the case, and I will confine myself to a short and concise statement of the views which I firmly believe should have been accepted by the tribunal.

The first article of the treaty of 1903 gives the following directions to the members of the commission:

"The tribunal shall consist of six impartial jurists of repute, who shall consider judicially the questions submitted to them, each of whom shall first subscribe an oath that he will impartially consider the arguments and evidence presented to the tribunal, and will decide thereupon according to his true judgment."

Thus, the character of the functions which had been confided to us is clearly defined. We have not been intrusted with the power of making a new treaty, and it was not in our province to make concessions for the sake of an agreement; we had simply to give a judicial interpretation of the articles of that treaty which were submitted to us. And this position, as I take it, was rendered still more clear by the fact that, if a majority could not be found to agree, no harm was done, the way being then still left open for the governments of both countries to do what would, unquestionably, be in their power, that is, to settle the difficulty by mutual concessions if they found it advantageous to each other.

Finding thus, that the line of demarcation between our duties and our powers had been very clearly defined, I took it to be my first duty, in passing on the different questions submitted to us, not to assume any more power than had been given to me by this first article of the convention of 1903.

Article III. of this treaty of 1903 then provides:

"It is agreed by the high contracting parties that the tribunal shall consider, in the settlement of the question submitted to its decision, the treaties respectively concluded between His Britannic Majesty and the Emperor of all the Russians, under date of February 28 (March 16), A.D. 1825, and between the United States of America and the Emperor of all the Russians, concluded under date of March 30 (April 18), A.D. 1867, and particularly the Articles III., IV., and V. of the first mentioned treaty, which in the original text arc word for word as follows:

"III. La ligne de démarcation entre les possessions des Hautes Parties Contractantes sur la côte du continent et les îles de l'Amérique Nord-ouest, sera tracée ainsi qu'il suit:

"À partir du point le plus méridional de l'île dite Prince of Wales, lequel point se trouve sous le parallèle du 54° 40' de latitude nord, et entre le 131° et le 133° degré de longitude ouest (méridien de Greenwich) la dite ligne remontera au nord de la passe dite Portland channel, jusqu'au point de la terre ferme où elle atteint le 56° degré de latitude nord; de ce dernier point la ligne de démarcation suivra la crête des montagnes situées parallèlement à la côte, jusqu'au point d'intersection du 141° degré de longitude ouest (même méridien); et, finalement, du dit point d'intersection, la mêmes lignes méridiennes du 141° degré formera, dans son prolongement jusqu'à la Mer Glaciale, la limite entre les possessions Russes et Britanniques sur le continent de l'Amérique Nord-ouest.

"IV. Il est entendu, par rapport à la ligne de démarcation déterminée dans l'Article précédent—

1. Que l'île dite Prince of Wales appartiendra tout entière à la Russie.

2. Que partout où la crête des montagnes qui s'étendent dans une direction parallèle à la côte depuis le 56° degré de latitude nord au point d'intersection du 141° degré de longitude ouest, se trouverait à la distance de plus de 10 lieues marines de l'océan, la limite entre les possessions Britanniques et la lisière de côte mentionnée ci-dessus comme devant appartenir à la Russie sera formée par une ligne parallèle aux sinuosités de la côte, et qui ne pourra jamais en être éloignée que de 10 lieues marines.

V. Il est convenu, en outre, que nul établissement ne sera formé par une des deux Parties dans les limites que les deux Articles précédents assignent aux possessions de l'autre. En conséquence, les sujets Britanniques ne formeront aucun établissement soit sur la côte, soit sur la lisière de terre ferme comprise dans les limites des possessions Russes, telles qu'elles sont désignées dans les deux Articles précédents; et, de même, nul établissement ne sera formé par des sujets Russes au delà des dites limites.

The treaty then further provides:

The tribunal shall also take into consideration any action of the several governments of their respective representatives, preliminary or subsequent to the conclusion of said treaties, so far as the same tends to show the original and effective understanding of the parties in respect to the limits of their several territorial jurisdictions under and by virtue of the provisions of said treaties.

Article IV.

Referring to Articles III, IV and V. of the said treaty of 1825, the said tribunal shall answer and decide the following questions:

1. What is intended as the point of commencement of the line?

2. What channel is the Portland channel?

3. What course should the line take from the point of commencement to the entrance to Portland channel?

4. To what point on the 56th parallel is the line to be drawn from the head of the Portland channel, and what course should it follow between these points?

5. In extending the line of demarcation northward from said point on the parallel on the 56th degree of north latitude, following the crest of the mountains situated parallel to the coast until its intersection with the 141st degree of longitude west of Greenwich, subject to the condition that if such line should anywhere exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues from the ocean, then the boundary between the Russian and the British territory should be formed by a line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast and distant therefrom not more than 10 marine leagues, was it the intention and meaning of said convention of 1825 that there should remain in the exclusive possession of Russia a continuous fringe or strip of coast on the mainland, not exceeding 10 marine leagues in width, separating the British possessions from the bays, ports, inlets, havens and waters of the ocean, and extending from the said point on the 56th degree of latitude north to a point where such line of demarcation should intersect the 141st degree of longitude west of the meridian of Greenwich?

6. If the foregoing question should be answered in the negative, and in the event of the summit of such mountains proving to be in places more than 10 marine leagues from the coast, should the width of the lisière which was to belong to Russia be measured (1) from the mainland coast of the ocean, strictly so-called, along a line perpendicular thereto, or (2) was it the intention and meaning of the said convention 46a—61 that where the mainland coast is indented by deep inlets forming part of the territorial waters of Russia, the width of the lisière was to be measured (a) from the line of the general direction of the mainland coast, or (b) from the line separating the waters of the ocean from the territorial waters of Russia, or (c) from the heads of the aforesaid inlets?

7. What, if any exist, are the mountains referred to as situated parallel to the coast, which mountains, when within 10 marine leagues from the coast, are declared to form the eastern boundary?

The treaty then provides for the meetings of the tribunal and the rendering of the award in the following terms:—

'Article V.

'The tribunal shall assemble, for their first meeting, at London as soon as practicable after receiving their commissions, and shall themselves fix the times and places of all subsequent meetings.

'The decision of the tribunal shall be made as soon as possible after the conclusion of the arguments in the case, and within three months thereafter. The decision shall be made in writing, and dated, and shall be signed by the members of the tribunal assoenting to the same. It shall be signed in duplicate, one copy whereof shall be given to the agent of the United States of America for his government, and the other to the agent of His Britannic Majesty for his government.

'Article VI.

'Should there be, unfortunately, a failure by a majority of the tribunal to agree upon any of the points submitted for their decision, it shall be their duty to so report in writing to the respective governments through their respective agents. Should there be an agreement by a majority upon a part of the questions submitted, it shall be their duty to sign and report their decision upon the points of such agreement in the manner hereinbefore prescribed.'

As I have already said, these two last articles do not provide for any expression of opinion by these members of the tribunal who have the misfortune to find themselves in the minority.

The questions to be answered by the tribunal are seven in number. I will now take them in the order of the treaty:

First Question.

'What is intended as the point of commencement of the line?'

The answer to this question is as follows:—

'The tribunal unanimously agrees that the point of commencement of the line is Cape Muzon.'

The representatives of both governments having agreed to accept Cape Muzon as the southernmost point of Prince of Wales island, and to take it as the point of commencement of the line, nothing further need be said on this first question.

Second Question.

'What channel is the Portland channel?'

The following is the answer of the commission to this question:—

'The tribunal unanimously agrees that the Portland channel is the channel which runs from about 55° 56' north latitude, and passes to the north of Pearse and Wales islands.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

A majority of the tribunal, that is to say, Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge and Mr. Turner, decides that the Portland channel after passing to the north of Wales island is the channel between Wales island and Sitklaun island called Tongass channel.

The Portland channel above mentioned is marked throughout its length by a dotted red line from the point marked B to the point marked C on the map, signed in duplicate by the members of the tribunal at the time of signing their decision.

The contention of the United States on this point was that Portland channel is that body of water which goes seaward between Pearse island and the peninsula, passes Ramsden point in (or at the entrance of) Observatory inlet, and reaches the ocean by the channel between Pearse and Wales islands on the west and the easterly continental shore, entering the ocean between Point Wales on the west and Point Maskelyne on the east.

The contention of Great Britain was, that it is the channel which enters the ocean between Tongass island and Kannagunut island, leaving Sitklaun, Wales and Pearse islands on the south and east, and extending northerly 52 miles to its head.

The difference between the two contentions will be rendered more striking by saying that the British Portland Channel would run straight from its head to the ocean, whilst the American Portland Channel would divide in two passages at the head of Pearse island, and there leaving its northern branch would make a curve, and, entering Observatory inlet, would run down to the sea through that inlet, at the south of Pearse and Wales islands.

The contention of Great Britain is, to my mind, clearly supported by Vancouver's narrative of his voyage of 1794, when, after relating his movements in these waters, day by day, and specially from July 27 to August 2, he says:

In the morning of the 2nd (August) we set out early, and passed through a labyrinth of small islets and rocks, along the continental shore; this, taking now a winding course to the south-west and west, showed the south-eastern side of the canal to be much broken, through which was a passage leading S.S.E. towards the ocean. We passed this in the hope of finding a more northern and westerly communication, in which we were not disappointed, as the channel we were then pursuing was soon found to communicate also with the sea, making the land to the south of us one or more islands. From the north-west point of this land, situated in latitude of 54° 45½', longitude 229° 28', the Pacific was evidently seen between N. 58 W. and S. 81 W.'

Adding finally (under date August 15):

In the forenoon we reached that arm of the sea whose examination had occupied our time from the 27th of the preceding to the 2nd of this month. The distance from its entrance to its source is about 70 miles, which, in honour of the noble family of Bentinck, I named Portland Canal.

When this second question was put to the commissionners, at the time of rendering the award, every one of them, as will appear by the official report, answered that Portland channel was the channel that passed—contrary to the American contention—to the north of Pearse and Wales islands.

But on a sub-question being put, the majority of the commissionners decided that after passing north of Pearse and Wales islands, it should pass south of Sitklaun and Kannagunut islands, which lie directly to the westward of Pearse and Wales islands, should make a curve there, and, abandoning its northern course, should reach the sea through Tongass passage instead of following the continuous straight line which, a moment before, had been found to be the proper one.

I voted against this sub-proposition, because I found that it was totally unsupported either by argument or authority, and was, moreover, illogical. The commission had, just a moment before, decided—and very properly, I believe—that Portland channel, as described by Vancouver, was that channel indicated on all the maps as running straight to the sea; it had refused to accept the contention of the United States to have it leave its northern course, and, making a curve at Pearse Island, to run through Observatory inlet, and all at once it is decided that this very channel shall make a curve lower down, that it will now leave its straight northern course and run into the sea through Tongass passage.

I can only say that if this decision is a correct and just one, I am very much afraid that the majority of the commission has committed an injustice towards the United States in refusing to admit its contention that the channel ought to make that curve a little higher up, at the head of Pearse island, which solution would appear, to any one having studied the map, a much more sensible and reasonable one than that which has been adopted.

The result of this last decision, on the sub-question above mentioned, is to deprive Canada of the two islands which lie at the very entrance of Portland Channel, Sitklan, and Kannaghanut islands. It will strike the eye of every one who looks at the map that the position of those two islands, at the entrance of the channel, is a most important one from a military point of view, and that the loss of them to Canada may be felt seriously in the future.

Third Question.

'What course should the line take from the point of commencement to the entrance to Portland Channel?'

The answer of the majority of the tribunal to this question is as follows:—

'A majority of the tribunal, that is to say, Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge, and Mr. Turner decide that the course of the line from the point of commencement to the entrance of Portland channel is the line marked A B in red on the aforesaid map.'

The line indicated in this answer is a direct line from Cape Muzon to the south entrance of Tongass passage.

This being in opposition to the language of the treaty, which is: 'Commencing from the southernmost point of the island called Prince of Wales Island, ... the said line shall ascend to the north along the channel called Portland channel; I feel bound to differ from the decision of the majority. Tongass Passage, as I have stated, on the previous question, is not Portland Channel, and the treaty says that the line shall be drawn along Portland Channel, but does not say that it can be drawn along Tongass Passage.

Fourth Question.

'To what point of the 56th parallel is the line to be drawn from the head of the Portland Channel, and what course should be followed between these points?'

This has been answered as follows:—

'A majority of the tribunal, that is to say, Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge, and Mr. Turner decides that the point to which the line is to be drawn from the head of Portland Channel is the point on the 56th parallel of latitude marked D on the aforesaid map, and the course which the line should follow is drawn from C to D on the aforesaid map.'

The decision on this point is not of great importance, as it affects only a few miles of territory. I must say, however, that it is not in accordance with the rule given by the treaty, which requires that, from this point, the 56th degree of north latitude, the line of demarcation shall follow the summit of the mountains situated parallel to the coast, ... and that whenever the summit of such mountains ... shall prove to be at a distance of more than 10 marine leagues from the ocean, the limit shall be formed by a line parallel to the windings of the coast, and which shall never exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues therefrom.'
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

But, as I have just said, the territory affected by this decision is not of great importance, and the rule adopted by the majority on this point will, I may add be examined further on when dealing with Question 7.

Fifth Question.

‘In extending the line of demarcation northward from said point on the parallel of the 56th degree of north latitude, following the coast of the mountains situated parallel to the coast, until its intersection with the 141st degree of longitude west of Greenwich, subject to the condition that if such line should anywhere exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues from the ocean, then the boundary between the British and the Russian territory should be formed by a line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast, and distance therefrom not more than 10 marine leagues, was it the intention and meaning of said convention of 1825 that there should remain in the exclusive possession of Russia a continuous fringe or strip of coast on the mainland, not exceeding 10 marine leagues in width, separating the British possessions from the bays, ports, inlets, havens, and waters of the ocean, and extending from the said point on the 56th degree of latitude north to a point where such line of demarcation should intersect the 141st degree of longitude west of the meridian of Greenwich?’

The answer to this question, in the award rendered by the majority, is in the following terms:

‘A majority of the tribunal, that is to say, Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge and Mr. Turner, decides that the answer to the above question is in the affirmative.’

The contention of the United States on this point is therefore accepted as well founded. It follows from this decision that the strip of territory granted to Russia by the treaty runs around all the openings of the coast, specially Lynn canal, and thus deprives British possessions of any access to the sea on the whole length of the said islière.

This treaty of 1825 was signed between England and Russia after very protracted negotiations, which took place during a period extending from November, 1821, to February, 1825. At the end of a considerable amount of communication and diplomatic correspondence the parties had come to an understanding, and agreed on the terms of a convention apparently satisfactory to both, and which seemed to contain, it not what each would have liked to have obtained, at least what they had mutually conceded to each other.

It will be useful here to recall briefly the circumstances which led the governments of Great Britain and Russia to sign this treaty, and to go back to the negotiations which preceded it, in order to have a fair understanding of its importance and bearing.

The Emperor of Russia, Paul the First, following the course adopted by all the governments of Europe from the beginning of the 17th century, had, in 1799, granted to an important company, called the Russian American Company, the monopoly of trade, hunting, and fishing on all the territory claimed by Russia on that part of North America (indicating as the limit the 55th degree of latitude), and also ‘on the chain of islands extending from Kamschatka to the north, to America, and southward to Japan.’

Great Britain, whose possessions on the North American continent extended as far as those of Russia, had granted a similar monopoly to the Hudson’s Bay Company, and in their adventurous explorations, advancing more and more every year in the unknown regions of this vast continent, the trappers of this company and of the Northwest Company had at last met with the agents of the Russian American Company. Hence there soon arose the necessity of determining the limit of both empires’ territory on this continent.

But another reason also necessitated the attention and action of the government of Great Britain in this instance.
Emperor Alexander the First, wishing to grant additional favour to the Russian American Company, had published, in 1821, by a Ukase bearing date September 4, a regulation prohibiting all foreign vessels from approaching the coast of this part of the Russian territory within less than 100 Italian miles.

The two great maritime nations, Great Britain and the United States, could not acquiesce in a prohibition so completely antagonistic to the rules of international law and to the interests of commerce. Consequently, representations were made to the Russian government.

In the course of the negotiations which followed, the question of maritime supremacy over a distance of 100 Italian miles was soon settled, as stated in a despatch of Mr. George Canning to Sir Charles Bagot, bearing date January 15, 1824.

Mr. Canning clearly and concisely analyses the situation in the following terms:—

'The questions at issue between Great Britain and Russia are short and simple.

'The Russian ukase contains two objectionable pretensions: first, an extravagant assumption of marine supremacy; second, an unwarranted claim of territorial dominion.

'As to the first, the disavowal of Russia is, in substance, all we could desire.'

The only thing remaining to be settled, therefore, was the question of the frontier. Russian establishments at that date were more especially on the islands, and Count Nesselrode acknowledges that on the continent they had none below the 57th degree of latitude. These establishments were therefore the ones whose protection was specially desired and intended, and we will now see that it was in that spirit that the negotiations, which were to end in this treaty of 1825, were begun and continued.

In order to indicate the true character of these negotiations, a few quotations will be sufficient.

In a despatch dated November 3, 1823, and addressed to Count Nesselrode, M. de Polticia, giving the account of an interview he had had with Sir Charles Bagot, His Britannic Majesty's ambassador to St. Petersburg, says:—

'In the midst of this argument the British ambassador suddenly suspended the discussion in order to tell me that his government had, after all, no intention of discussing the territorial question according to the abstract principles of public law or of international law; that that would have the effect of rendering the discussion interminable; that the Cabinet of London expected a more satisfactory result, for the two parties interested, from an amicable arrangement which would be based only upon mutual consent, and that his instructions had been drawn up in that spirit.

'I replied to Sir Charles Bagot that in the matter in question, so far as I could foresee the views of the Imperial Government, I believed that I could take upon myself boldly to assure him that they were in perfect agreement with those of the Cabinet of London.'

The position of both parties is therefore clearly defined by these very plain and very full declarations.

Let us see now what were the claims of Russia as to this strip of territory, which is the subject of the present difficulty.

As I have already said, Russian establishments at that time were more especially situated on the islands, and the Russian plenipotentiaries openly declare that it is for the protection of those establishments that they require this strip of territory on the coast of the mainland, coming so far down towards the south, when the principal line of separation between the possessions of the two empires on this continent was, however, to be placed much higher up.

So we find in the counter-proposition offered by Russia, in answer to a draft of convention submitted by Sir Charles Bagot in March, 1824, the following declaration:—

'The principal motive which forces Russia to insist upon retaining the sovereignty over the strip of land described previously on the mainland from the Portland canal as far as the point of intersection of the 60th degree of latitude with the 139th degree of longitude is that, if deprived of this territory, the Russian American Company would be left without any means of supporting the establishments, which would thereby be left without any support, and could not have any strength nor solidity.'

A few days later (March 29, 1824), in the document containing the final answer to the British proposition, the Russian plenipotentiaries, affirming their previous claims, also say:—

'The Emperor instructs his plenipotentiaries to declare once again to the ambassador of England:

'That the possession of Prince of Wales island without a portion of territory on the coast opposite this island could not be of any use to Russia.

'That any establishment formed on the said island, or on those around it, would in some manner, be turned by the English establishments of the mainland, and be completely at the mercy of the latter.'

On April 5 following, Count Nesselrode, in a despatch to Count Lieven, Russian ambassador to London, says:—

'In order to avoid intersecting the Prince of Wales island, which, according to this arrangement, should belong to Russia, we proposed to carry the southern frontier of our domains to the 54th degree 40 minutes of latitude, and to make it strike on the continent the Portland canal, the mouth of which, on the ocean, lies at the height of Prince of Wales island, and the head inland between the 55th and 56th degree of latitude.

'This proposition only secured to us a narrow strip on the coast itself, and left to the English establishments all the space required for their increase and extension.'

And a little further on he adds:—

'As for us, we restrict our demands to a small strip (lisière) of coast on the continent, and in order to dispel all objections whatsoever, we guarantee the free navigation of the rivers, we proclaim the opening of the port of Novo-Archangelsk.'

One month later, Count Nesselrode, in another despatch to Count Lieven, again says:—

'If the principle of reciprocal convenience is advocated, Russia gives up for the progressive extension of the English establishments a vast extent of coast and of territory; she guarantees free markets; she makes provision for the interests of their trade, and, as a compensation for so many offers inspired by the sincerest spirit of conciliation, she reserves for herself only a point of support, without which it would not be possible for her to keep one-half of her dominions.'

It is unnecessary to multiply these quotations.

Let us see now how—after coming to such an understanding—the final convention was drafted.

A number of drafts and counter-drafts were exchanged between the representatives of the two governments, and it is interesting to note the successive changes made in the wording of those documents as to the strip of territory claimed by Russia.

In the draft of agreement sent by Mr. George Canning to Sir Charles Bagot on July 12, 1824, it is stated, in Article II., that the line 'shall be carried along the coast in a direction parallel to its windings, and at or within the seaward base of the mountains by which it is bounded.'

Mr. Canning, in his letter inclosing this draft, uses the following expressions: 'thence following the sinuosities of the coast, along the base of the mountains nearest to the sea.'

Article III. of this draft then mentioned a width—to be determined upon—which this strip of land could not exceed.
This proposal was not accepted, and Count Nesselrode sent to Count Lieven a counter draft, the terms of which, with regard to the lisière, he himself analyzes in the following terms: 'Our counter draft carries our boundary from the 51st degree of north latitude to 54° 40'. It leaves the establishments which the English companies may form hereafter on the north-west coast all the territory situated to the south of Portland channel. It abolishes the establishment of the mountains as the boundary of the strip of mainland which Russia would possess on the American continent, and limits the width of this strip to 10 marine leagues, in accordance with the wishes of England.'

In a letter addressed to Mr. Stratford Canning, dated December 8, 1824, Mr. George Canning replied to Count Nesselrode's proposal as follows:—

'The Russian plenipotentiaries propose to withdraw entirely the limit of the lisière on the coast which they were themselves the first to propose, viz., the summit of the mountains which run parallel to the coast, and which appear, according to the map, to follow all its sinuosities, and to substitute generally that which we only suggested as a corrective of their first proposition.

'We cannot agree to this change.' It is quite obvious the boundary of mountains, where they exist, is the most natural and effectual boundary. The inconvenience against which we wished to guard was that which you know to have existed on the other side of the American continent, when mountains laid down in a map as in a certain given position, and assumed, in faith of the accuracy of the map, as a boundary between the possessions of England and the United States, turned out to be quite differently situated, a discovery which has given rise to the most perplexing discussions. Should the maps be no more accurate as to the western than as to the eastern mountains, we might be assigning to Russia immense tracts of inland territory, where we only intended to give, and she only intended to ask, a strip of the sea coast. . . . .

'Where the mountains are the boundary, we are content to take the summit instead of the seaward base as the line of demarcation.'

Article III. of the draft of treaty sent with this letter by Mr. George Canning to Mr. Stratford Canning, says: 'Provided, nevertheless, that if the summit of the above-said mountains shall turn out to be, in any part of their range, at more than the distance of 10 marine leagues from the Pacific, then that, for that space, the line of demarcation shall be a line of parallel to the coast and its windings, &c.

This draft having been submitted to Mr. Matusevich—an official of the Russian Office, and afterwards Ambassador Extraordinary—was slightly changed. Thus, in Article IV, instead of maintaining the expression 'the Pacific,' he says: 'That wherever the distance between the crest of the mountains and the sea shall be more than 10 marine leagues, the boundary of this same strip shall be formed by a line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast, and which shall nowhere be more than 10 marine leagues from the sea.'

Was it M. Matusevich's intention, in substituting this word sea, to the word Pacific which had been used by Mr. Canning, to weaken the force and bearing of the expression chosen by him? It is impossible to know; but one thing is certain, however, and it is that if such was his intention it was not realized, the treaty in its definite form using the word 'ocean,' which, in this instance, is the equivalent of the expression used by Mr. Canning.

Thus the second paragraph of Article IV of the treaty of 1825 provides:—

'Que partout où la crête des montagnes qui s'étendent dans une direction parallèle à la côte, depuis le 56° degré de latitude nord au point d'intersection du 141° degré de longitude ouest, se trouverait à la distance de plus de 10 lieues marines de l'océan, la limite entre les possessions Britanniques et la lisière de côte mentionnée ci-dessus comme devant appartenir à la Russie, sera formée par une ligne parallèle aux sinuosités de la côte et qui ne pourra jamais en être éloignée que de 10 lieues marines.'
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

It is a well known rule in the interpretation of contracts that one of the safest modes of arriving at the true intention of the parties is to take into consideration the circumstances which have led to the settlement, to study the claims which each party pressed upon the other, and to ascertain the end which it would have wished to secure.

Now, if I apply this rule to the treaty of 1825, it seems to me impossible to arrive at the conclusion that the intention of the parties to this treaty was that this strip of territory should be traced so as to run up to the source of all the rivers, and to the head of all the inlets, which passed through this strip to reach the sea.

This, however, is the meaning which a majority of the tribunal has given to this treaty when by an interpretation of the word coast, which appears to me to be forced and untenable under the circumstances, they are led to say that Lynn canal is the ocean, and that the coast of the ocean means equally the coast of Lynn canal!

I cannot accept this interpretation. My humble opinion, after having maturely considered the documents from which I have taken the quotations made above, is that those who prepared and drafted this treaty of 1825 never contemplated such a result.

Consequently, leaving aside the learned distinctions which were pressed upon us as to the meaning of the word coast, to retain only what I believe was the intention of the parties, I still say that even if we were to consider Lynn canal as an arm of the sea, or even as an inland sea, the coast of Lynn canal could not, even then, be considered the coast of the ocean!

There is in my country one of the largest rivers in the world, and I have often heard it said by some of my compatriots, when contemplating with pride the immense sheet of water at its mouth. 'Why, but this is the sea!'

However, it has not yet entered the mind of any one to say: 'This is the ocean!'

It has been reserved for Lynn canal to be raised to that dignity!

Sixth Question.

'If the foregoing question should be answered in the negative, and in the event of the summit of such mountains proving to be in places more than 10 marine leagues from the coast, should the width of the lisière which was to belong to Russia be measured—(1) from the mainland coast of the ocean, strictly so-called, along a line perpendicular thereto, or (2) was it the intention and meaning of the said convention that where the mainland coast is indented by deep inlets forming part of the territorial waters of Russia, the width of the lisière was to be measured (a) from the line of the general direction of the mainland coast, or (b) from the line separating the waters of the ocean from the territorial waters of Russia, or (c) from the heads of the aforesaid inlets?'

The majority of the tribunal declares that:

'Question 5 having been answered in the affirmative, Question 6 requires no answer.'

The opinion of the members of the tribunal on this question, moreover, is made apparent from the views expressed on the other question, and it would be useless to add anything more.

Seventh Question.

'What, if any exist, are the mountains referred to as situated parallel to the coast, which mountains when within 10 marine leagues from the coast, are declared to form the eastern boundary?'

Answer:

'A majority of the tribunal, that is to say, Lord Alverstone, Mr. Root, Mr. Lodge, and Mr. Turner, decides that the mountains marked S on the aforesaid map, are the mountains referred to as situated parallel to the coast, where such mountains marked S are situated.
'Between the point marked P (mountain marked S 8,000) on the north and the point marked T (mountain marked S 7,950), in the absence of further survey the evidence is not sufficient to enable the tribunal to say which are the mountains parallel to the coast within the meaning of the treaty.'

Article III of the treaty of 1825, after declaring that the line of demarcation shall ascend to the north along the channel called Portland channel, as far as the point of the continent where it strikes the 56th degree of north latitude, adds:—

'From this last mentioned point the line of demarcation shall follow the summit of the mountains situated parallel to the coast as far as the point of intersection of the 141st degree of west longitude.'

Article IV, § 2, then provides:—

'That whenever the summit of the mountains which extend in a direction parallel to the coast, from the 56th degree of north latitude to the point of intersection of the 141st degree of west longitude, shall prove to be at the distance of more than 10 marine leagues from the ocean, the limit between the British possessions and the line of coast which is to belong to Russia, as above mentioned, shall be formed by a line parallel to the windings of the coast, and which shall never exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues therefrom.'

The contention of the United States on this point is stated in the following words, on p. 206 of the case:—

'The United States request the tribunal to answer and decide that such mountains (as mentioned in question 7) do not exist within 10 marine leagues from the coast.'

This, however, cannot be said to express correctly what was argued before the tribunal on this question. It would perhaps be safer to say that the real contention of the United States on this point was that in the intention of the negotiators of the treaty the line was to follow a chain of mountains, and that there being no such chain, the line was to be drawn at a uniform and regular distance of 35 miles from the coast.

It was also suggested, in the argument, that the word crest carries with it the indication of a continuous chain or range of mountains, and that this does not exist within the limit of the 10 leagues.

The British contention was that mountains answering the description of the treaty do exist.

...
mountains, and that those mountains which exist along the coast, answer the requirements of the treaty for the tracing of the line-frontier.

I entirely concur in the foregoing part of the decision of the tribunal on this question, but I stop there, and cannot follow the majority in the adoption of its system for the demarcation of the line.

The treaty of 1825 clearly indicates, in my opinion, that the mountains which were to constitute the boundary line, were those nearest to the coast. In fact, when the treaty says: 'the summit of the mountains situate parallel to the coast,' it evidently points to the mountains on the coast, those which are situated on the border of the coast, and if we were to suppose two chains of mountains, one parallel to the other, the one which would lie the farthest from the coast would not be situated parallel to the coast, but it would be situated parallel to the other chain of mountains. Therefore, the first range of mountains, the one nearest to the coast, is the one which is alone indicated by the treaty. This, to me, seems unanswerable.

But a few quotations from the opinions of those who have negotiated this treaty, will render the point still more evident.

Mr. George Canning, in a despatch to Sir Charles Bagot, dated July 12, 1824, says:—

'His Majesty's government have resolved to authorize your Excellency to consent to include the south points of Prince of Wales island within the Russian frontiers, and to take as the line of demarcation a line drawn from the southernmost point of Prince of Wales island from south to north through Portland channel, till it strikes the mainland in latitude 56, thence following the sinuosities of the coast, along the base of the mountains nearest the sea to Mount Elias . . . .'

Count Lieven, in a memorandum which he prepared on the North-west coast convention (July 24, 1824), says:—

'In the case now under consideration, the word base, by the indefinite meaning which it presents, and the greater or less extension which can be given to it, would appear hardly suitable to secure the delimitation against subsequent disputes, for it would not be impossible, in view of the little exactness of the geographical ideas which we as yet possess as to these regions, that the mountains designated as the boundary should extend, by an insensible slope, down to the very border of the coast.'

In his despatch to Count Lieven, bearing date of February 20, 1825, Count Nesselrode again mentions 'the natural frontier formed by the mountains bordering on the coast.'

There is, therefore, no doubt in my mind that the mountains indicated by the treaty are those situated nearest to the coast.

Nevertheless, instead of following the evident meaning of the treaty, the majority of the tribunal has adopted a line which, at a number of points of its course, rests on mountains which lie far from the coast, and are separated from it by nearer ones, which ought consequently to have been chosen in their stead, as the points of demarcation of the line.

I found it impossible, under such circumstances, to concur in this arbitrary determination of a line which, although it does not concede all the territory they claimed to the United States, nevertheless deprives Canada of the greater part of that to which she was entitled.

(Signed) L. A. JETTE.

October 22, 1903.
OPINION OF THE UNITED STATES' MEMBERS OF THE TRIBUNAL (1).

Opinion on Second Question.

Question number two of the convention, 'What is the Portland channel?' has presented such peculiar difficulties that the undersigned feel it necessary to set forth the reasons which have led them to join in the decision rendered by a majority of the tribunal.

An inlet of great depth, starting just below the 56th parallel, runs down to the head of Pearse island. At this point the inlet divides, and down to this point of division there is no question of identity, and none has ever been seriously raised. From the north-eastern corner of Pearse island to within five miles of the 56th parallel the identity of this inlet with the Portland channel, as intended by the negotiators of the treaty of 1825, is undisputed, but after the division at Pearse island the question has arisen whether the channel south of Pearse and Wales islands is the Portland channel, or whether that which passes to the north of those two islands is entitled to the name. Were we able to rest a decision solely on maps which we know to have been before the negotiators of the treaty of 1825, the weight of evidence in the opinion of the undersigned would be in favour of the view that the Portland channel passed south of Wales and Pearse islands, with Observatory inlet entering it on the other side, and so on to the sea. The northern channel as indicated on contemporary maps is narrow and indistinct, so that it is not easy to believe that any negotiators would have taken it as a clear, well-defined, natural boundary, such as they were seeking to establish in the treaty of delimitation. The testimony of maps subsequent to the treaty is fluctuating, but general opinion seems to have settled down to the belief that the more obvious southern channel was a continuation and part of the Portland channel, and on many of the later maps we find the channel passing south of Pearse and Wales islands denominated 'Portland inlet.' In determining, however, what should now be called Portland channel, the question to be decided was what the negotiators meant when they used that term, and in arriving at the intention of the negotiators of the treaty of 1825, it was not possible to reach it by an inspection of the maps alone. The negotiators undoubtedly intended when they named Portland channel as the southern boundary of the Russian possessions to refer to that inlet or body of water which Vancouver named Portland canal, for it was Vancouver who gave the name, as is well known, to this inlet. If Vancouver had left us nothing but maps, the case, although not free from doubt and obscurity, would be comparatively simple. But Vancouver also published, in addition to his maps, a detailed narrative of all his explorations upon the north-western coast of America.

It was argued very forcibly by the counsel for the United States that there was no proof that the negotiators had read Vancouver's narrative, but while it is no doubt true that they made no such examination of that narrative as has lately been pursued, it is almost impossible to suppose that men of trained ability seeking to establish a natural boundary in a little known region should not have read the only book which contained any detailed information as to that portion of the globe with which they were dealing. We know from undoubted evidence that Mr. Pelly, the representative of the Hudson Bay Company, who was consulted by Mr. Canning at every stage of the negotiations, had read Vancouver's narrative, or at least, those portions relating to the part of the coast which was under discussion. It is almost incredible, therefore, that Mr. Canning and Sir Charles Bagot should not also have examined the narrative, and it is equally unlikely that the Russians should have failed to consult the one book which contained a detailed examination of that region, and which had appeared in no less than four editions, two in English and two in French.

It has seemed, therefore, to the undersigned impossible to exclude the narrative in endeavouring to reach a conclusion as to what the negotiators meant by the Portland channel. In 1858 Mr. Dall, of the Smithsonian Institution, in a memorandum sent to Mr. Bayard, said (pp. 104 and 105, United States' counter case):—

'At this point we come across another difficulty, or rather, one has been suggested very recently. By a careful study of Vancouver's text it is evident that there is on this point a certain discrepancy between his charts and his texts. In reading over his whole account of the survey of this inlet and its branches (Vancouver, official English edition, vol. ii, pp. 329, 330, 331, 334-340 and 371), he seems to have varied a little in his notions, but his final treatment of Observatory Inlet extends it to Points Wales and Maskelyne, while in another place he seems to regard it as beginning at Point Ramsden (cf. op. cit. 2, p. 375). On the other hand, he treats Portland Inlet as continuing to the sea behind Wales and Pearse islands. So that, if the treaty is to be tried by Vancouver's text, it will result in giving to Great Britain the above mentioned islands and some other small ones.'

Mr. Dall there points out for the first time the discrepancy which appeared to exist between the maps and the text of the narrative, or, perhaps, to state more exactly, the discrepancy between the text and what appeared to be the obvious, though not necessarily the only, meaning of the maps. There is no need here to enter into all the details of Vancouver's narrative, but on page 379 of his narrative he says, under the date of Monday, August 19, 1793:

'A want of wind and a flood tide prevented our weighing until nine the following morning, when with an ebb tide we again proceeded, but did not reach the entrance to Observatory Inlet until two in the morning of the 29th, a distance of not more than thirteen leagues from Salmon Cove. The western point of Observatory Inlet I distinguished by calling it Point Wales.'

That is, he called that stretch of water from Salmon Cove, on Observatory Inlet, where his ships had been anchored, to the south-western extremity of Wales island, a distance of 13 leagues, 'Observatory Inlet.' This includes, as a glance at the map will show, the channel which passes south of Pearse and Wales islands. If, therefore, he intended to name that whole stretch of water Observatory Inlet, it is exclusive, and the name of Portland canal cannot be applied to it. Portland canal, therefore, must either have stopped at the north-eastern extremity of Pearse island or must have continued by the channel north of that island to the eastern end of Wales island.

The question is a very close one, but if we admit the text of the narrative it seems difficult to avoid the conclusion that by 'Observatory Inlet' he included all the water from Salmon Cove to the south-western extremity of Wales island. We also know that he explored the northern channel, occupying himself in that work from July 27 to August 2. He followed the channel westerly, passing what has been known as Tongass Passage, between Wales and Sitkkan islands, through which he looked and saw at a short distance the ocean. Desiring, however, to find, if possible, another opening to the ocean which followed the general line of the continent, he kept on through the narrow passage which passes north of Sitkkan and Kannahunut islands, and came out into the ocean opposite Cape Fox. Near Cape Fox he encamped. He then explored the waters around Revilla Gigedo island, and on August 14 returned to Cape Fox. At dawn the next morning, which in that latitude and in August must have been at a very early hour, he set out to return to his vessels, and he writes that in the forenoon, which must have been some hours after he started from the point opposite the narrow channel out of which he had issued August 2, he passed the mouth of the channel which he had previously explored, and which he named 'Portland's canal, in honour of the noble family of Bentinck.'

His exact language is as follows:—

'In the forenoon we reached that arm of the sea whose examination had occupied our time from the 27th of the preceding to the 2nd of this month. The distance from its entrance to its source is about 70 miles, which, in honour of the noble family of Bentinck, I named "Portland's canal"' (pp. 370-71, Vancouver).
It seems clear from this statement that if he considered, as the other extracts from his narrative already cited seem to prove, the northerly channel as the natural extension of the deep inlet running to the 56th parallel, he must have looked into it through Tongass Passage, and then and there gave it its name. Moreover, it is quite obvious from the maps that there are three outlets for the waters which come through the northern channel and are swelled by those from the inlets about Fillmore island. Two of them are very small, so small as to be practically impossible to navigate. The third is the Tongass Passage, and that seems beyond a question, on the face of both maps and the text, to be the true entrance to the channel which passes north of Wales and Pearse islands. Accepting Vancouver's narrative as having the greatest weight, the conclusion follows that the award of the tribunal must be that the Portland channel intended by the makers of the treaty of 1825 was that body of water which entered the sea by the Tongass Passage and passed thence north of Wales and Pearse islands, and so onward to the immediate neighbourhood of the 56th parallel.

(Signed) ELIHU ROOT.
HENRY CABOT LODGE.
GEORGE TURNER.

October 20, 1903.

OPINION OF THE UNITED STATES' MEMBERS OF THE TRIBUNAL (2).

Opinion on Fifth Question.

The following statement presents in brief the chief considerations which have led the undersigned members of the Alaskan Boundary tribunal to the conclusion that the fifth question submitted under the treaty of January 24, 1903, should be answered in the affirmative.

The question calls for a construction of the treaty between Great Britain and Russia signed February 16, 1825, agreeing upon a boundary line between Alaska and British Columbia. The particular provisions which undertake to describe the boundary line are in these words:—

'III. The line of demarcation between the possessions of the high contracting parties, upon the coast of the continent, and the islands of America to the north-west, shall be drawn in the manner following:—

'Commencing from the southermost point of the island called Prince of Wales island, which point lies in the parallel of 54° 40' north latitude, and between the 131st and the 133rd degrees of west longitude (meridian of Greenwich), the said line shall ascend to the north along the channel called Portland channel, as far as the point of the continent where it strikes the 56th degree of north latitude; from this last mentioned point, the line of demarcation shall follow the summit of the mountains (‘la crête des montagnes’) situated parallel to the coast, as far as the point of intersection of the 141st degree of west longitude (of the same meridian); and, finally, from the said point of intersection, the said meridian line of the 141st degree, in its prolongation as far as the frozen ocean, shall form the limit between the Russian and British possessions on the continent of America to the north-west.

'IV. With reference to the line of demarcation laid down in the preceding article, it is understood:

'First. That the island called Prince of Wales island shall belong wholly to Russia.

'Second. That whenever the summit of the mountains (‘la crête des montagnes’) which extend in a direction parallel to the coast, from the 56th degree of north latitude to the point of intersection of the 141st degree of west longitude, shall prove to be at the distance of more than 10 marine leagues from the ocean, the limit between the British possessions and the line of coast which is to belong to Russia, as above mentioned, shall be formed by a line parallel to the windings of the coast, and which shall never exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues therefrom.\footnote{During the treaty, when applied to the natural features of the country known to the negotiators, or supposed by them to exist, requires this construction.}

Portland channel begins on the full ocean, at a point very near latitude 54° 40', and ascends for about 70 miles, in a general direction slightly east of north, to a point which is, in fact, about 5 miles from the 56th parallel.

The Fourth Question relates to the course of the line through this intervening space.

The tribunal has agreed that as the intervening distance is not more than would naturally be covered in climbing from the sea level to the summit of the high mountains which were known in 1825 to exist, and which do in fact exist, at the head of the Portland channel, the simple and obvious way to give effect to the intent of the treaty is to take the shortest route from the water to the summit of the mountain, which is in plain sight from the water; and this course brings us to the 56th parallel, upon a mountain ridge over 5,000 feet in height, the foot of which is washed by the waters of the Portland channel.

The Fifth Question relates to the course of the line northward from that point. It is in the following words:

In extending the line of demarcation northward from said point on the parallel of the 56th degree of north latitude, following the crest of the mountains situated parallel to the coast until its intersection with the 44th degree of longitude west of Greenwich, subject to the condition that if such line should anywhere exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues from the ocean, then the boundary between the British and Russian territory should be formed by a line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast, and distant therefrom not more than 10 marine leagues, was it the intention and meaning of said convention of 1825 that there should remain in the exclusive possession of Russia a continuous fringe or strip of coast on the mainland, not exceeding 10 marine leagues in width, separating the British possessions from the bays, ports, inlets, havens and waters of the ocean, and extending from the said point on the 56th degree of latitude north to a point where such line of demarcation should intersect the 44th degree of longitude west of the meridian of Greenwich.\footnote{The official maps published by Russia, Great Britain, Canada, British Columbia and the United States—many in number—for a period of more than sixty years after the treaty, known to the public officers of the different governments, and accepted as the basis of official action, without a single exception carried the line around the heads of all the inlets, and were wholly irreconcilable with the other construction.}

The main practical effect of the answer will be to determine whether the line was to run around the heads of the inlets, leaving them in Russian territory, or was to cut across the inlets, leaving their heads in British territory.

We are of the opinion that the true construction of the treaty is that which carries the line around the heads of the inlets, and that the following considerations all require the adoption of this construction:

1. The purpose of the treaty, well understood by the negotiators, would be accomplished by this construction, and would be defeated by the other construction.

2. The natural and ordinary meaning of the terms used in the treaty, when applied to the natural features of the country known to the negotiators, or supposed by them to exist, requires this construction.

3. The meaning expressly given to the words used in the treaty by the negotiators, in their written communications during the course of the negotiations, requires this construction.

4. The official maps published by Russia, Great Britain, Canada, British Columbia and the United States—many in number—for a period of more than sixty years after the treaty, known to the public officers of the different governments, and accepted as the basis of official action, without a single exception carried the line around the heads of all the inlets, and were wholly irreconcilable with the other construction. become part of the common understanding of mankind that the region now in dispute was Russian and not British territory. And the United States were permitted to purchase the territory, forty-two years after the treaty, with this understanding.

These things show a practical interpretation of the treaty.

5. For more than sixty years after the treaty, Russia, and in succession to her the United States, occupied, possessed and governed the territory around the heads of the inlets without any protest or objection, while Great Britain never exercised the rights or performed the duties of sovereignty there, or attempted to do so, or suggested that she considered herself entitled to do so.

This was a practical interpretation of the treaty by all parties concerned.

The purpose of the treaty is not open to doubt and was, in substance, conceded upon the arguments before the tribunal.

Both Russia and Great Britain had chartered great fur-trading companies. On the one hand, the Russian-American Company had extended its establishments from the west up the chain of Aleutian islands, and down the north-west coast of America as far as the 57th parallel, where it had a post at New Archangel, or Sitka, on Baranof island. On the other hand, the Hudson's Bay Company, crossing the Rocky Mountains from the east, had pushed its posts west to the Mackenzie river and the upper waters of the Fraser river, to within about 100 miles of the coast at about latitude 55° or 56°.

It was evident that before very long the agents of these two companies would meet and dispute the control of the same hunting grounds and of trade with the same native tribes.

By a ukase dated July 8, 1799, Russia had granted to the Russian-American Company the exclusive right to hunt and trade upon the coast as far south as the 55th parallel; and by a ukase dated September 4, 1821, Russia had undertaken to protect the Russian Company by prohibiting all foreign vessels not only to land on the coasts and islands which were declared to belong to Russia as far south as latitude 51 degrees, but also to approach the coast within less than 100 miles.

Great Britain protested against this assumption of exclusive jurisdiction over the Pacific Ocean, and incidentally to the settlement of that question, the two nations undertook to delimit their respective territorial possessions in that part of the world.

Russia based her claims upon occupation and trade by the Russian-American Company; Great Britain based her claims upon occupation and trade by the Hudson's Bay Company.

Both parties soon agreed to drop the discussion of strict right, and to make such a settlement as should be for their mutual convenience and interest. Proceeding upon this ground, the British negotiators proposed to confine Russia to the continent west of the Lynn canal, and the islands in the immediate neighbourhood of the post at Sitka. Russia, upon the other hand, insisted that it was necessary for the protection of her trade, of which the post at Sitka was the centre, to have a substantial strip or lisière of territory upon the mainland, opposite the islands, and extending as far south as the Portland canal. To this contention Great Britain yielded, and the line now under consideration was designed to give to Russia a strip or lisière on the mainland which would afford to the Russian-American Company the protection desired.

The purpose of the lisière was stated by the Russian negotiators to be—

'the establishment of a barrier at which would be stopped once for all to the north as to the west of the coast allotted to our American Company the encroachments of the English agents of the amalgamated Hudson's Bay and North-west English Company, whom a more intimate acquaintance with the country traversed by the Mackenzie river might easily bring, in the course of time, into the neighbourhood of our establishments.' (B.C., App., p. 53.)

It is more fully stated in the observations of the Russian plenipotentiaries upon the proposal of Sir Charles Bagot in February, 1824, to assign to Russia a strip with the uniform width of 10 marine leagues from the shore, limited on the south by a line between 30 and 40 miles north from the northern end of the Portland canal. They then said:—

"The motive which caused the adoption of the principle of mutual expediency to be proposed, and the most important advantage of this principle, is to prevent the respective establishments on the north-west coast from injuring each other and entering into collision.

"The English establishments of the Hudson's Bay and North-west companies have a tendency to advance westward along the 53° and 54° of north latitude.

"The Russian establishments of the American Company have a tendency to descend southward toward the 55th parallel and beyond for it should be noted that, if the American Company has not yet made permanent establishments on the mathematical line of the 55th degree, it is nevertheless true that, by virtue of its privilege of 1799, against which privilege no power has ever protested, it is exploiting the hunting and the fishing in these regions, and that it regularly occupies the islands and the neighbouring coasts during the season, which allows it to send its hunters and fishermen there.

"It was, then, to the mutual advantage of the two empires to assign just limits to this advance on both sides, which, in time, could not fail to cause most unfortunate complications.

"It was also to their mutual advantage to fix these limits according to natural partitions, which always constitute the most distinct and certain frontiers.

"For these reasons the plenipotentiaries of Russia have proposed as limits upon the coast of the continent, to the south, Portland channel, the head of which lies about ('par') the 56th degree of north latitude, and to the east the chain of mountains which follows at a very short distance the sinuosities of the coast." (U.S.C., App., p. 161.)

The reply of Sir Charles Bagot was that the line proposed by him would secure the advantage desired by Russia. He said:—

"Any argument founded on the consideration of practical advantage to Russia could not fail to have the greatest weight, and the plenipotentiary of His Britannic Majesty did not hesitate to give up, in consequence of this observation of the Russian plenipotentiaries, the line of demarcation which he had first proposed . . . and to offer another which would secure to Russia not only a strip on the continent opposite the southernmost establishment which she possesses on the islands, but also the possession of all the islands and waters in its vicinity, or which are situated between that establishment and the mainland ('terre ferme'), in short, possession of all that could in future be of any service either to its stability or its prosperity." (U.S.C., App., p. 163.)

And he then proposed to include the Prince of Wales island within the Russian demarcation. But Russia insisted upon having her lisière run to the Portland canal, saying—"That the possession of Prince of Wales island, without a slice (portion) of territory upon the coast situated in front of that island, could be of no utility whatever to Russia. That any establishment formed upon said island, or upon the surrounding islands, would find itself, as it were, flanked ('tourné') by the English establishments on the mainland, and completely at the mercy of these latter." (U.S.C., App., p. 164.)

England finally yielded to the Russian demand that the lisière should extend to the Portland canal.

It was thus the intent of the treaty makers to provide for a strip of Russian territory on the mainland which would protect the trade of the Russian-American Company, from its central post at Sitka, against the competition of the Hudson's Bay traders, coming from the east. To ascertain what kind of a barrier was intended to furnish that protection, it is necessary only to inquire what the trade was. It was a trade with the Indian tribes who lived around the heads of the inlets, and the subject matter of the trade consisted of the skins of the fur-bearing animals taken in and about the inlets and the streams flowing into them. It is quite incredible that for the purpose of protecting that Russian trade against competition of the Hudson's Bay Company the treaty makers intended to draw the line which would throw all the native, with whom the trade was conducted, and substantially all the territory which produced the material of the trade, into the Hudson's Bay territory. Instead of a protection to Russian trade with the mainland, that would have been a complete abandonment of it. Instead of excluding the Hudson's Bay agents from those parts of the coast which were frequented by the Russian hunters and fishermen, it would have excluded the Russians, and given a monopoly to the Hudson's Bay Company. The line proposed by Great Britain cuts across some sixteen bays and inlets, leaving upon the Russian side substantially nothing but rocky and inaccessible promontories, and on the British side, including substantially all the harbours, anchorages, habitable shores, river mouths, avenues of access to the interior, hunting grounds and native tribes. It is plain that such a strip of territory, part land and part water, would have furnished no protection to Russian trade, would have interposed no barrier to the extension of Hudson's Bay posts as far as, in the nature of things, they could come, would have completely failed to furnish the natural boundary which both parties intended, and would not, in any respect, have answered the avowed purpose of the lisière intended by the treaty.

We are not at liberty to ascribe a meaning to the terms of a treaty which would frustrate the known and proved purpose of the instrument, unless the words used in the instrument are such as to permit no other construction. Whoever asserts a construction which would produce such a result must show not merely that it is a possible construction, but that it is a necessary construction, and that any other is impossible.

The most important and determining question in construing the words of the treaty is the question: in what sense did the treaty makers use the words 'coast' and 'sinuosities of the coast'? The primary boundary provided for in Article III was to be 'the crest of the mountains situated parallel to the coast.' And, by Article IV, when that crest proves to be the distance of more than 10 marine leagues from the ocean, the boundary is to be formed by 'a line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast, and which shall never exceed the distance of 10 marine leagues therefrom.'

In what sense did the treaty makers use the word 'coast'?

Counsel for Great Britain contend that since the 10 marine league line measured from the coast was to be applied only where the mountains proved more than 10 marine leagues from the ocean, the words 'coast' and 'ocean' must be deemed correlative, and the coast intended must be taken to be the line where land and ocean, properly so called, meet: and they say that the word 'ocean' cannot be taken to describe the waters of long and narrow inlets, or fiords, like the Lynn canal and the Taku Inlet, less than 6 miles in width, but must be taken to mean the great body of water which puts a limit to territorial jurisdiction, and they infer that the coast which is co-terminous with the ocean must be the line upon one side of which is the mainland, including its territorial waters, and on the other the full ocean, excluding territorial waters. In other words, the general line or trend of the mainland coast, cutting across the mouths of inlets.

It is, however, impossible to give this meaning to the word 'ocean,' as used in this treaty, because there are stretches along the coast for 300 miles—from Cape Spencer down to the Portland canal, and covering a space from 80 to 100 miles wide—an archipelago of islands, separated from each other and from the mainland by a multitude of narrow and tortuous passages, which do not at all answer to this meaning of the word 'ocean.' If this were the meaning of the word as used in the treaty, the coast line would be outside of the islands, and a line drawn at 10 marine leagues from that coast would give to Russia no territory whatever upon the mainland. It is only by assigning to the word 'ocean' an entirely different meaning, and making it include the narrow passages—which are no more and no less ocean than the inlets—that the treaty can be made to provide any lisière upon the mainland. In this sense, which is necessary to effect the purpose of the treaty, 'ocean' means the salt water that washes the shore of the mainland, and 'coast' means the line where the mainland meets the salt water, however narrow may be the passage, and however distant from the broad expanse of full ocean.

It is further to be observed that the contention of Great Britain completely ignores the provision that the 10-marie-league line, whenever drawn, is to be parallel to the sinuosities of the coast ('parallèle aux sinuosités de la côte'). The general trend of a coast takes no account of sinuosities. The two terms are directly opposed. The meaning of 'general trend' is that sinuosities are ignored, and the meaning of 'following the sinuosities' is that the general trend is departed from whenever the line where the land and water meet depart from it. Counsel for Great Britain were asked upon the argument to lay down on a map a line from which they contended that the 10 marine leagues were to be measured. The line which they presented took no account whatever of the sinuosities of the coast. According to their contention, precisely the same course was followed that would have been followed if those words had been omitted from the treaty. We are not at liberty to omit them, or to refuse to give them effect. The only real effect they can have is to carry the line around the bays and inlets.

If we turn to the maps which were before the negotiators, and with reference to which they used the words of the treaty, and seek to learn their meaning of the word 'coast' by ascertaining what were the mountains which they describe as parallel to the coast, we reach the same result. We know that they had before them, and consulted, Vancouver's chart No. 7 (British Atlas No. 2); Vancouver's chart No. 12 (British Atlas No. 3); the Russian Official Map of 1802 (British Atlas No. 5); Faden's Map of 1823 (British Atlas No. 10), this last being specially relied upon by the British negotiators. Upon every one of these maps there appears a distinct and well defined chain or ridge of mountains, running from and near the head of Portland canal, and northerly along the coast, and in general parallel thereto, and furnishing the means of defining a line of natural boundary as distinctly as the mountain chains which constitute boundaries between countries in other parts of the world, such as the Pyrenees between France and Spain and the Andes between Chile and Peru. These maps embodied the results of both British and of Russian exploration, and they appear to justify the unquestioning confidence of the negotiators in the existence of a mountain crest extending generally parallel to the coast, and capable of defining the proposed boundary line. They clearly present a chain or range, and we know from numerous passages in the written communications which passed during the negotiations, that the negotiators on both sides had in mind a chain or range of mountains, when they referred to mountains as defining the boundary. Thus the Russian negotiators described the proposed boundary which they had proposed, and which is the one adopted in the treaty, as 'the chain of mountains which follow, at a very small distance, the windings of the coast,' and they say that they leave to Great Britain 'all the territory situated behind the chain of mountains referred to previously.' (B.C., App., pp. 71, 72.)

In July, 1824, when Mr. Canning proposed that the line should run along the base of the mountains, Count Lieven represented to him 'that when a chain of mountains is made to serve for the establishment of any boundary whatever, it is always the crest of those mountains that forms the line of demarcation.' (B.C., App., pp. 90, 91.)

On October 29, 1824, the Hudson's Bay Company, through Mr. Pelly, wrote to the Foreign Office insisting that the eastern boundary from the Portland canal northerly should be 'the chain of mountains at a "très petite distance de la côte," but that if the summit of those mountains exceed 10 leagues, the said distance be substituted instead of the mountains;' thus accepting and quoting the Russian language above cited. (B.C., App., p. 110.)

At the time of exchanging the ratifications of the treaty, the Russian representative presented a formal expression of dissatisfaction on the part of Russia at Great Britain's insistence upon the alternative or corrective 10-marie-league line, and Mr. Canning replied that under the treaty of Ghent, between Great Britain and the United States, 'which likewise fixed a chain of mountains as the frontier between the possessions of the two States,' dispute had arisen because the mountains had been found to deviate from the direction given on them, and he wished to avoid such a dispute. (B.C., App., p. 125.)

When Great Britain finally accepted the Portland canal line, the Russian Ambassador at London wrote to Count Nesselrode at St. Petersburg as follows:—

'The proposition of our court was to make this frontier run along the mountains which follow the windings of the coast to Mount Elias. The English Government fully accepts this line as it is laid off on the maps ('désigné sur les cartes'); but as it thinks that the maps are defective, and that the mountains which are to serve as a frontier might, by leaving the coast beyond the line designated, inclose a considerable extent of territory, it wishes the line claimed by us to be described with more exactness, so as not to cede, in reality, more than our court asks and more than England is disposed to grant.' (B.C., App., p. 84.)

There can be no doubt that the chain of mountains depicted upon all of these maps as running northerly from the head of the Portland channel along the coast to Mount St. Elias was the mountain crest described in the treaty as running parallel to the coast. There are no other mountains on any of the maps which were before the negotiators which answered to the description of the treaty and of the written negotiations.

That chain of mountains upon all the maps runs around the heads of all the bays and inlets. It is substantially parallel to those sinuosities, and it is not parallel to a line which cuts across the inlets.

The negotiators have themselves, however, furnished an explanation of their meaning of the word 'coast,' which leaves that provision of the treaty in no possible doubt. The 10-marine-league line was proposed to the Russian negotiators by Sir Charles Bagot as the measure of the width of the lisière at the time when he proposed to fix its southern boundary a short distance north of the Portland canal. He proposed it in these words:—

'Thence extending in the same direction upon the mainland as far as a point 10 marine leagues distant from the coast. From this point the line would follow a north-erly northwesterly direction, parallel to the sinuosities of the coast, and always at a distance of 10 marine leagues from the shore.'

The coast, to the sinuosities of which the line was to be drawn parallel, was thus explained as being equivalent to the shore ('rivage'). (B.C., App., p. 71.)

When Mr. Canning was about to assent to the mountain boundary proposed by Russia, the Hudson's Bay Company, which was consulted at every step of the negotiations by Mr. Canning, understood that the proposed line 'parallel to the sinuosities of the coast' was equivalent to 'parallel to the sinuosities of the shore'; for in subsequently advising Mr. Canning upon the Russian proposal, Mr. Pelly says that 'those mountains represented in the charts as closely bordering on the sea, and described by the Russians as a 'très petite distance,' may really be at a very considerable distance from the coast, and to provide for which case the distance ought to be limited, as Sir Charles Bagot proposed, to a few leagues, say not exceeding ten, from the shores.' (B.C., App., p. 80.)

When the Russians accepted the 10-marine-league line parallel to the sinuosities of the coast, as proposed by Sir Charles Bagot, as an alternative line to be applied in case the mountain chain proved to run off into the interior, and when they signed the treaty with the provision for that line, there had never been the slightest intimation that the word 'coast' was used in any other sense than that ascribed to it by Sir Charles Bagot in his original proposal of the line, that is to say, as equivalent to shore.

That the Russians understood that the word 'coast' was used in this sense appears clearly from the fact that while the draft treaty proposed by Mr. Canning, and enclosed in his letter of the 12th July, 1824, contained the same words that are used in the treaty, that the line should be 'carried along that coast in a direction parallel to its windings.' (B.C., App., p. 87). Count Lieven transmits the draft to Count Nesselrode in a letter which describes this line as running along the base of the mountains which follow the sinuosities of the shore ('les sinuosités du rivage'). B.C., App., pp. 88, 89.)

That the negotiators understood that the shore which they were describing was one a line parallel to which would give Russia the heads of all the inlets is apparent from Sir Charles Bagot's description of the effect of his offer of the 10-marine-league line, already cited, in which he declares that it would give to Russia all the islands and the waters adjacent or which are to be found between the Russian establishment and the mainland (B.C., App., p. 73), and by the letter of the Hudson's Bay Company to Mr. Canning, in which Mr. Pelly says that he is at a loss to understand 'why Great Britain should cede to Russia the exclusive right to the islands and the coast from latitude 54° 40' northward to Mount Elias' (B.C., App., p. 81). An arrangement under which substantially all the harbours and ports for trade on the coast were retained by Great Britain certainly would not be a cession of the exclusive right to the coast. If Great Britain was retaining the most valuable part of the coast, it was unknown to the Hudson's Bay Company, upon whose settlements Great Britain based all her claims to territory, which was conducting all the trade that Great Britain was endeavouring to protect, which was most familiar with the country to which the treaty related, most interested in the result, and which was consulted at every step of the negotiations. If Mr. Canning had considered that such was the effect of the proposed arrangement, a prompt explanation of his advisers' mistake would have followed, and a modification of the terms of the treaty in such a way as to make it clear that he was not ceding an exclusive right to the whole coast.

In the face of this clear statement by the Hudson's Bay Company of their understanding that the effect of drawing a line either along the mountains or at 10 marine leagues from the shore would be to cede to Russia the exclusive right to the islands and the coast, from latitude 54° 40' northward to Mount Elias, the absence of any single word in the treaty, or any draft of it, or in any of the negotiations, referring in any way whatever to Great Britain's having the heads of the bays and inlets, or the territory about them, has a special significance, and indicates most clearly that no such idea was entertained by the British negotiators.

It is argued by Counsel for Great Britain that Article VII of the treaty, which gives to the vessels of the two powers reciprocal rights to frequent the inland seas, gulfs, havens, and creeks on the coast mentioned in Article III, shows that Great Britain was the possessor of inland seas, gulfs, havens, and creeks on the coast along which the lisière ran, that is, between latitude 54° 40' and latitude 60°. The argument is that Article VII applies exclusively to that part of the coast, and it is to be inferred, therefore, that the reciprocal rights which were granted on the part of Great Britain in that article were rights to inlets, &c., which she had under the treaty in that part of the coast.

But the coast mentioned in Article III is the 'coast of the continent.' It is true that the same Article describes the boundary of the lisière as being parallel to the coast, but there is no warrant whatever for limiting the reference of Article VII to anything less than the possessions of the two parties upon the coast of the continent—the entire coast mentioned in Article III. If Great Britain had no other possessions upon the coast of the continent in which she could give reciprocal rights to Russia, there would be some force in the argument, but by the terms of this very treaty the coast from the head of the Portland canal to the southern limits of the Russian claims, viz., latitude 51°, was assigned to Great Britain, and upon that stretch of coast, a part of the coast mentioned in Article III, there were numerous gulfs, havens, and creeks. The terms of Article VII are, therefore, entirely satisfied, without assigning the rights granted by Great Britain to any part of the coast north of the head of the Portland canal.
The view that the grant by Great Britain in Article VII was intended to apply, not to the lisière, but to the coast to the south of it, is supported by the fact that by the terms of the treaty of 1818 between the United States and Great Britain, those countries acknowledged equal rights, each in the other, to the coast south of 54° 40', and that Article VII of the treaty now under consideration was taken bodily from the treaty of April 5, 1824, between Russia and the United States, which, in the same words, granted reciprocal rights in the possessions of the two parties on 'the north-west coast of America.' The provision of the American treaty could not have been intended to confer upon Russia any rights except below 54° 40', for America had none. The natural inference from the incorporation of this same provision into the British treaty would be that it was intended to give Russia the same rights from the co-tenant of the same coast.

A further examination of the history of Article VII, leaves no doubt that instead of the grant of rights by Great Britain to Russia in that article being intended to apply exclusively to the coast of the lisière, it was intended to apply exclusively to the coast below the lisière: for the first appearance of the article was in the draft treaty prepared by Mr. Canning, and enclosed by him in his letter to Sir Charles Bagot of July 12, 1824. In that draft Mr. Canning proposed, in Article III, a provision, not that there should be reciprocal rights in regard to the lisière, but that Russia should grant to British subjects a perpetual right to navigate and trade along the coast of the lisière; while the reciprocal provision for ten years, which now constitutes Article VII, was proposed as Article V of the draft, 'with regard to the other parts of the north-west coast of America' (B.C., App., p. 87). This was after the American treaty of 1824, and Article V of Mr. Canning's draft, providing for reciprocal relations in the other parts of the north-west coast, copied the language of the American treaty. As England had unquestionably no interests in the parts of the north-west coast other than the lisière, except south of the lisière, the reciprocal provision proposed by Mr. Canning in Article V of his draft applied, so far as it involved a grant of right by Great Britain, solely to the same coast which was effected by the American grant in the treaty of 1824.

Russia refused to grant to British subjects the perpetual right to trade in the lisière, but expressed a willingness to give such a right for ten years, and she carried into the treaty of 1825, now under consideration, the reciprocal provision which Mr. Canning proposed as to the other parts of the north-west coast, unchanged except that the words 'other parts' were stricken out; so that the reciprocal clause operated not only to accomplish the original effect of a British grant of rights to Russia below the lisière for ten years, but also of a Russian grant to British subjects of rights in the lisière for ten years.

There is absolutely no ground for claiming that, in broadening the scope of Mr. Canning's original reciprocal provision so that it would include a grant by Russia in the lisière, it was intended to exclude the other parts of the coast, to which solely the provision originally applied.

The maps which we have said furnished an interpretation of the treaty by the parties include—

The Russian Admiralty Chart of 1826 (U.S. Atlas, No. 11); the Russian Admiralty Chart of 1844 (U.S. Atlas, No. 22, British Atlas, No. 15); atlas sent by Sir J. H. Pelly, the Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, September 13, 1849, to Earl Grey, as part of a statement of the rights as to territory, trade, taxation and government, claimed and exercised by the Hudson's Bay Company, and printed in the Parliamentary Papers of the House of Commons, July 11, 1850 (U.S.C.C., p. 255; British Atlas, No. 19); map reduced by Sir George Simpson, Governor of the Hudson's Bay territories, before a Select Committee of the House of Commons on the affairs of the Hudson's Bay Company, as showing the territory leased by that company from the Russian-American Company, and published by order of the House of Commons in 1857 (U.S.C.C., App. pp. 38, 39; British Atlas, No. 21); British Colonial Office manuscript. map of 1831 (British Atlas, No. 13); British Admiralty Chart of 1856, corrected 1861, 1862 and 1864 (U.S. Atlas, No. 23); British Admiralty Chart of 1876 (U.S. Atlas, No. 38); official map of the Dominion of Canada, showing the extent and situation of its public lands, published by the Canadian Department of the Interior in 1875 (U.S. Atlas, No. 39); map published by the Canadian Department of Railways, 1885 (U.S. Atlas, No. 43); official map of Province of British Columbia; published by the Commissioner of Lands and Works, Victoria, 1884 (British Atlas, No. 31); map of the Dominion of Canada, published in 1854 by the Director of the Canadian Geological Survey from surveys made by the Geological Corps, 1842 to 1852 (British Atlas, No. 32); the map published by the United States Coast Survey in 1861, compiled for the Department of State at the time of the purchase of Alaska by the United States (U.S. Atlas, No. 24).

In all of these maps the boundary line is drawn around the heads of the inlets. It is not contended that this boundary line was an accurate location of the true boundary. In the absence of knowledge as to the mountains, it appears to have been drawn on the 10-marine league line, measuring from the heads of the bays and inlets. It precludes no one from saying that the occurrence of a mountain crest within 10 marine leagues of the coast would call for a change of the position of the line. But it is manifest that in every case the line was drawn in accordance with the American theory of what constituted the coast, and not in accordance with the theory now maintained by the Counsel for Great Britain as to what constitutes the coast. According to the construction of the treaty claimed by the British case, the 10-marine-league line should have been drawn across the Lynn Canal 34½ miles from its mouth. In all those maps it is drawn 90 miles away from that point, 34 miles above the head of the Lynn Canal. It is not contended that the action of any one of the officials making these maps worked an estoppel against his government, but the uniform and continuous adoption and promulgation for sixty years, by all these officers, of the view that the line went around the head of the Lynn Canal, without a single map, or paper, or act, or word indicating the existence of any differing view on the part of their governments, certainly does lead to a strong inference that their governments understood the treaty consistently with the maps, and not inconsistently with them.

It would be a strange thing if, six years after the treaty was made, the British Colonial Office recorded the limits of the British possessions in North-west America inconsistently with the views of the British Government; that for fifty years after the making of this treaty of 1825, the British Admiralty should issue the charts which constituted the guide for the vessels of the British navy, putting down upon them the heads of the bays and inlets in Southern Alaska as being Russian waters, if the British Government regarded them as British waters; that the government of British Columbia, the Canadian Department of the Interior, Department of Railroads and Geological Survey, should all be mistaken regarding the construction which the British Government put upon this treaty. It would be a still stranger thing if Mr. Pelly, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, who was Mr. Canning's adviser throughout the negotiations of the treaty, and Sir George Simpson, who was the Resident Governor in America, both at the time the treaty was made and at the time the Hudson's Bay Company leased the property from the Russian-American Company, were ignorant of the construction put upon the treaty by the British Government, and, being in charge of the great interests directly affected by that construction, continued the rest of their lives in that ignorance.

It is impossible to resist the conclusion that the construction of the treaty now contended for by Great Britain is an afterthought, never entertained by any officer of the British Government during the lifetime of the makers of the treaty, and originated at least sixty years after the treaty was signed.

The principal feature of Russia's occupation of Alaska was that in 1839 the Russian-American Company, with the express assent of the Russian Government, leased to the Hudson's Bay Company the mainland coast from Cape Spencer to the Portland canal, and that this lease was renewed from time to time until the American purchase. The terms of the lease were apt to describe the entire coast, and the maps showing the leased territory, which were furnished to the British Government by Sir J. H. Pelly in 1849 and Sir George Simpson in 1857, showed that territory to include the heads of the bays and inlets and all the land surrounding them. It is conceded that the British Government knew of the lease, for it was given in settlement of a claim which the British Government was pressing against the Russian Government, the subject of a diplomatic controversy regarding the construction of the treaty of 1823. The knowledge of the territory leased is brought home to the British Government by the last-mentioned maps. If the government of Great Britain considered that the true construction of the treaty gave to that government and therefore to the Hudson's Bay Company, the heads of the inlets and the territory surrounding them, it is quite impossible that, without a word upon that subject, the Hudson's Bay Company should have recognized Russia's title to that very territory by becoming a tenant.

Upon the purchase of Alaska by the United States in 1867, the officers of the United States took formal possession, with appropriate ceremonies, of the territory at the head of the Lynn canal, and the officers of the Hudson's Bay Company surrendered the possession which they had theretofore held as tenants of Russia, and departed, leaving the head of the Lynn canal in the possession of the United States. From that time until the present the United States has retained that possession, and has performed the duties and exercised the powers of sovereignty there.

For certainly more than twenty years after that, there was not a suggestion from the British Government that the possession was not rightful. In the meantime, the naval and military officers of the United States governed the Indians who lived at the heads of the inlets; those Indians were included in the United States census; order was enforced among them, and their misdeeds were punished by the United States; a public school and mission schools were established at the head of the Lynn canal, under the auspices of the United States government; the land laws of the United States were extended over the territory, and mineral claims were located in the territory now in question; the revenue laws of the United States were extended over the territory, and were enforced in the territory in question; foreign vessels were forbidden to unload at Chilkat, and obeyed this prohibition; a post-office was established at the head of the Lynn canal; an astronomical station of the United States' Coast Survey was established there; factories for the canning of salmon were erected and operated by American citizens; and all these operations of government were unaccompanied by any suggestion that the United States was not rightfully there. In the meantime, Great Britain refrained from exercising, or attempting to exercise, any of the functions of government in the neighbourhood of these inlets. The true condition was stated by the Prime Minister of Canada, in the Canadian parliament, on February 16, 1898, when he said:

'My honourable friend is aware that, although this is disputed territory, it has been in the possession of the United States ever since they acquired this country from the Russian government in 1867, and, so far as my information goes, I am not aware that any protest has ever been raised by any government against the occupation of Dyey and Skagway by the United States,' and when, on March 7, 1898, he said:

'The fact remains that, from time immemorial, Dyey was in possession of the Russians, and in 1867 it passed into the hands of the Americans, and it has been held in their hands ever since. Now, I will not recriminate here; this is not the time nor the occasion for doing so, but, so far as I am aware, no protest has ever been entered against the occupation of Dyey by the American authorities, and when the American authorities are in possession of that strip of territory on the sea which has Dyey as its harbour, succeeding the possession of the Russians from time immemorial, it becomes manifest to everybody that at this moment we cannot dispute their possession, and that, before their possession can be disputed, the question must be determined by a settlement of the question involved in the treaty.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 46a

It is manifest that the attempt to dispute that possession to which the Prime Minister refers is met by the practical, effective construction of the treaty presented by the long-continued acquiescence of Great Britain in the construction which gave the territory to Russia and the United States, and to which the Prime Minister testifies. Only the clearest case of mistake could warrant a change of construction, after so long a period of acquiescence in the former construction, and no such case has been made out before this tribunal.

(Signed) ELIHU ROOT.
HENRY CABOT LODGE.
GEORGE TURNER.

October 20, 1903.

No. 51.

Mr. Sifton to the Marquis of Lansdowne.—(Received October 22.)

ST. STEPHEN'S HOUSE, WESTMINSTER, October 22, 1903.

My Lord,—Having in other communications inclosed to your Lordship the protocols and records relating to the proceedings of the Alaska boundary tribunal, with the exception of those of the last day’s proceedings which will follow, it only remains for me to record my official acknowledgment of the services of those gentlemen with whom I have been associated in this case.

We are much indebted to Sir Robert Finlay for his opening argument, which, in dignity, clearness, and mastery of detail was in every respect worthy of the important character of the issues involved.

Sir Edward Carson and Mr. Christopher Robinson fully sustained their high professional reputations, and their presentation of the case of His Majesty’s Government was all that could be desired.

In the work of preparing the British case and counter-case, I enjoyed the advantage of the Honourable Edward Blake, K.C., whose subsequent withdrawal owing to ill-health was a source of great regret.

I have also to express my appreciation of the efficient manner in which Mr. F. C. Wade, K.C., Mr. L. P. Duff, K.C., and Mr. A. Geoffrion, K.C., of the Canadian Bar, and Mr. S. A. T. Rowatt and Mr. J. A. Simon of the English Bar, discharged the important duties confided to them. Upon Mr. Wade and Mr. Rowatt fell the heaviest portion of the labour attending the preparation of the British case and counter-case, rendered most difficult by the shortness of the time allowed by the treaty. I cannot speak too highly of the ability and judgment which was exhibited by both of these gentlemen.

During the preparation of the British case, questions have constantly arisen requiring reference to expert geographers. In this branch of the work I have had the advantage of the services of Mr. W. F. King, chief astronomer of the Department of the Interior of Canada, who brought to his duties scientific knowledge of a high order. Mr. J. J. MacArthur has also given me the benefit of his accurate personal knowledge of the topographic features of the Alaska coast.

In the examination of records and the collection of documents, I have had the assistance of Mr. Joseph Pope, C.M.G. Mr. Pope has for many years made a study of the literature relating to the treaties under consideration by the tribunal, and this fact, added to his experience and literary ability, rendered his services of great value.
It gives me pleasure to recognize the uniform courtesy extended to me by the Honourable F. H. Villiers. My thanks are also due to Captain V. Ferguson of the Intelligence Department, and Mr. E. G. Lister and Mr. P. Somers-Cocks, who have at various times assisted in the work of revising translations, and to Mr. James White, geographer of the Canadian Government, who investigated and examined the many maps which it was necessary to pass under review.

Throughout the whole of the proceedings the counsel and co-operation of Sir John Anderson, of the Colonial Office, has been of the greatest value. I have constantly had occasion to avail myself of his intimate knowledge of the facts bearing upon the questions in controversy, and his knowledge of proceedings in connection with the settlement of international disputes in other cases. I cannot speak too strongly in recognition of the assistance which he has afforded.

Besides these gentlemen whom I have enumerated, I do not overlook the fact that there are others in the public service, both of Great Britain and Canada, who, in various ways, have greatly facilitated the work committed to my charge.

I am, &c.,

(Signed) CLIFFORD SIFTON.

His Britannic Majesty's Agent before the Alaska Boundary Tribunal.

No. 52.

The Marquis of Lansdowne to Mr. Sifton.

FOREIGN OFFICE, October 30, 1903.

Sir—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letters of the 21st and 22nd instant, inclosing the award, protocols, and other records of the Alaska Boundary Tribunal, and acknowledging the services of the gentlemen associated with you in representing the British case before the tribunal.

I have received the King's commands to signify to you, and to those who have worked with you, His Majesty's approval of the zeal and ability with which you have advocated the interests of the empire in a question of great importance both to this country and the Dominion of Canada.

I have offered to the Attorney and Solicitor-General the best acknowledgments of His Majesty's Government for the manner in which they have argued the British case before the tribunal, and have requested them to thank the junior Counsel of the English Bar for the valuable assistance rendered by them. I will ask you to offer the same acknowledgments on behalf of His Majesty's Government to Mr. C. Robinson, to the Honourable E. Blake, and to the other gentlemen of the Canadian Bar and public service who have taken part in the proceedings.

I shall have pleasure in informing the members of this office, and other public departments mentioned by you, of the terms in which you have acknowledged their assistance.

I am, &c.

(Signed) LANSDOWNE.
RETURN

(49)

Return to an Order of the House of Commons, dated the 17th March, 1904, for a copy of the Report of Mr. McLeod, C. E., upon the continuation of the Trent Valley Canal between Rice Lake and Lake Ontario.

R. W. SCOTT,
Secretary of State.

GILBERT HOUSE, TRENTON, MAY 15, 1903.

COLLINGWOOD SCHREIBER, Esq., C.M.G.

I have walked over two lines for the Trent canal from Rice lake to Port Hope.

The most direct passes over a high ridge, which I found to be approximately 129 feet above Rice lake. The cutting would extend from Rice lake for 3 miles, and would be from 70 to 136 feet deep. The rest of the line to Port Hope would be comparatively easy.

The second line passes through a depression in the ridge, about 2 miles further west. The cutting would be about 3 miles long, and about 70 feet deep, at the highest point. The rest of the line is comparatively easy, and would run into the first line about 4 miles from Port Hope.

I do not think it is necessary to cross the Grand Trunk Railway on the way in, and the canal would pass under the Grand Trunk viaduct at Port Hope.

Both lines would pass through some valuable farming lands, but the right of way through Port Hope would not be expensive.

The harbour at Port Hope is about half a mile long, and from 7 to 14 feet deep, besides an inner harbour of considerable size.

I am going to take some soundings in the Trenton harbour this morning, and will then go over the Trent river valley to the level of Rice lake.

HENRY A. F. MACLEOD.

OTTAWA, JULY 25, 1903.

COLLINGWOOD SCHREIBER, Esq., C.M.G.

RE TREN'T CANAL, VIA PORT HOPE AND TRENTON.

I beg to report that in accordance with your instructions, I made an examination of the proposed routes for the Trent canal, from Rice lake to Port Hope, and also from Hastings to Trenton, during a portion of the month of May.

It was intended that I should make surveys of both routes, but this has not been done. The plans in the possession of the Department of Railways and Canals give sufficient information on which to make comparative estimates of the two routes.

49—1
On the 17th of June, you directed me to make comparative estimates of the two routes, which I have just completed. The estimates are based upon the plans in the department. Those for the Heeley's falls and Hoard's creek sections, were made by Mr. Rubidge in 1888 and those for the Trenton-Frankford section and the Rice lake and Port Hope, by Mr. Rogers in 1899 and 1900. All the estimates are made on the same scale, namely that adopted for the Trenton-Frankford section, and exhibited to contractors. The width of the canal at the bottom is 50 feet, widened occasionally for passing places to 100 feet—with slopes of 2 to 1 in earth, and 3 to 1 in rock. Depth of water in reaches, 6 feet. The locks of concrete, 142 feet between the quoins, 33 feet wide at invert, with 8' 4" water on sills. The dams are all of concrete, with stop-logs.

I examined the entrance from Rice lake, of the Rice lake and Port Hope section, for several miles, and found that it is the best. The route adopted, is practically the same as that surveyed in 1834 by Robert A. Maingy, Mining and Civil Engineer.

I also took trial levels over a portion of two other more direct routes, but found that they passed over ridges, with cuttings from 125 to 136 feet in the deepest parts and extending about three miles.

Rice lake to Port Hope

There is no appearance of rock on this section, from Rice lake to within two miles of the harbour of Port Hope. I have therefore made no estimate for rock excavation, on that portion. For the same reason I put the price of concrete at $7 and crib-work at $4, while on the Trent section, where limestone rock is everywhere abundant, concrete is put at $6 and crib-work at $3.50.

There is a cutting three miles long and 68 feet deep at the summit, at the Rice lake entrance, which might prove difficult to construct and maintain.

To facilitate comparison, I altered two hydraulic lift-locks proposed, on this section, into two sets of ordinary locks, with three lifts each.

It is intended to construct a high level bridge for the Midland Railway, at the fourth lock and a swing bridge for the second crossing of the same railway in the Port Hope Electric Co.'s dam.

The canal will pass under the viaduct of the main line of the Grand Trunk at Port Hope. Swing bridges are provided for the existing roads, except in a few cases where they are diverted for short distances.

An estimate has been made for the right-of-way, including damage to buildings, &c., in Port Hope.

There is an artificial harbour at Port Hope about half a mile long, from 60 to 150 feet wide, and from 7 to 14 feet deep, with a basin adjoining of considerable size. It would be difficult to enter this harbour from Lake Ontario in rough weather, particularly with canal craft. A sum is included in the Estimates, for the purchase and improvement of this harbour.

Rice lake to Trenton.

A short distance above and below the lock at Hastings there is shoal water—an estimate has been made to remove the obstructions.

At Heeley's falls, the canal is on the west bank of the Trent river, in cuttings through limestone rock, with water-tight walls of concrete, in part, and earth embankments.

The estimate includes a new dam at the head of the rapids, and a swing bridge for the road.

This canal connects Rice lake with Crow bay.

Hoard's creek section extends from Crow bay, where it leaves the Trent river, till it reaches it again at Parcy Reach, which is at the head of the still water formed by Chisholm's lock and dam.

The section leaves Crow bay at Middle falls, which is about a mile above Campbellford.
It is almost entirely in limestone rock cutting, with earth embankments and a concrete wall at the upper entrance.

A dam is provided for at Middle falls, also swing bridges for the roads, and for the Grand Junction Railway, near Hoard's station.

From Chisholm's lock to Trenton, still water is formed by a succession of dams to be constructed across the Trent river.

At Chisholm's lock an estimate has been made for partially rebuilding the lock, and for building a new dam across the river.

The estimate also includes swing bridges for the Ontario Central Railway, and the high-way bridge across the river.

From Frankford to Trenton, the estimate has been made in accordance with the plans exhibited for contract. It is entirely in limestone rock. Provision is made for the dams—for alterations to the highway bridges at Frankford and Glen Miller, and for high level bridges for the Grand Trunk double track, the Gilmour siding, and high-way bridge at Trenton.

The Trenton entrance to the canal is large and ample—an estimate is included for piers.

I sounded the approach to Trenton harbour bay of Quinte, in the channel for about four miles, to the last buoy off "Nigger Island," and found that there was over 12 feet of water, the level of the bay being about 3 feet above low water.

Comparison of Routes.

From the examination made, it would appear that there is little difference in the cost of other route—the estimates show a difference of $144,537 in favour of the Port Hope route.

The difficulty of navigating Lake Ontario with canal boats, in stormy weather, is a serious objection to the Port Hope route.

The material for canal construction is better on the Trenton route, and the deep cutting on the Port Hope section is avoided by adopting the river route.

The diversion of water from its natural course, would be a source of great expense to the government—complaints were made that the water sometimes falls very low in the Trent river.

The largest public benefit would be obtained by constructing the canal through or near the towns of Hastings, Campbellford, Frankford and Trenton, where there are now large mills and factories.

A very large amount of water power, would be more available at the various dams on the Trent river than on the Port Hope route, and would be a valuable asset for the government.

The harbour at Trenton is much larger, and superior to that at Port Hope, and terminates in the inland waters of the Bay of Quinte.

For the above reasons I consider that the Trenton route is the most suitable for the canal.

HENRY A. F. MACLEOD, M. Inst. C.E.
Description

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Unit</th>
<th>Quantity</th>
<th>Rate</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in Prism, Lock pits, &amp;c</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>146,737</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>146,737</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in Locks (8)</td>
<td></td>
<td>30,448</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>18,268</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White Oak in Lock Sills</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>48,000</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>4,800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron in Lock Sills</td>
<td></td>
<td>13,176</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>1,318</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Douglas Fir, in Lock Gates</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>275,100</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>275,100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron, wrought and cast, in Lock Gates, including valves and operating gear</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>483,580</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>48,358</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dowels in Gates</td>
<td>No.</td>
<td>708</td>
<td>0.50</td>
<td>354</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Steel Rope, for operating Gates</td>
<td>Ft.</td>
<td>640</td>
<td>0.25</td>
<td>160</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White Oak in Guard Gate</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>4,246</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>2,544</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White Pine</td>
<td></td>
<td>1,975</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>1,185</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron in Guard Gate, including valves</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>3,416</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>342</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in Guard Gate</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>29</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>17.40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth Embankment—Borrow</td>
<td></td>
<td>54,755</td>
<td>0.30</td>
<td>16,427</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation for embankment</td>
<td></td>
<td>21,511</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>21,511</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in Silt Chambers (7)</td>
<td></td>
<td>1,468</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>1,468</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in</td>
<td></td>
<td>420</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>252.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Crib-work in Entrance piers</td>
<td></td>
<td>16,928</td>
<td>3.50</td>
<td>59,248</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete</td>
<td></td>
<td>9,116</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>5,469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White Oak</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>85,900</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>51,540</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>3,628</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>363</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in Dam foundation</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>606</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>606</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in Dam</td>
<td></td>
<td>5,277</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>31,662</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Timber and Plank in Dam</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>107,300</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>64,380</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron in Dam</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>97,240</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>9,724</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stop-Logs in Dam</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>40,600</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>4,060</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gravel</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>1,990</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>1,990</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rails</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>5,840</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>584</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spikes</td>
<td></td>
<td>200</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Winches</td>
<td></td>
<td>2,650</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>265</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chain for Winches in Dam</td>
<td></td>
<td>108</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in Bridge abutments and piers</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>250</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>1,500</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White Oak</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>2,000</td>
<td>0.60</td>
<td>1,200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Superstructure, one Swing Bridge</td>
<td>Acres</td>
<td>40</td>
<td>0.00</td>
<td>16,600</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Right of Way</td>
<td></td>
<td>40</td>
<td>0.00</td>
<td>16,600</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unwatering and removing old dams</td>
<td></td>
<td>8,000</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fencing</td>
<td>Ft.</td>
<td>8,000</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Painting Lock Gates, 16 pairs</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>1,430</td>
<td>0.30</td>
<td>429</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Excavation in Roads</td>
<td></td>
<td>3,700</td>
<td>0.00</td>
<td>3,700</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gravel</td>
<td></td>
<td>6,348</td>
<td>0.00</td>
<td>6,348</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in walls of Reaches</td>
<td></td>
<td>2,781</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>2,781</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation for walls of Reaches</td>
<td></td>
<td>697,096</td>
<td></td>
<td>697,096</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Add 10% for Contingencies</td>
<td></td>
<td>69,710</td>
<td></td>
<td>69,710</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Total Amount Estimated: 766,806

HENRY A. F. MACLEOD.
Estimate of cost of construction via Port Hope and via Trenton.

Rice Lake and Port Hope Route ........................................... $ 4,918,079

Hastings and Trenton Route:—
  Reaches above and below Hastings ..................... $ 21,000
  Heely's Falls Section ........................................ 766,806
  Hoard's Creek Section .................................. 2,360,250
  Chisholm's Lock ........................................... 219,560
  Frankford-Trenton Section ............ 1,695,000

Difference in favour of Port Hope Route ............... $ 144,537

HENRY A. F. MACLEOD.
TRENT CANAL

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1903

RICE LAKE TO PORT HOPE.—ESTIMATE OF COST.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Unit</th>
<th>Quantity</th>
<th>Rate</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation, in prism, lock pits, &amp;c.</td>
<td>C. Yds</td>
<td>174,736</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>174,736</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>5,101,686</td>
<td>0.30</td>
<td>1,530,509</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in locks (19)</td>
<td>F.B.M.</td>
<td>122,483</td>
<td>7.00</td>
<td>857,413</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White oak in lock sills</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>114,000</td>
<td>80.00</td>
<td>9,120</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron in lock sills</td>
<td>F.B.M.</td>
<td>31,283</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>3,129</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron, wrought and cast, in lock gates (including valves, &amp;c., operating</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>885,500</td>
<td>7.00</td>
<td>61,985</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Description</td>
<td>Unit</td>
<td>Quantity</td>
<td>Rate</td>
<td>Amount</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rice Lake to Port Hope.—Estimate of Cost.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Description</td>
<td>Unit</td>
<td>Quantity</td>
<td>Rate</td>
<td>Amount</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation, in prism, lock pits, &amp;c.</td>
<td>C. Yds</td>
<td>1,236,270</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>124,327</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth</td>
<td>F. M.</td>
<td>2,330</td>
<td>0.50</td>
<td>1,165</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Steel rope, for operating gates</td>
<td>Ft.</td>
<td>1,280</td>
<td>0.25</td>
<td>320</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White oak in guard gates</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>8,492</td>
<td>80.00</td>
<td>679</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White pine in guard gates</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>3,950</td>
<td>30.00</td>
<td>118</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron in guard gates, including valves</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>6,832</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>683</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in guard gates</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>296</td>
<td>7.00</td>
<td>1,400</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth excavation in silt chambers (5)</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>715</td>
<td>30.00</td>
<td>214</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in silt chambers</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>300</td>
<td>7.00</td>
<td>2,100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Crib-work in entrance piers</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>44,682</td>
<td>4.00</td>
<td>178,328</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete, superstructure, in dams</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>17,896</td>
<td>7.00</td>
<td>125,272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in dams</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>170,600</td>
<td>80.00</td>
<td>13,664</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>383,180</td>
<td>30.00</td>
<td>10,145</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Timber and plank in dams</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>203,570</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>19,357</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>78,000</td>
<td>40.00</td>
<td>3,120</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gravel</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>15,360</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>15,360</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rails</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>12,000</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>1,200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spikes</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>150</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Winches</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>21,200</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>2,120</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chains for winches</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>864</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth excavation in bridge foundation</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>18,400</td>
<td>30.00</td>
<td>6,120</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in bridge abutments and piers</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>3,965</td>
<td>7.00</td>
<td>27,755</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Masonry</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>4,900</td>
<td>10.00</td>
<td>43,900</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White oak, superstructure</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>29,144</td>
<td>80.00</td>
<td>1,126</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Right of way</td>
<td>Acres</td>
<td>396</td>
<td>40.00</td>
<td>14,200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buildings on right of way (15)</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>18</td>
<td>200.00</td>
<td>3,600</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unwatering and removing old dams, &amp;c.</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>2,200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fencing</td>
<td>Ft.</td>
<td>120,800</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>12,080</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clearing</td>
<td>Acres</td>
<td>110</td>
<td>30.00</td>
<td>3,300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Harbour at Port Hope</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>4,900</td>
<td>10.00</td>
<td>43,900</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Excavation in protection of banks</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>63,600</td>
<td>0.30</td>
<td>19,080</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stone filling</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>63,600</td>
<td>3.00</td>
<td>190,800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Excavation in roads</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>32,200</td>
<td>0.30</td>
<td>9,660</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gravel in roads</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>27,600</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>27,600</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Right of way for roads</td>
<td>Acres</td>
<td>45</td>
<td>40.00</td>
<td>1,800</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Add 10% for contingencies.

$8,470,981
$84,918,073

HENRY A. F. MACLEOD
TRENT CANAL

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 49

TRENT CANAL.

Reaches Above and Below Hastings.—Estimate of Cost.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Unit</th>
<th>Quantity</th>
<th>Rate</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Above lock at Hastings</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>7,500</td>
<td>2 00</td>
<td>15,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Below lock at Hastings</td>
<td></td>
<td>3,000</td>
<td>2 00</td>
<td>6,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

\[ \text{Total Amount} = 21,000 \]

HENRY A. E. MACLEOD.
TRENT CANAL

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1903

TRENT CANAL.

HOARD'S CREEK SECTION.—ESTIMATE OF COST.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Unit</th>
<th>Quantity</th>
<th>Rate</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in prism, lockpits, &amp;c.</td>
<td>C. yds.</td>
<td>1,615,483</td>
<td>1 00</td>
<td>1,615,483</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth embankments, borrow</td>
<td></td>
<td>315,111</td>
<td>0 30</td>
<td>94,534</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation for embankment</td>
<td></td>
<td>72,948</td>
<td>1 00</td>
<td>72,948</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in locks (14)</td>
<td></td>
<td>55,806</td>
<td>6 00</td>
<td>334,836</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White oak in lock sills</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>84,000</td>
<td>80 00</td>
<td>6,720</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron in lock sills</td>
<td></td>
<td>23,058</td>
<td>0 10</td>
<td>2,306</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Douglas fir in lock gates</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>486,000</td>
<td>70 00</td>
<td>34,062</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron, wrought and cast, in lock gates (including valves, &amp;c., and operating gear)</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>849,700</td>
<td>0 10</td>
<td>84,970</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dowels in gates</td>
<td>No.</td>
<td>1,296</td>
<td>0 30</td>
<td>388</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Steel rope, for operating gates</td>
<td>Fr.</td>
<td>1,120</td>
<td>0 25</td>
<td>280</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White oak in guard gates (3)</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>12,000</td>
<td>80 00</td>
<td>1,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White pine</td>
<td></td>
<td>6,000</td>
<td>30 00</td>
<td>180</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron in guard gates, including valves</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>10,900</td>
<td>6 10</td>
<td>654</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in guard gates</td>
<td>C. yds.</td>
<td>60</td>
<td>6 00</td>
<td>360</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in silt chambers (12)</td>
<td></td>
<td>1,800</td>
<td>1 00</td>
<td>1,800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in</td>
<td></td>
<td>12,738</td>
<td>7 50</td>
<td>95,548</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cribwork in entrance piers</td>
<td></td>
<td>14,686</td>
<td>6 00</td>
<td>80,016</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in</td>
<td></td>
<td>184,406</td>
<td>80 00</td>
<td>11,552</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White oak in</td>
<td></td>
<td>59,732</td>
<td>0 10</td>
<td>5,973</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in dam foundation</td>
<td>C. yds.</td>
<td>1,300</td>
<td>1 00</td>
<td>1,300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in</td>
<td></td>
<td>9,635</td>
<td>6 00</td>
<td>40,710</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Timber and plank in dam</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>117,500</td>
<td>30 00</td>
<td>3,525</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron in dam</td>
<td></td>
<td>96,815</td>
<td>0 10</td>
<td>9,681</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stop logs in dam</td>
<td>F. B. M.</td>
<td>40,600</td>
<td>40 00</td>
<td>1,624</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gravel</td>
<td>C. yds.</td>
<td>2,728</td>
<td>1 00</td>
<td>2,728</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rails</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>5,840</td>
<td>0 10</td>
<td>584</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spikes</td>
<td></td>
<td>80</td>
<td>0 10</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Winches</td>
<td></td>
<td>2,650</td>
<td>0 10</td>
<td>265</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chain for winches in dam</td>
<td></td>
<td>108</td>
<td>0 10</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in bridge abutments and piers</td>
<td>C. yds.</td>
<td>4,225</td>
<td>6 00</td>
<td>25,350</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White-oak</td>
<td></td>
<td>12,500</td>
<td>80 00</td>
<td>1,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Superstructure—9 swing bridges</td>
<td>C. yds.</td>
<td>2,000</td>
<td>1 00</td>
<td>2,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in bridges</td>
<td></td>
<td>2,000</td>
<td>10 00</td>
<td>20,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Masonry in Grand Junction railway bridge</td>
<td></td>
<td>3,100</td>
<td>10 00</td>
<td>31,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in stream diversions</td>
<td></td>
<td>38,700</td>
<td>1 00</td>
<td>38,700</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Right of way</td>
<td>Acres.</td>
<td>170</td>
<td>40 00</td>
<td>6,800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unwatering</td>
<td></td>
<td>30,000</td>
<td></td>
<td>30,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fencing</td>
<td>Fr.</td>
<td>94,000</td>
<td>0 10</td>
<td>9,400</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Painting lock gates</td>
<td>1 pair</td>
<td>520</td>
<td>50 00</td>
<td>14,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in roads</td>
<td></td>
<td>35,100</td>
<td>0 20</td>
<td>7,020</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gravel in roads</td>
<td>C. yds.</td>
<td>20,000</td>
<td>1 00</td>
<td>20,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in wall, at Middle Falls entrance</td>
<td></td>
<td>2,500</td>
<td>6 00</td>
<td>15,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation for same</td>
<td></td>
<td>200</td>
<td>1 00</td>
<td>200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clearing</td>
<td>Acres.</td>
<td>150</td>
<td>0 30</td>
<td>4,500</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Add 10% for contingencies

Total: $2,145,680

HENRY A. F. MACLEOD.
Chisholm's Lock—Estimate of Cost

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Unit</th>
<th>Quantity</th>
<th>Rate</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Pulling down and rebuilding lock, in part, 10' lift</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Present lock is 135' between quoins, or 7' (short)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Masonry</td>
<td>C. yds.</td>
<td>2,000</td>
<td>12 00</td>
<td>24,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 pairs of gates, valves, painting, &amp;c.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>9,500</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 guard gate</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>880</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 slit chamber</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>500</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4 entrance piers</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>61,300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>New dam</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>55,800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 railway and 1 highway bridge, swing</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>32,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Right of way</td>
<td>Acres</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>40 00</td>
<td>320</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unwatering dam, &amp;c.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>10,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fencing</td>
<td>Ft.</td>
<td>2,000</td>
<td>0 10</td>
<td>200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Road</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>1,300</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Add 10% for contingencies.

Total: 199,600

HENRY A. F. MACLEOD.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Unit</th>
<th>Quantity</th>
<th>Rate</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation, in prism, lockpits, &amp;c.</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>378,211</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>378,211</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in locks, (7)</td>
<td>F.B.M.</td>
<td>36,947</td>
<td>6.00</td>
<td>221,622</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White oak in lock sills.</td>
<td>F.B.M.</td>
<td>42,000</td>
<td>80.00</td>
<td>3,360</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron in lock sills.</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>11,729</td>
<td>0.50</td>
<td>1,183</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Douglas fir in lock gates.</td>
<td>F:B.M.</td>
<td>301,500</td>
<td>70.00</td>
<td>21,105</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron, wrought and cast, in lock gates, (including valves, &amp;c., and operating gear)</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>400,400</td>
<td>10.00</td>
<td>4,004</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dowels in gates</td>
<td>No.</td>
<td>756</td>
<td>0.50</td>
<td>388</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Steel rope for operating gates</td>
<td>Ft.</td>
<td>500</td>
<td>0.25</td>
<td>140</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in silt chambers (7)</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>1,050</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>1,050</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in same</td>
<td>cts.</td>
<td>456</td>
<td>6.00</td>
<td>2,736</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Crib-work in entrance piers</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>30,550</td>
<td>3.50</td>
<td>166,125</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>12,836</td>
<td>6.00</td>
<td>77,716</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White oak</td>
<td>F:B.M.</td>
<td>134,200</td>
<td>80.00</td>
<td>10,736</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>60,892</td>
<td>10.00</td>
<td>6,089</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in dams</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>6,239</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>6,239</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in dams</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>33,283</td>
<td>6.00</td>
<td>211,698</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Timber and plank in dams</td>
<td>F:B.M.</td>
<td>756,900</td>
<td>30.00</td>
<td>22,707</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iron in dams</td>
<td>Lbs.</td>
<td>676,020</td>
<td>10.00</td>
<td>67,602</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stop logs in dams</td>
<td>F:B.M.</td>
<td>284,300</td>
<td>40.00</td>
<td>11,368</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gravel</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>18,185</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>18,185</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rails</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>49,880</td>
<td>10.00</td>
<td>498</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spikes</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>500</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Winches</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>18,550</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>1,855</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chain for winches in dams</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>756</td>
<td>0.10</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in watertight walls</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>13,908</td>
<td>6.00</td>
<td>83,408</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth embankment (borrow)</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>24,940</td>
<td>0.30</td>
<td>7,482</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation for concrete walls</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>3,950</td>
<td>5.00</td>
<td>19,350</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation for earth embankment</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>3,980</td>
<td>6.00</td>
<td>23,920</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete in bridge abutments and piers</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>2,860</td>
<td>10.00</td>
<td>28,600</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Masonry in Grand Trunk abutments</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>5,480</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>5,480</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation in bridge foundation</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>676,020</td>
<td>10.00</td>
<td>67,602</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Superstructure 4 bridges and trestle</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>676,020</td>
<td>10.00</td>
<td>67,602</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White-oak fenders</td>
<td>F:B.M.</td>
<td>3,700</td>
<td>80.00</td>
<td>296</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Removing two old spans and piers</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>500</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>500</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth embankment</td>
<td>C. Yds.</td>
<td>21,370</td>
<td>0.30</td>
<td>6,411</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gravel</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>300</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ballast</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>600</td>
<td>0.30</td>
<td>180</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Right-of-way</td>
<td>Acres</td>
<td>88</td>
<td>40.00</td>
<td>3,520</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>12</td>
<td>100.00</td>
<td>1,200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unwatering</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>15,800</td>
<td>10.00</td>
<td>158,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fencing</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>14</td>
<td>500.00</td>
<td>7,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Painting log gates</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>19,180</td>
<td>0.20</td>
<td>3,836</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Excavation in roads</td>
<td>lbs.</td>
<td>6,100</td>
<td>1.00</td>
<td>6,100</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Add 10% for contingencies

HENRY A. F. McLEOD.
Re Trent Canal Estimates.

I have been revising the estimates made by Mr. Rogers and myself of the Port Hope and Trenton sections, of the Trent canal, and now beg to enclose tabulated statements, giving the amounts estimated for the various classes of work, by Mr. Rogers and myself, in parallel columns, and the excess of either, in adjoining columns.

Trenton—Frankford Section.

In reference to the Trenton-Frankford estimate made by Mr. Rogers, I don't think he could have intended it for a complete estimate of the whole cost of the section, because he has apparently left out the cost of cement, for concretes, also bridge superstructures, and the usually large item for contingencies.

My estimate for the section is more than double the amount of Mr. Rogers estimate.

The three items above mentioned, account for over $400,000, or nearly one half the excess of my estimate. Added to this, my estimate for concrete exceeds Mr. Rogers by 23,460 cubic yards, or $140,760 at $6 per yard.

The other items in which my estimate is largely in excess are as follows:—

Rock Excavation.—From the appearance of the ground, I estimated all the excavation in rock. There is no dividing line on the profile to separate the rock from earth. My rock excavation includes deep lock pits, the sills being 8 feet 4 inches below the water level. Excavations for foundations of dams, water-tight concrete walls, earth embankments and bridges.

Mr. Rogers' earth excavation exceeds mine, which, only covers earth borrowed from embankments.

Timber.—If my excess of $49,742 in items 8, 9 and 10 is taken from Mr. Rogers' excess of $69,515 in items 11, 12, 13, 14, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 28 and 29 it leaves an excess in Mr. Rogers' estimate of $19,773. Without the detail of Mr. Rogers' estimate I cannot assign the various items to the entrance piers and dams.

Wrought and Cast Iron.—My price for iron is nearly double those in Mr. Rogers' estimate. I do not think that my quantities are excessive.

Stone Filling.—The difference in our prices $1.60 will nearly make up the excess in my estimate.

Unwatering.—Nearly half of the excess of $62,000 is intended to cover the cost of rock excavation (under 8 feet of water in part), to make the price $2 per cubic yard at the Trenton entrance. Some of the dams and locks are also in deep water.

Gravel in Dams.—The excess of $5,000 in Mr. Rogers' estimate for broken 'stone or gravel,' item 64, may be taken from my excess of $18,185 for gravel in dams.

A large quantity of gravel is required to comply with the plan for concrete dams, which is the only plan for dams used in my estimate.

Right of Way.—I have also included $4,720 for right of way.

There are several small items in Mr. Rogers' estimate for clearing, erecting gates, mooring posts, stone pitching, puddle, soilign slopes, protection lining, drilling holes, road guards, removing old fences, tiles, and days labour, amounting to $28,112, of which I have taken no account. I think it is unnecessary to include protection lining, as the banks are protected by the entrance piers, and are in rock cuttings, also drilling holes, and days labour, amounting to $14,875, the balance $13,237, is covered in my item for contingencies.
Port Hope Section.

My estimate for the Port Hope section exceeds Mr. Rogers, by over a million dollars. Mr. Rogers estimate for locks, exceeds mine by $506,300, which is caused by the cost of two hydraulic lift-locks.

In all other items my estimate is the larger as follows:

Rock Excavation.—The excess is caused by the difference in price, and the cost of a deviation of Mr. Trenton-Frankford at Lock 11.

Earth Excavation.—The difference in price more than accounts for the excess.

Lock Gates.—Mr. Rogers' estimate is for 24 pairs of gates at $4,000. Mine for 36 pairs over $5,000, the average price of the gates estimated. I have also added $19,000 for painting. I changed the two hydraulic lift locks into six ordinary lift locks, which accounts for the difference in the number of lock gates.

Guard Gates and Silt Chambers are not included in Mr. Rogers' estimate.

Entrance Piers.—I have estimated 3,000 lin. feet of entrance piers, more than Mr. Rogers', to comply with the plans. My estimate include 2,800 feet of piers at the Rice lake entrance and additional crib-work, where the water will exceed six feet deep, at the lock entrances.

Bridges.—I have estimated for the same number of bridges (18) as Mr. Rogers. My estimate is $26,287 in excess of his.

Dams.—My largest excess is in the estimate for dams. I made a diagram for each dam from the profile and plan and calculated the 8 dams separately, in accordance with the plan for concrete dams, and do not think that my estimate is too large.

Mr. Rogers has not estimated the following items—Land, and buildings on same—unwatering and removing old dams—Fencing and clearing—Protection of banks—and Roads—all of which, in my estimate, amount to $832,160.

My estimate for the Port Hope harbour and for contingencies are in excess of his.

Frankford to Rice Lake,

My estimate for the portion of the Trenton route, from Frankford to Rice lake, is $3,367,615. Mr. Rogers' estimate taken from Rubidge's, but not including repairs at Chisholms Rock, and deepening the channel at Hastings, is $2,078,563, showing that mine is $1,289,053 in excess.

In reference to this difference I would make the following remarks in explanation.

Chisholm's Lock.—I have estimated $219,560 for Chisholm's lock, made up of the following items. Pulling down and rebuilding part of the lock masonry, $24,000.—2 pairs of gates, valves, etc., and painting, $9,500.—Guard gate $850.—Silt chamber $500.—Entrance piers $61,100.—New dam $59,800.—Swing bridges, 1 railway and 1 highway, $32,000.—Right of Way $320.—Unwatering dam and lock $10,000.—Fencing $200.—Road $1,500.—The above are not included in Mr. Rogers' estimate.

It may be found that the old timber dam can be repaired and lessen the cost.

Hoard's Creek Section.

My estimate for the Hoard's creek section is made upon the same scale as the Trenton-Frankford section. The estimate made by Mr. Rubidge in 1888 is no doubt upon a smaller scale, particularly in the size of locks, which would not have then 8' 4" of water on the sills. I have not compared my items in detail with Mr. Rubidge's estimate, but I have revised my estimate, and think it is not excessive.

The prism and lock pits are estimated entirely in rock. There is no line shown on profile to indicate earth, and there appeared to be very little earth in the stream bottom. The prism is widened in nine places to 100 feet, this does not appear to be done in Mr. Rubidge's plan, and the lock pits are deep for 8' 4" water on the sills.
I think the cost of the section would be considerably reduced by introducing some dams instead of excavating the prism, increasing the lift of some of the locks and reducing the number.

There are now 14 locks proposed, with 2 of 9 feet lift, 4 of 10 feet, 1 of 11 feet, 5 of 12 feet, 1 of 13 feet and 1 of 14 feet. This would also effect a saving in water-tight earth embankments, and rock excavation below them, and would save the greater part of what I estimate for stream diversions.

In entrance piers my estimate provides for 100 lin. feet at each side of the entrance at Middle falls, and at Perry reach, and 52 entrance piers to the locks, each 150 feet long.

The dam at the Middle fall is estimated on a sketch I made of the river, taken from the plan and profile, and my knowledge of the locality.

Unwatering.—$30,000—includes $20,000 to make the price of rock excavation, under water, equal to $2 per cubic yard.

The balance is principally for the dam.

The other items require no explanation.

Heeley's Falls Section.

Most of my remarks in reference to Hoard's creek section apply to the Heeley falls section. It is entirely in rock.

I don't think it would be advisable to have more than one dam. That which I estimate is on the site of the present dam, and is taken from my sketch, compiled from the plan and profile. It may be found that the present dam can be made sufficient, and thus save about $50,000.

I think that the number of locks, proposed in this section, might be reduced to advantage, there being 8 locks of the following lifts: 2 of 6 feet lift, 3 of 8 feet, 2 of 14 feet and 1 of 15 feet.

I have also estimated for one guard gate, and seven silt chambers.

For entrance piers I include 400 feet at each side of the entrance, at the upper and lower reaches, and 24 piers at entrance to locks each 150 feet long.

The unwatering $15,000, includes $10,000 for the new dam, $2,000 for locks 1 to 5, $2,000 for the concrete walls, and $1,000 for the lower entrance.

Other items are for a highway swing bridge, right of way, fencing, painting lock gates, roads, and water-tight concrete walls.

Lock Gates and Dams.—I may say that I made tables giving the quantities in locks, and gates for lifts of from 8 feet to 22 feet, one set for locks founded on rock, the other for locks on earth.

The estimate includes sills and bolts, lock gates and fastenings, girders, valves and geering, and operating machinery for the gates.

The dams include the quantities in sluice-ways, girders, stop-logs and winches, with the concrete in dams, piers, and abutments, also the bridging between piers.

HENRY A. F. MACLEOD, M. Inst. C.E.
TRENTOX-FRAXKFORD SECTION.

Comparison of Estimates made by Mr. R. B. Rogers and H. A. F. Macleod.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Rogers</th>
<th>Macleod</th>
<th>Rogers</th>
<th>Macleod</th>
<th>Remarks</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>$</td>
<td>$</td>
<td>$</td>
<td>$</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clearing, grubbing, 1-2</td>
<td>2,500</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>2,500</td>
<td>0</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ballast on railway, 4</td>
<td>1,300</td>
<td>180</td>
<td>1,200</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 81. M. 30c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation, 5</td>
<td>144,000</td>
<td>397,880</td>
<td>233,880</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 80c. M. 81.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concrete, 6</td>
<td>257,500</td>
<td>626,730</td>
<td>336,460</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 83. M. 86.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ashlar masonry, 7</td>
<td>36,000</td>
<td>38,000</td>
<td>7,400</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 89. M. 810.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Timber in entrance piers, 8-9-10</td>
<td>564</td>
<td>50,306</td>
<td>43,742</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. $22 &amp; $15.08. M. $80</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White pine, &amp;c., 11-12-13-14-15-16-17</td>
<td>103,590</td>
<td>34,075</td>
<td>69,515</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. $16 to $80. M. $80 to 840.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tiles, 24-25-26-27</td>
<td>14,225</td>
<td>14,392</td>
<td>167</td>
<td>0 R. $7</td>
<td>to $75. M. $80.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Douglas fir, 30</td>
<td>24,600</td>
<td>21,105</td>
<td>2,805</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 89. M. 870.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dowels, 31</td>
<td>45</td>
<td>39</td>
<td>333</td>
<td>0 R. 3c. M. 50c.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Painting gates, 39-40</td>
<td>775</td>
<td>7,000</td>
<td>6,225</td>
<td>0 R. 802. M. 8500.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Erecting gates, 41</td>
<td>1,050</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>1,050</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 875.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mooring posts, cast iron, 46-47-48</td>
<td>870</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>870</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 9c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chain, 50</td>
<td>150</td>
<td>76</td>
<td>74</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 5c. M. 10c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stone pitching, 54</td>
<td>1,590</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>1,800</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 83.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stone filling, 55</td>
<td>9,600</td>
<td>51,731</td>
<td>42,131</td>
<td>0 R. 49c. M. 82.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Puddle, 56</td>
<td>2,600</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>2,600</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 81.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Soiling, &amp;c., 57-58</td>
<td>1,380</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>1,380</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 12c. to 18c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grading roads, 59</td>
<td>5,000</td>
<td>7,344</td>
<td>734</td>
<td>0 R. 83. M. 42.60.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Protection lining, 60-61-62</td>
<td>7,500</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>7,500</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 96c. to 83.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Drilling holes, 63</td>
<td>5,090</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>5,090</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 25c. M. 81.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Broken stone or gravel, 64</td>
<td>11,400</td>
<td>6,400</td>
<td>5,000</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 82 &amp; 814. M. 81.65.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Timber guards and ties, 69-70-71</td>
<td>1,675</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>1,675</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 9c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Removing old frames, 72</td>
<td>450</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>450</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 9c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Drain tiles, 73</td>
<td>500</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>500</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 9c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White oak mooring posts, 75</td>
<td>1,600</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>1,600</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 9c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conveying and placing bridges, 76-77</td>
<td>3,000</td>
<td>2,160</td>
<td>840</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 82.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unwatering, 78</td>
<td>30,000</td>
<td>92,000</td>
<td>62,000</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 82.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Day's labour, 78-79-80-81-82</td>
<td>2,375</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td>2,375</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>R. 82.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>811,690</td>
<td>1,695,000</td>
<td>163,563</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>1,046,363</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>883,839</td>
<td>50</td>
<td>883,839</td>
<td>50</td>
<td>R. 82.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

HENRY A. F. MACLEOD.
Trent Canal—Port Hope Section

Comparison of Estimates made by Mr. R. B. Rogers and H. A. F. Macleod.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Rogers</th>
<th>Macleod</th>
<th>Excess</th>
<th>Remarks</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>$8$</td>
<td>$8$</td>
<td>$8$</td>
<td>$8$</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rock excavation</td>
<td>120,000</td>
<td>174,736</td>
<td>54,736</td>
<td>R. 75c. M. $81$. Rogers includes 2 hydr. locks.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Earth excavation</td>
<td>1,210,000</td>
<td>1,530,509</td>
<td>320,509</td>
<td>R. 22c. M. 30c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Locks</td>
<td>1,576,000</td>
<td>809,700</td>
<td>766,300</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lock gates</td>
<td>96,000</td>
<td>211,797</td>
<td>115,797</td>
<td>R. 84,000. M. $850 and painting.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Guard gates</td>
<td>Nil.</td>
<td>2,880</td>
<td>2,880</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Silt chambers</td>
<td>Nil.</td>
<td>2,314</td>
<td>2,314</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Entrance piers</td>
<td>91,200</td>
<td>324,444</td>
<td>233,244</td>
<td>R. 7,600 1 ft. M. 10,-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bridges</td>
<td>211,000</td>
<td>237,287</td>
<td>26,287</td>
<td>600 1 ft.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dams</td>
<td>120,000</td>
<td>434,952</td>
<td>314,952</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Land and buildings</td>
<td>Nil.</td>
<td>39,840</td>
<td>39,840</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unwater and removing old dams</td>
<td>Nil.</td>
<td>8,000</td>
<td>8,000</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fencing and clearing</td>
<td>Nil.</td>
<td>15,380</td>
<td>15,380</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Harbour, Port Hope</td>
<td>300,000</td>
<td>350,000</td>
<td>50,000</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Protection of banks</td>
<td>Nil.</td>
<td>293,880</td>
<td>293,880</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Roads</td>
<td>Nil.</td>
<td>39,060</td>
<td>39,060</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Contingencies</td>
<td>337,320</td>
<td>447,088</td>
<td>110,768</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>3,861,520</td>
<td>4,918,079</td>
<td>1,056,559</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1,056,559</td>
<td>506,300</td>
<td>506,300</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>4,918,079</td>
<td>1,056,559</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Henry F. Macleod.
OTTAWA, September 29, 1903.

COLLINGWOOD SCHREIBER, Esq., C.M.G.,

Re Trent Canal, Port Hope and Trenton Routes.

You directed me, on the 14th of August, to meet Mr. Robert Beith, M.P., at Port Hope, and to take with me the plans of the Trent canal, showing the two routes proposed from Rice Lake, via Port Hope, and via Trent river, and Trenton.

According to arrangement, I met Mr. Beith at Port Hope on the 22nd of August, and with him Dr. Powers, Messrs. Clarke, Mullholland, Corbet and Barrett, examined the plans of the two routes, and spoke about the comparative difficulties of each.

In my letter to you of the 15th of May, in reference to the Port Hope route, I said that I did not think it would be necessary for the canal to cross the Grand Trunk Railway on the way in and that it could pass under the viaduct at Port Hope.

My report and estimates of the two routes of the 25th of July, are based upon the plans in the possession of the department, and my examination on the ground.

On the Port Hope route, as shown on the plans, the canal crosses the Grand Trunk twice, and the people of Port Hope wished to have a survey made, to show that it is unnecessary to cross the railway between Rice lake and Port Hope.

I mentioned this to you on my return to Ottawa on the 25th August.

Even should it be found that the two crossings can be dispensed with, I still think that the advantages of the Trenton route, are very largely in favour of its being adopted, as in my report of the 25th of July.

My estimates for the two routes, are largely in excess of those made by Mr. Rogers, and I wrote to you on the 8th of August, pointing out the causes of difference, which are mainly due to the higher prices used in my estimates.

All my estimates, however, are made upon one scale, while some of Mr. Rogers' are taken from Mr. Rubidge's estimates made several years ago.

HENRY A. F. MACLEOD, M. Inst. C.E.
Copy of Order in Council respecting Shipment of Canadian Goods in United States Vessels via St. Michaels with Regulations and Instructions issued in 1898 and subsequent years, and also correspondence respecting the issue of Orders and Instructions for the season of 1904.

EXTRACT FROM ORDER IN COUNCIL OF 1ST MARCH, 1898.

'That under Regulations to be prescribed by the Minister of Customs, goods purchased in Canada (duty paid or the produce of Canada), be admitted free of duty into the Yukon Provisional District, when carried by water via St. Michael and the Yukon river from a port in Canada or the United States, notwithstanding that the transportation by water is partly or wholly by a foreign vessel: Provided, however, that the Department of Customs be satisfied as to the identity of the goods.'

JOHN J. McGEE.
'Clerk of the Privy Council.'

MEMORANDUM.

Customs Department, Canada, Ottawa, 9th December, 1898.

Temporary Regulations re Entry of Canadian Goods into Yukon District during the year 1899, when carried in Foreign vessels via St. Michael.

1. Referring to Memorandum No. 966 B., dated 9th February, 1898, re entry of goods into Yukon District and Stickeen, collectors of customs in the Yukon Provisional District are hereby instructed that goods purchased in Canada (duty paid or the produce of Canada) may be admitted free of duty into the said district during the year 1899, unless otherwise ordered, when carried by St. Michael and the Yukon river from a port of Canada or of the United States, notwithstanding that the transportation by water is partly or wholly by a foreign vessel, subject, however, to the following regulations prescribed by the Minister of Customs:

(a.) A manifest or invoice, duly certified, and containing a particular description of the merchandise by packages, marks, numbers and contents, shall be presented to the customs officer at the Canadian port of entry in the Yukon District.

(b.) When the goods are shipped from a port in British Columbia, the certificate of a Canadian customs officer may be endorsed on the manifest or invoice, to the effect that the goods described have been shipped duty free from a port in British Columbia (the same as in section 5 (a) of memo. 966 B.)

(c.) When goods purchased in Canada as aforesaid are forwarded through the United States, it is directed that the manifest or invoice shall have thereon a certificate of the Canadian exporter or his agent, attested before a customs officer in Canada, as near as may be in the form and to the effect set forth hereafter in schedule (Form 1 C.)

62—1
(d.) The identity of the goods shall be established to the satisfaction of the customs officer at the port of entry in the Yukon District, and shall be attested by the oath of the importer or his agent.

2. Although one invoice only is required for Canadian Customs purposes, it will be advisable for parties purchasing goods in Canada to provide themselves with invoices in duplicate, duly certified, so as to avoid trouble and delay in passing entries, in case of lost or stray invoices.

3. Customs officers in the Yukon District are required to examine the marks and numbers on the packages landed, comparing the same carefully with the invoices, and opening such packages as may be necessary for examination.

4. The foregoing regulations are temporary, applying only to the entry of Canadian goods via St. Michael and the Yukon river.

JOHN McDOUGALD,
Commissioner of Customs.

Certificate (from Canadian exporter or his agent) for the Yukon trade via St. Michael. During 1899.

I, .................................................. do solemnly declare and certify the foregoing to be the true and correct invoice of goods, duty paid or the produce of Canada, with the marks and numbers of the packages in which shipped per .................... to ........................................... and as sold by the said .......................... on account of ..............................

The said invoice being dated at ................................ and amounting to ................................ dollars.

* (Signature) ........................................

Sworn to at ........................................... day
do. ........................................... 1899.

Before me,

..................................................

Customs Officer.
(Customs Stamp.)

MEMORANDUM.

CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT, CANADA, OTTAWA, February, 1900.

Temporary Regulations re entry of Canadian goods into Yukon District during the year 1900, when carried in Foreign vessels via St. Michael.

I. Referring to Memorandum No. 966 B., dated 9th February, 1898, re entry of goods into Yukon District and Stикеen, collectors of customs in the Yukon Provisional District are hereby instructed that goods purchased in Canada (duty paid or the produce of Canada) may be admitted free of duty into the said district during the year 1899, unless otherwise ordered, when carried by St. Michael and the Yukon river from a port of Canada or the United States, notwithstanding that the transportation by water is partly or wholly by a foreign vessel, subject, however, to the following regulations prescribed by the Minister of Customs:—

(a.) A manifest or invoice, duly certified, and containing a particular description of the merchandise by packages, marks, numbers and contents, shall be presented to the customs officer at the Canadian port of entry in the Yukon District.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 62

(b.) When the goods are shipped from a port in British Columbia, the certificate of a Canadian customs officer may be endorsed on the manifest or invoice, to the effect that the goods described have been shipped duty free from a port in British Columbia (the same as in section 5 (a) of memo. 966 B.)

(c.) When goods purchased in Canada as aforesaid are forwarded through the United States, it is directed that the manifest or invoice shall have thereon a certificate of the Canadian exporter or his agent, attested before a customs officer in Canada, as near as may be in the form and to the effect set forth hereafter in schedule (Form 1 C.)

(d.) The identity of the goods shall be established to the satisfaction of the customs officer at the port of entry in the Yukon District, and shall be attested by the oath of the importer or his agent.

2. Although one invoice only is required for Canadian customs purposes, it will be advisable for parties purchasing goods in Canada to provide themselves with invoices in duplicate, duly certified, so as to avoid trouble and delay in passing entries, in case of lost or stray invoices.

3. Customs officers in the Yukon District are required to examine the marks and numbers on the packages landed, comparing the same carefully with the invoices, and opening such packages as may be necessary for examination.

4. The foregoing regulations are temporary, applying only to the entry of Canadian goods via St. Michael and the Yukon river, and ceasing to apply to any such Canadian goods carried in foreign bottoms after the season of 1900.

JOHN MCDougald,
Commissioner of Customs.

Note.—A similar certificate was issued in 1901, 1902 and 1903.

CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT, CANADA, OTTAWA, 13th December, 1900.

Collectors of Customs at seaports of British Columbia and Yukon Territory.

You are instructed that United States steamers may transport from customs ports in British Columbia, goods destined for the Yukon Territory or Alaska via St. Michael, during the year 1901.

Goods arriving at seaports in British Columbia in transit in bond may be entered for exportation to St. Michael on the usual form. Goods of Canadian origin or foreign goods duty paid in Canada, when transported as aforesaid, may be admitted into the Yukon Territory free of duty, if the invoices thereof (in duplicate) are certified by the Canadian exporter before a customs officer in accordance with Form C. 1, hereto appended.

JOHN MCDougald,
Commissioner of Customs.

Note.—A similar instruction was issued 5th April, 1899; 13th March, 1902, and 6th February, 1903.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

MONTREAL, 3rd March, 1904.

JOHN MCDougald, Esq.,
Commissioner of Customs.

Ottawa.

I inclose copy of memorandum from a correspondent at Dawson relating to the Coasting Laws. It certainly seems to me that the time has now arrived when some action should be taken to protect our interests—it is a very one-sided arrangement as it now stands. If the Minister could see his way to refusing to pass the usual Order in Council this year, that would bring matters to a head, and would no doubt bring about some more satisfactory arrangement than now exists.

C. DRINKWATER.
Assistant to the President.

Copy of Dawson letter dated 3rd February, 1904.

We have been for some time past gathering what information we could, with the object of laying this matter before you in as complete shape as possible, with the following results:

First: The United States does not in any way, so far as we can learn, reciprocate by allowing the carrying of goods between any two American points by British or Canadian vessels. To the contrary, they enforce their coasting laws very rigidly, as the following instance will go to show:—

This past summer the Pacific Cold Storage Company, a Tacoma concern, operating also in this territory, obtained a contract to supply the American troops with a certain quantity of beef, which beef was sent forward in two shipments. The shipments were first carried by American vessels from Seattle to Vancouver. At that point they were transferred to Canadian bottoms and brought to Skagway, and thence over the White Pass and Yukon Route Railway to White Horse. A portion of this railway runs through American territory, which portion of the road, we understand, operates under an American charter. From White Horse the said shipments were carried to Eagle on the boats of the British Yukon Navigation Company, one of the subsidiary companies of the White Pass and Yukon Route. On arrival at Eagle the Pacific Cold Storage Company were forced to pay duty on the cattle, which were an American product, for the reason that they had been carried in Canadian bottoms. In regard to this transaction, we have no doubt that the Minister of Customs at Ottawa has full particulars, for the reason that in the case of foreign goods being shipped through here, the shippers are obliged to put up a cheque as security that the goods will be delivered in American territory, which amount is not released until the parties have shown, to the satisfaction of the collector here, that the goods have been received and released by the American customs.

Second: For several years past the large companies here, the Northern Commercial Company and the North American Transportation and Trading Company, through their subsidized lawyers at Ottawa, and the efforts of Messrs. R. P. Rithet and Company, agents for the Pacific Coast Navigation Company, a Seattle transportation concern, which operates between that city and the north, have been able to obtain an Order in Council by which the coast wise regulations have been rescinded each year, in so far as it affects the shipping of goods from British Columbia points to Yukon points, in American bottoms.

We thought it wise to bring these points to your attention, as we feel, not only from the stand point of our customers, but from a patriotic stand point as Canadians, that we should do what we can to prevent the Order in Council being passed this year. Mr. O'Brien, through his lawyer, took this up with the department last summer, and it was his intention to go to Ottawa this winter and lay the matter before them fully. He has, however, been prevented for various reasons from doing so, and we should be very glad, if you feel that you can do so, if you would take the matter up with the government, and do what you can to prevent this very undesirable Order in Council being passed.

Third: We understand the officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway are very much opposed to the Order in Council going through, and we have every reason to believe that if the bill joins issue with them, very little difficulty will be experienced in preventing it passing.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 62

Fourth: In order that you may have an idea what it would mean for Dawson, to say nothing of the benefits that would accrue to various British ship-owners, we may say it would force the large companies here to transfer to British register some of the eight boats they operated on the river here last year. Furthermore, it would force them to employ British officers, if not British sailors, on the boats transferred, in which connection we may say that the crews employed on the eight boats last season numbered 87 persons. In addition to these boats, two others pedy between St. Michael and Dawson last year, the Robert Kerr and Lavelle Young. These boats would also be forced, if they attempted to operate, to become British bottoms, which would mean the employment of British subjects for crews, numbering 54 persons, or on the ten boats, 871 persons in all, many of whom would be practically forced to make their home here.

Fifth: In the matter of wages of the crews employed on the boats, specified above, it would mean a payment of about $250,000 to British subjects, which is now being earned by American citizens. We understand that the outfitting and supplies for these boats mean an expenditure of $500,000 per season, all of which would go to Dawson or other British merchants, which now goes to American traders.

Sixth: These boats carried from St. Michael and delivered at Dawson last year, in round figures, 8,000 tons of goods, the value of which was $850,000, and there was left at various points along the river, owing to the early closing of navigation, to be delivered as soon as navigation opens this year, about 2,500 tons additional, the value of which in round figures is a quarter of a million dollars.

Seventh: In connection with this whole situation it would seem not out of place to remind the Minister of Customs of the various troubles that merchants here have experienced in the early days in getting supplies to Dawson; among other things we understand the United States customs officers charged duty on all fruits, meats, including beef, either live weight or in carcasses, shipped from United States points to Skagway in British bottoms, and exacted duty upon all perishable goods shipped from Canadian points, consigned to northern British Columbia or Canadian Yukon points, said duty being collected at Skagway; thus compelling the merchants here to pay duty at Skagway on Canadian goods consigned to Dawson, and double duty on American goods shipped via Skagway. This obnoxious regulation was, we believe, rescinded in the fall of 1899. There have also, we understand, been other minor abuses and annoyances on the part of the American authorities, in regard to which the government, if they have not already been advised, could doubtless learn by communicating with the Collector of Customs here, Mr. E. S. Busby, who has been stationed either at Skagway, White Horse or Dawson, since 1898, and who is, we understand, thoroughly conversant with the matter now in discussion.

We trust you will be able to prevent the Order in Council passing, as we can see no valid reason for the government making any exception in the case of boats plying on the Yukon river. Its prevention will, in our opinion, mean a great deal for Dawson, and we should think British Columbia ports, as it will force all goods, duty paid or manufactured in Canada, being shipped via British Columbia ports and being carried in British ships.

Department of Customs,
Ottawa, 5th March, 1904.

C. Drinkwater, Esq.,
Assistant to the President,
Canadian Pacific Railway Company,
Montreal, P.Q.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 3rd instant, No. 55206, with copy of a communication from a correspondent at Dawson, in regard to the enforcement of the Coasting Laws in that district.
The representations made will be submitted to the Honourable Minister of Customs for his consideration.

JOHN MCDougald,
Commissioner.

DEPARTMENT OF CUSTOMS,
OTTAWA, 15TH MARCH, 1904.

You are advised that the instructions issued in February, 1903, for the free entry of Canadian goods carried by foreign vessels from ports in British Columbia, via St. Michael, into the Yukon, have not been renewed for the present year.

Canadian goods desired to be admitted free into the Yukon via St. Michael, should therefore be carried only in vessels entitled to participate in the coasting trade of Canada.

Customs certificates are to be granted accordingly.

JOHN MCDougald,
Commissioner of Customs.

DEPARTMENT OF CUSTOMS,
OTTAWA, 29TH MARCH, 1904.

You are hereby advised that the instructions issued in February, 1903, under authority of an Order in Council, for the free entry of Canadian goods carried by foreign vessels from ports in British Columbia, via St. Michael, into the Yukon, have now been renewed. You may grant certificates accordingly in the usual form.

JOHN MCDougald,
Commissioner of Customs.
(63)

Report from the Right Honourable the President of the Privy Council to the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by the Governor General on the 11th March, 1904

On a Report dated 7th February, 1904, from the Right Honourable the President of the Privy Council, submitting that an Act passed at the last Session of Parliament, respecting the management and control of public and other works (3 Edward VII., C. 53) provides for the transfer by the Governor in Council of the management, charge and direction of any public works, or any power, duty or function with respect to any work or class of works, whether public or private, which is assigned to or vested by statute in any Minister or Department, to any other Minister or Department.

The Minister recommends as follows:—

1. With a view to systematizing and facilitating the work in connection with hydrographic surveys, the administration of which branch of the public service is assigned to the Department of Marine and Fisheries under the provisions of 55-56 Vic., C. 17, and the work whereof has been continuously performed by that Department for many years past, that all the hydrographic work of the Departments of Public Works and of Railways and Canals be transferred to the Department of Marine and Fisheries, and that that Department alone be charged in future with the management and control of such surveys.

2. That from or after the 1st of July next (1904), the management and control of the St. Lawrence ship channel, together with the dredging and sweeping plant, steamers and all other appliances now used by the Department of Public Works in connection with that work, be transferred to the Department of Marine and Fisheries, so as to place the supervision of the improvements to navigation on the St. Lawrence route under the jurisdiction of the Department which is directly responsible for the aids to navigation on that route.

3. That all the duties, powers and functions with respect to any work or class of works conferred upon the Minister of Public Works by any of the Acts relating to Harbour Commissioners, be transferred to and hereafter exercised by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

4. That any records and plans in the possession of the Department of Public Works or of Railways and Canals, which refer to any of the above mentioned works, and which may be required by the Department of Marine and Fisheries for its information and guidance upon assuming control of the said works, be transferred to the last named Department upon its making application therefor.

5. That all moneys voted by Parliament to either the Department of Public Works or that of Railways and Canals for the purpose of carrying out any of the works under the control of either Department and now transferred to the Department of Marine and Fisheries, be placed to the credit of the last named Department.

6. That the changes as recommended above take effect from this date, except as hereinabove otherwise provided.

The Committee submit the same for approval.

JOHN J. McGEE.
Clerk of the Privy Council.

63—1
RETURN

RETURN to an Order of the House of Commons, dated the 17th March, 1904, for a return showing the names and number of the officials in the employ of the Government in Canada in connection with Immigration; the salaries of each, the amount of money spent in Canada in connection with Immigration, the total expenditure in connection with Immigration for the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1903; the expenditure for advertising and the amount of expenditure on buildings, with names of places.

R. W. SCOTT,

Secretary of State.

STATEMENT showing names and salaries of officials, clerks and employees in the employ of the Government of Canada in connection with Immigration.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Rank, &amp;c.</th>
<th>Rate of salary per year</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>F. W. Annand</td>
<td>Agent.</td>
<td>1,400 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. L. Barnstead</td>
<td>Chief Clerk.</td>
<td>900 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. D. Blackadar</td>
<td>Clerk.</td>
<td>420 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Bayley</td>
<td>Caretaker.</td>
<td>456 25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Evans</td>
<td>Chief Guardian.</td>
<td>638 75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jos Bernstein</td>
<td>Interpreter.</td>
<td>547 50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. M. Cullen</td>
<td>Matron.</td>
<td>600 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jas. Fitzgerald</td>
<td>Guardian.</td>
<td>547 50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chas. Magnus</td>
<td>Night Watch.</td>
<td>456 25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Anderson</td>
<td>Interpreter.</td>
<td>800 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Ross</td>
<td>Clerk.</td>
<td>436 25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. V. Lantahum</td>
<td>Clerk.</td>
<td>420 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. P. Lunney</td>
<td>Clerk.</td>
<td>900 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. A. P. Reid</td>
<td>Matron.</td>
<td>320 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Stirling</td>
<td>Guardian.</td>
<td>436 25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dr. W. L. Ellis</td>
<td>Medical Officer.</td>
<td>2,000 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. Doyle</td>
<td>Agent.</td>
<td>1,400 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>L. Stein</td>
<td>Clerk.</td>
<td>1,400 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. P. Stafford</td>
<td>Clerk.</td>
<td>912 50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. Lamontagne</td>
<td>Clerk.</td>
<td>900 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. Galarnaeu</td>
<td>Guardian.</td>
<td>547 50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. Charlestr.</td>
<td>Messenger.</td>
<td>547 50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jas. Fitzgerald</td>
<td>Matron.</td>
<td>547 50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jean Rochette</td>
<td>Matron.</td>
<td>547 50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S. Morissett</td>
<td>Matron.</td>
<td>638 75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. Drouin</td>
<td>Matron.</td>
<td>600 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. E. Corneil</td>
<td>Matron.</td>
<td>600 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Name</td>
<td>Rank, &amp;c.</td>
<td>Rate of Salary per Year</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-----------------------------</td>
<td>--------------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>-------------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. M. C. du Tremblay</td>
<td>Asst. Matron... Quebec...</td>
<td>8 cts.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Geo. Hayden</td>
<td>Engineer...</td>
<td>420.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ed. Valin</td>
<td>Chief Guardian...</td>
<td>800.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Geo. Martel</td>
<td>Guardian...</td>
<td>750.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. Blouin</td>
<td>Pt. Levis...</td>
<td>547.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jno. Hoolahan</td>
<td>Agent... Montreal.</td>
<td>547.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jos. Daigle</td>
<td>Clerk...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Rogimbald</td>
<td>Messenger...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Kuhlman</td>
<td>Interpreter...</td>
<td>700.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. D. Scott</td>
<td>Superintendent... Ottawa...</td>
<td>600.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. B. Smart</td>
<td>Inspector...</td>
<td>2,700.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Akerlindh</td>
<td>Interpreter...</td>
<td>1,400.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>F. C. Blair</td>
<td>Clerk...</td>
<td>1,100.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. J. Havey</td>
<td>Clerk, Ottawa...</td>
<td>900.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. A. Johnston</td>
<td>Travelling Agent on Trains, Ottawa...</td>
<td>480.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. W. Hillyard</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,900.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Franklin</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,600.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Thompson</td>
<td>Clerk, Ottawa...</td>
<td>626.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. O. Cowan</td>
<td>Carpenter, Ottawa...</td>
<td>626.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jas. Backnell</td>
<td>Clerk...</td>
<td>547.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Satchell</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>520.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss E. X. H. Mercer</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss J. Prindiville</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. I. Turgeon</td>
<td>Messenger...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. F. Purcell</td>
<td>Clerk...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss M. McK. Scott</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss M. Johnston</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mrs. E. S. Shotwell</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss E. V. Gillies</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss H. M. Gould</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss G. Kinsella</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss E. Estale</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss J. Hopkirk</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss L. J. G. Stewart</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>529.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss E. Joliffe</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>560.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss N. O'Reilly</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Tubman</td>
<td>Messenger...</td>
<td>500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dr. P. H. Brye</td>
<td>Chief Medical Inspector, Ottawa...</td>
<td>3,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. W. Speers</td>
<td>General Colonization Agent, Winnipeg...</td>
<td>2,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. O. Smith</td>
<td>Commissioner, Winnipeg...</td>
<td>3,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Moffat</td>
<td>Accountant...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chas. Bernier</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. H. Paulson</td>
<td>Iceland Agent...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. L. Watt</td>
<td>Clerk...</td>
<td>1,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. Harvey</td>
<td>Interpreter...</td>
<td>1,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Leon Roy</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cyril Genik</td>
<td>Clerk...</td>
<td>1,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thos. Gelley</td>
<td>Caretaker...</td>
<td>1,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. Morrison</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. F. Beaudy</td>
<td>Clerk...</td>
<td>1,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jos. Polson</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss K. Duff</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>780.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dr. S. C. Corbett</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,800.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. W. Agnew</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,800.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Hallanquist</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Wolff</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. J. Kennedy</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. W. McIvor</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jos. Young</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. J. Connell</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S. Gray</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>912.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. J. &amp; Eliza Saunders</td>
<td>Caretaker &amp; Matron, Winnipeg...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jas. Campbell</td>
<td>Clerk, Winnipeg...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss F. E. Wesscott</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss H. Williams</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John McKinnon</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. Harley</td>
<td>&quot; &quot; &quot; while employed at per day...</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Statement showing names and salaries of officials, clerks, &c.—Concluded.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Rank, &amp;c.</th>
<th>Rate of salary per year</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Paul Wood</td>
<td>Interpreter, Sifton</td>
<td>$600.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>L. B. Cochran</td>
<td>Land Guide, Medicine Hat</td>
<td>$600.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. Enns</td>
<td>Rostern</td>
<td>$900.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wm. Plaxton</td>
<td>&quot; and caretaker, Prince Albert</td>
<td>$600.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. E. Humphries</td>
<td>Agent, Saskatoon</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Braun</td>
<td>Clerk, &amp;c., Regina</td>
<td>$750.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. Zimmerman</td>
<td>Interpreter, Edmonton</td>
<td>$600.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>F. Mohr</td>
<td>Trav'g agent, Lethbridge</td>
<td>$900.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. Maier</td>
<td>Agent on trains, Edmonton</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. W. Sutter</td>
<td>Caretaker</td>
<td>$750.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jas. Winn</td>
<td>Clerk, Strathcona</td>
<td>$900.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thos. Bennett</td>
<td>Caretaker, Yorkton</td>
<td>$600.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S. Foster</td>
<td>Agent, Regina</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. M. Bred</td>
<td>Agent on trains, Port Arthur</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. M. McGovern</td>
<td>Clerk</td>
<td>$2,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. B. McInnes</td>
<td>Agent, U. S. Agencies, Ottawa</td>
<td>$1,800.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>F. S. Longworth</td>
<td>Clerk, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. A. Laurier</td>
<td>St. Paul,</td>
<td>$1,500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. H. Holmes</td>
<td>Clerk</td>
<td>$720.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss. M. Dass</td>
<td>Agent, Western States</td>
<td>$1,500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. O. Peterson</td>
<td>&quot; Grand Forks</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. O. Swanson</td>
<td>&quot; Milwaukee</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chas. Filling</td>
<td>&quot; Wausau</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. O. Currie</td>
<td>&quot; Spokane</td>
<td>$1,500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. M. MacLaehlan</td>
<td>&quot; Kansas City</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jas. Grieve</td>
<td>&quot; Temporary agent, Kansas City</td>
<td>$900.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. S. Crawford</td>
<td>&quot; Agent, Indianapolis</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. W. Brooks</td>
<td>&quot; Commission, London</td>
<td>$3,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. H. Rogers</td>
<td>&quot; Clerk, London</td>
<td>$1,800.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. V. Bennett</td>
<td>&quot; Omaha</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. C. Duncan</td>
<td>&quot; Indianapolis</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. M. Williams</td>
<td>&quot; Toled</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. J. Brughton</td>
<td>&quot; Chicago</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Benjamin Davies</td>
<td>&quot; Great Falls</td>
<td>$1,500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. Gauthier</td>
<td>&quot; Eastern States</td>
<td>$1,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. A. Burris</td>
<td>&quot; Port Arthur</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. M. Blais</td>
<td>&quot; Repatriation agent</td>
<td>$600.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. H. L. Vachon</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$600.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. L. Laganiere</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$600.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. T. R. Preston</td>
<td>Commissioner, London</td>
<td>$3,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. F. Just</td>
<td>&quot; Clerk, London</td>
<td>$1,300.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. A. Jones</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. A. Allen</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$900.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>F. E. Gardner</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$486.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. G. Fincham</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$632.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss. E. Godden</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$432.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss. B. Lock</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$375.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. Duncan</td>
<td>&quot; Clerk, Liverpool</td>
<td>$1,800.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. F. Jary</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$2,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. C. Hardy</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$1,800.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S. Maclod</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$486.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. Salinger</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$449.92</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Webster</td>
<td>&quot; Agent, Dublin</td>
<td>$1,800.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss. N. Henberg</td>
<td>&quot; Clerk</td>
<td>$282.56</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. B. Walker</td>
<td>&quot; Clerk, Glasgow</td>
<td>$1,800.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miss. A. Stevenson</td>
<td>&quot;</td>
<td>$221.40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. H. Mitchell</td>
<td>&quot; Agent, Birmingham</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. O'Kelly</td>
<td>&quot; Belfast</td>
<td>$2,000.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. M. Murray</td>
<td>&quot; Wales</td>
<td>$1,500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. Adamson</td>
<td>&quot; Scotland</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. T. de Coeli</td>
<td>&quot; Belgium</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. Wiallard</td>
<td>&quot; Paris</td>
<td>$2,500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>M. Jerome</td>
<td>&quot; Temporary agent, France</td>
<td>$1,200.00</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
The amount of money spent in Canada in connection with immigration during fiscal year ended June 31, 1903, was $217,000.00 (approximate).

The total expenditure in connection with immigration during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, was $642,913.74.

The expenditure for advertising in connection with immigration during fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, was $55,773.74. (This does not include publications).

The amount expended on immigration buildings during fiscal year 1902-1903 was as follows:

IMMIGRATION BUILDINGS, 1902-1903.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Location</th>
<th>Cost</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>St. John</td>
<td>$10,320.78</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Halifax</td>
<td>841.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Quebec</td>
<td>3,155.79</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Montreal</td>
<td>125.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peribonka</td>
<td>2.25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Roberval</td>
<td>25.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Port Arthur</td>
<td>89.44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brandon</td>
<td>11.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dauphin</td>
<td>28.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>East Selkirk</td>
<td>515.45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Winnipeg isolation hospital</td>
<td>12,211.51</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Winnipeg</td>
<td>11,720.45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Calgary</td>
<td>81.99</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lethbridge</td>
<td>1,538.89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Red Deer</td>
<td>16.70</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saskatoon</td>
<td>2,817.45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strathcona</td>
<td>34.25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qu'Appelle</td>
<td>2.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prince Albert</td>
<td>65.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yorkton</td>
<td>139.10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Generally</td>
<td>21.54</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>$33,763.69</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
R. W. SCOTT,
Secretary of State.

Statement showing amount paid to Commission Agents in the United States and the number of Immigrants represented for the Fiscal Year, 1902-03.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name of Agent</th>
<th>Number of Immigrants</th>
<th>Amount</th>
<th>Name of Agent</th>
<th>Number of Immigrants</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Alexander, A. W.</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$10.00</td>
<td>Montgomery, S. S.</td>
<td>27</td>
<td>$81.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Allard, D.</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>$10.00</td>
<td>Mood, A. F.</td>
<td>30</td>
<td>$55.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Armstrong, A.</td>
<td>21</td>
<td>$27.00</td>
<td>Munson, S. F.</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$6.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Barnett, A. D.</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$6.00</td>
<td>McDonough, T. E.</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>$9.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Barrett, Capt.</td>
<td>21</td>
<td>$55.00</td>
<td>Mckay, J. A.</td>
<td>157</td>
<td>$347.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bartholomew, N</td>
<td>658</td>
<td>$1,584.00</td>
<td>McRae, J. A.</td>
<td>15</td>
<td>$45.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Campbell, N.</td>
<td>288</td>
<td>$67.00</td>
<td>McRoberts, J. M.</td>
<td>28</td>
<td>$84.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chamberlain, A. B.</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>$3.00</td>
<td>Nilsen &amp; Norlander</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$12.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cockburn, G.</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>$9.00</td>
<td>Ort, G. F.</td>
<td>89</td>
<td>$177.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Compton, Martin.</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$6.00</td>
<td>Parker, J. H. M.</td>
<td>43</td>
<td>$978.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cook, H.</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>$11.00</td>
<td>Pearce, R.</td>
<td>40</td>
<td>$109.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Davies, E. W.</td>
<td>176</td>
<td>$439.00</td>
<td>Pearson, F. J.</td>
<td>15</td>
<td>$45.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DeMott, F. B.</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>$11.00</td>
<td>Price, R.</td>
<td>43</td>
<td>$163.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ekholm, A. M.</td>
<td>84</td>
<td>$297.00</td>
<td>VonKajes, Zoltan</td>
<td>238</td>
<td>$554.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Elworthy, R. S.</td>
<td>74</td>
<td>$167.00</td>
<td>Ritchie, Wm.</td>
<td>1,226</td>
<td>$2,833.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ferris, T. H.</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>$13.00</td>
<td>Ross, Wm.</td>
<td>24</td>
<td>$68.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Flanagan, J.</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>$29.00</td>
<td>Sanderson, Wm.</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>$2.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gallivat, J. H.</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>$19.00</td>
<td>Schwartz, C. D.</td>
<td>47</td>
<td>$163.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Glenn, F. A.</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>$9.00</td>
<td>Shamblin, W. D.</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$7.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grace, R. H.</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>$3.00</td>
<td>Shonkwiller, W. A.</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>$6.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Griffith &amp; Standard</td>
<td>89</td>
<td>$211.00</td>
<td>Simmons, J. W.</td>
<td>32</td>
<td>$72.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haugan, B. B.</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>$9.00</td>
<td>Smith, H. W.</td>
<td>49</td>
<td>$114.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hodge, C. H.</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$7.00</td>
<td>Soper, C. F.</td>
<td>48</td>
<td>$85.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Honefs, F.</td>
<td>13</td>
<td>$33.00</td>
<td>Stoner, R. R.</td>
<td>17</td>
<td>$277.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Howse, L. H.</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>$8.00</td>
<td>Sutherland, W. C.</td>
<td>26</td>
<td>$58.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Johnson, N. C.</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>$15.00</td>
<td>Thornley, W. H.</td>
<td>11</td>
<td>$32.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jacolbin, M. J.</td>
<td>113</td>
<td>$360.00</td>
<td>Urquhart, A. J.</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>$3.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kelly, Jas.</td>
<td>101</td>
<td>$250.00</td>
<td>Wassmann, F. A.</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>$12.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kissack, Wm.</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$11.00</td>
<td>West, G. F.</td>
<td>308</td>
<td>$696.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kline-felter, L. L.</td>
<td>81</td>
<td>$228.00</td>
<td>Whitney, G. A.</td>
<td>24</td>
<td>$54.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kneifl, J. C.</td>
<td>61</td>
<td>$145.00</td>
<td>Wickers, F. A.</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$8.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lang, F. J.</td>
<td>34</td>
<td>$91.00</td>
<td>Woodmansee, R. D.</td>
<td>13</td>
<td>$24.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lytle, J. A.</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$5.00</td>
<td>Work, E. E.</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$3.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MacAlpine, E. T.</td>
<td>193</td>
<td>$546.00</td>
<td>Taylor, John W.</td>
<td>986</td>
<td>$1,716.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MacKay, A. G.</td>
<td>49</td>
<td>$114.00</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marceus, H. M.</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$12.00</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marth, J.</td>
<td>51</td>
<td>$136.00</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Matheson, Walter</td>
<td>273</td>
<td>$669.00</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Total amount paid: $6,509,14,898.00
Statement showing amount paid to Commission Agents in the United States and the number of immigrants represented from June 30, 1903, to January 1, 1904.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name of Agent</th>
<th>Number of Immigrants</th>
<th>Amount</th>
<th>Name of Agent</th>
<th>Number of Immigrants</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Armstrong, Abel</td>
<td>61</td>
<td>$135.00</td>
<td>Mills, H. C</td>
<td>14</td>
<td>$34.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anderson, J. C</td>
<td>11</td>
<td>$19.00</td>
<td>Mood, A. F</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>$7.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anderson, J. B</td>
<td>32</td>
<td>$65.00</td>
<td>Marth, John</td>
<td>128</td>
<td>$296.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Barnett, A. D</td>
<td>13</td>
<td>$31.00</td>
<td>Matheson, Walter</td>
<td>144</td>
<td>$372.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Burns, T. J.</td>
<td>36</td>
<td>$62.00</td>
<td>Morse, H. M</td>
<td>12</td>
<td>$36.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brasat, Aug</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$8.00</td>
<td>Mackay, A. G</td>
<td>31</td>
<td>$97.75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brooks, J. W.</td>
<td>22</td>
<td>$34.00</td>
<td>McLeod, Alex</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$6.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cook, Henry</td>
<td>21</td>
<td>$43.00</td>
<td>McRae, J. A</td>
<td>357</td>
<td>$88.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cockburn, Geo</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>$17.00</td>
<td>Nilson &amp; Nordlander</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>$18.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Campbell, Nat</td>
<td>474</td>
<td>$1,061.00</td>
<td>Noble, A. B</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$14.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conaton, Martin</td>
<td>18</td>
<td>$39.00</td>
<td>Parker, J. H. M</td>
<td>334</td>
<td>$761.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Durst, J. K</td>
<td>13</td>
<td>$25.00</td>
<td>Pearson, F. J</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$6.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Davies, E. W</td>
<td>250</td>
<td>$442.00</td>
<td>Price, R</td>
<td>50</td>
<td>$80.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dunseith, Sam</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$7.00</td>
<td>Quaintance, M. F</td>
<td>23</td>
<td>$44.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eklund, A. M</td>
<td>112</td>
<td>$277.00</td>
<td>Von Rajes, Zolton</td>
<td>274</td>
<td>$500.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Elworthy, R. S</td>
<td>46</td>
<td>$118.00</td>
<td>Snider, G. W</td>
<td>69</td>
<td>$131.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Easton, N. B</td>
<td>13</td>
<td>$27.00</td>
<td>Smith, A. J. C</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$6.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ferris, Thos. H</td>
<td>17</td>
<td>$35.00</td>
<td>Shutt, A. P</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>$9.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Griffin &amp; Stannard</td>
<td>39</td>
<td>$94.00</td>
<td>Smith, H. W</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>$7.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Glenn, Ed. A</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>$20.00</td>
<td>Sweet, H. E</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>$18.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grass, M. A</td>
<td>29</td>
<td>$58.00</td>
<td>Shipes, A. P</td>
<td>18</td>
<td>$26.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hogan, Newton</td>
<td>18</td>
<td>$41.00</td>
<td>Stoney, R. K</td>
<td>26</td>
<td>$42.75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Howse, L. H</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>$8.00</td>
<td>Thornley, Wm. H</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>$20.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hennings, F</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$4.00</td>
<td>Taylor, John W</td>
<td>689</td>
<td>$1,261.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hegge, C. H</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$4.00</td>
<td>Wickens, F. A</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>$6.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jacobson, M. J</td>
<td>450</td>
<td>$972.00</td>
<td>Whitney, G. A</td>
<td>11</td>
<td>$22.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kelly, James</td>
<td>156</td>
<td>$312.00</td>
<td>West, G. F</td>
<td>469</td>
<td>$763.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Koehn, J. C</td>
<td>173</td>
<td>$326.00</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kissick, Wm</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>$24.00</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kniffelte, L. L</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>$27.00</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lange, F. J</td>
<td>330</td>
<td>$312.25</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Total: 4,678 | 9,514.75
IMMIGRATION

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 644

List of Local Commission Agents in the United States, 1902–03.

Name and P. O. Address.

D. Allard, Zilwaukee, Michigan.
G. H. Arnott, Levering, Michigan.
W. W. Akins, Vassar, Michigan.
Geo. H. Beach, North Branch, Michigan.
F. P. Meaman, Albion, Michigan.
F. Bellinger, Bessemer, Michigan.
W. Bingham, Gaylord, Michigan.
Wm.bolt, Midland, Midland Co., Michigan.
Ed. Boseley, Unionville, Michigan.
D. Brown, Sebewaing, Michigan.
E. W. Brown, Farewell, Michigan.
N. R. Chamberlain, Maniscus, Michigan.
Martin Conaton, Bad Axe, Michigan.
Grant Cothran, Vermont, Oakland Co., Michigan.
E. A. Convis, Owosso, Michigan.
Jno. Doyle, Saginaw, Michigan.
F. E. McDonald, St. Clair, St. Clair Co., Michigan.
R. C. Sawyer, Coldwater, Michigan.
H. H. Davis, Cassville, Michigan.
T. H. Ferrier, Pinconning, Michigan.
G. Freeman, West Harrisville, Michigan.
Dr. S. J. Garreau, Saginaw, Saginaw Co., Michigan.
Henry T. Gilbert, Sand Beach, Michigan.
Bruce Green, Manton, Michigan.
Erastus Harris, Lakeport, Michigan.
F. F. Harrington, Howard City, Michigan.
V. S. Hollinbeck, Alma, Michigan.
L. H. House, Brown City, Michigan.
G. T. Field, M.D., Chase, Michigan.
H. D. Keller, Wyanadotte, Michigan.
Walter S. Keen, Caseville, Michigan.
R. A. Kilgour, Marlette, Michigan.
A. Liebert, Ironwood, Michigan.
Angus G. McKay, Port Huron, Michigan.
D. J. Metcalf, Co., Michigan.
James McLean, Reed City, Osceola Co., Michigan.
R. H. Martin, Standish, Michigan.
W. A. McLean, Greenville, Michigan.
Ernest Nicholoson, Luther, Lake Co., Michigan.
N. J. Oliver, Black River, Michigan.
V. A. Poole, Cedar Springs, Michigan.
Frank A. Wickens, Fontaine, Boy 184, Michigan.
H. C. Pierce, Elk Rapids, Michigan.
M. F. Quintaine, Petoskey, Michigan.
J. A. Redmond, Sanilac Centre, Michigan.
Grant Reid, Vernon, Michigan.
V. S. Rolfe, Tustin, Michigan.
F. Schneick, Sebewaing, Michigan.
B. S. Stratton, Owosso, Michigan.
Al. C. Thomas, Escanaba, Michigan.
Jno. F. Turner, Clifford, Michigan.
L. E. Vorce, Frankfort, Michigan.
John Warehook, Parisville, Michigan.
O. W. Wiley, Big Rapids, Michigan.
John Wilson, Caro, Michigan.
F. Thrustell, Traverse City, Michigan.
J. P. Galvin, Clare, Clare Co., Michigan.
W. A. Thomas, Bay City, Michigan.
W. S. Wilson, Barrytown, Mecosta Co., Michigan.
W. S. Tallant, Shelby, Michigan.
Reb. B. Merry, Joyfield, Michigan.
James T. Mason, Clarkston, Michigan.
Isaac Turner, Saginaw, Michigan.
Joseph Fisher, Leesville, Wisconsin.
S. F. Munson, Mayville, Tuscola Co., Michigan.
W. C. Shell, Cass City, Michigan.
C. A. Berg, Escanaba, Michigan.
Andrew Lind, Lihpening, Michigan.
N. Campbell, Crookston, Minnesota.
F. W. Goertz, Thielman, Minnesota.
J. C. Kosh, Mountain Lake, Minnesota.
H. E. Metcalf, Wasca, Minnesota.
J. H. M. Parker, Duluth, Minnesota.
P. W. Simpson, Hutchinson, Minnesota.
Peter Johnson, Preston, Minnesota.
John Marth, Barnesville, Minnesota.
J. A. McKay, Alexandria, Minnesota.
Abel Armstrong, Hendor, Minnesota.
A. M. Ekblad, Halbig, Minnesota.
James Kelly, Wadena, Minnesota.
F. G. Demch, Winidom, Minnesota.
Peter Johnson, Foston, Minnesota.
G. Mix, Minnesota, N. H. Buff. 21st St. Minn.
R. Price, Fairmont, Minnesota.
E. J. Mullicke, Windsor, Minnesota.
M. J. Jacobson, Wheaton.
R. R. Stone, Windthrop, Minnesota.
F. J. Lange, Minneapolis, 1228 Washington Ave., N., Minnesota.
Andrew Hoidala, Dawson, Minnesota.
F. S. Baldwin, Waupaca, Wisconsin.
A. W. Ballantine, South Milwaukee, Wisconsin.
Wm. Barr, Jefferson, Wisconsin.
J. F. Clark, Bent Block, Oshkosh, Wisconsin.
W. D. Corrigan, Plainfield, Wisconsin.
A. L. Hellwig, Felsum, Wisconsin.
P. Cress, Phillips, Wisconsin.
Frank Heidt, Portage, Wisconsin.
R. J. Dugdale, Plattsburg, Grant Co., Wisconsin.
S. D. Forbes, Westfield, Wisconsin.
Wener Fox, Iron River, Wisconsin.
C. M. Jeliff, New London, Wisconsin.
H. C. McKee, La Fox, Wisconsin.
John R. Means, Stevens Point, Wisconsin.
A. B. Noble, Ashland, Wisconsin.
J. Ross Porter, Mt. Morris, Wisconsin.
Stephen Phanley, El Pasco, Pierce Co., Wisconsin.
Frank H. Hurd, Wabasha, Wisconsin.
List of Local Commission Agents in the United States—Continued.

Name and P. O. Address.

Hans. O. Erickson, Tomahawk, Wisconsin.
D. McQuane, Hayward, Sawyer Co., Wisconsin.
Jno. C. Linneman, Rudolph, Wisconsin.
Jno. H. McCray, Eau Claire, St. Louis, Missouri.
C. H. Hogge, La Crosse, 1331 George St., Wisconsin.
Ferdinand Hennings, Milwaukee, 334 Second St., Wisconsin.
Wm. Kissock, West Salem, Wisconsin.
M. A. Grasse, Milwaukee, 403 East Water St., Wisconsin.
August Bratz, Wauwatos, Wisconsin.
F. B. Earber, Celioe, Ohio.
J. G. McCall, Eustis, Georgia Co., Box 23, Ohio.
W. Carter, Oshawa, Ohio.
Wm. Gates, Toledo, 403 Madison St., Ohio.
E. B. Gorrach, Springfield, Ohio.
W. M. Moreland, E. Liverpool, Columbiana Co., Ohio.
Frank E. Moore, Alavada, Seneca Co., Ohio.
John H. Nigil, New Washington, Crawford Co., Box 12, Ohio.
W. S. Sears, Sidney, Ohio.
George, Troy, Ohio.
Geo. A. Whitey, Toledo, 356 Spitzer Bldg., Ohio.
C. J. Nelson, Kait, Ohio.
John B. Sholly, Bloomfield, Seneca Co., Ohio.
M. C. Walker, Mass. Center, Ohio.
E. G. Wickersham, Grover Hill, Ohio.
Willard S. Weaver, German-town, Montgomery Co., Ohio.
Geo. A. Whitey, Toledo, 356 Spitzer Bldg., Ohio.
S. M. Newton, Lattas, Ross Co., Ohio.
A. J. C. Smith, Tiffin, Ohio.
Thos. M. Foran, Buffalo, 57 California St., Ohio.
L. Harper, Comneaut, Ohio.
G. W. Robertson, Marion, 365 Walnut St., Ohio.
R. H. Rymand, Bartsville, Ohio.
F. E. Sibert, Weston, Wood Co., Ohio.
John Powell, Sliwack, Berry Co., Ohio.
Robert J. Carter, 1340 Harvard St., Cleveland, Ohio.
J. G. Drumal, Mt. Hope, Ohio.
J. A. Bolling, Covia, Webster Co., Iowa.
Elmer Bruce, Laporte City, Blackhawk Co., Iowa.
J. F. McCrory, Lecom, Taylor Co., Iowa.
Geo. H. Evert, Hartley, O'Brien Co., Iowa.
Henry C. Mills, Ohio, Iowa.
S. F. Boyd, Davenport, Iowa.
L. L. Klingelbe, Mason City, Iowa.
James A. Brooks, Watertown, South Dakota.
C. S. Doolittle, Ipswich, Edmonson Co., South Dakota.
J. W. Keating, Clark, South Dakota.
J. Trenholol, Henry, South Dakota.
J. Heinz, Mission Hill (or Volin), South Dakota.
F. H. Haver, Sioux Falls, South Dakota.
Ed. Black, Goddes, South Dakota.
J. W. Rogers, Aberdeen, South Dakota.
Geo. F. Ott, Watertown, South Dakota.
Henry M. Mares, Circleville, Perry, North Dakota.
J. W. Sannee, York, North Dakota.
Rev. F. A. Muller, Cethay, Wells Co., North Dakota.
Fred B. Dumas, Hopkins, Missouri.
M. D. Shubind, Bethany, Missouri.
Ed. Glenn, Luisiana, Missouri.
A. D. Barnett, Galtford, Missouri.
Jno. W. Brooks, Warrensburg, Missouri.
Louis L.und, Olivia Calhoun Co., Texas.
Wm. F. Adams, Wellsville, Allegany Co., 346 Deke Street, New York.
J. P. Nance, Franklin, Indiana.
P. B. Bollinger, Shippeshawena, Indiana.
Dav.<& Kautz, Fort Wayne, National Real Estate Co., Rooms 39, 31 and 32, Tri-State Building, Indiana.
Wm. H. Keck, Hanley, Indiana.
Frank Fisher, Mexico, Indiana.
Howard W. Street, Indiana, Indiana.
W. H. Thorley, San Francisco, 522 Washington Street, California.
Newton Hogan, Los Angeles, 3441 Hough Street, California.
Joseph W. Sims, Howard, Elk Co., Kansas.
H. H. Fast, Hillsb’sor, Kansas.
C. W. Miller, Hays City, Kansas.
M. F. Shute, Lost Springs, Kansas.
J. G. Anderson, Midway, Kansas.
J. J. Riege, Benner, Nebraska.
D. R. Buck, Omaha, Nebraska.
G. E. West, Omaha, 1401 Framan Street, Nebraska.
A. W. Alexander, Burnham, Pennsylvania.
Sam. Brown, Pittsburgh, Room 74, 339 Fifth Street, Pennsylvania.
C. W. Heydrick, Meadville, Pennsylvania.
E. F. wool, Beaver, Beaver Co., Pennsylvania.
Jas. Garvey, Harvey, Illinois.
Rev. Father Bourassa, Pullman, Illinois.
J. B. Green, Ramsay, Illinois.
W. A. Stonekeller, Atwood, Illinois.
G. E. Stohs, Massils, Illinois.
R. S. Elyworthy, Chicago, 2145 Wicve Ave., Illinois.
T. J. Burns, Springfield, Illinois.
Gen. J. McMan, Quincy, Illinois.
Henry Long, Norris, Illinois.
R. A. Burris, Port Arthur, Oregon.
Oliver B. Stockdorf, Red Portage, Oregon.
H. L. Briggs, Ohio, Alberta (Kasthous Ranch), N. W. T.
Alan Wadilla, Robinson, Idaho, Utah.
J. N. Taylor, Salt Lake City, Utah.
H. E. Smith, Broadview, 410 Fremont St., Mass.
Walter Mathesen, Helena, 111th Ave., Montana.
Messrs. Griffith & Stannard, Kalispell, Montana.
M. V. Bates, Cedar Cove, Kentucky.
List of Local Commission Agents in the United States—Concluded.

Name and P. O. Address.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>P. O. Address</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>H. C. Snyder</td>
<td>Louisville, 445 E. Market St., Ky.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zoltan Von Rajs, Roshleen, N-W.T., Hungarian</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. W. Davies</td>
<td>Spokane, 512 Empire State Building,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Washington</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Henry Cook</td>
<td>Tacoma, Washington</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>N. B. Easton</td>
<td>Stillwater, Oklahoma</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. L. Thomas</td>
<td>Oklahoma City, Oklahoma</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. H. Williscraft</td>
<td>Tulequak, Indian Territory.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

List of Local Commission Agents in the United States, &c., 1903-1904 (up to date 20th March, 1904).

Michigan.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Departmental File Number</th>
<th>Name</th>
<th>P. O. Address</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>37324</td>
<td>Martin Conaton</td>
<td>Bad Axe, Mich.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>37011</td>
<td>L. H. House</td>
<td>Brown City, Mich.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11351</td>
<td>Angus G. McKay</td>
<td>Port Huron, Mich.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>183700</td>
<td>Frank A. Wickens</td>
<td>Pontiac, Mich.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>47283</td>
<td>M. F. Quintance</td>
<td>Petoskey, Mich.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>36249</td>
<td>J. P. Galliver</td>
<td>Clare, Clare Co., Mich.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>250611</td>
<td>C. A. Berg</td>
<td>Escanaba, Mich.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>225312</td>
<td>Andrew Long</td>
<td>Ishpeming, Mich.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Minnesota.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Departmental File Number</th>
<th>Name</th>
<th>P. O. Address</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>57940</td>
<td>N. Campbell</td>
<td>Crookston, Minn.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>70296</td>
<td>J. C. Koehn</td>
<td>Mountain Lake, Minn.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>74099</td>
<td>John Marth</td>
<td>Barnesville, Minn.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>74067</td>
<td>J. A. McKay</td>
<td>Alexandria, Minn.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>16551</td>
<td>James Kelly</td>
<td>Wadena, Minn.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>123062</td>
<td>R. Price</td>
<td>Fairmount, Minn.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>197541</td>
<td>R. R. Stoner</td>
<td>Winthrop, Minn.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ohio.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Departmental File Number</th>
<th>Name</th>
<th>P. O. Address</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>221948</td>
<td>Wm. A. Hanna</td>
<td>Napoleon, Ohio.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>228111</td>
<td>A. J. C. Smith</td>
<td>Tiffin, Ohio.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>219065</td>
<td>T. Harper</td>
<td>Conneaut, Ohio.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>231752</td>
<td>G. W. Robertson</td>
<td>Marion, 105 Walnut St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>218073</td>
<td>R. H. Rhynard</td>
<td>Burkettsville, Ohio.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>242011</td>
<td>F. M. E. Sibert</td>
<td>Weston, Wood Co., Ohio.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>243012</td>
<td>John Powell</td>
<td>Shawnee, Berry Co., Ohio.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>251148</td>
<td>Robert J. Carter</td>
<td>Cleveland, 1349 Harvard St., Ohio.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>228244</td>
<td>S. M. Newhun</td>
<td>Roxahell, Ohio.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Iowa.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Departmental File Number</th>
<th>Name</th>
<th>P. O. Address</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>219134</td>
<td>L. L. Klinefelder</td>
<td>Mason City, Iowa.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>272990</td>
<td>C. F. Powers</td>
<td>Dubuque, Iowa.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Nebraska.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Departmental File Number</th>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Omaha, 1491 Fram St.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>167349</td>
<td>G. F. West</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Departmental File Number</td>
<td>Name</td>
<td>P. O. Address</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>--------------------------</td>
<td>--------------------------------</td>
<td>--------------------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>ILLINOIS.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11067</td>
<td>Rev. Father Bourassa</td>
<td>Pekin, Ill.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>16133</td>
<td>R. S. Elworthy</td>
<td>Chicago, 243 Wilcox Ave.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>24649</td>
<td>F. J. Burns</td>
<td>Springfield, Ill.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>25834</td>
<td>Henry Long</td>
<td>Morris, Ill.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30166</td>
<td>C. R. Davidson</td>
<td>Chicago, 702 Leland Ave.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>ONTARIO, CANADA.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>47195</td>
<td>R. A. Burriss</td>
<td>Port Arthur, Ont.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>MASSACHUSETTS.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>229537</td>
<td>Alex. D. McLeod</td>
<td>Haverhill, Mass., 43 Green St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>MONTANA.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>412300</td>
<td>Walter Matheson</td>
<td>Helena, Montana, 111 6th Ave.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>195346</td>
<td>Messrs. Griffin &amp; Stannard</td>
<td>Kalispell, Montana</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>OKLAHOMA.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>238047</td>
<td>X. B. Estes</td>
<td>Stillwater, Okla.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>274992</td>
<td>Henry Phillips</td>
<td>Jefferson, Okla.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>274991</td>
<td>J. M. Tamahill</td>
<td>Rusk, Okla.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>296099</td>
<td>L. H. Smith</td>
<td>Lamont, Okla.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>KANSAS.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>282780</td>
<td>James P. Forbes</td>
<td>Chanute, Kansas.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>244445</td>
<td>M. F. Shupe</td>
<td>Lost Springs, Kansas.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>208379</td>
<td>Frank L. Strickland</td>
<td>Turner, Wyandotte Co., Kansas.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>83890</td>
<td>J. W. Brooks</td>
<td>Newville, North Dakota</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>INDIANA.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>202123</td>
<td>Howard W. Smith</td>
<td>Indianapolis, Ind.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>WISCONSIN.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>188306</td>
<td>Robert M. Lamp</td>
<td>Madison, Wis.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>33146</td>
<td>H. C. McRae</td>
<td>Chippewa Falls, Wis.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>160577</td>
<td>John H. McRae</td>
<td>Eau Claire, Suite 1, Ingram Block.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>152653</td>
<td>C. H. Hegge</td>
<td>La Crosse, 1531 George St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>111108</td>
<td>Ferdinand Hennings</td>
<td>Milwaukee, 134 Second St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>186721</td>
<td>Wm. Kissack</td>
<td>West Salem.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>238871</td>
<td>Geo. D. Wood</td>
<td>Milwaukee, 400 East Water St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>227062</td>
<td>August Braatz</td>
<td>Wausau.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>38802</td>
<td>H. B. Noble</td>
<td>Ashland.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>303272</td>
<td>E. H. Smith</td>
<td>Menominee, Wis.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>MISSOURI.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>229877</td>
<td>A. D. Barnett</td>
<td>Guilford, Mo.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>33589</td>
<td>J. W. Brooke</td>
<td>Newville, North Dakota</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>295598</td>
<td>A. J. Phiferfield</td>
<td>Joplin, Mo.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>UTAH.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>76654</td>
<td>J. W. Taylor</td>
<td>Salt Lake City, Utah, 104 Main St.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>PENNSYLVANIA.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>226857</td>
<td>C. W. Heydrick</td>
<td>Meadville, Penn.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>89625</td>
<td>Samuel Dunsmith</td>
<td>Pittsburg, 33.5th Ave.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
IMMIGRATION

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 64a

List of Local Commission Agents in the United States—Concluded.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Departmental File Number</th>
<th>Name</th>
<th>P. O. Address</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>WASHINGTON</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>170457</td>
<td>Henry Cook</td>
<td>Tacoma, Wash.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>NORTH DAKOTA</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>83930</td>
<td>J. W. Brooks (agent for Kansas and Missouri)</td>
<td>Newville, North Dakota.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>NEW YORK</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>164808</td>
<td>A. P. Shutt.</td>
<td>River Head, Long Island, N.Y.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>293875</td>
<td>Chas. Densmore</td>
<td>Crown Point Centre, N.Y.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>CALIFORNIA</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>282450</td>
<td>A. H. McGuffin.</td>
<td>Los Angeles, 992 Grattan St.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The regular commission paid to the sub-agents in the United States of America is as follows:—

83 for each male adult.
82 for each female adult.
81 for all immigrants under the age of 18.

Special arrangements, however, were made with
R. Stoner, of Minnesota,
F. J. Lange, of Minnesota,
John W. Taylor, of Utah, granting them an extension of territory on the following basis:—

81.50 for each male adult.
75 cents for each female adult.
50 cents for all immigrants under the age of 18.
List of Booking Agents in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland who have received bonuses on Immigrants during fiscal Year 1902-1903.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name and Address</th>
<th>Amount</th>
<th>Name and Address</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>J. F. Allan &amp; Co., London</td>
<td>£ 15</td>
<td>R. Caldwell, Ann Am.</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. H. Allan, Chatton</td>
<td>£ 4</td>
<td>J. Caldwell &amp; Son, Coleraine</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Anderson, Berwick</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
<td>R. Croydon, Coventry</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. R. Archer, Leamington</td>
<td>£ 2</td>
<td>John Corrie, Monnaw</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Army &amp; Navy, Cooperative, London</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
<td>James Carroll, Hyde</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. A. Anderson, Dundee</td>
<td>£ 4</td>
<td>P. G. Chapman, Kingston</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. R. Abel, Forfar</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
<td>Thomas Coles, Manchester</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. N. Anderson, Stornoway</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
<td>C. R. Compston, Lancaster</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. J. Abbott, Roscburne</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
<td>J. Falcon &amp; Co., London</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. K. B. Arnold, Thame</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
<td>J. C. C. Crowley &amp; Co., Hull</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. Andrews, Newton Moor</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
<td>H. C. Duke, Southampton</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Arrowsmith, White Church</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
<td>R. Davidson, Aberdeen</td>
<td>£ 3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>James Allan, Bingley</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
<td>Davies &amp; Co., Cardiff</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Blackett, Manchester</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
<td>John Cameron, Manchester</td>
<td>£ 17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Birkenhead, Sale</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
<td>A. W. Dolly, Stanford</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Joseph Briggs, Shipley</td>
<td>£ 2</td>
<td>J. J. Dawson, Preston</td>
<td>£ 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thomas Brady, Drogheda</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
<td>James Doughas, Stranrear</td>
<td>£ 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wauling Barn, Hexhamshire</td>
<td>£ 2</td>
<td>David Dickie, Elgin</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>M. Briggs, Bradford</td>
<td>£ 2</td>
<td>P. J. Drusado, Hull</td>
<td>£ 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. F. Brance, Birmingham</td>
<td>£ 1 1 0</td>
<td>J. J. Drink, High Wycombe</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agnes H. Boyd, Larne</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>J. H. W. Bruce, Huddersfield</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. Brown, Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 8 1 5</td>
<td>E. Dain, Stalybridge</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. X. Baker, Hove</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
<td>R. K. Dinnen, St. Anselm</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. J. Banks, Banbridge</td>
<td>£ 0 1 4</td>
<td>F. H. Davage, Newark</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. S. Beverstock, More</td>
<td>£ 0 1 5</td>
<td>Davies, Turner &amp; Co., Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. W. Bell, Bath</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
<td>J. J. Dawson, Brandon</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>James Barlas, Perth</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>J. D. Daye, Maidstone</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. Bernasce, Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 5 5</td>
<td>M. De Rome &amp; Son, Kendrick</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. A. Brown, Newtonwards</td>
<td>£ 1 1</td>
<td>John Evans, Dudley</td>
<td>£ 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bullock &amp; Saddler, Brighton</td>
<td>£ 0 1 4</td>
<td>W. Easton, Jealsh</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>M. Buchanan, Glasgow</td>
<td>£ 1 0 3</td>
<td>W. H. Edmunds, Chesterfield</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Burton, Rochdale</td>
<td>£ 1 8</td>
<td>John Edwards, Rymney</td>
<td>£ 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. Barish, Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 2 1 6</td>
<td>J. Edwards, Exeter</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Baxter &amp; Son, Johnstone</td>
<td>£ 2 1 2</td>
<td>Evans &amp; Co., Rhiyl</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>James Burt, Kirkcaldy</td>
<td>£ 2 2 7</td>
<td>John L. Evans, Longton</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>James Bars, Dalkeith</td>
<td>£ 0 1 4</td>
<td>Elder, Dempster Co., Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Beckett-stone, Shifnal</td>
<td>£ 0 7</td>
<td>John Fry, Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 7 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>George Bain, Nairn</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
<td>C. J. Finlayson, Bangor-stoke</td>
<td>£ 0 1 4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Broughton, Bury</td>
<td>£ 3 1 7</td>
<td>Fethering &amp; King, Dumfries</td>
<td>£ 0 1 4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>K. E. Buckle, Hockport</td>
<td>£ 1 1 8</td>
<td>Fleming &amp; Co., Dundee</td>
<td>£ 2 7 4 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. Blacke, Dalton</td>
<td>£ 0 7</td>
<td>A. Finningham, Newton Stewart</td>
<td>£ 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Boyle, Ballymoney</td>
<td>£ 0 7</td>
<td>W. Ferguson, Airdrie</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>M J. Bird, South Moulton</td>
<td>£ 0 1 4</td>
<td>J. W. P. Fellows, Hastings</td>
<td>£ 0 1 4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. J. Barker, Northampton</td>
<td>£ 2 1 9</td>
<td>J. Ferguson &amp; Co., Leek</td>
<td>£ 0 1 4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. J. Bell, Aldbury</td>
<td>£ 1 1</td>
<td>F. Fisher, Boston</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Barre &amp; Sons, Newtonheath</td>
<td>£ 0 7</td>
<td>F. B. Foss, Swindon</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Henry Barrett, Barnstaple</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>Wm. Gibson, Dudley</td>
<td>£ 1 1 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Barter &amp; Son, Cork</td>
<td>£ 1 8</td>
<td>A. Gray, Sligo</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. E. Bardwell, Norwich</td>
<td>£ 1 1 0</td>
<td>M. Greener, Enniscoe</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. Blackburn, Manchester</td>
<td>£ 0 7</td>
<td>M. Green, Mpmpsworthy</td>
<td>£ 1 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. R. Cradock, Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 1 8</td>
<td>Walker Grant, London</td>
<td>£ 1 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. H. Cole, Wolverhampton</td>
<td>£ 1 1</td>
<td>J. S. Gervan, Ballygawley</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. Coyle, Bishop Stratford</td>
<td>£ 0 7</td>
<td>Gordon &amp; Co., Middlesborough</td>
<td>£ 1 5 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. J. Culling, Cardiff</td>
<td>£ 0 1 1 0</td>
<td>J. Canley, Atholes</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Frederick Cooper, Macclesfield</td>
<td>£ 1 0 0</td>
<td>H. Gaze &amp; Son, Manchester</td>
<td>£ 2 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cornelius &amp; Boulton, Cheltenham</td>
<td>£ 1 1 5</td>
<td>W. Griffith, Abercon</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Curtis &amp; Son, Tashire</td>
<td>£ 2 9</td>
<td>H. Gowen &amp; Co., Belfast</td>
<td>£ 5 0 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Carrington &amp; Co., Manchester</td>
<td>£ 1 1 8</td>
<td>Wm. George, Liskeard</td>
<td>£ 2 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. Clarke, Shfield</td>
<td>£ 3 1 8 0</td>
<td>Wm. Graham, Haltwhistle</td>
<td>£ 1 8 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. Cook &amp; Son, London</td>
<td>£ 7 1 0 0</td>
<td>Wm. Gray, Durham</td>
<td>£ 1 8 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Cooper, Darwen</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0</td>
<td>James Greave, Moffatt</td>
<td>£ 2 1 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. J. Cope, Tunstall</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>Griffiths &amp; Millington, Worcester</td>
<td>£ 3 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Cook &amp; Son, Aberdeen</td>
<td>£ 0 1 1 0</td>
<td>J. F. Grant, Cullen</td>
<td>£ 1 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Canadian Employment Association, London</td>
<td>£ 3 1 0</td>
<td>A. Gordon, Huntley</td>
<td>£ 1 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. Clarke, Ruthgate</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0</td>
<td>Edward Griffiths, Burslem</td>
<td>£ 1 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. Cumming, Brench</td>
<td>£ 1 0</td>
<td>John Green, West Bromwich</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. H. Gaskell, St. Leonards</td>
<td>£ 2 3 0</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
List of Booking Agents in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, &c.—Continued.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name and Address</th>
<th>Amount</th>
<th>Name and Address</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>J. Gundy, Saltburn</td>
<td>£7 0 0</td>
<td>Rosa Lock, Felsted</td>
<td>3 13 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thomas Gill, Skipton</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>L. Ludlow, Penzance</td>
<td>1 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Livesey Grimshaw, Church</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>J. W. Lownds, Ashton</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. Grim, Liverpool</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>W. B. Max, Liskeard</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. Hickman, Bridgewater</td>
<td>1 8 0</td>
<td>W. Milne, Birmingham</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Isaac Helton, Liverpool</td>
<td>1 8 0</td>
<td>T. R. W. Mason, Swansea</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. Hudson, Kings Lynn</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
<td>J. Morris, Liverpool</td>
<td>1 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Hargreaves, Accrington</td>
<td>1 0 0</td>
<td>Thomas Miller, Penrith</td>
<td>1 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haigh &amp; Son, Halifax</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>J. Mortimer, Ramsey</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. Hirst, Littleborough</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>A. Murray, Merteth</td>
<td>0 17 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. Hayhurst, Blackburn</td>
<td>2 19 0</td>
<td>T. Meadows &amp; Co., Southampton</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. Hall &amp; Son, Spalding</td>
<td>1 8 0</td>
<td>W. J. Mayo, Oxford</td>
<td>2 2 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S. Hall &amp; Son, Derby</td>
<td>1 15 0</td>
<td>H. Monreal, Liverpool</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S. Harris, Chester</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>Mackay Brothers &amp; Co., Edinburgh</td>
<td>6 9 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Lawson, Liverpool</td>
<td>2 16 0</td>
<td>James Mathew, Wigan</td>
<td>2 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Hill, Bed ford</td>
<td>2 9 0</td>
<td>D. S. Mitchell, Glasgow</td>
<td>2 16 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Luke Holt, Halifax</td>
<td>3 10 0</td>
<td>W. Morris, Langleymore</td>
<td>3 6 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. C. Hubert, London</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>G. Mitchell, Keith</td>
<td>2 15 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Hunter, Dundee</td>
<td>2 2 0</td>
<td>M. Mason, Lerwick</td>
<td>1 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. C. H. Lindsay, Edinburg</td>
<td>4 14 0</td>
<td>F. Mackay, Stategic</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Henderson, Hawick</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>J. S. Miller, Beith</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wm. Hudson, Brighton</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
<td>A. Mosin, Boston</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>F. W. Hetherington, London</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
<td>Henry Mufford, Tiverton</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Inglish, Larne</td>
<td>0 10 0</td>
<td>W. Monroe, New Ross</td>
<td>6 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Jackson &amp; Sons, Liverpool</td>
<td>11 11 0</td>
<td>A. Murray, Leigh</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S. Jennings, Silsworth</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>Thomas Mills, Garth</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. Johnston &amp; Co., Belurbist</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>J. Monkhouse, Kendall</td>
<td>1 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. M. Jones, Nelson</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>J. Morgan &amp; Son, Bolton</td>
<td>1 16 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jones Bros., Pontypred</td>
<td>1 15 0</td>
<td>M. Moeone, Limerick</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Robert Jones, Wrexster</td>
<td>1 1 0</td>
<td>R. T. Marsland, Ashton</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. Jacques, Scarborou</td>
<td>1 8 0</td>
<td>Masters &amp; Moon, Weston</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Johnston, London</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>J. MeIlen, Glossop</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Jacobs &amp; Co., London</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>T. G. Miller, Prescot</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jacques &amp; Scholey, Gloucester</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>R. B. Mills, York</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>M. P. Kendall, London</td>
<td>15 11 6</td>
<td>McCalla &amp; Co., Belfast</td>
<td>11 0 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peter Kelly, Salop</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
<td>W. McClelland, Ballymena</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Charles Johnston, London</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>W. E. McLean, Chatham</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>James Kelly, Moville</td>
<td>1 1 0</td>
<td>J. Macoll, Tobermory</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>King &amp; Bird, Mansfield</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
<td>J. McHardie, Kirnemuir</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wm. Keith, Thirsk</td>
<td>1 8 0</td>
<td>D. McPherson, Inverness</td>
<td>6 13 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Keen, Tisbour</td>
<td>1 14 0</td>
<td>J. S. McCaig, Oban</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. Kelly, Liverpool</td>
<td>1 15 0</td>
<td>A. McHugh, Choppington</td>
<td>1 8 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Knowles, Halifax</td>
<td>1 15 0</td>
<td>McDougall &amp; Co., Granton on Spey</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. T. Keys, Liverpool</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>W. McKeown, Ballymena</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. Leitch, Glasgow</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
<td>H. G. McMicken, London</td>
<td>6 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. Lambert, Padtham</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>Harry Neild &amp; Co., Bolton</td>
<td>2 16 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. L. Larkin, Brinscomb Glos</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>E. Nichols, Liverpool</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. J. Lamb, Davenport</td>
<td>1 1 0</td>
<td>J. T. Morris, Congleton</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. E. Lewis, Liverpool</td>
<td>1 14 0</td>
<td>Wm. Nasmith, Hamilton</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Gundy, Edinburgh</td>
<td>1 18 0</td>
<td>John Nichols, Kidderminster</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. M. Locke, Newmarket</td>
<td>0 14 0</td>
<td>Nisbet &amp; Co., Southampton</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>F. N. Lucas, Dewsbury</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>T. Odell, Sons &amp; Co., Dublin</td>
<td>6 9 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lusher Brothers, Diss</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>George Oldershaw, Southport</td>
<td>1 8 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>James Leitch, Dunfermline</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>R. O'Connor, Arva</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. C. Liddell, Dunfermline</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>J. H. Pearson, Carlyle</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. S. Lawson, Hawick</td>
<td>1 1 0</td>
<td>B. Peatree, Inverness</td>
<td>1 15 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. T. Leaman, Plymouth</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
<td>A. Phillipson, Dighton</td>
<td>1 18 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>A. C. Petrie &amp; Co., Belfast</td>
<td>4 3 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>James Potts &amp; Son, New Castle</td>
<td>16 2 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Wm. Pottie, Paisley</td>
<td>9 5 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>A. Picken &amp; Co, Greenock</td>
<td>2 16 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Peter Patterson, Greenock</td>
<td>2 15 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>W. H. Pinder, Leeds</td>
<td>2 19 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>J. Podmore, Liverpool</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>T. Pottinge, York</td>
<td>0 7 0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
List of Booking Agents in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, &c.—Continued.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Names and Address</th>
<th>Amount</th>
<th>Names and Address</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>G. &amp; A. Pegg, Derby</td>
<td>£ 1 8 0</td>
<td>James Scott, Westray</td>
<td>£ 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. W. Peace &amp; Son, Kirkwall</td>
<td>£ 1 7 0</td>
<td>J. M. Singleton, Keighley</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Quigley, Ardvreck</td>
<td>£ 0 16 0</td>
<td>G. L. Stephens, Fraserburgh</td>
<td>£ 1 15 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ramsden &amp; Co., Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 0 18 0</td>
<td>J. Taylor, Wakefield</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. Reid, Buckfastleigh</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>E. Telford, Carlisle</td>
<td>£ 4 11 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. J. Revel, Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 8 2 0</td>
<td>Thomson &amp; Co., Belfast</td>
<td>£ 4 18 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>James Rothery, Shrewsbury</td>
<td>£ 1 1 0</td>
<td>E. Thornburn, Elgin</td>
<td>£ 1 10 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. E. Russey, Shrewsbury</td>
<td>£ 20 16 6</td>
<td>J. Threlfall, Barnley</td>
<td>£ 3 10 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. H. Russee, Louth</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>G. R. Thompson &amp; Son, Arbroath</td>
<td>£ 1 15 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>John Rae, Stromness</td>
<td>£ 2 2 0</td>
<td>R. D. Thompson, Cupar</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Rae, Biggar</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
<td>B. L. Turner, Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 3 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peter Stoddart &amp; Co.,</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>E. F. Turf, Stamford</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Rudd, South Shields</td>
<td>£ 0 17 6</td>
<td>E. J. Thompson, Southport</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Robertson, Peterhead</td>
<td>£ 2 12 6</td>
<td>W. Thomas &amp; Son, Pontypridd</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. D. Robertson, Nuneaton</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
<td>E. M. Thomas, Nelson</td>
<td>£ 0 9 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rowe &amp; Carlyon, Falmouth</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>W. J. Trounce, Cardiff</td>
<td>£ 3 10 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. Rowlands, Penygraig</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>J. Tray, Cooperstown</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. Reece, Kington</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>J. Truscott, Maidenhead</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Rees, Barry Dock</td>
<td>£ 1 15 0</td>
<td>Tapscott, Smith &amp; Co., Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 2 12 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Daniel Ross, Wick</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>H. Taylor, Crewe</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. Stambrid &amp; Co., Bridgeport</td>
<td>£ 1 10 0</td>
<td>J. C. Toller, Northampton</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. Stokes, Tenbridge Wells</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>Voss &amp; Co., London</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. T. Shaller, Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>W. Vincent, Long Sutton</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Swan &amp; Leitch, Manchester</td>
<td>£ 4 4 0</td>
<td>W. Walkden, Bolton</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Stout, Stockton</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
<td>Wells &amp; Hodlahan, Dublin</td>
<td>£ 0 5 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Seed, Manchester</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>R. Wall, Wigan</td>
<td>£ 2 5 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. H. Samson, Trafo</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
<td>Wm. Watson &amp; Co., Liverpool</td>
<td>£ 4 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. Sanderson &amp; Co., Nottingham</td>
<td>£ 10 13 6</td>
<td>Ames Wright, Derby</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. N. Savage, Lincoln</td>
<td>£ 7 10 9</td>
<td>T. W. Whittaker, Leicester</td>
<td>£ 1 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seeing &amp; Reid, London</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>A. Wilson, Grantham</td>
<td>£ 0 17 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sewell &amp; Crowther, London</td>
<td>£ 3 3 0</td>
<td>H. L. Ward, Waterford</td>
<td>£ 1 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. J. Shepherd, Manchester</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>Watson Brothers, St. Johns Chapel</td>
<td>£ 2 2 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Simms &amp; Co., Newtonwards</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0</td>
<td>Wm. Weeks, Cleverton</td>
<td>£ 147 16 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. L. Simms, London</td>
<td>£ 75 16 0</td>
<td>J. E. Whitehead, Chichester</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Snai, Salisbury</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>Weeks, Philips &amp; Co., Plymouth</td>
<td>£ 1 15 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. R. Smith, Reading</td>
<td>£ 3 6 6</td>
<td>H. W. Williams, Solva</td>
<td>£ 1 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Smith, Sunders &amp; Co., Plymouth</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>F. Windsor, Douglas</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maria Smith, Ballymena</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>J. O. Wilson, Kelso</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. Sudd, Axminster</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
<td>J. Watson, Elgin</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Sweeney, Dungloe</td>
<td>£ 1 15 0</td>
<td>W. G. Wallace, Ayr</td>
<td>£ 0 12 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. H. Smith, Eversham</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>Whitehead &amp; Son, Appleby</td>
<td>£ 1 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stanby Parker &amp; Co., Manchester</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>E. Welby, Oscott</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I. Sandwith, Workington</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>R. O. Williams, Owen T. S.</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. Storer, Newburg</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>J. J. Wilson, Egremont</td>
<td>£ 1 15 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. Stevenson, Leith</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>R. W. Wilson, Peterborough</td>
<td>£ 1 16 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. J. Stanley, Woodwich</td>
<td>£ 9 4 0</td>
<td>C. Wilson, Grimsby</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Stott, Stockton</td>
<td>£ 2 12 3</td>
<td>A. Workman &amp; Co., Cheltenham</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Spiers, Darlington</td>
<td>£ 1 1 0</td>
<td>Thomas Wray, Coleraine</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. Stephen, Maud</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>S. T. White, Barnstaple</td>
<td>£ 0 14 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Stevenson, Kilmarrock</td>
<td>£ 7 1 0</td>
<td>W. Weal, Gainsboro</td>
<td>£ 1 18 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. W. Styan, Knaresborough</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>W. Walker, Middlesex</td>
<td>£ 0 1 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peter Stewart &amp; Co., Southampton</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>W. Walsh, Derby</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. Shira &amp; Co., Cotehill</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>H. Ward, Waterford</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. Slade, Wells</td>
<td>£ 0 7 0</td>
<td>Waters &amp; Son, Ipswich</td>
<td>£ 2 2 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Snell, Salisbury</td>
<td>£ 1 1 0</td>
<td>A. Yellowlees, Gallashields</td>
<td>£ 1 15 0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note.—The above bonuses were paid at the rate of 7 shillings for adult and 3 shillings and 6 pence for children. As returns for bonuses paid from July 1 to December 31, 1903, are not yet complete it is impossible to give return for that period. Supplementary return for said period will follow when full details are received.
RETURN

(64b).

Return to an Order of the House of Commons, dated the 17th March, 1904, for a return showing the names and number of all Immigration Agents employed on salary by the Dominion Government from the 30th June, 1902, to 1st January, 1904, in Great Britain and Ireland, the United States of America and Europe; the salary paid to each Agent, the amount allowed for expenses to each; also the number of immigrants sent to Canada by each of the said Agents.

R. W. SCOTT,
Secretary of State.
STATEMENT showing names and number of all Immigration Agents employed on salary by the Dominion Government from 30th June, 1902 to 30th June, 1903, in Great Britain and Ireland, United States of America and Europe, the total salary paid to each and the amount expended by each for travelling and living expenses.

GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Total salary 1902-03</th>
<th>Living expenses 1902-03</th>
<th>Travelling expenses 1902-03</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>W. T. R. Preston</td>
<td>3,000.00</td>
<td>131.95</td>
<td>324.25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. O'Kelly</td>
<td>1,900.00</td>
<td>224.27</td>
<td>251.91</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. H. Mitchell</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>57.47</td>
<td>111.14</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. R. Devlin</td>
<td>2,041.14</td>
<td>544.81</td>
<td>648.14</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. M. Murray</td>
<td>1,723.50</td>
<td>191.91</td>
<td>303.29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. F. Jury</td>
<td>1,800.00</td>
<td>296.94</td>
<td>497.05</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. L. Griffith</td>
<td>1,214.76</td>
<td>183.15</td>
<td>409.18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. Adamsen</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>689.86</td>
<td>502.61</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thos. Duncan</td>
<td>1,500.00</td>
<td>256.00</td>
<td>420.05</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. A. Hickman</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>478.59</td>
<td>769.13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. J. M. J. Mulvihill</td>
<td>75.00</td>
<td>57.57</td>
<td>48.71</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jno. Webster</td>
<td>1,500.00</td>
<td>91.92</td>
<td>136.90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. B. Walker</td>
<td>558.82</td>
<td>41.55</td>
<td>73.98</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

UNITED STATES.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Total salary 1902-03</th>
<th>Living expenses 1902-03</th>
<th>Travelling expenses 1902-03</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>D. Gauthier</td>
<td>1,000.00</td>
<td>374.00</td>
<td>381.40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. A. Barriss</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>59.50</td>
<td>37.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. Ribout</td>
<td>1,125.00</td>
<td>439.33</td>
<td>384.07</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. V. Bennett</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>338.00</td>
<td>402.48</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. J. Broughton</td>
<td>590.00</td>
<td>371.95</td>
<td>392.46</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. S. Crawford</td>
<td>1,650.00</td>
<td>740.30</td>
<td>324.41</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. O. Currie</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>231.00</td>
<td>877.56</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B. Davies</td>
<td>896.00</td>
<td>136.25</td>
<td>164.21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. C. Duncan</td>
<td>1,650.00</td>
<td>170.00</td>
<td>361.15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jas. Grieve</td>
<td>1,500.00</td>
<td>133.50</td>
<td>160.96</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B. T. Holmes</td>
<td>1,475.00</td>
<td>380.30</td>
<td>831.35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. A. Laurier</td>
<td>1,290.00</td>
<td>596.65</td>
<td>608.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. M. MacLauchlan</td>
<td>1,050.00</td>
<td>383.35</td>
<td>749.13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>M. V. McLemore</td>
<td>1,500.00</td>
<td>415.30</td>
<td>596.39</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chas. Pilling</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>721.00</td>
<td>371.65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. H. Rogers</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>544.50</td>
<td>904.75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. O. Swanson</td>
<td>1,500.00</td>
<td>479.43</td>
<td>349.45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. M. Williams</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>414.00</td>
<td>613.40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jos. Young</td>
<td>300.00</td>
<td>206.25</td>
<td>62.65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. M. Blais</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>106.50</td>
<td>218.55</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. L. Laganiere</td>
<td>150.00</td>
<td>53.65</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. H. L. Vachon</td>
<td>500.00</td>
<td>288.13</td>
<td>302.89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. J. White</td>
<td>2,200.00</td>
<td>808.25</td>
<td>1,163.00</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EUROPE.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Total salary 1902-03</th>
<th>Living expenses 1902-03</th>
<th>Travelling expenses 1902-03</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>D. T. d' Coehi</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>552.30</td>
<td>339.57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>S. Brynjolfsson</td>
<td>1,200.00</td>
<td>449.11</td>
<td>619.83</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 64b

Statement showing names and number of all Immigration Agents employed on salary by the Dominion Government from 1st July to 31st December, 1903, in Great Britain and Ireland, United States of America and Europe, the total salary paid to each and the amount expended by each for travelling and living expenses.

GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Salary 6 months to Dec 31, 1903</th>
<th>Living expenses 6 months to Dec 31, 1903</th>
<th>Travelling expenses 6 months to Dec 31, 1903</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>W. T. R. Preston</td>
<td>1,500.00</td>
<td>104.50</td>
<td>94.61</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. O'Kelly</td>
<td>900.00</td>
<td>98.60</td>
<td>126.08</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G. H. Mitchell</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>43.25</td>
<td>54.64</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. M. Murray</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>100.04</td>
<td>97.64</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. F. Jury</td>
<td>1,000.00</td>
<td>97.40</td>
<td>162.40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. Adamson</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>135.50</td>
<td>294.75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thos. Duncan</td>
<td>900.00</td>
<td>74.40</td>
<td>93.65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. A. Hickman</td>
<td>300.00</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jno. Webster</td>
<td>900.00</td>
<td>92.04</td>
<td>89.60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. B. Walker</td>
<td>900.00</td>
<td>97.00</td>
<td>92.63</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

UNITED STATES.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Salary 6 months to Dec 31, 1903</th>
<th>Living expenses 6 months to Dec 31, 1903</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>R. A. Burries</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>23.20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D. Gauthier</td>
<td>500.00</td>
<td>105.35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. Ribout</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>244.45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. V. Bennett</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>154.20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. J. Broughton</td>
<td>450.00</td>
<td>205.78</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. S. Crawford</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>444.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T. O. Currie</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>58.60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B. Davies</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>33.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. C. Duncan</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>63.10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jas. Grieve</td>
<td>750.00</td>
<td>441.70</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. T. Holmes</td>
<td>750.00</td>
<td>237.15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. A. Laurier</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>208.70</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J. M. MacLachlan</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>206.40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>M. V. McInnes</td>
<td>900.00</td>
<td>271.15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chas. Filling</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>377.45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. H. Rogers</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>257.45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C. O. Swanson</td>
<td>750.00</td>
<td>247.60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H. M. Williams</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>297.45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. M. Blais</td>
<td>300.00</td>
<td>65.05</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. L. Loganiere</td>
<td>300.00</td>
<td>55.30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rev. H. L. Vachon</td>
<td>274.95</td>
<td>285.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W. J. Whites</td>
<td>1,250.00</td>
<td>344.05</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

CONTINENT.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Salary 6 months to Dec 31, 1903</th>
<th>Living expenses 6 months to Dec 31, 1903</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>D. T. de Coeli</td>
<td>600.00</td>
<td>124.35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. Wiallard</td>
<td>833.32</td>
<td>125.30</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

64—2
STATEMENT showing number of Emigrants sent to Canada by each of the salaried agents in the United States of America and agents in Canada whose work extends to the United States of America for the period from June 30, 1902 to January 1, 1904, as compiled from the monthly reports of certificates issued.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Agent</th>
<th>State or Headquarters</th>
<th>Totals</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Grieve, Jas.</td>
<td>Washington</td>
<td>871</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Laurier, C. A.</td>
<td>Michigan</td>
<td>261</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Crawford, J. S.</td>
<td>Missouri</td>
<td>1,471</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MacLachlan, J. M.</td>
<td>Wisconsin</td>
<td>394</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Holmes, F. T.</td>
<td>Minnesota</td>
<td>5,293</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bennett, W. D.</td>
<td>Nebraska</td>
<td>3,288</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pilling, Chas.</td>
<td>North Dakota</td>
<td>7,082</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Williams, H. M.</td>
<td>Ohio</td>
<td>228</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Duncan, Jno. C.</td>
<td>Indiana</td>
<td>226</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Broughton, C. J.</td>
<td>Illinois</td>
<td>484</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Davies, Benj.</td>
<td>Montana</td>
<td>1,122</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Swanson, C. O.</td>
<td>Minnesota</td>
<td>1,155</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>McElmes, M. V.</td>
<td>Michigan</td>
<td>3,567</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rogers, W. H.</td>
<td>South Dakota</td>
<td>3,956</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Young, Jos.</td>
<td>Ohio</td>
<td>369</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Currie, T. O.</td>
<td>Wisconsin</td>
<td>309</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blais, Rev. Father</td>
<td>Montreal, P.Q.</td>
<td>31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vachon, Rev. Father</td>
<td>Beauharnois, P.Q.</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Laganiere, Rev. Father</td>
<td>Montreal, P.Q.</td>
<td>44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Burries, R. A.</td>
<td>Port Arthur, Ont.</td>
<td>1,494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ribout, A.</td>
<td>Mattawa, Ont.</td>
<td>726</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gauthier, Damase</td>
<td>Laurentides, P.Q.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td></td>
<td>31,917</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

No record can be kept of the number of immigrants sent to Canada by each of the agents in Great Britain and Ireland or Europe.

The total number of arrivals from Great Britain and Ireland for the year ended June 30, 1903, was 41,792, and for the six months ended December 31, 1903, was 18,432.

The total number of arrivals from Europe for year ended June 30, 1903, was 37,099, and for six months ended December 31, 1903, 12,518.
COPIES

(113)

Of the Order in Council appointing Major General, the Earl of Dundonald, to the command of the Canadian Militia, 20th May, 1902, and the Order in Council relieving from the command of the Canadian Militia, 14th June, 1904, and also, correspondence and other papers connected therewith.

INDEX.

No. 1. Order in Council appointing Major-General the Earl of Dundonald to the command of the Canadian Militia, May 20, 1902.

No. 2. Order in Council relieving Major-General the Earl of Dundonald from the command of the Canadian Militia, June 14, 1904.

No. 3. Report to Council by the Minister of Militia, June 13, 1904.

No. 4. Recommendation and Gazette, May 31, 1904.

No. 5. Recommendation and Gazette, May 31, 1904.

No. 1.

EXTRACT from a Report of the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by the Governor General on May 20, 1902.

On a memorandum dated May 17, 1902, from the Minister of Militia and Defence, stating that he duly received the Colonial Office cablegram, dated May 12, 1902, stating that Major-General O'Grady Haly's retention in the command of the Canadian Militia until July 19, next, was approved.

The Minister recommends that Major-General, the Earl of Dundonald, C.V.O., C.B., who has been selected by the Home Government, be appointed to the command of the Canadian Militia, from July 20, 1902, with a salary of Four Thousand dollars a year, and allowances of Two Thousand dollars a year, as provided by the Statutes.

The Committee submit the same for His Excellency's approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

No. 2.

EXTRACT from a Report of the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by the Governor General on the 14th June, 1904.

The Sub-Committee of Council, having had under consideration certain recent public utterances of the Right Honourable the Earl of Dundonald, General Officer Commanding the Canadian Militia, and a report in relation thereto by the Minister of Militia, have the honour to report as follows:—

On the eighth day of June instant, the attention of the Minister of Militia was drawn to a despatch in one of the newspapers of Ottawa, purporting to give a report of a speech made by Lord Dundonald at a dinner in Montreal, in which he assailed the government and particularly the Hon. Mr. Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, in relation to their action in militia affairs. On the same day, the Minister of Militia addressed a letter to Lord Dundonald, calling his attention to the report, and inquiring whether it correctly stated his utterances and the attendant circumstances. To this a reply was received from Lord Dundonald admitting the substantial correctness of the report in question.

Lord Dundonald's general remarks as to what he calls political interference, as well as those in relation to the particular case which he mentions, indicate on his part a regrettable failure to appreciate the principles of British constitutional government. Lord Dundonald's recommendation of any gentleman for appointment as an officer of the militia would in itself have no force or effect. It could only become effective after receiving (1) the approval of the Minister of Militia; (2) the approval of His Excellency the Governor General in Council. The power of approval on the part of each of these authorities must of necessity carry with it the right of inquiry and rejection.

In the case of members of the Cabinet, while all have an equal degree of responsibility in a constitutional sense, yet in the practical working out of responsible government in a country of such vast extent as Canada, it is found necessary to attach a special responsibility to each minister for the public affairs of the province or district with which he has close political connection and with which he has close political connection, and with which his colleagues may not be so well acquainted. Mr. Fisher, while sharing with his colleagues that general responsibility already referred to, represents in a particular manner the Eastern Townships of the Province of Quebec. If, when it was proposed to form a new regiment in that district, he interested himself in the work and sought to make the organization effective, he was not merely exercising a right; he was discharging a duty both to the people of the district and to his colleagues in the Cabinet, who would expect him to inform himself of all the facts and advise them before approval by the Cabinet of the proposed arrangement.

Mr. Fisher states that so far as his interference related in any way to politics it was not to give the new regiment a political colour but to guard against that very evil, which he had reason to believe was one of the causes of failure of some previous efforts to maintain efficient military organizations in the Eastern Townships. He interfered, not to have the regiment officered by his own political friends, but to see that capable military men of all political colours received as far as possible equal consideration. That he did not seek to give his own political colour to the regiment is abundantly evidenced by the fact that of eighteen names submitted in the list only one was struck out by him, and by the further fact that a majority of the gentlemen chosen for commission with his approval are his political opponents.

In the case of the gentleman particularly mentioned by Lord Dundonald as having been objected to, it has been shown that he had never been in any way connected with the militia and therefore was not regarded as a suitable person to have the rank of major; and that Mr. Fisher recommended for the place another gentleman who was also a political opponent, but who was well qualified by military service for a position of command.

It should be added that at the time of dealing with that particular case, as set forth by Lord Dundonald, Mr. Fisher was not acting merely as a minister specially interested in the Eastern Townships affairs, although such position would have given him an undoubted right to advise; he was acting for and with the authority of the Minister of Militia, who was absent from the capital, and therefore his action had all the force and authority of action by the responsible head of the Department of Militia and Defence.

In view of these facts, it is difficult to reach any other conclusion than that the action taken by Mr. Fisher was entirely within his right and duty as a Cabinet Minister and entirely in the interest of a non-partisan militia service.

It is of importance to observe that the list from which one name was struck was completed by the approval of His Excellency the Governor General on the thirty-first of May. At that time the Minister of Militia had returned to the Capital and was in daily attendance in his office, while Lord Dundonald was in similar attendance in his office in the same building. If Lord Dundonald had any reason to be dissatisfied with the list in its amended form, his obvious duty was to call on the responsible Minister and invite a discussion of the subject. This he did not do. He made no representations whatever to his Minister, but proceeded to Montreal and made his speech attacking the administration under which he was serving.

The Sub-Committee, while drawing attention to the reasons which fully justify the steps taken by Mr. Fisher, deem it well to state that such explanation is not a necessary part of the record. Even if Mr. Fisher's action had been as erroneously stated, there would still have been no justification for the course pursued by Lord Dundonald. Lord Dundonald is an officer of the Canadian Government, a high officer, it is true, but still an official of the Government, subject to all the limitations which are usually imposed upon public officials in regard to the action of their superior officers. For an official to make a public attack upon Ministers of the Government under which he serves is a proceeding so totally at variance with the principles which must necessarily obtain in the administration of military as well as civil affairs that it cannot with propriety be overlooked. It is impossible to do otherwise than characterize the speech of Lord Dundonald as a grave act of indiscretion and insubordination.

In the subsequent proceedings, further evidence has been afforded of Lord Dundonald's failure to appreciate the position he occupies as a public official. It appears that he desired to make a further communication on the subject. Instead of sending this communication to his Minister, he sent it to an Opposition Member of Parliament, and then forwarded a copy to the Minister, to whom it was delivered at the very moment when, as previously announced, a statement was to be made in Parliament.

The Sub-Committee deeply regret that an officer of Lord Dundonald's high rank should have been so misguided as to fall into these grave errors and to pursue a course which, if ignored, would be fatal to that discipline and subordination which are essential in both civil government and military service.

For the reasons herein set forth, the Sub-Committee advise that the Right Honourable the Earl of Dundonald be forthwith relieved of his position as General Officer Commanding the Militia in Canada.

The Committee of the Privy Council concur in the foregoing and submit the same for approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

No. 3.

DEPARTMENT OF MILITIA AND DEFENCE,
OTTAWA, JUNE 13, 1904.

To His Excellency

The Governor General in Council,

The undersigned has the honour to report as follows upon the recent act of the Right Honourable the Earl of Dundonald, the General Officer Commanding the Militia, in publicly assaulting, in a speech to officers at Montreal at a banquet in his honour, the Honourable Sydney Fisher, a Minister of the Crown, who during the absence of the undersigned in a distant part of the Dominion, had been acting as Minister of Militia.

The Ottawa 'Citizen' on Wednesday, June 8, contained the following report with the heading 'A Military Sensation':
ORDERS IN COUNCIL AND CORRESPONDENCE

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

A MILITARY SENSATION.

LORD DUNDONALD’S SPEECH AT WINDSOR BANQUET.

Deplores the Interference of Politicians with the Appointments to the Canadian Volunteer Force—The Condition, He says, is Intolerable.

Toronto, June 7.—The 'World' this morning publishes the following sensational story under an Ottawa date:

A Montreal officer who was present at the military dinner at the Windsor Saturday, stated here to-day that Lord Dundonald's sensational speech, although carefully written out and intended for publication, had been carefully suppressed by the Montreal newspapers.

This is what the General said:

'When a nation is in peril the commanding officer has the supreme control of the military appointments, and he is responsible to his country for its efficiency in war. In time of peace, unhappily, through political intriguers, we are in their web, and appointments are made without regard to military efficiency and to the great peril of the nation's safety. Officers in command of the forces of this country should not be selected because of their particular politics, but unfortunately this is the case.

'A most flagrant instance of political interference has recently come before me in connection with the appointment of officers in the new Eastern Townships Cavalry regiment, the Scottish Light Dragoons. The commanding officer of the corps had selected officers because of their apparent fitness from a military point of view. The names reached me and were sent to council, and, gentlemen, what do you think happened? The list having my approval was returned with the name of one officer stricken off, and initiated by the Minister of Agriculture.

'The gentleman whose name was stricken from the list was Dr. Pickel, the mayor of Sweetsburg, and warden of the county of Missisquoi, a man chosen of the people and well qualified to serve his King and country. His political colour was not, however, that of the Minister of Agriculture, and consequently he was not considered fit to serve his King in the military force of Canada.'

'If,' said Lord Dundonald, 'the Hon. Sydney Fisher has been as well versed in soldiering as in agriculture, he would have better understood the responsibilities of officers, and this would not have happened.'

After making a few more remarks, the General said: 'It is intolerable that my recommendations, made in the best interests of the force, should be so grossly interfered with by any Minister, not connected with the department.'

Lord Dundonald's speech was greeted with tremendous applause.

Lt.-Col. Hibbard also made a speech in which he endeavoured to shield the Minister of Agriculture, saying that it was difficult to suppose that Hon. Mr. Fisher would be guilty of such an act.

It goes without saying that the speech is the talk of both Ottawa and Montreal.

A copy of this report was immediately sent to the General Officer Commanding, with a letter as follows:

June 8, 1904.

Right Hon.

The Earl of Dundonald.

Major-General.

DEAR LORD DUNDONALD,—Will you be good enough to read the inclosed newspaper clipping from this morning's 'Citizen' and let me know if it correctly reports your utterances and the attendant circumstances.

Yours very truly,

F. W. BORDEN.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 113

To which an answer was received in the following words:—

Militia Headquarters, Canada,
June 8, 1904.

The Hon. Sir Frederick Borden, K.C.M.G.,
Minister of Militia and Defence.

Dear Sir Frederick Borden,—I am obliged for the extract from this morning's 'Citizen.' Though I made some notes for my speech at Montreal, I did not refer in these notes to the 13th Light Dragoons or to Mr. Sydney Fisher, and have therefore nothing to refer to with regard to this portion of my speech beyond memory.

The 'Citizen' states that I said:—

'A most flagrant instance of political interference has recently come before me in connection with the appointment of officers in the new Eastern Township Cavalry regiment, the Scottish Light Dragoons. The commanding officer of the corps had selected officers because of their apparent fitness from a military point of view. The names reached me and were sent to council, and, gentlemen, what do you think happened? The list having my approval was returned with the name of one officer stricken out, and initialised by the Minister of Agriculture.'

'The gentleman whose name was stricken from the list was Dr. Pickel, the mayor of Sweetsburg, and warden of the county of Missisquoi, a man chosen of the people and well qualified to serve his King and country. His political colour was not, however, that of the Minister of Agriculture, and consequently he was not considered fit to serve his King in the military force of Canada.'

The above is substantially what I said, except that I also stated that Mr. Fisher interfered with the organization of the corps and with the names of other proposed officers as well as Dr. Pickel. With regard to the first portion of the extract you sent me I did not say that all appointments are made in the militia through political intrigue. The substance of what I said, if my memory serves me right, was that 'in time of peace the hands of the General were liable to be embarrassed by political intrigue and consequently the interests of the country suffered.'

Yours very truly,

DUNDONALD.

On the 9th instant, the subject was brought to the notice of the House of Commons by Mr. W. S. Maclaren, a member of that House (for Huntingdon) who said:—

Mr. Speaker, before the Orders of the Day are called, I would like to draw the attention of the House to an article that appears in the Ottawa 'Citizen' of yesterday. The article is not very long and I will read it to the House. It is as follows:—

A MILITARY SENSATION.

LORD DUNDONALD'S SPEECH AT WINDSOR BANQUET.

Deplores the interference of politicians with the appointments to the Canadian volunteer force—The condition, he says, is intolerable.

Toronto, June 7.—The 'World' this morning publishes the following sensational story under an Ottawa date:—

A Montreal officer who was present at the military dinner at the Windsor Saturday, stated here to-day that Lord Dundonald's sensational speech, although carefully written out and intended for publication, had been carefully suppressed by the Montreal newspapers.

This is what the General said: 'When a nation is in peril the commanding officer had the supreme control of the military appointments, and he is responsible to his country for its efficiency in war. In time of peace, unhappily, through political intriguers, we are in their web, and appointments are made without regard to military effi-ency and to the great peril of the nation's safety. Officers in command of the forces of this country should not be selected because of their particular politics, but unfortunately this is the case.
ORDERS IN COUNCIL AND CORRESPONDENCE

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

'A most flagrant instance of political interference has recently come before me in connection with the appointment of officers in the new Eastern Townships Cavalry regiment, the Scottish Light Dragoons. The commanding officer of the corps has selected officers because of their apparent fitness from a military point of view. The names reached me and were sent to council, and, gentlemen, what do you think happened? The list having my approval was returned with the name of one officer, stricken off and initialled by the Minister of Agriculture.

'The gentleman whose name was stricken from the list was Dr. Pickel, the mayor of Sweetsburg, and warden of the county of Missisquoi, a man chosen of the people and well qualified to serve his King and country. His political colour was not, however, that of the Minister of Agriculture, and consequently he was not considered fit to serve his King in the military force of Canada.'

'If,' said Lord Dundonald, 'the Hon. Sydney Fisher has been as well versed in soldiering as in agriculture, he would have better understood the responsibilities of officers, and this would not have happened.'

After making a few more remarks, the General said: 'It is intolerable that my recommendations, made in the best interests of the force, should be so grossly interfered with by any Minister, not connected with the department.

Lord Dundonald's speech was greeted with tremendous applause.

Lt.-Col. Hibbard also made a speech in which he endeavoured to shield the Minister of Agriculture, saying that it was difficult to suppose that Hon. Mr. Fisher would be guilty of such an act.

It goes without saying that the speech is the talk of both Ottawa and Montreal.

The question I would like to ask is as to whether the government is aware of this article which is published in the 'Citizen.' It is a very serious matter and, I think, requires some explanation.

To Mr. Macharen's inquiry the Right Honourable the Prime Minister replied, as follows:--

Mr. Speaker, I have to inform my hon. friend from Huntingdon (Mr. Maclaren) and the House as well that the government's attention has been called to the reported speech of Lord Dundonald. The matter is a very grave one and I have only to say that to-morrow the government will be prepared to make a communication to the House upon it.

Mr. SAM. HUGHES. Why not on Monday?

Sir WILFRID LAURIER. In answer to the question just put to me by my hon. friend from North Victoria (Mr. Hughes) why this matter should not be postponed until Monday instead of to-morrow, I would say to my hon. friend that my hon. friend the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Fisher) is under a very serious misapprehension and stricture, and I think it is better that the matter should be cleared up at the earliest possible moment.

On Friday the 10th instant the Honourable Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, the acting Minister of Militia at the time of the alleged occurrences, made the following statement to the House:--

Mr. Speaker, I am glad to take this earliest opportunity permitted me to state the exact facts, in regard to the incidents referred to by the General Officer Commanding, Lord Dundonald, in his speech at the military banquet in Montreal, Saturday, the 4th instant.

In consequence of the reports which appeared in the press of Lord Dundonald's utterances, the Minister of Militia wrote the following note to the General Officer Commanding:--
RE THE EARL OF DUNDONALD

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 113

June 8, 1904.

Dear Lord Dundonald,—Will you be good enough to read the inclosed newspaper clipping from this morning’s ‘Citizen’ and let me know if it correctly reports your utterances and the attendant circumstances.

Yours very truly,

F. W. BORDEN.

Rt. Hon.
The Earl of Dundonald,
Major General.

To which Lord Dundonald replied as follows:—

MILITIA HEADQUARTERS, CANADA,

June 8, 1904.

Dear Sir Frederick Borden,—I am obliged for the extract from this morning’s ‘Citizen.’ Though I made some notes for my speech at Montreal, I did not refer in these notes to the 13th Light Dragoons or to Mr. Sydney Fisher, and have therefore nothing to refer to with regard to this portion of my speech beyond memory.

The ‘Citizen’ states that I said:
‘A most flagrant instance of political interference has recently come before me in connection with the appointment of officers in the New Eastern Township cavalry regiment, the Scottish Light Dragoons. The commanding officer of the corps had selected officers because of their apparent fitness from a military point of view. The names reached me and were sent to council, and, gentlemen, what do you think happened? The list having my approval was returned with the name of one officer stricken out, and initialled by the Minister of Agriculture.

‘The gentleman whose name was stricken from the list was Dr. Pickel, the mayor of Sweetsburg, and warden of the county of Missisquoi, a man chosen of the people and well qualified to serve his King and country. His political colour was not, however, that of the Minister of Agriculture, and consequently he was not considered fit to serve his King in the military force of Canada.’

The above is substantially what I said, except that I also stated that Mr. Fisher interfered with the organization of the corps and with the names of other proposed officers as well as Dr. Pickel. With regard to the first portion of the extract you sent me I did not say that all appointments are made in the militia through political intrigue. The substance of what I said, if my memory serves me right, was that: ‘In time of peace the hands of the General were liable to be embarrassed by political intrigue and consequently the interests of the country suffered.’

Yours very truly,

DUNDONALD.

The Hon.
Sir Frederick Borden, K.C.M.G.,
Minister of Militia and Defence.

In regard to Lord Dundonald’s general statement that I interfered with the organization of the corps and with the names of other proposed officers of the corps as well as Dr. Pickel, let me say this: That the only grounds on which I made any suggestions in regard to the establishment of this corps were the immense importance of the appointment of leading officers with military qualifications, who knew the country and the people of the eastern townships, the district where the corps was to be established; that I took no exception to anybody’s appointment on political grounds alone, as evidenced by my recommendation and endorsement of many well-known Conservatives; that no one believes more thoroughly than I do that the first necessity in the recommendation of officers on the establishment of a new regiment is military qualification, and general personal suitability, and that no political considerations should be allowed to interfere with this. Should occasion arise for the discussion of detail in regard to these general statements, I shall be prepared to furnish them and to prove what I am now stating.

In regard to what Lord Dundonald calls 'a most flagrant instance of political interference,' through my having stricken the name of Dr. Pickel from the list recommended by him to the Minister of Militia, I have this to say. Lord Dundonald says:

'The gentleman whose name was stricken from the list was Dr. Pickel, the mayor of Sweetsburg, and warden of the county of Missisquoi, a man chosen of the people and well qualified to serve his King and country. His political colour was not, however, that of the Minister of Agriculture, and consequently he was not considered fit to serve his King in the military force of Canada.'

In the list of proposed appointments signed by Lord Dundonald in which the item appears of Dr. F. A. Pickel to be major, there is an asterisk opposite his name and a foot-note stating:—

'As a special case, and will be required to pass the qualifying examination.'

When I first saw his name upon the list, knowing him personally and knowing something of military matters in the neighbourhood, I was aware that he had never been connected with the militia and had never shown any interest in military matters or participated in any such movement. I therefore suggested that his appointment as commander of a squadron should not be made.

Further investigation confirmed me in this and also proved to the commanding officer who recommended his appointment, that I was right. Dr. Pickel himself so appreciated this fact that he was reluctant to accept the position.

On May 19th, in the absence from Ottawa of the Minister of Militia, the commanding officer of the regiment, Col. Smart, came to my office asking that I should press through council the passage of the general order authorizing these appointments. The next morning I received the following from Col. Pinault, Deputy Minister of Militia:

Ottawa, May 19, 1904.

Dear Mr. Fisher,—Will you kindly sign the inclosed, for the Minister, and if possible have it passed to-day.

Very faithfully yours,

L. F. PINAULT.

Hon. Sydney Fisher,
Minister of Agriculture,
Ottawa, Ont.

At the same time I received from Col. Smart the following letter:

13th Scottish Light Dragoons,
Montreal, May 19, 1904.

Dear Mr. Fisher,—Immediately on my return this evening I met Lieutenant-Colonel Whitley and discussed fully with him all matters in connection with our interview of to-day. Colonel Whitley was pleased to learn that everything was arranged satisfactorily, and at his request I telephoned to Sweetsburg with a view of getting from Dr. Pickel his final answer as to whether or not it was his intention to remain in the squadron, because, as I stated to you to-day, he had intimated to me his lukewarmness in the matter. I now have his final decision, which is that he gives up all connection with the squadron. In accordance therefore with Dr. Pickel's request, I can now, as commanding officer of the regiment, request you to kindly make the change in the 'Gazette' by leaving Dr. Pickel's name out.
RE THE EARL OF DUNDOXALD

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 113

I sincerely hope that this will meet with your approval, and in view of the short time between now and date of camp, you will kindly see that all recommendations pass Council to-morrow.

Thanking you for your kind consideration and assistance, believe me,

Yours very sincerely,
CHARLES A. SMART,
Lt.-Col. Commanding 13th S. L. Dragoons.

In view of above, I certainly recommend that Lieutenant-Colonel Smart's suggestion be followed.

FRED. WHITLEY,
Lt.-Col. Commanding,
Eastern Townships Cavalry Brigade.

Montreal, May 19, 1904.

I signed it and sent the recommendation with the following note to the Clerk of Privy Council:

Ottawa, May 20, 1904.

Dear Mr. McGee,—I send you a recommendation from the Department of Militia and Defence which I have signed for Sir Frederick Borden. He and I have discussed this matter and agreed that this should be put through.

You will note that I have stricken out one of the appointments to be Major, F. H Pickel. I have received a letter from the colonel who made these recommendations, saying that Dr. Pickel does not wish to have his name included.

If you would be kind enough to make an order on these recommendations so as to put it through to-day, you will much oblige, as the Militia Department is very anxious to have it put through.

Yours very truly,
SYDNEY FISHER.

J. J. McGee, Esq.,
Clerk of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

This is a simple statement of the facts of the case, which, without referring in any way to the propriety of the General Officer Commanding discussing in public official recommendations, without referring to the broad question of propriety of an official of the government of Canada criticising the official action of a member of that government—absolutely disapproves the charge that for political reasons I had undertaken to strike out a name which has been submitted to the Minister of Militia for appointment in the service.

Mr. Fisher's statement was immediately followed by an explanation from the undersigned as follows:—

Hon. Sir FREDERICK BORDEN (Minister of Militia and Defence). Mr. Speaker, as my name has been referred to in connection with this matter, I crave the indulgence of yourself and the House to make a personal explanation. I confirm literally and entirely the statement just made by my colleague, the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Fisher). He had for several years advocated the organization of a mounted force in the Eastern Townships—his own home, and that part of the Dominion, in the general good government of which he has a right to feel a special interest—and when the time came to take the question up, I naturally looked to him for advice and assistance. And let me say at once that recognizing myself to be the man upon whom—and upon whom alone—the entire responsibility rests to this parliament and to the Canadian people for the proper administration of the militia, I am always desirous of consulting everybody, whether colleague, member of parliament, officer or private citizen, who is willing to offer advice, or from whom I am likely to gain information. I was aware that Lt.-Col. Whitley, one of the ablest and most efficient cavalry officers in Canada, had been consulted with reference to the organization of the proposed new cavalry regiment mentioned in the Montreal speech of the General Officer Commanding, and also that Lt.-Col. C. A. Smart had been recommended by Lt.-Col. Whitley and the General, and approved by me as commanding officer thereof. Toward the end of March last I wrote to Lt.-Col. Whitley, expressing a desire to see him. Having learned afterwards that he was in England, I requested the General to suspend the work of organization until Lt.-Col. Whitley’s return, having previously explained the reasons to the military secretary, for the information of the General. About the end of April Lt.-Col. Whitley returned, and early in May brought Lt.-Col. Smart to Ottawa to have a conference with me. This conference was of a most pleasant and satisfactory character. Both officers expressed a strong desire to have the general order containing the appointments connected with the organization of the regiment, with its several squadrons, put through promptly, in order that the regiment might be able to go to camp this year. This I promised to do. Finding that I would be obliged to be absent from Ottawa from the 15th to the 26th of May, I instructed my deputy to take the general order containing the proposed list of appointments, as soon as completed, to my colleague, the Minister of Agriculture, to he by him submitted to Council, in view of the urgency of the case. I telegraphed to Lt.-Col. Whitley to meet me at Montreal on my way from Ottawa to Nova Scotia, which he did. He then repeated his previous request as to the necessity for putting the appointments through immediately. I told him of the instructions I had given my deputy, and asked him to go to Ottawa to assist in the final adjustment of the list. He promised to do so or send Lt.-Col. Smart.

My colleague has already stated what followed.

Thereupon Colonel S. Hughes, M.P., a member of the Opposition, inquired whether the Government ‘had any particulars from Lord Dundonald, concerning this case,’ and was informed by the undersigned that he had that moment received a letter from Lord Dundonald as follows:—

Ottawa, June 10, 1904.

Dear Sir Frederick Borden,—I inclose a copy of a memorandum which I have sent by bearer to Col. Hughes.

Yours very truly,

DUNDONALD.

The memorandum so prepared by the General Officer Commanding for the use of Colonel Hughes was subsequently read to the House by Colonel Hughes as follows:—

In accordance with general orders approved by Council, I gave orders in the customary manner in the month of February last to organize the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons as a cavalry regiment, with headquarters in the eastern townships of Quebec. Lt.-Col. C. A. Smart was gazetted as commanding officer on the 19th February, and other officers were also appointed to the same regiment. Shortly after the promulgation of the order authorizing the organization of the regiment, I received an order from Sir Frederick Borden through Col. Pinault, the deputy Minister of Militia, desiring him to stop the organization. No explanation or reason for this step was vouchsafed, but indirectly I learned that the Minister of Agriculture was responsible for the delay which thus occurred.

I greatly desired to have the organization proceeded with, as the time for holding annual camps was approaching. I accordingly twice communicated with Mr. Fisher by telephone on two dates some distance apart, and made appointments with him in order that the reason for the obstruction might be obtained.
Mr. Fisher did not keep either of the appointments. On the second of the occasions above referred to, when speaking to Mr. Fisher on the telephone, I explained the urgency of completing the organization of the regiment without delay, otherwise it would be impossible for it to go into camp. I also inquired what Mr. Fisher had to do with the organization of the militia; to this Mr. Fisher responded by inquiring whether I thought he had no right, as a Cabinet Minister, to interfere. My answer was that in my opinion Mr. Fisher had no right to interfere with Colonel Smart’s selection of officers, as I understood he had been doing.

It is perhaps unnecessary to say here that Colonel Smart’s duty was to select officers for commissions and submit their names to the General Officer Commanding through the proper channel in order that he might make recommendations to the Minister of Militia. I became convinced of Mr. Sydney Fisher’s continued interference with the duty of Colonel Smart in the selection of officers. Subsequently I sent in a list of officers for the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons to be approved of by the Minister of Militia and gazetted. Included in that list was the name of Dr. Pickel, mayor of Sweetburg, to command a squadron, a local man of prominence, whose appointment would, I believe, have advanced the interests of the militia. Dr. Pickel was not qualified professionally as an officer—indeed only two out of sixteen of the proposed officers for the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons were militarily qualified. It was impossible, as will be understood, to procure duly qualified officers, as the cavalry regiments in the eastern townsships had been increased since May, 1903, from four squadrons, numbering 300 men and 26 officers, to 20 squadrons, numbering 1,600 men and 180 officers on the peace establishment; and with a war establishment of some 2,500 men. All the gentlemen, however, on the list submitted, undertook to qualify professionally after appointment in the usual manner. This course is customary, and has been forced upon us by the lack of qualified officers. It is a course which has always met with the approval of the Minister of Militia. This list of officers for the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons was submitted to the Minister and included in the proposed general order which also included other regiments of the militia. The list of officers of the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons was struck out of the general order by Sir Frederick Borden, and I was informed of this circumstance by Colonel Pinault, the deputy minister, in a letter of which the following is a copy:

Ottawa, May 19, 1904.

Dear Lord Dundonald,—Late last evening I placed before the Minister the ‘Gazette,’ dated 18th inst., for approval and submission to Council. With the exception of the part relating to the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons, which the Minister desired held over for further consideration, it was approved, and as the Minister intended to leave the city this morning for a week or so, rather than delay the submission of the remainder of the ‘Gazette’ he cancelled and initialled the appointments to the 13th instead of returning the draft to you for that purpose.

Very faithfully yours,

L. F. PINAULT.

Major General the Earl of Dundonald, C.V.O., C.B.,
Commanding Canadian Militia.

A day or two after the first list was cancelled a further list was submitted to me by the Adjutant General, which I was informed would be acceptable and the organization of the corps would be permitted to proceed.

This latter list of officers to be gazetted was sent to Council and when returned, the name of Dr. Pickel had been erased and the erasure was initialled by the Minister of Agriculture, who was acting for Sir Frederick Borden.

When in Montreal on the 3rd of June fuller details of the interference of the Minister of Agriculture were communicated to me in conversation, as well as by letter from Colonel Smart, which I received on the morning of June 4th, the day on which I spoke at the officers’ banquet.
Colonel Smart's letter read as follows:—

13TH SCOTTISH LIGHT DRAGOONS.

His Lordship, the Earl of Dundonald, C.V.O., C.B., Major-General Commanding Canadian Militia,

My Lord,—As requested by you last evening, I have the honour to submit the following facts in connection with recommendations for appointments submitted by me, and to which the Hon. Mr. Fisher took exception.

I submitted the name of Dr. F. H. Pickel, who is mayor of the town of Sweethburg, and warden of the county of Missisquoi, to be major, in command of 'E' Squadron. Dr. Pickel is a gentleman of means, can ride fairly well, and was quite willing to take the necessary time to qualify himself for the position of major. Mr. Fisher objected to him for no other reason than that he was a strong political opponent of his, and was quite determined to block the whole organization, unless Dr. Pickel's name was withdrawn.

This I refused to do, as I had invited Dr. Pickel to come into the regiment, and told Mr. Fisher that some one else would have to be responsible for the withdrawal of Dr. Pickel's name. After my last visit to Ottawa I consulted Colonel Whitney, and we came to the conclusion that unless we induced Dr. Pickel voluntarily to withdraw, the organization would be hung up indefinitely.

I, therefore, communicated with Dr. Pickel and explained to him that owing to a new regulation, objections were taken to the appointment of unqualified officers, to field officer's rank, and asked him if he would be good enough to allow me to withdraw his name temporarily, to which he consented.

I then communicated with Mr. Fisher, saying that I would agree to the withdrawal of Dr. Pickel's name in the meantime, and on the strength of this I believe the appointment passed through council. Your Lordship will observe that I have not withdrawn Dr. Pickel's name absolutely, and have kept the position of major in 'E' squadron vacant, in hope that I may yet have Dr. Pickel appointed.

Hon. Mr. Fisher also took exception to the name of Mr. T. R. Pickel, who is also very enthusiastic, and would make a capital cavalry officer.

I had submitted Mr. Pickel's name, recommending that he be appointed captain in 'E' squadron, but Mr. Fisher insisted that I substitute the name of Lieutenant R. Steacie, making him captain and Mr. Pickel first lieutenant. I pointed out to Mr. Fisher, that Mr. Pickel being a resident of the townships, was entitled to a senior rank in preference to Mr. Steacie, who lives in Montreal, and moreover, as Mr. Steacie is a relative of mine, it would place me in a false position, and appear as though I was unduly advancing him at the expense of others. However, Mr. Fisher evidently had his mind made up on the matter, and insisted on the change to which I reluctantly agreed. I regret to say that this caused some dissatisfaction, and I would like at the first opportunity to transfer Mr. Steacie to another squadron, and recommend Mr. Pickel for his captaincy.

With regard to the adjutancy: Captain Converse, whom I selected for this position, has served in the militia for about fifteen (15) years, and for a long time served as sergeant-major in the Duke of York's Hussars. Mr. Fisher asked me to drop this gentleman and substitute Mr. Adams of the 6th Hussars, a gentleman who is very deaf, and whom I consider physically unfit for the position. I absolutely declined to consider this at all, and Mr. Fisher waived his objections. He then asked me to recommend Mr. Adams for major to command 'E' squadron, and this I flatly declined to do.

Out of five gentlemen whom Mr. Fisher recommended for commissions, three have absolutely declined to come into the organization, so that after all the trouble and worry inflicted on the regiment, Mr. Fisher has only been able to find two officers, both of whom are unqualified, and do not in any way compare with Dr. Pickel whom he rejected.
The above are the main facts in connection with this unfortunate matter, but if there is any further information desired, I will be pleased to submit it.

I am, Your Lordship's humble servant,

CHAS. A. SMART,
Lieutenant-Colonel.

June 4, 1904.

I may here state that I have just communicated with Colonel Smart, and it is by his permission and desire that I include this letter.

The following extract from the Montreal 'Gazette' of June 9, except for a few slight omissions and inaccuracies, gives a very fair report of what I said at Montreal on the subject in question. The word 'education' should read 'etiquette,' and the word 'champion' should read 'warden.' The reference to lack of etiquette at Ottawa had no application except to official matters connected with my duty.

When a nation is at war, and when national danger stares a nation in the face, it entrusts the promotion and the selection for the advancement to the general whom it entrusts to lead it. Political intrigues, intrigue for personal advancement other than that deserved by military efficiency, is dormant in time of national terror. (Hear, hear.) But when peace comes and all is quiet, and the vigilance of a nation for its national interests is at rest, political wiles and political schemes then begin to weave their nets, the nation no longer at that time being watchful. But I do not care, gentlemen, who the man is, if he advances one man and penalizes another on account of the political colour of his party, I say that man, whomsoever that man may be, is not a friend of his country. (Applause.)

Recently, gentlemen, a gross instance of political interference has occurred. I sent a list of officers of the 13th Light Dragoons to the 'Gazette.' I was astonished to receive the list back with the name of one officer scratched out, and.initialled by the Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Sydney Fisher. That gentleman was a man I considered well equipped to serve the King in the 13th Scottish Regiment (applause)—Dr. Pickel, mayor of Sweetsburg, chosen of the people, one of the champions (wardens) of Missisquoi. What better man could serve the King. I feel certain that had Mr. Fisher's life led him to soldierly, instead of agriculture, he would feel annoyed, perhaps on personal grounds, on the extraordinary lack of education (etiquette) involved in scratching the name of a gentleman put forward by a man whose business it is to find sufficient officers for the militia. (Applause.) But on personal grounds, gentlemen, I don't in the least mind. Lack of etiquette affects me little; I have been two years in Ottawa, gentlemen. (Laughter.) It is not on personal grounds that I inform you of this, but it is on national grounds. (Hear, hear.) I feel, gentlemen, anxious, profoundly anxious, that the militia of Canada may be kept free from party politics. (Hear, hear, and loud applause.)

The undersigned having thus set out the documents and statements presented to Parliament, has the honour to comment on them as follows:

He is of opinion that under the regulation which prohibits the publication through the medium of the press of anything calculated to act injuriously on the interests of the service, or to excite discontent in the militia, the General Officer Commanding, who of all men should be expected to restrain such publication, has committed a breach of duty and of official decorum, which seems to have been deliberate, and cannot be ignored.

The regulations of the British army, which govern the Canadian force in all matters not specially provided for, prohibit 'deliberations or discussion by officers or soldiers with the object of conveying praise, censure, or any mark of approbation towards their superiors or any others in His Majesty's service.'

The regulations for the militia of Canada lay down the rule that 'it cannot be permitted that (officers) shall bring accusations against superior officers or comrades before the tribunal of public opinion, either by speech or letters inserted in any newspaper; such a proceeding would be in glaring violation of the rules of military discipline, and in contempt of authority.

It is submitted that Lord Dundonald, in making, in a speech which, if not public, was at least published with his knowledge, and is admitted to be authentic, an attack which bears, not only on the minister personally named, but on the whole administration of the country, has committed an offence calculated to act injuriously on the interests of the service, and to excite discontent in the militia; and that such conduct is a violation of the rules of military discipline, which he sought strenuously to guard, and in contempt of authority which it is his duty to uphold. His offence in this particular is emphasized by the deliberate manner in which he took advantage of a meeting of officers for the purpose of making the speech; and by the manner in which, ignoring the Minister of Militia, to whom respect if not duty was owing, he made use of a member of the opposition in the House of Commons, to bring before parliament a defensive memorandum, only a copy of which was at the last moment forwarded to the minister.

It is submitted, in general terms, that the conduct of the General Officer Commanding Imperils other and wider interests even than those of the militia service itself. It was an attack on the system of constitutional government in Canada, in effect repudiating the control of an administration supported by parliament and seeking to assert an authority not controlled by parliament. It was an attempt to subordinate the civil power to the dictatorship of a military officer by asserting a principle which has long since ceased to be recognized in Canada, and for which there is no warrant whatever in law.

Precedents are not wanting in the experience of the Imperial government for the condemnation of military and naval officers who have indiscreetly ventured upon public agitation against the government of the country.

In 1900 Lord Charles Beresford, while Second in Command of the Mediterranean fleet, wrote a letter in which the naval administration was severely condemned. The letter was published without his permission. From the parliamentary discussion on the subject, it is apparent that he was saved from dismissal by that fact. But his conduct was the subject of almost universal condemnation. He was severely condemned in both Houses of Parliament by men of his own profession; and he was compelled by force of public opinion to publish an apology for his conduct.

In 1901 General Buller took advantage of a meeting of officers at luncheon to impugn the conduct of ministers. He was immediately removed from his command.

When the statements of Lord Dundonald, supplemented by statements of ministers, are subjected to examination, it will be seen how gratuitous was the accusation he made against the Minister of Agriculture.

He was aware that Hon. Sydney Fisher was a member of parliament for one of the counties in which the regiment in question was being organized, and that the honourable gentleman might well be the minister who would be especially charged with looking after the affairs of the district known as the Eastern Townships.

He was aware, through the military secretary, by whom the undersigned had sent more than one message to the General Officer Commanding, that Mr. Fisher was being consulted by the undersigned with reference to the organization of the regiment, and that the undersigned was desirous of having Mr. Fisher's suggestions considered.

He was aware that the undersigned was absent in a distant part of the Dominion, as shown by the letter of Colonel Pinault, the Deputy Minister of Militia, quoted in the memorandum to Colonel Hughes, and on the occasion to which he makes reference to the Minister of Agriculture having stricken off and initiated the name of an officer contained in a list which had been approved of by him, his remarks must have misled his hearers, because they did not disclose the fact that Mr. Fisher was then Acting Minister of Militia.

Lord Dundonald was aware that the Commanding Officer of the Regiment, Lieut.-Colonel Smart, had written to Mr. Fisher on May 19 requesting him to strike off the name of Dr. Pickel—as will be seen by reference to Colonel's Smart's letter heretofore quoted.

He was aware that Mr. Fisher had full power and authority, as Acting Minister, to remove any name from the list sent in to council; and he was also aware that the commanding officer of the regiment had requested the removal of the name of Dr. Pickel; yet he has ventured in his speech to bring a serious charge of improper action on the part of the minister.

He was aware that the undersigned was in Ottawa and in daily attendance at his office, while he himself was in similar attendance in his office in the same building from the date at which the general order was returned from council to the Militia Department until the evening of June 3 when he went to Montreal.

It appears from Lord Dunonald's memorandum that the general officer commanding instead of applying to the undersigned, or to Mr. Fisher, for such information as he may have desired, proceeded to Montreal on the 3rd instant as appears by the following extract from his memorandum: 'When in Montreal on June 3 full details of the interference of the Minister of Agriculture were communicated to be in conversation, as well as by letter from Colonel Smart, which I received on the morning of June 4 the day on which I spoke at the Officers' Banquet.' It is worthy of notice that the letter begins with the words 'as requested by you last evening.'

Refering to the statement contained in Lieut.-Colonel Smart's letter to Lord Dunonald in the following words: 'Mr. Fisher objected to him (Dr. Pickel) for no other reason than that he was a strong political opponent of his and he was determined to block the whole organization unless the name of Dr. Pickel was withdrawn,' it may be observed that Mr. Fisher denies having on any occasion so expressed himself; certainly he did not at the interview in which the undersigned was present with him, Col. Smart and Col. Whitley, referred to in the statement read in the House by the undersigned.

The undersigned considers the conduct of the General Officer Commanding in failing to seek the information he desired from the constitutional head of the department of government under which he serves, and in resorting to the improper alternative of seeking information from or through his subordinates to be highly reprehensible and without legitimate excuse.

The undersigned desires to point out, with reference to the practice with regard to appointments, that under the regulations the General Officer Commanding recommends appointments, but his recommendations have no official value or effect until they are approved of by the minister and passed by the Governor in Council. Modifications in the recommendations of the General to the extent of striking them out in whole or in part are necessarily of frequent occurrence, to prevent delay in passing items which are urgent and which cannot be delayed, pending explanations with regard to other items contained in the same list of recommendations.

With reference to the question as to the qualifications of the senior officers, including squadron commanders, appointed to the regiment which has been under discussion, the following list will show that with the exception of Dr. Pickel, all had had military training, and with the exception of Major N. R. Moffatt, Commander of 'C' squadron, who possesses a first-class grade 'A' certificate, and Major E. J. Holland, V.C., Commander of 'B' squadron, who won his Victoria Cross for service in South Africa, all were technically qualified as cavalry officers.

Lieut.-Col. Smart, in command (r.s.e. 1st.).
Major (2nd in command), D. M. Stewart—qualified (F. Officer).
Major (3rd in command), J. G. Gibson—qualified, (R.M.C. Graduate).
'A' Squadron.
Major B. B. Morrill—qualified, (Field Officer).
'B' Squadron.
Major G. Carr—qualified, (Field Officer).
ORDERS IN COUNCIL AND CORRESPONDENCE

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

'C' Squadron.

Major N. R. Moffatt. Not technically qualified cavalry, but first-class grade 'A' (r.s.i.)

'D' Squadron.

Major E. J. Holland, V.C. Not technically qualified cavalry, but served in South Africa in C.M.R.

'E' Squadron.

F. H. Pickel. No previous military training.

The undersigned therefore has the honour to recommend that in view of all the facts herein set forth and in the interest of the discipline and unity of the defensive forces of the country which his conduct is calculated to jeopardize, the services of the Earl of Dundonald ought not to be longer retained.

The whole respectfully submitted,

F. W. BORDEN,
Minister of Militia and Defence.

No. 4.

OTTAWA, April 11, 1904

The General Officer Commanding.

With reference to the establishment of the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons, will you be so kind as to suspend the organization of this regiment until further orders.

L. F. PINAULT, Colonel,
Deputy Minister of Militia and Defence.

The Deputy Minister,
Noted and returned,
April 12, 1904.

D.,
M.G.

(Copy)
7-S1-2.

OTTAWA, April 29, 1904.

From the Military Secretary,
To D.O.C.M.D. No. 6,
St. Johns, P.Q.

It is directed that the organization of the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons is suspended for the present. Notification to that effect should, at once, be sent to the Lieut.-Colonel Commanding.

HENRY SMITH, Lt.-Col.,
Military Secretary.
The Deputy Minister Militia and Defence.

With reference to the Minister's instructions to stop all work in connection with the organization of the 13th Hussars, Sir Frederick now wishes the work of organization to be proceeded with and all recommendations for appointments, &c., submitted to him for approval.

CHAS. L. PANET,
Acting Private Secretary.

12-5-04.
To the General Officer Commanding.
Referred for required action.

E. F. JARVIS,
For D. M. M. & D.

May 14, 1904.

May 18, 1904.

Dear Lord Dundonald,—Late last evening I placed before the minister the 'Gazette' dated 18th instant, for approval and submission to Council. With the exception of the part relating to the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons, which the minister desired held over for further consideration, it was approved, and, as the minister intended to leave the city this morning for a week or so, rather than delay the submission of the remainder of the 'Gazette,' he cancelled an initialled the appointments to the 13th instead of returning the draft to you for that purpose.

Very faithfully yours,
L. F. PINAULT.

Ottawa, May 19, 1904.

To His Excellency,
The Governor General in Council.

The undersigned has the honour to recommend for Your Excellency's approval the attached draft general order, containing appointments, promotions and retirements in the Canadian militia, the same having been recommended by the General Officer Commanding.

Respectfully submitted,
F. W. BORDEN,
Minister of Militia and Defence.

Attached: Draft General Order in duplicate.
To Council, 19-5-04.
(Sgd.) E. F. J.

Extract from a Report of the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by the Governor General on May 31, 1904.

On a memorandum dated May 18, 1904, from the Minister of Militia and Defence, submitting for approval the attached draft general order, containing appointments, promotions and retirements in the Canadian militia, the same having been recommended by the General Officer Commanding.

The committee submit the same for approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.
ORDERS IN COUNCIL AND CORRESPONDENCE

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

ORDERS IN COUNCIL AND CORRESPONDENCE

APPOINTMENTS, PROMOTIONS AND RETIREMENTS, CANADIAN MILITIA.

HEADQUARTERS, OTTAWA. MAY 14, 1904.

CAVALRY.

2nd Dragoons.—To be (2nd in Command) : Major S. H. Glasgow, vice W. R. Ferguson, retired. April 15, 1904.

To be Major : Captain D. Sharpe, vice S. H. Glasgow, appointed 2nd in Command. April 15, 1904.

To be Captain : Lieutenant D. Dell, vice D. Sharpe, promoted. April 15, 1904.

3rd 'Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoons.—To be Adjutant : Lieutenant G. F. H. Hayward, vice W. D. Johnston, promoted. May 2, 1904.

Lieutenant and Adjutant G. F. H. Hayward is granted the rank of Captain under the provisions of paragraph 30 (2), page 8, Regulations and Orders, 1898. May 2, 1904

4th Hussars.—To be Adjutant : Captain F. F. Carr-Harris, vice A. Binnington, promoted. April 27, 1904.

5th 'The Princess Louise Dragoon Guards.'—Lieutenant H. D. Dwyre is permitted to retire. May 2, 1904.

Provisional Lieutenant W. J. H. Shillington is permitted to retire. May 2, 1904.

6th 'Duke of Connaught's Royal Canadian Hussars.'—Captain F. L. Whitley is permitted to resign his commission. May 2, 1904.

7th Hussars.—To be Major (2nd in Command) : Major W. H. Murray, to complete establishment. April 28, 1904.

To be Captain : H. A. Taylor, gentleman, to complete establishment. April 28, 1904.

Provisional Lieutenant C. M. MacRae, having left limits, his name is removed from the list of Officers of the Active Militia. April 28, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant : R. H. Boyne, gentleman, to complete establishment. April 28, 1904.

Lieutenant J. M. Cushing having failed to qualify, his name is removed from the list of officers of the Active Militia. April 15, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant : A. C. McKay, gentleman, to complete establishment. April 15, 1904.

11th Hussars.—To be Provisional Lieutenant : R. F. Stockwell, gentleman, to complete establishment. April 15, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant : F. E. Skinner, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 2, 1904.

13th Scottish Light Dragoons.—To be Major (2nd in Command) : Major D. M. Stewart, from the 6th Hussars, to complete establishment. March 30, 1904.

To be Major (3rd in Command) : J. G. Gibson, Esquire, to complete establishment. March 30, 1904.

To be Captain* and Adjutant : W. B. Converse, Esquire, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be Provisional Lieutenant: H. S. B. Wheeler, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Major: Captain G. Carr, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: J. McN. Militmore, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Major*: Captain N. R. Moffatt, from the Reserve of Officers. May 11, 1904.

To be Major*: Lieutenant E. J. Holland, V.C., from the unattached list, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Captain*: Provisional Lieutenant G. H. Baker, from the 6th Hussars, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Captain*: T. R. Pickel, Esquire, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: Provisional Lieutenant G. H. Baker, from the 6th Hussars, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: Lieutenant (supernumerary) R. Steacie, from the 6th Hussars. May 11, 1904.

To be Captain*: T. R. Pickel, Esquire, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: H. W. Reynolds, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: T. F. Cotton, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Chaplain, with the honorary rank of Captain: The Reverend F. L. Whitley, M.A. May 11, 1904.

*As a special case and will be required to pass the qualifying examination.

'The Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars.'—Lieutenant R. B. Van Horne, having absented himself from annual training, without leave, his name is removed from the list of officers of the Active Militia. May 2, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: Lieutenant (supernumerary) W. E. Date, vice R. B. Van Horne, retired. May 2, 1904.

To be Lieutenant (supernumerary): S. Wotherspoon, gentleman. May 2, 1904.

Artillery.

1st Brigade—11th Field Battery.—Lieutenant J. W. Gilchrist, having failed to qualify, his name is removed from the list of officers of the Active Militia. May 14, 1904.

2nd Brigade—4th Field Battery.—To be Provisional Lieutenant: J. P. Morton, gentleman, vice Gardner, retired. March 26, 1904.

9th Brigade—9th Field Battery.—To be Lieutenant: Lieutenant V. A. Hall, from the 14th Field Battery. April 22, 1904.

1st 'Quebec' Field Battery.—Provisional Lieutenant R. Mayrand, is permitted to retire. April 18, 1904.

To be Surgeon-Lieutenant: R. Mayrand, gentleman, vice J. D. Brousseau, transferred. April 18, 1904.

13th 'Winnipeg' Field Battery.—To be Veterinary Lieutenant: H. D. Smith, gentleman, vice W. J. Hinman, retired. April 26, 1904.
ORDERS IN COUNCIL AND CORRESPONDENCE

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

1st 'Halifax' Regiment—1st Division.—Lieutenant A. A. Mackay, is permitted to resign his commission. January 25, 1904.

2nd Division.—To be Lieutenant: Sergeant E. E. Graham, vice E. Clairmont, retired. March 28, 1904.

To be Lieutenant: Sergeant D. C. MacKay, to complete establishment. May 5, 1904.

5th 'British Columbia' Regiment.—To be Provisional Lieutenants: Sergeant J. H. Sweet, L. H. Garnett, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 2, 1904.

ENGINEERS.

CORPS OF GUIDES.

To be Sub-district Intelligence Officers:

Military District No. 1.—A. Smith, gentleman, with rank of Provisional Lieutenant. April 20, 1904.

Military District No. 2.—W. H. Fairchild, gentleman, with rank of Provisional Lieutenant. March 9, 1904.

Military District No. 6.—Major A. Ross, from the Retired List, with rank of Provisional Lieutenant. February 2, 1904.

Military District No. 9.—A. C. Jost, gentleman, with rank of Provisional Lieutenant. May 5, 1904.

Military District No. 12.—W. E. Hyndman, G. S. Inman, gentlemen, with rank of Provisional Lieutenant. April 15, 1904.

INFANTRY AND RIFLES.

1st Regiment 'Prince of Wales' Fusiliers.'—To be Captain: D. W. B. Spry, gentleman, vice A. Laurie, retired. April 18, 1904.

3rd Regiment 'Victoria Rifles of Canada.'—Lieutenant H. A. Hiarn, is permitted to resign his commission. April 20, 1904.

To be Lieutenant: N. C. Ogilvie, gentleman, vice H. A. Hiarn, retired. April 20, 1904.

4th Regiment 'Chasseurs Canadiens.'—Provisional Lieutenant J. D. Trudel, having absented himself from Annual training without leave, his name is removed from the list of officers of the Active Militia. May 2, 1904.

To be Lieutenant: H. A. Leblanc, gentleman, vice J. D. Trudel, retired. May 2, 1904.

9th Regiment 'Voltigeurs de Quebec.'—Major L. Routhier and Captain and Brevet Major J. P. G. Ouellet, are placed upon the Retired List. May 14, 1904.

Captain L. G. Chabot, is granted the brevet rank of Major under the provisions of paragraph 54, page 11, Regulations and Orders, 1898. March 16, 1904.

To be Chaplain: Chaplain and Honorary Captain the Reverend A. J. Belt, from the 30th Regiment. May 2, 1904.

22nd Regiment 'The Oxford Rifles.'—To be Provisional Lieutenant: W. E. Long, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 7, 1904.

23rd Regiment 'The Northern Fusiliers.'—Provisional Lieutenant R. L. Dudley, is permitted to retire. May 4, 1904.

28th Perth Regiment.—To be Provisional Lieutenants: A. C. Bricker, W. W. Nichol, gentlemen, to complete establishment. April 27, 1904.

29th Waterloo Regiment.—Lieutenant J. I. Nash, is permitted to resign his commission. May 7, 1904.

31st Grey Regiment.—Provisional Lieutenant H. Wright, is permitted to retire. April 20, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: A. D. Le Pan, gentleman, vice H. Wright, retired. April 20, 1904.

32nd Bruce Regiment.—Provisional Lieutenant J. Duff, is permitted to retire. May 2, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: J. J. Fraser, gentleman, to complete establishment. April 25, 1904.

34th Ontario Regiment.—Quartermaster and Honorary Captain R. Dillon, is granted the Honorary Rank of Major. April 15, 1904.

37th Regiment 'Haldimand Rifles.'—Lieutenant L. A. Griffith, is permitted to resign his commission. April 21, 1904.

Lieutenant J. J. Murray, is permitted to resign his commission, April 20, 1904.

Lieutenant J. Davis, is permitted to resign his commission, and is given the honorary rank of Lieutenant on retirement. March 10, 1904.

Provisional Lieutenant W. C. Holmes, is permitted to retire. April 20, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: C. B. Almas, gentleman, vice C. F. Hamilton, transferred. April 21, 1904.

39th Regiment 'Norfolk Rifles.'—Lieutenant L. Curtis, is permitted to resign his commission. May 4, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: R. W. Tisdale, gentleman, vice L. Curtis, retired. May 4, 1904.

41st Regiment 'Brockville Rifles.'—Provisional Lieutenant W. C. MacLaren, is permitted to retire. May 3, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: A. J. Husband, gentleman, vice W. C. MacLaren, retired. May 3, 1904.

44th Lincoln and Welland Regiment.—To be Lieutenant (Supernumerary): Sergeant J. A. C. Macdougald. April 20, 1904.

To be Lieutenant: Lieutenant (supernumerary) C. S. Herring, vice D. B. White, promoted. April 29, 1904.
ORDERS IN COUNCIL AND CORRESPONDENCE

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

Those portions of General Orders, March 30, and of April, 1904, relating to the appointment of G. H. Smith as Paymaster are cancelled.

To be Provisional Lieutenants: P. H. Wills, gentleman, vice F. Farnham, retired. April 20, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenants: W. R. Ostram, gentleman, vice J. S. Shurie, promoted. April 28, 1904.

53rd Sherbrooke Regiment.—To be Captain: Lieutenant F. C. Bowen, vice F. O. W. Loomis, transferred. April 16, 1904.

To be Lieutenant: 2nd Lieutenant H. B. Fuller, vice F. C. Bowen, promoted. April 16, 1904.

56th Grenville Regiment 'Lisgar Rifles.'—To be Provisional Lieutenants: Sergeant F. J. Howes, vice J. O. Cameron, retired. April 16, 1904.

63rd Regiment 'Halifax Rifles.'—Provisional Lieutenant H. F. Burton is permitted to retire. April 20, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: Lieutenant (supernumerary) O. F. Vosnack, vice H. F. Burton, retired. April 20, 1904.

To be Lieutenant (supernumerary): A. R. McCleave, gentleman. April 20, 1904.

64th Chateauguay and Beauharnois Regiment.—Lieutenant-Colonel L. A. Gagnier is permitted to retire from the command of this regiment, and is transferred to the Reserve of Officers. April 19, 1904.

To be Lieutenant-Colonel and to command: Major A. Malette, vice L. A. Gagnier, transferred. April 19, 1904.

Lieutenant Z. Vinette is permitted to resign his commission. April 20, 1904.

65th Carabiniers 'Mont-Royal.'—To be Provisional Lieutenant: P. Durocher, gentleman, to complete establishment. April 29, 1904.

67th Regiment 'Carleton Light Infantry.'—Provisional Lieutenant J. Johnston is permitted to retire. May 5, 1904.

77th Wentworth Regiment.—To be Quartermaster with honorary rank of Captain: J. H. Bowman, Esquire, vice J. McRobert, retired. May 9, 1904.

83rd Joliette Regiment.—Provisional Lieutenant I. U. Desrosiers having left limits, his name is removed from the list of officers of the Active Militia. April 20, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: B. A. A. Dugas, gentleman, vice I. U. Desrosiers, retired. April 20, 1904.

To be Lieutenant (supernumerary): G. Menard, gentleman. April 20, 1904.

85th Regiment.—To be Captain: Lieutenant C. Charest, to complete establishment. May 7, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: J. E. C. Bambray, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 9, 1904.

To be Provisional Lieutenant: L. A. E. Godin, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 9, 1904.
Surgeon-Lieutenant J. A. O. D'Aoust, having left limits his name is removed from the list of officers of the Active Militia. May 7, 1904.

To be Surgeon-Lieutenant: E. Peltier, gentleman, vice J. A. O. D'Aoust, retired. May 7, 1904.

86th Three Rivers Regiment.—To be Lieutenant (supernumerary): R. Bickerdike, gentleman. May 7, 1904.

87th Quebec Regiment.—To be Lieutenant (supernumerary): L. E. Parent, gentleman. May 4, 1904.

89th Temiscouata and Rimouski Regiment.—The name of Captain N. Laliberte is removed from the list of officers of the Active Militia. January 11, 1904.

To be Captain: Lieutenant J. A. Fecteau, vice N. Laliberte retired. January 11, 1904.

90th Regiment 'Winnipeg Rifles'.—Captain W. A. Munroe, is permitted to resign the appointment of Adjutant, and return to company duty. April 27, 1904.

Captain H. Phillipps, is permitted to resign his commission. April 21, 1904.

Lieutenant H. S. P. Edwards, having left limits, his name is removed from the list of officers of the Active Militia. April 26, 1904.

91st Regiment 'Highlanders'.—To be provisional Lieutenant: G. B. Perry, a gentleman, to complete establishment. May 9, 1904.

93rd Cumberland Regiment.—Lieutenant: J. W. Day, having left limits, his name is removed from the list of officers of the Active Militia. April 23, 1904.

SIGNALLING CORPS.

To be District Signalling Officers:

Military District No. 5.—F. C. Greaves, gentleman, with rank of provisional Lieutenant, upon organization. April 30, 1904.

Military District No. 7.—Lieutenant P. E. Mercier, from the 87th Regiment, with rank of provisional Lieutenant. May 4, 1904.

CANADIAN ARMY SERVICE CORPS.

No. 6 Company.—To be Captain: W. M. Tomlinson*, Esquire, to complete establishment. April 6, 1904.

To be provisional Lieutenants: A. P. Lomas, A. F. Fraser, J. A. Pennoyer, M. A. McFarlane, gentlemen, to complete establishment. April 6, 1904.

*As a special case and will be required to pass the qualifying examination.

CONFIRMATION OF RANK.

The undermentioned provisionally appointed Officers, having qualified themselves for their appointments, are confirmed in their rank from the dates set opposite their respective names:

Lieutenant F. H. Stewart, 6th Hussars: from April 23, 1904.
Lieutenant M. S. Stephenson, 16th Hussars: from April 30, 1904.
Lieutenant L. S. Macoun, 5th Dragoons: from April 7, 1904.
Lieutenant G. A. Boul, 6th Regiment: from April 23, 1904.
Lieutenant A. Rowan, 6th Regiment: from April 23, 1904.
ORDERS IN COUNCIL AND CORRESPONDENCE

3-4 EDWARD VII., A.D. 1904

CADET ORGANIZATIONS.

Provincial Model School, Ottawa: To be Cadet Captain—G. Brophy, May 2, 1904.
To be Cadet Lieutenant: P. Malloch, May 2, 1904.
To be Cadet 2nd Lieutenant: H. Pope. May 2, 1904.

Seminary of Chicoutimi, Quebec.—To be Cadet Captain: J. Dufour, vice Gravel, left School. April 26, 1904.
To be Cadet Lieutenant: J. Gagnon, vice Lamarre, left School. April 26, 1904.
To be Cadet 2nd Lieutenant: A Larouche, vice Boily, left School. April 26, 1904.

Chatham Company (attached to 73rd Regiment).—To be Cadet Captain: H. Morrison. May 2, 1904.
To be Cadet Lieutenant: E. W. Watling. May 2, 1904.
To be Cadet 2nd Lieutenant: W. C. Logic. May 2, 1904.

Victoria Collegiate School, B.C.—To be Cadet Captain: A. M. Bell. May 2, 1904.
To be Cadet Lieutenant: P. Stebbins. May 2, 1904.
To be Cadet 2nd Lieutenant: W. McConnell. May 2, 1904.

Ingersoll Collegiate Institute—To be Cadet Captain: C. Sinclair. May 2, 1904.
To be Cadet Lieutenant: E. A. Neff. May 2, 1904.
To be Cadet 2nd Lieutenant: C. A. Peck. May 2, 1904.

Prince of Wales College.—To be Cadet Captain: C. J. McMillan.
To be Cadet Lieutenant: J. W. Bears.
To be Cadet 2nd Lieutenant: T. W. Balderston.

Dundas High School.—To be Cadet Captain: S. Grafton, vice Stull, left School. May 7, 1904.
To be Cadet Lieutenant: G. Ross, vice Bickford, left School. May 7, 1904.
To be Cadet 2nd Lieutenant: P. Vansickle, vice Bertram, left School. May 7, 1904.

DUNDONALD,
Major General,
Commanding Canadian Militia.

May 18, 1904.

Hon. SYDNEY FISHER.
Minister of Agriculture.
Ottawa, Ont.

DEAR MR. FISHER,—Will you kindly sign the enclosed for the minister, and, if possible, have it passed to-day.

Very faithfully yours,

L. F. PINault.

OTTAWA, May 19, 1904.

To His Excellency the Governor General in Council,

The undersigned has the honour to recommend for Your Excellency's approval, the attached draft General Order, containing appointments and promotions, 13th Scottish Light Dragoons, the same having been recommended by the General Officer Commanding:

Respectfully submitted.

SYDNEY FISHER,
for F. W. BORDEN.
Minister of Militia and Defence.

Attached: Draft General Order in duplicate.

To Hon. Mr. Fisher, for submission, 19-5-'04.

E. F. J.
APPOINTMENTS, PROMOTIONS AND RETIREMENTS, CANADIAN MILITIA, 1904.

HEADQUARTERS, OTTAWA, MAY 19, 1904.

13th Scottish Light Dragoons.—To be Major (2nd in Command) : Major D. M. Stewart, from the 6th Hussars, to complete establishment. March 30, 1904.

To be Major (3rd in Command) : J. G. Gibson, Esquire, to complete establishment. March 30, 1904.

To be Captain and Adjutant : W. B. Converse, Esquire, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be provisional Lieutenant : H. S. B. Wheeler, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Major : Captain G. Carr, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be provisional Lieutenant : J. McN. Miltimore, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Major*: Captain N. R. Moffatt, from the Reserve of Officers. May 11, 1904.

To be Major*: Lieutenant E. J. Holland, V.C., from the Unattached List, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Captain*: W. H. Russell, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be provisional Lieutenant : C. W. McLean, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Major+: F. H. Pickel, Esquire, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Captain*: Provisional Lieutenant G. H. Baker, from the 6th Hussars, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Captain : Lieutenant (Supernumerary) R. Steacie, from the 6th Hussars. May 11, 1904.

To be Lieutenant : T. R. Pickel, Esquire, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be provisional Lieutenant : H. W. Reynolds, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be provisional Lieutenant : T. F. Cotton, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.

To be Surgeon-Lieutenant (Supernumerary) : S. H. Martin, gentleman. May 11, 1904.

To be Chaplain with the honorary rank of Captain : The Reverend F. I. Whitlev, M.A. May 11, 1904.

DUNDONALD, Major General,
Commanding Canadian Militia.

* As a special case, and will be required to pass the qualifying examination.
+ Not approved. Sydney Fisher, for F. W. Borden.

May 19, 1904.

Extract from a Report of the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by the Governor General on May 31, 1904.

The Minister of Militia and Defence recommends the approval of the attached draft General Order, containing appointments and promotions, 13th Scottish Light Dragoons, the same having been recommended by the General Officer Commanding.

The Committee submit the same for approval.

JOHN J. McGEF,
Clerk of the Privy Council.
CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN HONOURABLE SYDNEY FISHER AND LT.-COL. FRED. WHITLEY.

(Copy.)

OTTAWA, May 20, 1904.

Dear Colonel Whitley,—I have not had an opportunity to reply to your letters of the 14th and 15th May earlier, but yesterday I had an interview with Colonel Smart, at which I think all arrangements were satisfactorily made to push along the establishment of the 13th Hussars.

I have read your letters and the inclosures, and want to assure you not only that I am very glad things have now been settled but that I appreciate the efforts which you and Colonel Smart have made to make things satisfactory. I have written to our friends telling them this has been done and urging them to take hold of their work energetically and loyally, and I am sure they will do so. I think you will appreciate that I have not asked nearly as much as impetuous friends in the county expected, but I think that what I have asked has been entirely reasonable, and that some of these things at any rate were absolutely necessary to remove the impression which had been created by the unfortunate earlier recommendations.

I have just signed, on behalf of Sir Frederick Borden, the gazette, and expect to put it through this afternoon.

Colonel Smart has promised to send forward at once the further recommendations, which will be gazetted as soon as the military branch does its work, and I hope that the result will be prompt success.

I want to say, however, that I think it will be almost impossible to get recruiting done for this year's camp. The men who have experience in such matters in three of the squadrons, the Knowlton, Cowansville and Stanbridge ones, do not live on the spot. The local officers are inexperienced and will find it hard to succeed at such short notice. I hope for the best, however, and will advise them in any way I can.

With best regards,

Yours very truly,

SYDNEY FISHER.

Lt.-Col. Fred. Whitley,
11 Summerhill Ave.,
Montreal, P.Q.

(Copy.)

TORONTO, May 22, 1904.

My dear Mr. Fisher,—Many thanks for your kind letter of 20th which came on bare.

It is exceedingly good of you to say you appreciate our efforts re the adjustment of matters in the 13th Dragoons and I may tell you that I feel very hopeful indeed of the ultimate efficiency of that regiment. I fancy it would be impossible to find a better team than Col. Smart and his 2nd in command, Major Stewart, they are wonderfully energetic fellows and their organizing ability is simply wonderful and most effective.

I am free to admit that the time between now and camp is short—still don't let us forget we have two squadrons complete—those given us, in the distribution of territory, from the 6th Hussars, my old regiment (and the Stanstead squadron was always the best in my regiment); these two squadrons form two-fifths of the whole regiment, and so the remaining three-fifths can be fairly worked upon out of the element from the old 70th, the rank and file, I mean; and you will remember the Minister of Militia pointed out that it was not necessary to have all the officers (which of course is the most difficult part of the organization) at first, they can follow and be selected with much more care and consideration later on, but I feel it would be greatly detrimental to the regiment, arguing sadly against it in the future, if it did not appear in camp with the rest of the brigade. All sorts of constructions would be put forth and far more evil result from such a course than our going on and doing the best we can.

Please therefore encourage this year's training in camp all you can; it will help us.

I am depending upon your kind promise to help us with officers, many will be wanted, some always drop out for various reasons, and I know that good fellows are scarce. I think I told you, in Ottawa, my views re the drinking question. I dread an intemperate officer, they are useless, indeed of great harm wherever they appear and candidly I would prefer political opponents to such. I am not a bigot by any means, but I freely admit that the most serious opposition I have met in matters military— I mean as regards efficiency—which of course is a regiment's highest aim—has arisen from that infernal spirituous liquor and its dread consequences.

With regard to the copies of reports as well as the letter I sent you offering me command of the 6th Hussars, will you kindly mail them to me to Montreal as I want to keep those for future reference.

Again thanking you most heartily for your very kind interest in my brigade, and with kindest regards, believe me,

Yours sincerely,

(Fsd.) FRED. WHITLEY.

P.S.—Major Stewart who is now in Toronto, tells me he is going to spend a whole week in the regimental territory instructing and helping matters on; isn't this splendid of him?

F. W.

(Montreal, June 5, 1904.

My dear Mr. Fisher,—Col. Smart has told me that he has written you that he had applied to postpone his camp to the fall—this I don't think wise—in the first place September is an awkward date for this training in view of the fact of so many farmers being interested in fairs and other exhibitions, which are usually held at about this time, and moreover I am anxious to have all the regiments of the brigade met at once, the 13th Dragoons being a very important portion, must also appear. Smart and Stewart are very reasonable over this, and so have decided to spend a few days in the regimental territory assisting the squadron commanders in the work; they each take a section and are going there next week.

We shall make a good showing and I want you to favour our camp with a visit. I shall put you up in my tent (it won't do you any harm to have a night under canvas) and you will be my guest. I shall look forward to seeing you with much pleasure. I know you will help me in every way to make our training and especially the enthusiasm re the 13th a success.

With kindest regards.

Sincerely yours.

(Sgd.) FRED. WHITLEY.

(Ottawa, June 7, 1904.

Dear Colonel Whitley,—Yours dated June 5th came duly to hand yesterday. Having heard over the telephone something about Lord Dundonald's remarks at the banquet on Saturday night, when I first saw the letter was from you I supposed you were writing about that; and knowing that you were there and had been discussing these same remarks. I was much surprised to find you made no reference to them.
As to the 13th going into camp this summer or the fall, this is a matter on which I cannot give a judgment. I have all along said I thought you would find it difficult to recruit in time to get a full force of rank and file for June 28; and especially is this the case with so many of the officers entirely unknown in the district. As I wrote Colonel Smart when he wrote me about the postponement of the camp, the Stanstead squadron, probably the Waterloo squadron, and possibly the Stanbridge squadron, might be got out in fair strength; the Cowansville and Knowlton squadrons I hardly think could, especially the latter. It is a matter, however, in which I certainly could not think of advising. I hope that when they do take the regiment into camp, they will make a good showing.

It is extremely doubtful whether I can leave Ottawa for a visit to the camp, but if so I shall be glad, and shall not be afraid of a night under canvas if my visit should imply that.

Thanking you for your invitation and wishing you all success.

I am, yours very truly,

SYDNEY FISHER.

Lt.-Col. FRED. WHITLEY
11 Summerhill Ave.
Montreal, P.Q.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN HONOURABLE SYDNEY FISHER AND MR. CLINTON BENHAM.

(Copy.)

OTTAWA, May 10, 1904.

My dear BENHAM,—Your name has been suggested to me as one who would like to join the new mounted regiment which is being established in Shefford and Brome. It has been suggested that the headquarters of one squadron should be at Knowlton and another at Adamsville. It has also been suggested that instead of Adamsville, Sweetsburg or Cowansville should be made the headquarters of that squadron.

Would you care to join and take a captaincy or a lieutenancy? The majors of squadrons must be men of some military experience. A lieutenant in charge of a troop gets some allowance for the care of the arms and accoutrements, majors commanding squadrons and the captains do not.

I hope to be able to put things right at Sweetsburg in connection with the trouble that has arisen through Doctor Pickel being appointed in command of the squadron there. That will not be, as he has no military experience. If we cannot find somebody with military experience to command the squadron which is to have headquarters at Adamsville or Sweetsburg, we will have to get a Montreal man. I would prefer to have the chief officers from the district, but I understand that there is nobody in the district qualified to take the higher command. It would be only a matter of a few years for our men to work up into one or two of these positions, but in the meantime those who have no military experience must commence lower down.

Please answer me at once if you would like to go in, and if you could suggest to me the names of any other young fellows who would like to, I would be very glad. I think a mounted corps of militia in the county would do a great deal to help our fellows and encourage them in riding and horsemanship, which is very desirable.

Yours sincerely,

(Sd.) SYDNEY FISHER.

CLINTON BENHAM, Esq.,
Sweetsburg, P.Q.
Mr. Fisher.

Dear Sir,—In reply to yours of the 10th instant, would say I did not answer sooner, as I expected to see you last night, but was prevented at the last moment from doing so. In regard to a commission, would say that I never have had any experience and the time is so short that I do not think it best to take one now as I would have hardly time to qualify in. I have spoken to a number about joining and they did not give a decided answer as I was not posted in it, but think there could be quite a number got around here.

In regard to changing the headquarters from Adamsville, for my part I would rather see it go to Cowansville than to Sweetsburg, if it is going to be changed.

Now if you do not get any applications from any of our fellows, rather than see it go to those fellows in Sweetsburg. I would take a commission and do the best I could, so will leave the matter in your hands and will be satisfied with the results.

Yours truly.

(Sgd.) C. J. BEXHAM.

My Dear Clinton,—I duly received your letter about military matters.

I am sorry that a good deal of disturbance has been raised about this regiment. I really think that Colonel Smart is desirous of making it a good regiment, without any political leanings. He unfortunately got into contact with the wrong people, and no doubt made some mistakes. He and Mr. Parmelee and I have been discussing matters here at length, and Mr. Parmelee and I are satisfied that he is honestly desirous of remedying these mistakes and doing anything he can to meet our views. It is impossible, however, to make all the changes that our friends would like. The most important ones, have, however, been made.

Dr. Pickel is not to be given command of the squadron, and Tom Pickel is to be made Lieutenant instead of Captain. Clifton Miltimore is to be given a Captaincy.

We have adopted the plan that men without any military experience as a rule should start as Lieutenants.

The squadron which was named for Adamsville is to be changed to Cowansville, not Sweetsburg. The squadron which was named for Mansonville is to be changed to Knowlton.

Major Guy Carr, of Compton, is to be put in command of the Cowansville squadron in place of Dr. Pickle.

We then have to have officers for the Knowlton squadron. I have asked F. A. Briggs, of Waterloo, who has been out to camp, to take one of the captaincies, and Mr. L. Bowen, of Mansonville, who has been in camp, or preferably Mr. W. C. Strong, of Sutton, who has been in camp as cavalryman, would be the other captain. I have asked J. McNeil Miltimore, who has had no military experience, to accept a lieutenancy in that company, with hope of early promotion, and I would ask you to do the same if you are willing.

The actual headquarters of the squadron is not of much consequence, as it is only used when the squadron gets together, just as it goes to camp and as it returns, so that your distance from Knowlton would not really affect your being an officer of that squadron. In the meantime the majority of the Knowlton squadron will be left open, as also some others of the positions in the regiment.

I will be very glad if you will see your way to join. I think it is a good thing to get our young fellows to take part in cavalry work, to learn to ride, and to get in-interested in riding. I know any such men as yourself will do a great deal towards getting together the necessary rank and file for the squadron. I think Briggs and Strong will also be able to help very much.

Please let me know at once and I will send you the form necessary for you to fill in for an application. It is important that the matter should be settled as soon as possible.

With best regards and good wishes.

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) SYDNEY FISHER.

CLINTON BENHAM, Esq.,
Sweetsburg, P.Q.

(OCopy.)

SWEETSBURG, QUE., May 29, 1904.

Mr. FISHER.

DEAR SIR,—Since writing you on the 16th inst., I have heard how the E squadron was arranged and can assure you that I am perfectly satisfied and as I understand they go to camp on the 28th of June, it brings it in having so cannot very well go, so rather drop my name entirely.

Yours truly,

(Sgd.) C. J. BENHAM.

(OCopy.)

OTTAWA, May 25, 1904.

My dear BENHAM,—I just have yours of the 23rd instant in which you say you will not be able to join the regiment.

I am sorry for that, as you are just the kind of man to make a success of it. Of course, however, if your other work prevents your being able to give the time to it we cannot expect you to give up too much.

With best regards and thanking you for your letter.

I am, yours very truly,

(Sgd.) SYDNEY FISHER.

CLINTON BENHAM, Esq.,
Sweetsburg, P.Q.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN HONOURABLE SYDNEY FISHER AND MAJOR D. M. STEWART.

OTTAWA, May 9, 1904.

DEAR Major STEWART,—In reply to your telephone the other night, I wished to give you a full account of the difficulties which had arisen in regard to the recommendations for officers of the 13th Hussars. I was not able, however, to get this letter off, and I am glad to say I have just now had a complete discussion of the whole matter with Colonel Smart, and I trust have reached a satisfactory solution. Until I see you, therefore, I will not attempt to enter into details. I will only say that to people who are not familiar with the Eastern Townships and with country life as evidenced in the small places there, many of the difficulties would be hard to understand. Knowing the country as I do, had I been consulted to begin with I might have avoided all these difficulties and any friction that may have arisen.

Nobody understands better than myself that for the success of a regiment military knowledge is necessary first: but at the same time, for the purpose of recruiting and organizing a new regiment amongst people who are not particularly military in their aspirations and ideas, local information as to individuals and localities is equally necessary. Things which Colonel Smart and yourself, as city men, would never think of, have to be taken into consideration. Quite innocently, I am quite sure, these things were not thought of in the work that was done in the early attempt to organize this regiment, and the result was Mr. Smart's errors, which if not rectified might have seriously and permanently affected the success of the corps. I hope now that I shall be able to entirely remove these difficulties.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 113

I want to say in regard to yourself that when it was suggested that the Colonel and the senior Major should both come from outside the district, I thought it unwise, and wished to find some man in the district who could take the second position. It was only for this reason that, not knowing you personally, or who the Mr. Stewart was who was suggested, I said that I would prefer an Eastern Township man to anybody else. Since then I have found that there is nobody in the district who is properly qualified for this position, and lately, friends having explained to me who the Mr. Stewart was, I fully appreciate and understand the advantage which your coming in as second in command will be, and I can assure you most sincerely and cordially that I am glad for the sake of the regiment that you are willing and able to take this position, and I am sure that you will contribute very much to the success of the regiment.

I will impress upon everybody when I am in the Townships these feelings, and do everything I can do to aid both Colonel Smart and yourself in the military work there.

I need not go into the details of the difficulties. Perhaps some time when we meet and I am able to make your personal acquaintance it will be worth while to do so.

I trust that I will be able to call upon you before very long on some occasion when I am in Montreal for a few hours, and make your personal acquaintance, which I trust will be continued on many visits of yours to the Eastern Townships.

With best regards and sincere good wishes.

I am, yours very truly,

(Sgd.) SYDNEY FISHER.

Major D. M. Stewart,
Manager Sovereign Bank,
Montreal, P.Q.

(Copy.)

THE SOVEREIGN BANK OF CANADA,
TORONTO, May 21, 1904.

The Hon. SYDNEY FISHER,
Ottawa, Ont.

My dear Mr. Fisher,—Your letter of the 19th inst. was forwarded to me from Montreal and is received here to-day and I am very glad to hear from you and to know that the difficulties in connection with the 13th Dragoons have been gotten over for the present. I am sure there must be many things that as City Officers we cannot appreciate, and it will be of the utmost importance to us all to have the benefit of your kind co-operation.

I look forward with great pleasure to meeting you in Montreal in the near future, and if you will do me the honour to call any day about one o'clock I shall be glad to have you take luncheon with me at the St. James Club.

With kind regards and best thanks for your good services and kind wishes, I am,

Yours very truly,

(Sgd.) D. M. STEWART.
ORDERS IN COUNCIL AND CORRESPONDENCE

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN HONOURABLE SYDNEY FISHER AND LT.-COL. C. A. SMART.

(Copy.)

13TH SCOTTISH LIGHT DRAGOONS,
MONTREAL, MAY 9, 1904.

Hon. Sydney Fisher,
Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Mr. Fisher,—Agreeable to your request at our interview last Friday, I now inclose herein memo. showing establishment of my regiment, also a list of all staff officers, with the exception of the veterinary surgeon, and all the various squadron officers recommended to date.

I am showing the headquarters of 'B' Squadron as Knowlton, instead of Mansonville, as per arrangement made with you, and I am writing officially to-day through the proper channel asking that the change be made. As you desired, I am not asking for the transfer of 'E' Squadron headquarters from Adamsville to Sweetsburg, meantime, but will wait until I hear further from you.

With reference to the position of the veterinary-surgeon, I would be pleased if you would recommend a good veterinary-surgeon for this position. Dr. Irwin, of Waterloo, applied to me personally for this position, and I would have been pleased to recommend him as Mr. Parmelee spoke very highly of him, but unfortunately he is veterinary-surgeon in the Granby Field Battery, and Major Seale of that corps objected to having Dr. Irwin transferred, so I had to drop the matter. The only available veterinary-surgeon I know of is Dr. Dyer, of Sutton; would he be acceptable to you? I would be glad to hear from you as early as possible about this matter to enable me to complete my staff.

I want to take this opportunity of expressing my pleasure at having met you last Friday, and I know that Col. Whitley, my brigadier, was equally delighted.

Believe me, my dear Mr. Fisher,

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) CHAS. A. SMART,
Lt. Col.

13TH SCOTTISH LIGHT DRAGOONS.

(Copy.)

Memo. for Hon. S. A Fisher,
Ottawa, Ont.

REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS, WATERLOO, QUE.

Squadron Headquarters.

'A' Squadron, Stanstead,
'B' Squadron, Knowlton,
'C' Squadron, Waterloo,
'D' Squadron, Stanbridge, East,
'E' Squadron, Adamsville.

Officers recommended to date:
Second in command, Major D. M. Stewart, Montreal.
Third in command, Mr. John G. Gibson, R.M.C., Cowansville.
Adjutant, Capt. W. B. Converse, Montreal.
Paymaster, Lt. M. F. Goddard, South Stukley.
Quartermaster, Lt. M. C. Martin, Waterloo.
Medical officer, Srg. Lt. S. H. Martin, Waterloo.
Vet. Surgeon, Still vacant.
"A" Squadron.

Major, Major B. B. Morrill, Stanstead.
Captain, Captain Lincoln, Stanstead.
Captain, Captain Curtis, Stanstead.
Lieutenant, Lieut. G. W. Pomroy, Stanstead.
Lieutenant, Lieut. Cowans, Stanstead.
Lieutenant, Mr. H. B. Wheeler Stanstead.

"B" Squadron.

Major, Major Guy Carr, Compton.
Captain, to be filled.
Captain, to be filled.
1st Lieutenant, Mr. J. M. Miltimore, Compton.

"C" Squadron.

Major, Capt. X. R. Moffatt, West Ely.
Captain, Dr. Vaillancourt, Waterloo.
Captain, five lieutenants, Capt. Moffatt has not yet submitted names for these.

"D" Squadron.

Major, Lt. E. J. Holland, V.C., Montreal.
Captain, Mr. W. H. Russell, Stanbridge East.
Captain, Mr. G. B. Ballard, Stanbridge East.
1st Lieutenant, Mr. C. W. McLean, Montreal.
1st Lieutenant, Mr. H. G. Sewell, Montreal.
1st Lieutenant, Mr. W. P. Miltimore, Sweetsburg.

"E" Squadron.

Major, Dr. F. H. Pickel, Sweetsburg.
Captain, Lt. E. H. Baker, Sweetsburg.
Captain, Mr. Thos. R. Pickel, Sweetsburg.
1st Lieut., Lt. R. Steacie, Montreal.
1st Lieut., Mr. H. W. Reynolds, Montreal.
1st Lieut., Mr. Thos. P. Cotton, Sweetsburg.

(Copy.)

OTTAWA, May 13, 1904.

DEAR COLONEL SMART,—I beg to acknowledge yours of the 9th instant, and the list of officers therein contained.

I am very glad to look over this, and in a general way am quite satisfied with what you have done. There are, however, one or two suggestions which I beg to make.

In the first place, I note that although in "D" Squadron you have changed Mr. Russell and Lieut. Holland, making the latter major and the former captain, you have still kept Dr. Pickell as Major of "E" Squadron. I thought it was thoroughly understood with us that this should not be, and that for the same reason that Holland was made major of "D" Squadron, some officer of experience should be made major of "E" Squadron.

I note also what was not developed in our conversation—that in addition to Dr. Pickel and Lieut. Baker, Mr. Thomas Pickel seems to have been offered a junior captaincy, and that two lieutenants of that squadron are suggested from Montreal, both apparently in the list to be senior to Mr. Cotton.

I am going out to the county to-morrow and expect to see a number of the men who are interested in the regiment at Cowansville to-morrow or Sunday, and will be able in the beginning of the week to write you more fully.
I note also that a certain Captain Converse is suggested as adjutant. I think it would be very much better to name Mr. Adams as adjutant of this regiment, transferring him from the Montreal regiment. I have not consulted him, nor do I know whether he wishes it or would consent to it, but I think it would be extremely desirable that Colonel Whitley or you should offer Mr. Adams the adjutancy of this regiment. He is from the county, is known out there to take an interest in military matters, and would be able to contribute very much to the raising of the regiment and to its organization. I accept fully that his deafness precludes him from being one of the staff; but if it does not preclude him from being adjutant of the regiment in Montreal, it cannot preclude him from being adjutant of this regiment.

I accept freely Major Stewart's appointment as second in command, and Mr. Gibson's as third in command; also Surgeon-Major Macdonald as senior medical officer, he being no doubt the senior medical militiaman in the district. I have been told since I saw you that he does not care to enter a cavalry regiment. If this is so, I will be glad to search for another medical officer, but I trust that Surgeon-Major Macdonald will accept, if only for a short time.

Surgeon-Lieutenant Martin also is quite acceptable.

In regard to the appointment of Lieut. Goddard as paymaster and Lieut. Martin as quartermaster, I would say that Lieut. Goddard acted as quartermaster at the last camp for the 79th, and that he has asked Mr. Parmelee and myself to be appointed quartermaster in this new regiment. Under these circumstances I must ask you to change Lieuts. Goddard and Martin, and make Lieut. Goddard quartermaster and Lieut. Martin paymaster.

I have just had a letter from Mr. Clifton Miltimore, whose name did not come up in our discussion the other day. He tells me he has had camp experience as a member of the 6th Hussars, and that he would like to have a captaincy in one of the squadrons, either 'B' or 'E'. I think if he has been with the 6th Hussars, you must know him. He is ready to equip and qualify at once, and is keen to take part in the establishment of the regiment. I hope to see him while out in the county this week.

I will be able after my visit to the county to speak more positively as to the changes of 'E' Squadron from Mansonville to Knowlton. I still think, however, that this is desirable.

I will also be able to find out in regard to the transfer of 'E' Squadron from Adamsville to Cowansville or Sweetsburg.

Thanking you for your letter and assurances,

I am yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) SYDNEY A. FISHER.

Lt.-Col. C. A. SMART,
See'y Dominion Bag Co.,
33 Sussex St., Montreal, P.Q.

(Copy.)

The Russell,
OTTAWA, 1 p.m., May 19, 1904.

Dear Mr. Fisher,—As arranged with you this morning, a new list of recommendations has been made out and is now in the hands of the Deputy Minister of Militia, and I trust you will see it goes through Council to-day.

The recommendation re Dr. Pickel is included, to be dealt with by you.

The papers re quartermaster, paymaster and Mr. C. Miltimore will go to Council later, the recommendations being in the hands of D.O.C. No. 6, in the case of the two former, and the latter I handed personally to the Adjutant-General.

I return herein memo. you gave me this a.m., as you may require it.

Will meet you at 3 p.m., at the House, as agreed.

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) CHAS. A. SMART,
Lt.-Col.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 113

13TH SCOTTISH LIGHT DRAGOONS,

MONTREAL, May 19, 1904.

Dear Mr. Fisher,—Immediately on my return this evening I met Lt.-Col Whitley and discussed fully with him all matters in connection with our interview of to-day. Col. Whitley was pleased to learn that everything was arranged satisfactorily, and at his request I telephoned to Sweetsburg with a view of getting from Dr. Pickel his final answer as to whether or not it was his intention to remain in the squadron, because, as I stated to you to-day, he had intimated to me his lukewarmness in the matter. I now have his final decision, which is that he gives up all connection with the squadron. In accordance, therefore, with Dr. Pickel’s request, I can now, as C.O. of the regiment, request you to kindly make the change in the ‘Gazette,’ by leaving Dr. Pickel’s name out.

I sincerely hope that this will meet with your approval, and in view of the short time between now and date of camp, you will kindly see that all the recommendations pass Council to-morrow.

Thanking you for your kind consideration and assistance, believe me,

Yours very sincerely,

(Sgd.) CHAS. A. SMART,
Lt.-Col. Commanding 13th S. L. Dragoons.

In view of above I certainly recommend that Lt.-Col Smart’s suggestion be followed.

(Sgd.) FRED. WHITLEY,

MONTREAL, May 19, 1904.

Ottawa, May 20, 1904.

Dear Colonel Smart,—I have yours of the 19th instant just now, and note what you say.

I have signed the ‘Gazette’ that was sent me by the Militia Department, but which did not reach my eye until this morning.

I have stricken out Dr. Pickel’s name, and will see that the other goes through this afternoon in Council. I would ask you as soon as possible to send in the other recommendations that you have, and I will try and hurry up the matter of Mr. Briggs and Mr. Benham, whom I have suggested as lieutenants in the Knowlton squadron.

Yours very truly,

(Sgd.) SYDNEY FISHER.

Lt.-Col. C. A. SMART,
Manager Dominion Bag. Co.,
Montreal, P.Q.

13TH SCOTTISH LIGHT DRAGOONS,

MONTREAL, May 20, 1904.

Dear Mr. Fisher,—I trust you received my letter this morning, written on my return from Ottawa yesterday, and that all the appointments agreed upon have gone through Council to-day as promised.

On my return last evening I found a letter from Mr. W. P. Millimore, stating it was impossible for him to accept a commission, and as he will be included in the ‘Gazette’ going through to-day, I am forwarding his resignation through the regular military channel.
I inclose herewith copy of circular letter sent to all my officers, giving estimate of cost of equipment, which you asked me to send.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) CHAS. A. SMART, Lt. Col.

Hon. SYDNEY A. FISHER,
Ottawa, Ont.

Estimated cost of uniform equipment, etc., 13th Scottish Light Dragoons.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Item</th>
<th>Cost</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Serge, scarlet, blue facings</td>
<td>$12.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Riding breeches, 1½ inch yellow strips</td>
<td>12.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boots, riding, black</td>
<td>7.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spurs, jack</td>
<td>1.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chains, shoulder</td>
<td>0.75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cap, staff pattern with died band</td>
<td>5.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Helmet</td>
<td>2.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gloves</td>
<td>1.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sam brown belt</td>
<td>7.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sword</td>
<td>10.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saddle</td>
<td>60.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cap badge</td>
<td>1.75</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ottawa, May 21, 1904.

Dear Colonel Smart,—I have yours of the 20th, most of which was answered by my telephone of last night.

I note in your list of the cost of equipment, saddle at $60. I thought however you said that troopers' saddles would be supplied the officers for this year's camp. If so, the cost of equipment would be brought down to something only a little over $50.

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) SYDNEY FISHER.

Lt.-Col. CHAS. A. SMART.
33 Sussex St., Montreal, P.Q.

317 St. Patrick Street, Montreal, May 23, 1904.

Dear Mr. Fisher,—I duly received yours of the 20th and this morning I have yours of the 21st.

I thank you for having arranged, in the absence of Sir Frederick Borden, to have all the appointments as agreed upon, passed through council, and I sincerely trust they will be published at once.

With reference to the list of equipment for officers, I had already anticipated your suggestion and instructed Capt. Steacie, who is looking after the ordering of uniforms and equipment for all officers who wish him to do so, to notify them that for this year's camp at any rate it would not be necessary to get saddlery, as I would allow them to use troopers' saddles. I trust that the section of the new Militia Act, providing that the government supply saddlery to all mounted officers, will be passed as it will minimize the cost of equipment to young officers and make it much easier to induce young men to come into the organization.

I received the inclosed letter from Col. Whitley who is in Toronto at present, and I am taking the liberty of passing it on for your perusal, kindly return it to me at your convenience. You will note Col. Whitley corroborates the point I mentioned to you, about my having assumed the command, under adverse circumstances, but I feel...
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 113

that everything has turned out for the best and hope my tenure of command will be successful.

Believe me,
Yours very sincerely,

CHAS. A. SMART.

OTTAWA, May 25, 1904.

Dear Colonel Smart,—I beg to acknowledge yours of the 23rd instant, which I find in my office this morning, also the inclosure from Col. Whitley in terms of commendation and praise, which are only too warm. I have pleasure in returning you this letter. Thanks for letting me see it. I can only add I will do all I can to aid you.

I am sorry to find that one or two men I had communicated with to come in feel they cannot get away at that date, as hay will be just cut. It is pretty hard for farmers to get away. I still have Mr. Briggs on the string and hope to succeed with him. I had a note from Mr. Clifton Miltimore saying that if there was an opening he would prefer to be in the Knowlton squadron rather than the Stanbridge one, as he would be more likely to meet men that he knew. If this is convenient we can arrange it; if not, I will ask him to go into the Stanbridge squadron notwithstanding, and I am quite sure that he will do what I ask him.

I hope to be able to telephone you to-day or to-morrow about Briggs, and then would ask you to see Strong and Bowen at once.

With best regards,
Yours sincerely,

SYDNEY FISHER.

Lt.-Col. CHAS. A. SMART.
317 St. Patrick St.,
Montreal, P.Q.

(Encl.)

(Copy.)

Montreal, May 26, 1904

Hon. Sydney Fisher,
Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Mr. Fisher,—I am waiting to hear further from you with reference to officers of the Brome Squadron, before communicating with Capt. Bowen or Lt. Strong, and I hope you were successful in finding some suitable young men during your last visit to the Townships. Since I wrote you last I have been speaking to Major Moffat of the Waterloo Squadron, and he informs me that Mr. Biggs positively declines to take a commission in the Brome or Waterloo Squadrons. I also have a letter this morning from Mr. Thos. F. Cotton, declining to enter the Cowansville Squadron, which I regret, as I considered Mr. Cotton a very desirable young man to have in the Cowansville corps. Will you be good enough to let me hear from you early, so that I may communicate with Capt. Bowen and Lt. Strong, as the time is getting very short between now and date of camp, indeed, it looks almost like an impossible task to raise three new squadrons in the short interval.

I had expected to see the appointments which passed Council gazetted by this time, but so far they have not been published. Can you not arrange to expedite matters for me as there is considerable uncertainty on the part of the officers, and they are naturally anxious to see their appointments gazetted. I trust you will be able to do something to expedite matters for me, and remain,

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) CHAS. A. SMART.
Lt. Col. 13th Dragoons.
Hon. Sydney Fisher,
Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Mr. Fisher,—Your letter of the 25th instant, reached my office yesterday afternoon, after I had left for the day, which accounts for my not having acknowledged receipt of it in my letter to you yesterday.

I have a letter from Dr. McCurdy, of Granby, this morning, declining the position of veterinary surgeon in the regiment, and from his letter he evidently feels that he has been slighted, but I have written him to-day as per copy of letter inclosed, explaining why the position was not offered to him before, and I trust he will reconsider his decision not to come into the organization.

With reference to transferring Mr. Clifton Miltimore, from 'D' to 'B' Squadrons, I will consider this matter later, after I find out how I am fixed for officers in the other Squadrons. I hope you will be successful in inducing Mr. Briggs to take a commission, and as soon as I hear from you will communicate with the other parties mentioned in your letter.

Yours very sincerely,
(sgd.) CHAS. A. SMART, Lt.-Col.

COPY

Dr. J. McCurdy, V.S.,
Granby, Que.

Dear Sir,—Your favour of the 25th inst. received this morning, and I regret to note that you have decided not to accept a position as veterinary surgeon in this regiment. In order to put myself right, I desire to explain why you were not offered the position earlier, and you can easily corroborate my statement if you apply to Mr. Parmelee, M.P., with whom I discussed this matter. In the month of February, when I went to Waterloo in company with Col. Roy, D.O.C. Militia District, No. 6, Dr. Irwin, who is veterinary-surgeon in the Granby Field Battery, applied to me personally for the position, and I understood at that time, in the event of his coming into this regiment, it was arranged that you were to take his place in the field battery. Before making any move in the matter, however, I asked Col. Roy to be good enough to write Major Scale and get his consent to the transfer, but Major Scale wrote Col. Roy, declining to consent, and in his letter stated that you were over the age limit.

In view of this statement of Major Scale's, which we accepted as correct, the position was then offered to Dr. Thayer, of Dunham, but refused by him, as he intended removing to the North-west. I did not do anything further in regard to filling the position, and when in Ottawa recently both Mr. Parmelee and the Hon. Mr. Fisher asked me why I had not offered it to you, and I told them of Major Scale's statement, that you were over the age limit. Mr. Parmelee was surprised at this, as he was personally acquainted with you, and assured me that you were a long way under the age limit, and on my return to Montreal, I immediately wrote you offering you the position. These are the circumstances of the case, and if there has been any injustice done you, it has been caused entirely by Major Scale's statement to Col. Roy. With reference to pay of a veterinary-surgeon, I may say that on appointment to the position, you would be gazetted as a veterinary-lieutenant, the pay for which rank is $1.28 per day, plus an allowance of $1 per day for your horse, and until you served sufficiently long to entitle you to the rank of captain, your pay would not be increased. It is not the intention to remunerate officers of the militia in keeping with their civil positions—take my own, for instance, although my camp pay is considerably in excess of that of a lieutenant, it does not begin to approach the amount of my civil income, and I have to go to considerably more expense than the junior officers. I would be glad if you would reconsider the matter, and decide to accept the position.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 113

Yours sincerely,
Lt.-Col.

(Copy.)

OTTAWA, May 30, 1904.

Dear Colonel Smart,—I tried to get you by telephone on Saturday. I had just received a message from Mr. Briggs saying that after carefully considering the matter he had made up his mind he could not afford time to go into the regiment. He has lately bought a motor car and is enthusiastic in running about the country on that. I am very sorry for this, as he would have been a good man.

I now hope that you will get Strong to go into this company, and I would suggest him and Clifton Miltimore as captains there. One reason that Clifton Miltimore wishes to go into that squadron is that McNeill Miltimore is to be in it; and he is closer to Knowlton than he is to Stanbridge. He also lives in the township of Brome, in which Knowlton is, whereas Stanbridge is in another municipality and another county.

I hope that McCurdy will reconsider his decision, and I will ask Mr. Parmelee, whom I hope to see to-day, to write to McCurdy and urge him to come in.

I have not heard anything here of the gazette of the other officers, but will inquire at the militia office, and hope it is going through.

Yours sincerely,
(Sgd.)  SYDNEY FISHER.

Lt.-Col. C. A. Smart,
Dominion Bag Co.,
Montreal.

(Copy.)

13TH SCOTTISH LIGHT DRAGOONS,
MONTREAL, June 1, 1904.

Hon. Sydney A. Fisher,
Ottawa, Out.

Dear Mr. Fisher.—Your favour of the 31st ult. reached me yesterday, and I regretted to note that Mr. Briggs absolutely declines to come into the regiment.

Unfortunately, none of my officers have been "Gazetted" yet, and I am satisfied that it is now impossible for me to take the regiment into camp on the 28th inst., in anything like creditable shape, so I am applying to-day through the proper military channel for permission to go into camp in September next. To take the regiment into camp in less than four weeks from now, in a disorganized state, would, in my opinion, be detrimental to its future success, and it would be equally detrimental I believe to allow a whole year to elapse before going into camp, so I trust you will lend your valuable aid to have my application for a fall camp granted.

Col. Whitley has all along held the opinion that it was possible for the regiment to go into camp on the 28th instant, but owing to the continued delay in "Gazetting" my officers, I believe he has modified his opinion, and will favour my application.

I inclose herein a copy of my official letter of date, for your private information.

Yours sincerely,
(Sgd.)  CHAS. A. SMART,
Lt.-Col.
13th SCOTTISH LIGHT DRAGOONS,
MONTREAL, June 1, 1904.

From O. C. 13th Dragoons
To O. C. Eastern Townships Cavalry Brigade.

Sir,—I have the honour to state, that after fully discussing the situation with some of my principal officers, I am reluctantly forced to the conclusion that it will be impossible for me to bring my regiment into camp in a satisfactory condition on the 28th inst., and I respectfully beg to apply for permission to postpone date of camp for this regiment until some time during the month of September next, at a date to be fixed later.

When I took command of the Regiment, I was prepared to have the organization fully completed in time for the brigade camp this month, and had laid my plans accordingly, sparing neither time nor expense to accomplish it, but owing to the unfortunate delays to which I have been subjected, which were entirely beyond my control, I now find it impossible for me to realize my expectations. I am convinced that to bring the regiment into camp in a very weak condition, with only a small proportion of the officers properly uniformed, would be detrimental to the future success of the corps, and under these circumstances I trust that my application for a fall camp will receive favourable consideration. In view of the fact that none of my officers have yet seen 'Gazetted,' many of them have been reluctant to go to the expense of uniform and equipment, and I could not very well urge them to do so, owing to the element of uncertainty in the situation. Furthermore, I may say that as this regiment did not appear in General Orders, as forming part of the brigade ordered into camp on the 28th inst., has given rise to a very general impression that it would not go into training at all this year, and this too has made the matter of recruiting more difficult.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your humble servant.
(Sgd.) C. A. S.
Lt.-Col.

(Copy.)

DEAR COLONEL SMART,—I have yours of the 1st June, and note what you say in regard to the difficulty of going into camp on the 28th.

I have always thought that it was impossible for you to organize a new squadron in time for that camp. It might be that the Stanstead, Waterloo, and possibly the Stanbridge Squadron, could be organized; in regard to the last I was rather doubtful. The Cowansville and Knowlton squadrons I have felt it would be impossible to get into shape.

I will recommend this to Sir Frederick Borden, and hope that everything will be arranged satisfactorily for you to have a September camp. During the summer I have no doubt I will be able to find some other young men who will take positions so as to better fill up your regiment.

I am told that the Gazette for the rest of the officers already decided upon has been sent to Council, and I will try this afternoon to see that it is put through.

Yours very truly,
(Sgd.) SYDNEY FISHER.

Lt.-Col. C. A. SMART,
Montreal, P.Q.
COPY

(113)

Of Memorandum referred to in Colonel Smart's letter, dated Ottawa, May 19th, 1 p.m. Mislaid at the time letter was copied and inadvertently omitted.

13th Scottish Light Dragoons.—To be Major (2nd in Command): Major D. M. Stewart, from the 6th Hussars, to complete establishment. March 30, 1904.
To be Major (3rd in Command): J. G. Gibson, Esquire, to complete establishment. March 30, 1904.
To be Captain and Adjutant: W. B. Converse, Esquire, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be provisional Lieutenant: H. S. B. Wheeler, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be Major: Captain G. Carr, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be provisional Lieutenant: J. McN. Miltimore, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be Major*: Captain N. R. Moffatt, from the Reserve of Officers. May 11, 1904.
To be Major*: Lieutenant E. J. Holland, V.C., from the Unattached List, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be Captain*: W. H. Russell, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be provisional Lieutenant: C. W. McLean, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be Major*: F. H. Pickel, Esquire, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be Captain*: Provisional Lieutenant G. H. Baker, from the 6th Hussars, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be Provisional Lieutenant†: Lieutenant (supernumerary) R. Steacie, from the 6th Hussars. May 11, 1904.
To be Captain†: T. R. Pickel, Esquire, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be Provisional Lieutenant: H. W. Reynolds, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be Provisional Lieutenant: T. F. Cotton, gentleman, to complete establishment. May 11, 1904.
To be Chaplain, with the honorary rank of Captain: The Reverend F. L. Whitley, M.A. May 11, 1904.
†Major: Major B. B. Morrill.
†Captain: Captain W. A. Lincoln.
†Captain: Lieut. H. G. Curtis.
‡Lieut.: Lieut. G. W. Pomeroy.

*As a special case, and will be required to pass the qualifying examination.
††Captain.
††Lieut.
‡‡These items were in pencil on the memorandum when received, apparently in Colonel Smart's handwriting.
Further papers in connection with the removal of Major General the Earl of Dundonald from the command of the Canadian Militia.

(Private.)

Lieut.-Colonel F. Whitley,
Montreal, P.Q.

I am aware that you are doing some work in connection with the organization of additional mounted regiments in the Eastern Townships, and my attention has been called to the fact that considerable dissatisfaction exists in several quarters in the townships owing to the fact that Montreal officers are being selected to recruit and command country regiments. I have every confidence in your judgment and your good will towards myself and the government generally, but I think it desirable that you should understand the real position in order that you may take the utmost care in any work you may be doing in this regard. Several names have been mentioned to me, but I will not trouble you at present further than to say that the Honourable Mr. Fisher has written me in reference to Mr. Watson P. Miltimore, of Sweetsburg, who would like to receive a commission in 'D' Squadron, whose headquarters are at Stanbridge East.

If you have time I would be glad if you would write me privately as to this matter, and as to what is being done generally.

F. W. BORDEN.

Sir F. W. Borden,
Ottawa.

We received this morning a letter from you to Lieut.-Colonel Whitley. We beg to say that Colonel Whitley is at present in England, but we have forwarded on your letter.

FRED WHITLEY & CO., E.1.W.

ST. JOHN'S, Q., August 24, 1904.

Dundonald Rifle Association.

The Adjutant General,
Headquarters.

Herewith is a requisition, in duplicate, for the issue of 15 Lee-Enfield rifles in exchange for 15 Martini-Metfords, formerly in possession of the Fisher Gun Club, members of which have joined the Dundonald R.A.

This exchange is recommended for approval.

A. ROY, Lieut.-Colonel, D.O.C., M.D. 6
Mr. Jarvis.

Will you kindly let me know, for the minister’s information, (1) who the late captain of the Dundonald Rifle Association was?

Also (2) who signed or who made the remarks which appear on the ‘Target Return,’ dated 31st December, 1903?

CHAS. L. PANET,
Acting P.S.

June 24, 1904.

Mr. Panet.

(1) Lt.-Col. Bulman.
(2) J. M. Miltimore signed the return. No name appears to the remarks, but they would appear to be his.

E. F. Jarvis.

June 25, 1904.

Head-Quarters, Ottawa, August 29th, 1903.

Re Issue of Rifles to the Dundonald Rifle Association.

C. S. of S.,
Ottawa.

Attached herewith is a bond from the Dundonald Rifle Association for $575. This bond is to cover the value of the fifteen rifles turned over to them by the Fisher Gun Club, and also for eight additional Lee-Enfield rifles which they are entitled to owing to an increase of membership by thirty-one members.

The bond for the rifles turned over by the Iron Hill Gun Club has not yet materialized.

R. C., Lieut.-Colonel, Inspector of Musketry.

Head-Quarters, Ottawa, August 29th, 1903.

Re Exchange of Martini-Metford Rifles for Lee-Enfield Rifles.

D. O. C., M. D. No. 6,
St. Johns.

It is regretted that this exchange cannot be recommended. The Martini-Metford rifle is as good a weapon as the Lee-Enfield. It is undesirable to exchange rifles once they have been issued to a rifle association, because it would mean the returning into store of a number of part worn rifles which could not be re-issued without causing dissatisfaction.

Steps have been successfully taken to open the Dominion Rifle Association matches to the Martini-Metford rifle so that it is no longer barred. Similar steps are not being taken in regard to having the bar removed from the Provincial Rifle Association matches.

R. C., Lieut.-Colonel, Inspector of Musketry.
Re Issue of Rifles to the Dundonald Rifle Association.

To C. S. of S.,
Ottawa.

Attached herewith is a bond from the Dundonald Rifle Association for $575. This bond is to cover the value of the fifteen rifles turned over to them by the Fisher Gun Club, and also for eight additional Lee-Enfield rifles which they are entitled to owing to an increase of membership by thirty-one members.

The bond for the rifles turned over by the Iron Hill Gun Club has not yet been materialized.

R. CARTWRIGHT, Lieut.-Colonel, Inspector of Musketry.

Bond for Rifles, Dundonald Rifle Association.

To the Adjutant General,
Head-quarters.

Herewith is a bond from the Dundonald Rifle Association, substituting one for rifles previously issued to the Iron Hill Gun Club.

HEAD-QUARTERS, OTTAWA, September 3rd, 1903.

Re Exchange of Rifles, Dundonald Rifle Association.

D. O. C., M. D. No. 6.
St. Johns, Que.

The attached requisition should have been returned with my minute of August 29th, re exchange of Martini-Metford rifles.

R. C., Lieut.-Colonel, Inspector of Musketry.

HEAD-QUARTERS, OTTAWA, September 3rd, 1903.

C. S. of S.,
Ottawa.

Forwarded herewith is a bond for $375 from the Dundonald Rifle Association, substituting one for rifles previously issued to the Iron Hill Gun Club.

R. C., Lieut.-Colonel, Inspector of Musketry.

SWEETSBURY, October 26, 1903.

I am taking the liberty to write to you as one of the committee of the Dundonald Rifle Club for information on two points.

The regulations say before a person can be ranked as an effective member he shall take an oath before a justice of the peace; would it be proper to have it administered by an officer of the militia or only by a justice of the peace, as per regulations.

We have a number of members who have died since joining, and still others who have gone to live at distant places, and others who have never been at the range to shoot any part of their 100 rounds of ammunition. Can you inform me what to do with such ammunition?

An early reply will greatly oblige.

J. M. MILTIMORE,
Sweetsburg, P.Q.

Militia Head-Quarters, October 28th, 1903.

J. M. MILTIMORE, Esq., Sweetsburg, Que.

In answer to your letter of October 26th, re Dundonald Rifle Association, the justice of the peace is the only one who can administer the oath. It is very easy, however, for any influential man like the captain of a rifle association to have himself made a justice of the peace, thus obviating the main difficulty.

In regard to your members who have died, their names should simply be struck off the list, and care should be taken that they are not included in any returns afterwards sent in. In regard to those who have gone to live in outside places and those who never turn out to practice at all, simply strike them off the roll for non-attendance, if necessary adding a rule to your standard rules on the lines of section 6 of the Regulations for Rifle-Associations. Of course, you would have to use your discretion before turning out officers or men who pay their annual subscription regularly, as such subscriptions would be of great value in assisting to help to keep your rifle association in doing good work. the ammunition, of course, must be accounted for annually, and such quantities as remain over being debited to the club's free issue for the ensuing year.

R. C., Lient.-Colonel, Inspector of Musketry.
RANGES TARGET PRACTICE RETURN.

Dundonald Rifle Association, beginning October 14, Military District No. 6.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Number</th>
<th>Rank and Name</th>
<th>1ST DAY.</th>
<th>2ND DAY.</th>
<th>Grand Total.</th>
<th>Remarks</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>Lt. Col. Bullman</td>
<td>29 28 27 84</td>
<td>28 26 29 24</td>
<td>110 194</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>Casper Scott</td>
<td>15 13 7 35</td>
<td>17 17 18 16</td>
<td>80 183</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>H. L. Fuller</td>
<td>0 15 18 33</td>
<td>0 0 4 13</td>
<td>23 56</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6</td>
<td>B. W. Ballagh</td>
<td>27 23</td>
<td>20 18 11 25</td>
<td>75</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>H. Jones</td>
<td>20 15 16 51</td>
<td>19 18 18 16</td>
<td>71 122</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>C. S. Cotton</td>
<td>22 14 19 55</td>
<td>17 0 19 19</td>
<td>37 122</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>E. H. Pelc</td>
<td>18 20 10 48</td>
<td>22 18 8 25</td>
<td>74 122</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11</td>
<td>Roy els</td>
<td>30 17 81 17</td>
<td>27 25 22 18</td>
<td>92 173</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12</td>
<td>G. L. Fuller</td>
<td>30 18 28 58</td>
<td>27 25 22 18</td>
<td>92 173</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13</td>
<td>F. Vail</td>
<td>21 23</td>
<td>81</td>
<td>19</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14</td>
<td>W. Miltimore</td>
<td>20 23 21 49</td>
<td>24 10 8 22</td>
<td>68 112</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15</td>
<td>C. F. Taylor</td>
<td>12 15 29 67</td>
<td>23 10 8 19</td>
<td>66 112</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>18</td>
<td>K. Allen</td>
<td>19 16 14 49</td>
<td>26 25 30 18</td>
<td>95 148</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>19</td>
<td>H. Miltimore</td>
<td>21 23 26 67</td>
<td>22 21</td>
<td>43</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20</td>
<td>H. Persons</td>
<td>20 21 13 64</td>
<td>22 12 11 25</td>
<td>54 107</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>21</td>
<td>F. Bennett</td>
<td>20 23 29 63</td>
<td>32 12 11 25</td>
<td>52 104</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>22</td>
<td>N. Conter</td>
<td>16 12 19 47</td>
<td>16 25</td>
<td>6 8</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>25</td>
<td>Jas. McCabe</td>
<td>27 14 12 53</td>
<td>26 10</td>
<td>19</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>26</td>
<td>M. Miltimore</td>
<td>27 19</td>
<td>14 18 46</td>
<td>14</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>27</td>
<td>J. Persons</td>
<td>14 14</td>
<td>18 18 46</td>
<td>14</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30</td>
<td>J. M. Miltimore</td>
<td>30 32 28 90</td>
<td>29 29 37 28</td>
<td>113 203</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>31</td>
<td>N. McLean</td>
<td>18 14 15 47</td>
<td>26 7 21 21</td>
<td>69 116</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>32</td>
<td>W. E. Reel</td>
<td>26 23</td>
<td>27 21 28 25</td>
<td>100 165</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>33</td>
<td>G. Hall</td>
<td>34 24 14 76</td>
<td>28 30 32 25</td>
<td>98 166</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>34</td>
<td>L. D. Von Iffland</td>
<td>27 31 24 82</td>
<td>29 32 33</td>
<td>84 166</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>35</td>
<td>M. Hasting</td>
<td>26 29 28 83</td>
<td>29 33 31</td>
<td>80 146</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>37</td>
<td>T. Hall</td>
<td>17 24 16 57</td>
<td>20 12 20</td>
<td>32 116</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>38</td>
<td>G. W. Hawley</td>
<td>30 23 22 73</td>
<td>29 23 27 27</td>
<td>106 181</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>39</td>
<td>C. Homer</td>
<td>28 28 26 82</td>
<td>28 26 24 27</td>
<td>106 181</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>40</td>
<td>W. J. Brimmer</td>
<td>12 12 18</td>
<td>12</td>
<td>12</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>41</td>
<td>B. Pickel</td>
<td>13 11 14 38</td>
<td>14</td>
<td>14</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>42</td>
<td>Rev. Mason</td>
<td>24 13 21 58</td>
<td>23 10 8 22</td>
<td>85 153</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>43</td>
<td>E. Wright</td>
<td>29 30 15 74</td>
<td>32 18 7 43</td>
<td>79 143</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>44</td>
<td>E. Butler</td>
<td>26 13 18</td>
<td>18</td>
<td>18</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>45</td>
<td>E. Schufelt</td>
<td>11 10 14</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>4</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>46</td>
<td>Rev. Robb</td>
<td>27 14 11</td>
<td>15</td>
<td>15</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>47</td>
<td>H. Swasey</td>
<td>12 11 12</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>6</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>49</td>
<td>W. C. McCabe</td>
<td>21 19 23 18</td>
<td>19</td>
<td>19</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>50</td>
<td>H. E. Lead</td>
<td>19 18 23 18</td>
<td>23 21 30 27</td>
<td>79 143</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>51</td>
<td>Archie Miltmore</td>
<td>23 22 18 64</td>
<td>23 22 11 23</td>
<td>79 143</td>
<td>Not finished.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note.—This return to be sent to the D.O.C. by December 31.

I certify that the above practice was conducted as far as practicable in accordance with Regulations and that the points recorded were obtained by men of the Association opposite whose names they appear; further that no ball ammunition issued to me for the use of the Association has been expended otherwise than above recorded, and that Rifle Association Rules and marking have been adhered to.

J. M. MITTIMORE,

Commanding Rifle Association.
I find that only 51 members took part in the class firing and that only 21 finished their scores.

The reason of this is that the late captain did not give due notice that the shoot was going to take place (which was held late in the season, commencing October 14), and as the members of the "Dundonald Club" are very scattered, covering about 15 miles; only those whose names are enclosed knew that such shooting was going on, and as a result a large number of the members have not had an opportunity to use the last half of their free ammunition, which of course is held by the secretary of the club.

These returns are an accurate copy given me by the late captain. I am not personally acquainted with them, but trust they are O.K.

Dated at Sweetsburg, this 31st day of December, 1903.

SWEETSBURG, Q., January 26th, 1904.

To grant in aid of rifle range, in connection with the above association, for season of 1903.

Members, one hundred and thirty-two, $60.

I hereby certify that the bona fide membership of this rifle association during the season of 1903, which this claim is intended to cover, numbers one hundred and thirty-two active members who take part in practice. Sixty-two others who were enrolled, but who did not practice but helped in other ways.

J. M. MILTIMORE, Capt., the Dundonald Civilian R. A.

Certified and recommended for payment.

February 13, 1904.

Paid by C. $907 on 7th March, 1904.

G. G., for Acent.

The Hon. the Minister of M. & D.

Forwarded and recommended for payment. R. Cartwright, Lieut.-Colonel, Inspector of Musketry, for G.O.C.

February 15, 1904.

Dundonald Rifle Association.

The D.O.C., M.D. 6, St. John, P.Q.

Re exchange of the Martini-Metford rifles for Lee-Enfield rifles, for the Dundonald Rifle Association, asked for by you in your minute of August 24th last.

Arrangements have been made to exchange an equal number of Martini-Metfords for Lee-Enfields, and you are directed to cause requisitions to be made for the return into stores of the old rifles and the issue of new ones.

By order,

R. C. Lt.-Col. I. of M., for Adjutant General.
The Honourable
SIDNEY FISHER,
Minister of Agriculture.

In reference to your request re exchange of rifles for the Dundonald Rifle Association, arrangements have been made to exchange the Martini-Metfords held by this Association for Lee-Metfords. This is the best we are able to do with the stores which we have on hand.

I attach, herewith, a copy of my letter on this subject to the District Officer Commanding, Military District No. 6, of the 29th August last. You will see by this the reasons that limit us in issuing and exchanging rifles. The Lee-Metford is as good a rifle as the Lee-Enfield, although not quite as new a pattern, the difference being the number of grooves in the barrel.

The officers of the Dundonald Rifle Association are quite correct in their statement as to the new bond being made out for $25 instead of $15, but as our new regulations place $25 upon the value of the rifle, there is no way of changing this, and in reality it does not affect the matter very seriously.

The District Officer Commanding, Military District No. 6, is being notified that he may have Martini-Metfords belonging to the Dundonald Association returned into store by requisition and Lee-Metfords issued in their place.

Yours very truly.

R. C.
Protocol of the Conferences at Washington, in May, 1898, preliminary to the Appointment of a Joint Commission for the Adjustment of Questions at Issue between the United States and Great Britain in respect to the Relations of the Former with the Dominion of Canada

At the first meeting of the Conferences, held on the 25th day of May, were present:

On the part of Great Britain, His Excellency the Right Honourable Sir Julian Pauncefote, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., Her Britannic Majesty's Ambassador at Washington, &c., and the Honourable Sir Louis Davies, K.C.M.G., Minister of Marine and Fisheries of the Dominion of Canada; and

On the part of the United States, the Honourable John W. Foster, late Secretary of State of the United States, &c., and the Honourable John A. Kasson, Special Commissioner Plenipotentiary, &c.

At this meeting the Conferences considered and adopted the following declaration:

1. It is desirable that all controversies between the United States and Great Britain in respect to the Dominion of Canada should be amicably settled, to the end that their intercourse shall be established and maintained on the principles of a cordial friendship between coterminous neighbours.

2. To accomplish this result it is expedient that each should communicate to the other, in outline, the modification of existing conditions, the concessions, or adjustments which it believes ought to be made for the removal of grievances and for the improvement of its commercial or international relations with the other.

3. That for the final consideration and adjustment of the questions so presented, a Joint Commission to consist of members, to be appointed by each of the governments should be created with plenipotentiary powers, whose conclusions shall be presented in the form of a Convention, or Conventions, between the two governments.

4. In the meantime it is expedient that informal pour parlars should proceed with a view to formulate the propositions to serve as bases for the consideration and determination of the commission to be appointed as above suggested.

At the second meeting, held on the 26th day of May, the same Conferences being present, the subjects which should be presented for the consideration and action of the proposed Joint Commission were presented and discussed. The number of members of which the commission should consist, and the place where the sessions of the commission should be held were also considered.

The Conferences on the part of the United States expressed their desire to consult the wishes of the Canadian Government in respect to the place of meeting of the commission, and would not object to a convenient point in Canada, if this should be more agreeable to that government.

They further expressed the opinion that in view of the number and character of the questions before the commission, it should be composed of five representatives of each government.

125—1
The Conferences on the part of Great Britain were apprehensive that so large a number might be conducive to debate and delay rather than to deliberation and decision.

Without concluding the consideration of the foregoing subjects, the meeting was adjourned until Friday, the 27th.

At the third meeting, held on Friday, May 27th, the same Conferences being present, the subjects discussed at the previous meetings were again under consideration, and the following statement of the subjects to be presented for the action of the Joint Commission was agreed upon.

In order to attain a complete concord in relations between the United States and the Dominion of Canada it is expedient to come to an agreement upon the following subjects:

First: The questions in respect to the Fur Seals in Behring Sea and the waters of the North Pacific ocean.

Second: Provisions in respect to the Fisheries off the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and in the inland waters of their common frontier.

Third: Provisions for the delimitation and establishment of the Alaska-Canadian boundary.

Fourth: Provisions for the transit of merchandise in transportation to or from either country across intermediate territory of the other, whether by land or water, including natural and artificial waterways, and intermediate transit by sea.

Fifth: Provisions relating to the transit of merchandise from one country to be delivered at points in the other beyond the frontier.

Sixth: The question of the alien labour laws applicable to the subjects or citizens of the United States and of Canada.

Seventh: Mining rights of the citizens or subjects of each country within the territory of the other.

Eighth: Such readjustment and concessions as may be deemed mutually advantageous of customs duties applicable in each country to the products of the soil or industry of the other, upon the basis of reciprocal equivalents.

Ninth: A revision of the agreement of 1817 respecting naval vessels on the lakes.

Tenth: Arrangements for the more complete definition and marking of any part of the frontier line, by land or water, where the same is now so insufficiently defined or marked as to be liable to dispute.

Eleventh: Provisions for the conveyance for trial or punishment of persons in the lawful custody of the officers of one country through the territory of the other.

Any other unsettled difference not included in the foregoing specifications may be considered and acted upon by mutual agreement of the commissioners representing the two governments.

It was also understood that so far as practicable, and in accordance with the second paragraph of the declaration adopted at the first meeting, each government should communicate to the other, in advance of the meeting of the commission, a memorandum of its views on each of the aforesaid subjects.

There was also a concurrence of opinion that each government should defray the expenses of its own commissioners, and that any joint expenses incurred by order of the Joint Commissioners, and so certified, should be paid in equal moieties by the respective governments.

And that the Joint Commission when assembled should be authorized to determine from time to time, in its discretion, the dates and places of its sessions.

The meeting was then adjourned until Saturday, the 28th.

At the fourth meeting, held on Saturday, May 28th, the same Conferences being present, upon the suggestion of Sir Louis Davies, the third clause in the statement of subjects to be submitted to the proposed commission and relating to the Alaska-Canadian boundary, was amended by adding the following words at the end thereof: 'by legal and scientific experts if the commission shall so decide, or otherwise.'
In that connection it was remarked by the Conferees on the part of the United States that in their opinion the power of the commission to consider this method of adjustment already existed in the former terms, and that this addition neither enlarged nor restricted the powers already granted. They had, therefore, no objection to the amendment.

It was further agreed that each government would have the power at any time after the appointment of its commissioners, to fill any vacancy in its representation arising from any cause.

The British Conferees desiring time to consult their government touching the number of commissioners, and the time and place for the first meeting of the Joint Commission, it was agreed that these points should be settled by subsequent correspondence between the two governments.

In the meantime the Conferees of the United States concurred in the suggestion of the British Conferees that Quebec might be named as a suitable city for the assembling of the commission.

The conference then adjourned until Monday, May 30th.

At the fifth meeting, held on Monday, May 30th, the same Conferees being present, Sir Louis Davies renewed the question which had been mentioned at the meeting on Saturday of submitting to the proposed commission the subject of reciprocity in wrecking and salvage rights, and in the coasting trade; and urged in accordance with instructions from the Canadian Government, that they should be specifically referred for consideration to the proposed commission.

In reply, it was stated by the Conferees on the part of the United States, that in respect to wrecking they regarded that question as an 'unsettled difference' which had been already discussed between the two governments, and that it could properly come before the commission.

Thereupon it was distinctly understood by the Conferees that the question of reciprocity in wrecking and salvage rights should be submitted to the proposed Joint Commission.

In respect to the coasting trade the Conferees on the part of the United States observed that this could hardly be considered a question in difference between the two governments. Under existing instructions from their government they did not feel at liberty to include it within the jurisdiction conferred upon the Joint Commission.

Having concluded the subjects before them for consideration, the conference then adjourned without date.

In verification of the foregoing protocol of their proceedings and conclusions, the Conferees aforesaid have hereunto affixed their names in duplicate this 30th day of May, 1898, under reserve of the approval of their respective governments.

JOHN A. KASSON.
JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.
JOHN W. FOSTER.
L. H. DAVIES.
In the Privy Council, on the Appeal from the Supreme Court of Canada, between the Attorney-General for the Province of Prince Edward Island, appellant, and the Attorney-General for the Dominion of Canada, respondent, in the matter of a certain question referred to the Supreme Court of Canada by His Excellency the Governor-General, in pursuance of an Order-in-Council approved by His Excellency on the 16th of May, 1903. Subject: Representation of Prince Edward Island in the House of Commons of Canada.

APPELLANT'S CASE.

This is an appeal from a judgment or decision of the Supreme Court of Canada delivered on the 8th day of June, 1903, upon a case referred for the opinion of the said court under the provisions of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act as amended by the Act 54-55 Vict. chap. 25 intituled 'An Act to amend Chapter 135 of the Revised Statutes, intituled an Act respecting the Supreme and Exchequer Courts.'

1. Under the statutes above mentioned the following question was submitted to the Supreme Court for decision:—

'Although the population of Prince Edward Island as ascertained at the census of 1901, if divided by the unit of representation ascertained by dividing the number of 65 into the population of Quebec is not sufficient to give six members in the House of Commons of Canada to that province, is the representation of Prince Edward Island in the House of Commons of Canada liable, under the British North America Act, 1867, and amendments thereto and the terms of union of 1873 under which that province entered Confederation, to be reduced below six the number granted to that province by the said terms of union of 1873?'

2. The Supreme Court of Canada answered in the affirmative, deciding that the representation of the province is liable to be reduced according to each decennial census if the unit of representation under the British North America Act is large enough to produce that result.

3. Since the delivery of judgment in the matter an Act has been passed by the Parliament of Canada (3 Edw. VII, c. 60) under which upon the dissolution of the present parliament four members only are to be elected to the House of Commons for the province of Prince Edward Island.

4. The appellant contends that the answer to the question submitted should have been in the negative, and that under the terms of the British North America Act and of the resolutions under which Prince Edward Island entered the Canadian confederation it was intended and ought to be held that the province was to retain six members in the House of Commons as a minimum—that the number of such members should never be made less than six—though, should the result of any decennial census show the province entitled according to its population to more than six members, and should the number of such members be accordingly increased, any additional representation so given beyond the original number of six would always be subject to be afterward reduced or wholly taken away, if the result of any subsequent decennial census should, under the provisions of the British North America Act, make it necessary.

5. To appreciate correctly the true intention and effect of the terms of union it is important that the surrounding and preceding circumstances should be understood.

6. Although some previous correspondence in this direction had taken place between the governments in the year 1859, the first practical step taken was in the year 1864, and from the contemporaneous minutes and journals this appears to have been a proposal, or attempt, to unite under one form of government the three maritime provinces—Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island—and also Newfoundland (see Journals of the House of Assembly of Prince Edward Island for the year 1864 (Appendix D.), copies of despatches contained therein being annexed hereto in schedule 'A'.)

7. In this view a conference of delegates was arranged to be held in Quebec on the 10th October, 1864.

The delegates appointed by the Province of Prince Edward Island to represent the province at this conference were the Honourable Messieurs Grey, Palmer, Pope, Davies, MacDonald, Haviland, Whelan and others.

8. Previous to the meeting of the conference correspondence took place between the government of the then united provinces of Upper and Lower Canada and the governments of the maritime provinces, suggesting that delegates be sent by the Canadian government to be present at the Quebec conference, and, this suggestion being acceded to, delegates from all the provinces and from Newfoundland met in Quebec, and a resolution was passed to form a basis of the terms for confederation. The full text of this resolution and of the terms contained therein will be found in Appendix 'E' Journal of the House of Assembly of Prince Edward Island of the year 1865, and in the Journal of the House of Commons of Canada. Section 17 of this resolution expressly defined a proportionate representation for the House of Commons of Canada upon a basis of population assigning to each province a certain number of members in the federal parliament. The proposal was to give to

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Province</th>
<th>Members</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Upper Canada (Ontario)</td>
<td>82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lower Canada (Quebec)</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nova Scotia</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>New Brunswick</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Newfoundland</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prince Edward Island</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

9. It is to be noted that under this scheme Prince Edward Island was to receive a representation of only five members; and also that this resolution expressly provided that 'the number of members at first shall be 194'; and also that the basis of representation in the House of Commons shall be population.

10. And it should also be noticed that afterwards when the terms of the confederation of the provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick came to be finally settled by the British North America Act, and again in the Order in Council admitting Prince Edward Island in the year 1873, the words 'at first' and 'population' were omitted, and, as the appellant submits, deliberately and of set purpose.

11. The appellant contends that this evidences the intention upon the part of the framers of the constitution of Canada and of the framers of the terms of admission of Prince Edward Island into confederation, to depart from the provisions which had been incorporated in the resolutions of 1864. The wording of this resolution of 1864 plainly indicates that the intention at that time was to adhere rigidly to the principle of representation by population and no other, as the absolute basis of union applicable alike and without exception to each and all of the federating provinces. The words of section 17 of the resolution (see schedule ‘A’) are the ‘basis of representation in the House of Commons shall be population.’ These words are noticeably absent from the ‘British North America Act.’ On the contrary the said Act (section 146) provides that Prince Edward Island shall be admitted into the union ‘on such terms and conditions’ as should be in the addresses expressed. The terms and conditions expressed in the addresses are:—

‘That the population of Prince Edward Island having been increased by 15,000 or upwards since the year 1861, the island shall be represented in the House of Commons of Canada by six members’ (note absence of words ‘at first’) ‘the representation to be readjusted from time to time under the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867.’

12. The same Order in Council provides for the laying off of the Electoral districts in Prince Edward Island which should be represented in the Dominion House of Commons. The island is divided into three counties, Prince, Queen’s and King’s, and it is provided in the Order in Council that Prince county shall be represented by two members, Queen’s county by two members, and King’s county by two members. Read with section 146 of the British North America Act this Order in Council has all the force of an Imperial statute, and the appellant submits that no Imperial statute has taken away from Prince, Queen’s and King’s counties their respective representation of two members each as given them by this Order in Council, which under the circumstances is no less potent than an Imperial statute of Great Britain.

13. It is further to be pointed out that representation was given to the island, and to these three counties, without reference in any way to the population of either, but by reason of the peculiar situation and geographical features of the island. The ‘British North America Act’ recognizes these sub-divisions of the country and the representation of different sections in the parliament of the Dominion by counties. That is the scheme of representation provided by section 40 of the statute, and the schedules to the Act annexed. There were, and are, three counties on the island; these three are set apart and separated each from the other by deep indentations into the coast line, so that sea-gulfs lie between each of the three sub-divisions of the island and either of its fellows. Nature has marked out the province for representation by three or some multiple of three. That circumstance was certainly in the minds of those who framed the resolutions as demonstrated by their speeches on that occasion. (See remarks of Colonel Grey, Coles, Pope in said schedule); and that consideration certainly influenced the conclusion then arrived at.

14. In support of his submission that in entering into the pact of union it was the intention of the contracting parties, namely:—The Dominion of Canada and the province of Prince Edward Island—that these considerations should prevail, the appellant refers to the despatches, letters and telegrams which passed between the delegates representing the province, who were negotiating the union, and who were then discussing this question with the Dominion representatives. Copies of these the appellant has annexed to this case (see schedule ‘A.’)

15. It was within the power of the Dominion government to make special terms and agreements upon the admission of any province into the union as might appear just, provided such terms were ratified and agreed to by Order in Council and confirmed by legislative authority; and such terms and conditions might differ in the cases of different provinces. Illustrations are afforded by what took place in regard to other provinces.

16. The province of Manitoba was formed in the year 1870, and by 33 Vict. cap. 3, sec. 4, it was enacted that ‘the said province shall be represented, in the first instance, by four members,’ language which recalls the resolutions of the year 1861 before quoted, recurring to the words ‘at first’ and showing that no vested right in four, or in any fixed number of members, was intended to be conferred upon this new province which was then being for the first time established, the creature, as it were, of the Dominion parliament.
17. The province of British Columbia was admitted to the union by Imperial Order in Council of the 10th May, 1871, which ratified the address by the province asking such admission. Section 8 of this address provided that 'British Columbia shall be entitled to be represented in the Senate by three members, and by six members in the House of Commons; the representation to be increased under the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867,' thereby giving to this province a guaranty of representation by at all events six members, with this representation subject to increase but not to decrease.

18. This stipulation, the appellant submits, was in entire accord with the true intent and meaning of the 'British North America Act,' in which the appellant contends no intention to provide for or to permit any decrease of original representation as therein defined is anywhere to be found.

19. After many conferences and much discussion and negotiations between the Dominion government and the representatives and government of Prince Edward Island, the island was finally admitted into the union from the 1st day of July, 1873, and the status and position the province then acquired in the confederation depend upon the provisions of the British North America Act, and of the resolutions and addresses constituting the terms upon which union was then agreed to.

20. The sections of the British North America Act which seem important for decision of the question are:

Section 37 which provides for the aggregate number of members constituting the House of Commons.

Section 51 which provides for a readjustment of representation of individual provinces following each decennial census. By sub-section 1, Quebec is to have a fixed number of 65 members; By sub-section 2 each other province is to have such a number of members as will bear the same proportion to its population (ascertained at such census) as the number 65 bears to the population of Quebec; By sub-section 3, fractional parts of the unit of representation are to be disregarded:

By sub-section 4, on any readjustment the number of members for any province is not to be reduced unless the proportion between the population of the province and that of the Dominion has been reduced by one-twentieth.

Section 52 makes special provision for increasing the whole number of members provided the proportionate representation of the provinces prescribed by the British North America Act is not thereby disturbed.

21. The appellant's contention is that under the terms of the compact and agreement of union Prince Edward Island was given six members, and that that representation was fixed as the minimum for the island, not as a matter of right, or as a matter of giving representation by population as provided in the British North America Act itself, but because of the peculiar position of the province, isolated and impossible of extension in area; and because it was well understood that without an arrangement of that sort it would have been quite impossible to have carried in the island the terms of union (see paragraph from Mr. Pope's speech, schedule 'A').

22. The advisability of entering into some special arrangement of this character was present not only to the minds of the Dominion and island representatives, but also to the home government (see letter of Lord Granville, of the 4th September, 1869, a copy of which, from the Journals of the House of Assembly of Prince Edward Island, 1870, is hereto annexed, schedule 'A,' in which he urges upon the government of the Dominion the necessity to deal liberally as well as justly with the island). If the island were to come into the union bound hard and fast by the exact terms of the British North America Act, and on the same footing precisely as the other provinces, what room existed for urging liberality upon the authorities of the Dominion?

23. In the Quebec conference it had been pointed out that a representation of so few as five members out of a house of 194 would be entirely inadequate and unsatisfac-
In the House of Commons

Sessional Paper No. 127

That it would give to the island as a constituency so feeble a voice (see per Deleg-ate Palmer, Quebec conference, Prince Edward Island Journals, 1864, schedule ‘A’ to this case) in the councils of the nation that there would be no return offered for the manifest advantages of self-government which by entering confederation the island would be giving up.

24. In 1873 by increase of population and by the admission into confederation of the new provinces of Manitoba and British Columbia, the Dominion had come to have a representation of 200 members in the House of Commons. There appears under these circumstances the greater reason in the suggestion of the Colonial Office that the Dominion could afford to deal generously and liberally with the island in the matter of representation. It was simply a matter for agreement between the Dominion on the one part and the island on the other; it was settled that there should be six representatives, and upon that basis and understanding the addresses were passed by the provincial House at Charlottetown and by the Dominion parliament, and incorporated in the Queen’s Order in Council admitting the province.

25. The population of the island at that time amounted to only about 94,000. The population of Quebec in 1871 being 1,391,516, the unit of representation as fixed by that population for the decade of the seventies in accordance with the provisions of section 51, sub-section 2 of the British North America Act, was 18,331. Therefore had the principle of representation by population been strictly applied, Prince Edward Island could have made no claim to a representation of six members. But the province had been, from the time of the original proposal for confederation, standing out for better terms in the very matter of representation in parliament. These better terms were at last conceded by the Dominion, and these circumstances are relied on as demonstrating that the intention of both parties in entering into the compact of union was that Prince Edward Island should never have less than the number of six representatives.

26. And it is submitted on behalf of the appellant that it manifestly appears from the negotiations which took place as shown by the telegrams and letters annexed to this case, that it was the intention to accord to Prince Edward Island special terms in this respect, and that Prince Edward Island was admitted into the union upon special terms differing in this respect from those enjoyed by any of the other federating provinces.

27. It is conceded on the part of the respondent that Prince Edward Island at the time of entering the union was not according to population entitled to six members, although allowed to have that number; but it is contended that this was a temporary arrangement only, and that it might at the pleasure of the Dominion parliament cease at the next decennial census or at any later time.

28. The appellant contends that this is not a reasonable construction to put upon the contract of union. It would be leaving one of the parties to the compact liberty to vary the terms of that compact to the detriment of the other. Prince Edward Island was by entering the union no doubt expecting to derive some benefits from her change of government, but on the other hand she was giving for such benefits large consideration. She was relinquishing to the Dominion a large measure of the system of self-government she had enjoyed for nearly a century; she was transferring to the Dominion government the right to impose and collect import and export duties on goods imported to and exported from the province; she was giving up the right to the nomination and appointment of many of the public officials the selection of whom had previously rested wholly with the government of the island itself. The exercise of these rights, which naturally were dear to the people of the island, would not in any reasonable view be parted with without corresponding benefits by way of consideration in return, or without securing to the province and people of Prince Edward Island a permanent means by which they should still have a reasonable representation and voice in the regulating by the Dominion of these very privileges and rights which they were thereafter to enjoy as a joint possession.
29. It is further to be noticed that there is nothing in the terms of union affording any indication that the arrangement with regard to the six members was to be merely a temporary one. The contention of the respondent in this regard seems scarcely reasonable in face of the negotiations shown in the appendix hereto, and in view of the absurd results to which the argument necessarily leads. Upon such an interpretation of the terms of union, if the date at which Prince Edward Island entered confederation had been 1879 or 1880, the increased representation stipulated for would have been enjoyed for but one session of the House, and for one session the island would have have voted with six members, while in the next session the same population remaining at the same number would have voted in the House with but five or four members, as the case might be.

30. The appellant refers to the language of Chief Justice Parker of Massachusetts as affording the true canon of construction to be applied to instruments such as those now under consideration and under circumstances such as the present.

In Henshaw v. Foster (1830)9 Pick. at p. 317 he says:—

'We are to suppose that those who are delegated to the great business of distributing the powers which emanate from the sovereignty of the people, and to the establishment of rules for the perpetual security of the rights of person and property, had the wisdom to adapt their language to future as well as existing emergencies; so that words competent to the then existing state of the community, and at the same time capable of being expanded to embrace more extensive relations should not be restrained to their more obvious and immediate sense, if, consistent with the general object of the authors and the true principles of the compact, they can be extended to other relations and circumstances which an improved state of society may produce.'

31. In 1892 the parliament of Canada passed the statute entitled 'An Act to readjust the Representation in the House of Commons;' (55-56 Victoria, chap. 11), the preamble to which Act contains the following statement:

'Whereas by the census of the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, and in accordance with the British North America Act, 1867, and certain other Acts of the parliament of the United Kingdom, and of the parliament of Canada, the province of Manitoba is, by its present population, entitled to seven members in the House of Commons, the Province of Nova Scotia to twenty members, the province of New Brunswick to fourteen members, and the province of Prince Edward Island to five members, respectively.

The statute then enacts, inter alia, that five members of the House of Commons shall be elected for Prince Edward Island.

32. By this preamble and legislation it would appear that the Dominion parliament in reducing the representation of Prince Edward Island founds its right and authority so to do upon the British North America Act, 1867, and certain other Acts of the parliament of the United Kingdom and of the parliament of Canada.

33. The statute of 1903 further reduces the representation of Prince Edward Island, but in its preamble refers only to the readjustment of the representation necessitated 'pursuant to the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867, and the other statutes in that behalf.'

34. The appellant points out that so far as the British North America Act is concerned there is nowhere in it by express words any provision or enactment which declares that Prince Edward Island shall have a representation of five members only, and further, that there is no enactment of the Imperial parliament other than the British North America Act providing for or referring to any such reduction. And no enactment of the parliament of Canada alone could be of any force as repealing or affecting an Imperial statute which had previously given to Prince Edward Island six members.

35. Under the British North America Act the only changes in representation contemplated are of increase from the original numbers with diminutions (if subsequently necessary) from such increase. The provision for change is shown by section 52 of the Act, which provides that 'The number of members of the House of Commons may be from time to time increased by the parliament of Canada provided the proportionate representation of the provinces prescribed by this Act is not thereby disturbed.'

36. Section 51 of the statute in its express terms applies, and, it is submitted, was intended to apply, only to the four provinces mentioned which were then being united, namely, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

37. The appellant submits that at the time of the federation of these four original provinces into the one Dominion, thenceforth called Canada, a constitution was framed for the new Dominion in the British North America Act, and the thirty-seventh section of that Act provides that the House of Commons shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, consist of 181 members, Ontario having 82 members, Quebec 65 members, Nova Scotia 19 members and New Brunswick 15 members.

38. This, the appellant contends, is a fixed constitution requiring, so long as it remains unamended, that the Canadian House of Commons shall always consist of at least 181 members. Below that number it could never fall; if it did it would cease to be a parliament as formed and fixed by the Act; and there is nothing in the British North America Act providing for or indicating any intention to provide for any reduction below 181 in the whole number of members in the House of Commons, but only provision for increase above that number or subsequent decrease down to the original number. The framers of this constitution for the four originally federating provinces having therefore defined what such constitution should be, it became necessary to make provision for the subsequent admission of other provinces into the union, and section 146 of the British North America Act accordingly provided that it should be lawful for the Queen, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, on addresses from the Houses of parliament of Canada and from the Houses of the respective legislatures of the different provinces, to admit those provinces or any of them into the union on such terms and conditions in each case as are in the addresses expressed and as the Queen should think fit to approve. The words 'terms and conditions in each case' show clearly that it was anticipated and expected that the terms might in each case be different, and might in one case be more favourable than in another to the province so being admitted.

39. In the court below it was contended that the provision in the twelfth paragraph of the terms of union for readjustment of the representation of the island from time to time under the provisions of the British North America Act meant readjustment under the provisions of section 51 sub-section 2, by dividing the number 65 into the population of Quebec at the time, and thereby obtaining a unit of representation by dividing which into the population of Prince Edward Island the number of its members would be determined. It was argued that the use of the word 'readjusted' required that after each decennial census a readjustment should take place in Prince Edward Island whether the original number of members was thereby reduced or not.

40. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that this is not a proper or reasonable construction of the resolution or statute, and on the contrary that, as there are no words in any part of the British North America Act providing for a reduction in the number of members given originally by the Act to any province, so this word 'readjusted in the resolution, if given its proper meaning, implies a readjustment only by way of increase, subject to subsequent variation or reduction of such increase, and so that the number of representatives should never be less than that originally stipulated for.

41. The only provision in the British North America Act in which any reference at all is made to a reduction is sub-section 4 of section 51. This is a negative provision, prescribing that no reduction shall take place unless a certain state of facts exists. Its language does not militate at all against the view that the reduction there spoken of is a reduction only when there has been a previous increase, to be made if called for, but only out of such previous increase.

42. And the appellant urges that there is nothing in the British North America Act, or in the addresses or resolutions which preceded or accompanied it, in any way pointing to an intention to reduce the representation originally given each province by that Act as its constitution, and unless an enactment to that effect is found in an Imperial Act, or in Acts ratified by Her or His Majesty, no enactment of the parliament of Canada can alone affect or alter the vested and positive rights secured to each province by its constitution.

43. If the view entertained by the Supreme Court of Canada be upheld there must in the near future arise, apparently inevitably, a condition of things which the appellant submits never could have been within the contemplation of the framers of the British North America Act or of the contracting parties, the Dominion of Canada and the province of Prince Edward Island. The population of Quebec at the time Prince Edward Island entered the confederation was 1,191,516, making the unit of representation some 18,331. But since then the population of Quebec has increased continuously, until it is now 1,648,598, increasing the unit of representation to 25-367. All recent statistics show that the population of Quebec is increasing rapidly, and the next decennial census will almost certainly show a population in that province very largely in excess of the present. The tide of immigration seems to have set towards Canada to an extent never known before in the history of the country, and there seems no reasonable room for doubt that the province of Quebec will rapidly fill up.

44. There is the further circumstance that under the provisions of the British North America Act, 1871 (cap. 28, Imperial Act) the parliament of Canada with the consent of any province may enlarge the limits of such province and increase its area by the addition of new districts and territory, and pursuant to this power the province of Quebec has recently been increased in area by some 118,000 square miles of fertile lands which will no doubt be rapidly filled up with an ever increasing population (61 Vict. c. 3). This of course is but natural in the case of each of the larger provinces of the Dominion, which, by reason of their situation, have opportunity to enlarge their boundaries almost at will out of the vast tracts of unoccupied territory which adjoin them. Prince Edward Island on the other hand is sea-girt, and by nature hemmed in by fixed boundaries which cannot be altered.

45. There is therefore every present prospect that the unit of representation in Canada, decennially increasing as it must in proportion to the ever increasing population of Quebec, will within another two or three decades have grown so large that Prince Edward Island, though its population may also have increased, would, according to such population, have representation in the House of Commons by but one or two members at most; and the day might even come when, if the contentment of the respondent is correct, this province would not be entitled to representation in the House of Commons at all.

46. The anomaly would then be presented that Prince Edward Island, an autonomous province of the Dominion, had no representation whatever in the popular branch of the parliament at Ottawa, though under section 147 of the British North America Act the province would still be represented by four senators in the Senate of Canada, as that measure of representation to the island is certainly fixed, and not alterable by the Dominion parliament.

47. The appellant contends that such a condition of affairs could never have been contemplated by the framers of the constitution of Canada, and that so to hold would render such constitution unstable, uncertain and most unsatisfactory to the smaller provinces.

48. The appellant submits that in interpreting the written constitution of a country, or an instrument of federal union entered into between two self-governing states previously independent each of the other, the court will apply principles of construction more liberal and broad than those which might govern the construction of contracts between individuals. It is submitted that chief regard should be had rather to the true intention of the parties than to the exact meaning of the words they may have used.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 127

49. The principle of construction which should be applied is thus laid down by Mr. Justice Story in his Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States, sec. 455, XIX.:

'But the most important rule in cases of this nature is, that a constitution of government does not, and cannot, from its nature, depend in any great degree upon mere verbal criticism, or upon the import of single words. Such criticism may not be wholly without use: it may sometimes illustrate or unfold the appropriate sense; but unless it stands well with the context and subject matter, it must yield to the latter. While, then, we may well resort to the meaning of single words to assist our inquiries, we should never forget that it is an instrument of government we are to construe; and, as has been already stated, that must be the truest exposition which best harmonises with its design, its objects and its general structure.'

See Vattel, B. 2, ch. 17, secs. 285, 286.

50. It is submitted that the narrow and strict construction which in the court below has been put upon the Canadian Act of constitution, and upon the compact between Canada and Prince Edward Island is one that in its ultimate result would tend to the overthrow of the constitution itself.

51. It was further urged in argument in the court below, on behalf of the Dominion government, that section 146 of the British North America Act authorised the admission of Prince Edward Island into the Canadian confederation only on such terms and conditions as Her Majesty might approve 'subject to the provisions' of the said Act.

And it was contended that all the negotiations for union, and the terms and conditions then agreed upon, must therefore be entirely controlled by the provisions of the British North America Act, which it was insisted required the representation of each province of the Dominion always to be fixed in exact proportion to the results of each decennial census.

52. In the submission of the appellant full effect is given to the words 'subject to the provisions of this Act' and the reasonable construction is put upon them if they are read as applicable to the distribution of legislative powers and to the similar provisions of the statute which are in no way made the subject of special terms and conditions in the articles of union, instead of as governing the matter of parliamentary representation and other subjects which are specially provided for in the terms and conditions in question.

53. The phrase 'subject to the provisions of this Act' controls the terms of union in this sense, that section 92 of the statute necessarily defined and limited the powers of the local legislature of the island from the day on which the Order in Council admitting the province into the Dominion took effect. From that day the provisions of section 91 of the Act became applicable to take away from the legislature of the island many powers it before possessed, and numerous other provisions of the Act at once took effect without the least conflict with the special terms and conditions of the contract of union as contained in the addresses upon which the Order in Council was passed.

54. As to the construction of the words 'subject to the provisions of this Act' the appellant refers to the views of Lord Justice Brett as expressed in the case of Ormerod vs. Todmorden Mill Co. (1852) L.R. S Q. B. Div. 664, at page 676, and the appellant submits that in section 146 of the British North America Act the words mean merely that the terms and conditions of union must not in any case be inconsequent with the general or specific provisions of the Act.

55. The appellant accordingly submits that this appeal ought to be allowed for the following among other
(1) On the grounds appearing in the body of this case.

(2) Because upon the true interpretation of the addresses which express the terms and conditions of union between the province of Prince Edward Island and the Dominion of Canada it was then intended and agreed that the province should always have at least six members in the Canadian House of Commons.

(3) Because the history of the negotiations leading to the union demonstrates that this measure of representation was expressly stipulated for by the province, and that without it union would never have been consented to by the province.

(4) Because by the terms of the Imperial Order in Council admitting the province into the Canadian confederation two members are given to each of the three counties into which the province is divided.

(5) Because all the circumstances of the case, as well as the reason of the thing, forbid the articles of union being interpreted as merely a temporary provision to endure only till the end of the then current decade.

(6) Because no provision for reducing the number of members in the Canadian House of Commons is, in terms, made in the British North America Act.

(7) Because the said Act contemplates, and by necessary intendment implies, that under no circumstances shall the whole number of members in the said House of Commons ever be less than 181, nor the number of such members to be elected by any province less than the number assigned in 1867 to that province by the said Act.

(8) Because the necessary result of applying to the province of Prince Edward Island the basis of representation to the Canadian House of Commons laid down in the court below will sooner or later be to deprive that province of all representation whatever in the said House.

Arthur Peters.
A. B. Aylesworth.

SCHEDULE 'A' TO CASE.

Appendix 'D'.

Despatch No. 22. From Major-General Doyle, administrator of the government of Nova Scotia to Lieutenant-Governor Dundas, in relation to a proposed union of the three maritime provinces of British North America.

From Lieut.-Governor Dundas to Major-General Doyle in reply.

Further correspondence between the same on the same subject.

His Excellency George Dundas, &c., &c., &c.

I have the honour to bring under the notice of your Excellency the following extract from the speech addressed to the legislature of this province, on the 4th instant, relating to the proposed union of the three maritime provinces, in the hope that corresponding action may be taken by the government of Prince Edward Island.
The importance of consolidating the influence and advancing the common progress of the three maritime provinces whose interests are so closely identified, has for some time attracted a large share of public attention, and I propose to submit for your consideration, a proposition in which the co-operation of the governments of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island will be invited with a view to the union of the three provinces under one government and legislature.

In accordance with the announcement thus made, the government propose to submit to the legislature a resolution authorizing the appointment of delegates to confer with delegates who may be appointed by the government of New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island, for the purpose of arranging such preliminaries as may be considered necessary for the union of the three provinces under one government and legislature, such action to take effect only, when confirmed by the legislatures of the three provinces and approved by Her Majesty the Queen.

Hastings Doyle.

His Excellency Major-General Hastings Doyle.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt this day of your despatch of the 8th instant, in which you bring under my notice an extract from your speech to the legislature of Nova Scotia, which has reference to the proposal of a legislative union of the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

I shall at the earliest opportunity bring under the notice of the executive council of this province, the resolution which in accordance with the announcement in your speech, your ministers propose to submit to the legislature of Nova Scotia on this important question.

George Dundas,
Lieut.-Governor.

Major-General Doyle to Lieut.-Governor Dundas, Government House, Halifax, N.S., 29th February, 1864.

In continuation of my despatch of the 8th instant, I have the honour to inform your Excellency that the government here, propose to introduce the annexed resolution upon the subject of the union of the maritime provinces, but will defer doing so at present, in order that they may receive any suggestions, upon the terms of the resolution which your Excellency's government may wish to offer. As it is certainly much to be desired, that the wording of the resolution proposed to the different legislatures should be as nearly identical as possible.

Hastings Doyle.

Resolved, that His Excellency the administrator of the government be requested to appoint delegates (not to exceed five) to confer with delegates who may be appointed by the governments of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, for the purpose of arranging a preliminary plan for the union of the three provinces under one government and legislature, such union to take effect when confirmed by the legislative enactment of the various provinces interested and approved by Her Majesty the Queen.

His Excellency Major-General Hastings Doyle, &c., &c., &c.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt, on the 9th instant, of your despatch of date the 20th ultimo, on the subject of a proposed administrative and legislative union of the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, and to inform you, that I have referred a copy of that despatch and of the resolution enclosed for the consideration of the Executive Council of this island.

George Dundas,
Lieut.-Governor.

Extract from Journals of the House of Assembly of the Province of Prince Edward Island for the Year 1863.

Appendix 'E'.

Report of resolutions adopted at the conference of delegates from the provinces of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and the colonies of Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, held at the city of Quebec, 10th October, 1864, as the basis of a proposed confederation of those provinces and colonies.

17. The basis of representation in the House of Commons shall be population, as determined by the official census every ten years; and the number of members at first shall be 194, distributed as follows:

Upper Canada.................................................. 82
Lower Canada.................................................. 65
Nova Scotia..................................................... 19
New Brunswick.................................................. 15
Newfoundland................................................... 8 and Prince Edward Island....................................... 5

18. Until the official census of 1871 has been made up, there shall be no change in the number of representatives from the several sections.

19. Immediately after the completion of the census of 1871, and immediately after every decennial census thereafter, the representation from each section in the House of Commons shall be readjusted on the basis of population.

20. For the purpose of such readjustments Lower Canada shall always be assigned sixty-five members, and each of the other sections shall at each readjustment receive, for the ten years next succeeding, the number of members to which it will be entitled on the same ratio of representation to population as Lower Canada will enjoy according to the census last taken by having sixty-five members.

21. No reduction shall be made in the number of members returned by any section unless its population shall have decreased relatively to the population of the whole union to the extent of five per centum.

Extract from Journals of the House of Assembly of the Province of Prince Edward Island for the Year 1870.

Appendix 'F'.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies, to the Governor-General.

Downing Street, 4th September, 1869.

Governor-General.

The Right Honourable Sir John Young Bt., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., &c., &c., &c.

I have read with much satisfaction the speech with which you closed the last session of the parliament of the Dominion of Canada, as well as the resolutions of the parliament, authorizing your government to enter into negotiations with the government of Prince Edward Island, with a view to the admission of that colony into the Dominion.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 127

I trust, that in settling the terms proposed as the basis of this arrangement, the government of the Dominion will deal liberally as well as justly with the island, and that the government of the island will receive favourably such propositions when made, as I believe it is in the interest of the whole of the British North America colonies that they should be united under one government; and Her Majesty's government watch with much interest the successive steps that are being taken towards the accomplishment of this great end.

Granville.

Appendix 'G.'

EXTRACTS FROM SPEECHES DELIVERED AT THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE IN 1864.

Mr. Palmer—

'Why give up so great certainties where we have only a feeble voice?'

Mr. Whelan—

'Our people would not be content to give up their present benefits for the representation of five members. It may be said that confederation will go on without Prince Edward Island and that we shall eventually be forced in. Better however that, than we should willingly go into confederation with that representation.'

Colonel Grey—

'The provision of five members is unsatisfactory. Prince Edward Island is divided longitudinally into three counties. We cannot divide three counties into five members. Besides to divide into ridings would cut the capitals in two.'

Mr. Coles—

'Mr. Galt has proposed six members for Prince Edward Island. I approve that rather than Mr. Brown's motion because it allows us to give our counties two members each.'

Mr. Pope—

'The circumstances of Prince Edward Island are such that I hope the conference will agree to give us such a number as we can divide amongst our three (3) constituencies. Nature as well as the original settlement of the island has made three counties and it would give rise to much difficulty if we had to adjust five members to the three counties. I cannot ask it as a matter of right, but as one of expediency, as one without which it is impossible for us to carry the measure in Prince Edward Island.'

Mr. Haviland—

'Prince Edward Island would rather be out of the confederation than consent to the motion. We would have no status, only five members out of one hundred and ninety-four would give the island no position.'

Appendix 'H.'

EXTRACTS FROM SPEECH DELIVERED IN THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY OF PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND IN 1873 BY HON. MR. POPE—PARLIAMENTARY REPORTER, 1873, p. 204.

'All the arguments used by the delegates sent from this island to the Quebec conference, in reference to our representation in the House of Commons, were to the effect that two members should be allowed each county.'
Appendix 'I.'

Copies of Telegrams.

Telegram from Robert P. Haythorne, president of the executive council, to Lieutenant-Governor Robinson, Ottawa, February 26th, 1873.

Held two conferences. Increase of annual allowance, railway debt, steam dredge, will be freely conceded in addition to better terms, but railway debt in addition to difference of old debt in our favour thought too much. Probably yield six representatives.

Telegram from Messrs. Laird and Haythorne to Honourable Edward Palmer, Charlottetown,—Ottawa, 3rd March, 1873.

Increase of annual allowance, total railway debt, steam dredge conceded. Law courts conceded with entire possession. Fisheries same as other provinces, if not settled before union. $800,000 for land, increased by interest on $100,000. $431,000 allowed, instead of difference on old debt. In other respects better terms are to stand. We advise dissolve upon these terms. Do our colleagues concur? Immediate answer required.

Telegram from Lieutenant-Governor Robinson to Honourable R. P. Haythorne, Ottawa, 4th March, 1873.

Terrific snow storm. Travelling impossible. Will meet council and telegraph answer as soon as possible.

Telegram from Hon. R. P. Haythorne, Russell House, to Lieutenant-Governor Robinson, Ottawa, March 6th, 1873.

Highly probable get six representatives. Try and send reply council as soon as possible. Unable close here till received. Have councillors arrived?

Telegram from Lieutenant-Governor Robinson to Hon. R. P. Haythorne, Ottawa, March 6th, 1873.

Council concur in advising dissolution, which will accordingly take place tomorrow. We hope six representatives will be conceded.

Telegram from Hon. R. P. Haythorne, to Hon. Edward Palmer, Charlottetown, Ottawa, 8th March, 1873.

Synopsis for publication. Terms to island passed Privy Council. Canada, yesterday.

Dominion will assume debt until reaches forty-five dollars per head population last census, or pay interest on difference at five per cent. Railways under contract property of Dominion. New building and dredge paid for by Canada. Yearly allowance, thirty thousand dollars local government, and forty-five thousand dollars for loss of Crown lands, except interest on sums drawn, not exceeding eight hundred thousand dollars purchase remaining estates. Except modifications stated, and interest difference old debt, better terms allowed. Six representatives conceded, one hundred and thirty thousand dollars yearly, better than better terms.
APPENDIX K.

STATEMENT showing the population and representation in the Canadian House of Commons of the Provinces of Canada since the passing of the B.N.A. Act 1867.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Unit of representation being 1/45th part of the population of Quebec</th>
<th>Number of Members under Act</th>
<th>Population 1871</th>
<th>Number of Members Act of 1872</th>
<th>Population 1881</th>
<th>Number of Members Act of 1882</th>
<th>Population 1891</th>
<th>Number of Members Act of 1892</th>
<th>Population 1901</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Quebec</td>
<td>65</td>
<td>1,191,516</td>
<td>18,331</td>
<td>26,968</td>
<td>22,900</td>
<td>25,367</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ontario</td>
<td>82</td>
<td>1,620,851</td>
<td>88</td>
<td>1,356,627</td>
<td>65</td>
<td>1,488,535</td>
<td>65</td>
<td>1,648,898</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nova Scotia</td>
<td>19</td>
<td>357,809</td>
<td>21</td>
<td>340,572</td>
<td>21</td>
<td>430,396</td>
<td>20</td>
<td>475,574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>New Brunswick</td>
<td>43</td>
<td>285,594</td>
<td>16</td>
<td>323,293</td>
<td>16</td>
<td>322,363</td>
<td>14</td>
<td>331,120</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manitoba</td>
<td>13</td>
<td>16,905</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>152,306</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>178,231</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British Columbia</td>
<td>14</td>
<td>36,247</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>49,459</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>95,175</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prince Edward Island</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>94,021</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>108,891</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>108,078</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Territories (North West and Yukon)</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>56,146</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>98,967</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>211,649</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Canada</td>
<td>181</td>
<td>3,635,024</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

IN THE PRIVY COUNCIL ON APPEAL FROM THE SUPREME COURT OF CANADA.

In the matter of the representation in the House of Commons of certain provinces of the Dominion consequent upon the last decennial census.

Between

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL FOR THE PROVINCE OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Appellant

and

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL FOR THE DOMINION OF CANADA

Respondent.

CASE ON BEHALF OF THE APPELLANT.

1. This is an appeal from a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada upon a special case stated for its opinion in the above matter under the provisions of the Canadian statute known as the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, as amended by the Act 54 and 55 Victoria, chapter 25, intituled 'An Act to amend Chapter 135 of the Revised Statutes, intituled An Act respecting the Supreme and Exchequer Courts.'

2. The special case so stated was as follows:—

'Extract from a report of the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council approved by the Governor-General on the 17th April, 1903:—'

'On a report dated 15th April, 1903, from the Minister of Justice, submitting that in connection with the proposed readjustment of the representation in the House of Commons of the provinces of the Dominion, consequent upon the last decennial census, the province of New Brunswick, supported by the province of Nova Scotia, contends for a construction of section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867,' different from that which has been heretobefore applied and which is adopted by your Excellency's advisers. These provinces have therefore asked that a reference be made to the Supreme Court of Canada for a determination of the question in difference.

'The Minister therefore recommends that the following question suggested by the government of New Brunswick, and approved, as the Minister of Justice is informed, by the government of Nova Scotia, be referred to the Supreme Court for hearing and consideration pursuant to the authority of the Supreme and Exchequer Court Act, as amended by the Act 54 and 55 Victoria, chapter 25, intituled "An Act to amend Chapter 135 of the Revised Statutes intituled An Act respecting the Supreme and Exchequer Courts.'

'In determining the number of representatives in the House of Commons to which Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are respectively entitled after each decennial census, should the words "aggregate population of Canada" in sub-section 4 of section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, be construed as meaning the population of the four original provinces of Canada, or as meaning the whole population of Canada including that of provinces which have been admitted to the confederation, subsequent to the passage of the British North America Act.

'The committee submit the same for approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
'Clerk of the Privy Council.'

3. It will be seen therefore that the question for decision upon the special case was the true construction of section 51, sub-section 4, of the British North America Act, 1867, being the Imperial statute under which the Dominion of Canada was originally constituted. The decision of this question seriously affects the representation in the Dominion House of Commons to which the several provinces of Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick (which together with the province of Quebec were the original provinces of the Dominion) are now entitled.

4. In order to understand the nature of the question, and the contentions of the appellant thereon, it will be necessary to refer shortly to the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867, and to the various legislative and executive Acts whereby the other provinces and territories now constituting the Dominion of Canada were admitted into the union.

5. The British North America Act, 1867 (hereinafter called the Act of 1867), of which the full title is 'An Act for the Union of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and the government thereof: and for purposes connected therewith' recites (inter alia) that the provinces of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have expressed their desire to be federally united into one Dominion under the Crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, with a constitution similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom; that in the establishment of the union by authority of parliament it is expedient not only that the constitution of the legislative authority in the Dominion be provided for, but also that the nature of the executive government therein be declared; and that it is expedient that provision be made for the eventual admission into the union of other parts of British North America.

6. Section 3 of the Act of 1867 provides as follows:

'It shall be lawful for the Queen by and with the advice of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council to declare by proclamation that on and after a day therein appointed, not being more than six months after the passing of this Act, the provinces of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick shall form and be one Dominion under the name of Canada; and on and after that day those three provinces shall form and be one Dominion under that name accordingly.'

7. Section 4 of the Act of 1867 provides as follows:

'The subsequent provisions of this Act shall, unless it is otherwise expressed or implied, commence and have effect on and after the union, that is to say, on and after the day appointed for the union taking effect in the Queen's Proclamation; and in the same provisions unless it is otherwise expressed or implied the name Canada shall be taken to mean Canada as constituted under this Act.'

8. It is provided by section 5 of the Act of 1867 that Canada shall be divided into four provinces named Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and by section 6 that the parts of the province of Canada (as it existed at the commencement of the Act) which formerly constituted the provinces of Upper Canada and Lower Canada should be deemed to be severed, and should form two separate provinces, the part which formerly constituted the province of Upper Canada thereafter constituting the province of Ontario, and the part which formerly constituted the province of Lower Canada thereafter constituting the province of Quebec.

9. Section 8 of the Act of 1867 provides as follows:—

'In the general census of the population of Canada which is hereby required to be taken in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one and in every tenth year thereafter the respective populations of the four provinces shall be distinguished.'

10. By section 17 of the Act of 1867 it is provided that there shall be one parliament for Canada, consisting of the Queen, an Upper House styled the Senate, and the House of Commons, and by section 37, that the House of Commons shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, consist of 181 members of whom 82 shall be elected for Ontario, 65 for Quebec, 19 for Nova Scotia and 15 for New Brunswick.

11. The 51st section of the Act is as follows:—

'51. On the completion of the census in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one, and of each subsequent decennial census the representation of the four provinces shall be readjusted by such authority in such manner and from such time as the parliament of Canada from time to time provides, subject and according to the following rules:—

'(1) Quebec shall have the fixed number of sixty-five members.

'(2) There shall be assigned to each of the other provinces such a number of members as will bear the same proportion to the number of its population (ascertained at such census) as the number sixty-five bears to the number of the population of Quebec (so ascertained).

'(3) In the computation of the number of members for a province a fractional part not exceeding one-half of the whole number requisite for entitling the province to a member shall be disregarded; but a fractional part exceeding one-half of that number shall be equivalent to the whole number.

'(4) On any such readjustment the number of members for a province shall not be reduced unless the proportion which the number of the population of the province bore to the number of the aggregate population of Canada at the then last preceding readjustment of the number of members for the province is ascertained at the then latest census to be diminished by one-twentieth part or upwards.

'(5) Such readjustment shall not take effect until the termination of the then existing parliament.'

12. By section 52 of the Act of 1867 it is provided that the number of members of the House of Commons may be from time to time increased by the parliament of Canada, provided the proportionate representation of the provinces prescribed by this Act is not thereby disturbed.

13. The only other sections of the Act of 1867 to which it is necessary to refer for the purpose of the present appeal are sections 146 and 147. By section 146 it is provided that it shall be lawful for the Queen by and with the advice of Her Majesty's most Honourable Privy Council on addresses from the Houses of parliament of Canada and from the Houses of the respective legislatures of the colonies or provinces of Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia to admit these colonies or provinces, or any of them, into the union, and on address from the Houses of parliament of Canada to admit Rupert's Land and the North-western Territory or either of them into the union on such terms and conditions in each case as are in the addresses expressed, and as the Queen thinks fit to approve, subject to the provisions of this Act; and the provisions of any Order in Council in that behalf shall have effect as if they had been enacted by the parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and by section 147 certain provisions are made with regard to the representation of Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island in the Senate if and when admitted into the union.

14. It is to be observed that there is no provision whatever in the Act of 1867 for the admission to the union of any colonies, provinces or territories other than those specifically referred to in the 146th section of the Act, or for the representation in the House of Commons of the Dominion of any of the colonies or provinces so specifically referred to. The representation in the Dominion House of Commons of Prince Edward Island, British Columbia, Rupert’s Land and the North-west Territory when admitted into the union under the provisions of section 146 of the said Act is left to be determined by the addresses and orders necessary for such admission.

15. By Imperial proclamation, dated the 22nd of May, 1867, it was declared that on and after the 1st July, 1867, the provinces of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, should form and be one Dominion under the name of Canada, and the Dominion of Canada accordingly came into existence as provided by and subject to the provisions of the Act of 1867.

16. Shortly afterwards the Canadian House of parliament desired the admission into the Dominion of Rupert’s Land and the North-western Territories. It was, however, found that the then existing letters patent of the Hudson Bay Company, which owned and enjoyed certain rights over a portion of the territory in question, would prevent full powers of government and legislation over Rupert’s Land and the North-western Territories being transferred to the Canadian parliament. To remedy this state of things, the Imperial parliament passed the Act known as the Rupert’s Land Act, 1868, whereby after reciting (inter alia) an agreement between the said company and Her Majesty for a surrender to Her Majesty of all the company’s lands and rights enjoyed under their letters patent, it was provided (section 3) that it should be competent for the company to surrender, and for Her Majesty to accept, a surrender of such lands and rights provided that such surrender should not be accepted by Her Majesty until the terms and conditions upon which Rupert’s Land should be admitted into the Dominion should have been approved of by Her Majesty and embodied in an address from both Houses of the Dominion parliament in pursuance of section 146 of the Act of 1867, and that the said surrender and acceptance should be void unless within a month from the date of such acceptance Her Majesty should by Order in Council under the provisions of the same Act admit Rupert’s Land into the said Dominion and (section 5) that it should be competent to Her Majesty by any such Order in Council as aforesaid on address from the Houses of the parliament of Canada to declare that Rupert’s Land should, from a date to be therein mentioned, be admitted into and become part of the Dominion of Canada, and thereupon it should be lawful for the parliament of Canada from the date aforesaid to make, ordain and establish within the land and territory so admitted as aforesaid, such laws, institutions and ordinances as might be necessary for the peace, order and good government of Her Majesty’s subjects and others therein.

17. The terms and conditions for the admission of Rupert’s Land and the North-west Territory into the Dominion were, in due course, embodied in an address to Her Majesty, from both houses of the parliament of Canada, and approved of by Her Majesty, who thereupon accepted the said surrender, and within a month thereafter, by Order in Council dated the 24th June, 1870, declared that from the 15th July, 1870, the North-west Territory and Rupert’s Land should be admitted into and become part of the Dominion, upon the terms and conditions embodied in the last-mentioned address. Such terms and conditions contained, however, no provision as to the representation in the Dominion parliament of either Rupert’s Land or the North-west Territory.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 127

18. Previously to the date of the said last mentioned Order in Council an Act had been passed by the parliament of Canada, 33 Vict., c. 3, intituled 'An Act to amend and continue the Act 32 and 33 Victoria, chapter 3, and to establish and provide for the government of the province of Manitoba' (hereinafter called the Act of 1870), which, so far as material to be herein stated, provided as follows:—

Section 1. 'On from and after the date upon which the Queen by and with the advice and consent of Her Majesty's most Honourable Privy Council under the authority of the 146th section of the British North America Act, 1867, shall by Order in Council in that behalf admit Rupert's Land and the North-west Territory into the union or Dominion of Canada there shall be formed out of the same a province which shall be one of the provinces of the Dominion of Canada and which shall be called the province of Manitoba.'

Section 2. 'On from and after the said day on which the Order of the Queen in Council shall take effect as aforesaid the provisions of the British North America Act 1867 shall except those parts thereof which are in the terms made or by reasonable intent may be held to be specially applicable to or only to affect one or more but not the whole of the provinces now composing the Dominion and except so far as the same may be varied by this Act be applicable to the province of Manitoba in the same way and to the like extent as they apply to the several provinces of Canada and as if the province of Manitoba had been one of the provinces originally united by the said Act.

Section 4. 'The said province shall be represented in the first instance in the House of Commons of Canada by four members and for that purpose shall be divided by proclamation of the Governor General into four electoral districts, each of which shall be represented by one member. Provided that on the completion of the census in the year 1881 and of each decennial census afterwards the representation of the said province shall be readjusted according to the provisions of the fifty-first section of the British North America Act, 1867.'

19. The number of members of the House of Commons assigned to the new province of Manitoba by the Act of 1870 was out of all proportion to the number of its population according to the basis of representation by population provided for in the case of the four original provinces by the Act of 1867, and doubts were expressed as to whether the parliament of Canada had power to establish any new province out of the territories admitted, or to provide for the representation of such a province in the said parliament. To remove such doubts the British North America Act, 1871, was passed by the Imperial parliament.

20. The British North America Act, 1871 (hereinafter called the Act of 1871), recites that doubts have been entertained respecting the powers of the parliament of Canada, to establish provinces in territories admitted or which may hereafter be admitted into the Dominion of Canada, and to provide for the representation of such provinces in the said parliament, and it is expedient to remove such doubts and to vest such powers in the said parliament, and provides (section 2) as follows:—

'2. The parliament of Canada may from time to time establish new provinces in any territories forming for the time being part of the Dominion of Canada, but not included in any province thereof, and may at the time of such establishment make provision for the constitution and administration of any such province, and for the passing of laws for the peace, order, and good government of such province, and for its representation in the said parliament.'

21. The Act of 1871 also provides (section 5) that the Act of 1870 shall be valid and effectual for all purposes whatsoever from the date at which it received the assent in the Queen's name of the Governor General of Canada.

22. In the year 1871 the parliament of Canada and the legislature of British Columbia respectively adopted addresses praying for the admission of British Columbia into the Dominion upon the terms and conditions therein mentioned, and by an Order in Council dated the 16th May, 1871, hereinafter called the Order of 1871, it was declared that on, from and after the 20th July, 1871, the colony of British Columbia should be admitted into and become part of the Dominion of Canada upon the terms and conditions set forth in the said addresses, copies of which were contained in the schedules to the said Order annexed.

23. By the said terms and conditions it was provided (inter alia) as follows:

'Clause 5. British Columbia shall be entitled to be represented in the Senate by three members and by six members in the House of Commons. The representation to be increased under the provision of the British North America Act, 1867.'

'Clause 10. The provisions of the British North America Act, 1867, shall (except those parts thereof which are in terms made or by reasonable intendment may be held to be specially applicable to and only affect one and not the whole of the provinces now comprising the Dominion and except so far as the same may be varied by this minute) be applicable to British Columbia in the same way and to the like extent as they apply to the other provinces of the Dominion and as if the colony of British Columbia had been one of the provinces originally united by the said Act.'

24. In the same manner, Prince Edward Island was admitted into the Dominion as from the 26th July, 1873, by Order in Council dated the 1st July, 1873, and by clause 9 of the terms and conditions it was provided as follows:

'That the population of Prince Edward Island having been increased by 15,000 or upwards since the year 1861, the island shall be represented in the House of Commons by six members, the representation to be readjusted under the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867.'

25. Clause 11 of the said terms and conditions is in the same terms mutatis mutandis as clause 10 of the terms and conditions upon which British Columbia was admitted into the union above referred to.

26. Besides the seven provinces above mentioned, the Dominion of Canada at the present time includes certain territories divided into districts, known as the districts of Keewatin, Assiniboia, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Athabaska, Ungava, Franklin, Mackenzie and Yukon (being nine districts in all). These districts have from time to time, between the years 1876 and 1895, been formed out of British possessions on the North American continent which have from time to time been brought into the Dominion of Canada. They each have a special form of government assigned to them, and are on a totally different footing to the provinces whose internal government is regulated by the Act of 1867.

27. By the British North America Act, 1866 (hereinafter called the Act of 1866), it was provided (clause 2) that the parliament of Canada might from time to time make provision for the representation in the Senate and House of Commons of Canada or in either of them, of any territories which for the time being form part of the Dominion of Canada but are not included in any province thereof, and (clause 3) that Act and the British North America Act, 1867, and the British North America Act, 1871, should be construed together and be cited together as the British North America Acts, 1867 to 1886.

28. In pursuance of the powers in that behalf given to it by the Act of 1866, the Canadian parliament has up to the present time made provision for the representation in the Senate and House of Commons of three of the above mentioned territories, namely the districts of Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

29. It is to be observed that there is no provision in the Act of 1866 with regard to the representation of the territories being readjusted in the manner provided by section 51 of the Act of 1867, and, in making provision for the representation of the before-mentioned territories, the Dominion parliament has in fact never had regard to the principle of representation by population which, by the Act of 1867, was applied to the four original provinces.

30. The last decennial census of Canada, provided for by the Act of 1867, was taken in the year 1901, and there has lately been introduced into the Canadian parliament a Redistribution Bill by which it is proposed, not only to grant additional representation in the House of Commons to the territories, but also to readjust the representation of the seven provinces under the 51st section of the Act of 1867.

31. The readjustment provided for by the Redistribution Bill involves the reduction of the number of members to which the provinces of Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia respectively have been hitherto entitled. In the case of New Brunswick it is proposed to reduce its number of members from 15 to 13.

32. That the basis upon which the number of members assigned to the three last-mentioned provinces by the Redistribution Bill was ascertained, was that of the rules laid down in sub-sections 1, 2 and 3, of Section 51 of the Act of 1867, that is to say, there was assigned to each province such a number of members as bore the same proportion to the number of its population (as ascertained at the 1901 census) as the number 65 bore to the number of the population of Quebec (as ascertained by the 1901 census). And it was assumed that sub-section 4 of the said section did not prevent the number of members of any of the said provinces being reduced, because in the case of each of such provinces the proportion which the number of its population bore to the number of the aggregate population of the whole of the Dominion (including all the provinces and territories) at the last preceding readjustment of the number of members for the provinces was ascertained at the census of 1901 to have been diminished by one-twentieth part and upwards.

33. Upon the introduction of the Redistribution Bill it was at once contended on behalf of the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, that it was not competent for the Canadian parliament to reduce the number of members elected by such provinces respectively, inasmuch as the words 'aggregate population of Canada' in sub-section 4 of the 51st section of the Act of 1867, meant the aggregate population of the four original provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia only, and therefore since upon that basis the populations of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia had not in fact proportionately decreased to the extent provided for by such sub-section the condition precedent to the reduction of the number of members of such province had not been fulfilled.

34. The above contention of the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia not being acquiesced in by the Dominion government, these provinces asked that the question of the proper construction of the said sub-section should be made the subject of a reference by the Governor-General of Canada to the Supreme Court, pursuant to the authority of the Supreme Court and Exchequer Court Act, as amended by the Act 54 & 55 Victoria, Chapter 25, intituled "An Act to amend Chapter 135 of the Revised Statutes intituled "An Act respecting the Supreme and Exchequer Courts."

Such reference was accordingly made in the terms of the special case above mentioned.

35. The said special case was argued before the Supreme Court (consisting of Taschereau, C. J., and Sedgewick, Girouard, Davis, Mills and Armour, J. J.) on the 20th, 21st and 22nd April, 1903, by counsel representing the Dominion of Canada and the provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick respectively. A verbatim report of the arguments addressed to the Court will be found in the Record, pp. 5 to 60.

36. The Supreme Court held that according to the true construction of the Act of 1867 the words 'aggregate population of Canada' in sub-section 4 of section 51 of the Act meant the whole population of Canada, including that of the provinces which have been admitted into the Union subsequent to the passing of the said Act. The formal judgment of the court is dated the 29th April, 1903, and will be found in the Record at p. 71, and the reasons for the said judgment appear from the opinion delivered by Mr. Justice Mills, concurred in by the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Sedgwick and Mr. Justice Armour, and the individual opinions of Mr. Justice Girouard and Mr. Justice Davies, which will be found in the Record, pp. 59 to 70.

37. The appellant, as representing the province of New Brunswick, feeling himself aggrieved by such judgment and opinion of the Supreme Court, presented a petition to His Majesty in Council, to grant him special leave to appeal therefrom to His Maj-est in Council, and by an Order in Council dated the 21st of April, 1904, leave was granted to the appellant to enter and prosecute his appeal against the said judgment.

38. The appellant humbly submits that the judgment and opinion of the Supreme Court of Canada was erroneous and ought to be reversed or varied for (amongst other) the following—

REASONS.

1. Because upon the true construction of the Act of 1867 the provisions of the 51st section thereof relate only to the proportionate representation in the Dominion House of Commons of the original provinces of the Dominion, and have no application to the representation of any province subsequently admitted to the Dominion.

2. Because by the Act of 1867 the representation in the Dominion parliament of any province subsequently admitted into the Union is left to be determined by the several legislative acts or orders under which such admission takes place.

3. Because the several legislative acts or orders in council, under which new provinces have been subsequently admitted into the union, cannot, by reason of their having conferred on such new provinces a representation in the Dominion House of Commons to be from time to time determined or adjusted by reference to the 51st section of the Act of 1867 be construed to alter the proportionate representation in such House of Commons of the four original provinces of the Dominion, as determined by such 51st section.

4. Because according to the true construction of the 51st section of the Act of 1867, the expression 'the aggregate population of Canada' as used in the 4th subsection thereof, means the aggregate population of Canada as originally constituted by such Act.

R. J. Parker.

IN THE PRIVY COUNCIL.—ON APPEAL FROM THE SUPREME COURT OF CANADA.

Between

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL FOR THE PROVINCE OF PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, Appellant,

and

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL FOR THE DOMINION OF CANADA,

Respondent.

In the matter of a certain question referred to the Supreme Court of Canada by His Excellency the Governor General, in pursuance of an Order in Council approved by His Excellency on the 16th day of May, 1903.

Subject: Representation of Prince Edward Island in the House of Commons of Canada.

CASE OF THE RESPONDENT.

1. This is an appeal by special leave from a judgment or decision of the Supreme Court of Canada, dated the 8th day of June, 1903, certifying to the Governor in Council their opinion upon a question referred by him to the court for hearing or consideration by an Order in Council, dated 16th May, 1903, pursuant to the authority of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, 1875, and Revised Statutes of Canada, cap.
135, as amended by the Act of Canada, 1891, 54-55 Victoria, chapter 25.

2. The question referred by the said Order in Council was as follows:—

'Although the population of Prince Edward Island, as ascertained at the census of 1901, if divided by the unit of representation ascertained by dividing the number of sixty-five into the population of Quebec is not sufficient to give six members in the House of Commons of Canada to that province, is the representation of Prince Edward Island in the House of Commons of Canada liable under the British North America Act, 1867, and amendments thereto, and the terms of union of 1873, under which that province entered confederation, to be reduced below six, the number granted to that province by the said terms of union of 1873 ?'

3. The British North America Act, 1867, provides, section 146:—

'It shall be lawful for the Queen, by and with the advice of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, on addresses from the Houses of Parliament of Canada, and from the Houses of the respective legislatures of the colonies or provinces of Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia, to admit those colonies or provinces, or any of them, into the Union, and on address from the Houses of the Parliament of Canada to admit Rupert's Land and the North-Western Territory, or either of them, into the Union, on such terms and conditions in each case as are in the addresses expressed, and as the Queen thinks fit to approve, subject to the provisions of this Act; and the provisions of any Order in Council in that behalf shall have effect as if they had been enacted by the parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.'

4. By an order of the late Queen in Council, dated the 26th day of June, 1873, after reciting the before-mentioned section 146 of the British North America Act, 1867;

And reciting that by addresses from the Houses of the Parliament of Canada, and from the Legislative Council and House of Assembly of Prince Edward Island respectively Her Majesty was prayed under the 146th section of the hereinbefore recited Act to admit Prince Edward Island into the Dominion of Canada on the terms and conditions set forth in the said addresses:

And reciting that Her Majesty had thought fit to approve of the said terms and conditions.

It was (amongst other things) ordered and declared by the Queen in Council, in pursuance and exercise of the powers vested in Her Majesty by the British North America Act, 1867, that from and after the 1st day of June, 1873, the said colony of Prince Edward Island should be admitted into and become part of the Dominion of Canada, upon the terms and conditions set forth in the hereinbefore recited addresses.

5. The 12th term and condition contained in the said address is:—

'12. That the population of Prince Edward Island having been increased by 15,000 or upwards since the year 1861, the island shall be represented in the House of Commons of Canada by six members, the representation to be readjusted from time to time under the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867.'

The fourteenth term and condition contained therein is:—

'14. That the provisions in the "British North America Act, 1867," shall, except those parts thereof which are in terms made, or by reasonable intention may be held, to be specially applicable to, and only to affect one and not the whole of the provinces now composing the Dominion, and except so far as the same may be varied by these resolutions, be applicable to Prince Edward Island, in the same way and to the extent as they apply to the other provinces of the Dominion, and as if the colony of Prince Edward Island had been one of the provinces originally united by the said Act.'

6. Sections 51 and 52 of the British North America Act, 1867, provide:—

'51. On the completion of the census in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one, and of each subsequent decennial census, the representation of the four provinces shall be readjusted by such authority, in such manner, and from such time as the parliament of Canada from time to time provides, subject and according to the following rules:—

1. (1) Quebec shall have the fixed number of sixty-five members;

   (2) There shall be assigned to each of the other provinces such a number of members as will bear the same proportion to the number of its population (ascertained at such census) as the number sixty-five bears to the number of the population of Quebec (so ascertained);

   (3) In the computation of the number of members for a province a fractional part not exceeding one-half of the whole number requisite for entitling the province to a member shall be disregarded; but a fractional part exceeding one-half of that number shall be equivalent to the whole number;

   (4) On any such readjustment the number of members for a province shall not be reduced unless the proportion which the number of the population of the province bore to the number of the aggregate population of Canada at the then last preceding census, of members for the province is ascertained at the then latest census, to be diminished by one-twentieth part or upwards;

   (5) Such readjustment shall not take effect until the termination of the then existing parliament.

52. The number of members of the House of Commons may be from time to time increased by the parliament of Canada, provided the proportionate representation of the provinces prescribed by this Act is not thereby disturbed.

7. The census which was taken in the year 1881, showed the population of Canada to be 4,324,810, and the population of Prince Edward Island to be 108,591.

8. The pending appeal of the Attorney-General of New Brunswick against the Attorney-General of Canada, on the subject of the representation of that province, raises cognate questions on the construction of the British North America Act, and is, it is understood, to be argued at the same time as this appeal. For brevity, the respondent craves leave to refer to without repeating the facts and figures as to populations set out in his case on that appeal, of which case he deposits and supplies copies.

9. The number of members bearing the same proportion to the number of the population of the province of Prince Edward Island (ascertained at the census of 1891, being the first on which a readjustment could be made) as the number 65 bears to the number of the population so ascertained of the Province of Quebec, and subject to the provisions contained in sub-section 3 of section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, is five.

10. The proportion which the said number of the population of the Province of Prince Edward Island bore to the aggregate population of Canada was less by more than one-twentieth of the proportion which the population of the province bore to the aggregate population of Canada at the census of 1881, and consequently the provision contained in sub-section 4 of section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, did not operate to prevent the reduction of the number of members for the province in accordance with the provisions in sub-sections 2 and 3 of the same section.

11. After the completion of the census which was taken in 1891, namely in 1895, an Act of Canada was passed (c. 11 of 55 and 56 Vic.), to provide (inter alia) for such readjustment of the representation in the House of Commons as was required by section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867.

This Act, in its preamble, recites (inter alia) that by the census of 1891, and in accordance with the British North America Act, 1867, and certain other Acts of the Parliament of the United Kingdom and of the Parliament of Canada, the province of Prince Edward Island was by its then population entitled to five members in the House of Commons, and by section 1 enacts (inter alia) that the House of Commons should consist of 213 members, of whom five should be elected for Prince Edward Island.

12. The number of members bearing the same proportion to the number ascertained by the census of 1901 of the population of the province of Prince Edward as the number 65 bears to the number so ascertained of the population of the province of Quebec, and subject to the provisions contained in sub-section 3 of section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, is four.

13. The proportion which the said number of the population of the province of Prince Edward Island bore to the 'aggregate population of Canada,' whether that population consisted of the seven provinces or of the seven provinces and the territories, was less by more than one-twentieth of the proportion which the population of the province bore to the aggregate population of Canada at the last preceding readjustment of the number of members for the province, and consequently the provision contained in sub-section 4 of section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, did not operate to prevent the reduction of the number of members for the province in accordance with the provisions in sub-section 2 and 3, of the same section.

14. After the completion of the census of 1901 and in 1903 a Bill was introduced into the parliament of Canada to provide for such readjustment of the representation in the House of Commons as was necessary, pursuant to the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867, and the other statutes in that behalf. This Bill, since the date of the judgment under appeal, has become law, having received the Royal Assent on the 24th October, 1903, and being 3 Edward VII., chapter 60, intituled 'An Act to readjust the representation in the House of Commons.'

Section 2 of the Act enacts that the House of Commons shall consist of 214 mem-of whom four shall be elected for Prince Edward Island.

15. The hearing or consideration of the question referred by the Governor-General to the Supreme Court of Canada took place on June 2nd, 1903, before Taschereau, C.J., and Sedgewick, Girouard, Davies and Nesbitt, JJ.

16. On the 8th June, 1903, the Supreme Court unanimously answered the question in the affirmative.

17. The reasons for the answer of the Court to the question referred appear in the opinion given by Taschereau, C. J., which was concurred in by Sedgewick, Girouard, Davies, and Nesbitt, JJ., to the effect that as by the Federal census of 1901 the population of Prince Edward Island, divided by the unit of representation ascertained by dividing the number 65 into the population of Quebec, is not sufficient to give six memers of the House of Commons to that province, the representation of that provence must be readjusted proportionately to population as provided for by section 51 of the British North America Act.

The respondent submits that the said answer is right, and should be affirmed for the following (amongst other)

REASONS.

(1) Because under the terms of the British North America Act, 1867, the Order in Council admitting the province of Prince Edward Island into the union is (so far as it was within the powers vested in the Queen in Council by the British North America Act, 1867, and subject to the provisions of that Act), a statute, and must be construed as such; and, therefore, Prince Edward Island was by force of the said order in council introduced into Section 37 of the British North America Act, 1867, with a representation of six members, subject to be increased or reduced under the like conditions in all respects as provided by section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, with regard to Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

(2) Because the wording and effect of this statutory Order in Council is clear, and it is inadmissible to import into it words for the purpose of amplifying its meaning, or to look elsewhere for materials such as are suggested by the appellants in order to contradict or vary its plain meaning.

(3) Because it is the manifest object and intent of the British North America Acts to provide a system of representation by population, and the federal parliament representing Canada has rightly applied this principle to every province, and made the readjustments and reductions in representation necessitated thereby.

(4) Because the 12th article of the terms of union of the province of Prince Edward Island provides that the representation of the island shall be readjusted from time to time under the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867, and this can only be done under the provisions of section 51 of that Act. The operation of that section is in no way limited by the 12th article of the terms of union, and the section must be applied in its integrity.

(5) Because the readjustment of representation provided for by section 51 expressly and necessarily contemplates the possibility of reduction in the number of representative members.

(6) Because the suggested contingency of the island being left without representation in the federal parliament was at the time of the union, and still is, too far-fetched and remote to affect the plain meaning of the words.

(7) Because a remedy in case of any such result exists under section 52 of the British North America Act, 1867, through an increase in the members of the House of Commons.

(8) Because it could not have been the intention of the negotiators of the terms of the union that the island should forever possess a representation which might be, as it has turned out to be, steadily increasing in its disproportion.

(9) For the reasons appearing in the judgment or opinion of the Supreme Court.

Edward Blake.
E. L. Newcombe.
Frank Russell.

IN THE PRIVY COUNCIL.—ON APPEAL FROM THE SUPREME COURT OF CANADA.

Between

THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL FOR THE PROVINCE OF NEW BRUNSWICK, Appellant.

and

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL FOR THE DOMINION OF CANADA,

Respondent.

In the matter of a certain question referred to the Supreme Court of Canada by His Excellency the Governor General, in pursuance of an Order in Council approved by His Excellency on the 17th day of April, 1903.

Subject: Representation of the province of New Brunswick in the House of Commons of Canada.

CASE OF THE RESPONDENT.

1. This is an appeal by special leave from a judgment or decision of the Supreme Court of Canada, dated the 29th day of April, 1903, certifying to the Governor in Council the opinion of the court upon a question referred to it by him for hearing or consideration by an Order in Council dated 17th April, 1903, pursuant to the authority of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act (1875), and revised statutes of Canada, cap. 135, as amended by the Act 54 and 55 Victoria (1891, Canada), chapter 25.

2. In accordance with the provisions of the said amending Act, notice of the hearing on the reference of the said question was duly given to all the provinces of the Dominion and to the North-west Territories. At such hearing in addition to the counsel representing the appellant and the respondent, counsel also appeared and were heard on behalf of the province of Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario.

3. The question referred by the said Order in Council of the 17th April, 1903, was as follows—

"In determining the number of representatives in the House of Commons, to which Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are respectively entitled after each decennial census, should the words "aggregate population of Canada" in subsection 4 of section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, be construed as meaning the population of the four original provinces of Canada, or as meaning the whole population of Canada, including that of provinces which had been admitted to the confederation subsequent to the passage of the British North America Act?"

4. The British North America Act, 1867, which provided for the union into one Dominion under the name of Canada of the provinces of Canada (thereby divided into the provinces of Ontario and Quebec), Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, contains the following provisions:

Section 37. 'The House of Commons shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, consist of one hundred and eighty-one members, of whom eighty-two shall be elected for Ontario, sixty-five for Quebec, nineteen for Nova Scotia, and fifteen for New Brunswick.'

Section 51. 'On the completion of the census in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one, and of each subsequent decennial census, the representation of the four provinces shall be readjusted by such authority in such manner, and from such time, as the parliament of Canada, from time to time provides, subject and according to the following rules:—

(1) Quebec shall have the fixed number of sixty-five members;

(2) There shall be assigned to each of the other provinces such a number of members as will bear the proportion to the number of its population (ascertained at such census) as the number sixty-five bears to the number of the population of Quebec (so ascertained);

(3) In the computation of the number of members for a province, a fractional part, not exceeding one half of the whole number requisite for entitling the province to a member shall be disregarded; but a fractional part exceeding one-half of that number shall be equivalent to the whole number;

(4) On any such readjustment the number of members for a province shall not be reduced unless the proportion which the number of the population of the province bore to the number of the aggregate population of Canada at the then last preceding readjustment of the members for the province is ascertained at the then latest census to be diminished by one-twentieth part or upwards;

(5) Such readjustment shall not take effect until the termination of the then existing parliament.'

Section 52. 'The number of members of the House of Commons may be from time to time increased by the parliament of Canada, provided the proportionate representation of the provinces prescribed by this Act is not thereby disturbed.'

Section 140. 'It shall be lawful for the Queen, by and with the advice of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, on addresses from the Houses of Parliament of Canada, and from the Houses of the respective legislatures of the colonies or provinces of Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia, to admit those colonies or provinces, or any of them, into the Union; and on address from the Houses of Parliament of Canada to admit Rupert's Land and the North-Western Territory, or either of them, into the Union, on such terms and conditions in each case as are in the addresses expressed and as the Queen thinks fit to approve, subject to the provisions of this Act; and the provisions of any Order in Council in that behalf shall have effect as if they had been enacted by the parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.'
REPENTATION OF PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

By the Act of Canada, 1870, 33 Victoria, chapter 3, passed in anticipation of and preparation for the admission of Rupert's Land and the North-West Territories, which Act was, after such admission, confirmed by the Act of the imperial parliament (1871), 34 and 35 Victoria, chapter 28, called 'The British North America Act, 1871,' there was formed out of Rupert's Land and the North-West Territories a province to be one of the provinces of the Dominion of Canada, and to be called the province of Manitoba.

6. In pursuance of the powers vested in Her by the British North America Act, 1867, the late Queen, by Orders in Council made as to Rupert's Land and the North-West Territories, on 23rd June, 1870, as to British Columbia on 16th May, 1871, and as to Prince Edward Island on 23rd June, 1873, ordered and declared that from and after the dates therein respectively mentioned, Rupert's Land and the North-West Territories and the colonies of British Columbia and Prince Edward Island respectively, should be admitted into and become part of the Dominion of Canada, upon the terms and conditions therein expressed or referred to.

7. By Act of the imperial parliament passed in 1886, chapter 35, called the British North America Act, 1886, powers were given to the parliament of Canada to make provision for the representation in the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, of territories forming part of the Dominion of Canada but not included in any province thereof. And it was enacted that the said Act and the British North America Acts, 1867 and 1871, should be construed together and might be cited together as the British North America Acts, 1867 to 1886.

8. The Act of Canada (1892), 55 and 56 Victoria, chapter 11, intituled, 'An Act to readjust the representation in the House of Commons,' recited in the preamble that by the census in 1891, and in accordance with the British North America Act, 1867, and certain other Acts of the parliament of the United Kingdom and of the parliament of Canada, the province of Nova Scotia was by its then population entitled to twenty members in the House of Commons and the province of New Brunswick to fourteen members, and section 1 enacted that the House of Commons should consist of two hundred and thirteen members, of whom ninety-two (the same number as in the then sitting parliament) should be elected for Ontario, twenty for Nova Scotia, and fourteen for New Brunswick.

9. The populations according to the censuses of 1891 and 1901 were respectively as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Province</th>
<th>1891</th>
<th>1901</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ontario</td>
<td>2,114,321</td>
<td>2,152,947</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Quebec</td>
<td>1,386,555</td>
<td>1,648,898</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nova Scotia</td>
<td>450,396</td>
<td>459,574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>New Brunswick</td>
<td>321,263</td>
<td>331,120</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manitoba</td>
<td>152,506</td>
<td>255,211</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British Columbia</td>
<td>98,155</td>
<td>178,657</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P. E. Island</td>
<td>109,078</td>
<td>103,259</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Canada (the seven provinces)</td>
<td>4,734,272</td>
<td>5,139,666</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The territories</td>
<td>98,367</td>
<td>211,649</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Canada (the Dominion)</td>
<td>4,833,239</td>
<td>5,371,315</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

10. The number of members bearing the same proportion to the number ascertained at the census of 1901 of the population of the province of New Brunswick as the number sixty-five bears to the number of the population so ascertained of the province of Quebec, and subject to the provision contained in sub-section (3) of section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, is thirteen.

11. Whether subsection (4) of section 51 of the said Act operates to prevent the reduction of the number of members for the province in accordance with the provisions of subsections (2) and (3) of the same section depends upon the answer to the question the subject of the reference.

12. Assuming, as decided by the Supreme Court in the judgment under appeal, that the words 'aggregate population of Canada,' in subsection (4), mean, as applied to the relevant conditions, the whole population of the Dominion of Canada, including that of the provinces which have been admitted to the confederation, and the territories which have been embraced in the Dominion subsequent to the passage of the British North America Act, 1867, then comparing the population of New Brunswick in 1891 and 1901 respectively, with that of the Dominion of Canada in these years, the proportion in 1891 is expressed by

\[
\text{the fraction} \quad \frac{321,263}{4,833,239} \quad 0.0664
\]

and the proportion in 1901 by the fraction \( \frac{331,120}{5,371,315} \) \( 0.0616 \)

The proportion is, therefore, diminished by \( 0.0048 \) which is more than one-twentieth of \( 0.0664 \).

On this hypothesis, therefore, subsection (4) will not avail to save the province from a reduction in the number of its members.

13. Assuming that the words 'aggregate population of Canada' in subsection (4) mean as applied to the relevant conditions the population of the provinces of Canada, including that of provinces which have been admitted to the confederation, but excluding that of the territories which have been embraced in the Dominion subsequent to the passage of the British North America Act, 1867; then comparing the population of New Brunswick in 1891 and 1901 respectively, with that of the seven provinces of Canada in these years, the proportion in 1891 is expressed by

\[
\text{the fraction} \quad \frac{321,263}{4,734,272} \quad 0.06759
\]

and the proportion in 1901 by the fraction \( \frac{331,120}{5,159,666} \) \( 0.064174 \)

The proportion is, therefore, diminished by \( 0.00345 \) which is more than one-twentieth of \( 0.06759 \).

On this second hypothesis, therefore, subsection (4) will not avail to save the province from a reduction in the number of its members.

14. But assuming that the words 'aggregate population of Canada,' in subsection (4), mean as applied to the relevant conditions, the population of the four original provinces of Canada, then the figures corresponding to those given above would be:

The proportion in 1891 \( 321,263 \) \( 0.0734 \)

\[
\text{And in 1901} \quad 331,120 \quad 0.0716
\]

A diminution of \( 0.0016 \) which is less than one-twentieth of \( 0.0734 \).

On this last hypothesis, therefore, subsection (4) would apply and save the province from a reduction of its members under the provisions of subsections (2) and (3).

15. The numbers of members bearing the same proportion to the numbers ascertained at the census of 1901 of the population of the provinces of Ontario and Nova Scotia respectively as the number 65 bears to the number of the population so ascertained of the province of Quebec, and subject to the provision contained in subsection
(3) of the section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, are 86 and 18 respectively.

16. Whether subsection (4) of section 51 of the said Act operates to prevent the reduction of the number of members for the provinces of Ontario and Nova Scotia respectively depends as in the case of the province of New Brunswick upon the construction to be placed upon the words 'aggregate population of Canada' occurring in that subsection. And the same results would follow as in New Brunswick from the adoption of any one of these constructions.

17. After the completion of the census of 1901 and in 1903, a Bill was introduced into the parliament of Canada to provide for such readjustment of the representation in the House of Commons as was necessary pursuant to the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867, and the other statutes in that behalf. This Bill since the date of the judgment now appealed from has become law, having received the Royal Assent on the 24th of October, 1903, and being 3 Edward VII., chapter 60, intituled 'An Act to readjust the representation in the House of Commons.'

Section 2 of the Act enacts that the House of Commons shall consist of 214 members, of whom eighty-six shall be elected for Ontario, eighteen for Nova Scotia and thirteen for New Brunswick.

18. The hearing or consideration of the question referred by the Governor General to the Supreme Court of Canada took place on the 20th, 21st and 22nd days of April, 1903, before Taschereau, C.J., and Sedgwick, Girouard, Davies, Mills and Armour, J.J.

19. On the 29th April, 1903, the Supreme Court delivered their opinion that the words 'aggregate population of Canada' in subsection (4) of section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, should be construed as meaning the whole population of Canada, including that of provinces which have been admitted to the confederation subsequent to the passage of the British North America Act.

20. The reasons for the opinion appear in the opinion delivered by Mills, J., which was concurred in by Taschereau, C.J., and Sedgwick and Armour, J.J., and the separate opinions delivered by Girouard, J., and Davies, J. Some expressions in the reasons may create a doubt as to whether the words are being construed as meaning the seven provinces or the whole Dominion, including the territories.

The respondent submits that the judgment or opinion of the Supreme Court of Canada is right and should be affirmed for the following (amongst other)

REASONS.

1. Because it is the manifest object and intent of the British North America Acts to make provision for a system of representation according to population, and the Acts can and should receive a construction effectuating such intent.

2. Because under the powers and provisions granted and reserved in and by the British North America Acts and Acts of the parliament of Canada, and in view of the subsequent admission thereunder of the additional provinces of Manitoba, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, the 'four provinces' mentioned in section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, must now be read and construed as meaning the 'seven provinces' actually comprised in the Dominion.

3. Because the word 'Canada,' as used in subsection (4), must now be read and construed as comprising the area of the Dominion, and at any rate the existing seven provinces of Canada.

4. For the reasons appearing in the judgment or opinion of the Supreme Court.

Edward Blake.
E. L. Newcombe.
Frank Russell.
RETURN

(142)

To an order of the House of Commons, dated March 17, 1904, for copies of the Commission appointing Mr. Justice Britten and other Commissioners to inquire into the Treadgold and other Concessions in the Yukon Territory; and of all the evidence, exhibits, papers and documents produced at the investigation held by the said Commissioners, and of any report or reports made by the said Commissioners.

Toronto, July 28, 1904.

To the Honourable
Richard W. Scott, K.C., LL.D.,
Secretary of State,
Ottawa.

In the matter of the Yukon inquiry, I have the honour to submit my report.

The undersigned Commissioner, and Benjamin Taylor A. Bell, were appointed by letters patent under the Great Seal, dated 30th day of July, 1903, to inquire into and report upon certain matters and things more particularly mentioned and set out in certain Orders in Council, bearing date respectively the 29th day of May, and the 30th day of July, 1903.

These Orders in Council state:
1. That for several years placer gold mining has been successfully carried on in the Yukon Territory, particularly in the district traversed by the Klondike river, and rivers, streams and creeks tributary thereto.
2. That only such claims as enjoyed water facilities have heretofore been profitably worked.
3. That gold is supposed to be distributed in the benches, banks and other elevated grounds along such rivers, streams and creeks.
4. That owing to the expense and difficulty involved in procuring the necessary supply of water, the successful prosecution of the industry throughout these last named localities has been seriously retarded, and in many cases made impossible.
5. That it has been represented to the government, that great expense is required, to be incurred, to collect, store, and distribute the water of the said rivers and streams, so that the same may be utilized in working the said benches, banks, and elevated grounds.
6. That it has also been represented to the government that, the extent and value of the deposits of gold in the said benches, creeks and elevated grounds is at present unknown and must remain so, until a sufficient supply of water is available by the construction of hydraulic works, and that the parties advancing money for the construction of said works, must necessarily take great risks with respect to their investments.
7. That, while it is fitting that such reasonable and proper privileges and advantages should be offered as will induce parties to construct such hydraulic works, yet it is essential——

142—1
(a.) That no grants or concessions should be made which will interfere with the right of water, to which, any free miner is entitled under the regulations governing placer mining in the Yukon Territory;

(b.) That the water so to be held, and controlled by the hydraulic companies should be available on equal terms to all free miners whose claims can be profitably worked thereby and subject to such reasonable rates and conditions to be fixed by the Governor in Council, as shall secure the greatest possible benefit to the district in which the works are established.

S. That to obtain such hydraulic works and a supply of water for the benches, banks and elevated grounds above mentioned, certain powers, rights and privileges were granted by the Governor in Council on the 21st April, 1902, to Malcolm H. Orr Ewing, A. N. C. Treadgold and Walter Barwick;

9. That it has been alleged that the said grant and concession constitute a monopoly which, while depriving the treasury of enormous revenues, is most detrimental to the mining industry of the Yukon.

10. That it has been alleged that the hydraulic claims, granted in pursuance of the regulations for the granting of hydraulic claims in the Yukon Territory, have been procured by fraud and misrepresentation, and that the material conditions of the leases, have not been observed, thereby rendering the same liable to cancellation.

11. That it is important in the public interest, that inquiry be made for the purpose of obtaining information, showing to what extent the said grant and concession to Malcolm H. Orr Ewing, A. N. C. Treadgold and Walter Barwick, is likely to be beneficial, or injurious to the mining interests of the said Yukon Territory.

12. That the Commissioners should have full power and authority to inquire into the allegations, that these hydraulic claims, granted in pursuance of the regulations in the Yukon Territory were procured by fraud and misrepresentation and that the material conditions of the leases have not been observed, and to report their conclusions from the result of such inquiry.

His Excellency, as stated in the Commission, thought it desirable that the Commissioners making the inquiry should investigate generally, all facts and circumstances which might afford information to the government and to the parliament of Canada respecting the hydraulic or other means, which it is desirable should be adopted to successfully develop benches, banks and other elevated grounds, which can only be worked at great disadvantage under natural conditions, or are not able to be profitably worked at all, without an artificial supply of water.

NARRATIVE.

The Commissioners proceeded to the Yukon Territory and there made such inquiry as they could, and with such result as will appear in this report.

While in the Yukon Territory it was thought by the Commissioners that it might be of advantage, especially upon the general question of water supply, to have the evidence of competent engineers or others, not resident in that territory.

A doubt was entertained as to the power of the Commissioners to take evidence elsewhere than in the Yukon Territory, and on the 30th day of January, 1904, an Order in Council was passed authorizing the Commissioners or either of them to continue the inquiry at Ottawa or elsewhere in Canada.

On the 18th February, 1904, Mr. Bell, by an accidental fall, received injuries which proved fatal. He died at Ottawa on 1st March following. His death was reported by me, and the 18th day of April, 1904, a commission under the Great Seal, issued authorizing me as sole commissioner, to continue and complete the said inquiry, directing me to report to the Honourable the Secretary of State, the result of the investigation, together with the evidence taken before me and any opinion I might see fit to express thereon.
TREADGOLD CONCESSIONS

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 142

The joint secretaries of the Commission were H. H. Rowatt, 1st class clerk in the Department of the Interior, and G. A. Lacombe, M.L.A., St. Mary's Division, Montreal.

John Agnew, of the city of Toronto, court stenographer and reporter, was appointed as our stenographer for this work.

We left Ottawa for Dawson on the 31st day of July, 1903, and arrived at Dawson on the 13th day of August.

Prior to our arrival at Dawson, the following notice had been inserted and appeared for several successive days in the Yukon Sun, a daily paper published at Dawson:

'PUBLIC NOTICE.

'Notice is hereby given that the Honourable Mr. Justice Britton and Mr. B. T. A. Bell, commissioners appointed to hold an investigation in regard to certain concessions granted to various persons within the Yukon Territory, will begin such investigations at Dawson on or about the 14th day of August instant. More specific notice of the exact time and place of the sittings of the Commissioners will be given later.

'All persons desiring to appear before the Commissioners and present any facts for their consideration, are requested to govern themselves accordingly.

'Dated at Dawson this first day of August, A.D., 1903.

'By order of the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory.

'(Sgd.) C. B. Burns, 'Secretary.'

The Commissioners carefully considered and determined what the full scope of the inquiry under the Commission would be, and embodied the result in a notice which was inserted in each of the three daily papers, published at Dawson, viz., the Yukon Sun, The Record and the Evening News.

The notice was as follows:

'Public notice is hereby given that the Honourable Byron Moffatt Britton and Benjamin Taylor A. Bell, Commissioners appointed under the Great Seal of Canada, are now in Dawson ready to proceed with the inquiry thereunder.

'The matters to be inquired into are:

'(1) To what extent is the concession to Malcolm H. Orr Ewing, A. N. C. Treadgold and Walter Barwick, commonly called the "Treadgold Concession," likely to be beneficial or injurious to the mining interests of the Yukon Territory?

'(2) Are the hydraulic concessions, granted under the regulations in that behalf, in the Yukon Territory likely to be beneficial or injurious to the mining interests in the Yukon Territory?

'(3) Were any of the hydraulic concessions, granted under the regulations in that behalf in the Yukon Territory, obtained by fraud or misrepresentation on behalf of the applicant?

'(4) Have any of the holders of these hydraulic concessions, granted under the regulations in that behalf, failed to comply with the requirements of the leases of such concessions?

'(5) What hydraulic or other means is it desirable to adopt to successfully develop benches, banks and other elevated grounds, which can only be worked under great disadvantage, under natural conditions, or are not able to be properly worked at all without an artificial supply of water.

'All persons having complaints to make within the scope of the Commission, or having information in their possession, material to be known, and which will assist the Commissioners in their investigation, are requested to furnish particulars, in writing, to the undersigned as soon as possible, to enable the Commissioners to arrange time and place, and whatever may be necessary for the production of evidence.

142—1½
TREADGOLD CONCESSIONS

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

'Take notice that the inquiry will be public, and the first meeting of the Commissioners will be held in the south room of the Court House, Dawson, on Monday, the 17th day of August, 1903, at 10 o'clock a.m.

'H. H. ROWATT,
'G. A. LACOMBE.
'Secretaries to Commission.

'Dated at Dawson this 14th day of August, 1903.

Pursuant to notice, the first public meeting was held at the Court House, Dawson, when the Commission, the Orders in Council and the notices were publicly read, and the oath was, by Judge Dugas, administered to John Agnew as stenographer and reporter.

It was represented that the board of trade at Dawson had retained Messrs. Woodworth and Walsh, barristers of that city, as counsel, and these gentlemen stated that they would be prepared to introduce evidence upon some, if not all, of the matters mentioned. Many others present appeared, respectively, for and against certain concessions. After an open conversation with counsel and others, and after hearing all that any person present had to say as to the matters to be investigated, and as to the procedure, the Commissioners decided to limit the time within which any person could enter a specific complaint against any lease-holder on the ground of such lease having been obtained by fraud or misrepresentation, or on the ground that such lease-holder had failed to comply with the requirements or conditions of his lease. Monday, the 24th August, was named. This was publicly announced on Tuesday, the 18th August, and the following notice was published:

'PUBLIC NOTICE.

'Public notice is hereby given that any person, or persons, who has or have any complaint or objection, that any of the hydraulic concessions, granted under the regulations in that behalf, in the Yukon Territory, was or were obtained by fraud or misrepresentation, or that any of the holders of such concessions has or have failed to comply with the requirements of the leases of such concessions, must give notice of such complaint or objection to the undersigned, or formally state the same to the Commissioners in open session on or before the 24th day of August instant.

'The notice must name the concession and give particulars of the complaint.

'This notice does not stay proceedings as to cases already before the Commissioners or that may prior to the 24th instant be brought before them, but the 24th instant is the limit within which complaint must be made.

'Any required information as to procedure may be obtained from the undersigned.

'The Commission will continue to meet in the south room of the Court House, Dawson, each day during the present week at 10 a.m., when evidence may be given upon matters which are within the scope of the inquiry.

'H. H. ROWATT,
'G. A. LACOMBE,
'Secretaries to Commission.

'Dated at Dawson this 18th day of August, 1903.'

Public meetings for the taking of evidence and for the work of the Commission were held at Dawson, August 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, 22nd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th and 31st, and September 1st, 2nd, 7th and 8th; at Grand Forks, on 3rd September; and at Gold Bottom on 5th September.

On some of these days we had three sessions, holding an evening, as well as morning and afternoon session.

There were examined 154 witnesses, many of whom were from time to time recalled upon different matters.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 142

TREADGOLD CONCESSIONS

Two hundred and sixty-seven exhibits were filed. Many original documents were produced in evidence, and in all cases where these originals were not left, copies of same were filed and will accompany this report.

Formal protests were submitted against the Treadgold Order in Council by: The Dawson Board of Trade, Messrs. W. A. Walsh and C. M. Woodworth, acting as their counsel; Dr. Catto, Charles Blunden and Graham Campbell.

These will be found with the papers returned.

Since my appointment as sole Commissioner, I have not had witnesses called to give expert testimony upon the question of water supply in the Yukon Territory.

This would have involved a considerable further delay, and a large amount of additional expense, upon problems that cannot be satisfactorily solved—in that way, but which must be dealt with by engineers having knowledge of the territory, of its rivers and creeks, its topography, its climatic and other conditions. Having completed what was begun at Dawson, and obtained statements promised by witnesses called and sworn at Dawson, I thought it unnecessary to do more, and decided to close the Commission with the evidence already in, except with regard to the evidence of the ex-assistant Gold Commissioner, which will be mentioned later.

Before dealing with the subject matter of the Commission and the evidence, I desire to make a remark or two by way of explanation as to procedure. There was unquestionably a very strong feeling at Dawson and up the creeks, of opposition to not only the Treadgold, but to all concessions. The opposition was so pronounced and demonstrative as to render a calm and impartial inquiry or discussion of the subject somewhat difficult. The witnesses heard by the Commission were in the main those who voluntarily appeared or who were summoned at the request of the Dawson Board of Trade.

The government did not employ counsel.

The legal adviser of the Yukon administration took no part in the investigation.

The counsel who did appear were able men. They represented on the one side, an agitated and excited people who had formed opinions hostile to the concessions long before the Commission issued; and on the other side the concessionaries, who were very thoroughly disliked by their opponents.

Then, the season was very dry, and there was comparatively little work at mining by individual miners, and so, a great many hostile miners thronged the court room and corridors during the sittings. It required considerable moral courage for any miner voluntarily to give evidence against the expressed opinion of the hostile majority in the court room.

The result of this state of things was, that when Mr. Bell or myself suggested, or ruled that a statement was improper or irrelevant or immaterial, or when a question was asked by either that appeared to be like cross-examination, it was treated by some of those present as an unfair interference on the part of the Commissioners.

Absence of counsel having general direction of the inquiry also, in part, explains why the evidence in reference to any one matter is not consecutive and continued to its conclusion. We were obliged to take evidence as we could get it or the work would have been much prolonged, and so it appears in some cases in instalments. Particular portions of evidence given by certain witnesses and discussions at the sittings can hardly be understood without knowing all that was said at different times, by, and to these persons.

WATER.

It is made abundantly clear by the evidence:

1. That in the Yukon Territory only such claims as enjoyed water facilities have heretofore been properly worked.

2. That wherever else gold may be found in that Territory, it is there actually distributed in the banks, benches and elevated grounds.
3. That owing to the difficulty in procuring the necessary supply of water, successful mining has been 'seriously retarded and in many cases made impossible.'

4. That great expense will require to be incurred to collect, store and distribute water so that it may be used for benches, banks and elevated grounds, and

5. That the extent and value of the deposits of gold in these benches, banks and elevated grounds must remain unknown until water is made available by the construction of hydraulic works, and that parties making advances for the construction of such works must necessarily take great risks with respect to their investments.

A plentiful supply of water, distributed for use in washing gold from gravel and dirt, on such terms as miners, whether working individually or in or for companies, is the great need of the Yukon Territory. It was emphatically declared by witnesses, and conceded by counsel in argument against the concessions, that what is urgently needed is such a supply of water and so distributed that it will reach, not only the scantily supplied creeks, but also the benches and hill sides.

For the purpose of dispensing with further evidence upon a matter so clear, it was, with the approval of all present, formally noted at one of the meetings, that it could be considered as established, that there is a very large amount of gold in the district comprising the beds, banks, valleys, slopes and hills of the Klondike river, of Bonanza, Bear and Hunker creeks and their tributaries, and in other places in the vicinity of Dawson, and of the places particularly named, and that there is a great scarcity of water available for mining purposes in the district and places named.

In many places in the district the rich pay streaks have been worked out, that is, they have been worked as far as they can be worked to profit by former methods. Now if water can be supplied in sufficient quantity, and at low enough price, it will pay to work them over again, just as it will pay under similar conditions as to water to work gravel, which was at first regarded as containing no pay, or too low grade to work profitably. The future of the Klondike section of the Yukon Territory depends not so much upon rich finds by a few, as working large quantities of gravel by individuals, and by companies, big and small, in all the methods of sluicing, and what is generally called hydrauliking. The need for water is emphasized by many witnesses. I must not lengthen the report by quoting, except from Geo. White-Fraser, one of the chief witnesses against concessions. He said (page 39): 'I think every successive witness will show, if I have not, that there is not sufficient water to successfully and profitably work these benches, lying in some cases 300 feet high.' Again (page 82), in speaking of getting gold on the Bonanza, Bear and Hunker creeks, he said: 'Water is an absolute necessity in this country. It will close the country up, if they cannot get water.'

To remedy such a state of things as White-Fraser, and others describe, there was an inviting field for a man of enterprise, who had a knowledge of the country and could command capital. Mr. Treadgold stated that he had made a study of the country's needs. He was apparently a man of means, and he was the owner of mining claims in the district in need of water. So far as I remember the evidence, there is not a word criticizing the mode of Mr. Treadgold in procuring claims, or against his reputation or character apart from the concession in question. Mr. Treadgold disclaimed philanthropic motives, and asserted that his project was good business for the miners and the country, as well as for the grantees. He and his colleagues had obtained in their favour a former Order in Council which for some reason was cancelled. The only Order in Council for my consideration is the one dated 21st April, 1902, and which is as follows:

Extract from a Report of the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency on the 21st April, 1902.

On a memorandum dated 17th April, 1902, from the Minister of the Interior recommending, in virtue of clause 47 of the Dominion Lands Act as enacted by section 5, chapter 15, of the Act 55-56 Victoria, and of section 8 of the Yukon Territory Act as that section was enacted by section 2 of chapter 11 of 62-63 Victoria, that Messrs. Malcolm H. Orr Ewing, of Malvern, England; A. N. C. Treadgold, of London, England, and Walter Barwick, of Toronto, Ontario, be granted the following rights, powers and privileges:—

1. The sole right to divert and take water from the Klondike river at any point or points between its entry into the Yukon river and Flat creek, for the purpose of generating power with which to pump water to work the auriferous deposits in the district (hereinafter termed ‘the district’) comprising the beds, banks, valleys, slopes and hills of the Klondike river, of Bonanza, Bear and Hunker creeks and of their tributaries.

Provided that if the right given by this section is not exercised within six years from the date hereof it may be revoked by order of the Governor General in Council.

Provided that if any power is developed and rendered available by the grantees under this section, which they do not make use of, then the same shall be offered for sale to the public, and the rates to be charged therefor shall be subject to the control of the Governor General in Council.

Provided that licensed holders of mining locations situated on the Klondike river shall be entitled as against the grantees to the use of a flow of water sufficient for working their claims, but not exceeding in all three thousand five hundred (3,500) miner's inches, equal to five thousand two hundred and fifty (5,250) cubic feet per minute.

Provided further that in the event of the grantees interfering with the flow of the Klondike river by the erection of dams or other obstructions or by diversion of its water to such an extent as to prevent the passage of saw-logs or other timber down the stream, then the grantees shall, for holders of timber berths under license from the Dominion government, provide slides and facilities free of charge for the transmission of such logs and timber over such dams and obstructions and over the portion of the river affected by such diversion of water.

2. The prior right to divert and take water from the Klondike river for distribution and use in the district up to five thousand miner's inches.

3. The right to divert and use the water of Rock creek, subject to any grants lawfully subsisting and subject to the right of free miners' bona fide working claims on Rock creek to the use of the water which they are entitled to under the Regulations now in force respecting the diversion of water in the Yukon Territory.

4. The right at any point or points in the bed, banks, valleys, slopes and hills of the Klondike river, between its mouth and Flat creek, and of any creeks and tributaries within the district to construct and maintain dams, cribs, intakes, flumes, and any other works necessary for the generation of power as well as for the diversion, distribution and use of water and the right of entry upon and way through any lands and any mining ground, for the purpose of such construction and maintenance.

Provided, that the grantees shall place in a separate dump, for the use of the owners of any mining ground entered upon by them, in the exercise of this right, all gravel which they may be obliged to move in such mining ground, in consequence of the exercise of such right.

5. The right to purchase any Crown Lands required by the grantees for the purposes of their works at a price not exceeding ten dollars per acre, saving and reserving all the timber, mines and minerals upon or under such lands.

6. The right at any point or points in the district to build, maintain and operate pumping stations, electrical works and reservoirs.

7. The right of entry upon and way through any lands and any mining ground for the purpose of constructing, laying and maintaining dams, reservoirs, flumes, ditches and pipe lines, for conveying the grantees' water supply to any point within the district.

Provided, that the grantees shall place in a separate dump for the use of the owners of any mining ground entered up by them in the exercise of this right all gravel which they may be obliged to move in such mining ground, in consequence of the exercise of such right.
8. The right of entry upon and way through any lands and any mining ground within the district and within the Indian river district for the purpose of constructing and maintaining overhead or underground wires and any other structures for the transmission of electricity, for any purpose whatever, throughout the said districts and the right to levy and collect such tolls as may be approved by the Governor-General in Council, for the use of electricity in the said districts.

Provided, that the grantees shall place in a separate dump for the use of the owners of any mining ground entered upon by them in the exercise of this right, all gravel which they may be obliged to move in such mining ground in consequence of the exercise of such right.

9. The right, subject to the regulations hereinafter contained to use, distribute and dispose of, by sale or otherwise the water delivered by the grantees within the district. No water so delivered shall at any time be deemed to be part of the water naturally flowing in any creek or tributary within the district, but shall be and remain at all times and places the property of the grantees.

10. The right, subject to no payment, except the royalty prescribed upon output, to make entry for and work any abandoned mining claim or claims on Bonanza, Bear and Hunker creeks, such right to be exercisable only when the grantees, by the construction of works in pursuance of this franchise are in a position to deliver water upon such claim or claims for the working thereof.

11. The prior right, if mineral bearing lodes or deposits of any kind whatever be discovered, through the operations of the grantees, upon lands or locations owned or leased by the grantees within the district, to enter upon, and purchase locations embracing the discoveries in the manner prescribed by the regulations governing mining in the Yukon Territory.

12. The right to take from Crown Lands, to be designated by the department, subject to the payment of Crown Timber dues, all timber and materials, needed for the construction, maintenance and operation of the grantees' works.

13. The right, subject to the regulations hereinafter contained, to construct, lay, maintain, supply with water and operate bed rock flumes, and any other flumes for supplying water in the district.

14. The grantees shall not be required to pay to the Crown, or to the district or local authorities, any rental, occupation rents, assessments or other dues in respect of any lands except timber lands, or in respect of any flumes, drains, properties or profits other than import Customs duties, school taxes, and a royalty on the gold mined in the mines owned by them or any tax or assessment which may be substituted for such royalty.

Provided, that no other or higher royalty, or any tax or assessment which may be substituted for such royalty, shall be imposed on any gold or silver mined from quartz by the grantees, than that prescribed by the present regulations, nor shall it, at any particular time be greater than the lowest royalty imposed on the output of gold and silver from the quartz mines of other mine owners in the Yukon district.

Provided also, that no other or higher royalty or any tax or assessment which may be substituted for such royalty, shall be imposed on any gold and silver mined from placer mines by the grantees than that prescribed by the present regulations, nor shall it, at any particular time, be greater than the lowest royalty imposed on the output of gold and silver from the placer mines of other mine owners in the Yukon district.

The properties of the grantees shall be exempt from representation.

The rights conferred upon the grantees shall extend for the period of thirty years, at the expiration of which period, all exclusive and prior rights granted to them shall cease and be determined, but the works and structures built by the grantees together with the lands, rights and easements, which they shall have purchased or acquired shall remain the grantees' private property.

The grantees shall have the right to assign any of the rights conferred upon them to any company or companies, or to any persons associated together for the purpose of carrying into effect the objects of the grant or any part of them.
REGULATIONS.

(a) The grantees shall allow all free miners within the district to tail their sluices, hydraulics, ground sluices and drains free of charge into the flumes and drains of the grantees, yet not in such a way as to damage or obstruct the free working of the flumes and drains of the grantees by rocks, stones, boulders or otherwise.

(b) The grantees shall compensate the owner of any mining claim or lands for any damage which any such owner may sustain by reason of any of the grantees' works breaking or being imperfect.

(c) Any question of compensation arising under this grant shall be determined judicially by the Gold Commissioner, subject to appeal to the Territorial Court of the district, and the said court may, upon special circumstances being shown, make an order for the taking of further evidence.

(d) The grantees shall yield to the owners of claims entered upon by them for the purpose of carrying out any of the works contemplated by this grant, any gold which they may obtain in respect to any gravel which may be moved by them in such claims in consequence of the construction of such works.

The Committee submit the same for His Excellency's approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

Apart from its objectionable features, this concession, in so far as it enables the grantees to supply, and the miners to obtain, on such terms as they can afford to pay, the much needed water to each location within the area covered by the concessions, it would, unquestionably, be a great boon.

OBJECTIONS.

1. The concession was objected to, most strenuously, by the great majority of persons who appeared before us. It will be seen, by a perusal of the evidence, that many of the objections are not based upon what is found in the Order in Council.

   The Order is so framed, as to be rather difficult of ready interpretation, and perhaps that, in part at least, will explain the reason why many who gave evidence thought, and possibly still think, the grant much greater than the grantees claim, or if claimed, much greater than they could get.

   Objections, and by the great majority, were however, made to the terms of the Order in Council as they really are. All the objections, by whomsoever made, and however varied in form of protest or statement, are included in these I will mention:

   1. It is objected 'that the concessionaires get a monopoly of the water of the Klondike river.'

   The right to divert and take water from this river is given by sections 1 and 2 of the Order.

   Section 1 does give to the grantees the sole right, subject to what I will mention, to divert and take water for a particular purpose, viz.: for generating power to pump water to work auriferous deposits in the district.

   For any other purpose any one having occasion to use this water is in no way prevented by any thing in section 1 of the Order in Council.

   The right to take water for generating power, is subject to the proviso that power developed and made available, and not used by grantees, must be sold if miners or others desire to buy, and the price to be charged shall be subject to the control of the Governor in Council. The monopoly or sole right to water is only for power to pump water to work deposits of gold, and if the grantees do develop power which they do not use for that purpose, they must sell that power to the public, if the public will buy, and at a price to be fixed by the Governor in Council.
This right is subject to the further proviso, that holders of mining locations situate on the Klondike river shall be entitled, as against the grantees, to the use of a flow of water sufficient for working their claims, but not exceeding 3,500 miner's inches, equal to 6,250 cubic feet, per minute.

According to the evidence this quantity of water would appear to be amply sufficient to more than satisfy the holder of every mining location on the Klondike, even if every one that is now only a prospect, and thus far showing no profitable results, should become a 'paying proposition.'

The evidence establishes that there will always be in the Klondike much more than enough water for the purpose of this concession without reducing the quantity to anything like 3,500 miner's inches.

The proviso protecting owners of logs and timber was not objected to as insufficient, by any of the witnesses.

Section 2 gives the prior right to divert and take water from the Klondike for distribution and use in the district up to 5,000 miners' inches, or up to 7,500 cubic feet per minute.

The grantees may have the right to take for that purpose more, if there shall be an ample supply, but subject to other people acquiring similar rights, and it is only when the quantity shall be so reduced that the supply could not equal the demand that the matter would seem to be of importance. In the event of the demand for water being greater than the supply, the grantees would get, as against others who may wish to divert and take water from the Klondike river for distribution and use in the district, a prior right to the 5,000 miners' inches.

So far as appeared no danger is to be apprehended from a scarcity of water in the Klondike. Last season was exceedingly dry in the Yukon Territory, and yet, in August, in the dry time of a dry season, there were, according to Mr. White-Fraser, 70,000 miners' inches flowing in that river.

No person put the minimum quantity of water in that river at less than 50,000 miners' inches, and the average is considerably above the 70,000. With that quantity of water it is not easy to see how there can be any 'monopoly' by reason of any right to water under section 2.

It did appear, although I do not remember that evidence was particularly directed to this point, that owing to there being practically no mining on the Klondike, there could be no object in diverting the water from that river for use in its own valleys in the immediate vicinity. The only way to divert and take water from the Klondike, even for use in other parts of the 'district,' is by pumping. If the only practicable way of pumping there is by power generated by water from the river, then there is an argument based on the strict letter of the two sections taken together that they give more than was intended.

The sole right to divert water for generation of power is given to the grantees by section one, so that upon a strict reading of sections 1 and 2, unless power for pumping can be generated or procured without diverting the water, there is a conflict between these sections and the intended limitations of the grantees to 5,000 miners' inches would not be effective. It was evidently intended that, outside of the 5,000 inches to which grantees get the prior right, others interested should be entitled to a right to divert and take water in a way, and for some useful purpose, and what was intended should be clearly expressed.

It seems to me clear that the interpretation must be that the sole right is only for generation of power to pump for distribution, &c., that is to say, to generate power to pump, in accordance with some large scheme of water supply for the district.

There is no monopoly of water for ordinary mining purposes.

There is no interference with the rights of miners or claims, except when prior right to 5,000 miners' inches would create a difficulty.

It would be against the letter of this order, reading section 1 by itself, if a mine owner with a portable engine and boiler took a pail of water from the Klondike to make steam to pump with his engine for his own claim, if he had one, in the valley of the Klondike. If the grantees set up such a contention in the face of section two, giving them the prior right to only 5,000 inches, and when there were 50,000 inches, or 200,000 inches, as is often the case, in the Klondike, it would not stand a moment. It has only to be stated to show that such cannot be the meaning of the order.

TIME.

2. It is also objected: 'The term of six years within which the grantees may exercise their rights is regarded as too long.'

The proposed work is one of great magnitude and will require a large amount of money and great engineering skill. It cannot be entered upon hastily.

Six years would not be too long, within which to require the complete installation of the plant and completion of the system, so that grantees could deliver water; but in view of possible failure to finance the undertaking, a period of six years, according to the best opinion of those who gave evidence, is too long to keep the matter open without beginning the work. The right should be exercised and the work commenced and an expenditure made of at least $200,000 within two years. That ought to be ample time to complete the surveys and arrange for the work being done, or to see that the undertaking is not feasible. While the grantees have the right, no other capitalist or promoter will interest himself in the matter of a water supply.

ROCK CREEK.

3. It is also objected that: 'The rights of grantees to water of Rock creek is a monopoly and injurious to the mining industry.'

I am of opinion that the objection is not supported either by the evidence or by a fair construction of section three of the Order in Council.

Rock creek empties into the Klondike on its right limit, about 12 miles from Dawson.

Its water is valuable as an additional supply for the district, and the grantees get the right to divert and use it, but not an exclusive right, and it is subject to subsisting grants, and subject to the right of free miners, bona fide working claims on Rock creek, to the use of water to which they are entitled under the regulations in the Yukon Territory. As a matter of fact there are not many claims, if any, being worked on that creek, but many or few, free miners are protected and only subject to their rights and to all existing rights of others, and subject to what may hereafter be given to others in accordance with the regulations, the grantees may divert and use the water.

It was argued that the right of grantees to divert and use the water at Rock Creek was subject only to free miners, bona fide working claims, existing at the date of the Order in Council. That is not in my opinion the correct interpretation of clause three.

The right of the grantees to this water is subject to the right to the use of water by free miners, such as they are entitled to under the then existing regulations for bona fide working claims on Rock creek whether they had claims on the day of the Order in Council or acquired them since or may hereafter acquire them.

INTERFERENCE WITH MINERS.

4. It is also objected that: 'Section 4 gives to grantees the right to erect dams, &c., in any creek in the district.'

As this protects the gravel, and obliges grantees to put all they remove into a separate dump for the owners, it cannot, in that respect, be of any injury to the miner. No right is given to interfere with any building or machinery or structure of any free miner, and every person owning or working a location is protected in his water rights as to any claim to which these rights attach.

This objection was not emphasized to any great extent by the witnesses. If this plan or any such plan should be carried out, some inconvenience must necessarily be experienced by a few, for the good of many. In the majority of cases, the removal of the gravel and placing it in a separate dump for the owner would be a positive benefit in the saving of money to him.

5. Objection was also made to the right of entry upon, and way through, lands and mining ground for the purpose of constructing overhead and underground wires, and other structures for transmission of electricity.

This was not at all seriously pressed; it was mentioned by counsel in argument, but such right of entry was by most conceded to be something necessary and beneficial in the development of the territory.

SALE OF WATER.

6. It was also objected that: 'Grantees are not obliged to sell water.'

This objection is pressed in a two-fold way:

(a) It is said that, as the grantees have been granted the right to sell, there is impliedly an exclusive right to sell, so that, if they refuse, and others hereafter attempt to supply and sell water, or attempt to get the right to do it, this concession would be claimed as a vested right, and used to the prejudice of the miners in their attempt to get water. There is, in my opinion, nothing whatever in this branch of the objection.

(b) It was contended that the grantees being miners already owning mining claims, and with the right to acquire other claims, may not desire to sell, because they require for their own use all the water they can supply, or, because they may desire to obtain a particular claim or claims and so prevent mining by others. Such being the case, they will simply refuse to sell, and so force an abandonment of the claim by the owner.

Having given the best consideration in my power to the evidence, and to all that has been said in argument, I can find nothing that would warrant even the suspicion, that these grantees do not intend in good faith to sell water. Their expected profits would be from such sale, and the price to be paid must depend upon the cost of construction and operating. In the interest of the grantees themselves, they must, if they desire customers for all the water they can furnish, make the price as reasonable as possible, consistent with making a profit. And yet I think as a matter of business, and to give the miners a feeling of security against any contingency, there should be a clause compelling grantees to sell water, and the rates to be charged therefor should be under some control outside of the grantees. The development of the country is dependent upon the miners feeling secure in working their claims. I would suggest that rates be determined by a board of three within the district, one to be selected by the grantees, one by the free miners of the district, chosen at a public meeting in the district, to be called by the Gold Commissioner of the territory after one week's notice of meeting, duly published as may be directed, and the third by the senior judge of the Yukon Territory, or by the chief justice of British Columbia. Some such tribunal which would be satisfactory could easily be constituted.

A water company would naturally sell. To create such a company is the manifest object and design of these grantees, in order that they may get the benefit of this franchise or concession. It is almost inconceivable, in considering this in a practical way, that the grantees or company to be formed should seek to erect and maintain a collecting and distributing water system and use all the water in the more or less precarious business of mining, and neglect the more sure profit likely to result from selling. The project is to collect sufficient water to supply the miners in the district. If enough water can be collected for this district, and it is assumed there can be, it is surely an imaginary danger that the water will not be sold, if buyers are ready.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 142

TREADGOLD CONCESSIONS

It was argued that the grantees might refuse to sell water to a particular mining claim in order to compel its abandonment, and then obtain it as an abandoned claim. That is an argument of weight. Such a miner ought to be protected; although even in that case he will be no worse off than at present. He should be better off, and it should not be in the power of the grantees to discriminate against any miner wanting water and willing to pay. It appears to me that the concession is upon the express condition that the water, if diverted and used in the way mentioned, is diverted for distribution to those, for the time-being, working mining claims. It is for the development of the country and in the interest of all that grantees should sell. The grantees, as owners of claims, will benefit by sale of water to others, just as others will benefit by the working of the grantees' own claim. Apart from what would be inferred from reading this Order in Council, Mr. Treadgold said it was the intention of the grantees to sell water, so there can be no objection to amending the Order and having it stated therein that grantees must sell.

ABANDONED CLAIMS.

7. It was objected, 'that the grantees should not have the right to make entry for any abandoned claims.' The grantees are different from the ordinary free miner in reference to these claims, in two respects: One, no payment of entry fee of $10, and no payment of renewal fee of $10. Two, the ordinary free miner can only make entry for one claim on each separate river, creek or gulch. It was made perfectly clear that an abandoned claim is not necessarily a worthless claim. In some cases an abandoned claim has proved very rich. Some claims are abandoned because when prospected no gold in paying quantities was found, and none will ever be found upon them; some because of the discouragement of the holder after a very little prospecting; some from neglect and other causes. When there is an abandoned claim any free miner who has not already obtained entry for a claim on that river, creek or gulch, may make an entry for it. The grantees represent a large number of miners and a large amount of capital, and it is not unreasonable if the grantees do, by the construction of work in pursuance of this franchise, put themselves in a position to deliver water on such claims for the working of them that they should be at liberty to make entry for them, and it is not unreasonable that they should be at liberty to hold as many as they can get. They can be of value only if worked, and if gold is found. The increased production of gold by the successful working of these claims must be beneficial to the Yukon Territory. The grantees can make entry only when in a position to deliver water. Any free miner in the locality, and every person who desires to become such, who does not hold a claim, may be on the alert; he may know the progress of the grantees' construction work, and if such a person desires to forestall the grantees in making entry for an abandoned claim, he can do so.

8. Objection was made to the grantees' 'freedom from representation.' Representation means that there should be work to at least $200 in value done upon each claim during the year. There is no advantage to the grantees to hold unproductive property; to make it productive the work must be done and that work is representation. As to some claims of no value for gold, but valuable to hold for dumping ground, and as to some held for the future upon chance, it is, of course, to that extent, a bonus to the grantees in connection with the undertaking.

There is beyond doubt a vast quantity of gold in the Yukon; the production year by year indicates that. According to the evidence of E. C. Senkler, Gold Commissioner, the output of gold from 1898 to 1903, inclusive, was $97,000,000. I send the statement of Mr. Senkler as appendix 'A' to this report. Mr. R. G. McConnell was sworn as a witness, and subsequently handed in answers to questions which were put to him; these answers are returned as appendix 'B.' Mr. A. J. Beaudette also was called as a witness, and he has handed in answers to questions which will be found as appendix 'C.'
Mr. Treadgold gave his evidence at considerable length. He was cross-examined sharply, but there was nothing from first to last to indicate that he considered that he had obtained anything more than a good business venture. He realized that the undertaking would involve risk and would require tempting possible profits, to get the money to carry it on.

Mr. Treadgold put in, as part of his evidence, a statement of the plan and estimated cost of his proposed work. This will be found as exhibit No. 13.

Mr. Joseph McGillivray has handed in a statement prepared for the Commission, giving his opinion as to the origin of the gold-bearing gravels in the Yukon. We are not so much interested in the inquiry as to the origin of the gold as we are about its remaining there waiting for present-day men, and their successors, to get it out. With great respect to Mr. McGillivray, I can only say that in my opinion his statement, interesting from a scientific point of view, is not evidence upon this inquiry.

Mr. J. L. Timmans asked leave to hand in a statement in regard to water supply, which, without comment, I have placed with the papers to be returned. It may possibly be useful for reference on the general question, when that comes to be considered.

Upon argument, considerable was said as to the contention by Mr. J. Langlois Bell, against Mr. Treadgold, and so far as it was material at all, the date of payment by Mr. Treadgold of $7,000 to suspend account was important.

Mr. Bell was of opinion that the money was paid on behalf of Mr. Treadgold in the early part of 1901, probably in May of that year, and that when he received that money he had not received a copy of the Order in Council of 12th June, 1901. The statutory declaration of William White has been produced, in which he states that the money was paid by him to Mr. Langlois Bell, on 26th July, 1901, and put to credit of suspense account by direction of J. H. Ross, Commissioner of the Yukon Territory.

EVIDENCE.

A good deal of the evidence was of a general and superficial character. It did not amount to proof of specific material allegations, much less to proof one way or the other in reference to this concession.

To illustrate this: Sigmund Rothschild, president of the Detroit Yukon Mining Company, a witness considered by all as important, representing capital, and who is one of the owners of the Williams concession, where some work was being done, was called to prove the injurious effects of the Treadgold concession, and that it was injurious to him as Treadgold had a monopoly of the water of Rock creek, and that his company was prevented from getting water from Rock creek. Mr. Rothschild's evidence on that point is: that he made no application in writing for Rock creek water; that he was informed by the Governor that he could not get it; that Mr. Beaudette read to him papers showing that he could not have the water; that he, Rothschild, said nothing as to the grant he desired, or its terms, or how the water was to be taken.

From all the evidence, and looking at the matter in every aspect, I do not think this Treadgold proposition, even with all the objections to it, that are at all tenable, would be a bad thing for the Yukon Territory, if carried out on the lines indicated by Treadgold: but, without change in the particulars mentioned, or change in the public sentiment towards this undertaking, there might be no little risk in attempting to instal the system, as possibly there would be ill-advised interference on the part of some who are hostile.

I return the evidence. There is with each volume an index of the names of witnesses and of the subject matter so that persons who may wish to pursue the inquiry can easily do so.

To assist in fully understanding the evidence, I have attached a list, with definitions of some of the words and terms in general use in the mining territory, and as used by some of the witnesses.

So far I have treated the Order in Council as alive, and have made my report as if it continued in force, but it was in fact rescinded on the 22nd of June, 1904, in consequence of a request by the grantees to be relieved of the obligations created by it, and to be permitted to withdraw from the enterprise contemplated thereby.

In view of this, and having regard to evidence that others were ready to negotiate for putting in a water supply, I venture to make the following suggestions:—

In any matter of this kind it is important that the concessions should not, only in fact, be beneficial to the mining industry of the territory, but that this should clearly appear; and that all necessary safeguards of the miners and others should not be left to be implied, no matter how clearly, but should be expressly provided.

The majority of those who appeared before the Commission are anxious that the government should, as a government work, undertake the supply of water. I express no opinion upon government ownership of water supply, as a 'public utility' in the Yukon Territory.

It would, I think, be in the public interest for the government to procure plans, specifications and estimates of the probable cost of an adequate water supply to the District of the Klondike, Bear, Bonanza and Hunker Creeks, and the probable cost to miners who would use the water.

Any water, with the right of distribution, is to be made to individuals, or to a company, there should be:—

(1) A definite time limit, clearly expressed, for commencing, continuing and completing the undertaking.

(2) An obligation to sell within the district, and there should be supervision over rates by a board in the district.

As stated, I think there would be no difficulty in having a suitable board, composed of men, one appointed by the grantees, one by miners in the district and one by a judge; or the third might be appointed by the Governor in Council.

(3) The right of miners should be preserved, not only to the gravel which the grantees may be obliged to move in consequence of the exercise of their right of entry, in the construction of the works, but the grantees should be obliged to move all the gravel or to make compensation for any not moved, as to which the right of miners is interfered with.

(4) The right to compensation for any buildings, erections, flumes, construction-work, and plant of any kind, moved or injured by grantees.

(5) To avoid possible disputes the continued ownership by grantees of water, after its delivery in the district, should be explained and defined, and

(6) It should be plainly stated whether exemption from representation, if granted, applies to all property owned by grantees, no matter when acquired, or only to the property acquired under Order in Council.

There are many things which render any forecast as to the future of the Yukon Territory of little value.

Changes come quickly in a mining camp. There are in that territory severe conditions, and its remote situation renders the importation of machinery and supplies, and all that is necessary, very expensive.

The season for work is short, only about 120 days. But with all its disadvantages I venture to say that with its 450,000,000 cubic yards of gravel bearing gold, all within the small area of the district of Bonanza and Hunker creeks and their tributaries, as estimated by Mr. McConnell, to say nothing of the remainder of the territory, if water can be supplied at a reasonable price, and prosperity of the Yukon Territory for many years is assured.

HYDRAULIC CONCESSIONS.

It was contended that the hydraulic concessions, granted under the regulations, were likely to be injurious to the mining industry of the Yukon because, in cases named and perhaps in other cases, placer claims were included within the territorial limits of the concession. If the concessions were opened, these placer claims would be staked and worked, and would produce gold. Estimates were given of the number of placer claims in the concessions specially attached. It was argued, as if each claim would be a producer, and would easily give employment to a certain number of men and would produce a certain amount of gold, which would yield a very large revenue to the government and would give a great impetus to the mining industry. It is not difficult to assume certain things as facts, and from such premises reach any desired conclusion. In this case it is only a question of multiplication. It is impossible, upon the evidence, to come to the conclusion that there are so many placer claims, or anything like so many, that would be staked upon any one of the concessions under consideration, as have been estimated by some of the witnesses. Under the regulations for obtaining hydraulic locations, it is not intended that the ground asked for shall include any ground that is being worked, or that is suitable to be worked, under the regulations governing placer mining. If there is much valuable placer mining ground in any one of the concessions then, while it does not necessarily follow that such a concession has been obtained by fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the applicant, it does indicate either that, or carelessness or mistake of some kind on the part of the person or persons whose duty it is to see that regulations are fairly complied with.

If there has been shown any fraud or misrepresentation by reason of which a concession has been granted my Commission enables me to deal with such. It may be taken for granted that if a hydraulic concession is only of such a mining location as is contemplated by the Regulations, and if that location is worked as such, it must necessarily be beneficial to the mining industry of the Yukon Territory; and that is so, whether gold is found in paying quantities or not. Even if not found, to the extent that the owner gives employment to men, it will be of general benefit, although the owner himself may be ruined. If gold is found, so much the better, and the more the better.

The hydraulic Regulations show that the government did not consider it likely to be beneficial to the mining industry, to lock up placer ground in the hydraulic locations, or to permit placer mining under the pretence of hydraulic work. I do not think that there is anything further that can be usefully said on the general question. The conclusion must be upon the evidence, and as the fair inference from the evidence, that hydraulic concessions of limited area, properly granted under the Regulations in that behalf, and as to which the conditions have been complied with, are likely to be beneficial to the mining industry.

That brings me at once to the consideration of the particular concessions, in reference to which protests have been lodged, and to see:

1. If any one of these has been obtained by fraud or misrepresentation, and
2. Have the holders of any of them failed to comply with the requirements of the leases?

It will be seen by the Regulations approved on 3rd December, 1898, that a lease would be issued to an applicant only under the following circumstances:

1. The applicant or his authorized agent must have been actually upon the ground and have prospected it prior to the date of the Regulations.
2. The application had to be filed with the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, or with the Gold Commissioner, or Commissioner at Dawson, for the particular location, which the applicant or his agent had prospected.
3. If the applicant was the first qualified applicant for that location, then he required to have it proved to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that the applicant himself, or a person acting for him, had been upon, and actually prospected, prior to the date of the regulation, the ground applied for, and also he required a report from the Gold Commissioner that the ground was not being worked, and was not suitable to be worked under the placer mining Regulations.
4. The Regulations were somewhat changed by Regulations of 24th October, 1899; of 2nd March, 1900, and 25th August, 1900.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 142

The Hydraulic Mining Regulations referred to in the above questions, under the provisions of which were issued the several leases except what is called the Herrmann lease, against which protests were submitted to the Commission, were approved by Order in Council dated the 3rd of December, 1898, and contained the following provisions:

1. That locations in the Yukon Territory shall have a frontage of from 1 to 5 miles in length, and a depth of 1 mile, but where such location is situated in a valley its depth may extend to the limits of the valley, if so ordered by the Minister of the Interior.

2. That to any person who, prior to the 3rd December, 1898, filed an application in the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, or in the office of the Commissioner or Gold Commissioner at Dawson, for a location previously prospected by him, or by his authorized agent, the Minister of the Interior may issue a lease (provided he is the first qualified applicant therefor), upon a report from the Commissioner that it had been proved to his satisfaction that the applicant himself, or a person acting for him, was upon and actually prospected prior to that date the ground included in the location, and upon a further report from the Gold Commissioner that the ground included in the location was not being worked and was not suitable to be worked under the Regulations governing placer mining.

3. That after the applicant has obtained a free miner’s certificate and filed in the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, a Dominion Lands Surveyor’s plan of the location, the minister might issue a lease thereof for a term not exceeding twelve years, such lease to be renewable for a further period of twenty years, upon the performance of the conditions imposed thereby.

4. That the lessee shall pay an annual rental of $150 for each mile of frontage and shall pay the same royalty on the output of gold as is provided or which may hereafter be provided in the case of placer mining claims, the first $25,000 of the annual output being exempted.

5. That the lessee shall begin active operations on his location within one year from the date of his lease, and shall expend in operating his location not less than $5,000 during each year from the date of his lease.

6. That in default of the payment of the rent or royalty or in the performance of the conditions imposed by the Regulations or by the lease, the Gold Commissioner may post a notice on the location in connection with which such default has been made, and mail a copy thereof to the lessee requiring such default to be remedied, and in case such default is not remedied within three months of the date of posting the notice, all the rights of the lessee under the lease shall be and become ipso facto null and void.

The form of hydraulic mining lease provides, among other things, that the lessee shall, within one year from the date of the lease, have sufficient hydraulic or other machinery in operation on the location to admit of his beginning active operations for the efficient working of the leasehold, which active operations he shall begin within the said period, and if, during any year of the said term, the lessee shall fail to expend in such mining operations in, about or upon his location the sum of $5,000, of the facts of which failure the minister shall be the sole and final judge, the lease shall become and be utterly and absolutely null and void, unless the minister shall otherwise decide.

HYDRAULIC LEASES ATTACKED.

Within the period set out in the public notice given by the Commission, protests were filed against the following hydraulic mining leases, and representations were made that these leases had been obtained by fraud or misrepresentation on behalf of the applicants, and that the holders thereof had failed to comply with the requirements of the leases of such concessions.

142—2
1. Lease No. 9, comprising a tract of land situate between Adams creek and Fox gulch, on the left limit of Bonanza creek, having a frontage of 1½ miles, issued in favour of C. A. Matson and associates, and known as 'The Matson Concession.'

2. Leases Nos. 2 and 8, comprising a tract of land situate between Boulder creek and Fox gulch, on the left limit of Bonanza creek, having a frontage of 55 claims, issued in favour of J. J. Doyle and associates, and known as 'The Doyle Concession.'

3. Lease No. 5, comprising a tract of land commencing 2½ miles from the mouth of Bonanza creek and extending up that stream for a like distance, issued in favour of the Hon. E. H. Bronson and C. C. Ray, and known as 'The Bronson and Ray Concession.'

4. Lease No. 18, comprising a tract of land commencing about 1½ miles from the mouth of the Klondike river, thence up stream for a distance of 6½-72 miles, issued in favour of M. J. W. Boyle, and known as 'The Boyle Concession.'

5. Lease No. 10, comprising a tract of land situate on Quartz creek, a tributary of the Indian river, in the Yukon Territory, having a frontage of 3½ miles, and known as 'The Quartz Creek Concession.'

6. Lease No. 1, comprising a tract of land situate on Hunker creek, below the mouth of Last Chance, having a frontage of 2½ miles, and known as 'The Anderson Concession.'

7. Lease No. 33, comprising a tract of land situate on Gold Bottom creek, a tributary of Hunker creek, issued in favour of C. J. Hermann, and known as 'The Hermann Concession.'

8. Lease No. 30, comprising a tract of land commencing at the mouth of Miller creek, a tributary of Sixty-mile river, and extending up stream a distance of 3-38 miles, issued in favour of the North American Transportation and Trading Company, and known as 'The Miller Creek Concession.'

'THE MATSON CONCESSION.'

Lease No. 9.

The evidence submitted to the Commission in connection with this location showed that the application was made to the Gold Commissioner at Dawson on November 2, 1899, by Messrs. C. A. Matson, I. Flato, Theodore Schmidt, D. J. Grauman and Peter Ire-on, for a lease, in which the applicants stated that they had examined the ground and found it could not be worked by the ordinary placer mining process. Mr. Matson submitted a statutory declaration, dated the 22nd of April, 1899, in which he stated that he had prospected the ground applied for and found that it was unfit for profitable placer mining, which affidavit was corroborated by the declaration of Mr. Schmidt, bearing the same date. A report was submitted from Messrs. Bolton and Hawkins to the effect that the ground included in the application could not be profitably operated by individual miners, and this report was endorsed by Mr. Thomas Fawcett, Gold Commissioner, thus making it his own. Mr. William Ogilvie, Commissioner of the Territory, recommended that a lease be issued to the applicants on favourable terms, and that the subsisting placer mining claims within the location should revert to them as soon as the same were abandoned.

On August 8, 1899, the ground included in the application was closed to placer mining entry, and on the 13th of January, 1900, a lease of the location, as surveyed by Lewis Bolton, D.I.S., containing 218 acres, was issued in favour of the applicants, which excluded from the operation thereof the ground which had been taken up and entered for, under the Placer Mining Regulations, the entries for which had not been cancelled by the mining recorder. It will be seen that there was not, in obtaining this lease, a literal compliance with the regulations, but what was done clearly negatives any allegation that the lease was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation.
On the 27th of August, 1900, Mr. Doyle made affidavit to the effect that between the 30th of November, 1899, and the 1st of February, 1900, an expenditure of not less than $5,000 had been incurred in connection with this location, and on the same date Messrs. A. M. Grant and Charles Dillman made affidavit that between the 1st day of June and the 27th day of August, 1900, not less than $5,000 had been expended in mining operations—that is, in tunnelling and drifting 365 feet on the location. This was a sufficient expenditure for the year ending the 13th day of January, 1901.

On the 11th day of July, 1901, the inspector of mines at Bonanza reported that the work done on this location during the previous winter was confined to the Magnet fraction; that to his knowledge five men worked on the claim during the winter; and that $42,000 worth of gold had been taken out, upon which amount royalty had been paid, less the prescribed exemption.

On the 30th of September, 1901, Mr. Matson made affidavit to the effect that he had done, or caused to be done, work on this location to the value of at least $5,000 between the 1st day of July, 1900, and the 1st day of March, 1901, and on the 23rd of December following he made affidavit to the effect that he had done or caused to be done work on the lease held to the value of at least $5,000 between the 13th of January and the 1st of December, 1901, which statements were corroborated by the affidavits of Messrs. P. J. Baldwin and Thomas Doyle.

This expenditure was in compliance with the regulations up to the 13th day of January, 1902.

On the 11th of November, 1902, the government mining engineer reported that all operations carried on on this location were by the hydraulic mining method; that work was commenced on the 13th day of August and continued to the 11th of October, 1902; that in addition to the ditch purchased by the lessees, 350 feet of new ditch was dug, and 950 feet of hydraulic hose added; that the cost of these operations was between $10,000 and $12,000, and that he was satisfied that the provisions of the lease in respect of work and machinery on the location had been complied with.

This expenditure was accepted as sufficient compliance with the regulations up to the 13th of January, 1903.

On the 17th of May, 1903, the Commissioner of the territory reported that $28,000 had been expended for a water right, conduit, and mining claim, one-half of which expenditure might be fairly applied to this location.

The allegations of fraud and misrepresentation, as to which witnesses were called, were, that the statements of the applicants as to prospecting and as to unsuitability of the ground for placer mining, were untrue and fraudulent. Prospecting must always be a question of degree, and may be all the way from comparatively little, testing and digging, to making a large number of prospect pits connected by drifts.

Matson was not called as a witness, but he made the original affidavit filed with the department in support of the application. Exhibit 19. The affidavit was made before Mr. Ogilvie, then Commissioner of the territory, and who, as a surveyor, had a considerable knowledge of the land applied for.

Doyle was called, and apparently made no representation that is shown to be untrue.

It is of considerable importance in determining the question of fraud and misrepresentation that:

1. The application was made before the regulations; and
2. That everything which could possibly be ascertained by the applicants was supposed to be known by Mr. Ogilvie, and Mr. Ogilvie speaks in his letter of 16th September, 1899 (Exhibit 24) of some of those located as merely speculators. See also his letter of 11th November, 1899 (Exhibit 25).

In the face of what had been done by the holders and accepted by the department, and apparently done in good faith, I cannot find that the conditions of the lease have not been complied with.
TREADGOLD CONCESSIONS

3-4 EDWARD VII., A. 1904

'THE DOYLE CONCESSION.'

Leases Nos. 2 and 8.

The evidence submitted to the Commission in connection with this hydraulic mining location showed that application was made on the 22nd day of July, 1898, to the Gold Commissioner at Dawson by Messrs. Robert Lee, Andrew Olson, John Zarnowsky, A. H. Griffin, P. J. Baldwin, D. E. Griffith, John J. Doyle and Emil Weinheim for a lease of this location, which is situated between Boulder creek and Fox gulch, on the left limit of Bonanza creek, and the applicants stated that the ground included in their application could not be successfully or profitably operated by the ordinary placer mining methods, and affidavits were submitted by Messrs. F. E. Wileman and William A. Stout, to the effect that they prospected the location and found that the ground included therein was not suitable for placer mining, and could only be operated profitably by the hydraulic mining process, and on the 26th of that month Mr. Fawcett, the Gold Commissioner, reported that he was fully in accord with the views set forth in the above application. On the same date Mr. Lewis Bolton, D.L.S., reported to the Gold Commissioner that he had been over the ground included in this application, and that in his opinion it could not be worked by other than the hydraulic mining method.

Mr. J. J. Doyle himself gave evidence as to his application. He stated that he took his application to Ottawa in the spring of 1898, and that he was in Ottawa when the Hydraulic Mining Regulations were approved. He ascertained that it would be necessary to have a survey of the location made by a Dominion lands' surveyor; that he returned to Dawson in December, 1898, and again went to Ottawa in the spring of the year 1899, having in the meantime had a survey made and a plan of the location prepared by one Jefferson Hawkins. These he took to Ottawa with him, and they are now exhibits numbers 77 and 78. He stated that he explained to the department that he did not wish to interfere with individual placer mining claims, and that he required the additional land, for which he applied, for dumping purposes, and to give access to the bank. He stated in short that he made no untrue statement in regard to this concession.

On the 31st of March, 1899, Mr. Ogilvie, in making reference to this application, stated that 'while the applicants were prospecting the ground men came and staked claims, evidently under the impression that there was something in it.'

While this was not in accordance with the provisions of section 3 of the Regulations, it was assumed that before making it Mr. Ogilvie had obtained proof to his satisfaction that the applicants had prospected the ground before making the application on the 22nd of July, 1898. The evidence shows that Mr. Ogilvie was cognizant and approved of all that was done.

A lease in their favour was issued on the 10th day of June, 1899, containing the usual provisions. I cannot find upon the evidence that this lease was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation.

On the 5th day of January, 1900, a supplementary lease, No. 8, was issued in favour of the above lessee for the tract of land lying in front of the location described in lease No. 2, and in the rear of and adjoining creek claims numbered from 25 to 34, both inclusive, on Bonanza creek, having a frontage of fifty chains or thereabout, but excluding therefrom and thereout any ground taken up and entered for, under the regulations in that behalf as placer mining claims, the entries for which had not been cancelled by the mining recorder. This lease was issued on the recommendation of Mr. Ogilvie, the Commissioner of the territory, and his letter of 31st March, 1899 (Exhibit 43) shows that prospecting was done prior to date of application.

On the 27th of August, 1900, an affidavit was submitted by Mr. J. J. Doyle to the effect that an expenditure of over $5,000 had been incurred in connection with the locations described in the above leases, between the 30th November, 1899, and the 1st of February, 1900, which affidavit was corroborated by the declarations of Messrs. O. A. Schultz and Thomas Doyle, made on the same date.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 142

On the same date Inspector H. H. Norwood reported that the lessees were operating a steam plant valued at $3,000, and that they had probably expended on the concession about $20,000.

On the 30th of September, 1901, Mr. P. J. Baldwin made affidavit to the effect that he had done or caused to be done work on these locations to the value of at least $5,000, between the 10th of September, 1900, and the 15th day of March, 1901, which affidavit was corroborated by the declaration of Messrs. Thomas Doyle and C. A. Matson, bearing the same date. On the 24th day of December of that year Mr. John Zarrowsky made a declaration to the effect that work had been done on the locations in question, between the 1st day of April and the 15th day of May of that year, to the value of at least $1,500 in sinking, timbering and drifting, which affidavit was corroborated by the declaration of Mr. E. M. Keyes and Mr. Thomas Doyle, bearing the same date. On the 21st of January, 1902, the mining inspector at Grand Forks, in submitting these affidavits, stated that sufficient representation work had been done on these locations for the past year.

On the 25th of September, 1902, Mining Inspector A. C. Robertson reported that he examined the locations in question and found that since the 12th of August previous the lessees had cleaned over 300 feet square of bedrock, and that two sluice-ways had been dug through bedrock, 175 feet and 210 feet respectively, and ranging in depth from 12 to 35 feet.

On the 17th of May, 1903, the Commissioner of the Territory reported $28,000 had been expended by the lessees for a water right, conduit and mining claim, one-half of which expenditure might fairly be credited to the 'Doyle concession.' The evidence will not warrant any finding that the hydraulic mining locations described in lease No. 2 and in supplementary lease No. 8 were obtained by fraud or misrepresentation on behalf of the applicants. The holders of these leases appear to have complied in a manner fairly satisfactory to the department with the requirements of the leases.

'THE BRONSON AND RAY CONCESSION.'

Lease No. 5.

The evidence submitted in connection with this hydraulic mining location showed that application for a lease was made on 30th day of November, 1898, to the Minister of the Interior at Ottawa by the Honourable E. H. Bronson and Mr. C. C. Ray, for a lease thereof under the provisions of the regulations, under which they stated that the tract applied for had been prospected by a reliable agent acting for them, and that it had been found that the ground was not sufficiently rich to warrant its being worked by the ordinary placer mining methods. This statement was supported by affidavits of T. B. Tyrrell and H. H. Cameron, in which they stated that they had prospected the ground and found that it was not suitable to be worked by the ordinary placer mining methods, and could only be operated upon some extensive scale.

On the 5th of May, 1900, the Gold Commissioner issued his certificate to the effect that the ground included in this location, with the exception of the subsisting placer mining claims, was not suitable to be worked under the regulations governing placer mining, and on the day following he issued a public notice closing the location from entry. On the 14th of June following the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory submitted a similar report, and stated also that the ground had been prospected by Mr. Tyrrell.

On the 3rd day of November, 1899, a lease of the location as surveyed, containing the usual provisions, was issued in favour of Messrs. Bronson and Ray, which excepted from its operations the placer mining claims already recorded, but included any claims within the tract leased which might from time to time be cancelled or abandoned.

In the absence of evidence contradicting Mr. Ogilvie, Commissioner of the Territory, or evidence showing bad faith on his part, fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the applicants cannot be found. The Commissioner, in his letter to the Minister of the Interior dated June 14th, 1899, which will be found as Exhibit No. 93, transmits a copy of certificate of Gold Commissioner, also Mr. Tyrrell’s statutory declaration, and then Mr. Ogilvie says, ‘I believe from Mr. Tyrrell’s statements, and my own personal knowledge, that the ground is not suitable for mining purposes except on an extensive scale, except in so far as it has been located for placer miners, and even part of that is not considered valuable enough for placer mining, as is shown by the Gold Commissioner’s certificate.’

On the 13th of March, 1900, the lessees were granted an extension of time within which to comply with the provisions of their lease as regards the annual expenditure of $5,000 in mining operations thereon, as certain placer mining claims within the location prevented them from operating to advantage. This extension of time to comply with the provisions of the lease was terminated on the 2nd day of June, 1902. On the 11th of November, 1902, the government mining engineer reported that no work had been done on this location, nor had any preparatory work to commence operations been started, nor had any machinery been placed on the tract leased. On the 26th of June, 1903, the department refused to accept the rental of this location, and a cheque for $385.50, which was tendered in payment for the same, was returned to the agents of the lessees.

On the 10th day of July, 1903, Mr. J. B. Tyrrell made affidavit to the effect that he had done or caused to be done work on this location, between the 16th of January and the 1st of July, 1903, to the value of $6,029.84, exclusive of the sum of $3,052.68 paid for machinery, and he furnished a detailed statement of the several items on account of which this expenditure was incurred. This statement was corroborated by the affidavits of Messrs. C. E. McDougall and J. T. Kelly, dated 21st of the same month. The extension of time granted the lessees to comply with the provisions of their lease in regard to the annual expenditure of $5,000 in mining operations was terminated on the 2nd of June, 1902, but no evidence would appear to have been submitted to show that within one year from that date the expenditure required by section 4 of the lease was incurred in mining operations, although Mr. Tyrrell made affidavit that between the 16th of January and the 1st of July, 1903, work was done on the concession to the value of $6,029.84. Under the provisions of the lease an expenditure of $5,000 in mining operations should have been incurred between the 2nd of June, 1902, the date upon which the extension of time terminated, and the 2nd of June, 1903.

A condition of all the hydraulic leases is that the lessee shall have sufficient hydraulic or other machinery in operation on the demised premises within one year from the date of lease to permit of beginning active operations for the efficient working of the rights and privileges granted, and that such operations shall be begun within one year, and then that $5,000 shall be expended in each year.

The machinery necessary to efficiently operate an hydraulic mining location is what will bring water, and water itself, and water at high pressure. If this water can be obtained by gravity, then the required machinery comprises the ditches, flumes, and pipe lines necessary to conduct it to the point of operation, and the ‘giant’ or ‘monitor,’ through which it is discharged against the gravel bank containing the gold. If, however, a gravity supply of water cannot be obtained, then it is necessary for the miner to remedy this defect by means of machinery comprising boilers, engines, piping, &c., with which water is pumped to a reservoir at a sufficient altitude to give the required pressure.

If an hydraulic mining location is being operated by what is termed the ordinary placer mining methods, then the machinery which would be required to operate the location would be engines, boilers, self-dumping hoists, &c. As the leases against which protests were lodged provide for the placing on the location of ‘hydraulic or other machinery,’ it would appear to have been accepted as a sufficient compliance with this provision of the lease if either class of machinery above referred to were placed on the location.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 142

No definition has been given of the expression 'mining operations,' and no definite rule has been established as to what particular expenditure in connection with an hydraulic mining location might be accepted as compliance with the regulations.

The expenditure incurred in the construction or acquirement of a flume, ditch, or pipe-line, to convey water to a location has by general practice been accepted as expenditure in mining operations in, about and upon the location, as required by section 4 of the lease, and such flume, ditch, or pipe-line also constitutes the machinery which the lessee is required, under the same section, to place upon his location.

I think that any machinery or appliances which a lessee may have placed upon his location, so long as it is sufficient for the efficient working of the rights and privileges granted, must be accepted as compliance with the terms of the lease.

No sufficient hydraulic or other machinery was placed upon the demised premises in the Bronson and Ray concession within the year, nor is there yet such reasonably sufficient hydraulic or other machinery there as required for efficient working or for active operations.

It cannot be said that the conditions of the lease have been complied with.

There may have been waiver of the conditions other than the condition as to representation work which was waived to 2nd June, 1902, as above stated.

Any such waiver would require to be evidenced by writing under the authority of the Minister of the Interior, and no such waiver was shown.

'THE BOYLE CONCESSION.'

Lease No. 18.

The evidence submitted in connection with this location showed that application was made on the 1st of December, 1897, to the Gold Commissioner at Dawson, by Messrs. F. P. Slavin and J. W. Boyle, for a lease of a tract of land on the Klondike river having a frontage of about eight miles, and on the 5th of October, 1899, the applicants were advised that it had been decided to issue a lease to each of them of a location having a frontage of four miles on the said river, and they were given sixty days to furnish the reports required by section 3 of the hydraulic mining regulations, and to file descriptions of the locations which they desired to lease. On the 21st of the same month the descriptions asked for were furnished, and on the 24th of the month the Gold Commissioner at Dawson submitted his certificate under the provisions of section 3 of the regulations, to the effect that the ground included in the location applied for was not being worked, and was not suitable to be worked, under the regulations governing placer mining, with the exception of the mining claims set out in that report.

On the 26th October, 1899, Mr. Boyle made affidavit that the location had been prospected on behalf of the applicants; that a shaft had been sunk to a depth of 24 feet, and the tests showed from 5 to 12 cents to the pan; that since the date of the application further prospecting had been done on the location, and that shafts had been sunk varying from 18 to 26 feet in depth.

On the 26th of the same month the Commissioner of the territory submitted his report, to the effect that it had been proved to his satisfaction that the applicants, Messrs. Slavin and Boyle, or a person acting for them, had been upon and actually prospected, prior to the 3rd of December, 1898, the ground included in the location. In October, 1900, the acting minister decided that this location might extend from summit to summit on each side of the Klondike river.

As far as I can tell from the evidence, this decision was arrived at in this way:

A plan had been prepared for Boyle by T. D. Green 18th December, 1899, and Boyle asked that the limits of his location should be extended. By the regulations, 3rd December, 1898, clause 1, these locations are one mile in depth, but where location is situated in a valley it may be extended by the Minister of the Interior to the limits of the valley. What purports to be a duplicate of this plan has been submitted to Mr. Ogilvie, the Commissioner, who wrote his approval thus, ‘approved as per report to follow,’ see Exhibit 130. No report did follow, so far as appears, but he did examine the plan at Dawson, and put upon it a blue dotted line, from station 54 to station 100 across the southerly part of the land, and marked his approval ‘subject to dotted line,’ see Exhibit 131. This plan was not sent to Ottawa, but was retained in the office of Gold Commissioner at Dawson. On or about 17th October, 1900, when a question arose as to description to be inserted in Boyle’s lease, the assistant gold commissioner wired to the secretary of the Department of the Interior (Exhibit 143): ‘Please wire exact boundaries, length and breadth of “Boyle concession, Klondike river.” Does it extend from summit to summit,’ and he received a reply from the acting minister simply, ‘Yes, summit to summit.’ In some unexplained way the lease was, in fact, issued at Ottawa without the report which Mr. Ogilvie promised and without the plan with dotted line. Assuming that neither Boyle nor Salvin was guilty of any fraud or misrepresentation, and there is not evidence that would warrant a finding of fraud or misrepresentation by either, much more land is demised to Boyle than Boyle applied for or expected to get. Even if the limits were extended to limits of valley, that could not mean more at the most than from summit to summit of lowest hills above the valley. The plan includes all the land from which water flows into this valley. This seems to be a palpable error in the description of the Boyle concession.

Without fraud or misrepresentation Boyle was entitled to a concession extending to the limits of the valley.

What does the error in description mean as a matter of actual value? It was not shown that the land itself, between the height of the limit of the valley and the extreme height as contended for by Boyle had, or probably had, any great value for gold. Any right which Boyle gets under his lease of this land, other than for gold mining, is of no practical value to Boyle, and works little or no injury to others. It is a formidable concession, on the map, and in my opinion a mistake was made in plan mentioned in lease; and that is all that can be said as to the area of this large concession.

In my opinion neither fraud nor misrepresentation was shown in procuring the extension of the limits, nor was it shown that the difference between the two plans was the result of fraud or misrepresentation.

On the 5th of November, 1900, a lease of the location, as surveyed by Mr. T. D. Green, D.L.S., was issued in favour of Mr. J. W. Boyle, an assignment to him from Mr. Slavin of his right to the location having been accepted and registered in the department. This lease contained the usual provisions, and was made subject to the rights or claims of all persons who had acquired the same under the regulations, under any Order of the Governor General in Council, up to date thereof. It also required that the machinery to be placed upon the location should be of such a character as might meet with the approval of the minister.

On the 17th of November, 1900, an assignment from Mr. Boyle to Mr. H. B. McGiverin, of Ottawa, of his right to the lease in question was accepted and registered in the Department of the Interior.

On the 6th of November, 1901, Mining Inspector P. H. Belcher reported to the assistant gold commissioner that, upon inspection, he found the amount of work performed upon the location leased to Mr. Boyle did not amount to anything more than some wood-cutting, and that as far as he could find there has been no machinery placed on the location during the year.

On the 7th of the same month Mr. Boyle submitted an affidavit to the effect that between the 5th of November, 1900, and the 5th of November, 1901, a preliminary examination, survey and estimate had been made to determine the proper method to pursue for the installation of an hydraulic plant on this location; that he had obtained the services of Sir Thomas S. Tancred, Bt.C., who made the survey and estimate at a cost of 2,000 pounds sterling, and that in addition to his cost he had expended over $1,000 in connection with his leasehold. Mr. McGiverin, however, was advised on the 14th November, 1902, that after consideration it had been decided that this expenditure could not be accepted as complying with the provisions of the regulations, and that no further extension could be granted to perform the work and to place on the location the machinery called for by the regulations.

On the 11th of November, 1902, Mr. A. J. Beaudette, the government mining engineer, reported that no work had been done on the location leased to Mr. Boyle, nor any work preparatory to commencing operations, nor had any machinery been placed upon the leasehold.

The evidence shows that the material requirements of the lease and the provisions of the regulations have not been complied with, in so far as the placing of machinery on the location, and the annual expenditure of not less than $5,000 in mining operations thereon, are concerned.

"QUARTZ CREEK CONCESSION."

Lease No. 9.

The evidence submitted to the Commission in connection with this location showed that application was made on the 21st day of September, 1898, to the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory by William C. Gates and Frank P. Slavin for a location situated on the west side of Quartz creek, a tributary of Indian river, having a total frontage of 34 miles, which application was supported by an affidavit made by Mr. Gates, bearing date the 8th of May, 1899, in which he stated that he prospected this location in the month of September, 1898. A further affidavit, dated December, 1899, was made by Mr. Gates, in which he stated that he prospected the location for the purpose of determining whether the ground was rich enough to be worked by the ordinary placer mining methods; that he sunk three holes, only one of which was to bed-rock, and that he found nothing in these prospects which would justify him in staking a claim with a view of acquiring it under the placer mining regulations; and that he was firmly of the belief that this ground was unsuitable for placer mining purposes, and could only be profitably worked by the hydraulic or some other equally extensive principle.

On the 14th of December, 1899, the Gold Commissioner issued his certificate under section 3 of the regulations, to the effect that the location applied for was not being worked, and was not suitable to be worked, under the regulations governing placer mining, with the exception of the subsisting mining claims within the location referred to in said certificate.

On the 26th of October, 1899, the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory issued his certificate to the effect that it had been proved to his satisfaction that the applicants themselves, or a person acting for them, was upon and actually prospected, prior to the 3rd of December, 1898, the ground included in the location.

On the 17th of March, 1900, an assignment was accepted and registered in the Department of the Interior from Mr. Slavin to Mr. Joseph W. Boyle, of his right to the application in question, and on the same date an assignment from Mr. Gates to Mr. Boyle, of his right to the application was also accepted and registered in the department.

On the same day a lease of the location as surveyed by T. D. Green, D.L.S., was issued in favour of Mr. Boyle, subject to the rights of all persons who had acquired the same under the regulations up to the date upon which the location was closed to placer mining entry.

This concession is about 20 or 25 miles from Dawson. There are several placer mining claims on this creek. There is no evidence of fraud or misrepresentation on the part of applicant in obtaining this lease.
On the 29th of November, 1900, Mr. Boyle’s solicitor was advised that any placer mining claims, within the location for which entry existed at the date of the lease, but which might subsequently lapse or become abandoned or forfeited for any cause, would not be open to re-location, but would be included in and form a portion of the tract described in the said lease to Mr. Boyle.

On the 6th of December following, an assignment from Mr. Boyle to the Quartz Creek Yukon Syndicate, Limited, of his right to the lease in question, was accepted and registered in the Department of the Interior.

On the 5th of January, 1901, Mr. C. Gomez made affidavit that considerable mining machinery had been placed on this location, and that considerable expenditure had been incurred in operating it between the 1st day of April and the 1st day of September, 1900, which affidavit was corroborated by the declaration of Mr. John T. Clayworth. This statement was further corroborated by an affidavit made on the 17th of the same month by Mr. Thomas Adair.

On the 27th of April, 1901, Mining Inspector A. C. Robertson reported that he visited the ground included in this location, and found that a boiler and pumping machinery had been placed on the location; that cordwood had been cut; and that considerable mining had been done on claim No. 23 below A. Mack’s discovery, and on the hillsides; but that this claim appeared to be the personal property of Mr. Boyle.

A further report with respect to the machinery and expenditure in mining operations on this location was made on the 28th of April, 1901, by Inspector C. C. Raven, of the North-west Mounted Police (Exhibit No. 180), in which he stated that no mining, except the dams constructed on Quartz creek, had been done on the location.

On the 2nd of November, 1901, Mr. A. J. Beaudette, the government mining engineer, reported that this property was being worked on as large a scale as possible, and that an effort was being made to comply with the regulations; that to operate the location properly all that was necessary was a constant head of water, flumes, ditches, giants and elevators for the tailings, and that as a substitute for this a boiler and pump had been used.

On the 21st of that month the Gold Commissioner issued his certificate, to the effect that it had been proved to his satisfaction that the lessees of this location had complied with the terms of their lease in respect of representation work and placing machinery upon he ground for the year which ended on the 17th of March, 1902.

No evidence has been submitted to show that the expenditure required by section 4 of the lease was incurred in actual mining operations on the location during the year ending the 17th of March, 1901, nor was any such evidence furnished for the year which ended on the 17th of March, 1903.

It would also appear from evidence submitted to the Commission that at least a portion of the mining machinery which was placed upon this location has been removed.

The material conditions of this lease have not been complied with.

'THE ANDERSON CONCESSION.'

Lease No. 1.

The evidence submitted to the Commission in connection with this location showed that application was made on the 2nd September, 1897, by Mr. Robert Anderson to the Gold Commissioner at Dawson for a location situated on Hunker creek, commencing about one thousand feet below the mouth of Last Chance creek, thence down stream two and one-half miles. The Gold Commissioner reported that the location applied for by Mr. Anderson had been passed over by individual prospectors as altogether too wide to search for a pay-streak; that it had been reported that gold in small quantities might be found by excavating anywhere, but not enough to pay under the existing circumstances, and that it was necessary to obtain a considerable area, in order to operate it by hydraulic mining method.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 142

By an Order in Council, dated the 12th January, 1898, authority was given for the issue to Mr. Anderson of a lease for hydraulic mining purposes of the tract of land applied for, under certain conditions.

Under the authority of this Order in Council, a lease was issued to Mr. Anderson on the 24th December, 1898, of the above location, and on the 20th May, 1899, an assignment from Mr. Anderson to the 'Klondike Government Concession, Limited,' of his right to the lease in question was accepted and registered.

By an Order in Council dated 12th February, 1900, authority was given to issue a lease of this location under the provisions of the Hydraulic Mining Regulations which were approved of by His Excellency on the 3rd December, 1898, and on the 12th February, 1900, the substitute lease referred to was issued, which contained the usual provisions but required the payment of a rental of $500 per annum.

On the 10th June, 1901, Mr. T. A. R. Purchase reported that the lessees had expended on this location between the year 1898 and the year 1901, the sum of $215,000, in salaries, wages, supplies, fuel, timber, machinery and freight.

On the 29th day of August, 1901, Mr. T. A. R. Purchase made affidavit, to the effect that since the 12th day of February previous the lessees of this location had caused work to be done upon their property to the value of over $15,000.

On the 21st August, 1900, Mining Inspector P. H. Belcher reported that the lessees had placed a large amount of valuable machinery on the location; that they were working ground unsuitable for individual mining, and that they were doing their work in an excellent way, washing down the hill-sides for about one hundred yards.

On the 23rd September, 1901, Inspector Belcher reported as to the number of men employed by the lessees on their location, also with regard to the amount of work performed on it, and the amount of gold taken out; and, on the 13th November following, the Gold Commissioner issued his certificate, to the effect that it had been proved to his satisfaction that the lessees had complied with the terms of their lease for the year ending the 12th day of February, 1902, in respect of representation work and machinery.

On the 12th November, 1902, Mr. A. J. Beaudette reported that the operations conducted on this concession were of a placer nature only, and were not on as large a scale as some of the placer mining claims on the same creek, that three shafts had been sunk, each twenty-five feet in depth, from which drifts were carried, and that about six hundred cubic yards of gravel had been hoisted and sluiced. He stated that as near as he could judge, about $5,000 had been expended in actual mining operations on the location during the year which ended November, 1902.

On the 4th day of December, 1902, Mining Inspector P. H. Belcher reported that he had inspected the work done on this location, and found that the value was in excess of $5,000, and on the 10th of the same month the Assistant Gold Commissioner issued his certificate, to the effect that it had been proved to his satisfaction that the lessees had done, or caused to be done, work upon their location to the value of $5,000.

Mr. Anderson also submitted an affidavit, dated the 25th November, 1902, to the effect that he had done, or caused to be done, work on this location between the 12th July and the 24th November, 1902, to a value of at least $5,000, which affidavit was corroborated by the declarations of Messrs. J. R. Nicholson and J. F. Steeves.

It would appear, therefore, from the evidence submitted to the Commission that the Anderson concession was not obtained by fraud or misrepresentation, and it would appear, further, that the material conditions of the lease and of the Orders in Council and Regulations under which it was issued, have been complied with.

'THE HERRMANN CONCESSION.'

Lease No. 33.

The evidence submitted to the Commission in connection with this location showed that application was made on the 30th day of June, 1899, to the Gold Commissioner at Dawson by Mr. C. J. Herrmann, for a lease of a tract of land situated on Gold Bottom creek, a tributary of Hunker creek, in the Yukon Territory, having a frontage of 4.78 miles.

Mr. Herrmann made a declaration to the effect that he prospected the location by sinking two holes to bed-rock, and that he did not find any pay-dirt of sufficient value to warrant the working of the ground by the ordinary placer mining methods.

On the 16th day of August, 1899, the Gold Commissioner, Mr. Senkler, issued his certificate under section 3 of the Regulations, to the effect that the location applied for by Mr. Herrmann was not being worked, and was not suitable to be worked, under the regulations governing placer mining; and on the 9th April, 1900, the Commissioner, Mr. Ogilvie, issued his certificate, to the effect that it had been proved to his satisfaction that the applicant himself, or some person acting for him, was upon and actually prospected, prior to the 3rd day of December, 1898, the ground included in this location.

It will be observed that this application was not filed with the Gold Commissioner at Dawson until after the 3rd day of December, 1898, as required by section 3 of the Regulations. As Mr. Herrmann, however, made affidavit that he had commenced prospecting the location on the 26th of September, 1898, and continued such work for a period of three months, it was decided to consider his application, but it was not granted until after the Order in Council of the 2nd March, 1900, had come into force. This order authorized the granting of a lease to a person who filed an application for a location previously prospected by him or by his authorized agent, without reference to the date upon which such application was made.

Certain petitions were forwarded to the Department of the Interior protesting against the ground in question being leased for hydraulic mining purposes, and on the 16th day of October, 1901, a lease in favour of the assignees of Mr. Herrmann, namely G. F. Washburne and P. R. Ritchie, was issued, which contained the usual provisions, and excepted from the operation of the lease placer mining claims numbered from 11 to 20, inclusive, situated on the right fork of Gold Bottom creek, also all placer mining claims within the location for which entries had been granted or which had been staked out or located, and in connection with which notice had been given to the mining recorder prior to the date of the lease.

On the 3rd October, 1902, Mr. Ritchie submitted an affidavit to the effect that he had done or caused to be done work on his location to the value of at least $5,000, and he specified the items of expenditure. This affidavit was supported by a further declaration made by Messrs. W. F. Gibson and J. M. Keefer, to the effect that between the 15th day of April and 16th day of September, 1902, mining operations on the location in question had been carried on. On the 13th November following, Mining Inspector Belcher reported that he had inspected this location and found that $5,000 worth of work had been done thereon, and that a boiler, thawing machine, hose and nozzle had been placed on the location.

On the 5th December, 1902, the Assistant Gold Commissioner issued his certificate to the effect that it had been proved to his satisfaction that the lessees of this hydraulic mining location had expended in mining operations on their property the sum of $5,000 between the first day of December, 1901, and the 16th day of September, 1902.

I cannot, upon the evidence submitted to the Commission, find that the Herrmann concession was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation, and I am of the opinion that the lessees have complied with the conditions of the lease and of the regulations under which the same was issued.

'THE MILLER CREEK CONCESSION.'

Lease No. 30.

The evidence submitted to the Commission in connection with this location showed that application was made on the 23rd day of April, 1898, to the Gold Commissioner at Dawson, by Mr. John J. Healy, for a lease for hydraulic mining purposes, of the first tier of bench claims on each side of Miller creek, between Discovery and the mouth thereof. On the 19th July, 1899, Mr. Edward Monaghan made affidavit that in the month of November, 1894, he began prospecting in the valley and along the hill sides of Miller creek; that he continued prospecting for nearly a year; that he did this prospecting in association with Mr. Healy, who shared the expenses with him; that since that time he had transferred his interest to Mr. Healy, and that he did not consider himself justified in continuing to work the ground by the placer mining method, the pay being too small for that purpose. On the 19th of December following, he made a further affidavit to the effect that he had prospected Miller creek for a period of six months, and that from his knowledge of it he considered it was worked out, so as no longer to pay as a placer mining proposition. On the 9th February, 1900, Mr. Healy applied for such of the creek claims on Miller creek as were available, as his company, the North American Transportation and Trading Company, desired this ground to be operated in conjunction with their location on the benches of the creek.

On the 22nd June, 1899, the Gold Commissioner, by notice under the provisions of section 13 of the Hydraulic Regulations, closed to placer mining entry the location applied for, which he described as commencing at the mouth of Miller creek, thence up the said creek a distance of five miles, and in width from summit to summit on either side, and on the 10th day of August, following, he issued his certificate under the provisions of section 3 of the regulations, to the effect that the location applied for by Mr. Healy on behalf of the North American Transportation and Trading Company, was not being worked and was not suitable to be worked under the regulations governing placer mining.

On the 14th September, 1899, the Commissioner, Mr. Ogilvie, issued his report to the effect that it had been proved to his satisfaction that the applicant himself, or a person acting for him, had been upon and actually prospected prior to the 3rd December, 1898, the ground included in the location, and on the 15th March, 1900, he reported that Miller creek was discovered in 1893, was worked a little during 1894, and a good deal during the summers of 1895 and 1896; that the discovery of gold in the Klondike region, in 1897, caused the claims in the Miller creek region to be abandoned, as they had been practically worked out; that the ground applied for by Mr. Healy was simply tailing, and that the applicant did not want the ground so much for the gold that was in it as to utilize the surface for dumping from the hillsides. Mr. Ogilvie added that he believed no claims in the vicinity were being operated, and that it was unlikely they would be operated in the future.

On the 10th September, 1901, a lease was issued in favour of the above company for a tract of land lying on either side of Miller creek, between the mouth thereof and Discovery claim, being a distance of 3'38 miles more or less, but all placer mining claims the entries for which were in force on the 22nd day of June, 1899, the date of the Gold Commissioner's closing notice, were excluded, but any of said claims which had, since that date, been abandoned or forfeited, were included in that leasehold.

Upon the evidence I cannot say that this lease was procured by fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the applicants or of the lessees. In November, 1902, the Gold Commissioner, Mr. Senkler, issued his certificate to the effect that it had been proved to his satisfaction that the holders of hydraulic mining lease number 30, had expended in mining operations on their property described in said lease the sum of $5,000 between the 10th day of September, 1901, and the 10th day of September, 1902.

On the 13th November, 1902, Mining Inspector P. II. Belcher, reported that he had inspected the location and found that a considerable expenditure had been incurred in mining operations on the location; that machinery had been placed thereon; and that the cost of such operations would be $5,000 at least.

On the 2nd December, 1902, Mr. Beaudette, the Government Mining Engineer, reported that the work done on this concession was by placer mining methods, and that no hydraulicking had been done; that there was no objection to this method being used during the first year of the lease, as much development of that nature was necessary before a larger expenditure would be warranted, and that the work done was satisfactory for the first year.

It therefore appears from the evidence submitted that the conditions of the lease and of the regulations under which the same was issued have been substantially complied with.

As stated, I have arrived at a conclusion in each of the cases, but, as many objections were applicable to all, I desire to consider these a little more at length.

I have carefully considered the argument, and analysis of evidence, of every professional man and layman who has been good enough to assist in that way, on this investigation.

Certain evidence was adduced as if bearing upon matters within the scope of the inquiry, and arguments have been presented, based upon that evidence, to establish something which I have no authority to investigate. Conclusions upon such outside matters ought not to be drawn from this evidence alone, because it may be that all the evidence available was not in fact given as to these.

Except so far, and only so far, as was necessary, for the satisfactory determination by me of the questions of fraud and misrepresentation by, or on behalf of an applicant I have not thought it my right to inquire in any case, whether or not the lease accurately describes the particular ground applied for or to what extent hydraulic concessions cover ground capable of being profitably mined by the placer process.

There have been granted, in all, since the opening of the Yukon Territory, 40 hydraulic leases. Of these 13 have been cancelled, and 27 are standing. Of the 27, 8 have been attacked. Only 2 others were mentioned as likely to be attacked, and no one interested took the trouble within the time given, to formally lodge any complaint as to these.

In dealing with charges of fraud and misrepresentation, I have endeavoured to do as would be done in a case on trial in a court of justice. There must be moral fraud; a false statement made in the belief that it is true is not sufficient to constitute fraud; and misrepresentation, to be fraudulent, must relate to an existing fact. In many of the cases presented, the statements alleged to be untrue and fraudulent, were presented to officials whose duty it was to have knowledge, and who did have knowledge of the matters as to which such statements were made.

In most of the cases complained of, the Commissioner of the territory reported to the department that what the applicants stated was proved, to his satisfaction, to be true. Even if scores of witnesses now say that certain things could not be as stated in the application or affidavit of the applicant, fraud could not be inferred in the absence of evidence of persons to whom such statements were made or of further evidence against the applicant.

It is not fraud to call some work 'prospecting' which is shown to be very far short of thorough prospecting. In the opinion of an applicant it was prospecting. Apparently in the opinion of officials of the department it might be considered prospecting, and a representation which is only the expression of an opinion is not fraudulent.

The leases have been spoken of as 'hydraulic concessions' and 'hydraulic locations.' 'Concession' is a convenient word. As to every one of these, entry had been made for placer claims within the area. In some cases these claims had been worked out. Some, after being prospected, thoroughly or partially, according to circumstances, were abandoned; some were being profitably worked. This was all well known to officials and to persons interested, so the statement that the ground was not suitable for placer mining, and fit only for working by hydraulic methods, must have been treated, to the knowledge of all, as having reference to ground outside of such claims thereon as were specially excepted from the lease.

The exceptions from the lease were of all claims held, or staked and applied for, under Placer Mining Regulations, prior to closing the ground.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 142

The matter was treated in the larger way, ignoring placer claims when they formed a small part compared with the large quantity of gravel ground which it was alleged could be worked only by hydraulic methods.

There certainly was not, in the earlier days after the opening of the territory, sufficient care on the part of the officials in the territory to see that the regulations were strictly complied with; but careless methods do not amount to fraud.

All the concessions protested, except Miller creek, were close to Dawson. Messrs. Ogilvie and Fawcett resided at Dawson, and both were surveyors, with a skilled knowledge of that part of the country.

It will be seen by a perusal of the lease that the conditions are exacting and carefully drawn, with the manifest intention of protecting every interest connected with the mining industry. Under these circumstances, it has apparently been thought best to accept as representation work, work done by placer methods instead of insisting upon work by hydraulic methods. Where it has been clearly so accepted by the department, I ought to find, to that extent, compliance with the condition.

Considerable evidence was given as to disputes between holders of hydraulic leases and placer miners about wood, about water, about tailings, and as to trespasses by lease holders upon placer miners' ground.

Individual disputes prove nothing as to the general benefit or injury of hydraulic concessions. To decide upon these would involve an investigation upon the merits of each. As there are disputes in the older places, there are likely to be more in new settlements and especially in mining camps where rights at first are not so well defined.

It appeared in evidence that after an application was made for an hydraulic lease, and before a lease was granted, and before the ground was formally closed to placer mining, there were applications for placer ground. It also appeared that some of those who procured placer claims, after attempting to dispose of them to the holders of an hydraulic location, abandoned these claims. Apparently there were always people ready to make entry, some no doubt for the purpose of bona fide mining, and some expecting to be bought off by the applicant for, or owner of, the concession.

The argument that free miners were ready and willing to apply for and work placer ground was forcibly put. As against that is the fact that the number of placer claims worked on these different concessions steadily decreased. In the Matson concession, the one in which there was by far the larger number of placer claims, between the 2nd of November, 1898, and the 17th of August, 1903, the number was reduced on Adams gulch from 49 to 27, and on Magnet gulch from 55 to 14.

It is said that there was no power to grant or agree to grant to leaseholders, abandoned claims; that there was no right to grant hydraulic leases until there was provided either by lessee or by the government, ground for tailings; that hydraulic leases should not be granted until the question of water supply had been determined; that leases should not be granted until the lessees had in hand sufficient capital to work, by hydraulic methods.

All these questions are beyond the scope of my commission as affecting the rights of parties respecting any particular concessions, but are of importance for the consideration of the department upon the question of benefit or injury to the mining industry of the territory.

The fact of these large concessions existing no doubt has a bad moral effect.

A miner, on the look out for a placer location, makes a discovery, and upon application, finds that this ground is not open, because it is within the territorial limits of a concession. This annoys him, and he spreads what he calls his grievance far and wide, creating dissatisfaction among miners. Others, without attempting to prospect or locate, say they cannot, because all the ground is covered by concessions, and men who never were and never intend to be miners join in the cry against concessions.

In reference to the benefit or injury of hydraulic concessions, I think it proper to make the following suggestions:—
1. It was stated by several witnesses that the conditions as to some of the concessions were unfavourable to carrying on hydraulic mining. Whatever may be said in support of such statements, I am of opinion that as long as the lessees continue to hold, the conditions of the lease should be strictly enforced, and that placer work or 'preparation work' should not be accepted in lieu of what can properly be called hydraulic work, or 'hydraulic operations.' An annual expenditure of $5,000 is very small for such large areas. If the conditions are not complied with, the lease should be cancelled.

2. In the case of ground which is, beyond dispute, unfit for placer mining, and eminently suitable for mining by hydraulic methods, the only reason warranting the leasing of large areas is that hydraulic operations may be carried on in an extensive way. Placer mining methods, if there is any land suitable, might be adopted for the first year, or two years at most, as prospect work, and to secure a dump, and pending water supply. This might be accepted as representation work for the year or two, but it should be promptly followed by work of the character and extent contemplated by the lease.

The regulations define the width of an hydraulic mining location as one mile; but where it is situated in a valley, the location may extend in width to 'the limits of the valley,' if so ordered by the minister. A very liberal construction has been placed upon the expression 'limits of the valley' as it has been held to mean from 'summit to summit' of the watershed on either side. I think that too wide; wider than the regulations were intended to authorize. Such location should not extend beyond the summit of the first or lowest hill on either side. It is too much to say that 'limits of the valley' in defining a location, should include a succession of hills and valleys between, leading up to the summit of the water-shed. The regulations should be amended.

These hydraulic concessions would be more beneficial to the mining industry of the territory if considerably smaller, or the conditions should require a much larger annual expenditure than $5,000.

In coming to the conclusion mentioned before, that in certain cases lessees had complied with the conditions of their leases, I did so because it was proper to consider, and I was bound to consider, the interpretation which the department had placed upon 'representation work' upon all the hydraulic concessions.

As in my opinion there was no fraud or misrepresentation by the applicants in procuring the leases, it was not necessary to mention the assignees.

In any case where a lease has been assigned to an innocent purchaser for value, without notice of anything such as is charged against applicants, and where the assignment has been assented to by the department, the assignee should be fully protected.

The assignee takes, subject to, and is liable for the performance of all the conditions of the lease. In respect to the performance of the conditions since the assignment was assented to, he is in no better position than the original lessee.

The protests are returned herewith and will be found in a separate parcel, but with the exhibits filed.

B. M. BRITTON, Commissioner.

LIST OF WORDS.

Bucket.—A vessel in which the wash-dirt is raised from the under-ground workings to the mouth of the shaft, and contains about ten pans.

Commutation.—The fee which at one time a claimholder might pay in lieu of work on his claim.

Draw.—A smaller ravine than a gulch.

Dump.—The material taken from the mine and piled up awaiting the time when it can be washed.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 142

Forks.—The junction of streams, spoken of as ‘right’ and ‘left’ looking up stream.

Giant or monitor.—An iron nozzle from which water conducted in pipes from an elevation is discharged under high pressure. This is used to wash down banks of gravel containing gold.

Grizzly.—A revolving cylinder containing a number of holes or a set of poles with spaces between, through or over which the gravel containing the gold is discharged and while the gold and fine material drop through into a sluice-box or other receptacle placed for their reception, the stones and coarse material is carried by the force of the water to the tailings.

Grub-stake.—A barely sufficient amount to support a miner while engaged in prospecting or mining.

Gulch.—A ravine tributary to a creek which may or may not contain a stream.

Gumbo.—A species of tough clay in which the particles of gold are sometimes found.

Lay.—An agreement between a claim-owner and miner, under which the miner works the claim or part of it and pays the owner a percentage of the gold obtained.

Limit.—The bank of a river or creek. Spoken of as ‘right’ or ‘left’ looking down stream.

Open-cut.—An open excavation of a claim as opposed to drifting or tunnelling.

Pan.—A shallow dish, with widely flaring sides, used by miners in separating the gold from the gravel by washing. This is the most primitive method of separation, and is chiefly confined to prospecting operations.

Prospect, a.—The amount of gold washed from a pan of gravel.

Prospect, to.—The work done by the miner in his efforts to find gold.

Pup.—Is a tributary to a creek which is not sufficiently large or important to be given a name.

Rim.—The line of out-crop of the bed-rock strata in the sides of the valley.

Representation.—The amount of work which a claim-holder must do each year on his claim in order to hold it.

Riffles.—Obstructions in a sluice-box for stopping the gold and preventing it from being carried away with the refuse.

Rocker.—A box with sloping sides, about six feet long, two feet wide, and 18 inches deep, placed on two rockers with a hopper into which the wash-dirt is shovelled and with screens underneath. While the miner keeps his rocker in motion with one hand he pours in water with the other, and so separates the gold from the refuse.

Sluice-head—means about fifty miners’ inches of water.

Sluice-box.—The flume or trough set at a grade for conducting a rapid current of water into which the wash-dirt is thrown and the gold separated from the refuse by the action of such water.

Skunk.—A pan of gravel which when washed out is found to contain no gold.

Stampede.—A rush of miners to an alleged new discovery of gold.

Tailings.—The gravel, stones and other debris resulting from washing operations.

Wash-dirt.—The name given to the sand, gravel or earth in which placer gold is found.

APPENDIX A.

I, Edmund Cumming Senkler, Gold Commissioner for the Yukon Territory, having been sworn before the Commission appointed to investigate the Treadgold and other concessions granted in the Yukon Territory, give my answers as set out below to certain questions given to me by the Honourable Mr. Justice Britton, the chairman of the Commission:

1. What was the output of gold from the Yukon Territory in the years 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902 and for the eight months to September 1st, 1903?

142—3
TREADGOLD CONCESSIONS

3-4 EDWARD VII, A. 1904

Answer: Exhibit 'A' hereto attached, sets out the output according to the royalty, collected to September 1st, of this year. The royalty for the output during the summer of 1898 was collected by the mining inspectors. From May, 1899, until August 31st, 1902, the royalty was collected by the officers and men of the North-west Mounted Police. From May 1st, 1902, up to the present time the royalty is collected by the comptroller, and no gold can be taken from the territory unless his receipt is produced that the royalty thereon has been paid. The result is that under the present system of collection a very small percentage of gold goes from the country upon which the royalty has not been paid. Before May, 1902, however, as the output of a claim was arrived at by the affidavit of the owner to the royalty collector, royalty was not paid on a very large percentage of the gold produced.

I would place the output in round numbers for the different years, as follows:—

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Output</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1898</td>
<td>$10,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1899</td>
<td>19,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1900</td>
<td>24,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1901</td>
<td>20,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1902</td>
<td>13,000,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1903</td>
<td>11,000,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

I arrive at these figures through information as to the volume of work going on in the district, the value of the ground worked, and the amount of gold received by the Seattle, San Francisco and other mints, from the Yukon Territory, reports of which are obtained yearly. Under these circumstances it is impossible to make an accurate estimate and the figures must be taken with a view of means by which they are arrived at.

2. If decreasing, to what do you attribute the decrease?

Answer: The output has steadily decreased since the year 1900, because the richer claims are pretty well worked out. This is especially so on Eldorado and Bonanza (the richest creeks in the territory), and to a considerable extent on Hunker, Dominion and Gold Run. The life of a 500-foot placer claim, if diligently worked, is from four to six years. To give an instance, number sixteen Eldorado, from which considerable more than one million was taken by the original owners, was sold this summer for $30,000. Again, during the last three years, no new strikes have been made to materially affect the output.

3. What is the entire number of placer mining claims granted in the territory bounded on the west by the Yukon river; on the north by the Klondike river; on the east by Flat creek and Dominion creek, and on the south by the Indian river?

Answer: Exhibit 'B' gives a detailed statement of the number of claims granted within the boundaries to which you refer. The claims granted before June 1st, 1898, have to be arrived at approximately as the office was very irregularly kept prior to that time. The number of claims granted were, approximately, 20,503.

4. What is the number of claims now in force and held by individuals or companies?

Answer: The number of claims in good standing on October 1st, 1903, within the aforementioned boundaries, was 6,673. A correct detailed statement of these will be found on exhibit 'C' hereto attached.

5. Of those so held what is the number of them being actually worked at the present time?

Answer: In order to answer this question I have to refer to the Mining Inspector's Report for the half year ending June 30th, 1903; from these reports, the number of claims that were working during those months was, approximately, 1,252. Exhibit 'D' hereto attached is a detailed statement. This, however, does not mean that they were all working continuously. It means that the mining inspectors found work going on on the claims to which they refer at some time during the six months their reports cover. Some would be working continuously, others only for a sufficient length of time to complete their representation work.

6. Have you considered the question, and, if so, in your opinion, should anything be done by the government (and if so, what) towards providing a water supply for mining on elevated grounds, which grounds, if worked at all, can only be worked with an artificial supply of water?

Answer: From general information I have received since I have been in the territory, I am of opinion there are numerous beds of gravel on the benches of Bonanza, Hunker, Dominion and Quartz creeks that can be worked profitably only by water supplied by gravitation on a large scale. I believe the best results would be obtained if the government undertook to supply the water. I refer exclusively to the benefit that would accrue to this district. I am not prepared to say that it would be advisable for the government to undertake such a large expenditure, as, in order to give a sufficiently large supply of water for all the creeks above mentioned, the total cost would be, according to the best information I can obtain, somewhere between two and three million pounds sterling. Mr. Beaudette, the government mining engineer, advises me the only practical means whereby a sufficient supply of water can be obtained by gravitation, is to bring water from a certain point on what is known as the Twelve-mile river (this river flows into the Yukon twelve miles below Dawson, but its source is within a short distance of the source of Flat creek) and convey it by ditches to a certain point on Rock creek (a tributary of the Klondike), then by means of ditches and syphons to Bonanza, Hunker, &c. These two creeks could supply from ten to fifteen thousand miners' inches, and it would cost, approximately, the amount above mentioned to complete the works for carrying this water to the creeks in question. It must be considered at the same time that the cost of repairs would be very great. The ditches would not only have to be repaired, but, owing to the extreme cold weather, the syphons would break from contraction, unless they were disjointed every spring. This would entail a large annual expenditure. For these reasons I doubt the advisability of the government undertaking such an expenditure.

7. From your experience as Gold Commissioner, and from your intercourse with individual free miners, can you give the members of this Commission any information on any question of fact, or any opinion, within the scope of this inquiry: if so, please state the same as fully as if particularly asked?

Answer: As to the Treadgold Ordinance of April, 1902, I am of opinion it should be changed as follows:—

(a.) He should not have an exclusive right to the water of the Klondike.

I have received figures from Mr. Beaudette, the government mining engineer, of the amount of water in the Klondike, close to Dawson. On June 15th, 1903, he estimated the total volume at 305,643 miners' inches; on August 15th, 1903, at 54,281 miners' inches. The second estimate was made when the water was at its lowest point in the history of the camp. To show how low it was, Mr. Beaudette tells me he measured the water on August 15th, 1901, and found slightly over 300,000 miners' inches. Of course, Mr. Treadgold may require a very large amount of water for generating power. I think it should be ascertained what he requires for his purposes, and he should be confined to that amount. This will not harm him, and it will satisfy the people, which is important. I doubt that any person else wants water from the Klondike, but applications have been made for it (whether bona fide or not I am unable to say), and if by any chance some person wants water from the Klondike in the future they should be given an opportunity to obtain it, subject to what has been given Mr. Treadgold. Mr. Treadgold cannot use more than, say 50,000 inches, there is always double this amount in the Klondike, with the exception of a few days when the season is unusually dry, as it was this summer, and the surplus water should be utilized if required by any person.

(b.) The government should regulate the rate at which he sells water to miners, as he might ask the miners to pay more than they could afford and thus compel them... to drop their claims. These claims would then revert to Treadgold under his Ordinance. In this way he might close them all out and acquire their property himself.

(c.) He should undertake to supply a certain amount on each of the creeks above mentioned, for the exclusive use of the miners, provided they require it and are ready to pay the rates fixed by the government. I would put the amount to be supplied at 2,000 inches for Bonanza, 1,000 inches for Hunker and smaller amounts for Dominion and Quartz, if it is possible for him to supply those creeks. I have no information as to whether this is practical as they are on the Indian river side of the Dome.

(d.) He should be compelled to have his works completed within a certain period, as the country requires water as soon as it can possibly be supplied, and he should proceed with his work promptly and diligently, and the miners will know how long they will have to wait. How long he should be given is a question that should be answered by an engineer who could figure how long it would take to complete the work if it were started without delay and pursued with diligence until its completion.

(e.) The miners who buy water should supply boxes and flumes to carry water from Treadgold’s stations or ditches to their claims; unless this is provided for disputes will arise.

(f.) The points on the different creeks to which the water is to be carried by Treadgold should be fixed.

If these changes were made, I think the government would make the best possible arrangement for the miners of the territory, and they would have nothing to complain of as they are amply protected, and Treadgold could not freeze them out. As the Ordinance now stands they are afraid they would be frozen out, and they would have to drop their claims, as I have stated above. I am of opinion that there is reason in this, as the maximum rate fixed by the present Ordinance is more than any miner can pay. This, however, has reference to claims that cannot be profitably worked without help from some outside source for water supply.

As to his obtaining a title to reverted claims when his work is completed. I see no objection to this, as, by the time he is ready to supply water, all claims that can be worked by ordinary placer methods will be worked out (at least, with very few exceptions), and as he cannot obtain title to those claims until his work is completed, miners can easily anticipate where the water ditch is going, and can stake any desirable ground before Treadgold is ready to supply water; and, if Treadgold spends all the money necessary to carry out his scheme, it seems to me reasonable that he should be allowed a concession of this kind, as by the time he is ready to supply water the ground will be of little or no use to individual miners, but may be of immense profit to a large concern. The worst feature of Treadgold’s obtaining these claims is, that it is very unpopular amongst the miners in general. This feeling, however, will, I think, gradually diminish as they find the ground is of little value for their purposes.

The above changes would, I consider, be an improvement, but the Treadgold Ordinance, as it now stands, if carried out, would be an immense benefit to this district, and would be a means of largely increasing the yearly output.

As to the Bronson and Ray, Boyle, Doyle and Matson concessions, I am of opinion there is very little ground that could be worked profitably by placer methods, but they should be made to comply with the provisions set out in their leases.

The Miller creek concession, held by the North American Transportation and Trading Company, is the only concession upon which work has been done to show that they intend to hydraulic. I am informed by Mr. Beaudette, who was there about three weeks ago, that they were preparing large ditches for the conduct of water to their ground, and that over eighty men were working on the ditch when he was there.

From my experience I am of opinion that in future the government should grant hydraulic concessions only on creeks that have been abandoned by placer miners. This is the only evidence that can be relied upon as to the ground being not fit for placer mining. Unexplored ground should not be granted in such large blocks, as it might turn out very valuable, and granting hydraulic concessions on creeks upon which placer mining is going on is bound to create friction with the miners, and the fact that placer mining is going on is an indication that the ground is too valuable for an hydraulic concession.

E. C. SENKLER,
Gold Commissioner, Y.T.

EXHIBIT 'A' TO EXAMINATION OF E. C. SENKLER.
GOLD OUTPUT.
From 13th May, 1898, to 31st October, 1898.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Total Production</th>
<th>Exemption</th>
<th>Royalty Paid</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>$</td>
<td>cts.</td>
<td>$</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grand Forks.</td>
<td>37344898</td>
<td>50</td>
<td>71243</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion.</td>
<td>7085</td>
<td>00</td>
<td>54355</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunker.</td>
<td>239066</td>
<td>50</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>4077390</td>
<td>40</td>
<td>125590</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

From 1st November, 1898, to 31st October, 1899.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Total Production</th>
<th>Exemption</th>
<th>Royalty Paid</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>$</td>
<td>cts.</td>
<td>$</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grand Forks.</td>
<td>54621335</td>
<td>15</td>
<td>1069302</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion.</td>
<td>1154966</td>
<td>60</td>
<td>3000000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunker.</td>
<td>5389388</td>
<td>60</td>
<td>2350000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dawson.</td>
<td>21986434</td>
<td>83</td>
<td>3625000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>92526748</td>
<td>38</td>
<td>19486202</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

From 1st November, 1899, to 31st October, 1900.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Total Production</th>
<th>Exemption</th>
<th>Royalty Paid</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>$</td>
<td>cts.</td>
<td>$</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grand Forks.</td>
<td>61350239</td>
<td>66</td>
<td>1144549</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion.</td>
<td>15722747</td>
<td>47</td>
<td>3875000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunker.</td>
<td>16556299</td>
<td>73</td>
<td>3957960</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sulphur.</td>
<td>57873279</td>
<td>79</td>
<td>1715000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gold Run.</td>
<td>25684482</td>
<td>82</td>
<td>1234200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dawson.</td>
<td>12225765</td>
<td>87</td>
<td>1741566</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>115137441</td>
<td>31</td>
<td>2396925</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

From 1st November, 1900, to 31st October, 1901.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Total Production</th>
<th>Exemption</th>
<th>Royalty Paid</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>$</td>
<td>cts.</td>
<td>$</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grand Forks.</td>
<td>58473289</td>
<td>43</td>
<td>1128833</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion.</td>
<td>16089038</td>
<td>90</td>
<td>3813000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunker.</td>
<td>18107066</td>
<td>36</td>
<td>4429168</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sulphur.</td>
<td>36370371</td>
<td>79</td>
<td>1503000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gold Run.</td>
<td>76145974</td>
<td>74</td>
<td>1628000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eureka.</td>
<td>2434518</td>
<td>18</td>
<td>185000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dawson.</td>
<td>34303587</td>
<td>57</td>
<td>900000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hootalinqua.</td>
<td>16316538</td>
<td>59</td>
<td>250000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Whitehorse.</td>
<td>38400</td>
<td>00</td>
<td>50000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Forty-Mile.</td>
<td>169800</td>
<td>00</td>
<td>50000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>96688065</td>
<td>76</td>
<td>2375281</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

From 1st November, 1901, to 1st May, 1902.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>Total Production</th>
<th>Exemption</th>
<th>Royalty Paid</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>$</td>
<td>cts.</td>
<td>$</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grand Forks.</td>
<td>28500</td>
<td>87</td>
<td>100000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunker.</td>
<td>22560</td>
<td>00</td>
<td>100000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sulphur.</td>
<td>9062</td>
<td>15</td>
<td>50000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dawson.</td>
<td>3017217</td>
<td>37</td>
<td>300000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>361554</td>
<td>29</td>
<td>550000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
RECAPITULATION.

Gold output, Yukon Territory, from 13th May, 1898, to 1st May, 1902.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Location</th>
<th>Total Production</th>
<th>Exemption</th>
<th>Royalty Paid</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Grand Forks</td>
<td>21,308,447 01</td>
<td>3,457,914 64</td>
<td>1,558,224 75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion</td>
<td>3,881,288 27</td>
<td>1,068,500 00</td>
<td>237,044 75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunker</td>
<td>3,941,900 99</td>
<td>1,138,666 26</td>
<td>152,268 86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sulphur</td>
<td>957,756 73</td>
<td>326,569 00</td>
<td>51,568 84</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dawson</td>
<td>4,063,356 84</td>
<td>650,666 66</td>
<td>324,420 68</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gold Run</td>
<td>1,712,325 56</td>
<td>285,329 00</td>
<td>110,660 59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hootalinqua</td>
<td>10,518 59</td>
<td>2,500 00</td>
<td>801 83</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eureka</td>
<td>24,945 18</td>
<td>19,421 00</td>
<td>342 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Whitehorse</td>
<td>6,840 00</td>
<td>5,000 00</td>
<td>599 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Forty-Mile</td>
<td>16,988 00</td>
<td>5,000 00</td>
<td>599 00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>34,974,799 17</td>
<td>6,940,517 56</td>
<td>2,426,254 93</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

E. C. SENKLER.

The following is the output for the Yukon Territory, as compiled from the royalty export tax book, for the dates given, viz.:

- From May 1st, 1902, to April 30th, 1903: $12,184,660 59
- From May 1st, 1903, to August 31st, 1903: 6,973,804 15

Total output: $19,158,464 75

G. I. MacLEAN,
Royalty Clerk.
TREADGOLD CONCESSIONS

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 142

EXHIBIT 'B' TO EXAMINATION OF E. C. SENKLER.

List showing number of Claims Recorded in the Dawson District during the following months:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Month</th>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Number of Grants</th>
<th>Month</th>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Number of Grants</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>June</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>419</td>
<td>Brought forward</td>
<td></td>
<td>11,481</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>July</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>596</td>
<td>April</td>
<td>1901</td>
<td>788</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>August</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>894</td>
<td>June</td>
<td>1901</td>
<td>247</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>September</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>969</td>
<td>August</td>
<td>1901</td>
<td>217</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>October</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>830</td>
<td>September</td>
<td>1901</td>
<td>223</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>November</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>577</td>
<td>October</td>
<td>1901</td>
<td>429</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>December</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>527</td>
<td>November</td>
<td>1901</td>
<td>395</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>January</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>597</td>
<td>December</td>
<td>1901</td>
<td>202</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>February</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>614</td>
<td>January</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>197</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>March</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>693</td>
<td>February</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>229</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>April</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>525</td>
<td>March</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>159</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>May</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>382</td>
<td>April</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>154</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>June</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>290</td>
<td>May</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>139</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>July</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>221</td>
<td>June</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>August</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>261</td>
<td>July</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>193</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>September</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>179</td>
<td>July</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>106</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>October</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>63</td>
<td>August</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>387</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>November</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>52</td>
<td>September</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>108</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>December</td>
<td>1898</td>
<td>34</td>
<td>October</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>47</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>January</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>22</td>
<td>November</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>193</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>February</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>24</td>
<td>December</td>
<td>1902</td>
<td>115</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>March</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>29</td>
<td>January</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>34</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>April</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>36</td>
<td>February</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>May</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>25</td>
<td>March</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>June</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>22</td>
<td>April</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>July</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>67</td>
<td>May</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>53</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>August</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>116</td>
<td>June</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>46</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>September</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>64</td>
<td>July</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>28</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>October</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>302</td>
<td>August</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>November</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>424</td>
<td>September</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>51</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>December</td>
<td>1900</td>
<td>762</td>
<td>Brought forward</td>
<td></td>
<td>16,753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>January</td>
<td>1901</td>
<td>262</td>
<td>January</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>68</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>February</td>
<td>1901</td>
<td>191</td>
<td>February</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>68</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>March</td>
<td>1901</td>
<td>484</td>
<td>March</td>
<td>1903</td>
<td>68</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Carried forward</td>
<td></td>
<td>11,481</td>
<td>Total number of Placer claims recorded in the Klondike District since 1st June, 1898</td>
<td></td>
<td>16,753</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Approximate number of claims recorded prior to 1st June, 1898:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Creek/Region</th>
<th>Number</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bonanza creek</td>
<td>200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eldorado creek</td>
<td>160</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eldorado tributaries</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bonanza tributaries</td>
<td>400</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bench claims, Bonanza</td>
<td>400</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eldoro</td>
<td>400</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion</td>
<td>350</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion tributaries</td>
<td>300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunker and tributaries</td>
<td>500</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bear</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bear tributaries</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>All Gold</td>
<td>200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lucky</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

On additional creeks and tributaries | 3,050 |

Grand total | 20,803 |
EXHIBIT 'C' to EXAMINATION OF E. C. SENKLER.

List showing number of Claims situated in the Klondike District, which were in good standing on the 1st October, 1903.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Record.</th>
<th>Number of Claims.</th>
<th>Record.</th>
<th>Number of Claims.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bonanza, No. 1</td>
<td>249</td>
<td>Brought forward</td>
<td>3,613</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 2</td>
<td>150</td>
<td>Sulphur, No. 1</td>
<td>198</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 3</td>
<td>67</td>
<td>&quot;  2</td>
<td>91</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 4</td>
<td>85</td>
<td>&quot;  3</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 5</td>
<td>140</td>
<td>&quot;  Hillsides</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 6</td>
<td>107</td>
<td>&quot;  Dominion, No. 1</td>
<td>245</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 7</td>
<td>116</td>
<td>&quot;  2</td>
<td>118</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 8</td>
<td>184</td>
<td>&quot;  3</td>
<td>87</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 9</td>
<td>17</td>
<td>&quot;  4</td>
<td>129</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 10</td>
<td>163</td>
<td>&quot;  5</td>
<td>136</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 11</td>
<td>153</td>
<td>&quot;  6</td>
<td>149</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 12</td>
<td>69</td>
<td>&quot;  7</td>
<td>180</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>El-orado, No. 1</td>
<td>207</td>
<td>Gold Run, No. 1</td>
<td>122</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 2</td>
<td>70</td>
<td>&quot;  2</td>
<td>21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 3</td>
<td>80</td>
<td>&quot;  3</td>
<td>77</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>French Hill, No. 1</td>
<td>113</td>
<td>Indian river</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>All Gold and tributaries</td>
<td>141</td>
<td>Hunker tributaries</td>
<td>224</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunker, No. 1</td>
<td>207</td>
<td>Dominion tributaries</td>
<td>165</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 2</td>
<td>70</td>
<td>Klondike tributaries, &amp;c.</td>
<td>195</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 3</td>
<td>191</td>
<td>Gay gulch</td>
<td>25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 4</td>
<td>167</td>
<td>Lindow</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>L. L. Hyd. Res., No. 5</td>
<td>121</td>
<td>Everett group</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>R. L. &quot; 6</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>Klon. Bon. Res. group</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Last Chance, No. 1</td>
<td>136</td>
<td>Chief gulch</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 2</td>
<td>71</td>
<td>Benches on All Gold, No. 1</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 3</td>
<td>126</td>
<td>&quot;  2</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gold Bottom, No. 1</td>
<td>163</td>
<td>French gulch</td>
<td>42</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 2</td>
<td>29</td>
<td>Bear creek</td>
<td>54</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Quartz creek and tributaries, No. 1</td>
<td>114</td>
<td>Total</td>
<td>6,673</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;  &quot; 2</td>
<td>71</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Carried forward</td>
<td>3,613</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

E. C. SENKLER.

EXHIBIT 'D' TO EXAMINATION OF E. C. SENKLER.

The following is the number of claims working in the districts given below, as reported by the several mining inspectors for the six months ending 30th June, 1903.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>District</th>
<th>Number of Claims Working.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bonanza</td>
<td>525</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hunker</td>
<td>372</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion</td>
<td>166</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gold Run</td>
<td>103</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sulphur</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1,252</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

E. C. SENKLER.
APPENDIX B.

ANSWERS BY R. G. McCONNELL.

Q. You are a member of the staff of the Geological Survey of Canada, and for several years have been engaged in making a topographical survey and in investigating the economic geology of the Yukon gold fields?

A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been engaged in this work?

A. I have been working in the Yukon district since 1898. Part of the season of 1899 and the whole of 1903 were spent in the Klondike gold fields and the immediate vicinity.

Q. Are you acquainted with the district comprised within the Treadgold concession?

A. The area covered by the Treadgold concession forms part of the district known as the Klondike gold fields, and was included in the general investigation.

Q. Describe briefly the topographical features of the district and of the adjoining country so far as it bears on the water supply question?

A. The Klondike region may be described as a high plateau, thoroughly dissected by numerous deep and wide branching valleys. The general aspect, viewed from one of the higher elevations, is rough and hilly but fairly regular. The outlines are rounded, the slopes even and sharp peaks are notably absent. The region really consists of a system of long, round-backed ridges, separated by wide, flat-bottomed valleys. Most of the ridges, speaking broadly, centre in the Dome, the highest eminence of the district.

The ridges have an average elevation above the valley bottoms of 1,500 feet. They are deeply gashed on both sides by steep gulches, and are surmounted by numerous bare, rounded prominences, separated by wide depressions. They radiate out in irregular curved lines from the Dome, and descend gradually throwing off branches at intervals toward the main water courses.

The elevation of the ridges and surmounting hills is fairly uniform. The Dome has an elevation of about 4,250 feet above the sea, 3,050 above the Yukon at Dawson, and about 500 feet above the ridges at its base. It is not conspicuously higher than the other hills in the neighbourhood, and the gradual decrease in elevation outwards along the ridges is scarcely noticeable to the eye.

The valleys separating the ridges are wide and flat-bottomed in their lower portion, but narrow towards their heads into steep-sided gulches. The streams are all small, the volumes of Hunker and Bonanza creeks at summer level along the central portion of their valleys being often less than 200 inches each.

The Klondike district proper, except in the south-east corner, is isolated from the surrounding country by wide valleys. It is bounded on the south by the valley of Indian river, on the west by the Yukon, on the north by the Klondike, and on the east by Flat creek plain, a depression ten to fifteen miles in width which extends north-westward from Stewart river across the Klondike to Twelve Mile river and beyond, and separates the Klondike hills where water is needed from the Ogilive range, the source of the supply. It is this feature in the topography of the country which renders the establishment of a water supply system for the camp such a difficult and expensive undertaking. The plain is underlaid by soft tertiary deposits, is easily eroded and all streams crossing or running parallel with it have cut out great valleys, the bottoms of which are usually below the level at which water requires to be delivered. The elevation of the plain at the summit between the Klondike and Stewart rivers is about 3,400 feet, and of the summit between the Klondike and Twelve Mile river of about 2,500 feet.
Schemes have been proposed for supplying the camp with water from the upper main Klondike, or one of its upper southern tributaries; from Rock creek, one of the lower northern tributaries; and from Twelve Mile river, the first large stream entering the Yukon north of the Klondike.

The Klondike river heads in the Ogilvie range, and after issuing from it flows westward across the Flat creek plain, and then skirts the Klondike hills to its junction with the Yukon at Dawson. The grade of the main valley up to Flat creek, a distance of 27 miles, averages about 16 feet to the mile, and from Flat creek to the Ogilvie range it is nearly the same but increases after entering the mountain. Assuming the elevation at Dawson at the mouth of the Klondike at 1,200 feet, water to hydraulic the hill gravels at the mouths of Hunker and Bonanza creeks requires to be furnished at an elevation of 1,800 feet, and at Bonanza Forks of 2,100 feet. To obtain this elevation with water from the upper Klondike, or its upper southern tributaries, the intake must necessarily be situated deep in the Ogilvie range, and the supply siphoned, piped or siphoned across the long stretch of broken, mountainous country, then siphoned across a part, if not the whole, of the Flat creek depression before the border of the Klondike hills is reached. Afterward it could be led along the ridge separating the Klondike from Hunker creek until a favourable point is reached for piercing this ridge without a long tunnel. To supply Bonanza creek from the same source many additional miles of piping and fluming, or a second long tunnel would be necessary. The total length of a supply system from the upper Klondike cannot be given as the contours of the Ogilvie range are only imperfectly known, but would probably be at least 70 miles, and inverted siphons would be necessary for a considerable proportion of the whole distance. The feasibility of the scheme seems doubtful on account of the great expense involved.

The Rock creek scheme, although also expensive, appears to present fewer difficulties. This stream enters into the Klondike from the north 4 miles above the mouth of Hunker creek. Its grade is steep, amounting to 50 feet or more to the mile, and the necessary elevation is attained in less than 20 miles, before the stream reaches the mountains, but above its forks. About 30 miles of piping, fluming or ditching, and one long tunnel at least are required to bring the water from the intake to the northern bank of the Klondike valley, and an inverted siphon a mile and a half to two miles in length would be necessary to bring it across the valley to a distributing point. The branch of Rock creek which it is proposed to divert is small and cannot be depended on to give a steady supply of more than 1,000 to 1,500 inches. To obtain a larger supply it will be necessary to collect by a system of flumes or ditches the water from the two other branches of Rock creek. Water can also be turned into Rock creek above the proposed intake from Spotted Fawn creek, a tributary of Twelve Mile river, and also possibly from the north fork of the Klondike. 4,000 to 5,000 inches at least could be obtained from Rock creek and Spotted Fawn during low water, and much more in spring and autumn. An additional supply, it is claimed, can also be obtained from the north fork of the Klondike.

Twelve Mile river, like the Klondike, heads in the Ogilvie range and crosses the northern continuation of the Flat creek depression on its way to the Yukon. Water can be obtained from upper tributaries of this stream at a sufficient height to place it on the divide between Twelve Mile and the Klondike, from which point it would follow the same general course as the Rock creek supply. I am not personally acquainted with the details of the upper Twelve Mile topography and cannot, therefore, offer an opinion as the practical feasibility of this scheme. A heavy expenditure for pipes, siphons and tunnels would be necessary as in the other schemes.

It will be seen from the foregoing statement that while it is possible to obtain water for hydrauliciking the Klondike gravels from streams flowing from the Ogilvie range, the installation of an adequate supply system on account of the irregular character of the topography must necessarily be a costly undertaking, and if in addition to the high initial expense, the shortness of the season and the rapid deterioration of the plant, due to the severe climatic conditions are taken into consideration, it follows that cheap water as it is understood in other regions cannot be expected in the Klondike.

Q. What are the nature and characteristics of the gold-bearing gravels?

(a) What are the alluvial deposits of the region, and which of them are workable by hydraulicking?

A. The alluvial gravels of the region, beginning with the youngest, consist of:—

1. The creek and gulch gravels.—These gravels bottom all the creeks and gulches of the district. Their thickness varies from 5 to 15 feet, and they are always buried beneath an overburden of black muck from 5 to 20 feet thick.

2. Creek terrace gravels.—The terrace gravels occur on narrow benches cut into the sides of the valley between the level of the creek gravels and the high level bench gravels. The terrace gravels are not continuous along the valley and occur at irregular heights. The area they cover is comparatively small, and they have been mostly worked out.

3. High level river gravels.—These gravels occur on the hills near the junction of Bonanza, Bear and Hunker creeks with the Klondike river at an elevation of from 400 feet to 700 feet above the present valley bottoms. They consist mainly of rounded pebbles, of slate, chert, quartzite granite, diabase, etc., mostly derived from the Ogilive range, embedded in a matrix of grayish sand. They overlie the high level creek gravels near the mouths of the creeks. These gravels have not proved rich enough to work by the old methods, but in selected spots might pay to hydraulic.

4. The high level creek gravels (White channel gravels).—This important deposit is described farther on.

The relationship of the various gravels can be readily understood from the following diagram drawn across the valley of Bonanza creek and the plateau between Bonanza creek and Klondike river.

The terrace gravels and the high level creek gravels are workable by hydraulicking. The high level river gravels are not generally auriferous, but as they cover the auriferous White channel gravels in places they will require to be removed before the latter can be worked.

(b) Describe, and if possible, subdivide the older high grade gravels.

The principal high level auriferous gravels consist of the deposit variously known as the quartz drift, white wash, or White channel gravels. I will use the latter name.

The White channel gravels are ancient creek deposits laid down in the wide, flat-bottomed valleys which characterized the region previous to the last general upraise. After their deposition the country was elevated 600 to 700 feet, and the increased grades acquired by the streams enabled them to cut down through their old gravel beds into the bed-rock beneath and to excavate the steep-sided, trough-like valleys in which they now run. The old gravels now occur on wide benches bordering the present valleys, and at elevations of from 150 feet to 300 feet above them, the elevations decreasing generally up stream. The distribution along the valley is irregular, as they were partially destroyed during the deepening of the main valley and the tributary valleys and gulches.

The White channel gravels occur on benches along Bonanza and Hunker creeks and some of their tributaries, and are also found on Bear, Quartz, All Gold and Nine-mile creeks. The distribution of the various areas in the Treadgold concession is shown on the accompanying map.

The White channel gravels consist essentially of a compact matrix of small, clear, little worn and often sharply angular grains of quartz, and scales of sericite, thickly packed with rounded quartz pebbles and rounded and sub-angular and wedge-shaped quartz boulders often 2 to 3 feet in diameter. Flat and sub-angular pebbles of sericite schist, the principal country rock of the district, are also present, but in much smaller numbers than the quartz constituents. The schist pebbles are usually more or less decomposed and often crumble away when thawed out. The deposit is always more or less stratified, but except in rare instances there has been no sorting of the various constituents into separate beds, and the composition is very uniform throughout. The colour is characteristically white or light-gray, due to the preponderance of the quartz constituents and the leaching out of the iron.

In some places the white gravels are overlain by what are known as yellow gravels. The latter consists mainly of flattened schist pebbles, lying in a sandy often iron-stained matrix. Quartz pebbles are also present, but are relatively much less important than in the white gravels, and the gold values are also much less. On Gold Hill, Chechako Hill, and other places, the white gravels are heaped up in a wide ridge near the present valley, with the yellow gravels filling the depression behind in the manner shown in the following section.

The White channel gravels taken as a whole almost rival in importance the creek gravels of the district. They are everywhere more or less auriferous, and in places a pay streak a thousand feet or more in width has paid to work by the expensive drifting method. Some of the richest places are reported to have averaged over whole claims a yield of over $90 to the superficial yard, while values of from $20 to $40 per square yard of surface were common.

The distribution of the gold in the White channel gravels follows the usual rule. It is mostly concentrated in the lower three to five feet of gravel and the underlying one to two feet of bed-rock. The bed-rock is not shattered so badly as in the present creek channel, and the gold does not descend so far. The bed-rock is usually more or less decomposed, and the schist pebbles in the gravel are affected in the same way. This probably means that the deposit was laid down in an unfrozen condition and continued so for a long period. The decomposition of the schist and the leaching out of the greater part of the iron must be attributed to the circulation of surface waters, a process which necessarily stopped when the deposit became frozen. The upper surface of the pay gravels is more irregular than in the case of the creek gravels and in some instances the pay has been followed upwards 8 to 10 feet or more above bed-rock. The gravels in the principal claims on Paradise Hill on Hunker creek are barren, or nearly so, on bed-rock, and the principal pay is found in the gravel 6 to 10 feet above it. The lower barren gravels at this point consist almost entirely of quartz pebbles, and the overlying pay gravel of quartz and schist pebbles showing two periods of deposition.

The principal pay in the White channel gravels, as stated above, is found at, or near, bed-rock; but gold in some quantity occurs throughout the whole formation, and it is this fact which gives it such great importance. It costs at least $4 per cubic yard to mine and sluice the hill gravels in the ordinary way, but Mr. Coffee has shown on Fox gulch that even with a small plant the cost of hydraulicling them is less than one-tenth of this amount. With a larger plant and a steady supply of water this cost could be greatly reduced. Under present methods only the richer part of the pay streak yields enough to cover mining expenses; and these are already largely worked out. If water at reasonable rates, and in sufficient quantities for hydraulicling on a large scale could be obtained, enough work has already been done to show beyond reasonable doubt that a large proportion, if not the whole mass of these deposits would pay to work, and a lasting industry be established.

(c.) Which of the subdivisions are of the greatest economic value?

The White channel gravels are the most important of the high level deposits. These gravels, as described in a previous paragraph, consist of two divisions, namely, the White gravels proper, which are always more or less auriferous and the overlying yellow gravels, which contain some gold, but have not so far proved of economic value. The latter have a limited distribution principally along the central portion of Bonanza valley, and have not been separated from the white gravel on the accompanying map. The high level river gravels are barren, or nearly so, where they overlie the White channel gravels near the mouths of Bonanza and Hunker creeks, but contain some gold in spots at least along the lower part of the Klondike valley.

(d.) Give the approximate extent of the older high level gravels on Bonanza and Hunker creeks.
The White Channel gravels, including both the white gravels and the overlying yellow gravels, cover a total area on Bonanza creek and its tributaries of approximately 2,372 square miles. The thickness of the deposit is very variable, ranging from a few feet to 140 feet. The average thickness along the whole creek probably exceeds 30 feet.

The white gravels near the mouth of Bonanza valley are buried beneath an old deposit of high level river gravels 160 feet thick over an area of about half a square mile.

On Hunker creek and its tributaries the auriferous White channel gravels cover a total area of approximately 3,250 square miles. The deposit is not so thick as on Bonanza creek; it will probably average over 60 feet. It is covered near the mouth of the valley with a patch of high level river gravels about half a square mile in extent.

Q. To what extent would the installation of an efficient permanent water supply reclaim by hydraulic mining low grade ground at present unworkable and lying idle throughout the gold fields?

A. This question cannot be answered in figures, as it is not known at what price water can be delivered, and no systematic prospecting of the whole field with this end in view has been done or indeed can be done except at great expense. The values are everywhere irregular, so much so that in one sense it can hardly be said that a claim is thoroughly prospected until it is all worked out. In places also the auriferous gravels are buried beneath an accumulation of barren material, which must all be removed before the former can be reached. The total volume of White channel gravel on Bonanza creek and its tributaries amounts to approximately 250,000,000 cubic yards, and on Hunker creek and its tributaries to 200,000,000 cubic yards. All of this gravel contains some gold, and in places along the rim it has proved rich enough to hydraulic with the small intermittent stream at present available, and even in exceptional cases with water pumped up from the creeks. If water can be delivered at rates even remotely approaching those of regions more favourably situated climatically there is little doubt that a large proportion of the whole deposit would pay to hydraulic. It is impossible, however, to assert just what this proportion would be, as there are still too many unknown factors in the case. The gravels are easily hydraulicicked, the duty of a miner's inch even with a small stream amounting to nearly 7 cubic yards per day of 24 hours. At this rate 5,000 miners' inches working continuously throughout a Klondike season of 120 days would wash 4,200,000 cubic yards.

Q. What other conditions are necessary to establish hydraulicicking of the low grade levels of the territory?

A. Besides the introduction of an adequate water supply, the only other conditions necessary are a consolidation of the claims into groups and possession of the valley bottoms for dumping grounds. The latter will, however, not be generally available for this purpose for some years yet, not until the creek gravels are thoroughly exhausted.

Q. Describe the evolution of mining practice in the Yukon gold fields.

(a.) What was the ordinary method (or methods) of placer mining in 1898?

A. Creek claims were worked in 1898 either by sinking and drifting, or by what is known as open cut work. In the first method, shafts were sunk to bed rock and the pay gravel drifted out around the foot of the shaft, hoisted to the surface and sluiced. In the second method the muck overburden, invariably present in all the valleys, was got rid of by diverting the stream usually during the spring flood and leading it by several channels across the claim. The muck thaws readily, and the streams soon cut through it down to the gravel, and then gradually widen their channels until they meet. The process was hastened at times by blowing down the sides of the muck channels with black powder. After the removal of the muck and the exposure of the underlying sands and gravels to the atmosphere, the latter soon thaws down to bed rock. The barren material was then removed usually by hand and piled up where most convenient, and the pay gravel and bed rock beneath shielded into lines of sluice boxes. The open cut method led to a more complete extraction of the gold, but was too expensive to be used where the barren overburden of muck and gravel exceeded 10 to 15 feet in thickness.

The general system of mining the creek claims employed in 1898 has changed very little, but the plant used in entirely different. In 1898 wood fires or heated stones were still largely used for thawing gravel. These have now been altogether superseded by steam thowers and small pumps. The hand windlass has been replaced by steam hoist, working with self-dumping buckets, and scrapers are used instead of the shovel and wheelbarrow of early days to remove the waste in open cuts. On many of the claims the water for sluicing purposes instead of being flumed from a point up the creek distant enough to give the required grade, is now pumped up, and the sluice boxes are placed high enough to carry the tailings where required. The employment of steam power and machinery in place of hand labour have reduced the ordinary expenses of mining nearly one-half and given value to long stretches of gravel on the various creeks formerly too low grade to work.

The equipment required to work a creek placer claim at the present time by the drifting method, where the water for sluicing is pumped up, consists of a 35 to 50 H. P. boiler for furnishing power, a hoist and self-dumping bucket worked by an 8 to 10 H. P. engine, a centrifugal pump, with a 6-inch discharge for elevating water for sluicing driven by a 15 H. P. engine, and a small Worthington pump with a 3-inch discharge, an inch nozzle for thawing, or a set of points when the thawing is done by steam. The installation of this plant usually costs from $5,000 to $8,000. The operating expenses on an ordinary claim, with one shift and night thawing amount to about $100 per day, and from 50 to 60 cubic yards of material are mined and sluiced daily.

In a few claims in the district the mining methods are different from those described above. A dredge, originally intended for work on the bars of the Lewes river, has been operating on Bonanza creek for the last three seasons. The work done has shown that where the gravels are completely thawed they can be worked very cheaply by dredging, but where frost is encountered thawing as in the other methods, must be resorted to. In dredging also the bed-rock is not seen, and there is always some uncertainty in regard to the completeness of the recovery of the gold. Where the bed-rock is hard and blocky the gold often sinks down along the jointage and bedding planes to a depth of from 3 to 5 feet, and part of it must almost necessarily be left behind. In soft-bed rock it is probable that the recovery of the gold is nearly complete, as it does not sink so deep and the material containing it is easily removed.

Steam shovels are being used on several claims in the district, and where the conditions are suitable they handle the gravels in certain kinds of bed-rock cheaply and effectually. The overlying muck requires to be sluiced off in the ordinary way, and the gravel must be thawed out.

Another attempt at cheap mining on the creeks worth mentioning introduces the hydraulicking principle, but is still only in the experimental stage. On Gold Run creek a couple of claims have been equipped with long, China pumps and bucket elevators. The pump, and gravel elevator, each about 70 feet in length, rest in a sump excavated 12 to 14 feet in bed-rock. The gravels are washed into the sump by a stream of water under small pressure and are carried up by the bucket-elevator and dumped into the sluice boxes. The China pump elevates the water used in hydraulicking, and it serves again to wash the gravels.

(b) What was the practice on the hills?

The hill gravels in 1898 were worked along the edge of the valley from tunnels drifted along the bed-rock and farther back from shafts often over 100 feet deep sunk down to bed-rock. The pay gravels taken out were washed in rockers, except in a couple of places, where they were trammed down to the creek and sluiced. Mining on the hills has benefited by the introduction of machinery and also by the utilization of several small tributary streams which furnish water for sluicing for a few weeks.
in spring and autumn. A number of attempts have been made to pump water from the creeks to sluice the hill gravels, but the high price of fuel has led, in most cases, to financial failure. The electric power company at the present time pump water up at several points and sell it for sluicing purposes at from $7 to $8 per sluice head per hour.

Hydraulicking in a small way has been attempted at several points on the hills, both with gravity water and water pumped up from the creeks. The pumping method has not, so far, proved successful, except where the gravels are extremely rich; but where cheap gravity water is obtainable the results have been very good. The Anglo-Klondike Company, under the management of Mr. Coffee, have been operating successfully for a couple of seasons two small hydraulic plants, one on Fox gulch and the other above Boulder creek, about 3 miles above its mouth. A supply of about 200 inches is available for a few weeks in the spring and fall, and is delivered under a head of nearly 300 feet. In Mr. Coffee's report to his company, for 1902, it is stated that in a run of 22 days, 29,000 cubic yards were sluiced, and that the actual hydraulicking cost was under 15 cents per yard. The total operating expenses, including cost of plant and cleaning bed-rock, amounted to 35 cents per cubic yard, or $1.96 per square yard of bed-rock. In the same report it is stated that the actual cost of mining and sluicing by the ordinary drifting method amounted to $5.85 per square yard of surface. No allowance is apparently made in the statement for the original cost of the water right and plume. This comparison is, however, scarcely fair to the drifting method, as the hydraulicking operations were carried on around the rim where the gravels are thin and the tailings easily disposed of. When the deeper portions of the deposit are attacked the cost per square yard of surface will necessarily be greater. The increased cost may, however, be compensated for by the greater amount of gold recovered, as it is known that the gravels contain some values throughout.

The demonstration of the feasibility of hydraulicking successfully the frozen hill gravels is important, but under present circumstances can only be taken advantage of to a very limited extent as the available local supply of gravity water is small and intermittent and only available at a few points.

(d.) Would the expensive systems of drifting, stoping and tunnelling now adopted in many mines be included in any definition of placer mining five years ago; or, in other words, has the practice of placer mining been extended by the methods of working adopted during the past five years?

This question is answered in the previous paragraphs. The actual mining methods, so far as the laying out of the work is concerned, have changed, speaking generally, very little, and the principal improvement has been in the substitution of machinery for hand labour. Several small hydraulic plants have been installed for working the hill gravels, the water being obtained in some cases by gravity and in others requiring to be pumped up; but operations by this method cannot be undertaken on a scale commensurate with the importance of the deposits until a large additional supply of water is available.

APPENDIX C.

ANSWERS BY A. J. BEAUDETTE.

I, Albert Joseph Beaudette, Government Mining Engineer for the Yukon Territory, having been sworn before the Commission appointed to investigate the Treadgold and other concessions granted in the Yukon Territory, give my answers as set out below, to certain questions relating to the Treadgold concession:—

1. Describe Rock creek.

Answer: Rock creek is a small stream flowing into the Klondike river, southward, at a point about 12 miles above its mouth. The creek has two forks, each containing small tributaries which are, as a source of water supply, to some extent important. The length of the north fork is about 24 miles, having its source in the vicinity of the Twelve-mile river, between which streams there is a divide 800 feet high.

The amount of water flowing in the creek was, according to my measurements in the month of October, 1901, 4,862 miners' inches. (A miner's inch is taken to be one and a half cubic feet passing a point in one minute). The state of the creek at that time was considered rather less than normal. At a point on Rock creek below all tributaries there were over 7,000 miners' inches. All the water flowing into Rock creek from the small tributaries situated below the forks is at too low a level to be of use to supply the placer mining centres in the Klondike district. The only supply is that in the vicinity of the forks and upwards.

The grade of the creek is approximately 60 feet per mile. The altitude at a point near the forks is, according to the territorial engineer's readings, 2,190 feet, and at the mouth of the creek, 1,359 feet.

2. What placer mining operations are there, if any, on Rock creek and its tributaries?

Answer: There are no placer mining operations on Rock creek proper. There is, however, a placer claim in course of development on Lepine creek, a tributary of Rock creek.

3. Would the Treadgold grant affect this claim, provided the claim contained values to warrant operations?

Answer: No.

4. Describe the Klondike river between the two following points, viz.: Flat creek and Dawson.

Answer: The Klondike river is a large stream emptying into the Yukon river on its right side (facing down stream). Between these two streams the river has three important tributaries, viz.: Rock creek, Hunker and Bonanza creeks. Of these creeks, Rock is the most important from a water supply standpoint. According to my measurements, the amount of water in the Klondike river is as follows:

On the 9th of May, 1903, there were 305,643 miners' inches. The state of the river was considered very high.

On the 15th of August, 1903, there were 54,281 miners' inches. The state of the river was considered very low; in fact, the lowest in the history of the camp.

The measurements were made at the Ogilvie bridge, a distance of one and a half miles above the mouth.

The grade of the river between Dawson and the mouth of Flat creek is 13'9 feet per mile.

The grade of the river between Dawson and the mouth of Rock creek is 15'7 per mile.

5. What is the difference in elevation between the point of diversion of the Rock creek water and the placer mining centres of the Klondike district, taking the point of diversion to be 20 miles above the mouth; and the distances between this point of diversion and the said mining centres?

Answer: The altitude at a point twenty miles above the mouth of Rock creek is, as near as can be ascertained from surveys, 2,565 feet. The difference in altitude between this point and the mining centres of the Klondike district, together with the distances, are as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Altitude</th>
<th>Difference</th>
<th>Distance</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Rock Creek</td>
<td>2,565 ft</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gold Bottom</td>
<td>1,688 &quot;</td>
<td>877 &quot;</td>
<td>30 miles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grand Forks</td>
<td>1,720 &quot;</td>
<td>845 &quot;</td>
<td>30 &quot;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bear Creek</td>
<td>1,299 &quot;</td>
<td>1,206 &quot;</td>
<td>26 &quot;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Last Chance</td>
<td>1,434 &quot;</td>
<td>1,131 &quot;</td>
<td>26 &quot;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dominion Dome</td>
<td>3,400 &quot;</td>
<td>835 &quot;</td>
<td>38 &quot;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ogilvie Bridge</td>
<td>1,211 &quot;</td>
<td>1,354 &quot;</td>
<td>30 &quot;</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
It is impossible to conduct the water over the divide between Hunker and Dominion creeks, as the point of intake would be lower than the outlet.

Attached hereto is a sketch showing the gold-bearing creeks and elevations. (Elevations above sea level).

A. J. BEAUDETTE.