Q. Picked up is an expression I would like you to explain; they opened their books showing that the expenses up to that time were $13,000 odd less than they really were, and they have to account for the item somehow, how was it accounted for and what was it charged to? A. They borrowed from the Trusts Company $100,000; they allocated about $75,000 capital stock, including it in this $300,000, that represents about $25,000 that was charged back to organization expenses.

Mr. Commissioner: The whole of that? A. Yes, the whole of the $25,000.

Mr. Hodgins: That would account for about $13,000 odd, which is the difference between these two items? A. Yes.

Q. What was done with the balance according to your investigation into the books? A. According to my opinion $8,380 covered that re-payment to William Laidlaw through Lindsay, and I maintain that $8,548 went other ways; Mr. Travers can tell you where that went; I cannot find out.

Q. How does it appear in the books; it is charged to organization account, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. Can you account at all for its expenditure? A. What I say is at the time it was charged to organization expense this $13,000 increased to $14,416, that was moneys expended by the provisional directors and not organization expenses;
That left $10,928.80 still to be accounted for; $2,380 of that was used to refund to William Laidlaw the amount paid into the bank by his clients on their stock subscription.

Q. Not to refund to William Laidlaw, refund to Travers? A. Refund to Travers, yes; that left $8,548 still to be accounted for.

Q. Is there any cheque or vouchers to show how that was paid out? A. No, the only cheque in the bank’s possession would be that $25,344.

Q. We have to find out what was done with the proceeds of it.

Mr. Commissioner: That $2,380 had been received from Laidlaw’s clients?

A. Yes, by the bank.

Q. And that appears on the debit side in those payments on stock? A. Yes, part of that $8,000 will be in connection with interest and charges paid to the Trusts & Guarantee Company, probably—

Q. You have here Trusts & Guarantee Company bonus, it does not appear? A. No.

Q. May those three items you have here, $1,500, $327.65, and the $560—? A. No, I have an exact accounting of that Trusts & Guarantee Company and it is accumulation of interest and other differentials; it won’t amount to much, it will amount to a few hundred dollars.

Q. Are there any other items as you go down that need explanation?

Mr. Commissioner: Had not he better explain all these differences: first, the Trusts & Guarantee bonus? A. $1,500 was the amount paid to the Trusts & Guarantee Company for those two loans of $80,000 and $20,000.

Q. Neither that, nor the furniture nor Lown $560 is carried into the permanent books? A. No, they appear in the provisional directors; bank premises is carried into the permanent books.

Q. All down; the bills receivable? A. Yes.

Q. That is a cross entry? A. Yes, the point there is the banks did not carry those Bills Receivable on account of capital stock as on account of the capital stock at all. Then the legals, that is the same all through. Stock and bonds, $27,027; those are stocks and securities obtained on account of payment on capital stock.

Mr. Hodgins: You will find that above under payments on capital stock, which is exactly the same amount.

Mr. Commissioner: Yes, in securities. A. That was not carried into the permanent books.

Mr. Hodgins: There is carried in an item of charges $1,113.41? A. Yes; I think that that item was put in largely to make up a balance; I may be incorrect in that but I believe it.

Q. The Trusts & Guarantee Company, $80,605.81? A. Those are those cheques paid to the Trusts Company in repayment of their loan.

Q. That is shown as an asset of the bank, is it not intended to mean that the Trusts & Guarantee Company owe that, have it on deposit for them? A. That is what the books indicate.

Q. That is making use of that as an asset?

Mr. Commissioner: That is treating the transaction as cancelled and the amount on deposit as the books show; the loan remained due by cancelling the credits and the Trusts Company had at the credit of the bank this $80,000, had not it, is not that what this indicates? A. No, that $80,000 arises from the three cheques given to the Trusts Company in repayment of their loan, but the loan was not carried into the permanent books at all, the money was received from the loan, the $75,000, and later on the $25,000, the $75,000 is included in the $300,000 shown paid on stock.

Q. What $75,000? A. Portion of the loan; I have a memorandum here.

Mr. Hodgins: What the Commissioner wants to know is if that $80,605.81 is treated as an asset of the bank; that means that it was practically on deposit
Mr. Commissioner: Is that quite accurate, because this $80,000 is part of what was spread over as payment on the stock? A. The whole $80,000 was not spread over.

Q. $75,000, I think you said? A. I will give you the exact amount, $75,995 was spread.

Q. That is included in the $300,000? A. Yes.

Q. So that to that extent there is a cross entry— A. Yes, to the extent of $75,995; it is shown on page 39.

Mr. Hodgins: Cash on hand I suppose was accurate at that moment? A. No, I don't think they had that cash.

Q. At all events the result is as shown on this statement that the provisional directors' books carried down to the 31st December, would have shown $424,589 of assets, whereas it was carried into the permanent books at only $301,000 and in the return to the Government it was shown at a much smaller sum? A. Yes. Of course, in the return to the Government they are not required to show the expenditure; they are just required to show the capital paid up and the assets.

Mr. Commissioner: Why do you say you do not think that cash was on hand? A. It was not on hand.

Q. What does the cash book show? A. The provisional directors' cash book shows it was not on hand.

Q. Mr. Hodgins: Could you check it at all? A. My checking is it was not on hand.

Mr. Commissioner: How do you check it? A. On page 44 is an accounting for those differences. It is shown it is paid in on the permanent books at $300,240. Then I deduct from that these items which I say are not based on facts, Cash on hand, Deposit with the Trusts & Guarantee Company, Excess Union Bank, and there is a difference of $6,000: take that away from $300,000, and that leaves $213,372, a shortage difference of $14,529. Now, then, the expenditures in there were, according to the provisional books, $66,000, and according to that statement which we have the permanent books were $52,000; that makes the exact difference.

Q. Let us see why that was done? A. The only reason for that is this, it was desired to show capital paid up as $300,230, and it was desired to show a deposit in the Trusts Company of $80,605; so that they had to make the books balance.

Mr. Hodgins: Those are the two substantial items that they desired to show?

A. Yes, that is the way they made the balance.

Q. What is the item $140.78 you deducted? A. Those are sundry items.

Q. The $1,113.41 you deduct there? A. Instead of organization expenses being included at $64,000, they put in the item of $51,000, and then they put in another item of $1,113.41 to make it jibe. I do not see any bearing in fact for that item.

Q. What about the $120.26? A. That also is some small item in here.

Mr. Commissioner: Here it is, premium on stock and exchange together?

A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: What cash capital did they open their doors with, so far as you have been able to find out, irrespective of their entries in the book? A. Do you mean December 31st, 1906?

Q. Yes; what did they begin business on? A. They had received in cash $207,007.30, and they had received $690.56 and $140.78, totalling $207,838. Out of that they had paid $64,373.19. These furniture and Lown I take are assets,
Mr. Commissioner: You must add to that the money they got from the Trusts & Guarantee Company, because they had that money.

Mr. Hodgins: It was borrowed capital.

Mr. Commissioner: Suppose it was, it was there at all events? A. On the 31st December, 1906, they had paid back the Trusts & Guarantee Company.

Mr. Commissioner: That is treating that item as unreversed; supposing you treat the entry as reversed, what is the indebtedness remaining? A. Then we will have the $20,894.19, and they owed that to the Trusts Company, and then if they reversed the entry they would also have $80,605.81.

Mr. Commissioner: Yes; that is the way they looked at it or treated it?

A. After the reversal?

Q. Yes? A. That will give $244,965.45.

Q. If that reversal is not to be looked at at all, then it means the other way?

A. If the reversal was effective it was $244,965.45; if it was not, it was $143,465.

Mr. Hodgins: That they began business on? A. Yes; of course they had securities of $20,027 in addition.

Q. What were those securities? A. Stocks, the Dominion Permanent and 1 think the Canadian Savings & Loan.

Q. That was given on account of stock? A. Yes.

Q. Was it kept by the bank or was it afterwards given back to these parties?

A. It was largely received from Devean, $19,000 of it was received from Devean, and it was afterwards returned to him either in cash or in stock.

Mr. Commissioner: Stock of what? A. The original stock of the Canadian Savings and Dominion Permanent.

Q. He got back his stock or money? A. Yes, he got the equivalent.

Mr. Hodgins: That gives the starting point of the bank, the financial position it was in at that date according to your researches?

Mr. Commissioner: They had these notes? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: You have the statement compiled from the books of the provisional directors as on the 31st December, 1906, on page 42, showing the payments on capital stock and so on, the notes and the Trusts & Guarantee Company’s loan, and as against that the payments? A. Yes.

Q. I do not know that there is anything in that? A. This is a cash statement and also it shows the receipts and payments.

Q. It shows the amount actually of the organization and other expenses?

Mr. Commissioner: When you use the word “now sold”, what does that mean? A. Sold at that time; they had received securities and had sold $5,888.

Q. I would strike that word “now” out, because it would look as if it were when you were compiling this? A. (Witness strikes out the word “now” in statement on page 42.)

Q. Mr. Hodgins: I do not know that there is anything in that that calls for comment except one item, the Merchants National Bank, $25,100? A. That was a New York deposit.

Q. Afterwards brought back? A. It was used in their current business; it was used in the ordinary course of business.

Mr. Commissioner: That does not indicate any money on hand? A. No, sir; no money at all; the money was on deposit in the Union Bank of Canada.

Q. There was no cash on hand in that? A. Excepting those legals, $200,000.

Q. But nothing to represent that $5,000? A. No, sir.

Mr. Hodgins: I ask now for the details of the organization and other expenses which are put in at page 42 as $64,373.19? A. What I have here, it is all combined in this memorandum here, it is not combined so as to show the $64,000; it is a matter of adding together a number of details.

Q. I only wanted to know the general divisions under which they would be charged; I thought I had seen that? A. No; there is the detail up to November 26th on page 45; it is all included in here.

Q. Let us see if we can get along with this; there must be about $16,000 or $17,000 additional; is that shown anywhere? A. Yes.

Q. If you have it in another book, or can you make it up— A. I can make it up very simply.

Mr. Commissioner: You had better do that separately; I think an item like that, directors' fees and payments, I think those had better be separated; what were the fees for attending meetings and what the payments were? A. I have the whole thing in that form.

Q. This is the distribution of the $10,000 at the bottom? A. Yes. (Page 28, Exhibit 64).

Q. It does not say who got it? A. No, we did not know at that time; it merely shows in their books as $10,000.

Q. You would be good enough to make a memorandum of that? A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell me at all how much of that $64,000 odd of organization expenses was paid in commissions? A. I have it in that report, $42,871. Bottom of page 27 of Exhibit 64).

Q. To whom was that paid; show me where I can tell who got that? A. These are the sundry items $13,286.

Q. That is not all what I want; this $42,871 of commissions was paid to about four or five people? A. Lown got $1,414.50; Fraser $800; Travers $22,-390; Smith $4,980.50—

Mr. Commissioner: Is that commission or his salary? A. No, these are commissions.

Q. He had salary? A. Yes. There is $13,286 covering various payments, of which Lindsay figures in here for $11,000, and the $2,286 is other various payments according to that list.

Exhibit 64: Stock Commissions Account (page 27), as prepared by Mr. Clarkson.

Q. That is up to the 31st December, 1905? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: I would like to pass from that to the stock subscriptions; I am speaking of the return which went down to Ottawa; I just want to deal with the return, at page 11 of this book (part of Exhibit 63). I have a memorandum here which I think is in a much more convenient form.

Mr. Commissioner: This seems complete.

Mr. Hodgins: Yes, but there is one statement I have got which shows the total in the list and then groups about half a dozen of the improper items in it together; I don't know whether you have that done there? A. No, it is not in the book; that is made recently.

Mr. Commissioner: This page 11 I think is all right; for instance he shows the Laidlaw ones and what was done with them; that is the history of the Laidlaw shares? A. Yes.

Q. Then it deals with the Devean subscription?

Mr. Hodgins: This summary is really what I want. You see the totals, the subscriptions are $3,500, and then the antedated, the worthless—

Mr. Commissioner: What have we to do with worthless?

Mr. Hodgins: That is something which you may think should not be properly deducted unless they were known to be worthless; that is the analysis of that list.

Mr. Commissioner: Of course as to antedated subscription, that is an hypothesis based upon Mr. Fitzgibbon's statement. All that Mr. Clarkson can state is there were certain subscriptions dated the 22nd October? A. Yes.
Q. And he has some reason to doubt whether those were the dates? A. Yes.
Q. Conditional does that include such ones as those taken in the States? A. Yes.
Q. Subscriptions that could not be pressed, what does that mean? A. Subscriptions which I understand the bank was not in a position to sue for payment of; that is Davidson and Smith of Flint.
Q. Lindsay, original subscription, what does that mean, $5,000, that is 50 shares? A. There was the subscription.
Q. Subscription subsequently cancelled, and Laidlaw’s subscriptions?

Mr. Hodgins: What I wish to ask Mr. Clarkson about was to see how far they affected the list in bringing it down under $500,000?

Mr. Commissioner: Supposing you take him over it and get it down on the notes; the return shows $579,200.

Mr. Hodgins: Then there are $3,500, subscriptions which are on the last page of the printed return and came in admittedly after the 23rd October? A. Yes, so stated in the return.

Q. Antedated subscriptions, what do you include in those? A. Antedated subscriptions are these: you have evidence as to W. J. Lindsay, $50,000. You have evidence as to Macorquodale.

Q. Give us the name of the shareholder? A. W. J. Lindsay $50,000; D. S. Macorquodale $100; B. B. Macorquodale $100; F. D. Macorquodale $100; A. G. H. Luxton $1,000; A. B. Bradley $1,000; W. B. Nesbitt $10,000; these are all subscriptions dated October 22nd, 1906.

Q. That does not quite make up the amount? A. A. S. Lown $100; J. Gilchrist $3,000; those are all subscriptions amounting to $65,400 in respect of which question has been raised.

Mr. Commissioner: As to whether they were not antedated? A. Yes.
Q. Actually subscribed after—? A. Yes, after the meeting had been called on the 22nd October.

Mr. Travers: $2,500.

Mr. Hodgins: Yes. A. Then there is a mistake in my figuring of $1,000, $2,500; there is a letter as to that showing it was taken conditionally. A. E. Forget, $5,000; A. H. Hoover $5,000; that makes $12,500.
Q. These you understand to have been conditional? A. That is my information. Hoover’s subscription is written across the face of it; Forget I have nothing further than mere information; Witham, there is a letter showing it was conditional.

Q. Subscriptions which could not be pressed, $10,000, who were those? A. Matthew Davidson, $5,000, of Flint, and P. Smith, $5,000; there are letters.
Q. The next is worthless subscriptions? A. These are subscriptions which, according to my information, were worthless.
Q. Were worthless at the time they were taken? A. Yes, that is my information; that is merely information. They were J. E. Bate, $5,000; he owes part of that now in the shape of a note; Jennie B. Gier, $5,000; T. Cox, $5,000.
Q. D. C. Kempt, $5,000; George Storey, $5,000; that is $25,000. The next is a subscription; I have it down here, Original subscription. W. J. Lindsay, $5,000. The only point about that is it was cancelled subsequently after $500 had been credited on it as on account of commissions. Subscriptions subsequently cancelled, $25,100. There is a list here on these pages.
Q. Is not there a list in this book, Exhibit 63? A. Yes, but from that list in that book have been deducted items included in the previous ones.
Q. The total is $29,100; and this list which Mr. Nield will copy into the evidence contains the list of the shareholders whose shares were cancelled? A. Yes.
The list of cancelled subscriptions referred to in the last question is as follows:

Mr. Hodgins: You say they were afterwards cancelled, how soon afterwards? A. Commencing April, 1907, May and June.

Q. Those you have information that lead you to doubt whether they were worth anything, were there any payments made on them? A. On these cancelled subscriptions?

Q. No, on the subscriptions that you classed as worthless? A. None that I can see, sir. In the Bate case there is a note out in the Milton Branch I think for $2,000 which is outstanding now; nothing was paid on the subscription.

Q. What was this subscription? A. $5,000; $3,000 was cancelled and the note stands against the $2,000 of stock now.

Mr. Hodgins: The last item is Laidlaw subscription? A. Yes, they stand on their own footing, $21,900.

Q. If you deduct those you have mentioned now from the list as sent in, what is the result?

Mr. Commissioner: We can figure that out ourselves; it is all here? A. There is one subscription that ought to come out of that, James Bowley, 10 shares, on page 13.

Mr. Hodgins: You have given in this book apparently on pages 15, 16 and 17, (Exhibit 63) what became of these various subscriptions? A. Yes, that is information there according to the books.

Q. What actually became of the Laidlaw subscriptions? A. The Laidlaw subscriptions were transferred under document to Lindsay.

Q. Were they entered up in the books? A. On the books of the Bank they purport to be transferred to other people. There are particulars there; one man is Vise, and another—these people did not accept them; then afterwards they are purported to have been cancelled in the name of the transferees.
Mr. Commissioner: What do you mean by cancelled in the name of the transferees—treated as belonging to the transferees? A. Yes, although they did not accept them.

Mr. Hodgins: And cancelled by the bank? A. Yes, they were transferred to Lindsay under these documents you had in evidence. Then the transfer book shows them not to Lindsay but to other people who did not accept them, and then cancelled in the name of those last-named people.

Q. Was the W. J. Lindsay $50,000 cancelled—my recollection is that yesterday it was said in connection with the Continental Securities that 440 out of the 500 were cancelled? A. He had 550 shares all told; he transferred 100 of those to Travers; that left 450, and I think there are two items in there accounting for 10 shares, leaving 440, which were cancelled.

Mr. Commissioner: On the 18th March, 1908; all that appears on page 13, two different lots of 50, and 10 transferred to Brown, who paid for them, and Lindsay paid for 5 himself? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Hodgins: We were speaking yesterday in examining Mr. Travers about that Continental Securities Company account? A. Yes.

Q. How do you find that the 5,100 shares were dealt with as to payment? A. They were purported to have been sold to the subscriber by the Continental Securities Company at 130, or $663,000, and then the Continental Securities Company was allowed an overdraft in the Toronto office books of the bank to the extent of $663,000; and against this overdraft there was charged to various items which we were speaking about yesterday by way of cheque issue by the Continental Securities Company—you have that memorandum there showing what those items are.

Q. Is it the case that, without the discount of any security or anything else, the $663,000 was put to their credit in the Farmers Bank? A. No, it was not put to their credit; they were simply allowed an overdraft to that amount; that is to say, they issued their cheque and it was charged up against them in the Toronto Branch.

Q. And they had no funds for those cheques? A. Not that I have been able to find. It is fair to say this, though, $538,000 which was charged against them was put to the credit of a Suspense Account; that is to say, it was not taken into Capital, but put to the credit of a Suspense Account.

Q. What particular virtue is there in that? A. Only this, that anybody understanding accounts would just simply check one over against the other and know to the extent of $538,000 it was a book entry, even in view of the fact that cheques were actually issued and cheques were actually marked.

Q. Charging it to Suspense Account would indicate it had not been accepted as payment up of the capital stock; is that what you mean? A. Yes, it was an item in question; it was an item subject to contingencies.

Q. Subject to be dealt with later? A. Yes, as conditions might develop.

Q. As to the rest of the amount, the difference between $538,000 and the $663,000, there are various items, how were they treated, as Suspense or Capital? A. It starts on page 25 (of Exhibit 63); these items were charged against it; in the Milton Branch of the bank there were notes held to the amount of $15,500, covering subscriptions of Kemp, Storey, Emerson, Hunter and Brown. The proceeds of those notes had been credited as payment on capital, capital account had been already credited with that amount; they charged that $15,000 up against the Continental Securities account by way of a cheque issued to take up the notes; in other words, the Continental were taking over the stock which stood in the name of these people, apparently paid for but with liabilities outstanding against it for notes; $21,575 is the cheque we spoke of yesterday issued to Travers; $45,000 was applied on a promissory note for $55,000 given by Travers to cover moneys expended on organization account; in other words, he had credited $55,000 against the organization expenses.
Mr. Commissioner: Credited? A. The account shows a charge for a large sum of money, $120,000; he had given his promissory note and the bank had discounted it and put $55,000 to the credit of the account, reducing the apparent expenditure in organization; $10,000 of that had been charged up against bank premises, and the remaining $45,000 was charged up against this account; then the bank held the $40,000 note of R. E. Menzie; $20,000 of that represented the original Devean stock, the other $20,000 was the additional subscription which Menzie took at the time he took over the Devean stock; that $40,000 had gone to the credit of capital. The next $2,300 was an amount shown as having been paid by Gilchrist on the original list returned to the Government, when, as a matter of fact, it had not been paid.

Mr. Commissioner: Except by spreading? A. That is by the spreading out; Gilchrist's stock to that extent was handed over to the company; that meant that $124,000 to cover those various items was taken out of the $663,000 by the issue of cheques; and the Continental Securities Company issued a cheque for $538,525, the balance to the bank, and it was put to the credit of this suspense account, pending the outcome of the transaction.

Mr. Hodgins: I just want to understand what difference that made, these book-keeping entries made, in fact? A. That is set out on page 28 (of Exhibit 63).

Q. It operated, as I understand, to release whatever liability there was on the holders of those items of stock that were mentioned there, and to substitute for it the cheque of the Continental Securities Company? A. Yes; then I am going a little bit too fast. Then when it became apparent that the Continental Securities transaction would not go through, stock was sold to Tevis and Chapman, 1,150 shares all told.

Q. More than that? A. Yes, more was sold, but payment was received on 1,150 shares, the balance being ultimately cancelled; and then the 1,150 shares of the bank, according to its records, received $120,000 of American Piano Company stock, made a loan on that to the amount of $120,000 to Tevis; $115,000 was allocated as in payment of 1,150 shares of the bank stock; the remaining $5,000 was put to the credit of profit and loss. Against that $115,000 of stock paid up, these shares, Menzie, Gilchrist, Travers, Hunter, Kemp and Storey, to the extent of $59,300, which was originally shown to have been paid up by way of notes and obligations, were charged off against it, $59,300, and the bank took credit for payment on new capital stock to the extent of $55,700 only.

Q. Let us just work that down, because I want to see how that would affect matters or to what extent it did? A. That is the stock transaction.

Q. The $124,000 which you have spoken of there, had that been taken in as paid-up capital previous to the Continental Securities Company deal: take Menzie, Gilchrist, and these others, had that been taken in as paid-up capital? A. $15,500 had, $40,000 had, $2,300 had, that is $57,800 had been taken in there as paid-up capital.

Q. Mr. Commissioner: Then by reason of these cheques, whatever obligation there was on the original holder was cancelled and these cheques were practically substituted for it? A. That is right.

Q. Then when they turned over a certain amount of that stock to Tevis, I judge from what you say that they then having received from Tevis $120,000 allocated about $59,000 to pay those same items? A. They did, and they made a mistake of $1,500; at least, they allocated $1,500 too much.

Q. Roughly speaking, the result of the three transactions would be to leave the bank legitimately in possession of paid-up capital to that extent? A. Yes, it validated the whole transaction.
Q. As to those three items. As to the other items making up the $124,000, what became of those? A. There is $21,675 drawn by Travers, and $45,000 on that note; then what happened to them was this—

Mr. Hodgins: On what note? A. The $55,000 note that Travers had discounted in the Bank and had applied the whole of it to the credit of organization account. Then $10,000 had been credited on that note and charged as having been expended on Bank premises, leaving $45,000? The ultimate fate of those items was this, it is set out on page 28, $21,675 taken by Travers; $45,000 owing on the note, together with $40,000 which was charged into an account known as the Rabbit Mountain Mining Company, and $24,294.27 interest charged against this Continental advance, taken credit for by the bank as earnings. Those amount to $130,969.27. They were charged $107,500 against Keeley Mine Stocks and Bonds; $20,500 as having been advanced to M. B. Chapman; $1,500 being an excess charged to Tevis. That arises in this way, that those three items of stock that I mentioned to you only amount to $57,800; they were charged against Tevis' amount $59,300, or a difference of $1,500. Then the balance $1,469.27 was charged to Profit and Loss; that meant in the ultimate these items practically went into Keeley Mine as a charge against Chapman.

Q. You are accounting for a good deal more than the difference between the $59,000 and the $124,000? A. Yes.

Q. Can you just account for the difference in those two items? A. No, those two items amount to $66,000 and they were combined with the other and charged back that way.

Q. Do you say the ultimate result of that dealing was to charge these amounts up against the Keeley Mine Stocks and Bonds account to the extent of $107,500 and advance to Chapman? A. Yes, $20,500.

Q. Was that ever recovered? A. No; he is a discharged bankrupt in New York State.

Q. So that that has been a total loss to the bank to that extent? A. Yes; of course the moneys, this $45,000 of Mr. Travers and $40,000 charged to Rabbit Mountain Mining Company were moneys spent previously in the organization of the company and not shown, hidden or held over by these notes, and they ultimately filtered in that Keeley Mine Stock.

Mr. Commissioner: What warrant was there for charging these to Keeley Mine? A. I can only say that Mr. Travers has told me that he looked to make a profit out of Keeley Mine stock that he got for nothing and used it as he called it to pick up these losses.

Mr. Hodgins: A convenient place to charge it. I thought suspense account or something of that kind was always used for those purposes? A. It would not have made any difference if it had gone into suspense account.

Mr. Commissioner: What does that Rabbit Mountain Mining Company mean? A. That was a transaction where the bank advanced some money to some people and the bank was to get some capital stock as a bonus for doing so, and they charged the Rabbit Mountain Mining Company with expenditures on organization account and one or two things like that just exactly on the same basis as the talk about the Keeley Mine and then afterwards when the stock did not bring any profit we wrote them back to different avenues.

Mr. Commissioner: The Rabbit Mountain, is that about Port Arthur?

Mr. Travers: Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: Have you got into your head, Mr. Hodgins, why the Continental Securities Company was credited on their purchase of stock with this $124,000? A. I can understand sir, why they were charged with the $57,800 on capital stock, that is to say they were buying not only all the unallotted stock that the bank had, but they were also buying other stock which the bank purported to take over from these Milton people, Menzie and Gilchrist.

Q. But they were credited with it.
Mr. Hodgins: The bank was supplying them with that stock.

Mr. Commissioner: That $663,000 included paying up again this stock which had already been paid? A. No, the Continental charged with it; probably the way that is set out there is just an accounting, it is a process of elimination.

Q. I do not see you can say they were charged with it when the price of the stock they were to get was $663,000 and the amount of that was reduced by the sum of these payments? A. Well, put it this way, the amount they were to pay $663,000: the applied $15,500 and $40,000 and $2,300 on that $663,000 to take up those obligations which they had in the Milton branch from Menzie and Gilchrist.

Mr. Hodgins: So that it would have the stock to hand the Continental? A. They had to take the stock over from these people to hand to the Continental.

Mr. Commissioner: To give them the stock they had contracted to sell? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: As I understand they sold the stock to Tevis, the money they received from him to the extent of fifty-nine thousand odd dollars was taken to replace these worthless cheques? A. That is it.

Q. The bank ultimately making good on that stock—

Mr. Commissioner: What worthless cheques are you speaking of?

Mr. Hodgins: Worthless cheques of the Continental Securities Company.

Mr. Commissioner: Let me see those please.

Mr. Hodgins: As I understand it they sold stock to people who went bad like Menzie and the other man, and this was an effort to get it into good hands, and this effort failing, they finally did sell a certain amount of stock to Tevis and appropriated this stock to the extent of $59,000 to him.

Mr. Commissioner: What is this cheque? A. This is Menzie and Gilchrist, $40,000 and $2,300, that is a combination of those two items.

Q. They practically over-drew the account for these sums? A. Yes.

Q. And that repaid these things? A. Yes.

Q. That is the blank in the evidence so far; they issued their cheques upon this account they were allowed to draw against? A. Yes.

Q. For these various amounts but including the $21,675? A. They issued a cheque for it too; the cheque was here yesterday, with that $6,000 cheque.

Q. They issued cheques for all these? A. Yes, they issued cheques, $15,500, $21,675, $45,000 and $42,300, and then another cheque for $538,000.

Q. So that nominally they paid the whole thing? A. Yes.

Q. That is where the thing was in doubt when we parted last night? A. They paid it.

Mr. Hodgins: Just charged as an overdraft? A. Yes, they had to take up those obligations to get that stock.

Mr. Commissioner: How do you suppose that $21,657 was arrived at? A. I do not know that.

Q. Would that be arrived at as the balance left? A. No, I think that sum was an amount stated, and this is the balance, the $538,000.

Q. Because these were all fixed sums? A. Yes. This is an open amount and this is an open amount.

Q. That is the $21,675 and the $538,525 were open amounts? A. Yes, unless Mr. Travers arrived at some commission calculation with reference to that Tevis matter.

Q. The only thing that nominally the bank did not get credit there was that $21,000? A. That is all. $21,675 was the loss on the transaction, but the gain on the transaction was the making good of these obligations of doubtful value; and then they used the account as a vehicle for changing over these other expenditures from Keeley Mine from accounts they had been in.

Mr. Hodgins: I think when you are making up that item, that you promised to give us, you might attach to it that statement, or a copy of that statement, because we referred to that in your evidence. (Hands statement to witness). A. Very well.

Q. Perhaps you could prepare this statement without my examining you upon it; I would like to know how far wrong the return to the Government was; in the first place I want to know whether the payments shown as paid up in cash, whether any of those payments were wrong in fact; then I would like to know whether for any of those payments there were notes in the hands of the bank and to what extent, what was the amount of the notes? A. What you mean if I understand you is this, those spread payments on that list to the Government, you want us to take those items and to show whether there were notes existing for those subscriptions and whether ultimately the bank received actual money on those subscriptions to get rid of them.

Q. What I really want is just to see whether there was a note standing at the time the return was sent in.

MR. COMMISSIONER: There is a list of that kind here, is not there?

MR. HODGINS: There is a list here, but it is not complete, Page 40; that is headed “Spread Notes” which is a mistake; it should be spread payments. I want to see which of those had notes outstanding? A. It is marked on the copy the Commissioner has.

MR. COMMISSIONER: In red ink? A. Yes.

Q. They appear to be all notes; the first item there is any difference in is Kennedy; $250 is the spread item and $500 was the note. Sinclair, there was a note for $5,000 and a note for $1,000; spread was $500. McClure the spread item is $200, and there were notes for $450, and $500. Witham spread $200, note $2,000; Laird, spread $500, note $1,000; McCallum, spread $100, note $200; Wilkinson, spread $50, note $100; Menzie, spread $50, note $100; and then you get down to Howden, spread $50, note $500; McLaughlin, spread $100, note $200; Daniels, spread $200, note $500.

Q. The figures in red ink on pages 40 and 41 indicate the amount of the note given by the person to whom the credit was given as shown in this statement? A. Yes.

Q. At the end of page 41, Gilchrist is credited with two cheques, $2,700 and $300; and Groves, $3,000; those are at the foot of the spread payments and they are marked, “Afterwards returned.” What does that mean? A. I think on November 26th, 1906, there were three cheques carried—I think when the books of the bank were first opened there were three cheques carried in there for $3,000 spiece; I think it was Groves and Gilchrist; and I think Nesbitt, $9,000, and afterwards returned. They came and they were carried into the cash, and that is the reason I say that that $5,750 of cash was not founded on fact. I think it was at that time they were carried in as cash coming from nowhere, just merely as cash on hand and afterwards going out.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Carried, I suppose, in the teller’s till as cash? A. Yes, two of those items are those.

MR. HODGINS: Have you anything to add to the details we have with regard to the Tevis and Chapman transaction that was given yesterday by Mr. Travers? A. Well, there is only this point to take into consideration, and that is the bank made the loan of $120,000 on that $120,000 of Piano stock; it was hypothecated to the Trusts & Guarantee Company and afterwards sold by them at $95,000, so that the bank lost in there actually, $95,000 from $115,000, the actual amount of the advance, lost $20,000; that is to say, I do not mean to attempt to say whether that stock was paid up in full or not. I merely say that the loan of $115,000 cash was actually made on that stock and applied in full payment on the capital stock and that afterwards the security—

MR. COMMISSIONER: The man that gave the Piano stock was worse off at the end of the business; he got worthless Farmers Bank stock? A. Yes, but the Farmers Bank got $95,000 in payment of $115,000 of stock.
Q. If the stock had been good, there would have been a loss of $20,000? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: Gilchrist's name was mentioned; he was afterwards a director of the company; what amount of stock did he subscribe for, was it $3,000? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know who he is? A. He is connected with the Crompton Corset Company.

Q. He was elected a director afterwards of the bank in November, 1906; what became of his stock, did he subscribe for stock? A. Yes, he subscribed for $3,000 of stock and there was $700 cash actually paid on it; the other $2,300 he surrendered the 23 shares and they went to the Continental Securities Company and from there to Tewis.

Q. That is a history of that stock? A. Yes.

Q. In that list of spread payments which you have just referred to, page 40 and 41, he is down for $3,000; that is not represented by notes but by cheque, it was given back? A. That cheque was used at that time apparently for that purpose.

Q. You never found any note from him? A. Yes, I found a note afterwards; I think I have that record here.

Mr. Commissioner: That ought to be put in with red ink if you have a note for it; it is not in red ink here, neither that nor Groves? A. My memory is not clear on that point; I shall have to find it out for you.

Q. Mr. Hodgins: You are taking a civil action against him at all events; I do not want you to say one way or the other.

Mr. Commissioner: What is he suing for? A. I do not know that I am suing him yet; I did question whether I had a right against him to sue him after being elected a director when he is not qualified.

Q. That matter is under consideration? A. Yes, and his stock is in the hands of the people now, so he is not responsible for double liability.

Mr. Hodgins: The bank got actual payment for that stock out of Tewis? A. Yes. The only thing he acted as a director when he was not qualified.

Q. Is he a man of substance? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: He is vice-president of that company? A. It is a responsible company.

Q. There is some connection between some member of that company and Beattie Nesbitt? A. Beattie Nesbitt is a brother-in-law of Frederick Crompton, who is president of the Crompton Corset Company.

Mr. Commissioner: When was Gilchrist elected a director? A. At the first meeting, November 26th.

Q. How long did he remain a director? A. I think for a year. Do you wish now that Government Return showing notes?

Mr. Hodgins: No, I did not note you had that in the book here. Mr. Devean is here and I want to ask you about his stock; he held how many shares of stock, 200, was it? A. Yes, $30,000.

Q. How did he profess to pay that? A. According to the information I have, the bank held about $19,000 of stock in the Dominion Permanent and the Canadian Savings and Loan; I think a note for $900, and $100 in cash; I think that was the transaction.

Q. Do you know anything about him, financially speaking? A. He is perfectly good for the amount, so I understand.

Q. I think that $19,000 of stock was pledged to the Trusts & Guarantee Company for one of those loans? A. Yes, together with a note of his for $15,000 as collateral to it.

Q. If those securities were accepted in payment, that would pay him up in full? A. Yes.
Q. What became of those securities afterwards? A. As far as I can ascertain, they were returned to him and R. E. Menzie took over his subscription.

Q. Is that the R. E. Menzie who figures in the $40,000? A. That is the same man.

Q. Was this $20,000 of Devean's stock part of that $40,000? A. Yes.

Q. You do not know how the shuffle was made? I think I know something about it. The Devean stock was transferred to Menzie and Menzie subscribed for another 200 shares; that made 400 shares all told; and he gave his notes for $40,000, which was discounted in the bank as a call loan, I think, and there was attached to it some scrip and the Menzie Wall Paper Company. I see also there was an endorsement on that note of the Menzie Wall Paper Company. The question rose afterwards as to the right of Menzie to endorse the company's name on his personal paper; however, he himself was of doubtful responsibility, and I do not know, but I should imagine, the bank could not collect from him—I heard something on the outside.

Q. Do you know whether the Menzie Wall Paper Company gave a separate obligation or whether it is a question of endorsement of Menzie's paper? A. I think it was an endorsement.

MR. TRAVERS: The note was signed by the Menzie Wall Paper Company after they refused to acknowledge the obligation; I know that outside the bank's affairs.

MR. HODGINS: They were never pressed in consequence? A. No, they were not pressed and the stock was transferred to the Continental and Tevis.

Q. Was that part of the Tevis transaction? A. Yes.

Q. Was that part of what was paid up ultimately? A. It was.

Q. I would like to ask you about the Trusts & Guarantee Company circulation account; in the first place, with regard to that loan of $80,000, how do you find the bank treated those three payments, made in December, 1906, which appears to have paid it off? A. They appear in the Head Office, there are two accounts relating to it; the first in the head office books of the bank, in which those three cheques are shown to the credit of the account, the account indicating on its face that either the money was paid to the Trusts Company or it was on deposit there with the Trusts Company; anybody taking up the account would take it to be on deposit.

Q. That is in the head office? A. Yes.

Q. Are you referring now to the three separate cheques appearing in that account and having that appearance? A. I am referring to the three separate cheques in December, 1906; it shows anyway that the Trusts Company was indebted to the bank in $80,605.81.

Q. Either by way of payment? A. Or by way of deposit; it makes no difference.

Q. You could not tell from the entry? A. No, it makes no difference.

Q. You could not tell the entry? A. No, it makes no difference.

Q. What did the other account show? A. There was an account opened in the Toronto branch in January, 1907, a deposit account, and the bank continued to deposit money with the Trusts Company up till, I think, April.

Q. That is subsequent; but there was no other account for these three original payments in December? A. No, there is no other.

Q. Did that account show there had been a loan got from the Trusts & Guarantee Company of $80,000? O. No, the books of the bank do not show any loan; when I say any loan I qualify that; I mean original loans.

Q. You remember page 43 of this book (Exhibit 63), statement as of December 31st, 1906; there is $80,605.81 shown among the debits? A. That is the item I referred to shown as owed to the bank.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. And I take it that the head office entry is capable of being understood to correspond with that or may indicate that $80,000 had been paid? A. That is the head office entry.

Mr. Commissioner: How could it indicate the payment; it is a debit to the Trusts & Guarantee Company? A. It indicates, according to the books of the bank, that $80,605.81 was paid to the Trusts & Guarantee Company.

Q. And owed by the Trusts Company to the bank? A. Yes.

Q. That is what the bank book shows? A. Yes.

Mr. Travers: Would not it show this, that the Traders Bank balance went down and the Trusts Company went up? A. That follows as a matter of sequence, because the cheque is on the Traders Bank, its balance goes down and the Trusts Company's goes up.

Mr. Hodgins: If the head office entries had been intended to show payment of the loans should have been shown in them, and these cheques a credit as against that loan? A. If the books had been opened to show the facts, there would have been an account showing the Trusts & Guarantee Company creditors for that amount of money and these payments on account of that loan.

Mr. Commissioner: But the position taken by Travers all through is, and these entries are quite consistent with it, whether it was proper is entirely another question, that the loan was his personally, not the loan of the bank at all, and that the notes were hypothecated and that is the reason why they do not appear in the books of the bank? A. That is the reason why, and that is the reason why that capital account there is extended to $300,000.

Q. I am saying nothing about the propriety of the thing at all? A. Not at all; if that capital account had been sub-divided into two accounts, W. R. Travers and capital, assuming that he was taking the position that he was lending to the bank, he would have been a creditor for so much, and the capital account so much less.

Mr. Hodgins: Is the capital account as shown, $300,000, consistent with the idea that this money was borrowed personally by Travers.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not think that is a proper question for this witness, that is more for me. As Travers' account of the transaction is, rightly or wrongly he took these notes and borrowed so much money and applied that money upon the stock of these people? A. That is it exactly; and the books agree with that attitude on his part.

Mr. Hodgins: And that when he paid these three cheques to the Trusts & Guarantee Company while it was in fact in payment of that debt of his the books would make it look, in the absence of any entry of the Trusts & Guarantee Company as a creditor, as if they had that money on deposit? A. The books indicated that.

Mr. Commissioner: Is that entry as of the date when the credit was cancelled or is it the date of the original payment? A. That credit appears in three amounts, three cheques.

Q. As we had the facts, the loan was paid off by three cheques of the Farmers Bank? A. Yes.

Q. Then for some reason Travers says it was closed, he wanted that changed, and wanted what was done in the way of payment cancelled and the loan set up again. A. There is no record in the Farmers Bank Books of that re-transfer of items at all.

Q. But of what date are the entries in the Farmers Bank, of the original date? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: The three cheques which we have, December 6th 7th and 17th? A. Yes.

Q. You were going on to speak of another account in the book? A. When the Trusts Company gave up the notes which had been hypothecated to them as security for these loans made to Mr. Travers, the Trusts & Guarantee Company were given credit for the amount of these notes and the notes were sent out to the branches and discounted in the branches.

Q. What do you mean by being given credit? A. You have on one side a charge in the account of the Trusts Company owing $80,605; they go down to the Trusts Company and get $30,000 of notes; they put as having received from the Trusts Company $30,000 crediting it; they take those $30,000 of notes and send them out to Milton, and have them discounted; the Milton branch discounts them and puts them to the credit of the Head Office of the Bank; that leaves the Trusts Company as owing only $50,000 according to the bank's books, and that is the way it went till the account was wiped out.

Q. That is the method in the bank's books? A. Yes, that is the method the bank adopted.

Q. This Exhibit which I put in some time ago showing the history of those notes (Exhibit 51) will you just say whether that shows the transaction as it appears in the bank’s books? A. I say this: some of it is arrived at from a process of elimination, some of it is from fact. This is fact; notes for $2,580 loans, that is procured from the company. Loan on $20,500 that is procured from the Securities. Charged to the Milton branch February 26th, 1907, that is taken from the Milton books.

Q. $30,300? A. Taken from a letter of the Trusts Company. Charged Milton branch March 6th, 1907, $770, that is from the Milton records. Charged on April 11th, 1907, that is from the Milton branch, $2,530. Charged April 16th, the latter part of this is from the Milton records; the former part is from the head office books.

Q. The beginning, “Charged Milton branch” is from the Milton records; and the first items under April 16th, 1907, are from the head office books? A. Yes. The same thing obtains there on April 30th.

Q. Turn back to the first page where you have the notes, you account for the notes dealt with in those three loans? A. Yes.

Q. And you show what was charged to the Milton branch as detailed in the subsequent pages? A. That is right. Then the Denoon note was returned to them, there is a receipt; the DeVean note was given up; the Stair note paid. That reduces it to about $7,000 in notes, I cannot account for; I know of $4,750 of those.

Q. The $30,300 was the first batch of notes they appear to have got back from the Trusts Company? A. Yes.

Q. And they credited that amount to the Trusts & Guarantee Company? A. Yes.

Q. Discounting at Milton and where did the proceeds of the discounts find their way to, the head office? A. They would be put to the credit of the head office in the Milton books, but what would happen in the head office books was that they would charge the Milton branch with those $30,300 of notes and they would credit the Trusts Company; that is the transaction.

Mr. Travers: I think you are wrong on that. A. Let me say this; they could have gotten them all at once from the Trusts Company, but need not have put through their charges till any time that suited their purpose. Mr. Travers draws my attention to a certain amount of accounting; the Toronto Office was a clearing house strictly speaking; the head office charged everything to the Toronto office, and the Toronto Office would clear the note; that is what he means.

Mr. Hodkins: You had seen the copy in the Trusts Company's book of the account with them beginning with the early part of 1907 and running on till April 8th? A. Yes, I have seen a copy of it.

Q. And made up of deposits according to them of circulation from time to time? A. Yes, well, it agrees with the bank’s books. The statement was made to me indefinitely that it was circulation, but the books did not indicate whether it was circulation; I cannot tell from our books whether it was circulation.
Q. Do the entries in the Trusts & Guarantee Company account which we spoke of that day correspond with the entries in the head office as detailed in this Exhibit 51?  A. Not at all.

Q. I mean as to the payments, I do not mean as to the deposits they were making?  A. The deposit account starting in January, 1907, has no bearing or no connection whatever with these transactions. These are the loans. (Exhibit 51.) The deposit account is absolutely separate. Their record of that deposit account and the bank's records agree absolutely item for item.

Mr. Commissioner: It practically appears as an ordinary deposit account as far as you can see?  A. Yes.

Q. What it consisted of we have been told?  A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: The payments out of that from the Trusts & Guarantee Company to the bank correspond to these discounts in the Milton branch?  A. Not at all, no relevancy at all.

Q. What account in the bank do they correspond with?  A. I do not think you will find any account in the Trusts & Guarantee Company relating to the return of those notes. They got payment of these $80,000 and later on in March, 1907, of the balance, $25,000 and they were paid up, and the bank was entitled to get those notes back whenever they wanted to or Travers. When it got them back I cannot tell you; they may have gotten them back in April and may be in March.

Q. I have asked for a copy of that account and when it is here I will show you exactly what I mean.

Mr. Commissioner: Has not that all been fully explained? Against this deposit account there were cheques drawn on the Farmers Bank?  A. Yes, this deposit went on, the Farmers Bank drew cheques.

Q. What I understand Mr. Hodgins wants to get at does that deposit account appear in the same form in the Farmers Bank as it does in the Trusts Company?  A. Absolutely, that is the account where the bank drew on the Trusts Company and the Trusts Company issued its cheque on the Bank of Montreal and the Bank of Montreal cheque was deposited in the Union Bank to the credit of the Farmers Bank of Canada; that cleans that transaction.

Mr. Hodgins: Take that first item of $30,300?  A. That has no relevancy with that, absolutely nothing to do with it.

Q. I thought they had. I may be wrong?  A. Nothing at all?

Q. It is quite an independent transaction?  A. Yes.

Q. In the one, as I understand, the Trusts Company treated the bank as its debtor, or somebody as its debtor?  A. Yes, in the deposit account the bank was a creditor.

Q. I am talking about the loan account as these payments were made. so much of the debt was discharged; in the Farmers Bank account, so much of the amount that the Trusts Company owed was discharged by the return of the notes; that is the way they treated it?  A. Yes, they had to get it off their books that way.

Q. That is all working out the same scheme, treating the notes as something not the property of the bank, hypothecated by Travers; it is all worked out on the same plan is it not?  A. Well.

Q. The money that went really to pay the loan was charged up?  A. The bank paid the money out to pay the loan.

Q. And charged it up as if they had lent it to the Trusts Company with the notes and wiped out the account.

The Commission adjourned at 1 P.M. to 2 P.M.
Mr. HODGINS: You became a subscriber to this stock of this bank?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For how many shares?

A. $20,000 worth of their stock.

Q. That was in March, 1907, I am instructed?

A. I am kind of forgetful about the dates, but I should believe it was in 1906, but it was just prior before the organization.

Q. Prior to the organization?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you pay for the stock?

A. I told him that I had $19,000 of fully paid up stock in the Canadian Savings that was paying me between 6% and 8% and if I could have $19,000 worth of their stock in exchange for that, I would take it.

Q. Would you have to pay $19,000 more would not you?

A. Then, sir, Mr. Travers said it would look far nicer if you would take the even $20,000. I said I did not have the money to spare. Well, he said, you are practically paying cash for everything, and he said, that won't matter any, and he says, pay it at your convenience.

Q. You gave a note and $100,000 cash?

A. Pardon me, I have not the slightest recollection of giving a note but it may be so; if you show me that the note that I can see it was my signature it would remind me, but I have not the slightest knowledge.

Q. How did you arrange for the payment of this extra thousand?

A. I gave him $100 cash and the other he said I could pay it when it was convenient for me. I doubt that I ever gave a note.

Q. Did you ever get a receipt or give a receipt for a $900 note?

A. I have not the slightest knowledge.

Q. You do not remember the note, but do you remember signing a receipt when you turned over your stock to Menzie?

A. No. Let me tell you, sir, as near as I can remember, I owed the bank some money and I did not want to owe them anything and I want to go perfectly clear and straight with them and I says, "Tell me what I owe you" and I gave them a cheque for what I owed the bank.

Q. How much was that?

A. That kind of bothers me to try and remember that, but I should imagine it would be in the neighborhood along of about that amount.

Q. $900?

A. I do not think it was quite that amount. I think it was a little bit less, but it is hard for me to remember.

Q. Whom did you give the money to?

A. I gave a cheque to Mr. McKay or else I gave it to Mr. Travers; I paid it right over then. They gave me a book—

Q. Have you looked for the cheque since or looked in your bank account?

A. No, sir, I have not. I remember this that I owed the bank some money and I told them I did not want to owe them anything, I did not want to have any more transactions with them. I said whatever the amount is, which I knew at the time, I believe I said to Mr. McKay, "you give him the cheque, and I will pay you, whatever it is", but I think my own cheque was taken and I straightened the whole up so that I would not owe them one cent.

Q. What did you do with the bank stock you had?

A. He never gave any. I expected I would get it, but, to explain, it was like this, when I went in there they gave me a book with the Hon. Mr. Forget, Lieutenant Governor of Saskatchewan, Hon. Mr Beattie, and some of the ablest men in the country.

Q. I do not want to go into all this; you bought stock and you paid for it in this way, by turning over the Canadian Savings Company stock and giving $100 and ultimately paying the sum of $900; what did you do with that stock or how did you get rid of it?

A. It was sold to a Mr. Menzie.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Who by? A. Who sold it?
Q. Yes? A. As far as I know, Mr. Travers did, for I told him I did not want to go there; I did not want to have anything to do with them and they must take the stock back or sell it for me and he said he had a party who would buy it from me.
Q. Did you act as director? A. Well, sir, according to my lawyer and according to Mr. Travers I was not a director.
Q. Did you act as a director, attend directors meetings? A. No, as soon as I was elected, sir, I told him I did not make any bargain with them, that I wanted to be let off, and he said "well, you come to the meeting and I will explain to the directors and we will let you off and I sat waiting for them.
Q. Do you remember being elected a director? A. Well, sir, there was a sort—it was not an election to my way of thinking; I did not think that everything was fair and square there; they had a fight there, or they were going to have a fight there, and they frightened the life out of me.
Q. I see you attended the directors meeting—? A. With the understanding he would let me off, that if I was there I could explain it to them and let me off, but I took no part with them.
Q. You finally got rid of your stock in some way? A. I sold it to Mr. Menzie, and I signed my name on the book that it was transferred to that gentleman.
Q. What became of your stock in the Canadian Securities Company? A. They gave up business and I went finally and I sold it.
Q. Did the Farmers Bank give it back to you? A. Yes.
Q. What time was that, how long after you took your stock was that? A. As near as I can remember it was in the neighborhood of a couple of months or so, because the first meeting they said they would let me off if I could come to the meeting, and I went with the understanding that I should take no part in any shape or form, and Mr. Travers said, "If you will come and explain it to the directors, they will let you off".
Q. You were dissatisfied because you found the people connected with the bank were not the class that appealed to you? A. Yes, I made inquiry as to the class of people and I was willing to have worked with them but—
Q. You said you paid off whatever the balance was and they let you off and they gave you back your stock and you finally sold it? A. I sold the stock I had of the Farmers Bank to Mr. Menzie.

Mr. Hodgins: How much was received by the bank altogether on capital account, bona fide received from the beginning down to the close? A. (Referring to page 18 of Exhibit 63). I make it $532,599. I wish to say this further; in that amount I had not included items shown on page 21 amounting to $13,800 which was shown to have been paid according to the books of the bank, and further I deducted $20,000 for the deficiency in the Tevis account. If it is held that $115,000 advanced Tevis on the loan then applied on capital stock is a valid payment and you do not have to take the loss into account, on the realization of the security, the amount would be $552,000.
Q. What about the item of $13,800? A. According to the books of the bank, stock held by Bate, Kelly, Kemp, Travers, Witham, Wylie, McEachren and W. Beatrice Nesbitt is all shown as paid up. (Page 21 of Exhibit 63).
Q. Why do not you take it in? A. Because it was not paid by cash which came into the bank.
Q. $532,000 is the lowest calculation of the paid up capital stock of the bank? A. $532,599 is the lowest calculation of the paid up capital stock.

Q. And that was paid up in cash? A. Yes.

Q. If the Tevis transaction is entitled to stand without being charged with the $20,000 loss, there was really $552,000 of paid up capital? A. That is right.

Q. How long was it before that was all paid up? A. This statement is down to the date of the inception of liquidation.

Q. Can you tell me how much was paid up say by the end of 1907? A. No, I cannot tell you that, unless I go into the account, for this reason, that it means making up a statement based on fact and not book entries.

Q. I thought you had that? A. No.

Q. Would the bulk of that be paid up from 1907 in your recollection? A. I do not want to hazard an answer to that.

Q. Would it be too much trouble to find out just what years that capital account came in? A. No, I can prepare that statement for you, it would take some time, it would take three or four days to get that fully that.

Q. Probably you can put that in later on? A. Then I understand you want a statement showing the actual payments from time to time, that is to say the progress of the account.

Q. Just by years.

Mr. Commissioner: You had better refer to this page 21 showing your reasons for treating them as not paid up, because apparently these reasons would in some cases not justify treating them as not paid up? A. My reasons are these—

Q. They are stated on page 21, are they not? A. Yes, of course this Kelly amount, I have largely recovered since the bank has been in liquidation.

Q. So that should go out, $694.50? A. That would go out.

Q. Kemp, you say is of doubtful value? A. Yes.

Q. Why do you deduct $6,000 W. R. Travers? A. Because that is taken off down below, that was included in the Tevis transaction.

Q. McEachren? A. That was the Beatie Nesbitt stock which was paid as charges against Keeley Mine and against commissions.

Q. If the commissions were due why do you charge it? A. There was a large amount charged against commissions which is very much in excess of what the agreements call for, according to my understanding and with that issue I do not feel prepared to admit the payment is all bona fide, at least it will have to be shown that it is.

Q. $5,000 by cheque of the Clark Manufacturing Co.? A. What happened there was this, that Nesbitt was indebted to the bank or at least there were firms indebted to the bank to the extent of $60,000.

Q. What firm? A. One was the Clark Manufacturing Co., the Hubbard Company, F. H. Ross & Co.—there may have been another one—they are all endorsed on the back of a cheque here. Nesbitt had guaranteed those accounts... The bank made a settlement with him whereby they took over his Keeley Mine Stock.

Q. The whole of it? A. Yes. Wiped out these accounts and gave him $5,000; part of the Clark debt to the extent of $5,000 was caused by the issue of a cheque for $5,000 in favour of the bank on account of payment of Nesbitt's stock.

Mr. Hodgins: Is that the cheque we heard about of Lindsay and Travers? A. I do not know whether you have heard about it or not.

Mr. Commissioner: The $5,000 cheque? A. No, there is another one.

Mr. Hodgins: This a cheque of the Clark Manufacturing Company on their account in the Farmers Bank? A. Yes.

Q. McEachren and Nesbitt made a joint subscription? A. No. Nesbitt made the subscription; it was afterwards transferred and now stands in McEachren's name: McEachren was his secretary.
Q. And that appears as fully paid-up stock? A. Yes.
Q. And that you say was paid, $5,000 charged to commissions account and $5,000 by the cheque of the Clark Manufacturing Company? A. That is it, sir. The Clark Manufacturing Company afterwards paid by the transfer of Nesbitt's Keeley stock.
Q. When did that transfer of Keeley stock take place? A. March 23rd, 1910.

MR. COMMISSIONER: We did not hear before of Nesbitt having parted with his interest in the Keeley Mine?

MR. HODGINS: No, I had intended to complete that with Mr. Travers.
Q. You spoke of a question arising as to commissions; the amount charged all told for commissions is something in the neighborhood of $71,000, is it not? A. Yes.
Q. And taking the capital stock subscribed, what ought it to be at the 10% rate? A. Subscribed capital stock at the time of the failure was $584,500; I think that is the exact figure; and 10% on that would be $58,450. But you have to take into account on that Tevis stock the 1,150 shares; the commission went to Chapman by way of a transfer of capital stock of the American Piano Company; if you take $115,000 off $584,500 it will come to $469,500; if it is true that the agreement was that the commission was to be only 10%, and so far as I can see is the case, the commission would be $46,950 all told. I think the statement shows $71,000 paid out.

MR. COMMISSIONER: The commission in the early stage was to be only 5%?
A. I do not understand that.
Q. That was the arrangement of the provisional board? A. That is the first I have heard of it.

MR. HODGINS: That was with Smith.
MR. COMMISSIONER: I understood up to a certain time it was 5%.
MR. TRAVERS: I think you are wrong; it was 10%.
MR. COMMISSIONER: From Mr. Lown I understood it was 5%, and they raised the commission.

MR. TRAVERS: It was before my time.
MR. COMMISSIONER: Yes, before Travers came in at all I think they were paying 5%.

MR. HODGINS: The total appears on page 48 and is $71,800; the total commission account from beginning to end? A. That is right. Mr. Travers has made the statement to me that there was an agreement that he should get 15%; I have seen no document carrying out that contention.
Q. At all events, that is the point you are raising with regard to why these should not be treated as paid up by reason of the right to commissions? A. That is the issue I raise.
MR. TRAVERS: Will you ask Mr. Clarkson if that transaction was at the time of the transfer of Nesbitt's Keeley Mine stock or not.

MR. HODGINS: I do not understand you.
MR. TRAVERS: He spoke of the transfer of $5,000 in reference to the Clark Manufacturing Company? A. No, that was away prior to it.
MR. COMMISSIONER: Yes, I understand that; it was paid earlier, but the final indebtedness of Clark and these other concerns was wiped out by the transfer?
A. Yes, that is what I mean.
Q. $5,000 went to the debit of the Clark account and to the credit of stock account? A. That is what I mean.
MR. HODGINS: Still on the question of commissions, page 47, the commissions are charged up subsequent to December 31st, 1906, at $15,204? A. A separate commission account was carried then.
Q. I suppose that is included in the $71,000? A. Yes, it is combined.
Q. There is a payment to Lindsay of $3,000 in 1907, on October 1st, which I understand was in full; 1909 there is a further payment of $1,080? A. As I understand it there was a settlement made with Lindsay up to a certain date.

Q. Is the $1,080 for subsequent commissions he claimed to have earned? A. I could not tell you that; I presume it is, but I do not know; payment was made though.

Mr. Commissioner: From what account in the bank’s books were these figures taken? A. Taken from organization account and commission account.

Q. And do they appear in one or the other of these accounts under the head of commission? A. They will appear in the bank books under the head of commission.

Mr. Hodgins: They sometimes charged the commission account and sometimes organization? A. Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: Ultimately were the accounts merged? A. No, I do not think so.

Q. Carried through in the same shape? A. I think the two accounts will cover, the commission account and the organization account.

Q. Were they ever combined? A. No.

Q. Because I understood organization account amounting to one hundred thousand-odd dollars included all commissions? A. The commission account was written off to profit and loss in 1907.

Mr. Hodgins: In dealing with the organization accounts I asked some one, I think it was Mr. Travers, how he accounted for the fact that in the report of the provisional directors, as copied in the permanent minute book at page 11, the expenses of organization were represented as $41,291, instead of $44,000-odd that appeared in the report itself as a separate document signed by Mr. Lown? A. I can only make a suggestion as to that, I do not know that it is a fact, but the amount of the paid-up capital is stated at $291,000; the amount deposited with the Government was $250,000; therefore, it stood to reason that they could not show the expenses at more than $41,000 without having an error in their accounts; I do not know if that is the reason; that is what I have always attributed it to.

Q. I wish you would look at pages 32 to 36; you have adopted certain dates for certain of the accounts; I do not know whether there is any significance in putting them in? A. The only particular significance of October 23rd, is that is the date upon which the organization meeting was called.

Q. There is a page I wanted to ask you about, page 38? A. These are the cheques I spoke about this morning.

Q. You spoke this morning of some cheques that were carried as cash; page 38 seems to give a statement which includes those; what is that statement on page 38? A. Page 38 is this, it shows the amount as having been actually expended up to November 27th, 1906, on expenses of organization, $45,105.71; the amount shown in the permanent books of the bank is $32,127.71; there was a difference of $12,978. Then the statement shows what was done with the $100,000; $75,995 was used to cover the spread payments; $20,027 to cover those securities and stock which they had on hand and $12,978 to cover the deficiency in expenditures between what they were entered and what they actually had paid; that left $109,000, and then there was a deficiency of $9,000. To clean up that deficiency they carried in their cash three cheques, Groves, Gilchrist and Beattie Nesbitt, amounting to $9,000, which came from nowhere. That is the explanation as I make it from an accounting standpoint.

Q. Page 39 is the way you make up from the books, I take it, the $291,310? A. Yes.

Q. That is the way that was made up? A. Yes.

Q. In fact? A. Yes.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Will you look at page 48 and tell me if that is the expense account from start to finish, analyzed? A. When you say expense account it is not the operating account; it is known as organization expenses and commissions; it is a combination of those accounts.

Q. Does it begin at the inception of the bank? A. Yes.

Q. Right from the provisional directors down? A. Yes, right from the provisional directors to the end.

Q. A good many of the items were charged apparently in a peculiar way? A. Charged off in different ways.

Q. As shown on the statement? A. Yes.

Q. I will just ask you a question or two about that: the commissions and the provisional directors' legal expenses and various other things that includes that balance that you say you cannot account for out of that cheque of $25,341.80? A. Yes, I think that is where it must have been taken up.

Q. And then the way which that total amounts which represents expenditure was dealt with, it appears, in this way: there is a charge to bank premises, $15,000? A. Yes.

Q. Is that a proper charge? A. Not unless there are some facts that I know nothing about.

Q. Look at the account? A. No, not unless there are some reasons of which I am unaware.

Q. There is some loss on securities sold on capital account, $1,027; has that anything to do with that account? A. Do I show it as a loss?

Q. You say it is disposed of? A. I meant that is the difference between that $19,000 and the $20,027; I do not think it is a loss; it is an actual realization.

Q. R. E. Menzie, why do you only charge $20,000? A. The other previous $20,000 had been paid up by Devean; the books seemed to indicate a new subscription of $20,000 was credited to organization account; that is what the books appear to indicate.

Q. However Menzie afterwards was worked out in the Tevis matter and paid? A. Yes.

Q. There is a note of $55,000 from Travers, was that carried as an asset? A. That was discounted by the bank and put to the credit in reduction of those expenses and then afterwards was charged to that Continental transaction into the Keeley Mine and Chapman.

Q. Then follows the commission account $15,204, the details of which appear on the previous page 47? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Commissioner: I do not understand that: why were those put on the other side of that account? A. That statement below means how those items were gotten rid of on the books, that is to say of that sum total of $107,000 some was charged to one thing and some to another thing, and that $15,000 represents the amount standing in commission account.

Q. Is that all that is charged to commissions? A. Under the heading commissions account.

Mr. Hodgins: Those are the items, page 47? A. Yes, that commission account was wiped off afterwards in profit and loss.

Q. In properly kept books how would that $107,000 have appeared? A. There should have been accounts in there for organization expenses, for commissions, I should think there would be those two accounts.

Mr. Commissioner: Take this item charged to bank premises, there must have been, according to Mr. Stair and I think Travers' evidence, money spent in putting the bank in order? A. There was a very large amount of money.

Q. To what account did that go originally? A. Bank premises account.

Q. What does that bank premises amount to? A. It is further on.

Mr. Hodgins: Page 65.
Mr. Commissioner: They swelled the branch bank premises account by putting $15,000 to these payments for commissions or something else? A. That is what I mean.

Mr. Hodgins: Instead of appearing in the legitimate accounts they went to these various accounts, and in that way are misleading to any one looking at the books of the bank? A. They wrote off the account in that way.

Mr. Commissioner: Beyond the $55,000 one, which explains itself, what was the object of doing this, what was to be changed—I can understand the amount paid for commission would appear a great deal less than it was and the amount paid for bank premises a great deal more? A. The amount charged to bank premises would appear in their books $15,000 more.

Q. He then must have thought it would look better if the bank premises account looked larger than it really was if by doing so they could cut down the amount of commissions? A. Yes.

Q. I do not understand the Menzie case? A. The bank held Menzie’s obligation for $40,000, discounted $20,000 of it went to take the place of the Devean transaction; the other $20,000 appears to have gone to the credit of this organization account.

Mr. Hodgins: Why should that charge be made? A. So as to reduce the apparent expenditure on organization and commissions.

Mr. Commissioner: They got $20,000 from Devean which they paid back to him? A. Yes.

Q. And the stock was unpaid in Menzie’s hands? A. Yes, except by note.

Q. What possible reason would there be for putting any part of that into this account? A. The only reason would be to write it down, to make it less than the account showed.

Q. Where would they show the dealing with Menzie, how would they show his account with regard to his stock; they must show somewhere, they got in money from Menzie they got so much money from Devean $20,000? A. Yes.

Q. When a shareholder paid so much money on account of his stock what entries were made in the books? A. I will show you in the books; they put a receipt here—capital account stock cash book.

Q. Is that a receipt for stock? A. Yes.

Q. Capital account is credited? A. Yes.

Q. What is the opposite entry? A. $1,948, you see here. (Shows).

Q. When Devean paid his $19,000 that went to the credit of capital stock, should have gone? A. Yes, but I do not think it was carried that way; I think the stock was just held there—yes, it was, it was shown there.

Q. And as an investment in the stock? A. Yes, but when they came to write up the permanent books they did not carry that investment into it.

Q. How did they treat it then? A. They did not treat it at all; they showed it in the stock book there.

Q. If capital stock had been credited with the $19,100—A. Yes, they did, sir—that is right. They held the capital stock in payment, that is the Canadian Savings in payment of that stock.

Q. Then the securities, whatever account that was would represent that? A. Yes.

Q. How did they get that out of capital account? A. Here are the details; they all went into the stock ledger to the credit of these different people, that is it.

Q. I want to take this money that Devean had paid, $19,100 that had gone to the credit of capital account, how did they ever get that out again; what entry was made to withdraw that?

Mr. Hodgins: When he got back his stock they ought to have made an entry showing that had gone back to him when the stock was cancelled. A. Here is the Menzie transaction; there is where the note was discounted in the Toronto branch for $40,000.

Mr. Commissioner: Would not there be in the ledger an account with somebody for that? A. This is the stock ledger, here is Menzie.
Q. 200 shares? A. Yes, here is the $3,000; here is $20,000.
Q. What $3,000 is that? A. Here are the three items, $20,000, $17,000 and $3,000.
Q. Does that mean there were three different notes or why is it split in that way? A. Those are the three.
Q. Then he must have discounted three notes? A. He only discounted one.
Q. Why did he split it? A. There is $20,000 which goes to the credit of organization, and there is $17,000 which goes to the credit of capital stock and there is $3,000—
Q. When this man discounted his note and paid that why was not capital credited with that? A. Devean’s stock had been credited previously with $20,000.
Q. Why was not the other $20,000? A. Then they paid it back.
Q. Then Devean got his back again? A. I will have to work that out again.
The fact, of course, is $20,000 was credited to commissions; I will have to work that out for you unless Travers can tell you now.
Mr. Travers: I think you are wrong on that.
Mr. Commissioner: The three items certainly seem to correspond.
Mr. Hodgins: Devean’s stock ought to have been credited as paid up.
Mr. Commissioner: It was credited as paid up.
Mr. Hodgins: There should have been a further credit on that when it was sold to Menzie. A. (Referring to cancelled ledger). That shows $20,000 paid up in December 31st.
Q. And he is credited on the 25th March with having paid that? A. Yes.
Q. I suppose that is the day the investment in the Securities? A. No, he transferred it on that date to the other man.
Q. They got Menzie’s note for $40,000 to pay for that stock, how are they going to make the thing square on the books if they took the $20,000 and applied it to organization expenses, how is that possible? A. It will show you the credit to organization account.
Q. Where is the capital account? A. That is in the ledger.
Q. Perhaps if we had that it might throw some light.
Mr. Travers: Here is the explanation of that, I think (explaining to Mr. Clarkson) that $25,605 was that note from the Guarantee Company in which that was included; that whole $25,000 was charged to organization expenses and then the $20,000 of Devean’s was credited back again.
Mr. Commissioner: Does that mean it did duty for a few days? A. Here is the item. (In ledger.)
Q. Where is the capital account? A. (Turns up.) Devean was included in that $291,000 brought over from the other.
Q. In March, on the other side, it was merged; he personally transferred it or is there any entry about it? A. No, there is none.
Mr. Hodgins: Travers says when it came back—he remembers it was pledged for that $20,000 loan—when it came back from there it was charged to organization; that is his explanation of it? A. When it came back it was charged to organization.
Mr. Travers: Yes. A. Yes, $25,344 was charged to organization.
Mr. Travers: Yes and that was the advance from the Trusts & Guarantee in which that stock of $20,000 was included.
Mr. Hodgins: However it was done it does not alter the fact that it should not have been charged in the way it was? A. That $25,000, no.
Q. No, that $20,000. Menzie? A. No, the stock transaction should not go into this organization account at all.
Q. The object apparently was to make the organization account look small? A. Yes, it diminished it by that amount.
Q. Have they to show these in returns to the Government in any way? A. Organization expenses?
Q. Yes? A. No.
Q. What is the object of reducing the organization account? A. That appears in the books of the bank; you have to take the account representing these expenditures; you could diminish these expenditures by charging them to other items, such as bank premises, such as liability of a customer or something like that; it is an entirely different thing.
Q. Do you mean if it is charged to bank premises account that that is returned to the Government as a valuable asset? A. Yes, that is returned to the Government.

M R. C O M M I S S I O N E R: There is an item of bank premises? A. Yes.

M R. H O D G I N S: Taking that $15,000 charged up to organization and bank premises, would that enable them to show an asset of $15,000 which could be returned to the Government? A. Yes, it was returned.
Q. As a valuable asset? A. Yes, it was returned as an asset.
Q. Charging part of it in capital account, would that enable them to do the same? A. Not an asset; what is your question exactly?
Q. Whether charging that $20,000 which you have down there, which apparently should have been in capital account, would that be a benefit to them? A. No.
Q. Can you account for it being done in that way? A. The only way I accounted for it was the desire to reduce the amount of this account by charging it out into various places.
Q. But as Travers knew all about it, who else was to see it? A. If the bank kept a balance some way, sooner or later it had to go out of the way, either out of profits—

M R. T R A V E R S: Can I help out on that? A. I do not know what Mr. Travers' explanation is.

M R. C O M M I S S I O N E R: Mr. Travers is making a note of these.

M R. H O D G I N S: Yes, you make a note to show why page 48 was so treated.
Q. Would there be any benefit in having this note of W. R. Travers for $55,000 instead of $55,000 in the organization account? A. Yes, it would appear as a loan.
Q. Would that be valuable in making a return to the Government? A. Paper under discount, yes; it would appear as a loan to customers.

M R. C O M M I S S I O N E R: It would appear as an asset instead of an outlay.

M R. H O D G I N S: There is an item of $9,100 which, so far as I can see from the accounts, was used to purchase some shares, do you know about that item (page 23)? A. What happened there, was, Mr. Travers discounted a call loan in the head office and took over stock purchase, the stock from stockholders who had been paid for their stock to the bank.
Q. That would mean $9,100 of bank money taken to buy stock? A. The bank held a call loan of Mr. Travers, and if he were good it would be all right; if he was not good it would mean a loss.
Q. Did he make the loan to himself personally? A. The bank made the loan to him, yes; he got the loan.
Q. Gave his own note? A. Yes.
Q. What became of that stock afterwards; did the bank ever dispose of it and get the proceeds? A. No, it is in his name now.
Q. Had he paid his call loan? A. That is a question. I have been collecting assets and applying them generally against obligations; I do not apply it specifically one thing or another.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Mr. Commissioner: Was it paid at the time? A. No, it was not; there was a loan of $16,800 in the bank at the time of the failure.

Mr. Commissioner: Mr. Travers had better take a note of these to explain why these stocks were got out of the way.

Mr. Hodgins: There is another item on page 18 of $1,273.50, C. H. Smith in trust, he was the former secretary? A. Yes.

Q. What is the explanation of that item? A. He is a debtor of the bank for $1,273, the amount being used in purchase of capital stock, according to my information.

Q. Was that of capital stock before the organization or after? A. No, that stock was purchased, I think, just in the last year of the bank's existence.

Q. Did he give an obligation to the bank and did they advance him the money or how was it done? A. No, I think it is by way of overdraft.

Q. Was he being used by the bank? A. I do not know; the information given to me is that he was doing this of his own initiative.

Q. He was the former secretary? A. Yes.

Q. And is now in Vancouver; that appears in an overdraft used for the purpose of purchasing stock.

Mr. Commissioner: Is not there some mistake about that; Smith went out of the bank before the permanent organization. A. Yes, he was secretary of the provisional directors.

Q. It must have been during that time it was done? A. No, he was in Toronto here in 1910; he borrowed money from the bank in 1910, and the information I have is he used it to purchase stock on the market.

Mr. Commissioner: I thought Travers and he were not very friendly? A. Not about November, 1906.

Mr. Commissioner: After he got his $1,800 I do not see how Travers would be much more friendly?

Q. That overdraft arises in the last year.

Mr. Hodgins: Is it an ordinary business over-draft? A. To all appearances it is, but the statement is made to me that it was used to purchase stock in the bank.

Q. And there is nothing to represent it except this cheque? A. No.

Q. And it is C. H. Smith in trust? A. Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: Did you trace the stock? A. I have no trace of capital stock acquired by Smith.

Q. Why do you make it C. H. Smith in trust? A. That is the designation of the account; there are two accounts; one C. H. Smith in trust and the other C. H. Smith, and on inquiry which he should have an account C. H. Smith in trust I was told that that was money he borrowed with which to purchase capital stock of the bank on the market.

Q. I would like to follow these items up on page 63; I would like Mr. Travers to make a particular note of these; that was McCallum and Tamlin? A. Defalcation.

Q. By whom? A. By a man named McCallum, who was an employee of the bank, and a man called Tamlin, who was acting apparently with him, outside the bank.

Q. That represented a loss to the bank of $48,402? A. Yes, net.

Q. After the recovery—? A. Of $5,000 from the Surety Company.

Q. Was that a straight defalcation by a local manager or what? A. That is the information given to me.

Q. What was done with the loss in the books? A. $10,000 was written off to Keeley Mine and there is at present in the Toronto office two notes of $10,253 and $1,011; $21,038 is charged in the Toronto branch.
Q. Charged in what way, charged as a loss? A. No, it is in the account there as charged against the Toronto branch.

MR. COMMISSIONER: That is between the head office and the Toronto branch? A. It is the McCallum account, yes.

MR. HODGINS: This first item of $40,000 is apparently charged up as an advance made by the Keeley Mines? A. No, it is charged in stocks and bonds, written off in stocks; just in the same way as the expenditures in organization account.

Q. I think you explained about the stocks and bonds account, or was it Mr. Travers? A. Mr. Travers explained it.

Q. That was an account opened about when; what account had been used previous to that? A. The Rabbit Mining had been used to a smaller extent.

Q. What would a man looking at that account assume it meant in the way charged up? A. An investment in stocks, bonds; the account was opened on the 12th August, 1908.

MR. HODGINS: What is the date of the $40,000 being charged up to it? A. November 10th, 1908.

Q. It was as early as that; as a matter of fact the whole thing $48,402 was a loss? A. Yes.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Before you go from that what connection had McIntyre with the matter? A. I understand, sir, that a note was taken from a man named McIntyre and carried in the Toronto books as a loan to customers. The account looks to me as though it were just simply carried so as to obviate the necessity of showing such a loss.

Q. It was not a friend of Tamlin or McCallum who came in and gave his note? A. The note is no good. I am told it was procured by the solicitor of the bank when he was cleaning this matter up.

Q. As a security to the bank or what? A. Whether it was supposed to be a security or not I do not know, but the statement is made that the solicitor took his note in connection with this defalcation and handed it over to the bank.

Q. And what was Tamlin's note? A. The Tamlin note is just the same.

Q. Is that one of these men McCallum and Tamlin? A. Yes.

Q. What has become of McCallum? A. McCallum is said to have gone to Owen Sound where he is employed in a furniture business up there.

Q. Was this all kept secret, this loss? A. No, McCallum was prosecuted in the Police Court when I think the loss was shown to the extent of $8,000 or $9,000 and he went to jail I think for three years. The full extent of the loss was not disclosed by the bank; I think it was made to appear about eight or nine thousand dollars.

Q. What was his position? A. Paying teller.

Q. In Toronto? A. Yes.

Q. How did he get hold of so much money to steal? A. Mr. Travers, I think, will have to explain that to you, sir, I cannot tell you; this is just a record of what appears of that transaction according to the books. All I know is I made inquiries about McCallum and about this McIntyre note and this Tamlin note and I was told they were taken at that time. They are no good. I do not think I ever got any very fair statement as to why they were taken excepting for the purpose of cleaning the matter up.

MR. HODGINS: The next item on that page 63 is the Toronto office overdraft, under the head of W. R. Travers, $6,129? A. That is a withdrawal; his current account was over-drawn to that extent.

Q. The next four items we have heard of before? A. Yes.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Those are as I understand it, items withdrawn by Mr. Travers and charged to these various accounts?  A. That is what I understand, yes. I think we have spoken about all these things.

Mr. Commissioner: Keeley Mine we have not got that, $125,000?  A. I think that was mentioned yesterday, $90,000, $20,000 and $15,000, totalling $125,000?

Mr. Commissioner: What has Travers to do with that?

Mr. Hodgins: These were just moneys which according to the evidence yesterday he took; you will find them on page 73. You remember he said he borrowed that $90,000 against his stock in the mine.

Mr. Commissioner: The whole $125,000 is made up of different items.

Mr. Hodgins: Yes; this $125,000 is made up of the following: Withdrawals: $90,000, W. R. Travers, charged to Keeley Mine Stocks and Bonds; and two items above $15,000 and $20,000.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not see; the appropriations here of $125,000 are made up of five items?  A. These items make up the $90,000.

Q. Drawn at different times?  A. Yes, that $15,000 is represented by Keeley Mine note here and $20,000 is represented by Keeley Mine note here; and that $10,000 was represented by a Keeley Mine note until such times as it was charged to stocks and bonds.

Mr. Hodgins: As against that, cash recoveries, and what you expect to recover, that is further recoveries expected, $32,000 has not been received yet?  A. No.

Q. Looking at it at the date of failure, I suppose the $166,733 would be the debit against it; you have recovered $45,750 and you expect to get more. Is that out of the realizable assets?  A. And bonds.

Mr. Commissioner: What are those securities for those items or things you got from Travers afterwards?  A. I got $25,000 from one guarantee Co., and I have sold real estate in Toronto and Maitland and realized on some small accounts.

Q. How did you get that property?  A. He made an assignment to me and practically the bank is the only creditor. The Guarantee Company would be a creditor for what they paid but we made a settlement and they waived their claim.

Q. What is the next one, dividend account; appropriations not justified $2,008; left unpaid dividends, $380—$1,728?  A. That is in regard to dividends and so far as I can see there is about $1,700 dividends paid out in excess of what the stock outstanding at the time warranted.

Q. Can you trace that?  A. No.

Q. Improperly paid dividends according to your view.

Mr. Commissioner: How did you arrive at that?  A. There is an account further on, page 64.

Mr. Commissioner: They paid on a less amount than the ledger showed, according to this; they are all less.

Mr. Hodgins: The capital stock payments are all less than the ledger showed.

Mr. Commissioner: If they paid a dividend upon smaller sums—?  A. The ledger shows capital stock paid up in excess of what it actually was.

Q. And the dividend was paid on what the ledger showed?  A. Yes.

Q. That is misleading?  A. I see it is there, but what I mean is this, the dividend was paid on the ledger statement.

Q. You had better make that alteration now, “Dividends paid upon basis of capital stock payment as shown in ledger”?  A. (Alteration made accordingly on page 64).

Mr. Hodgins: Q. The next item will be Beattie Nesbitt charged to Keeley Mine Stocks and Bonds $5,000; that is the item spoken of yesterday as being paid to him to manage Wishart?  A. Yes.
Q. The next item is August 3rd, 1910? A. There is a payment out on the Keeley Mine on August 3rd, 1910. There is no information in the Toronto office to show where that money went.

Q. Is there any cheque? A. It comes this way to the head office by way of a charge against the Toronto office of $10,000 and I have not been able—these book entries are mere bald entries, you have to have the voucher behind it to find out what the transaction is, and I have not got it.

Q. Can you turn it up in the ledger? A. No.

Q. Will you turn it up? A. I will show it in the Keeley Mine Stocks and bonds accounts $5,000.

Mr. Commissioner: Debited to that account? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: It appears in the regular order? A. It will appear in the cash book as—

Q. It does not seem to differ from any of the other items? A. No.

Q. Have you been able to verify all the rest but this? A. Yes.

Q. You do not know what became of that $5,000; it is simply charged there? A. I do not know what became of it; I won't say that the voucher was not there, but between the various prosecutions and one thing and another papers—

Q. You cannot account for that? A. No.

Q. As to the Keeley Mine I have here agreements which were made which show the payments which had to be made upon the option; there is the option first and then the agreement whereby Nesbitt, Wishart and Travers and the Farmers Bank took it over. I will put those two in. From that it would appear that Beattie Nesbitt was obtaining an advance from Wishart of $25,000 and an advance from the Farmers Bank of $25,000 for the purpose of applying said sums such option on the purchase price of said mining property.

EXHIBIT 65: Option dated the 18th day of May, 1908, from R. J. Jowsey et al to W. Beattie Nesbitt, and agreement of the 18th May, 1908, between Nesbitt, George Wishart, W. R. Travers and the Farmers Bank:

Q. You have gone pretty carefully through the Keeley Mine account? A. I have.

Q. And the Keeley Mine Stocks and Bonds account: the result is set out in these pages 72, 73, 74 and 75? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. How far have you been able to tell that the advances of items charged in that were legitimate charges for mining and mining operations and development? A. I can only say this that the Keeley Mine books were kept by Mr. Fitzgibbon, the accountant of the bank: there are vouchers apparently for all the payments of all the sums that went through the account, and it is my opinion that in so far as it goes the accounts are substantially correct.

Q. There have been several items mentioned here that were charged to the Keeley Mines account that do not appear to have had anything to do with the Keeley Mine? A. The money that is shown by my account to have gone to the Keeley Mine property I think was substantially expended on the property.

Q. Look at those three pages, and then we can see what you refer to. page 72? A. The first item, $161,374 was the amount of the advance to the Keeley-Jowsey-Wood mine up to the time of the formation of the Keeley Mine. The next items amounting to $362,329 are the actual advances made by the bank to the Keeley Mine. Then that item of $13,883 is the amount which was on hand in the current accounts and in interest charges: showing that the actual advances made by the bank, direct cash advances, $509,886.95.

Q. In the first item you gave was included the two payments, $25,000 each, May 29th and May 30th, 1908, by Travers as he told us yesterday? A. Yes, one of these is Wishart's note.

Q. It includes August 15th, 1908, payment of $50,000? A. Yes.

Q. And the overdrawn account shown as $61,374.31 up to December 17th, 1908. Does that include payment subsequent to the first two fifty thousand dollars paid upon the option? A. There is an item of $20,000 in there. There was payment made on December 15th, 1908, of $10,000.

Q. Which would be included in that $61,374? A. There is a payment in there of $20,000 previously.

Q. Included in the $61,374.

Mr. Commissioner: Is that what he said? A. Up to December 4th there had been all told $70,000 according to this property account of the Keeley Mine paid to the vendors. On December 15th, 1908, there was $40,000 and on January 2nd, 1909, $10,000.

Mr. Hodgins: That does not seem to agree with this; there was $50,000 paid in May, 1908, and in August there was another $50,000 paid; you speak of there being $70,000 paid up to December 4th, 1908? A. According to this record.

Q. According to the books of the bank? A. The books of the bank would show the advances to the Keeley-Jowsey-Wood Mine.

Mr. Commissioner: What account are you looking at? A. At the Keeley Mine Ledger Property Account.

Mr. Hodgins: Those do not agree? A. That $30,000 might have been expenditures on mining in the meantime.

Q. Travers has spoken of this $50,000 on August 15th, as the second payment; that and the other makes $100,000? A. The Keeley Mine books show only $70,000 paid up to that time to the vendors; the Keeley Mine property account there shows for the payment of the $300,000 to the vendors. Without an examination of the vouchers I am not able to give you the allocation of those payments.

Mr. Commissioner: What is the "2" in front? A. That is two million dollars of capital stock that was issued, two million dollars was the capital stock that was issued in purchase of the option.

Mr. Hodgins: $70,000 the cash payment? A. Yes; according to that book, on the property.

Mr. Commissioner: This starts with the new concern? A. This starts out of this other book which is the inception of that. This is really a cash journal. There is the item.

Mr. Hodgins: Have you the Keeley-Jowsey-Wood books here? A. I think we have one or two of them.

Q. They spent about $160,000 a year, 1908, 1909 and 1910? A. I never calculated it.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not see how they agree? A. This is a statement of advances. Here it is. Bills payable transfers from Keeley Mine, there is $100,000.

Q. But it was not bills payable? A. Yes, Keeley-Jowsey-Wood Mine had issued bills to the extent of $100,000 which were discounted in the bank; and they showed according to their books on that date an overdraft of $59,513—$159,513. The difference of two thousand is interest I take it. That money was expended this way; buildings $10,786; freight, these other items in here $29,000; operating $52,000; Nesbitt $77 property account $70,000—that two millions that five hundred dollars make up this two million five hundred thousand dollars: I think the thing is all accounted for.

Q. Do these payments seem to be regular and properly made? A. There are vouchers for every payment; I cannot say whether they are all correct, but I think they are very little astray.

Mr. Hodgins: That makes a total advance voucher for apparently legitimately of $509,886.95? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Give the amounts charged up to the Keeley Mine which you cannot denominate as legitimate charges? A. Here they are.

Q. Can you give me the total of them? A. They amount to about $248,391.

Mr. Commissioner: That is, these payments are not properly Keeley Mine payments? A. Yes, sir: pardon me, that includes $118,000 of interest.
Mr. Hodgins: I was going to ask you about that. The $509,000 does not include interest? A. No.

Q. It means actual money paid? A. Actual cash without any interest at all.
Q. Then on page 73 there is an item of $118,370 of interest? A. Yes.
Q. Is that account in the bank books as charged to this account? A. Yes.
Q. And carried earned interest on an investment? A. Yes, that is $118,000.
Q. And is so used in the statements? A. Yes, carried to earnings.
Q. Then comes the item that we have already discussed with Travers, amounting to $125,000, and the payment to Beattie Nesbitt December 14th, 1908, of $5,000? A. That is right.
Q. Those are the three classes of items over and above what you call legitimate payments of cash on account of the Keeley Mine? A. Yes.
Q. From the Bank’s standpoint what do they hold for that? A. They held at the time of the failure call loans at $300,000.
Q. What are those? A. Loans subject to call. That was apparently issued against the $500,000 of Treasury stock that apparently had been hypothecated to the bank.
Q. Who was liable for those call loans? A. The Keeley Mine Company.
Q. As a company? A. Yes.
Q. No one else? A. No.
Q. Current loans? A. $250,978.70, that is in the head office. In the Toronto branch there were $75,000 of current loans against which there were credits to the company’s account of $7,720.85.
Q. You have spoken of the call loans, current loans, the Toronto branch, $75,000 in Keeley Mine notes less $7,720; then there are three other items of $45,000, $90,000 and $5,000 which appear represented upon the books of the bank; what are those; what did represent those at the failure? A. This $90,000 which has been spoken of by Travers, there was $150,000 of Keeley Mine stock in the hands of the bank; Mr. Travers had borrowed $90,000 from the bank and he had handed over to the bank $150,000 of Keeley Mine stock.
Q. So that—? A. It was shown on the bank’s books as an investment to the extent of $90,000.
Q. $45,000? A. $45,000 interest, was charged in such form as to indicate that it was taken credit for as dividend on this stock investment.
Q. As if it had been actually received? A. Yes.
Q. What account was that found in? A. It was charged to the Keeley Mine advance account, at least it was charged to the Stocks and Bonds account, and the bank took credit for it as interest earned.
Q. The next item is $5,000 item paid Nesbitt? A. That is charged in here into the Keeley Mine Stocks and Bonds account.
Q. Some of those items you have given us, those three items in fact, appear on page 74; what is the explanation of the other items on page 74? A. The bank premises account has been written down $40,000, and that amount charged up against Keeley Mine stock. McCallum’s defalcation was charged into it.
Q. Does that mean an illegitimate charge to the Keeley Mine in addition to those you have told us of? A. What I have told you of previously were straight advances by the bank to the mining company; these charges I am now mentioning are in respect of moneys paid out for different things and charged up against this stock which the bank got in the Keeley Mine, Limited.
Q. From whom? A. In the promotion of it; its one-quarter interest.
Q. What other items are there apart from the three we have gone over? A. There is an item in here of $60,000, W. B. Nesbitt.
Q. Explain that, that is in connection with the assignment of stock? A. Nesbitt was interested in two or three companies, the Hubbard Company, F. H. Ross Company, the Clark Manufacturing Company, and I think he and his wife also owed the bank money; anyway he was the guarantor on all these accounts; the bank took over Nesbitt's interest in the Keeley Mine in liquidation of these accounts, these obligations giving him at the same time $5,000.

Q. What is the amount that was represented by that? A. $60,000.

Q. Plus $5,000? A. No, $55,000 plus $5,000.

Q. When was that transfer made? A. March 23rd, 1910.

Q. What is the next item? A. The next item is Rabbit Mountain Mining Company.

Q. What does that mean? A. There is a debit balance to that account of $10,500. It arises from various charges against it; organization expense and one thing and another at that time; they had charged $10,500 more than they had given credit for by transfer to other accounts, so that they charged the balance to Keeley Mines Stock and Bonds Account.

Q. Wiped out the Rabbit Mountain account and put it in this? A. Yes.

Q. What is the next item? A. Profit and loss; they took credit for $92,000 of profit and showed them in their statement of profit and loss, charged them up to investment in Keeley stock.

Q. Then what is the next one? A. The next is suspense account, $25,000. They carried a suspense account and charged items into it and out of it and this $25,000 is a clearing up of that. The next item is $107,500 special account, which arises out of Tevis and the Continental Securities transaction we spoke about. The next item, $45,000, is interest, general.

Q. You spoke of that? A. Yes, a minute ago. The next item is $15,000 in purchase of Keeley Mine stock from Crompton and from Whitney. Crompton has paid back since the failure of the bank the $10,000 that was paid to him, but Whitney has not.

Q. Whitney is a New York man? A. New York theatre manager. The next item that appears there, that payment of August 3rd, 1910, out of Toronto office, $5,000; that makes a total of $535,000 charged to the Keeley Mine Stock and Bonds account.

Q. Speaking in round numbers, the legitimate charges of the Keeley Mine are $505,000, and then there is interest? A. That is advance account.

Q. That is legitimate advances because they went into the mine or spent on account of it? A. Yes.

Q. Then there is $118,000 of interest? A. Yes.

Q. Apart from those two items, are any of the others which you have given us proper and legitimate to be charged to that account? A. From my standpoint. That comes down to a matter of opinion, I disagree with Mr. Travers. Mr. Travers said he was warranted in doing this, and I say I do not agree with him; I do not agree with this method of charging up these profits and taking care of these losses. I do not think this method was proper under the circumstances which obtained.

Q. What was the method adopted? A. The method adopted was this, if the bank made a loss or the bank wanted to show the earning of a profit it charged the amount up as an investment in the Keeley Mine Stock and Bonds; in other words, if the bank here wanted to show a profit of $92,000 in its account it took credit for having earned a profit of $92,000 and showed the expenditure of $92,000 in this stock. That question simmers down to a difference of opinion.

Q. Does not it simmer down to this, that he was assuming the mine was worth a very large amount of money and consequently could stand all these losses, and from your point of view unless it realized them it would not be fair to charge them? A. That is a risk he ran, and he lost.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: I suppose he ought to have waited until he realized the profits and then carried them to profit and loss account? A. If he had realized those profits I don't think anybody could cavil very much at this method of treating this; but he was anticipating.
Mr. Hodgins: The Keeley Mine itself appears to be responsible for the $505,000, and perhaps for the interest charges? A. For a large portion of the interest.

Q. But so far as the other items are concerned, they arise out of different transactions and have only been gathered together in the Keeley Mine account because they thought that account would ultimately make good a profit sufficient to wipe them out? A. That is the idea.

Mr. Commissioner: It is treated as an investment in the stocks and bonds of the Keeley Mine to an equivalent amount? A. That is exactly; it is treated as an investment in this stock.

Q. Stock and bonds? A. It is called stock and bonds account, but it was really stock.

Mr. Hodgins: There were no bonds issued except those that the Trusts & Guarantee Company got? A. The bonds were pledged for the obligation owing to the bank; the bonds were pledged against advances, the stock was used to take up these losses.

Q. They might just as well have charged those additional items to John Smith or Tom Brown if they thought he would make good and pay the bank that money? A. Mr. Travers has given you his reason; he had that stock and he charged that to it.

Q. I do not think it would be fair to assume that the bank had put all that money into the Keeley Mine; it lost it in various ways and then put it in the meantime into these accounts, till the Keeley Mine could make good; in which case they would have appropriated the profits in the Keeley Mine to wipe those out; does that appear to be the case? A. The bank made these losses, expended these moneys, charged these expenditures as investments in this stock, stock which it had got for nothing; it anticipated making a profit out of this stock; it did not make the profit and therefore—

Q. The original amounts that are charged there had nothing whatever to do with the Keeley Mine? A. No.

Mr. Commissioner: Supposing he had adopted another course and treated this stock as being of the value of half a million and credited that to his profits, would not it have come to the same thing? A. Yes, in the end. Yes, because he would then have had to have written the stock off when it was ultimately realized.

The Commission adjourned at 4 p.m. to 11 a.m. to-morrow.

Toronto, May 29th, 1912.

The Commission resumed at 11 a.m. at Osgoode Hall.

Geoffrey Teignmouth Clarkson, Examination Continued:—

Mr. Hodgins: You were discussing the Devean and Menzie transaction yesterday and you have prepared a little statement dealing with it? A. Yes, I wanted to explain that thoroughly; I was a little bit confused about it yesterday. I have given you a memorandum. I will tell you the exact course of the transaction; if you look at page 39 of the report (of Exhibit 63) you will see securities on hand $20,027, and added in the total capital stock the total of $291,310 is the capital paid up on November 26th when it was organized. That means that Devean’s capital stock was shown as paid up out of moneys borrowed by Travers.
from the Trusts & Guarantee Company; in other words, he allocated $20,000 of that money in payment of this Devean stock.

Q. Do you mean giving him the Dominion Permanent stock to the good as well? A. I mean to say he borrowed $20,000 from the Trusts & Guarantee Company and he allocated that as cash received in payment of the Devean stock.

MR. COMMISSIONER: He gave the Trust Company as security for that the Canadian Savings stock that he got from Devean? A. Yes. In March, 1912, when he paid the Trusts Company loan off, that was equivalent to the return of this cash which was presumably held by the bank in payment of that stock, but instead of charging it to capital stock he charged it to organization account, then he had the stock to the good, but the Devean capital stock not paid. He credits that $20,000 to organization account to offset the payment of $25,344.80 paid to the Trust Company.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Perhaps you would explain at that point what accounts for the difference between $20,000 and $25,344? A. There is the $2,380 of the Laidlaw and there is $1,400 bonus and interest for the balance. He did not put through that entry, however, crediting the organization account with this $20,000 of Devean stock until the time of the Menzie transaction. At that time Menzie had given a note for $10,000, which was discounted in the Toronto branch; he split that, allocating $20,000 of these proceeds to take the place of the Devean securities which were handed back to Devean, and the other $20,000 he added to capital account; increasing it. That is the transaction.

MR. HODGINS: What was the object of doing the transaction in that way from his point of view? A. I do not know, excepting this, it was irregular to put it into the organization account, but it only made a difference of $5,344; $2,300 of that was the Laidlaw amount, and the balance was interest and bonuses. I suppose the bonus and the bonus was the cost of carrying this deal through.

MR. COMMISSIONER: If he had taken it off the capital account, reduced the capital account, that would interfere with his circulation to that extent? A. It would have reduced his circulation.

Q. That probably was the object? A. He would have reduced the circulation, but if he had done that there would have been no reason why he should not have put back the $20,000 at once; it would have reduced his right to circulation $5,344.

Q. Only? A. Yes, only.

EXHIBIT 66: Memorandum re Devean and Menzie transaction.

MR. HODGINS: Q. There was a transaction in Syracuse, New York State, in reference to the proposed buying of control of the Mutual Life Insurance Association? A. Yes.

Q. That transaction such as it was fell through? A. The purchase was not completed, no.

Q. What was the loss on that transaction of the bank? A. $15,000.

Q. And that amount only? A. That is so far as I can ascertain.

Q. I do not want to go into it, but perhaps it would be just as well in a general way to say what it was and how the loss was occasioned? A. As I understand it, the bank had given a deposit receipt for $150,000, a non-negotiable receipt; the receipt was negotiated and the proceeds of sale were divided as far as I can find out amongst a number of people, amongst whom was John Tevis that we have heard of. The New York Insurance Department stopped the transaction and compelled the re-payment of all the money but $15,000 which Tevis had secured. This is as I understand it. To get back its deposit receipt and to prevent the transaction being carried further, at least the proceedings by the New York Insurance Department being carried further, the bank loaned Tevis $15,000 on some mining stock now worthless and issued to a bank in Syracuse two deposit receipts amounting to $15,000 which were subsequently paid.
Q. Do you remember what mining stock they loaned on? A. Big Vein Copper Co.
Q. Is that worthless now? A. My inquiries indicate it is.
Q. That is the transaction that is detailed in the Return to Parliament as I understand it; there is a good deal of correspondence from Superintendent Hotchkiss and Mr. Charles Hughes with the Finance Department, that is really the same transaction is it not? A. Yes, that is the transaction referred to.
Q. It begins with a letter dated January 11th, 1910, from William H. Hotchkiss, Superintendent of Insurance to the Finance Department, and Charles Hughes was sent by the Insurance Department and that is all detailed in the printed memorandum and it had a good many ramifications, but the net result to the bank as you find it was this $15,000? A. A loss of $15,000.
Q. It was said that Travers took actual circulation with him over to Syracuse, was that returned? A. The evidence given was to the effect that $150,000 was taken over and returned.
Q. When you say the evidence, do you mean the evidence taken by the Insurance Department of New York State? A. Yes, I think there is a copy of the evidence in one of those books and the information given to me by Mr. Travers and Mr. Fitzgibbon.
Q. It was returned; you do not find any such loss in circulation? A. No.
Q. Which would indicate anything incorrect in that? A. No.
Q. When was that loan made to Tevis; the correspondence begins in January, 1910? A. I will have to get the call loan register.
Mr. COMMISSIONER: Is that very important?
Mr. HODGINS: I do not think so. A. I can tell you by reference to the call loan record.
Q. There is nothing else that calls for comment in connection with that transaction from your point of view? A. I think not, Mr. Hodgins, that is the ultimate result to the bank; this call loan would have been made at the termination of these proceedings in connection with it; it is not at the initiation.
Q. Does Tevis appear in any other transaction than what you have given us? A. Tevis appeared in that capital stock transaction, the purchase of $115,000.
Q. Are those the only two transactions? A. Yes. Of course Tevis was mixed up with the Knabes of New York and Baltimore, and the Knabes while it is a different transaction still there was a relationship generally between the bank and that crowd.
Q. Are the Knabe’s liable in any way to the bank or alleged to be liable? A. Yes, they owe the bank between $80,000 and $90,000.
Q. How did that arise? A. The bank loaned them money.
Q. On what? A. The bank loaned them money and took as security their direct obligations and some notes of a man called Barnsdale, of Pittsburg, and a concern called the Manhatten Securities Co. of New York, and it was also claimed that this Tevis capital stock in the bank really belonged to the Knabes.
Q. Are they the piano people? A. Yes.
Q. Were they members of the American Piano Co? A. They were, and I understand they were the promoters of it or connected with the promotion of it.
Q. What was the dealing that this bank had with these people in the United States which resulted in the loss of $80,000 or $90,000? A. The explanation given to me is that they were regarded as people of responsibility, that they wished to purchase the control of the Federal Life in Hamilton. They approached the bank and the bank made two loans to them aggregating $100,000 and issued deposit receipts for varying amounts which the bank subsequently was called upon to pay.
Q. I find a letter and the papers from Mr. Hunter to the bank advising that it was illegal to issue deposit receipts for that purpose; that appears among your papers; as a matter of fact do you find records of deposit receipts being issued?
A. To the Knabes?
Q. Yes?  A. Yes. I do not understand that. Loans were made by the bank to the Knabes.
Mr. Commissioner: You do not understand how that could be ultra vires?
A. No, it was an ordinary banking transaction; they made the loan and issued the deposit receipts in satisfaction of the proceeds.
Q. He may have got the idea that they were buying the Federal Life?  A. I think that refers more to that, the deposit receipts being issued in purchase of Federal Life stock.
Mr. Hodgins: What security did these Knabes give for this loan? A. I was instructed when I first went into the bank that the bank was supposed to hold an option on certain Federal Life stock. As a matter of fact it turned out that that option was not held by the bank, it was held by another party in town here who had advanced money to Knabes. The only security therefore the bank held was their own personal responsibility and the responsibility of Barnsdale, of Pittsburg, who I think expended somewhere about $935,000 and the Manhatten Securities Co. of New York to a similar extent. The Manhatten Securities Co. is worthless, we exhausted its responsibility and collected two or three thousand dollars. I think we have collected from Barnsdale about eight or nine thousand dollars and have an action pending against him in Pittsburg.
Mr. Commissioner: Any hope from that? A. I think so, sir, but it won't come up for a year and a half; the lists are congested there and it will take them a year and a half for the case to be brought to trial. We issued the writ over a year ago. Against the Knabes we issued a writ in Baltimore.
Q. That is not worth much? A. No. I got an offer of $10,000 in satisfaction of their obligation which I would not take.
Q. What was the bank getting for taking that; it would be a pretty big transaction; was it to get simply interest or a big bonus? A. No, interest, simply interest; but I understand what it had in view was it would get substantial deposits if it helped these people in buying this company, it would reap its reward in deposits.
Mr. Hodgins: That is if it bought the Federal Life the premium income is large, it would all pass through them? A. The bank would get substantial deposits.
Q. A very good class of business to do? A. It is a high class company.
Q. What was the motive of the effort to get control of the People's? A. I think the same motive; well, this is the explanation I have; this deposit receipt of $150,000 was to be issued in purchase of the controlling interest in the People's Life which was then to turn around and buy $150,000 of the capital stock of the bank, returning the deposit receipt in payment. That would mean in the ultimate that the bank would have sold $150,000 of its own capital stock, having it invested in the People's Life stock.
Mr. Commissioner: What was the stock in the People's Life worth? A. I do not know that; I did not follow that deal any further.
Q. You do not know whether it was a solvent concern? A. I do not; I presume Mr. Travers can tell you more about that.
Q. Was the idea to bring that over here or to operate the company in New York State, this People's Life is a New York corporation? A. Yes, a New York-Syracuse corporation; I do not know what the idea was. I understand the idea was to get out $150,000 of Farmers Bank capital stock.
Q. At par? A. There is a statement in the folder there, but I did not follow up the details.
Mr. Hodgins: You have the evidence taken by the State Department. I think I have seen it here? A. Yes, I take it to be a copy of evidence given by Mr. Travers before the State Department.
Q. And others? A. Yes.
Q. They held an investigation into it? A. Yes.
Q. This is a letter from Mr. Hunter dated the 30th June, 1909, to Mr. Travers with regard to the Federal Life. In this matter I have carefully considered the proposition made on behalf of Mr. Knabe, that the Bank should assist him and his associates in purchasing the control of the Federal Life for a sum of $334,000 by making an advance to Mr. Knabe either in money or by deposit “receipts of the Bank to the amount of $200 to $300,000. A bank deposit receipt certifies that the holder has monies to the amount named in the receipt to his credit and the bank is accountable therefor to the holder on a certain length of notice. If the Bank were buying securities or lending monies on securities, it seems to me, the bank could legitimately issue deposit receipts for the amount of the purchase money or the amount of the loan; but where the purpose of the deposit receipt is to assist a third party in borrowing from some other institution, in my opinion the issue of the deposit receipt by the bank would be a grave violation of the law. It is also suggested that the bank might borrow in New York the monies necessary to make the advance to Mr. Knabe. As already explained to you in our interview in the presence of Mr. Knabe, in my opinion, such a course would be unlawful. I understand that Mr. Knabe as a large shareholder of the bank is entitled to every consideration, but in asking the bank to undertake a transaction of this magnitude on the security proposed seems to me to be beyond anything that he has a reasonable right to expect.

“Yours truly,

W. H. Hunter.”

“P.S.—The proposition that the Bank lend Mr. Knabe some of the bank securities to assist in this operation is of course completely out of the question.

W. H. H.”

Q. What was done according to the records was the issue of a deposit receipt was it? A. The loan made to Knabe of the $100,000 thereabouts and the issue of a deposit receipt apparently in satisfaction of the proceeds.

Mr. Commissioner: Instead of paying him cash? A. They gave the deposit receipts. That did not appeal to me as being improper.

Mr. Hodgins: Is Mr. Hunter right in saying Mr. Knabe is a large shareholder of the bank? A. I am told the Tevis stock was really held in trust by him for Knabe; I have seen no actual evidence as to that.

Mr. Commissioner: What was this man Knabe doing, getting out of the piano business to become a speculator or a promoter? A. I understand that he and his brother had two or three million dollars on his father’s death, and that he speculated it all away until he is insolvent.

Q. This is one of the schemes? A. Yes; he has probably gone into a number of things like that. I do know, he was in a surety company in Baltimore, which had a very bad failure and I have a detailed report somewhere or other.

Mr. Hodgins: About the deposits of circulation with the Trusts & Guarantee Company, you have gone over that account pretty carefully in great detail? A. Yes.

Q. Practically from day to day since it began? A. Yes.
Q. I do not know whether you have any short abstract of it which will illustrate the situation? A. I have a statement giving the daily balances.

Mr. Commissioner: Does that differ at all from the statement that has been made that they deposited at first $1,000 a day? A. It does not differ.

Mr. Commissioner: What is the use of it?
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Mr. Hodgins: I am accepting that, that is just what the facts show in this book; I want to get Mr. Clarkson's view of the result of that in point of view of the bank as a loss to the bank? A. I regard it as an improvident transaction.

Mr. Commissioner: I would like Mr. Clarkson to give his reasons for that, because it does not strike me so? A. I will illustrate that. I will give you a date where there is a balance in favor of the Trusts Company to the extent of $11,000.

Q. That is taking the two accounts? A. Yes, the bank had on deposit with the Trusts Company at that date $170,000 on which it was drawing no interest; $25,000 of that $177,000 had originally been loaned to the Trusts Company at 7½% before it was put into the circulation account where it drew nothing. That left the amount arising out of deposit circulation, $145,000. Mr. Travers gave evidence here the other day to the effect that the deposit of circulation the amount out from time to time would be about $25,000 unredeemed; I think that is about right. Deducting that, that would leave the bank as having redeemed the $120,000 of that circulation; so that for its deposit of $170,000 with the Trusts Company the bank had paid out legals and gold for the $25,000 which it had originally loaned to the Trusts Company for the $120,000 which it had redeemed, circulation which it had redeemed through the Clearing House, that is to say that $145,000 out of that deposit of $170,000 was actually legals and gold which the bank could have taken to the Bank of Montreal or any other bank and deposited at 3% and gotten at the rate of $4,200 a year on.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not follow that. A. The deposit on that date was $170,000; $25,000 was a loan originally advanced at the inception of the account.

Q. Leave out for the present that-A. That makes $145,000 arising out of circulation. That circulation was being put out by the Trusts Company and coming back into the bank all the time and the bank was receiving it through the Clearing House in legals, in actual gold or in legals.

Mr. Hodgins: The point is how was it doing that? A. It was taking it out of the deposits of other customers, that is how it was getting it.

Q. This deposit that you speak of of $170,000 was the aggregate of $1,000 a day roughly speaking? A. Exactly.

Q. They had mounted up to that? A. Yes.

Q. In the meantime the Trusts & Guarantee Company was paying it out over the counter and it was coming back? A. Yes.

Q. But when it came back to the bank Mr. Travers says they re-deposited it? A. They redeemed that circulation through the Clearing House.

Q. I understood him to say that the volume outstanding at any time would not be more than $25,000, and that would be going around and around in circulation, although in the books it would accumulate? A. Yes, but they had to pay out $145,000 of circulation.

Q. But the point Mr. Travers made was that was not all different circulation, that it was $25,000 so to speak, re-deposited week by week or month by month? A. No, what I understood from Mr. Travers and what was the fact is, that of the circulation deposited with the Trusts Company there would be $25,000 out with the public and that the remainder would be coming in through the Clearing House and redeemed by the bank.

Q. Why do you say that is the fact, are you speaking from the books? A. No, you cannot speak from the books; I mean as to general experience as to the average length of time that circulation remains out.

Q. Would it not be possible to have made that account up to that amount if Mr. Travers' theory is true that about $25,000 was circulating around from time to time, first from the bank to the Trusts Company and then to the public and then back through the Clearing House to the bank and then re-deposited to the Trusts Company? A. That would have been all right, but you must remember that every time that money came in from the public through the bank the bank had to pay gold to the public for it, so that I say that out of this deposit of $145,000 allowing that that was a mere circulation of $25,000 currency—and that is about correct, because there are about 25 days a month—it still left the bank had paid out in gold to the public $120,000 in returns of its circulation as it came into the bank from time to time; what I say is that that $120,000 in gold which the bank had paid to the public in payment of these bills which it got back and then put into the Trusts Company again, it could have taken to any other bank and deposited at 3%.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: Or lend it to customers at six and seven? A. No, that would hardly be fair to go so far as that, because the bank had to keep a reserve and the reserve had to be with some depositary where they could go and get legals.

Mr. Hodgins: Are you taking this into consideration that every time they redeposited this $25,000 they would get from the Trusts & Guarantee Company legals or a cheque on the Bank of Montreal to produce legals? A. No, Mr. Hodgins, there was no drawing against this account, except by way of reducing balances equally until 1910 when the Clearing House balances began to go against the bank.

Q. That is the fact I wanted to get from Mr. Stockdale the other day. That account began when—there is not a withdrawal in it if I remember for the first year? A. This account began on January 2nd, 1909, with a transfer to the deposit account of the loan of $25,000 made by the bank to the Trusts Company.

Q. How long did it go simply depositing and the circulation going out to the public and without a withdrawal from the Trusts & Guarantee Company which would produce legals? A. Which would produce legals?

A. Yes, they both described the operation as a deposit on the one hand and then a withdrawal on the other by cheque which would produce the Trusts & Guarantee Company cheque on the Bank of Montreal, and they would go down and get legals for that—the statement furnished by the Trusts & Guarantee Company shows the first deposit was the 12th January, 1909? A. The first deposit of circulation?

Q. Yes? A. That is right.

Q. And the first withdrawal on August 30th, 1909? A. That is not correct; well, that was an equal reduction, the bank reducing its account $100,000 against the Trusts Company and the Trusts Company reducing its deposits in the bank by $100,000.

Q. That August 30th cheque was entered for $100,000, does that mean they sent a cheque down and got $100,000 in legals? A. No, it is a cross entry.

Q. September 1st is the next, $50,000? A. That is a cross entry.

Q. The next, December 31st, $50,000? A. That is a cross entry.

Q. That would mean that during 1909 they got no legal tender from the Trusts & Guarantee Company, if I understand the account? A. Not that my investigation shows.

Q. If they did not do that, how much circulation did they put in up to the 31st December, 1909? A. About $324,000 all told.

Q. Is that the total of the account on that date? A. No, the total of account was $124,000, but there had been three cross entries to the extent of $200,000.

Q. During that year, 1909, had they large balances or about equal balances from time to time?

Mr. COMMISSIONER: Have we not got all that?

Mr. Hodgins: That account has never gone in, no. You remember, I questioned Mr. Stockdale about it and I got from him the withdrawals, but not the details of the deposits, and I do not think it is necessary beyond giving the times? A. The account ran in varying ways.

Q. Take the 31st December, 1909? A. On the 31st December, 1909, the Trusts Company was owed $32,000 in the ultimate balance.

Q. That is the difference between the two sides? A. Yes, between the two sides.
Q. But not subtracting them give me the total deposits?  A. The bank had with the Trusts Company $124,000, and the Trusts Company had with the bank $155,000.

Q. During that year, do you find that the Trusts Company were getting interest, during 1909, on the balance that it had there, irrespective altogether of the state of the deposit account?  A. It was.

Q. Did that continue during 1910?  A. Yes.

Q. Perhaps you would look up the earliest withdrawal?  A. January 14th, there was $20,000 there; that was actual withdrawal.

Q. They appear to be so from that on, unless February 11th was a cross entry.

Q. Mr. Stockdale said that that part of the deposit with the bank which represented the Hamilton Estate was a liquidation account and the interest would go to the liquidation and not to themselves personally?  A. I presume that would be correct.

Q. If the two accounts were set off against the other and the interest was paid from one side, what rate would it be upon the difference between what the one owed—

Mr. Commissioner: We can calculate all that; do not let us encumber the records with that; we know what was being paid—3½%, was it not, on one side, and nothing on the other?  A. Four per cent on their own savings balance and three on the chequeing account.

Q. Mr. Hodgins: We have not the basis to make the calculation on?  A. Do you mean on the ultimate balance?

Q. Yes?  A. It runs from 40 to 100%.

Q. If Mr. Stockdale is right, that 4% on the Hamilton should not go to them at all, the Trusts Company would not profit to that extent?  A. No.

Q. But the bank would be paying at that rate?  A. The bank paid at that rate.

Q. It is said by Mr. Travers that this deposit of circulation and its being paid out over the counter by the Trusts & Guarantee Company was an advantage to the bank?  A. I differ with him in this way: the issue of circulation by a bank is undoubtedly a benefit; but if the bank issued its circulation without interest or without charge, I fail absolutely to see how it can get any benefit. It is just the same, as, take yourself and Mr. Travers and myself; I owe Travers some money, I come to you and ask you to lend me your promissory note and you do, and I credit you in my books as my creditor for $1,000, and I give you a promissory note to Travers. Travers comes to you and asks you to give him gold for it; how do you make any money out of the transaction?  That is exactly what happened. There is this merit in the transaction that he was able to go and get legals there when he wanted it, but he might just as well have gone to any other bank and got them. That is my opinion and it may differ from Mr. Travers, but I am strongly of that opinion.

Q. I think probably Mr. Travers and you really agree; was there any benefit in 1908 in having this circulation deposited with the Trusts & Guarantee Company, irrespective of its issue altogether, to enable them to show that the Trusts & Guarantee Company owed them that amount?  A. It showed in their returns to the Government as a reserve; it showed as "other assets", but it was understood it was a reserve.

Q. There was an advantage from the banker’s point of view in doing that?  A. There is always an advantage in showing there is a quick reserve there.

Q. I think we have got this far, that admitting that to be so, the advantage would be gained altogether by the deposit with the Trusts & Guarantee Company and that its handing out the circulation would be no benefit at all, because it would come back immediately and have to be dealt with? A. It would come back; I think on the average they calculate about five weeks.

Mr. Commissioner: That is what Travers said? A. Circulation is out for five weeks. If they had put it out at interest it would have been one thing; lending it without interest destroyed the benefit.

Mr. Hodgins: To sum it all up, what is your idea as to why this device was adopted? A. I do not know; I can only give you an opinion. The Trusts Company deposited heavily with the bank, and it may be that it deposited in these large sums because it had a heavy deposit from the bank and it was a profitable transaction to it; it was earning a large amount of money on this thing when it was practically being given the wherewithal to make the deposit: that is the way I look at the transaction, and I instructed my solicitor that I deemed myself entitled to receive from the Trusts Company interest on this account; whether I have a legal right to it is another matter.

Q. Just to wind up the Trusts & Guarantee, you paid their entire claim? A. Under an agreement merely; it is to be without prejudice to our rights, and they put up certain securities which are lodged in the Bank of Montreal.

Q. You paid off their entire claim as you found it at the date of the failure, the agreement being it should not prejudice your rights? A. No, it should not prejudice our rights.

Mr. Commissioner: To the extent that $25,000 was always out, surely that was a benefit to the bank; they had that much paying no interest upon it while it was out? A. But the bank were getting nothing for it.

Q. Was it not a benefit to have their bills in circulation advertising the bank? A. From an advertising standpoint, yes; not otherwise that I can see.

Q. They were paying no interest upon it; it was costing them nothing. A. Costing them nothing.

Q. To the extent of the circulation that was out? A. Costing them nothing until they came to the point of redemption.

Q. In other words, practically what you mean, apart from that $25,000 that was always in circulation they were lending the balance without interest to the Trusts & Guarantee Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is your proposition? A. Yes.

Q. I do not quite understand how you can make this large interest, 40 to 100%? A. I give you how I arrive at it; we will take here as an instance, December, 1909; the balance was $31,000 in favor of the Trusts Company. The Trusts Company were receiving 4% on $120,000, that is at the rate of $4,800 a year; and 3% on $77,000, that is at the rate of $2,300 a year; that would represent $7,100 a year on an ultimate difference of $31,000.

Q. You are taking one of the worst cases? A. No, not the worst case. I will take the worst case. The bank was owed $18,000 by the Trusts Company; the Trusts Company owed the bank $218,000 and the bank owed the Trusts Company $200,000; the bank was paying interest on $200,000 and the Trusts Company nothing on $218,000, and if interest were calculated on that the rate run into a large figure if you take the ultimate balance.

Q. You get at the figure by computing your 3% which you say the bank would pay on these deposits? A. Yes.

Q. You can get exactly what that was? A. You can get exactly the ratio per day.

Mr. Hodgins: You have tabulated very carefully there the daily balance so that if it is of any interest to anybody to get the exact figures from time to time you make it up? A. I tabulated this for the purpose of that litigation we had with them.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. I would like to go over some special matters with you; in the first place, you, I suppose, have not been able to make up that statement I asked you for yesterday? A. No, that will take us four or five days.

Q. I am going to ask you to add something to that just at the same period; dealing with the circulation itself you have the amount that was outstanding at the time of the failure? A. Yes.

Q. How much was issued altogether, how much was used altogether and put into circulation? A. During the life of the bank?

Q. Yes? A. I cannot remember that.

Q. You have the amount that was printed? A. The amount that was printed was $825,000.

Q. And the amount that was on hand at the time of the failure you have $286,635? A. Yes.

Q. And was what was printed all out, all extent and would have to be redeemed if presented? A. No, that $825,000 of circulation that was printed, there was I think $375,000 in the Toronto office and then in each of the branches there was a certain amount of circulation on hand in the teller's boxes.

Q. You are giving them credit for that; I am asking you if the difference is all out and liable to come in? A. Now?

Q. Yes? A. At the time this statement was prepared there was $405,000 of circulation out in the hands of the bank in the country; at the time of the failure there was $538,360 of circulation outstanding.

Q. That would be a first charge on the assets then? A. Yes.

Q. And you have redeemed this $132,000? A. I redeemed more than that, it is down to about $310,000; I have redeemed about $200,000.

Q. You are paying from time to time as you—? A. That is the first thing I pay, whenever I get any money it goes out in circulation, because it is interest-bearing.

Q. In the statement I have asked you to prepare could you indicate at the end of each year the amount of circulation outstanding, is there any way of doing that? A. No, the monthly returns to the Government would give you the circulation each month.

Q. You have not those monthly returns? A. Yes.

Q. The monthly return at the end of December of any year would show the amount of circulation then out? A. Yes.

MR. COMMISSIONER: If the return was correct? A. Yes.

Q. Have you verified them? A. No, I have not verified the monthly return but I do not believe it could be out; it was right when I went in here and it was checked over by the Bankers' Association from time to time.

MR. HODGINS: You are getting me a statement of the capital stock paid up at the end of each year and I would like to see the amount of circulation then outstanding at the end of each year? A. You understand the bank is required to make a return to the Canadian Bankers' Association monthly of the circulation outstanding; they would have all those returns for every month.

Q. When you are making up a statement it would be convenient to have that, because that would show the amount they had in paid up capital and the amount they had outstanding in circulation? A. That raises two or three issues; am I to treat this Tevis loss as a loss apart from capital or deduct it from capital?

Q. You are just to use your own judgment as long as you so state that you have either included or excluded that. I think you gave me the total amount of capital stock paid up as $552,000 and if the Tevis loan was counted in it was only $532,000? A. I can give you a statement that will be pretty nearly correct, but I cannot vouch for its absolute correctness from time to time.

Q. I only want it as near as you can get it each year? A. I will get that.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Where is this circulation? A. There is an agreement standing between the various banks under which it is in the hands of Mr. Henderson of the Bank of Toronto and myself as trustees, and lodged in the Toronto General Trust Company.

Q. How much is there? A. There is about $340,000, $320,000.
Q. Surely some of it is lost and will never be presented for redemption? A. There will be some of it, but we never can tell that.
Q. Have they got bills to the amount of—? A. $320,000.
Q. What is the difference between that and the amount outstanding? A. There is about $15,000 to $80,000 that has not come in yet; it may come in and part of it may never come in; but it was put there on account of an agreement whereby the bank reduced the rate of interest on the bills to 3% instead of 5; that is why that was done.

Mr. Hodgins: The amount held by the various banks amounted to $320,000? A. Yes, about that.
Q. Are there any other holders of circulation? A. Probably $15,000 to $20,000 of which I have no record.
Q. That amount then would be $340,000? A. That is what I say is now outstanding.
Q. At page 50 you give the balance which of course would be—? A. That is October 11th, last year.

Mr. Commissioner: Was there any inspector for this bank? A. Fitzgibbon was presumably inspector.
Q. Inspector of what? A. Chief accountant and he made some inspections of the branches.
Q. If there had been even the most superficial inspection of the bank, would not at a very early stage its condition have been discovered? A. There is absolutely no doubt about it.
Q. From the very beginning it was—? A. Its books did not jibe with the facts when they were opened.
Q. And it was beginning to decay as soon as it was born? A. Before it was born.

Mr. Hodgins: Q. How long did it take you after you became liquidator to get to the bottom of the transactions in the bank's books? A. When you say that, I do not know, but I knew within half an hour after I went into the office that things were not right,—you mean to get to the bottom of these transactions?
Q. Yes? A. I do not know; it had just come from time to time.

Mr. Commissioner: Anybody going in there with any knowledge would at once have known things were wrong? A. They would have found out very quickly.
Q. And the money that has been wasted almost from the beginning? A. Yes, they would have found it out very quickly.

Mr. Hodgins: There is I suppose any one who would have the right to call for what he wanted, not simply one who was obliged to be satisfied with anything shown to him? A. You must understand the bank books are, as I said yesterday, mere bald entries, and on the face of them they would not indicate very much, but anybody having an understanding of accounts and calling for the items, which I do not know you intuitively see are not what they should be, and call for the items, they would have found that out very quickly, found out the condition.
Q. Would any one taking the bank return to the Government say on December of any year and going into the bank with that return and simply verifying that return be able to discover anything? A. It depends on how far he would go; if he wanted to take just the face of the books they would agree with the return, but if he wanted to examine into any of the investments like the Keeley Mine or Stocks and Bonds accounts he would have seen at once there was something wrong.

Q. If in other words he took the item of “other assets” or assets not enumerated in the foregoing heads and called for details of that? A. No, the books would seem to indicate—when you speak of other assets you mean that $80,000?
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Yes? A. No. the books would seem to indicate that was absolutely the same as a deposit in any other bank or Trust Company; but if he began to go behind, take the Stocks and Bonds account and he went to go over the vouchers to see what the payments were made for he would soon meet with information which would show him that they were not there from actual investments in stocks and bonds. That is how the opening would come.

Q. The fact that the voucher would not tally with the entry? A. The voucher would tally, but the voucher would show that the facts disclosed on it did not warrant the payments being held out as investment as they were.

Q. To follow that a little further; supposing the vouchers had all proved to be accurate, as you admit up to the extent of half a million they were accurate in the Keeley Mine, an inspection would not have disclosed anything wrong with the

Mr. Hodgins: Speaking of that Stock and Bonds account which you use as bank books, it might still be insolvent, having paid out into a worthless mine, but the vouchers might be entirely correct; it might have actually spent money in that way? A. They might have done so; that would be mismanagement then. When you come to a question of valuing assets, you go into a different field, you come down to a question of opinion then.

Q. You think what would have put any one on the track, would have been the inaccuracy of the entry as compared with the voucher? A. No. taking the affairs of the Farmers Bank, the first thing that struck one in going in there was the large investments in stocks and bonds. One naturally wanted to know what they were. You started into the account and then you found that the amount was arrived at coming from various sources, indicating losses or profits written up from one thing and another, that showed you—

Mr. Commissioner: That that was a padded account? A. Yes.

Q. Then you naturally went into the other assets’ account and you found them padded. When you go to the branches it was a different thing; go downstairs where they have their main office; there they had a lot of liability of customers; it became a question there of valuing the responsibility of those customers.

Mr. Hodgins: Speaking of that stock and bonds account which you use as an illustration, they did not begin to use an account like that until later on in the history of the Bank. A. They did not, but they had a large amount expended in organization and padded in one or two accounts; that stock and bonds accounts did not come until 1908.

Q. It was opened as early as 1908? A. Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: I should have thought the fact that $120,000 out of this small capital had been expended in organization would have startled anybody at the beginning? A. Yes, but the books do not show $120,000; there are items written into it.

Mr. Hodgins: Is not there always a great difficulty in disentangling those items; if any one went into the bank to inspect the organization fund and found it to be $60,000 or $70,000 when it really ought to have been $120,000, it would take some time to disentangle the other entries and show that they had been wrongly entered.

Mr. Commissioner: I am not an inspector, but I think I would have found it out if I had seen that account? A. It takes time to disentangle these things, certainly, it takes time, and you have to understand it, but, Mr. Hodgins, you get into a position like that and you find these things somehow or other; the appearance of the accounts is what takes your notice.

Mr. Hodgins: On the question of dividends; you prepared a schedule showing the dividends paid page 64 (Exhibit 63); does that show total amount which was expended in dividends? A. Yes.

Q. Just give me the total amount spent in dividends? A. It is $52,780.

Mr. Commissioner: Page 64 shows the total? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Hodgins: $52,780, is that all they paid out in dividends? A. Yes.
Q. It was a 2% half yearly dividend? A. They paid altogether 10%.
Q. In five payments spreading over three years? A. Yes, spreading over 2½ years.
Q. Were those dividends earned? A. No, they were not.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: Upon what was the declaration of the dividend based?
A. They wrote up profits and charged them to Keeley Mine and other accounts.
Q. Was a statement furnished to the directors at the meeting at which the dividend was declared? A. I cannot tell that except by reference to the minute book, two annual statements were furnished. copies of which I have.
Q. They were half yearly dividends; I suppose those would be provisional, the books would not be balanced? A. The books will balance, yes, a half yearly statement of the books could be taken off very easily, but those accounts were not correct.
Q. Was the stock padding applied to that? A. Yes, writing up of assets and writing up of Keeley Mine.
Q. Just as we have heard before? A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Hodgins: They appear to have made no profits at all? A. No, they made steady loss.
Q. And those dividends they paid would be about 10% out of capital stock? A. Yes.
Q. Bank premises account appears on pages 55, 56 and 57, that takes in what the branches, as I understand, took to rent and furnish and in some cases to buy? A. Yes.
Q. The totals are shown on page 67? A. Yes.
Q. And you have got a loss? A. I make a loss of $110,825.
Q. Why do you call that a loss? A. I mean there was actually expended according to the books of the bank eliminating all padded items $148,116.90 and I calculate that those will not produce more than $37,291.
Q. A large part of the item $148,000 is made up of padded items? A. No, no parcel of that $148,000 is padded.
Q. That is actual expenditure? A. Yes.
Q. You think there is going to be a loss on that item of $110,000? A. I do.
Q. How do you account for such a tremendous loss? A. If you look at these expenditures in these various little branches, take the first one Arkona, $1,386, I only expect to recover out of that about $300 or $400; there is a lot of money gone for the fitting of the premises and with the closing of the bank it has all gone. These bank branches were located in small places where the other banks did not feel obliged to open branches, consequently I could not sell them at a price and it was a mere dead sale at the best price I could get. If you look at the Toronto Head Office you will see nearly $39,000 was expended there. The terms of the lease were not good: there was an increasing rent and I could not dispose of those premises, in fact the landlord has not been able to rent them yet at the price the Farmers Bank was paying for them: we lose all that money but about $2,500 or $3,000. we lose all the money that has been put in those premises. Then Belleville, they have according to their books $28,000 in that property.
Q. That they own? A. Yes. I think we have all told between $13,000 and $14,000 advertising it and holding it for a year nearly to deal with it.
Q. A large amount of that loss would be the result of stoppage of the bank and inability to sell it to any other bank? A. The bulk of the loss will be from stoppage of the bank and inability to sell those branches to other banks, because of the fact there were not deposits available at those points in sufficient quantities to warrant opening branches.
Q. That would be bad management? A. I would not say that.
Q. Bad judgment? A. It is mixed between bad judgment and the necessities of the times, if you want to call it. The Farmers Bank, a small bank, the way it was, would not be able to do very much if it were to open in other places in competition with a very strong bank and it would have to go to these outside points and there were not deposits sufficient to carry the branches.

Q. How did you find the operating losses appear from the beginning? A. According to my calculation the bank lost $242,602 in operating losses.

Q. Explain what those operating losses are? A. That means the absolute cash expenditure in excess of the earnings.

Mr. Commissioner: For carrying on the business? A. Yes, irrespective of bad debts or losses.

Q. Does that include the Toronto office and head office? A. Yes, all the offices.

Q. Then you have tabulated the individual losses of the various branches, the head office and so on? A. I have tabulated that year by year there, and that statement on page 59 is only completing a period which was not written up in the bank's books. The accounts were brought in from the various branches.

Q. From pages 53 to 59 you set out the details of the operating losses? A. I do.

Q. That meant for instance in 1907 that the cost was over $60,000 and the profits were only $15,000 there would be a loss there of $46,000.

Mr. Commissioner: Is it worth while going into all those details, they are all shown here and he has given us the loss?

Mr. Hodgins: To what cause do you attribute that operating loss being so large each year? A. The bank was not meeting with success; it opened these branches and it was not getting the necessary deposits and it was not doing a profit-able business.

Q. That would account for nearly half the whole capital? A. Absolutely; that is a risk that they ran in doing business, starting business.

Mr. Commissioner: What is the meaning of item here page 60, safes written up in value? A. They were written up; it means they cost so much and they were charged in the bank books at an additional amount. Their safes were bought at a price and then charged to their branches at $8,288 in excess of their cost price. In the same way stationery was charged to the branches, $11,200 but not written off in other words stationery cost them $30,000, when they charged it up to the branches, instead of reducing this $11,000, to $19,000 they left the stationery bill on the books of the bank at $30,000, but the $11,000 to the credit of profit and loss account.

Q. That is making money rapidly? A. It is all in the same way; they made these losses.

Mr. Hodgins: What is page 60 intended to show? A. It is a summary of the account. It shows the actual expenditures and it shows you the various items that were put to the credit and debit of this account, writing it off and getting rid of it.

Q. Which account? A. Profit and loss.

Q. That includes excess expenditures, in operating, commissions, dividends? A. Yes, that is the profit and loss account.

Q. That corresponds with your figures year by year at page 53? A. Yes.

Q. Three year periods? A. Yes; this is really an explanation of the books, it is dissecting that account and showing you what are really effective items and what are merely book items.

Q. The column called effective items are real items? A. Real actual expenditures.

Q. The others are what? A. Book items.

Q. Representing no real transaction? A. Representing the transposition of the charges from one account to the other but without actual effect in dollars and cents so far as the bank was concerned.
Q. The question that the Commissioner mentioned a moment ago about the safes, that is written up value, the excess value, that $2,288? A. Yes, it was written up.
Q. Not the total value? A. No, profit was taken of that.
Q. You. I think, have given here a list of the bad debts? A. No, I had not given you the list of bad debts, but I have the list there.
Q. You mentioned, at all events, some bad debts, page 69. What is the explanation of the Buckingham Graphite bonds; how did they come into the possession of the bank? A. The bank advanced to the Buckingham Graphite Company and took those bonds.
Q. An ordinary business transaction? A. Apparently so.
Q. Then the Ontario Leather Company bonds?
MR. COMMISSIONER: Perhaps you will find out who are behind the Buckingham Graphite Company? A. A man called W. H. P. Bromell and W. H. Hunter, and the bank held some stock in it.
MR. COMMISSIONER: Is that the solicitor? A. Yes, sir.
MR. HODGINS: How are the Buckingham Graphite bonds treated in the books of the bank? A. As an investment.
Q. Is there a loan to the Buckingham Graphite Company? A. I would rather not publicly discuss the account.
Q. The Ontario Leather Company bonds? A. I prefer not to deal with that; it is treated as an investment in the books of the bank.
MR. COMMISSIONER: Is there any reason why you should not say who was behind that? A. No, not a bit; the bank is behind it, that is all.
Q. The promoter of the company? A. No, the bank made a bad debt with the Davey Leather Company, and apparently to help itself out it re-organized a new company and took control of it, so that at the present time the bank is practically the only person behind that, nobody else responsible.
Q. The statement is there a prospect of a loss of $100,000 on that? A. That is quite true.
Q. Who is this Davey? A. Phillip Davey.
Q. Is he in town? A. He was in town here, but I think he is up near Barrie now; he was a well-known man, character.
Q. How much was lent to that concern? A. $83,000.
Q. On what? A. On their own obligations secured by their business and undertakings.
Q. What would account for such a transaction as that? A. The explanation given to me is that when Mr. Travers was away in England the local manager of the bank advanced a very large amount of money to Davey or to the company and that the proceeds of it did not go into the business of the company entirely, but it was lost in other directions, and when Travers got back he found this very large loss and knew he was going to meet the loss, and he had to get Davey out of the business, and he turned it over into the Ontario Leather Company and took control of it.
Q. Who was the agent? A. I do not know the name.
MR. TRAVERS: Frame. A. That is correct what I said about that note?
MR. TRAVERS: Yes. A. Anyway, the bank was in for $83,000 and they were in $168,000 at the time of the failure.
MR. HODGINS: Look at page 69? A. I have a statement showing the Toronto outstandings as they are.
Q. You give a summary on page 69? A. That is my opinion.
Q. Of the list of outstanding—? A. Outstanding obligations.
Q. To the bank? A. On October 11th last; there is very little difference except to the extent of what collections I have made since.
Q. There is a very large amount outstanding? A. Yes, it is nearly all bad.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Those represent, however, other obligations or securities of one kind and another that you found in the bank? A. Yes, absolutely; I have a detailed list.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Are these the ordinary accounts or do they include other transactions than ordinary banking? A. They are very largely ordinary banking transactions where the bank holds the obligations of different people which are worthless, who have gone bad. If I go over them with you, I would not care to do so in public, sir; but I can give you the details of any account you want.

MR. HODGINS: It is only to get a bird's eye view; they amount to about $800,000 and you are not likely to realize more than about a quarter.

MR. COMMISSIONER: He makes the probable loss $639,407? A. Yes, that is in Toronto alone.

Q. The business extending over the three years, was it in a fairly extensive business? A. Yes, there is $800,284; there is $32,977 of that are items which we have already dealt with in connection with these defacements and Continental stock transactions. Then there is that $55,000 in there of the Clark Manufacturing Company; that is about $88,000, which would leave $712,284 of ordinary obligations in the bank. As to them, my opinion is that they are worth about $182,000, leaving the loss in here I have it of $639,407. (On page 69 of Exhibit 63.)

Q. That would be money lost on what you call ordinary banking transactions.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Extraordinary.

A. Losses in the banking business.

MR. HODGINS: Subject to any comment one might have to make on the class of business— A. A great deal of it is due to absolute mismanagement, in my opinion, a very large amount of it; the balance is from other reasons.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Perhaps you could get from the witness, are there any accounts in that of fifty or sixty or seventy thousand dollars, or are they small amounts? A. (Produces statement, headed "Farmers Bank of Canada: Position of assets other than fixed assets.")

Q. This is the detail of that $800,000? A. Yes.

Q. They seem to have dealt in some pretty large transactions? A. Yes. (Witness goes over list with the Commissioner.)

MR. HODGINS: Perhaps it might be as well to say with regard to that list while you do not want to discuss these in public as it may affect your collections on them—you can give the Commissioner any information he may desire in making up his estimate as to the value of the assets? A. I made that list for this purpose and am willing to do anything but not to enter into a public discussion.

Q. I am sure nobody would want you to do anything which would interfere with your collection of the assets? A. That is the only idea.

Q. But as long as information can be given that is wanted by the Commissioner— A. I am willing to give any information that is required of me.

Q. There is something you said makes me think I should ask—I was under the impression we had got the outside amount of Mr. Wishart's liability when we discussed the Keeley Mine? A. No.

Q. Is there more than that? A. We have judgment against him for between $52,000 and $55,000; there are notes of his discounted by the bank over and above the Keeley transactions.

Q. And they do not appear to have had connection with the Keeley transaction, do they? A. There is no reference of connection in the books of the bank, it is straight advances.

Q. Look at page 51, will you tell us if that gives us the outstanding liabilities which have been proved by you? A. Those are the liabilities as on October 31st last; these liabilities are taken from time to time, set-offs and one thing and another, but that is the correct statement up to that date.
Q. The $12,438 special account of the bank is that circulation or just balances due to the date of the failure? A. No, balances due to the bank; that is not circulation.

Q. Current accounts would represent what, $147,000? A. Current deposits.

Q. In head office and branches? A. No, in branches.

Q. Savings account, $979,894? A. Those are savings accounts in various branches, deposits.

Q. Balance due on drafts issued, $17,558? A. Yes, those are the amounts of the drafts issued less the set-offs, against the same. You see customers who bought drafts and then would owe on a note they hold the draft and hold the note and set them off; that is the set-offs. Just as a matter of information for you the amount of set-offs against the cash assets of this bank have been well on to $60,000.

Q. What are? A. The set-offs.

Q. You make the total liability including those items I have gone over $1,159,353.28? A. Yes, of that date. Outside of that other deposit below there.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Why is that omitted? A. That is taken in specially at the end.

MR. HODGINS: The total amount due to the Ontario Government, you have it here, $26,533.16. does that include interest? A. Yes.

Q. That is a preferential claim, is it not? A. After the payment of circulation.

Q. When was that deposited? A. The first deposit was in June, 1907, when $10,000 was deposited; and then in May, 1908, $25,000 was deposited and later on in the year the original $10,000 was drawn out.

Q. Was the last $25,000 in one deposit or in two? A. No, in a number of deposits extending over the period of a couple of weeks, I think, when two deposit receipts were issued in satisfaction, one at $10,000 and the other at $15,000.

MR. COMMISSIONER: And the balance is accrued interest? A. Yes.

MR. HODGINS: That would be the $25,000? A. Yes.

Q. You have it “Ontario Government,” is that the form which the account took? A. No, there is a deposit receipt issued to the Treasurer of the Province of Ontario.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Have you the date of that? A. The account is here, if you would like to see it.

MR. HODGINS: Yes. I would like to get the exact date; they would come in next to circulation if you ever get enough to pay that? A. Yes.

MR. COMMISSIONER: The expenses have to come out? A. They come ahead of the circulation. (Witness shows to the Commissioner the account of the Ontario Government in the bank ledger).

Q. According to this down to the 14th June—? A. The Treasurer deposited $12,019.

Q. On the 14th June he got a deposit receipt of $10,000, leaving a balance to the credit of the account of $2,019.56.

Q. There were deposits of varying amounts down to— A. May, 1908.

Q. What is this $15,000? A. That is deposit.

Q. Then it is until the 13th May, when a deposit receipt issued for $15,000? A. Yes.

Q. How did that leave the account? A. That left a balance of $826,63.

Q. And then? A. On the 19th May, they deposited further moneys and got a deposit receipt of $10,000 leaving a balance of $1,817. This deposit receipt here was apparently deposited on September 22nd, 1908.

Q. That is the first ten thousand? A. Yes, with interest.

MR. HODGINS: What date was it withdrawn? A. September 22nd, 1908, and then the amount was gradually checked out.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

MR. COMMISSIONER: It was not withdrawn was it? A. No, it was put to the credit of a checking account.

Q. And checked out until—? A. It continues right through, and that is carried forward into that missing ledger. This is the general ledger of the bank and the next one is the one that disappeared in the other proceedings.

Q. How did it stand at the failure? A. There was nothing in the checking account at the failure.

MR. HODGINS: It appears in 1907, to have been deposits in various small amounts? A. Yes.

Q. Consolidated on the 14th June?

MR. COMMISSIONER: That is all down.

MR. HODGINS: Which of the two deposit receipts represent the present? A. Those two.

Q. The ones issued on the 13th May, and the 19th May, 1908? A. Yes.

Q. It appears to have been then as a sort of a current account? A. It was a checking account, outside of those—

Q. You, I think, spoke this morning of some special assets and collections, there is nothing in those that call for comment; you recovered some moneys which did not appear to be outstanding according to the books of the bank? A. I do not think there is anything calls for special comment on that.

Q. You recovered apparently $23,299 in that way? A. Yes.

Q. Are the assets shown at page 96 taken in at their face value, and are they still realizable? A. No. The first item I have sold at 95; the second and third items are still in hands to be realized. The fourth item I have never been able to find; the fifth item is there I suppose we realized about 60 or 70 per cent on that stock; it had gone down.

MR. COMMISSIONER: The Dominion Radiator Company's stock not worth par? A. The company is in very good standing but they have been putting out a lot of capital the last few years and they have been willing to sell it themselves at par and—

Q. How did the bank come to get that, was the company a customer of the bank? A. There was a man called Massenger who assigned to us about six years ago and he owed the Farmers Bank a good deal of money and they held this Radiator stock from him as security and took it over.

Q. Is that a loss that appears or was it written off before? A. No, it is taken in their books at about 125.

Q. I mean the account of Massenger? A. It is written off; yes; it is not in the accounts now.

Q. What does this Buckingham Graphite Company do? A. They had graphite property down east, near Buckingham, Quebec.

Q. Dead? A. I have got it under option at this time.

Q. It is not operating? A. No, there are some other properties operating near there and it comes down to more the working out of a process than the mere presence of mineral.

Q. The Lake Shore Country Club, $5,000, what is that? A. That is Lorne Park. The bank advanced the Lake Shore Country Club that owned property, owns the Club house there and a considerable amount of money was advanced them, I think $30,000 and it was afterwards sold under the first mortgage and I bought it in for the bank at I think $16,000 and I did so in anticipation of making a profit and getting back part of the bank's account which I expect to do.

Q. There will be a loss on that? A. There will be a substantial loss, there will be a loss of $20,000.

Q. Who is this E. R. Michie who figures for about $60,000? A. I do not know how to describe him; he has been a promoter around here; at one time he was thought to be worth a good deal of money, but this arises out of a mining transaction and I have only been able to collect $5,000 or $6,000 on it.
Q. Are you anything of a horticulturist? A. I know something about it.
Q. It would look to me as if the insects were gathering around the weak plants to eat them up? A. I do not know how I will turn out on this. There is a mining transaction there and this money was advanced in connection with it, and we hold $5,000 collateral. The mining property was resold, and the bank at the expense of $2,000 has now got one quarter interest in it and an option was given I think of $25,000 or $30,000 so if that turns out all right I will recover about ten or twelve thousand dollars from the account all told.
Q. What did he get this money for? A. To buy mining stock.
Q. When did that transaction take place? A. A year or year and a half before the failure of the bank.
Q. Was there any big profit to anybody in it? A. I understand they anticipated the making of a large profit.
Q. They were to get a share in the concern? A. Yes, the profits on that stock were to be divided. That Tevis item down below there is that Syracuse transaction.

The Commission adjourned at 1 P.M. to 2 P.M.

The Commission resumed at 2 P.M., May 29th, 1912.

G. T. CLARKSON Examination continued.—

MR. HODGINS: There was a resolution you probably know about found upon the bank books passed during the absence of Mr. Travers, to which he took exception which resulted in some loans being made? A. You are referring to a resolution of the Executive Committee at which R. E. Menzie and Beattie Nesbitt were present, at which they passed credits to their own people?
Q. Yes? A. I understand that owing to Mr. Travers’ objections taken to that, that those credits were not put into effect and that the resolutions were withdrawn.
Q. I thought they were effective and were acted upon till his return? A. He returned at once as I understand it and stopped the credit.
Q. I would like to get the date of it? A. It is in that folder.
Q. Yes, I have it. You think they did not actually go through and result in any loss to the bank? A. No, I won’t state as a matter of fact they did not, but that is my belief.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Referring to this report, (Exhibit 63) on this sheet these letters are from the form of the return? A. Yes; on page 77 is the form of the Government return.

MR. HODGINS: I do not know that there is very much more that I want to ask you at the present moment, but I would like to ask you this whether you can say what the causes contributing to the failure of the bank were from your examination of the books and your knowledge of the transaction? A. The causes were these; the bank started with impaired capital from the beginning, and found itself unable to do business profitably owing to competition; then too many advances were made with firms or people having connection with the bank in which these persons or firms were likely to profit in case profits were made, that is to say they were to get advantages if profits were made; then I think too there was mismanagement of the bank. I do not attach that to any person, but I mean to say through general mismanagement loans were made which should have not been made, too many bad debts were incurred and moneys expended.
MR. COMMISSIONER: Under the most favorable circumstances having regard to the conditions when this bank started what do you think of the prospects of its success? A. The bank's capital was impaired then to the extent of $70,000 or $80,000; but that should not have been sufficient to have caused the failure of the bank in view of the large amount of money, $530,000 or $540,000 which went into it. If it had gone along certain lines, if it had been managed conservatively, no attempt been made to pay dividend, no attempt made to splurge out too quickly—they did try to go ahead too quick with branches and they lost on them; they loaned their money out in unsatisfactory directions, and these investments were to friends of the bank who were interested, which under ordinary circumstances I do not think any banker would have done.

Q. I judge from what you have already said that you thought it was a mistake to open any of these branches, none of them were profitable? A. It turned out in fact that none of them were profitable. It is all right to say that now, but whether anybody could have foreseen at that time they would have been so unprofitable, it is a different matter.

Q. Would it have been possible to make success of a bank that had no outside agencies with a small capital of this kind; the deposits came, I should judge from something you said, mainly from the outside? A. The deposits came almost entirely from the outside, they were too little from any branch to carry that branch.

Q. With only meagre deposits in the Toronto branch could there be anything but disaster come? A. If the bank had started off with a $500,000 capital and had been content to just gradually work its way under minimum expenses, I do not see any reason why it should not gradually—

Q. What was roughly the annual expenditures at the start? A. They were under heavy expense as to rental—

Q. What would you say in round figures? A. I cannot give you an estimate as to that; what I mean to say is I do not see any reason why the bank should not have succeeded under ordinary conditions with this capital of $500,000; but as matters turned out as was proved, its branches were not a success, it had not the confidence of the public, it did not get the necessary deposits; if it had had that confidence I cannot say whether it would have got the necessary deposits from these branches or not. The fact remains it did not, and it lost; but I do not see any reason why it should not have succeeded if it had gone along quietly and more conservatively.

Q. Taking the list of stockholders as you found it and eliminating those you have eliminated, what would you say as to the list, was it a good list, well distributed? A. The stock was certainly distributed, and it was distributed largely amongst farming communities, but that may have been a certain amount of benefit to it in the locality where these stockholders resided, at least one would think so, but I understand it did not have the effect that the bank people thought it would, that it did not get the confidence of the stockholders.

Q. Ordinarily would such a stock list be considered the best kind of stock list to have distributed in comparatively small holdings amongst the farming community? A. Yes, certainly.

Q. Apparently for some reason or other people were tempted to go into reckless speculative transactions? A. The bank started off with its losses and then when it struck the Keeley Mine and as I size it up, Mr. Travers got in for $50,000, and once in he never got out; it went from bad to worse.

Q. These other speculations? A. They followed along the same strain.

Q. I suppose they were straws that a drowning man grasped at? A. Yes, that is the way I size it up.

MR. HODGINS: There is another point that I thought may as well be mentioned apart altogether from that Keeley Mine or the speculative losses; there seems to be an extremely large loss in the ordinary operation of the bank according to you, nearly half the capital seemed to have gone in paying for running the bank and its branches?  A. The bank had 27 branches and there was not one branch in which it had enough deposits to carry its expenses out, and that arose from lack of confidence as I understand it.

Q. If you take that item operating losses about $340,000 the defalcations and withdrawals at $149,000 you have nearly $400,000 alone?  A. That is true.

Q. And dividends $50,000?  A. Yes.

Q. $450,000 out of a total capital such as you mention?  A. Yes.

Q. So that while the Keeley Mine undoubtedly accounts for an equal amount, that is $442,000 the ordinary operations of the bank seem to have run into about as much if you include in that the money that was taken by the trusted officials?  A. Of course all the money that went into the Keeley Mine, it had an effect on the bank, because it did not have the money to loan and not having the money to loan and not looking for loans (as I understand the bank was looking for deposits, not for loans) to that extent it would affect their business. If they only wanted the deposits and would not lend you can see how the local people would look at it; it had an effect on it.

Q. Can you tell at all speaking generally, from the present outlook, if you collect any such assets as you think you can realize upon and collect on the double liability, whether you will be able to pay more than the circulation?  A. Not unless the improbable happens—I will not be able to pay more than the circulation unless the improbable happens.

Q. Is it probable you will be able to pay even the circulation?  A. If my estimate on double liability turns out to be at all in reason I shall do so; if I am mistaken as to that then I will not pay circulation.

Q. The most optimistic outlook is everything is lost excepting the circulation?  A. Yes, unless the Keeley Mine turns out.

Q. Is there anything else except the Keeley Mine that there might be any hope in?  A. Not from a common sense standpoint, no.

Q. We do not want a Farmers Bank estimate?  A. Not from what I would call a sane estimate, no.

Mr. Hodgins: Before the report is made will you make up to that date, just as nearly as you can, the assets and liabilities so that the Commissioner can have that up to the very latest date?  A. Yes; this statement on page 111 amending that to merely show the collections since that date, which is little or nothing, gives you as the statement—

Q. I wish you would do that?  A. I will do that.

Q. I will notify you when it is wanted so that we may get it as closely as possible to the date of the report?  A. Very well.

Mr. Commissioner: If there is any hope in this Keeley Mine at all, why would it not pay the depositors to organize a company and take it over?  A. If they want to speculate in a mining property as far as the bank is concerned, I have not any possible objection, but I would not advise them one way or the other about the matter.

Q. It would be open to them?  A. Yes.

Q. You do not need that to redeem the circulation?  A. No, I think I can redeem the circulation without that, and then if they felt advised on their own account, independent advice, to go in and work that mining property, unless I am able to deal on a better basis prior to that time, why certainly; but I do not feel advised to give any advice to these shareholders or depositors about putting their money into that thing.

Q. There is not very much security to the public for the redemption of the circulation outside of the liability of the bank itself?  A. There is the fund in Ottawa.

Q. How much is that?  A. I do not know what it is; it is 5% of the circulation outstanding.

Q. All the banks?  A. Yes.
Q. That comes back as a claim against the bank before the ordinary creditors?
A. Yes.
Q. With interest at 5%?
A. Yes.
Q. Although you say in this case it has been reduced?
A. Yes, that is to say if the assets of the bank are insufficient to pay this circulation the redemption fund at Ottawa will take care of it; whatever that redemption fund has to put up it is a prior lien before ordinary depositors.
Q. The circulation will all be redeemed?
A. Yes.
Q. There is no doubt about that?
A. There is absolutely no doubt about that.

Mr. Hodgins: I suppose you would want to get consent to part with any of the assets before it had been redeemed out of the assets, taking that suggestion as to the Keeley Mine?
A. I do not think there would be any difficulty about that; I think the holders of circulation would only be too glad to do anything reasonable, but I am negotiating with two or three people now on a bond and lease proposition which would give the depositors pretty nearly the same result if the property turns out to be good.
Q. You have done nothing, I suppose, with the property beyond taking care of it?
A. I have had reports made on it and we have advertised it for sale under three or four propositions, bond and lease; but a little prior to the failure of the bank mining properties had gone out of favor, considering the favor they were in before; where before you could sell a property for $100,000, today you could not sell it for $5,000; that was the condition obtaining then.
Q. Mr. Wishart thinks he can sell it?
A. I would be very glad if he would.

Mr. Commissioner: Is it in the Gowanda District?
A. No, this is in Lorraine; it is south-west of Cobalt, about 20 or 25 miles, I think.
Q. Has it any name as a mining district?
A. It is known as the South Lorraine Mining District.

W. R. TRAVERS, Recalled:—

Witness: First, I want to correct a statement that I made regarding the formation of the Keeley Mine. I stated that nothing was put into the mine by any person but the bank. When the option was first taken and required to be renewed there had to be $3,000 put up to renew it, of which Dr. Beattie Nesbitt put up his cheque for $1,500 and I put up mine for $1,500; I had overlooked that in giving my testimony.
Mr. Commissioner: Putting up a cheque, does that mean a form of paying it?
A. No, paying it.
Q. Not out of Farmers Bank money?
A. No; well I took it out of Farmers Bank money because it was charged up to my account. Dr. Beattie Nesbitt’s cheque was on the Crown Bank.
Mr. Commissioner: The proportions you mention are not the same as in the agreement?
A. I think, sir, if you look at the first issue of the stock.
Q. I was looking at the agreement that was made between the four of you, Wishart, Nesbitt, yourself and the bank; the bank was to get 25,000 shares, Wishart was to get 25,000 shares, and also another 40,000 shares; and you were to get 40,000 shares, and Nesbitt was to get 70,000 shares?
A. I looked up the stock list here, and I find the first division of the stock was 40,000 at $5 to myself; $65,000 to Wishart; $25,000 to the bank; and the balance, $70,000, to Nesbitt, that was the first division.
Q. This agreement was in 1908? A. That first distribution of the stock, as I understand it, was after the joint stock company was formed.

Mr. Hodgins: You appear to have held the shares in the Keeley-Jowsey-Wood Mine, Limited, practically equally, Wishart, Nesbitt, Travers and the bank? A. Not the first one; I do not think you will find the first one, but I think you will find the first one $10,000, $25,000, $65,000 and $70,000. When they came to the second or third payment you will find that Wishart and Dr. Nesbitt transferred an additional amount of stock to the bank; that is where the dispute first started; I was not quite clear on that the other day.

Q. On the 1st December, 1908, when the Keeley Mine, the re-organized company, bought out the Keeley-Jowsey-Wood Mine, the stock was made two millions; that is, 400,000 at $5 each; it went equally to you, Wishart, Nesbitt and the Farmers Bank? A. Quite so.

Q. Is there anything to be said about the Keeley Mine now? A. The only thing I can say about the Keeley Mine, I differ from Mr. Clarkson; I had given an option for one-half interest in that mine for $600,000 to one Erick in New York, who was the go-between for Lewison’s, down there, very rich people.

Q. When was this given? A. 1910. I think, January or February, 1910, I am not quite sure about that date; but I went to New York and I had an interview with Lewison’s manager about it, and while they did not wish to recognize Mr. Erick in the matter they were quite willing to deal. When the time of the option expired I refused to renew it, as I thought to myself if it was good enough for those Jews, as I thought in my own mind, it was good enough for me; that is the way the thing fell down.

Mr. Commissioner: You refused to renew what option? A. Renew the option given to Mr. Erick; and while Mr. Erick was not a man of means, still it does not always take a man of means to be the go-between to negotiate a deal of that sort.

Mr. Hodgins: You had given these people an option which they did not take up? A. They did not take it for the simple reason that they asked to have it renewed and I would not renew it.

Q. And then they never negotiated with you afterwards? A. I was in negotiation with them from that time on until the bank failed. When I got back from the Lindsay trial, where the judge scored us so severely, I had not a chance, we had a run; if it had not been for that, I would have been in New York on the following Monday morning. I was on the long-distance phone, which the records will show, on Sunday, trying to make an appointment with these people and to have them up in Toronto on that Monday, or been in New York myself and could not get away. I still think the Keeley Mine is good; it does not matter to me what anybody’s opinion is of it; I was on the spot every month for over two years. I had the opinion of one of the best engineers and I consider that to-day it is as good as it was when I went into it and I thought it was worth a good deal of money then.

Mr. Commissioner: You started by saying that you differed from Mr. Clarkson; what do mean by that? A. Mr. Clarkson does not consider that the mine is worth anything; he must take into consideration that—

Mr. Hodgins: I do not think Mr. Clarkson said that; he declined to put a value on it because he did not know; he said he would not advise, either way, the depositors when I made the suggestion? A. In sinking a shaft 140 feet and in the small drifting we did we took out, I think, nearly $20,000 of silver; it did not rain down, it is there in some place.

Q. Was that on the vein or pockets? A. Both on veins and in pockets; kidneys they call them in the mining term.

Q. Was that credited in the bank’s books? A. I think you will find nearly $20,000 worth of silver was taken out of that mine; we did nothing, we were tied up for a whole year through the mistake of the manager in the machinery. You

Mr. HODGINS: When Mr. Clarkson declines to advise one way or the other,

The only thing I did not think he has any right to advise or take any responsibility about it? A. I am not blaming him.

Q. You understand, Mr. Clarkson did not intend to say and did not say, as I understood him, that the mine was no good? A. I simply want to put myself on record, because somebody is going to make a fortune out of that mine some day, and you and I will live to see it, and I want to put myself on record; that is all.

I believe that to be true. The next thing I noticed in the newspapers that Mr.

Clarkson had stated I had removed my papers from the bank, my private papers, and therefore that was the reason I was dismissed.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: I noticed what the papers said; that was an incomplete and inaccurate statement of Mr. Clarkson's evidence; he did not say what the report says. There was no suggestion, as I understood it, from Mr. Clarkson that anything improper was done in the removal of the private box.

Mr. CLARKSON: No, I was given to understand that you had removed the Keeley papers and papers which you were said to be your private memoranda. I had given instructions that no papers were to go out of the bank, and I told them to tell you that; instead of that, they gave you the message that I had said you were not to come back again. That is D. Miller's mistake. Afterwards I said that box which was said to contain your private papers went to your son. A.

Before you were appointed curator.

Mr. CLARKSON: I did not understand that. A. I can prove that.

Mr. CLARKSON: This is the statement that was made to me, and I communicated that to Inspector Duncan, and he told me he had gotten a box which did not contain the cheques and notes which you had spoken about.

WITNESS: The Crown officers treated me with every consideration, and I opened the doors for them in every way I could, and they got into every box of papers I could send to them; there was nothing kept back.

Mr. HODGINS: We got this far; that you told us; there were some notes of Wishart's and Beattie Nesbitt's? A. Those were left in my desk.

Q. That we have never been able to find; I ask you where they were? A.

I cannot account for those.

Q. I certainly gained the impression from you that they had been removed in that box and you did not know what had become of them? A. Then you are wrong, because I did not move those notes you speak of, they are in my desk.

Q. What notes are you speaking of? A. In the Keeley box there was an envelope and cheques and memorandum which showed my dealings with the Keeley

Mine.

Q. I asked you specifically notes signed by Wishart and Dr. Beattie Nesbitt? A.

I did not answer you correctly, not that I wished to answer you wrongly; because the notes in my mind of those two men were left in a drawer of my desk, and they were never touched by me and as I told you in your office you should find them.

Q. You say you did leave notes of these men in a drawer of the Farmers

Bank? A. In the desk that I use as general manager.

Q. You know nothing about their removal? A. No.
Q. Tell me what notes they were? A. My recollection is that there was a $10,000 note there of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt's, and there were some notes of Wishart's; I could not tell you the amount, really.

Q. Any one else? A. That is all I can remember.

Q. Was it a $6,000 and $3,000 note? A. No, I do not remember a $6,000 note.

Q. What was the occasion of these notes being given and retained by you in the drawer? A. They were left there for me to use if I needed them.

Q. How long before the failure of the bank? A. I think they had been there for some time, probably a year.

Q. Were they cheques or notes? A. They were notes and bank cheques attached to them. That is my recollection of them.

Mr. Clarkson: I never saw those cheques, I never heard of them till Mr. Travers mentioned them. The only people who could have taken them were the Crown Officers who went through Mr. Travers' desk. A. The Crown Officers acted in every way that was proper and right and I helped them in every way I could.

Mr. Hodgins: Were they given for value? A. No, they were left there blank for me to use if it was necessary to fill up a gap, if you want the truth in regard to the Keeley Mine transactions.

Q. Why did you not give that one back to Beattie Nesbitt after he sold out his interest in the Keeley Mine? A. Which is that?

Q. The one you had signed by him? A. I did not give anything back to him.

Q. Why did you not after he had sold his stock? A. I never thought of those notes in my drawer until after the question came up one day in Mr. Clarkson's office when we were going over the affairs of the bank. You asked Mr. Clarkson a question about cash on hand and cash paid up on capital account which I did not think was answered very well, because if cash is paid in on capital account, actually paid in on it, the payment out of that cash for premises and other matters does not reduce the amount that has been originally paid in on capital account in cash, if you understand my meaning; as I understood you to say in asking him the question you were confusing the cash on hand and cash paid up on capital account.

Mr. Hodgins: That was in reference to what item? A. I have not the number of the page.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not suppose any one will dispute that proposition.

Mr. Clarkson: I thought I had made myself clear there, that $64,000. You asked me the amount paid in on capital account and I gave you that including that $64,000.

Mr. Hodgins: Yes.

Mr. Clarkson: The cash on hand was excluding that? A. You spoke of $5,000 having been paid Beattie Nesbitt for that Clark Manufacturing account; that was only a reversal of the former entry of $5,000 that was paid to Beattie Nesbitt about the 4th December, 1908, when the re-organization of the company took place.

Mr. Hodgins: How do you mean the reversal of the entry? A. When it was first paid it was charged directly to the Keeley Company, and afterwards I reversed that entry and took it out of Keeley Mine account and put it into Stocks and Bonds.

Q. What was the object of that? A. Because it was not properly charged up to the company; that was not a commission the Keeley Mine Company should pay; I took it out of Keeley Mine Company's books and put it into the bank books.

Q. Into the Keeley Mine stock and bonds? A. Yes, that were held by the bank.

Q. What did it represent? A. It represented a loss, practically.

Q. The $5,000 was not paid to him at the time? A. Yes, it was actually paid to him, but in Mr. Clarkson's evidence he says another $5,000 was paid.
Q. Is your evidence that there was nothing paid to Beattie Nesbitt when he gave up his interest in the Keeley Mine? A. Yes, there was nothing paid then.

Q. There is no doubt about that? A. No. You will find if you go up to the head office books of the bank you will find the $5,000 referred to. Then the $55,000 note I gave to reduce the organization expenses was for the purpose of not showing the bank's capital impairment; it would show it as a loan. I made inquiries as to some other banks which were organized and I found out something of that kind was done there, and I unfortunately fell into that error. Another thing on page 23 you show the stock purchased by me, that is Farmers Bank stock. The price of the stock was dropping very rapidly and it was affecting the deposits and I bought the stock and put in my own notes to pay for it.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: Borrowing the money from the bank? A. Yes, and C. H. Smith who is carrying on a sort of brokerage business here or something of the sort came in and spoke to me and said he thought he could make some money out of the prices that were going, and if I would lend him some money and I lent him some money for the same purpose. I was satisfied for anybody to buy the stock at that time to keep it from going too far down. I suppose you do not want to hear anything more about circulation and profits. I had a memorandum to that effect. I think Mr. Clarkson is wrong there. You have to take each matter on its own basis. The Trust Company have a deposit with us apart from any deposit we may have with them, we are supposed when they put in $120,000 to loan that money out, and if we pay them 4% on it and we loan out at 6% then we have $2,400 of a profit in that. If they keep the average circulation of $25,000 out for us, that would be $1,250; there is $3,650. Supposing that we had a deposit with them free at 3% there is $3,600, one would offset the other, as far as that goes apart from any profit there might be in advertising. Then I do not agree with Mr. Clarkson, I do not suppose it makes very much difference about the branches paying. There were some branches which were paying. You have not made any calculation for the profit in circulation about those branches which did not pay, but there were some that did not pay, there is no doubt about that.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: Something did not pay if the operating losses were so great? A. Quite so.

Q. I suppose there is no doubt about that, that Mr. Clarkson's figures are accurate? A. I am not disputing that; I am only saying in some points he is a little off.

Q. I noticed in the list of bad debts A. O. Boemer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I should have thought you would not lend him any money? A. I had lent him that money with the object of getting back some money I lost through him.

Q. Is that the same man you had the suit with? A. Yes.

Q. I should have thought you would have been shy after that? A. I got my money out of him by making that loan; it unfortunately turned out badly.

Q. You got some of the money? A. Yes.

Q. You lent him more? A. I had Mr. Samuel Merner as the guarantor of that debt.

Q. He was not very strong? A. He turned out badly. He was at one time a very wealthy man and I thought he was at that time. I suppose you do not want any suggestions from me in regard to the revision of the Bank Act.

Q. That is not my function? A. My idea is that the bank circulation should be based upon reserve and that it should not be based upon paid up capital.

Q. You would curtail the circulation? A. No, the banks will guarantee the small bank now—take the Bank of Montreal, the Bank of Nova Scotia, the second best managed bank in the country, it has a reserve of twice the paid up capital; they should be able to circulate twice the amount of bills.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: I misunderstood what you meant by reserve.

Mr. Hodgins: How do you account for the commissions amounting to $71,800 against 10% on the subscribed capital? A. The agreement I had with the Permanent Board was 15%; the written agreement with me was produced in the Police Court and should be found.

Q. It never was charged up at that rate? A. 15% would be $75,000.
Q. It never was charged up at that rate? A. The minutes have been altered by somebody since they left my hands; anybody can see that if they put a magnifying glass upon it.
Q. What minutes? A. The minutes of the percentage; they were originally entered there at 15%.

Mr. Commissioner: The Farmers Bank minutes? A. Yes, they were originally entered at 15% and they are changed to 10.
Q. In the provisional minutes? A. No, sir; in the permanent minutes,
Mr. Commissioner: I do not understand how a ledger could get lost through these proceedings.

Mr. Hodgins: I cannot, either.

Mr. Commissioner: Why do not some of these detectives get to work and search in all the offices where these books have been?

Mr. Hodgins: I have written to Mr. Irwin and told him the direction has been made to have it produced and asked him to have a proper search made.

Mr. Commissioner: I would get some of the detectives to have this search made. I do not see why these detectives should not look for all these papers that are missing. They should be in some of the offices.

Mr. Hodgins: I expect to have Detective Duncan here and get some information from him. A. (Turning up minute book of directors of the Farmers Bank, Exhibit 10, page 27) There is a written agreement that that ought to be 15%.

Q. Whose handwriting are these minutes in? A. Mr. Shaver's.
Q. The figures seem to be in his handwriting, too? A. I saw that after the bank failed in the Police Court or at some trial and my naked eye shows me there has been a change there. When I said it was 15% I was challenged.
Q. There must have been a written agreement, was there not? A. There was an agreement; yes, sir.
Q. "The following is a copy of the agreement." and then follows the agreement? A. That is the agreement with me as general manager.
Q. Fifteen per cent on stock subscriptions—"As per his contract with provisional directors, dated the 4th July, 1906"—we have that, and that is 10%? A. No, there was a second agreement, another one made.
Q. The motion you refer to is on page 27. It says: "On motion it was agreed that W. R. Travers should be allowed 10% on the stock subscriptions, as per his contract with the provisional board, dated the 4th July, 1906, and that he be engaged as general manager"? A. I say that should read 15%.
Q. This appears to refer to the July contract? A. Yes, but there was another contract, too; there is still another one.
Q. This is what you point to in the minutes; if this minute as altered formed the 4th July contract, there is nothing to complain about? A. The July contract was before these minutes were enacted.
Q. This meeting was passing a resolution to pay you, was it not? A. Yes, sir.
Q. At the rate of 10%? A. No, sir, 15%.
Q. Let me see that 4th July contract? A. Not that contract, that is 10%, but there is still another one.
Q. This says, "Contract with the provisional board"? A. That is not the contract that was written into that book.
Q. There are two contracts of the 4th July? A. I know, but there are three contracts of the 4th July.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Why did you not say that when we were examining you before them? A. It just came back to me.
Q. I asked you particularly why there were two on the same day? A. Mr. Clarkson gave his evidence a little while ago about the 10%, and it then came back to my mind.
Q. These two are agreements with provisional directors (Exhibit 12)? A. Yes, there are two; there were three.
Q. None of the provisional directors have said so; you have not said so up to date? A. I have to beg your pardon; if you go back to my evidence in the Police Court you will find I did say so.
Q. What is the provision there as to percentage? A. This provision is 10%.
Q. What do you mean by having another one for 15%? A. Because it was changed.
Q. What was the operative amount, 10 or 15%? A. 15%.
Q. Who was it made with? A. With the same people.
Q. What did they get for changing it? A. They got nothing for changing it; they made this agreement with me first in the early part of the day and I made them make another one on the afternoon.
Q. There was the other one made in the afternoon attached to it? A. No, those were both made at the same time.
Q. When you were examined before you said that one was made earlier in the day and that the second one later on account of the change they wanted made? A. I hardly think I said that; I said these two were made about the same time.
Q. Whom do you suppose changed the minute? A. I could not tell you.
Q. Did you produce that 4th July resolution at the meeting when that 15% one was passed? A. Yes, I think if the agreement was shown to Mr. Shaver he would be able to swear he wrote those minutes up from that document.
Q. Dealing with the Laidlaw subscriptions, there was $2,380 paid to these various shareholders and that, apparently, left Mr. Laidlaw, as somebody put it, without a client and the suit was dropped? A. Yes.
Q. Did any one else get anything for withdrawing or letting the suit go? A. I do not know what you mean by that.
Q. Was there anything else paid over and above this $2,380 to anybody in connection with that? A. I have no recollection of anything being paid.
Q. There was a resolution passed by the executive committee—I have the letter here—do you remember the occasion of it—you wrote Dr. Nesbitt a letter on the 13th November, 1907, referring to the resolution of the executive committee, a copy of which has been furnished to me as follows; and then follows the resolution, that the Menzie Wall Paper Company be given a credit of $35,000; C. L. Nesbitt of $14,000; Dr. Nesbitt is permitted to issue a cheque for this amount, pending the turning in of Mrs. Nesbitt's note for the amount at four months, and the Hubbard Company getting an additional credit of $6,000; then you go on to say, 'I call your attention to the fact that this resolution was passed by the votes of yourself and Mr. Menzie in contravention of the third by-law', which you quote—you remember that circumstance? A. I do.
Q. Was that passed while you were absent? A. It was.
Q. And had it been acted upon when you came back and remonstrated? A. I do not think it was; certainly not with regard to Menzie; I could not speak absolutely sure about the other, I do not think there was anything done.
Q. That was afterwards withdrawn by letter, was it not, or rescinded; how was it done? A. I had a meeting, if I remember, of the executive, and had the resolution rescinded by the same people that passed it.
Q. Did you get a letter from Dr. Beattie Nesbitt agreeing not to act upon it? A. I got a letter from both of them, both Menzie and Dr. Nesbitt.
Q. Agreeing not to act upon it? A. Yes, not to act upon it and regretting the circumstances.

Q. You cannot say that the bank lost anything through that? A. Not through that transaction, I don’t think they did.

Q. The earliest deposit by the Provincial-Treasurer of Ontario was made in 1907? A. I believe it was, looking at the books the other day.

Q. They appear to have been made in comparatively small sums? A. Yes.

Q. And when when they reached a larger total a deposit receipt was issued? A. Yes.

Q. Who made the arrangements for that deposit; did you? A. No, my recollection is, and I would have to refer to the books to confirm it, not expecting this question, or I would have been prepared for it—was that Mr. Greenwood, of the World, arranged that.

Q. That is the earliest one? A. Yes, that is my recollection of it.

Q. What about the later one? A. The later ones were arranged through Dr. Nesbitt, some way, I don’t know how.

Q. That is the one amounting to $25,000? A. Yes, in May, 1908.

Q. May and June, 1908? A. Yes.

Q. How did Greenwood, of the World, come to arrange the deposit? A. Greenwood and myself were old friends and he was hard up for wages occasionally and I used to help him with a small loan and he helped me in return, and the loan gradually crept up.

Q. What about Beattie Nesbitt? A. In what respect?

Q. As to the later deposits? A. At the time that Nesbitt desired to close the Keeley Mine proposition, I remember saying that I could not spare that amount of gold; he said, “I will get a deposit for you from the Government”. He did so.

Q. It seems to have come in, not as a deposit of a large sum, but in small deposits? A. That was done, as I understood, at the time so that they would not have to withdraw it from any other bank.

Q. Who made the arrangements as to issuing deposit receipts? A. I think that’s the usual custom of Mr. Matheson; it is an old form of banking that used to exist when I was a young man in the bank, that nearly everything was done in that way, and I think he has kept up the old system.

Q. In addition to Mr. Greenwood being hard up for wages and you obliging him now and again, was there any other money advanced to Mr. Greenwood or any one associated with him? A. The advances to the World gradually crept up from time to time till I think they reached about $16,000.

Q. When did they begin? A. They began soon after the bank started. I said a little while ago I think about the time that the first deposit with the Government was made.

Q. Why should you advance to the World? A. No reason why I should advance to them in the World.

Q. On what did you advance? A. I advanced on a note of the World endorsed by Mr. Maclean and I think Mrs. Maclean as well, I am not quite sure.

Q. Were they weekly advances? A. They crept up from time to time; they gradually crept up; I do not know whether they were weekly or how but they ran up $500 or $1,000 occasionally.

Q. Had you much money to spend? A. At that time, I had, yes.

Q. You kept lending to the World all along during the career of the bank didn’t you? A. Yes, I certainly lent too much.

Q. And did you get any repayments? A. No, I believe that those loans were there when the bank failed.

Q. You advanced money and never got any re-payments? A. There was a re-organization of the World newspaper on hand in connection with some debts that they owed to another bank through a third party, a Trust Company, a third party, which I expected ultimately to get my money out of.

Q. What is that?  A. There was a re-organization of the World to consolidate the debt of another bank as well as mine; this re-organization was being carried through by a Trust Company and through that I expected ultimately to get my money.

Q. However you did not?  A. The bank failure came too soon.

Q. Under what circumstances did you commence to advance to the World?

A. Under the circumstances of wishing to please Mr. Greenwood.

Q. Then when you commenced to advance on the notes of the World Printing Company what occasion was that?  A. The same reason.

Q. You would not be obliging Mr. Greenwood then?  A. Mr. Greenwood nearly always approached me for assistance, stating that he was behind to pay his men their wages and was in a hole so to speak and I usually tried to help him out.

Q. Did you see any one else in connection with the loan?  A. Occasionally Mr. MacLean came in with Mr. Greenwood.

Q. You never made any bones about advancing money I suppose?  A. I cannot say that I advanced it by free will, I rather objected sometimes.

Q. How did they overcome your objection?  A. I changed my mind after talking to them.

Q. What had they said to you causing you to change your mind?  A. I cannot remember just now exactly just what did happen. I was very friendly with Mr. Greenwood; I did not know much of Mr. Maclean up to that time.

Q. Was any arrangement made that you would advance them a certain amount from time to time?  A. No arrangement made for advancing them anything, just what I saw fit to do at the time they asked for it.

Q. Was the condition of the bank discussed at that time or mentioned?  A. No, I cannot say that it was mentioned.

Q. Will you say it was not?  A. I cannot say it was not, no.

Q. Was any money advanced to the World or any one connected with it other than you have described on these notes?  A. If there were any advances made they would be there on record.

Q. Was it all made on note?  A. Yes, all on note.

Q. In connection with the assets which the bank may possibly realize something upon I asked you about the Welsh Mine the other day, I do not think you told me very much about that; was there any advance directly to the Welsh Mine?  A. No to the Welsh Mine no.

Q. Was there an advance to you on account of the Welsh Mine?  A. The advance on the Welsh Mine was first made to Mr. Wishart, $5,000, if I remember right; and the second advance was made to his friend and bosom companion Mr. John Costigan, and then they were unable to meet the third payment on their option and so fell down on it and I picked up the option then so as not to lose the $10,000 originally paid and carried it on till Wishart came back again and took it off my hands, running the advances up to something like $35,000.

Q. Did he pay back the advances?  A. No, sir.

Q. How did he take it off your hands?  A. He had a purchaser for it, as he showed me in New York, at a considerable profit—I have forgotten what it was,—and he agreed to assume by giving his notes all the advances that were made up to that date if I would turn the option over to him so that he might sell it in New York which was done.

Q. This left sixty thousand odd dollars he owed?  A. That leaves fifty thousand dollars.

Q. You took his unsecured note?  A. Yes.

Q. And let him have the property?  A. Well, I presumed we had a string on the property.

Q. Did you find you had not?  A. Yes, afterwards.
Q. How did you find that out?  A. I found that by his transferring the property over to Mr. Whitney, I think.
Q. I suppose you had given it to him—A. I gave it to him on a verbal understanding that was witnessed; he stated he did not wish to enter into any writings about the matter as it would affect the disposal of the property and then after he got the transfer he immediately, if I might use the term, I was going to say hocus pocus it.
Q. At all events he forgot the understanding?  A. He forgot everything after he had it in his hands.
Q. Who held the Welsh Mine after that as far as you know?  A. I could not tell you at the time that the failure came along. Mr. Bain of Bicknel & Bain was acting for me, and I understood he had it tied up; we certainly entered an injunction against that proceeding.
Q. You claim you were entitled to have a lien on the proceeds of the mine for that $50,000?  A. I claim the bank had a right to one-half the proceeds that were made out of it.
Q. Was that the situation at the failure?  A. Yes, I understand it.
Q. What about the Valveless Inner Tube Company; there is some interest in that which Mr. Clarkson says is in litigation?  A. I had an interest in that of $250,000 which I turned over to the bank, and of which I was at one time offered $50,000 for, and I believe Wishart has or is endeavouring to cut the interest from under their feet.
Q. Do you know in connection with the McCallum and Tamlin matter who McIntyre is?  A. The facts of the McCallum matter are these: McCallum was suddenly found a defaulter of $38,000 and he was arrested and prosecuted and had a term of imprisonment. He pleaded guilty to $17,000, it was on that that he was sentenced. The balance of the loss was not shown up at the time for the purpose of keeping it out of the newspapers. We recovered from the Guarantee Company a certain sum, I do not remember whether it was five or ten thousand dollars and the balance we charged up against the stock of the Keeley Mine that we had on hand. Tamlin was the cause of that young man’s downfall. Up to that time I thought he was a very worthy young man and a splendid bank hand, and this Tamlin as far as I could make out, got him to cash some cheques which were worthless and finally led him into some speculation that ended in McCallum being a defaulter to the extent of $28,000 and Tamlin’s worthless cheques in the bank’s hands of $12,000. I instructed our solicitor to take proceedings against Mr. Tamlin and he made a settlement with him without my knowledge or consent in which he took $1,000 cash I believe and a thousand dollar note of Tamlin’s leaving about $10,000 if my memory is right worthless on our hands; and then that was taken up by a note of McIntyre, and I could not tell you who McIntyre is myself, I do not know him.
Q. There is no such a man?  A. I do not know whether there is or is not.
Q. Just found the note some day in the bank?  A. No, the note was put in McIntyre’s name to remove it from the default list temporarily.
Q. Who put that McIntyre note there?  A. I got that from Mr. Hunter, our solicitor.
Q. Did you inquire from him who McIntyre was or how he came to get it?  A. I could not say whether I asked him who McIntyre was or was not, but my opinion was then and is my opinion that it was a clerk in his office.
Q. In connection with that settlement of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt’s, what was the occasion of your taking over his stock in the Keeley Mine in the place of the obligation which I understood you had of the Clark Company and the Hubbard Company and his wife?  A. I heard that the Crown Bank, to whom Dr. Beattie Nesbitt was indebted a large amount was about to take proceedings against him and seize every property that they could possibly get and I saw no other way of getting the money out of Nesbitt but by exchanging what we had with him to prevent any trouble in the Keeley stock being tied up in case I made a sale of the mine.
Q. Did you think it was a good move? A. I thought it was the best thing I could do at the time. If action had been taken against Nesbitt and an injunction filed with the bank to prevent my handling his stock in case I made a deal with those New York men, I would have been in a difficult position to carry it out.

Q. You were more anxious to get hold of his stock then than to see whether you could realize out of the original securities? A. The securities we had, with one exception of the mortgage on the Ross property, was not of any great value.

Q. You had the obligation of the Hubbard Manufacturing Company? A. Yes.

Q. And the Clark Company? A. They were practically insolvent.

Q. And Mrs. Nesbitt? A. Mrs. Nesbitt had nothing that I could find out but a home which was heavily mortgaged.

Q. At all events they disappeared as bank securities and you got the Keeley Mine stock? A. Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: What do you mean by you, you or the bank? A. The bank.

Mr. Hodgins: Do you know Frederick Crompton? A. Yes.

Q. He was the president of the Crompton Corset Company? A. I believe.

Q. You had two transactions with him, had you not, the bank? A. I had two or three transactions.

Q. What was the earliest transaction you had with him? A. The first transaction I had with him he deposited $150,000, or agreed to do so and he did so, and for that he was to have a bonus of $100,000 of the Keeley Mine stock, which was transferred to him, by, I do not remember the proportions, but I think that Dr. Nesbitt gave up $50,000 of his and I gave up $50,000 of that which was held in my name personally, but I am not quite sure.

Q. Look at that agreement, that will probably give the date; is that the first transaction; look at the signatures first? A. Yes, offhand I would say that is the agreement. Am I to read this?

Q. If you will just run over it with me; he was to deposit $50,000 and get a deposit receipt for that, and then $25,000 later on in the month and $75,000 in April. This was all in 1909. Then he was to get deposit receipts bearing interest at the rate of 3% upon those? A. Yes.

Q. Was he to deposit real money? A. Yes, he did, actual money.

Q. That was in March, 1909? A. Yes.

Q. Were you in need of it? A. Yes.

Q. Was that just a method of getting circulation, too? A. No, the last payments of the Keeley Mine were coming due then and I had not any means of taking care of them.

Q. You were to give him $100,000 fully paid-up shares of $5 each in the Keeley Mine as collateral? A. Not as collateral security, as a bonus.

Q. It says, “To be held by the party of the second part as collateral and continuing security for the said deposits”? A. How many shares?

Q. One hundred thousand fully-paid shares? A. Will you go on a little farther?

Q. “It is agreed as a further consideration for the deposit and upon his living up to the agreement, he is entitled to receive from the Farmers Bank,” yourself and Beattie Nesbitt for his own absolute use $100,000 worth, apparently, of shares—$100,000 in the fully paid-up and non-assessable stock of Keeley Mines, Limited,” of which the Farmers Bank contributed $50,000 worth, and you and Beattie Nesbitt $25,000 each? A. Yes, I remember that.

Q. So this was another arrangement helping you with Keeley Mine? A. Yes, that is what it was intended for; that was the object of it.

Q. Was that carried out? A. Yes.
Q. Money deposited and then afterwards, I suppose, withdrawn? A. Yes, it was withdrawn afterwards.

Q. But he got stock in the Keeley Mine? A. He did, so far as he could get it subject to the pool.

Q. He got it ultimately? A. It has never been outside of the pool; he got the stock, practically got it.

Q. Entitled to it now? A. No, he has parted with it now.

Q. Whom has he parted with it to? A. I bought it back from him.

Q. When? A. Some months before the bank’s failure.

Q. How much did you give him for it? A. I gave him $10,000.

Q. Ten cents a share? A. Yes.

Q. In cash? A. Practically so.

Q. Was it the bank paid him or you? A. The bank paid that.

Q. That, the liquidator tells me, the $10,000 he got Mr. Crompton has since returned? A. I saw a cheque in the Police Court for it.

Q. There were two other transactions.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: How long had the bank this $150,000 on deposit?

Mr. HODGINS: How long did they keep it on deposit? A. I could not tell you exactly, but it was not for any great length of time.

Q. Four months from the issue of the receipts is the agreed time? A. He lived up to that agreement.

Q. What was the later transaction? A. I had some transactions with him with our circulation, but I cannot remember just at the moment whether it was the final payment of that $150,000 or whether it was a fresh account. Mr. Clarkson might set me right.

Mr. Clarkson: I understand it was a fresh transaction? A. He wanted to withdraw $50,000 it was, and I was not prepared to pay it and I paid him off in our own circulation, which he agreed to hold, and so to speak, dribble in, send in a little at a time for redemption, $2,000 at a time.

Q. He would get circulation and make a deposit with you of good money, is that it? A. I am not quite sure whether he really made the deposit with me at that time or not at that time, or whether it was just the final payment on that.

Q. What would he get for the money he was to deposit with you from time to time by way of interest? A. He got 4% on it.

Q. Three per cent in accordance with the agreement? A. Yes, but we paid him 4%.

Q. That must have been a new transaction? A. I do not think there was a writing to that effect; I think that was just a verbal agreement.

Q. How much circulation did you deposit with him and how much did he put into the bank? A. I do not remember exactly, but I think fifty or sixty thousand dollars.

Q. And just before the bank failed, was any payment made to him? A. We made payments to him right up to a few days.

Q. Did he bring back the circulation and you redeem it? A. Yes.

Q. Just before the bank failed? A. Yes.

Q. Who gave him a tip? A. I could not say that; certainly I did not do it.

Q. In connection with Mr. Lindsay’s evidence, you wanted to identify on a little plan where you were that day when he says he paid over that money to you? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Is that a fairly accurate plan of the Farmers Bank on Adelaide street? A. That end of it was not in existence at that time. (Crosses out portion not in existence.) Up to that point I would say yes, that seems to be an accurate plan of the place.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. You have heard Lindsay's evidence and MacCorquodale's evidence since you gave yours? A. Yes.

Q. What do you say? A. I say that I do not like to number these rooms if you are going to examine Mr. MacCorquodale again, but I should like to designate something here—

Q. I do not see why you should not number them? A. We will call this one, and this number two, and this number three and this number four. Number four would be my room and my desk; it would be in that position.

Q. Where you have indicated in pencil? A. Yes, that is the entrance to the bank.

Q. That is, into room one? A. Yes, the entrance from the upper hall.

Q. There is a hall running along there? A. There should be a stairway going downstairs here.

Q. Write "hall" opposite that door? A. (Witness writes "hall"). Now, then, Mr. MacCorquodale, as he came in with Mr. Lindsay that day, would require to pass through this gate and get behind the counter; then my secretary was sitting at a desk there in room 1; the door into my office was locked with a Yale lock; it could only be opened by my secretary; and I was pestered to death with people wanting advertisements and selling maps, etc., and I fixed that door so that you could not get through it. As I say, if he paid me the money in number two room, if he saw the money paid to me in number two room, then Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Shaver must have been present.

Q. That is their room? A. Yes; if in number three room, then Mr. Fitzgerald's stenographer must have been there. If in my room, then he must have followed Lindsay through the door; the door must have been opened by the stenographer; he must have gone in with him; otherwise he could not possibly see it.

Q. Having gone over the whole thing in your own mind, what do you say as to the correctness of Lindsay's and MacCorquodale's story as far as this conflicts with yourself? A. I say they are not correct—

EXHIBIT 67: Plan of Head office of Farmers Bank identified by Mr. Travers.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: I thought the statement was he met the witness on the steps coming out? A. MacCorquodale said in his evidence he went in there and saw it paid in the room there.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: Lindsay at page 552 says: "There was a gentleman with me walked down to the bank, saw the money, and I do not know but he saw me hand it to Mr. Travers in the office."

Then at page 558 he says, "MacCorquodale went into the room, stood at the desk and Travers came out of the inside office and he had his coat and hat on, was waiting for me and he came out and went downstairs, the three of us together. Travers was upstairs in the bank when Lindsay got there.

Mr. HODGINS: MacCorquodale at page 793 said:

"Q. What room did you and Lindsay got into? A. Entered the front room."

"Q. Whose room is the front room? A. We entered one general room and these offices were off that room."

"Q. It was the general room you went into? A. Yes."

"Q. Sit down? A. I could not say whether we sat down or not; I had a habit of going in there often because I was wishing to get shares to sell if possible and naturally gravitated there on a good many occasions when there was no business of any kind for me at all."

Q. What room would that be he was describing? A. That would be the one with the counter across.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: How about this Graphite Company, who got that up? Mr. Hunter got that up; Mr. Hunter was the solicitor for the bank and through Mr. Home Smith of the National Trust who had the late Mr. H. C. Hammond's affairs in his hands, part of which was this Graphite property, and Smith and Hunter I believe were particular friends, it was suggested to Hunter that if this property was operated for a little while, it could be turned over to a syndicate and floated on the market at a good figure. That was the start of it. Hunter approached me and I lent him a little money to take it up, and it drifted on until it got into the absurd position it is in now.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Who was the debtor to the bank for the money? A. The joint stock company.

Q. Not Hunter? A. It was the Graphite Company as a private partnership concern at the first and then merged into a joint stock company, and the joint stock company assumed the liabilities and debts of the former partnership company.

Q. Had all the advances been made before the company was formed? A. Not all of them, no, sir.

Q. What interest had the bank in it beyond the loan? A. The bank had a portion of the stock, I do not remember just what it was offhand, but there was a certain big bonus to come out of it if the matter was floated.

Q. $30,000 is the value of the bonds, how much was loaned them? A. We loaned them thirty or thirty-five thousand dollars at first and when the company was re-organized we took the bonds in place of the debt to the bank; the property seemed to be very valuable down there, I went down and looked it all over, and they seemed to have a good process for making graphite, I thought it was good at that time; McCuaig & Company of Montreal were looking into it and they thought they would be able to float it and get everybody out of it with a good profit.

Q. What happened? A. It happened that they were unable to make a flotation of the business up to the time of the failure of the bank; there were so many things thrown on the market at the time; Black Lake, and I don't know what all; they hung fire.

Q. What is your view as to the position of the bank if it had been wisely and conservatively managed from the start, what is your view as to what the outcome would have been? A. It would undoubtedly have been a success.

Q. Why do you say so? A. Because there was plenty of room at that time for new banks, particularly for a smaller bank to drop into some of the places where there were no bank facilities at that time.

Q. Were not you starting on a scale of expenditure that was altogether out of proportion to the bank's capital, the business you were likely to do? A. It was rather out of proportion, but I think if you were able to carry your commission into the formation of some other banks you will find that nearly all started that way.

Q. To what do you attribute the disaster that happened? A. The tying up so much money in bad debts.

Q. What do you include as bad debts, do you include the Keeley Mine? A. Certainly, that was the last straw that broke the camel's back.

Q. Was it not one of the first straws that started trouble? A. No, we had these advances in the Toronto office, a good many that you were going over this morning, that you did not wish to speak about publicly—I knew what you were referring to, but a great many of those advances were made in the early history of the bank.

Q. Those that resulted in losses? A. Yes, in tying up the capital.

Q. I thought you said that when the $25,000 Provincial Government deposit was obtained it was not because you said you could not part with $25,000 of the bank money? A. As I had promised certain moneys around and I could not assume another liability of $25,000 at that time.

Q. Unless you got some other? A. Some other assistance.

Q. From what class of people did you get your deposits? A. Farmers.

Q. Mainly at the branches outside of Toronto? A. Yes, we had good deposits at some points. I differ with Mr. Clarkson on that ground, because I think we had $100,000 at some of these little places, if not more.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

MR. CLARKSON: I think only one at the time of the failure?  A. It is easy enough to figure out on the basis of $100,000 on deposit and on the average circulation there with small expenses—

MR. COMMISSIONER: What led you as managing the bank to lend these very large sums on these highly speculative properties as securities?  A. What do you refer to?

Q. Take the Graphite Company, the Keeley Mine and all these things?  A. The Graphite was a matter of later doings of mine; had that been in the early history of the bank I would not have taken it up, but as I had got behind and was trying to get some underwriting or some deal by which I could make up some of these losses I was induced to go into some of these things.

Q. You were getting as usually happens deeper down all the time?  A. Yes, no question about that. If I could have turned the Keeley Mine over for the large sum of $600,000 I would not have been in the position I am to-day, I hoped I would have pulled it through.

Q. What class of paper did you discount in the early days?  A. In the early days we discounted Farmers notes at the branches.

Q. What business did you do at the Toronto branch?  A. At the Toronto branch we made some loans to Dr. Nesbitt and some others that were not first class at first; I thought in making the first loans to Nesbitt I was getting a first mortgage on the large furniture factory at Bracebridge, but I found I was mistaken, I was getting a second mortgage; that was being my own lawyer and a fool client; the Keeley Mine, I went into that knowing we were behind, knowing we had to make up some money somewhere.

Q. At the beginning?  A. We were a year and a half in business at that time and we had this $125,000 of organization expenses and commissions and all that sort of thing behind; I was carrying that on my own note and as Mr. Clarkson explained, I wanted to get that wiped out of the road, and that induced me to go into the Keeley Mine in the first place.

Q. You bought out Dr. Beatie Nesbitt's interest, cancelled his indebtedness and his wife's by the payment of money taking over those stocks at a later date; what was the object of that?  A. So that I would be able to sell it to these New York people.

Q. Did the proposition or the suggestion of that transaction come from you or Nesbitt?  A. I think it came from me, I think at that time when there was that threatened suit; I had that in my mind at that time.

Q. Take this transaction with Wishart, what possible justification was there for lending him thirty or forty thousand dollars on that Welsh Mine?  A. The Welsh Mine was very valuable, I could have turned it over at that time at a profit and had Wishart had a customer for $200,000 as against $145,000 that I had, I thought that I would let him have it.

Q. What made you so trusting with a man like that that had deceived you before, had acted badly, forced your hand and then you take his word and hand over all you had in this mine?  A. Hoped against hope that he would land one of these propositions, and I would get out of it. I did not think he would do as he did in the Welsh Mine, completely absorbing the whole thing.

Q. Do you think it was a trick on his part, the pretence he was about to sell it?  A. Yes.

Q. A trick to get it into his hands?  A. That is my opinion now; he did the same thing in the Valveless Company too.

Q. What about the Big Vein Copper Company?  A. That was the stock John Tevis borrowed money on in regard to that Syracuse deal, Mr. Clarkson gave you an outline of that.

Q. Do you agree in his view as to what your motive was in trying to make that transaction?  A. Not altogether, nearly so, though; I will give you the transaction at Syracuse from my side. After this deal in New York, in which the stock of the Piano Company was exchanged for the bank stock, the Knabe's got from the Federal Life an option of purchase on which they paid $100,000 cash.

Q. The Federal Life? A. Paid Mr. Dexter and Mr. Hazlitt and others who controlled these stocks, they paid them $100,000 in cash; that $100,000 they transferred from the bank in New York to the Farmers Bank in Toronto, and I paid it over to them; therefore, I knew that the matter was genuine. After that they asked me to meet them in New York, and I met Mr. White, who was the Lieutenant-Governor of the State of New York, with them. He stated that the People's Mutual were in a decline and they would probably go out of existence; that a little bit of money would purchase the company; that they could re-insure all the risks in the Federal Life when they got it, and liquidate this People's Mutual leaving a balance of five or six hundred thousand dollars. Mr. White assured me that he had the sanction of the Insurance Department at Albany; he was the Lieutenant-Governor of the State; I came back to Syracuse with Mr. White and spent an evening in his house and discussed the whole matter, and it looked to me like a good business. The proposition was that we should purchase $150,000 of Syracuse Waterworks bonds. I agreed to that, to give them money—

Mr. Commissioner: Who held the Syracuse bonds? A. The People's Mutual Life. The whole thing was a scheme, as you will see after I get through. I said, "I have not got $150,000; I cannot spare it." "If you will bring down $150,000 of your currency we will have the First National Bank of Syracuse hold that currency until such a time as you are willing to redeem it." I sent $150,000 by express to Mr. White at Albany on the promise over the phone from Mr. White that the bonds would be sent to me by mail to reach me the same time the currency would reach Albany. I was out of town for a day or so just at that time that money was sent. I found out on my return that the securities had not reached here and I wired, or had the Express Company wire, to return the money to me, which came back. After the money was returned to me, through some leaky vessel in the Express Company, it got around that I was sending Farmers Bank money out of the country. That was the reason I took it down the second time. In the meantime, I cannot think of the man's name for a moment, but he came from Syracuse to see me and said there was some mistake made about it; I do not know whether it was Tevis or not. W. G. Hunt—the lawyer in the city—he had been down in Syracuse negotiating this deal; he came up to me and explained to me there was just a slip made and it was all right, to send it down again; and I thought to myself, "I will not send the money through the Express Company, I will take it down". Then Mr. Fitzgibbon and myself we packed $150,000 in a satchel and we took it down to Albany; we kept it there in the hotel over night. The next day Mr. White called on me and said he had to go to the funeral of Mr. Reins, and he would be home to-night, and that I had better put the $150,000 in the vault of the First National Bank until he returned that evening; and Mr. Fitzgibbon and myself went over and we put the satchel inside of the safety vault and they locked the door; we took no receipt for it; it was just locked, just set inside the door. The president of the bank was there and said everything would be all right and to come back in the evening and we would complete the transaction. We went in the evening, Mr. White and the president of the First National Bank, I cannot remember his name—it does not matter—and Mr. Tevis and Mr. Hunt, the lawyer, and one or two others were there; they said they had difficulty in getting these securities; they wanted me to leave the money on deposit with the First National Bank on the promise of their sending them on afterwards, which I refused to do. Then, when we were about to leave, they suggested I should give them an informal deposit receipt, and we there and then entered into an agreement that this deposit receipt would not be effective until the 15th of January following—that was in December, 1909—when they were to supply these securities and subscribe for the same amount of stock in the Farmers Bank, one to offset the other. I left that behind, brought the agreement with me—I think you have the agreement—and brought home the money. Immediately my back was turned they took this deposit receipt and put it into the till of the Mutual Life and took out the money and distributed it among themselves. The first I heard of the matter was that the Insurance Department was taking action to upset the transaction and they came over here and threatened suit against the bank unless we paid this deposit receipt. Mr. G. H. Watson acted for me and went into the whole details of it and said we were not liable and we refused to pay it, and they never brought any suit against us, but the Insurance Department ordered them to refund that money.

Mr. Hodgins: The Insurance Department over there. A. The Insurance Department at Albany, and they got it all back down to Tevis's.

Q. What do you think the plot was? A. To beat the Farmers Bank out of $15,000? A. Yes; then it was a question of our getting our deposit receipt back; and getting out of the affair by loaning Tevis $15,000.

Q. What do you think the plot was? A. To beat the Farmers Bank out of $150,000, If I had left that money there we would never have seen a dollar of it.

Mr. Hodgins: Was any commission paid on that transaction to any one? Not to me.

Q. Any one connected with the bank? A. Yes, I believe there was.

Q. To whom? A. Mr. Fitzgibbon, I believe, got $1,000.

Q. What was that for? A. I could not tell you; he will have to explain that himself; I found it out afterwards.

Q. Paid by whom? A. It was paid—by M. G. Hunt, the lawyer.

Q. What was the most profitable period in this bank? A. The most profitable period would be in 1907, I think, we were in the best position.

Q. That was just about a year after it started? A. Yes.

The Commission adjourned at 4 p.m. to 11 a.m. to-morrow.

Toronto, May 30th, 1912.

The Commission resumed at 11 a.m. at Osgoode Hall.

Mr. Hodgins: There are some matters you want to speak about? A. I want to mention one thing; there are some newspaper reports which seem to indicate that I stated that I regarded it as improbable that the Keeley Mine would turn out to be worth anything. I do not remember ever having made such a statement, as it was apart from my opinion. I have drafted a memorandum if I may read it, to make the matter clear. It is reported in some of the papers that I expressed a doubt as to the Keeley Mine turning out to have any realizable value whatsoever. I do not remember giving any such evidence, as it does not accord with my opinion; but, if any such suggestion could have been drawn from what I said, it was corrected by the Commissioner, when Mr. Travers was giving evidence. I did say that I was not prepared to make any statement as to what the property would ultimately produce, for the simple reason that neither I nor any other person can do so, and I further said that I do not desire to advise shareholders or depositors who have lost heavily by the failure of the bank, and can ill afford to risk more, as to whether they shall or shall not advance money to develop the property.
The Keeley Mine is well situated at South Lorraine, with silver-bearing properties on different sides of it. A considerable amount of development work was done on the property, and the records of the company indicate that approximately $20,000 ore was taken out during such development. At the present time, there are no ore bodies in sight, but the opinion is held by experienced engineers and miners that development ought to disclose further ore bodies. It is difficult at this time to sell any undeveloped silver property for a large sum of money, and the only way in which the creditors of the Farmers Bank can expect to recover any reasonable amount of the property is by dealing with it upon such terms as will permit a purchaser to develop it at his own expense, with the right to purchase it at a reasonable figure, if after development, the results obtained warrant him in doing so. In negotiations which are pending along these lines, I have insisted that the Farmers Bank shall have the right to retain an interest in the property, so that in event of it turning out to be as valuable as Mr. Travers believes, the creditors and shareholders of the Farmers Bank may participate in the benefits.

At present time, litigation is pending between myself and the Trusts & Guarantee Company, with regard to certain securities held by them. If they are successful in the suit, the disposition of the Keeley Mine will be under the sole control of the Court, and myself. On the other hand, if the estate is successful in the litigation, the Trusts & Guarantee Company will have to look to the Keeley Mine to recover on securities held against advances made. Under these conditions, if creditors and shareholders feel disposed to advance money for development, they will have to deal with this situation. The Trusts & Guarantee Company has rendered every assistance in dealing with the property as so to conserve as much as possible to creditors and shareholders, and allow a disposition of the property to the best advantage.

There are a couple of other matters I would like to mention. In discussing yesterday as to the causes of the failure of the Bank, I said nothing about the directors, but I regard the directorate which the Farmers Bank had as incapable of looking after the affairs of a Financial Institution.

Q. You mean from start to finish? A. I won't say everybody on the Board, but there were many on the Board from time to time that had no experience in financial matters and were not qualified to look into the affairs of a financial institution. I told them that at the time of the failure. Another thing I want to say is that the liquidation of the Bank will probably be long drawn out from the character of the assets, and the expense of liquidating will be very heavy proportionately.

Q. Why should it be particularly heavy? A. Because I do not think there are two accounts out of five in that Bank that we have not had to litigate over and deal with through the Solicitors. There are very very few securities taken by the Bank that were taken properly.

Q. Whose fault would that be? A. I think probably Mr. Travers was experienced enough to take proper securities, but I do not think his staff was, and they neglected to take securities which an ordinary Banker would have taken, and if taken would have saved the bank many thousands of dollars. Another thing that was said was this, that I had instructed the Solicitors to issue a writ against the Trusts & Guarantee Company for interest upon that circulation deposit. I do not think I said that. I never gave any instructions to issue a writ. I said I had referred the matter to the Solicitors, and we were taking it up with the Trusts & Guarantee Company. That is the condition.

Mr. Commissioner: What do you say about the Provisional Board, its capacity to inaugurate a successful Bank? A. Well, Sir.—

Q. What were their occupations? A. One was a promoter, a couple of them were promoters.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Name them? A. Lown was a lawyer; Smith is a promoter,—and I think it is fair to say we are winding up another financial institution where exactly the same condition has obtained, the Monarch Bank where two-thirds of the money received went away in commissions; it did not get a certificate.

Q. Who was Mr. Lown? A. He was a Solicitor.

Q. Practicing where? A. I never heard of him before this bank matter: I understand Toronto.

Q. He was the President, was he not? A. Lown was the Chairman of the Board.

Q. Who were the others? A. There was Smith; he is a Bank promoter.

Q. Did you mean he was connected with the Monarch too? A. He was connected with the Monarch Bank.

Q. Gallagher? A. He was a merchant I think; I don’t know anything about Gallagher, he is dead. Watson was a brewer, and Fraser, the Archaeologist, and Dr. Ferguson was a physician. Dr. Ferguson has had more experience than any of them in financial matters.

Mr. Hodgins: You would not expect the Board of Directors to have anything to do with managing a bank? A. Not managing, but directing the policy of the bank and supervising loans. That is all I wanted to say. I just want to correct those points.

Q. I see it stated in one of the morning papers that the “World” indebtedness was paid off, is that so? A. The “World” indebtedness was paid off yesterday.

Q. So that there is no loss in that account at all? A. No, I did not look for a loss.

Q. But that is now disposed of entirely? A. Yes.

W. R. TRAVERS, Examination continued:

Mr. Hodgins: There is something here to indicate an effort was made by Mr. Greenwood to get a deposit from Mr. Stevenson who I think was Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters? A. Yes, I think he tried to get a deposit for me at one time.

Q. Was that effort successful? A. Yes, they made a deposit with us, or rather the Union Trust Company who are allied with them made a deposit with us.

Q. He had some connection with that too, what year was that, 1907 or 1908? A. I could not speak positively on that, the books would have to show that.

Q. I asked you the reason for lending the “World” money; had they an account with your bank, an ordinary banking account, before you commenced to lend or discount for them? A. No, I don’t think they had.

Q. How about your relations with the “World”? were you friendly with Mr. Greenwood and Mr. Maclean? A. I was friendly with Mr. Greenwood. I did not know Mr. Maclean.

Q. Had you known Mr. Greenwood long? A. I don’t remember how long I had known him, it seems to me it was some time.

Q. Before you commenced to deal with him financially? A. Yes, I knew him before that.

Q. What was the character of the dealing, was it an ordinary account on which they overdrew? A. No, I discounted their note, the first I remember. I think all the transactions were on notes.

Q. What connection had the money you lent him with the money he got on deposit? A. Simply in order that my reserve fund was not depleted. He obtained deposits for me.
Q. Did he obtain any other deposits except the two that were mentioned, the Provincial Treasurer and the Union Trust? A. I cannot remember now any others; he was always doing what he could for me.

Q. Was there any improper pressure brought to bear upon you to lend him money? A. No, I cannot say there was.

Q. From beginning to end? A. No, I am quite sure there was no improper pressure brought to bear upon me.

Q. Was the account one of the large accounts in the bank? A. It ran up into large figures.

Q. What do you call large figures? A. I think it was about $16,000 when the failure came.

Q. Had you securities for that? A. We had the endorsement of Mr. Maclean and Mrs. Maclean, if I remember right.

Q. What do you say as to their sufficiency? A. I thought Mrs. Maclean was quite good for it at the time.

Q. Did you deal wholly with Mr. Greenwood? A. Yes, I should say I did, but adding to that that Mr. Maclean accompanied him very frequently.

Q. I find a copy of a letter addressed to the Provincial Treasurer here which I would like you to tell me if that was sent; it is only a copy? A. Yes, I remember writing that; I should say that letter was sent.

Q. What is the date of that letter? A. June 18th, 1908.

EXHIBIT 68: Copy of letter dated June 18th, 1908, to Hon. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, Toronto.

Q. I find that the first deposit in your bank was on May 20th, 1907; just look at those two letters which are undated except that they are both in June; it does not say what year. I want to see if they are the same year (referring to letters subsequently filed as Exhibit 69)? A. I could not swear positively what year, but I am of the impression that it is a year later than that other letter, than June, 1908. If you have the file this was taken off it would probably show.

Q. Those letters are from Mr. Greenwood, and they speak of meeting Colonel Matheson on the 20th and 21st June, and they ask you for a copy of the sections of the Bank Act relating to Government deposits. You see we have not got the conclusion of that account; we have its beginning on May 20th, 1907, and the issue of the first deposit receipt on June 14th, 1907; does that throw any light on the date of those letters? A. No, I cannot connect that letter with the original deposits of the Provincial Treasurer.

Q. Did you get any answer to that letter to the Provincial Treasurer that you wrote? A. My recollection is I did, but no such letter I believe can be found on the files.

Q. I have seen no such letter; I found that copy, but I did not find any letter; what is your recollection about it? A. My recollection is that the Provincial Treasurer wrote me that he had made no promises to anybody about making deposits with the bank, or words to that effect.

Q. Did he, after that letter, make any deposits such as you requested? A. I could not say that positively whether he did or not.

Q. At June 18th, 1908, the $10,000 deposit receipt had been given on June 14th, 1907, and on May 13th, 1908, the deposit receipt for $15,000, and May 19th another deposit receipt for $10,000, were those the only three deposit receipts issued? A. Yes, and since then, according to the books, as far as we have them, down to the 31st December, 1908, it appears there were some deposits and withdrawals, leaving at the end of December, 1908, a credit balance of $2,165.60. The total claim of the Provincial Government at the date of the failure—

MR. COMMISSIONER: We got that yesterday.

MR. HODGINS: It was based upon those two last deposit receipts? A. I would say so, yes.
Mr. Commissioner: Is the ledger after this missing?
Mr. Hodgins: Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: Where is the ledger before this?
Mr. Hodgins: That is transferred from cash book.

Mr. Commissioner: According to this, the account began 20th May, 1907.
Mr. Hodgins: Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: Is it not probable, looking at this ledger, that this is 1907 (the letters of 20th and 21st June, Exhibit 69)? A. Looking at the liability ledger of the Toronto Branch, it would appear that the first transaction with the World newspaper was in 1908, January, 1908, so that I could hardly connect the two.

Mr. Hodgins: That is the first time you commenced to lend to the World?
A. Yes, that would be the first.

Mr. Commissioner: That means that the account of deposits from the Provincial Government had been running for a year before that? A. It would appear that the bank had been in business a year before any advances were made.
Q. And a deposit receipt had issued? A. That the deposit receipt had been issued to the Provincial Treasurer a year before that.

Mr. Hodgins: That is the first $10,000 receipt? A. That is the first transaction.

Q. The first transaction with the "World" Newspaper Company was January 10th, 1908; what is that, a discount? A. A loan of $200.00. There is another loan in January of $300.00.
Q. That is December; would that be December 31st, 1907? A. Possibly it may be.
Q. That "World Newspaper Company, F. W. Stair, $300.00," appears to be out of its place there? A. Yes.
Q. You carry it forward from December to some time in January? A. Yes, but there is some balance carried forward showing this was the starting of the account, unless this was an odd one that was outstanding that they picked up in the account in opening.
Q. It would not be the 31st December, 1908? A. No, it must be 1907.
Q. It appears to have gone on pretty regularly from that on, January, 1908. Is there any other book you can look through to verify what appears by this that that is the beginning of the account? A. No, that is the only book I could put my hand on now that would show that. If that had been carried forward it would appear in the balance. You will find it carried over here; there is the balance; that is carried down from here. There is the account carried forward, balance $2,351.00; as there is no balance brought forward there, I take for granted that is the commencing of the account.
Q. What is the meaning of this World Newspaper Company, page 381, sundry account? A. That indicates each separate account that went in there.
Q. What was that page you looked at? A. 361 and 362.
Q. That is the one you say is the beginning of it? A. Yes; I would have to modify that now by saying that these odd amounts were brought over.
Q. That is December 31st, 1907? A. Yes.

Q. Look at pages 383 and 384, compare those first; take those first items and look at those four items down to December 31st, and, reading from 361, the first is January 10th, World Newspaper, $200.00; the next is East & Company, January 13th, and the next the 21st, Davidson Morrison twice, and then December 31st, World Newspaper, F. W. Stair? A. Those are the same ones transferred.
Q. Then 367, that is forward—? A. From 362.
Q. That is still later in date then? A. Yes.
Q. Then from here it goes on in the regular order apparently? A. Yes.
WILLIAM H. GREENWOOD, Sworn, Examined by—

MR. HODGINS: What is your occupation? A. Journalist.
Q. Are you connected with the "World" newspaper? A. Not now.
Q. You were, were you? A. I left about 1st December, last year.
Q. What was your position in 1907 with the "World"? A. I was managing editor, or managing director, of the paper.
Q. When did you commence to deal with the Farmers Bank or Mr. Travers in connection with loans and discounts? A. I think it was early in 1907.
Q. The books Mr. Travers pointed to this morning do not indicate that? A. I think it was before a deposit was asked for from the Ontario Government for the Farmers Bank; we were discounting some papers through the Farmers Bank at that time.
Q. Would it have taken the form that it certainly did in the books that Mr. Travers pointed to, a pretty continuous, active, almost daily account? A. I rather think so, yes.
Q. 1907? A. I had in my mind that we had been doing business with the Farmers Bank before I went to the Ontario Government and solicited a deposit.
Q. I want to get your statement as to when you commenced to deal with the Farmers Bank?
MR. COMMISSIONER: Were there notes given, and if so, if they have a bill book, that would show it.
MR. HODGINS: What was the character of the account? A. It was a discount account, customers' notes; advertising account.
Q. What was your regular bank, who did you do business with? A. The Sterling Bank.
Q. During all this time did you continue to do business with the Sterling Bank as well as the Farmers? A. Yes.
Q. Did the Farmers get all the business or merely your odd business? A. Odd business.
Q. Until when? A. I think until the bank closed.
Q. Did you begin in that way discounting odd customers' notes? A. I think that was the way we began getting advertising accounts.
Q. And later on you got a direct loan? A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember in connection with the account any matter that had to do with Mr. Stair? A. I remember Mr. Stair gave us a note for his advertising account which we had discounted.
Q. Would that be the beginning of the account; do you remember that as the starting point? A. I cannot fix that as the starting point. I fancy the cashier of the World was getting some of those small notes discounted where he could get them discounted.
Q. That was entered up on December 31st, 1907; it is said to be transferred from Stair's account, perhaps that will throw some light on it. On what basis were the notes discounted originally? A. On a business basis.
Q. Any inducement held out to Travers to lend the money? A. I don't think there was.
Q. You would know? A. I would know.
Q. You did practically the entire business? A. Yes.
Q. Were any suggestions made he would get into trouble if he did not? A. No.
Q. Quite sure of that? A. Certain, sir.
Q. Did you interest yourself in getting deposits for the Farmers Bank? A. Yes.
Q. Why? A. We wanted to get a large loan from the Farmers Bank to assist us in our financing of the Toronto World and Mr. Travers said he had just enough money to take care of his present customers and he could not add any other customers, and he had not any more money, and deposits were necessary to carry on the business; and I said I would see what I could do to get deposits for the bank. I looked up the monthly Government Statement regarding the Farmers Bank and I saw it was in a good, healthy condition; it was a young bank, it was true, but every month that I looked at the Government Statement it showed the bank was in good shape.

Q. Did you look at the Government Statement every month? A. I had to look at the Government Statement every month in my business as a newspaper man.

Q. Did he refuse to do any business with you till you got a deposit, or did you begin before you got a deposit to do business with them? A. I think we were doing business with him before we got the deposit; I am pretty sure we were.

Q. What was the first deposit you got; who from? A. The first deposit, I saw Colonel Matheson in regard to putting a deposit in the Farmers Bank.

Q. That was the first one? A. That is the only one I remember.

Q. You remember interesting yourself with Mr. Stevenson? A. Yes, I thought you were referring particularly to the Government.

Q. I am referring to any deposits you induced? A. Yes.

Q. Which was the first, the Ontario Government or Stevenson? A. The Ontario Government first.

Q. Can you at all identify the date of these two letters (Exhibit 69), because like every newspaper man, you are as economical of writing as you can be? A. This first one I cannot fix a date on it; it was during my negotiations with Colonel Matheson trying to get him to put a deposit with the Farmers Bank.

Q. Was it in connection with your earliest negotiations with him? A. I think so.

Q. Did you go to Colonel Matheson more than once to get deposits? A. I rather think so.

Q. Having got one did not satisfy you? A. That was not it, it required several times to get the one.

Q. Were your efforts confined merely to getting one deposit? A. Later I tried to get further deposits from the Ontario Government.

Q. With what success? A. I don't think I had any success.

Q. What was the amount of the deposit that you succeeded in persuading? A. $10,000.

Q. Do you remember when that was? A. I think that was in May, 1907.

Q. Those letters are written in June, clearly? A. It may have been in June then; May or June; I cannot fix a date about when the deposit did come.

Q. It is curious, because the first deposit receipt was issued on the 14th June? A. This (letter of 21st June) looks as if this was during my soliciting campaign with the Colonel to get the deposit placed. I was trying hard to get an argument before him why he might see his way clear to put a deposit in the Farmers Bank.

Q. What was the argument? A. The statement in the Bank Act regarding Government deposits; I think they had a special lien on the assets of the bank; that was one argument. My other argument was the monthly Government statement from Ottawa showing the bank was in good condition.

Q. Did you urge this on Colonel Matheson? A. Yes.

Q. Had you any knowledge of the state of the bank's affairs at that time other than what you had gathered from the monthly return? A. Absolutely none.

Q. Are those dates of June, whatever year they may be, correct on those letters? A. Yes.
Q. Because it is funny that in neither of those years was any deposit receipt issued after June—what is the date of those letters? A. June 20th and 21st.

Q. This may have been in connection with other efforts you made which you described as unsuccessful? A. With the Colonel?

Q. Yes? A. I think this was part of my first campaign as I remember.

Q. The first deposit receipt is dated June 14th, 1907, for $10,000; you think that was your first effort? A. I think so.

Q. The deposits commenced to reach the bank on the 20th May, 1907, and were cancelled in a deposit receipt on the 14th June, so that if those dates are right and the year is 1907, it would certainly be after that? A. It looks that way.

Q. Supposing those are the next year, 1908, the two deposit receipts were issued on May 13th and May 19th, respectively; so that if that is 1908 that was after those? A. Yes, June comes after May, certainly.

Q. Those are obvious facts; it is only with a view of ascertaining the true year? A. I wish I could remember that.

Q. You cannot throw any further light? A. No, I cannot.

Q. And you never got any more than $10,000 deposit from Colonel Matheson? A. I think that was all from the Colonel.

Q. Did you disclose to him at all that your object was to get a loan? A. I may have done that, because I was very frank; there was not any argument that I left unsaid, sir, in trying to get the deposit, because we needed the money on the World; we had good paper, our assets were alright, but it was hard for the Toronto World to borrow money.

Q. Did anyone else connected with the World see Colonel Matheson other than yourself in connection with that deposit? A. I think not; I think I was the only one that saw the Colonel.

MR. COMMISSIONER: It is manifest from the date of that letter, and from the dates of these deposits in the book that that letter could not have referred to the $10,000 deposit, don’t you see that? A. Yes, it must be so, because the deposit was put in in May.

Q. What does that lead you to conclude? A. That I was possibly trying to get another loan, another deposit, rather.

Q. And did not succeed? A. Yes.

EXHIBIT 69: Two letters dated June 20th and June 21st, above referred to, from W. H. Greenwood to Mr. Travers.

MR. HODGINS: Perhaps you could ascertain the date when you first commenced to deal with the bank; who was the treasurer then? A. Mr. Remion, the present secretary-treasurer, would know.

HONORABLE A. J. MATHESON, Sworn, Examined by—

MR. HODGINS: You are Provincial Treasurer of Ontario? A. Yes.

Q. And you were Provincial Treasurer in 1907 and 1908? A. Yes.

Q. There is a deposit account which began with the Farmers Bank on the 20th May, 1907, which in June was transformed into a deposit receipt; how did that come to be made in the Farmers Bank? A. I am speaking entirely from recollection, but my recollection is that Mr. Greenwood is mistaken about asking me at that time; the first time he asked me was the next year, 1908, and my recollection is that Dr. Beattie Nesbitt met me in the corridor one day and complained against our discriminating against the Farmers Bank and asked me to make a deposit—we keep a current account and a special deposit account—on the 16th May, was it?
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. May 20th it began, 1907? A. The 16th May, 1907, according to our books.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: That may be so, because it is transferred from the cash book? A. And we went on depositing their own cheques and also miscellaneous cheques and cash, post office orders, express orders, and currency, until the 12th June a cheque was made out for $10,000 to be transferred to special deposit, and it was made on the 13th—I see from the evidence here that the deposit receipt was actually made on the 14th—and it was as a result of Dr. Nesbitt, who was then president of the bank, asking me. Then from that on we continued to deposit their own cheques in the Farmers Bank, cheques on the Farmers Bank in the Farmers Bank.

Q. The account appears to run on, nothing deposited between June and October, and January, 1908, there are some sums deposited? A. At the end of the financial year we always cash all deposit receipts in order to get the interest.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: There is no deposit until the 21st April?

Mr. HODGINS: Then in May, 1908, there were two other deposit receipts issued to you, May 13th and May 19th, for $15,000 and $10,000 respectively? A. Yes.

Q. How were those got? A. I have been trying to recollect about those; I have nothing to go by except my memory; I cannot remember them. I am certain Dr. Beattie Nesbitt did not ask me in 1908, not directly, not personally; that is my memory; he might have asked me through others.

Q. Did anything occur between you and Dr. Beattie Nesbitt other than you have told us in connection with the first account? A. Nothing that I remember; I only remember meeting him one day in the corridor and speaking to him.

Q. Had you any reason to believe the Farmers Bank was not in good condition? A. No, I studied their returns and I thought it was perfectly safe, otherwise I would not have made any deposit.

Q. Did you know anything about the Keeley Mine at that time? A. No, I never heard of the Keeley Mine until the bank failed. I knew Dr. Beattie Nesbitt was in some mining speculation up North, because I met him up there and was talking with him.

Q. Would this statement be correct or incorrect, speaking of certain correspondence which was put in this morning, "These facts gathered together would seem to indicate that the funds that enabled Dr. Beattie Nesbitt to go into the Keeley Mine speculation and bring the bank to its ruin were actually obtained from the Treasurer of Ontario through the influence of the managing director of the World or some other person or persons unknown"? A. I have been trying to recall who spoke to me about that time; I cannot remember.

Q. You never heard about the Keeley Mine till after the failure? A. No, I never heard of the Keeley Mine till after the bank failed, except that I was told that Dr. Beattie Nesbitt was in some mining speculation up North. Advances were not made with any view of getting a loan made to Dr. Beattie Nesbitt.

Q. Had they any connection, this speculation and this deposit? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Would you just see whether you got that letter which has been put in, dated 18th June, 1908 (Exhibit 68)? A. I never got this letter and never answered it, and in this he asks for $10,000 further, and instead of giving him $10,000 further the next change in the deposit was to withdraw $10,000.

Q. That letter appears on the files of the bank, and was handed to me by the detectives? A. I am satisfied from my memory, I did not get it and I am satisfied from the nature of it if I had got it we would at once have withdrawn all deposits from the Farmers Bank.

Q. Was there any influence by some person, other than the managing director of the World, whose name was not mentioned? A. Several people spoke to me about advances to the Farmers Bank; in fact, for all the banks with perhaps one or two exceptions, every bank in Toronto—we keep accounts in all the banks in Toronto, and with perhaps one or two exceptions the friends of every bank have asked for deposits in a legitimate way.

Q. Was there anything to differentiate this from those other applications? A. No; I heard a good deal of gossip about the standing of the Farmers Bank, but I was very much influenced by the “Canada Gazette” return, and if I had not thought it perfectly safe, they would not have had anything.

Mr. Commissioner: You said that when Dr. Nesbitt spoke to you he said you were discriminating against the Farmers Bank; perhaps you would elaborate that; what does that mean? A. That the other banks showed provincial deposits and they did not, and it hurt them with other people in getting deposits, and they paid us taxes, collected our cheques, paid our cheques at par; all these banks pay our cheques at par.

Q. They thought that was a discrimination against the bank? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: You say at the end of the financial year you always cash deposit receipts; when did the financial year end in 1907? A. That year I think it was the 31st December. It is the 31st October now, and has been for two or three years.

Q. Perhaps I should ask you further in regard to Mr. Greenwood’s evidence; do you recall his interview with you? A. He bothered the life out of me, saw me a dozen times, and those letters were not written to me, they were written to the bank, but they are 1908, I believe, because I am satisfied that he had nothing to do with the first deposit made in May, 1908, and he did not get any further advance at that time.

Q. You heard his evidence as to what statement he made to you; how does your recollection accord with that? A. As far as I remember, it is so long ago, it is four of five years ago, I would not like to contradict it, except as to the one point, 1907; I think he is mistaken in that.

WILLIAM H. GREENWOOD, Recalled:—

Mr. Hodgins: Q. You want to make a further statement, I think? A. It has been suggested in the Globe this morning that apparently Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and I were the two people who went up to the Ontario Government for certain deposits; I do not know anything about what Dr. Beattie Nesbitt did with the Ontario Government. I was only working for the Toronto World and I wanted to get a loan from the Farmers Bank in order to assist us in financing the Toronto World on legitimate security. I do not know a solitary thing of what Dr. Beattie Nesbitt may have done in regard to getting deposits.

Mr. Commissioner: Did Beattie Nesbitt go with you at any time? A. Never.

ALFRED GORDON TRAVERS, Sworn, Examined by:—

Mr. Hodgins: Q. You are a son of Mr. W. R. Travers? A. Yes.
Q. And the reason I called you was in connection with a box which I wanted to trace up? A. Yes.
Q. That was said to have gone to your father’s house at the failure of the bank; there is a box produced here which has been in the custody of the detectives, so they tell me, almost ever since; will you just say if that box went up to your house? A. I think that is the box, sir.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Did you ever open it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you take anything out of it? A. To the best of my recollection, I only took one article out of it, which was a letter my father asked me to get for him.

Q. Was that letter to or from anybody whose name has been mentioned in the inquiry? A. I do not just remember whether it has been mentioned or not; I think the letter was given to Inspector Duncan.

Q. By you? A. Yes, he wanted it.

Q. Do you remember whom it was to? A. I think it was a letter to my father.

Q. From whom? A. From Mr. Warren.

Q. I think I have that letter; that was the only thing that was taken out? A. To the best of my recollection that was all I took out.

Q. What else was there in the box, any cheques? A. I am not sure whether there were cheques or not; I think there were some cheques.

Q. Were any of those moved? A. I do not know.

Q. By you? A. No, sir.

Q. The box arrived at your father's house, didn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before the detectives got it? A. Yes.

Q. And was there for how long? A. I think a couple of months.

Q. Who had the key of it? A. The keys were lost.

Q. Who was living in the house who would have access to the box if they could open it? A. I was.

Q. Any one else? A. The servants; that was all.

Q. You were living alone in the house? A. Yes.

Q. During the whole time? A. My brother was there for a few days, that was all; he was visiting here and he stayed with me a few days at the house.

Q. Where is your brother living? A. In Saskatoon now.

Q. Had any one else in the house access to the box, or did any one come in and take anything out of it to your knowledge? A. No, sir.

Q. Was Mrs. Travers living there? A. She was here for a few days when we moved, when we left the house.

Q. Where was the box kept? A. It was in the den.

Q. You said the keys were lost—when it got there or became lost afterwards? A. They were lost afterwards, I think, because, I am not quite clear on that, but I think Inspector Duncan was unable to open it and asked me where the keys were and I could not find them.

Q. Had the keys come up when the box came originally? A. I cannot say, sir.

Q. Where did the box come from? A. From my office.

Q. Where did it come from to your office? A. It was sent up to my office.

Q. From the bank or from Mr. Owens' office? A. I presume it came from the bank, I do not know.

Q. How long did it remain in your office? A. I think possibly a couple of days.

Q. We are anxious to find certain cheques and particularly cheques that are supposed to have disappeared; do you know anything about them? A. No, sir.

Q. You removed none of them from the box? A. No, sir.

Mr. Commissioner: How did you get the letter out of the box if you had not any key? A. I must have had the key at that time.

Q. Then the keys must have been there and must have been lost—how long after the box came there was it you picked the letter out? A. I cannot say exactly, it may have been two or three weeks or a month; it was little time after I think.

Q. And after that the keys somehow got lost or mislaid?    A. Yes.
Q. Was the box in such a way that anybody could have access to it before the keys were lost to it?    A. I do not think so.
Q. Who carried the keys?    A. I had the keys for some time.
Q. Until they were lost, you had them?    A. I think I did.

Mr. Hodgins: Q. Did the Inspector get keys made or were they found again?
A. I am not quite sure, I think they broke the box open but I would not be sure.

W. R. TRAVERS, Examination continued:

Mr. Hodgins: Q. You remember MacCorquodale gave his evidence here in connection with the payment by Lindsay of the $5,000?    A. Yes.
Q. I find a letter here of August 29th, 1906; I want to know if that letter to him was sent?    A. I think so.
Q. You see that is dated August, 1906; did he act for the Bank after that or act for you in selling stock after that?    A. He was in and out of the bank there all the time; he was connected with the provisional directors before I took hold of it at all.
Q. After this letter of yours in August, 1906, which tells him to keep out of the office, you would not have anything more to do with him—A. Yes, I remember this.
Q. Had he anything to do with the Bank or selling stock?    A. Yes, I think he was in and out of there after that.
Q. Notwithstanding that you asked him to cease doing any further business for the Farmers Bank in August, 1906?    A. Yes, I had not the say; the Provisional Board—yes, I had the say then—I think he did continue.
Q. Were the relations friendly?    A. He was a great friend of Mr. Lown, and Mr. Lown was with me nearly all the time.

EXHIBIT 70: Letter from Mr. Travers to D. S. MacCorquodale, dated August 29th, 1906.

Q. There is a letter on the 19th October, 1906, which I confess I cannot understand. It is to the Manager of the Bank of Montreal, authorizing him to retain $20,000 out of the money when it comes back from the Government; was that letter ever sent?    A. My recollection is that it was. Mr. Braithwaite was the Manager of the Bank of Montreal here, and he was also the Manager of the Bank of Montreal in Hamilton when I was there, and he was speculating in Bucket Shop and got behind and I helped him out of it and I thought he would help me out of it and that is the reason I asked him to lend me $20,000?
Q. He did not lend it to you?    A. No, for some reason or other he backed down.
Q. Was that letter intended to enable his bank, if they lent you the money, to get it back out of the Fund?    A. Yes, that is so.
Q. It never became effective?    A. No, he backed out of it before the loan was made.

EXHIBIT 71: Letter dated 19th October, 1906, from Mr. Travers to the Manager of the Bank of Montreal, Toronto.

Q. Is this the letter you speak of as having been written to the Finance Department, and was it sent?    (Letter dated January 12th, 1907).    A. I would say yes. That appears to me to be the letter I wrote that I spoke of in my evidence before.

EXHIBIT 72: Letter, January 12th, 1907, from Mr. Travers to the Minister of Finance.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

WITNESS: That document I spoke about yesterday as having been copied into these minutes, I have since spoken to Mr. Hartley Dewart and he said he had it in his hands in the Police Court.

MR. COMMISSIONER: That is the second agreement about commissions? A. The third, 15%.

Q. There was the first agreement and then a memorandum on the back of it, and then you say one providing for 15%, a third one? A. Yes. I notice Mr. Shaver is to give evidence; he really ought to see that in order to swear to these minutes.

Q. Does Mr. Dewart remember where he saw it? A. Yes, he thinks he can locate it.

Q. Can find it? A. Yes, he thinks so, and he said he would try.

MR. HODGINS: In dealing with Urquhart, Urquhart & MacGregor you wrote them on December 7th, 1906, in reference to their account and you said “You know, of course, as well as I can tell you, that we have been at very great expense, particularly so through the interference of William Laidlaw”; and Mr. Urquhart appears to have replied that the fact that you were put to large expense by other people is no reason why they should not be paid their reasonable charges; what expenses did you refer to when you said you had been put to very great expense? A. We had to pay Mr. Watson, K.C., $500 for defending that.

Q. The vouchers do not show that? A. I think they do. •

Q. It shows $250? A. Was not $250 paid later?

Q. No? A. My recollection is we paid him $500.

Q. Any one else that you referred to? A. No, I do not know—ordinary expenses in connection with it, I could not say any particular.

Q. There is a cheque here of Beattie Nesbitt's in your favor dated May 15th, 1907, which is for $3,000; what is that for? A. The News newspaper if I remember rightly, had a judgment against him for about that amount and they came in to seize the stock of the bank in his name, and I advanced him the money at that time to pay it off, and he paid it back to me later on; that is my recollection of it.

Q. That is a cheque from Beattie Nesbitt to you, is that just payment back? A. That is the payment back.

Q. Who was your Inspector? A. Mr. Fitzgibbon was practically the Inspector.

Q. I thought Fitzgibbon was the Accountant? A. He was Chief Accountant and Chief Inspector.

Q. How often did he inspect the branches? A. I am sorry to say not very often; he went out whenever I asked him to go.

Q. There was no regular inspection? A. We had a young fellow under him named Spink who went out to the branches around and inspected them pretty regularly.

Q. Who inspected the Head Office? A. Mr. Fitzgibbon was supposed to inspect that. Do you mean the Head Office or the Toronto Branch?

Q. I mean the Head Office in Toronto? A. The Head Office was inspected by the local Manager of the Toronto Branch and the Toronto Branch was inspected by Mr. Fitzgibbon.

Q. Who was the local Manager of the Toronto Branch? A. I do not remember who was at that time; we had so many.

Q. How was it the local Manager of the Toronto Branch did not discover any of these charges that were being made in the bank books improperly? A. I could not answer for him.

Q. Did you show him anything? A. I certainly did not.

Q. Is it possible to mislead an Inspector if the Bank Manager wishes to do so? A. It was not possible to mislead Mr. Fitzgibbon making those entries.
Q. He knew all about them and helped to make them? A. Yes, and helped to make them.

Q. He must have connived with you to do it? A. I heard his evidence; he said he had to obey my order.

Q. His inspection of that would not be worth mentioning? A. Certainly not.

Q. To what extent was the inspection by the local Manager effective? A. He would simply take the vouchers and figures in the book and check them off and compare them; he would not go into the history of any particular entries; oh, it was perfunctory, that was all.

Q. Apart from that there was no real inspection by any officer? A. No, sir.

Q. You had no separate Inspector with nothing else to do? A. No.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What safeguard had the public, those that were creditors of this bank, depositing in it, against what happened? A. None whatever, under the existing conditions of the Bank Act.

Q. What would be the objections, if any, to some means being provided by which the Government could intervene and stop the operations of a bank that was found to be doing as this bank did? A. Undoubtedly they could.

Q. That is the American system, is it not? A. The American system they have a bank Examiner that is appointed by the Government at Washington whose duty is to drop in at irregular times on those various banks and check them up, so to speak.

Q. He has power to close the doors? A. Yes. The same system in a different way could be inaugurated here. My idea was, if you desire me to say so, that there should be a separate department in the Finance Department and a competent banker placed in charge of that whose duty would be to not only check the returns of the bank, but also the circulation. It would be a very easy matter for a competent banker to go into the Head Office of any bank and to form an idea as to the standing of that bank. The whole business of a bank really is conducted in the head office; the branches are merely arteries for bringing in deposits; the loans at branches are always, you might say, good; the losses are seldom made at the branches.

Q. What strikes one in this case is that even if it had been known what had been going on, unless some shareholder or creditor took action to wind-up the bank, apparently there was no provision in the law to stop it? A. None whatever that I could see. As I was saying yesterday, I think the circulation of a bank should be founded upon their reserves; a bank should be able to circulate bills to the extent of their reserve, and that reserve should be in control of the Government, because really the reserve they are earning interest on is like free deposits.

W. J. LINDSAY, Recalled:—

MR. HODGINS: Q. Have you found out, and are you in a position to tell me now anything about that $3,000 deposited to your wife's credit; you said you owed her money or something of that kind and I asked you to ascertain a little more definitely; have you done so? A. You have the cheques here, I understand.

Q. I am asking you why the money was paid to her? A. I told you I owed it to her.

Q. You could not tell me very much as to how the debt arose, though; I want you to state that? A. I borrowed it from her some time ago.
Q. How long before you paid it back? A. I borrow money from her quite frequently.

Q. I am speaking of something that happened in 1906? A. I may have had it a year and may have had it two years.

Q. Have you no recollection of how you came to borrow it? A. No.

Q. What amount had you borrowed? A. I owed her a very much larger sum than that.

Q. Is your wife a wealthy woman? A. I think this is hardly fair to bring my wife into this thing. The money was mine; I admit I got it.

Q. You brought her in. A. You asked me where it went and I told you that. There is much money I have not received yet on account of commissions, which is in Court (hands a letter to the Commissioner).

Mr. Commissioner: This letter says there is some litigation going on about this money.

Mr. Hodgins: That he borrowed from his wife?

Mr. Commissioner: No, about his wife having money.

Mr. Hodgins: What litigation is that? A. The Imperial Steel & Wire Company.

Mr. Hodgins: On my own personal knowledge, there is no litigation going on in the sense of being active at all. A. There is the suit for the division of stock which my wife has.

Q. It has not been brought to trial since 1907? A. I have been very busy since that time; it is alive yet.

Q. Who are your solicitors? A. At the present time Beattie, Blackstock.

Q. Are they solicitors on the record? A. I do not know.

Q. Have you changed your solicitors? A. I have arranged to change, yes.

Q. When was the last step taken in that litigation? A. It was some time before the bank failure; there was another one very much alive, and you are well aware how it terminated, and it was a matter of one thing at a time.

Q. I am also very well aware that no step has been taken in the litigation which you refer to for the past three years? A. It will be.

Q. That is the reason you do not want now to be asked how you got the money from your wife? A. Yes.

Q. And why you owed her money? A. Yes.

Q. You think you might tell something here that would prejudice you in that case? A. I think it would be unfair.

Q. Why would it be unfair?

Mr. Commissioner: I think, Mr. Hodgins, this ought not to be pressed; I do not see the relevancy of it to this inquiry.

Mr. Hodgins: Very well, I won't press it any further.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not suppose this inquiry is for the purpose of enabling the liquidator to get at anything.

Mr. Hodgins: No. My object is to endeavor to trace this $3,000 which the witness said he paid to his wife? A. I got the money.

Q. Deposited to her credit?

Mr. Commissioner: It is plain it was so deposited; that is proved by the document; how are we any further concerned whether he owed it to his wife or not?

Mr. Hodgins: What did your wife do with it? A. That is none of my business, and I do not think it is any of yours.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not think that is relevant.

Mr. Hodgins: I put it this way: this man says, "I got that money, I paid it to my wife, I decline to state what she did with it." If she did it for him it would be just the same as if he did it himself, and he ought not to be unwilling to tell? A. The money is mine and if I have to state what I did with money that I owned that went to the butcher or the candlestick maker it would take a long time to cover it.

Q. I would rather you would say it did go there?

MR. COMMISSIONER: I do not quite follow your reasoning about that, Mr. Hodgins.

MR. HODGINS: Because I do not believe that so far we have got the proper destination of that money.

MR. COMMISSIONER: It is suggested it went for some improper purpose?

A. I say you have the proper destination of it.

MR. HODGINS: He declines to state how he came to owe it to his wife; how he paid it to her and what she did with it? A. You have her cheques; I don't see why she should be persecuted; you tried to examine her before.

MR. HODGINS: I made no effort to examine her here because you asked me not to? A. Not here; I have come here freely and of my own will, and was here three days without being subpoenaed, and every word I have spoken has been as simple as if you had had a phonographic record of it.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Was this money paid out in any way in connection with the Farmers Bank? A. No, my Lord, I paid out no dollar of money in connection with the Farmers Bank in any shape or form that was not legitimate. I paid Mr. Luxton quite a large sum of money in commissions; he was a field man up there with me, and I worked from 15 to 18 hours a day on this proposition, and I have had an endless amount of trouble; it has cut me out of thirty or forty thousand dollars of business.

MR. HODGINS: The only other question I want to ask you is in connection with the payment of $5,000; you have been already examined on that? A. Yes, three times.

Q. This will be the fourth time; just pay attention to the question. When you got back from to the Farmers Bank with that money in what shape was it? A. It was in a roll in my trousers' pocket.

Q. Covered up in any way? A. It may or may not have been; but I remember I rolled it up and I put it in my pocket, and I held my hand on it, held it in my hand all the way up.

Q. Remembering all that, do you remember if you put anything around it? A. I don't know whether I wrapped it up or put a rubber band around it.

Q. You do not remember? A. No; to carry $5,000 was rather an unusual thing.

Q. I asked you about one circumstance and that only, you cannot remember that; when you got to the Farmers Bank, what room did you go to? A. I came into the room.

Q. What room? A. I went into the outer room.

Q. Is that the one with the counter in it? A. Yes; stood at the counter, and Mr. Travers came to the door.

Q. To what door? A. To the door to the left of his own room.

Q. Then what? A. And I stepped up to him and I handed the roll of money to him.

Q. The counter, I thought, was between you? A. I opened the door, pushed it open.

Q. And stepped up? A. Yes.

Q. To where? A. Stepped up to the door, handed them to him; he was standing in the door.

Q. Which door? A. I told you it was the door of his own room to the left.

Q. How did he know you were there? A. He heard the door open; he was there waiting; he had his coat and hat on.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. How did he know you were there in order to come to the door of his room?  A. He was there waiting ready to go away.
Q. Just at the door of his room?  A. Yes.
Q. And you came in?  A. Yes.
Q. He did not come forward to the counter and get the money?  A. No, I looked to see if he was in; his door was open, and he came to the door and I stepped up and handed him the money and I said, "There you are, old man".
Q. That is all you said?  A. He put it in his pocket.
Q. And you walked away with him?  A. He said, "Let's go across the road and have a drink".
Q. You told us that before; you went with him?  A. Yes.
Q. That is the only remark he made to you?  A. Yes. There was not a soul in the bank, but himself that I saw, and I think if you ask the Traders Bank you will find that that transaction, if they can produce their blotter, or whatever they call it, I think you will find that that is pretty nearly the last item on that day's business, and I think you will also find, if they can trace it up, that in the bank that day they did not have any $100 bills. I asked for the largest bills they had, and if my memory serves me right they said they had not any $100 signed.

The Commission adjourned to 11 a.m. to-morrow.

Toronto, May 31st, 1912.

The Commission continued its sittings at 11 a.m., at Osgoode Hall.

PRESENT:

Honourable Sir William Meredith, Commissioner;
Frank E. Hodgins, K.C., and John Thompson, K.C., representing the Dominion Government.
Mr. H. H. Dewart, K.C., representing Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, was present for a short time.

Mr. Dewart: Would Your Lordship allow me to mention a matter before going on with the evidence? My learned friend has had my client, Dr. Nesbitt, subpoenaed for attendance this morning. He was subpoenaed yesterday, and as a matter of fact I have not had sufficient time to consider his position coming here under an Extradition Warrant. I take it for granted that my learned friend will not want to go into any matters that are the subject of charges on which the Doctor is shortly to be tried, but if my learned friend will let the matter stand I shall be glad to confer with him, and perhaps he could give me the heads under which he desires to examine the Doctor, so that I might arrange for his attendance at such date as will suit you to go on.

Mr. Hodgins: I have no objection to letting it stand for a few days, and I can arrange with Mr. Dewart. I think there is a good deal of information that can be given that won't conflict in any way with the charges that are pending, but as to that I suppose when I do ask the questions about that, it will be sufficient time to object.

Mr. Dewart: Well, I am quite satisfied with that.

Mr. Commissioner: Do you acquiesce in the position Mr. Dewart takes that the inquiry ought not to touch any matter that is the subject of a prosecution.
MR. HODGINS: No, I do not, but I think it is quite sufficient time to raise that objection when I come to that branch of the subject.

MR. DEWART: I will confer with Mr. Hodgins.

MR. HODGINS: You will undertake to produce Dr. Nesbitt.

MR. DEWART: Yes.

MR. BEATTIE NESBITT: I will be here.

MR. HODGINS: The reporter from the Globe made an application yesterday to make a copy of one or two of the exhibits, that is the letter said to be sent by Mr. Travers to Colonel Matheson, and which Colonel Matheson said he did not get, and the two Greenwood letters. I did not feel that I was in a position to give them, indeed they were locked up at that time, but I suggested that he should apply to you, Mr. Commissioner.

MR. COMMISSIONER: I suppose this is a public enquiry and the documents are here, and there is no reason why anybody should not take copies of them.

MR. HODGINS: In that case there is no objection to copies being made.

I have been making enquiries about that agreement which Mr. Travers referred to as to his commissions, and Mr. Dewart, to whom I spoke, has recalled that he mentioned it in some address he made on one of the charges, and he has been good enough to look among his papers, and I think he has been able to find it. I asked him if he would attend here.

MR. DEWART: Yes, Mr. Commissioner, I looked up my notes of the remarks I made at the time Mr. Travers pleaded guilty, and I see I referred then to the fact that there was an agreement between the provisional board and Mr. Travers, dated July, 1906, under which he was entitled to a commission of 15% on the first $500,000 of capital stock sold; so I looked up my files and I found the original document there, and I now produce it. I got it from Mr. Travers at the time I was preparing his defence. Your Lordship will see on one page a correction of the amount in pencil, where something is scored out and $6,000 is written in instead of $5,000. My recollection with regard to that is that Mr. Travers told me that that was a note he had made on the agreement as showing what the final amount that was voted to him by the permanent board of directors, namely $6,000 a year, instead of $5,000.

MR. COMMISSIONER: That is simply a memorandum.

MR. DEWART: Yes. (Mr. Dewart hands the agreement referred to to Mr. Hodgins.)

DR. JOHN FERGUSON, Recalled:

Q. We have already had the agreement made on the 4th July between yourself and Travers, and now there turns out to be another one; will you just look at it; I want to find out if that agreement is the real one.

MR. COMMISSIONER: While he is looking at that, I observed a statement in the Globe newspaper this morning that the evidence shows that the advances to the World were made in consideration of the World procuring a deposit. The evidence is the exact opposite of that.

MR. HODGINS: Yes, that is as I understood it, and that I think was the impression that Mr. Travers gave originally about it.

MR. COMMISSIONER: As far as the evidence here is concerned that is the position.

MR. HODGINS: If any one can throw any further light on that I shall be only too glad to have any witnesses named to me, and I shall be very glad to call them if they are mentioned by any one who knows about them and will give their names. I have subpoenaed everybody that I have thought could throw any light on the subject at all.

WITNESS: (After looking at the agreement): I have no remembrance of that. This is an agreement which has been entered into, but the only thing I can say is this, that this agreement has been made, and those are real signatures of the persons to it; I know my own and the others, but this was never acted on; whatever had become of it or done with it I don't know; so far as we were concerned it was never acted on.

Mr. Hodgins: Q. We are interested chiefly in the amount of commission; Mr. Travers said he was to get 15% commission; that would account for the $71,800 of commissions? A. That says 15%, but so far as we were concerned we never knew of that agreement having gone into substantial effect and being acted upon.

Q. What was the condition, if there was a condition, subject to which it would come into operation? A. None that I know of.

Q. Why was not it acted upon? A. I cannot tell you that; but so far as my connected with it is concerned it never was acted on.

Q. What was acted on with regard to the commission? A. I understood only the 10% agreement of the 4th July.

Q. Can you understand at all why such an agreement as that would be prepared mentioning 15%? A. No, I cannot say why that agreement had been prepared.

Q. If the agreement was prepared and signed apportioning, say, 15%, when you say it was not acted on, what do you mean, did not Travers get subscriptions and did he charge up commissions at 15%? A. Never to my knowledge.

Q. Did he charge them up at 10% to your knowledge? A. I understood 10% was the charge being made.

Q. Who did you understand from? A. The usual working at that time, if my memory serves me, at the time of the organization of the Bank I understood charges were being made at the rate of 10%.

Q. Who would know? A. The one that would really know that fact would be Mr. Smith who had charge of the books.

Q. Would Mr. Lown? A. He might know; he would know more than I would.

Q. Is that all the light you can throw on it? A. Yes, I had clean forgotten that that had ever existed, so much had it been out of use or been made no use of.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not understand what you mean by that; here is an agreement signed by all the parties setting out in detail the terms and arrangements between you, I do not understand what you mean by saying it was not acted on; it was not for mere amusement this was drawn? A. No, I do not suppose so, but at the same time I have not the slightest remembrance of that having been acted on.

Mr. Hodgins: Q. You were the best financier among the Provisional Directors, you would be the one who would know? A. No, I do not remember, I had clean forgotten of the existence of that, indeed at least so far as I was concerned I never knew of any agreement in operation than the second one of the 4th July. We were working under a 10% arrangement.

EXHIBIT 73: Agreement of the 4th July, 1906, between the Provisional Directors and W. R. Travers, naming 15% commission on the sale of the capital stock.

Q. The meeting of the 10th March, 1906: “The agreement between the Provisional Directors of the Farmers Bank of Canada and W. R. Travers as to his being General Manager, as presented in duplicate, be and is hereby adopted and that the same be executed forthwith. Carried. Watson voting nay”. Then: “That we reserve the sum of $500,000 stock to be sold by Messrs. Smith and Urquhart, Urquhart & MacGregor in such proportions as we may afterwards determine, and subject to such conditions as we see fit.”  A. That reservation of that block of stock to Smith and others was changed, you will notice, in the agreement of July 4th.

Q. Was that on the basis of 10%  A. Yes, I think all that arrangement all the way through was on the understanding of 10% commission.

Q. On the 4th July there appears to be a meeting at 2 P.M.?  A. Yes, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon.

Q. There is a reference to the letter of Messrs. Urquhart, Urquhart & MacGregor regarding the acceptance of notes; then there is a resolution that the sum of $10,000, on account of commissions for the sale of capital stock be paid to W. R. Travers; another resolution that the agreement entered into this day between W. R. Travers, C. H. Smith and Messrs Watson and others, be confirmed and signed. Then you authorized him to endorse all notes; and the Executive Committee are to make allotments of stock. There appears to be only one agreement mentioned there, which is not that one (Exhibit 73).

Mr. Hodgens: The agreement of the 12th July, Exhibit 12, between the Provisional Directors and Smith and Travers, contains the provision that the Directors agree to allow Travers to sell all the capital stock of the bank now unsold, the first $500,000 at par and the balance at a premium, and to allow him a commission of 10% thereon for expenses of selling same, payable one-half on the signing of the subscription and payment of deposit, and the balance on allotment.

Mr. Commissioner: The difference between these two agreements apparently is the one is made between the five Provisional Directors, Smith of the second part and Travers of the third part (Exhibit 12); the recitals are the same and the provisions are the same down to this, which is in the one to which Smith is a party: “And the said party of the second part who has certain rights under said agreement dated 12th day of March, A.D. 1906, as to the sale of the stock of the said bank agrees to surrender all his rights under the said agreement and releases all his claims against the said Provisional Directors or the said bank.” That is not in the other one. This provision is in the one that Smith is a party to that does not appear to be in the others: “That the party of the third part (that is Travers) agrees to accept the legitimate accounts as they now stand upon the books for the expenses of the organization to date, and also agrees to allow the parties of the first and second part the sum $20,000 as remuneration for their services, surrender of charter, etc., to be paid out of the funds of the bank, provided the same be confirmed at the meeting of the subscribers.”

Mr. Hodgens: Was not the fact this, that you made that 15% agreement with him, and that Smith objected that he had an outstanding right to control the first $500,000 and that the agreement to which Smith was a party was the subsequent agreement getting rid of that outstanding claim and making Travers’ commission 10% instead of 15%, he to accept the disbursements you had made as being all right, and agreeing to pay you and Smith jointly $20,000?  A. You see I cannot connect that 15% agreement at all in my mind; it had been so apparently, entirely out of use.

Mr. Hodgens: You remember anyway that Smith was an objecting party to your dealing with Travers on account of his having an outstanding right to sell the stock, and that you had difficulty in dealing with Smith, and he came in on the same basis as you Directors?  A. Yes, but it was more in this connection; the agreement of the forenoon of the 4th July had arranged that the remuneration coming to the Provisional Directors was to come by vote of the shareholders, and the objection, if my memory serves me rightly, and I think I have stated this already here, was that Smith said, “Suppose that the Shareholders do not approve of that sum, I would be entirely out, would get no consideration, and yet I have given up my prospective position in the bank and the remuneration I could make from the sale of this block of stock? It was because of that that the agreement of that afternoon was made by which Mr. Travers paid us part of that remuneration himself out of the commissions then earned and put to his credit, and there is where my memory has it, that Smith's objections came in. This other agreement of the 15% why it was prepared and just for what reason it might have been drawn up I do not know.

Mr. Hodgins: Was not it prepared first and then owing to Smith—? A. No, I cannot say that.

Q. Wait till you hear my question: owing to Smith not being a party to it that somebody became alive to the fact that unless you had him bound by coming into the agreement you could not give Travers the Commission agreement? A. I do not know why it was prepared or whether it came in before or after, or what was the object of it at all; it has passed entirely out of my mind, and I cannot connect it at all with the matter.

Q. You remember two agreements to which Smith was a party? A. Yes.

Q. One later than the other? A. Yes.

Q. And caused by Smith's objection to what the effect of the first one might be? A. Yes.

Q. That is the final agreement? A. Yes, that is the final one as far as I remember.

JOHN GILCHRIST, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: Q. What was your position in December, 1907, and January, 1908, what was your business? A. My regular business?

Q. Yes? A. Manufacturing business, the Crompton Corset Company.

Q. Mr. Crompton is the head of it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you a relation of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt's? A. No, I am no relation.

Q. It is Mr. Crompton? A. I think so, yes.

Q. Did you become a Director of the Farmers Bank? A. Yes.

Q. Did you subscribe for stock? A. Yes.

Q. About when did you subscribe? A. It was late in the fall, just previous to the bank opening for regular business.

Q. For how much? A. Thirty shares.

Q. Did you pay those shares up before you acted as a Director? A. Not in full; I paid by cash and gave my note.

Q. How much? A. $300 I paid first.

Q. And then? A. And then I paid $300 when that note came due, I think at the end of three months.

Q. What about the balance, had you given a note for the difference? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You subscribed before the list of Shareholders was sent in to the Government, did not you? A. I don't think so, at least it was late in the autumn when I subscribed.

Q. Was it just before the first meeting you organized? A. Yes, the first meeting.

Q. Did you act as Director throughout 1907? A. Yes, I acted about a year I think.

Q. And then you resigned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You wrote to Mr. Travers to give up your position? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Saying you had never been quite satisfied that you were legally qualified, and you did not own thirty shares of stock fully paid up? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Who induced you to become a Director? A. I think it was Dr. Nesbitt who asked me first and then he and Mr. Travers, I met both of them.
Q. When you left what became of your stock? A. The bank took the unpaid part, they wanted it for some concern.
Q. $2,300? A. Yes, they wanted it for some concern that was wanting more stock than they had, or something, and they took that from me and I gave them Power of Attorney to transfer it.
Q. And gave up your stock and got back your notes? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Were you financially good for the $2,300? A. Yes, sir.
Q. You could have been made to pay it? A. I could have paid it, yes, sir.
Q. Do you know what became of that stock? A. I don't know, it was transferred to somebody.

Mr. D. I. Grant: I can give you the particulars.
Mr. Hodgins: I think it appears in that Continental Securities Company.
Mr. D. I. Grant: That is the way it was transferred.
Mr. Hodgins: That is all you had paid up to the time? A. Yes, the other stock that I had paid, the seven shares, I sold them at the same time.
Q. Did you know anything of the relations of Mr. Crompton with the Bank, his dealings with it? A. No, he had not any relations with it while I was there.
Q. After you left? A. After I left I think he had some relations that way, but I did not know anything about them.
Q. You just knew he was dealing with it? A. I knew when the matter came up with Mr. Travers, when the bank closed.

Q. If the amount shown as paid up on your stock was $3,000 when the list went into the Government that would not be true to the extent of $2,300? A. No,
I did not pay the full amount in cash.

FREDERICK CROMPTON, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: Q. What is your business? A. Manufacturer of corsets.
Q. You are the President of the Crompton Corset Company? A. Yes, sir.
Q. I believe you are quite a capitalist? A. I do not know about that; we do quite a large business, have done for 34 years.
Q. When did you first have any dealings with the Farmers Bank? A. It would be about the 2nd March, 1908.
Q. Would you look at that agreement and see whether that agreement was one that was come to? A. Yes, sir, that is a copy of the agreement.
Q. Was that agreement then between the Farmers Bank and Travers and Nesbitt of the first part and yourself of the second part carried out? A. Yes, it was carried out, not exactly as it is mentioned there.

Exhibit 74: Agreement, the Farmers Bank et al and Frederick Crompton, filed.
Q. What were you to do? A. I was to make a deposit in the bank.
Q. Of $50,000? A. That was the latter arrangement.
Q. Was that a later one than the one we have spoken of? A. Yes.
Q. The one I have just spoken of, what amount did that deal with? A.
$150,000.
Q. That is in March, 1908; did you know the bank was in any difficulty at that time? A. No.
Q. It is a very unusual transaction? A. It was rather unusual; I had an extra amount of money coming in at the time from an investment and I had the money on hand.
Q. You were to deposit this money in the bank and they were to give you a deposit receipt, and then you were to take out their circulation from time to time until the deposit receipt was wiped out? A. That was the proposition at first. I was given a deposit receipt and then I returned their deposit receipt and they gave me the bills; they cashed my cheque and gave me the bills.

Q. That is from time to time? A. They gave me the bills and I returned the money from time to time.

Q. They gave you deposit receipts for $150,000? A. Yes, and then I declined it.

Q. How long did you hold those? A. It may have been a short time, I think. I returned it within a few days; I did not think about it, and as soon as I noted it I returned the receipts.

Q. You lent them that amount of money and got a deposit receipt? A. Yes.

Q. And you say you returned them after a few days? A. Yes.

Q. And you got the money for it? A. I got the money for the amount of deposit.

Q. Farmers Bank bills? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you retain that money and pay it out gradually through your own business? A. No, I retained the money for the time and returned it to Mr. Travers, returned it to the bank.

Q. That is not what I am instructed; you did not mean to say you had the Farmers Bank bills for a time and handed them all back to Travers? A. I handed them back at various times, from time to time.

Q. You did not circulate them through your own business? A. No.

Q. You held them and handed them back to him? A. I handed them back to Mr. Travers from time to time.

Q. And in the meantime they had the benefit—A. Of my cash.

Q. Who proposed that arrangement to you? A. Dr. Nesbitt proposed first that I make a deposit, and then I arranged with Mr. Travers.

Q. Is Dr. Nesbitt a relation of yours? A. Yes.

Q. From 1908 down did you keep that sort of thing up? A. I paid the amounts in from time to time.

Q. Did you make any other agreement beyond the $150,000 one? A. No, there was no agreement; I made a further deposit.

Q. How much? A. $50,000.

Q. Was that shortly before the bank failed? A. No, that was in January if I remember correctly, 1909.

Q. The same plan gone through? A. Yes, the same arrangement made, to return it from time to time.

Q. What interest did you get on your deposits? A. I got 5% on the last.

Q. What did you get on the first? A. I got 3%.

Q. Was that all the benefit you got out of it? A. I had the shares in the Mine.

Q. The Keeley Mine? A. Yes.

Q. What shares? A. There were some shares in making a deposit; there was a consideration given to me in the Keeley Mine stock.

Q. How much? A. 20,000 shares.

Q. 20,000 shares? A. Yes, it was of unknown value at the time.

Mr. Commissioner: That appears in the agreement? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: Did not the bank buy those shares back from you? A. I never had them in my possession.

Q. Yes, I know, but did they buy them back? A. Yes.

Q. How much did they give you for them? A. $10,000.

Q. How long was that before the bank failed? A. I think it was in the summer of 1909 or 1910.
Q. That you got the money back?  A. Yes.
Q. Anyway you accounted for that?  A. To Mr. Travers.
Q. To Mr. Clarkson, you paid him back that $10,000?  A. It was said that I was not entitled to it and it belonged to the people, and in view of that I thought it more honourable to return it and I returned it.
Q. You returned the $10,000?  A. Yes.
Q. Apart from your own 5% and 3%, and the $10,000, did you get any benefit from the transactions you had with the bank?  A. I had the stock.
Q. Which you say the bank bought from you?  A. Yes.
Q. Did you return the amount they paid you?  A. Yes.
Q. Is that the $10,000?  A. Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: By stock you mean Keeley Mine stock?  A. Yes.
Mr. Hodgins: Outside of that and the interest you got did you get any benefit from the arrangement?  A. There was a small amount that I received in addition, I think from Dr. Nesbitt.
Q. How much was that?  A. $350 I think, I don’t remember exactly.
Q. What was that paid for?  A. I suppose that was in view of my making the deposit with the bank.
Q. When did you first know about the Keeley Mine?  A. The first time I heard about the Keeley Mine I think would be somewhere about February, 1908.
Q. That is before the agreement you made?  A. It was current throughout the city.
Q. Was this deposit you made for the purpose of putting up funds for the benefit of the Keeley Mine?  A. No, this was made as an ordinary deposit; Mr. Travers never mentioned to me with regard to what it was for.
Q. Did Dr. Beattie Nesbitt mention to you that it was to be used in the Keeley Mine?  A. No, it was a straight deposit in the bank.
Q. What was the reason for the transaction, what was the explanation they gave you of it?  A. They wanted the deposit in the bank the same as the other banks wanted it, and Dr. Beattie Nesbitt asked me to make a deposit, and I was introduced to Mr. Travers and made the deposit. I did not wish to deposit for a length of time because I wished to re-invest the funds which I had at that time.
Q. What was the explanation of your getting Farmers Bank bills?  A. I do not know more than it would be more convenient; there was nothing very special about it. I do not recollect there was anything special about it; it was brought before me and I took it.
Q. Where did you keep these Farmers Bank bills?  A. I kept the bank bills in the National Trust box and in my own safe.
Q. Did you take them out week by week and hand them over?  A. No, whenever the demands were made I left them in the Trust Company box.
Q. I thought you returned them to the bank to Mr. Travers?  A. Yes, from time to time.
Q. Did you make those returns regularly, week by week?  A. No, the books would show it.
Q. Did he ask for them, or did you volunteer them?  A. I asked him if he wished to make an investment or something outside, then I would ask Mr. Travers and take it down.
Q. You, of course, knew there was a penalty under the Bank Act?  A. No, I did not know.
Q. Mr. Travers said he showed you the Bank Act and a particular section of it, said to be section 139?  A. I have no recollection of that at all.
Q. You would not say?  A. I would not do that if I knew there was a penalty, I would not have done it.

Mr. Commissioner: When does Travers say he did that?
Mr. Hodgins: At the preliminary enquiry.
Mr. Commissionér: No, but when did he say he did it? It is an extraordinary thing if he was wanting to get the man’s money; it would not be very probable? A. No.

Mr. Hodgins: What Mr. Travers says is this:

"Q. You say there was an agreement; was that agreement in writing? A. No.

"Q. Was it made personally with Mr. Crompton? A. Yes.

"And this is the only transaction you have in your mind? A. That is all.

"Q. You were aware of the provisions of the Bank Act? A. I was.

"Q. Did you disclose those penalties to Mr. Crompton? A. I think I showed him the Bank Act; I think so.

"Q. Did you convey to him the information that all these penalties would be incurred by what he was doing? A. No, I showed him the Bank Act.

"Q. Did you show him section 139? A. I showed him one section—"

Then he says you did not know it was an illegal act; you say you do not remember him showing you the Bank Act? A. I have no recollection of it.

Mr. Commissionér: How is that?

Mr. Hodgins: Here is the evidence: "Q. Just refresh your memory on that; did he know it was an illegal act? A. I could not say he did; he did not seem to know much about it.

"Mr. Corler: He wanted the interest, I suppose.

"Mr. Owens: The bills bear it anyway.

"Witness: I think he was guided by Dr. Nesbitt.”

ALEXANDER S. LOWN, Recalled by—

Mr. Hodgins: Q. You have already been sworn; you remember on one of the first occasions you gave evidence there were two agreements between the provisional directors and Travers, the 4th July agreements? A. Yes.

Q. Recently another one has turned up which provides for a 15% commission to Travers, and the one to which Smith is a party on the same day provides only for 10%; what is your explanation of that document I have given you? A. I don’t know anything about it; this is something I don’t remember anything at all about.

Q. Drawn by you? A. I don’t know; this is my signature.

Q. It appears to be done on the same typewriter as the others that day; these are the others, were not they all drawn by the same person? A. These were the agreements that were operative (Exhibit 12); this may have been something that we signed during the negotiations.

Q. You see it is signed? A. Yes, I see it is signed, but it was never operated on, and I had forgotten all about it.

Q. Smith is not a party to it? A. I notice he is not a party to it.

Q. Some one has said that owing to Smith’s objections to the first of those two agreements (Exhibit 12) that the second one was come to; had you any difficulty before the agreements that Smith signed with him regarding the right to sell stock? A. There was a good deal of difficulty at the time, and it is so long ago it is difficult to remember all the difficulties.

Q. The situation was this, that you had given Smith an agreement? A. That we had given Smith an agreement.

Q. When you came to deal with Travers, was that the difficulty in the way? A. Yes, that was one difficulty in the way.
Q. Take this 15% agreement as it stands, that does not deal with Smith in any way? A. No.

Q. Were you in a position to make that agreement unless you dealt with Smith—you see the other agreements on the same day deal with Smith and he gives up his rights to Travers? A. I remember there was a good deal of trouble for several days there.

Q. What agreements were finally confirmed? A. The agreements finally confirmed were those two agreements (Exhibit 12). Those are the agreements we always acted on, and this seems to have been some negotiations I was going on with that I have forgotten about.

Q. More than negotiations? A. Yes.

Q. Can you give me any better account? A. No.

Q. Who would know? A. I don’t know.

Q. Who among the directors would know anything about it? A. I don’t know.

Q. Did you draw all those agreements? A. The agreements were drawn by Travers and myself.

Q. And you drew that agreement now produced with the 15%? A. It is probable I did.

Q. You cannot give any further account? A. No, because it is an agreement that had entirely gone from my memory, and it is an entire surprise to me, producing it now. If I think it over I might possibly think of it, but just on the spur of the moment I cannot recollect.

Q. Do you know at what rate, if there was any rate fixed on which commissions were paid? A. Commissions were always paid Travers at the rate of 10%.

Q. Down to what time? A. I think there were very few commissions paid after the 4th July.

Q. There were some there? A. I could tell better if I saw the ledger. My recollection is that there were very few commissions; I don’t think there would be over $1,000 paid.

Q. Your recollection is that if any were paid they would be at 10%? A. Yes, because that is what was always in our minds.

Q. This is the provisional directors’ ledger under the head of Travers, June, July, 1906, 1906, that $10,000 was charged, and $1,500 there, quite a large amount? A. They were all paid at 10% anyway.

Mr. Commissioner: What do you mean by all paid at 10%; was there an account ever made, or did you pay on particular subscriptions; where did you keep your account showing what you owed him for commission? A. I am not familiar with the bookkeeping; the bookkeeping was entirely in charge of Mr. Smith.

Q. How do you know you paid him 10%? A. I remember that all commissions were paid at the rate of 10%.

Q. How do you know that if you did not keep the books; you told me you did not keep the books? A. I signed the cheques.

Q. The cheques did not indicate what the rate was? A. Well, I was always told by Smith that they were calculated on 10% basis.

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Clarkson says he has never found any account of those commissions other than that ledger.

Mr. Commissioner: Would there be any idea that after you had got Travers personally bound to pay you the $20,000, it did not make much difference whether he got 10 or 15%, and you gave him the 15% after that? A. No, I do not know.

Q. You see he bound himself to pay the $20,000 whether or not the shareholders confirmed the payment; could it be that after he had bound himself to do that that you agreed to pay him 15%.  A. I have not the slightest recollection of the 15% agreement.

Q. But it is there?  A. Yes, but I cannot remember anything about it. It seems to me it was prior; the existence of this agreement seems to have entirely escaped my memory.
Q. You cannot give any more light?  A. No.
Mr. Hodgins:  Q. I suppose looking at the amount you were to pay Travers as salary that would not throw any light on it, would it; in one place I think it is $5,000?  A. It is $5,000 in both.
Mr. Commissioner:  That pencil mark is $6,000, but that is no part of the agreement?  A. The pencil mark is not in my handwriting.

DONALD C. MACCALLUM, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins:  Q. You live in Owen Sound?  A. Yes, sir.
Q. What business are you in?  A. I am working in a chair factory there.
Mr. Commissioner:  Is this the officer whose name has been mentioned?
Mr. Hodgins:  Yes.
Mr. Commissioner:  Is there any object in raking over anything?
Mr. Hodgins:  No; I want to ascertain if I can something about that McIntyre note.
Mr. Commissioner:  Very well.
Mr. Hodgins:  There was a note which appears charged in closing up an account of yours with the bank, known as a “McIntyre note” for $10,000, can you throw any light on who McIntyre was?  A. No, sir; I know nothing about it.
Mr. Commissioner:  Would not it be better to get that from Mr. Hunter; the suggestion was he was a clerk in his office.
Mr. Hodgins:  Yes.

WILLIAM AHEARN, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins:  Q. You are the manager of the Beeton Branch of the Traders Bank now?  A. Yes.
Q. And you were paying teller in December, 1906, in the Toronto office of the Traders Bank?  A. Yes, sir.
Q. I have asked you to look at your blotter and statement of the 6th December, have you been able to see that?  A. Yes, I have it here.
Q. Just sit down and study that cheque for a moment (Exhibit 28); what I want to know is if you can tell me something about the transaction, whether you paid that and if you have any record of how you paid it and what denominations?  A. I have no recollection of ever seeing it before.
Q. Do you know W. J. Lindsay?  A. I cannot say that I do. When you wrote to me the other day I said I remembered having dealings with Mr. Lindsay, but I believe perhaps I was mistaken. The man I referred to was a short, rather stout man with a sandy moustache; possibly it was Mr. Smith, was it?  He was the man who was organizing, who made the deposits when they were organizing the Farmers Bank.
Q. That certainly does not describe Mr. Lindsay? A. I see this is the first receiving teller's stamp and that was not my stamp at the time; I was paying teller; this has apparently been dealt with by the receiving teller.
Q. But Mr. Lindsay says it was paid to him over the counter, cashed? A. Possibly by the receiving teller.
Q. Would you look at your records, just to confirm that? A. This is my blotter; there is an entry here of December 6th for $10,000, but it does not necessarily say that that is that cheque.
Q. Is the next business day the 7th? A. Yes.
Q. And then the 8th? A. Yes.
Mr. Commissioner: I thought somebody said it was a Saturday.
Mr. Hodgins: Yes, Mr. Lindsay said it was a Saturday, and it was just before the close of the bank, and he walked up— A. The first was Saturday.
Q. Then was the 8th Saturday? A. Yes.
Q. Is there any $10,000 on the 8th; what is this? A. That would be another entry, general ledger.
Q. This first column on page 432 are the cheques paid out? A. Yes.
Q. Can you tell me from the look of the book what period of the day it was paid out—do you enter them in sequence as they are paid out? A. No, I used to put them on a file and enter them after dinner usually.
Q. The last would come first, would it not? A. That $10,000 would be likely to be one of the first.
Q. How would it be that the receiving teller would pay out that money? A. Well, he may have received credit on deposit and paid out the balance in cash from sundry cash he received.
Q. Is that what you think from the look of the cheque? A. I cannot connect that $10,000 being in my blotter, because if it was in my blotter it would have my paid stamp on it.
Q. If the receiving teller paid it out he would put a slip through to you, would not he? A. Not exactly.
Q. Who was the first receiving teller then? A. I think it was Linton.
Q. Where is he? A. He is manager of the Arthur Branch; he succeeded me as receiving teller.
Q. Whose initials are on that cheque—somebody suggested Graves? A. It might be Graves; Graves was the ledger keeper at that time.
Q. What does the pencilling on the back, $10,000, mean, and whose handwriting is that? A. I could not say unless it was the receiving teller's; it is not mine.
Q. You say his name was Linton? A. Yes, A. J. Linton, Traders Bank, Arthur.
Q. Have you your statement book here and does that show? A. They destroy them every five years: we have no record of the statement. I think that $10,000 entered there must be another cheque; I do not remember any transaction with this $10,000 cheque at all, and those are not my pencil figures on the back.
Q. You think if you had paid that you would be able to see something on it to indicate you had to do with it? A. I think if I paid part of it in cash I would mark on the back what I paid.
Q. Supposing you paid it all in cash? A. I would mark it all on the back what I paid him.
Q. Why is that done? A. In case of a shortage at night you could tell, you could check over all your cash and find out what denominations you are short.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

ARThUR R. SHAVER, Recalled by—

Mr. Hodgins: Q. There is an entry here with regard to commission of 15%, payable to Mr. Travers, which is said to be altered, page 27 of the minute book of the bank; are those minutes in your handwriting? A. Yes.
Q. And do you notice this on page 27, "Appointment of general manager"—just read that through—is that as you wrote it originally? A. Yes.
Q. No change? A. No, sir; no change.
Q. It is said that the 10% is changed? A. Well, now, on closer examination I say it has been altered; I did not observe it at first.
Q. Where did you get the information from that enabled you to put in that memorandum? A. I was given, I suppose, the papers in connection with it.
Q. What did you originally write there as far as you know? A. I could not tell you.
Q. How did you come to change it or did you change it? A. I did not change it.
Q. Do you know anything about the change? A. No, sir; I did not observe it till now, and would not have observed it except on the closest scrutiny.
Q. Look at page 133, under the heading of "Credits granted"; you notice one of those is "George Wishart, and Keeley, J. W. Mine, $50,000" is that as you wrote it in—I suppose the entry is in your handwriting? A. Yes, sir. These figures are out of alignment; I did not make it that way.
Q. What did you write in opposite George Wishart, and Keeley, J. W. Mine? A. There seems to be another nought put on.
Q. Making it what? A. $50,000 instead of $5,000.
Q. Do you kown anything about that alteration? A. No.
Q. Do you notice on the same line the word "mine", is that in your handwriting? A. Yes, I think so.
Q. The last three lines: "The General Manager explained the formation and interests in Keeley Mine, which was satisfactory to the Board, and further advances were authorized, if necessary"; whose handwriting is that in? A. In mine.
Q. Was it put in at the same time or later? A. Later.
Q. How much later? A. I could not say; it might be weeks, it might be months, I could not say.
Q. How did you come to make that addition? A. Mr. Travers asked me to write it in.
Q. Do you say weeks or months? A. I cannot say, quite a considerable time, it may not have been months.
Q. After the next meeting of the Board? A. I could not say; there was something written in the book here afterwards, I don’t know how much.
Q. This is June 17th, and the next meeting was the 15th July, was it written in and changed before the next meeting, or was it after that? A. Oh, no, the book was written up somewhat when this addition was put in.
Q. You mean there had been further entries in the book? A. Yes.
Q. Then that would be after the 15th July. A. Yes.
Q. The next minutes after that meeting would have been written in? A. Yes.
Q. Why did you put that in if the minutes had been passed? A. Mr. Travers asked me to come down to his office and he dictated to me what went in there.
Q. Why did you put it in? A. I was told to write it in.
Q. You need not have done it? A. No, I see that now.
Q. Why did you do it at all; was it in consequence of his orders? A. Yes.
Mr. Commissioner: Was there no explanation made; surely you knew if you did that you were committing forgery? A. I did not realize that at the time.
Q. Did he give you any explanation of why it was to be done? A. No, sir.
Q. None whatever? A. No.
Q. I cannot understand your altering the minutes unless there was something?
A. He said something about going to put through the resolution afterwards, or something of that sort.
Q. Did he say to you that it had been done, what he was asking you, at that meeting? A. I cannot recollect whether he did put it that way or not.
Q. Because his explanation is, as I understand it, that the minute, as you corrected it, is what actually took place at the meeting and that the correction was made so as to make it correspond with the fact? A. Probably he did tell me that.
Q. You do not know, you have no memory about it? A. No, sir.
Q. Had you any banking experience before? A. No, sir.
Q. What had been your business? A. Accountant.
Q. Surely you knew that to put something in that had not occurred and so alter the minute was a forgery, didn’t you? A. I did not know it then; I have learned it since.
Q. Do you think you could alter a note? A. No, I think that would be wrong.
Q. What were those minutes written up from, they were not written as the thing was proceeding, what were they written up from? A. Sheets, immediately after the meeting.
Q. In whose handwriting were those? A. They would be typewritten.
Q. Who made them? A. The Secretary, Mr. Travers’ Secretary.
Q. At the meeting or after the meeting? A. I could not say as to that, they would be given to me after the meeting.
Q. Who took the original minute? A. I don’t know.
Q. Did you ever see any original minute? A. No, these were given to me as the original.
Q. But you quite understood from what you have just said that that was not what was written down in the presence of the Board, that typewriting; I understood you to say that the Secretary typewrote it? A. They were given to me in typewriting; I did not see any others.
Q. You do not suggest that those were typewritten at the meeting? A. I did not see any others.
Q. That is all the light you can give us? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Hodgins: I do not think there is anything else unless Mr. Travers wants to say something.

Mr. Travers: If you wish me to speak as to the second agreement I may be able to throw some further light on it.

Mr. Hodgins: If you wish to.

W. R. Travers, Recalled:

Witness: My recollection of the matter is I asked for 15%, it was with Mr. Lown, and he said I had to be satisfied with what I have got, and after the first went through the second one went through.

Mr. Hodgins: Which do you call the first one? A. The first one was the 10%, and the second one was the subsequent one, that I remember quite plainly.
Q. The 10% one was the agreement which was confirmed at the meeting? A. At the Provisional Board, but I did not see those minutes.
Q. That was the one that was confirmed at the Provisional Board? A. At the Provisional Board, I found it in the minutes afterwards.
Q. The second agreement of the 4th July which was altered owing to Smith's objections, I think we have been told was made in the afternoon? A. The 10% agreement and the other agreement were made simultaneously, and the other 15% one was afterwards, later in the day.
Q. What was the reason for making a change after you had made two agreements? A. The reason that I am satisfied was that they could not get rid of Smith on a 15% basis, and they had to settle with him on a 10%.
Q. But they settled with you on that? A. That was the first one, and then I made the second one with him.
Q. At what rate were commissions afterwards calculated? A. I cannot say that they were calculated at any particular rate at all.
Q. You just helped yourself? A. Whatever was necessary to pay out I charged part to commissions and part to organization expenses.
Q. You did not go on any percentage basis at all, just paid what you wanted? A. Not after the permanent meeting of the Board—
Q. But from the date of the agreement—A. No, they were just paid on account.
Q. And no one has ever checked over that commission account? A. No, sir.
Q. Did you give any of the Provisional Directors any interest in that 15%? A. No, sir.

Mr. Commissioner: What do you propose to do as to further evidence; what further evidence is it you propose to offer?
Mr. Hodgins: There is Mr. Fielding's evidence to be taken and Mr. Warren's and Mr. Wilson's; those I have arranged with Mr. Hellmuth, if it suits you, for the 11th or 12th June. Mr. Warren will be able to get back by that time. Then there is the evidence of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, and if we can get Wishart to come over, there will be his evidence. I think that will conclude the evidence. There is a witness that is to be here at two o'clock this afternoon.
Mr. Commissioner: I wish to add to what Mr. Hodgins has said. He has already intimated that upon the question of these deposits he has exhausted all the means of information that were available to him. If anybody has any information upon this subject, any witness to suggest, or any means of enquiry to open, communication should be had with Mr. Hodgins, and if there is any reasonable ground for incurring the expense, the persons named will be examined, and the direction of the enquiry followed out. I want nobody to say that this Commission closed without the fullest opportunity being given to everybody who has made accusations against anybody else to substantiate those accusations.
The Commission adjourned from 1 P.M. to 2 P.M.

The Commission resumed at 2 P.M. May 31st, 1912.

WILLIAM F. MACLEAN, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: Q. You are the Managing Editor of the World Newspaper Company, or what is your position? A. No, I am the Vice-President.
Q. You have something to do with the other Departments? A. Yes.
Q. In fact you are editor in chief, are you not? A. I think so, yes.
Q. Mr. Greenwood, during 1907 had what position in the office? A. Managing Director, he had full charge.
Q. Had he full charge of the financial end of the business? A. Yes, everything.
Q. Had you any charge of the financial end of it? A. I assisted him, he was the recognized one and was there all the time and did all the work and I helped him along.
Q. Would it be unfair to say that the financial end of it required the assistance of both yourself and Mr. Greenwood? A. Often, yes; I helped him whenever I could.
Q. There was a need of money? A. Yes.
Q. Even money for wages? A. Yes, sir, often.
Q. What was your usual bank account, who did you deal with before 1907? A. Our account has been for several years in the Sterling Bank; before that it was in the Dominion Bank. We have done business with several banks in the city.
Q. When did you first apply to the Farmers Bank? A. I could not say; we discounted notes there on several occasions, quite a number.
Q. It would be a matter of discussion I should imagine between you and Greenwood as to opening up negotiations with a new bank? A. It might be, yes.
Q. Do you remember that it was? A. I know that Greenwood and I discussed that question and we went down to see the bank with some notes to discount.
Q. Why did you select the Farmers Bank? A. Probably we had to go there to get done what we had to do.
Q. You mean to say your own bank—A. Sometimes we could not discount paper in our own bank if our account was overdrawn, and it was often overdrawn.
Q. And you say that was the cause of going to the Farmers Bank? A. Yes, we needed the money and we had to discount the paper we had.
Q. Do you remember that as a matter of memory? A. Yes, I remember we wanted money and went down and got some.
Q. Did you know Travers? A. I made his acquaintance in the Bank through Greenwood.
Q. On this occasion do you mean? A. That is the first time I had met him.
Q. You had never met him before? A. I do not think it.
Q. Was Greenwood a friend of his? A. Yes.
Q. When was it you began dealing? A. About the time the bank opened business.
Q. It started first January, 1907? A. Well, I suppose almost immediately after it started we did some business with them.
Q. Flew at them at the outset? A. Probably.
Q. What sort of notes did you take? A. As far as I recollect customers' notes and some accommodation notes made by the World Newspaper Company and endorsed by myself and Mrs. Maclean, and perhaps by Greenwood, I am not sure as to that; I would think that was it.
Q. What had you people to do with F. W. Stair? A. F. W. Stair is the owner of the Star Theatre, and they had to do a lot of advertising, and in doing business with them we either got a cheque or note from them; we did not collect weekly, but always got $100 or $500; we either let their account run and got a note or took a cheque from them.
Q. You know Colonel Matheson? A. Yes.
Q. I see that on the 20th May, 1907, the Treasurer of Ontario began to deposit in the Farmers Bank amounts which ran through May and part of June till finally consolidated by a deposit receipt on the 14th June, 1907, of $10,000; what do you know about that transaction? A. I know very little about it.
Q. What little do you know? A. I may have heard Mr. Travers say to Greenwood or heard from Greenwood that he had been asked to put in a word with some one in the Provincial Government to get a deposit for the Farmers Bank.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Mr. Commissioner: Who is he; do you mean Greenwood? A. Yes, if I heard it from Greenwood it was that he had been asked by Travers or some one to put in a word to help him to get a deposit, saying that he was entitled to as much consideration as other banks.

Q. You think he began about the beginning of 1907? A. Yes, when the bank was started. What is the date of that Stair note that we put in?

Q. I will speak about that later, was that the beginning of your dealings? A. I would think that would be about then; yes, what is the date?

Q. The books do not tally with that; the books apparently give the Stair note as the 31st December, 1907? A. When did the bank open?

Q. The 2nd January, 1907, and the first deposit was the 20th May, 1907, by the Provincial Government. You see if you are right in fixing that date for the Stair note you could not have been dealing with them till the beginning of 1908? A. Why?

Q. Because that is the date of the note, December 31st, 1907? A. And the bank began when?

Q. The 2nd January, 1907?

Mr. Commissioner: Nearly a year before. A. Then we did business before that; we must have done business right after the bank opened.

Q. That is your recollection? A. Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: Where is the Bills Receivable book?

Mr. Clarkson: They have a liability ledger which is supposed to show all the discounts.

Mr. Hodgins: You said you may have heard from Greenwood that he had been asked by Travers to put in a good word to get deposits? A. Yes.

Q. It would not be a mere casual remark, would it? A. That is all I knew of it.

Q. Did not you connect it in any way with your loan? A. No, sir.

Q. Or discounts? A. No; what we put in any time I was there, anything that I know was put in on its merits, either as customer's notes or our own paper. Any business with Travers I saw in the bank was a note taken down there, would he discount it. Sometimes he would not discount it; he either said if it was a customer's note he wanted a better one, or he had not the money.

Q. What had you to do with inducing the Provincial Treasurer to deposit? A. Nothing that I know of.

Q. Did you ever see him? A. Not that I know of.

Q. I would like to be sure about that? A. I never saw him about it.

Q. Did you know that Greenwood was seeing him about it? A. I cannot say but I have heard since about it, but I do not know that Greenwood went up to see him.

Q. The way it is put is this, that in consideration of your getting the deposit from the Provincial Treasurer and using your political influence for that purpose you got discounts or money from the Farmers Bank? A. We did not; I never did anything of the kind or promised to do anything of the kind.

Q. Did you see any one other than the Provincial Treasurer about it? A. No. Since that administration has been in office I have not seen the Premier more than three times; I do not think I have ever seen Colonel Matheson more than twice or had hardly any communication with any member of the Government.

Q. It is a bit of a puzzle, because this first $10,000 deposit begins in May and unless we find something earlier in the books your own dealings did not commence till the end of that year? A. Then if there is not anything in the books, you told me we discounted something there when the bank opened.

Q. I asked you how soon you began, and you said you thought soon after the bank opened? A. Yes, I cannot tell the date.

Mr. Commissioner: Is there any account of the World Printing Company in the book?
Mr. Clarkson: I have two, but they are of a later date.

Mr. Travers: A lot of those were casual discounts.

Mr. Commissioner: Where is that book?

Mr. Clarkson: It is in my office; I will send for it.

Mr. Hodgins: Did Greenwood report to you the success he had in getting a deposit in accordance with Travers' request? A. No.

Q. He did not report that to you? A. No.

Q. Did you not ask him? A. I don't know that I did.

Q. What did you know about the deposit which resulted in the deposit receipt in June, 1907? A. I don't know anything about it.

Q. What do you know about the subsequent deposit receipt? A. I know nothing about it excepting that I have heard on the records of Parliament and in the newspapers.

Q. I mean what personal connection had you with the obtaining of the deposit for the Farmers Bank which resulted in the two deposit receipts of May, 1908? A. I know nothing except this document was circulated in an election.

Q. What is that? A. It is a query to the electors of North York: "What is your opinion of the Government who deliberately handed out $35,000 of your money to Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and Bill Maclean? If you disapprove, vote for J. M. Walton." I never got any money with Beattie Nesbitt. The same thing was on the records of Parliament, and nearly every meeting I went to, that is all I know of it.

Q. Will you look at that letter which Mr. Travers said he thinks he sent Colonel Matheson and Colonel Matheson denies having got it; just look at the statement and the date of the letter. (Exhibit 68, letter of June 18th, 1908). A. What about it?

Q. You see the statement made in there, connected with the World Newspaper? A. (Reads) "A few weeks ago I made some advances to the extent of $35,000 on the promise that $25,000 would be deposited by you, which was requested by the friends of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and $10,000 at the request of the World newspaper". That is he said he made an advance of $10,000 at the request of the World newspaper.

Q. No, I take it that he made the advance of $35,000 on the promise that he would get $25,000 deposit through Dr. Beattie Nesbitt's and $10,000 through the World Newspaper Company's influence? A. (Continues reading letter): "You were good enough to put in $25,000 but this leaves my reserves still $10,000 reduced, and I would be glad if you could see your way clear in the matter to make a further deposit of this amount and greatly obligé".

Q. What do you know about the statement in that letter? A. I don't know anything about it.

Q. The amount as stated in that letter is exactly the same amount that is in this political circular? A. Yes, and it is always turning up.

Q. We have $25,000 deposit receipts issued in May, 1908; we have no $10,000 later than the date of this letter, but we have one prior. After the beginning of 1908, which was the second year of the bank's existence, did you make any efforts to get deposits for the Farmers Bank? A. No, sir.

Q. Did Mr. Greenwood? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Mr. Greenwood's letters have been put in, which, so far as we can tell from their dates, indicate that he was trying to get a deposit still (shows letters of Mr. Greenwood to Mr. Travers, Exhibit 69) you see there is no year on those letters, but they are dated June 20th and 21st; they bear dates a few days after that other letter, don't they? A. Yes.

Q. Evidently when Travers wrote that he thought he had some promise that through the influence of the World Newspaper Company he would get a deposit of ten thousand dollars, and if those letters are of 1908, it would show as though Greenwood was striving to get it from Col. Matheson? A. Yes.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Do you know anything about those efforts of his? A. No.
Q. Nothing at all? A. No.
Q. Never discussed it with him? A. No.
Q. Did he not report that to you? A. I could not recall it.
Q. After that date, May and June, 1908, were not you borrowing from the bank, had not you about a year's dealing, if your idea is correct, been getting a great deal into their debt? A. Yes.
Q. And you say that no suggestion, that in view of that or if you wanted further advances you must try and find a deposit for them? A. No, sir; any advance that was got we put up good endorsed paper and paid the interest, looked after it when it became due, made reductions, and if they were customer's paper whatever reduction was made was turned over to the bank with the renewal.
Q. Even taken that for granted, well endorsed paper is not money? A. No.
Q. Did you never meet with the difficulty with Travers that he would not advance the money because he had not got it, and you would have to get some one to make a deposit before he would do it? A. No.
Q. No doubt about that? A. No doubt about it.
Q. How often had you seen Travers? A. I could not say, several times. Any issue Travers ever raised was our paper good, and had he the money to discount it.
Q. Look at that letter, that is the only one I can find with any date on it, December 15th—could you say what year that was? A. No.
Q. Why do newspaper men never put the year on their letters? A. I do not know.
Q. That is probably December, 1907, but it looks as if you were getting money from him not upon good paper? A. This is a cheque.

EXHIBIT 75: Letter of witness to Mr. Travers, dated December 15th.
Q. That would not be discounting good paper, would it? A. I do not know—"Send in Thursday", that would mean to let it go into the bank it was drawn on and it would be met.
Q. That is cashing a cheque of the World Newspaper Company on some other bank? A. Yes.
Q. That could hardly be called turning in good paper? A. I have often cashed a cheque like that in the bank.
Q. Mr. Clarkson produces the Casual Loan Book, beginning on the 31st July, 1907; I do not find anything of the World Newspaper Company down to the 31st December, 1907. may I ask you, Mr. Travers, have you looked over this list here and can you say none of those are World discounts?

Mr. Travers: I find none has any connection only the one you spoke about, that is the one that starts in the ledger.

Mr. Hodgins: What about the other ones before that?
Mr. Travers: They are all sundry people; that would be every note that goes through the bank.

Mr. Hodgins: Do you find any name there that would indicate the World?
Mr. Travers: No. February 8th, 1907, is the first casual loan transaction.
Mr. Commissioner: By whom?
Mr. Travers: Not by the World Newspaper, and there is nothing in 1907, in the casual loans to the World.

Mr. Hodgins: The casual loans in this book, page 389, begin on February 8th, 1907, and run down to July 31st, and in the other book which is before the Commissioner they start on July 31st, and go on down from that.

Mr. Commissioner: March 19th, 1908, W. H. Greenwood, there are several under the heading of Greenwood.

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Greenwood said he occasionally put notes of his own in.

Mr. Commissioner: Your inquiry seems to lead to the conclusion that there were no transactions until December, 1907.
Mr. Clarksons: Yes, that is it. The books show December, 1907, as the first transaction.

Mr. Hodgins: Was that the first transaction in any body's name?

Mr. Clarksons: So far as I can say? A. That is the Stair note, is it?

Mr. Hodgins: Yes? A. This letter is in 1908 (Letter June 18th, 1908, Exhibit 68).

Q. That letter indicates that the ten thousand had been deposited; you cannot throw any light on that earlier deposit in 1907? A. No, sir.

Q. Was there any understanding between Travers and Greenwood or yourself by which either Greenwood or you were to solicit deposits for the Bank in consideration of obtaining a loan? A. Not the slightest.

Q. The fact is that loans were made to you? A. Yes.

Q. This letter, Exhibit 68, makes the definite statement that Travers was promised a deposit of ten thousand dollars at the request of the World Newspaper? A. Yes.

Q. That is in June, 1908? A. Yes.

Q. What can you say to that? A. I made no such request and I do not know of its being made.

Q. Was Greenwood able to run these things by himself without any reference to you, the financial part? A. Oh, yes; I was away most of the time.

Q. I do not think I have got very much information from you about any interviews with the Provincial Treasurer or any member of the government? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you disclosed all you know now about these deposits and the way in which the loans were made? A. So far as I know, yes.

Q. You cannot throw any more light on it? A. No, sir; as I say, I have not written a letter or been up to the government or asked for anything that I know of.

Mr. Commissioner: Would the books of the World Company show when you commenced to discount with the Farmers Bank, did you keep a bill book? A. Yes.

Q. Because according to the bank books all these deposit receipts were issued before you commenced to do business with the bank at all? A. Yes, I understand.

Mr. Hodgins: That is the ten thousand dollar deposit receipt?

Mr. Commissioner: Yes, you are right, the first ten thousand dollars.

Q. Was there at any time any agreement or understanding that in consideration of you being accommodated by the bank you should use influence, direct or indirect, with the government to procure a deposit for the bank? A. There was not.

Q. Was there ever any understanding that in consideration of going easy with your account you should do what you could to get them a deposit? A. No, sir.

Q. If there was any effort made to get a deposit by Mr. Greenwood you say none was made by you? A. None was made by me.

Q. How did he come to do that, Mr. Greenwood, if he did, as apparently he did, use his endeavors to get deposits for the Farmers Bank, do you know why he did? A. He may have done it on account of his acquaintance with Mr. Travers.

Q. Did you ever hear, did you ever understand or suspect that there was any understanding between Greenwood and Travers or the bank that you should be accommodated in consideration—? A. There was no such understanding.

Q. I mean did you ever hear of such an understanding? A. No.

Q. Or suspect any such understanding existed? A. No; anything we did with the bank was on the merits of the proposition as it was suggested.

Mr. Hodgins: You knew this was a bank which was just beginning? A. Yes.
Q. You knew it was not in good odor with the other banks?  A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever make use of any pressure upon Travers to get a loan from him?  A. Never.
Q. You are quite aware that any remarks or adverse criticism in your paper would affect the standing of a new bank?  A. It might.
Q. Did you ever, directly or indirectly, suggest to Mr. Travers that it would be wise in his own interest to accommodate the World?  A. No, nor for any other bank. Do you want to see the World books?
Mr. Hodgins: I would like to see it owing to the dates.
Witness: I will look it up.
Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Greenwood is not with you now?
Witness: No.
Mr. Hodgins: If you would send me a copy of the account I think that would be sufficient.

GODFREY T. CLARKSON, Recalled:—

Mr. Hodgins: In calculating the paid-up capital which the bank actually got you gave us $532,000, or, if the loss of the American Piano Company's was not counted, $552,000?  A. That is it exactly.
Q. I want to ask you whether that amount actually came from the stockholders, irrespective of those two loans which were originally got from the Trusts & Guarantee Company amounting to one hundred thousand dollars?  A. Yes. I put in a detailed statement showing the receipts from each and every stockholder.
Mr. Commissioner: Is that the same book?  A. No, there is an absolute detailed statement showing dollar for dollar received from every stockholder; but included in the sixty-seven thousand are those items to which I took exception in my report.
Mr. Commissioner: It is hardly worth while putting all that in.
Mr. Hodgins: You have the actual details showing that?  A. Yes, the actual facts.
Q. It is not the case of the bank having $532,000 less this $100,000, but having the whole amount paid up in cash from the shareholders?  A. Yes, the bank received actually from shareholders five hundred and thirty-two thousand dollars and twenty thousand more if you do not deduct that loss on the Tevis stock.
Mr. Commissioner: How would it be, if the World Newspaper Company would not object, to look at their bills payable and report to us what they show about that account?
Mr. Clarkson: I will do that.
Mr. Commissioner: If there are any entries there showing anything about this you had better have them here.

The Commission adjourned at 3 p.m. to meet in Ottawa, Monday, June 10th, 1912, at 11 a.m.

PRESENT:

HON. SIR WM. MEREDITH, Commissioner.

HON. W. S. FIELDING, Sworn, Examined by:—

Mr. Hodgins: You were the Finance Minister in the late Government in 1906? A. Yes.

Q. And you had to do with issuing the certificate for the Farmers Bank?

A. Yes.

Q. And you had some knowledge of the incorporation or rather the extension of the time within which the bank was to organize? A. Yes.

Q. And if I remember right you opposed the granting of the last renewal?

A. Yes.

Q. Would I be right in saying that you succeeded in reducing the renewal to six months? A. I think that is a fair statement of the case, sir. I was myself indisposed to renew at all, but the feeling of the committee was strongly the other way and we finally compromised on a six months extension.

Q. There was a telegram which I saw from Mr. Lown; did you know Mr. Lown—he was one of the provisional directors? A. No, I have no recollection of any telegram from Mr. Lown.

Q. It was one I have been stating that the committee had, as I recollect it, turned you down in the matter? A. I am afraid that is substantially correct. I do not think there was a division on the question, but the sentiment of the committee was clearly in favor of giving them the extension; in that sense it would not be wrong to say the committee turned me down.

Q. Were you the only one that was opposing? A. I have no doubt there were some others in sympathy with me, but I cannot recall anybody who took any active part in opposing.

Q. Was your objection, do you recollect, based upon the fact that they had taken so long to get the stock taken up, that it was inadvisable to renew it, or had it anything to do with the personnel of the bank? A. It had nothing to do with the personnel. From the beginning I disliked, I do not think the word is too strong, I disliked the movement, because I was afraid a number of farmers were going into a business they did not like and undertaking responsibilities which they did not appreciate, and that was my reason; I did not wish that these people should be denied the privileges that were granted to other people, but when they came again that rather confirmed me in my own unfriendly view, it struck me they were not as strong as they should be.

Mr. Commissioner: You said a business they did not like? A. That they did not understand, I mean.

Mr. Hodgins: Had you formed any opinion at all as to the probability that these gentlemen who were promoting it would be able to raise the necessary capital within six months? A. Not definitely; I thought perhaps when they wanted a year and only got six months it might make it a little harder for them, they would have to hurry up. I looked upon the application for a further extension as an evidence of weakness.
Q. The incorporators may have had a few farmers among them, but Mr. Lown was a barrister, and Dr. Ferguson a physician? A. It was generally talked about that they were seeking capital from farmers; that was common talk; and the name implies that.

Q. You said in the House that you always viewed the incorporation with anxiety? A. I did, because I understood it was an effort to get farmers, as the name implied, and I thought it was a line of business that probably they were not the best capable of going into.

Q. Were you aware that Mr. Calvert was in charge of the Bill? A. I remember at some stage that Mr. Calvert was present at the committee meeting, I cannot say whether he was in charge of the Bill or not, but I have some recollection, I think, of Mr. Calvert thinking I was rather hard on them in opposing their views. I have no particular recollection of him being in charge of the Bill.

Q. Had you any knowledge of the matter till the issuing of the certificate came up? A. No.

Q. They had got their extension and it was for them to make good, so to speak, or to come before you again? A. Not exactly come before me again; in the first stage they were coming before the committee; the next stage they would come before me as Minister.

Q. In the interim you had heard some gossip, I understand, in banking circles before the question of the certificate came up at all? A. I do not recollect of hearing anything with regard to this particular bank. For the last year or two before that bankers were saying that these movements for the organization of new banks very often took the form of getting capital through notes; it was a general conversation as to the tendency of the movements for new banks, gossip of that character was current; I do not recollect of hearing anything particular as to the proceedings of this bank in that way. There was something came up later on in correspondence, of which the record speaks.

Q. Was it that general gossip that was in your mind when dealing with the certificate? A. My mind from the beginning was suspicious; my mind was rather unfriendly to the movement from the beginning; that kind of gossip might emphasize it a little, but from the inception of the movement I looked upon it with a little anxiety.

Q. When the matter first came before your attention as Minister with regard to the certificate, had there been any suggestion by way of gossip or otherwise about this particular incorporation? A. I cannot recall any, sir.

Q. The reason I ask you is that in answer to a question by Mr. Foster in the House, I see in the debate you are quoted by Mr. Henderson as having stated as follows: “There was some gossip in banking circles concerning the Farmers Bank of which we became aware”? A. That would be in line with what I have already said; the bankers generally were unfriendly with the movement, regarding it not as a strong movement. There would be gossip of that character among the principal bankers.

Q. Mr. Henderson thought that your answer indicated that he was one of those who had been retailing gossip, and you said no, you had not that in mind. The answer you made there was, “That there was some gossip in banking circles concerning the Farmers Bank of which we became aware. I do not see how we can take cognizance of that. There is an answer as to any representation that was made in the proper way. There was gossip abroad concerning the Farmers bank; I was well aware of it” Mr. Henderson then went on to say he supposed you included him among those retailing gossip. When did you first become aware that the certificate was being applied for to the Finance Department? A. The record will show that; I think they deposited their money—which, although not a formal application, is an indication they are applying—they deposited their money a month or so before obtaining the certificate, but they did not at the same time make a formal application; that came later. The records will show that.

Q. The deposit, if my memory serves me right, was on the 23rd October and they had a month? A. Yes, it was some time before.

Q. About the 26th November was the meeting, and the 30th was the day on which the certificate issued? A. I think that is correct.

Q. Would that application come before you personally in the first instance or how? A. Very likely the Deputy would bring it to my notice immediately; these things would be matters of routine in the Department, but any matters of importance the Deputy would usually call my attention to, and he probably did so.

Q. The payment of the money would of course come to him first, a notice of that? A. Yes.

Q. And then any formal application that was made would come to him first? A. Yes.

Q. Would you hear that the money had been deposited or would he bring it to your notice when the application was made? A. It is quite likely he did before, although I have no distinct recollection of that; he would probably mention it, knowing from the beginning I was anxious about the bank; I have no distinct recollection, but I think it is quite altogether likely he did.

Q. At any rate, no action would be taken by you until the formal application for the certificate came in? A. No.

Q. The treasury board consisted in those days of how many? A. I think there were five, if my memory serves me.

Q. My recollection of Mr. Boville's evidence is that it was five and the Finance Minister? A. I would leave that for the records to speak.

Q. Do you remember what the requirement was at that time? A. I think we did business with three; when that was originally established I do not know, but business was frequently done for years in the Treasury Board with three.

Q. Under the Act I think the duty is cast on the Treasury Board itself and not on the Minister of Finance individually? A. That is true, though naturally he would have chief responsibility and his colleagues would look to him largely for advice and guidance.

Q. In section 15 it says: "No certificate shall be given by the Treasury Board until it has been shown to the satisfaction of the Board, by affidavit or otherwise, that all the requirements of this Act and of any special act of incorporation of the bank as to payment required to be made to the Ministers, the election of directors, deposits for security for note issue or any other preliminaries shall have been complied with"? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. What was the practice of the Department at that time, the duty being cast upon the Treasury Board, as a Board, of bringing it to their notice? A. We would naturally look to their precedents as to the form and method followed in previous cases; the bank established its good faith and we would see whatever was done in previous cases was done in this case; that would be a matter of routine which we would count on the Deputy doing and bringing to our notice.

Q. Would the Deputy, who then was Mr. Boville, have to ascertain that the preliminaries had been all complied with? A. By the examination of the papers, yes.

Q. Which would then come to you? A. Yes.

Q. And from you to the Treasury Board? A. Yes.

Q. Had the practice been to require any evidence of any particular kind? A. I think all the evidence that was ever required in any previous case was required and taken in this, and indeed I am informed and believe, although I could not give you the date, that there have been cases, one case at least, in which on similar evidence, but without any affidavit whatever, the bank certificate was granted; I think it will be found; but that is a matter to which Mr. Boville can speak better than I; but I think every precaution taken in any previous case was taken in the case of the Farmers Bank.

Q. During your continuance of office as Finance Minister, what was the practice that had been followed?  A. The same, the Deputy would bring the papers before us; if there was any question of legal procedure, as a matter of safety he would refer to the Department of Justice and obtain the advice of the Department of Justice.

Q. That would all be done before it would come before you?  A. I might be away, or the Deputy might tell me what was going on, but that would be his duty and bring the papers before me; probably during the process of that he would bring the matter before me.

Q. When you speak of another case when an affidavit was not required, are you speaking of during your time?  A. No, but in looking into the matter I was informed in the Department that there was one case in which the certificate was issued without any sworn statement at all. I do not say that to find any fault, merely as showing that the precedents were, in our case, fully lived up to and more.

Q. During your regime as Minister of Finance another method was adopted?  A. I think we required the affidavit, but there again I would have to leave the records and the Deputy to speak of that; I could not speak with positiveness.

Q. You had an interview with Mr. Travers?  A. Yes.

Q. Up to that time, what knowledge had you of the preliminaries?  A. I do not understand what you mean by the preliminaries.

Q. The matters which the Department required to be done?  A. I think the Deputy Minister informed me that Mr. Travers had been in to see him, but I was very much engaged with the Budget and could not see him, and the next day, I think it was, I told the Deputy I would arrange to see Mr. Travers. Up to that time, although Mr. Boville was probably talking to me about the matter, there was no formal action taken by me.

Q. Your Budget speech was delivered on the 29th November, as Mr. Boville, I think, mentioned; I suppose that is a very busy time with the Finance Minister?  A. Yes.

Q. And it practically excludes all other business?  A. Yes.

Q. The declaration that Mr. Travers sent to the Department with all the other papers was made in Toronto on the 27th November, 1906, and it reached the Department, say, on the 28th; that appears to be the date, the 28th, at which the papers were submitted to Mr. Newcombe, the Deputy Minister of Justice, and his reply is on the same date. Did that precede your knowledge of the matter, you being engaged on the 29th?  A. Mr. Boville may have mentioned to me that matter; it would not engage my attention; he may have mentioned the matter was in that shape, but certainly I would not give it any attention at that time.

Q. According to Mr. Travers' evidence, he appears to have seen you three times?  A. Will you kindly read where he says that?  I have no recollection of ever having seen Mr. Travers three times; I think there must have been a mistake there.

Q. He says once on one day and twice on another, whether it was once the first day or twice the first day he does not remember?  A. Well, never mind your statement of the substance is quite sufficient. My recollection is 1 saw Mr. Travers only once.

Q. That is what I would like to clear up?  A. I think no doubt he was to the Department before that and saw some of my officials, but I am pretty clear in my recollection that I saw Mr. Travers only once and that was the 30th November, and that was the date the certificate was issued.

Q. I will find just what Mr. Travers says about that. In one of these interviews he said that you discussed with him quite a number of the subscriptions?  A. That is not correct. I think probably Mr. Travers may be confusing conversations he had with Mr. Boville or some officer in the Department. I assume Mr. Travers meant to be correct, but certainly he is mistaken with regard to such conversations with me.

Q. This is what Mr. Travers says at page 501: "Q. You went down to Ottawa, you say you had three interviews with the Minister—could you tell us about one—you were introduced by Mr. Calvert on the first occasion? A. Yes"—would that be the interview you recollect? A. The only interview to the best of my knowledge that I ever had with Mr. Travers was when he came to the office on that day, the day on which the certificate was issued. I had forgotten that incident until it was referred to in Parliament. I see it states that Mr. Calvert introduced me. I had at first forgotten that and on first blush would have said no; but I remember now that Mr. Calvert did come to the office and said "I would like to introduce Mr. Travers". That was the only interview I had with Mr. Travers.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Then at the bottom of page 438 and page 439.

MR. HODGINS: At all events you saw him you think only once? A. Yes.

Q. Was that on the occasion that Mr. Calvert introduced him? A. Yes, I only saw him once, and as Mr. Calvert did introduce him that must have been the occasion.

Q. Was that the day he got his certificate? A. Yes.

Q. What time of day was it? A. It would be about mid-day, I had written to Mr. Travers, having learned that he was inquiring the day before and wanted to see me, I had dictated a letter to Mr. Travers arranging to meet him that day; I think probably the letter had not been delivered and while the matter was in that state Mr. Travers came into the office; it must have been close up to mid-day, one o'clock.

Q. Had any action been taken by the Treasury Board at that time? A. No.

Q. Any action taken by you towards deciding on the matter? A. No; the matter had been the subject of discussion between the Deputy Minister and myself from time to time; there had been no definite action taken.

Q. But on the assumption that your Budget speech was delivered on the 29th and this certificate was granted on the 30th, you saw Mr. Travers you say on the 30th at about noon? A. Yes.

Q. Could you tell at all what had taken place between the Deputy Minister and yourself prior to that? A. We had had conversations over the matter and he had brought the papers to my notice. I think Mr. Boville would probably keep me informed from time to time as to what was going on, but I had taken no definite action up to that moment.

Q. You think you had written a letter to Mr. Travers which had not I suppose been delivered? A. I think the records will show the letter was dated that day; I am not sure it had gone out of the office; I know I dictated the letter because I afterwards told Mr. Travers in the conversation that a letter was going to him and I would be glad if he would give me a written reply. I think before that letter had reached him Mr. Travers came to my office and the interview took place.

Q. Did you give him the letter then and there? A. No, I don't think I did, I think the letter was in the hands of the Department and would probably be sent to him. I do not think I delivered it to him, I have no distinct recollection of that, but I told him there was a letter and it had better go to him and I had better have a reply.

Q. Here is the quotation I wanted to give you on page 412 and page 413; he says he had seen Mr. Boville and at that time Mr. Fielding was preparing his Budget:—

"Q. When did you finally see the Finance Minister? A. I saw him two or three times.

"Notwithstanding the preparation for the budget? A. Later on in the week, not in the early part.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

"Q. On one day or more than one day? A. I think I saw him twice in one day, I am not sure."

A. Anything further as to why he called twice, any explanation?

Q. I will read what he says: "Q. That is all you saw him, was it not, just a couple of times? A. My recollection is I saw him three times.

"Q. On the same day? A. No, twice on one day and once on another day.

"Q. Once on the following day to the two interviews? A. Yes, I saw him one day once and the second day twice, or the first day twice and the second day once; I cannot remember exactly.

"Q. Would your statement to Mr. Hunter be right that you got your certificate in twenty minutes? A. After I had satisfied Mr. Fielding, the last interview lasted about twenty minutes when he gave orders for my certificate to be issued.

"Q. That was the last interview? A. Yes.

"Q. After you delivered your letter to him in reply to his? A. I followed the letter; I sent it over by messenger.

"Q. After you had delivered your letter to him in response to his? A. Yes.

"Your interview lasted twenty minutes? A. I would say about that.

"Q. And at the end of that time you got your certificate? A. Yes."

WITNESS: That would not be correct, he could not have got the certificate in that way and in that manner; he could not have got his certificate till later in the afternoon, after the Treasury Board had dealt with the matter. He has been confusing the interviews he had with some of the officials; to the best of my knowledge and belief I had only the one interview with Mr. Travers.

Q. You see from what I read that he is definite? A. The only explanation I can give is confusing interviews he may have had with my officials and not drawing the line sharply as he should between the Minister and others he met. I certainly never had three interviews with Mr. Travers.

Q. Your recollection is that there was an interview about noon on the 30th? Yes, and probably about noon, certainly somewhere along before lunch, because in my letter I said I would see him before lunch or later in the afternoon at the House of Commons.

Q. Your letter had been dictated or written? A. Yes.

Q. Was it one of your own dictation? A. I dictated my own letter.

Q. And your recollection would be that he saw you then and you mentioned the fact of the letter and discussed whatever was discussed with him? A. Yes.

Q. On that interview? A. Yes.

Q. And then did he go away to answer your letter? A. I think so. I said "You will get the letter and you had better send an answer to it".

Q. When you got his answer, up to that time you had not ordered the issue of the certificate? A. No. I had no right to order the issue of the certificate; the Treasury Board would only have the right to order.

Q. Nothing had been done? A. No. nothing had been done.

Q. Have you any recollection of his coming with the letter? A. I have no recollection; I do not think I ever saw Mr. Travers again on the subject. He may have handed the letter in at the door.

Q. On the receipt of his letter what was done? A. That letter with other papers would be brought in a general way to the notice of the Treasury Board, which occurred that afternoon.

Q. Your letter to Mr. Travers makes mention of the time, it is dated November 30th, perhaps you would like to read it? A. I am familiar with it, but I have no objection.

"Q. Dear Sir: I regret that owing to pressing engagements yesterday, arising out of the Budget I was unable to meet you to consider your application for the issue of a certificate to authorize the Farmers Bank of Canada to commence business. I shall be glad to see you to-day at my office at any time before 1 o'clock if you can call. Or I might be able to see you later between four and five at the House of Commons if that would be more convenient." A. That is correct.

Q. At page 439 he says: "Mr. Fielding discussed the subscribers' list with me.

"Q. What names did he mention? A. He mentioned those Laidlaw names and he mentioned some others that somebody had been kind enough to call his attention to, and I told him that there was no provision in the Bank Act to take those names off the list until after the bank had organized, but that we had sufficient over and above that.

"Q. What were the others he referred to? A. I cannot say exactly which ones they were; if I remember rightly it was Smith and Davidson of Flint, and Hon. Samuel Merner."

"Q. How much was that? A. $5,000."

"Q. That would be fifteen thousand more? A. Then Hon. Mr. Forget, that is $5,000; and then A. H. Hoover's $5,000 more; and he spoke about Lindsay's $50,000, but he made no objection to it; that is my recollection of it."

"Q. Was that at one of the interviews with him? A. Yes."

"Q. On the first day? A. I think it was immediately after Mr. Calvert introduced me to him."

"Q. That was the first interview? A. I think that was the first interview we had; I am not sure about that though."

"Q. Then you think somebody had been telling him about the difficulties regarding the list? A. There was no doubt about it that he had been communicated with or spoken to by numerous people."

WITNESS: Mr. Travers is entirely mistaken. It is not unlikely that my Deputy, Mr. Boville, in his interviews would raise those questions. I certainly did not have that conversation with Mr. Travers.

Q. You remember, perhaps, you know at all events who the Laidlaw subscriptions referred to? A. I do not remember anything particular about a Laidlaw subscription; I know Mr. Laidlaw's name figured in the matter somewhat later, but I have no distinct recollection of discussing with anybody Mr. Laidlaw's subscription.

Q. It was not Mr. Laidlaw's subscription but I was asking you if you understood what was referred to as the Laidlaw subscriptions? A. Not clearly now.

Q. They were subscriptions taken in the County of Halton from persons who afterwards retained Mr. Laidlaw to get their names off the list, and Mr. Travers settled with Mr. Laidlaw's clients and got his action dismissed, and it is those he referred to as being still on the list and he mentioned to you that there was no provision in the Bank Act to take them off the list? A. Certainly I would not open up any such conversation with Mr. Travers and I have no recollection of doing so. He may have discussed it with Mr. Boville. I certainly did not have any such discussion with him. I did not open up the discussion of these names and I have no recollection of these names in particular.

Q. Hon. Mr. Forget is a name you would recollect? A. Yes, I would remember that, because he is a gentleman well known, and I personally did not mention Mr. Forget's name to Mr. Travers.

Q. What about Hon. Samuel Merner? A. I am quite sure I did not raise any question with Mr. Travers as to any of these gentlemen.

Q. What did take place at the interview at which he was introduced by Mr. Calvert? A. The view I expressed to Mr. Travers at the interview was the same as I had expressed in my letter that there was sometimes gossip as to the method and the manner in which these banks were organized, and I was anxious to see— I was undisguisedly hostile to the organization of the bank from the beginning, and

I rather think Mr. Travers knew it—and I wanted him to feel we were anxious about the matter and anxious to see that the law was complied with in every respect.

Q. When you said in your letter, "It has been represented to us that in some previous instances where an application was in all respects apparently regular, there was actually an evasion of the intention of the Bank Act in relation to the paid up capital", were you referring to anything in connection with the Farmers Bank or to the rumors or gossip with regard to other and previous applications? A. It was to the general rumors at that time.

Q. Were you aware at that time of anything concerning the Farmers Bank individually? A. Representations had been made touching matters of that kind from Mr. Leighton McCarthy, and that letter having been withdrawn and the papers returned to him I treated it as out of the case altogether.

Q. You had been made aware of that? A. In a general way, the papers that Mr. McCarthy sent in were brought to my notice, I do not think I ever went through them in detail; they were brought to my notice by the Deputy Minister and I was aware that objections were raised by Mr. McCarthy and that they were withdrawn and as to the details of these objections I did not have them clearly in my mind.

Q. Had you in your mind that that point that you deal with in your letter as having been brought to your notice in previous instances actually existed according to the records of the office in this instance? A. I had not that in mind at the moment; I was wanting to be assured generally that everything was right; I was not having in my mind that particular instance in Mr. McCarthy's letter.

Q. Would it be fair to say you dismissed that from your mind? A. Yes. Mr. McCarthy having raised objections and withdrawn them and having the papers sent back I would largely dismiss that from my mind; I would still be aware of the fact that objections had been filed.

Q. Would they have prompted this letter? A. No, I think not; the letter was prompted from my attitude from the beginning; I was more anxious about it than I had been about any other bank.

Q. Was Mr. Boville aware of your views on the matter? A. Yes.

Q. Was the discussion between you and Mr. Travers confined to this general question or to the particular instance? A. I cannot recollect the details of the discussion, but it would be as to the bona fides and as to the ability of his subscribers to go on, and whether the whole thing was in good faith. My discussion was probably in the nature of a doubt of the whole business and wanting to be reassured.

Q. Had you the Departmental file, containing his application and declaration and prospects and so on before you? A. I had them before me.

Q. At that interview? A. I am not sure whether at that moment, very likely I had them on my desk; I do not recall that I had them all before me.

Q. You think you did not discuss then any of the subscribers at all? A. Individually?

Q. Yes? A. No. I have no recollection and I think I can safely say I did not.

Q. The question I suppose of the subscriptions would that be in your mind or would it be rather whether the subscriptions had been paid up in cash or not? A. I had not any particular transaction with the Farmers Bank in my mind; what I had was a general fear that the bank was not strong, and a regret that these people were going into it, and an anxiety to be assured that all was right.

Q. Did you see Mr. McCarthy's letter withdrawing the charges? A. I think likely I did; if I did not I was certainly told of it; I probably saw it.

Q. It of course does not say that the matters set up in the action were incorrect, it simply says that his clients had been settled with? A. He said he withdrew his objections and asked to have the papers sent back.

Q. They might have been withdrawn and yet the fact might have remained that the charges he made were true, that he was dropping out of it because his clients got their money back? A. He says more than dropping out of it; he said he withdrew the objection and asked to have the papers returned to him.

Q. You ask in this letter, I suppose you asked Mr. Travers verbally as well during the interview, for an assurance that nothing of the kind had taken place in relation to the subscriptions for the Farmers Bank, that is in some cases the subscribers did not actually pay in cash but gave notes to the provisional directors which were used to raise money? A. I have no doubt I did so ask him, although I have no distinct recollection of the conversation, that was its general line.

Q. Was the direction as to the issue of the certificates given in response to his letter which reached you later? A. Nothing was done in response to his letter; the matter was taken to the Treasury Board; no directions were given until after that.

Q. Until after his answer was received? A. No, his answer was received and I think his answer was received quickly.

Q. Mr. Guthrie placed that at about 4 or 4.30 in the afternoon? A. No, I think that must be a mistake.

Q. He says Mr. Travers came in there, and his recollection was that the letter he brought from you, was, as he expressed it, not from the files, indicating it had just been received and been brought over there and he left Mr. Travers dictating it? A. That Mr. Travers had received it about 4 o'clock in the afternoon?

Q. That he brought it into the office at about four o'clock? A. The letter must have been written some time in the morning, because I was making an appointment with Mr. Travers that he would come to me about noon, but I think it had not been delivered; I think Mr. Travers said he had not received it at that particular moment and I think I said he had better forward a reply. I cannot say the time the reply came, I do not know that it would have been vital because I had his declaration, but I thought that I had better have the letter.

Q. Did you bring the matter to the Treasury Board on the receipt of the letter? A. I brought it that afternoon.

Q. You have a recollection of that? A. I would like to say under ordinary circumstances the Treasury Board meets at the office of the Minister of Finance, but in times of pressure which come very often, especially during a Parliamentary session, it is found exceedingly difficult and sometimes impossible to get the members of the Treasury Board together at the desired time, and that leads to meetings being held in a less formal manner, sometimes in the anteroom of the Council Chamber, sometimes in the office of the Minister of Finance at the House of Commons, wherever you can get a quorum to do business. My recollection is this meeting was held in the anteroom of the Council Chamber that afternoon somewhere about three o'clock, just when the Council would be separating to go to the House, at all events in the interim between two and three when we usually collect in Council meetings and very often we would hold a meeting of the Treasury Board. My recollection is that meeting was held in the ante-room of the Council Chamber and it would be somewhere about three o'clock.

Q. In that case would the minutes be sent around to be initialled? A. No, my impression is three Ministers sat down and discussed the matter; I reported to them the history of it and it was agreed that there was no reason why the certificate should not issue.

Q. How do you account then for the minute hearing the initials of yourself, Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. Brodeur? A. Because the Secretary was not present and we put those initials on to indicate we had dealt with the matter.

Q. Was that done at the time? A. Yes. I was not aware that the initials were on, but that is what would naturally be done; if we held a meeting at which the secretary was not present, that very often has to happen, we would put the initials of the members who were present in order that there might be a record of it.

Q. The minute would be prepared I should think after the meeting, it would not be prepared in advance of the meeting? A. It might be, it is quite probable, yes. Measures for the action of the Treasury Board are brought forward in that shape often; it is quite possible.

Q. Do you think that this minute which bears the initials of three Ministers would have been prepared before the Treasury Board met?  A. The initials would not be on; it might have been prepared by my direction, but the initials would not be on till the members of the Treasury Board had discussed the matter.

Q. Would it be before them at the meeting, would they then initial it?  A. Yes, it would be initialled at the meeting.

Q. I understood from the evidence of Mr. Boville that that was a method adopted when no meeting was held, but when a matter had to be dealt with and it was initialled by you and then sent around to a couple of the others?  A. That would also be done in some cases, but my recollection is in this case the three Ministers discussed the subject briefly. I think they were aware from time to time in a very general way of the fact that the Farmers Bank was proceeding to be organized, it was a matter of common knowledge, so it was not a matter which would be entirely new to them, although neither of them had given any special attention to it.

Q. Your recollection differs from Mr. Boville's if I am right in what I think he said, you think there was an actual meeting?  A. Yes, I think there was a meeting; I do not like to speak too positively about a matter which took place six years ago, but my impression is that that matter would be taken up, it would be at a meeting probably held in the ante-room and Mr. Boville would not be present and he would not know how it would be done—get a meeting while the Council was waiting or after the meeting had broken up, and that is my impression that that is the way that happened.

Q. Mr. Boville was not present, and you I suppose would communicate to them whatever you knew?  A. Yes.

Q. What did you communicate to the Treasury Board?  A. I can only speak from general recollection—I would inform them—I did not treat this differently from other matters of business—I would inform them as to the facts of the case and if they wanted further explanation I should give it. I would tell them the objections had been filed and those objections had been withdrawn.

Q. Just in a general way?  A. Yes, if they wanted the papers I would probably have had them there, but they would not go through them in detail perhaps.

Q. I suppose it is pretty hard to remember at this length of time, but do you remember that there was any question raised, or what you actually said to the Treasury Board?  A. No, there was never any question raised by anybody as to the propriety of issuing the certificate to the Farmers Bank; if you leave aside Mr. McCarthy's letter which was withdrawn, and the letter of Sir Edward Clouston, which arrived the day after the certificate was issued, if you eliminate those, never from beginning to end or at any stage was any objection raised to the issue of the certificate of the Farmers Bank.

Q. Are you speaking now from the records?  A. From my knowledge.

Q. From your knowledge of the records?  A. No, I am speaking from general recollection, but if there are any records to the contrary I will bow to them, but I do not think there are.

Q. This is an extract which Mr. Boville produced which is signed by him, and which bears the initials upon it?  A. What would probably happen is that, as I was advising the issue of the certificate, that that would be prepared and I would take it to the Board and they would initial it and would send it back to Mr. Boville and he would sign it; that is the ordinary way of business.

Q. That would be done all in a short space of time, your interview with Mr. Travers about noon and the meeting of the Treasury Board about three?  A. Yes; once we made up our minds that the thing should go through, why of course I would desire to expedite it.
Q. Does Mr. Boville make a written report to you on matters connected with an application of this kind, was that his duty?  A. No.

Q. Why not?  A. It has never been done as far as my knowledge goes, I have no recollection of it; if in any particular I would want a written report from Mr. Boville he would give it, but as a matter of routine he would not make a written report on that.

Q. Somebody would want to go through the files and take the responsibility of saying what the record really showed before an action like this would be taken?  A. That would be the business of the Deputy to bring it before me, not by a written report. I am not aware of any written report usually made by the Deputy.

Q. Do you insist upon the Deputy Minister of Justice reporting upon these matters?  A. You cannot insist upon it being done, it is desirable. We always felt whenever any question of law might arise at all it was well to have the Minister of Justice behind us. We usually had a law officer in the Department, but even then we always thought it wise in matters of importance to make reference to the Minister of Justice.

Q. That would indicate there was the practice in your Department it would be done?  A. Yes, I should say so.

Q. Would it be fair to say that the Deputy Minister was bound to see that the application was in all respects regular, and that the Department of Justice approved of it before it would come to you for official action?  A. Yes, but in the meantime the Deputy would be probably telling me what was going on, probably from day to day I would hear what was going on, and he would tell me, “I have these papers and I am sending them to the Department of Justice”. If he did not scan the papers carefully there would be no one in the Department that really would take the responsibility of saying “I have gone through everything, I have investigated everything and I report that the formalities required by the Department have been gone through”?  A. That would be his business.

Q. That would be his business?  A. Yes, not by a written report, but it would be his business to examine all the papers and report the results to me. Of course the responsibility would be mine, not his; I am not putting any responsibility upon him.

Q. After the Treasury Board had met and that minute had been initialled, did you see Mr. Travers?  A. No.

Q. Not at all?  A. No.

Q. Who would conduct the subsequent negotiations, or business with him?  A. The Deputy Minister.

Q. Who had power to sign the cheque which returned the deposit?  A. The Deputy Minister.

Q. The fact appears that the very thing that you dealt with in your letter to him of November 30th, had taken place; you were, of course, not aware of that. Did you notice, or did any one notice that when his letter came back it did not deal with the point that you had raised, namely, that the notes had been used to raise the money, that he limits his answer to the fact that the provisional directors did not do that?  A. I do not think I took particular notice of the point; I do not recall it.

Q. Was that letter received by Mr. Boville and by him transmitted to you, or did you get it and personally deal with it?  A. I could not say from memory; I am sure it came before me.

Q. You had, of course, a very distinct affidavit from him that the money that had been paid in had been paid in by these individual subscribers; in his declaration he states that?  A. Yes.

Q. Was any doubt suggested to you by anybody as to the truth of that?  A. No, it was my general anxiety about the whole business that led me to talk to Mr. Travers about it and write him the letter. It was not the result of any particular statement or any particular doubt as to any particular thing.
Q. Apparently it was the declaration that was submitted to the Department of Justice and that they had acted upon in advising? A. Yes.

Q. And that was sufficient for that; what was the object of getting that letter dealing with the same point if there was no suspicion? A. The affidavit ought to be the stronger document. I can only say as I said before, that my anxiety about the whole business made me anxious to have the assurance doubly sure, even with the affidavit before me, and I said to Mr. Travers as I had written this letter he had better reply to it.

Q. It would seem natural, I should say, that there would be some discussion with regard to the subscriptions which were upon that list as to whether they were or were not bona fide? A. Not as to detail with me.

Q. For instance, he refers particularly to the Lindsay subscription which is a very large one? A. I never discussed it with Mr. Travers. My Deputy may have done so; my discussion with Mr. Travers was very general as to the bona fides of the whole thing.

Q. Did Travers resent at all the facts that the affidavit was not accepted as truthful? A. I do not think so; he was coming to me practically to get the certificate, and I suppose he recognized I had the right to question him about it; I do not think he showed any resentment.

Q. You did not, of course, put it to him in the way of indicating that you doubted his declaration? A. No, it would be rather an unpleasant way to put it to him and I would not do it.

Q. I suppose you did doubt it? A. No; it is hardly fair to say I doubted; I was anxious and I felt that if I could get any further assurance which would help to make my mind better satisfied.

Q. It appears from the documents sent down by Mr. McCarthy that the charge was made—a letter written to yourself—that the deposit had been made or will be made of the cash received and the proceeds of these notes, or sufficient amount to make up $250,000—that statement had been made in a letter to you of October 19th; I suppose you saw that letter, it was addressed to yourself? A. I have no doubt I saw it, or at all events its contents would be communicated to me.

Q. Do you know Mr. McCarthy? A. Yes.

Q. He was a long time a member of the House? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember getting a telegram from him? A. Yes, I think the records show it.

Q. Asking for an appointment, that he would come down? A. Yes.

Q. Notwithstanding the fact that his clients had been settled with, it might still be the case that these notes might have been used in the way he said they had been used; did that phase of it occur to your mind at all? A. No; when Mr. McCarthy wrote to withdraw his objection and asked to have the papers returned I confess I dismissed the McCarthy incident from my mind. It ceased to make any effect upon me.

Q. He claims that these certain subscribers had been unfairly dealt with and he also goes on to allege the very thing which your mind apparently on the date the certificate was issued was troubled about; looking back on it, don’t you think some inquiry ought to have been made on that point, notwithstanding his withdrawal? A. I suppose we can all be wise after the event; looking back over it now, yes; but as I did it at that time, no. Mr. McCarthy having withdrawn his objections and asked for the papers back, and we having the affidavit of Mr. Travers, I think in the face of all that, the evidence was complete, as complete as in any previous case.

Q. Mr. McCarthy did not see you at any time? A. No, I never saw Mr. McCarthy on the subject at any time.
Q. Previous to Mr. McCarthy’s letter had you seen and had a discussion with Mr. David Henderson, who was Member of Parliament for Halton? A. With regard to the issue of the certificate, never.

Q. Not with regard to the issue of the certificate? A. Never.

Q. Mr. Henderson says that he saw one of these very notes which had been given for stock in the hands of a lawyer who had got it back from Travers, says he saw it in the train, and Parliament meeting shortly after that in November he came down; that he spoke to you about it? A. If Mr. Henderson implies that he ever said anything to me about raising any objection to the issue of the certificate he is mistaken. I had several conversations which Mr. Henderson from time to time about the Farmers Bank but not along the lines thus referred to.

Q. At page 10 he says, “I was shown several notes made by shareholders, farmers in my County, and I saw on the back of these notes the endorsement of the provisional directors”. Then on page 11:

“Q. What communication did you make then and to whom in consequence of what you saw and heard from Mr. Laidlaw? A. I casually met Mr. Fielding and informed him that I had seen notes of shareholders in the possession of Mr. Laidlaw, endorsed by provisional directors, and presumably it was for the purpose of raising money to make the deposits, as the time had nearly expired. Our conversation lasted only for a few minutes and was along that line.

“Q. Can you give us in any more detail what was said by you and by him, or is what you have told us the general tenor of it? A. By Mr. Fielding?

“Q. Yes? A. I mentioned the circumstance which I have detailed to you, and Mr. Fielding I think seemed somewhat surprised, at any rate he answered me by saying that he would hold back the certificate as long as he could”?

A. Mr. Henderson is mistaken as to the tenor of my conversations with him from time to time.

Q. As to that particular one, he got down there with his mind full of having seen the notes? A. I am quite satisfied Mr. Henderson is mistaken; not as to having seen the notes, but I am quite satisfied he is mistaken as to the tenor of the conversation with me.

Mr. Commissioner: Do you desire to say what the general tenor was? A. Yes, not merely of that conversation, but generally. Mr. Henderson was a very attentive member of the Banking and Commerce Committee, and when there was no party questions up, he and I generally agreed and talked very freely about business that came before the Committee. We met outside in a casual way. Mr. Henderson was aware that I looked upon this Farmers Bank in its later stages of incorporation with doubt and hesitation and that I was opposing it, and occasionally when we met we talked on the matter on several occasions and usually in and about the Parliament Buildings, or meetings, and on one or two occasions we had conversations about the Farmers Bank; it was always on that line that I was expressing my regret that a number of farmers were going into this enterprise for which I thought they were not particularly well qualified, and the responsibility with which they were not familiar, and I thought it was a great pity. I talked with Mr. Henderson from the fact of our having a habit of chatting about different matters: and I learned that some of Mr. Henderson’s constituents were taking stock in the bank—there was no question of the bona fides of the notes—and I expressed my regret at their doing so. Mr. Henderson, apart from raising any objections, said he quite agreed with me it was a pity they were doing it, but I would never do for him to interfere; he was not going to put himself in the position of obstructing these people in getting their bank organized; that was the line of the conversation between Mr. Henderson and myself.

Q. Would you say the conversation which Mr. Henderson relates, when he came down to Ottawa, having a few days before seen this note, did not occur? A. I think, sir, that my own feelings towards the bank were such that if Mr.
Henderson or anybody else had given me any tangible information to justify the refusal of that certificate, I would have been anxious to have it, and if that conversation had occurred I think it would have made a deep impression on my mind. I have no recollection of it whatever, and my impression is that Mr. Henderson is mistaken.

Q. You have no recollection of that conversation? A. No, and I do not think it took place; and I think Mr. Henderson makes the statement in all good faith, I do not for a moment question his intentions.

Q. He puts it in this way, Parliament met on the 22nd and the certificate was granted on the 30th? A. After the bank got into trouble and failed there are lots of people quite willing to blame some one else.

Q. This is a circumstantial account he gives? A. I know the circumstantial account that Mr. Henderson gave to me, that he was not going to stand in the way and have the farmers say he was opposing them in the organization of the bank. That was the only precise information he gave me, and I do not blame him for that.

Q. That would have occurred between the meeting of Parliament on the 22nd and the granting of the certificate on the 30th? A. No, it probably occurred before that; I do not remember discussing with him the propriety of granting the certificate at all. My conversation would be bearing on the extension of the charter, the getting of the subscriptions, the whole movement; the conversation I speak of with Mr. Henderson would not have reference to the granting of the certificate particularly. Mr. Henderson never waited on me on the subject in his life; we met around the Parliament grounds and occasionally had conversation; I think the day the certificate was granted, I think I ran across Mr. Henderson, and I said, “Well, I have had to give these people their certificate and am rather sorry for it”. Mr. Henderson never gave me at any time any reason why the certificate should not be granted.

Q. In speaking of Mr. Henderson’s conversations with you, would you say any such conversation occurred between the meeting of Parliament and the time of the granting of the certificate? A. My impression is that he is wrong about saying he saw the notes, I think that would have made an impression on my mind.

Q. You are speaking of the general tenor of his conversations—? A. That has reference prior to that, arising out of the objections I raised to the forming of the bank, or canvassing for capital, my knowledge they were getting some of his constituents to go into this bank, I was expressing my regret, and he says, “Well, it is a pity, I agree with you, but I am not going to stand in the way”.

Q. You think that was after the extension? A. Or probably in connection with it.

Q. If Mr. Henderson is right in saying he saw those notes in the hands of Mr. Laidlaw you are not suggesting that when he came down to Parliament he made such a statement to you as the general tenor of his conversation? A. No, I have no recollection of meeting him and saying “Well, I had to issue that certificate to-day” and I think he felt, as I did, it is a pity, but it had to be done.

Q. When Mr. Henderson says that he had a subsequent conversation with you after the certificate had been granted—? A. That must have been the conversation to which I have just alluded.

Q. What did he say in answer to your remark that you had granted it and were somewhat sorry for it? A. I think Mr. Henderson’s attitude was very much the same as my own, it is a pity this thing had to be done, there was no help for it, and he raised no objection. I say if Mr. Henderson knew that that certificate was fraudulently obtained it was his duty instantly to call me to account in Parliament for it; and I believe he would have done so; I think he is mistaken in later years in attributing this conversation to him and to myself at that time, and I am satisfied if Mr. Henderson had known that that certificate was fraudulently obtained, it would have been his duty in Parliament to call the attention of the public to it and warn them.

Q. He had the information from Mr. Laidlaw which the Department had previously to that? A. If the Department neglected its duty that was no reason why he should neglect his.

Q. Would he be right in connection with the second interview he says he had with you after the certificate was granted: on page 13 he says: “I met Mr. Fielding in the lobby of the House of Commons, he was either going in and I was going out, or I was going in and he was going out, I don’t remember which, but I remember very well it was in the lobby of the House of Commons and Mr. Fielding approached me himself and he said to me that Mr. Travers had been down: that was the communication he made to me.

“Q. What occurred then, what further was said? A. He stated that Mr. Travers had been down and he had brought his money; that he had asked him, that he had put it up to him—he did not say definitely what he had put up to him; he left me to assume on account of our conversation within a few days before that it was I had told him—and that Mr. Travers had denied it, and he asked him to give him a letter to that effect and he said he did so; and he says, ‘I then gave him the certificate’.”

A. No; there is a portion of that which is correct and a certain portion which is not: Mr. Henderson says I put it up to him what he said to me—that is entirely wrong. What happened was that meeting Mr. Henderson that evening, I have no recollection of the part of the House.—It was probably in the House,—that I told Mr. Henderson, “Well, I have given these people the certificate, or the Treasury Board has given these people the certificate, but I am sorry to do it, but there was nothing against it”. I no doubt told him that Mr. Travers had been down and no doubt he had filed his affidavit; that part of it is substantially correct; but Mr. Henderson certainly offered no objection to the granting of the certificate and found no fault with the granting of the certificate. I am not questioning the veracity of Mr. Henderson, he is an old gentleman that I have every respect for, but we can all be a little erroneous on matters six years ago.

Q. What about Sir Edmund Osler’s statement, do you remember a conversation with him at all? A. There was a conversation with Mr. Osler.

Q. When was that? A. It must have been very close to the granting of the certificate. I think an inference has been drawn from that too which is unfair, although the substance of the report may be correct.

Q. What he says at page 130 is:

“Q. Had you an interview on the subject of the Farmers Bank at all with Mr. Fielding, the Finance Minister? A. Yes.

“Q. Was that before or after the certificate was granted? A. Before the certificate was granted.

“Q. Was it at Ottawa? A. Yes.

“Q. We are told that the House sat about the 22nd of November in that year? A. I do not recollect.

“Q. We will have to prove that in some other way; was it after the session began in 1906? A. Yes.

“Q. What was your interview with him, what occurred during that interview? A. I told Mr. Fielding that I had knowledge that the money that was deposited there was practically obtained by false pretences, that it was not bona fide money obtained by stock subscriptions.

“Q. What money did you refer to? A. The money that was deposited with the Government pending the issue of the certificate.

“Q. Did you go any more into detail? A. No, I told him that I knew, as a matter of personal knowledge that it was not straight—
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

"Q. What further was said, did the Finance Minister say anything or discuss it with you?  A. He said he was very anxious about it, and it all passed off.

"Q. That is practically all?  A. Yes, that was all until after the certificate was issued. I again saw Mr. Fielding and said I was very sorry the certificate had been issued."

A. I remember an interview with Mr. Osler. Mr. Osler's attitude in the whole matter was precisely the same as my own. He, as a banker, was anxious about the matter and sorry to see this movement going on too; he would have been very glad if there had been any good reason to prevent it going on. I have no distinct recollection of the words of his conversation, but what I would say he told was that he was afraid they were adopting those methods. I do not think he spoke so emphatically as is therein reported. I have no doubt he did express himself that the subscriptions were being obtained in this way, but he certainly did not give or pretend to give any information to prevent the granting of the certificate. His attitude was one of regret, as my own was, and Mr. Osler never pretended to give me any facts which would justify withholding the certificate; and against any impressions he might have there was the sworn statement of Mr. Travers, who at that time and for years afterwards, was a reputable man. I could not take the doubts and fears of Mr. Osler as better evidence than the sworn statement of Mr. Travers.

Q. If Mr. Osler said it was not bona fide money obtained by stock subscriptions, you think that would be no reason for withholding the certificate?  A. Against that you have the sworn statement of Mr. Travers that everything was bona fide and I must say I do not think I would be justified in taking the doubts and fears of Mr. Osler as of greater value than the sworn statement of Mr. Travers.

Q. That is weighing one against the other?  A. I did not mean that; Mr. Osler did not give or pretend to give me any reason for the refusal of the certificate. His attitude was like my own, one of anxiety and regret that this was being organized and no doubt I told him that we could only comply with the law. He knew I was unfriendly to the bank from the beginning and he knew I would welcome any information he could give, and he never gave me or pretended to give me any information I could act on. He may have mentioned about raising money in that way, no doubt he did, but I do not think he spoke of it in such an emphatic way as he there says.

Q. What way, you said, raising money in that way?  A. What is that?

Q. You said in your answer he may have said to you, no doubt did, that they were raising money in that way?  A. He may have said that they were raising money in the way of notes; I do not distinctly recollect. Mr. Osler's attitude was the same as my own, one of anxiety but he did not give or pretend to give any statement of fact.

Q. If he did state they were obtaining money in that way by the discounting of notes that is what I understood you to say you meant?  A. I have no distinct recollection of his words.

Q. If that statement or a similar statement to that was made, would that be any reason why the certificate should not be granted?  A. Not against the sworn statement of Mr. Travers, who for years was a man of reputable standing.

Q. That is weighing one against the other?  A. Not exactly, but I do not think Mr. Osler pretended to give anything which would prevent the granting of the certificate.

Q. If he did say they were raising money by the discount of notes, or anything that led your mind to the conclusion that that was the method adopted would that in your mind have been a sufficient reason for withholding the certificate?  A. I think if Mr. Osler had made the statement or I had understood him to make it in the precise terms you have just read I probably would have examined him—"What evidence have you to go on?" Give me some evidence to go
The impression made on my mind was that Mr. Osler was regretting it as I was regretting it, and I told Mr. Osler afterwards "I have given the certificate, but I had to do it".

Q. Who would be the person to investigate if it were true that they were obtaining money in that way? A. What form of investigation could take place?

Q. I want to know? All matters of routine in the Department would pass through the hands of my Deputy, but I am responsible; I am not throwing the responsibility on anybody else.

Q. The Bank Act says, if I recollect right that the Treasury Board shall be satisfied by affidavit or otherwise? A. They were satisfied by affidavit.

Q. We were dealing just with the question of investigation, who would have the power to investigate? A. The Treasury Board would, no doubt—

Q. If either of these gentlemen are right that that was communicated to you it would be in the power of the Finance Department for you to ascertain, would it not? A. If these gentlemen had informed me in any substantial manner, I would have found some way to investigate but I am quite sure that in neither case did they give me reasons against the granting of the certificate, nor did they find fault with the granting of the certificate when I informed them it was granted. If Mr. Osler knew that that bank was fraudulently organized, it is inconceivable he would have allowed it to go on without a public protest. The fact that he said nothing shows he felt the same way as I did. If he knew it was fraudulently organized it was his duty to warn the public.

Q. Would you say that to be your duty? A. Yes, if I knew it to be fraudulently organized, but I did not.

Q. When you got Sir Edward Clouston's letter the following morning did you attach any importance to that? A. That letter arrived after the matter was settled and the certificate delivered and there was nothing much to be investigated. We had the opinion of Sir Edward and he had to get the information from others and against that we had the sworn statement of Mr. Travers. The difficulty is in these days Mr. Travers is a discredited person, but at that time Mr. Travers was a reputable person, and for years afterwards, and I was a perfectly justified in treating him as any other reputable citizen of Canada.

Q. You say Sir Edward's statement is from others; he says: "I have reason to believe that the money lodged or to be lodged at Ottawa as stock subscriptions cannot be regarded as paid up capital, and that a large proportion of the amount necessary to the obtaining of a certificate is a loan made upon the promise of its payment when returned by your Department. Permit me to request that, if only for the protection of the public, the Treasury Board will exercise its right to refuse to issue a certificate if it thinks best to do so, until a further investigation has been made into the circumstances stated herein"—that seems to be a pretty definite statement? A. After the certificate had been issued.

Q. Did you ascertain from the Department of Justice or otherwise that you had no power to recall it or stay it? A. I do not remember; I think at the time I regarded the affidavit and the statements of Mr. Travers as substantially correct and the statements of other gentlemen I looked upon as made in good faith, but made upon information that had reached them. I do not think any of these things would be taken as an answer to the affidavit of Mr. Travers.

Q. There was nothing to prevent what they stated being examined into? A. In the case of Sir Edward Clouston the matter was ended.

Q. I am speaking of prior to? A. My impression is we had no power to recall it. I do not think we took any formal opinion from the Department of Justice; my understanding is we had no power to recall the certificate once issued.

Q. Do you know the bank did not go into operation till the 2nd January, 1907? A. That would have to be a matter of record; I do not know that. no.
Q. Did you make any efforts—it has been stated efforts were made to recall the certificate? A. No.

Q. You made no effort to recall it? A. No. I understood I had no right to: I do not think I took any formal opinion from the Department of Justice, but I think that is the fact.

Q. It has been said that an effort was made to recover it that night either by your direction or through yourself? A. By whom, sir, did they state?

Q. It has been stated to me and I have questioned Travers about it? A. Nothing of the kind ever occurred. Somebody asked that question in the House of Commons, but it was a mere fishing expedition; nothing of the kind ever occurred.

Q. You dictated an answer to be given to Sir Edward Clouston? A. I presume I did; I see the answer is there.

Q. In that letter Mr. Boville states: "On Friday last, the day after the delivery of the Budget speech, Mr. Travers, the general manager, had an interview with him (Mr. Fielding). In the course of this interview that gentleman gave a most positive assurance that not a dollar of the amount deposited had been borrowed." Would that be right? A. That would be correct.

Q. Is that the recollection of your interview with Mr. Travers? A. My recollection is Mr. Travers gave me absolutely it was all cash, not borrowed money; that was the general effect of the interview.

Q. After that letter had been written in reply to Mr. Clouston's, you got some further information did you not in December owing to a visit that Mr. Knight made in Toronto to the Farmers Bank; Mr. George Burn said that he saw you? A. I had a conversation with Mr. Burn.

Q. Did that relate to the deposit with the Trusts & Guarantee Company? A. I think Mr. Burn and I occasionally talked over bank affairs, and I am sure we talked occasionally over the Farmers Bank affairs, and I think the particular conversation to which he refers occurred after the certificate was issued, and probably Mr. Burn was well aware of my attitude all the way through, and I think he said to me, I am pretty certain now it was that same evening, he says, "Mr. Stratton is in town and he can, I am told, give some information as to how the thing was financed "; and I think something along these lines Mr. Burn stated to me; I think it must have been either the same evening or the next day immediately after the certificate was issued.

Q. What did you say to him? A. I did not say to him anything particularly; the thing was settled, there was nothing more to be done.

Q. The money had been borrowed, and borrowed from the Trusts & Guarantee Company, of which Mr. Stratton was the head, and it had been paid back up to the 17th December, and on the 18th December Mr. Knight appeared in Toronto, and in order to allay his suspicions, he went to the Trusts & Guarantee Company and got a certificate that this loan, although paid back, was still existing, and Mr. Knight was not satisfied and he telephoned Mr. Burn that Mr. Stratton ought to be seen about it, and Mr. Burn said he went to you and asked you to see Mr. Stratton; did he communicate Mr. Knight's statements? A. I do not remember much about Mr. Knight. Mr. Knight would telephone Mr. Burn. I do not think Mr. Burn came to me; we often met and chatted about things. If he says he came to me that would be correct. It was after the certificate was issued. I do not remember him coming to me for that purpose; however, I remember him stating Mr. Stratton was in town, and he could give information. I did not think I was bound to go and call on Mr. Stratton. I did not see Mr. Stratton from beginning to end and I did not feel I should go and call on Mr. Stratton.

Q. Was any information given to you by Mr. Burn that the money had been borrowed upon these notes from that company and had been reversed? A. That something of the kind was indicated and Mr. Stratton had knowledge of it.
Q. Did you see Mr. Stratton? A. I never saw Mr. Stratton in the matter at any time.

Q. Was it your view, this being closed—? A. The matter was closed and my impression was, I do not say I took any legal advice, I think I must have got it as the legal view that we could not recall the certificate.

Q. I have spoken to you about the original introduction by Mr. Calvert; were you aware of his previous connection with the Farmers Bank other than he had possibly interested himself in regard to the renewal of the charter? A. No, not in any way. I think the papers show that his name was mentioned in the prospectus; I only get that from the papers themselves; I have no knowledge of Mr. Calvert in connection with the matter whatever.

The Commission adjourned at 12.30 p.m. to 2.15 p.m.

The Commission resumed at 2.15 p.m., June 10th, 1912.

HON. W. S. FIELDING, Examination Continued:—

MR. HODGINS: You did not then at all know of Mr. Calvert canvassing in any way for the stock in the bank? A. No, I never heard of it.

Q. He was the chief whip of the Liberal party? A. Yes, I don't know whether he was at that time or not; he was chief whip, but I do not remember whether at that time, very likely.

Q. Had he any conversation other than when he brought Mr. Travers to you? A. Never.

Q. Speaking about the bank itself? A. About the certificate?

Q. About the bank itself? A. He was present in the Committee at the time of the charter and made some remarks there, either to me or to the Committee, but except what occurred in the Committee Room I never saw Mr. Calvert in any shape or form.

Q. The prospectus filed at the Department contains quite a number of names, I think only one of them was then a member of Parliament, Mr. W. S. Calvert; I see he is the only one that is mentioned as a member of Parliament; was any inquiry made from any of the gentlemen who are mentioned? A. Not to my knowledge; at the time the certificate was granted these gentlemen's names were not in evidence; the names of the directors were given, but the names appearing in the earlier papers did not appear at the time the certificate was granted.

Q. When Mr. Travers made his declaration the prospectus mentioning his names accompanied it as one of the exhibits? A. It would be part of the whole record, yes.

Q. Is it the practice at all to make inquiries from those mentioned in the prospectus? A. I think not; I am not aware of it ever having been done in the previous records of the Department.

Q. You used an expression this morning like this, that at that time Mr. Travers was not a discredited man in any way, that his record was apparently good? A. As far as I knew, yes.

Q. Were any inquiries made as to that? A. No.

Q. Or any into the standing of those mentioned as directors? A. I think they were men of good repute generally; one of them I knew, Colonel McLennan, as a man of high standing, but if you mean whether particular and special inquiry were made, no; I think generally these men were known, not all to me.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Colonel McLennan, of Cornwall, and Colonel Munro? A. I think I had met Colonel Munro probably.

Q. Was not he a member of Parliament? A. He was never a member of Parliament in my day.

Q. I see that in the declaration that he is mentioned as M.P.? A. No, he was not in Parliament in my day, during the last 15 years.

Q. Allen Eaton? A. I could not speak.

Q. Robert Noble? A. I did not know them personally. I think in a general way they were reported to be gentlemen in good standing, but I made no special inquiries.

Q. That is apart from what you may have known, you made no inquiry? A. If there had been any special inquiry it would have been made a matter of record, and I think there is no such record.

Q. There is one expression you used in a debate which I saw indicating that you thought Travers came to you as the agent of the shareholders represented—well, from Hamilton? A. All the shareholders who had authorized the meeting to be held, he came on behalf of the bank’s shareholders as provisional manager.

Q. There has been a question raised as to whether the actual subscriptions came down to Ottawa; Travers says he sent them down or had them sent down and received them here and he took them into Mr. Boville’s office; was any mention made to you about them? A. I have no recollection of that, but Mr. Boville could testify of that; I have no particular recollection concerning that.

Q. We did not know when Mr. Boville was being examined? A. He is accessible.

Q. I understand he is away on his holidays? A. I could not speak of that positively; I have no particular recollection of that, that would be a matter of detail which Mr. Boville would deal with.

Q. At first he gave me the impression that he had gone over them with you, but Mr. Travers afterwards made that clear that it was Mr. Boville, he thought, into whose room he had taken them. There was a matter in reference to Mr. Henderson’s evidence that I did not speak to you about, I overlooked it; I would like to ask you about it. It refers to a much later date than the conversations we have been discussing. Mr. Henderson had learned that there was a deposit receipt out in New York, and he said he had a conversation with you in the latter part of 1910 before he left to go home after the prorogation, he thinks about two years after the first interview, and he says there at page 14: “On that occasion I went to Mr. Fielding’s room in the House of Commons, to his office to see him personally. I had information that there was something of a very peculiar character which seemed to me would materially affect the bank’s interest, and its standing, and I felt, as I said before, very naturally worried and anxious about it, and I called on Mr. Fielding and told him what I had learned.” I may say this is in reference to that insurance matter in Syracuse? A. Yes.

Q. “He was familiar with the facts himself, as much so as I was, and after chatting a few moments about it he turned to me and said: ‘Well, Henderson, I don’t know why you should worry over this, you are not responsible for it and besides you did warn the Government’”? A. That conversation never took place in the terms that Mr. Henderson is there reported.

Q. Have you a recollection of that? A. I have no distinct recollection of the conversation, but as I was in the habit of having conversations with Mr. Henderson I will not say he did not come into my room in the House of Commons, possibly he did; I would not contradict him on that point, and possibly I had information about this deposit receipt and likely I told him about it, quite as likely as he told me, but when he says I made that remark that he had no responsibility that would be a superfluous thing, as, of course he had no responsi-ability; but after saying that Mr. Henderson warned me he is entirely mistaken; I never made any such remark to him. He has confused it with something else.

Q. Do I understand you did not make the remark that he says you did, that he did warn the Government? A. Most certainly I never said such a thing to Mr. Henderson and he never did warn the Government in any shape or form; on the contrary, he was careful to say he did not want to take any responsibility himself.

Q. If Mr. Henderson and Sir Edmund Osler had put their statements in writing would it have made any difference to you before the granting of the certificate? A. It might; I would have been obliged to take them before the Treasury Board and report, but I cannot say what it would have done, but I think the mere opinion or doubts or fears of Mr. Henderson or Mr. Osler as against the sworn testimony of Mr. Travers would hardly make a case; but one could hardly say what would be done, because my colleagues of the Treasury Board might have thought it more important. I was so anxious that this bank should not have gone on, that if I had got any tangible evidence from any quarter I would have welcomed it, and that is why I am able to say so positively that nothing of the kind occurred.

Q. Do you feel that you had present in your mind everything that appears upon the files of the Department in writing relating to this? A. Regarding the matter which you dwelt on to-day, the letter of Mr. McCarthy as having been withdrawn and his objection being withdrawn, it ceased to have any weight upon my mind; the matter I had before me was the sworn testimony of Mr. Travers, a man of good repute, and while I was sorry the occasion required it, it appeared to me my duty to grant the certificate; he had complied with the law as far as any bank had complied with it, and if I had advised against the certificate it would have been said I was applying different rules in this case from those which I had applied to others.

Q. I fancy in no other case that a communication such as that of Mr. McCarthy had been made to the Department? A. I say Mr. McCarthy’s communication having been withdrawn I regarded it as no longer there.

Q. In his letter of October 8th, he says: “I have not time to-night to give you a full statement of the ground of this request to you, but I beg to assure that grave conditions have arisen which will require careful consideration before the Treasury Board would grant any certificate for the organization of this bank.” You think the withdrawal of his request would entirely put an end to the matter so far as the Finance Department was concerned? A. No, it was subsequent to that we had the affidavit of Mr. Travers and the withdrawal of the papers did not put an end to it; there were later developments. Mr. Travers’ affidavit came in after that. Rightly or wrongly, that was regarded as the vital thing, as it had been in previous cases.

Q. Were you aware that although the papers had been returned to Mr. McCarthy there were copies kept on the file of the Department which could have been laid before the Treasury Board and considered by yourself? A. I am not quite sure, I have the impression that Mr. Boville made some notes of it, I do not think he kept complete copies; I would rather he be examined on that. I do not think he kept complete copies; I think he took some notes.

Q. The copy of the endorsement on the writ which made the charges was kept? A. It is very likely. Mr. Boville would know of that.

Q. In addition to that particular matter it was stated in the writ that the provisional directors had expended very large sums of money improperly; does that matter enter into the consideration of the Finance Department or the Treasury Board when considering the paid-up capital—what I mean is this, they carried as part of their paid-up capital and so returned it, moneys which they alleged had been received from shareholders but had been expended to the extent of $10,000 in what are called preliminary expenses? A. Well that would be part of the whole papers which were withdrawn, that would not leave any impression upon my mind. I would consider that the whole transaction there was that Mr. McCarthy represented a number of shareholders and filed certain objections and wanted to be heard, and we said come along and we will hear you and we will do nothing until we hear from you, and after that Mr. McCarthy writes and says he withdraws the papers, the matter had been settled and wishes to have the papers sent back. That disposed of the matter. The general allegations set out in a writ; I am afraid, do not have the same weight in my mind as it would have in some others; I know that lawyers are very apt to set out a great many things in writs.

Q. What seems to have been Sir Allen Aylesworth’s view? A. Yes, but I have had experience, I have had an election petition and I know things are set out in writs.

Q. What Sir Allen said was: “I want to impress upon every one that no one reading the lawyer’s allegations upon a written summons or other legal documents is bound to accept those statements as being statements which necessarily will afterwards be established by proof”—you agreed with him; but would you agree with what he says before I do not mean for a moment to say that no one should take otherwise than as serious the charges made in any legal document which may come to his notice? A. I think I would agree with him.

Q. And where he said, “if the writ had been issued making one specific charge I grant it would have been a circumstance to which considerable attention would have been drawn”—that is if it had been confined to the fact that money was being raised upon the notes? A. That is a matter of Sir Allen’s opinion and I think probably that is reasonable.

Q. In dealing for a moment, if I may, with the events immediately preceding the granting of the certificate, would the trouble have been averted, had you, for instance, stopped the payment of the cheque or taken some action not quite so drastic as that; supposing you had telegraphed Mr. Travers not to use it, that you wished to make further inquiry, would that have been anything unreasonable or unusual? A. I think it would certainly have been unusual, I would say unreasonable, I might almost say, if a layman may say so, unlawful. My opinion is that once the certificate issued we had no power to deal with it.

Q. You had under the Bank Act a right to ask for special return? A. Yes.

Q. What was the object of that? A. That has been in the Bank Act for many years; it is a little power of investigation which the Government has, it is a little pressure you can bring to bear, because those returns are not very often made public or they might possibly be misleading or do harm, but the asking for a return shows that the Department is keeping an eye on the bank and it has a wholesome effect; it has no legal effect.

Q. Has it any effect in founding action by the Finance Department? A. That is rather too general a question for me to answer.

Q. There is a concrete instance: not very long after the bank started, Mr. VanKoughnet wrote down to say that these shareholders’ notes were being discounted in the bank at Milton to the extent of some $110,000 and the Department wrote for a special return which was made; that special return disclosed there was only $50,000 all told made up of discounted shareholders’ notes and the discrepancies between the two amounts would strike anybody. If that had been noted in the Department was there anything that the Department could do? A. I know the papers show that that correspondence occurred. I have no recollection particularly about it. The papers show there was that correspondence but I have no particular recollection about it. I suppose Mr. Boville mentioned it to me but I cannot recall the facts.

Q. Supposing that was so, and it came in and was noticed by the Finance Department, is there anything they could do, having called for the special return and got it, but being dissatisfied with it? A. I do not know anything that could be done under the special return except to call the attention of the bank authorities to anything which we deemed worthy of attention; I do not know of any action we could take under the bank return; that would be a matter for legal opinion but I do not know of any, speaking offhand.

Q. Would there be any objection? A. We should not do it without legal advice; taking action of any sort after a bank is a going concern would be a very grave matter. Before the bank is actually organized it is easier but after a bank is a going concern and you take action against it in any public way you make trouble for the bank and in the case of a panic the Department would be blamed and they would be told, "you did not need to go into this thing, there was no need of it".

Q. Would that be the case the day after the certificate was granted? A. No, but the day after that certificate was granted I had no evidence there was anything fraudulent. I say if any gentleman knew that there was anything fraudulent it was their duty to make public disclosure of the matter. If I had believed there was anything fraudulent I should have done so.

Q. They do not appear to have been given any opportunity by the Department to lay their case before it? A. I am not aware of anybody seeking an opportunity.

Q. Sir Edward Clouston's letter suggests inquiry by your Department? A. Exactly, and thereupon the Deputy Minister wrote stating the case to Sir Edward Clouston, and so far as I knew, I never heard a word of it further; and the Bankers Association began to take this bank into their arms and the Clearing House in Toronto; and evidently they did not believe it was fraudulent.

Q. Perhaps as you had granted the certificate they were obliged to do it? A. It would not oblige them to take them into the Toronto Clearing House.

Q. What power would they have to refuse? A. I think the Clearing House is a voluntary association and they can take in whom they like.

Q. I do not recollect seeing that they have any powers of investigation? A. I do not think the Clearing House is a legal organization; I think it is a voluntary association much as a club; the Bank Act will tell you that better.

Q. What could they have done that the Finance Department could not have done? A. If they had known it was a fraudulent organization they need not have recognized it; and Mr. Henderson and Mr. Osler could have called me to account in Parliament, and the bank you say did not commence operations for a month and these gentlemen then knew, according to their evidence, that this was a fraudulent concern.

Q. Is that any different from your position? A. I had no belief there was any fraud; they say they did.

Q. If they had made a charge in Parliament what would have resulted? A. It would have resulted in the bank going ahead, but if any one should call public attention to it no one would put money in the bank. My view is that these gentlemen while they were anxious about the matter they did not have any grounds to make an accusation against the bank and therefore they did not make it.

Q. Of course any investigation made would disclose there were very good grounds? A. I agree to that in the light of past events.

Q. They may have felt that if the Department did not investigate on what they had said, and the Finance Department having granted the certificate it practically said there was nothing in their complaint—A. Yes, and as a member they simply had to call me to account.

Q. That would be for political action? A. They did not hesitate to take political action later; when the trouble arose they did not hesitate to blame the Finance Department.

Q. Would there have been action taken if they had taken it up immediately? A. I take it for granted if there had been public discussion of that nature and the facts be as they say, the bank could not have gone on, public opinion would not have permitted it to go on.

Q. You put the boot on the other leg? A. I think these men have sought to put blame on the Minister of Finance, which I think is very unfair; they convey the impression that they had knowledge which they conveyed to me that this thing was fraudulent, and I say without any hesitation that they did not convey any such knowledge, and if they did possess that knowledge it was their duty to disclose the matter in Parliament.

Q. You think that would be better than the Finance Department? A. No, I say the Finance Department with the information before it, the same class of information or better than we had ever before, was satisfied. If they knew that this was wrong and my act was wrong, the proper time to call attention to it was the next day in Parliament, because the next day they could have protected the public.

Q. You think you were right and they were wrong? A. I certainly think if their present position is right, if all this time they had knowledge that this was a fraudulent concern, I say their attitude was wrong; and looking at it in the light of the later events there is very much to be regretted, but in the light of the time, in the light of all the precedents and practice of the Department, the granting of that certificate to the Farmers Bank was exactly right; that is my judgment and I only give it as my judgment.

Q. And having that view you would not make any attempt to recall the certificate once it had been granted? A. Not only because of that view, but my impression is I had no right to recall the certificate; that is a matter of legal opinion. At all events I know of no authority to recall the certificate.

Q. But leaving politics aside altogether, supposing having got this information, you had said to Mr. Travers, "do not act upon that certificate, send me down your minute books, let me investigate this a little further privately", don’t you think the whole difficulty would have been avoided without any public exposure? A. Looking back over it now and being wise after the events I think perhaps that would have been the better course to have pursued; but I do not think in the light of the transaction at the time I could have been expected to do it. At that time Mr. Travers was a man of good repute, and therefore I was attaching some importance to his affidavit, so to any other reputable citizen, and that weighed with me. Events showed he was all wrong, and that that affidavit was not reliable but that was disclosed years afterwards.

Q. Of course the situation would have been entirely different if it had been assumed that notwithstanding the fact that Mr. McCarthy’s clients had been settled with, the charge still remained that there had been an improper method adopted in raising the deposit with the Finance Department? A. Quite a long time elapsed after that, and nobody ever brought a charge, nobody ever said anything further about it, Mr. McCarthy withdrew the papers, and that was the end of it, and we heard nothing more about it.

Q. That appears to have been the position throughout, that settling with his clients and withdrawing the objection he made on their behalf to the issue of the certificate, but it would not be a matter that Mr. McCarthy’s clients would have anything to say as to whether the certificate should be granted or not, that would still remain for the Finance Department? A. Surely.

Q. Then would you say it was any one’s duty to present the papers to you again before you finally decided? A. I think anybody who had any interest in the matter whatever, if there was anybody who felt any real interest in the matter and believed there was anything wrong would have brought it to my notice; the fact that nobody brought it to my notice was a reasonable ground for the belief that there was nothing wrong.
Q. Just one more question upon that point; if the statement of Sir Edward Clouston's letter was right, the affidavit of Travers necessarily was incorrect; did that phase of the matter occur to you?  A. Yes, the two were in conflict.

Q. You had depended upon Travers' affidavit?  A. Chiefly.

Q. If the statement made the day after was correct, Travers' affidavit necessarily must have been perjury?  A. It looked like that, and if Sir Edward Clouston and those with whom he was acting had attached importance to it and had pressed the matter further I do not know what we might have done; Sir Edward Clouston apparently acquiesced in what was done and we heard nothing further, and nobody objected.

Q. The letter that Mr. Boville wrote to Sir Edward Clouston on December 3rd, contained quite a long history of the matter, I suppose, from the Department's point of view; he says: "In view of the published reports in the newspapers of some litigation in connection with the subscriptions to the capital of this bank the matter has had the careful attention of the Department."—would that refer to Mr. Boville or yourself?  A. Mr. Boville was conducting the matter at that stage.

Q. I think this morning you indicated it was more the general rumors that you had?  A. That alludes to some publishing in the newspapers.

Q. "In view of the published reports"?  A. That is Mr. Boville's own letter, and while he may have showed it to me, and I quite accept the responsibility, I do not know what he had in his mind at that moment.

Q. "Had the careful attention of the Department", would that be Mr. Boville's attention?  A. It would be the attention of the Deputy in the main, but it would mean the matter was presented to me in all important points; I would have to take the responsibility of it.

Q. Some time ago the general manager of the bank was communicated with to the effect that when applying for the certificate to commence business, in addition to the list of subscriptions to the extent of a half million required by the Bank Act, the statement did contain also the actual amount of cash paid up by each subscriber on his subscription. On the 29th ultimo application in due form was made by the bank for the certificate permitting you to commence the business of banking. The application was accompanied by the usual documents and also by a list of the subscriptions of cash paid in by each subscriber. The list itself covers over 500 names and nothing therein appeared for any particular comment. Was any report made to you by Mr. Boville about the list?  A. He may have discussed it with me; if you ask any written report, no.

Q. Do you remember he made any report as to the individual names?  A. I do not remember; I think likely Mr. Boville kept me informed from time to time; that was the general practice.

Q. Then he quotes the clauses in the declaration and then what I read you before, the interview in which Mr. Travers said that not a dollar had been borrowed; then he said, "For the purpose of record, Mr. Fielding wrote Mr. Travers a letter, of which I enclose a copy, asking for the assurance that the amounts set forth in the application as having been paid in were in every case bona fide cash payments. I enclose a copy of Mr. Travers' reply. Then follows this statement, and I want to ask you if it had your concurrence: "Under these circumstances there did not seem to be any warrant for the withholding of a certificate under section 14 of the Act, and, accordingly, a certificate was issued on the 30th ultimo"?  A. I concur in that, yes.

Q. That was the answer of the Department to the request for a thorough investigation?  A. The time for that thorough investigation, if it could have taken place, had passed; the certificate had been issued.

Q. Was any telephone message received from Sir Edward Clouston or anybody else on the 30th?  A. Not by me.
Q. Did you ever hear from Mr. Boville as to whether any telephone message had been received stating that this letter was on its way? A. No, never heard it from anybody.

Q. Quite likely if it had been received you would not have heard of it? A. I do not know; if Mr. Boville had received it and attached any importance he would have told me, I think; but I never heard of it in any shape or form; I never heard of Sir Edward Clouston's letter until it came to me the following day. Is there anything in evidence to show Sir Edward Clouston telephoned? It is alleged that Sir Edward Clouston telephoned to the Department? I do not recollect of ever hearing of it before.

Q. It was mentioned in the debate in the House? A. I do not think he telephoned.

Q. I proposed to ask Mr. Boville, but he is not here? A. To the best of my recollection, it did not happen; I would not like to say positively, he may have got a telephone from Sir Edward, although I do not recollect of ever hearing of it.

Q. Would that letter, Exhibit 72, have ever come under your notice, particularly after the last clause? A. I have no recollection of ever seeing this letter before. I would not say I did not, the letter being addressed to the Minister of Finance, this is January, 1907. I have no recollection of ever seeing or hearing of that letter before, but I will not say positively I never did; the records of the Department will show whether that letter was received, and if it was received it may have been shown to me; I would not like to speak too definitely. All the papers bearing on the issue of the certificate were brought down to Parliament; I do not think this is included in them.

Mr. Commissioner: That is after the bank was organized? A. Yes; this was not in relation to the certificate itself.

Q. That was an ordinary matter of routine in the Department? A. This was in January, 1907.

Q. That was its first return? A. I have no recollection of seeing it; I would almost think it would have been included in the Return brought down, because the Return to Parliament included papers long after the organization of the bank.

Mr. Hodgins: I do not recollect it was published? A. I am sure it would not be.

Mr. Commissioner: Travers spoke of having got information from the Department as to that being the correct place in which to enter the deposit with the Trusts Company.

Mr. Hodgins: (To Mr. Ross). Can you tell us if that is on the files of the Department? (Letter 12th January, 1907, of which Exhibit 72 is a copy.)

Mr. Ross: I never remember seeing it; it may be here though. I will look and see.

Witness: That might not come before me at all; it is a matter of routine.

Mr. Hodgins: It was in consequence of a statement of Mr. Travers practically that he had consulted with the Department as to how he should enter the loan of the Trusts & Guarantee Company.

Mr. Commissioner: He does not call it a loan, but a deposit, and wants to know under which head it should appear? A. I have no recollection; as a matter of routine, that does not come before me in the ordinary way.

Mr. Ross: Yes, the letter is here.

Mr. Hodgins: Is there any reply to it?

Mr. Ross: I do not see any reply.

Witness: How was it it did not come down with the Return?

Mr. Ross: These returns go to a different part of the Department, the regular monthly returns, and this letter accompanied it. There is always a formal letter accompanying the monthly Return.
WITNESS: It would be filed in the Bank Department with the Return and not in the general correspondence.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: None of those were brought down to Parliament?

Mr. ROSS: Apparently not.

Mr. HODGINS: Was there any reply to that?

Mr. ROSS: I do not know, I am sure; the only way to find out would be to look in the letter books.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: It hardly calls for a reply. He says, "I have included it under number 6, which I trust will be satisfactory". A. If they took no exception to the form of the Return they probably would not answer it.

Mr. ROSS: There probably was no answer; the letter apparently does not call for an answer.

Mr. HODGINS: Where would we go to find out if there was one?

Mr. ROSS: I can examine the letter books and see if there was an answer.

Mr. HODGINS: Speaking of that first interview with Mr. Travers he said you said to him you had been served with a letter from Mr. Leighton McCarthy explaining the whole matter to you, so that he (Travers) did not have to tell you anything? A. I have no doubt I told him of Mr. McCarthy's objection.

Q. Did you tell him more than there was objection or did you go into what the objection was? A. Not in detail; but Mr. Travers was aware of it; the complaints of Mr. McCarthy had been sent to him; it would be alluded to no doubt in our conversation.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: Did I understand you to say that a copy of Mr. McCarthy's letter was sent to Mr. Travers? A. I think the records show Mr. Boville did send to Mr. Travers the statement of Mr. McCarthy's complaint, I do not think he gave him a copy of the writ, because he would presume he was aware of that; I am speaking from recollection of the correspondence.

Mr. HODGINS: The letter that was sent was dated October 24th, stating that "Opposition has been filed in this Department to the granting of a certificate"? A. Yes, and I think Mr. Travers asked for a copy.

Q. Mr. Travers asked for a copy on the 29th October and then on the 31st October. Mr. Boville writes to Mr. McCarthy: "Referring to your letter of the 19th inst. addressed to Mr. Fielding on the subject of the Farmers Bank of Canada and the issue of a certificate to the bank to commence business under section 15 of the Bank Act, I noticed recently a reference in the newspapers to a judgment given by Judge Anglin in a suit relating to this matter. In view of the decision rendered I shall be obliged if you will let me know if you still desire the protest contained in your letter to be brought to the Treasury Board upon an application of the Farmers Bank for a certificate to be considered". Mr. McCarthy replies, he will be in Ottawa and see the Minister; and then on November 2nd, a letter is written to Travers in answer to his letter of the 29th: "I beg to enclose herewith copy of a letter addressed to Mr. Fielding by Mr. Leighton McCarthy by way of protest to the granting of a certificate to your bank to commence business. Of the enclosure with Mr. McCarthy's letter I have not sent you a copy, as it is lengthy and I have no doubt you already have a copy of it in your possession". The same day, November 2nd, from Toronto, comes a letter from Mr. McCarthy, stating that the claims made by his clients had been settled by their subscriptions being taken up by some parties interested in the bank and refunding the money paid by the individuals or returning the notes which had been given. "The objections which I made on their behalf to the issue of the certificates are therefore withdrawn. Would you mind therefore returning to me the papers which I forwarded to you"?

Mr. COMMISSIONER: When Travers got a copy of Mr. McCarthy's letter did he reply?

Mr. HODGINS: No, but there is a further letter to Mr. Travers on November, 7th. Mr. Boville advises him that Mr. McCarthy has withdrawn the objections. The only letter from Mr. Travers was one expressing surprise that any opposition had been made and asking for a copy. Mr. Travers seemed to think you were fully advised with regard to these shareholders that had been dealt with not in detail? A. The only information I had was that disclosed by the records.

Q. Did he tell you it had been arranged, these subscriptions of Leighton McCarthy's clients? A. I do not remember of any conversation with Mr. Travers.

Q. He says, "I told him it was arranged"? A. I do not think that happened, although I cannot be positive; he may have told me it was arranged; I knew as a matter of fact Mr. McCarthy had withdrawn it, otherwise I had no knowledge of it.

Q. Did he tell you there was some provision in the Bank Act to remove those subscriptions? A. I do not recollect that that occurred; he may have said so but I do not recollect it. I do not think we discussed in detail; I think our discussion was very general and went to the question of whether the subscriptions were taken in good faith and whether they had resources to go on with their work and make a creditable exhibit. Beyond that general statement I did not go into any analysis of the thing with Mr. Travers.

Q. Was any question raised as to the statement in the declaration that the moneys paid in by the individual subscribers were correctly set out in the list? A. No, my questions would be generally as to the accuracy of all the representations; I did not think any particular question was raised as to that particular section.

Q. Nor as to the question of how they raised the money for the deposits? A. Only in a very general way. My letter to Mr. Travers suggested about a difficulty in my mind on that score and that general difficulty in my mind was referred to briefly but not as to particular subscribers, I am sure.

Q. He said in reference to the first interview that there was nothing settled and speaking of yourself, "he said he was very busy, I would have to come back again, and let me know when to come. He also said that there had been so many irregularities about other banks' transactions with him with reference to their getting their certificate he had to use a little caution.

"Q. Any reference made to the Budget speech at that interview? A. Yes; he told me he was busy; that is the excuse he made for putting me off, that he had to deliver his Budget in a day or two; in fact I think he set the day—I cannot recall the day just now—he was too busy. I know I went to the House and listened to it." A. I cannot recall any such conversation. To the best of my knowledge and belief it never happened. I had only the one interview with Mr. Travers that I can recall, and that was on the very day of the certificate. My letter shows that Mr Travers had been trying to see me and I was unable to see him. There's nothing in that letter that says I had seen him. I expressed my regret I was not able to see him and I said I would see him that day; and that tends to show I had no previous interview with Mr. Travers.

"Q. You went to the House and it was after the Budget speech you had the second interview? A. Yes.

"Q. Where did that occur? A. Occurred in his office". A. He no doubt was around the Department before that and saw Mr. Boville, but did not see me.

Q. "A. I was over there first; after receiving that letter I went over to see him then. He put me off till the afternoon; in the meantime he wrote me another letter." A. Who is he?

Q. He is referring to yourself? A. That I wrote him another letter? Then he had two letters?

Q. No; he was speaking of this first interview before the Budget speech was delivered and this reference is made to the letter: "Q. What time of day did you have your second interview with him? A. I was over there first; after receiving that letter I went over to see him then. He put me off till the afternoon; in the meantime he wrote me another letter asking me whether I had borrowed any money on notes and then I answered that letter and followed it myself soon after": A. There is no such letter.

Q. Yes, the letter you wrote on the 30th? A. He speaks of two letters.

Mr. Commissioner: He speaks of two letters from Mr. Fielding, the letter making the appointment and the other letter.

Mr. Hodgins: Oh yes, it is two letters. A. There were no two letters; that one letter he apparently had not received when he came to see me, although the letter was dictated or written, and he had not received it, because I said to him, "you had better get the letter and send an answer".

Mr. Commissioner: Apparently he seems to have thought he got the letter making the appointment and he went over, and you were not there, and that he got a second letter asking for the assurance about the condition of the bank? A. As far as my recollection goes I am quite sure—

Mr. Hodgins: Q. The only point I am asking is, that he called on you and you were too busy, and you put him off? A. The only explanation is he called at the Department and was put off; but I did not see Mr. Travers, only on the one occasion. Perhaps he did not draw a distinction between calling on the Department and calling on me.

Mr. Commissioner: I think you have said it must have been before noon he called? A. About mid-day, before lunch hour.

Q. He puts there the afternoon? A. In the afternoon he probably called at the Department to see what progress was made, but he did not see me.

Mr. Hodgins: At all events he says, "I went to Mr. Guthrie's office and answered that letter and then I called on Mr. Fielding again later in the day, I should think it would be 4 o'clock and then I got my certificate? A. He got his certificate from the Deputy, and not from me.

"Q. On your return to Mr. Fielding was anything said, was the question of the subscriptions raised again? A. No; the last time I got my certificate it was very brief; we hardly touched on the matter at all; we were talking about other things".

Wit n e s s: When he got the certificate he may have had a conversation with Mr. Boville but not with me, he did not get the certificate from me. Once the instructions were given to issue the certificate that would be a matter of routine which would be attended to by Mr. Boville and I would see no more of it.

Q. Further on, page 510, he reiterates the fact that he had a 15 minutes interview with you and got the certificate about 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon; he did not get the certificate from you, but from Mr. Boville, but he does reiterate that he had an interview with you? A. He would be entirely wrong. I would no doubt then be in the House of Commons, and Mr. Boville would be doing the Departmental work.

Q. Was there any reason other than you have given us for putting this whole matter through in practically one day, that is seeing Mr. Travers, bringing the matter before the Treasury Board, deciding upon issuing the certificate, giving back the cheque; is there any reason at all why that should have been done, in view of your own feeling towards the bank and in view of what has been said to you, whatever it may have been, any reason for putting it through all in one day? A. Once it was decided that the certificate should issue I would expect the Department to expedite it; once a thing is settled the quicker it is disposed of the better. I would consider that was good business. There was no special reason for doing it; it was done in the regular routine way in the Department.

Q. Had any pressure been brought to bear? A. Absolutely none. No human being spoke to me about the issuing of the certificate other than Travers and the officers of my own Department I mean with a view of supporting the certificate. I have already referred to the conversation with Sir Edmund Osler and Mr. Henderson, but I am speaking with reference to the issuing of the certificate.
Q. When you say no one had spoken to you about it, do you include the time previous to that time?  A. At no time was any pressure of any shape or form brought to bear with regard to the issue of that certificate; there was no person exercising any influence or trying to whatever.

Q. And so far as you are concerned you say you think it went through in the regular way in the Department?  A. Yes, once decided the quicker it was disposed of the better.

Q. And it was never decided till the 30th November?  A. It was never decided till the afternoon of the 30th November. After that it was purely a matter of routine. I suppose Mr. Travers being there and waiting Mr. Boville naturally tried to facilitate it for him; that would be good business.

Q. There is a certificate on file, a memorandum from Mr. Boville on this matter for submission to the Minister, perhaps you would look at that and see if that was received by you (Part of Exhibit No. 2).  A. I have no doubt I did, although I have no distinct recollection of it; it would be in line with a discussion between Mr. Boville and myself, and it was put in a memorandum for future reference.

Q. The date of that is what?  A. The 30th; I have no doubt I was aware of it.

Q. Were you aware that Mr. Boville had referred the matter to the Department of Justice?  A. I think likely, although I could not be certain about that; I think likely Mr. Boville though told me. These things would be dealt with as a matter of routine, but Mr. Boville kept me occasionally informed of what was going on; in that why I would know although I would not have the documents myself.

Q. Looking at that memorandum is there anything in that you personally knew or information that Mr. Boville would give?  A. It is a memorandum of Mr. Boville’s in line with what we had been discussing. If you had asked me if he had made a formal memorandum I could have recalled it, but I do not know that it was customary for the Deputy to make a written report. I have no doubt that came to my notice, anyway I was aware that Mr. Boville was advising.

Q. This states: “The papers are all in order and have been submitted to the Department of Justice who have advised that the evidence contained therein is such that the Treasury Board may lawfully accept it and issue the necessary certificate”. The real statement made by the Deputy Minister of Justice was somewhat different from that?  A. Do you think there is a difference?  I do not see, because the statement was that the papers were in order and the affidavit if it was accepted was such as would legally entitle them to the certificate.

Q. You would see no difference between the two?  A. From the hasty reading of that, I do not see; there may be a shade of difference.

Q. The letter from the Department of Justice says, the statements are sufficient if the Departments accept them?  A. Exactly.

Mr. Commissioner: Accept what?  A. The Department of Justice was purely advising on the law of the case, they were offering no opinion on the merits of it.

Mr. Hodgins: “I beg to state that the statements in the statutory declaration of Mr. William R. Travers are sufficient if they are accepted to show compliance with the statutory provisions and that the evidence thus afforded is such that the Treasury Board may lawfully accept under the Act and thereupon issue to the bank a certificate under section 14 of the Act”?  A. Is not that substantially what Mr. Boville says in his reference to it? The Department of Justice would advise purely on the law; they would say nothing on the facts of the case.

Q. It is represented to you as saying, “and the evidence is such that the Department may lawfully accept it”?  A. Yes, and the Minister of Justice thinks so, the Department may lawfully accept it; it leaves it to their discretion as to whether they are satisfied with the information. All that Mr. Newcombe says is that this is within the four corners of the Bank Act.

Mr. Commissioner: As I understand your view was that if proof were made that the requirements of the Act had been complied with it was the duty of the Treasury Board to issue a certificate? A. Yes, unless we felt we had reasonable evidence to the contrary.

Q. If you had known that the $100,000 of the money that was represented as paid upon the stock had been borrowed by Travers, not applied to the credit of the Farmers Bank, but borrowed by Travers and applied by him, not directly upon the particular notes that were discounted—putting up the notes as collateral security—would you have refused to have advised the issue of the certificate or are you able to say? A. I may find difficulty in answering that. The borrowing of money to put into a bank is not an improper transaction. If Travers could borrow money or get it anywhere he liked and put it up for and on behalf of these shareholders it would be a perfectly proper and legitimate transaction. If a man subscribe for bank stock and goes out and borrows money from another bank that is perfectly legitimate. The illegitimate part would be if he did it through the provisional directors and afterwards the money was to be returned from the funds of the bank.

Q. If you had known that? A. If I had known there was any understanding whereby these moneys were to be refunded from the bank I certainly would not have advised the issue of the certificate.

Q. Does not what happened in this case suggest that there ought to be an examination by an officer of the Department or some other competent person of the books of a bank starting in order to verify these statements? A. Yes, sir, I think it would be wise. From all these things we learn something from experience.

Q. Because I suppose the most cursory examination of the books would have disclosed how the money was raised? A. There is a point, it does not affect the wisdom or unwisdom of the issue of the certificate, but it does affect the whole thing in the public mind; this bank did not come to grief because of any irregularity with regard to the paid up capital. These notes or a sufficient portion of them, were ultimately paid, the bank had the capital and whatever irregularity occurred at that time was ultimately made good; the bank had the capital required by the Act, and if the bank had been honestly and wisely managed, there would have been no trouble; the failure of the bank was in no degree due to the irregularity which has been referred to in connection with these notes. It was an irregularity and a grave one, but it had nothing to do with the ruin of the bank ultimately.

Q. Do you understand that the Finance Minister or the Treasury Department had anything to do with the list of subscribers; supposing you had found a list of $500,000 and one man had subscribed $250,000 of it, would you have had any right to exercise a discretion not to issue the certificate? A. Of course we have absolute power not to issue it.

Q. You think there is that power? A. I think so; I do not know of any machinery whereby you can compel the Treasury Board to issue the certificate if they do not wish to act; it is discretionary, but that discretion must be exercised with reason; and we could never have defended ourselves I think before the public if we had refused to issue the certificate upon the same basis as had been accepted in other cases.

Q. I am thinking about a case of a manufacturing company in Toronto that was seeking to increase its capital, opposed by the minority of the shareholders, and I think our Courts held that a mandamus would go to the head of the Department to issue the proper certificate. Of course I would not suggest at all that they could compel you to exercise a discretion in a particular way, but compel you, where the acts required were proved, to issue the certificate, but you did not take that view? A. That is a legal question, my Lord, as to whether a mandamus could issue against the Crown for that purpose, but I had not that view in my mind. I exercised my best judgment. We all know now, in the light of what has developed.
it was a misfortune; but in the light we had at the time it seemed the right thing to do. You asked about a particular subscription, one man subscribing for $250,000; had we a right to object because we did not think he was good for $250,000. Even that is a very grave question. I remember another case, I do not want to specialize it, where subscribers were people as to whom I had grave doubts as to their ability to pay the amount, and yet under the Bank Act I was not clear that I had any right to refuse it. If they subscribe, and if they pay the amount required under the Bank Act I doubt whether I would have any power to go ahead and say, "I will not give the people this certificate because John Smith is not able when the time comes to pay". I had grave doubts in that particular instance, and it worried me a great deal, but I do not think the Bank Act gives any discretion to refuse on that ground.

Q. What happened in this case, according to the evidence, is the provisional directors endorsed these notes; Travers went to the Trusts & Guarantee Company and borrowed $80,000. I think it was, hypothecating the notes; then that they used the money, not applying the proceeds to each note, but applying them indiscriminately—perhaps not entirely indiscriminately—but applying some of the money in payment of stock for which no notes had been given at all, and then the money was returned as soon as it was got back from the Department. Traverdoes not appear to have been confronted with the specific charges that had been made so far as your evidence has gone? A. You say with specific charges; what do you refer to—the Leighton McCarthy letter?

Q. Yes, and perhaps I should not say specific charges, general charges, Sir
Edmund Osler? A. They made no charges; that is my position. Sir Edmund Osler's attitude was not one of making charges against the concern at all; his attitude was precisely that of my own. "While I am sorry this thing is going on, Mr. Fielding, you and I agree that it is a misfortune, but there is nothing we can do to prevent it." He did not pretend to give any ground upon which the granting of the certificate could be refused. My attitude from the beginning was I was anxious, not because I had any reason to anticipate any fraudulent proceedings, but simply and solely because I thought a lot of these small farmers were making a mistake, and if I could have stopped the thing at any moment I would have gladly done it. On the other hand, as this thing was largely composed of farmers, if we had refused to give them a certificate, they having given us the same evidence or better than we had received in former cases, there would have been an outcry at once that we were trying to stifle bank competition, and trying to play into the hands of what is called sometimes a dangerous monopoly and refusing to allow competition. I did not want to give a lot of people in Canada the opportunity to say the Farmers Bank put up their money, they provided the same evidence, they made their affidavit, they did everything that ever other bank had done before and yet the Finance Department refused to give them a certificate;
I did not want that position to be held.

Q. Is not there a weakness in the Bank Act if it be that a certificate obtained by fraud cannot be recalled, some step taken? A. I think in the light of this experience it would be well that that should be distinctly dealt with. It might be suggested that though the certificate be granted it should not be acted upon for a certain period during which there would be an opportunity for investigating.

Q. The meeting was called, the shareholders had notice of what was going on, it is a wonder how they were so dull to their own interest? A. It appears to have been quite a large meeting.

Q. I fancy it was mainly proxies? A. I think it states there was quite a number present.

Mr. Hodgins: Quite a good-sized meeting; they had no voting power as against the proxies? A. There is nothing to show there was any conflict between those present and the proxies; there was no evidence that came to me that there was any internal trouble.

Mr. Commissioner: Do you think it is possible that Mr. Calvert may have introduced Travers to you and you not have had time to talk to him at all, and then Travers came again? A. No, my lord.

Q. I do not think it is very important, except as reconciling the two statements? A. I had quite forgotten that Mr. Calvert did bring Mr. Travers, but I remembered it afterwards that he came to the office and introduced Mr. Travers and I do not think he remained during the interview; I am certain Mr. Calvert never figured in the matter in any shape or form except as to that incident. Whether Mr. Travers had one or two interviews is no earthly matter, although as a matter of fact I am sure he only had one.

Mr. Hodgins: It all has a value in determining the weight to be given to the evidence of the various witnesses. There is something you said I did not quite understand; do I understand from you that if these notes had been given and had been pledged and the money raised upon those notes and paid into the bank to the credit of the Finance Minister that there was no objection to that, unless there was the further agreement that it should be returned to the lenders immediately after the certificate was granted? A. That is dividing the thing perhaps into two parts; I was dealing rather with the question his Lordship asked me, and I said there was no reason why a man should not give a note for raising money to put into the bank; the only illegitimate part would be if he had an arrangement whereby he was afterwards going to get that money out of the bank. I think if John Smith had given a note, being a subscriber, and raised that money and then paid in good faith into the Farmers Bank nobody could raise any objection; the fact that he raised money on the note would not be doing anything wrong.

Q. Who raised the money? A. The subscribers.

Q. His own note? A. Yes.

Q. I thought you indicated there was no objection to the provisional directors raising money upon notes? A. No, if you inferred that I was mistaken; that would be quite wrong; but the greater wrong would be if they bargained to afterwards have it turned back out of the bank.

Q. If this minute had been brought to your notice and you knew it had been acted upon, would you have felt that the certificate should be refused: "That the provisional directors execute a power of attorney to W. R. Travers for the purpose of endorsing all notes in their name as provisional directors and of signing their names to a note or notes for the purpose of raising funds to put up the deposit with the Government; and we authorize the secretary to hand over all notes to W. R. Travers for that purpose"? A. What are you reading from?

Q. The provisional directors' minute. A. Certainly if that had been brought before me, I do not think I would have been willing to issue the certificate; I should say not.

Q. You said I think in the House that you cross-examined Travers; you explained that you did not mean that technically, but that you did question him? A. I questioned him, yes.

Q. Did you question him upon the way in which the money had been raised to put into the bank? A. In general terms, yes, not as to individuals or details. I said my discussion with Mr. Travers was exactly along the line of my letters to him, that gossip had said that sometimes these promotions had been made in that way and I wanted to be assured there was nothing of this kind in his case; and he gave me to understand it had not taken place.

Q. The intention of putting it in your letter that it had been represented in some previous instances where the application was regular, there was actually an evasion of the act. was that put so as not to offend his feelings? A. Possibly that entered into my mind, but for the last year or two it was the gossip in bank circles that that is the way promotions were being managed; and Mr. Travers, having filed his affidavit, and being a man of good repute, I would not like to reflect upon it and my conversation with him was to make assurance doubly sure; it was not that he could add anything by personal testimony to what he had already sworn, but as he was there I had the discussion with him on the general terms.

Q. Was the reference that the provisional directors had raised money or Travers? A. It was only in a general way, whether subscriptions represented bona fide subscriptions or money that had been paid up—there was no reference to Travers or the provisional directors, and as it was only confirming what was in the affidavit it would not go into the details.

Q. The affidavit only says that the shareholders had only paid up so much?

A. The list went on to say they had paid up in cash the specified sum.

Q. Looking at section 15 of the Bank Act: "The Treasury Board must be satisfied that all the requirements of this Act and of the special Act of Incorporation of the bank as to the payment required to be made to the Minister, the election of directors, etc., have been complied with". There does not appear to have been the practice of requiring the proof of election of directors to be certified by a production of the minutes? A. I do not think it is mentioned in the Act.

Q. It simply says the requirement of the Act as to the election of directors?

A. Yes, there was no question as to the election of directors.

Q. They were to elect such number of directors duly qualified under this act?

A. Yes.—do you refer to their qualifications?

Q. Yes? A. I do not think it has been customary to make any special investigation of that character, and the Bank Act does not contemplate it.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: What did Travers' declaration say about that? A.

He states in section 10 of his affidavit that they are qualified.

Mr. Hodgins: "Duly qualified under the Bank Act to hold office until the annual general meeting"? A. I remember one case in which we found a director was not qualified because the shares were held in the name of the firm, and therefore they were not his individual property, and that had to be made good; but not in this bank.

Q. I think I touched on this this morning; it may be of general interest; there is no machinery apparently for investigating the acts of the provisional directors; what they had done with the money and how much they had spent on it before coming to the Treasury Board for a certificate; in this case they spent about $10,000 of what they had raised; they had only $150,000 left out of the $200,000? A. I think as a result of that in the draft of the new Bank Act which I introduced into the House there is some provision guarding against that. There are several things which we have learned from our experience in this case which will be found in the new Bank Act as laid before Parliament.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: This bank started at first with paying 5%, and then paid 10%; and, according to Travers' statement, finally agreed to pay 15% commissions on the subscriptions obtained. and whether it was paid for by cash or by note, these commissions were payable; what do you understand as to whether that is a legitimate expenditure? A. That is one of the difficulties with bank promotions, especially where they are not finding a ready response to the movement; they have to canvass almost like life insurance companies to get subscriptions and they have to pay excessive commissions. That is one of the things in the new Bank Act we are seeking to guard against; it is an evil against which the public should be protected.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: There was nearly 10% of the amount subscribed spent in preliminary expenses. Does Parliament pay any attention to the men who are behind an application for a charter for a bank? A. As a rule, people coming and seeking a bank charter always find some members of Parliament to stand up and guarantee their good faith, and eminent respectability. There is no machinery whereby you investigate. During the last two or three years or longer I was beginning to put on the brake a little more and trying to get a little more information; I do not know that we were very successful. Whenever an application is made we find the Member of Parliament in charge of the Bill, or some members of Parliament from the section of the country where the gentlemen live will come and guarantee these are eminent gentlemen; that there is great need of banking accommodation; that the financial needs of the community are not met, and so forth, and it is a difficult matter for the Banking and Commerce Committee.

Q. They may be respectable men and yet no more fitted to manage a bank than run a circus? A. It is quite true.

Q. The good sense of Parliament—? A. Well, the good sense of Parliament would be "If Smith, Brown or Jones want to put up their own money and give it to these men to manage"—you cannot always supply good judgment to the man who has not any. After you have done all you can there will still be much that will be left to the individual judgment and responsibility.

Q. You would not give a charter to men to build a railway that you knew were simply stock jobbers and promoters? A. Do you think it has never been done?

Q. I would not say that? A. It is very difficult for a committee to sit in judgment upon men who come before them representing that they are going to do some good and holy work in the community and stand up and tell those men they are not to be trusted. You insult them, and the members of Parliament and the community in which they live. You cannot do it very well. But if the thing looks all right on the surface you are bound to give them a charter.

Toronto, June 12th, 1912.

The Commission continued its sittings at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, at 11 a.m.

PRESENT:

HON. SIR WILLIAM MEREDITH, Commissioner;
FRANK E. HODGINS, K.C., and J. THOMPSON, K.C., representing the Dominion Government;
I. F. HELLMUTH, K.C., representing the Trusts & Guarantee Company.

JAMES JOHN WARREN, Sworn, Examined by:

MR. HODGINS: At the close of 1906, were you connected with the Trusts & Guarantee Company? A. I was.

Q. In what capacity? A. As managing director.

Q. And a seat on the Board? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you in full charge of the financial operations of the company? A. Under the Board.

Q. Would any important transaction take place without your knowledge? A. No, not unless I should happen to be away, and I was not during the course of this matter; I was there all the time.

Q. You finally did make an arrangement with Mr. Travers about an $80,000 loan? A. Yes.
Q. What course did the matter take, how was it opened up with you? A. Mr. Stratton brought Mr. Travers into my office some time in the fall of 1906, and he said he had met Mr. Travers at the King Edward Hotel; Mr. Travers wanted to get a loan, of, I do not know whether the amount was mentioned in the first instance or not, but a loan in connection with the organization of the Farmers Bank. We had quite an interview, the three of us in my room in the Trusts Company. Mr. Travers, whom I had never met before and never heard of before, told me he had been connected with the Merchants Bank for I think he said 20 years, or something like that, in a managerial capacity. He had a letter from Mr. Fish as to his relations with the bank when he left. He said he had been retained or engaged by the provisional directors of the Farmers Bank quite recently to complete the organization of it. He said the bank had been in process of organization for some time; it is a long time, but my impression is he said a year or more; that his predecessors in the position of, I do not know what you would call him, the manager of the organization, whatever they were, had spent some $50,000 of the bank's money in connection with the organization of the bank. He said he wanted to obtain a loan of $80,000 for the purpose of replacing this $50,000 that had been expended, and the remainder was going to go towards the organization purposes of the bank. He said that he had purchased or agreed to purchase from the provisional board I don't know how much of the notes of the subscribers— I think it was in the neighborhood of $100,000—and he had bought those at par, and that he wanted to borrow $80,000 from the Trust with which to partially pay for these notes. I understood that he had provided the difference himself. He looked to me to be a man—

Q. What difference do you mean? A. The difference between the par of the notes, the $100,000, and the $80,000, the amount of the loan.

Q. That he was providing that himself? A. Yes, he gave me that, that the difference between the $80,000 and the $100,000 he was providing for himself. He seemed to me to be a man of some standing and he impressed me very favorably.

Q. Were these statements made by him in the presence of yourself and Mr. Stratton? A. Yes, we were all there.

Q. Did Mr. Stratton seem at all surprised at the statement or question it in any way? A. There was not anybody surprised.

Q. The statement was that $50,000 had been expended by the provisional directors? Yes, I would not say $50,000.

Q. About? A. Yes.

Q. And that $30,000 was still to be expended in and about organization? A. No, he wanted that in connection with the organization of the bank.

Q. What is the meaning of that? A. He did not tell me how much money the bank had and how much money the bank needed. The transaction, as far as I was concerned, was simply a loan to him to enable him to pay the bank $80,000 on account of these notes which he had purchased.

Q. But the explanation of the $30,000? A. There was not any specific explanation about that. The only statement he volunteered was that he had been called in—

Q. Did you get the impression from him that $50,000 had already been spent, and that $30,000 more would be spent in the organization of the bank? A. No.

Q. What was your understanding of the matter? A. My understanding was the $50,000 had been spent by his predecessor in connection with the organization, that he had been called in at the last moment by reason of his experience to put the organization through.

Q. What about the $30,000? A. Difference he was using to pay up the balance, it was part of the $80,000 which he had purchased.
Q. What was the $30,000 for, did you understand it was on account of organization? A. No, I did not say that: I said in connection with the organization of the bank.

Q. Had you any understanding what he meant by that? A. No, I did not give it any serious consideration. The first question with me was we did not have the money to lend him and I told him so; and he said he had offered it to one of the banks and he had offered it to another Trust Company and he had not met with success. He said the banks were unfriendly, did not want any more banks and so on: I mean to say it was not a case of my telling you this or you must not say it or this is a great secret or anything of that sort. He says "I have been to this bank or to this Trust Company and Mr. Stratton has brought me in here to you."

Q. Had Mr. Stratton arranged he would have the loan? A. No, the matter was entirely at large. I do not recollect that Mr. Stratton said very much except of course he was present and he may have said something in connection with the matter, but of course Mr. Travers did most of the talking because he was telling us what he wanted. I told him we had not the money and we could not make the loan.

Q. Did it drop there? A. No; he then said, "Perhaps you could get the money; if you can get the money I will allow you a commission of $1,000; I am willing to pay 10% interest for the use of the money while I have it."

Q. How long was he going to use the money? A. He said he could pay it back within I think thirty days or forty days; it was a short loan.

Q. Do you remember when the interview was? A. I cannot do that, but I should say it would be a week or ten days before the advance was actually made.

Q. The 11th October is the date of the letter in Mr. Stockdale's handwriting connected with it, setting out what the terms were? A. Have you that letter?

Q. Yes? A. May I see it?

Q. Yes? A. The negotiations lasted over a week. I should say from these two letters which are exhibit 43 that the interview, the first interview with Mr. Travers, would take place either very late in September or very early in October 1906. There was quite an interval between that time and this time, because this letter was written when I got the $55,000 from the life insurance company. They were expecting interest and I wrote this letter saying he would have to pay interest from this date.

Q. The negotiations lasted about a week? A. I should say so.

Q. At that first interview did you substantially arrange that you would lend the money? A. No, I told him we could not lend the money.

Q. You would not lend it? A. That we could not.

Q. And the matter then went off so to speak? A. He said as I have said, that he would allow us a commission of $1,000 if we could arrange the loan; and I said I will see if I can get the money for you. That ended the interview.

Q. As a matter of fact how was the money when advanced contributed between you and the insurance company? A. $55,000 insurance company and $25,000 from the Trust Company.

Q. Did they get their share of the interest and their share of the $1,000? A. They got fifty-five eightieths of the $1,000 and the interest on their money.

Q. I suppose it would be fair to say it was that bonus that attempted the company to arrange the matter? A. I do not know what; I frequently am offered bonuses to arrange loans.

Q. I am asking in this particular instance? A. If Mr. Travers had not offered that bonus, had not offered some inducement, I do not think that as an officer of the Trust Company I would be particularly interested in the matter.

Q. Travers' statement originally to you was that he had purchased notes? A. That he had purchased or agreed to purchase these notes from the provisional directors.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. I suppose that naturally raised a question—you are a lawyer? A. Yes, I still pay my fees and am in good standing so far as I know.
Q. That raised a question in your mind as to the ability of the provisional directors to sell notes given for subscriptions? A. Quite.
Q. Who was asked to advise? A. I raised that question with him. I said, how can provisional directors sell these notes, and how can notes be transferred in this way. Of course I never considered the Bank Act before this matter arose and I thought it better not to do so since; I want to have my mind just as it was when this matter came along; and he said, "Messrs. Urquhart, Urquhart & Company or Mr. Thomas Urquhart had advised on the proceedings which led up to the taking of the notes from the subscribers and the transferring or the purchasing of them by him from the Provisional Board, and that of course Mr. Urquhart is a reputable practitioner, and I thought all right, that is a prima facie case anyway.
Q. Did you during the negotiations at all see the minute book of the provisional directors? A. No.
Q. To ascertain on what facts Mr. Urquhart based his opinion? A. No.
Q. Did you see Mr. Urquhart’s opinion? A. I don’t think I did; I am quite sure I did not.
Q. Who was called in to advise? A. I called in Mr. W. H. Hunter.
Q. Why was that? A. I thought, and I still think that Mr. Hunter is one of the best corporation lawyers we have in the profession.
Q. Are you giving this as the reason for calling him in? A. Quite.
Q. Was there any other reason? A. Absolutely none. He was not acquainted with Mr. Travers, did not know him from John Smith.
Q. Had he ever advised the Trusts & Guarantee Company before? A. I do not think he had particularly. We had had some business together, but I may say that my policy in the Trust Company is to try and get as many—
Q. I do not want that? A. You want the reason why I retained Mr. Hunter?
Q. Yes? A. The only reason was I thought he was more or less of a specialist, if you adopt a medical term, and I thought that by giving him this work that he would become friendly to the Trust Company and would reciprocate; that was the policy I pursued.
Q. You did not know he had any connection with Travers in any way? A. He did not have.
Q. You did not know he had at that time? A. No, I did not know it.
Q. When you say he had not are you quite sure of that, on what do you base that? A. I introduced them.
Q. Introduced him to Mr. Travers? A. He met Travers in the course of the—
Q. I would like to clear up this point; who explained to Mr. Hunter what the transaction was or was to be? A. As I recollect my instructions to Mr. Hunter, of course, you are getting ahead—
Q. When Hunter came to be consulted, who described to him what the transaction was to be? A. I did.
Q. Then afterwards you introduced him to Travers? A. Yes.
Q. What were your instructions to Mr. Hunter? A. My instructions to Mr. Hunter were to examine the proceedings of the Farmers Bank Provisional Board and to advise me whether if we loaned this $80,000 to Travers on the security of these notes we could have a security which we could enforce against the makers of the notes.
Q. Who were you lending to? A. We were lending to Travers personally; we had not recourse against the bank.
Q. I suppose you could hardly have recourse against the bank; it was only in the hands of the provisional directors at that time? A. That is all right, but—
Q. Did you realize that you could not have recourse against the bank? A. I did not realize it, because it was so stated by Travers. He said he had taken these notes without recourse to the bank, he was borrowing on them on his own security, on his personal security and the security of the promissors.

Q. Did he show you the notes? A. Yes.

Q. My recollection is they were without recourse as against the provisional directors? A. Endorsed without recourse?

Q. Yes? A. You have them. They were returned; they were all paid in due course; I suppose they are in the hands of the promissors now.

Q. You were dealing with Travers? A. Personally and exclusively.

Q. And because you did not think that you could get recourse against the bank under the circumstances—A. I did not think anything about it; he said when he came in there was to be no recourse against the bank. He said he had purchased these notes and the bank were not in any way responsible for the transaction.

Q. How did the question of recourse against the bank come up? A. He brought it up.

Q. Volunteered it? A. Yes. I fancy when the endorsement would come up without recourse that there would be probably something said at that stage.

Q. Did he have any of the notes with him? A. Not at first, no; he did not bring in the notes until I had arranged the loan.

Q. Perhaps you could tell us a little more how the loan came to be arranged? A. He went away after he had offered this commission, and the next day or the day after I thought of the insurance company—there is no use mentioning names.

Q. No? A. I am here, and there is no use in spreading it any farther; and I went over to the insurance company and I saw the general manager and I told him everything that Travers had told me, including that we were offered this commission of $1,000; and he said that he would lend the money.

Q. As a matter of fact, he lent it to you and not to Travers? A. Nominally that way, not really; what happened was, he was going to take the entire loan of $80,000 and he was going to allow us something out of the commission; that was our sole interest in it; but he telephoned in a day or two later and he found he could not spare more than $55,000. He said if we would provide $25,000 his company would provide $55,000 and we would divide the commission in the proportion of 55 and 25. That would be the transaction; and I called my Board together and submitted the matter to them and they authorized the loan of $25,000; and that is the transaction.

Q. Your Board had a report from you? A. Yes, it was done on my recommendation.

Q. Was your report in writing? A. No. never is; I am at the meeting.

Q. What did you report to them? A. I asked for authority to make the loan of $25,000. It seems to me I discussed it with the Executive Committee before; I do not do these things off my own bat.

Q. I ask you what you said? A. I said I thought the security was ample. We had Mr. Hunter’s opinion and we had the notes and I investigated the security and I thought it was perfectly safe; and we made the loan.

Q. Are those two documents before you, exhibit 43, the only documents connected with the loan? A. Yes, sir, as far as I know, except the call loan agreement which he signed; he signed a call loan agreement.

Q. Have you a recollection of that? A. Absolutely, yes.

Q. It has not been produced in any of the proceedings in Court, either of the Farmers Bank or on any of the trials, no one has suggested it till Mr. Stockdale was in the box? A. I will tell you why I recollect it so clearly is the original transaction was to be a loan just on the notes and I had some doubt as to whether or not the company could legally loan upon notes, by simple endorsement, and I remember very well Mr. Hunter and Mr. Travers being in my office one evening and I brought this matter up to Mr. Hunter, and I said, "Now, while this thing may be all right, don't you think that it would be better if we put this in the form of a call loan agreement?" Of course that made the loan payable on demand. Mr. Travers immediately objected and got angry and said that was not a fair deal; and Mr. Hunter spoke to him and said there is nothing in that; Mr. Warren simply wants to have the security in legal shape; and he said there is no objection that I can see to signing one of their blank form call loan agreements, and I am perfectly clear as to that happening because it was the first time I ever saw Mr. Travers angry, and I think perhaps the last, but I am quite sure that following that a call loan agreement was prepared and signed by Mr. Travers pledging the notes to the Trust Company.

Q. And that is what Stockdale must have meant when he says the hypothecation agreement? A. That is a more elaborate term.

Q. It is the same document? A. There was only the one document.

Q. It was just making the loan of $80,000 to Travers upon the security of certain notes? A. Yes.

Q. In the ordinary form? A. Yes.

Q. We could get one of those forms in your office? A. You could.

Q. Would it be in the same form as the $80,000 loan agreement? A. I think so. I know some years after we changed the form of the agreement. We had our call loan agreement revised some years ago, but I think it is the same form that we used at that time.

Q. This is the $20,000 one, Exhibit 49? A. Yes, that is the form. There is no doubt whatever that Travers executed a call loan agreement with respect of the $50,000 loan on the same form as that (as Exhibit 49).

Q. It would run the holder of so many promissory notes? A. Yes, the notes would be identified. You notice that is payable on demand under its terms.

Q. Yes? A. I am just trying to show the situation.

Q. What has become of that? A. I should say that, following our usual practice, we would hand it over to Mr. Travers when the loan was paid off. We do not keep the call loan agreements after they are paid off.

Q. That may be so; we have been unable to trace it? A. I would be very glad indeed to help you in any way.

Q. Look at this list of notes which has turned up since Mr. Stockdale was examined and tell me if that is the list that was made out at the time? A. I cannot tell you that; I should think so. Somebody has put in green pencil "Trusts Company list". This looks as if it were a carbon copy.

Q. Did you use a green pencil in your office at that time; would not that indicate that you had written it on with an office pencil? A. That is not my writing and I don't know whose it is.

Q. This list of notes at all events totes up to $100,955, which is the amount in that letter, Exhibit 43? A. That is Mr. Stockdale's letter. I have no doubt that that is the list but I cannot identify it.

Q. I would like to know if you can tell me what that $32,300 is at the end; it says less $32,300? A. I should say (this is a guess, but it is an honest one) there is a note here February 26th, 1907, "Less list attached", that would indicate that on the 26th February, 1907, we handed over to Mr. Travers or somebody representing him $32,300 of this paper.

Q. What do you say about this list; there is produced the letter of the 11th October, 1906, stating that you have security upon $100,955 of notes and there is a list totalling up exactly that amount endorsed as the list of the Trust Company, what do you say about it? A. I say I think that is the list of the notes.

Q. There is no objection to marking it as an exhibit? A. I do not know if there is or not.
Mr. Commissioner: Let it be marked. You say you think that is the list but do not prove it.

Mr. Hodgins: You do not throw any doubt upon it being the proper list of the notes? A. No.

Q. You told Mr. Hunter to go through the provisional directors' proceedings and he advised you? A. I told Mr. Hunter what I wanted to know.

Q. Am I right in that? A. I do not remember telling him to go through anything in particular; I told him to examine the proceedings and tell me whether Travers had the right to pledge the notes.

Q. Examine the proceedings? A. I do not say I used those words.

Q. Having told him that, did you describe the transaction to him? A. Just as I have told you to-day.

Q. You were lending on the notes? A. Yes.

Q. The whole question of Travers' title to these notes? A. His right to pledge them.

Q. There was nothing else in controversy? A. No.

Q. No other security, nothing else? A. No.

Q. What did Mr. Hunter report to you? A. Mr. Hunter reported to me that Mr. Travers' title was sufficient to enable the Trust Company to proceed against the promissors of these notes in case of Travers' default to repay the loan, and that no successful defence could be raised to an action on these notes by the Trust Company.

Q. Did he give you his reasons for that? A. No.

Q. Did you discuss his views? A. I did not; he was our solicitor and I did not.

Q. I want to know if you discussed his views? A. No.

Q. Of course you explained to him that this was intended to be used to complete the Government deposit? A. I did not.

Q. Why not? A. I do not know why I should, it was not; it was intended to be used to enable Travers to pay for these notes; there was nothing said—

Q. Nothing said about the Government deposit by Travers to you? A. I do not say that; that is not your question.

Q. Was there? A. Yes; Travers must have spoken about his Government deposit.

Q. And that this was intended to make up the balance he had to pay in? A. No.

Q. Tell me what he did say? A. I have told you the $80,000 was intended to enable him to pay for the notes which he had purchased from the provisional board.

Q. What I am asking is what was said by him about the Government deposit? A. He simply said he had to make this Government deposit.

Q. I understood this was going to make up the Government deposit. A. No.

Q. That he was going to so apply it? A. No.

Q. What did you suppose he wanted it for? A. It was going to be used in connection with the organization of the bank, but so far as we are concerned it was not going to create any Government deposit.

Q. I am asking whether you were not aware that he was going to use it in connection with completing the Government deposit? A. I have not any doubt he was.

Q. He told you that? A. I do not think he told me in so many words.

Q. At all events, you knew it? A. I do not say I knew it; the transaction was presented in that way.
Q. He either told you or did not, or you knew it or did not. I do not think there is any matter of difficulty? A. There is no difficulty in my mind.

Q. What did he say to you about it? A. I would like to answer you yes or no, but I am afraid I cannot. When he applied for the loan I thought we would make the cheque out for the $80,000 and he would take it and pay it to the Provisional Board and then he would become the absolute owner of these notes, and when we came to make the advance at his request the cheque was made payable to the Bank of Montreal in connection with his deposit for the Government.

Q. At that time you must have known that was its destination? A. Yes.

Q. And the money you were lending was being used to complete the Government deposit? A. Yes.

Q. You say that was at his request? A. Yes, it was not at mine.

Q. Did he make the request without giving the reason? A. He said it would save bookkeeping entries, that was all.

Q. Was that the whole explanation? A. Yes. When we came to make the advance I said to him how will I make this cheque out? He says, “you might just as well make it out to the Bank of Montreal. If I take it and give it to the provisional board they will have to issue their cheque”.

Q. You were naturally anxious from the Trusts & Guarantee Company’s point of view to get a good title to those notes? A. I had Mr. Hunter’s opinion and I had the notes.

Q. You wanted a good title to the notes? A. I had a good title to the notes.

Q. Not before you advanced the money? A. When I advanced the money.

Q. You said the original idea was to advance it to the provisional directors? A. No, I did not—

Q. Advanced it to Travers so he could go up and pay it to the provisional directors and thereby acquire an undoubted title to the notes? A. I did not do anything of the kind.

Q. Then what did you say? A. I said the original transaction was that he would pay the $80,000 to the provisional board as part payment of the notes which he purchased.

Q. So as to what? A. So as to enable him to pledge them to us.

Q. That being the view I take it that you had taken on what the transaction should be, was his suggestion that to save bookkeeping entries it was to be made to the Bank of Montreal, sufficient reason was changed? A. Well, I do not know; there are two ways of looking at it. I thought it was reasonable or I would not have acceded to it.

Q. Did you think it was reasonable or did the question come up? A. Yes; we frequently lean a certain amount of money to a borrower and he comes down and says: “Make that payable to John Smith”; we frequently do it.

Q. I do not want to get into generalities; this is a transaction which was a comparatively large amount, of which you had full knowledge; you were advised that he could make good title to the note, that is what you were anxious to have as against the maker? A. Yes.

Q. You think that his suggestion to make it payable to the Bank of Montreal, in order to save bookkeeping entries was sufficient in view of your anxiety to get a good title? A. I was not anxious about it; and he asked me to do it and I did it, the same as I did many other things for him. I trusted the chap absolutely. He appeared to be a man in good standing; it never struck me to be unreasonable.

Q. Did you see the notes? A. Yes, I went over the notes.

Q. Did Mr. Hunter report to you that the provisional directors had endorsed them to Mr. Travers for the purpose of raising the loan? A. I do not think it was as definite as that.
Q. Have you got a copy of the minutes of the provisional directors? A. No.

Q. Did you ever get any written opinion from Hunter? A. No, and I never got a bill of costs.

Q. Did you ever know as to the resolution of the provisional directors? A. I did not; I never knew anything about the proceedings of the bank until this unfortunate matter went wrong, and then I got a lot of views.

Q. Were you present during any interview between Mr. Hunter and Travers before the loan was put through? A. Yes, several.

Q. What discussion took place between them, what explanation was given by Travers? A. I do not think there was any. My impression is that Hunter and Travers and I were in the office together several times before the loan was made. Of course Hunter's investigation or examination took place in the office of the bank and he went down; (that is my recollection of it) he went down and examined everything that was necessary to be able to advise us that Travers had the right to pledge the notes.

Q. That is you left the legal responsibility to Hunter entirely? A. Yes, to Hunter.

Q. And he did not disclose to you if he saw it, what the provisional directors had done with regard to the endorsement of these notes? A. No, never did, and I did not ask him; I do not mean to say he was asked anything that he did not— if I had asked you to advise on something—

Q. Do not please get off into hypothetical cases; you left the legal responsibility to him and he did not tell you if he knew of it anything of the provisional directors' actions. Had Hunter discussed the position of the shareholders, the subscribers, in relation to their shares that they had subscribed for and out of which these notes arose with you? A. No.

Q. Did that phase of it occur to you, that if you had a good title to these notes as against the shareholders that they would be entitled to claim that their shares were paid up? A. I do not remember that I considered that.

Q. Did Mr. Hunter ever suggest that to you or discuss it? A. I do not think so.

Q. You say you did not look at the Bank Act then? A. No.

Q. Did you discuss the terms of it with Mr. Hunter? A. No; I have no interest in the bank.

Q. You knew of course that deposits had to be made with the Government before they could call their meeting of subscribers? A. I think I did. I should say so.

Q. And that when the deposit was made the subscribers would meet and elect their directors? A. I do not think I knew that.

Q. You understood that the organization—? A. Would proceed.

Q. And the permanent directors be elected? A. I do not know that; if anybody asked me that now as to what the course would be—

Q. I am asking you, speaking of this transaction, what your knowledge was at the time? A. I did not have any knowledge about the steps that were being taken.

Q. Did you know anything about what preceded the issue of the certificate? A. No.

Q. Was the certificate mentioned to you? A. I do not think it was.

Q. How did you expect Travers to repay this money within the month? A. He said he was going to discount these notes after he got his bank organized.

Q. Going to get them back from you? A. Yes.

Q. And part of the arrangement was he was to get them back and discount them and pay you off? A. Yes.

Q. Did you intend to part with them before your loan was paid off? A. No.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. How would he discount them?  A. It would be coincident; he would probably discount part. I did not think he had not any money, you know.

Q. Your money was going on deposit in the Bank of Montreal, and you knew it had to be returned to Travers by the Government?  A. Yes.

Q. And that would seem to be the easiest method of getting your money back?  A. Well, it looks like that yes, but that is not the way the money came back.

Q. That was the easiest way to get it back, to make an arrangement that he should discount these notes which he had found difficulty in doing with other banks?  A. Once his deposit was made and his organization completed he was in a different position; that is what he says; he says he would have no difficulty in discounting them. That sounded reasonable to me.

Q. Did you discuss with him getting it back out of the money that came back from the Government?  A. No, we were not going to get it back out of that identical fund.

Q. Did you discuss that with him?  A. No.

Q. Did you point out any difficulties?  A. No.

Q. And he did not?  A. And he did not, and I never knew how much he had, he never told me.

Q. You never found how much he had to put up?  A. No, how much cash he had.

Q. How much he had to put up in the Government deposit in all?  A. I did; he put up $250,000, because he told me.

Q. You did not know how much he had of that?  A. No.

Q. I thought you understood he was borrowing what he still required?  A. No, I did not understand it that way.

Q. You thought he might have to borrow the balance elsewhere?  A. No, I did not.

Q. You did not think that?  A. No, I do not think that is right to insinuate.

Q. I am not insinuating?  A. No, I know you are not, you are suggesting it.

Q. Did you think he had to borrow money elsewhere or that that $80,000 was all he wanted?  A. The $80,000 was all he asked us for.

Q. That is an answer to the question?  A. I do not know what else his needs were.

Q. I wanted you to tell me whether you understood that that was all he wanted or that he was going to borrow money elsewhere?  A. I do not think he was borrowing money elsewhere; it was never discussed.

Q. He told you he had been trying to get this from the bank and from another Trust Company and so on?  A. Yes.

Q. And were not you aware that if you loaned him this money it would complete his organization?  A. Yes, I think I would be aware of that fact.

Q. It was the final step so to speak?  A. Yes; he said if he got this $80,000 he could complete his organization and go ahead with the bank and then he was all right.

Q. Were the notes deposited with you?  A. According to that list?

Q. Yes?  A. Yes.

Q. Were they deposited before the issue of the cheque?  A. Yes, I think so.

Q. Are you sure?  A. Yes. Well, I do not know, I have never looked into it, but I assume so.

Q. Is it too long to recollect?  A. I have not any recollection about it at all in that respect.

Q. Did you about that time get the notes in fact?  A. Why, yes, beyond any question, they were the security.
Q. In view of the arrangement you had made, if I am right in calling it an arrangement, you did after that hand over notes from time to time to Travers? A. I do not think we handed over anything until some time in February.

Q. Were you asked to? A. No.

Q. When your loan came due within a month? A. It was not paid and it was not due in a month; it was a demand loan.

Q. I understand but you took that in that form, but it was quite understood he was to have a month, he was paying $1,000 and he was to have a month? A. At least, and he had three I think.

Q. To complete his organization; assuming it came due in about a month it would be a little after the 11th? A. It would be, say, the 15th November.

Q. Did he apply either at that time or say in December for his notes back? A. He never asked for the notes not until February.

Q. Did you say to him "Now, you are to discount these notes and pay me off, and I want that done"? A. No, I never asked him for that.

Q. Were you conscious he was paying you back in December? A. He started in to pay back.

Q. Were you conscious of that? A. Absolutely conscious.

Q. You knew he was not discounting the notes to do so? A. He did not say where the money came from, he was not discounting the notes; we had on hand.

Q. Did you know where the money was coming from? A. I did not.

Q. Did you know then? A. It was a cheque of the Farmers Bank.

Q. Did you know it was part of the moneys returned by the Government? A. I did not.

Q. Did you ask him? A. I did not.

Q. Do you know of any other money it could come out of? A. No.

Q. You knew it was not in accordance with what had been arranged as to the discount of the notes, I should think it would have excited your curiosity? A. I do not know, when a man comes in and gives me $25,000 or whatever it was, I take it.

Q. You might have a feeling of curiosity to know why you were getting it back in a different way than you had arranged? A. I fully expected he would get the notes all at once; I did not know what financial arrangements he had made.

Q. Why was the cheque given in the way it was through Mitchell? A. The explanation is very simple. He came in and said, "I am going to pay you something on that loan" and I said "all right"; he said "I am paying it through the Traders Bank,—some bank—" and he said "I do not want them to think that you are getting any part of their deposit, because they are going to act as the bankers for the Farmers Bank and I propose making the cheque payable to so and so, and he mentioned somebody and having that man endorse it to you". I did not like it, but he had all the time been telling me of the opposition of other banks and of the difficulties he was in, and one thing and another and I said, "I do not suppose we should mind how we get this money, but if you want to do it that way, I would rather have it made payable to our own broker and let him endorse it over to us". I remember very well, he said, "that is better, I would sooner do it that way, because the Traders Bank will think I am buying some stock".

Q. We know just how it did happen and that would quite accord with your evidence? A. There is no doubt how it happened.

Q. I am not going to dwell on it; what was the point that Travers raised about the Traders Bank? A. They were his bankers, and if he withdrew these sums from the account, they would think that part of the deposit was being transferred to us as a savings deposit.

Q. What deposit? A. The bank funds; he was paying it out of the bank funds.

Q. Funds on deposit in the Traders Bank? A. Yes.
Q. He told you he had got his money back from Ottawa? A. Oh yes; I do not remember his telling me, but there is no doubt he did tell me.

Q. Was the arrangement as to Mitchell repeated on the payment of the second? A. And the third too.

Q. Was that loan paid off in December? A. I will tell you exactly what happened. He paid I think perhaps either twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars first; I never saw any entries in our books in connection with this matter until a year ago last January.

Q. There were three payments? A. He paid that say to-day, and it went through in the way I have said. In two or three days perhaps he paid thirty thousand dollars or twenty-five thousand dollars, in two or three days he paid the remainder.

Q. With interest? A. Yes. When I got the first payment I took it over to the insurance company and paid it to them; I kept the next one, I think it was $25,000. He made the third payment and I think he made it—I do not remember exactly, but it seems to me he made it in the afternoon. The next morning he came down to me and he said, "now, you have got these moneys and I find that the banks are fighting me very hard; I want to open for business and I want to be as strong as I can; you have got all your security; now I want you to treat those moneys that I have paid you as the property of the Farmers Bank, put them to their credit or its credit, and I want you to extend my loan for a few months for us?" "Well", I said, "we are not loaning this transaction"—I felt sorry for the chap I was sympathetic, I might have been willing and I was, and I said, "I will have to go over to the Life Company and see them."

Q. Had you paid the third payment over to them? A. No, we had written out a cheque to them, but it had not gone; that is what the book would indicate. I went over and saw the manager and told him exactly what Mr. Travers had said and he said it was getting on towards the end of the year. I asked him to give us back the $35,000 or whatever it was we had paid him. They said it was all right, but they had made their arrangements for the close of the year, the 31st December, and they did not want to sell anything or change anything, but that the $30,000 or $35,000 the remainder could stand; and I spoke to our executors and told them we would have to assume this deposit, that is the money that the Life Insurance Company had received and let the matter go on, and our people were quite agreeable; the entries were changed; the moneys that had been applied on Travers' loan were converted into the property of the Farmers Bank and I gave him a letter setting out that from the dates these moneys had been received they were the property of the Farmers Bank with interest. The letter is somewhere. He said to me, "now, what I will do is, I will be getting in some moneys myself, and then I have got these notes which will be being paid from time to time and I will deposit in a special account to my credit, my personal credit, funds from time to time and these notes can be applied in reduction of my loan until it is paid off.

Q. His personal account with you? A. He only had the loan account.

Q. Was that deposit with you? A. He was going to open a personal deposit account with us in his own name or money to retire this personal loan.

Q. How long did it take to arrange with the Insurance Company to go over and see them and come back and arrange with your executive? A. I do not suppose I discussed it with anybody except Mr. Stratton; I do not think it would take more than half an hour or an hour.

Q. Was he in town that day? A. I think so.

Q. Do you remember discussing it with him? A. Oh I discussed it with him.

Q. That day? A. Oh I think so, yes.

Q. Then you were going on to say something more? A. When I look at the book I see that he did open the account.

Q. In his own name? A. No.
Q. In whose name?  A. In the name of the Farmers Bank of Canada.
Q. That was not the arrangement?  A. No.
Q. This loan you said had been a loan to Travers?  A. Yes.
Q. What was said by him about changing it to the Farmers Bank?  A. It was not changed.
Q. Mr. Stockdale says it was?  A. I cannot help what Mr. Stockdale says.
Q. And that he struck out certain words at the top and made it deposit belonging to the Farmers Bank?  A. That is not the loan; I think you are confusing the deposit account with the loan account. The loan account was opened in Mr. Travers’ own name and continued that way to the end of the chapter.
Q. When was the end of the chapter?  A. I should think some time till about the end of March, 1907.
Q. The end of the chapter was not on the 18th December, 1906?  A. No.
Q. On the 18th December, 1906, which was the date at which the entries were reversed, was the money put then to the credit of the Farmers Bank?  A. Yes.
Q. Then was Travers’ loan paid off?  A. No.
Q. Did you have both a deposit to the credit of the Farmers Bank and the loan outstanding?  A. A loan to Travers.
Q. Outstanding?  A. Yes.
Q. The moneys paid went to the credit of the Farmers Bank and who did the notes belong to?  A. Which moneys?
Q. The moneys which had been paid in those three payments to you?  A. Yes, they had been first applied to Travers’ loan.

At Mr. Hodgins’ request, the reporter reads the second question above: The moneys paid went to the credit of the Farmers Bank and who did the notes belong to?  A. That is a beautiful question.

Mr. Hellmuth: That is a double question.

Mr. Hodgins: All right, split it up.

Mr. Commissioner: Go on and answer the question?  A. The situation was when these three payments came in they were applied on Travers’ loan, and Travers came to me subsequently, these credits were taken out of Travers’ loan account and were put to the credit of the Farmers Bank of Canada and the moneys represented by those three payments became a deposit of the Farmers Bank of Canada, and then the Travers’ loan went back to the condition it was in before the payments were made.

Mr. Hodgins: Whose were the notes?  A. They were Travers’ notes.
Q. In your possession?  A. Yes.
Q. As taken in hypothecation?  A. We had not given up our hypothecation.
Q. You did not take any new one?  A. No.
Q. I suppose you thought it a little peculiar that just the day after he paid the thing off he should want to put it on back in a different form?  A. Yes.
Q. Were you satisfied with his explanation?  A. Yes, or I would not have given the letter.
Q. What did you know about Mr. Knight coming up?  A. I do not think I knew anything about Mr. Knight.
Q. Did he tell you Mr. Knight had been there worrying him?  A. I do not think so; his language was general; he said he was going to open the bank and the banks were making trouble for him and he wanted to open strong.
Q. Did not he hint in any way or suggest that the Canadian Bankers’ Association were giving him trouble and he wanted to show them that?  A. I do not think he was at all specific. My impression is—it is a long time ago—my impression is he just said he was going to open up and the bankers were making trouble for him or were going to make trouble or were liable to make trouble and he wanted to open strong.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Is this letter I show you a copy of the letter, your original was dated December 18th (Exhibit 56)? A. I think that is a duplicate of the deposit receipt that I gave him.

Q. He took it away with him? A. Yes.

Q. You got nothing from him in writing? A. I do not think so. You see the transaction reverted to its original form.

Q. Was that a usual sort of thing to do? A. No.

Q. Suppose he afterwards denied and said he paid it and you had no claim on him, no claim on the notes, where would you have been? A. We had the notes.

Q. Suppose he made that claim? A. I never thought of that; I never thought of Travers in any way but as an honorable man; he never made me a promise he did not keep.

Q. Even with honorable men you would take some document of some kind to indicate what the transaction was really? A. I had the notes and the transaction showed.

Q. That is all you can tell us about it? A. Yes.

Q. You won't go any further as to what he said to you about Knight or the Canadian Bankers' Association? A. I cannot say anything more than I have said.

Q. Had he borrowed more money from you than $80,000 up to that time? A. He had borrowed $20,000 some time later in October.

Q. What was that for? A. Between the time of our loan or the first loan of $80,000 and the second advance the Ontario Bank failed, and that upset everybody's calculations for a time. He came to me, I should say perhaps two weeks after the $80,000, I don't know exactly, and he said one of his subscribers had promised him $20,000 in cash, and I think he said his name was Devean, I am not sure, but I think so; he said Devean had subscribed for the stock and he had a lot of securities which he expected to sell and was going to sell, but on account of the failure of the bank he could not market the securities at the present time. Travers said he had arranged with Devean to take the securities over and that he, Travers, would pay up Devean's subscription in full, he borrowing the $20,000 on the securities himself, and he brought me in, I do not know what they were now, I think they were some Canadian.

Q. It is all set out in that loan agreement? A. Yes; and we loaned $20,000 on the security of that stock.

Q. Who did you loan it to? A. To Travers.

Q. Both these loans appear to have been specifically to Travers? A. There is no doubt about it.

Q. You had a purpose in that? A. What do you mean?

Q. I mean it was intentionally loaned to him so that it would appear not to be loaned to anybody else? A. I do not know, the loans were applied for by Mr. Travers, the security was provided by Mr. Travers, and I looked upon the loans to Mr. Travers personally and not to anybody else.

Q. How did it come the $20,000 cheque was payable to the Bank of Montreal? A. At his request, just the same as the $80,000.

Q. What excuse did he give for that? A. Just the same.

Q. To save bookkeeping entries? A. Yes.

Q. Did you accept that excuse? A. I did.

Q. You got, I think, on that loan some stock and also some notes? A. Yes.

Q. Were any of those notes to the provisional directors, do you remember? A. I do not remember, but I think so; I think they were part of the notes—I do not know—I imagine they were.

Q. Did Mr. Hunter advise on that? A. No.
Q. You took that on your own responsibility? A. I loaned that on the securities other than the notes; I think the security was ample without it.

Q. Some shares in the Dominion Permanent, you knew their value? A. I investigated into the security and I thought it was ample.

Q. That you knew was going to complete the deposit with the Government? A. It was going to make up the deposit; I do not know whether it was going to complete it.

Q. He explained he was unexpectedly short? A. No, he did not say that; he said this man had unexpectedly failed to pay him $20,000 and this was the way he was going to get it.

Q. You loaned him another sum, $2,380? A. Yes.

Q. He was at the end of his resources, I should judge, because he pledged you his life insurance payable to his wife? A. I do not know whether he was at the end of his resources, I should not have been surprised that he had been; he had quite a task; I would not have been surprised if he was getting a bit short about then.

Q. Did he apply for the $2,380 loan? A. I think so.

Q. Did he explain its purpose? A. Yes.

Q. What did he tell you? A. He said Mr. Laidlaw was making trouble for him among some of the shareholders up there in Halton, and he proposed to meet the situation by taking over some of the shares of the people who Mr. Laidlaw had influenced against him and he needed this much money, I think, to take over the shares of the people who were discontented.

Q. Did Mr. Hunter advise in that matter? A. I think he did.

Q. For the Trusts & Guarantee Company? A. Yes.

Q. Why was he called in then? A. I do not know.

Q. He had not been in the $20,000? A. I do not know, I cannot tell you that.

Q. Was it not for fear of litigation that Laidlaw was bringing, that made you anxious? A. I never was afraid of Mr. Laidlaw.

Q. I asked you if you were afraid of the litigation he was bringing? A. No.

Q. Why was Mr. Hunter retained? A. I do not know except that he drew the assignments of the security, and I do not know why he was not retained in the $20,000 matter except for the fact that we had these other securities.

Q. I suppose you realized that Mr. Laidlaw’s litigation if it went on would prevent the organization of the bank? Did you inquire about it? A. I did not.

Q. Did you see the writ? A. I did not.

Q. Who did you leave that to? A. I did not have anything to do with it; the writ was not against me.

Q. Did you leave that to Hunter? A. No.

Q. What were his instructions? A. He had not any from me.

Q. Was he acting for you? In that action? A. Yes? A. No.

Q. In connection with that loan? A. $2,380? Your question gave me the impression you meant the writ. He had no instructions from the Trust Company or from me in respect of the Laidlaw action.

Q. Not even to look into it from your point of view? A. No, he did not have a watching brief.

Q. I am not speaking of brief at all; it was litigation that was tying up the organization of the bank and you were lending money to get rid of it, and I suppose you instructed him to—? A. We did not lend the money to get rid of the litigation. Mr. Travers said Mr. Laidlaw had made him a proposition, that if he, Laidlaw, was made the solicitor for the bank that his difficulties would disappear. I did not ask Mr. Laidlaw anything about it, but I saw the difficulty. Mr. Travers told me he had refused to make terms with him, and he wanted to borrow a few thousand dollars to get rid of the shareholders who had become disgruntled through Laidlaw's interference.

Q. That would have been no interest to anybody if it had not stopped the organization of the bank would it; did you understand that it was standing in the way of the organization of the bank? A. I did not.

Q. Did you understand 'Travers' anxiety to get the money? A. He did not seem to be very anxious; he wanted to fight Laidlaw, he wanted to kill Laidlaw.

Q. Notwithstanding he pledged his life insurance he did not seem anxious to get the money? A. He wanted the money; I did not see any anxiety about him particularly.

Q. This was an ordinary business transaction as far as you were concerned; he was quite calm and not excited about Laidlaw? A. He was quite calm about the transaction, but he was not calm in regard to Laidlaw.

Q. Did he say to you that Laidlaw was making charges which would prevent him getting that certificate? A. No.

Q. He did not give you any cause of anxiety at all? A. Not the slightest.

Q. You just lent the money? A. Yes.

Q. Did you know that he was so anxious that before you had advanced the money he had actually sent out there to buy them off—the transaction took two or three days to go through? A. I do not remember that. I have no doubt he sent out to these shareholders in some way or another. Mr. Watson was acting for the bank in that matter.

Q. I understand your evidence to be that nothing in his manner or in what he said to you indicated that he was at all afraid of the result of the Laidlaw action? A. He did not give me that impression.

Q. He was mad at Laidlaw himself? A. Yes. I do not want anybody to think that I condemn Mr. Laidlaw for anything; I am just telling you what Mr. Travers said to me, because, so far as Mr. Laidlaw is concerned I have never had anything but satisfactory business relationships with him.

Q. You did not instruct Mr. Hunter to see the action was properly got rid of? A. No, Mr. Hunter did not act for us at all in that.

Q. Just in putting the loan through? A. Except in that respect.

Q. My recollection of Mr. Hunter's evidence is a little different from that, but I am taking your recollection now? A. I am giving it to you to the best of my recollection.

Q. Did you meet Mr. Hunter and Mr. Travers down in Mr. Watson's office at night? A. I think I did; I think I was over there once.

Q. In connection with this suit? A. I think so.

Q. How do you make that agree with what you say, that you were taking no interest in the suit and did not instruct him to see it was got rid of? A. I do not know I am sure; I have a recollection of having been in Mr. Watson's office in connection with it, but I have no recollection of what occurred, and I did not feel I was interested in the matter at all except to still further help Travers in his necessity.

Q. Had you more than one interview at night? A. You mean with Watson?

Q. Yes? A. I do not think I ever had an interview with Watson at night; I think it was in the day time.

Q. Who was with you? A. I think Mr. Hunter, and that is all; I am not sure.

Q. Was the action discussed? A. I think Mr. Laidlaw was more discussed than the action.

Q. Or Mr. Lindsay was? A. I do not think so; my recollection is I never met Lindsay until we both attended Colonel McLennan's funeral at Williamsburg; I did not know him.
Q. Mr. Hunter says his recollection is he met you, and Mr. Travers and Mr. Lindsay, and he discussed the matter; “the question came up who should act and I advised them to go to an independent solicitor and they went”? A. I think I have somewhat of a recollection of Mr. Hunter saying to me that he did not propose to act for the Farmers Bank in connection with this matter. He had been acting for the Farmers Bank; after the loans went through he was retained by Travers and had been acting for the bank in the interval, and my recollection is that he told me that he did not propose to act for them in connection with this matter. He would tell me that I suppose in connection with the loan going through; I know, as a matter of fact, that Mr. Watson’s firm acted; the record will show.

Q. Mr. Hunter was asked about this litigation this question (page 278): “That was awkward litigation both for the Trusts & Guarantee Company, who had arranged the loan, and for the Farmers Bank, was it not? A. I could not speak as to the Farmers Bank, but I should not think it would be awkward as far as the Trusts & Guarantee Company are concerned; it was a question of whether they had their security or not.

“Q. Was not your security attacked in that action? A. I do not think so.

“Q. Was it not impeached? A. I do not think so. The Trusts & Guarantee Company were not a party to the litigation.” You had only the one interview as I understand it? A. With Travers.

Q. With Travers, Lindsay and yourself? A. I do not recollect Lindsay being present; I do not recollect Travers being there, but my recollection was that Hunter and I had some interview with Mr. Watson.

Q. That, however, you think with Mr. Watson you had in the day time? A. I think so, but I do not want to be too positive.

Q. I think it is Lindsay who gives the account of it, of a meeting at night between himself and you and Travers, and then going down to Mr. Watson’s office; I do not think it was at night, I think it probably was the next day; would that occur? A. No, I cannot remember meeting Mr. Lindsay at all; he does not appear in the landscape at all to me until long after.

Q. He did keep in the background more or less? A. I did not put him there.

Q. With the reversal of that entry in December the 18th, the loan to Travers was still left outstanding, according to your contention? A. Yes; it was then it became $35,000 from the insurance company and $45,000 the Trusts & Guarantee Company.

Q. You appear to have been paid off, if one may speak of it in that way, some time during the early part of the following year of 1907? A. I think it was some time in March, some time about the end or middle of March; I do not know except from looking at the books.

Q. According to the books, there was a deposit account opened in your books in which the Farmers Bank made deposits? A. Yes.

Q. Were they ordinary deposits or deposits of Farmers Bank circulation? A. They were ordinary deposits, as far as I know, I did not know anything about the deposit of circulation until long after.

Q. Anyway, it appears to have run on till I think April the 8th? A. I do not know.

Q. Mr. Stockdale was examined and he gave us the details of it? A. He is an accountant and I am not.

Q. Were they actual deposits made? A. Oh, yes; that is as far as I know.

Q. Deposits made with you and then were cheques given? A. Yes, you mean cheques drawn against it?

Q. Yes? A. But I think those cheques should have been charged against the deposit account that was made up of those three entries.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. What cheques are you speaking of? A. There was the loan account, and there was the original deposit account of the Farmers Bank made up of those three cheques which you call reversed entries and then some time in January a third account was opened up, Farmers Bank deposit account, and in that account various amounts were deposited, and then cheques were drawn by the Farmers Bank on the Trust Company; those cheques were charged up to that third account; I think they should have been charged to the deposit account because I have said this third account was to have been opened as I understood Travers, in his name, and he was to put money in there from time to time and as they accumulated they were to be applied on the loan until it was wiped off.

Q. It would seem to me that in that case the cheques upon that account would have been the proper way of paying off his loan? A. No.

Q. And that was the system adopted? A. No, he withdrew his deposits; I never saw these accounts until—

Q. He did not withdraw his deposit in the sense of withdrawing a cheque against that and getting it out? A. No, I can only tell what I had in my mind.

Q. You think the cheques should have been charged to a different account against deposits? A. It would have left the balance just the same.

Q. The coincidence of course is, it makes up just the exact sum that was required—A. Yes.

Q. Can you throw any light on it at all? A. No.

Q. Who had to do with the chequeing as between the Trusts & Guarantee Company and the bank? A. I do not know.

Q. Were you ever consulted about it? A. No.

Q. Did you know anything about the amount Travers was depositing in that account and the amount of cheques he was giving? A. No.

Q. Or to their application? A. No.

Q. Who knew? A. I do not think anybody knew anything about it till the end of March when they came down and cleaned up the whole transaction.

Q. He was making deposits and then drawing a cheque against it and having it applied in a certain way; who would know about that? A. It was not applied at all.

Q. Then you think nobody would know anything about it? A. If the man has an account with us and deposits moneys and draws cheques against it that is the ordinary course of business.

Q. Who would know that ordinary course of business? A. I do not think anybody would unless somebody wanted an overdraft and then they would not get it.

Q. Nobody but you and Stockdale would know anything about that account? A. We would not know anything about it only when he tried to draw a cheque and we did not have the money; it would only happen in such a case and then the ledger keeper would come to us.

Q. Were any instructions given in the office as to the account? A. Take in deposits and pay out cheques, to that extent; those are general instructions.

Q. Was not the understanding that he was to open a deposit account in his own name and that was to pay off his loan? A. I thought so.

Q. You gave your Instructions that money would be received and cheques paid on it? A. Not specifically; those were general instructions.

Q. So that there were no specific Instructions which would carry out the arrangement between you and Travers? A. Absolutely none.

Q. Apparently what was done would indicate the way in which the transaction took place between those who dealt with it? A. I do not think there is anybody, to be perfectly fair, I do not think there is anybody in the Trust Company knew anything about these accounts after the time that the special deposit account was opened for the Farmers Bank.

Q. Did you look into the books at any time? A. Never.
Q. Did you know when he paid out of the so-called deposit? A. I think I was in the office in March when he came in and gave a cheque and cleaned up the three accounts or four accounts at once, whatever they were; but I cannot recollect what occurred.

Q. Did he pay them over to you? A. I do not think so; I think he paid them off downstairs.

Q. What arrangements were made by Travers as to deposits to be made by you in the bank; there was a matter of fact deposits made by the Trust Company in the Farmers Bank. A. Yes.

Q. Were they accidental or was there any arrangement made before the deposits were opened? A. I do not remember anything special; there is not a bank in town that does not solicit us for some of our money.

Q. I know? A. I cannot remember anything special except I have no doubt he asked if we could not deposit some of our moneys there.

Q. Was there any arrangement made as to the rate of interest? A. Yes, there was an arrangement made whenever the deposits were made.

Q. Who was that made by? A. Between Mr. Travers and myself.

Q. What was he to allow you? A. I cannot remember; the entries will show for themselves.

Q. Whatever the interest is calculated at? A. Yes.

Q. There was an arrangement anyway that the usual rate of interest, I suppose, should be allowed? A. We are having a little difference; it has not assumed a serious condition as to what interest we should allow on deposits; you are not dealing with that—

Q. I say what interest did you get from the Farmers Bank? A. Whatever the account shows, that is what we got.

Q. Is that according to the arrangements? A. Yes.

Q. You deposited some moneys belonging to the Hamilton Estate? A. No, there was no Hamilton Estate, it was liquidator's money.

Q. The Hamilton liquidation? A. Yes, we have accounts with nearly every bank in town; I want to make it clear we did not make any exception in the case of this bank. We have to put liquidator's money in a chartered bank; we spread our favors around in order to get reciprocity.

Q. What was the interest in that? A. I think we were to get 3%.

Q. Does that belong to the company or to the trust? A. It belongs to the creditors.

Q. What would come to the Trusts Company itself would be the interest—? A. On the open account.

Q. That is the case? A. That it is only on open account?

Q. Yes? A. And possibly some of that would be some trust money on which we would have to allow interest.

Q. Contemporaneously with the opening of those accounts was there any account opened by the bank with you? A. I do not know; I do not think it is contemporaneous.

Q. Just about the same time? A. I do not know.

Q. What arrangement did you make with regard to circulation with Travers? A. That was long after, was it not?

Q. After what? A. After the deposit account was opened; I am not sure; I will tell you what the arrangement was: Mr. Travers said to me frequently that he was having trouble getting his circulation out, keeping his circulation out a normal length of time. He said the other banks were unfriendly and that they were in the habit of instructing their branches to send Farmers Bank currency in to Toronto the minute it was received, and then they would combine and throw a large amount of circulation at him through the Clearing House. I do not think at that time but subsequently he told me they opened the Clearing House especially for him one Saturday, hit him for $35,000.
Q. Mr. Fielding said the Bankers' Association took him and welcomed him in their arms? A. I am not responsible for what Mr. Fielding said on any subject. We have no currency of our own, no Trust Company can issue currency, but our customers, people having deposits with us come in and draw funds and we were in the habit of carrying from $5,000 to $10,000 in cash in our tills so as to pay any cheques that were drawn on us; and having told me of his difficulties with the other banks, he said "You can help me here without hurting yourself." He said, "You can pay out at least a part of your withdrawals with Farmers Bank notes." I said, "All right, glad to help you."

Q. What help did he indicate that would be? As I understand his trouble was the circulation was coming back too quickly through the Clearing House? A. Yes.

Q. How were you helping him in sending out his circulation? A. When we paid it out it did not go into a bank ordinarily. This was his explanation to me, it would go out to John Smith who was a grocer and he takes it up to his store, and he pays it in change to his customers, and they go down to another store and it stays out for five or six weeks before it gets into the Clearing House, and he has to redeem it then. Do you understand the Clearing House?

Q. Yes, sufficiently for this purpose. What was the difference between the circulation he would pay out over the counter and that which you would pay out over your counter? A. No difference at all, except that the volume would be increased by the amount that he would pay out.

Q. That is more circulation would go out through you? A. Yes, and if he had five or ten thousand dollars on deposit with us he could draw it at any moment, which he did; and then on the other hand being in that position he could lend some of the funds, specie and legal and one thing and another which he had in his own treasury at 6 or 7%, relying on being able to get the five or ten or fifteen thousand dollars if he needed it.

Q. In other words the circulation which was deposited with you was put to the credit of the Farmers Bank in your books. A. It was.

Q. And you made use of it? A. Certainly.

Q. That account would be a credit account to the Farmers Bank? A. Yes.

Q. And they could send down and draw on you? A. Yes, draw on us, and we would give them a cheque on the Bank of Montreal, or we would get legal.

Q. I quite understand the benefit of depositing with you in that way? A. Yes.

Q. Have you explained all he explained to you about the alleged benefit by your admitting circulation? A. I think so; it is generally supposed a bank has a decided benefit in being able to have circulation and circulate it. I think the banks would be very sorry if that privilege were cut off.

Q. They have not got far enough to say there is benefit from circulation when some one else comes in between that they deposit it with? A. I think they have.

Q. However, I do not want to discuss that with you? A. Very well.

Q. What arrangement was made with regard to the interest you would pay on the deposit the Farmers would make with you? A. I think we allowed them 2½ or 3%; I am not sure, but our books show.

Q. Mr. Stockdale says that lasted only for a short time? A. It lasted for quite a considerable time.

Q. How long? A. I do not know; the books will show.

Q. Just as long as the books show? A. Yes.

Q. He was professing to speak from the books? A. Very well.

Q. My recollection is he said there came a time when the arrangement was done away with? A. I went to Mr. Travers and I said "this account of yours is a little too liquid, it is moving too fast, you come down and want five and ten and fifteen thousand dollars sometimes and we have to be ready to give it to you. If you had your account with any other bank you should not get any interest on it". He said, "no, I would not". I said "why should we pay you interest"? He said, "I don't think you should"; and the interest had ceased.

Q. What do you mean by the account being too liquid? A. I mean to say the payment of interest on the deposit is really based upon the depositary having the use of the money for more or less permanent period. If the money comes in to-day and goes out to-morrow or goes out the next day, or if the balance is not settled or more or less permanent, there is no benefit from acting as a clear storage.

Q. The money did not go back to Travers the next day? A. No, the circulation never went back, but when he would come down and ask for ten or fifteen thousand dollars and we gave it to him in legals, it kept this balance bobbing up and down and what I wanted was ten or fifteen or twenty thousand dollars as a permanent balance or more.

Q. And this conversation could not have occurred until he commenced to draw out considerable sums every few days? A. I do not think that, it would depend on how much he would have.

Q. The state of the account generally is this, that these deposits which ran at $500 and $1,000 a day would start in and continue and there were only a couple of cheques during the year drawn against that? A. I do not know; that was the conversation I had with him.

Q. Can you place at all when that was, because the account towards the close of the bank's career commenced to get pretty active? A. I may say I was not in the Trust Company at all scarcely; I was away entirely from about the middle of February to pretty well on to the end of March, 1910, and I was away practically from the 1st June to the end of November, in the same year at some special work in the West.

Q. This circulation deposit account commenced in January, 1909, you were there all during 1909? A. Well, I am not seeking to avoid any responsibility and I think the arrangement was made before February of 1910, under which the rate of interest was taken away.

Q. Would it not be shortly before that? A. Of 1910?

Q. Yes? A. That is my impression; my impression is that account ran with interest from the time it was opened for a matter of seven or eight months, but I am not sure.

Q. Do you remember the occasion of getting the account changed into the form of a deposit receipt? A. Do you mean $120,000?

Q. Yes? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Would that throw any light on the date at which you have had this conversation with Travers? A. No, I do not think so; I think it was quite considerably later.

Q. When the books show that interest ceased, that would be about the date of the conversation? A. Yes, I think so.

Q. And at that time the reason you gave him was that his account was too active, he was drawing too much out of it in legals? A. Not in legals; he was drawing on it.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: That is plain; he was not leaving a stable balance enough in the company; what is the use of elaborating it?

Mr. HODGINS: As a matter of fact he was leaving it.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: That is what Mr. Warren's, evidence is? A. Yes that is my evidence.

Mr. HODGINS: During 1909, of course, you were using the circulation, paying it out over the counter and getting the benefit of it that way? A. Yes, partly Farmers Bank and partly Bank of Montreal.

Q. Before you went away in February, 1910, did you realize that your deposit account with them and theirs with you were just about equal? A. I never realized that; they were never interdependent in that way; I do not think we disturbed our deposit account with them at all, and theirs was bobbing up and down all the time.

Q. Are you speaking of your own knowledge? A. No. I am not; that is just the impression I have got.

Q. If I showed you the entries in the book could you tell me anything about it? A. No, they are accurate and what I am giving you is my impression; I never saw the books or the entries until—

Q. You say they were not interdependent in any way? A. Yes.

Q. There was no understanding that one should be kept about equivalent to the other? A. No.

Q. Is there any explanation for the fact that they were more or less so, and that the entries appear occasionally to be related, one to the other? A. I do not know of any explanation; I do not know that what you say is the fact; if it is it is a mere coincidence.

Q. I am asking you if it is so, whether you can throw any light upon it with regard to their depending one upon the other? A. No, there was no inter-relationship like that.

Q. To whom would I apply to know if there was any relationship between the two? A. Nobody, unless to me or to Mr. Travers.

Q. You and Travers? A. I think so. You see he and Stockdale were never very friendly, and the business was usually done between him and me.

Q. Did you then keep any track by looking at the books from, say, month to month or six months to six months, how the account stood, how much he had with you and how much you had with them? A. No, I never checked him up; I thought he was an honorable man and I trusted him absolutely.

Q. Of course you would not want to deposit too much there? A. We would not deposit any more with the Farmers Bank or any less than with any other institution. I did not look up that bank then in any different position than any other chartered bank.

Q. Would you want to know how much you had with them? A. I would get statements, as I usually did, of the amount of moneys we had deposited with different financial institutions; but I did not differentiate so far as the Farmers Bank is concerned.

Q. Then you did not get any details of how much they deposited with you and how much you deposited with them? A. No, nor with any other account; there was no difference.

Q. Was your attitude all through that this bank was perfectly solvent? A. Absolutely.

Q. Absolutely satisfactory? A. Absolutely.

Q. And nothing that Travers said or did threw any doubt in your mind on it? A. No, on the contrary many things that he said and did confirmed me in that idea.

Q. You were friends, were you not? A. We became financial friends; I had never met him, but when I have business relations with anybody and trust him I am his friend.

Q. Did you go into any dealings with him? A. No, never made five cents out of the Farmers Bank.

Q. Accounts ran on in that way and you finally lent him some $75,000? A. Yes.

Q. Was that the first or was it $100,000 first? A. That was the first.

Q. Which? A. $75,000.

Q. What was his need of that? A. He had a branch at Haileybury; he said the Traders Bank sort of seduced his manager and moved the manager and the deposit accounts practically bodily to the Traders Bank in one day, and he was called on to meet quite a large sum of money unexpectedly. He said he had plenty of money out on call with brokers and others and he did not want to call it, because he did not want to give anybody the impression that he needed any money at all, especially in view of this; he called it piracy, I think he said something like that; and he said he wanted to arrange the loan of $75,000 on security of, I do not know how many shares, of American Piano preferred, which was a stock selling at, it had always paid 7% interest and sold at somewhere between 90 and 95. He said he did not want all the money; he could take care of a large part of any turned on him, but he wanted to have it there so as to draw on it if needed. I consulted with our people and they agreed to make him a loan, and we took the security and made him the advance.

Q. Cash advance? A. $75,000 loan, that was the first loan we made to the Farmers Bank.

Q. That was a cash advance? A. That was an ordinary business transaction, cash advance, and that was the explanation he gave me. I found out it was so. Mr. Stratton was connected with the Traders Bank. I told him that the action of the Traders Bank in doing a thing like that was not—well, there is no use mentioning further.

Q. Mr. Stratton was a director of the Traders Bank? A. Yes; he did not know anything about it. I found out what Travers had said was absolutely true.

Q. Was that before the deposit receipt for $120,000 was issued? A. I think so; I would not be sure; the dates speak for themselves.

Q. What was the next loan? A. The next loan was a loan of $100,000, with which I had very little to do.

Q. Who had to do with that? A. I may say from the 1st June, 1910, I had for some time very little to do with the management of the Trust Company. I undertook an agency matter of very considerable importance in the West, which necessitated my being out there a good deal, and I was only in the Trust Company at very short intervals; in fact, that is still the condition.

Q. From the 1st of June till when? A. Till the present time. I left Toronto on the 1st June, 1910, and I returned, I think, on the 7th or 8th July, and I was at a meeting of the company I was interested in on the 8th or 9th or 10th in connection with getting out of some securities, and at some time in July Travers came to me—I was over at Niagara having a game of bowls, and I got back and I went to Muskoka and I took a little bit of a rest—I had not had one for four or five years, and Travers came to me some time I think about the 20th of July. He said that the Home Bank had made a wild and unprovoked attack on him down in Lindsay; they had seduced his manager; the manager had moved out with I do not know, eighty or ninety thousand dollars of deposits, and while he was in his employ he had got cheques signed by all the depositors and the first thing he did after he left was to present those cheques and forced Travers to meet some eighty or ninety thousand dollars of deposits without any notice or without any warning or reason. He said he had plenty of money; he was in good shape, but he said a thing like that did not do the bank any good; that he proposed taking proceedings against these chaps, for I do not know what, conspiracy—conspiracy is a charge you can make pretty nearly against anybody—and he said he wanted to get that loan of $100,000 so as to feel that no matter what came he was all right. He brought in, I think, $200,000 or $250,000 of Farmers notes, and told me he had three-quarters of a million more out in his different branches.

Q. That would be a million altogether? A. Yes. I remember he said he had three-quarters of a million more out among his branches, and he wanted to get this loan, and he said later on he proposed to borrow $100,000 on the security of the bonds of the Keeley Mine. This must have been pretty well towards the end of the month, because I had a talk with Mr. Stratton about it, and we verified his statements as to what had happened down in Lindsay, and we agreed to help him; there was not any absolutely definite arrangement about the amount or anything, at least I do not think there was; at all events, we had the notes.

Q. Did he give you a quarter of a million of Farmers notes? A. Yes. I never examined them; he said they were that in a bundle.

Q. He gave you the bundle as security for that $100,000? A. Well, no, as security for this loan—wait a minute—we gave him credit; Mr. Bicknell's firm was preparing the bond mortgage on the Keeley Mine.

Q. Do you say he offered you Keeley Mine as well? A. Yes, he said he would give us these bonds as well. Mr. Bicknell was preparing the bond mortgage. Travers had told me that they did not have any money in the Keeley Mine, but they were acting as sort of financial agents for it, and any advances they made were secured by a very large cash deposit and in addition to that the bank had received as a bonus for introducing the business some two or three hundred thousand shares of the stock.

Q. This was all moonshine as it turned out afterwards? A. I do not know that it is fair, to call it even moonshine—it is not fair to the moon. We gave him the credit and then he came long about the Keeley bonds.

Q. You gave them credit? A. We agreed to make the loan on the notes, you see.

Q. Did you put it through? A. I think so, the books will show; the bonds were not quite ready.

Q. Was the loan made upon the notes? A. Yes.

Q. Irrespective of the Keeley Mine? A. Yes, irrespective of the Keeley Mine, because Mr. Bicknell had not the bond mortgage through at that time.

Q. Was it intended that the Keeley Mine bonds should secure that same loan? A. He said so; it was not anything definite at that stage.

Q. Travers needed money urgently? A. No, I do not think so; I do not think the books will show that he drew that $100,000 for a long time.

Q. I thought he had to meet those eighty or ninety thousand dollar withdrawals? A. He had resources.

Q. You think it was not drawn until a long time after the amount was put to his credit? A. Some of it was, but some of it was not for a long time. Soon after the first of the month, I was going back; he came along and, 'I do not know whether it was before, I am not clear on the date, but I will give you the fact, he came to me then and he said to me, "I would like to borrow this $100,000 on the Keeley bonds." He said, "We are making some advances now to the property; I have refused an offer—I do not know whether it was six or seven or eight hundred thousand dollars cash for it—and I am going to get a couple of millions and you have the security, you have these notes", and he intended that we should hold the notes. I said to him. I told him my position in the matter, I was out of the active management of the company and "I think you had better go down and see Mr. Stratton about this, I do not care to take the responsibility of initiating this application; I won't oppose it if it is put through, but you had better go down and see Mr. Stratton and ask him about it." He went down one Sunday, and that evening Mr. Stratton telephoned me to my house and he thought the thing was all right and to put the loan through. I had some talk with Mr. Stratton about these notes. I felt that Travers was being handicapped in having these notes outside of his own branches, and I said to Mr. Stratton that I thought if he felt the way he did about the Keeley Mine and I felt the same way (I believed every word the man said), that it would be a mistake to hold these notes we had. He said, "All right, if you think so, all right". So the next day or the day after I called Travers in and I said, "Now, look here, your bank is all right, is it not?" "Oh," he says, "it is all right; we are being hammered by the other banks, but we are strong". His sworn statements were very excellent; I read them every month and watched them. I said, "Travers, if it is all right, and you tell me it is all right, I do not want your notes, my holding of them will only embarrass you", and I handed them back to him and he took them away—I don't know whether he took them away, but I know he got the notes; and that left us with the security of Keeley bonds, a million dollars of bonds against $100,000 advance.

Q. In the meantime you had got your bond mortgage? A. Yes, in the meantime Mr. Bicknell had completed the papers and we had the bonds deposited with us, and we had security and that, in addition to the obligation of the bank to pay, became our only security with regard to the $100,000 loan.

Q. There was a bond mortgage in addition to the deposit of the bonds themselves? A. Yes, we were only trustees on the bond mortgage.

Q. Were the bonds themselves deposited with you? A. Yes.

Q. In whose favor were the bonds? A. They were payable to bearer.

Q. Had they no name in them at all? A. They never have.

Q. Had these bonds no name? A. I do not think so.

Q. Some question arose afterwards? A. It was all investigated in the matter we had with the liquidator.

The Commission adjourned at 1 p.m. to 2 p.m.

The Commission resumed at 2 p.m., June 12th, 1912.

J. J. WARREN, Examination Continued:

Mr. Hodgins: We were speaking about the $100,000 loan; the loan finally as it went through was secured by the Keeley Mine bonds? A. Entirely.

Q. And the bond mortgage? A. We were trustees of the bond issue, and the bonds were pledged to us in our corporate capacity.

Q. Were you trustees for any other bondholders than yourself? A. We had the entire issue.

Q. Was there anything else handed to the Trust Company at that time to your knowledge? A. I do not think immediately; but either the same day or the day after Mr. Travers was in the office and he had told me, as I have said, what a lot of money the bank was going to make out of the Keeley Mine; and I said to him, "Now, we are lending you a lot of money and we are only getting ordinary rates of interest, I think 6 or 7%, and I said, "I think in view of what you told me that the bank has a large amount of stock which they are not carrying as an asset and which they are going to make a lot of money out of, that you might very well give us a little bonus in connection with this". I said, "We would make more friends by letting this money out in ten thousand and fifteen thousand and twenty thousand dollar lots than in letting you have it in a hundred thousand dollar lots.

He admitted it, and said, "Yes, that is quite right". He said, "Supposing I give you a bonus—I mean the Trust Company—of 25,000 shares of Keeley Mine stock?" I said, "If you think that is not too much, I am satisfied. In view of what he said, I thought it was a substantial proposal or bonus, and he said, "I would be very glad to do it". I said, "Well, then, you may transfer 25,000 shares of it to Mr. Stockdale in trust, and I am perfectly satisfied and I think you have done very well by us". He said he was very glad to be able to do it and it was all right. That is the only conversation I had with Mr. Travers in regard to anything but the Keeley Mine bonds.

Q. Did you get the $25,000 stock? A. No, I do not think so. I think there was a certificate of some kind, I think the stock was pooled in some way or another it developed afterwards, I did not know till some time afterwards, I think we got a certificate or acknowledgement by somebody that 25,000 shares were held in the name of E. B. Stockdale in trust.

Q. What did you know of anything of an arrangement with Mr. Stratton in regard to $50,000 additional of stock in the Keeley Mine at that time?  A. I did not have any conversation with Mr. Travers about that.

Q. Did you know of it at the time you were arranging about the $25,000 bonus?  A. Not the slightest.

Q. When did you first hear of it?  A. I heard about it much to my surprise about five o'clock in the afternoon, I remember it very well, about five o'clock in the afternoon of the day I was leaving for the West; I was down here just a short time and was returning. Mr. Stratton came into my office.

Q. When would that be?  A. It would be about the second or third of August, early in August, it was after the loan had gone through and after the $25,000 bonus arrangement had been made; and then Mr. Stratton came into the office and said he had arranged with Mr. Travers for a bonus of 50,000 shares of Keeley Mine stock. “Well” I says, “That is most extraordinary; I said I got $35,000 from him to-day—it was the same day Travers had been in—and I said I think that is quite enough. Well, he said, “This is a little different, this is a personal bonus; half of it is for you and half of it is for me.” I said “No, I would not have anything to do with it. I have read Mr. Travers’ evidence and he says he gave it to Mr. Stratton as mere security. Mr. Stratton says the same thing. That is what was said to me; but perhaps it was a little bit personal, I never could understand why the offer was made to me; it was the first and also the last of the kind, and Mr. Stratton and I had some very serious differences and I think he would be about the last man, to, at least if I could imagine the positions to be reversed, I would be the last man that would want to give Mr. Stratton anything in the nature of a possible Christmas present to speak, and in view of Mr. Travers’ statement and Mr. Stratton’s, I do not know what to make of it.

Q. When did you leave for the West?  A. I left about the 3rd August I think.

Q. You wrote a letter to Mr. Travers about this same matter, about this same bonus?  A. Yes, later on.

Q. The original is among the papers I am expecting up but I have a copy of one of the letters; perhaps if you could look at it it will refresh your memory; it apparently bears out what you say?  A. Yes, I wrote that letter.

Q. There is a question I want to ask you about it; you mention Mr. Stratton having spoken to you in reference to some shares in the Keeley Mine that Travers was transferring to him, and he said he proposed giving you one-half. “But since I came out I have a letter from him that you have made the transfer and he has executed a declaration of trust in my favor”; and then you go on to say that your alleged share will be handed back to Travers if you ever get it subject to any subsequent arrangement to benefit the Trust Company?  A. Yes.

Q. That bears out your recollection of what Mr. Stratton said to you?  A. Yes.

Q. You left for the Coast and communicated with Mr. Travers in that way?  A. Yes.

Q. Did you get a reply from Mr. Travers?  A. No, I never discussed it with Mr. Travers subsequently at all, because when I got back in November it was just before Mr. Travers went down to Lindsay in connection with the matter that resulted in the failure of the bank, and I did not consider it a very substantial matter at any time.

Q. There is another letter which I cannot recollect very much about except it was giving him some advice as to reorganization?  A. Yes.
Q. Have you any objection if I show the letter to Mr. Hellmuth to putting it in if I think it is necessary? A. No.

Q. I cannot tell without seeing it? A. I notice the last paragraph says something to him about being careful; that was in line, that referred to his conversations with me, Mr. Commissioner, in which he said that the other banks were throwing circulation at him and trying to make his life generally miserable, and I was suggesting to him that he should keep himself in thoroughly strong condition. I have sometimes thought—I do not know which horn Mr. Stratton would prefer to take,—but I have sometimes thought he was seeing if he could not more or less compromise me in connection with that. I do not know, but there is either the one or the other.

Q. He is no longer connected with the Trust Company? A. He is a director but he is no longer an executive officer.

Q. Are you still connected with it? A. I am the President of the Trust Company.

Q. In that letter I remember you were advising Mr. Travers to reorganize his Board? A. This is the other letter.

Q. I think it is about the same time? A. I could explain that; I remember the letter very well; before I went away Mr. Travers told me that he had been in touch with Mr. Cawthra Mulock with the idea of getting Mr. Mulock to take the Presidency of the bank and getting a new Board of Directors. Mr. Travers said to me that he recognized that the rest of the bankers were not treating him in the way they should, and he felt that he owed it to the shareholders and the depositors of the bank not to stand in the way of the progress of the bank, and that he wanted to get in a new Board, a strong Board, to get a strong man like Mr. Mulock to take the Presidency and he would give up the general management but would remain on the Board too, because he did not want to be wiped out entirely, because he did not deserve any such fate. I said to him then,—you know the stock was selling I think at about $50 or $60 a share—I said to him, "if you feel that way perhaps we could get some people and perhaps we could move the head office to the West and start all over"; and he said "All right, I wish you would see what you can do". I went out West and went over the situation and came to the conclusion that the West was no place to establish the head office of a bank that did not have a very large amount of money to lend, and it is no place to go with a bank to solicit deposits, because everybody was borrowing and nobody depositing, that is speaking broadly; but I took it up with some of my friends there, and I also took it up with some of my friends of mine in Ohio, a man with a great deal of money, and I wrote this letter to Travers first of all telling him that upon going to the West I found it was no place to move the bank, but I said to him, "Now, I think perhaps this can be done in another way". I have not seen the letter for some time but I am giving it to you as I recollect. I said "I think if we could get three or four strong men to go on the Board and take up all this weak stock and take it off the curb, wherever it was—I do not think the stock was ever lifted—and put in a new management, that within a year or two the stock would come up to par, and if we could not do anything else we could then amalgamate with one of the larger banks and make some money". It was not a personal matter so far as I was concerned, because I had not any money to go into it, but I thought I could organize a group to do it.

Q. I remember the only matter of importance in the letter was you made a suggestion that he should have an audit made? A. I said to him, "if you fall in with this suggestion,—I have spoken it up with my two friends and they are ready to go in—if you fall in with the suggestion, you have Edwards, Morgan & Company go into your bank and make an examination and an audit, and if their report be satisfactory as I have no doubt it would be—I remember putting that in because I had every confidence in the institution—I said the business could be done. I had a reply to that in which he said that the matter could stand until I returned, because conditions had improved very much and everything was going along very nicely.

Q. Had you anything to do with the last loan taken, the $295,000 loan? A. Nothing.

Q. It was done while you were away? A. Yes, it was really a consolidation.

Q. You do not know anything personally of the details? A. No, I was not in Toronto at the time and did not get into Toronto till a month later.

Q. I think that is all, except I would just like to recall what Mr. Lindsay said about that interview in August, page 357 and 358. He says he met you at the Dominion Permanent Office and went down to George H. Watson's office with whom there had been an appointment? A. I cannot say anything more than I said this morning that I have no recollection of having met Mr. Lindsay until I was introduced to him at Mr. McLennan's funeral which took place a long time afterwards.

Q. He rather kept himself in the background? A. He kept himself so effectually in the background that so far as I am concerned I did not see him.

Q. Is he right in saying that you and Mr. Hunter and Mr. Travers met in the Dominion Permanent and walked down? A. No, I do not think so; I think he means the Trusts & Guarantee Company in the first place; that is a verbal slip; I have no recollection of having been with Mr. Watson accompanied by Mr. Travers and Mr. Hunter. I remember being there on one occasion with Mr. Hunter, it may be that Mr. Travers was there too.

Q. Was it in his office at night? A. I do not think, but we had a lot of night appointments. This arrangement when the call loan agreement was made it was at night; we did not draw any distinction between night and day; whenever there was anything to be done it was looked after.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Was there ever any suggestion or arrangement that the stock subscriptions as well as notes should be hypothecated with your company? A. No, sir, not to my knowledge.

Q. You knew of course, I understand, that these were notes that had been taken for stock? A. Yes, quite so; they show it on their face.

MR. HODGINS: Would you just give me that memorandum we discussed during the adjournment, showing when interest was credited up on that account, which will settle the date beyond controversy? A. Yes.

Q. And I will attach it to Mr. Stockdale's statement which he gave me? A. Yes. Mr. Stockdale having the books before him will be right, but my impression is that we allowed interest for quite a period, some seven or eight months and whatever that shows is right and if my recollection does not agree, while my recollection is honest, it is inaccurate, and there was some reason why we ceased paying interest.

Q. It will be only a short statement of a few items and that will settle up to what date it was paid? A. Quite so.

ARTHUR J. LINTON, Sworn, Examined by—

MR. HODGINS: Look at that cheque (Exhibit 28) and study it for a moment and look up your teller's blotter—you were receiving teller, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. The first receiving teller of the Traders Bank on the 6th December, 1906, in Toronto? A. Yes.

Q. That is your stamp on that cheque Exhibit 28? A. Yes.

Q. We want to know something if you can remember it about the way in which that came to be cashed? A. The only thing I can recall is from that deposit slip, Mr. Lindsay made a deposit on the 6th December, 1906, to W. J. Lindsay in trust in our savings bank department of $5,000.
Q. In what form was the deposit? A. It was evidently—the deposit slip is marked cheque; the cheque has evidently been for $10,000 as I have not got a $5,000 cheque on my blotter for the day.

Q. On the face of the deposit slip it looks as if he deposited a cheque for $5,000? A. Yes.

Q. And is that credited as a receipt through you? A. Yes, it is credited $5,000.

Q. What makes you say the cheque was evidently $10,000 because you had not some entry? A. I have not a $5,000 entry in my blotter.

Q. You have a $5,000 entry on the debit side? A. I have not a $5,000 credit entry.

Q. Explain why you would need that to verify the fact a cheque for $5,000 was deposited; you are the receiving teller? A. Yes.

Q. Money comes in and goes on which of your pages, to the debtor or credit? A. On the credit; the receiving teller does not pay any cheques.

Q. What entry have you got about this $10,000? A. I have got $10,000 charged here, $5,000 deposit.

Q. Charged here, does that mean that you paid it out? A. Not necessarily; it would mean I would either credit an account or pay it out if I so choose, but the receiving teller did not make any payments, particularly for an amount such as that.

Q. The entry of $10,000 on page 420 would indicate you had paid $10,000 out? A. Or given credit for it.

Q. You had parted with it in some way? A. Yes.

Q. You would be entitled when the cash was gone over to say "I have paid out $10,000"? A. Yes.

Q. Was that done early or late in the day, can you tell from the position in your book? A. I could not make any statement as to that.

Q. Is it the second entry there? A. Yes.

Q. Is it the second entry there? A. Yes, but I might possibly not enter up my blotter till the end of the day’s work as far as cheques are concerned, because with the deposits it would keep me busy, although from my savings bank deposits I should judge it would be in the afternoon because it is the second to the last savings bank deposit and the deposits would be put through immediately upon receipt, so that they could be handed to the ledger keeper for entry.

Q. What is that little memorandum in pencil on the back, $10,000? A. It is not my figures.

Q. Whose handwriting is it? A. I could not say.

Q. Had Lindsay an account in the Traders Bank apart from the savings? A. Not to my knowledge; I was not versed on the ledger.

Q. How would the transaction have been put through if this $5,000 means that you merely credited it? A. I might possibly have had large legals in my box and paid them, otherwise had I not those legals I would have credited our paying teller with the amount and he would have paid it.

Q. Whose writing is the cheque $5,000? A. That is not mine, Lindsay's.

Q. Would that be done in another box altogether from your own—how did you become possessed of it? A. I just secured it this morning from the bank.

Q. In whose custody would it be? A. In the custody of the accountant.

Q. It would not have been one of the papers you had that day, the 6th December? A. Yes, I had that; that is my initial (on the deposit slip).

Q. Explain how you got it? A. Evidently Mr. Lindsay had made that deposit, handed the slip in to me, making out the slip himself, and I initialled it and handed it on to our ledger keeper.

Q. You received the savings bank deposits as well? A. Yes.

Q. Would you think that only $5,000 was paid out on that cheque, and the other $5,000 just credited? A. I would judge that.
Q. You would judge that from the entries in your book?  A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember anything about the transaction?  A. No, I cannot recall the transaction.
Q. Did you know Lindsay?  A. It runs in my mind that I did know Mr. Lindsay, not personally, but having met him I think in the office, in connection with the Farmers Bank account.
Q. Were you familiar with Travers’ signature?  A. No, sir, the cheque would have to be marked before being paid.
Q. It would come to you from?  A. From the ledger-keeper, or rather from Lindsay to the ledger-keeper and returned to Lindsay and handed to me.
Q. Evidently you would have paid out $5,000 in cash?  A. I would have.
Q. Do you know what bills you paid it in?  A. I would have paid it providing I had had large legals, not otherwise.
Q. If you had not had large legals what would you do?  A. I would credit our paying teller with it on a slip between tellers.
Q. We have had the paying teller, and he said that we would have to look to you, that that went through your box?  A. It is very unfortunate that my cash statement has been destroyed and also the slips between tellers.
Q. That is all you can tell us?  A. With the cash statement and the slip between tellers I could give you possibly more information.
Q. Have you any objection to leaving this deposit slip here?  A. No.
EXHIBIT 78: Deposit slip for $5,000 to the credit of W. J. Lindsay in trust.
MR. COMMISSIONER: If this was put on the slip to the paying teller, what does the paying teller pay it out in?  A. I could not say that.
Q. In the ordinary course?  A. Providing he had large legals he would pay it in large legals.
Q. What is the largest bills of your bank?  A. One hundred dollar bills.
Q. Why not in your own bills?  A. We could pay them, but it is preferable in paying an amount like this, it is just a case if we pay our own bills for an amount like this, no doubt it would come right back through the Clearing House on the following morning.
Q. And give you more labor?  A. Exactly so.

The Commission adjourned at 3 P.M. to 11 A.M. June 14th, 1912.

Toronto, June 14th, 1912.

The Commission continued its sittings at Osgoode Hall, at 11 a.m.

PRESENT:

HON. SIR WILLIAM MEREDITH, Commissioner.
I. F. HELLMUTH, K.C., representing the Trusts & Guarantee Company.
H. H. DEWART, K.C., representing Dr. Beattie Nesbitt.

MR. DEWART: My learned friend informed me that he wanted Dr. Beattie Nesbitt in attendance this morning. The hearing of the criminal charge in the Police Court was fixed for this morning and I have just come from there. The Crown asked for an adjournment till Tuesday next, and Colonel Denison, the Police Magistrate, has given us right of way on Tuesday, and there is no question the case will go on then. I feel, Mr. Commissioner, as these matters have to be gone into in the Police Court, it is only fair to Dr. Nesbitt, that he should not be asked to testify here until that preliminary hearing has been held.
Mr. Commissioner: Has he made his election?
Mr. Dewart: Well, yes, he has elected to be tried by jury.
Mr. Commissioner: So that there will be only the preliminary examination, and that will be very brief.

Mr. Dewart: I may say Dr. Nesbitt is anxious to give the Commission every assistance he can by any testimony he can give, and if your Lordship can let the matter stand until after Tuesday, he will be glad to attend at any time your Lordship will hear him.

Mr. Commissioner: I will be in Divisional Court the next two weeks. How would Saturday of next week suit?
Mr. Dewart: Very well.

Mr. Commissioner: Provisionally, then, we will say Saturday of next week, and if I find that there is likely to be some time available in the following week, and that is as convenient to all, perhaps it will be better to take it then than on Saturday.

MATTHEW WILSON, Sworn, Examined by:—

Mr. Hodgins: You are a member of the Board of the Trusts & Guarantee Company? A. Yes.

Q. You had to do with a transaction shortly before the bank failed, I think it was a loan transaction; I think the date was November 2nd, 1910, or whereabouts? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to the inception of that loan transaction, had you anything to do with the Farmers Bank as a director of the Trusts & Guarantee Company? A. Not prior to that transaction. The transaction which culminated on the 2nd November began a week or two before, but nothing prior to that whatever.

Q. You were a director of the Trusts & Guarantee Company? A. Yes.

Q. Do you attend regularly? A. Yes, I think I do, not absolutely every meeting, but nearly every meeting.

Q. Were you as a director at all familiar with the $80,000 loan or the $20,000 in December, 1906? A. No, I never heard of those at all until this matter arose; I was not a director at that time.

Q. When did you become a director? A. I think I have been a director two years or nearly two years.

Q. Were you aware that circulation was being deposited with your company by the Farmers Bank? A. Not at that time.

Q. When did you become aware of that? A. I became aware of that in October, prior to the second of November, that you speak of.

Q. 1910, how? A. I was instructed by the Board to look into the matter of the loan which the Farmers Bank had got from the Trust Company, and looking into it I became aware of deposits being made by the Farmers Bank with the Trust Company of their own money.

Q. Then did that arouse your suspicion at all as to the situation? A. No, no suspicion aroused; it led to my having the transaction changed.

Q. Why did it lead to that, what was there in it to require that? A. It led to it in this way: the Board, when the matter of the loan of $100,000 on the Keeley Mine bonds of a million dollars was reported, members of the Board said it was contrary to their rules to loan upon mining stock, no matter what the security was, and the general manager was then out in British Columbia and the president could not give sufficient information to satisfy the members in regard to this, and they instructed me to take up the whole matter.

Q. Who was the president? A. Mr. Stratton was then.
Q. Tell us what you did? A. I think it was on the 28th October I came to Toronto and I found in the meantime that the executive officers had told Mr. Travers that the Board had instructed me to look into this matter, and I had some one telephone to Mr. Travers to come to the Trust Company to discuss the matter, and he did so, and Mr. Stratton, Mr. Morden and myself and Mr. Travers discussed the matter then.

Q. At some time or another, one of those discussions, the Bank Act was produced and discussed? A. No, so far as any time I was present the Bank Act was not produced. As a matter of fact, I inquired and I could not find the Bank Act.

Q. You discussed a section of it at all events, didn’t you? A. If you mention the section; I do not remember discussing any section.

Q. What is said is this, there is some question as to whether the bank was justified in giving the security, and either you or Mr. Morden, I think you, if my recollection serves me right, said something to the effect that you were pressing for the loan, and the doctrine of pressure would rebut the inference—? A. I remember it was said that Mr. Morden had said that in my presence; that is entirely a mistake. The only time when a discussion took place was when Mr. Stratton, Mr. Morden and myself were present and such a discussion as that did not take place while I was present.

Q. How do you account then for Mr. Morden saying so? A. I never heard that Mr. Morden did say so.

Q. I thought you said so? A. No, Mr. Morden said it never took place and so does Mr. Stratton.

Q. And you agree with that? A. Yes, I agree with that.

Q. What did take place? A. When Mr. Stratton came, Mr. Stratton explained to Mr. Travers that the Board had instructed me to take the matter up and that it was a matter out of the control of the executive officers, and I told Mr. Travers what I found seemed to be the state of the loans; that is, that there was $75,000 loaned on a call loan agreement with some piano stock, and that there was $100,000 loaned apparently on a million dollars worth of bonds in the Keeley Mine and there was a deposit in the Trust Company by the bank of something in the neighborhood of $120,000 on a deposit receipt, and another deposit on a general account, that is a current account of $5,000-odd, and then Mr. Travers explained that they had a deposit in our Trust Company of, I think it was in the neighborhood of $70,000 or $60,000—you want me to give the whole?

Q. No, I do not; I do not really want to go into these details, we have had them before. You discovered there were two accounts, one due to you and the other due the bank? A. Yes.

Q. Will you explain why the transaction took the shape it did if the result of it was that it left about the same amount to the credit of the Farmers Bank with you? A. That is why the transaction of the 2nd November took place?

Q. Yes; in the first place, perhaps you will tell me what was the object of having any transaction at all at that time? A. The object was this, that the Board did not want money standing on a call loan with only stock in a mining company as a security.

Q. What money was standing on call loan? A. There was $100,000 standing on a call loan with mining stock only as security. The Board did not want that. Then in the next place I think possibly it was my own suggestion that originated the idea, that we were not being treated fairly—I do not mean that in an offensive sense, but we were not getting a fair bargain, their depositing with us and we depositing with them, because if the bank deposited with us (we not having any circulation) the bank got a certain benefit from their deposit of their circulation which we did not get by making a deposit with them.
Q. You were getting interest on your deposit? A. Yes, but we were only getting 4%, I think it was, while if we had that money we would let it out on call loans and we ought to be getting about 7% on it.

Q. You were not paying any interest on their deposit account with you?

A. My recollection is we were not.

Q. Then you think you wanted some better arrangement? A. Yes.

Q. And did you get it in this transaction? A. Yes.

Q. To what extent were you benefited in the matter of interest? A. We got 7% instead of 4% on the amount deposited in the bank and we also got 7% instead of 6% on the $75,000 call loan.

Q. What did the bank get? A. The bank did not get anything.

Q. What was the security taken for the $295,000? A. Promissory notes to the amount of $108,000 and stock in a Piano Company which was worth practically enough to make up the balance and then they kept also the mining bonds.

Q. I thought the objection by the directors was to the holding of these bonds, lending money upon bonds? A. They did object to that.

Q. You still kept them? A. Yes, but we got enough other security to cover the loans.

Q. Did you ever see those bonds? A. Yes.

Q. Where were they? A. In the Trust Company’s possession.

Q. I am instructed, and it has been so stated that they never left the possession of the bank? A. That is a mistake I think. I examined the bonds and the mortgage.

Q. You examined the bonds? A. Yes.

Q. You say you had the bonds? A. Yes, I think so, my recollection is I examined them in our office.

Q. Possibly I am thinking of the stock which has been mentioned; I will ask you about that later? A. I feel there is no doubt as to what I say as to the bonds.

Q. The result of that was to put to the credit of the bank a certain amount of money, some fifty or sixty thousand dollars? A. No, we put to the credit of the bank the whole amount. Mr. Travers wanted to get $305,000, and I think we pared that down till it came to $295,000 and then we gave a cheque to Travers which he deposited to his credit in the Trust Company, and then he cheque against that and paid off these other amounts.

Q. But it did leave $60,000 odd to the credit of the bank? A. It may have: I could not speak definitely as to that, but it possibly would.

Q. You knew the stipulation was that the amount to their credit should not be cut down if they gave you this additional advantage? A. Oh yes; what I mean by that is they were still to keep their account in the Trust Company, but they had the right of course to cheque that out as they pleased.

Q. And the result of this did not change that, it practically left the same sum there subject to their cheque? A. I would not say the same sum; I think there was a variation of probably between $5,000 and $10,000.

Q. Were they to have the right to draw that out as they liked? A. Yes.

Q. Without any qualifications? A. There was no qualification whatever so far as I know, and I think I would have known it if there was any.

Q. Anyway if there was a qualification, it was not any part of the stipulation so far as you know? A. Not as far as I remember.

Q. Did you know anything or hear anything about 50,000 shares in the capital stock of the Keeley Mine when you were investigating the situation in October? A. No, never heard of that.

Q. Did you find any such stock with a memorandum pinned to it as to the way in which it had been received by Mr. Stratton? A. I did afterwards, but not then.
Q. Who did you get the securities held by the Trust Company from when you commenced investigations? A. They were produced, I think, to me in a large bundle of box of papers that contained the whole transactions of the Farmers Bank, and I went through them myself.

Q. Who from? A. An officer of the company, I think it was Mr. Howard.

Q. You say you heard afterwards of these 50,000 shares of stock? A. Yes, I was not dealing with stock at all, it was bonds I was dealing with; I did not know anything about where the stock was.

Q. When did you hear about it? A. I don't think I heard of that until after the failure of the bank.

Q. Did you ever see them? A. I am not sure, but I think I did see them in the liquidator's office at the time of the examination.

Q. Was there any memorandum attached such as you have spoken of? A. I cannot speak with certainty as to that. My recollection if I were just asked as to that is that the stock was in the name of some person, trustee, or in trust.

Q. You see there was 25,000 shares in the name of Mr. Stockdale in trust; that was given as a bonus upon the loan? A. Yes, that is what I understood.

Q. But you did not come across that in your looking at the securities? A. No, I think the first time I saw any of the stock whatever was in the liquidator's office.

Q. I am speaking now of another $50,000 altogether which was in the name of Mr. Stratton in trust? A. Well, my recollection is that that was there at the same time and that it just said in trust; I do not remember any memorandum pinned to it. There may have been and I have forgotten it.

Q. I thought Mr. Morden was the one who said that about the Bank Act.

Mr. HELLMUTH: He denied it? A. I have not seen any of their evidence at all, and I have not been speaking to any of them, so I do not know what evidence you have taken.

Mr. HODGINS: I see it was Mr. Stratton who referred to the Bank Act and not Mr. Morden: "Q. What was the occasion of bringing the Bank Act down and reading it to Travers? If it had been the riot act I could have understood it? A. I do not know about that—something about Mr. Morden—I recollect the Bank Act, but I do not remember that." A. I might say the conversation was just in the opposite direction.

Q. In what respect, what is the opposite direction? A. The opposite direction was this, that Mr. Travers urged upon me the bank had its troubles at the time when there was some run on the bank owing to some reports about it out in a country place, but that they had got past that, and everything was going nicely.

Q. Did you make any independent inquiry as to the bank's position? A. Through Mr. Morden, I did. I asked Mr. Morden to get the bank's returns and to see them.

Q. Outside of that did you make any inquiry as to the bank's position? A. I do not think I made any outside inquiries at all except what I could make through officers in the Trust Company.

Q. In speaking of the cheques that were drawn upon that account—I am looking at a letter which you wrote which I will be glad to show you: "Then he chequed out of the Trust Company a former deposit account which the bank had with the Trust Company of $70,004.55"—was that what we have referred to as the circulation amount? A. That I believe is the amount which I spoke of as between $60,000 and $70,000.

Q. What sort of notes were those that were given? A. They were in the first place a note of the bank and then the notes that were transferred were customers' notes payable to the bank and transferred by the bank to the Trust Company.

Q. There was difficulty after that transaction about paying Mr. Travers' cheques? A. Yes.
Q. What was that difficulty? A. I think the first difficulty arose when Mr. Travers wanted to replace the notes. The customers notes would be coming due, and he would need to attend to his branches. Then he would send in order to take them up, other customers' notes to take their place, and the first difficulty arose so far as my recollection goes in the Trust Company in thinking that the notes that they received to supplant the notes that were to be given were equal to the notes that were given up.

Q. That was the difficulty you say? A. That was the first so far as I recollect.

Q. That was used as a reason to prevent him drawing upon the amount which had been put to his credit on the faith of the new loan? A. No, I never knew that, I never heard that suggested till now.

Q. Do you say he would be entitled to cheque out that balance to his credit freely and readily, and he never was obstructed in doing so? A. My understanding was he was entitled to cheque that out and I never knew of his being obstructed in doing that.

Q. What difficulty was there? A. He drew after the 2nd November much more than enough to cheque that out.

Q. Was it after he had chequeed it all out that the objection arose? A. I could not say till after he had chequeed it all out, but he would need sometimes further money and when he would need further money placed to his credit so that he would draw a larger amount than was standing to his credit he would deposit with the company notes in order to cover that, and also made a new note himself, but that was not part of the transaction of the 2nd of November at all.

Q. That was subsequent? A. Yes, those were transactions that were arising from time to time, so that Mr. Travers would have at his disposal, money which, on the 2nd of November he did not seem to expect that he would require.

Q. I suppose you did not stay down here and keep track of all the financial details; are you giving us this from what you understood afterwards or from your personal knowledge? A. I did not stay here, but I was down I think twice afterwards and discussed the matter with Mr. Travers and with the officers when these difficulties arose.

Q. When the bank closed its doors Travers had drawn out most of the moneys that had been put to his credit? A. I think so; possibly there were $5,000 or $10,000 still to his credit.

Q. What did Mr. Stratton say about the position of the bank when you and he and Mr. Morden met? A. When we met and also prior at the Directors' meeting Mr. Stratton said that the loan was perfectly secure; it was the other directors who insisted upon my taking the matter up.

Q. What was said at any time during the negotiations with Travers when he was not there as to the situation of the bank? A. I do not think that it was discussed at all, that is the situation of the bank, except while Mr. Travers was there, and it was Mr. Travers assuring me that there was no security for taking these notes and pressing that on me and apparently not satisfied that I was insisting upon it.

Q. My information whether rightly or wrongly is that you and Mr. Morden were particularly anxious having regard to the condition of the bank as to this loan? A. This is the first I heard of that except anxious to comply with what the directors insisted, and that is that no loan of a Trust Company should stand upon the security of mining stock.

Q. Was any of your anxiety based upon the idea that the bank was in bad financial position or was pressed for money? A. I cannot say that it was, in fact I did not know that the bank was pressed for money and I was assured that it was not pressed for money, that it had got past that stage.

Q. By whom? A. By Mr. Travers at this conversation when Mr. Stratton and Mr. Morden were present.
Q. And there was no suggestion from you that pressure would make the transaction good?  A. Never the slightest suggestion.

Q. You had no suspicions of the bank being in an insolvent condition?  A. No, not a suspicion of the bank being in an insolvent condition.

Q. Or even hard up?  A. It did seem as if the bank was being pressed for money.

Q. Yes; that is equivalent to being hard up, is it not?  A. Perhaps it is; but the question of insolvency is quite a different thing; in fact I was led to believe that the bank could get money at any time.

Q. By whom?  A. By Mr. Travers and by Mr. Stratton.

Mr. Commissioner: Is this a correct statement of the transaction in this letter that Travers, you say—I suppose it means the bank—should borrow enough to pay off the two loans of $75,000 and $100,000 and to pay a deposit of $120,000 in the current account—is that an accurate statement?  A. That is an accurate statement of the form of the transaction.

Q. There was no re-borrowing at all, it was simply a consolidation of the existing indebtedness?  A. The existing indebtedness was consolidated in that way.

Q. There was no new advance?  A. I do not remember whether there was a new advance or not.

Q. This document does not indicate there was any new advance; we have not the agreement between the Trust Company and the bank as to this $295,000 loan?  A. It is in writing.

Q. Did the $295,000 loan still remain a call loan?  A. My recollection is it did, in fact I feel quite sure it did.

Q. So that the bank was in such a position that at any time it might be called upon for the whole of this amount?  A. That is my recollection.

Q. Did Mr. Warren tell you or was he here at the time?  A. He was not here at the time.

Q. Did you see him or not?  A. No.

Q. Did you ever learn that Mr. Warren had had notes and had given them up because he thought the bonds were ample security?  A. Yes.

Q. Did not it strike you as somewhat strange that a bank that was solvent should hypothecate $108,000 of its paper, one-fifth of its whole capital. How did you suppose it could get on handing those over to the Trust Company in substitution for a security that you were giving a black eye to?  A. The only way I could see it could get on with that would be by exchanging the notes from time to time as they became due.

Q. I do not mean that at all. You have had a good deal of business experience with banks, did you ever know a bank that was not hard pressed that took $108,000 of its customers' notes and pledged them for a call loan, did you ever hear of such a transaction unless the bank was in deep water?  A. I never heard of such a transaction at all.

Q. Would not common sense lead a business man to think that a bank was in deep water when they had to do that?  A. It would lead a person to think that the bank was pressed more than ordinarily, as I said, for money, but the bank might be perfectly solvent.

Q. You were the only one according to your evidence that was pressing the bank?  A. I was pressing the bank for security.

Q. And you were getting these Farmers notes or its customers notes to the extent of $108,000?  A. Yes.

Q. I should have thought that was the plainest indication that the bank was in great stress that it had to put up that $108,000; it did not so occur to you?  A. It occurred to me that the bank was badly in need of money; I do not know that it occurred, in fact I know that I did not think of great stress, but I quite realized that that was not a usual course for a bank to follow.
Q. Did you make any inquiries as to how the bank became possessed of these bonds, how much they had invested in them? A. No; I made an investigation, that is I got the papers, and I found that the papers had been certified and I asked how much had been invested in the bonds.

Q. By whom? A. By the bank. I understood that the bank had not the full amount, but merely the full amount invested in the bonds.

Q. What do you mean by the full amount? A. That is the bonds, as I supposed represented practically the whole mine, and that represented a million dollars.

Q. Well, what was the bank's money investment in that as you understood? A. I do not know, but it was over $400,000.

Q. Did that give you a glimmer of light as to the bank's situation, the bank with a capital of less than $600,000, putting $100,000 into this Keeley Mine and having to meet your demand by putting up customers notes to the extent of $108,000? A. I would naturally think of course the very fact of it putting so much into the mine would lead to the necessity for raising money outside.

Q. Did it strike you as an extraordinary thing that a bank would be in a good position that had taken $100,000 of its $600,000, that is putting it larger than it was, and putting it into a mine? A. If I had been a bank manager I certainly would not have done it.

Q. I am not asking you that; I am asking you if it did not strike you as indicating something wrong in the condition of the bank that would do that, and then in order to secure you take $108,000 of its customers' notes? A. I would have thought that that indicated that there had been bad management in the bank or something in the bank.

Q. Did not it indicate that the bank was rotten? A. I would not like to say that sir.

Q. The bank that would put $100,000 in this hole in the ground and could only secure you by giving you customers' notes? A. Of course, remember that that mine at that time I think was supposed by everybody to be not merely a hole in the ground, but was a valuable asset.

Q. It was not valuable enough for the Trust Company apparently? A. It was not a question of value, so much as the nature of security.

Q. But you hung on to the security? A. I know, but we wanted the other security.

Q. You wanted it supplemented by customers' notes, it could not have been the character of the investment, it must have been the uncertainty of that kind of investment? A. A person does not want any institution with its money invested in that kind of thing.

Q. Why did not you give up the Keeley stock? A. That is not the way a creditor usually does.

Q. If you had stock worth $100,000 as security for $295,000 what did you want that $108,000 of customers' notes for? A. Because it was against the rule of the directors to invest in a mine.

Q. Apparently not, they had passed this loan? A. I think not.

Q. I think the evidence of Mr. Warren had made the loan, but when it came before the Board was when they instructed me.

Q. That is not Mr. Warren's evidence; Mr. Warren did not make the loan until he got the consent of his Board or the executive? A. That is something before my time; I had nothing to do with it then.

Q. Does not it look as if somebody smelt disaster and wanted to get under cover? A. I could not say that.

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Hellymuth, I want to put in certain letters by calling Mr. Stockdale or Mr. Morden, or perhaps there would be no objection to putting them in without calling either of them.
MR. HELLMUTH: Did you examine him as to them?
MR. HODGINS: No.
MR. HELLMUTH: If there is anything that requires explanation with regard to them it will be better to examine them.
MR. HODGINS: There is the copy of the original security, the $295,000 and the statement as to how it is made up and the statement of subsequent transactions and the final demand on the bank for the balance.
MR. COMMISSIONER: Perhaps Mr. Hellmuth will find out how that is, and if there is no objection they can be put in; if not, you will have to call them.
MR. HODGINS: Mr. Wilson, do you know whether the loan was called a few days or a week after it was made? A. Oh, no, it was not called until I think between the 20th and the 25th November.
Q. One of those letters indicated a call? A. It was called by letter so that there would be no doubt about the date. If I was speaking from recollection I would say it was the 22nd November.
Q. Mr. Morden is not with your company now? A. No, he is in the City though.
MR. HELLMUTH: I should think these letters are undoubtedly the letters of the company and the hypothecation is that no doubt, I see it is a copy, the hypothecation. Were these put in in the suit of the liquidator against the Trusts & Guarantee Company?
MR. CLARKSON: Yes.
MR. HELLMUTH: I do not suppose there can be any question about that. I do not know whether you think any explanation is required, but as you are conducting the inquiry if you put them in without explanation I suppose I cannot very well object. I do not suppose it binds us in any way if there is any explanation in any suit or proceedings.
MR. HODGINS: I do not think there is anything in those excepting just showing the history of the transaction as it occurred, but I have no objection if you like to let you have them shown to either Mr. Stockdale or Mr. Morden and during the day if there is anything that either of them wish to say about them--
MR. HELLMUTH: Mr. Stockdale and Mr. Warren are both out of town.
MR. HODGINS: I do not think there is anything I would ask about those, except are those exactly the history of the transaction?
MR. HELLMUTH: Mr. Clarkson knows they are copies of the originals.
MR. CLARKSON: They are copies of the originals. The original call loan is with the Trust Company under an agreement between themselves and myself.
MR. HELLMUTH: Do I understand there is no examination so far as the Trust & Guarantee Company is concerned?
MR. HODGINS: That is right.
EXHIBIT 79: Papers connected with the consolidation of the loan at $295,000.

W. R. TRAVERS, Recalled:—

MR. HODGINS: You apparently made a loan, a demand or call loan, of $295,000 on the 2nd November from the Trusts & Guarantee Company? A. Yes.
Q. With certain specified securities? A. Yes.
Q. After the bank failed there is a statement here with the initials J. J. W. which I wish you would look at; the security appears to differ from the original security given about a month and a half before? A. The Piano Company's stock was sold and applied on the note.
Q. That is credited? A. Yes.
Q. What about the Ontario Leather Company's stock? A. There is a letter from Mr. Wilson to me some place that called upon further security, and I think I answered it, if I remember right, stating that they had those bonds in their hands and they might retain them.

Q. What about the Ontario Leather Company's stock? A. That is the bonds I am speaking of; they might retain them as additional security.

Q. Apparently they did that, and treated that as security? A. Yes.

Q. Were you getting further advances after the $295,000 loan had been exhausted? A. Yes, we got two or three advances.

Q. You can see them set out in one of those letters on that file? A. Those are the advances, the 11th, 15th, 17th and 18th November.

Q. Those mentioned in,—what is the date of that letter? A. November 22nd, 1910.

Q. And did you put up notes to the amount of $293,000; is it over and above the $108,000 that you put up when you got the $295,000?

Mr. Commissioner: No, it includes that, that is the total amount? A. My recollection is we put up over $300,000 worth of notes all told.

Mr. Hodgins: You put up the difference between $108,000 and whatever the total is subsequent to the loan being made? A. Yes.

Q. And what was the total amount of the subsequent advances you got? A. $26,575, taking the figures from this letter, which I think is correct.

Q. Was there any further sum for which these notes were security? A. Only the amounts that they put to our credit on those dates.

Q. That is a very large amount in notes to have given them? A. There seemed to be no end to the number of notes Mr. Wilson wanted.

Q. There would be about $190,000 of notes for these additional payments; and were those customers' notes? A. Yes.

Q. Were the deposits of those notes made conditional on your making a draw out of what was placed to your credit on the 2nd of November, or were you allowed to draw freely on that? A. The new loans were made, if I remember correctly, so that the security of the further note that I was giving them would be legal.

Q. And the additional notes, when they went up, apparently would be security for the $295,000 loan as well? A. Would be security for all advances we have received.

Q. Was that in accordance with the hypothecation agreement; did you understand that at the time? A. Not at the time; everything ended at the time as was completed at the consolidation.

Q. Did you make this arrangement afterwards that the notes subsequently handed over were to be security for the former loan? A. Yes, I arranged each transaction with Mr. Morden as the circumstances arose.

Q. Was that the understanding? A. Yes.

Mr. Hellmuth: I think the document speaks for itself. The original document makes provision that any further loans and any securities given should enure for the whole.

Mr. Hodgins: I asked him whether this hypothecation contained such clause and I understood him to say no? A. I did not understand the question. I remember quite well such clause as that in the hypothecation; what I was saying was that as these new transactions came up the matter was repeated.

Mr. Commissioner: Why did you give these large amounts of promissory notes for the comparatively small new advances you were getting? A. I was forced to do it.

Q. Forced, how; would not they make the advance? A. They would not permit me to draw my money that was there.

Q. Which, the money on deposit? A. Yes.
Q. Who took that position? A. Mr. Morden took the position that he did not approve of the depositing of the bank’s circulation and he did not think it should be withdrawn suddenly; that was the commencement of the difficulty.

Q. Was that before or after the consolidation? A. That was prior to the consolidation; he made that objection prior to the consolidation of the loan.

Q. Mr. Wilson told us he understood you were to be free to draw that as you pleased? A. I cannot corroborate Mr. Wilson; I am sorry to say I shall have to contradict him in some matters he says.

Q. Were you to be at liberty to draw freely? A. That was the understanding when the consolidation was completed, that I was able to draw the $68,000 as I needed it.

Q. Was there any embargo put upon that afterwards? A. There was.

Q. By whom? A. By Mr. Morden. Did not I state that I would send down a cheque and the difficulty would arise and it would be arranged over the telephone or by my making a personal trip?

Q. We heard of that before, but we thought that simply meant he yielded and allowed you to draw the money. Do you say now when you got these additional advances, one of the reasons why you were compelled to give the large amount of notes was because they would not give you the money on your deposit account as you wanted it? A. Yes, that was the first position in the matter, that they objected to my withdrawing the balance and forced that consolidation.

Q. I am talking after the consolidation? A. After the consolidation the first difficulty arose a few days afterwards in which I gave that small note of $3,575. I think with that there were several thousand dollars’ worth of notes.

Q. $30,000 or $40,000 worth of notes? A. Yes.

Q. Why was that? A. Objection was taken that day to giving us any funds.

Q. On your deposit account? A. Yes.

Q. Whose proposition was it that you should give more notes? A. I cannot say whether it was Mr. Morden’s or Mr. Wilson’s, they were in and out.

Q. Somebody on that side? A. Yes. Mr. Wilson was in and out of my office and I was in and out of theirs; I could not say exactly. And when he states about the Bank Act not shown, I swear that it was spoken of and it was shown and I wish to repeat it, because they sent upstairs to get it.

Q. For what purpose? A. For the purpose of seeing whether the $120,000 on deposit with us, whether it would not cause a criminal charge against me in paying that deposit in that way.

Q. Giving the security you were then giving? A. Yes, giving security for the deposit. There is a section in the Act which says that any preference given to any creditor—

Q. Oh, yes: who suggested that or how did it come about? A. When I asked to consolidate the $120,000 I mentioned that; I mentioned the fact that I would be liable to criminal proceedings.

Q. For giving a preference? A. Yes.

Q. And what about the Bank Act? A. Then I quoted the section of the Bank Act in the presence of Mr. Morden and Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Morden sent upstairs (that I remember quite well) for the Bank Act, and it was brought down, and it was turned up, and Mr. Morden said to me, or Mr. Wilson, I could not swear which one, “Under pressure you are relieved of that.”
MR. HODGINS: Since you were examined before the missing ledger that got lost somewhere has turned up and continues the account of the Treasury of Ontario, I want to ask you a few questions about that, because I had not it before me when I examined you before. The account I examined you on went down to the end of 1908. It appears the account ran on through January, 1909, and on till the failure of the bank; what had you to do with obtaining the additional deposits which are shown in that account? A. I remember a deposit of $10,000 that the Government put in.

Q. Can you fix the date for that? A. Well, I listened to Colonel Matheson's evidence and I fancy the Colonel was right when he said 1908.

Q. What is your recollection of it? A. I have nothing to go by, I have no memorandum.

Q. There was one of June 14th, 1907, $10,000, and one on May 19th, 1908, of $10,000, and another on August 10th, 1908, of $10,000? A. I remember some time in May or June of the year 1907 or 1908—when I gave my evidence before I thought it was 1907, but after Colonel Matheson spoke I fancy he is better informed than I am on the date.

Q. There is one of January 8th, 1910, for $10,000? A. No, I don't know anything of that.

Q. Which is the one outstanding; you say you know nothing at all about that? A. No, I know nothing at all about that.

Q. We have made what investigations we can in the World Office and the bookkeeper is here and there is no trace in the World's books of any transaction earlier than that shown in the bank books of December 31st, 1907? A. Well, I guess that is right.

Q. When you were here before you had the idea that they began much earlier than that by the discounting of add notes? A. Well, the World's business with the bank began before the Government put any deposit in the bank; I think that is the position I took.

Q. No, that is not as a matter of fact; June 14th, 1907, was the first? A. We say the deposit was put in in May or June, 1908—

MR. COMMISSIONER: They commenced to deposit in May, 1907? A. I do not know anything about when the Government deposit began, but what I had to do with the Government deposit I asked Colonel Matheson to put in a deposit in the Farmers Bank; but we had been doing business with the Farmers Bank before the Government had put the deposit in as far as I knew.

MR. HODGINS: If the World's business with the Farmers Bank began on the 31st December, 1907, then it would be some deposit later than that? A. Yes.

Q. There were three of them, May, 1908, August, 1908, and January, 1910, of $10,000; which was it? A. May or June, 1908.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Those letters do you see, bear date in June, so that if he is right now it must have been later than June—you remember those letters of yours? A. Yes.

Q. They are dated June.

MR. HODGINS: We almost came to the conclusion the last time that it could not have been the May 19th, 1908, deposit, but it must have been a later deposit; that would make it August 10th, 1908? A. I have nothing to fix my recollection of the time when the deposit was made.

Q. Would that recall to you anything to explain those letters in which you were speaking of Colonel Matheson? A. Yes, those letters I was trying to get a deposit from the Government for the Farmers Bank.

Q. Did you succeed to that extent after the date those letters were written? A. I rather think so.
Q. Then did you ever see or hear of any reply from Colonel Matheson to the letter Mr. Travers said he sent to him? A. No.

Q. Did Travers communicate to you that he was writing or had written? A. No.

Q. Or was going to write? A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask Colonel Matheson if he had received that letter from Travers and answered it? A. No.

Q. There is a copy of a letter produced here dated April 6th, 1909, apparently from Mr. Travers to you, I would like you to read that over and I will ask you a question about it. A. (Witness reads letter).

Q. Did you ever receive that letter? A. Yes, I think I remember that letter.

Q. What was that in connection with? A. In connection with my own cheque of $400 that was cashed by Mr. Travers. The proceeds of the cheque went to the World and it was cashed for the World and when the due date came perhaps of two or three days we were not able to raise the money to take up the cheque and let it slip by and Mr. Travers rang me up and this letter was the result.

Q. Did Travers take it up, as he says with his own personal cheque? A. I do not know about that; I see he said so here.

Q. Did he—you ought to know if it was your own cheque and somebody took it up? A. I think we paid the cheque the next day; as far as taking it up in his own bank was concerned I do not know.

Q. His expression there, giving the reason why he did that, why should he use that peculiar language? A. That is something I don't know.

Q. He says: "You have not kept your word about the $400 cheque and I think it is rather a mean way of treating a friend"? A. That means that I had not kept my word in meeting the cheque on the day I said I would.

Q. He says: "Do not think I am doing this because I fear any blackmail. I have given my own personal cheque for it and beg to enclose the cheque herewith which you can do as you please with". That looks as if he was handing you back your cheque, and he had paid it, and if you did not choose to pay you need not? A. We took up the cheque afterwards.

Q. Why should he use that peculiar language about he did not fear any blackmail? A. I do not know why; he had no reason under the sun.

Q. Did you resent it? A. I think he had me there, I had not kept my word.

Q. Did you ask him for an explanation of that expression? A. No.

Q. Did you know anything of the circumstances of obtaining the certificate to enable the bank to go into operation? A. Never.

Q. Did you know anything about the subscribers on the list that went into the Government? A. No. I think I was in London, Ontario, in the newspaper business.

Q. I mean prior to the date of this letter, April 16th, 1909? A. No, I knew something of the organization of the bank.

Q. Had you any lever upon Mr. Travers or the bank which would justify him in using any such language that he was not doing this because he feared blackmail? A. No, I had no lever on Mr. Travers.

Q. Did you have any talk with him about that letter? A. I may have discussed the thing afterwards but that looked like a letter written by a man who was angry.

Q. Possibly so, but it is a peculiar expression? A. Yes, the chances are the matter may have come up afterwards. I went down and paid the money to him; he got the money back.

Q. Did you ever find out what he alluded to? A. I don't know what he alluded to, nothing that emanated from me.
Q. Did you ever ask him? A. I don’t remember mentioning that letter to him.

Q. Did it emanate from anybody else? A. I could not say.

Q. You see there is a suspicion that he was being bled from time to time by people who knew something about the way in which the list in Ottawa had been manipulated, and that they were making use of that as a lever to get money? A. I knew nothing about that. The first intimation I had of anything like that was the evidence that had been brought up in the Police Court after the bank failed.

Q. This is evidently the letter of an angry man, but it does not seem to me that this affords us very much explanation of the language? A. It is no action of mine or any word I did that could bring forth a letter like that.

Q. He sent you a cheque, which would mean that you need not pay it if you did not want to? A. Yes.

Q. Did you as a matter of fact pay it afterwards? A. The World must have paid that afterwards.

Q. Do you know? A. I do not know of my own personal knowledge, except that is what we did frequently. I had cheques frequently cashed by the Farmers Bank.

Q. But this seems to be a personal cheque of your own, and one which you got very sore over; are you not in a position to say whether you ever paid it? A. I am in a position to say to the best of my knowledge we paid the cheque.

Q. Why the qualification? A. I say we paid the cheque without any qualification. I remember one occasion we had a cheque for $350 which was cashed by Mr. Travers and the due date came, it was my own cheque, but the money was turned into the World, the World did not have the money to meet the cheque and I went out and borrowed the money and met that cheque, $350, and while we might not be able to pay it on the day we said we managed to pay it a day or two afterwards. I do not think the World owes any money that the World has not paid or is not paying.

Q. What does Mr. Travers mean by saying, “Do not think I am doing this”—what was the “this” he was doing; look at the letter and see if you can explain it?

Mr. Commissioner: Is it not plain what he means—“I am not sending this back to you because I fear blackmail.”

Mr. Hodgins: I should have thought so except that precedes what he says he is doing? A. It looks plain enough on the fact to me, he is not sending it back because he fears anything.

Q. Had you heard anything subsequent to the granting of the certificate with regard to the discount of notes out at Milton in which VanKoughnet’s name had come up? A. No, I do not remember the name VanKoughnet. I remember the Laidlaw stock running through the paper but I don’t think I was interested in the bank at that time.

Q. Did you make it your business to ascertain about the Laidlaw transaction afterwards and make use of it with Travers? A. Oh, no.

Q. Did you hear anything about the deal in Syracuse? A. Yes, I heard something about that through the newspapers.

Q. Did you find out about that? A. I spoke to Mr. Travers about that, I wrote a news story about it.

Q. Was that after your conversation with Travers? A. About this particular conversation this letter refers to?

Q. Yes? A. I did not trace the two of them together.

Q. Did you get your information from him that you published? A. Yes.

Q. Was it different from what you had acquired from outside? A. Not greatly; the Associated Press dispatch carried a certain story and Mr. Travers elaborated that; I think it was an elaboration rather than a correction.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153A

Q. As well as the story that you speak of? A. No, I think the Associated Press dispatch was not published in the World; we waited till we got the information from Mr. Travers before we took in the story.
Q. Do you associate the two at all? A. No.
Q. What was your object in seeing Travers about that Syracuse story? A. To give his side of the story; he was a local man.
Q. Did you ever feel he was under an obligation to you for putting his side in instead of the Associated Press? A. I did not emphasize anything like that except I showed my friendliness towards him in putting his story forward.
Q. I see that Syracuse matter was in January, 1910, so that apparently there would not be any connection between that and this letter of the 16th April, 1909? A. No.
Q. Can you suggest what it refers to? A. It may have been some other forces at work that had made him angry and that was uppermost in his mind and he put it in the letter he wrote to me.
Q. You can make no explanation? A. No.

EXHIBIT 80: Letter April 16th, 1909, Travers to Greenwood.

WILLIAM F. MACLEAN, Recalled:—

By Mr. Hodgins: I want to ask you now, in view of the fact that this account of the Provincial Treasurer's has been produced in the ledger which had gone astray, if you made any effort to get the deposit which is referred to or any subsequent deposits which are shown in this ledger? A. I made no efforts.
Q. That would apply then to the whole of the Treasurer's account? A. Yes.
Q. You made no efforts to get any deposits? A. No.
Q. You have listened to my examination of Mr. Greenwood, can you throw any light upon the language used by Mr. Travers in that letter to him? A. No, I never saw it, I know nothing of it.
Q. It is most peculiar language, you will agree with me? A. Yes, I know of no reason why he should have used that language, and know of no one ever having made any threats to him.
Q. You cannot account for this in any way? A. No.
Q. Was it reported to you by Mr. Greenwood that he got that letter? A. No, not as I know of, I cannot recall it.
Q. Did he ever say Travers was accusing him of holding him up or anything of that kind? A. I never heard of it.
Q. Did you ever know the peculiar circumstances regarding that list that went to Ottawa the subscribers' notes; did you ever hear of that in any way which would make you think that Travers had done wrong in connection with it? A. Never, until it was published.
Q. When was that? A. It came out in the examination after the failure of the bank.
Q. You never heard it? A. No, never in any shape or form. I always regarded the bank as trying to pull its way through and getting on its feet, and doing fairly well; I saw roughly the returns from month to month, and saw the returns of the bank, and they seemed to me to be making some headway, and any sympathy I had was to see the bank pull through.
HARRY GOSS, Sworn, Examined by——

Mr. Hodgins: What is your position with the World newspaper? A. Secretary-Treasurer.

Q. You and Mr. Clarkson have gone over the books I understand to see when the earliest entry is regarding any business between the Farmers Bank and the World? A. Yes.

Q. And what is that? A. As far as I can find out December 31st, 1907.

Q. There is nothing in the books to disclose? A. No; I cannot tell by that entry that would be the first.

Q. Do you say could not tell by that entry? A. Only Mr. Clarkson said that was the first.

Q. You were not the bookkeeper at the time? A. No.

Q. When did you become bookkeeper? A. About a year ago.

Q. So that you have gone through the books with Mr. Clarkson and according to them there is nothing to show any earlier transactions than December 31st, 1907? A. No.

Mr. Hodgins: That is so, is it, Mr. Clarkson?

Mr. G. T. Clarkson: The form of the books is such that you cannot tell.

Mr. Hodgins: That is the earliest trace you can find.

Mr. G. T. Clarkson: Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: You did go back beyond December 31st, 1907, to see? A. I went back beyond that to see, I could not tell, nothing to trace it to the Farmers Bank at all.

W. R. TRAVERS, Recalled:——

By Mr. Hodgins: Look at this letter, Exhibit 80 and tell me what you alluded to when you wrote that letter? A. I cannot tell you now directly what I alluded to then, but Mr. Greenwood frequently sent me in a clipping or something that was supposed to have been put in the columns of this paper.

Q. Had been put? A. No, they were sent in I should fancy for the purpose of putting in the columns of this paper which he sent me with a memorandum saying, "I have not taken any notice of this" or something to that effect. They were all in my desk after I gave up charge,—I have seen them since my arrest—but never when he was asking a loan did he ever suggest anything of the sort.

Q. He had evidently given you a personal cheque which was dishonored? A. Yes, I remember that.

Q. And you were angry I take it from that letter? A. I was angry because the cheque was returned through the Clearing House and if I remember right there was some reflection cast on it, I don't remember what it was and I was angry at the time.

Q. You took up the cheque with your own personal cheque? A. Yes.

Q. And sent him back the cheque without asking him to pay it? A. Yes.

Q. And then you say, "I am doing this not because I fear any blackmail"—? A. "Do not think I am doing this because I fear any blackmail".

Q. What is the explanation of that? A. The only explanation is that I had in my mind at that time that there were certain people calling upon Mr. Greenwood to publish some matters that would be detrimental to the bank.

Q. What would they be? A. 1909?

Q. Yes, April, 1909? A. I could not say offhand just now. I remember Lord Templetown had threatened to wire to the newspapers he would resign; I cannot say that that is the date.
Q. That would not bring the bank down if Lord Templetown resigned? A. No, but on top of everything else that was going on I suppose it would have caused a flutter.

Q. You are not suggesting that, are you, as the explanation? A. If that was the date I cannot say offhand, it might have been. I left the items that Mr. Greenwood was kind enough to withhold from publication in my desk, and I cannot recall them at the present moment.

Q. Look at the date of the letter and just reflect a moment, was there anything at that time or just previous to it to give any point to that letter? A. I think there was, but I cannot fix my mind on it for the moment.

Q. It is a peculiar sort of thing to say to a man? A. Oh, I had a reason for it, of course.

Q. To give you a date, you heard from W. R. P. Parker, barrister, letter dated October 28th, 1909, that he had an important communication from Viscount Templetown and would like to see you? A. Then that date does not correspond at all with this. Perhaps Mr. Greenwood knew nothing about that; I am not sure.

Q. Cannot you mention any reason? A. I cannot for the moment; I will have to think it over.

Q. If it was merely with regard to these newspaper clippings, which might be a kindly act on Mr. Greenwood's part, you could hardly allude to publishing them as blackmail? A. I cannot say what was in my mind then, but I might have had perhaps some foolish notion as that in my head.

Q. With regard to that letter to the Provincial Treasurer which Colonel Matheson said he did not get, what have you to say? A. I say that that letter was duly mailed to him, and I think you will find it registered in the letters dispatch book by the party who posted it.

Q. A registered letter? A. No, we have a system in the bank of entering all letters posted, and I got a reply from Mr. Matheson, and I have seen that reply since I have been under examination.

Q. Under examination on this Commission? A. No, before this. Inspector Duncan informed me this morning that he remembered it quite well when I was over there trying to locate it this morning.

Q. In connection with that and other matters you went over yesterday with Mr. Thompson all the papers that are here produced to me by the liquidator or by anybody else? A. Yes.

Q. Were you able to find any such letter or reply from Colonel Matheson among these papers? A. I was not.

Q. Were you able to find that $3,000 cheque which you said on a previous occasion you remember seeing among the papers? A. No, I was not.

Q. I think those are the only two documents you have mentioned; did you find any other document, if there is any, that you have alluded as not being produced on this investigation? A. No, I could not find anything else.

Q. Did you go down to Inspector Duncan in order to see if by any possibility they were still with him? A. I did.

Q. And were you able to find them? A. I was not.

Q. I may say, as far as I am concerned, I have never seen either of those two? A. Mr. Duncan remembers them quite well, and said so this morning to Mr. Thompson.

Q. Is he going to make further search? A. Yes, but he thinks the last seen of it was on Mr. Baird's desk, the late Crown Attorney.

Q. Probably he would make a search, because before we finally close this if they can be found I would like to have them? A. I remember Colonel Matheson's letter.

Q. What was the purport of it? A. It was a sheet of paper written in his own handwriting, and it said, "I have received yours of such a date and I have made no promises to anybody about putting any money in your bank. Yours truly, Matheson." That is my recollection.

Q. You seem to have continued getting deposits from time to time from the Government? A. Yes.

Q. After the letter of that date? A. I think the books will show we did.

Q. Did you make any further effort yourself after writing that letter to get any deposits? A. From the Government?

Q. Yes? A. I got friends of my, different people, to speak to him.

Q. Who did you get to speak to him? A. I got Mr. Bain, of Bicknell, Bain & Strathy, for one, and Mr. Arthur Vankoughnet for another.

Q. Pulled the wires as far as you could? A. I got somebody else, I cannot remember now offhand.

Q. In the Government returns of the liability to the Provincial Government I think they were shown separately were they not? A. Yes.

Q. It appears that in two cases, in August and September, 1908, you made the amount of the Government return less than you had actually on deposit? A. I cannot account for that, unless it is a mistake as between the Toronto branch and the chief accountant upstairs.

Q. In August of the following year you doubled the amount, put in double the amount you had on deposit? A. I do not think that is right.

Q. It is undoubtedly right, according to the returns? A. I think the amount shown in the return is correct; I do not think we put any fictitious amount in.

Q. You put in $74,042, whereas you had only $35,000 of deposits received and $4,042 in open account?

Mr. Commissioner: $35,000 more.

Mr. Hodgins: Exactly $35,000 more; in other words, the deposit receipts are doubled according to your returns, whereas, in fact, instead of being $70,000 they are only $35,000? A. I do not think those are the facts. My recollection is the Government deposit went up as high as $77,000.

Q. You cannot account for that? A. No, I cannot realize that any such thing is the case.

Mr. Commissioner: Look at that item three; there seems to be no object in it. I do not know why it was done. It was making the bank look worse off.

Mr. Hodgins: It would swell the deposits? A. I think Mr. Clarkson is wrong in this; I do not think that is a true state of affairs.

Mr. Hodgins: I will have Mr. Clarkson look that up.

Mr. Clarkson produces return of liabilities and assets of the Farmers Bank.

Mr. Commissioner: There it is, Mr. Travers? A. I see those figures, but I am still doubtful as to Mr. Clarkson making that $35,000.

Mr. Clarkson: I think it is a clerical error without any effect? A. I am not satisfied with that statement.

Mr. Commissioner: Mr. Clarkson’s idea is that by mistake that was made $35,000 more than it should have been and this $35,000 less? A. That might have been between the two offices, but I am still doubtful about it. I will look into it further.

The Commissioner and Mr. Travers and Mr. Clarkson examined the book.

Mr. Commissioner: They have just put in the $35,000 twice.

The Commission adjourned at 1 p.m. to 2.15 p.m.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

The Commission resumed at 2.15 p.m. June 14th, 1912.

WALTER DUNCAN, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: There are some papers which have been mentioned in this inquiry which I have not seen. Mr. Travers says he has seen during his examinations in the Police Court and the Assize Court some of them. I have asked you to come here to find out if possible if all the papers have been handed over that you know of or if you can suggest anywhere where they may have been. I will tell you two I am particularly anxious to get; one is a cheque for $3,000 and the other is said to be a letter in Colonel Matheson's handwriting saying he had got a letter, but he had not made any promises to anybody to make any deposits in the Farmers Bank; and I think there are some other matters, but those two particularly I would like to know about? A. I remember a cheque for $3,000 there was considerable talk between Mr. Travers and I about, that I wanted some explanation from Mr. Travers that I did not get at the time, and my recollection is that either on the stub in the cheque book or on the cheque there was the letter “C”; I remember a cheque for that amount.

Q. That letter has not been handed to me, and I have got everything Mr. Clarkson got, everything that you handed me on the opening of the Commission, but I cannot find among them any such cheque. A. That should be in existence somewhere, because I know that it was in my possession at one time.

Q. Can you suggest anywhere where it would be? A. It ought to be with the other effects of the bank; I do not see any reason for separating that one out from the other cheques. These documents went into so many different hands and they were used in different courts, but I do not think that this cheque was ever put in as an exhibit: it may have been, but I do not know.

Q. I have had Mr. Travers go over personally all the papers that are in my possession and have not been put in as Exhibits here, and that cheque is not among them, and if you cannot throw any light on where it may be we may not be able to find it? A. I have not the faintest idea where it is at the present time. Speaking for the Police Department, we have no exhibits of any kind with the exception of one or two that is in Dr. Beattie Nesbitt's case, but outside of that we have no books, papers or anything pertaining to the bank. It may be, of course, it went astray the same as that ledger, and it may be thrown down with a lot of other documents around some of the court rooms.

Q. Have you inquired from Mr. Corley as to those two documents? A. No.

Q. Did the late Mr. Baird have them in his possession as Crown Attorney? A. I rather think he had; there was a file of private letters from the bank premises, I think it was from Mr. Travers' desk or a little room just adjoining it, I would not be sure, in which there were a lot of matters leading up to some loans that the World newspaper got, and Mr. Baird did not have these, and they were papers that I would think were more confidential than public. And, with reference to the letter from Colonel Matheson, I am speaking just from recollection, but my recollection is that I discussed that letter with Mr. Travers here.

Q. Do you remember seeing a letter from Colonel Matheson? A. That is my recollection, but Detective Guthrie would remember more clearly than I would, with reference to that because although I was into the affairs to a certain extent he knew pretty much and had the handling of a great many of the documents that were in my possession.

Q. Could you send him up? A. Yes, at once. I might say that there was a good deal of discussion with reference to these letters that were on this file; there were a number from Mr. Greenwood who was connected with the World newspaper and some from Mr. Maclean.
Q. You gave me quite a number of those? A. That letter of Matheson's ought to have been on that file. They disappeared in some way and could not be found for some considerable time, the whole of that file; I did not have them and it was said they were likely to make use at some of the elections, either the Dominion or the Provincial elections, and I think Mr. Clarkson sent up to me for them and I made a search for them and did not find them but they turned up afterwards.

Q. You handed them to me when this Commission formed? A. Yes.

Q. And they were not opened till I opened them up myself and there was no such letter of Colonel Matheson's among them? A. They were in Mr. Baird's possession for some considerable time.

Mr. Commissioner: You did not answer Mr. Hodgins' question; does your recollection agree with Travers as to the purport of this letter? A. I do not know what Mr. Travers has said about it.

Mr. Hodgins: Acknowledging the receipt of some letter and saying he had not made any promise to anybody to make the deposit in the Farmers Bank? A. I could not speak positively as to the contents of the letter but I know there was a letter from Colonel Matheson.

Mr. Commissioner: You are not asked that; you are asked about the contents; if you do not know, say so? A. I cannot speak as to that.

Q. What documents did you get into your possession and by what authority? A. We had a search warrant issued under Mr. Corley's instructions to take possession of certain documents pending certain charges that might be used.

Q. What documents? A. I could get the search warrant.

Q. Were they described, the documents in the search warrant? A. I do not know that they were.

Q. Or did you just do as you have done in other cases under a search warrant, go and take everything that was in sight? A. I know that we had a great many documents there that were not used in the various trials.

Q. That is not answering my question, did you just go and take everything? A. We did not take everything, but we took a great many that we thought would be used.

Q. How did you select, who made the selection? A. I made the selection of some acting under instructions from Mr. Corley: Mr. Corley was at the bank himself: Mr. Clarkson was at the bank and there was another solicitor there, I just forget his name.

Q. Was there any record made in your Department of the books you took and the papers you took? A. I do not think so.

Q. Why, is that the proper way of doing business? A. No, there is usually a record kept, but there are so many documents it would be hard to enumerate them.

Q. I want to see who is responsible for the loss of these documents; did you make any record of what became of the documents when they went out of your possession? A. We took a receipt for them.

Q. Where are those receipts you got? A. We would take from Mr. Clarkson and of course after they went into the Police Court, the Police Court clerk would have a receipt there.

Q. How would the Police Court clerk have the receipt; did your Department get any receipt from anybody when you parted with these documents? A. I believe we did from Mr. Clarkson from time to time.

Q. Anybody else? A. No, when they went into Court we got no receipt.

Q. Because it seems to me little short of a scandal that these important papers should be lost and not to be found? A. I have made every search myself, and in connection with this ledger, that ledger we had no record of it beyond that it was handed over to the Police Court clerk and the Police Court clerk said he had a receipt for it.
Q. Do you keep a record or did you keep a record in this case of the documents you handed over? A. I do not know that we did of them all.

Q. I do not quite understand your explanation about these papers that you say Mr. Baird had; how did they get back from Mr. Baird into your possession?

A. I believe Detective Guthrie got them, but I could not say definitively.

Q. Because Mr. Hodgins says he got them from you? A. Yes, I produced them here, and I got them that day or the day before from Detective Guthrie.

Q. Who is the chief of this Department you are in? A. I am.

Q. Is he under you? A. Yes.

Q. Do you keep books? A. Yes.

Q. Perhaps he can give us some information, but it is an extraordinary thing to me that a thing like this ledger would get lost and these papers should get lost? A. When the ledger went into the Police Court the Police Court were done with it, and it is up to the Police Court clerk to take a receipt and he has that receipt.

Q. Who got it from the Police Court clerk as you understand? A. I think it was Mr. Burns of Mr. Baird’s office.

Q. Are not the police constables present in the Court to look after these books? A. We have nothing to do with the County Court at all. In the Police Court, the police look after them until after they become an exhibit, and once they become an Exhibit of the Court our duty ends there.

Q. As I understand it your Department is responsible for every paper that was not in as an exhibit, is that so? A. Yes, if we took it away from the bank we would be responsible.

Q. If so, what has become of this cheque for $3,000 and the letters you have been interrogated about? A. My only explanation is they must have gone back to Mr. Clarkson with the rest of the property.

Q. Mr. Clarkson says not: have these things been permitted to pass out of your hands into unofficial place? A. Mr. Stannton, for instance, he was in the case, and he would come in and say “I want to see all those cheques”.

Q. I said in unofficial place? A. No, they were officers of Court or officers of the Crown; no one else had access to them except Mr. Clarkson.

Q. Where was this cheque for $3,000 kept; it appears to have some special significance attached to it; it would not be bundled in with the other cheques, where was it kept? A. It was with a number of them.

Q. How many others? A. There were quite a bundle of them. The time I asked Mr. Travers about it we were going over in connection with the provisional board the cheques they had received and were picking them out, and I remember distinctly that one with, it was either on the stub or on the cheque, there was the letter “C” on it.

Mr. Hodgins: In answer to the Commissioner you said that no unofficial person had access to any of the papers in your possession, would that include the newspaper reporters or editors? A. No, they would have no access to them.

Q. Did they ever have access to them? A. Not while they were in my possession. I do not know when they went to the County side of the building who had access to them.

Q. What do you mean by the County side of the building? A. That would be Mr. Baird’s Department.

W. R. Travers: Recalled:—

Mr. Hodgins: Speaking of the early stages of the bank, you formed the acquaintance of a man named Count Gregory pretty early? A. Yes.

Q. And he seems to have gone to the bank for a considerable amount of money? A. No, he did not. I lost a little money with him. The circumstances of that were these: I had been working very hard, and my doctor advised me to go away for two months, and I could not give up at that time, and he said you will have to get into some other recreation or business that will take your mind off this bank; and he suggested I should buy two or three horses; and I was introduced to Gregory in the King Edward Hotel as a good horseman, and I had never met him before in my life and had never heard of him, and it ended in my sending him out to buy two or three horses and finally in a rather mess and lawsuit in which I dropped some money.

Q. How much? A. About $3,000, I think.
Q. Did you lose more money over Count Gregory than that? A. No.
Q. Did you lose more on your horses? A. No, that was the loss on the horses altogether. I made some money on the horses once or twice. I did not go into them for the purpose of making money; I went into them for amusement. I told him he could have all the profits he made out of it at the time.
Q. Were you raising horses? A. No, buying poor horses in the country, and Gregory is a first-class horseman, one of the best I ever met in my life, and he would trim them up.
Q. You had no more than three horses? A. I had eleven: I started him out to buy three and he bought eleven.
Q. He used to get money pretty freely? A. From the bank.
Q. Yes? A. No, he got money from me for the horses.
Q. Do you say your losses were $3,000 in that deal? A. Yes, $3,000 is all I lost on that, not more than that; I am sure of that.
Q. Did he know anything about the beginning of the bank, how the bank was started? A. No, nothing whatever.
Q. Did any one you lent money to know about it other than whose names you have mentioned as having taken part in making up the list? A. I do not know exactly how to answer that question; I do not know to whom you refer. There were many people associated with me, Mr. Warren and Mr. Stratton and others who helped me with that loan; I don’t know whether they understood the true facts or not; they have said here under oath.
Q. Apart from those who were actively concerned in making up the list, was there any one outside who knew about it and used that knowledge to hold you up and get money out of the bank from time to time? A. Well, that is a difficult question for me to answer. People do not as a rule come in and tell you, “You have got to lend the money or they will do so and so”.
Q. They have ways of hinting at it that it is better for you to make the loan than do the other thing; you were not subjected to that during the early period of the bank and throughout its career? A. I would have to see the loans I made at that time to answer that question.
Q. Some of them you know? A. I have a faint idea that I was a little nervous about some people, but I am not quite sure that I could answer that just now.
Q. Could you by looking at the loan docket in the early stages? A. I think I might be able to do so.
Q. Are they names you would have to look at? A. I could not say that; I could tell you better if I looked.
Q. Without looking, are you not able to recall the names? A. That is a little difficult for me to do, not that I dislike doing it nor do I wish to refuse to do so, but I cannot answer that offhand.

MR. COMMISSIONER: I suppose what Mr. Hodgins wants to get at is, did you part with the money of the bank to people that you would not have given it to or lent it to, but you feared if you refused the knowledge that they possessed of the internal workings of the bank might be used to its disadvantage? A. I answer yes to that, but I cannot just locate the people offhand.
Mr. Hodgins: What book would you want to look at? A. At the loans that were made the first few months. If you had a copy of the liability list that was returned to me from the Toronto branch once a month as general manager I would know more about it.

Mr. Clarkson: That ceased in 1907? A. But that is rather difficult is it not to draw some people in; I want to assist you, but I hate to draw anybody in that way.

Mr. Commissioner: Of course it is open to this observation while that might have influenced you it might not have been the thing that was bringing them to the bank? A. You were speaking this morning about the World newspaper, and I have been thinking that over and in 1909 there was a suit of some kind threatened against the bank, and if I remember right Mr. Greenwood sent me down a communication regarding that suit, saying that he did not think he would publish it, he would not hurt me, and my recollection is that my putting in that I did not fear blackmail was that I had Mr. D’Arcy Hinds at Osgoode Hall to get an order from one of the High Court judges to prevent it being put in the newspapers.

Mr. Commissioner: The issue of the writ? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: What, was it in connection with that? A. I think it was something about Tevis and Knapke; that is my recollection at the present time.

Q. What was there about it that would hurt the bank? A. I was afraid that if they published the threatened writ at that time—I do not remember just the terms of it—it would cause a run. I remember writing to two or three branches about that time and that is my recollection telling them if anything of the sort did appear not to pay any attention to it, as it would not amount to anything.

Q. Had it anything to do with the Keeley Mine investment? A. There was another suit in connection with the Keeley Mine threatened by one Mark Harris, who bought five shares of the Farmers Bank and he threatened suit. The terms of the suit were forwarded to me by James E. Dey, a lawyer here, which were not very comfortable to read, that Mark Harris, on behalf of himself and other shareholders, would bring suit to set aside my personal holdings in the Keeley Mine as belonging to the bank. I got an order from one of the judges to prevent that going in the newspaper. If my recollection is right it is either one or the other of those, but I cannot tell which unless I have the date of it.

Q. While examining Mr. Fielding in Ottawa, he denied entirely that he ever had seen any subscriptions, and said if you said he saw them you must have confused him with Mr. Boville? A. I saw a synopsis of Mr. Fielding’s evidence, I did not see it in full. I hate to dispute his evidence, but I think he is wrong. If I remember right, you asked him whether he said anything about Lindsay’s subscriptions, to which he answered no. That is absolutely wrong, because he did; he pointed it out to me. He is mistaken on that. I hate to dispute him, but I am sure I remember that, and it was Mr. Fielding, not Mr. Boville.

Q. He says he had only one interview with you, not three? A. I think he is mistaken on that, too, for he stepped outside his door, and I think my evidence shows that they were brief; the first one or two interviews, he said he was too busy, and then I came back and talked to Mr. Boville about what sort of returns would have to be made by the bank at the end of the year—I quite recollect that; I have been thinking it over since and I am positive that I saw him twice for a minute or two and the third time was the longer interview.

Q. That was the twenty-minute interview? A. The last time?

Q. Yes? A. It lasted longer than that, longer than twenty minutes, I think.

Mr. Commissioner: He differs as to the time, too.

Mr. Hodgins: He said it was about noon on the 30th when the only interview he admits took place? A. I have been trying to locate the calendar for that year; I spoke to that young bank clerk that went out, to see if he could help me with these books to get that clear in my mind, and I was also trying to find out the night he delivered his Budget.

Q. That is the 29th. A. That he delivered his Budget?

Q. Yes? A. Then it would be in the morning of the 30th.

Q. That is what he said, about noon on the 30th? A. It was after the budget that I saw him for the lengthy period.

Mr. Commissioner: The witness’s evidence was it was about 4 o’clock, and in that it would agree possibly with Mr. Guthrie’s evidence.

Mr. Hodgins: You said you saw him in the afternoon about 4 o’clock, and you went back to Mr. Guthrie’s office? A. Yes. The evidence I have given I think, as far as I can remember, is correct; the first one I could not say whether it was the 28th or 27th; I was there all the week. The meeting of the bank was on Monday, the 26th, and the morning I saw him, but the second time it was the morning of the 30th and then the afternoon would be the longer one; I am not sure whether the longer one was in the morning or the short one in the afternoon, or vice versa.

Q. He is quite positive he had only one interview with you, and he did not discuss the subscriptions and when he saw you had already written a letter which had not reached you which you went and got and sent over your reply to or brought it back and having got that he ordered the certificate to issue? A. I think he is mistaken on that point. He certainly spoke of the number of the subscribers; I remember that well.

Q. You also said you know that he discussed several of the subscriptions? A. He discussed the subscriptions of Laidlaw; I cannot say that he took each one of them up, but I remember his speaking to me, asking me what was done in the matter, and I said there was nothing in the Bank Act that enabled us to remove those, and I had left them on, and there was sufficient without them.

Q. You did discuss with him generally the question as to whether the money put up by the Government had been raised by discount of notes? A. No, I did not; I never said that.

Q. That appears to have been what he discussed with you? A. No.

Q. That you wanted something in writing? A. The first I heard about that was his letter.

Q. You mean to say he did not discuss that phase of it with you at all? A. No, he did not discuss that with me personally to the best of my knowledge and I think I am right.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not know that he said that; he said that his request was in general terms, he wanted to be sure that everything was correct and accurate as stated in the papers; I do not recollect him to have said that he talked to him about payment in cash? A. He should remember speaking about Lindsay’s $50,000.

Q. He denied that, he said he never discussed any—

Mr. Hodgins: My recollection of his evidence is that he said he discussed the question of the payment up of the amount that was deposited, and that he wanted something in writing from Mr. Travers who had said it was all right? A. His letter came to me like a thunder-bolt out of blue sky when I got that letter about the subscriptions, I remember that quite well, and I went right to Mr. Guthrie’s office with it.

Q. It seemed odd, if, when the whole point of the letter was whether the money had been borrowed to put up the deposit to the Government that it should not have been mentioned between you and Mr. Fielding? A. I am positive that he never said a word on that.

Q. You still think you had three interviews? A. I still think I had three interviews with him.
Q. At which interview did Mr. Calvert accompany you? A. My recollection is the morning of the 30th; I cannot fix that entirely, whether that was the long one or the afternoon was the short one, but I feel positive Mr. Calvert was with me that second interview.

Q. That would be the first interview on the 30th? A. Yes.

Q. The morning interview? A. Yes.

Q. There was both the morning and the afternoon interview on the 30th? A. Yes, that is my recollection.

Q. The day you got your certificate? A. Yes.

Q. If you saw Mr. Fielding the day before what did you want an introduction for? A. I asked Mr. Calvert to go down with me in case I needed his assistance.

Q. If you had seen Mr. Fielding the day before there would be no necessity for an introduction? A. It was not introducing me, he simply went in with me, and told Mr. Fielding I was a friend of his.

Q. He was only with you on one occasion? A. Only one.

Q. Would Mr. Calvert be right when he says that the first time he met you was in the Russell House by letter of introduction from Thomas Urquhart, and that he had never heard of you before? A. I do not think he is right in that. My recollection is that Mr. Urquhart gave me a letter to him, but it was not a letter of introduction, it was a letter asking him to use all the influence he could to help me, but I do not remember that letter as a letter of introduction.

Q. I asked him how did he become acquainted with you, and he said "The first time I met Mr. Travers was in the Russell House by letter of introduction from Mr. Thomas Urquhart."

"Q. Then you had not known him before? A. I never met the gentleman before.

"Q. Did you vouch for him at all to the Finance Minister? A. I knew nothing of the gentleman except what the letter said."

Q. Had not you been in correspondence with him much earlier in the year? A. My impression is yes; but I cannot positively state; I think I saw Mr. Calvert earlier in Toronto.

Q. Of course you might have corresponded with him without knowing him, but did you know him before you went down to Ottawa? A. My impression is I did, and I am trying to locate how.

Q. Whose handwriting is that memorandum in; is that yours or Lindsay's or whose? A. That is mine; there has been something torn off that.

Mr. Commissioner: It may have been in tearing apart a sheet? A. I do not think that was in book form.

Mr. Hodgins: Here is a letter dated as early as July 11th, 1906, from Calvert to yourself? A. Yes, this is months before.

Q. He was writing to you declining to be a director? A. Yes.

Q. There is a letter here from Mr. Leggatt which speaks of Mr. Calvert as early as March, 1906, speaking of having met Mr. Calvert one of your directors; did you know him and did he know you long prior to November, 1906? A. I cannot locate just at the moment whether I met Mr. Calvert, but my impression is I knew him a long time before that. He says here "Dear Mr. Travers". It is not very likely a man that never met me would start his letter off with that.

Q. Was the earliest transaction that Mr. Calvert had the loan which he spoke of as being in 1909, or had he guaranteed a transaction earlier than that? A. I think the first transaction I had with Mr. Calvert was in connection with Rabbit Mountain Mining Company.

Q. That was when? A. Early in 1907, if I remember.

Q. Had he made a guarantee of any kind? A. I think he did in connection with somebody else. Mr. Clarkson has the records there.

Q. Looking at this letter December 8th, 1908, from Calvert to yourself which speaks of the guarantee, what guarantee is that spoken of? A. To the best of my recollection Mr. Hamilton and one or two others were getting advances for the flotation of the Rabbit Mountain Mining Company and Mr. Calvert was in the background to be guarantee, that is my recollection.

Q. To whom was that guarantee given, was it in the first place given to the bank? A. Yes.

Q. Would that be the early part of 1907? A. Sometime in 1907; I may be wrong in that.

Q. There is a document dated April 10th, 1907; "In consideration of the Farmers Bank discounting a demand note of $15,000 signed by P. H. Hamilton and some others it is agreed that $60,000 stock of the Rabbit Mountain Mining Company should lodge as collateral security", and so on would that fix the date at all? A. Yes, that is the transaction I should say.

Q. That is not signed by Mr. Calvert. Had you an independent guarantee from him? A. My recollection is that I had, yes.

Q. That letter that I am putting in on December 8th, would that refer to that guarantee? A. This ran along for some length of time and got unsatisfactory.

Q. Would that letter refer to the guarantee in that Rabbit Mountain matter? A. I would say it would.

Q. To what extent was there a liability on that? A. At the time of the letter I could not say now.

Q. This letter of December 8th, 1908, from Calvert to yourself winds up with speaking of a telegram at Woodstock: "I trust the telegram was received O.K. at Woodstock and that you succeeded to your entire satisfaction". Do you know what that is? A. From memory I would say I had a suit against some shareholders in Woodstock on or about that time, and their defence was that Calvert did not become a director. I am not positive about that, but very likely I had to telegraph him either he would be on hand or some other explanation; I cannot say just now.

EXHIBIT 82: Letter W. S. Calvert to W. R. Travers, dated December 8th, 1908.

Q. This letter of September 4th, 1909, from Calvert to you would indicate that you had a bond in connection with that which he wished you to return? A. I presume that is the same transaction.

Q. He speaks of a bond he wants you to return and then he says his own personal account he will settle up at any time? A. There was a personal loan made to him as well in between or about that time.

Q. He says the first transaction he had was in 1909; did you get anything out of that Rabbit Mountain thing except payment of what you had advanced? A. No, I got the amount advanced at interest. There were three men on that note, two of whom were no good; the third man was William Snider of Waterloo whom I knew well, knew him to be well off; I knew he was worth the money and I finally made him pay it.

Q. So that you lost nothing? A. I lost nothing; I had to give up that stock to Snider.

Q. You had to give it up to him for what purpose? A. To enable payment; I did not think it was any good at that time, so that it did not make much difference.

Q. Was Calvert a stockholder in the Rabbit Mountain Mine? A. I could not say, but I think so; I think Mr. Calvert and also a lawyer named Bull in the Temple Building and Hamilton and William Snider of Waterloo was the principal if not the holders of all the stock.
Q. Were not you in the syndicate too?  A. No, I was not in the syndicate, it was simply the profit to the bank for that loan; I had no personal interest in it.

Mr. Commissioner: We had some entry in the books about the Rabbit Mountain Mine?  A. When we got this stock we dropped some of the organization expenses and put some of the stock in the place of it.

Q. Put this Rabbit Mountain?  A. Yes.

Q. You had to give it up?  A. Yes, I had to give it up to Snider in order to have payment of the $15,000 without a law suit.

Mr. Hodgins: So that it was not a refuge any more for any of the organization expenses; they had to be put somewhere?  A. I suppose we had to put them to the Keeley Mine then.

Q. Will you tell me what you can about this note, do you know what it is in connection with?  A. I could not say; it has apparently never been put through the books. It may have been one of those notes I mentioned the other day as having been left behind in the drawer.

Q. There is just one other little matter; when Mr. Fielding was examined he spoke of the Bankers' Association or the Clearing House having received your bank with open arms. I have got the correspondence with Mr. Knight here; you had to assert yourself as I read these letters a little bit, in order to get action taken with regard to your joining the Bankers' Association?  A. You become members of the Bankers' Association immediately the certificate is issued, but not members of the Clearing House.

Q. This letter perhaps of Mr. Knight's expresses the thing just exactly as it was; just look at that and see if that was the situation then. He says a chartered bank becomes a member of the Bankers' Association nolens volens?  A. Yes.

Q. But that your admission to the Clearing House depends upon the will of the majority?  A. Depends upon the joining in the combine not to pay any more interest than 3% on deposits; that is all it amounts to.

Q. Did you join in that combine in order to get into the combine?  A. Yes, I did; I had not any intention of going into the Clearing House; I thought it was better to work on the outside; but Mr. Yarker was an old personal friend of mine and he came up and showed me the advantages of it and practically coaxed me into it; that is the way I went in.

Q. Would you agree with Mr. Fielding about the open arms of the Bankers' Association and the Clearing House?  A. I cannot say that they opened their arms very wide to bring me in.

Q. What was their attitude towards you?  A. The Bankers' Association?

Q. Yes?  A. As an Association I think they put very bitter opposition in my way. As to certain members of the Association they were not unfriendly to me, but without mentioning names, some of them were very bitter.

Q. Your joining the Clearing House was in the way you have told us; had you to make an agreement?  A. I had to sign an agreement there that we would not pay more than 3% on deposits and subscribe to some other regulations; I have forgotten what they were.

Q. There was no objection to your going in if you did that?  A. I don't remember any objections raised whatever. It saved them an awful lot of trouble rather than coming up to our counter every time to cash every ten dollar cheque to have us in there and clear once a day.

Q. How long were you a member in good standing in the Clearing House?  A. From the date we joined, whatever that date was; I do not know whether this fixes the date or not, perhaps it does, the 24th January, 1907 — no, it was later than this, but until the bank failed.

Mr. Hodgins I will put Mr. Knight's letter in.
Mr. Commissioner: Where is the letter to which this was an answer? They had better go together.

Exhibit 84: Letter of January 22nd, 1907, from Mr. Travers to John Knight, Secretary of the Bankers' Association, and reply by Mr. Knight, dated the 24th January, 1907.

GEORGE GUTHRIE, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: You are a Detective in the Toronto Detective force? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Your immediate chief is Inspector Duncan? A. Yes.

Q. He think that perhaps you can throw some light on some documents we have not been able to find, one is a cheque for $3,000 and the other is a letter said to be written by the Honourable Colonel Matheson to Mr. Travers about depositing in the Farmers Bank; they are not among the papers that have passed through my hands? A. I cannot speak definitely about the $3,000 cheque, I do not remember that. We had a lot of cheques. There was such a letter as the Matheson letter at least a letter written by Mr. Matheson to Travers, I remember seeing that one, but the contents have slipped my memory, but I remember there was such a letter.

Q. Where would that be? A. If my memory serves me right that was handed over to the Ex-County Crown Attorney, that is the late Mr. Baird, with some Maclean letters; they were all on a file.

Q. You remember you came up with Inspector Duncan the day this Commission opened? A. Yes.

Q. And he produced and handed to me quite a number of papers, all of which I have kept here in the bundle which he handed me which he said related to the World account? A. Yes.

Q. That bundle I did not open until I arrived at the World matter in due course. There was no such letter there and Mr. Travers and Mr. Thompson have both gone over that, and cannot find it; who did you get them from? A. I got them from Inspector Duncan, that is part of them, and part of them in going over the papers and I put them on a file.

Q. You thought they went to Mr. Baird? A. Yes.

Q. Before I got them how did you and Inspector Duncan get them? A. I cannot say whether they were sent back to Inspector Duncan or not, but I received them from Inspector Duncan, if my memory is right, and put them on a file and had that file locked in my locker up to just shortly before you received them.

Q. How did they come back from Mr. Baird? A. That I cannot say for sure.

Q. Are you speaking of what occurred after they came back from Mr. Baird? A. Yes, afterwards.

Q. Do you know whether that letter was among them then? A. No, I cannot say it was, I do not know; and there is another matter there about that ledger. When Mr. Clarkson spoke to me about it some little time ago I went down to the Police Court clerk and I asked him about it and he said there was a receipt from County Constable Burns to take them over to the other Court and I followed them over there and I searched all over and I found that book in back of His Honor Judge Winchester's Chambers and started down with it to Mr. Clarkson's office. When I got on Colborne Street I looked at the ledger and on the back of it was "Royal Bank of Canada". I said there is no use my going down with that book, I would be only laughed at and I took it and put it back of His Honor's Chambers again. The back of the book had the Royal Bank of Canada; that is what deceived me in that book. I had it and started to take it down there.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Can you suggest where we can send for these? A. I do not know at all; I have no idea; I have not another paper of any kind belonging to the Farmers Bank.

Q. You have not made any inquiry I suppose as to Mr. Baird's office or any one connected with him? A. I think I would have found that letter had it been there when I was searching for these other papers and this ledger; I got into the Crown Attorney's desk and searched all through.

Q. The desk at the City Hall? A. Yes.

Q. Have you spoken to Mr. Burns and asked him? A. Yes, Mr. Burns claims he got a receipt from Mr. Clarkson for all the exhibits, although he could not have got them all.

Q. I am speaking of those which are not exhibits? A. No, I do not know anything about them; I did not speak to him about those.

Q. I wish you would? A. I will; of course I might say these exhibits were carried from here to Hamilton to Mr. Lynch-Staunton's office; I carried an armful up one day and left them there, and they were given back in my arms at the Union and he said he was going on to Ottawa; and Mr. DuVernet had them after that; so that he would lose a lot of sleep trying to keep track of them.

GEOFFREY T. CLARKSON, Recalled:

Mr. Hodgins: What have you to say about the papers? A. The matter started this way: I think the second day after I was in the bank the Crown sent down to go over the books and papers of the bank in order to get evidence. I gave them carte blanche to go in the bank and take whatever documents that they found or that they required, and I did not pay attention to it.

Q. You took possession as curator? A. Yes. I had other things to occupy my mind at that time and I was quite content that they should take what papers and documents they wanted; I did not know what they got as a matter of fact so far as letters and things were concerned. So far as books were concerned I made it a business to keep a pretty good eye on that because I might need them.

From time to time I was interjected into this question of getting evidence because as far as the bank was concerned, particularly in the head office, all the bank things were at loose ends and Fitzgibbon had mislaid his papers in one place and another and they could not be found and from time to time I had to do with it that way more in the way of trying to impress upon them to find documents. That is the way the matter rested. The papers went over to the Crown. Any papers I put my hand to and dealt with with the Crown I knew where they went to; any that I got back from the Crown I made certain that we had a list of that we got back so that we could keep track of them and not be called to account for any papers we got from them, and then have it said that we had mislaid them. All the papers I had in the shape of exhibits or cheques or letters have been kept in the time-lock safe; there is no possibility of any papers that come into my possession going astray.

Q. All the papers that have been produced here have been produced from your custody? A. Yes; you got all the papers that I have that I know of. Of course there are the files of the bank and volumes and papers down there.

Q. You know since the inquiry has been begun they have been either in Mr. Thompson's hands or mine or in the safe up here? A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever seen in going over these papers either of those two particular documents that have been mentioned, the letter or the cheque? A. So far as the $3,000 cheque is concerned, no, I never saw it; I do not know that I ever heard of it; if I did hear of it it did not stick in my mind as anything particular.
As far as the letters to the World I remember those very distinctly, but I remember having given them over to the Crown or Mr. Baird, and not getting them back; and when some evidence came out in one of the newspapers about it. I did not feel it was in the interest of the liquidation to have this made a political football any more than was necessary and I sent for those papers and I was then told that they never had them, the Crown had not them, and also by the Crown Attorney’s office that they never had them. I persisted in trying to find them and they could not be found; and then most of them turned up in your hands in this inquiry. Inspector Duncan has been more solicitous than anybody in trying to see that those papers were kept in order.

Mr. Hodgins: I have a very large quantity of letters from people who are depositors or shareholders in the bank setting out, what is perfectly true, a great deal of misery occasioned by this failure. I do not think that there is any object in putting them in unless you care to look at them.

Mr. Commissioner: I saw a number of them. I suppose they are all on the same line asking you to press the investigation up to the utmost in getting him to tell all he knew. I suppose if there was any information there you have used it.

Mr. Hodgins: Yes. Really there is no information excepting the circumstances of these various people and the straits to which they have been reduced; and they feel they are not going to get the money they deposited in the bank.

The Commission adjourned at 3.30 P.M. until Saturday, June 22nd, 1912, at 10 A.M.

Toronto, June 22nd, 1912.

The Commission was to meet at 10 A.M. to-day, but as the Commissioner found he could give two days next week to the hearing, it was arranged to continue the sittings of the Commission at 11 A.M., Thursday, June 27th, 1912.

Toronto, June 27th, 1912.

The Commission resumed at 11 A.M., at Osgoode Hall.

PRESENT:

Hon. Sir Wm. Meredith, Commissioner.
Frank E. Hodgins, K.C., and John Thompson, K.C., representing the Dominion Government.
H. H. Dewart, K.C., representing Dr. Beattie Nesbitt.

Dr. William Beattie Nesbitt, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: You were president of the Farmers Bank? A. President for the first year.
Q. Do you remember when you took office? A. Well, I think they had an organization meeting in the fall of 1906.
Q. It was the organization meeting you were elected a director? A. Yes.
Q. The organization meeting was held in November, and you were elected a director, and immediately after that meeting, the directors met and elected you president?  A. Yes.
Q. And then you recognize this letter I suppose, Exhibit 37?  A. May 10th, 1910, yes, that would be about four years after that; I recognize the letter.
Q. Did you read it?  A. Yes.
Q. Note the date it refers to?  A. December 6th, 1906.
Q. That would be after you became president?  A. Yes.
Q. Is what was stated in that letter correct?  A. At the time that I gave that letter, as you see there, I was referring to a conversation I had with Mr.
Travers; there was some case up between him and Mr. Lindsay, and a dispute as to their accounts in some way, and he spoke of the matter and I had an arrangement with Mr. Lindsay by which the $5,000 I received was to come out of his commissions.

Mr. Commissioner: $5,000 in shares?  A. $5,000 cash; I afterwards bought shares with it. It did not go out of the bank; it stayed in the bank as far as I was concerned; and so Mr. Travers spoke about our meeting at that time and told me and referred to the arrangement and to Lindsay giving me the money.
At that time I practically took his recollection for it in drawing the circumstances to my attention and since the investigation has occurred I noticed in the papers that Mr. McCorquodale had said he was present at the time that Lindsay was. I do not remember McCorquodale being there and it has just put a doubt into my mind as to whether I had actually got the money from Lindsay or Mr. Travers, I could not swear positively to that now, with the statement of Mr. McCorquodale that he was there, because I think I would have remembered; I could remember better by men being present than by dates.
Q. Did you know on May 10th, 1910, what the facts were?  A. At that time as I say I had a conversation with Mr. Travers and he tried to draw the circumcumstances to my attention and it seemed to me they were about right, I thought they were right at the time, but I am not positive now.
Q. It was rather an unusual transaction that Lindsay should come in Travers' place and hand you a parcel of Traders Bank notes to the amount of $5,000 in $100 dollar bills?  A. The arrangement was that I was to get the money from Mr. Lindsay's commissions.
Q. You ought to remember I think the circumstances?  A. I just cannot be positive about it.
Q. Look at the letter again, are you throwing doubt on the statement in the letter or are you not?  A. As I say as regards the statement in the letter that was my recollection when Mr. Travers drew the circumstances to my attention, at the time. This is four years after the event occurred, this was several years after the event occurred, and in the conversation of Mr. Travers it seems to me that that was the right interpretation of it, and I have been trying, endeavoring to recollect various things that occurred in connection with this investigation.
Q. You are throwing doubt on the accuracy of the statement in the letter?
A. As regards that portion of it, I would not be positive about it.
Q. What portion of it?  A. As regards the actual handing of the money by Mr. Lindsay to me.
Q. That is the whole thing in the matter?  A. No.
Q. It was handed to you by Lindsay?  A. No, that is not the whole thing.
Q. Was it not a question whether you got it or Travers got it?  A. There was no question at that time as to who got the money.
Q. There was no question you got the money?  A. There was no question
I got the money.
Q. Is the question who handed it to you?  A. That is all.
Q. What is the doubt, if it was not Lindsay, who was it?  A. As I say I would not be positive whether it came right out of Mr. Lindsay's hands to mine or
Mr. Lindsay's hands to Travers and then to mine, I was in the bank at the time and I say I think it is a pretty hard matter to remember where you were several years ago, I think I was in the second room, that would be Mr. Travers' private office then. Mr. Lindsay handed Mr. Travers the money and Mr. Travers stepped in and handed it to me, or I got it direct from Lindsay, I could not swear.

Q. That letter was intended to establish the fact that Lindsay handed it to you and Travers did not? A. I do not know about that, the letter was intended to establish this fact, because this was the understanding, I had made an arrangement with Mr. Lindsay as regards that $5,000, I had a previous arrangement with Mr. Travers, and I made the arrangement with Mr. Lindsay as regards that $5,000, and what I wished to establish was that as far as I was concerned the money was coming from Mr. Lindsay, but I do not know just why the letter was put in that shape, because I did not not consider it of any particular importance at the time.

Q. The explanation of the letter is that you wanted to make it clear that it came to you? A. From Mr. Lindsay.

Q. And not from Mr. Travers? A. Not from Mr. Travers.

Q. Travers had recalled the circumstances and pointed out to you what he wanted the letter for, to make use of it in the law suit? A. He wanted to use it in the law suit.

Q. Did you ever give evidence in accordance with that letter in that law suit? A. No.

Q. You remember the circumstance now that you got $5,000 from Lindsay? A. I cannot be positive, I won't swear positively now, whether it was handed to me by Mr. Lindsay or Travers.

Q. How did it come to be handed to you at all? A. When Mr. Travers first talked to me about being connected with the bank the suggestion was that I should be a director, and they were in difficulties at the time.

Q. Who are they? A. The gentlemen who were organizing the bank.

Q. Who were they? A. As far as I knew, Mr. Travers and Mr. Lindsay, and on account of the threatened suit, by I think it was a suit threatened by Mr. Laidlaw—there was some altercation by Mr. Laidlaw and it was shortly after I think the failure of the Ontario Bank, and then the suit or threatened suit, whatever the altercation they had with Mr. Laidlaw.

Q. Are you fixing the date when they spoke to you by these two events? A. I am trying to get near the date, and after that altercation with Mr. Laidlaw I rang up Mr. Travers and told him that I was pleased with the way he had held up his end of the fight, and anything I could do for him I would be glad to do. He came over and saw me, I do not know just how soon after that, and had a talk with me and wanted me to become a director of the bank. I told him at the time I did not feel that I could subscribe and take the amount of stock required to qualify a director; that was $3,000. There was some further conversation, I could not say when, and it finally resulted in his saying that if I would be a director that he would advance the money; that he was having some large commissions in connection with the organization getting the stock, and that he would advance the money to pay for my stock as a director, and that I could repay him at my convenience. I then subscribed for $3,000 of stock.

Q. Would you mind pausing there for a moment, was that interview with Travers, your ringing him up over the telephone and discussing it, after that with him where he promised to qualify you, the time at which you agreed to become a director, does that fix the time at which you agreed to become a director? A. Yes, I think so approximately.

Q. That would be after the Laidlaw fight had been disposed of? A. Yes.

Q. Would you tell me whether previous to that time you had seen any one in connection with the bank? A. I have been trying to place that. I did see some one, it was some months, I could not say how many, but I know it was some months before that Mr. Macorquodale came to the Registry Office one day to see me about taking stock in the Farmers Bank. I had known him very well, he had been a supporter of mine in North Toronto, and he was rather a clever writer in some ways, and I rather liked him, and he spoke to me about taking stock, some months before, and I think, I could not be positive, but I think he asked me to go down with him on the same evening that he spoke to me to see Mr. Travers at the Queen's and have a talk to him, and I went down with him and I met him at the Queen's that evening, and I met Mr. Travers for a few minutes; he introduced me to Mr. Travers, and I met him for a few minutes, and we had a little talk about the affairs of the bank and one thing and another; and then I left him there, and I have an impression that I subscribed with Macorquodale for two or three shares—I mean at that time I was doing it with the idea of helping Mr. Macorquodale; I thought it would help Macorquodale to go down and meet Mr. Travers and he would likewise get some commission from the two or three shares subscribed for.

Q. Two or three months before you telephoned to Mr. Travers, speaking of the Laidlaw matter? A. It was some months before.

Q. And there was no talk then of your being a director nor of taking any stock? A. There was talk of my taking stock and being interested in the bank, and I think Mr. Macorquodale spoke about my being a director, do you see, but there was nothing came of it.

Q. Nothing came of it at all? A. No.

Q. Nothing came of it during the intervening months? A. No.

Q. What was your occupation at that time? A. I was in the Registry Office.

Q. You were Registrar, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. West Toronto or East Toronto? A. West Toronto, I think.

Q. I asked you that because you spoke of not being in a position to take stock to qualify to the extent of $3,000; the income from that office was very large, was it not? A. I was using it all.

Q. It was very large? A. Yes, it was about $9,000 at that time. My idea was not that I could not afford to take the stock at that time, I could have done it but it was not convenient for me; I had other things I wanted to do.

Q. You were not in such a position you could not have qualified if you had wanted to? A. I imagine I could have raised the money if I had absolutely wanted to.

Q. Did you see Lindsay at all between that Macorquodale interview and the time you rang up Travers after the Laidlaw matter? A. Not that I can remember of at all.

Q. Do you know him at all? A. I knew Lindsay as I knew thousands of men.

Q. Had he canvassed you? A. No.

Q. I suppose whatever arrangement was made out of which this $5,000 came, it was made after your conversation with Travers, following your ringing him up on the telephone? A. Yes.

Q. We have pretty well the date of the closing of that Laidlaw matter fixed, so that we can get about the time of the year it was; the suit was begun on the 23rd October and I think ended on the 28th October; who did you make the arrangement with out of which that $5,000 came from Lindsay? A. The matter of making that arrangement was this, as nearly as I can remember now: I had arranged with Mr. Travers to be a director for the qualification as I say. After that—of course I will tell you it is a little difficult in the light of what has occurred now, you know, I did not know at the time, I was not aware of the actual difficulties they were having with their organization, I did not know that the organization that they were figuring on having were running away from them.
Q. You told us a little while ago that Travers said there was difficulty owing to the Ontario Bank failure? A. He said they were having difficulties.

Q. I want to know what arrangement you made out of which this $5,000 came? A. I made an arrangement after the directorship was arranged, and I subscribed for the stock of a director; then the question of the presidency of the bank was suggested to me, whether Mr. Travers suggested that first or Mr. Lindsay suggested that first I would not be positive now; I had conversations with both of them about it.

Q. Before you go on, you say you arranged with Travers at all events to become a director? A. Yes.

Q. And the qualification you knew was $3,000? A. Yes.

Q. And he was to find that? A. Yes.

Q. Then you would subscribe for the shares and he would find the qualification? A. Yes.

Q. That was the first arrangement? A. Yes.

Q. You had better go on and tell your story; there was a subsequent arrangement? A. Yes. Then, you see, when the discussion of the presidency arose, when I finally decided to accept the presidency, I arranged with Mr. Lindsay that the $5,000 which I received which I was going to use to buy the stock—

Q. We have not heard anything about your arrangement with Lindsay or the offer of the presidency yet? A. I have told you that the question of the presidency was discussed, whether it was first suggested to me by Mr. Travers or Mr. Lindsay I could not say now, which one suggested the fact that they wanted me to be president first.

Q. Somebody did, and there was some discussion as to qualification? A. Yes. I talked the thing over with Mr. Lindsay, and Mr. Lindsay said of course he would go half and Travers would go half. Now, I said to him, “Mr. Lindsay, as I am going to be the president of the bank I would prefer not to be under, as it were, a direct obligation to Mr. Travers, who will be the general manager, for my stock.”

Q. Whom did you say this to? A. Lindsay. “So I want the money for the payment that goes to pay my stock to come from your commissions, to come from you”; and further in that connection there was this, that Mr. Lindsay wanted the agency for the disposal of the bank’s stock subsequent to the organization; he wanted me to support his application; he wanted the control of the balance of the bank’s stock for a year I think, and that he would receive the commissions on it, and he wanted me to support him for that. I told him I considered that was perfectly fair, as he had done hard work in getting the stock placed before the bank was organized, and he should have the first opportunity of what would appear to us to be easier to sell the stock after the bank was organized and going, and he was very anxious to have that arrangement, and so then the arrangement was made with him, just in that way, that the $5,000 was to come from him to me, and then I was to support his application for the right to sell the stock afterwards.

Q. Does it mean he secured your influence for the $5,000? A. No, it does not mean he secured my influence for the $5,000, but it means that is what he wanted, and I considered that perfectly fair for him to have; I would have given him that anyway.

Q. It did not enter into that matter with you? A. Not with me.

Q. You did not want to be under obligation to Travers, whose acquaintance you had made a few months before, why were you willing to be under obligation to Lindsay, who was only a casual acquaintance? A. Lindsay was not an officer of the bank. There was a wide difference between the position of Mr. Lindsay and the position of Mr. Travers; Mr. Lindsay was not an officer of the bank.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Why should Mr. Lindsay want to make you president and qualify you? A. That was a matter between Mr. Lindsay and Mr. Travers; they wanted a president, I imagine.

Q. You were the one who was getting the office, did not you find out why these gentlemen were willing to qualify you—you seem to have differentiated between Travers and Lindsay and willing to accept the qualification of one and not the other? A. I should think it would be perfectly clear why I would prefer to have my dealings with Lindsay, who would not be connected officially with the bank in any way, rather than Mr. Travers, who would.

Q. Did you tell Travers so? A. I am not sure whether I told Mr. Travers so or not.

Q. Did you tell him; it would seem to me to make no difference? A. I don’t think it would, it should not; I should think Mr. Travers would appreciate the situation as well as I would; I always found Mr. Travers very fair.

Q. I suppose you knew that Lindsay was employed by Travers to sell stock, and Travers was paying Lindsay commissions and not the bank? A. I do not know the arrangement.

Q. Did you consult Travers and ask him or ask Lindsay? A. I simply understood that Lindsay had a large amount of commissions coming to him; I also understood that Mr. Travers had some commissions coming to him.

Q. Then if you made the arrangement you would naturally expect that Lindsay would hand you the money, whatever it was, when he got it out of his commissions? A. Oh, no; I do not think that that follows at all.

Q. You understood that Lindsay was working directly for the bank and had an independent claim for commission? A. I understood Mr. Lindsay was working for the provisional directors of the bank and had claims to commissions for stock he had sold.

Q. Directly? A. Yes.

Q. So that he could qualify you out of his own money? A. Yes.

Q. Not Travers’ money at all? A. He could do that, sure.

Q. Then as I say it would be quite natural he would hand you money direct, would it not? A. I do not know as it would, because I might not be there at the time; he might hand it to Travers to hand to me, for instance; I know myself he might just as well do it one way or the other, and I would never bother about it.

Q. You never had any doubt about the accuracy of the facts stated in the letter until you saw Macorquodale’s evidence in the paper? A. No.

Q. If before seeing that I had asked you these questions you would have said that letter was perfectly correct? A. I probably would, unless something else had occurred.

Q. Have you told us the reason yet why Lindsay was willing to qualify you as president? A. The only reason I knew was that they felt that if Laidlaw succeeded in preventing the organization of the bank they would naturally have trouble in collecting their commissions.

Q. I thought this all occurred after the Laidlaw matter had been got rid of? A. The getting rid of the Laidlaw matter did not complete the getting rid of trouble, as far as the organization of the bank was concerned.

Q. It did as far as he was concerned? A. Yes, but not as far as the shareholders he had stirred up.

Q. They were bought off? A. I do not know anything about that.

Q. You understood all difficulty was got rid of with Laidlaw shareholders? A. It got rid of his difficulty with his shareholders whom he had actually been in touch with, but as I understood the thing, as it was told me at the time, they had been out and stirring up trouble with all the shareholders I think out in the section of Milton.
Q. Am I right in assuming from what you said that the arrangements with Lindsay were after Laidlaw had been got rid of and the telephone message sent to Travers? A. The telephone message was sent to Travers some time during the stuff that appeared in the newspapers in reference to the dispute between Mr. Laidlaw and Mr. Travers; I cannot say now whether the telephone message was sent after Travers had completely got rid of the Laidlaw incident.

Q. Mr. Travers says so? A. I am not positive myself.

Q. He says you first appeared after the Laidlaw suit was disposed of, called him up by telephone and congratulated him? A. Well, I am not positive about that now myself.

Q. What was the reason that you can give for Lindsay qualifying you? A. I can only give you the reason that I have given you, that I understood—you see as I understood the situation then the getting rid of the Laidlaw suit did not make things plain sailing for them by any means; the stirring up of this matter had alarmed men who had promised to be directors, and in consequence of that they wanted to be sure that they would be able to carry on the completion of the organization of the bank.

Q. Who did they mention to you as directors that had been frightened off? A. I cannot say there were any directors mentioned that had been frightened off; I do not think you are justified in using that term.

Q. Well, would not act in consequence? A. As I remember now there are only two or three names I can recall. There was Ivey was one name, and the only name that I remember asking about whether he would be a director or not was Major Beattie, of London, because I knew the Major very well, and I was very pleased to see his name on the list of directors, and they said that on account of the failure of the Ontario Bank and trouble that had been made by Mr. Laidlaw's threatened action and that sort of thing, that they were having trouble in getting men who had promised them to become directors before to stand by their promise.

Q. Did you see your opportunity to become president and get your qualification provided? A. Nothing of that at all. I had unfortunately told Mr. Travers when I telephoned him that I would be glad to help him; I have always tried to help any man I said I would help, and I got started in with him, and when I got started in with him I stayed; that is all there was to it.

Q. What was your qualification to be when you agreed to be president? A. $5,000.

Q. Travers said you talked of $10,000 being the proper amount? A. That was subsequent.

Q. You arranged with Lindsay for $5,000? A. $5,000 was the arrangement I made first when I arranged to become president.

Q. What was to become of the $3,000 that Mr. Travers was to find for you? A. There was nothing said as to what was to become of the $3,000; I presume that was arranged between Travers and Lindsay.

Q. You arranged to take up $5,000 and Lindsay to qualify you; what did you tell him of Travers' offer to qualify you to the extent of $3,000? A. At the time I wrote this letter, and I was speaking to Mr. Travers, in writing the letter I said, "Now, as regards that letter, I said I had the impression from a subsequent conversation with Lindsay that he expected this $5,000 would be charged up to your expense account, and that it really would not come all out of him, and I did not want to deal in the matter, and Mr. Travers told me that was correct at the time I wrote this letter, that $5,000 was charged up to their expense account as between them.

Q. Whose expense account? A. Mr. Travers and Mr. Lindsay.

Q. What is the meaning of that "Charged up to their expense account"—do you mean the bank's expense account? A. No, it had nothing to do with the bank.
Q. They had no expense account?  A. I understood from Mr. Travers that they had at this time this letter was given; I talked the matter over with him; I understood in connection with the taking of their stock subscriptions, whatever expenses they were put to, the travelling expenses and all that sort of thing, was first taken out before they made their arrangement.

Q. Out of commissions?  A. Yes.
Q. And that this would be taken out of commissions?  A. Yes.
Q. That would come out of them would it not?  A. Yes.
Q. I do not understand this charging up the expenses if it comes out of the commissions?  A. It was their expenses.
Q. It was on account of the bank’s expenses was it not?  A. No, nothing to do with the bank expenses.

Mr. Commissioner: Lindsay was giving him the money, and as between Lindsay and Travers, Travers would bear half of it; that was the effect of it.

Mr. Hodgins: Was that your understanding, that Travers was to pay half of it?  A. That was not my understanding at the time.
Q. Was it at the time you wrote the letter?  A. Yes.
Q. Now, come back to the question I asked you before, when Lindsay had agreed to qualify you to the extent of $5,000 what did you tell Travers, what arrangement did you make with him in regard to his offer to pay up $3,000?  A. I did not make any arrangement at all that I remember of.
Q. Does that stand good too?  A. No, because the first arrangement that I made with Travers was that Travers was not giving me that money, he was advancing the money and I was to pay it back at my convenience.
Q. What about Lindsay, it was a regular gift was it?  A. As far as Lindsay was concerned the money came to me.
Q. Was it a gift?  A. It was a gift to me.
Q. That would relieve Travers?  A. Yes.
Q. There was no reason why half of Lindsay’s amount should be charged to Travers?  A. There was no reason, no.
Q. And no communication with him before you accepted the office of President?  A. No.
Q. So that on December 6th it would be perfectly right for Lindsay to pay you that direct out of his own commissions?  A. Yes, as far as my arrangement with him was concerned.

Q. What did you subscribe for?  A. I subscribed first for $3,000 of stock.
Q. When was that?  A. During that time, I could not tell you when.
Q. During what time?  A. During the time I rang up Mr. Travers and shortly before the bank was organized.
Q. If it appears dated before the 22nd October then that would be wrong—if the Laidlaw suit was got rid of on the 28th October and your subscription appears dated previous to that, it would be wrongly dated would it not?  A. Yes.
Q. You say you subscribed for $3,000 first?  A. Yes.
Q. And did you subscribe for any more later?  A. As distinctly as I remember I subscribed first for $3,000 and then I subscribed for $5,000; that was on the arrangement to be President; and then later on, later than that, I think I subscribed for $10,000.
Q. That would be three separate subscriptions?  A. Yes.
Q. $3,000 would be in accordance with the arrangement with Mr. Travers?  A. Yes.
Q. The $5,000 in accordance with the Lindsay arrangement?  A. Yes.
Q. And then would the $10,000 be in addition, making $18,000 altogether?  A. No, that was more a consolidation as it where.
Q. If that appears on the Government Return sent in on the 21st of November it would have been made before that.

Mr. Dewart: The 27th of November.
MR. HODGINS: Yes, sent in on the 27th of November, it would be before that?
A. I do not know anything about the Government Return sent in on the 27th November.
Q. It appears in the Government Return sent in on the 27th of November, it would have been made before that? A. Yes.
Q. Was the $3,000 subscription made before you telephoned Mr. Travers about Laidlaw? A. No.
Q. You appear to have crowded three subscriptions into a month? A. These various arrangements were going along at the time.
Q. Did you know anything about the Laidlaw suit other than what you saw in the paper? A. Nothing except what I saw in the papers and what Mr. Travers told me.
Q. When he told you that it was over? A. After I saw him.
Q. When it was over? A. I cannot be positive whether it was over or not.
Q. At all events this interview that you had after telephoning him? A. Yes.
Q. When did you see him he explained to you, or did you display any curiosity as to what Laidlaw's suit was about? A. I do not think that I bothered much about it. I had had a little difficulty, Mr. Laidlaw and myself, before, and I was rather pleased, and that was all there was to it.
Q. Rather pleased that it was disposed of? A. No, I did not know anything about its disposition, I was rather pleased that Travers came out on top.
Q. That is what he says, that you telephoned him and rather congratulated him on the way it came out. You having agreed to accept the office of President you subscribed I suppose for the $5,000? A. Yes, that is my recollection.
Q. Previous to that you had subscribed for the $3,000? A. That is my recollection.
Q. And you I suppose took some interest in the concerns of the bank, having agreed to become its President? A. Mr. Travers showed me a letter of recommendation from Mr. Fish who had been General Manager of the Merchants Bank in Montreal, and I accepted largely Mr. Travers—of course I had met him several times and I do not think anybody will deny his social qualities, and I liked him, and his letter from Mr. Fish recommended him very highly, and I accepted any statements he made to me as being from a man qualified to speak, being from a thoroughly honest and reliable man; I knew nothing about banking myself and was busy with other enterprises at the same time, and I cannot say that I paid any very particular attention. I accepted largely what Mr. Travers informed me was the right and proper thing to do in the organization of the bank.
Q. At that time you were President of two other companies? A. Yes.
Q. Which were the two? A. The C. H. Hubbard Company and the Clerk Manufacturing Company in Gravenhurst.
Q. You had been President of both of them? A. Yes.
Q. You knew the duties of a President? A. Well I was acquainted with the duties of President as far as an ordinary company was concerned.
Q. You had actively performed the duties of President in these two companies for years? A. Yes.
Q. In accepting the Presidency of the bank I am asking you if you took any active interest in its organization? A. The organization, you see everything was practically completed before I came in at all.
Q. What was completed? A. I understood that they had at the time I accepted the Presidency, I understood they had their money ready to deposit with Ottawa, they had the necessary number of stock subscriptions, and that they were ready in every way to meet the requirements of the law.
Q. You understood they had their money ready to deposit? A. Yes.
Q. Did you understand it was deposited? A. I could not be positive just now, I understood the Government required them to have $250,000 and that they had the $250,000 and everything was ready and proper in connection with it that was necessary to be done.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Did you understand that Laidlaw’s action attacked the bona fides of the raising of that $250,000? A. No.
Q. Did not they tell you so? A. No.
Q. Did you know anything about the raising of the $250,000? A. I understood it was paid in by the subscribers to the stock.
Q. Did you make any inquiry? A. I inquired from Mr. Travers, and he told me this money had been paid by the subscribers to the stock; everything was perfectly legitimate and right.
Q. He told you it had been paid in by the subscribers to the stock; did he tell you the way in which that had been done? A. No, I did not question the way it would be done; there was one normal way it appeared to me to be done.
Q. What was that? A. For the subscribers to send in their cheques.
Q. Did you examine the bank book to see? A. No.
Q. Did you ask to see the stock list? A. No.
Q. What did you do after accepting the Presidency and down to the time of the meeting which was held at which you were formally elected, what did you do to find out how things stood? A. I did not do anything to find out how things stood, except here was the statement shown to me by Mr. Travers. Mr. Travers told me “I have so much money”, and he says, “Here are my list of subscribers”—he had a long list of subscribers; I did not go through that list to verify each one; I think he had about 650 subscribers, there were several hundred, it was a large number I remember; and showed me that was his list of subscribers and that he had this money.
Q. That is he went that far in demonstrating his good faith, he produced a list of subscribers? A. Yes.
Q. Was your name on it? A. I cannot say whether my name was on it or not or how that would be; this was the list of subscribers he showed me—the only list I remember was the list he showed me before I had actually completed my arrangements to become president, what he showed me was prior to my subscription as I remember now.
Q. Your subscription for how much? A. I think it was prior to any subscription I made.
Q. Prior to the $3,000 subscription? A. I think so.
Q. Naturally you would not expect to see your name on the list? A. No. I only actually agreed—I think at the final arrangement when I agreed to become president it was only a few days before the bank was organized.
Q. What do you speak of as the organization of the bank, that meeting? A. Yes.
Q. That meeting at which you were elected a director? A. Yes.
Q. You thought that was only done a few days before? A. A very few days before.
Q. Your $10,000 subscription then would follow that; would that be before the organization meeting? A. Yes, that would be before the organization meeting.
Q. Would $5,000 be before the organization meeting? A. Yes.
Q. And the $3,000? A. Yes.
Q. Would that be in that few days or would not the $3,000 be considerably earlier? A. The $3,000 would be a little earlier than that. As near as I can remember now, once I arranged, agreed with Mr. Travers to become President, that the succeeding events transpired very rapidly.
Q. You would be wrong in saying that that list which he showed you would not contain your name on it for $3,000 if you had subscribed that before you agreed to become President, it ought to have been there, should it not? A. No, that would not follow.
Q. Travers puts your acceptance of the Presidency as the middle of November? A. I cannot just say when it was myself.
Q. And he says you gave your signature so that it could be forwarded to Ottawa where they were getting the bills printed?  A. Yes.

Q. You knew, of course, enough about banking to know that immediately the certificate was granted, if you had paid up capital you could issue the circulation?  A. Yes.

Q. So that this signature of yours would be necessary some time in advance of that?  A. Yes.

Q. Does that assist you at all in the date at which you made these arrangements?  A. I remember that Mr. Travers was in difficulty about the signature of his bills, I remember that discussion that he had to have the signature go down to Ottawa by a certain date in order to have the bills printed in time for him to do business and I think he told me he had arranged with Colonel Munro to be President, and that Colonel Munro was to wire him by a certain time and if he did not wire him by that time that he could not get his bills signed and be ready; I think that was about the time I agreed to become President.

Q. Would that be about the middle of November?  A. I cannot tell you that. Colonel Munro wired; the day I signed the bills, Colonel Munro wired, we got a wire in the afternoon saying he would be down at night with Mr. Travers to the Rossin House. I went down with Mr. Travers to the Rossin House that evening and met Colonel Munro and we explained the situation to Colonel Munro, and Mr. Travers explained about the necessity of having the signature in time and being disappointed because he did not hear from him, and then I explained to Colonel Munro that I had accepted the Presidency in the meantime to help them out and that I was not particularly anxious for the Presidency, but if he would take the Vice-Presidency of the Bank at the end of the year I would retire from the Presidency and he could be elected President. Then after some conversation it was arranged there that he would take the Vice-Presidency, and at the end of the year I retired and he was elected President.

Q. What did Travers say about the Trusts & Guarantee Company?

Mr. Dewart: I did not know my learned friend intended to go into that. Dr. Nesbitt is under several charges in the police court, and that particular Trusts & Guarantee Company deposit or questions that arise out of it form the crux of the charges against him in the Police Court. I do not want to claim privilege, but I thought perhaps my learned friend would think it would not be fair to go into matters that raise the subject of a charge against Dr. Nesbitt elsewhere.

Mr. Hodgins: I do not see any reason why Dr. Nesbitt should not answer?

A. I have no objection to answering.

Mr. Dewart: Except the suggestion of being fair to a man that is under charge elsewhere I have no objection to answering that question as regards anything that occurred after the organization or anything that occurred after the organization meeting. Mr. Travers stated he had told me about the loan from the Trusts & Guarantee Company the day previous to the organization. Mr. Travers' memory must be at fault, because if Mr. Travers had told me that a part of the $250,000 that he had to get his certificate had come by way of a loan from the Hon. J. R. Stratton and the Trusts & Guarantee Company, a man whom I had been politically opposed to all my life, very bitterly opposed in the Gamey case, I would not have any connection with the bank. I am quite positive he never told me a word about it before.

Q. Did you inquire where the money came from?  A. I understood the money came from the subscribers in regular and legitimate way.

Q. Did you make any inquiry?  A. I asked if the money came from the subscribers in a legitimate way and was told it did.

Q. You may have been told that he got a loan on subscribers notes?  A. I was not told anything about getting a loan.

Q. What is that?  A. I was told nothing about getting a loan.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Quite sure of that?  A. Yes.
Q. You say that he said he told you that the day before the organization meeting, is that what he said?  A. I said he made that statement in the Police Court the other day.
Q. The day before?  A. Yes, sir.
Q. Were you at the organization meeting?  A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember a report being presented that the Provisional Directors' expenses were over $40,000?  A. I cannot remember what was presented there now, whatever appeared in the minutes is what was done.
Q. Did you make any inquiries as to where that money came from, how they raised the money to spend that amount?  A. No, I did not make any inquiry about that; any company I had ever been connected with we always had expenses of organization.
Q. Did you inquire from Travers anything about the subscribed capital?
   A. I just took Travers' statement for the subscribed capital.
Q. You are a business man?  A. Well, some of the papers say not.
Q. What do you say; there is an opportunity to correct that now?  A. I am not looking for opportunities.
Q. You were not practising your profession, you were engaged in business at this time?  A. I was engaged in business at that time.
Q. You had had to make use in your companies of banking facilities?  A. Yes.
Q. Did you make any inquiries as to how much capital Travers had got subscribed for this new bank before you went into it?  A. Certainly I asked him how much he had subscribed.
Q. What did he tell you?  A. I cannot remember now.
Q. Half a million?  A. It was over half a million.
Q. Did you interest yourself to see how the half million was made up?
   A. I cannot say I went into details.
   A. Did you make any inquiry into the details to see if they were bona fide subscriptions?  A. I looked over the list and it appeared to be a bona fide list.
Q. If you had seen W. J. Lindsay down for $50,000 what would you have thought?  A. I do not remember seeing W. J. Lindsay down for that.
Q. If you had, what would you have thought?  A. I would have asked for an explanation.
Q. Did you make a perusal of the list?  A. Yes—
Q. For the purpose of finding out things were bona fide?  A. Of the list that he showed me, as I say, before I arranged to become a director.
Q. Did the list contain any statement as to the amount paid up on each share?  A. I cannot remember now what it contained.
Q. You paid nothing of yours?  A. I had not subscribed at that time.
Q. Did you make any inquiry as to whether the notes had been given by any of the subscribers?  A. No.
Q. Then did you go into the Bank Presidency blindfold?  A. When you have a man that you suppose is thoroughly competent to handle bank affairs and have the highest recommendations of him, and do business, you know nothing about yourself you have to go into it blindfold to a certain extent.
Q. You had a reputation at that time to take care of?  A. Pretty hard to say so by the papers.
Q. Was it not of importance to you if you were connected with the bank, that the bank should be successful?  A. Very important.
Q. And have you told me all the precautions you took to find out?  A. I took all the precautions I thought were necessary, trusting Mr. Travers.
Q. Have you told me all the precautions you took to find out the bona fides of the subscriptions and whether the capital was sufficient to carry on the bank?  A. When Mr. Travers showed me the list of subscriptions, I looked over them to assure me they were bona fide subscriptions, and the thing that struck us particularly about the list was that they were for small amounts and distributed over a large number of shareholders, and it seemed to me, as he pointed out to me, the fact that they had got their stock so widely and well distributed would tend to bring business to the bank, and he had a deposit, I do not remember how he showed me the $250,000, but I know I was absolutely satisfied he had $250,000 of cash and—

Q. I was going to ask you if he showed you the bank book? A. I cannot remember whether he showed me a letter or what, but at the time I was satisfied he had.

Q. What do you mean by a letter? A. For instance, I might go to a banker and get a letter that I had so much money to my credit there, and I cannot just say how he showed me, but he satisfied me that he had $250,000 in cash.

Q. Did he satisfy you by the production of the bank book and are you able to say in the bank book, which would be an independent source? A. I cannot tell you how it was I was satisfied at the time.

Q. You told me the precautions you took to satisfy yourself? A. I have given you to the best of my recollection all the occurrences of several years ago.

Q. This would all occur within a few days prior to the organization meeting? A. It would be somewhere about there.

Q. You, I suppose, must realize that when you subscribed for the stock, the $5,000 and the $10,000, you were not treating the other shareholders fairly if you did not pay up your share? A. Well, my share was arranged to be paid for and the stock did not have to be paid for at the time it was subscribed; there was only a percentage to be paid for at the time.

Q. If he had all this stock subscribed, what was the object of your subscribing two or three days before the organization meeting to the extent of $10,000? A. We had arranged $5,000 first, you see, and then Mr. Travers considered that it would appear better for the president to hold $10,000 worth of stock.

Q. Had you any arrangement as to qualification on that? A. Well, as regards that I was to pay for the extra $5,000 myself.

Q. You had arranged to finance that? A. I had not arranged to finance that at that time.

Q. You would arrange to finance that? A. Yes.

Q. You were willing to take the extra $5,000 at that time? A. Yes, and pay for it myself.

Q. Travers says he told you about borrowing the money and in your talk you thought the president ought to have $10,000 stock instead of $3,000, the suggestion came from you? A. Well, of course—

Q. Is he right? A. He is not right in that respect. The suggestion came from Mr. Travers to my having $10,000.

Q. That you should have $10,000? A. Yes.

Q. Did not that make you suspicious that he had not quite got his list complete? A. Oh, no; there was no reason for that at all. As Mr. Travers put it to me, it was perfectly fair and I had the utmost confidence in Mr. Travers. I think anybody that would associate with him at that time would have. I know I met Mr. Fish personally afterwards, and Mr. Fish gave me the very highest testimonial of Mr. Travers as to his probity and in every way he could not speak more highly of Mr. Travers.

Q. After the organization meeting you knew a certificate was being applied for? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew it was got? A. Yes.

Q. And almost immediately after that you got this $5,000 from Lindsay? A. Yes.

Q. Did you take it out of his commissions? A. Yes.
Q. Did you know what he got his commissions out of? A. He got his commissions from the sale of stock.
Q. Out of the capital stock of the bank that had been put up to the Government? A. Not that I knew of.
Q. You knew that $250,000 had been paid up, as you stated? A. Yes.
Q. You knew when the certificate was granted it would come back? A. Come back to the bank.
Q. You knew the bank had not begun business? A. No.
Q. Out of what could it come except the capital stock that was paid up? A. I do not think I considered how it came. They were of course receiving moneys all the time from subscribers.
Q. That would be capital stock, would it not? A. That would be capital stock.
Q. What was the private arrangement referred to in this letter you had with Lindsay? A. That was simply the arrangement that the $5,000 of my stock, the $5,000 that I took, he would give me $5,000 out of his commissions with which I should pay for the stock.
Q. Why was it drawn out in these bills and brought in and passed to you or to Travers, whichever you like, in money instead of a cheque being given so that it would be clear what the transaction was? A. I cannot say just why it was done in that way.
Q. It is a large amount for Saturday afternoon is it not? A. I do not know just what day it was.
Q. Lindsay said it was Saturday? A. I do not know, I do not remember.
Q. Can you account at all for his bringing it in bank bills? A. I do not know as there is any way of accounting for it; it was done in that way.
Q. What did you do with it when you got it? A. My recollection is that I deposited it.
Q. Then what became of it there? A. Then I gave a cheque on the Crown Bank.
Q. To whom? A. The cheque was to—I cannot remember; I tried to find the cheque and I cannot find it, I have not been able to find it; my stuff was all jumbled up and there is the difficulty, I do not know just who the cheque was made out to; I remember when I brought the cheque in to pay for the stock that Mr. C. A. Brown, Bradstreet's solicitor, was sitting with Mr. Travers talking to Mr. Travers, and I think I remarked to him that that was a cheque on my stock.
Q. Mr. whom? A. Mr. Brown; or Mr. Travers remarked to him, I have forgotten just how it was, as near as I can remember.
Q. Is that what you did with it? A. That is as near as I can remember what I did with it.
Q. What became of it after that when you handed Travers the cheque? A. The cheque went into the Farmers Bank in payment of my stock.
Q. Payable to him? A. I do not remember whether the cheque was payable to him or to the bank; whatever was the right way to make it out at the time would be the way it was made out. The cheque was in payment for my stock, and whatever was the correct way to make it out at the time, whatever was suggested to me as being correct—

MR. DEWART: I see the sixth would be on Thursday.
MR. COMMISSIONER: We have that date explained that it was not a Saturday.
MR. HODGINS: My question should have been it was unusual I suppose on any day even if it was not Saturday? A. Well.
Q. What is the object of going through that form of paying you the money and taking it to your bank and giving a cheque to Travers? A. I cannot say whether I gave a cheque to Travers or gave it to the bank.
Q. You handed it to Travers? A. Yes.
Q. Have you looked for the cheque? A. Yes.
Q. And does your Crown Bank account on that date show the payment of $5,000 shortly after that date? A. About that date.
Q. Was that the only payment you ever made on the stock? A. On the $10,000?
Q. Yes? A. No, there was another payment made.
Q. On what? A. Another payment of $5,000.
Q. Later on? A. Yes.
Q. In the first place, we will come to that later on, did you ever secure the cancellation of the three subscriptions you made? A. I cannot remember now just what happened to the previous subscriptions, as I say it was all done in a short time.
Q. You never paid anything on the $3,000? A. Mr. Travers was to arrange the payment of the $3,000.
Q. You never paid anything on that? A. No.
Q. You never paid anything on the $5,000? A. Well, the $5,000 was paid.
Q. In what way? A. In this way that I tell you; I think I made a payment somewhere, I cannot find the records now, and I certainly cannot remember the details just accurately how things occurred then.
Q. This $5,000 from Lindsay was paid up on the $10,000 subscription you say? A. It was paid on the—as I understood the thing that Mr. Travers was first taking care of the $3,000 subscription that I subscribed with him originally for as a director, and that he was going to take care of that.
Q. That is that he was going to pay it up? A. Yes, and I was to pay him back.
Q. And Lindsay was to have taken care of the $5,000? A. Yes.
Q. Was this $5,000 paid applied on it or on the $10,000? A. I could not say anything about how it was applied or what the bookkeeping was.
Q. How did you intend it to be applied? A. I intended it to be applied as payment on the $5,000.
Q. Was there ever any payment on the $10,000? A. Of course that would apply to the $10,000 as the $5,000 that I paid went on my subscriptions; the subscriptions were changed.
Q. By whom? A. I made a subscription first for $3,000 and then for $5,000, and then it was consolidated at $10,000; I cannot say that the $5,000 was payable on this $5,000 subscription, because at the time it was paid there was a subscription for $10,000, but the $5,000 was in connection with the $5,000 subscription that I had originally arranged; that was how I came to get that. how I had that amount in my mind.
Q. Did you get a receipt for the amount that you paid on this stock from the bank or from Travers? A. I got a stock receipt.
Q. Showing what, payment up of $5,000? A. I cannot tell you now what it was.
Q. You became aware I suppose that returns would have to be made at the end of the year, did not you, according to the Bank Act? A. Yes.
Q. They would start to prepare that shortly after the 6th December would not they? A. I do not know when they would start to prepare it.
Q. Did not you know? A. I saw nothing of the return until it was presented to me for signature.
Q. Is that the return up to the 31st of December.
Mr. Dewart: That is the subject of a distinct charge and I must urge that my learned friend in fairness should not go into that when the Doctor has to stand his trial upon it in the Fall. I had thought that was the position he intended to take.
Mr. Hodgins: I may say frankly I cannot undertake to limit Dr. Nesbitt's examination because he happens to be under a charge; if he is to be any use to the inquiry at all I suppose he has to answer the questions asked.

Mr. Dewart: The matters regarding which he is charged are quite specific in their character; they relate as my learned friend well knows, to the monthly bank returns made on the 31st December, 1906, and the return made at the end of January and February, 1907, and also there is the fourth charge relating to what has been termed a special return in May. With reference to the circumstances relating to these, which my learned friend is now going into, when Dr. Nesbitt has been committed for trial and has to stand his trial upon those charges in the Fall, I do submit it would be manifestly unfair to ask the Doctor now to make a statement with reference to those matters, and I ask your Lordship to rule that so far as this Inquiry is concerned my learned friend should not deal with those matters.

Mr. Commissioner: I cannot rule that; the inquiry is entirely open. It is for Mr. Hodgins to say. I do not myself see how they are very relevant to this inquiry. I am not trying anybody for making false returns. My duty is specific.

Mr. Dewart: I had conceived that the question of whether Dr. Nesbitt did or did not knowingly and wilfully make false returns did not particularly concern this inquiry. What was done at the time of the organization I can well understand is the general subject of inquiry; but the question as to whether a certain return made was to his knowledge false or not, I do say, and I ask my learned friend in all fairness under the circumstances in which Dr. Nesbitt is placed, that he should not go into that branch.

Mr. Hodgins: It places me in rather a farcical position that the inquiry should be closed without Dr. Nesbitt's evidence.

Mr. Commissioner: How does this inquiry as to whether he knew the return was false, or whether he did not become relevant to my inquiry as to the circumstances attending the issue of the certificate and the causes of the failure of the bank?

Mr. Hodgins: I am not desirous of pressing it if you, Mr. Commissioner, think it is not necessary for your inquiry.

Mr. Commissioner: I would like to hear how you think it is relevant.

Mr. Hodgins: I should have thought, and I do think that the actions of Dr. Nesbitt, Travers and others in connection with the obtaining of the certificate is a matter to be inquired into.

Mr. Commissioner: Undoubtedly, nobody has suggested anything to the contrary.

Mr. Hodgins: Then my learned friend's objection is premature.

Mr. Dewart: No, because you asked with reference to the return on the 31st December.

Mr. Commissioner: That is subsequent to the certificate.

Mr. Hodgins: Yes; I had not asked him anything about the details of that.

Mr. Dewart: The reporter has the question on the notes.

Mr. Hodgins: However, if you think it should be limited to the question regarding the certificate, that will suit my purpose altogether.

Mr. Commissioner: I would like to hear some suggestion from you as to how it tends to show how the bank came to grief, the causes of failure—has that anything to do with it at all?

Mr. Hodgins: The Commission as I recall it, reads that inquiry is to be made into the circumstances of the granting of the certificate.

Mr. Commissioner: Do not let us get mixed; the granting of the certificate is wide open, and then after you pass that it is the question of the relevant facts, bearing upon the causes of the failure of the bank.

Mr. Hodgins: I had not asked that granting of the certificate; my question was entirely germane to that, and was intended to be so, and if it appears to be dealing with the later return then we may get over this difficulty without further discussion by my putting the question in such form as it will not be objectionable to my learned friend, but I do not at all concede his right to object to the inquiry embracing the whole matter. Perhaps Mr. Nield would read the last few questions. (The four questions immediately preceding Mr. Dewart's objection were read).

Mr. Pope: My purpose of asking that question with regard to the return was to elicit the information as to whether prior to the making of that return you had directed your attention at all to the details which would have to be included in it? A. No, I had not.

Q. Before the certificate was issued at all, were you aware that Travers was making application for it? A. After the organization meeting, I knew that Mr. Travers was going down to Ottawa for the purpose of making application for the certificate.

Q. The organization meeting directed an application to be made, did not it, by Travers? A. I cannot remember; what was agreed is in the minutes.

Q. You were of course as much interested as anybody? A. I was certainly desirous of getting the certificate for the bank.

Q. Were you in and out of the bank after the organization and up to the time Travers left for Ottawa? A. I cannot say now.

Q. Do you know Fitzgibbon? A. I know Fitzgibbon, yes.

Q. Did you remember when he was employed? A. No.

Q. When you came in contact with him? A. The first I met Fitzgibbon, I think as near as I can remember, Mr. Travers introduced him the morning we had the meeting for the organization of the bank.

Q. You remember a letter from the Department before the certificate was granted dealing with the information they wanted? A. I do not remember it.

Q. Do you remember the Department before you went down asking for details with regard to the amount of cash paid up by the subscribers? A. No.

Q. There is the letter, November 21st, that would be a few days before the organization meeting, addressed to Travers, asking if Travers would be so good as to have added to the list, that is the list of bona fide subscribers, a statement showing the actual amount of cash paid up by each subscriber; did that letter come to your attention? A. No.

Q. Sure? A. I do not remember anything of that, at all; I think it would appeal reasonably to anybody that at that time nothing of a disturbing nature would be brought to my attention.

Q. This was a matter you had inquired into? A. I know nothing about that. From the character of the letter there was apparently some extra information wanted; I should not imagine at that time I would hear anything about it and I do not remember hearing about that.

Q. Is that as far as you can go? A. That is as far as I can go now.

Q. Taking the 21st November, that was five days before the organization meeting, would your subscription for the $10,000 have been made then? A. I could not tell you now.

Q. You said it all came in a rush in the last few days? A. I cannot tell you positively.

Q. Travers had suggested to you that they were a bit short and needed additional subscriptions? A. You say so; I do not remember anything of that kind.

Q. You say you did not hear of this letter November 21st? A. No, I do not remember anything of it.

Q. Travers did not ever mention it to you or show it to you? A. I do not remember anything of it.

Q. Were you aware that Hunter was consulted before Travers left for Ottawa to get the certificate? A. I do not remember anything of that; as near as I can remember now, the organization meeting was over, it lasted some time, and when we got through the election of directors, just a few minutes after that I left the bank and I cannot remember now what occurred after that. It is a human impossibility for anybody to remember these details at this late date. Any man that says he remembers accurately is stating a falsehood.

Q. Evidently this letter had been received about the 21st or 22nd November, which would be several days before the meeting, and according to Travers’ story he and Fitzgibbon and you and I think it was Hunter took up the business of getting the list ready? A. I had nothing to do with getting the list ready; I did not have to sign any statement in regard to it; there was no duty I had to perform in connection with it.

Q. Will you say you were not aware that the list was being prepared for the purpose of getting the certificate? A. It is an impossibility for me to tell what was being done, or that anything was being done about business in connection with the bank; I was not acquainted with it at all, and there might be things being done that would not impress themselves upon me as being for any particular purpose or anything. I know I had nothing to sign nor nothing to do in connection with the first returns that were sent to Ottawa.

Q. I am not speaking of the returns, I am speaking of this subscribers’ list? A. That was in connection with the organization meeting.

Q. That was in connection with the application for the certificate? A. I do not know what—

Q. I am putting this to you; here is a letter from the Department, saying that in addition to the list of the bona fide subscribers— A. I do not know anything about that.

Q. Just let me ask my question; here is the letter which comes to Travers asking for the amounts paid up in addition to the list of subscribers; that arrived three or four days before the organization meeting; were you aware that that list was being prepared for the purpose of getting the certificate, whether you knew the details or not? A. I cannot say I saw it.

Q. Travers says you were, can you contradict him? A. Travers says what?

Q. That you knew about the preparation of the list? A. I did not know about the preparation of the list.

Q. You did not know it was being prepared? A. I did not know—I understood there was a list of subscribers that would go down to Ottawa, that was part of the organization; when he would apply for the certificate they would send in their list of subscribers.

Q. How did you know that? A. I think that is stated in the Bank Act.

Q. Had you read that up? A. I had read the Bank Act.

Q. You read it up? A. I cannot say I read it all, but I glanced at it.

Q. You knew a list had to go in of the bona fide subscribers? A. There was a list of the subscribers had to go in.

Q. You would naturally know if they were preparing it two or three days before? A. No, I had nothing to do with it.

Q. If you were taking any interest at all in the bank you would know it was being prepared? A. I did not know what they were doing; I had no active connection, knew nothing about the business affairs of the bank, had nothing to do with the business affairs of the bank until after the organization meeting; I had no right to know.

Q. You knew anyway the list would have to go down to Ottawa of the subscribers? A. I knew generally there was a list of subscribers would have to go to Ottawa.

Q. You knew you had subscribed? A. Yes.

Q. Did you make any inquiry as to whether your subscription was being put in that list or not? A. I did not.

Q. Did you see any list before they left for Ottawa? A. I cannot say I did.

Q. Were you consulted as to the preparation of any list? A. I was not.
Q. Were you ever at a meeting where Travers, Hunter and Fitzgibbon were together in the bank discussing a list before the issue of the certificate? A. I do not remember being at a meeting where Travers, Hunter and Fitzgibbon were together at the bank discussing this list before it was sent in.

Q. Were you at a meeting in which any two of those were present discussing the list? A. I cannot say I remember anything of it.

Q. Did you discuss the list with Travers? A. I am positive I did not discuss the list with Mr. Travers.

Q. Did you discuss it with Hunter? A. I did not discuss it with Hunter.

Q. Did you discuss it with Fitzgibbon? A. I did not discuss it with Fitzgibbon.

Q. Were you present in the room when Hunter came in and explained to Fitzgibbon how the list was being made up with regard to cash payments? A. I cannot remember being in the room under the circumstances you describe.

Q. Hunter’s explanation is that he told Fitzgibbon that if Travers borrowed upon notes, borrowed personally, and chose to pay up on any of the subscription he could do so; did you hear that explanation given? A. No, I did not.

Q. You remember Travers going I suppose to Ottawa to get the certificate? A. I remember him going down to Ottawa to get the certificate.

Q. Do you remember being in the office of the bank the following day? A. I do not remember being there, but it is possible I was there the following day, reasonably possible I would be there.

Q. Fitzgibbon wrote a letter to Travers dated the 29th of November; perhaps you will look at the letter and I will ask you about the postscript to it. (Handing letter Exhibit 55 to Dr. Nesbitt). Did Fitzgibbon give you the gist of Hunter’s report as indicated in this letter? A. I do not know what Mr. Fitzgibbon gave me; I inquired from Mr. Fitzgibbon how they were getting along and Mr. Hunter said they were getting along all right, and everything was in good shape; that is all I know about it.

Q. Fitzgibbon says Hunter went over all the applications and “informed me that they are in first class shape, and he would have no hesitation in exhibiting them if called for”. The postscript is, “Dr. Nesbitt has just called to inquire how things were going, and I have given him the gist of Mr. Hunter’s report this morning”? A. That would be simply that everything was in first class shape; there were no particulars given to me that I can remember of.

Q. No particulars that Hunter had gone over the applications and they were all in first class shape? A. No, that would not be necessary.

Q. That things were going in first class shape? A. That things were going all right.

Q. Did you take an interest in the bank affairs after the organization meeting? A. Well, what a President ordinarily takes.

Q. That is from your point of view? A. I think my point of view is the same as the rest of them; you do not bother anything about the details; you take your General Manager’s presentation of the facts to you, you accept them as facts. I cannot conceive of how a President can go into the affairs of the bank at all, and if you have a General Manager you either have to trust him or do not trust him.

Q. That is a general question; Travers made a very long declaration in this matter on the 27th November, that is the day following the organization meeting; were you consulted at all about that? A. Not that I remember of.

Q. And he left that night for Ottawa; had you no conversation immediately prior to or subsequent to the organization meeting about the matters he laid before the Government to get the certificate? A. There was no particular detailed conversation; it did not seem to me there was any necessary. Mr. Travers told me he had everything in good banking shape to get the certificate, and was going down to get it, and that it all there was.
Q. It appears to have disturbed him considerably, this request from the Government on the 21st November, and caused a considerable amount of trouble in making the list to fit what he thought would be satisfactory to the Government. In your position you knew nothing about that, and were not told about it? A. I knew nothing about it.

Q. And never saw any evidences in the bank that there was something brewing? A. Nothing that I could recognize as wrong.

Q. The question I intended to ask, I may as well ask it, you need not answer it in the meantime, we will see how far it is relevant or not; the question I want to ask you is, having regard to the bank that a return had to be made on the 31st December, and the details of it necessarily comprised a good deal that went down in that statement, my question would be whether you investigated then what had gone down to the Government in November.

Mr. Dewert: Does your Lordship think that should be answered?

Mr. Commissioner: He can ask if he investigated then; I do not know that it is very important. A great many of the questions are not important in my view, but he can ask it.

Mr. Hodgins: Well, Dr. Nesbitt? A. As the Government had issued the certificate I considered that everything was in proper shape. I took the fact that the Government had issued the certificate, that they knew more about banking business, what was required for the certificate than I did; I took the fact that they issued the certificate as a guarantee that all our affairs were in perfect shape and perfect order and I took Mr. Travers’ statement as a man I trusted as general manager, had respect and confidence in, and when he presented his statements to me I accepted them as he presented them to me; I asked him if those statements were correct and he said yes.

The Commission adjourned at 1 P.M. to 2 P.M.

The Commission resumed at 2 P.M., June 27th, 1912.

Mr. Hodgins: Dr. Nesbitt has not arrived yet and Mr. Calvert is here, and if you have no objection I will take his evidence.

Mr. Commissioner: Very well.

WILLIAM S. CALVERT, Recalled—

Mr. Hodgins: You communicated with me through Duncan Ross and said you desired to make a statement? A. Yes. What I wanted to make a statement in regard to was an article that appeared in one of the Toronto papers in reference to a $3,000 cheque that apparently has not been fully described or accounted for, and this is the article that appeared and I felt it was my duty on behalf of myself and others to come before your Lordship and explain my position so far as as this is concerned. The article reads as follows: “Some person or persons at Ottawa received at least $3,000 for assisting to pave the way for the granting of the certificate to the Farmers Bank. This was interjected by W. R. Travers during the course of a dialogue yesterday afternoon at the Farmers Bank Inquiry when the former manager was squeezed into a very tight corner by Frank Hodgins, K.C., and before he could extricate himself some surprising admissions had been made in reference to the three”—I presume it is blank cheques, it says “Bank cheques” which were sent to Ottawa by solicitor Hunter. Travers refused absolutely to tell who got the money, said he would sooner return to jail for twice his time. The World understands that the money was paid to a prominent politician, formerly a merchant, who is not now a Member of the House of Commons”, and then it went on: “Now when you were down in Ottawa you had three interviews with the Finance Minister”, began Mr. Hodgins, “You have only told us of one. You were introduced by Mr. Calvert, were you not? A. Yes. Travers said he did not know Calvert personally; he had a letter from Mr. Urquhart to him. Mr. Urquhart said that Calvert was very influential.” That is an extract from the Toronto World, dated May 16th, 1912; and in consequence of that article, your Lordship, some people, on account of my having introduced Mr. Travers to the Finance Minister, seem to think that that refers to myself. Now, I wish, Mr. Commissioner, to say that I know nothing whatever. I never received a cheque from Mr. Travers or from the Farmers Bank other than the money I borrowed as I stated to you some time ago, which was fully paid with interest. As far as this cheque is concerned I never received it either on behalf of myself or any person else, or any other cheque. I think that is about all I wish to say in regard to the matter, simply to clear myself in the matter, so that if any person outside might say anything further in regard to the matter I want to have it distinctly understood that I had nothing to do with it.

Mr. Hodgins: When I examined you before in Ottawa, you told me that you did not know Travers at all until you met him in the Russell House, when he had a letter of introduction from Mr. Thomas Urquhart? A. That is when I first met Mr. Travers.

Q. Is that strictly accurate? A. Yes, so far as my knowledge goes; I never remember of meeting Mr. Travers before.

Q. But you had corresponded with him? A. Not to my knowledge. I see by Mr. Travers’ evidence that appeared in the press that he said he had correspondence with me; I have no recollection of any correspondence. If it was brought to my attention I suppose I would remember it. I have no recollection of any correspondence previous to this time.

Q. Will you look at that letter of yours and tell me what year that refers to?

A. That was after the charter was granted.

Q. When was it? A. I presume that would be possibly just when the bills would be issued; it would be 1906 when the charter was granted.

Q. The charter granted? A. Or the certificate issued.

Q. That is dated in June, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. That would be before or after the certificate was granted? A. I do not recollect exactly the date when the certificate was issued.

Q. In November, 1906? A. Well, then, this must have been the following year after the certificate was issued.

Q. You, however, had been asked to be a director during 1906, and had been interesting yourself in regard to getting shares taken up? A. No, not at all.

Q. Do you know Mr. Arthur F. Leggett, of Ottawa? A. I know one Mr. Leggett, and I presume his name is Arthur, I am not sure.

Q. Look at this letter and see what he says, and tell me if he is right? A. Well, Mr. Leggett could write that to Mr. Travers as far as that is concerned, but I had nothing to do with the bank or the shares of the bank. I was asked, as I stated before by Mr. Lindsay over the telephone, if I would become a director. I told Mr. Lindsay I had no money to invest in the Farmers Bank stock. It was placed on, my name was put on, and I afterwards either by wire or letter, I have forgotten which, advised the manager to have my name taken off.

Q. Mr. Leggett’s statement is “I have met Mr. Calvert one of your directors, and wish to have a talk with him regarding the matter”? A. Yes, that may be; he may have met me.

Q. He met you and how could he describe you as a director? A. What date is that letter?
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. The 29th March, 1906? A. The certificate was not issued until November, 1906; I have no recollection of anything, I knew nothing about it; I took no interest in it whatever, except I introduced the Bill in the House for renewal at the request of Mr. Urquhart. As Mr. Fielding has stated they asked for a year, and we gave them six months at the request of the Finance Minister. Before the six months was up I presume Mr. Travers came down with a letter of introduction from Mr. Urquhart to me.

Q. I am speaking of this particular letter? A. I had nothing to do with the Farmers Bank with selling stock or anything of the kind. Mr. Lindsay may have spoken to me about it, no doubt he did, as he spoke to many people.

Q. Did you see anybody down there in connection with the sale of shares? A. I saw no one I have any recollection of.

Q. Did you describe yourself to Mr. Leggatt as a director or prospective director? A. I did not.

Q. Did you discuss with him the sale of stock? A. I have no recollection of ever speaking to Mr. Leggatt about it at all; he may have spoken to me; I know nothing of it.

Q. Would that telegram come from you and what did it relate to? A. Probably Mr. Lindsay asked me to speak to some person in his behalf or something of that kind, as many a man did ask me to do certain things.

Q. About what? A. It may have been in regard to the Farmers Bank, I do not know.

Q. The date of that is what? A. March, 1906.

Q. This letter of Leggatt's is a few days after that? A. Yes.

Q. Would I be wrong in drawing the conclusion that you interested yourself at Lindsay's request for the purpose of getting the stock taken up? A. I cannot recollect of doing anything in connection with stock; he may have asked me to speak to some person, but if I did, there was nothing wrong about it.

EXHIBIT 85: Telegram March 17th, 1906, from W. S. Calvert to W. J. Lindsay.

Q. Speaking again about this letter dated the 27th June, which has no year mark on it, Mr. Travers says that is 1906? A. Why would they issue bills, because before they got a certificate they would have to have them printed and issued; they have the right to issue them as soon as the certificate was granted and they would get them engraved and prepared beforehand? A. Possibly.

Q. Do you still say now, do you leave it that way, that this letter is the year after, that is 1907? A. I do not recollect whether it is 1907 or 1906, but I would presume that before bills would be issued the certificate certainly would have to be issued by the Government before they can do business.

EXHIBIT 86: Letter dated June 27th, from W. S. Calvert to W. R. Travers.

Q. Is it the case you did not meet Mr. Travers personally? A. I have not the slightest recollection of meeting Mr. Travers until he brought that letter to me; if I did it was in the most casual way; there would be no remembrance whatever, and if I did there would be no reason for bringing a letter.

Q. Were you quite correct in your former evidence that you had no money dealings with Travers until three years afterwards? A. I had no money dealings with Mr. Travers until three years afterwards.

Q. We have a document here and some correspondence about which Travers was examined regarding a guarantee that you had given? A. That was not for myself.

Q. It arose early in 1907, and you gave a guarantee to the Farmers Bank? A. Yes.

Q. You did not mention that when I asked you if you had any money dealings with Travers afterwards and you said about three years afterwards? A. It was three years afterwards that I had any money dealings direct with the bank myself; I had forgotten in regard to that until I saw Mr. Travers' statement and I could not remember anything about it and it was said to be about the Rabbit Mountain, and I immediately wrote to Mr. Snider, and I have his letter here in which he states: "Your favour of the 20th received."

Q. Who is Mr. Snider? A. William Snider of Waterloo; it referred in the paper to William Snider having paid a note that I had guaranteed; that appeared in the London Free Press, and I had no recollection of that at all; so I wrote to Mr. Snider, and Mr. Snider said, "The note he refers to as having been paid by me was signed by two others and myself. Your name was not on, and I cannot remember that you and I ever had any business transaction whatever with the Farmers Bank."

Q. The guarantee was given in the beginning of the 1907 by you to the bank? A. For whom?
Q. I do not know who it was for; Hamilton was connected with it? A. My impression is that was in connection with the Canadian Oil Company.
Q. I do not care what it was in connection with: I am only speaking what Mr. Travers said; he said you gave the bank that guarantee and they advanced the money to Bull and Hamilton? A. I had forgotten entirely about that, because I had no money transactions myself, and I presume that that was in connection with the Canadian Oil Company, as I was President of the Company.
Q. You recollect it now? A. I think that is likely correct enough, but that was a purely business transaction, and the money was paid back.
Q. Did you introduce the matter to the bank? A. My recollection is now I went into the bank with the manager of the Canadian Oil Company, and I fancy that I guaranteed to a certain extent, and the money was all paid back with interest.
Q. That went on for two or three years with interest? A. I do not know how long I am sure; I cannot tell you how long: I know I was not called upon to make good anyway.
Q. In your answer to me you gave the other impression? A. I had entirely forgotten about that, and I spoke to Mr. Travers about it this morning, because I have no recollection of it, because I was not getting the money myself, I had no dealings in that way; the only money I got was the money I stated.
Q. The guarantee was a matter in which you were interested? A. I presume I was interested as President of the company and required some money.
Q. You say you got no cheque of $3,000? A. No.
Q. That was the amount that apparently you say you got in July, 1909? A. That was the amount.
Q. You got no cheque from Travers and no money to that extent nor any part of it? A. No.
Q. Do you know any one that did? A. I do not; I have not the slightest idea of any person having got a dollar.
Q. Did Travers speak to you about any payments he had to make? A. No, sir, he did not. The word commission was never mentioned between Mr. Travers and I in any shape or form.

J. SEYMOUR CORLEY, Sworn, Examined by—

MR. HODGINS: You are the City Crown Attorney? A. Yes.
Q. You have had to do with the prosecutions of some of those interested or concerned in the Farmers Bank? A. Yes.
Q. I have just asked you to come because we are endeavouring to get trace of some papers that do not appear among the papers now, and some people think they were among them when the seizure was made; tell us how would they come into your possession? A. I saw them in the possession of the Police.
Q. All the papers? A. Yes, and of course I went through them, a great many of them; I did not go through them all.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Are they turned over to you officially?  A. No, I have access to them.
Q. Has any one else access to them outside of yourself?  A. Not to my knowledge, and no one should while they are before the Court in which I act.
Q. The seizure was made of the Farmers Bank papers by the detectives, I think before any charges were laid, they would be in their hands up to that time; when would they come under your jurisdiction?  A. They do not come under me at all; they are in the hands of the Police; such as have to become exhibits in the Court are marked as Exhibits of the Court and should be the property of the Clerk of the Court until handed over to the Clerk of the Peace.
Q. They do not go back to you?  A. No, I do not have them at all; I merely have access to them; I have no files and no assistant for the purpose of taking care of them.
Q. They are in the custody of the police, and you have access to them, and you file what you want in Court and the rest go back into the hands of the Police?  A. Yes.
Q. Can you throw any light on where the two documents were we have been after; one was a cheque and the other was a letter?  A. I have not heard about a cheque.
Q. A $3,000 cheque?  A. No, I have heard about the cheque, but I know nothing of its subsequent history.
Q. You do not remember seeing it?  A. At this moment I cannot remember seeing it, although I have a picture in my eye of it, but I cannot recall how I got that.
Q. Was it used in any of the prosecutions that you know of?  A. I cannot recall that. I was days and days on it and I cannot recall whether it was or not. I can see no reason why the cheque marked "C" which I suppose is the one you refer to, I have no recollection of having made an Exhibit of that in the Police Court, although it might have been.
Q. What about Colonel Matheson's letter?  A. I remember distinctly an impression copy of a letter at the bottom of which was the words "General Manager" leaving room for the signature; I remember seeing that letter.
Q. That has been put in?  A. I remember that of my own recollection addressed to Colonel Matheson.
Q. That is in, and Mr. Travers says his recollection is he got a reply to that and he has not found that?  A. Of my personal recollection without the suggestions of other people I cannot say anything as to that.
Q. After the prosecutions leave your Court they either go to the High Court or to the County Judge's Criminal Court; who gets the papers?  A. I cannot say. If they are Exhibits I suppose they go to the Clerk of the Peace; if they are papers used for instructions to counsel and that sort of thing I suppose they go to the Crown Attorney for the County or whatever Crown counsel may be acting.
Q. Technically they are in the possession of whom?  A. If not exhibits technically in the possession of the police; and very often exhibits are left with the police afterwards, except some papers, almost all exhibits, for instance weapons used or evidences of crimes, except mere papers, are left with the police until the trial comes on.
Q. If the trial took place in the County Judge's Criminal Court would Burns be the constable?  A. Burns would be the man that has charge of it, as a sort of clerk to the Crown Attorney.
Q. They would go over to the County Crown Attorney?  A. Yes.
Q. If it is in the Assizes?  A. The County Crown Attorney should have charge of them, of course, assisting the Crown Prosecutor. Many people had access to these; there were several different Crown prosecutors and the Crown Attorney of course is dead.
Q. You cannot throw any more light on it?  A. No, I cannot help you at all; I have thought several days over it and I cannot help you at all.
DR. WILLIAM BEATTIE NESBITT, Examination continued:

MR. H. H. DEWART, K.C., representing Dr. Nesbitt was not present, but came in later.

MR. HODGINS: Had you anything to do with introducing Travers to the Trusts & Guarantee Company, to Mr. Warren? A. I know nothing about that.

Q. I should judge that, but I am asking the question? A. Absolutely none.

Q. Just one or two things I want to call your attention to in Travers’ evidence; I want to see what you have to say about them; in the first place where was the bank when you first became connected with it, in what building was it, the Stair Building? A. The Stair Building.

Q. Did Travers tell you the manner in which the Laidlaw cases were settled and the fact that the names were left on the list? A. No, I cannot say that I remember him telling me anything about that.

Q. Did Lindsay tell you? A. No, I do not remember being told any particulars about it.

Q. Mr. Travers states that he and you discussed the letter from the Deputy Minister of Finance dated the 21st November, 1906; that he was so flurried that he showed the letter to you and told you he was up against it, and you said to send for Bill Hunter? A. I do not remember anything of that at all.

Q. Mr. Travers says you were present when Hunter made the suggestion which was followed in the preparation of that list, and that you took part at the end when you suggested names? A. It is not correct; I suggested no names; I do not remember being at an interview or that Hunter made any suggestion in regard to that list. You are referring now to the list in connection with the first organization meeting?

Q. Yes? A. I do not remember being present at any such meeting at all.

Q. Did Travers tell you there were many subscribers coming to the meeting to make trouble, and it would be necessary for you to explain everything, and you said, “Leave that to me, I am used to handling crowds”? A. I cannot remember what I said to him. Travers told me he expected, on account of the difficulty raised by Mr. Laidlaw, that there would be some of the shareholders from, I think it was around Milton, there, that might be troublesome at the meeting, and I cannot remember him giving me any special directions about what would occur.

Q. Did you find out what was the trouble in the Laidlaw suit so that you would be able to explain to these shareholders? A. No, there was no necessity for me knowing about trouble with the Laidlaw suit; I was not interested in the trouble; the matter had been settled and I had no particulars of it, and I do not know what the details of it were. I understood from Mr. Travers it was merely that Mr. Laidlaw had got hold of some shareholders in that district and was trying to promote a suit against the bank, expecting to prevent the organization of the bank, and make money out of the liquidation of the concern, as it were, and that it was a purely malicious suit. I am saying what Mr. Travers told me at the time.

Q. Beyond these broad and general outlines you did not get any details, apparently? A. No, I got no details.

Q. You were there to take charge of the meeting, that was quite clear? A. I was to be chairman of the meeting.

Q. And on you would fall the necessity of explaining or answering any questions? A. Anything that occurred, yes. Of course, Mr. Travers was present at the meeting, and my position simply was if questions were asked that I was not capable of explaining myself that I would refer to him.

Q. Was there any pre-arrangement about that? A. Certainly.

Q. That you should do the answering? A. When I arranged with Mr. Travers that I would take charge of the meeting I said, “If things come up that I do not understand I will refer to you in regard to them and you can explain them.”
Q. When Travers returned with the certificate did he tell you the difficulties he had had? A. Mr. Travers told me he had had some trouble in getting the certificate because I was a prominent Tory partisan and president of the bank.

Q. Did Mr. Travers tell you any other difficulties he had? A. No.

Q. You did not believe the statement he made to you that that was the difficulty he had down there? A. I did not know but what it might be so to a certain extent.

Q. Did he tell you that Mr. Fielding had looked over the list of subscribers? A. No.

Q. Did he show you the letter from Mr. Fielding to him and his reply? A. I do not remember him showing me the letter from Mr. Fielding.

Q. He says he showed them to you? A. He may have thought he did.

Q. Showed the letter and explained the difficulty and you said he was rather clever? A. No, I do not remember anything of that at all.

Q. You thought his reply to Mr. Fielding's letter was rather clever? A. I do not remember anything of that at all.

Q. Do you remember Mr. Knight's visit in December? A. I remember meeting Mr. Knight once in the bank and Mr. Travers present.

Q. He came there thinking that there was something wrong with the paid-up capital, did not he? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Did not he say anything to you? A. I do not remember any discussion about the paid-up capital; I understood he was there in connection with the circulation; that was the only thing he had to do with.

Q. Circulation had not issued then? A. No, but the circulation would come to us before it was issued.

Q. It was based upon the paid-up capital? A. Yes.

Q. The only possible question that could arise would be whether you had the paid-up capital? A. I do not remember the particulars of the thing at all.

Q. He says he was very badly treated there? A. Who said?

Q. Knight? A. By whom?

Q. By, I think he said Travers? A. Certainly was not badly treated by me.

Q. He was abused? A. I know the time I met Mr. Knight at the bank I treated Mr. Knight just as I would treat anybody else, gave him a good cigar, and told him two or three stories and had a little pleasant chat with him and went out.

Q. That was all? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Travers says you gave him a raking over? A. Well, I did not; I would not do that to a man in his position.

Q. Did you hear any raking over by anybody? A. Not that I remember of now.

Q. Again Mr. Travers would be wrong; he certainly came away with a very poor impression of the treatment he had got; did he ask to see the books? A. I do not remember.

Q. Did he say he wanted to find out if your capital was intact, so that he might judge of the right to issue circulation? A. I do not remember what the conversation was with Mr. Knight; as I say I treated him pleasantly as far as I was concerned, and there may have been some discussion between him and Mr. Travers on the side as to his rights and duties, but I do not remember anything of it, and as far as I am concerned I have not the slightest recollection of Mr. Knight being treated any way but courteously and pleasantly.

Q. He got a pretty good dressing down, as Mr. Travers expressed it? A. It was not by me.

Q. When did you learn about the loan in the Trusts & Guarantee Company having been paid off? A. I never learned about the loan from the Trusts & Guarantee Company having been paid off.
Q. Did not this visit of Knight’s result in a visit to the Trusts & Guarantee Company by Travers and the reversal of the entries down there? A. I knew nothing about that.

Q. Did you know anything about it, did Travers never tell you? A. No.

Q. Never discussed it at all then or before Knight’s visit or during or after it? A. Neither before, during or after Knight’s visit did Travers discuss that with me.

Q. You and Travers did not laugh about it after Knight had left? A. I think that is another hallucination.

Q. You made some effort, did you not, to obtain deposits from the present Provincial Government? A. Mr. Dewart is not here; Mr. Dewart was to make a reference in connection with that for me.

Q. I will take up some other matter until he comes. During your career as president, how much monies were paid to you out of the bank’s funds that are still unpaid? A. Paid me out of the bank’s funds?

Q. Yes? A. Make your question explicit.

Q. I am speaking of the companies you were concerned in, how much money did you get direct which has not been repaid? A. How do you mean, that I had the money presented to me?

Q. Anyway you like? A. In a regular business transaction; I never got a dollar from the Farmers Bank that was not a regular and legitimate transaction as far as I was concerned.

Q. Can you give us any idea of the amount of loss to the bank through the transaction? A. There was no loss to the bank through my transactions; my transactions were squared. Mr. Travers put pressure upon me and made me give up my Keeley Mine stock.

Q. They were all squared up then? A. Yes.

Q. That was when he gave up the liability of the Hubbard Company and the Clark Company to the bank? A. All liability was given up at that time.

Q. Including those two? A. Yes.

Q. Did you get any money then? A. I think when the thing was squared up there was a balance of $375 coming to me out of the transaction cash.

Q. My recollection is there was a sum of $5,000? A. When Mr. Wishart—he had brought some gentlemen over from England here, and arranged with them to float or place the treasury stock of the Keeley Mine in London; at that time Mr. Travers wanted to get the underwriting for the bank of the $500,000 of Keeley stock that was to be placed in London; he wanted to get that underwriting for the bank at 70—the bank to underwrite the stock and take the stock at 70, and then Mr. Wishart to go to London and place it with his people. The figure that was to go to Wishart gave the bank a very handsome profit on the transaction. It was considered that Mr. Wishart was thoroughly reliable, as far as his ability to place the stock in London at that time, and the gentlemen he had brought over from London, introduced to Mr. Travers and myself in connection with the Keeley Mine, were thoroughly reputable and reliable financially in every way, and Mr. Travers, in order to get, as he said, a handsome profit for the bank on the underwriting, wanted Wishart to agree that the bank should have this underwriting at 70, and Travers and Wishart had various difficulties during the course of things. So then Mr. Travers came to me with a proposition that if I would get Wishart to consent to the underwriting, he would give me $5,000, because the bank would be making a big profit, and Wishart would be making a big profit too on top of that, and that was arranged, and I got Mr. Wishart to consent to the underwriting, and the underwriting was put through, and the bank underwrote the $500,000 at 70 and gave the mine the credit for $350,000 as the proceeds of that undertaking. Mr. Wishart then went to London with the underwriting to place it, and after he was there he wanted to make some change, I have forgotten how the particulars in the way in which the stock was to be placed there, and he wrote or cabled over in connection with it, and Mr. Travers asked me to join in a cable with him cancelling Wishart’s option on the stock for England. When the Keeley Mine was first organized, my stock that I got as commission—I had the option—the stock I got as commission I assigned to the bank as collateral to my account.

Q. We are getting a little away from the question I asked you?  A. You asked me about that $5,000.

Q. Whether that was in connection with your handing over your stock in the Keeley Mine and the bank giving up the liabilities of the companies you are concerned with and your own liability; you said there was only $375 which you got; I asked you if it was $5,000?  A. No, I got that $5,000 for getting Wishart to agree to the underwriting of the Keeley Mine at 70.

Q. Was it not paid at the time that the stock was turned over?  A. It was charged against me at the time the stock was turned over.

Q. I am asking you when you turned over that stock you did not get $5,000 in cash at that time?  A. I did not.

Q. How was it charged against you?  A. It was charged against me in this way: Mr. Travers, said, “I gave you that $5,000 for getting Wishart to agree to the Keeley underwriting”; then he said, “We cancelled the underwriting and the underwriting did not go through, and now as we are settling up I prefer for you to allow me to charge that up to you, so that I won’t have to show it as a loss in the bank on account of the underwriting.”

Q. You agreed to that?  A. Yes.

Q. You say you paid with your stock in the Keeley Mine this $5,000 back, and you also paid the liabilities of these two companies?  A. Yes, and the liability I had that was directly or indirectly liable for.

Q. That is your position?  A. Yes.

Q. You were getting out at that time, of the Keeley Mine?  A. I considered I was being frozen out at that time of the Keeley Mine.

Q. Had you and Travers not been friendly up to that time?  A. We had been business associates to a certain extent, but it is very hard at some times to say whether you are a friend of Travers or not; we used to get at cross purposes occasionally.

Q. How much money had been advanced to the Keeley Mine by the bank at the time you were frozen out?  A. I could not say just what amount had been advanced at that time, because at the time—well, the position was this: Mr. Travers said he had the assignment of my stock and he could, on account of my stock being assigned to him as collateral to my account, he could by forcing me on my account, have made me give up my stock anyway, and he said I could either give up the stock or vote with him to put on the bond issue; that he would square off with me; that he felt himself I was not getting what the stock was worth, but under the circumstances in which he was placed, he would square off with me; he would take the stock and cancel my obligation to the bank or I could carry my obligations to the bank and I could vote with him to put on the bond issue.

Q. To what extent?  A. $1,000,000.

Q. Which was not to be advanced; it was just to be making out bonds without selling them?  A. Mr. Travers’ position at the time of the Keeley Mine was that Mr. Wishart, in spite of the pool that we had agreed to, disposed of certain portions of his stock that was coming to him, and finally to avoid a lawsuit the stock was allotted to friends of Mr. Wishart’s.

Q. Can you give me a date at which you were frozen out?  A. I cannot give you any exact date, no.
Q. Do you remember the year?  A. I remember at the time I got—in the first place, I had not been a director for the Keeley, as I remember, I had not been a director for the Keeley Mine for quite a time before that settlement was made, and that settlement was made several months before the bank failed, as near as I can remember it now.

Q. You were frozen out several months before the bank failed?  A. Yes.

Q. That brings it down to 1910; March, 1910, appears to be the date?  A. That would be it.

Q. At that time you could not have thought the Keeley Mine was worth very much or you would not have given up your stock in it?  A. I have just explained to you that I never had actual control of my stock from the first day of the Keeley Mine to the last; it was assigned to the bank as collateral.

Q. But you are not the sort of man to let Travers or anybody deal with your property unless you wanted to?  A. I could not help myself.

Q. It does not look to me as if you thought the Keeley Mine was worth very much at the time if you would give up your stock in it?  A. I thought the Keeley Mine was an extremely valuable property at that time and think so yet.

Q. How much stock had you in it?  A. My stock was cut down a couple of times, and the amount of stock I had in it was more than was actually my own, because part of it was held for Phillips.

Q. Can you tell me how much you had belonging to yourself at that time; would it be $365,000 of the shares?  A. Something like that.

Q. What was the indebtedness you wiped out by the transfer of that 365,000 shares?  A. I do not remember the exact amount now.

Q. Roughly speaking, would it be more than a tenth of that, $36,000?  A. There was a memorandum at the time made by Mr. Travers as to what the settlement was, and I was trying to look for my copy, and I have not been able to find it.

At this point, Mr. Dewart, K.C., counsel representing Dr. Nesbitt, came in.

Mr. Hodgins: We can get the exact amount from the books; I thought you would know within a reasonable margin?  A. The settlement was somewhere around $60,000.

Q. Were the two concerns, whose indebtedness was cancelled at that time, good for the amounts of their debts?  A. No, not at the time that the settlement was made. At the time of the loans they were; at that time they were not.

Q. Were you liable upon their indebtedness personally?  A. I guaranteed their indebtedness.

Q. You were president when the Keeley Mine first opened up with the bank?  A. I had not heard of the Keeley Mine until some months after I retired from the presidency.

Q. Did you introduce the mine to Travers, or how did the bank and the mine become connected?  A. Do you want me to tell you as nearly as I can remember the situation?

Q. Yes?  A. When I secured the option for the Keeley Mine; at least, not when I secured the option, but when I first heard of the Keeley Mine, I remembered that Mr. George Wishart, of New York, had been up at the bank during the previous summer when I was president, had been introduced to me by Mr. Travers and he had come up for the purpose of purchasing a mine on the north shore, that he had invested several thousand dollars in machinery and fitting up that mine, and had the mine examined by his engineer, and the report on it was not favorable and he turned it down; so when I heard about the Keeley Mine I went down to see Mr. Travers.  I said, “Do you know whether your friend, Mr. Wishart, has secured a mine or not?” He said, “No, he has not.”  I told him, “I have run across what I think is a very valuable property, and what chance do you think would there be for us to place it with Wishart.”  I told him I thought we could both make a good thing out of it if we could place it with Wishart; and so he said he thought the chances would be all right, and I took him over to the Rossin House the following day, and introduced him to Mr. Phillips, showed him the ore, and he said of course he knew nothing about the ore; arranged then that I would go up and secure an option on the property to give us time to go down to New York and see Wishart; so I did that and went up to Haileybury and met the men in connection with the mine, secured our option, drove out to the mine and back and turned around, and went down with Mr. Travers and Mr. Phillips to New York and went out to Mr. Wishart's place on the Sound—he had a very handsome place there—and he explained to us the wealth represented in the surrounding homes.

Q. Had you an option on the mine at that time? A. I had an option at that time.

Q. To whom? A. Keeley, Jowsey and Wood.

Q. Was that option one which recites the payment of $3 and provides for the payment of the balance of $300,000—is that the purchase price? A. Either that is not correct or you are not reading it correctly.

Q. Just look at it (Exhibit 65); how much did you pay as a deposit when you got the option do you remember? A. Paid $1,000 for the first option, and that was put up half by Mr. Travers and half by myself.

Q. See if that is the first option there now (Exhibit 65)? A. This was $3,000 paid prior to the signing of this agreement; not $3; $3 was simply earnest money, $1 to each man; $3,000 had been paid prior to that.

Q. Is that the first option? A. No.

Q. What was the purchase price in the first option? A. It was the same all the way through, $300,000.

Q. There were three options altogether? A. As I remember it now; there was first—

Q. This is dated the 18th of May, 1908, and provides for $47,000 on the 19th May, 1908; this would be the second option? A. I think that was the third.

Q. Then that would be the one that was carried out? A. Yes.

Q. This is dated the 18th May and recites the payment of $3,000 and makes $47,000 come due the following day? A. Yes.

Q. It must have been prior to this you went and saw Wishart? A. Oh, away prior to that; negotiations were going on for some time with Wishart. I think the time extended over about a month or more or less.

Q. Did you make an arrangement with Wishart? A. When we saw Wishart there, Wishart arranged with, I have forgotten—I understood Mr. Wishart was going into the mine with Mr. Travers; at the time I took the proposition to Mr. Travers there was no intention on my part, and I am quite satisfied no intention on Mr. Travers' part that the bank should go into the mine at all; there was no suggestion of the bank going into the mine; the idea was that Mr. Travers knew Mr. Wishart and considered him a man of great wealth, and he had been looking for a mine, and seemed to be a reasonable man that we could work with.

Q. Had Travers suggested Wishart to you or had you known Wishart? A. I had met Mr. Wishart, as I told you before, I had met him once, he was up once—he may have been up more than once, but up once during my Presidency of the bank; I had met him during the summer and he was then up for the purpose of buying a mine on the north shore.

Q. Was that before Travers made his acquaintance on the ship? A. Oh, no, Mr. Travers knew Mr. Wishart; it was Mr. Travers introduced Mr. Wishart to me at that time.

Q. Getting down to business when did you take any step towards carrying out the option? A. In the first place the first step towards carrying out the option would be about the time of that agreement you had there, it would be just about there that the plans for carrying out the option were completed, and we had an agreement at that time in connection with the matter; there was an agreement between Mr. Travers and Mr. Wishart and myself.
Q. And the bank?  A. I have forgotten whether the bank was a party to it or not.

Q. Yes?  A. The bank; by which Mr. Wishart and Mr. Travers would look after the financing of property and have full control of it. I had nothing at all to do with the financing and was not responsible for it in any way; and then after they got their money all out the profits were to be divided according to the shares. Just after that I understood Mr. Wishart had given a note for his share, $25,000.

Q. Let us get the thing definite; on the 18th May $3,000 had been paid by you and Travers jointly?  A. Yes.

Q. There were $47,000 to be paid on the 19th May?  A. Yes.

Q. Your agreement with Travers, Wishart and the Farmers Bank was that you were obtaining an advance from Wishart of $25,000?  A. That I was obtaining?

Q. Yes?  A. I do not remember it that way.

Q. And an advance from the bank of $25,000 to apply under the option, that is what this agreement says?  A. I understood that that was for the mining company, not for me personally.

Q. It reads this way—you are the party of the first part—"Whereas the party of the first part is the holder of an option to purchase the mining claim and property, etc.

AND WHEREAS the party of the first part is obtaining an advance from the party of the second part of $25,000, and an advance from the party of the fourth part (that is the bank) of $25,000 for the purpose of applying said sums under such option on the purchase price of said mining property".  "AND WHEREAS the party of the first part has agreed to procure a mining company to be incorporated for the purpose of purchasing the said option."  A. Yes, that was the arrangement.

Q. Apparently the arrangement was you were to obtain the loan from Wishart and the Farmers Bank and put up the money and then incorporate a company?  A. Yes, that was the preliminary arrangement that you have there.

Q. Did you get an advance from Wishart?  A. I got an advance from Wishart.

Q. In what way?  A. I do not know how; that matter was arranged between Mr. Wishart and Mr. Travers.

Q. Don't you know?  A. I understood that Mr. Travers had discounted a note of Mr. Wishart's.

Q. Without your name on it?  A. Without my name on it.

Q. That would not be carrying this agreement out if you were getting the money?  A. I was simply acting you see as agent for the purpose of the transaction until the mining company was formed; I undertook to organize a mining company in the agreement.

Q. Who was Slaght acting for in Haileybury, the lawyer who drew this?  A. Mr. Travers engaged Mr. Slaght.

Q. Do you know anything about how this first $47,000 was paid?  A. I cannot remember anything excepting the arrangement under that agreement; as to the details of how it was carried out I cannot remember.

Q. Did you borrow $25,000 from the bank?  A. No, I did not.

Q. Then this agreement which provides for the—?  A. Let me see that agreement; there may be another agreement. There were half a dozen different ones drawn at the time I remember (reads through agreement, part of exhibit 65). I see in this agreement I was acting as trustee for these parties in the carrying out of this proposition.

Q. Had you dropped out from being an interested party to merely a trustee?  A. No, I was an interested party as far as my commission was concerned.

Q. When did you get down to be merely entitled to commission; I thought you were taking an interest, a quarter interest in this?  A. I was not putting up anything for the quarter interest; I was getting a quarter interest for turning over the option.
Q. That is your commission? A. Yes.
Q. When did you succeed in turning it over to somebody and getting a quarter interest for nothing was it before that? A. It was before that.
Q. Who did you make that arrangement with? A. With Mr. Travers and Mr. Wishart; it seems to me the agreement we settled on finally was a shorter one than this.
Q. At all events that is the explanation then that you had found the mine, apparently and got an option on it, and had turned it over to Wishart and did you say the bank or Mr. Travers? A. Well, Mr. Travers I considered at the time that Travers was getting one half, or getting his interest for introducing Wishart; when Wishart was brought in in the first place it was supposed Wishart would take the whole thing, that Mr. Travers would handle the whole thing with Wishart, it was not intended that the bank should come into it at all, and just before the matter came to be closed up, there was some re-arrangement made, and as I understood Mr. Travers had to take part of it with Wishart, at least had to arrange for part of it with Wishart; just what the absolute arrangements were I was not supposed to know anything about it; it was made between themselves.
Q. The first idea was it should be turned over to Wishart altogether? A.
Yes.
Q. The second arrangement was it was to be turned over to Wishart and Travers, and finally it seems to have been turned over to Wishart, Travers and the bank with you having a quarter interest clear commission? A. Yes.
Q. For putting up the money? A. Yes.
Q. That is the shape it finally took? A. As near as I can remember now.
Q. Had you really put up $1,500 of your own money? A. Yes, of my own money for the option.
Q. That was merged in the quarter interest, you were not to have it repaid?
A. I do not remember whether that was repaid.
Q. Perhaps that is the agreement you speak of on the 28th May which is a shorter one, and deals with your position? A. No, that is not the one I do not think. There was another agreement; I think I can find the other agreement in that matter.
Q. At all events on the 18th May just before the company was formed the interests are described in that agreement which we have had put in? A. Yes.
Q. And thereafter you never had any financial interest so to speak in the mine? A. No.
Q. Wishart had a quarter, Travers had a quarter and the bank a quarter?
A. Yes.
Q. And you a quarter; and they between them were to find the money? A.
Yes.
Q. Did you form the company? A. We took out a charter for the company.
Q. And then you got the interest in that capital stock that you had agreed upon? A. Yes.
Q. You understood Wishart had given a note and that Travers had raised the money out of the bank in some way and that this first $50,000 was paid? A. I did not know that Wishart had given a note until shortly before his note became due.
Q. Who did you learn it from? A. I learned it from Wishart first.
Q. That he had given the note? A. Yes. He came up to Toronto I think as I remember now, two or three days before the note was due, and he said he—I may have heard the note before that, I won't be positive when I heard it, but I know he came there and he said his note was coming due and he said to arrange for it, but as I remember he told me, he says, "I guess I am $1,500 or a couple of thousand dollars short, I have had some other calls”, but he said, “I suppose that will be all right”. I told him I thought if the chap wanted to pay $23,000 on a $25,000 note nobody would raise any particular objection that I could see; and then there was some dispute at the time, I do not know the details of it or how the thing came about, but anyway Mr. Travers came to me and wanted me to give up $25,000 of my stock and Wishart was giving up $25,000 of his; there was some difficulty about Wishart’s payments.

Q. Travers wanted what? A. Me to give up $25,600 of my stock and he said Wishart was giving up $25,000 of his, because there were some difficulties about Wishart’s payments, that Wishart had not turned out as he expected him to turn out, that he had every confidence in Wishart’s financial strength.

Q. Who was the stock to be given up to by you and Wishart? A. As I understood from Mr. Travers I think the stock was to be given up to the bank.

Q. And the bank was to find the money to make the next payment? A. The bank was looking after it. Mr. Wishart fell down; Mr. Travers said Mr. Wishart had failed him. Of course it is just a little hard to say what occurred at that time, because after we made the first payment Mr. Travers had an offer of $500,000 for the property; that would have given us a profit of $200,000, and he considered it a bona fide offer. He told me about it afterwards and I felt a little badly it had not been accepted. That increased his confidence in the value of the property, so that when a certain payment came due, and Wishart, as he told me, had failed him, he could not make good, why Mr. Travers was in the position in which he had unbounded confidence in the value of the mine from the fact that he had an offer of $200,000 profit inside of 30 days; and then he said he was going to fix it up in some way, he did not tell me at the time that, he told me at the time he had other parties that he could interest.

Q. He puts it, he having put up the first $50,000 when Wishart fell down, that he would have lost it all if he had not put up the second? A. There is a point I cannot understand.

Q. You are putting it as if he were quite willing to do it owing to his confidence in the mine? A. There is no doubt about that.

Q. Which is right? A. I am. I cannot understand just this point about Wishart, because Wishart showed me his bank books you see after I had given up this $25,000 of stock I spoke to Wishart and I said, “how is this, I have given up $25,000 of stock because you have not paid your note.” and then he told me that he thought Travers wanted to grab the whole mine and made an arrangement with him by which he was not to pay the note. I said “I understand you could not pay the note”, and he showed me his bank books to show me that he had actually the credits to his account in New York.

Q. Was that interview in New York? A. No, that was in Toronto; he had a bank book with him.

Q. Wishart was only to put up $25,000 out of the $50,000? A. I understood it at the time the proposition was taken up first there was the first payment to be made and then we had three months; the property certainly looked exceedingly good.

Q. We are not talking of the same thing; Wishart was to put up $25,000 as the first payment? A. Yes.

Q. And $25,000 only; why were you asked to give up $25,000 of stock and Wishart as well, making $50,000? A. I could never quite understand that my self, Mr. Hodgins.

Q. But you did give it up? A. Whenever there was a slice to be taken off, I notice it came off me.

Q. You gave it up without a murmur? A. Certainly I gave it up. When Mr. Travers told me he would have trouble about the thing I told him I would do anything at all he wanted to do; it was not any of my fault.

Q. It had not cost you anything? A. It costs me a lot of time and effort.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. How much stock had you all told before you gave up the $25,000? A. When we first secured the option Mr. Travers told Mr. Phillips that he would give him 10% in the property, and then my quarter included at that time 10% he had promised to Mr. Phillips.

Q. That would be $250,000 was the quarter? A. Yes.

Q. And you gave up $25,000 of it? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever hear of trouble between Wishart and Travers at the time Wishart defaulted and the second payment was due? A. I heard of a good deal of trouble between Wishart and Travers.

Q. From what you said now I judge you did not hear of any trouble at that time, that it was afterwards you heard about that? A. It was about the time this note came due; I do not know just what the date was, but that was about the time.

Q. What trouble did you hear about? A. Of course you see difficulties between Wishart and Travers, I did not understand all the ins and outs of, and I of course took Mr. Travers' side of the thing, what Mr. Travers told me I accepted in preference to what Mr. Wishart told me.

Q. Who made the payments to Keeley, Jowsey and Wood of the moneys? A. I cannot remember now just how the payments were made to Keeley, Jowsey and Wood.

Q. Who was acting for them up in Haileybury? A. Mr. Harvey Graham I think.

Q. Was Mr. Killoran? A. Killoran had put up money for Phillips.

Q. Was that all? A. He was interested with Phillips, that is all I know.

Q. Had you anything do with paying anything beyond the first $3,000? A. I was not, as I remember it personally I did not have anything to do with paying anything beyond that.

Q. You think Harvey Graham acted for these people? A. He did in the arrangements I had, he was solicitor when I got the option from them; he drew up the first option.

Q. He received the money on behalf of these three vendors? A. I think the money was paid into the Union Bank at Haileybury.

Q. To their joint credit was it? A. I do not remember.

Q. Did Travers put up the second payment under option or do you know anything about it? A. Mr. Travers in the early stages of the Keeley Mine assured me that he was getting money outside the bank. I think up till after the second payment was made I understood that he had other parties that he had interested.

Q. Did you afterwards inquire who they were? A. He said he would not tell me who they were; he made the arrangement and he was acting for them.

Q. Was not there an understanding that no one else was to come in, the stock was to be pooled and not sold? A. That was the understanding with Mr. Travers, but Mr. Travers was the sole manager of that proposition.

Q. You say you understood from him that he was, notwithstanding that, bringing people in? A. He was arranging in connection with them.

Q. Did he make the second payment? A. I do not know; the payments were made through the Farmers Bank; it was arranged that the Farmers Bank would be the bankers for the mine at the time; he expected to have good business out of the mine for the bank.

Q. Did you get anything back from the vendors when the payments were made? A. In what way?

Q. In any way? A. Do you mean did I get—

Q. Any rake off on the payments at all? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know of any one who did? A. I understood Mr. Phillips and Mr. Killoran got commission. at least Mr. Phillips got a commission from them.
Q. Did Wishart?  A. Not that I know of.
Q. Did Travers?  A. Oh no, not that I know of.
Q. You do not know of any private arrangement whereby the price was to be less than it was represented to be?  A. Not that I know of.
Q. It always remained $300,000?  A. Yes.
Q. After the second payment was made you say you learned the bank was interested, I judge that from what you said?  A. Yes.
Q. Did that surprise you?  A. It did; I expected that Mr. Wishart was going to have the whole thing placed before the second payment came due.
Q. The Farmers Bank had a quarter interest, had not they under this May agreement which I showed you?  A. I do not think they had a quarter interest, as I remember the original matter, Mr. Travers told me at the time, he said the supposition was that Mr. Wishart would carry the whole thing and he said, "I am going to go in with Wishart and take $25,000 and get a bonus of $125,000 of stock for the bank for carrying this thing for three months".
Q. When did you learn that the bank had been advancing the money?  A. I think I learned that first from Mr. Travers.
Q. From that on I suppose you realized that the bank and the bank only had put up all the money?  A. Yes.
Q. And that Wishart had not?  A. Wishart had fallen down completely.
Q. Had you contributed any more stock?  A. Not in that connection.
Q. Had you in any way?  A. I had contributed some other stock to assist Mr. Travers in getting a deposit.
Q. What do you mean by a deposit?  A. He wanted, he was anxious to get as much money deposited in the bank as a matter of business as he could, and after this second payment he came over and saw me one day at my house, and told me that he had been associated with the Keeley Mine he was afraid would produce a run on the bank; the bank was perfectly solvent in every way, but no bank could stand a run, and he would like ample provision for such an emergency, and I told him I did not see how the fact that the bank was connected with the Keeley Mine could affect it or make any run on it. Well, he said, there is just street talk and that sort of thing. I said, "What do you want me to do?". "Well," he said, "I would like to have $150,000; I do not need it, but I would like to have it there in case I had a run." I explained to him as naively as I could I did not know where I could get $150,000. "Well," he said, "what about your brother-in-law, Mr. Crompton; has not he got the money?" Well, I told him I thought he had the money, but I did not think he would just walk over and deposit $150,000 because I asked him. "Well," he says, "I suppose he is getting interest on his moneys and I will give him as much interest as he is getting on his money and I would like to have it in." We went on discussing the thing, and finally he made the proposition, "Now," he said, "this matter has arisen from the fact that I am connected with the Keeley Mine and I helped you out in that matter in introducing you to Wishart, and putting the deal through with Wishart, and I think you should try and help me out, and it will be a great thing for us and for me, and will make us perfectly comfortable and easy to have that money, and I will suggest we give a bonus of Keeley stock, you join me in that." I did not see the thing just that way to start with; we talked the matter over and finally came to a position in which he arranged to give Mr. Crompton as good interest as he was getting at the time and would give him a bonus of Keeley stock. The reason I participated in that bonus at that time was I was really anxious to get Mr. Crompton in with Mr. Travers' consent, because Mr. Crompton owned the Proudfoot, which was just across the line. I was interested in the Proudfoot with him; the Proudfoot at the time was just a prospect, but nothing found on it.
Q. How much did you contribute of that $100,000?  A. I contributed $25,000.
Q. The arrangement with Crompton went through? A. Yes.
Q. That was March 3rd, 1909, an arrangement to deposit $50,000 and $25,000 and $55,000? A. I do not remember the date.
Q. The 3rd March, 1909, is the date of the Crompton agreement? A. What date would that agreement about the mine be?
Q. May, 1908? A. That would be about a year afterwards.
Q. You used the expression that Travers suggested to you he had helped you out introducing you to Wishart, what did he mean by that? A. He gave me an opportunity to make a profit on the mine by getting Wishart to take it up.
Q. Are you speaking of your commission or your share? A. My commission, yes.
Q. That is the only sense in which you made a profit? A. Yes.
Q. I see you were elected a director of the company, that is the Keeley-Jowsey-Wood Mine on the 29th May, 1908? A. Yes.
Q. You had about 100,000 shares from that time; I think you said it was after the second payment had been made that you learned the bank was interested? A. Yes.
Q. Did you learn then the bank had put up all the money? A. I think I did, yes.
Q. Did you ever hear, or did you learn that Wishart had got back his note? A. No, I did not know when Wishart got back his note.
Q. I see Wishart remained as a stockholder with 100,000 shares all through 1908; in fact, he was president of the company? A. Yes.
Q. Then on the 10th of June, 1909, he jumps down to fifty thousand-odd; Wishart contributed no money at all to your knowledge? A. Of course, I thought he put up that; I learned afterwards that he had not contributed any.
Q. You learned that after the second payment came due? A. Yes.
Q. That was August, 1908? A. Yes.
Q. How were the balance of the payments taken care of? A. The balance of the payments were taken care of by loans from the Farmers Bank to the Keeley-Jowsey-Wood Mine.
Q. Were you aware that the bank was advancing the money from time to time to take up those payments? A. I was not aware that the bank was advancing all the money.
Q. Were you advancing any? A. No, I had an agreement not to advance any.
Q. You knew that Wishart had fallen down? A. I understood so from Mr. Travers.
Q. That would only leave of the directors Travers, the Farmers Bank, and Mr. Owens, with one share; who did you think was advancing the money? A. I had nothing at all to do with financing the mine; I had absolutely nothing at all to do with it; I had an agreement, but I had nothing at all to do with it; and I stayed in that position.
Q. You acted as a director? A. For part of the time.
Q. Do you wish to be understood that you knew nothing of what was going on? A. I knew we were getting loans from the Farmers Bank.
Q. Did you know the amount? A. I could not tell you the amounts now.
Q. Was the mine being operated? A. The mine was being worked.
Q. When were you up there? A. I was up on several occasions in the first year or so.
Q. You saw a very extensive plant going in? A. Yes.
Q. You knew the money had to come from somewhere? A. Yes.
Q. Were you putting up any security or giving any notes or anything? A. In connection with the mine?
Q. Yes? A. I had an arrangement I had nothing at all to do with the financing of the mine, and I stuck to that.
Q. You were never called upon to do that? A. No.
Q. Just remained with whatever interest you retained and let somebody else find the money? A. Certainly.
Q. That is a short statement of just what happened from the time you made the agreement in May, 1908, till the failure of the bank? A. That is as nearly as I can recollect the whole thing.
Q. Did you know anything about the entries that were being made in the bank books with regard to these loans? A. No, sir; it was not possible for me to know; I was not an official of the bank and had nothing at all to do with the bank at that time any more than you had.
Q. When was this $5,000 paid to you for the purpose of getting Wishart to agree to the underwriting? A. About the time of the underwriting, the day before or the day after, about that.
Q. When was it? A. I cannot fix the date. If you get the minutes of the Keeley Mine, it was about the date of the underwriting.
Q. That was the last company of all? A. Yes.
Q. The prospectus appears to have been on December 30th, 1908? A. It seems to me Wishart went over towards the spring with the Keeley Mine—
Q. Yes, the prospectus was dated the end of December, 1908? A. Then it was later than that Wishart went over to England to place the stock, so that it would be later than that that the underwriting took place.
Q. On the 28th May there is a transfer of 50,000 shares of Wishart to Pake-man, of London, and 10,000 to Whitney, of New York, was not that part of the underwriting? A. No, that was after he came back. They started a suit and were making trouble with Mr. Travers and he had to consent to the transfer of those shares. As a matter of fact, Mr. Travers was very badly abused by those people all the way through.
Q. The underwriting then would take place about the beginning of January, 1909, and it was Wishart's consent to that that had to be got? A. Yes.
Q. What was the necessity for his consent? A. The underwriting was chiefly by the bank; Wishart would get the stock at a certain price and he would place the stock at a higher price; the difference was Wishart's profit. The bank was coming in and taking a profit off that first. Wishart's position was at that time, Wishart wanted it at 70, and I suggested to him first that the bank should have it at 70. He says, "I have to place this thing over there and I should have it at 70", and so it was necessary to adjust the requirements as between Wishart and the bank both wanting it at 70.
Q. What was the result? A. The result was the bank got the underwriting at 70.
Q. And Wishart got it at what? A. I cannot remember the figure; Wishart's figure was higher; I know it left a handsome profit for the bank; Travers said at the time if Mr. Wishart was successful in placing this stock, as he thought he would be—
Q. Wishart appears to have stayed in through 1908 and 1909 and was paying nothing; anything said about his financial position at that date or the necessity—? A. I had nothing to do with that; that was a matter between Wishart and Travers; Mr. Travers knows what arrangement he had with Wishart and what other dealings if any he had with him; I had nothing to do with them.
Q. I want to ask you some questions about the deposits by the Treasurer of Ontario; Mr. Dewart is here now.

Mr. Dewart: What Dr. Nesbitt wanted me to call attention to was a paragraph in the editorial columns of the Globe of Friday June 20th. What Dr.
Nesbitt objected to as being practically a contempt of Court is this statement: "Now, what are the admitted facts in the case? Dr. Beattie Nesbitt needed money for the Keeley Mine speculation; that was the chief cause of the wrecking of the bank; he got the money from the bank through Travers on a promise to engineer the deposit of a like amount from the Government of Ontario."

Dr. Nesbitt desired I should bring before the Court this statement as one which he considers is absolutely unfounded upon the evidence and one which he feels reflects upon himself before he has had even the opportunity of giving evidence.

Mr. Commissioner: Go on Mr. Hodgins, please.

Mr. Hodgins: Did you ever interest yourself to get a deposit in the Farmers Bank from the Treasurer of Ontario, Colonel Matheson? A. I saw Colonel Matheson once during the year I was President of the bank.

Q. That would be 1907? A. Yes. I told him we would like to have him make a deposit with the bank, that the Government was depositing with other banks which simply had branches in the city of Toronto and our bank had its head office here and we had a large number of farmers throughout Ontario who were shareholders interested in the bank and I thought we were entitled to a portion of the Government deposits as well as any other bank. He told me that he could not promise to give me a deposit just then, he would wait until he had seen more of our returns, and the bank getting along nicely,—He said the bank was rather young, that he would do something for us.

Q. Well? A. That was all.

Q. That does not seem to have been all; did you stop your efforts there and did they result in nothing? A. He subsequently made a small deposit with us.

Q. How long after your talk with him? A. I cannot say.

Q. What was the amount of the deposit? A. His first deposit, it was a small one, I have forgotten the amount now; there was not any reason why I should charge my memory with it.

Q. You do not know; what year? A. During the first year of the bank while I was President of the bank.

Q. There were small deposits which on the 14th of June were made into a deposit receipt, 14th June, 1907? A. That would be about the time.

Q. There is nothing else of any consequence until it culminates in another deposit receipt on the 13th of May, 1908, of $15,000 and one on the 19th May, 1908, of $10,000; had you anything to do with getting those? A. No, I never saw Colonel Matheson afterwards in connection with any deposit in the Farmers Bank; I have told you the only time I ever saw him.

Q. That deposit receipt appears to have been paid off on the 27th December, 1908; you resigned in February, 1908? A. I really was through actively as President at the end of 1907, as I remember the thing.

Q. Let me see that article, Mr. Dewart, and find out what the Doctor says as to that. It has been stated that you got money for the Keeley Mine speculation through Travers on a promise to engineer the deposit from the Treasurer of Ontario? A. It is not correct.

Q. What did you say to Colonel Matheson in connection with the deposit other than you have told us? A. I did not say anything more than I have told you; that is the gist of what I said to you. It was in 1907.

Q. There are deposits running on later then; they go on to 1909; had you anything to do with the getting of those deposits? A. I never saw Colonel Matheson except the time I have told you in connection with that matter. He was Provincial Treasurer and handled the deposits; I saw him on that occasion and what I have told you is all I had to do with it.

Q. Did Travers, seeing you were successful the first time, never say to you he thought the Government should make further deposits? A. He said he considered I was very unsuccessful and considered I had not any pull at all; he thought he should get much more money.
Q. Did he ask you afterwards? A. That was the remark he made.
Q. Did he ask you afterward, after you had made your first effort and been successful? A. He spoke to me again about trying to get deposits, and I told him that I could not do anything with that. He spoke to a great many people with reference to deposits from the Government and I may have spoken to some of my friends afterwards, but there was no direct or indirect interest between the deposits and my affairs with the bank.
Q. Travers seemed to be pretty hard up for money and claimed there was a promise made—here is a letter of June 18th said to be sent to Colonel Matheson (Exhibit 68): “Two weeks ago I made some advances to the extent of $35,000 on the promise that $25,000 would be deposited by you, which was requested by the friends of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt”—that carries it down to June, 1908; who were those friends? A. I do not know.
Q. You spoke just now of some of your friends, you had spoken to some of your friends? A. It would be quite absurd to try and remember who I had spoken to in connection with getting deposits.
Q. The statement is a very definite one? A. I did not make the statement.
Q. Cannot you throw any light on who the friends were? A. I did not make the statement.
Q. Travers made the statement? A. I do not care what Mr. Travers made;
that don’t concern me.
Q. You said a few minutes ago you had spoken to some of your friends? A.
Yes, but that was in 1907.
Q. He was getting harder and harder up, and actually went to your brother-in-law in 1909? A. You must understand that Mr. Travers as far as his conversations with me are concerned never indicated he was getting harder and harder up; from the first to the last day of my official connection with the bank he always maintained that his bank was—A. No. 1. first class shape and he was getting along fine.
Q. Could you help realizing that neither you nor Wishart were putting up any money for the Keeley Mine, and as you knew $300,000 had to be paid, that the bank must be paying out a very large amount of money in proportion to its capital?
A. I did not consider any money that the bank was paying out to the Keeley Mine —the Keeley Mine I considered a No. 1 first class asset, and the moneys paid out for the Keeley Mine should not have affected the bank a particle. The bank has more money than what it puts in one concern.
Q. It had only a little over $500,000 capital? A. I do not remember what capital it had at the time we went into the Keeley Mine.
Q. You knew what it had when you ceased to be President? A. I know, but they were selling stock after that.
Q. They do not appear to have sold very much? A. I did not look into that; I do not know anything about that.
Q. Were not deposits a very important thing for a bank director to get who was putting that amount of money into a mine? A. I was not a bank director.
Q. Bank manager; was not it very important for Travers to get them? A.
I never saw a bank manager who was not willing to get deposits. I have had other bank managers besides Travers who asked me to get deposits.
Q. Was not he following you up and trying to get you to use your political influence to get deposits? A. I cannot see how—Q. Did you understand his remark in the letter? A. I do not care about his remark in the letter.
Q. You have no explanation of it? A. It had nothing to do with me.
Q. You do not dispute it is true? A. I do dispute it is true in the sense in which it is put in that letter.
Q. You say it is not true that this $25,000 was requested from the Treasurer by the friends of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt? A. Certainly there was no item of $25,000 ever mentioned or ever considered. The only suggestion at any time was to have the Government deposit with us. This $25,000 has been fixed up with regard to this other thing; this is all hot air, that is what it is.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: You have not told us who Mr. Phillips was as far as I recollect? A. Mr. Phillips was a mining engineer that got this option, had these men in the first place who owned the mine and had a verbal option from them. He came down here with a verbal option from them.

Q. Was there any time in June, 1908, or at any other time, an advance made to you of $25,000 or any other sum on the promise that deposits to that amount would be procured from the Provincial Treasurer? A. No, sir.

Q. As far as the Keeley Mine is concerned, your statement is you had nothing whatever to do with the financing of that, you were free from all connection with it? A. Absolutely.

Q. That these men Wishart and Travers were to look after the finances? A. Yes, that is quite right.

Q. If I recollect right, his statement is that when you were not able to put up the first $25,000 on the purchase price of the Keeley Mine that he advanced it upon the promise that you would procure an equal amount in the shape of deposits? A. No, that has been mixed up and brought in later. Mr. Travers at the time shortly after, around about the time that the mining transaction was put through as near as my memory serves me, all that was said in that regard by Mr. Travers to me was this, or words to this effect: "Now, I have helped you in getting Wishart to come in and arrange to float the mine, and as I have done that for you I think you ought to endeavor to get deposits for me and more business for me.", and I told him that anything I could legitimately do to help him to get more business I was very glad to do, and I certainly would.

Q. Was that the time which resulted in Mr. Crompton coming in? A. Mr. Crompton came in subsequently to that, quite a long time after that. My memory of Mr. Crompton coming in was, that it was only three or four months after the mine was purchased, but it seems to have been about a year after by the negotiations, but I had forgotten the whole thing.

Mr. Hodgins: There is a copy of a letter that apparently was sent by you to Mr. Noble in December, 1906; you have seen that letter? A. Yes.

Q. Was that one written by you? A. That was a circular prepared by Mr. Travers to send out to our directors.

Q. To the shareholders? A. I think it was to the directors.

Q. This is written to Robert Noble? A. He was a director.

Q. You say "Our papers and everything were in such excellent shape owing to the care taken by Mr. Travers and Mr. Hunter, our solicitor"? A. That was as Mr. Travers told it to me; Mr. Travers drafted the letter.

Q. And you signed it? A. Yes.

Q. I suppose you read it? A. Yes.

Q. You saw nothing that was wrong in it? A. I could not see anything wrong; Mr. Travers' statement throwing some bouquets at themselves.

Q. Would this letter dated November 19th, 1906, fix the date at which you gave your signature having agreed to become President? A. Yes, that would be about right.

Exhibit 87: Letter dated the 19th November, 1906, to G. E. Valleau, Secretary British American Bank Note Company, from General Manager of the Farmers Bank.

Exhibit 88: Copy of letter dated December 4th, 1906, from Dr. Nesbitt, President, to Robert Noble, Norval.

Q. Mr. Travers wants me to ask you a question whether you remember Wishart being up in Haileybury with quite a number of other people, anxious, as Travers says, for the option to fall down, in which case I suppose he would take it up independently, and if it was not on that occasion you saw his bank book? A. I remember very distinctly the fact that Wishart was up there anxious for the option to fall down, because Mr. Travers' impression was that he was double crossing him. I think Mr. Travers is absolutely right. I went up there at Mr. Travers' request to look after things in his interest and protect him, because Wishart, as I understood from Mr. Travers, had made a promise to come forward with money for that particular payment, I think—Mr. Travers will correct me if I am wrong about this—that Wishart had promised Mr. Travers that he would come forward with money for that particular payment, and Mr. Travers had waited until the last day and last hour for him to do it, and he sent me up to Haileybury to watch things for him and to see Keeley and Jowsey and Wood and see if we could not get some little extension so that it would not be possible for Wishart to throw him, and I went up and I got the thing fixed up anyhow, and Mr. Travers got in ahead of Wishart.

Mr. Commissioner: What you were asked was whether you may not have seen Wishart's bank book at that time and not when the payment became due here? A. My impression is that I saw the bank books at the time the payment came due here. If it is any importance to verify, it should not be hard to have a Commissioner in New York look into the thing and take the evidence, because Wishart can produce his bank books, but that is my impression. I would not swear positively—Mr. Travers asked the question—I would not swear positively that was the time I saw his bank books; my impression is that was the time.

Mr. Hodgins: I may as well say before Dr. Nesbitt goes there is another matter, and that is in relation to that special return which was made in May, I think it was, 1907, and I think the evidence with regard to that is only material so far as the purposes of the commission are concerned, as showing the difference between the amount of the notes actually on hand and the amount of the notes mentioned in the special return. The only question I proposed to ask Dr. Nesbitt about that was whether he knew the amounts of the notes that had been got and that had been pledged? A. I knew nothing at all about the details in that way; I can assure you I knew nothing at all about that; when you get on to the details I knew nothing about it.

Mr. Hodgins: I am not interested as to whether he knew the statement was true or not, because as far as we are concerned, it does not appear to have been correct; but that is the only question I wanted to ask.

---

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Clarkson wishes to make a statement.

---

Mr. G. T. Clarkson, Recalled:

He said: I made a statement here the other day that the World newspaper account had been paid. At the time I believed it had been paid, and Mr. Maclean did too. But a difference arose over the agreement. The payment was not made, and at the present time the account is owing to the bank. I had executed a document, the money was available, I had understood it had been passed over. A disagreement arose between the solicitors as to the terms of the document, and this report which was put in to Mr. Maclean was withdrawn. He is now endeavoring to arrange matters to pay the account; but I wish just to correct the testimony.

The Commission adjourned at 4 P.M. to 11 A.M. tomorrow.
The Commission resumed at 11 a.m., at Osgoode Hall.

GEORGE GUTHRIE, Recalled:

Mr. Hodgins: I just wanted to ask you a question I forgot when you were here before; while these papers were in the detectives' custody did any reporter or editor of any of the papers, daily papers, or evening papers, see them? A. No, sir.

Q. Could they be seen without your knowing it? A. Not unless they would break into my locker which they did not do; at least my locker has never been broken.

Q. You could not account for the circumstantial way in which the documents were described? A. No, I could not.

Q. I think I asked you the last time about the custody of the papers? A. Yes.

Q. Would County Constable Burns be the one who got them if the matter was transferred from the County Judge's Criminal Court to the Assizes? A. He might not, they were not exhibits.

Q. What would become of them? A. I would hand them over to Inspector Duncan and he would hand them over probably to the Crown Attorney.

Q. Who would the Crown Attorney be? A. Mr. Baird was at that time.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What did he hand them over to the Crown Attorney for? A. I do not know unless they would be talking over the cases that would be coming up.

Q. But there was a case founded on these letters? A. No, sir.

Q. What would they be handed to the Crown Attorney for? A. That I could not say; I know they were got from me by Inspector Duncan.

Q. Who is it that leaks from the Police Department about papers or who is your publicity officer? A. Sometimes we would like to know.

Q. You have not anybody? A. Not that we can accuse of that. I might say about them that it was Mr. Clarkson or one of his boys that asked me if I had those papers at that time and I said no. I had them though at the time.

Q. You said no? A. Yes, but I told him I had not.

ROBERT BURNS, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: You are a County constable? A. I am a Provincial constable.

Q. And you I think act in the capacity of clerk to the County Crown Attorney, do you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you or did you get the custody of any of the papers connected with the criminal cases before the County Judge's Court or the Assizes? A. I have done for a number of years.

Q. Who do you get them from? A. From the Police Court clerk, Mr. Arthur Webb.

Q. Are you recognized as the person who gets the papers that have been filed in the Police Court? A. Always have been for a long time.

Q. Are those the only ones filed as Exhibits, filed with the Clerk of the Court? A. I get the papers and I always get possession of any exhibits in reference to any trial where they have been committed for trial.

Q. Do you get anything from the Toronto Detective Office? A. As Exhibits?
Q. As papers connected with the case? A. No. I get everything from Arthur Webb; I get nothing from the Detective Office.

Q. Are you distinguishing between what is marked by the Clerk of the Court as an Exhibit and other papers? A. No, I am not distinguishing any. I am saying that I get all Exhibits from the Police Court Clerk, and that is Arthur Webb, and they are entered in the Police Court Book which I give a receipt for, and this case we are speaking of, I have the Police Court book in my pocket and also my receipt for all the exhibits that were in the Police Court case.

Q. Let us see them? A. (Produces Police Court Clerk’s book).

Q. That is a receipt apparently for certain numbered Exhibits? A. That is it.

Q. Signed with your initials for James Baird, is that the only one? A. That is the only one of Exhibits in any of the cases.

Q. Did you get any other papers which were not marked by the number of the Exhibit? A. No, sir, none whatever.

Q. When you got them you have an office in the City Hall Building, don’t you, where you keep them? A. Detective Guthrie and myself brought those Exhibits over into Mr. Baird’s office, and directly we got them there we both sat down and we went over them and we tabulated them according to these numbers, and Detective Guthrie has some long envelopes, there were some of them similar to this, and the number of the Exhibit was already on them in some of the cases, and also a statement of what was inside the envelope.

Q. Can you throw any light on our inability to find any papers which are connected with the Farmers Bank which were not put in formally as Exhibits? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever have any other than those Exhibits? A. No, I cannot; I can tell exactly what became of all these Exhibits as far as my knowledge is concerned.

Q. We have seen all those? A. We did not examine the insides of the envelopes; we simply tabulated them according to the Exhibit that was there.

MR. HODGINS: I have all those numbered Exhibits.

JAMES P. HAVERSON, Sworn, Examined by—

MR. HODGINS: You are a reporter on the World? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you ever gone through these papers connected with the Farmers Bank prosecution in the hands of the detectives or in the hands of any one else? A. No, sir.

Q. Did any one connected with the World or any other newspaper to your knowledge? A. The Globe printed some letters in connection with it, and I suppose if they were accurate prints of any letters they must have had some sort of access to them. The City Editor of the Globe would be able to tell you how he got that news.

Q. That is your inference from seeing them in the paper, but you do not know anything about that? A. No, except that is what happens on newspapers.

Q. None of the papers which we have been hunting for have come under your notice? A. No papers at all were ever under my notice except any papers that might have lain on Inspector Duncan’s desk when I was in there, and I would not recognize them other than papers that were on his desk, more than seeing Farmers Bank on the outside of some envelope or folder I would not be able to tell anything about them.
Mr. Hodgins: You are a practising barrister here?  A. Yes.
Q. And were a partner of the late Mr. James Baird when he was County Crown Attorney?  A. Yes.
Q. I think during his illness latterly you did some of the work for the Crown?  A. Oh yes, during all the time he was County Crown Attorney.
Q. You conducted one of the prosecutions, perhaps more than one arising out of the Farmers Bank?  A. I think I conducted three before the County Judge.
Q. Do you remember whose those were?  A. Yes. Crompton; he pleaded guilty I think; Munro he was tried before Judge Winchester, and I think Mr. Warren and Mr. Morden in connection with some dealing in regard to the currency of the bank.
Q. But in connection with those prosecutions or as Mr. Baird's partner, did you have possession of any of the papers of the Farmers Bank that were seized by the detectives?  A. I have no doubt that I had all the Exhibits in each one of those three cases.
Q. Did you see any papers other than those numbered and marked as Exhibits?  A. I saw the Exhibits in what we term the conspiracy charge against a lot of them. I saw the papers in that.
Q. They were all marked as Exhibits?  A. I was not in that case, I never examined them closely enough, but I have seen some in Mr. Corley's room. I assisted Mr. Corley in that case in the Police Court at his request, and at that time I saw the Exhibits in that case.
Q. Did you ever see this $3,000 cheque?  A. No, I never heard of it. The fact of the matter is I do not think I recollect ever having seen a Farmers Bank cheque, if it is a Farmers Bank cheque.
Q. Did you get possession of the World file?  A. No. I have never seen them at all.
Q. Do you know whether Mr. Baird's office got possession of any papers or had them in any way?  A. I would be very much surprised to learn that they were ever in his possession, because all the Exhibits in the Farmers Bank that ever came over were brought over through Detective Guthrie and Burns and personally I never procured any other papers direct from Inspector Duncan, and I would be somewhat surprised to learn that Mr. Baird ever had; if he had it was without my knowledge.
Q. Did he take part in the prosecutions himself personally, or did you?  A. In the early part, I do not remember exactly what date, it would be before there were any committals for trial, but I think the time the committals for trial took place Mr. Baird's health was such that he was very rarely in the office; he used to come down to the City Hall once in a while but he did not take any active part.
Q. Would you have anything to do, or you and his office have anything to do with the Assize prosecutions?  A. Not unless, as a matter of fact, I think it was Mr. Staunton prosecuted some of them in the conspiracy charge—the only assistance that I rendered him in that was in the preparation of the indictment. At the time that case came on before the High Court I was then acting for Mr. Baird before the Sessions Court.
Q. What precautions are taken with the papers that are marked as Exhibits or are in the hands of the Crown officers for information which they may or may not make Exhibits?  A. They are kept in the office there. The office is always kept locked, or if it is open it is in the custody of Mr. Burns and he has instructions not to hand out any papers to any person unless he gets permission to do so or gets a receipt.
Q. Does his instructions prevent people seeing the papers? A. It would prevent them seeing them unless Burns was there and watching, and Mr. Burns is very very careful, I have noticed that particularly.

Q. There are no instructions against him letting people see them? A. I do not think he would in a case of this nature, but if it was the case of a person acting on behalf of the accused desiring to see certain documents which would be a matter of necessity for the lawyer to know about, I have no doubt Mr. Burns would allow him to see them.

Q. Mr. Burns says he only has the Exhibits; what about the papers that come into the hands of the Police and the Crown Officers naturally go over them for the purpose of seeing if they are useful? A. Those would most likely arise in this way; when the case, after committal for trial, the Exhibits and the information and the papers would come over, and if there was anything unusual about the case, you would request to see the detective who had charge of it, and then no doubt you would learn from him that there were certain other papers that would be of assistance and he would get them for you.

Q. Then he might have charge of some of the papers not actually marked as Exhibits? A. That is quite usual.

Q. You cannot throw any light on where these papers which have not been marked as Exhibits are, but which we want to get? A. I do not really know which ones you have reference to.

Q. I have referred to that $3,000 cheque? A. There was a letter said to have been written by the Provincial Treasurer. I was aware that there was some correspondence regarding dealings between the Toronto World and the Farmers' Bank and I knew they were there, because Mr. Clarkson either wrote to me or telephoned to me or to Mr. Baird, and I answered him asking for these papers; that would be some time in August or September, 1911; and I told him then that I did not have them; and that was as a result of the investigation I made in the office. I did not see these papers, I had never seen them, although I knew they were in existence. At that time I did ascertain where they were and found they had never been Exhibits. Inspector Duncan told me they were in Detective Guthrie's custody at that time.

Benjamin George Killoran, Sworn. Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: You live in Haileybury? A. Yes.

Q. And you had something to do, I think, with the original sale of the Keeley Mine? A. About the time they were talking of selling it Mr. Phillips came to me for a loan of money, so I gave him $375.

Q. Who is Mr. Phillips? A. He is a mining engineer.

Q. What had he to do with this property? A. He went to the owner, Keeley, Jowsey and Wood and examined it.

Q. Did he have an option on it or was he just an engineer? A. I could not tell you whether he had an option or not, but for my protection I went to the owners of the property, and if any deal would go through I was looking for a 10% commission.

Q. What is that? A. I went to the owners of the property myself and they agreed to give me 10% commission, which they did.

Q. If you sold it? A. If the property went through.

Q. Was there a deal on with Phillips? A. Phillips was negotiating with some people, I do not know who they were.

Q. Were you and Phillips to share the commission? A. Phillips' commission, I do not know whether he got it or not; I cannot say.

Q. Were you and he partners in trying to sell it?
A. I went to the owners; I had not anything to do with Phillips, but I loaned him the money.

Q. Who did you effect a sale to?
A. I did not have anything to do with the sale at all.

Q. I thought you said they paid you a commission?
A. Keeley, Jowsey and Wood paid me a commission.

Q. Who did you sell the property to to earn your commission?
A: They paid me a commission because I went to them and I told them I had loaned some money in order to try and put the deal through.

Q. Did you put the deal through?
A. No.

Q. Who put it through?
A. I could not tell you who.

Q. What was the deal—who bought the property?
A. I could not tell you who bought it.

Q. Who paid for the property?
A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. Do you mean to say you got a commission of 10% on a deal you cannot even tell us anything about; I do not understand you; I thought you told Mr. Thompson here all about the sale and the amount that was paid and what you got?
A. According to the commission I got, it was $300,000 paid.

Q. Who did you get your commissions from?
A. Keeley, Jowsey and Wood.

Q. What did you do to earn your commission?
A. I had lent the money to Mr. Phillips.

Q. How much money?
A. $375.

Q. And your commission amounted altogether to how much?
A. It came through my hands, it was $50,000.

Q. For lending this money to Phillips; is that all you can tell us about the deal?
A. That is pretty near.

Q. Don’t you know who bought the property?
A. No.

Q. Who was to pay you your commissions?
A. The Union Bank.

Q. Under whose orders?
A. Keeley, Jowsey and Wood.

Q. Who was the one you went to when you said you went to the owners?
A. Keeley, Jowsey and Wood.

Q. All three?
A. Yes.

Q. Did they live together?
A. No, they were on the property at the time.

Q. Phillips then was to put the deal through?
A. I could not say.

Q. Is there something you do not want to tell?
A. No; only I have an agreement here in my pocket and I just lived to that.

Q. Do you know what that agreement is; let me see it?
A. (Produces an agreement).

Q. This is between Phillips and you, and you agreed to pay Phillips 50% of all the commissions received by you from the sale of the mining property known as the Keeley-Jowsey-Wood claim H. R.-19; did you pay Phillips 50% of the commissions?
A. Yes, it went to this gentleman. (Produces a letter with a cheque attached.)

Q. To H. D. Graham?
A. Yes.

Q. What had he to do with it?
A. I suppose he was the lawyer that acted until his death.

Q. H. D. Graham was a lawyer at Haileybury?
A. Yes.

Q. Who was he acting for?
A. I understand he was acting for Keeley, Jowsey and Wood.

Q. You wrote to the Union Bank May 20th, 1908: “I hand you herewith agreement signed by Jowsey, Wood and Keeley for payment to me of 10% on the sale of the mining claim to Dr. Beattie Nesbit”—have you that agreement?
A. The agreement I tried to get it, but he said he did not know where it went.

Q. Who?
A. The Union Bank.
Q. You had the agreement? A. He said he made it a practice when the thing was through like that, he was through with it.
Q. You had an agreement which is described here dated 19th May. 1908, between the owners of the property and yourself? A. Yes.
Q. Agreeing to pay you 10% on the sale to Dr. Beattie Nesbitt? A. Yes.
I cannot remember who the agreement was with; it was just for the bank, and it was handed in to the bank.
Q. This is your own letter? A. Yes, it was handed in to the bank by the owners, by Keeley, Jowsey and Wood.
Q. Did you ever see it? A. Well, I heard it read at the time.
Q. The agreement authorized the bank on receipt of payment from the purchaser to put 10% to your credit? A. Yes.
Q. And that is why you send the agreement apparently? A. Yes.
Q. You think Graham was acting for the owners? A. Yes, he was at that time.
Q. Why did you pay him $2,500? A. He was looking after Mr. Phillips' affairs; he was looking after the deal.
Q. Looking after Mr. Phillips' affairs? A. I suppose.
Q. Was he Phillips' lawyer? A. I could not tell you.
Q. Did you owe him anything? A. No.
Q. You just paid it on Phillips' account was it—you were to pay Phillips; did you pay Graham on Phillips' account instead of paying Phillips? A. I was authorized to give it to Mr. Graham.
Q. Was Phillips acting for Beattie Nesbitt or for the owners? A. I could not tell you.
Q. Did he ever tell you who he was acting for? A. No, he did not, not to my knowledge.
Q. At all events he got from you or you paid him or to Graham $15,000, as the commission; did you pay Phillips $15,000? A. Yes, it went through my hands.
Q. You paid him that or the bank paid it for you? A. Yes.
Q. And you say you do not know who he was acting for? A. No, I could tell you who his people were.
Q. Did he never tell you? A. I do not remember; he was busy at the time; he was away pretty nearly all the time until the deal went through; I did not see him at all.
Q. I see there is a provision in this agreement of yours that you were to pay Graham the said 50% commission? A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever run across Dr. Beattie Nesbitt? A. Yes, I met him.
Q. Did you ever try to sell him the property? A. No.
Q. You really had not anything to do with making a sale to him? A. No, all
I had was the owners; if the deal went through the owners were to give me
Q. What did you do with your $15,000, keep it all? A. I did not keep it very long.
Q. Had Phillips any connection with Dr. Beattie Nesbitt? A. I could not tell you.
Q. You might not, but did you suspect, did you think he had? A. Well, I did not know; they went to the property together.
Q. Had you an option on the property from the owners yourself? A. No,
Mr. Hodgins.
Q. Where is Phillips now? A. I think he is in Haileybury.
Q. What is his business, mining engineer? A. Yes, he has followed up that as far as I know of it.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. What was the sale price of the property $300,000? A. I do not know what the sale price was, but according to the commissions that was placed to my credit, it would be $300,000, at 10%.

Mr. Commissioner: When did you first see Phillips about it? A. It would be I should judge two or three months before the deal went through.

Q. What was Phillips doing, interesting men to sell the mine? A. It looked to me that way.

Q. Surely you must have known what he was doing; was he trying to sell to some one? A. He went down to the property and I suppose he examined it and got a report on it and went away.

Q. Was he the man that was trying to sell it and was earning this commis- sion? A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. You did not earn it? A. I thought when I loaned the money—

Q. Loaned the money what for? A. He was reporting on it and apparently to me, trying to get some one interested.

Q. Trying to get somebody to buy? A. Yes.

Q. And you lent him $375 and you and he were to divide the commission if the sale was carried out, is that it? A. Yes, that is about the way.

GEORGE T. CLARKSON, Recalled:

Mr. Commissioner: You prepared a series of statements as to the position of the bank, commencing, the first of them, as of the 30th November, 1906? A. I did.

Q. And then at the end of each year down to December 19th, 1910? A. Yes.

Q. You have placed in front of it a memorandum which explains what these statements are, and how far they are accurate? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that statement correct? A. My memorandum?

Q. Yes? A. Yes, sir, it is.

Q. Then these show that on the 30th November, 1906, there was a deficiency of $45,771.84? A. That is correct.

Q. Is that made up practically of the preliminary expenses? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By the end of the year that had increased to $65,352? A. That is correct.

Q. And by the end of the next year to $221,801? A. Yes.

Q. To the end of 1908 to $591,870? A. Yes.

Q. The end of 1909 $904,536? A. Yes.

Q. The date of the failure of the bank the deficiency was $1,372,686? A. Yes.

Q. I think you put in a statement showing how much the various sources of loss, that is in is it not? A. Yes, that is in there.

Q. Is it not in independently of this? I thought we had a statement showing? A. There is a report I made in the beginning which contains these items with some slight differentials as the result of the evidence as has come out here.

Q. That statement shows what was lost in the running expenses of the bank, assuming they had made no bad debts at all? A. Yes.

Q. That is one item? A. Yes.

Q. Another shows what they had lost in bad debts? A. Yes, there is a summarized account and a detailed account I produced here.

Q. It shows with reasonable accuracy how this large deficiency came about? A. It shows with reasonable accuracy within a few thousand dollars.
Exhibit 89: Statements of affairs December 31st, 1906-7-8-9-10 re Farmers Bank.

Mr. Hodgins: We have a statement book from you, and from time to time we have marked some of the pages in it? A. Yes.

Q. In consequence of any of the evidence that has come out here, is there anything to bring it up? A. There are a few thousand dollars, and I changed the last page in that book to agree with this (the last page of 63 to agree with Exhibit 89).

Q. There is no substantial difference? A. No.

Q. We can say these figures are correct to date? A. Approximately; it comes within about seven or eight thousand dollars; if it had come within $20,000 I should have been satisfied, but it is closer than that. I do not know that you got this account in as an Exhibit; for instance the operating losses.

Mr. Commissioner: I thought that was put in.

Mr. Hodgins: Point out the pages.

Mr. Commissioner: That book is in? A. There are pages; and this morning I withdrew that last page and substituted this other.

Mr. Hodgins: Page 111 of Exhibit 63, owing to what has transpired in the course of the evidence, you have made some corrections? A. I have made some corrections and they may reflect a little bit on these prior accounts preceding; for instance this $87,000 organization expenses, it will appear in here as $96,000, the difference arises out of that explanation as to the Menzie note transaction.

Q. That makes the unexplained deficiency? A. $7,700.

W. R. TRAVERS, Recalled by—

Mr. Hodgins: In reference to the evidence of the witness Killoran, do you know anything about Phillips? A. J. B. Phillips?

Q. Yes? A. Yes, I know him very well.

Q. With whom was he acting in connection with the Keeley Mine? A. He was the go-between for Dr. Nesbitt and the owners.

Q. In whose interest was he acting? A. He was acting for Nesbitt I should say.

Q. Did he acquire any interest in the Keeley Mine after the deal went through? A. He certainly did. I was astonished to hear just now that he had got commission on both sides.

Q. What did he get from the side of the purchaser, Dr. Nesbitt? A. He got 110,000 shares of stock, if I remember right.

Q. He got that from out of Dr. Nesbitt's or out of whose? A. He got that out of Nesbitt's stock, or the stock that stood in Nesbitt's name.

Q. How long did he retain it? A. I think it is standing in his name now.

Mr. Clarkson: The bank sold it out and bought it in. A. They could not sell it; it is under pool.

Mr. Hodgins: Since the failure.

Q. You say you were surprised to learn he got commission from the owners as well? A. I was.

Q. Did you regard him as representing Dr. Nesbitt or the mine purchasers in any confidential sense? A. I did not; to show the truth of that I would not settle with him until he brought suit or threatened suit for his stock through a Mr. Douglass in the city and Nesbitt advised the transferring of these shares to him.

Q. What did he sue the bank for? A. He claimed $200,000.
Q. On what basis? A. As the agent for the purchase of the property.
Q. As agent for Dr. Beattie Nesbitt so to speak in purchasing the property?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he claim he had a bargain with Dr. Nesbitt to get that amount?
A. Yes.
Q. How much did you finally give him? A. $110,000.
Q. As a compromise? A. Yes.
Q. On Dr. Beattie Nesbitt's advice? A. Yes, absolutely.
Q. Was it on his report the property was bought, the mining engineer? A. Yes, I relied on his report as far as the interest I took in it.
Q. How were you informed about Phillips, did Dr. Beattie Nesbitt tell you?
A. Dr. Nesbitt introduced me to him as he told here yesterday in the Rossin House and Nesbitt had a brief report of the mine together with samples of ore, and that is the way it started.
Q. Was he employed to investigate the property? A. I understood at that time that he was sent by the owners, that he had arranged with the owners to dispose of the property; that is the way I looked upon it and I thought it was a matter as between Nesbitt and Phillips, and it was a long time afterwards before I found out that Phillips was entitled to any commission in it whatever.
Q. So far as you were concerned you thought he was acting for the owners? A. Yes, between the owners and Nesbitt I did not know what the position was exactly.
Q. You did not deem that there was any commission coming to him? A. I certainly was surprised when I heard that to-day.
Q. Commission coming to him from Nesbitt? A. I thought in the end Nesbitt had made a deal with him and Dr. Nesbitt said yesterday that I agreed to give that commission; his memory is at fault; I never promised anything of the sort.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What was his statement, that you agreed to it or you consented? A. His statement was at the Rossin House meeting that I had told Phillips that I would give him a commission.
Q. Oh, yes; that you had volunteered that? A. Yes.
MR. HODGINS: When you first met him you thought he was acting as a go-between between the owners and Dr. Nesbitt? A. Yes, I thought Nesbitt had employed him in connection with the deal or the owners had; I did not make inquiries.
Q. When did you learn what his real position was with regard to Nesbitt? A. At the time that the $110,000 of stock was transferred; the books will show that.
Q. The property was introduced, and then there was a payment of $50,000 and there was another payment of $50,000; how soon did you learn what Phillips' interest was? A. As soon as the joint stock company was formed Phillips dropped as far as I was concerned completely out of it; I never heard of him until the time that he applied for a commission.
Q. He dropped out? A. Yes, and never heard anything more about Phillips whatever.
Q. He cropped up before the second company was formed, the Keeley Mines Limited? A. No, I do not think the records will show that; I do not think he showed his hand till the new company was formed and a deal was under way to dispose of some of the stock.
Q. That was the Keeley Mines Ltd? A. Yes.
Q. And he showed his hand and came in and claimed? A. Then a Mr. Douglass, a lawyer, called in and said to me he wanted that stock transferred forthwith and I said I did not know anything about it.
Q. You did not know he was getting commission from the other side and did not learn it till yesterday? A. I had heard hints of it, but I never knew it to be the fact till to-day.

Q. At the time you settled with him, had you any idea he had got a commission? A. I had not; he denied it point blank.

Q. Have you gone over as you promised to go over the list of people that got loans at the early stages of the bank, having got wind of what has been done down in Ottawa? A. I went carefully over the books for two or three hours in Mr. Clarkson's office and I have made up a list, but I feel I ought to modify what I have said the other day in answer to the question whether the loans were made because I was afraid of their using the knowledge that they had. I can hardly say that to-day, but I can simply say that certain loans were made through the request of people who were intimately associated with me.

Q. What was that again? A. I say I can only say to-day that certain loans were made through the influence of people who were associated with me in the early stages such as Nesbitt and some others. I would not like to say now under oath, after going through the books that I actually made those because I was afraid of the people exposing anything.

Q. What reason had you for making them? A. Well, the reason I gave; I thought it would not be well to quarrel with them.

Q. What reason do you give now for making them? A. Simply acceded to their request, thinking it was well to be friendly.

Q. Do you mean to say now there was not a suspicion of fear? A. I cannot look on it in that light.

Q. Why did you look on it in that light the other day? A. I thought some loans that were made subsequently might have been, but perhaps I spoke a little too quickly the other day.

Q. It is not the sort of thing that any one would ever say if they did not mean it I should think? A. I can only just answer you as I feel now, and that is my feeling now, and I am put on oaths, and I can hardly say I made those loans, such loans as I have made a list of through fear of exposure.

Q. What was the actuating cause? A. I just explained to you; the reason was, that, take Nesbitt for instance, he insisted or requested me to make a certain loan on which I think we lost considerable money; the early association influenced me to do it.

Q. What do you mean by the early association? A. At the organization of the bank.

Q. That is a very different thing, lending it because Dr. Nesbitt was associated with you and lending it because you were afraid somebody would make use of the knowledge? A. Quite so; that is exactly the position I take to-day, that I say I will have to modify that and say I do not say now that I made it through fear.

Q. There was no knowledge that Dr. Nesbitt could make use of without involving himself? A. He said yesterday he knew nothing about the original transactions of the bank and I say he did absolutely, that he knew all about them.

Q. What are the aggregate of these loans you made up? A. I do not know how it has turned out; I only made a list here with a few notations of losses but I really think it would not be well to publish these peoples' names.

Q. I ask you for the aggregate of the loans first? A. There is about $40,000 of loans I think have turned out losses.

Q. How soon after the organization of the bank did you make these loans? A. They commenced within a few days, some of them, spread over a few months over the early part of the bank.

Q. Have they been paid or are they losses? A. No, they are losses, I do not know exactly; Mr. Clarkson could answer that; there is a loss I think of $10,
Q. What attitude do you take about those? A. I take this attitude, that after going over these loans for me to say that I made those loans through fear of him exposing the original transactions of the bank I can hardly think it would have been fair to publish these names although I prepared the list.

Q. What have you made up your mind to do about the $3,000? A. I have thought that over very seriously and worried very much over it, but I do not feel disposed to change my attitude and make it public.

Q. Do you think you are justified in refusing to disclose that name and also to say that you do not think these names should be made public and I suppose that involves a refusal to give up those names? A. I have a list of the names of the loans that were made, but as for the other matter I looked upon it as a private matter and I do not feel disposed. I do not see it can do any good; if I could I would do so. As for the loans, after my statement here it will be a matter for Mr. Commissioner to say what he likes about those.

Q. What position do you take about the names? A. There are some of them I do not care anything about and there are others I think it will only cause them to rise up and say it is untrue and all the rest of it and I do not see it will do any good. Some of them I do not mind. There is the Gas and Electric Power Co., I will give you that: we lost $8,000 over that: Dr. Nesbitt was silent partner in that; am I right in that?

Mr. Clarkson: As to the loss, yes. A. There was a Poole Publishing Co., we lost $10,000 in that, that is Lindsay's doings. I do not mind those being published; but there are some other ones.

Q. You have given us the names of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and Lindsay as being responsible for lending those two; who was the responsible for your lending the others if you say it was through associations? A. I will have to take that responsibility on myself.

Q. You drew a conclusion that in these cases where no one else was responsible—? A. One man on here whose name I do not wish to mention I asked him to be a director, and I thought it was only fair to tell him the original history, because I knew he would find it out when he got on the Board, and I do not think we ought to publish his name. I think there is some big amount that is still owing upon that.

Q. Did he decline to go on the board? A. Well, he made up his mind to go on at first and afterwards declined, yes.

Q. And in the interim did he get a loan? A. Yes, he got several loans.

Q. And has not paid them? A. I do not think, Mr. Clarkson might look at the second name.

Mr. Clarkson: No, that is not paid; that is compromised. We took a settlement; and took over certain real estate, and we will lose four to six thousand dollars on that.

Mr. Hodgins: Then with regard to what others do you name anybody, you said it was through your associations that you loaned—? A. We lost a large amount of money through Mr. W. H. Hunter and the Graphite Co., that is another name on there; that has all been brought out here before; and the third name will you look at that third name, did not you lose something on that?

Mr. Clarkson: $6,000.

Mr. Hodgins: I do not want any names published that will embarrass the liquidator on realizing? A. No, very likely it would.

Q. Because it is absolutely necessary he should have every chance to get all he can; there is no use investigating it at the expense of the shareholders.

Mr. Commissioner: Is that a personal liability of Mr. Hunter?
MR. CLARKSON: No, sir, it is a company liability. There was a time I think when it was a personal liability? A. At first it was.

MR. CLARKSON: At first, and then it was formed into a corporation, and we only hold the corporate liability now.

MR. COMMISSIONER: For how much?

MR. CLARKSON: $88,000.

MR. HODGINS: Have you given Mr. Clarkson all the information you can regarding these loans so that he may have an opportunity of realizing upon them if possible? A. I think I have been frank all through with Mr. Clarkson in every matter all the way through.

MR. CLARKSON: That is perfectly true; Mr. Travers has given me every information. A. I have told him even some things that he has agreed not to make public here.

MR. HODGINS: I do not want to ask for the names if it is going to affect the realization of the assets? A. Mr. Clarkson thought that.

Q. It should not embarrass the liquidator? A. That is the way the liquidator felt with me when we were discussing the matter, when I went over those.

Q. The other matter as to the $3,000, is that the only payment you made improperly; you have spoken of that individually as if it was the only money you parted with? A. You brought that up in connection with those cheques from Ottawa, and I fell into your trap because the same question had been asked before and that is why I dwell on that one.

Q. Are there any others that you have not dwelt on that you ought to disclose? A. No; I take the responsibility myself for anything else.

Q. There are some others, does that mean? A. I heard some evidence here that I do not agree with but I do not wish to say anything more.

Q. You are putting yourself and putting me in rather an unpleasant position; I think you should disclose that? A. I would like to, but I have made up my mind that I do not care to do it; I did feel once as I would like to have given the Commissioner the information privately and Mr. Thompson said he did not think he would receive it that way; and I thought it over again and I do not care to make it public.

Q. I suppose you are willing to take the consequences? A. I will have to take the consequences; I have been taking them all along. I do not shift any of the responsibility off my own shoulders; I should have acted entirely differently but still—

Q. I think I should ask the Commissioner to consider what is the proper course to take. A. I am quite satisfied to put myself in the hands of the Commissioner.

MR. COMMISSIONER: You see it is your duty to answer these questions and your refusal to answer them would warrant me in committing you till you do answer them? A. Yes, I quite understand that, but I do not think you would advise any longer sentence for me than I am now getting.

Q. But if you remained in contempt, that is the term that the law applies to it, until you purge yourself of your contempt; I suppose it would mean you would remain; would not it be better to tell it now and be done with it? A. I cannot change my mind on that point; it would only lead to a good deal of trouble and it would not do the slightest bit of good.

Q. A good many people are suffering as the result of the failure of this bank; would not it be well that they should know everybody to whom blame is attachable; you have received and I have received some very pitiful letters about the condition in which people have been left? A. Quite true; I dare say some people have suffered, but they are very much exaggerated; while the loss is very severe to these people, even a very small amount of deposits in the bank, they were not the complete savings of all these people; they were largely drawn by deposits from other banks where people had money, left part of the money in the other bank behind them; however, the suffering is very great, and nobody feels it more than I do.

Q. You said something a moment ago; you dropped an observation a moment ago that may reflect upon a witness and does reflect upon some witness, is that fair? You have indicated a witness has stated something that is not the fact. We have had witnesses here who have come to free themselves from suspicions; you are casting suspicions—do you think it is fair you should leave Mr. Calvert in that position? A. I am sorry that I spoke generally, but I would rather not answer any question about it at all, if you will allow me. I do not like to start on it at all.

Q. I fancy, I do not want to persuade you, but I fancy there will be a good deal of bitterness, on the part of those who have suffered, from your refusal to answer, and are there not some charges that may yet be laid against you? A. I do not know, they have not pushed some of them. I think they took the criminal code and struck out murder, arson and rape; and then indicted me for all the rest; so that I think there is plenty of room for them to bring on some more.

Mr. Hodgins: I supposed it has not occurred to you that you ought to do your very best if money has been paid improperly to help to get that back for the sake of the shareholders; do you realize that the shareholders have not only lost what they have put in, but they will have to pay their double liability, and that the depositors won't get anything? A. I realize that thoroughly and feel it deeply, but in answering the question that you ask it would not assist the shareholders nor the depositors one iota that I can see.

Mr. Commissioner: If men have got money for improper purposes and they are worth it, it can be got back again? A. That depends; a bargain as between myself and another party, I cannot say you can look upon it as an improper one, can you?

Q. It depends upon what it was? A. I certainly paid no money out whatever in influencing the Finance Minister or anybody in his Department; that is as far as I care to go.

THOMAS S. LYON, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: What is your position? A. Associate Editor of the Globe.

Q. Was it the same a couple of years ago? A. No, I was News Editor two years ago.

Q. We have been doing our best to ascertain the whereabouts of some papers that we cannot find; I have called the detectives and the Crown Officers and so on, and from something that appeared in your paper, I judge that some one connected with your staff had a very accurate knowledge of some of the documents which have been produced in this investigation which were not exhibits in the Police Court or any other Court; I would like to know if you can tell me how access was had to the papers if I am right in my assumption that some one from your office must have seen them? A. I had access to the papers myself. About a year ago, I think it was, when the preliminary hearing against Lindsay took place, some one came to the office, the name I cannot carry.

Q. Against Lindsay? A. Yes, I thought against Travers at first. Some one came to the office and told me that among these papers which had been in Court but which had not been made exhibits in the case, there were some things that might show a reason why Dr. Beattie Nesbitt was allowed to leave the country. I was interested. I took occasion when the hearing was resumed to go up to the City Hall. I saw Mr. Clarkson. Mr. Victor Ross of our staff phoned Mr. Clarkson and asked him about these papers. He said that they were in his custody for the purposes of the liquidation not for the purpose of the law, but that for the purposes of the law access could be had to them at any time by the officers of the Crown. Mr. Clarkson came in to see me a few days afterwards, and we discussed the thing at some length and he on that occasion said that he had no personal knowledge that these particular papers were to be found on the files of the bank. I described the papers to him as I had a description, one of them being the letter that has since been published, by Mr. Travers to Colonel Matheson. On Mr. Clarkson’s refusal to give me access to the papers I went up to the City Hall and in the Detective’s office there before the hearing of the Lindsay case began these papers were on the desk. I discussed the matter with Inspector Duncan, not having special reference to these papers in the first case, but to the case generally. I found Mr. Duncan distinctly annoyed at the course followed in the case. He felt that he had been used rather roughly in being sent to Muskoka on what he regarded as a fool’s errand at the time of the issue of the warrant against Dr. Beattie Nesbitt; he therefore talked rather more freely than possibly a detective ought to have talked to me, but in any event, in the course of the conversation he referred to this file of letters, and looking over his shoulder I saw these papers, that particular file.

Q. Looking over his shoulder? A. Yes.
Q. He was going through them? A. He was looking at them.
Q. You just happened to look over? A. Yes, I just happened to look over.
Q. And you took a copy? A. No, I carried it in my memory.
Q. Did you ever see this $3,000 cheque that we want to get at or any letter from Colonel Matheson? A. No, I swear positively that these papers were not on that file at that time.
Q. Were you long in the office going over them? A. Twenty minutes.
Q. And did you take any of them away? A. No, sir.
Q. And you did not make any use of your knowledge of those papers at that time? A. No, not for a considerable time afterwards.
Q. Not I judge till the article I speak of appeared during the progress of this investigation? A. Yes, sir. I felt these papers ought to become public property in some way.
Q. Those papers had nothing to do with the Lindsay charge? A. That I know nothing of; they were certainly there to be used in the Court that day. In some way or another they were brought in case they should be used.
Q. Had you telephoned the detectives to say you would like to see them? A. No, I think it was done in another way. We have a police man. I do not know just how I arranged, but I knew the papers were coming up that day; there was no collusion between me and Duncan; I do not want you to think that at all.
Q. You were just using the fact that Lindsay trial was coming up as an excuse to get those papers up there? A. No. I was not prime agent in moving that those papers come up there, not at all.
Q. You seem to have been? A. No. Well, I say I knew what was in the papers, I wanted to see them, but they were up there for the purposes of the Court; I did not induce the detective to bring those papers up for my purposes.
Q. I thought that was the inference; you had a Police Court man up there, I thought the inference was you suggested to him to ask the detectives to get these up from Mr. Clarkson? A. No, it was the knowledge that this case was coming; that was the thing that took me up to the City Hall that day.
Q. The Lindsay case had no possible connection with these papers in any shape or form? A. If they brought them up they did not bring them up specially at my definite request that I should see them.
Q. The inspiration came from you? A. Put it that way. I am quite content it should rest that way.
Q. Through your Police Court man? A. One cannot recall every detail of a transaction like that a year afterwards, but I knew the papers would be there and I wanted to see them. I do not know why they were brought; there must have been some excuse for bringing them, you know, some excuse of the Court for bringing them.

Q. I know the particulars of the Lindsay charge, and I confess that I cannot see the slightest possible connection between those letters and the Lindsay charge? A. In that case my actions as prime mover must have been more effective than I had any idea. I want to add that the first information did not come in any sense from the Detective Office; I want to free them entirely of any suspicion that they volunteered information to me; that is not the case. I do not carry in my memory the name of the man who spoke to me, but I think it was the proprietor of one of the city newspapers gave me the first idea of the thing.

Q. You appear to have acted as an irritant on the second occasion? A. Yes, possibly.

Q. I suppose you really went there intending to see the papers? A. Yes, I went,—

Q. And used that ruse with Inspector Duncan to get him talking? A. No question.

Mr. Commissioner: We have been told that the papers were in an envelope; did you see them in that position? A. No, sir, on the file when I saw them.

Q. What do you mean by a file? A. Gathered together with a clip on them.

Q. Did you go through them. how were you able to see that letter from Colonel Matheson was not there unless you went through the file, A. The file was turned over in my presence and I was looking at it.

Q. What was it turned over for? A. To find that letter of Travers to Matheson.

Q. In order that you might see it? A. Undoubtedly.

Q. That is the way you are able to say the other letter was not there? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: I think that is all the evidence I have to present.

Mr. Commissioner: What do you say about the refusal of Travers to answer?

Mr. Hodgins: I think Travers ought to answer the question if for no other ground than the possibility that the money may be recovered back, and I think that you ought to consider, Mr. Commissioner, whether you have the power, and in the second place if you have the power whether it should not be exercised, because if not, the result is that he has declined to answer the questions and will expect to come out as soon as his sentence is served. I think he ought to realize that he ought to make such public restitution as he can in the matter by making disclosure before he can be said to have served out his sentence. I admit it is somewhat unusual; he has the advantage of being in a position where he can safely in the meantime say that he won't answer it; it may be that if you did exercise your powers he might reconsider it and think before he comes out it would be better to be frank. It is one of the worst failures I suppose a bank has ever made and one would really like to know how it came about.

Mr. Commissioner: Perhaps you had better ask him some further questions to see if he answers them, and see if it is really relevant to the enquiry, how these moneys were used without giving the names, what they were used for.

Mr. Hodgins: Very well.
W. R. TRAVERS, Recalled by—

MR. HODGINS: Will you indicate that, Mr. Travers? A. I could not do that without telling everything about it. How can I do that?

Q. Does that mean that they were used in such a way as you do not care to disclose the way they were used because that necessarily implicates somebody? A. Well, be the consequences what they may, I do not feel disposed to go into a few thousand dollars that I paid out to friends of mine to assist me in various ways.

MR. COMMISSIONER: From something you said it occurred to me that possibly your idea was that there would be your statement on the one side and a denial on the other? A. Absolutely there would be.

Q. In all these cases? A. Yes, sir; they certainly would deny and also friends of these people would be very savage with me.

Q. Have you no corroboration on your side of the story if you were telling it? A. The only one was that cheque; if they had not lost that cheque it might have been different.

Q. All that had upon it to ear mark it was the letter “C”? A. There would have been some other things in connection with it if the cheque had been here that I would have opened out on.

Q. Where is that cheque gone? A. I could not tell you.

Q. Whose interest was it that it should disappear? A. I could not answer that.

Q. Without telling what you do not want to tell? A. I could not. I saw the cheque, the cheque was in my hands, one of the first things Inspector Duncan noticed he brought it in front of me right away, and he says “I know what that was for” and he stumbled not on the right track but very close to it, and that is why I have such a strong recollection of the cheque being in my hands.

Q. And there is no question of the other letter? A. I had that letter in my hands since I have been in the position I am in now, I have it more than once.

Q. Would there be any connection between the two in a common desire to have both out of the way; would the person who wanted the one out of the way want the other out of the way? A. No, sir; the cheque had nothing to do with Colonel Matheson whatever.

Q. The other way on, that is one side of it; would the man who was interested in having the $3,000 cheque out of the way want the other one out of the way? A. I do not think so.

MR. HODGINS: If you saw the cheque and Inspector Duncan saw it if it were produced here you say you would open it out on some other things? A. There are certain incidents that the cheque would bring out that I do not see I could get away from answering them, and the cheque is not here, and not from any fault of mine.

Q. Who was it payable to? A. That I cannot tell, without telling you everything.

Q. Would Duncan know? A. I do not know if he remembers it or not.

Q. You said he made a pretty close guess? A. He was here, you were questioning him the other day; I heard his evidence and you had the opportunity of asking him that; I don’t think you did that.

MR. COMMISSIONER: We did not know what you have just told.

MR. HODGINS: I had your evidence as I understood it that the cheque was payable to yourself; perhaps you will tell me that? A. I don’t care, there is no use my going into it, because if I go into it I have to make a free hand of it, and I do not feel disposed to do so at present.

Q. I want to test what you mean by saying if the cheque was here you would go into certain things, and not if the cheque was not here; what difference does it make? A. Exactly what I said.
Q. The form has something to do? A. There are certain marks on the cheque, I do not remember just what they were, that would probably have to be answered.

Q. Having seen it, you say you saw it in Detective Duncan's hands, he showed it to you and said he knew what that was for? A. Duncan showed me the cheque and said, "you gave that to so-and-so", and I said "no", and on more than one occasion he brought the matter before me and then the cheque disappeared.

Q. Was that cheque there on the two occasions in Duncan's office where he examined you when Fitzgibbon was present? A. That cheque was in the possession of the police until the papers were handed over to Mr. Lynch-Staunton because I have the strongest recollection of seeing that in the office of the Crown Attorney when Mr. Lynch-Staunton was there.

Q. In whose possession? A. Mr. Saunton brought me up one afternoon to go over the papers with him and there was any number of papers there and I went through all these papers to see what assistance I could give him, and I saw that letter there at that time and I saw the cheque.

Q. In whose office? A. Mr. Baird's office.

Q. In whose custody? A. I could not say that.

Q. You went in there? A. They were on Mr. Baird's desk. Mr. Staunton was sitting at Mr. Baird's desk, and I went over the papers with him there.

Q. Was Mr. Baird there? A. No.

Q. Was Mr. Saunton using his room? A. Yes.

Q. And all these were spread out on the table before him. A. There was any number of papers there and they were sorting out certain papers they wanted.

Q. Who was sorting out? A. Mr. Staunton and myself and I think either Guthrie or Murray.

Q. We have not heard Murray's name mentioned? A. When Mr. Guthrie said this morning he did not remember about it, I was thinking the matter over and I remember one time I was in charge of Mr. Murray and it might have been that time I speak of.

Q. When was that, do you remember? A. That would be about this time last year.

Q. Mr. Lynch-Staunton had to prosecute somebody and then he did not do so and turned them over to some one else? A. I understood he took the papers home with him and handed them over to Mr. Guthrie off the train at the Union Station.

Q. Whose prosecution was that that they were to be used in? A. That was Stratton and Warren and some others; I do not remember just which. I spent fully an hour or two with Mr. Staunton with those papers. I cannot say whether Mr. Saunton noticed those particular papers or not; I did not say anything about them, because I knew there was considerable talk about it.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Did you leave before Mr. Staunton left the room, did you leave him there? A. Yes, I left Mr. Staunton there.

Q. With the papers? A. Yes, they were all scattered over the desk; there was nearly a basket full of them and we had some trouble in sorting out the necessary papers for the trial.

MR. HODGINS: My information is that the liquidator is unable to find any trace of something like $13,000; would the other sums you have mentioned total up to about that? A. They might, I do not know.

Q. I certainly gathered the impression from what you said that no cheque of yours would ever show anything? A. My cheque would show if we had them; if my cheques had not disappeared they would have shown $15,000 to one man alone.
Q. Which has not been mentioned? A. No, it has not been mentioned. I think Mr. Clarkson can see by the ledger where certain amounts are charged to me and credited to somebody else the same day.

Q. It seems to me you are only emphasizing what I said before that it is your duty to make disclosure so that the liquidator may have the opportunity—A. I have assisted the liquidator in all those points, he knows that.

Q. There will be nothing like public disclosure to get that money repaid or assist in it? A. They may have a chance yet, it looks that way if the money is collectable.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Does Mr. Clarkson know that $15,000?

MR. CLARKSON: No, I do not know the name, sir. I think what Mr. Travers means is this, that in any questions I have asked Mr. Travers he has always been very free.

MR. COMMISSIONER: He says that on a particular day he is charged with $15,000? A. Not $15,000, I did not say $15,000 in one particular day; I said there were certain amounts, one amount I think is about six or seven thousand dollars that I remember.

Q. Charged to you? A. Yes, and credited to another party.

MR. CLARKSON: I do not recall any particular person? A. When we went over that suit you are bringing in New York now, and I opened out and I told you that when you got into that—

MR. CLARKSON: You mean that Wishart thing? A. Yes.

Q. You told me about Wishart.

MR. HODGINS: Wishart got this money? A. Yes.

MR. CLARKSON: Travers has always told me that Wishart got a substantial amount from him.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What was that for? A. Loans to him.

Q. What was on the other side? A. Nothing.

Q. You did not give thousands for nothing? A. I was very liberal, an easy mark.

Q. Why in this case? A. I do not know; I think I must have been crazy; that is the only thing I can think of.

MR. HODGINS: You must have known at the time why you gave him that $15,000? A. I gave him money whenever he wanted it.

Q. He had some hold on you or you would not have done that? A. I am sorry he did not appear here; I understood there were negotiations under way to have him appear; I am sorry he did not turn up.

Q. You are not doing much to supply his absence? A. What good will it do? I cannot remember the amounts. I remember that one. I would like to have heard what he has to say here first and then perhaps we might have proved something.

Q. He had every opportunity to come here and he would probably have to stand his trial? A. He published his story in the papers.

Q. You indicate $15,000 was paid to him improperly? A. Probably $20,000.

Q. Improperly? A. Yes, I think we will be able to prove that.

Q. Either for some hold he had on you or some improper purpose? A. Yes, absolutely.

Q. Will you tell us what it was? A. No. I am not going any further than that just now.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Don't you think you had better have Mr. Dewart here? Mr. Hodgins has made what I understand to be a formal motion to make an order to commit you to close custody until you answer questions which he has put to you; don't you think it would be well to have Mr. Dewart here when we resume or as soon as possible? A. I do not think that I need any counsel for that; if you feel disposed to do that I must take my punishment.
Q. You will change your mind some day? A. I may change my mind, I wouldn't say I wouldn't, and I am very sorry indeed to refuse you.

Q. Do you want it to be understood that this is loyalty to the man or the men that you had dealings with? A. I do, indeed. I think I gave my word of honour that come what may I would never disclose and I do not feel disposed now to go back on it.

The Commission adjourned at 1 P.M. to 2 P.M.

The Commission resumed at 2 P.M., June 28th, 1912.

Mr. Hodgins: I asked Mr. Dewart to come up, although Mr. Travers said he did not want any one.

Mr. Commissioner: (To Mr. Dewart). Mr. Hodgins sent for you he says in consequence of something that he says occurred this morning, as you are acting for Mr. Travers. Some questions have been put to him as to a cheque for $3,000, the person to whom it was paid and as to other moneys that were paid out, the bank's moneys improperly to other persons. He has declined to make any statement and says with regard to some at all events, if not all of them, that he promised he would not disclose. Mr. Hodgins has made an application to commit him for contempt in declining to answer, and I suppose the object is that you may be here to know what is going on.

Mr. H. H. Dewart, K.C.: Very well; do I understand that Mr. Hodgins is pressing the motion to commit for contempt now?

Mr. Commissioner: He has made the motion.

Mr. Dewart: As far as Mr. Travers is concerned I understand that this $3,000 was up for consideration some time ago and Mr. Travers asked to have an opportunity to consult me and he did so, and asked me what his duty was in reference to it. I told him that if the payment of the money or any other money related to questions in connection with the organization of the bank, or the payment to anybody in connection with the organization or with the securing of the certificate or any payment of a character that affected the solvency of the bank as regards some other person being a payment made improperly to another person, that it was his absolute duty to answer it; but he declined to tell me who the money had been paid to and I do not know. I say that with the utmost frankness, because he has never indicated to me, but he assured me that this had nothing to do with any of the lines that I had directed his attention to.

Mr. Commissioner: He has made the statement on oath that it went to nobody in connection with the issue of the certificate, no one in the Department or connected with the Finance Department, he has limited it to that.

Mr. Dewart: I did not understand him to have so limited his statement. I understood him to say it had no connection with the granting of the certificate, and as having been his counsel in the previous proceedings, although perhaps I am not in the same position now as his counsel, yet I felt that having acted for him before when he asked for my advice, I should under all circumstances give him such advice as I could; and he has pleaded guilty to the taking of certain sums and to the full responsibility to the taking of those sums; if those were personal matters of his own I did not feel as counsel I could advise him to go into the details further.

Mr. Commissioner: In what sense personal?

Mr. Dewart: If he had used moneys for his own personal benefit.

Mr. Commissioner: It may be so, but I do not understand him to suggest that.
Mr. Dewart: I must confess I so understand the matter and I thought under those circumstances he might not fairly not further be put upon the torture rack of going into the details of what he had done with the moneys he got.

Mr. Commissioner: Did you understand that, Mr. Hodgins?

Mr. Hodgins: No, he never made any suggestion of that kind.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not know that anything would be gained; he has been asked about money he put into various things, the place at Maitland and the horses and that sort of thing and he has answered as to that; he has not suggested there were loans made to friends but he has given the impression to me at all events that they were sums improperly withdrawn from the bank and paid out for some other corrupt purpose.

Mr. Dewart: I did not so understand the evidence from anything I saw or from what Mr. Travers said to me; I did not understand there was any suggestion he had made any of these payments for corrupt purposes, and rather he took the responsibility of having made those payments, although he may have withdrawn the money improperly from the bank, but there was no suggestion of its being withdrawn for an improper purpose as far as the bank's business is concerned; that is the position he has steadfastly taken with me.

Mr. Commissioner: He has left one matter in a very unsatisfactory state for one man that has been examined here, examined twice; he came for the purpose of denying that he had anything to do with the $8,000 cheque; and some statements have been made by Mr. Travers to-day that seem to indicate that he would contradict that statement if his lips were not sealed; he has not said so in terms, but if it is not so in justice to the gentleman who was examined yesterday it ought to be so said, I think.

Mr. Dewart: I understood that Mr. Travers—I don't know what he said to-day, but my learned friend was good enough to give me an opportunity of looking over the evidence and I did so; it was rather voluminous and I must confess I do not remember finding anything that indicated that there was any suggestion on his part that any of these payments were made corruptly.

Mr. Hodgins: What did he mean by saying it was not paid to anybody in or connected with the Finance Department?

Mr. Dewart: My learned friend will readily understand that there might be other reasons for limiting this statement; he did not want to go into the details of his own personal affairs.

Mr. Hodgins: This is the third or fourth time it has come up and I am quite sure he has had every opportunity of making an explanation to remove the impression he undoubtedly created, so much so that a witness who was here yesterday said he had not participated in it.

Mr. Commissioner: That was not in consequence of anything Travers said; that was in consequence of something that appeared in the World.

Mr. Dewart: I did not understand him to refer to Mr. Calvert.

Mr. Commissioner: But to-day the thing is left in such a position that any man who was an enemy of Mr. Calvert might say he indicated if he could speak he would deny what was said yesterday.

Mr. Dewart: I think I understood Mr. Travers to say that if any question was put to him as to whether the $3,000 cheque had gone to any particular individual he was quite prepared to answer it, and if there is any such question put now it is for Mr. Travers to say if he is prepared to answer that.

Mr. Hodgins: If you are suggesting that this was a perfectly personal matter of his own that is an idle suggestion. The suggestion was that this was used in connection with the certificate, and to say any one could possibly know all his private affairs and ask for A. B. and C. is absurd.

Mr. Dewart: I have not the remotest idea to whom the cheque was given, but Mr. Travers told me that if a specific question was put to him with reference to certain persons—as I understand the particular object of Mr. Hodgins question now is the fact that some person has said certain things and, as the Commissioner says, unless that is contradicted it might reflect upon somebody—

MR. COMMISSIONER: No, not what that gentleman said, but that something that Travers said to-day may lead people to think that he would if his lips were unsealed, contradict that statement. Mr. Calvert came here yesterday and swore he had got no money directly or indirectly; he had nothing to do with the $3,000 cheque. Mr. Hodgins was discussing the cheque with the witness, and he made an observation that led me to think at all events that he insinuated that that statement was not true; he did not use any person's name, but it is so easy to hurt a man by innuendo.

MR. DEWART: I do not know, I have had no opportunity of seeing Mr. Travers.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Would you care to confer with him?

MR. TRAVERS: Would not you allow me, Mr. Commissioner, to rectify that. I think there is a misunderstanding, because I never intended any such thing. I do not wish you to infer that Mr. Calvert was not telling the truth yesterday. If I did so, I certainly did not intend to do so.

W. R. TRAVERS, Recalled:—

MR. COMMISSIONER: What do you say about that $3,000? A. I did not pay it to Mr. Calvert, no.

Q. Had Mr. Calvert directly or indirectly anything to do with the cheque or the receipt of the proceeds of it? A. Not as far as I know.

Q. Why do you say as far as you know? A. Because I did not pay it to Mr. Calvert and did not have anything to do with him in respect of it, or any words in regard to it.

Q. Did you hear he was to receive any part of it? A. Not reliably, no; I cannot say anything more than that; I never had any talk with Mr. Calvert on money matters in any shape or form.

Q. Don't you think you had better tell us the exact truth about that $3,000 cheque and get done with it? A. I do not care to do it; I am sorry for myself.

Q. What do you think of the suggestion that you and Mr. Dewart should confer and see if there is anything that he thinks you ought to say in justice to anybody? A. I will confer with Mr. Dewart.

Mr. Dewart and Mr. Travers confer.

WALTER DUNCAN, Recalled by—

MR. HODGINS: Mr. Stewart Lyons of the Globe was a witness this morning and he said that he had had an interview about the time of the Lindsav prosecution in your office, and that he saw a file of papers there which you went over while he was looking over your shoulder, he said a good deal more than that, but that is enough for the first question; do you remember that circumstance? A. No, I do not remember. It is quite possible; they come into my office three or four times a day or oftener, the reporters, sometimes half a dozen at a time.

Q. He said he found you very much annoyed at your having to go to Muskoka on a wild goose chase, and you possibly talked more freely on that account than you otherwise would have done? A. I cannot recollect it; I know that I went to Muskoka and was on a wild goose chase up there, at least I did not accomplish what I went after, and it is quite possible I had an interview with the reporters.

Q. This is Stewart Lyon, the associate editor of the Globe; he also said that you went over this file practically as I understood from one end to the other so that he could see all that was contained in it, and that he saw a letter, a copy of a letter which was supposed to be sent to Colonel Matheson, saw that in the file and remembered the contents so sufficiently well to publish a pretty good facsimile of it later on; that interview with him is not one you would confuse with the interview with a reporter? A. It is quite possible he may have been there; I have not any recollection.

Q. He also suggested that in answer to my telling him that I thought the papers he saw had no connection with the Lindsay case, that they had been brought up to your office from the liquidator's office, he was not very clear how or why, but he thought he had had something to do with it? A. No recollection whatever.

Q. He has a very distinct recollection? A. Probably he would have a better recollection than me. There was such a confusion about the time those papers were seized.

Q. This is long afterwards, Lindsay was tried a considerable time afterwards, Lindsay went away, you know? A. Yes, I remember.

Q. This was when Lindsay was being tried after he came back if Mr. Stewart Lyon is right? A. I cannot recollect him being there.

Q. You see he gives you certain facts that might recall it to your memory? A. I cannot say he was not there, I have no recollection of it.

Q. No recollection of talking freely to him about Muskoka? A. At the time that Beattie Nesbitt cleared out I know I gave an interview when I came back from Muskoka, but that was at the time just immediately after Dr. Beattie Nesbitt left Toronto.

Q. I- that all you can say with regard to what Mr. Lyon has told us this morning as to his interview, he certainly saw the papers? A. I do not know what I would be doing with the papers there; if I had anything to bring it back to my recollection; I don't see what I would be doing with the papers.

Q. Do you remember seeing Stewart Lyon about the time that Lindsay came back and was being prosecuted? A. I cannot say that I do; he may have been in there in my office and I may not remember it; I am kept pretty busy there, and since Lindsay was arrested I have had about eight or nine thousand cases.

Q. Is Stewart Lyon a frequent visitor in the Detective office? A. No.

Q. Cannot you remember it? A. I do not remember it; it is quite possible he may have been.

Q. Would you show him papers if that be so, or let him peruse them over your shoulder? A. Was it the papers pertaining to the Lindsay case?

Q. No, it was papers in which a letter written by Travers to the Provincial Treasurer Colonel Matheson in which Travers spoke of the promise to get deposits through Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and the World, he said he saw that one there? A. I have not any recollection of it.

Q. He said they were in a file and were turned over? A. That undoubtedly would be right, because all those papers were on a file pertaining to that; that is quite right about the file.

Q. You have no further recollection? A. No.

Q. Not able to say whether what he tells us occurred or not as far as you know? A. The papers had been out of my possession and I got them back, and then they went out of my possession again and I got them back, and then Detective Guthrie had them, this particular file—

Q. I am not interested in the general question, just this particular interview? A. I have not any recollection.

Q. Another matter, Travers says that when you first examined him, you remember having a couple of interviews with him in your office? A. Yes.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. When Fitzgibbon and yourself and I think Mr. Clarkson were present, the interviews were taken down in shorthand? A. I do not think that was in my office, it was down in the bank.

Q. You were there? A. Yes.

Q. He said that this cheque for $3,000 which has been mentioned was picked out by you and you looked at it and said "I know who got that" or "I know who you gave that to" and you mentioned a name, and Travers said no, it was not that: he said you were so near the truth that it made him rather uneasy, he was afraid you would find out more about it. That cheque has disappeared; do you recollect the circumstance? A. I do not recollect that in the bank. I remember about the $3,000 cheque and I remember asking Mr. Travers about it and he refused to tell me who it was, and I did mention a name to him.

Q. When was that done? A. I do not remember whether that was in my own office or whether it was down in the bank premises. Mr. Bicknell was present and Mr. Woods, and possibly Mr. Clarkson at that interview. I think there was a gentleman there, Mr. McAndrew.

Q. Do you remember the cheque? A. I remember a cheque for $3,000 and my recollection was there was "C" either on the stub or on the cheque.

Q. Who was it payable to? A. That I cannot remember.

Q. Who was it endorsed by? A. I do not remember that.

Q. That cheque ought to be forthcoming? A. There is no doubt whatever as to that.

Q. I have exhausted I think pretty nearly everybody who has had access to that? A. I cannot understand where it could be: it ought to be in Mr. Clarkson's possession.

Q. I have had all the papers Mr. Clarkson has and gone through them carefully? A. Because all the cheques that I had went back, and I do not think any one would have stolen it out of my custody.

Q. Was it used in any of the prosecutions? A. I do not think that it was.

Q. Why not? A. I am only speaking from memory, I do not know that it was, but my impression is it was not.

Q. You evidently suspected that money had gone somewhere where it should not have gone? A. Undoubtedly; I got a little information and I challenged Travers with it and he denied it.

Q. Was the matter laid before any of the Crown officers? A. It was talked over I think with Mr. Corley.

Q. You were never able to learn anything about the destination of the money? A. No. I was not.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What name was it you mentioned? A. Calvert.

Q. Why do you say you had information that led you to think it was he? A. Some one intimated to me that he had got some moneys from Travers, and I saw the letter "C" and of course that bore that out to a certain extent, and I asked Travers about it and he denied it.

Q. Did he say anything to you about you were near to it? A. No. he said this, if you mention the right name I will tell you who got that cheque, and he said "or, if you prefer a criminal charge against any other person I am quite prepared to tell the truth about it".

Q. As I understand Mr. Lyon's testimony, either through his Police Court reporter or somebody else, he learned that you had in your possession these letters about the deposit with the Provincial Treasurer and that he went over for the purpose of getting access to those and seeing them, that he found you there angry because you had been sent upon a wild goose chase, and if I recollect right he said that he asked if something that was in the file had not to do with your having been sent on a wild goose chase, is that accurate? A. I think he is mistaken as far as that, I have not any recollection of having an interview with him.
Q. It is a fact that you were annoyed and made statements that you had been sent on a wild goose chase, the authorities knowing or having warned Nesbitt that you were coming; did you make a statement of that kind? A. I made a statement I think along that line when I came back, but that was the time that Dr. Beattie Nesbitt cleared out.

Q. What foundation had you for making that statement? A. I had applied for a warrant for Beattie Nesbitt some two weeks before he cleared away.

Q. To whom? A. To the Crown Attorney, and was refused it.

Q. On what ground? A. I was refused it on the ground that he had a right to say when a warrant could issue and the police could not apply for a warrant and I could not get one. I reported the facts to Colonel Grasett, who brought the matter up at the Board of Police Commissioners and then I was sent up to interview Mr. Cartwright with regard to the powers of the City Crown Attorney and Mr. Cartwright told me, I said he might put it in writing—he told me verbally first, and I asked him to put it in writing,—the powers under which warrants should issue, and he laid down that of course it was the privilege of the Police Magistrate or Justice of the Peace to issue them on any citizen going and making complaint under oath that an offence had been committed. As soon as we got that from Mr. Cartwright, I immediately had a warrant issued for Nesbitt's arrest.

Q. By a Police Magistrate? A. Yes, Colonel Denison I think the warrant was sworn before and I at once set out to try and get him apprehended. I found on going up there nothing but his tracks through the snow.

Q. He had gone? A. Yes.

Q. It seems a little singular that Mr. Lyon should have gone to see you on this particular business, should be as specific as he has as to the file being turned over in his presence apparently—I should think the inference I would draw—in order that he might see what was in it without your having handed it to him, and that you should have no recollection of that? A. I cannot remember him, I do not remember Mr. Lyon speaking to me.

Q. It just occurs to me that Mr. Lyon may be mistaken as to the time, because the irritation you would have had would have passed away, one would have thought, by the time Mr. Lindsay came to be tried? A. Yes.

Q. The irritation was at the time you came back, but I understood him to say that he thought it was about the time of the Lindsay trial. He says also which differs from what you have said, unless it was on a later occasion, that there was no letter from the Provincial Treasurer to Travers or to the bank in that file; what do you say to that? A. My recollection was that there was a letter from Colonel Matheson.

Q. You would know whether there was or not, it would not be a question of recollection? A. I would not swear positively that there was or not; my recollection is that there was a letter.

Q. Did you read all the correspondence? A. I did not.

Q. None of it? A. I read some of it.

Q. You apparently read the letter from Travers to Colonel Matheson, were not you curious enough to read the reply? A. I may have; there was a lot of talk with regard to this file of letters, and I said to one of the Crown Attorneys there is not sufficient I think that we can proceed in any case, and he said "Let me have the letters", and he took the letters away, and of course I do not know what was on the file when they went away, I do not know what when they came back; I did not take an inventory of what was on the file, and I said that there was nothing that I could see whereby we could reach the World Newspaper with a criminal charge.

Q. When did you read the copy of the letter from Travers to the Provincial Treasurer, when it first came into your possession or later? A. I believe it would be soon after it came into my possession.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Do you want me to understand you read that and did not read the answer? A. I would not like to be too positive, for I have only a hazy recollection of it, and it was a matter that I dropped entirely, because it was not one that we could lay any charge, and of course the letters would be of no interest to me.

Mr. Hodgins: In your evidence on the former occasion you were asked, "do you remember seeing the letter from Colonel Matheson?", and you said "that is my recollection, but Detective Guthrie would remember more clearly than I would." A. He was more familiar with the papers than I was.

Q. A little later: "You gave me quite a number of those"? A. That letter of Matheson's ought to have been on that file. They disappeared in some way and could not be found for some considerable time, the whole of that file; I did not have them, and it was said that they were likely to make use of some of them at some of the elections, either the Dominion or the Provincial elections, and I think Mr. Clarkson sent up once to me for them, and I made a search for them and did not find them, but they turned up afterwards.

Q. "You handed them to me when this commission formed? A. Yes".

Q. And I stated I opened them myself and there was no letter of Colonel Matheson's among them. Your recollection then was that there was this letter of Colonel Matheson's in the file? A. That is my impression that it should have been in that file.

Q. I have seen detectives swearing out informations and getting warrants at the Police Court without ever consulting any Crown Attorney or anybody else; why did not you make the attempt? A. The Police Court Clerk would not draw the warrant without a flat from Mr. Corley, and Mr. Corley refused to issue it.

Q. What about the Magistrate? A. Colonel Denison was not consulted; I simply reported everything I did to Colonel Grasett, my superior, and he discussed the question with the Magistrate afterwards, with the result I was sent up to the Department.

Mr. Dewart: Mr. Travers desires me to state that in anything he said today he had not the slightest intention of referring to Mr. Calvert or that he wanted to contradict anything that Mr. Calvert said. He finds he has been so often contradicted by other witnesses on other points, that he prefers not to make the statement, because he does not want to make a statement simply because there might be two contradictory witnesses against himself, and he might be prosecuted for perjury, and under these circumstances he has, having advised him as to what his position is, declined to answer under the provisions of the Evidence Act.

Mr. Commissioner: The Evidence Act does not protect him from a prosecution for perjury in the statements he makes; he has no privilege.

Mr. Dewart: Sometimes when a man is in custody he has more privilege than when out.

Mr. Commissioner: When a man is under sentence unexpired for some years he has more privilege.

Mr. Travers: I am not taking advantage of that.

Mr. Dewart: No. Mr. Travers wants me to say further that these moneys that were paid came out of commissions to which he was entitled under his agreement and therefore are not matters with regard to which he feels so far as the bank is concerned, he or anybody else was liable.

Mr. Commissioner: Although I have not to pass upon any questions of law, there may be very serious questions of law as to whether these commissions were properly paid out of the bank money. What I am anxious to avoid, one of the things I would like to avoid, I would not like that anything that Travers had done here should militate against him hereafter. Supposing some question arose about remission of part of his sentence, the fact that he had refused to give this information would probably be a bar to anything of that kind being effected—I am not suggesting that it is possible any such application would be successful. Then there are other prosecutions hanging over him and I pointed out to him that people are feeling very sore about the way their money has been lost, and they may press some of these other prosecutions in their bitterness. Some very bitter letters have been written to him that he handed in to me, not so bitter to him, but very bitter letters have been written to me and I have no doubt to Mr. Hodgins.

Mr. Dewart: I am sorry that the suggestion should come from you that possibly some statement he might make might aid in the remission of his sentence.

Mr. Commissioner: No, the suggestion is that his non-disclosure might prevent.

Mr. Dewart: I hardly expected the suggestion should come from the Court. It has come to me so frequently from other sources, and it has been so persistently pressed upon him by those who desired him to make statements in their interest, that I am sorry it has come to be—

Mr. Commissioner: I cannot help your sorrow or your gratitude; I made the statement and I think it is a very improper thing for you to make any comment on it.

Mr. Dewart: All I can say is this, that the letters have been presented before the Court; they show sufficiently the kind of influence that has been brought to bear upon him by every class of person to endeavor to get him to make some statement that would be in their interest.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not think I have seen any.

Mr. Dewart: I thought some 20 or 30 letters were laid before you.

Mr. Commissioner: Yes, I saw some 17 letters but they are all guarded by saying, "we do not want you to say anything but the truth".

Mr. Dewart: But the suggestion is very strong. I have been asked to take briefs in this matter which will bring influence to bear in Mr. Travers' behalf, and it was suggested by a gentleman here yesterday, at the instance I believe of Mr. Laidlaw, that if I took the brief on behalf of the depositors and so on, that their influence might be very influential on Mr. Travers' behalf. I have refused to discuss the matter with the gentleman that came to see me; I have declined to discuss such matters. I do not know what his reasons are for not giving this evidence. I know he has declined to give it and declined to communicate with me in regard to this matter, and if he takes that second stand I cannot esteem it within my duty to advise him to take any other.

Mr. Commissioner: If he wants to make any explanation as to what he is supposed to have stated about Calvert he can make it now.

W. R. Travers, Recalled:

Mr. Travers: All I have to say is I did not intend you to infer that I alluded to Mr. Calvert. I am sorry you did think so, because I have no reason for thinking or knowing that Mr. Calvert had any interest in that $3,000 whatever.

Q. You made a statement a little while ago that Inspector Duncan mentioned Calvert's name: you said he was pretty close to it? A. He did not mention it that way; I do not wish to put words in—

Q. That is what you said? A. Yes, I said so, but I say Mr. Duncan did not mention Mr. Calvert's name in that way; he mentioned it in another way, which brought it in; he was on the wrong track, and I did not wish to set him right. That was his first conclusion, but it was not for me to correct him.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

MR. COMMISSIONER: Well, I suppose that is all there is. Don't you think in view of what Inspector Duncan has said Mr. Corley ought to be called.

MR. HODGINS: In reference to the warrant?

MR. COMMISSIONER: Yes, what the reason was.

MR. HODGINS: Well, it may be just as well; I am trying to communicate with Mr. Lynch-Staunton.

ARGUMENT.

MR. HODGINS: Mr. Mikel and Mr. Weldon represent the depositors in this case, and I notified Mr. Mikel and Mr. Weldon and Mr. Laidlaw that to-day would probably be the final sitting, and if they had anything to say that this would be the time to do so. Mr. Mikel says there are one or two matters he would like to bring before you. Mr. Laidlaw's letter I think I showed you; he has left for England and did not propose to address the Commission.

MR. COMMISSIONER: It is a little unusual hearing counsel, but I do not want to refuse if any light can be thrown, but there is no use discussing any question of law with me—I see some law books—I have nothing to do with the law, I have simply to report the facts, and if Mr. Mikel or Mr. Weldon think they can be of assistance I shall be pleased to hear them.

MR. MIKEL: I had no intention of addressing you in reference to any conclusions that might be drawn upon the evidence at all, but simply to ask if findings were to be made or if facts were to be referred to as having been given in evidence, that some of these facts that might perhaps be later looked upon favorably to the interests we represent might be mentioned in any report that, as Commissioner, you would be making. It is quite unnecessary to address you on any of the conclusions because I would not assume that the Commissioner would be drawing conclusions on the evidence, perhaps, at least I would not suppose that any conclusions such as the negligence of any particular individual or anything of that kind would be drawn, or that the Commissioner would be pointing out the exact cause of the failure of the bank.

MR. COMMISSIONER: That is what I am called upon to do; that is the very purpose of the Commission, as far as I can.

MR. MIKEL: I suppose it might be said that the cause of the failure of the bank arose from very many different circumstances, and if any particular one or more of those circumstances were to be referred to, we might perhaps deem it advisable in the interests of those we represent to ask you to include a number of items as being the cause of the failure, perhaps.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Have you been in communication with Mr. Laidlaw?

MR. MIKEL: Not for some time.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Mr. Laidlaw desired, and I have had Mr. Clarkson make up a statement showing the exact position of the bank on the 30th of November, 1906.

MR. MIKEL: That is what we have to-day.

MR. COMMISSIONER: It is one of the papers with that. There is one for each 31st of December and up to the time of the closing of the bank, showing the losses and how they occurred.

MR. MIKEL: There are some facts that perhaps would be helpful to us to have found; I might leave a statement of them with you.

MR. COMMISSIONER: I think you had better state what they are publicly and you can leave the statement as well, if you like, if it is not too long.

MR. MIKEL: If you intended to report that the cause of the failure was due to some particular circumstance or circumstances or some particular facts as appeared in the evidence, that is a matter we might want to say something upon. I do not know, of course, whether you would limit your report or finding in that matter purely to the financial operations of the bank after the bank got started, or whether the general conduct from the inception of the organization of the bank down to the present time would be viewed. We of course feel that the entrusting of the bank into the hands of those who had the management of it was the initial mistake and that ought to appear as one of the reasons, the causes of failure.

Mr. Commissioner: What does that mean, that the charter ought not to have been granted by Parliament?

Mr. Mikel: It ought not to have been granted to the individuals to whom it was granted. We think an investigation at the time the charter was granted, or at least the certificate of the Treasury Board was granted, would have shown that the provisions of the Act had not been complied with; it would have shown that the persons asking for the certificate were not persons to whom such a certificate should be given, and that that was really the real cause of it, because where we find persons committing the acts that subsequent events have shown they committed, or Mr. Travers in particular, when it is shown that those acts had been committed at the time, and that a reasonable investigation would have made it apparent to the Treasury-Board that they had been committed, these facts themselves would at once have demonstrated that Mr. Travers was not a person to whom a certificate should have been granted, and having committed these acts and these offences under not only the Criminal Code but the Bank Act, having committed these offences—

Mr. Commissioner: What do you refer to as offences?

Mr. Mikel: Deception in reference to the payment of the money, that was an offence of course. Investigation would have established that that was committed, and when a person is shown to have committed an offence of that kind involving that deception it would be reasonable to presume that they would practice similar—

Mr. Commissioner: What do you say the deception practised was?

Mr. Mikel: Representing that stockholders had paid up in cash the amount required by the Act, whereas the evidence now shows that was not the case.

Mr. Commissioner: The Act does not say in terms about what each subscriber has paid upon his stock. That is cured in the Ontario Company's Act, made clear. However, I am not to pass on the law.

Mr. Hodgins: $850,000 thereof.

Mr. Mikel: That is the amount subscribed. So that it renders it reasonably clear it is $850,000 of the stock subscribed that must be paid in.

Mr. Commissioner: But there is nothing to indicate that that must be paid by the stockholder himself: may not anybody pay it on behalf of the stockholder?

Mr. Mikel: My recollection of section 15 is that it is made reasonably clear. (Reads section 15 of the Bank Act.) If $500,000 is to be subscribed by stockholders and $250,000 thereof is to be paid in cash, I would submit that that means that those stockholders are to pay the money, or of course some person might make a present of the money to them and they could then pay it over; the money must come as their money not as the result of discounting notes, or not by paying in their own notes. I think it is fairly contemplated it should be in their cash but not by their notes. I could easily understand that they might get the money from any source they wished as long as it became their money, and it was paid over in that way; but where they hand over the notes, which I understand the evidence in this case shows they did,—these notes were handed over and discounted so that they did not comply with the Act in paying the amount required in cash, and that is the act complained of, and there was the deception, if that is the view of the law, practised just prior to the issue of the certificate, I submit that that is one of the contributing causes. We submit it is the principal cause.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

MR. COMMISSIONER: Is it any more the cause than if a man had taken a train to-day instead of to-morrow, and had been killed, that his taking it to-day instead of to-morrow was the cause of the accident? Is it not only a remote cause.

MR. MIKEL: I submit not. I do not know that the illustration mentioned is exactly in point any more than to say that if the janitor of a building hands over the keys to some person whom he knows has committed a crime of a character of robbery and is going there for that purpose, if the key is handed over the result would be the natural result, that is if there was robbery followed, it would be looked upon as the natural result of the janitor handing over the keys.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Nobody has suggested that when this bank was started apart from the payment of $40,000 out for preliminary expenses, it was not intended to operate the bank and make money with the bank for the shareholders. All this was done whether rightly done or not with the idea of enabling the bank to begin business; that was the purpose of it. What would have happened if it had not been so? If they had not got the certificate and started, the charter would have been forfeited.

MR. MIKEL: And the bank would not have gone into operation.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What would have become of the money the shareholders had paid?

MR. MIKEL: I do not know for the moment what would have been the legal result; at any rate the bank would not have gone into existence and the depositors would not have been invited to put their money into the bank and they would have been saved that loss, and a reasonable investigation would have disclosed enough to the Minister and to the Treasury Board to enable them to either prosecute or in some other way make public the methods by which the bank was thought to be organized and would have prevented it, and would have saved the depositors.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Did you follow Mr. Fielding's evidence? He made the statement that perhaps may call for some answer; if there was this fraud known to the people and to the stockholders, Parliament was sitting, the representative of the constituency was there, why was not an attack made at once? Why was not the Minister brought to book for having improperly issued this certificate? That is his argument.

MR. MIKEL: I would not undertake to justify what the Members did or did not.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Nobody did anything, the stockholders or anybody.

MR. MIKEL: The one set of men whose duty it was to do something was the Minister and the members of the Treasury Board; and they did something in the face of all this evidence.

MR. COMMISSIONER: You are starting with the hypothesis that there was something wrong and they ought to have detected it.

MR. MIKEL: Yes.

MR. COMMISSIONER: That something was wrong, the only information they had as to that was from persons who assumed to possess knowledge that the wrong had been done. If the Minister of Finance was not as careful as he should have been in probing these charges why did not those who made them, Mr. Fielding suggests, probe them on the floor of Parliament, challenge what had been done.

MR. MIKEL: They may have a good explanation, and I do not know that our contention would be weakened by their being able to give that or to suggest a reason why they did not do it; but at all events it would not relieve the man whose duty it was to do it, nor it would not relieve the Board whose duty it was to do it. These men, Sir Edmund Osler and Mr. Henderson brought to the Minister's attention the facts they had. They may have felt that they had done all that could reasonably be expected of them, and there was no duty cast upon them by statute or otherwise to do even that, but there was a duty cast upon the Minister by the Statute.
MR. COMMISSIONER: No, that is not the force of Mr. Fielding's position. Mr. Fielding says they did not tell him what they say they did, and to confirm his statement he advances that argument, if they had told him what they say, and he had in defiance of it issued the certificate why was not he attacked in Parliament, because it was when Parliament was sitting.

MR. MIKEL: I do not know why they did not attack him in Parliament.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What were the shareholders doing all these four years?

MR. MIKEL: I suppose that they were assuming that the Minister had properly and legally authorized the bank to commence business and get their stock sold, and deposits from the depositors.

MR. COMMISSIONER: They knew perfectly well they were not paying for the stock according to the stock subscription. They were giving notes which they must have known were intended to be used as far as they were concerned.

MR. MIKEL: I can easily see that as to the stockholders, they were in a measure treating Mr. Travers as their agent and perhaps they would not be justified to the same extent that the depositors would be in saying we were misled. They had a right to assume that the provisions of the Act were carried out and that the Minister saw all things necessary were done, and when the Minister was notified by Mr. McCarthy, and names given to him of individuals, of persons who were said to be persons who had paid by notes instead of by cash, and who were making a claim of fraud and illegality in the organization of the bank, naturally they would expect if charges of that kind were brought to the attention of the Minister he would inquire from those individuals.

MR. COMMISSIONER: That was not the nature of Mr. McCarthy's communication. Mr. McCarthy acting with Mr. Laidlaw had brought a suit on behalf of certain shareholders to cancel their subscription and to wind up the bank, to cancel their subscriptions on the ground that they had been obtained by fraud—an individual action, not an action on behalf of the body of the shareholders, indeed it could not be. In the letter which sent a copy of the writ, if my memory is correct, Mr. McCarthy mentioned the fact that he had information that money had been raised by discounting notes of the subscribers.

MR. MIKEL: According to my recollection the affidavit of Mr. Laidlaw that accompanied the writ to the Minister also contained that statement that notes were being used in that way. The only inquiry the Minister appears to have made as the result of that was an inquiry from Mr. Travers, the man who, if these charges were true, was the guilty man, and if he was guilty enough to perpetrate these acts, naturally he would be guilty enough to try and conceal them. The Minister might have gone a step further and asked some of these individuals whose names were communicated to him in the writ and the affidavit of Mr. Laidlaw.

MR. COMMISSIONER: That would not have told him anything; that would have only told him that these people had brought a suit to set aside the subscriptions and succeeded in getting their stock taken off their hands.

MR. MIKEL: I also think that some of these names were names of men whose notes had been given and were under discount, and I think also the facts communicated go the length of showing that Mr. McCarthy was never even communicated with.

MR. COMMISSIONER: He withdrew his objection.

MR. MIKEL: He withdrew his action, but he was never communicated with to find out if there was any truth in the allegation that notes were being used in this way, no effort so far as I can recollect the evidence was made further than to inquire from Mr. Travers. We submit that if further inquiry had been made, and it was reasonable that further inquiry should be made when charges of that kind were coming up, if it had been made, it would have stopped the organization of the bank and saved the depositors from loss. We therefore submit that this is one of the causes for the failure of this bank. People who organize banks in this way commit a breach of the very Act under which they seek incorporation or seek the right to do business, commit a breach of law, commit a crime under that Statute. It seems to me the natural presumption would be that if people commenced business in a perfectly legal and proper way that they would continue in a legal and proper way; but where they commence with deception the presumption is that they are going to continue in that way.

Mr. Commissioner: There has been enough crime in it without stigmatizing as crime—nothing antecedent to the issue of the certificate was in the nature of a crime that I know of, unless it was that the affidavit was false. If that was so, I suppose it is crime: but calling hard names does not strengthen the matter.

Mr. Mikel: Surely not; I am referring to that for the purpose of drawing what would be the natural inference from organizing an institution of this kind in this way; would it not be the natural presumption that that would continue?

Mr. Commissioner: Supposing this bank had gone on and had been a flourishing bank, had not gone into the crazy things it did, and the stock was worth £200, would not they have said Mr. Travers was one of the finest organizers, that he had got this bank on this footing by having the pluck to raise money on these notes?

Mr. Mikel: I admit that would have been the general plaudit he would have received, but it would not have mitigated at all the nature of the offence; it would have been satisfactory to those who had had dealings with the bank, but it would not have changed the nature of the acts at all. And I do submit that whenever anything may reasonably be presumed to follow from an act, the act is the natural and reasonable and proximate cause; and I think it could fairly be said that one of the causes of this failure was the manner in which it was started. It seems to me to be a reasonable conclusion and I have no doubt that the offences that were committed afterwards, or the general conduct of the business, criminal and otherwise, perhaps that was carried on afterwards contributed to it, but they were only incidents after all. It must get back to the primal and initial cause which we say was the permitting of this bank to be organized, the only safeguard the depositors have.

Mr. Commissioner: Why don’t you go one step further if there had been no Act of Parliament incorporating the bank then there would have been no loss to these depositors.

Mr. Mikel: That of course academically might be all right to argue, but I do not think that the argument I have adduced is analogous to that position.

Mr. Commissioner: Is it not as much a proximate cause as is the issue of the certificate? Are not they both remote causes?

Mr. Mikel: I submit not. I submit there is a difference and I wish to press it upon you, Mr. Commissioner, and that is this, that where a proposition is started under the Bank Act legally and properly and all the requirements, all the safeguards that are required by the Act have been adopted, and it has been free from any offences and started in the regular and usual way, the presumption naturally would be that it would continue that way, and if disaster overtakes it through mismanagement that would be the cause, but where it is started wrong, where it is started by offences, where it is started in contravention of the Act and by deception and by offences I have referred to and which I have no desire to emphasize simply for the purpose of emphasizing them, but simply to show that where it started in that way it is a fair and reasonable inference that that sort of conduct will continue in the management and we know that sort of conduct did continue in the management and no doubt contributed to the loss the depositors will sustain.

Mr. Commissioner: Apart from applying the loan upon stock of persons who had not given notes that were discounted, the action taken was advised as legal and proper by two solicitors in this town, so we have been told, one Mr. Thomas Urquhart and the other Mr. Hunter: I think they both gave evidence to that effect.

Mr. Mikel: I recollect hearing some of Mr. Hunter’s evidence, but my recollection of it is that he at that time thought he had not been sufficiently apprised of the facts as he learned them afterwards when he gave that advice. I think that is the statement he made; whether I am correct in that or not I am not clear.

Mr. Commissioner: What they appeared to have thought was these notes had been given as you concede, as I understand it, with the implied authority to use them for the purpose of raising the money, that they were discounted without any liability of the bank at all—they were not discounted, the money was borrowed on the personal security of the General Manager, with these notes as collateral security; it was advised that that was a perfectly legitimate and proper transaction; that is as I understand their evidence; I am not saying whether I agree with that or not.

Mr. Mikel: That is satisfactory of course, but it does not explain the clauses in the declaration which state clearly that the money was not raised in that way and it was raised by cash.

Mr. Commissioner: No, you have not read it carefully enough. It was perhaps it might be called, an astute answer of Mr. Travers; he professed to answer the Finance Minister's question, but did not answer it at all. The question he was asked was whether the source was notes discounted. His answer was it was not the proceeds of any notes discounted by the provisional directors; that is where he fenced himself in.

Mr. Mikel: That does not improve matters; it simply adds to the evidence, that the party applying for the incorporation was adopting another means of deception and makes it further reasonable to presume that where that deception was being practised at the very threshold of the institution it would be reasonable to continue.

Mr. Commissioner: But that letter was true literally; it was true that the provisional directors had borrowed no money.

Mr. Mikel: If the Minister did not secure an answer to his question and did not get the evidence that the Act required he should get, it is all the greater reason for assuming that the Minister was negligent in that matter, and that that negligence was one of the causes of the disaster that followed. The Minister should have had a proper answer; he should have seen that the facts were made clear to him; and then there is the fact that although the organization of a bank is a somewhat unusual thing, it is not occurring every day, it is not occurring sometimes for several years, yet it was not properly and regularly brought before the Treasury Board.

Mr. Commissioner: That is disclosed by the evidence that is not so.

Mr. Mikel: Mr. Boville told us he had never been present at any meeting.

Mr. Mikel: Sir Richard Cartwright’s evidence is it was passed around.

Mr. Commissioner: The evidence of Mr. Fielding is quite clear that the Treasury Board met regularly and passed it. The evidence is they met, not as they ordinarily would in the Finance Minister’s office, but met as they could get a quorum together, that they did their business and then gave a minute of it afterwards to Mr. Boville; there is nothing wrong about that at all.

Mr. Mikel: I understood clearly from Mr. Boville’s evidence that he had not been present at any meeting.

Mr. Commissioner: Of course he was not present, but they often had meetings when he was not present; his presence was not necessary.

Mr. Mikel: I can only submit the statement as I have already done so, that one of the causes for the disaster was allowing the bank to be organized in the way it was; that the Minister did not take reasonable precautions in view of the fact that he was himself suspicious, even before he had heard any reports at all he had misgivings about the bank which should have prompted a reasonable person to be more than ordinarily careful. He had the warning of Mr. McCarthy, he pointedly called his attention to the violation of the Act; no inquiry was made; and he had the names of other people furnished to him who were charging illegality against the organizer of the bank. With all these matters I submit he should have investigated; and even after the certificate was given, when Sir Edward Clouston wrote him a letter which he received the day after the certificate was issued again mentioning this offence under the Bank Act, that he should have recalled that certificate; he should have asked for the recall.

Mr. Commissioner: How could he have recalled it.

Mr. Mikel: He could at least have written to the bank or the General Manger asking for that certificate to be returned. It seems to me there would be just grounds for him to apply to the Court for a mandamus of some description by which he would be required to return that on the ground that it had been obtained by misrepresentation.

Mr. Commissioner: And he would do that upon the statement in Mr.
Clouston’s letter.

Mr. Mikel: After consultation with Mr. Clouston if he required any further facts.

Mr. Commissioner: Why did not the Bankers’ Association do something?
They had an answer immediately from the Finance Department that the certificate had issued; why did not they do something?

Mr. Mikel: I am not here to offer any excuse for what they have or have not done, but I submit it was the Minister’s duty to do that.

Mr. Commissioner: Does not it all tend to confirm Mr. Fielding’s statement that it was all rumor, nothing solid to base it upon; these people had not information; it was just gossip; that is his position.

Mr. Mikel: Yes, but when he has rumor coming from not idle sources, not street gossip, but coming directly to him from responsible people well known people, who could have been approached with little trouble, and had the matter sifted to the bottom, and as subsequent facts show if he had taken a little trouble, exercised that little reasonable care and sifted the matter to the bottom, with very little effort he would have saved all this, and have saved the loss to the depositors. He did not choose to do that. He chose to treat it as common street gossip, I suppose, and of no importance, notwithstanding the source from which it came. Was it reasonable?
We submit it was not reasonable, that he should have done so. This rumor added to his own misgivings, his own suspicions of the institution—

Mr. Commissioner: That is not the effect of Mr. Fielding’s evidence at all.
Mr. Fielding’s evidence was it was not a strong bank, he thought it was not advisable for farmers to go into business of that kind; they had had two chances to establish their bank and they had failed, and he thought they ought not to get a third chance.

Mr. Mikel: That suspicion he had as to the possibility of its organization—

Mr. Commissioner: That farmers ought not to go into banking business, that was his—

Mr. Mikel: That should have prompted a reasonable person to be more careful in the organization of the bank, to take greater pains to see that every safeguard provided by the Act at least was fully complied with for the protection of the people who were invited to put their money into an organization of this character.
I feel certainly that that is a proximate cause. I realise that a man starting a bank properly and regularly and honestly without any deception, without any improper conduct whatever, might meet with disaster, and the bank fail; but when we find the same kind of conduct that was practised in the organization of the bank, practitised later on and producing the results, I submit it can be related back to the original cause and treated as a proximate cause or one of the causes. There are many things that arise from several causes, and it may not always be easy to say which is the more to blame; but at all events I submit that should be found as one of the causes if you feel it necessary or proper that the cause of the failure should be fixed as an absolute fact as a result of the evidence we have got. I did not anticipate that that would be the result, but if it is to be fixed as an absolute certainty beyond all question as to what the real cause was, the only cause or certain causes, then I submit that should be included as one of them; and I do not know whether, as Commissioner you would deal with any question of negligence at all in the matter, but I assume perhaps you would not be drawing any conclusions of that kind. If you are, I submit that the Minister clearly neglected the provisions of the Statute; he did not take ordinary means: he did not take the kind of means that a member of a Municipal Council would take to satisfy himself; a Municipal official or a member of a council who would overlook matters of that kind and treat them as lightly as that, by which loss arose to his municipality would practically be drummed out of public life in his municipality.

Mr. Commissioner: Where do you live?

Mr. Mikel: In the good old County of Hastings, where we certainly do get after members of municipal councils who overlook even much smaller things involving much smaller issues than launching an institution that is going to invite depositors to put their money in on the assertion that everything the Bank Act requires as a guarantee for them has been carried out and carried out before a Minister who is supposed to be more conversant with these things than the ordinary individual, and by a Board composed of men who have superior experience and knowledge and capacity to deal with things of that kind. I feel it would almost look like Justice without her sword if depositors under these circumstances could not find some place within the four corners of the British North America Act by which they could be protected and their rights and interests dealt with in a way that would make good to them a loss such as this. I believe if the Crown could be sued, if it was possible to sue the Crown, that an action for negligence could be established.

Mr. Commissioner: Have you applied for a fiat?

Mr. Mikel: No.

Mr. Commissioner: Perhaps you had better.

Mr. Mikel: I am perfectly convinced—I doubt if any power short of an Act of Parliament could authorize a fiat to sue the Crown as represented by the Dominion Government.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not know; if there is a cause of action—

Mr. Mikel: I know of no provision in any written statute that would authorize the Dominion Cabinet to issue a fiat to bring an action of this kind. There are some particular Acts that authorize it, but I know of no existing—

Mr. Commissioner: If there is any cause of action against the Crown a fiat can be granted; if anybody supposes he has a claim which he can enforce in a Court you can get a fiat.

Mr. Mikel: We would be met at once with the maxim that the King could do no wrong, on the assumption that the King will do no wrong.

Mr. Commissioner: It is not the King: the reason of that is the odium of everything he does wrong rests upon his Ministers. Perhaps you would like me to suggest you should have an opportunity of applying for this engine of destruction.

Mr. Mikel: I should like very much when you are reporting if you would report that a fiat should be granted. That might help us at all events to some extent and we could test the issue as to whether or not an action for negligence could stand.

Mr. Commissioner: There is no use of any will-o’-the-wisp of that kind. Have you anything to say Mr. Weldon?

Mr. Weldon: I do not know that I should project myself into these matters. If you would like to hear what I would say in connection with the matter I hardly think it would be right to take it up this afternoon. It is now well on towards 4 o’clock. We have had sittings of this Commission and it has lasted over some months, and I do not think that I could attempt for a moment to do justice to these unfortunate people who have suffered in this matter offhand like this; it would be necessary to take up the evidence all the way through, and make proper notations, so that it could be followed without a great deal of trouble. If the Court could see its way clear and would like to hear what I have to say in the matter I would be pleased indeed to get the matter in as good shape as I possibly could and lay it before you. On the other hand if you think it is inadvisable I have no complaint to make. Mr. Hodgins has followed the matter pretty carefully and brought out a great deal of evidence and I have no doubt he will do justice to all parties concerned. I think a very strong case can be made out for these unfortunate people, and if you would like to hear me I would like to take it up on any occasion the Court might see fit to appoint.

Mr. Commissioner: I do not quite understand what you mean?

Mr. Weldon: I would not care this afternoon to go into an argument which would take a very considerable time and I have not had a chance to go through the evidence. I do not think it would be fair for me to get up at this stage and argue the case of some four thousand unfortunate people. If you wish to leave the matter over till next week—

Mr. Commissioner: Mr. Hodgins will be away next week and the week after.

Mr. Mikel: There are a number of findings I have in a memorandum here which I might leave with you.

Mr. Commissioner: Very well, Mr. Mikel; you might leave them with me.

Mr. Mikel leaves memorandum with Mr. Commissioner.

Mr. Weldon: I do not know what we can do then under the circumstances.

Mr. Commissioner: The whole thing is very plain: there is not much dispute about anything. There is some conflict between Mr. Fielding and some of the witnesses, but with regard to everything else it is all pretty plain sailing is it not? We know how the bank started, we know the conditions under which the money was raised, we know how it lost its money after it started, step by step until it lost a million and a quarter.

Mr. Weldon: That being the case and it being inexpedient to adopt the method suggested I might give three or four strong points in connection with the case of the depositors. In the first place the Government has always taught the people of this country that banking was a very serious and dangerous business; they have gone to work and said "Here, we cannot allow an ordinary individual to go into the business of banking; it is a very dangerous business". That is the attitude that has been assumed by the Government: so much so that they go to work and pass certain regulations and pass a special Act and say "Unless you comply with the provisions of that Act you cannot start into business". So much so that when, as intelligent a man as Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, a man who has had all sorts of business experience,—possibly no person who has been attending this Commission for some time has had more business experience than Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, and he comes here and says "When the Government granted the certificate I thought it was all right: they were there for that purpose: I am not a banker, and when the Government granted the certificate I took it for granted that everything was so, and was correct and proper". That being so what is the position of a poor farmer or river driver? How is he going to guard himself? I think these people are entirely without blame. There are features in connection with the Farmers Bank that occur in no other bank that ever failed in this country. In the first place it is the worst failure we ever had in this country. Here is a statement that shows the failures of banks since confederation: in 15 out of 24 failures the depositors were paid in full; there has been no case before where there has been such an absolute failure, where there is not a cent left to pay the depositors anything.

Mr. Commissioner: You have a valuable mine.

Mr. Weldon: We will see. I would advise my clients at any time to sell it at 4 cents on the dollar.

The next feature in connection with the matter is this, that no time since Confederation or before that time for that matter has there ever come up any question as to the sufficiency of the certificates that had been granted by the Government. This is the first time that ever came up.
Mr. Commissioner: The first time that anybody has had the cheek to raise it, perhaps.

Mr. Weldon: Possibly so. My learned friend Mr. Mikel in dealing with the matter took up some of the things that had been spoken about so frequently in Parliamentary debates and other places, but there is one thing that should have been mentioned, and that was this, that Mr. Travers was asked by you as to what was the cause of the failure of this bank, and he said "Well, I started off with short capital, and I had to go into all these deals to try and recover myself". You were speaking a moment ago about proximate cause and remoteness and so on. Mr. Travers is the one man who knows more about this matter than any person else. He states that as the reason that this failure occurred. No doubt the failure was caused by these injudicious investments and lack of proper management on his behalf. He says that was caused by his anxiety to make up the proper capital, and to make up the losses of organization that had been sustained at the inception of the bank. Therefore I submit the natural result of starting the bank with insufficient capital was the failure. The Government had said you cannot start a bank unless you have $250,000 of paid up capital. There must be a reason for that. They have naturally concluded, after having had very considerable experience, that they cannot allow a bank to start in business without having sufficient capital, and they say the smallest amount of capital you must have is a quarter of a million dollars. Mr. Travers started 25 or 30 branches with about $145,000 of paid up capital; that is less than $5,000 or $6,000 to run a branch with outside of the deposits of the people.

Mr. Commissioner: Some branches run without any capital, lots of them.

Mr. Weldon: On the other hand I submit you should take into consideration the fact that the bank premises in lots of places cost $5,000 and $6,000 in some instances cost $12,000 or $14,000. That is the object aimed at by the Statute; I submit that the Statute said you must have sufficient capital because otherwise if you have not it is a perilous thing to do to start into this thing, and naturally when Mr. Travers did not have sufficient capital—I must say that Mr. Travers I think has been of very considerable assistance in this matter, he has refused to tell some things, but I presume he does not want to go back on his pals—however, to come back to the point I was endeavoring to make, that the reason of the failure was because of not sufficient capital, that if proper inquiries had been made at the time—I do not blame Mr. Fielding so much, for Mr. Fielding was an exceptionally busy man, and it is all right to come in now after the event and say he ought to have done this that and the other things—I do not say that—a Tory Minister might as well have done it as a Liberal Minister; a great many people have endeavored to make politics out of this thing, a lot has been written, but it is not a matter of politics at all, it is a matter where a great many people have suffered grievous loss through no fault of their own, and I am not going to say Mr. Fielding was in any way to blame; but what I do say is he was a busy man and he just simply failed to take the precaution, not possibly himself personally at all, possibly some member of his staff; they simply failed to take the precaution that an ordinary man of prudence would have taken in connection with his own business. The Statute cast a duty upon him, if not upon his officers, and his Department did not exercise the amount of diligence that should have been exercised in the circumstances. It is all right after the thing is over to say this, but he was busy delivering his Budget speech and he simply under the circumstances did not look after the thing as closely as he might have done.

Mr. Commissioner: Guilty with extenuating circumstances, is that your verdict?

Mr. Weldon: I do not go that far. There has been a whole lot of political talk; he was simply too busy to pay very much attention to the matter. It was not a sin of commission, but a sin of omission; he simply did not realize possibly the great amount of danger there was in connection with it. But this thing has all been gone over before. No doubt the Court is as well informed on it as I am and I do not wish to weary you with that. With respect to the findings that are to be made in connection with the matter I think the terms of the Commission are to report the evidence—

MR. HODGINS: To inquire into and report all material and relevant facts.

MR. WELDON: There is one other thing; this is a very broad and large subject; if one had an opportunity to talk one might go at the thing for half a day.

Mr. Travers has suggested an amount of $3,000 and some other sums that appear to have been spent for some purposes which he does not like to divulge. In anything I have to say I do not wish to speak harshly or say hard things about any person. All I would like to do is to perform my duty with respect to my clients. But as to where the money went, I do not think we need be in a very great deal of difficulty; let us see what happened, shortly before the issuing of the certificate, and see who would have a motive or an object to be gained by the giving of that certificate. Shortly before the issuing of the certificate we find that Mr. Stratton introduces Mr. Travers to the General Manager of the Trusts & Guarantee Company, for the purpose of securing this loan; the loan is obtained, the consideration being, so it is alleged, the sum of $1,000 of a bonus and interest at 10%. The Trusts & Guarantee Company issue $80,000 of money of their own or their clients or customers on a lot of Farmers notes; and what would have happened supposing they had not got the certificate from the Government? The position of these men, I submit would be just about like this; the money on deposit with the Minister of Finance, the Treasury Department, would have to be returned to those men. The Trusts & Guarantee Company could not get their money back again, because their money had been spent; they could not sue the people who had given them these notes, because they would be met with the defence that you took these notes with notice. That being so, we consider the cheque paying that loan was hidden and concealed and issued in some other name, issued to the Bank of Montreal, and when the cheque was returned the payment was returned in some other person's name, still covering it up; when they elaborate the most perfect scheme they can, they go to work and get one of the shrewdest practitioners in Toronto I believe to provide a most ingenious scheme for defeating, I submit the provisions of the Bank Act, and all this is done, so it is said, to make a paltry little thousand dollars—not only that, but they had to go to work and borrow $55,000—and a thousand dollars would hardly pay Mr. Hunter's fee in connection with the matter—Mr. Hunter on a transaction involving $100,000, and evolving a scheme he would be entitled to receive good pay—

MR. COMMISSIONER: I do not see where this is leading.

MR. WELDON: The reason I say that, if the certificate had not been issued by the Finance Department what position would the Trusts & Guarantee Company have been in? I submit we see who would have a motive in obtaining the certificate, and what pressure would be brought to bear. All that one can but conclude is that these men must have realized the fact that in the event of the certificate not being granted they would be in a desperate state of affairs. I think that is a reasonable conclusion and I have not any doubt at all that they realized that fact, as shrewd a man as Mr. Stratton and Mr. Hunter and Mr. Warren who was also a lawyer would realize these facts. Mr. Travers has refused to tell where that money went, that $3,000 and other moneys; I do not know where the money went and who got it, but what I do submit is, and I have nothing against the Trusts & Guarantee Company. I am not concerned in their affairs at all except in so far as this is concerned, that if they had not got that certificate, if they had failed the Trusts & Guarantee Company would have been in a very bad position, and therefore I submit that it was incumbent upon them to see that certificate was granted. Naturally these things are all concealed. Mr. Travers does not wish to say to whom he gave this money, and does not desire to make any divulgence of these things but I submit it is very very plain that one cannot help but see that under these circumstances pressure, if it were necessary—it may have not been necessary—but pressure if it were necessary was absolutely certain to be brought by some person connected with that crowd. I do not wish to say anything more. These unfortunate clients of mine over the country have undoubtedly suffered an extreme loss to which they were in no sense a party. They have done nothing wrong, they have taken the report of the Government, the invitation of the Government to deposit their money in one of these banks and have suffered in that way. Of course this thing has all been helped along, and a great deal of false confidence has been enthused or instilled in the people of Canada by, I do not say by whom, but by certain interested parties—It has all been done to help us to believe that the banking system of Canada was the most wonderful system, that no person could lose. Since this thing came up last month, here is an article in the North-West Farmer, a paper, the pioneer farm paper of Western Canada, and they go on and tell us such things as the probability of loss to the depositors reduced to a minimum; and there is a case where every cent is gone, hardly anything left, except the gold letters on the window. With the enormous capital required by the Government, and there is not an atom of Government regulation.

"It is practically impossible for a bank to fail in Canada"—this is a long article vouched for by the Editor—

"All banks must stand by each other that the depositors may suffer as little as possible."

What actually happened in this Farmers Bank case? As soon as the crash came—possibly this is not very much in line except it is a very serious thing I think to go to work and lead the people to believe all these sort of things that are altogether untrue—for instance "All banks must stand by each other". There is no such law or no such condition. As a matter of fact the conditions are exactly the opposite. The banks of this country enjoy the monopoly of issuing bills which nets them without any tax or any cost to them, in the aggregate five million dollars a year; they have $100,000,000 of circulation in round numbers, and they ought to get $5,000,000 a year interest on that. In order that the people of this country shall have stable belief and ample confidence in the bills issued by the bank they put up this Circulation Redemption Fund 5% of the circulation of each bank, simply so that every person shall be satisfied and safe. When a crash comes, when a bank fails what happens? They go to work they do not take any money out of the Circulation Redemption Fund, they take all the money put in by the depositors; they take the depositors' money and they pay off all this circulation as a preferred lien or claim against the estate: the result is instead of standing together for the protection of the depositor they stand together to take what the depositors have put in there. The earnings from the issue of circulation of the banks of Canada for one month would pay the entire loss that the depositors will be put to in connection with this failure. This is a critical case.

"It does seem as if the interest of the Canadian depositors could not be guarded more closely". It is altogether erroneous, and this is a statement that should not be allowed to be made. But the point I started out to make was, that after all has been said, after all that appeared in the public press of this country, when any person has the hardihood to go to work and publish that now you I think will realize the unfortunate position of these people. They had ample confidence and implicit faith in the banks of this country, they thought like Dr. Beattie Nesbitt that the bank had obtained its certificate and that everything was all right.

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Corley is here, and I would like to ask him a few questions.
J. SEYMOUR CORLEY, Recalled:

Mr. Hodgins: We had Inspector Duncan up here, and Mr. Stewart Lyon I should say was here first; he spoke of an interview with Inspector Duncan, in which he said Duncan was annoyed at having been sent on a wild goose chase to Muskoka and Inspector Duncan then said that he had applied for a warrant some time before the warrant was issued.

Mr. Commissioner: Two weeks before.

Mr. Hodgins: And he was refused by you on the ground that you had the authority or the right to say when it was to be issued? A. Are you referring to the time Duncan went to Muskoka to get Dr. Nesbitt?

Q. Yes? A. Duncan is absolutely in error. We first decided there was a good cause for prosecution against Nesbitt on Saturday morning in Clarkson’s office. There was Mr. Bicknell who was solicitor for the liquidator; there was Mr. Clarkson, one of Bicknell’s assistants, or junior, and Duncan, Duncan was there at my request. We went into the matter fully and we decided to lay a charge of conspiracy, and a charge of theft in reference to the Keeley Mine transaction; that was on Saturday afternoon. Duncan left me I should say after 1 o’clock to hunt up the Magistrate, that I know of my own knowledge, I know that he had difficulty in getting a Magistrate because there was not any around that Saturday afternoon. I know he took the train and went to Muskoka after Nesbitt, and Nesbitt had gone in the meantime. If he had taken the trouble to telegraph before he left to seven of Inspector Rogers’ men along that line he would have got him; he had to pass seven of Rogers’ men before he got away.

Q. He said he applied for a warrant two weeks before it was issued? A. I have no recollection of him applying for it; if he did it was on insufficient evidence. He got one as soon as we had evidence. There was an immense amount of evidence and that had to be gone through with Mr. Clarkson; he was working with myself and Mr. Bicknell and I were in very close touch looking to see if the criminal law had been broken. It was only on Saturday we were able to get these charges against him after conference with Mr. Bicknell, Mr. Clarkson, Duncan and one of Bicknell’s juniors and myself.

Q. Duncan says he applied and you refused it, and said you were the one that had jurisdiction to issue warrants, and he then reported to Colonel Grasett, and it came up before the Attorney General and he was sent to the Attorney General’s Department? A. I think he is referring to the matter of extradition later. He issued several warrants without consulting me, for instance against Wilson, he never consulted me at all, he went into Colonel Denison and swore them while the Colonel was sitting on the Bench.

Q. Was that the point that came up and was decided by the Attorney General’s Department? A. What point?

Q. The point whether you had the right to refuse a warrant? A. The point never was discussed, I never heard of it before.

Q. He said he applied to you and you said no, that you were the one to say when the warrant should issue? A. I could not take that authority; under the law the Magistrates have authority to grant warrants.

Q. Two weeks before the warrant did issue it would have issued if you had not stood in the way, that is the impression? A. Impossible to stand in the way; three-quarters of the warrants in the City of Toronto I never know about. In serious cases they ask my advice. The Magistrates never inquire into the circumstances; either the Police inquire or I do.

Q. If Duncan applied to you for a warrant would he be found to show you reasonable cause before you sanctioned it? A. I certainly would not advise the Magistrate to issue a warrant without reasonable cause.
Q. When was the first time you had submitted to you evidence which in your judgment warranted the issue of a warrant? A. On the very day Mr. Duncan went to Muskoka for Nesbitt.

Q. Who submitted that, Duncan? A. No. Bicknell, Mr. Clarkson and Mr. Bicknell's assistant; there were several of us there in that bank room of the Farmers Bank upstairs; I would not have known these facts except from Mr. Clarkson. Mr. Duncan is not an accountant and could not find them out, and I could not find them out.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Is your memory clear enough to say that what he says happened did not happen? A. I do not know what he said.

Q. He said he came to you desiring to lay an information against Beattie Nesbitt, that he did that about two weeks before the warrant was actually issued, and that you declined? A. Did he say on what ground?

Q. That it was your privilege to determine and that he had no right to lay informations? A. We never had a discussion of that kind, because I know quite well the Police always have the right to go to a Magistrate and ask for a warrant.

Q. Is that so? I got the impression that, where a serious offence was charged, that the information had to be initialed? A. The practice is coming in that way, but it has not been in the past. Some of the most serious matters arrests have taken place at night and on Sunday when I never knew anything about it until the men were brought into Court.

Q. There was a suggestion that this was an effort on behalf of the friends of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt to prevent his arrest? A. I am no friend of his, and he was never a friend of mine.

Q. And he was warned? A. If there was any warning it did not come through me or through my office; I have no interest in Nesbitt.

Q. You know nothing about any such thing? A. No, absolutely nothing.

MR. HODGINS: Q. You spoke about the Provincial Police; is there no friction, jealousy perhaps would be the better word, on the part of the City Police? A. Perhaps it is bad feeling; some of the force are friendly.

Q. Do you know whether Inspector Duncan is one of those that entertains that feeling? A. I believe Inspector Duncan and Inspector Rogers do not think too much of one another; there has always been considerable ill feeling in the Toronto Police force itself.

Q. That might account for it? A. I think he felt so sure of getting him that he did not bother.

Q. He came back apparently thinking he had gone on a wild goose chase? A. He had not; Nesbitt had just walked across the lake and took another train. Inspector Duncan and I were shooting at a place last fall where Nesbitt changed from the regular train to a freight train and the conductor told us both about it, not knowing who Duncan was. Inspector Duncan seeks my advice very often. It might have been he submitted the case to me and I said there was not sufficient evidence, and to wait for evidence. I was not arresting everybody whose name was mentioned in the Farmers Bank; I had to have some evidence; I had a duty that way too.

The Commission adjourned at 4 P.M. to 11:45 A.M. to-morrow. June 29th, 1912.
The Commission resumed at 11 A.M., Osgoode Hall.

PETER RYAN, Sworn, Examined by—

MR. HODGINS: You are Registrar of East Toronto?  A. Yes.
Q. Had you any occasion to visit Ottawa, in 1906?  A. I cannot say, but very probably.
Q. Do you remember the time when Travers was down there?  A. I remember seeing him there once.
Q. About in November, 1906?  A. I cannot give you the date and I cannot give you the year.
Q. Did you know him before?  A. No.
Q. How did you become acquainted with him?  A. I think Mr. Hunter introduced me to him.
Q. What Mr. Hunter?  A. The lawyer. I think it is William Hunter.
Q. You had not known him before?  A. No.
Q. Did you see much of him down there?  A. No.
Q. Who did you introduce him to?  A. I did not introduce him to any one.
Q. What did Mr. Hunter introduce him to you for?  A. Merely the ordinary rule that obtains when you meet any one down there, two men together, introduce one not known to the third party, that is all.
Q. Where did you meet him?  A. I think it was on the floor of the Russell House.
Q. You were staying there?  A. Yes.
Q. He was there for several days, were you there too for that length of time?  A. No, I have not slept a night in Ottawa in years.
Q. Just there for the day and out again?  A. Yes, that is all.
Q. A flying visit?  A. Yes, that is all.
Q. I suppose you know Mr. Calvert?  A. I do.
Q. Did you make Mr. Travers acquainted with him?  A. I do not remember, such a thing is possible, but I have not the slightest remembrance of it.
Q. Would you remember if you introduced him to any one else?  A. No, I do not think I did. I would be very much surprised if I did; I know I did not do so, sure.
Q. Did you introduce him to Mr. Emmerson?  A. No, never.
Q. Did you know what his business was down there?  A. I have a recollection that they told me it was in relation to their new bank they were establishing.
Q. Whom do you speak of when you say they told you?  A. Mr. Hunter and Mr. Travers, I think they mentioned that.
Q. Were they in difficulty at all?  A. Not that I knew of, I knew nothing of their business whatever.
Q. Did not ask you to help them?  A. I do not remember that they did, I could not help them.
Q. Of course I do not know, they might have thought so?  A. Well, I know but I was not in a position to help them, none whatever; I dare say I would have done it if I could have done it.
Q. Was it not the case that they asked you to help them?  A. I do not remember it, because I could not help them; they might have thought so, but I know it was beyond my power.
Q. How did you happen to be down there?  A. I cannot tell you, I have been there many times on ordinary business; I certainly did not go on that business.
Q. Did you go knowing they were going? A. No, not the slightest idea of them being there.
Q. Mr. Hunter is a friend of yours? A. Not particularly. I know him as I know you, I never had any business with Mr. Hunter.
Q. You are not sure whether you introduced him to any one? A. I do not remember anything.
Q. You think it is possible you did to Mr. Calvert, but you are not sure you introduced him to any one else? A. It is just this, on the floor of the Russell House you would meet public men, and occasionally they would come up and speak to me, and if they were present there would be a mutual introduction, and that is all I remember; that is all that was possible.
Q. After the introduction did you see any one in their interests at all down there? A. No.
Q. Do you know who they saw in connection with the matter? A. I have not any idea; I have just the haziest recollection of having seen them, that was all. I have no hesitation in saying I would have helped them had it been in my power just as I would very likely help any one, but I was in no position to do it.
Q. Did you have any dealings with Mr. Travers after that? A. Yes.
Q. How soon? A. Opened an account in his bank.
Q. How soon? A. Not very long after it opened.
Q. How did you come to do that? A. Well, I do not know why, it was convenient to us, but it had no bearing whatever upon that.
Q. Upon what? A. Upon my meeting him at Ottawa or anything of the kind.
Q. Did you ask any one to introduce Travers to a third party? A. No.
Q. Did you help him in any way down there? A. You mean a member of the Government?
Q. Yes? A. No, never.
Q. To any one else, a member of the House? A. No.
Q. You are quite sure of that? A. Very sure.
Q. What makes you so sure of that? A. Because I would have remembered it had I done so, because all things of the kind that are of an unimportant nature as I tell you I would have helped them if I could, but I was in no position to do it.
Q. After you saw him down there and were introduced to him did you see him again down there? A. I do not think so.
Q. Quite sure you left there that night? A. I think so, I have not been, I do not remember having slept a night in Ottawa for a great many years.
Q. When you saw them they had not got the certificate? A. I could not say whether they had or not.
Q. I thought you said they were down there about the certificate? A. They were down there in connection with their bank, I did not know the procedure or anything about it.
Q. The state of mind before they got the certificate and afterwards would be quite different, and I judged from something you said that it was before the certificate was granted? A. It must have been, because they were down upon their bank business, and that only I gleaned since because I did not know the procedure of getting the certificate or the conditions, but I had nothing to do with the granting of the certificate, good, bad, or indifferent.
Q. After the interview you say you did not see Travers again that you remember? A. Not in Ottawa.
Q. Did you see Hunter? A. I do not think so; I might have seen him fifty times but it did not impress me.
Q. Did you see Guthrie? A. No, you mean Hugh Guthrie?
Q. No, I mean his brother, Donald I think it is? A. No, Mr. Donald Guthrie is the elder, the father.
Q. Norman Guthrie? A. I don't know him at all, never heard of him.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. You have no recollection of seeing Travers again? A. No.
Q. Did you see any one on his behalf? A. No.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Did you see Mr. Emmerson on that occasion? A. I have not the slightest remembrance, my Lord.
Q. Were you acquainted with Mr. Emmerson? A. Intimately.
Q. It was during the session of the House, the House was sitting at the time? A. I think so.

W. R. TRAVERS, Recalled:

MR. HODGINS: When you were in Ottawa did you meet Mr. Ryan? A. I did.
Q. How did you come to meet him? A. Mr. Calvert, if I remember right, introduced me to him.
Q. Mr. Calvert said he only met you when you presented the letter of introduction to him? A. He is mistaken about that, because we were in the Russell House together, and he introduced me to several people.
Q. Introduced you to Mr. Ryan? A. Yes, that is my recollection.
Q. And did your acquaintance with Ryan go any further? A. I did not see Mr. Ryan again till after I was back in Toronto.
Q. Did you get an introduction from Mr. Ryan to anybody? A. No, I remember saying to Mr. Ryan what my business was briefly. The meeting was very short, and I asked him if he would put a word in for me. I think, if I remember right, he said he would speak to Mr. Emmerson. He says not here, but that is my recollection.
Q. Were you introduced to Mr. Emmerson? A. I cannot recall that I was, not by Mr. Ryan. I was up in Number 6 Committee Room with Mr. Calvert after that and I was introduced to fifteen or twenty, I cannot remember all who I did meet.
Q. You were up in committee room number six? A. Yes.
Q. And were introduced to whom? A. I was introduced to a number there, I could not recall; I have been trying to, but I could not remember who they were, there must have been fifteen or twenty there.
Q. Was Mr. Emmerson among the number? A. I am not sure about that, I am undecided; I cannot recall the man.
Q. Did you get any assistance from any of those to whom you were introduced? A. Not beyond asking them to put a word in for me.
Q. Have you any further information that you are willing to give. A. Well. I have been thinking over this matter very seriously and been worrying about it, and do not want you to feel that it is on account of any harsh proceedings, that Mr. Commissioner, you want to propose, to force me to tell what I am about to say; I want to say more from my personal feeling towards you and admiration of you than otherwise (I feel that perhaps it would be better for me if I did not say what I am going to say): Before going to Ottawa I was told by a party, I do not remember who it was, I do not wish to be pressed on that point, I don't know whether it was Dr. Nesbitt or Mr. Lindsay or Mr. Lown or Mr. Stratton, or whom. I cannot say, that I had better take $3,000 with me and give it to Mr. Ryan. I went down there without the $3,000, and I put a cheque in an envelope addressed to Mr. Ryan, payable to the order of myself; on that cheque I marked "C" on the back of it I put a number, which I think represented Mr. Ryan's room number; that is why I want to see the cheque. That is all I ever saw of Mr. Ryan. I don't know whether he got the cheque or did not get it, but I put with it a cheque my card, stating that I would pay that in cash when presented in Toronto. The cheque was duly presented to me in about a month or six weeks afterwards, I don't know whether by a bank messenger, it came to my counter, or by some other messenger, and I paid it, and I got the cash together and paid it. That is as far as I am prepared to go in the matter.

Q. What did you do with the envelope and the cheque in it? A. I put the cheque in a private drawer in my desk.

Q. In Ottawa? A. I handed it in to the clerk of the hotel.

Q. Addressed to whom? A. Mr. Peter Ryan.

Q. With his room number on it? A. That is my recollection of it, because I put the room number on the back of the cheque. I thought perhaps it might be useful to me some time.

Q. When did it come back to you? A. About a month or six weeks, I cannot remember exactly the date.

Q. Your advice was to give it to Mr. Ryan before you went down? A. Yes, and not to say anything about it at all. I said nothing to Mr. Ryan about it; I simply enclosed that cheque, and I supposed he would get it or leave instructions for it.

Q. Do you know what became of it? A. I do not.

Q. Do you know who got the money? A. I do not.

Q. Then, just tell us again when you got down there how you made Mr. Ryan's acquaintance? A. I saw Mr. Ryan in the rotunda when I was with Mr. Calvert, that is my recollection. Mr. Calvert introduced me to two or three people and I asked him, if I remember right, I asked him to introduce me to Mr. Ryan and he introduced me to him. I had five or six words, he knew what I was on, my mission; I asked him if he could put in a word for me and he said he might, and if I remember right he mentioned Mr. Emmerson's name, but since he says not I am puzzled as to whether he did or not.

Q. Mr. Emmerson had interested himself, had he not, in the early stages or do you know that? A. No, I do not know that he did; I never heard of his name in connection with it before; I heard of it afterwards but not before.

Q. That cheque that came back would not be presented directly to you, would it? A. We were not in the Clearing House then and they would come to the counter for their settlements each day. If it came from a bank messenger they would draw the cash for it at the counter, but the cheque was brought in to me by one of my officers and I gave him the money for it and took the cheque. I had provided for it in the meantime and I took the cheque and put it in my desk, and that was the end of it.

Q. Was it stamped by any bank? A. I could not say that now, although I have seen it within a year, I am not satisfied about that. I remember seeing a number on the back in pencil and my recollection goes that I put down Mr. Ryan's room number.

Q. What officer would bring it in to you? A. At that time it would have been Mr. Frayne.

Q. Where is he? A. I do not know where he is; he left the country, he was a defaulter and absconded.

Q. The cheque was payable to yourself, and had you endorsed it? A. Yes, that is my recollection.

Q. Did you leave it in Ottawa? A. Yes, I left it in an envelope there; took chances on it.

Q. You did not take any pains to find out who was presenting it? A. I did not want to know; I did not want to know anything about it.

Q. You did not know? A. No, and I do not know to-day.

Q. You paid Mr. Frayne the $3,000 in cash? A. Yes, I gave him the money and he took it out and handed it to whoever was there at the counter.

Q. Did you see who was there? A. I did not.
Q. You had been expecting this? A. Yes, I was looking for it every day.
Q. What did you charge the $3,000 up to? A. It is charged up to my commissions, that is my recollection; I drew it out in several cheques.
Q. It would be about a month after the bank organized? A. Yes, it would be fully a month afterwards; it would be along the middle of January, perhaps six weeks.
Q. You say you charged it up to your commissions? A. I had drawn the money out of commissions prior to the cheque coming in and I was providing that $3,000 to keep it on hand for the cheque.
Q. Just waited for the cheque to come in day by day. A. I was.
Q. Did you make any inquiries afterwards as to who had got that money? A. No, I did not; I did not want to know.
Q. What you have told us here to-day you do not know who actually got the money? A. I do not.
Q. Why did you make such a mystery about it? A. Well, I do not know that there was any particular mystery about it, I did not feel like starting the question at all.
Q. You told me if I were to ask you certain names that you would answer yes or no to them? A. You have had Mr. Ryan called here, and he says he did not get it; at least, I understand he said he got nothing from me; I do not know whether he did or not.
Q. Supposing I had asked you that question, named over several names? A. I would have told you just exactly what I have told you now.
Q. Did you attribute your success in getting your certificate to the cheque? A. I thought it all helped; I knew that when they got the charter through, at least when I say I knew, I was told by Mr. Lown, when they got the charter through they had to use some money there.
Q. So that you were not surprised? A. I was not a bit surprised, no.
Q. When you had the suggestion made to you, did you make inquiries as to where the money would go to? A. No, I did not, I did not care, I did not want to know.

Mr. Hodgins: Perhaps Mr. Ryan ought to have an opportunity of saying something.

PETER RYAN, Recalled:

Mr. Hodgins: You have heard Mr. Travers' statement? A. Yes.
Q. What do you say to it? A. I have got to say that I have never in my life been so surprised at any statement; I am as ignorant of the $3,000 cheque as it is possible for a babe in its mother's arms to be; I never heard of it before. Mr. Travers' cheque may have reached some other quarter; of that I know nothing, but I certainly never saw it. What is more, Mr. Hodgins, I would be pleased to show my bank books, deposit books: I had no such sum; I do not think that I even slept that night in Ottawa, and I never take a room when I go there. I simply put my bag, unless it was an odd case, and I cannot imagine it. I had no room in Ottawa. I will furnish with the greatest openness and frankness my deposit book, and if you can see any trace of anything of the kind, of course I will stand convicted, but I never saw one cent of it. I know nothing about the cheque, I never saw it, and until this moment know nothing whatever except what I read in the papers. I can appreciate Mr. Travers' position, and he can imagine that it might have come to me or you or to anybody else, but of that I am not at all responsible.
Q. You see, he says he put it in an envelope addressed to you? A. I never got it, never saw, never heard of it till now. I say that with the full sense of the responsibility of my oath and before this Commission, willing to take any kind of loss of public confidence or respect or punishment by law or in any other way if it could by any possibility be shown that I had anything whatever to do with it. I can say no more; absolutely ignorant of it, Mr. Commissioner; absolutely never heard of it until now. I will be glad to show you any documents that I have got in that way, and I am just surprised that they could have imagined that I would have been a messenger, and I was, unfortunately, hard-up at the time, but I was not likely to become a messenger in such a case.

Q. Did you have any talk to any of the four gentlemen he has named, Beattie Nesbitt, Lown—? A. No, I never heard of Mr. Lown until I read his name in the paper, and I have never seen the gentleman.

Q. I think Mr. Travers mentioned Lindsay?

Mr. TRAVERS: Dr. Nesbitt and Mr. Stratton.

Mr. HODGINS: Did you ever hear of this bank certificate or bank charter?

A. Not the slightest; two of the gentlemen I do not know; I am sure I never spoke to the Doctor about it.

Q. You know Lindsay? A. No; I know Nesbitt.

Q. Who do you know? A. I know George Lindsay, but that is not the one.

Q. Out of the four, which are the two you know? A. Dr. Nesbitt and Mr. Stratton.

Q. Having heard what Mr. Travers said, can you recall the occasion of his being there more distinctly than you did before? A. No, I do not; I am very sure that Mr. Travers’ statement and mine agree, excepting he says I was introduced by Mr. Travers, and I thought it was Mr. Hunter, but it was so unimportant I did not bother with the thing; unimportant, entirely so, and I had no connection with it, good, bad or indifferent. I assure you, and I am stating it on my solemn oath, that I know nothing whatever about that $3,000 or any sum, greater or smaller, in connection with the transaction. If I can say anything more impressive to you, Mr. Hodgins, I will be glad to do it. I will show you my books; I have no such sum as $3,000.

Q. I do not think it is suggested you kept it? A. No, nor I never got it.

Q. The suggestion is it must have gone to some one else? A. I never got it.

Q. However, your offer is one that I think I ought to accept? A. I will be very pleased to show you anything that I have got. I can sympathize with Mr. Travers in thinking the devious ways of the heathen Chinee might be indulged in, but I certainly was not the medium, nor do I know anything about it, and until this moment I had not the slightest idea that such a thing could ever arise in connection with myself.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: Do you think you could ascertain the purpose you were in Ottawa for? A. No.

Q. By inquiry? A. No; if I got the dates possibly I might.

Q. Between the 21st and the 30th November, 1906? A. I will take down the dates.

Mr. HODGINS: Travers arrived in Ottawa the 28th November and left on the night of the 30th.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: The 28th to the 30th inclusive? A. Mr. Travers and myself are very liable to make a mistake as to whom introduced us, but I could have made no mistake about $3,000; it was just the kind of a sum that would have impressed itself upon me at that particular time, and I never saw it nor never heard of it.
Q. Was that one of the times you were down or one of the times you were up?  A. I could not tell you, but I know I am innocent of this; I have had my share of all sorts of ups and down, but this is a new thing; it would be a new role to be playing, too.

Q. Those are the dates?  A. I will do the best I can, and particularly if you come to my office I will turn up all my letter books and see if I wrote anything on this date to show I was in Toronto at the time.

Mr. Travers: Do you remember standing on the top of the stairs auctioning off something?  A. Very likely.

Mr. Travers: That might help you?  A. That would, undoubtedly.

Mr. Hodgins: The top of the stairs where?  A. At the Russell House.

Q. Auctioning something off?  A. Yes, that was the usual place where we wished to make men rich buying timber.

Q. That probably was what you were down for?  A. Very likely.

Q. You could fix the date; I suppose you were paid commissions on those sales?  A. I forget now.

Mr. Commissioner: You ought not to forget that?  A. Sometimes we did not get the commissions, because sometimes we did not make sales.

Mr. Hodgins: At all events, your books will probably show something about that?  A. Yes, and more than that if you will come this afternoon I will be glad to show you anything I have.

Q. I won’t promise to do that, but I am going to suggest to the Commissioner that the Commission had better stand adjourned to some later date so that I may make the inquiry?  A. Very well.

---

W. R. TRAVERS, Recalled:

Mr. Hodgins: You have heard what Mr. Ryan says, does it change your view in any way as to what you did?  A. Not the slightest.

Q. You made a remark that he was probably auctioning something off there, what did you mean by that?  A. I thought you were trying to fix some dates for him to help him out, and it came to my mind, having seen him on the stairs in his brilliant way he has of putting those things.

Q. Before or after your introduction?  A. I could not say that now.

Mr. Commissioner: Does that mean that he was selling timber limits?  A. That was my recollection of him, seeing him there; I may say first I remember seeing him up the stairway offering something for sale; I did not pay very much attention to it.

Mr. Hodgins: You wrote the number of his room on, at least some number that you think was the number of his room?  A. That is my recollection of it.

Q. On the cheque?  A. Yes.

Q. What would the sense of that be?  A. I had in my mind that possibly I would want to remember it.

Q. So that when the cheque came back you would remember it?  A. Yes.

Q. Did not write certificate on it?  A. No, I put a “C” on it; I thought I would keep the cheque, it might be useful to me some day.

Q. I have communicated with Mr. Lynch-Staunton and he was unable to be present to-day, but he says that he has no recollection whatever of having any interview with you, that he never saw the letter from Colonel Matheson or any cheque for $3,000, and if you saw either of them you did not bring it to his attention? A. I would not like to contradict him in that, but he cannot possibly not remember having an interview with me.

Q. He says he has no recollection, that if you saw either of those documents that you did not bring them to his attention; I think myself that is consistent with what you said yesterday? A. I would not like to contradict him, I saw the documents.

Q. You saw them on the table? A. Yes, and he was in and out and the detective was there; I do not know which one it was now.

Q. Was that before the trial that he was to conduct? A. It was before one of the trials, I could not say which one.

Q. I suppose you have followed this case pretty closely, you remember that he was retained to prosecute and that he did not do so? A. Yes, I remember that.

Q. And some one else did? A. Yes.

Q. Was it just before the trial that he was expected to take? A. That is my memory, I could not say exactly.

Mr. Commissioner: There were two or three bills found when I was sitting at the Criminal Assizes and they were traversed to the next Court. Mr. Staunton was there then; and I think it was at the Court they were traversed to that he was not able to attend, and Mr. DuVernet took his place? A. I was up there so many times.

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. DuVernet prosecuted Lindsay. Was it Lindsay that Mr. Staunton was to prosecute? A. No, I do not think so.

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. DuVernet took the case against Stratton in the County Judge’s Criminal Court.

The Commission adjourned sine die.

Toronto, July 16th, 1912.

The Commission resumed at 11 a.m., at Osgoode Hall.

PRESENT:

Hon. Sir William Meredith, Commissioner;
Frank E. Hodgins, K.C., and John Thompson, K.C., representing the Dominion Government.

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Ryan. Mr. Scott is here, and he would like to be called first. I just wanted to ask you if you had any objection.

Mr. Ryan: Not the slightest.

John G. Scott, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: Q. You are Master of Titles? A. Yes.
Q. And I think you were Master of Titles in 1906? A. Yes.
Q. Do you know Mr. Peter Ryan? A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Peter Ryan has supplied me with an account kept by him in the Home Bank of Canada in the name of Peter Ryan in trust, and on the 18th January, 1907, there is a deposit of $3,000 which he tells me was a loan from you, and I would like to hear what you can tell us about that item? A. A loan hardly describes what it was. Mr. Ryan suggested that there was some British Columbia timber advertised, and he suggested it might be a good thing to bid for it. He said if I would supply $3,000 he would look after it. We put in a bid and it was not accepted; there were some a good deal higher than we were, and the money was returned to me.

Q. What about the date? A. The 18th January, 1907.

Q. Let me see the cheque? A. (Mr. Scott produces cheque and hands to Mr. Hodgins).

Q. Yes, that appears to bear out the entry. Can you tell us about the return? A. Yes, it was returned in different items: February 1st, $2,050 was returned. Then shortly after that $350 was returned, and then $400 returned. May 17th $200 was returned; June 1st, $400, and $500—

Q. It was all in 1907? A. Yes; there is $100 that has not been returned yet. There was some arrangement by which Mr. Ryan got $1,000 of it re-loaned; that is the reason why it has not all been returned.

Q. It looks from the entries here as if on the 22nd January he had got $2,000 of it back? A. I have it entered here 1st February; very probably it was that time.

Q. There is a cheque in his account dated January 22nd? A. Yes, it is not entered here till February 1st.

Q. You did get that and you made an arrangement to re-loan him the $1,000? Yes.

Q. Those were British Columbia timber limits? A. Yes.

Q. Were those limits he was selling? A. No, it was some the Government were advertising, and he thought there might be a good chance for speculation.

PETER RYAN, Recalled:

MR. HODGINS: You promised to make some investigation when we were last here into why you were in Ottawa at the time and so on? A. Yes.

Q. Have you anything more you want to say? A. Yes, I was in Ottawa on the 28th November, 1906, conducting timber limits sale at the Russell House of the Manawan Timber limits, Province of Quebec. Is there anything further.

Q. I just want to know if you have anything further to say in addition to your evidence of the other day that has occurred to you? A. No, there cannot be anything anywhere there is an absolute and positive blank, and an absolute and positive denial of any complicity in the thing.

Q. I was not alluding to that phase of it; you promised to make some inquiries, you said you could not remember? A. No.

Q. I thought probably you should be called to have an opportunity of saying so? A. I availed myself of it; I have not been idle. I immediately referred to my letter book, I also referred to other things that brought it to my recollection very clearly that it was upon that day, because I got a letter from the Russell House at Ottawa giving me a list of the Toronto people who were present on that occasion and Mr. James Pearson, barrister of this city, accompanied me down that night interested in the sale with me, and when I got the list of course it gave me very clearly the knowledge I was seeking as to the date of this sale. It will be found in the Canadian Lumberman, or in the Ottawa Journal you will find it a day or two before that, if Mr. Thompson will inquire when he is down there, as I understand this Commission meets to-morrow there, you will find I was there upon that business.

Q. Did you find out how long you stayed there? A. I only stayed there that day, the 28th; I returned home as I stated on the night of the 28th.

Q. You have a distinct recollection of that? A. No, I cannot have.

Q. Why do you say so? A. Because a telegram from Ottawa, and the searching of the register of the hotel tells me that I left that night. I will give you the letter. Just indicate what in the searching of the hotel register would indicate you left that night? A. Because I had not a room; I always stay at the Russell House.

Q. And take a room there when you stay? A. No, I have not stayed more than two nights in twenty years, but if I did stay I would stay there; never stayed anywhere else. You would not expect me to carry in my memory very clearly whether I stayed there or did not stay.

Q. No, I do not; I just want to find out what you have recollected or been able to find out since; because you naturally could not be very clear about it then, and I thought you might have found something about it since? A. No, but as you are going to Ottawa to-morrow you will be able to find the register; it has been exhumed.

Q. I understand that: we have subpoenaed Mr. Mulligan, but I cannot ask him just now? A. You will find his statement corroborates mine.

Q. Who were you selling timber limits for? A. For myself.

Q. You say Mr. Pearson was interested? A. Yes; but permit me to remark to you that that has no bearing whatever upon this subject before the Commission. I suppose I am not expected to account for every act and every word I said and every act I did.

Q. I have no objection if you do not desire to answer the question? A. I am glad to answer anything that is pertinent, but I cannot be expected to remember everything that I did then.

Q. Your recollection of that entry in your Home Bank Account which you have been kind enough to furnish me with accords with Mr. Scott’s evidence? A. Yes.

Q. Was the repayment as he described, the $2,050? A. I do not know, I have no ledger; it is altogether memory with me. I will venture to say that Mr. Scott’s statement is accurate.

Q. Yes, it appears to be. Your Farmers Bank account—you kept an account there? A. Yes.

Q. Shows a cheque about the 1st of February of $2,050; did you keep an account in several banks at that time? A. You have them all there before you.

Q. These books I have before me indicate the bank accounts; the Sovereign Bank, Farmers’ Bank, Bank of Montreal, and Home Bank? A. Yes, in fact, Mr. Hodgins, I only remembered when I was in bed about the Home Bank; I was so desirous of furnishing you all the information that I went there and they very kindly made me up a statement as I had no book. The book had been destroyed and the cheques and everything else that I thought would not be of the slightest interest to me. I remembered having got that $3,000 from Mr. Scott and for that purpose.

Mr. Commissioner: Did you offer the limits for sale at Ottawa? A. Yes.

Q. At what hour? A. The afternoon I think.

Q. Where? A. At the Russell House.

Q. When was it that you saw Travers and what hour? A. I could not say.

Q. Was it before or after the sale? A. I do not know.

Mr. Hodgins: You failed to sell? A. Yes.

Q. You supplied me with quite a number of letters showing you did tender in January? A. Yes.

Q. Were you able to ascertain the figures at which you put in a tender? A. No, but I wrote on July 8th and I think you have a press copy of my letter to the Department asking them to send me a full copy of my tender, they have not done so. I presume they have been on their holidays. I have got no information from them; and I will be very glad if you or Mr. Thompson will call at the Department of the Interior to-morrow and get copies.

Q. You asked me to subpoena several gentlemen here? A. Yes.

Q. That is the members of the old Board that Mr. Travers mentioned as possibly having suggested to him? A. Yes.
Q. I have done so? A. I thank you.
Q. And I propose to call them, but I would just as soon call them one by one and ask the others in the meantime to retire? A. Very well.

Mr. Lown. Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, J. W. Lindsay retired; Mr. J. R. Stratton could not be present till later.

WILLIAM H. HUNTER, Recalled:

Mr. Hodgins: You have been already examined, and I think you said you went down with Travers to Ottawa? A. Yes.

Q. And that you returned? A. Yes.
Q. Before he did? A. Yes.
Q. The day you were in Ottawa I think was the 28th? A. Yes.
Q. You were there only the one day? A. Just the one day.
Q. Did you meet Peter Ryan there? A. I have no recollection of doing so.

Q. That is as far as you can go? A. Yes. Mr. Ryan called on me and asked me if I recollected, and I was unable to recollect it.

Q. Mr. Travers has said this: "Before going to Ottawa I was told by a party, I do not remember who it was, I do not wish to be pressed on that point, I do not know whether it was Dr. Nesbitt or Mr. Lindsay or Mr. Lown or Mr. Stratton or whom, I cannot say, that I had better take $3,000 with me and give it to Mr. Ryan". Mr. Ryan has asked me to subpoena you and I presume for the purpose of asking you whether you made any suggestion of that kind? A. Not at all, I had no knowledge of the $3,000 matter until this came out after the bank's failure.

Q. Tell me, when you came back apparently you went in and saw Mr. Fitzgibbon and you asked him to send down three cheques to Travers? A. Yes.
Q. You no doubt had some conversation with Travers about the cheques? A. Yes.
Q. He says that he went down without the $3,000 and so on, what was Travers' reason for wanting cheques sent down? A. I think I said before on that point, he told me he was going to be there longer than he expected, that he thought he would go down to Montreal to make some arrangement about a lease; there was a mix-up over a building that had been taken by a canvassing agent; also to arrange about redemption of bank currency; and he did not know how long he would be away and he asked me to have some cheques sent down to him; that was the whole conversation as I recollect it.

Q. And did he say anything to you about Peter Ryan while he was in Ottawa? A. I do not recollect his mentioning Peter Ryan at all.
Q. Did you meet any one else down there in connection with the bank certificate? A. Yes, I met Mr. Ross, the chief clerk, we called on.
Q. Did you meet any one else connected with either the Department or Parliament, any one who would have any influence in a matter of that kind? A. No, I met no one.

Q. Met nobody? A. Nobody connected either with Parliament or the Department. I did meet both Guthrie and Pringle in connection with Smith's claim, but that was the only other parties I recollect meeting at all in connection with the business of the bank.
Q. Did you go and see Mr. Boville when you were there? A. No, I think Mr. Ross was the only man we saw.
Q. When you came back here according to Mr. Fitzgibbon's letter you read over the subscriptions, you say you do not think that is correct, that you looked at the book instead; Travers has since said that the actual subscriptions were sent down to him in Ottawa? A. I have said before that if they were I did not know it.

Q. He did not ask you to have them sent down when you left him? A. No.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Did you see Mr. Calvert when you were in Ottawa on that occasion? A. I don't think I knew Mr. Calvert at all.

Q. Did you see him? A. I certainly did not see him.

Q. What would Travers want with three cheques upon your explanation? A. I do not know sir; I think my evidence was before—

Q. What would he want two or three if it was simply to pay his expenses of moving about? A. That I know nothing of I might suggest if he had a settlement to make on the question of that lease in Montreal he would need one.

Mr. Hodgins: It has just occurred to me there are a couple of matters, that while you are here I would like to ask you about them; there was a note which was spoken of, I think the name was Elliott, in connection with some defalcation connected with the bank in one of its outlying branches, and the amount appears to have been returned or disposed of by getting a note from I think a man named Elliott. Mr. Travers said he did not know who Elliott was, that it was a matter in your hands and it was sent over from your office; do you recollect the circumstances? A. No, I cannot place it.

Q. Do you remember the fact that up north somewhere the bank lost a considerable amount of money—McCallum? A. McCallum was in the Toronto branch, not up north.

Q. You do remember about him? A. I remember McCallum, because there was a prosecution there.

Q. Do you remember afterwards having a suit or taking any steps to collect the amount? A. No, I do not think there were any such steps taken.

Q. Mr. Travers says the note came from your office.

Mr. Travers: You are on the wrong track; it is Tamlin. A. That was not an officer of the bank.

Mr. Travers: No. A. That was a customer of the bank. There was a suggestion there that Mr. Tamlin had discounted some forged paper—

Mr. Hodgins: We are not interested in the charge itself; you remember the circumstance? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember it was afterwards settled in some way through your office? A. Yes, that was settled through my office; a brother-in-law of his came down from London and made some settlement.

Q. What was his name? A. That I have forgotten.

Q. How does this note come into existence; the note was for a large amount, nothing ever was paid, nobody ever knew who the maker was, and Mr. Travers says it came through your office? A. It may have been given by the brother-in-law, produced by him.

Q. Could you find out? A. I think I could.

Q. When the bank failed were you connected with a Graphite Company? A. Yes.

Q. A stockholder—and had you made yourself liable to the bank in connection with this debt? A. No.

Q. Were you a director? A. Yes.

Q. In round numbers how much did the bank advance to that concern? A. They had a stock interest along with a bond interest as I remember, it amounted to $30,000: there was an overdraft of about $50,000.

Q. What was the extent of your interest in the company? A. Financially?

Q. Yes? A. I had, including moneys that I had advanced after the failure, about $18,000 in the company.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. After the failure of the bank? A. And before; the property was operated under lease; I supplied the money.
Q. Was it a close corporation? A. It was intended to be a preliminary company to a public flotation.
Q. Who was interested in it besides yourself? A. The bank was interested, Mr. Brumell was interested.
Q. What do you mean by the bank was interested? A. They held a portion of the stock as a bonus with the bonds.
Q. Who got up the company and got the bank moneys advanced? A. I fancy I had the most to do with that.
Q. Has that ever been made good? A. We are still working on it.
Q. Was Mr. Travers interested in it? A. He had no personal interest in it.
Q. Who was interested on behalf of the bank in the formation of the company? A. There was some stock stood in Travers' name as manager in trust.
Q. Did you get it up entirely yourself or in collaboration with anybody else? A. Mr. Travers knew the steps under which I was getting it up.
Q. Did you have any one else connected with you getting it up? A. Mr. Brumell the man who had the properties and process.
Q. And you got it up, put some stock in 'Travers' name and got the bank to advance? A. Yes.
Q. On the bonds? A. Yes.
Q. And out of those I suppose Brumell was paid? A. No, he got no money out of it.
Q. Did he get any money out of it? A. No one got any money out of it, it was all expended in the development of the property.
Q. Did Brumell put in the property for nothing? A. That particular, the last property was purchased by the company from Sparks of Ottawa; part of the money of the bank went into the purchase price.
Q. I thought you said Brumell had the property? A. Yes, he had the control of the property.
Q. Had he the title to it or merely an option? A. He had some agreement with Sparks.
Q. Did he turn it over to the company at an advance? A. No, no advance, no profit of any kind made.
Q. So far as you know? A. I know all about it; I know there was no profit.
Q. He carried through the purchase from Sparks? A. Yes.
Q. How much was paid to him? A. $5,000 on account and a mortgage given back for the balance.
Q. Has that been paid? A. No, it is still on it.
Q. All the money you say was expended in development? A. Yes; the mill had to be refitted and the property re-opened.
Q. Who looked after the bank's interests in the matter in getting responsible parties on the loan? A. Mr. Travers I presume.
Q. Were you ever asked to become liable? A. No.
Q. Was Brumell? A. No.
Q. How soon after the bank started did the company get advances from the bank? A. I think that would be the fall of 1909 or the summer of 1909.

MR. COMMISSIONER: I do not understand about these bonds, what bonds was it that the bank had? A. The bonds of the Graphite Company.
Q. An incorporated company? A. Yes.
Q. What bond issue was there? A. There was a bond issue of $100,000.
Q. What became of those bonds? A. The bonds were pledged to the bank.
Q. For what? A. For the advances.
Q. For all the advances? A. They originally had $25,000 or $30,000 of bonds by direct purchase; the rest of them were pledged.
Q. What did they buy the $25,000 of bonds at? A. Par.
Q. What became of the money? A. The money went into the property in the re-fitting of the mill and the operation of the property.
Q. Who was the solicitor of the bank at this time? A. I was solicitor of the bank.
Q. Were you ever personally answerable for the debt before the corporation was formed? A. I may have been for part of it; I think I was one one note for $5,000.
Q. Who was on the rest of it? A. I think Mr. Brumell.
Q. What did that rest consist of, how much? A. It may have been $15,000.
Q. Who was Mr. Brumell? A. A mining engineer in the Province of Quebec.
Q. A man of any means? A. He has some means I think.
Q. Worth anything? A. I think so.
Q. You did not answer Mr. Hodgins’ question as to whether the liability to the bank has been settled? A. The liability is still outstanding.
Q. How much is it? A. I think it is about $80,000 including the amount of the bonds.

ALEXANDER S. LOWN, Recalled:

Mr. Hodgins: What do you know about this $3,000? A. Nothing.
Q. Did you have any talk with Travers before you went to Ottawa? A. I may have.
Q. About getting the certificate through? A. I cannot remember; I do not remember of any conversation.
Q. Do you know Mr. Peter Ryan? A. I know him by sight; I have never spoken to Mr. Ryan in my life; I know him by sight.
Q. You had known him in 1906? A. I knew him by sight.
Q. Was it your idea that there would be any difficulty in getting the certificate? A. I did not know of any.
Q. They turned it all over to Travers and if there was a difficulty he was to surmount it? A. Yes.
Q. When did your office as provisional director cease? A. It ceased on the day of the holding of that meeting, the 26th November.
Q. As a matter of fact it did not actually cease then, you continued to act? A. There was nothing done after that.
Q. You knew when Travers left for Ottawa I suppose? A. I do not remember seeing Mr. Travers between the time he left for Ottawa and the holding of that meeting.
Q. You had had some experience with political difficulties in Ottawa, had not you? A. I had been down several times in connection with various renewals of the Acts.
Q. And you had experienced difficulties from time to time getting renewals? A. Not very serious difficulties.
Q. You had quite a serious difficulty the last time? A. I do not think so; I was down there several days.
Q. You got Mr. Calvert to take charge of the Bill, didn’t you; you canvassed the Committee thoroughly? A. Both myself and Mr. Urquhart were down there; I canvassed a number of the Committee myself.
Q. Don’t you remember telegraphing triumphantly that the committee had turned down Mr. Fielding? A. I do not remember anything about that.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. You remember there was difficulty? A. More difficulty I think with the first renewal than there was the last, if I remember right.

Q. Travers says that somebody suggested that he had better grease the wheels in Ottawa? A. I did not suggest it.

Q. Did you suggest anything of the kind? A. No.

Q. Have you any distant recollection of any conversation? A. I have no—

Q. You are not likely to have left him altogether on the 26th November—if Travers was going down in a day or so to get the certificate on which depended your share of the additional $10,000? A. The matter was entirely left in Mr. Travers' hands.

Q. You would not drop out so completely as to have no interest in the matter? A. We certainly had an interest in it.

Q. Then he said somebody, he gives the names of four, he does not say which, suggested to him he had better take down some money? A. It was not I suggested it.

Q. Did you make any suggestion to him? A. No, not on that—not that I remember of.

Q. You were going to say not on that line? A. Yes, I was going to say that.

Q. What was the line you followed? A. I have no recollection of ever discussing what he would do down there. Mr. Travers appeared to be perfectly sure and perfectly able to take care of himself.

Q. There are just four people named, Dr. Nesbitt, Mr. Lindsay, Mr. Lown and Mr. Stratton; he mentions the four as having suggested taking $3,000 down there and giving it to Mr. Ryan? A. I did not suggest it, and I never heard of any of the others suggesting it.

Q. What suggestion did you make? A. I do not remember making any suggestion.

Q. You had had a good deal of experience in Ottawa, as I understand it, over these extensions of time; you are very likely to have had some talk with Travers about how you have surmounted your difficulties and how he could surmount his? A. We surmounted our difficulty by personally seeing the members; that is the only way we did; we never used any money or anything of that sort.

Q. Do you say you made no suggestion of that kind? A. I made no suggestion of that kind, not that I can recollect.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Did you tell Travers you had had to use money in connection with the renewal of the charter? A. No, I never did.

Q. Have you ever been able to find out about that money you got, the $560; do you know what it was for now? A. I do not know anything more about it than before; the money was paid in small amounts; it was mostly used by me for travelling expenses; it was out of pocket expenses as far as I can recollect.

Q. That is all you know about it? A. That is all that I can recollect about it.

W. J. LINDSAY, Recalled:

MR. HODGINS: You had succeeded in getting rid of the difficulty over what is known as the Laidlaw subscriptions? A. Yes.

Q. In October? A. I presume it was about that time.

Q. You knew it was money that had been raised by Travers? A. I do not know anything about that; the money was placed to my credit; I don't know where it came from.
Q. You did that for the sake of getting the thing through quietly? A. I was asked to do it.
Q. In removing opposition? A. I was asked by the solicitor to do it.
Q. And you did it? A. Yes.
Q. You acted on the solicitor’s requests without caring one way or the other whether it went through or not; is that the attitude you take, that you were perfectly indifferent as to whether you would ever get a cent of commission if the bank did not go on, or were you vitally interested in it? A. It was not as a matter of commissions I was interested in it, it was a matter of business.
Q. They are somewhat similar in this case; do you take the attitude you did not care whether the certificate was got or not? A. I do not think I ever thought of commissions; I was called in and asked if I would do so and so; I afterwards put in my bill for the work done.
Q. And without thought of your commissions you did it; well, we need not go into that any more. Travers has named a group of men, all of whom were interested at that time, according to my view, some one of them having suggested to him that he had better pay some money in Ottawa; are you the one that made the suggestion? A. No, sir. I noticed that in the paper. As far as Peter Ryan is concerned, I did not know whether Peter Ryan was black or white.
Q. You do not pretend to be such a child as to not know Peter Ryan? A. I had never met Peter Ryan.
Q. You knew who he was? A. I do not recollect that I did; I am not a Toronto man.
Q. You say you did not know anything about Mr. Peter Ryan’s position? A. No, I did not even know he was a registrar.
Q. Where have you been living? A. In Western Ontario.
Q. Milton? A. No.
Q. In Western Ontario; you could hardly have suggested his name to Mr. Travers? A. No, I did not.
Q. He says, Dr. Nesbitt or Mr. Lindsay—that is you? A. Yes, I presume so.
Q. Mr. Lown or Mr. Stratton, he cannot say whom, suggested that he should take down some money? A. If he had mentioned some more it would have been a still larger group.
Q. Had you any conversation with him? A. No, sir.
Q. Before he went down? A. No, sir.
Q. Or when he came back? A. I do not know that I had; I do not think I was in the city. Let me tell you I was absent for a month, I was in Montreal and in Ottawa, and got a telegram from New York from Major Currie, and I went down, and I came back through with Mr. Harry Corby, and I had all this data where I was at this particular time, and I was not in the city.
Q. Within six days after the granting of the certificate you got $10,000, so that you cannot assume you were so absolutely indifferent? A. I came back a few days before the organization meeting.
Q. That is before the 26th November? A. Yes.
Q. And you were paid your cheque on the 6th December; you do not mean to say you were away between those two dates? A. No, but I was away prior to that, at the time he would be going to Ottawa.
Q. He went on the 27th and you came back on the 26th November, so that you had every opportunity of speaking to him; do you mean to say you did not speak to him? A. I did not.
Q. A distinct recollection of that? A. I would have a recollection if I had done so.
Q. I am asking you if you did? A. I did not.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. You have a distinct recollection? A. I am absolutely sure I did not mention Peter Ryan’s name because I could not.

Q. Had you a conversation with him? A. Not on that matter: I may have had a conversation, but I do not remember any conversation, but I certainly know I could not mention Mr. Peter Ryan’s name because I had not the pleasure of his acquaintance.

Q. But you knew the usefulness of money, because you had just been using it to buy these people off? A. It was not a matter of buying off, it was a matter of giving them what was coming to them.

Q. You were familiar with the use of money? A. It was just the same as though you had asked me to go out and do a certain work and I said I would try and do it.

Q. Did you make any suggestion as to the value of the use of money in smoothing things out in Ottawa? A. I did not.

Q. Is Travers mistaken? A. When you hear what I say—

Q. Is he mistaken? A. Absolutely, as far as I am concerned.

Q. Can you account for his naming you? A. No, I cannot account for that, nor I cannot account for many of his actions in the last four or five years either.

Mr. Commissioner: I would like to understand exactly what your position is; do you want to give the Commission to understand that you took no interest at all except merely employed to go out and arrange with these stockholders at Milton? A. I took the same interest in doing it that as I did in the placing of the stock.

Q. Please answer, did you feel you had any personal interest in the matter? A. I felt I would like to see the bank go through.

Q. Answer my question? A. I was personally interested in the matter of commissions in connection with the bank.

Q. Did you not know that the effect of the success of the Laidlaw suit would be to prevent the bank going into operation, did not you hear that? A. I knew for a positive fact it would not go into operation if he succeeded.

Q. What would have been the result upon your claim for commissions? A. I felt when my work was done in placing stock at any time that my commissions were due and payable.

Q. Payable by whom? A. By the organization or the parties that had made the contract with me; at the same time—

Q. You felt no interest then in getting the bank started? A. I was quite anxious to see it started, and quite anxious—

Q. I do not mean sympathetic, I mean a personal interest? A. Yes, a personal interest.

Q. You were personally interested also in getting the certificate, were not you? A. I did not know there had to be a certificate got.

Q. Never heard that? A. No, did not know anything at all, only the charter.

Q. When did you first hear that? A. In fact I think it was after the bank suspended.

DR. WILLIAM BEATTIE NESBITT. Recalled:

Mr. H. H. Dewart, K.C. was present during Dr. Nesbitt’s examination.

Mr. Hodgins: Your name has been mentioned by Mr. Travers as one of the four that had a discussion with him before he went down to Ottawa to get the certificate: you see you had been elected as a director and I think as president, on the 26th November, I assume you were naturally interested in what Travers was to do, that is to get the bank started; am I right in that? A. In what?
Q. That you were interested in what Travers was to do in the way of getting the bank started?  A. Mr. Travers informed me as I told you before that he had complied with all the requirements necessary, and the issuing of the certificate was simply a matter of form; that is all I know about it.
Q. Did you believe that?  A. I believed that absolutely; I had no reason for believing anything else.
Q. You knew that had to be granted by the Government?  A. Yes.
Q. Do you say you thought absolutely it was a mere matter of form?  A.
Under the Act, as he showed it to me, he had to have so much money paid in and so much stock subscribed, and he had done that.  Well, then as I understood it went through as a matter of form after that.
Q. You and he discussed his having complied with the Bank Act?  A. He simply mentioned that.
Q. You said he showed you the Act?  A. I did not mean he showed me the Act, but he said the Act required that there should be so much paid up and so much subscribed, and then when this was done they applied to the Government for their certificate and the certificate was granted as a matter of form.
Q. What was the occasion of your conversation about the requirements of the Bank Act?  A. There was no occasion for the conversation about the requirements of the Bank Act; it was after the meeting and I do not remember very clearly, if was after the meeting, and he was going down to Ottawa to apply for his certificate, and I mentioned, as any one might, that he had complied with the requirements, and he was going to get his certificate.
Q. Did not you discuss that before the meeting when you were elected president?  A. I cannot remember what little discussion we had before the meeting.
Q. I asked you whether you did discuss what he had done towards getting the bank organized before you accepted the presidency?  A. He told me he had got his money, he had arranged, his money had been paid in, the amount that he required, and he had got the necessary stock subscriptions; that is as far as I know.
Q. What was the reason for that discussion, that conversation?  A. What would be the normal reason?  He wanted me to become president of the bank and he told me the position he had his affairs in, when he asked me to become president.
Q. You becoming president would want to know?  A. I did not want to know; he wanted me to be president and he told me.
Q. You said you did not want to know?  A. It does not follow in the way you put it.
Q. Do you mean to say he volunteered the information and you did not seek it; is that fair way of putting it?  A. Yes.
Q. Did you investigate further, did you ask to see a verification of that?  A.
I cannot remember what occurred now.
Q. You say you thought it was a matter of form if he had complied with those conditions?  A. Yes.
Q. Was time of any importance?  A. I do not remember anything about that at all; I have not the slightest recollection about the thing having to be done in a certain time or not.
Q. You said it would follow as a matter of course; I suppose you know that sometimes the wheels of the Department run pretty slowly?  A. I do not know.
Q. Did you never experience that?  A. No, I cannot say that I did.
Q. Always ran pretty fast where you were concerned?  A. Of course; the Conservatives do things much more promptly I have considered than the Liberals.
Q. It is quite likely you might have had some fear that Travers would meet with delay in Ottawa at that time?  A. I did not think about it at all.
Q. Strange to say in this case I do not think any one could have acted with more promptitude so that your view would not be borne out by this particular case.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Did you make any suggestion to him before he went down as to how he should go about it?  A. None whatever.

Q. Leave that entirely to him?  A. Certainly left to him, he knew about the banking business. I did not.

Q. And the solicitor?  A. They knew about the banking business, I did not know anything about it; they knew what was requisite, I did not know anything about it.

Q. Getting it through did you not make any suggestion as to what would help it through?  A. I had no reason for making such a suggestion.

Q. Did you?  A. I certainly did not.

Q. Is he wrong in speaking of some one of four, yourself, Mr. Lindsay, Mr. Lown and Mr. Stratton who suggested the use of money?  A. He is absolutely wrong as far as I am concerned, because I would not make such a suggestion under any circumstances. I have been in public life all my life, and I never did a thing that I thought was wrong, and I certainly would not start with Mr. Travers or anybody else.

Q. Did you know Peter Ryan?  A. I was Registrar of West Toronto; Mr. Ryan was a Roman Catholic appointed by the Grit Government; I was an Orange man appointed by the Tory Government; that is as far as I knew him.

Q. It does not tell me anything?  A. I was in Mr. Ryan's office once that I remember of in my life, and that was shortly after I was appointed; he took me up and showed me around his office, and his engravings—he has some very handsome engravings there. I always had a high regard for Mr. Ryan as a citizen, and I knew him as I knew thousands of other men in Toronto.

Q. You knew what Mr. Ryan's position was?  A. I could hardly avoid it.

Q. Did Travers ever tell you when he got back anything about how he had got it through?  A. I never remember Mr. Travers mentioning Mr. Ryan's name in any manner, shape or form in connection with the bank.

Q. Did he tell you how he had got it through?  A. No; I understood he had things in perfect shape and he was very successful.

Q. When he came back?  A. When he came back.

Q. As president, when he came back I should think you would be the one who would want to know?  A. When he came back he told me he had got his certificate, that he had things in perfect shape; and as he said before he went down he did not think there would be any difficulty about it, and he had practically no difficulty at all. And as I understood he said it was a lot of red tape, it was not the way you run a bank, the way they run a Government.

Q. He said a lot of red tape?  A. It seemed to him a lot of red tape; they ran a Government differently from the way they run a bank.

Q. I suppose on that point his opinion would not be of very much value, but it was expressed to you at that time?  A. Yes, I remember something to that effect.

---

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Stratton is to be here at a quarter past twelve. Is there any one here you wish to ask to be called, Mr. Ryan?

Mr. Ryan: Mr. Atlas I understood you would call. I do not know him, but I asked you to call him because I understood he had some testimony to give.

Mr. Hodgins: You asked for Mr. Calvert who will give evidence later on, and for Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, and Mr. Lindsay, Mr. Lown, and Hon. J. R. Stratton and W. H. Hunter.

Mr. Ryan: Yes, I just wanted to have a house cleaning at once as far as I was concerned.

Mr. Hodgins: I will call Mr. Fitzgibbon.
JAMES G. FITZGIBBON, Recalled by—

Mr. Hodgins: When you sent the cheques down to Mr. Travers in Ottawa on the 29th November, 1906, did you take them out of the bank cheque book? A. I do not know whether I did or asked Mr. Shaver to tear them out. I certainly sent them down.

Q. What bank were they on? A. The Traders Bank in Toronto.

Q. This stub book has not been put in; are those the stubs of the Traders Bank cheques up to the time the account was closed? A. Yes, sir.

EXHIBIT 90: Stubs of Traders Bank cheque book.

Q. You either took the blank cheques out yourself or got them from Mr. Shaver? A. Yes, who had the custody of them.

Q. When was the balance drawn out, do you happen to recollect, finally? A. I cannot tell from memory; I can tell from the stub here, that the last cheque payable to the Union Bank was on January 3rd, 1906, it is marked here, but it should be 1907.

Q. What was the amount of it, would that indicate that the balance was drawn? A. On the 21st December the then apparent balance was drawn out.

Q. How much? A. $74,519.53 was drawn out on the 21st, and January 3rd, $264.16 which probably was the interest up to the 31st of December on that account.

Q. On the 31st December, 1906, practically all the money would have been drawn out? A. Yes.

Q. When these three blank cheques were taken out and sent down by you, they must have been regarded by you as outstanding unless accounted for? A. Yes, we left space in the cash book to write them in when we were advised by Mr. Travers what they were drawn up for.

Q. Was that cheque book under your control? A. No, sir.

Q. Whose? A. Mr. Shaver had the custody of it.

Q. Had you the signing of the cheques? A. No, sir.

Q. You never signed any of those Traders Bank cheques? A. No.

Q. Who signed those? A. Mr. Travers.

Q. Space was left then in the books to account for those three cheques? A. Yes.

Q. Look at the stubs there, you notice Pringle & Guthrie's? A. Yes.

Q. Was that ever entered up? A. Yes.

Q. What about the other two cheques? A. The next one is marked cancelled.

Q. I am not speaking of the stub, what about those other two cheques, were they entered up? A. I could not say.

Q. As accountant you would certainly want to know, would not you? A. The books were written up at the end of the month; when Mr. Travers came back, these cheques were I presume returned, the two unused ones were returned and used subsequently.

Q. Why do you presume anything about it? A. I do not know.

Q. If there was a $3,000 cheque outstanding that Travers knew about, if it was one of those cheques it would be a cheque on the Traders Bank? A. Yes.

Q. Where would it be presented when he wanted payment of it? A. At the Traders Bank.

Q. Were you shown that there was any cheque outstanding. A. No.

Q. Who directed the transfer on the 21st December to the Union Bank of all the money available? A. Mr. Travers.

Q. There was no such sum as $3,000 left in the Traders Bank? A. Not after the 31st December.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. What would happen to any holder of that $3,000 cheque, what would happen to it if they presented it to the Traders Bank? A. It would probably be refused by the Traders Bank, no funds.

Q. Did you make inquiries from Travers when that transfer was made to the Union Bank, as to whether all the cheques had come in? A. No, sir, I presumed that they are all marked off here, and the check mark that they had been checked and posted.

Q. You presumed that, but as accountant the Traders Bank was the sole account you had at that time? A. Mr. Shaver had entire charge of the cash book and the drawing out of these cheques.

Q. The writing of them? A. He kept the books and checked off the bank balances.

Q. What on earth were you doing? A. I was busy ordering stationery and the outfit for the bank, it had to be done in the month.

Q. Were you paying no attention to what was being done with the cash on deposit? A. I would certainly have known if there was a $3,000 cheque outstanding if we had been advised to write it on the stub.

Q. Was it not any part of your duty when the balance was taken out to ascertain if all the cheques were provided for? A. All the cheques we had a record of were provided for.

Q. How do you know? A. By the stubs, and the cash book was written up from those.

Q. Did you know that they were all provided for? A. I knew from hearsay from Mr. Shaver that he had checked them off, and the balance in our books agreed, from the posting of these stubs, agreed with the balance as shown by the Traders Bank books.

Q. You felt you should know it? A. Yes.

Q. And you did inquire from Shaver? A. Yes; the books balanced.

Q. And if a cheque had been presented at the Traders Bank the account was closed, and refused, and a Farmers Bank cheque, it would have looked pretty bad just at that juncture? A. Yes, it certainly would.

Q. Did you ever hear anything about that cheque that Travers says was presented at the Farmers Bank? A. No, I know absolutely nothing about it.

Q. The Farmers Bank was in operation in January, 1907? A. Yes, we opened on the 2nd January.

Q. If a cheque signed by the Farmers Bank, per Travers, general manager, came in from outside and was carried into the bank by somebody—? A. Drawn on the Farmers Bank?

Q. Assume he had changed one of these Traders Bank cheques and made it a cheque on the Farmers Bank according to his evidence as I recollect it, he would sign it Farmers Bank or W. R. Travers manager, so that it would be drawn from the funds of the Farmers Bank, what would become of that cheque if it came in, whom would it go to? A. It would be presented to the paying teller in the office downstairs.

Q. Who was the paying teller? A. I think it was Mr. Borrowman, I am not sure.

Q. It would be a head office disbursement? A. Yes.

Q. It would come to you? A. Yes, through the Toronto branch next day.

Q. It would come to you before that, would not it? A. No.

Q. At that time the bank was in operation and this was practically a head office cheque? A. Yes.

Q. There would be no head office account in the Toronto branch? A. All the head office disbursements paid out by the Toronto branch are charged to the head office and advised to us.
Q. I want to know whether there was any account in the teller’s ledger headed “head office” which would have a balance in it to which we would charge head office cheques? A. Certainly there would be a head office account in the Toronto branch.

Q. If a cheque of $3,000 came in would he have any option about paying it or would he make inquiries from anybody? A. I should not think he would need to.

Q. If it came in by the hand of a messenger it would be an unusual thing, a cheque payable to Travers, manager, and endorsed by him, coming in from some man on the street who wanted the money for it, and should no inquiry be made? A. I say there ought to be.

Q. Was there any inquiry made from you? A. Not from me; I would not see it until after it had been paid and sent up the next morning with the other head office disbursements.

Q. You say no inquiry was made from you in January? A. No.

Q. When were the cheques, the Farmers Bank cheques themselves printed? A. I could not say positively as to that; I ordered them the first or second week in December and they were not delivered until close on to the end of the month.

Q. Would they be delivered after the 21st December, which appears to be the date at which the Union Bank got the money? A. I should say so.

Q. Delivered after that? A. Yes.

Q. Have you a positive recollection about that? A. No, but I know it was very late in the month because it took some time.

Q. Any cheque issued previous to that, if issued on an account in which the Farmers Bank had money would be issued on the Traders Bank? A. Yes, the Traders Bank up to the 21st of December, and after that up to the end of December and possibly running into January, on the Union Bank; the account was transferred to the Union Bank on the 21st December.

Q. If drawn in November on the Farmers Bank it would have to be a changed cheque? A. Yes, I should say so.

Q. The cheque on its face would indicate that? A. Yes.

Q. I do not see on any of those stubs there at that time any “C” or anything else? A. No, sir.

Q. So that if any of those is the stub of this cheque, “C” was not put on the stub? A. Not that I know of; I do not see it here; I do not see even a cheque for $3,000 here on the Traders.

Q. Do you remember a cheque for business premises, $3,000, in January? A. In January the cheques would be drawn on the Farmers Bank.

Q. Do you remember a cheque for $3,000 in January charged to business premises? A. I do not recall it, but I dare say there was one; I could tell you from the stubs. That would be signed by me.

Q. You spoke of a $6,000 cheque which you were directed to make out by Travers and you marked it on the stub, “Account C”? A. Yes.

Q. Did he tell you what “C” was for? A. No, sir.

Q. What did you understand it to be for? A. I did not understand it to be anything. I simply carried out instructions. He said it was to be charged to his commissions and just mark it account “C”, so that he would be able to identify it, and if I remember rightly it was charged up to commissions.

Q. Did you investigate afterwards to find out what that $6,000 was used for? A. No, sir.

Q. Never interested yourself? A. No.

Q. Why not? A. It was not my business.

Q. You thought there was something suspicious about it? A. No, sir.

Mr. Commissioner: If the cheque were drawn on the Traders Bank and presented at the Traders Bank after the account was closed, would it not be pro-bale that there was a sensible man in the paying teller’s box, and he would refer the holder of the cheque to the Farmers Bank and say the account had been closed?
A. He might do that.

Q. Supposing you had been there?  A. I certainly would have done so.

Q. If that had happened, what would have been done with the cheque in the ordinary course when it came to the bank?  A. It would in that case, being presented to the Farmers Bank, drawn on the Traders Bank, the teller or the manager, whoever it was presented to, would naturally take it up to Mr. Travers for authority to pay it.

Q. If Travers paid it out of the money he had there for the purpose of meeting it when it was presented, it would not go through the bank books at all?  A. No.

Q. Did you ever see that cheque yourself?  A. Not that I know of.

Q. You have not the slightest idea what did become of it?  A. No, I thought I saw the cheque here in the early days of the Commission; I was shown a $3,000 cheque.

Q. It has never been here to my knowledge.

Mr. Hodgins: This $3,000 cheque, dated January 7th, 1907, is Exhibit 60, is that the cheque that you saw here?  A. Yes.

Q. That is what you were thinking of when you last spoke?  A. Yes; I remember the figure on the back of it, but I thought it was on the Traders.

Q. That cheque is signed by the Farmers Bank, Travers, General Manager, payable to himself and dated January 7th, 1907?  A. Yes.

Q. And is endorsed by himself?  A. Yes.

Q. Would what is on the back indicate that twenty bills of the denomiation of $100 and two $500-bills were paid out on that?  A. Yes.

Q. And that was accepted by the Union Bank and would the stamp on it indicate it was paid by the Union Bank or is that paid by the Farmers Bank?
A. No, sir; it is paid by the Union Bank of Canada on the same day it was drawn.

Mr. Commissioner: What was that charged to?

Mr. Hodgins: Travers said it was charged to bank premises.

JAMES R. STRATTON, Recalled:

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Travers, when last examined, made this statement:
"Before going to Ottawa I was told by a party, I do not remember who it was,
I do not wish to be pressed on that point, I do not know whether it was Dr. Nesbitt or Mr. Lindsay or Mr. Lown or Mr. Stratton or whom, I cannot say, that I had better take $3,000 with me and give it to Mr. Ryan"—this was before he went down to get the certificate, and he mentioned your name?  A. I had no such conversation.

Q. Had you any conversation with him?  A. None whatever. I swore the last time I had no conversation with any one with regard to the bank further than the advance made by the Trust Company.

Q. You had a conversation with Travers when the $80,000 was being negotiated?  A. Yes.

Q. And the $20,000 as well?  A. No, I was not there when that was made.

Q. You at all events know about the matter, that the certificate had to be got, that that was his object in getting the money; the $80,000 was intended to complete the amount?  A. The $80,000 was a loan to Mr. Travers.
Q. I am only indicating the purpose? A. I knew we were making the loan on the notes handled by Mr. Travers, but what the purpose was I was not informed at that time what the loan was for.

Q. Were you not informed what the loan was for? A. No.

Q. Why did you sign a cheque making it payable to the Bank of Montreal? A. I had nothing to do with the signing of the cheque.

Q. Do you mean to say he came to you and you did not ask what that $80,000 was for? A. Any discussion he had in the matter was with Mr. Warren. I knew the loan was being made to Mr. Travers, and it was to be used in connection with the Farmers Bank, but how I was not informed.

Q. Do you deny having that conversation with Mr. Hughes Charles, of Peterboro? A. I deny having it in the sense that Mr. Charles put on it.

Q. You did discuss the loan? A. Yes.

Q. You did not discuss the amount that had been made out of it? A. I said the Trust Company made a loan.

Q. That was before the bank started? A. Just about the time.

Q. Do you still say you did not know what he was getting the $80,000 for? A. I still say that I did not know he was obtaining the $80,000 to make a deposit with the Government; he and Mr. Warren had all the conversation with regard to it, and all I said to Mr. Warren was, if his security was all right, it was all right.

Q. Did he discuss his security with you? A. He discussed that with Mr. Warren; my conversation with Mr. Travers and Mr. Warren was very short.

Q. Did you know who Travers was? A. Not till that time, never heard there was such a man in my life.

Q. Did you hear he was getting up the Farmers Bank? A. Not till he came in and spoke of it at the time.

Q. He told you at that time? A. He said the money was for the purpose—

Q. For the purpose of what? A. These notes had been given to the Farmers Bank and the Farmers Bank directors had endorsed them over to Mr. Travers; as I understood, the loan was a direct loan to Mr. Travers.

Q. But you knew the object of it? A. The object was not discussed with me.

Q. You knew it? A. I cannot say I did or did not, as there has been so much newspaper talk and so much about it since.

Q. You generally want to know a little more about a loan than that? A. Not in a case of that kind where the security is ample.

Q. You are not quite so easy as that? A. Sometimes you know you trust your general manager, the details of a transaction.

Q. Did you have no talk with him at all after that? A. None whatever.

Q. Never made a suggestion to him when you did have your talk that he might help things in Ottawa? A. Never used such an expression.

Q. You know Mr. Peter Ryan? A. Yes, I know him pretty well.

Q. Know his position? A. I do; I had no conversation with Mr. Ryan.

Q. So that you would recollect if you had any conversation in which his name was mentioned? A. Sure.

Q. Was there any such? A. None such.

Q. Sure? A. Positive of that.

Mr. Ryan: Mr. Pearson is here, and he will corroborate about the sale at Ottawa; if anything is lacking there he can tell you.

Mr. Hodkins: I really do not think he can make it clearer at all. One can never tell what comes up.
PETER RYAN, Recalled by—

MR. HODGINS: I think you are in a position to throw some light on when the Farmers Bank cheques were ordered and delivered? A. Yes.

Q. If you can give me the information so that I can depend on it, I will be glad to have it? A. In my efforts to clear everything up I have been fairly busy since, and amongst other places I went to Rolph & Clark, the engravers and lithographers, having heard that the Farmers Bank cheques were engraved by them. I ascertained there—I am sorry the papers are locked up in my little box and I left my keys at home, but I can give you the dates.

Q. What are the dates? A. They were ordered by the Farmers Bank on the 21st of November, 1906, and the first delivery of their cheques made on the 31st December and the second delivery of cheques on the 2nd of January; the third delivery on the 15th of January. I have them all in my memory.

Q. That accords pretty well with what Mr. Fitzgibbon says? A. I think so, except Mr. Fitzgibbon cannot give you the particular dates and I have given them to you.

Q. And that is from an inquiry at Rolph, Clark & Company? A. Yes, I went there for the purpose of ascertaining whether there had not been some mistake in issuing a Farmers Bank cheque on the 28th of November.

The Commission adjourned at 12.15 p.m. to 2 p.m.

The Commission resumed at 2 p.m. July 16th, 1912.

GEORGE TAYLOR DENISON, Sworn, Examined by—

MR. HODGINS: You are Police Magistrate in the City of Toronto? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And a great many of these cases arising out of the Farmers Bank prosecution came before you? A. I think they pretty nearly all did; I do not remember very clearly.

Q. I suppose I cannot ask you to remember the individual exhibits that were produced before you, but have you any system in your Court of marking Exhibits produced? A. Yes, they are marked by Mr. Webb, and he passes them up to me, and I sign them. If you show me any I have signed I will tell you.

Q. There are some that have been signed in that way? A. I think that is almost invariably done unless they are put in a bundle, and then the bundle is marked.

Q. Into whose custody do they come then when they are marked by you as Exhibits? A. They are generally kept with the papers by either Mr. Webb or Mr. Morrison until they are sent over to the other Court, if it is for an investigation and it is going to the other Court they go across there and we are through with them. If I am trying the case summarily they will keep the papers and they will be there at the Police Court. I tried Mr. Travers summarily.

Q. Mr. Morrison is the Police Court Clerk and Mr. Webb is his assistant? A. One of them.

Q. So that they would be responsible I suppose for the custody of them till they got rid of them in your Court? A. Yes, they would look after them until they got rid of them.

Q. What jurisdiction have the Detective force—I do not know that I quite understand what their relation is to the Police force;—when an information is laid and papers come into the hands of the detectives? A. They are very often left with them. We have every confidence in the Detective Department and we very often leave them with them; at least I perhaps should not speak confidently about that, Mr. Morrison could tell more about it, but my impression is very often the papers are left in the hands of the Detective Department if they are interested in the working up of the case.

Q. Have the Police Commissioners passed any rule regarding the custody of papers the Detectives seize? A. No, I do not think that would be in their line of business at all, because they have not any control over my Court.

Q. I am speaking of any regulation regarding the custody of papers when seized by the Police? A. When they are seized by the Police, the Police take charge of them until they are brought up and used in the Court, and sent over to the other Court, if they are sent over to the other Court.

Q. Would it be within the Province of the Police Commissioners to make any regulations regarding the custody of the papers? A. I suppose they might if it was necessary, but they assume the detectives will take proper care of them.

Q. Are there any regulations preventing them being seen by unauthorized people, although I fancy that sometimes they are, at least I heard so, that the detectives have shown papers to people. In this case two papers are missing and we are trying to locate them? A. They got over to the High Court
I fancy, or at least were lost on the way. We cannot be held responsible for what happens after they have gone and left our hands, you know; they may have gone to the County Court. Mr. Morrison or Mr. Webb probably could tell whether they left our hands and were sent over. I could not tell because I never hear anything about these cases after I have committed for trial.

Q. Can you tell me this, the question was raised during the investigation; is it possible for a detective or a member of the Police force to get a warrant for the arrest of a criminal? A. Yes, if the detective comes to me with an information sworn to charging a man with a criminal offence, and with a warrant prepared and so on, I swear him, and he goes away and that is the end of it; I do it by scores and hundreds.

Q. You sign the warrant? A. For a detective, yes, and any informations that come up to me from my own clerk's office I swear them at once; any that come from Inspector Archibald I sign those in piles that high without having time to read them.

Q. As a special mark of favour to him? A. No, he is the officer who is supposed to attend to that. I sign them and Mr. Morrison generally takes them off as fast as I sign them. I do not think you gentlemen who are dealing in the other Courts have any idea of the amount of business we do; for instance this morning on my calendar I had about 125 or 126 cases on the list, 42 indictable offences on the roll. Well, you can easily understand we have no time to look into things. As far as I am concerned I do them as quickly as I can, and there is no possibility of devoting much time, and what is more I do not know what it is going to come to. because this last half year, I got the return up to the 30th June, and there were 3,483 cases additional, more than there were the six months before. I do not think there were 3,000 writs issued in the Superior Courts of the Province.

Q. There would be nothing to prevent a detective getting a warrant? A. No, if he brings the information properly prepared, they generally come with a warrant and copy together, or a warrant anyway and I swear them and sign them.

Q. It has been suggested that the Crown Attorney was the only officer who could authorized the issue of a warrant? A. There may be some little foundation for that in this sense; sometimes my clerks will refuse a warrant, they think there is no case and they will say "We will give a summons" and if they are not satisfied I think then my clerks say "Go and see Mr. Corley and get an order", and they will perhaps go and get an order and the thing comes down and is made out.
CURRAN MORRISON, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: You are the Police Court Clerk? A. Yes.
Q. You are also a Justice of the Peace I believe? A. Yes.
Q. Have you the jurisdiction of a magistrate to issue warrants? A. Yes, I issue them.
Q. At the request of anybody who brings an information? A. No; parties who apply to me for an information, either for a summons or a warrant, I look into the case, and if I am not satisfied with it I would not grant it.
Q. But if satisfied? A. I would.
Q. Do you require the Crown Attorney's authority? A. No, I do not.
Q. Are many warrants issued by you for the Police and the Detective force? A. Yes, in the absence of the Magistrate I sign them all, those that are brought to me.
Q. Do you take charge of the papers that are connected with the case? A. No. Mr. Webb attends to that.
Q. He is one of your assistants? A. Yes, he sits in Court and takes the Exhibits as a rule.
Q. When he does that in whose custody do they remain? A. If they are important papers they generally go into the vault.
Q. In your office? A. Yes.
Q. And when you part with them to the High Court or the County Court or the County Judge's Criminal Court what do you do? A. Take a receipt for them.
Q. From whom? A. Whoever we deliver them to.
Q. Generally to Burns? A. The Constable?
Q. Yes? A. For the Crown Attorney.
Q. Very often there are quite a number of papers in the hands of the Police or the Detective Office that are not filed as Exhibits? A. Yes, we would not have anything to do with those at all.
Q. Do they never come under your control at all? A. No, not unless they are put in we would not have anything to do with them at all.
Q. While the exhibits are in your possession has any one the right of access to them in practice? A. No, not any one; if he has proper authority we would let him see them.
Q. That would have to be referred to you or Mr. Webb and he would then judge? A. Yes.
Q. You would permit inspection? A. By defendant's counsel or anything like that would let him see them at once.

Mr. Commissioner: Do you allow the counsel for the public, as the Press probably call themselves, access to papers? A. No, we do not always.
Q. Do you ever? A. If the Court is being held, and any member of the Press should ask for a paper I suppose Mr. Webb would let him see it while the Court is sitting.
Q. But not until it becomes public property? A. No.
JOSEPH E. ROGERS, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: You are the Superintendent of the Provincial Police? A. Yes.

Q. Did you occupy that position for the last couple of years? A. Since 1909.

Q. Speaking generally what are the functions of the Provincial Police with regard to criminals or suspected criminals? A. We take absolute control of all criminal matters in the unorganized portion of the province; we assist the High Constables in the organized portions of the province when requested, the City Departments, or anybody else.

Q. When requested; what do you call the unorganized districts? A. The Districts of Muskoka, Parry Sound, Nipissing, Algoma, Kenora.

Mr. Commissioner: Without County organizations? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: I did not know whether you were using that with regard to the newer portions of the province? A. No.

Q. If any one is in any of these districts it would be within your supervision or charge? A. Yes.

Q. As distinguished from the organized districts where the local police are supposed to be supreme? A. Yes.

Q. You remember a warrant for the arrest of Dr. Nesbitt was issued, when did you learn of it? A. The first information I had was through a communication from Mr. Corley which was received by me on the 26th January, 1911.

Q. Were you requested to make the arrest or were you furnished with any information to do so? A. Copies of two warrants were forwarded to the Deputy Attorney-General with the request that any assistance that could be rendered to do so.

Q. On whose information were those warrants sworn out, the copy of the warrant would show it not? A. No.

Q. Who was the warrant granted by? A. Curran Morrison; both are dated on the 14th of January, 1911.

Q. Were any steps taken by your Department to act upon those when you received that request? A. Yes, at the time we received these warrants, of course, the Press had given an account of Dr. Nesbitt's escape from the island in Muskoka.

Q. How long before? A. Some days.

Q. Had you any reports indicating where he was during the week previous to your getting that notice? A. I had a report from my officers, one stationed at Bala, one at Parry Sound, one at either Webbwood or the Soo that he had passed them; three of my officers saw him between Bala and the Soo.

Q. When? A. At the time he left the island.

Q. At that time had they or you any information that he was alleged to be guilty of any offence? A. No. The first notice that we had from the Police Department that Nesbitt was wanted was some time in March, 1911.

Q. You got the information from the Police Department in March, 1911? A. They sent me a number of circulars which they asked me to distribute among my men in the north.

Q. I suppose that is the first official notice you got? A. Yes.

Q. Did you get any request from the City Police for assistance previous to that and previous to Dr. Nesbitt leaving the country? A. None, whatever.

Q. Mr. Corley's letter to you enclosing the warrants was for the purpose of what, extradition or what? A. No, Mr. Corley wrote and asked us to do what we could to apprehend Nesbitt.

Q. Is there any reason you can give why you were not applied to earlier by whoever had the information? A. I cannot explain that sir. I may say between the time that Mr. Corley wrote us and the time that the circulars were received by my Department all information that came to my knowledge was forwarde: to the High Constable of the City of Toronto, the Chief Constable, I think on two or three occasions, information came I sent it to them before we knew officially that he was wanted.

FARMERS BANK INQUIRY 657.

Q. Take this particular case; here is a Farmers Bank failure, the papers are seized in Toronto, the locality is Toronto, and some one accused of an indictable offence is up in Muskoka, the information about the crime is down here, the offence is down here, was it your duty, having seen or learned anyway that such an offence had been committed to interpose,—was that the duty of the City Police or you— I do not understand why some action was not taken? A. I did not know that a warrant had been issued, for Dr. Nesbitt till I received the communication through the Deputy Attorney-General from Mr. Corley which was on the 26th.

Q. Did you know anything about any information that was laid against him? A. I did not.

Q. What is the course that is adopted, when a warrant is sworn out, say in Toronto, and the execution of it is in one of the districts where you have jurisdiction, what is the usual course pursued? A. Well, the Police here sometimes communicate direct with my inspector or through the office here in Toronto, and which ever way it receives prompt attention.

Q. What is the course when a warrant is issued in Toronto for the arrest of somebody up in your jurisdiction, who executes it? A. If they request or notify us that a person is wanted we immediately try to apprehend the person for them, but that is only when we get a notice; we do not know what warrants are issued in Toronto.

Q. Inspector Duncan seemed to have been dissatisfied with what he thought was his failure to get a warrant without the permission of the Crown Attorney and seems to think if he had got it a week earlier he would have been more successful; are you able to say whether that is the case? A. I cannot speak as to that.

Q. If you had had information a week earlier, or a warrant, could you have arrested Dr. Nesbitt? A. If we had had the information the day the warrant was issued, and a request from the Police for assistance I am satisfied we could have apprehended Dr. Nesbitt before he got to Sudbury.

Q. Are you able to account at all for why you did not get that request? A. I have no explanation, I cannot say.

Q. There was a suggestion that there was a certain feeling of jealousy between the Provincial Police, or friction, and the City Police? A. Absolutely none between the two departments, while there was friction between Inspector Duncan and myself.

Q. Had that friction occurred in 1911? A. Prior to that, but my Department have apprehended several people in the Cobalt and other northern territories; no friction whatever as between the two Departments; we are working in harmony.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What is the nature of the friction between you and Inspector Duncan? A. Really so far as I know, a matter of jealousy on an extradition that I was directed to take up by the Premier and the Attorney-General.

Q. It is professional entirely? A. Purely a personal matter that he took objection to at that time.

MR. HODGINS: Perhaps I should just ask you this; Inspector Duncan was asked whether it was a fact that he was annoyed and made a statement that he had been sent on a wild goose chase, the authorities knowing or having warned Nesbitt that he was coming; he was asked if he made that statement or a statement of that kind and he said, page 1604, "I made a statement I think along that line when I came back, but that was the time that Dr. Beattie Nesbitt cleared out"; so far as you are or may be an authority, was any warning given of any kind to Dr. Nesbitt? A. At the time mentioned there I did not know that a complaint had been made against Dr. Nesbitt nor did I know that a warrant was issued for his arrest."
Mr. COMMISSIONER: You are not answering the question he asked you, if there was any warning given? A. None whatever from my Department because I did not know that he was wanted.

J. W. SEYMOUR CORLEY, Recalled by—

Mr. Hodgins: Adverting to the evidence of the last witness, you remember notifying Superintendent Rogers? A. Yes, it is the duty of the police to notify at once of warrants where the people are suspected to be in this jurisdiction.

Q. In order to catch them? A. Yes; if they have left the country the information is sent by me to the Deputy Attorney-General to arrange for their extradition; that is why that letter was sent to Mr. Cartwright; I notified my superior officer that this man was absent from my jurisdiction, and there was a warrant for him. He had known of it from conversation with me previous to that.

Q. Previous to the time that the warrant was issued, had you any knowledge with regard to what was charged against Dr. Nesbitt? A. No evidence was ever submitted to me of any crime against Nesbitt that would justify an arrest until Mr. Clarkson submitted the information. Then I sent for Inspector Duncan; he and Mr. Bicknell and Mr. Bicknell’s clerk, and Duncan and I were together, and he left to get a warrant and I went to my house on Saturday afternoon and Duncan went and got a warrant and went north. There was a suggestion of a warrant being asked for before that by Duncan; it was to charge Dr. Nesbitt with forgery in making a return to the Government; it was one of those monthly returns, I think, that he had made a false document, consequently a forgery, by signing a document that was untrue, with his own name; I did not think that was forgery, I did not think it came under that class of crime. I submitted that to my superior officer, Mr. Cartwright, who said he did not think it was forgery. Inspector Duncan said it was, and he said the County Judge said it was. I had my doubts, and I submitted the matter to Mr. Cartwright, and he said he thought I was right.

Q. Was that the first time a warrant was asked for? A. There never was a warrant asked for; that matter was submitted to me before Duncan swore out a warrant on the information furnished by Mr. Clarkson.

Q. I thought you said a warrant was asked for? A. No, that was discussed whether it was a forgery: there was no application made for a warrant. He did not need to consult me, if he had any evidence, or without evidence, as Colonel Denison said, he could have gone to him with a sworn information that a man had committed a crime and got a warrant.

Q. He said the County Judge had told him it was forgery and you said it was not? A. Yes.

Q. That being the case, had he the right to go to the Magistrate if he chose to swear that he believed this crime had been committed? A. Whether he had a right to do it or not, he did do it afterwards, and he could have got it then. Colonel Denison never reads the information sworn to, nor does he read the warrants submitted to him; they are written by his clerk, and as he swore to-day, sworn to before him in bunches; I have seen them that thick, perhaps fifty or sixty at a time, and he signs them while Court is going on, and hearing evidence in other cases. I wanted to make it clear, the first mention of a warrant against Nesbitt was that morning of the day on which Duncan left for Muskoka.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: When the warrant was actually issued? A. Yes; on that same warrant, Superintendent Rogers reminds me, that he was arrested in Chicago and they did not proceed on it, because it was not considered forgery.

Q. What you mean—was eventually Duncan did lay an information for forgery in respect of the return? A. Yes, sir.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. And he was sought to be extradited on that, and what? A. They did not consider it a forgery in the States; it would have to be a forgery against the laws of both countries, and it certainly was not against theirs, as they said.

WILLIAM B. TRAVERS, Recalled:

Mr. Hodgins: You have heard the evidence this morning of the four or five gentlemen that were named, one of whom is said to have made a suggestion to you to take the money down and give it to Peter Ryan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you able to pick out the one now? A. No. I do not think it was Mr. Stratton, because it was said to me in my office upstairs, and I know he never was there, it came to my mind. In the absence of the cheque to refresh my memory I cannot throw any further light on it.

Q. The cheque would not help you to remember who suggested taking it down? A. I think if I had the cheque it would probably assist to unravel it. The cheque was taken from my desk, it was in the hands of the Crown, I saw the cheque there in the hands of the authorities; with that cheque I could refresh my memory in such a way I think that would enable you to solve the question. I want to correct, though: I said I was in No. 6 Committee Room in Ottawa; I should have said 16.

Q. These are the stubs from which the cheque came (Exhibit 90)? A. I cannot say that without seeing the cheque.

Q. Why not? A. I do not wish to be contradicted and adverse criticism made in the newspapers, as they are, without something to go on that I can absolutely carry through, and in the absence of that cheque I cannot go any further.

Q. What bank was it on? A. It was on the Traders Bank.

Q. Was there any cheque book being used at that time other than that? A. No; no other official cheque book.

Q. If it came out of that—? A. I do not say it came out of that.

Q. Do you remember saying that on the cheque or on the stub, the first time you mentioned it, there was a “C”? A. No, I never referred to the fact that there was a “C” on the stub in any of my evidence; what I did say was that Duncan found “C” on the stub and tried to locate the cheque he had with that stub.

Q. I do not find any “C” on the stub in that book? A. I saw a stub of the cheque book in his hands that had a “C” on it.

Q. What bank? A. That I cannot say without seeing the stubs.

Q. If it was a Traders Bank cheque it would be a Traders Bank stub? A. Yes, but I cannot say what the stub is now.

Q. What is there on the cheque that would tell you? A. There are several things on the cheque; if I had it I think I could refresh my memory.

Q. That would tell you who made the suggestion of these four or five people? A. I cannot answer you that question; I want to see the cheque and I think I can give you such information that you can unravel it.

Q. Why cannot you give it now? A. No, I cannot give it now; my memory does not serve me right; it is over six years ago.

Q. What are you trying to think of? A. I have been trying to assist you in the matter; I have gone as far as I can go.

Q. The cheque would assist you in what direction? A. If I see the cheque it will assist my memory; I want to see what number I put on the back of it; I want to find out whose room that was; I am satisfied it was given to me as somebody’s room, and I want to see who I paid the cheque to.
Q. Don't you think this cheque (Exhibit 60) was the cheque you drew out and paid the money?  A. I would not think so; I have been thinking over it, and I do not think so; that is not the cheque.
Q. Would not that be the cheque that was drawn out to pay this other cheque?  A. I do not think that is the cheque.
Q. Look at the back?  A. Yes, but I do not think that is the cheque.
Q. What do you mean by that is not the cheque?  A. The cheque you are referring to.
Q. I am referring to that $3,000 cheque; I am asking you if that is the cheque that drew the cash out to pay the $3,000?  A. I do not think so; it may have been, but I do not think so.
Q. If the $3,000 cheque was on the Traders Bank you knew that that was outstanding?  A. No, I did not; I knew it had not been paid.
Q. Were not you a bit apprehensive that if you drew all the money out of the Traders Bank, left nothing in there, that whoever presented that cheque would meet with more or less difficulty in getting the money?  A. That is the very reason I put my card in with it to present it to me, because I knew I had not the money, because all the money was up in Ottawa, and I also knew I was going to change my bank account very quickly.
Q. Of course you knew the money would come back the moment you got your certificate?  A. I was not sure after the hitch that took place when the money would come back.
Q. What hitch took place?  A. The first day I went there I expected to get our certificate and we did not.
Q. You mean on the 28th?  A. The very first day I went to the Department I expected to come with the certificate.
Q. What was the hitch?  A. The hitch was we did not get the certificate till the Friday following.
Q. What was the hitch?  A. I do not know of any particular hitch any more than they held us up, or rather Mr. Fielding was too busy I suppose.
Q. I do not understand why you say you did not know the money would come back at once owing to the hitch?  A. On the top of what we had gone through with Laidlaw's writ, and then their demanding a special list of shareholders, and getting down to Ottawa, and the question came up about subscriptions, one thing after another, I did not know what was in the wind.
Q. You got scared on the 28th November, in Ottawa and you sent Mr. Hunter back?  A. I cannot say that.
Q. You told him to send you down these cheques?  A. I did.
Q. You thought you would have to use them?  A. I did.
Q. Did you tell him so?  A. I did not tell him what I was going to use them for. I heard his evidence, and I would not like to contradict him; I know I told him I was going to Montreal.
Q. Did you say to the Traders when closing the account that if there was anything else came in it was to be sent on to the Farmers Bank?  A. I did not, I do not know whether there were such instructions given from the office or not.
Q. Did you leave that cheque just to take care of itself and come back?  A. I did.
Q. You said you had been drawing small sums from time to time to provide for that?  A. I said I had provided for it.
Q. I do not find any small sums had been drawn by you at all between the two dates?  A. I do not know if I said small sums or not; I said I had provided for it.
Q. I think you were a little more explicit, you said you had been drawing small amounts from time to time so as to have enough money to pay for it when it came in, and I do not find anything withdrawn between the dates; how had you provided for it?  A. I will have to see the cheque and see when I paid it.
Q. How had you provided the money with which it was to be paid?  A. By drawing it out from my own account.

Q. From what bank?  A. It may have been after the 1st January, out of the Farmers Bank and it may have been from the Traders Bank or the Union Bank on commission, account, I could not say.

Q. You would not have commenced to draw it before the 30th of November?  A. I cannot say.

Q. That is the day the cheque is said to have been given?  A. No, not till after I came back, some little time.

Q. There is nothing at all between the 30th November and December 7th, when that $5,000 was taken out?  A. I could not tell.

Mr. Commissioner: We have not got a date fixed when the cheque was paid; he says it was some time afterwards when the cheque was paid?  A. No, I have not the date fixed; I am puzzled over that, because that is not clear in my mind; I would like to see the other cheque.

Mr. Hodgins: We would all like to see that.  A. That is not my fault it is not here. I want to add to my evidence that on the 17th June, I was up in the liquidator's office, and Mr. Peter Ryan came in and Mr. Clarkson stepped out and he came up to me and told me to be brave, that he would look after my interests.

Q. Who came up to you?  A. Mr. Peter Ryan. The guard saw him; I do not know whether he heard what he said or not.

Q. What guard?  A. The guard that is in charge of me.

Q. The 17th June, that is this year?  A. Yes, just last month.

Q. If you saw the cheque and saw the room number on it and then traced up whose room it was, would it alter—?  A. I cannot give you any further information without the cheque.

Q. Supposing you saw the cheque and the room number on it, and you found out at the Russell House whose room that was, would that change your evidence that it was Mr. Peter Ryan whose name was on the envelope?  A. No, not in the least. That is quite clear in my mind.

Q. You put the room number on assuming it was his room?  A. That is my recollection.

Q. If it turns out to be Brown, Jones or Robinson's room, do you think that would help you if you knew that?  A. Yes, I think so.

Q. In what direction?  A. I think that the number of the room I put on there would probably lead to something else.

Q. Indicate who got the money?  A. I think so.

Q. Did you make any direction it was to be sent up to that room?  A. No, I did not.

Q. Who was the paying teller?  A. I could not tell you that.

Q. Who was the paying teller when that cheque came in;—I am instructed that Mr. Frayne was local manager and was not the paying teller?  A. I could not tell you, no.

Q. That the paying teller was McCallum?  A. I could not say.

Q. This is in January, the beginning of the bank's business, don't you remember who the paying teller was?  A. I could not tell you; Mr. Fitzgibbon was paying teller for a while, and Mr. Frayne was teller, and Mr. McCallum was teller, I could not tell you which one.

Q. How did you find out the number of the room?  A. My recollection is I asked somebody behind the counter.

Q. Do you know who that was?  A. No, I could not remember who it was.

Q. That is what I was looking for, page 1664: "Q. What did you charge the $3,000 up to?  A. It is charged up to my commission, that is my recollection; I drew it out in several cheques?".  A little further down you say, "I had drawn the money out of commissions prior to the cheque coming in, and I was providing that $3,000 to keep it on hand for the cheque”? A. That is correct.

Q. Mr. Ryan wanted some questions asked, and I suppose I may as well ask you them; but before I do that, so far as the books show there was no drawing at all of yours from November 24th to December 7th, when you drew the $5,000 on the occasion of Dr. Nesbitt and Lindsay coming in and on the 19th December, when $1,800 was drawn and nothing till the 20th February? A. Yes, but how many thousand dollars did I draw before that?

Q. Before the 24th November? A. Yes.

Q. My. Ryan wants to know whether you conversed with any one since the last examination on the subject of this cheque with the guard, for instance? A. No, I never said anything to the guard, with the exception of this morning to ask him if he would jog his memory with regard to Mr. Ryan coming in to see me.

MR. G. T. CLARKSON: There is not any doubt about that: Mr. Travers was in my office and Mr. Ryan came in and spoke to him in the passage-way.

MR. HODGINS: Did you ever mention Mr. Ryan’s name to any of your associates? A. I don’t think I did.

Q. Did you ever speak to him personally as to leaving that letter in there, did you ever speak to him personally about the cheque or suggest who got it or ask him what he did with it? A. No.

Q. Mr. Ryan says that you said you had pledged your honour not to disclose his name? A. No, I never said that.

Q. I did not recollect your saying it, but Mr. Ryan says you did not want to name him because you had pledged yourself? A. I cannot say whether Mr. Ryan got it or not, and I never said so and do not say so now.

Q. Mr. Ryan’s impression is when you were examined before you pledged yourself not to mention his name? A. No.

Q. And he wants to know have you thought who the pledge was given to? A. I never said that.

MR. COMMISSIONER: I think that was from something I said when asking the witness to tell the destination of the cheque. I think I made some observation of that kind and I think probably that is what it has been confounded with.

Q. I think this was spoken of before, did you notice this cheque was drawn out in twenty $100-bills and two $500-bills (referring to Exhibit 60); is there anything in that to suggest what this cheque was for? A. I cannot recall what that cheque is for, but those figures on the back bring to my mind the money I paid out for the other one.

Q. What did you pay out for the other one? A. I paid out large bills for it, but after seeing that cheque I have an idea I changed the money for that, to make it larger than the money I had.

Q. You have said you did not see Mr. Peter Ryan get the money, no words passed between you and him about that before it was left or after it was left? A. No, sir.

Q. You said something about a card, I think you left something to be inferred which you did not say? A. I said I put in it that I would pay the cheque if presented to me at the counter in cash.

Q. Have you mentioned that before? A. Yes.

Q. When it was suggested to you as you have stated, that money would perhaps be very useful and Mr. Ryan’s name was suggested, was nothing said by you to the person as to why Mr. Ryan’s name should be mentioned? A. No, sir, I do not remember anything being said.

Q. Was it not a very loose way of dealing with $3,000 without knowing anything at all about whether any arrangement had been made, or that you just trusted—? A. No, I just took that chance; I thought they knew what they were talking about who spoke to me.
Q. How is it you cannot recollect the individual; I should have thought that would have impressed itself upon your mind? A. Well, when I mention a name they contradict it; I have a pretty good idea but I cannot swear to it.

Q. As I recollect what you said, what Mr. Hodgins was reading, besides the four persons whom you named you added "or somebody else"? A. No, I do not think so.

Mr. Hodgins: What he said was: "Before going to Ottawa I was told by a party, I do not remember who it was, I do not wish to be pressed on that point, I do not know whether it was Dr. Nesbitt, Mr. Lindsay or Mr. Lown or Mr. Stratton, or whom, I cannot say.

Mr. Commissioner: Have you any recollection of when and where you last saw the $3,000 cheque? A. The last time I saw the $3,000 cheque was with Inspector Duncan.

Q. When? A. I cannot fix the time, it is some time ago.

Q. Can you fix it with relation to any of the prosecutions? A. It was about the time that you were to sit I think in the Criminal Court yourself, about a year ago.

Q. That would be May? A. There were two parcels of documents, there was one parcel of documents that referred to each of the cases that I had gone over with Duncan, there is another parcel that contained the World letters, the missing letter of Mr. Matheson, this cheque and some other matters in it.

Q. What kind of things? A. They were letters.

Q. All your private letters? A. Yes, there were other cheques there as well, I cannot recollect just what those were.

Q. You told us there was a discussion with him and he saying he knew to whom that went? A. Yes. He had the cheque in his hand, and he was asking me about the "C" that was on it; the "C" was on the number place; and then he turned it over and commenced to ask me a question about it further and I thought he would see the number on the back of it, and just about that moment somebody came in and spoke to him, and when he went back again he picked up another document, and I did not say anything more about it.

Q. Are any of the other papers that were there in that parcel missing? A. The World letters are missing.

Q. I thought they are here? A. No, sir, there were other letters there.

Q. Anything else? A. I do not remember just, there were several papers in it, different odds and ends, some private things of my own.

Q. Where do you say that letter of the Provincial Treasurer and that cheque for $3,000 had been kept by you before the failure of the bank? A. I kept them in a private compartment in my desk; I had a folding top desk, there was one little place there that was locked up.

Q. Were those papers connected with the World newspapers and that cheque in the same place? A. Everything of a confidential nature was in that little compartment in my desk.

Q. This cheque and the World newspaper letters? A. And Mr. Matheson's answer to my letter and some other little private matters.

Q. Mr. Hodgins has asked you if you never mentioned anything about this $3,000 cheque to anybody, was it not somewhat strange that among all these people, some one at all events, of whom, according to your statement had told you to pay the money, that you never mentioned it to him or anybody else? A. No, sir; when I came back the only relationship I had then was with Dr. Nesbitt; I did not see any of the other parties very often.

Q. Who brought you the cheque when it was presented? A. It was brought by one of my officers in the bank; my recollection was it was Mr. Frayne.

Q. You cannot name him with certainty? A. No.

Q. You think the number you got from the hotel clerk were the cheque and the memorandum put in an envelope? A. Yes, sir.
Q. How was that envelope addressed? A. I addressed it Peter Ryan, Esq., and I put the room number, whatever number I put on it.
Q. Are you sure you put his name? A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you think you got the room number from the clerk? A. Yes, sir.
Mr. Hodgins: Was the letter sealed? A. Yes, of course I would seal it, I would not leave it open.
Q. Would you recognize the clerk whom you gave it to? A. I could not say whether I would or not; I have been in a great many hotels since then, all over the world nearly, I mean over in the Old Country and here.
Q. I notice in your evidence you gave before, you say, I asked you did you attribute your success in getting your certificate to the cheque, and you said you thought it all helped; you knew when they got the charter through, at least when you say you knew you say you were told by Mr. Lown when they got the charter through they had to use some money there? A. Yes.
Q. Was it Mr. Lown who made the suggestion you had better use it again? A. He swore this morning he did not; I am not going to state positively till I have the cheque; if we had the cheque I think we would unravel it as I told you before.
Q. Did you ever subscribe to the testimonial to Mr. Fielding? A. No.
Q. Did the bank? A. No.
Q. Did you make a contribution to be used for the purpose? A. No.
Q. Quite sure of that? A. I never heard of it.
Q. It was currently reported, you know? A. I know it was.
Q. It was also as currently denied, that you had given quite a large sum?
A. The first I heard of it, of my giving anything.
Q. I am not speaking of you individually, I am speaking of you as manager of the bank or for the Farmers Bank? A. If I gave it for the bank Mr. Clarkson would find the entry.
Q. You would know; however I understand the denial was made that you had ever done it? A. That is true, I did not.
Q. I was asked to get your statement upon the subject? A. I did not.
Q. The bank did not? A. Nor the bank.
Q. Either directly or indirectly? A. No, not that I know of.

The Commission adjourned at 4 p.m. to 11 p.m. to-morrow.

Toronto, July 17th, 1913.

The Commission resumed at 11 a.m. at Osgoode Hall.

DONALD A. YEATS, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: You remember when the Farmers Bank failed and prosecutions began? A. Yes, sir.
Q. What was your occupation then? A. I was then with Inspector Duncan in his office.
Q. You remember what was done with the papers that were seized by the detectives? A. They were held by Inspector Duncan.
Q. He has an office in the City Hall? A. Yes.
Q. A room of his own? A. Yes, sir.
Q. How were they kept in that room? A. For a time they were kept in his office, and then I believe they were transferred, but I am not quite certain, but I kind of think some of the papers were transferred to the vault.
Q. In where, in his room? A. Not in his room but in the detective office.
Q. Is that adjoining? A. Yes.
Q. Did you become familiar with those papers? A. Several of them.
Q. Did you know anything or did you ever see that $3,000 cheque so that you could identify it? A. No, not just now I could not identify it.
Q. There was no cheque that you recollect distinctly there? A. There was talk about a certain $3,000 but I never took very much interest in the cheque.
Q. Who was the talk between about the cheque? A. I heard Mr. Travers talking about the cheque and Inspector Duncan.
Q. Do you remember what they said? A. As near as I can remember it was Inspector Duncan asking Mr. Travers who gave the cheque, who got the cheque or something like that; I thought he was pressing for some information.
Q. Did he get any information? A. I do not just remember, I do not think so though.
Q. At all events that was apparently a live question between them, the inspector was anxious to know about that? A. Yes.
Q. Did the World file ever come under your notice, the file of papers, letters between the Farmers Bank and the World or between Travers and Greenwood and Maclean? A. I remember the file of papers, I remember the file on the first, I think it was the time the papers were first seized, but I do not remember ever seeing the file after that.
Q. Were they brought over to the Detective office? A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. And you do not remember seeing them after that? A. No, I cannot remember seeing them with the papers that were in the office after that.
Q. Who had access to those papers; when I speak of those papers I mean all the papers; who had access to them after they were seized and came over to Inspector Duncan's office? A. There was no person supposed to have access to them, with the exception of Inspector Duncan and Detective Guthrie; they were practically the ones that had charge of the papers.
Q. You say no one was supposed to have access; did you ever see any one in there inspecting the papers in the presence of Inspector Duncan or when he was away? A. Well, yes; on one occasion I saw Haverson, the reporter on the World.
Q. Who is Haverson? A. He is a reporter on the World.
Q. He was examined here and said he did not see them? A. I remember him distinctly looking at on one occasion a statement made by Mr. Travers, in No. 8 station, I believe.
Q. What sort of statement? A. A statement supposed to have contained disclosures with reference to certain men who had been mixed up in the Farmers Bank.
Q. Do you mean a typewritten statement? A. Yes, it was supposed to be a confession made by Mr. Travers to Inspector Duncan.
Q. I have got two such statements; I suppose it is probably one of those? A. This one was taken in No. 8 station.
Q. To what extent had he access to the papers, or did you see him going over the papers? A. Well, he was looking at this file on this particular day, and other days I saw him with Inspector Duncan going over the papers.
Q. But on the first date you speak of, was any one there? A. Inspector Duncan was there and he was sitting in the office.
Q. On all occasions he was there; is that what you say when Haverson was inspecting the papers, that Inspector Duncan was always present? A. Haverson in the office had, he seemed to have, more authority than anybody else so far as newspaper men are concerned.
Q. In what way; I am interested in finding the papers if possible? A. On several occasions he was going over papers; it was a common thing for him to go into Inspector Duncan's office and go over papers.
Q. Did he ask for them? A. No.
Q. What did he do?
A. Simply went in and read what he saw fit to read.

Q. Did he ask Inspector Duncan for them?
A. I just could not say.

Q. Who were present?
A. Inspector Duncan at times showed him papers.

Q. More than once?
A. More than once, several cases since that.

Mr. Commissioner: Other cases?
A. Yes, sir; other cases pertaining to police matters.

Mr. Hodgins: How many times did he come in and see Farmers Bank papers?
A. Oh, well, the Farmers Bank, he was up there a good deal of the time at the time the Farmers Bank investigation was going on in the Police Court.

Q. Was he ever alone in the room?
A. Yes, he was alone in the room a good deal; it was a common thing to see him in the room alone.

Q. When he was in there, who was responsible for the papers; was any one supposed to be keeping a tab on them?
A. I was supposed to be in the office; he seemed to have a right to look at whatever he liked. Of course, the other newspaper reporters. I always prohibited them from seeing anything; Haverson was so associated with Inspector Duncan that it was a little out of place to ask him to stop looking at papers.

Q. Out of your place?
A. Yes, out of my place.

Q. This $3,000 cheque, did that crop up in the early stages?
A. In the early part of the bank matter I think; if am not mistaken, I think it was shortly after Mr. Travers was convicted; it was in January, I believe, Mr. Travers was sentenced, shortly after that. But I could not say the exact date.

Q. Mr. Stewart Lyon was examined and said he went to Inspector Duncan’s office at one time and he saw the papers?
A. I remember a Globe representative in Inspector Duncan’s office; one day I went in the office, a Globe representative was going over some papers with Inspector Duncan.

Q. Was he the Police Court reporter of the Globe?
A. No, he was not.

Q. Do you know who he was?
A. I do not know his name, I never did know his name; he was not the regular police reporter, but I knew he was associated with the Globe.

Q. What did he look like?
A. He was a short man with a sort of a pale complexion, as near as I can remember; and he had a funny shaped head; his head was rather large and sort of pointed.

Mr. Commissioner: Hair?
A. I think he was slightly bald, if I am not mistaken, but I am not quite sure; his hair might have been thin, but I cannot just say. If I am not mistaken he was fair.

Mr. Hodgins: Good looking, no doubt, being a reporter. Then did you see him there more than once?
A. Well, I saw him there, I am not sure whether it was more than once, I would not swear more than once in connection with this particular case, but I had seen him in the City Hall on previous occasions.

Q. When you say in the City Hall, do you mean in the Detective Office?
A. Around the Police Court, but he was not a regular attendant.

Q. Any of the other newspaper reporters see the Farmers Bank papers to your knowledge?
A. Not that I know of.

Q. Did any one else, other than the reporters from the papers that we have been mentioning, have access to these papers at any time?
A. Not that I know of.

Q. Do you know Mr. W. H. Hunter, a barrister, of this city?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you know a man named Hobberlin?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether they had an opportunity of going over these papers?
A. Well, at the time of the Farmers Bank investigation, Mr. Hobberlin and Mr. Hunter called at the City Hall on several occasions, and mostly in the afternoons, and they went into a private room in the City Hall, Mr. Corley’s private room, which is not used in the afternoon, his office, and the three of them were closeted in there on several occasions.

Q. What three?
A. Mr. Hobberlin, Mr. Hunter and Inspector Duncan.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Had they any papers with them? A. Yes, sir; I remember one afternoon, when I come to think of it, I remember going in there to tell Inspector Duncan that the Chief Constable was calling for him, and I saw them there with Farmers Bank papers on Mr. Corley’s desk.

Q. Is the office you speak of, Mr. Corley’s, which is not used in the afternoon, close to the Detective Office? A. No, it is back of the Police Court; it is close.

Q. In the same wing of the building? A. Yes.

Q. Going back for a moment, at the time you saw the gentleman you think was connected with the Globe, did you hear any conversation between him and Mr. Duncan in which Inspector Duncan expressed dissatisfaction with the way he had been treated over the Beattie Nesbitt warrant? A. I was only in the office for a minute at the outside on this particular occasion.

Q. That may not have been the same one that Mr. Lyon has spoken of; but when Hunter and Hobberlin and Duncan were together, do you remember what state the prosecution was in; had Travers been convicted? A. Travers had been convicted; none of these proceedings took place until after Travers was convicted.

Q. Had Hunter’s name come up to your knowledge in the Police Court proceedings? A. Yes, it did: Hunter’s name came up during the Police Court proceedings before Colonel Denison.

Q. In what way? A. I cannot just remember.

Q. I cannot put my hand for the moment on the copy of the statement of Travers that you call a confession, I will get it in a few minutes, but in the meantime do you remember it coming into your office, do you remember when it was received, the occasion of its receipt? A. I cannot just say.

Q. Do you remember any telephoning taking place after that came in? A. I cannot just say the telephoning, I cannot just swear to it, the statement.

Q. What telephoning do you remember? A. I remember on one occasion Inspector Duncan telephoning to the Globe and the World; to Haverson, of the World, and to somebody on the Globe; he could not get Haverson on the World, but he had a statement if they wanted to see it.

Q. He had a statement if they wanted to see it? A. I cannot say, but I kind of think it was the statement made by Travers in No. 8 station.

Q. Have you any way of fixing the date of that? A. No, sir; I have not.

Q. That must have been in the early stages of the matter? A. It was in the early stages of the matter, it was shortly after Mr. Travers was sentenced.

Q. Was it after that that the gentleman you thought was connected with the Globe came in? A. It was after that; I do not remember him coming up; that was at half-past six that night, and I think on that night Inspector Duncan had returned, from a Farmers Bank investigation in the Farmers Bank taken by Mr. Clarkson, the liquidator, and it was after that, and I had been waiting in the office till half-past six, and he telephoned for these gentlemen then, and of course I left the office right after that. Whether they came up or not I do not know.

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Corley wishes to make a statement.

J. W. SEYMOUR CORLEY, Recalled:

Mr. Corley said: During the progress of the investigation in this conspiracy charge, towards the end of it after it had lasted several days, the Police Magistrate suggested to me in open Court that the name of Mr. W. H. Hunter should be added as a defendant. I said to him that we had gone over a lot of evidence and if we added it we would have to go over it again. It was in open Court, and Mr.
Monahan, the then acting Crown Attorney for the County, was sitting beside me, and I said to His Worship: “My learned friend from the County is here, he hears what you say and he agrees to add him before the Grand Jury” and Colonel Denison said that would be sufficient. It was after that this interview spoken of by Mr. Yeats between Hunter and Hobberlin, who was a client of Hunter's and Duncan, who was a friend of Hobberlin’s took place. I may say Mr. Hunter was never added as a defendant. I was consulted by Mr. George Lynch-Staunton, who was acting at that time as Crown Counsel as to whether Hunter should be added or not. I told him the Police Magistrate had said so, and he asked me if I would take the responsibility of leaving Hunter's name off, and I said no, I certainly would not. I thought the Magistrate’s opinion should govern. Inspector Duncan was present on that occasion.

Mr. Hodgins: What trial was it in which Mr. Hunter's name came up in the way you have spoken of? A. The conspiracy to deceive the Finance Minister.

Q. Against whom was the trial? A. There were so many of them I cannot remember who the defendant was. Mr. Monahan could tell me that, he could remind me of it; I know Travers was one, Beattie Nesbitt's name was there too, and I think the provisional directors and Stratton—the general conspiracy charge in which the directors were charged, and Mr. Stratton and several others for conspiracy in doing an unlawful act and deceiving the Finance Minister.

Q. I remember in one of those cases the Magistrate made the remark why was not Mr. Hunter added? A. The reason was I did not know Mr. Hunter had been actively engaged in it, I had not been told of it by Inspector Duncan if he knew it.

Mr. Hodgins: I will find that date and have it put in, because it is mentioned in the evidence.

PETER RYAN, Recalled:

Mr. Hodgins: I have asked you to bring up your letter book of November, 1906; just look and see how the letter book corresponds with what you say, that you were in Ottawa on the 28th of November, and only there one day—that is a letter book kept here in Toronto? A. Yes, my own private letter book: On the 27th November, 1906, I wrote a letter to Mr. John C. Spry, Chicago. I do not find any letter copied on November 28th; on the 29th November, I wrote a letter to a gentleman whom I know very well, D. M. Mcfarlane of Vancouver.

Q. Any other letter on the 29th? A. Yes, there is one here to Joseph Martin, and there is one upon the 30th to Mr. Calvert of Roanoke, Virginia, on Post office matters. Nothing between the 27th and 29th.

ALEXANDER G. MACKIE, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: What is your position? A. At present?
Q. Yes? A. I am assistant in the Police Court Clerk's office.
Q. What were you in 1910? A. Sergeant of Detectives of the City of Toronto.
Q. In 1911 you occupied the same position I suppose? A. Yes.
Q. You remember the Farmers Bank investigation? A. I remember a little of it.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Where were the papers that were seized kept? A. They were kept by Inspector Duncan and detective Guthrie; I never saw any of them.
Q. In whose room? A. In Inspector Duncan’s room most of the time I expect.
Q. Do you know of your own knowledge about any one being able to see them? A. No, I do not; I did not see any myself at all.
Q. Did you ever see any one in there going over them? A. There are continually people in there, but I did not see any of the papers.
Q. Did you see any one in there who was inspecting the papers? A. No, not at the time when I was in.
Q. Do you know Mr. Haverson of the World? A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever see him in there? A. In the office?
Q. Yes? A. Many a time, most every day.
Q. Did you ever see him inspecting the papers? A. No, I could not say I have; I never was in there at any time when there were any papers in connection with it, and I had nothing to do with it, I was not allowed to know anything at all about it.
Q. Mr. Yeats said something about Haverson’s position there, what position has he in connection with the Detective office? A. His position I suppose is the same as any other reporter, that he was quite frequently there, very frequently in fact.
Q. Had he any more rights there than any one else, or did he exercise any more? A. He apparently did sometimes exercise them; I do not suppose he had any more rights than anybody else though.
Q. What do you mean by apparently he did? A. I have seen when he would come in any of the detectives or anybody else who might have been in there at the time, they have been asked to leave; Mr. Yeats, who was a clerk under Duncan would be asked to leave and the door would be shut; and they would be in there together.
Q. Who would be in there together? A. Inspector Duncan. Of course that might happen with any citizen who might happen to come in to see the Inspector.
Q. Did it happen continually with Haverson? A. Very frequent, not continually but very frequent.

Mr. Hodgins: The evidence was taken in the conspiracy case of the King vs. Watson and others on the 15th February, 1911, and during the course of that investigation at page 60 the questions were asked speaking of Smith in Ottawa, and Travers was asked:

“Q. Was Hunter acting for you? A. Yes.”
“Q. Did he know there was this difficulty about getting the thing through? A. He knew Smith was threatening trouble.”
“Q. On account of this? A. Yes.”
“Q. Hunter must have known this was made up with borrowed money too? A. I am quite sure he did because I took him into my confidence when I made up the list.”

“His Worship: Why isn’t he in it.”
“Mr. Corley: I didn’t know about it.”
“His Worship: I think he ought to be added at once; it is only fair to him.”
“Mr. Corley: I will have him notified of what has been said and he can appear here.”

Mr. Hodgins: So that is the date at which the Police Magistrate said that, and I think that fixes the date pretty well.
EDWARD A. HOBBERLIN, Sworn, Examined by—

MR. HODGINS: Are you a member of the firm of Hobberlin Bros.? A. I am manager and secretary-treasurer.

Q. You have a brother as well, have you not? A. Yes.
Q. What is his name? A.M.
Q. Where is he now? A. He will be on his road to the Coast now.
Q. Are you the Hobberlin whose name has been mentioned here this morning as having been with Mr. Hunter and Inspector Duncan in their offices? A. No, not me.
Q. At the time the Farmers Bank failed or after the prosecutions were begun?
A. No.
Q. Who would that be, which of the Hobberlins would it be? A. That would be the one that would be at the Coast, if any, that is A.M.
Q. What would he have to do with the matter, does he know Inspector Duncan? A. Nothing except as a personal friend, just knows him.
Q. Of whose? A. Inspector Duncan; he is acquainted with him I believe.
Q. Is he a personal friend as well as a client of Mr. Hunter's? A. Just a client.
Q. Was there any other Hobberlin in the firm? A. Mark Hobberlin, but he has nothing to do with it; the only person if any would be A. M. Hobberlin.
Q. The name given to us was E. A. Hobberlin? A. It is wrong.
Q. You were never closeted with anybody, I suppose, in the Detective Office?
A. No.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Had the firm of Hobberlin or the company anything to do with the Farmers Bank? A. No, nothing whatever.
Q. You know nothing, I suppose from what you have said, about what they would be together for if they were together? A. Absolutely nothing.

DONALD A. YEATS, Recalled:

MR. HODGINS: The two statements that I have got here of Travers, the first one is dated on Saturday, taken on Saturday, the 21st January, 1911, at No. 8 Police Station, Toronto, in the presence of Inspector Duncan, Detective Guthrie, and George Angus, chartered stenographic reporter; the next one is taken on the 25th January, 1911, at the head office of the Farmers Bank, Adelaide street, Toronto, in the presence of Inspector Duncan, Detective Guthrie, Mr. G. T. Clarkson and others? A. I refer to the statement that was made in No. 8 Police Station.
Q. That would be the one taken on the 21st January, 1911? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Then I see that the preliminary investigation in the main conspiracy case against Watson and others was begun and taken on the 17th February, 1911? Can Mr. Travers tell the date on which he pleaded guilty?
MR. TRAVERS: The 13th January, 1911, I pleaded guilty.

WILLIAM SINCLAIR SHAND, Sworn, Examined by—

MR. HODGINS: You are in the Police Department? A. Yes, sir.
Q. What is your position? A. Property clerk.
Q. And do you keep a list of warrants? A. Yes, sir.
Q. You keep the books in which the warrants when issued are all entered?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the practice when an information is sworn out and a warrant signed by the magistrate in Toronto, are you required to register it at once?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have your book here?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is the warrant registered immediately it is issued?
A. In some cases, where a man would be taking a train to leave the city, sometimes it is not registered, but the custom is and the rule is always to register it before the warrant leaves the office; but if a man committed an offence and was trying to get a train sometimes the detective would take the warrant and rush to the train, and it would not be registered.

Q. Are you in the Police Department or in the Detective Department?
A. In the Detective Department.

Q. Have you the note of the notification or registration of the Beattie Nesbitt warrant?
A. I guess it is entered in the book.

Q. Turn it up?
A. I do not know what date it would be.

Q. I see there is a warrant against W. R. Travers on 31st December, 1910; follow it up from that?
A. There it is, Dr. Beattie Nesbitt.

Q. You have four warrants there entered up on the 31st January, 1911; two for conspiracy, one for false returns and one for forgery?
A. Yes.

Q. That is the date at which they reached you, is it?
A. I would not be clear on that point.

Q. What is your practice as to entering?
A. It is the custom.

Q. If you got a warrant on the 31st January, issued two or three days before, what date would you put in your book, the date of the warrant or the date you got it?
A. The date I got it.

Q. Would that indicate the date you got it?
A. No, I would not be clear on that either.

Q. Why not?
A. Because it may have been handed to me later and entered up as being issued in that particular month.

Q. Have you any recollection about the Beattie Nesbitt warrant?
A. I am inclined to think that that was the case; that those were handed to me some little time after they were really issued, and I entered them up in the latter part of that month because it was in that month they were issued.

Q. Does the handwriting indicate anything about those last four, the ink and so on?
A. Yes, I can see it is a different ink and different time.

Q. And that is what makes you think so?
A. Yes.

Q. Your recollection is they were handed to you some time after they were issued?
A. Yes.

Q. Whom by?
A. I expect it would be by Inspector Duncan.

Q. Is there any reason you know of why they should not have been handed to you the date they were issued?
A. No.

Q. If they had been, would that have been in accordance with the almost invariable practice?
A. That would be the regular practice; I should get them the day they were issued.

Q. This would be an exception then?
A. Yes.

Q. When that is entered there and registered, is any notification sent out?
A. That would be a matter entirely with the inspector; I would have no interest in that matter at all.

Q. What is the practice about it when the warrant is issued; it is, as you say, brought to you and recorded immediately?
A. Yes.

Q. Then what takes place with regard to its execution; is there any notice given to the city police, for instance?
A. There is a report made of the circumstances in connection with the warrant and the offence committed; those are conveyed by the detective who is marked for the case to the inspector, and he either wires or telegraphs to whatever city the man is supposed to be in.

Q. If those were not returned to you, handed in to you promptly on being issued, would that delay the notification? A. Not necessarily; the inspector could still write or still communicate with outside points.

Q. The practice is as you detail: bring it to you, have it recorded and the report goes on, and notification? A. Yes.

Q. Is there any book called the "Occurrence Book"? A. Yes, in which all reports are made of everything.

Q. What do you remember about entries connected with these warrants in that book? A. The occurrence would not be made owing to the number I see here opposite Dr. Beattie Nesbitt's name; the occurrence with reference to that case has not been made till late in the year of 1911.

Q. Why would that be? A. That I could not say; that is a matter entirely with Inspector Duncan.

Q. That he would have to account for? A. Yes.

Q. You have a series of numbers there? A. The number of the report would indicate that it was not made until late in the year.

Q. That is taking it in its proper sequence? A. Yes.

Q. It would be considerably later than those that appear prior to it? A. Yes.

Q. Is it your duty to notify anybody, the city police for instance, immediately on a warrant being issued? A. Yes, in the Divisional cases if the warrant is issued for a man, in whatever district the man is supposed to be I ring up and notify the acting detective that a warrant has been issued for a man, giving the name and address and giving the offence.

Q. That is when the warrant is issued you notify, if possible, the most likely spot? A. The detective would not receive that report till the following morning when he comes down to the office.

Q. He would not receive that? A. He would not receive the written part of it; I would give him all that is on the occurrence over the telephone and he would act on that, if he could get the men in the night before.

Mr. COMMISSIONER: He is speaking only of the city? A. Yes, just of the city.

Mr. HODGINS: Does not it go further than the city? A. No, I would not interfere outside the city.

Q. Would not you send them to all divisions in the city? A. For instance, if there is a warrant for a man in Stratford I would not interfere at all, I would simply communicate the facts to Inspector Duncan.

Q. If a man was in West Toronto or might be there and might be in East Toronto? A. I would telephone to the station.

Q. To which? A. To No. 10 or No. 9 station, as the case might be.

Q. Suppose you were not certain which it was in? A. If that was the case I would have to leave it in abeyance till the detective got the report himself on the following morning.

Q. Would it go on the occurrence sheet what you did? A. The telephone message would not. You understand when the warrant is taken out, the party taking out the warrant would come up to the office and give all particulars about the man that is wanted, and from that I would telephone to the different stations. The detective would not receive that report till the following morning.

Q. That is what I thought, that you put it on your occurrence sheet and notify the other stations? A. Yes.

Q. Did that take place in the Beattie Nesbitt case until the warrants were finally turned in? A. Apparently from the number the report in his case was not made till very late.
Q. Would the notification therefore be delayed? A. Apparently we were not familiar with the facts until later.

The Commission adjourned at 12.05 p.m. until to-morrow, July 18th, 1912, at the Railway Committee Room of the Senate, Ottawa.

Ottawa, July 18th, 1912.

The Commission resumed in the Railway Committee Room of the Senate, at 11 a.m.

PRESENT:—

Hon. Sir William Meredith, Commissioner.
Frank E. Hodgins, K.C. and John Thompson, K.C. representing the Dominion Government.

George Edward Mulligan, Sworn, Examined by—

Mr. Hodgins: Are you the proprietor of the Russell House in Ottawa? A. Yes.

Q. You were I suppose in 1906, were not you? A. Yes.
Q. Have you your hotel register of November, 1906, with you? A. Yes.
Q. Let me see it? A. (Produces).
Q. This stops at November, 28th. have you not the one succeeding that? A. Yes.

Q. Where is it? A. Down at the hotel.
Q. Why was it not brought up? A. I supposed that was the only one you wanted.
Q. I want the other one? A. I will send for it. The reason why that book did not come up I am asked something I do not know anything about.
Q. You refused to let Mr. Thompson go over the books? A. I refuse to let anybody go over our books.
Q. If you had allowed him to indicate—? A. Mr. Thompson might have indicated to me and I would have brought whatever he wanted brought.
Q. Have you sent for it? A. Yes.
Q. You have Mr. Peter Ryan registered I see on the 28th? A. Yes, sir.
Q. And Mr. James Pearson? A. Yes; we have quite a few from Toronto there on that date.
Q. I suppose that would indicate his arrival in the morning would it not? A. Yes, sir.
Q. There is no room number? A. No, he did not have a room.
Q. How do you know? A. It would have said in that column.
Q. This does not indicate he had a room? A. No, he had no room.
Q. Was Anderson with him? A. That I am not in a position to say, I do not know.
Q. Who came with him? A. I do not know that anybody came with him.

Mr. O'Brien is coming up here, I have sent him after that book and he will be able to give you more information on that point than I.

Q. Is that “E.P.” after his name? A. That means European.
Q. Have you rooms A. B. C. D. and so on, as well as numbered rooms? A. No, sir.
Q. I suppose you know Peter Ryan? A. Very well.
Q. Was he in the habit of staying at the hotel when he came down? A. Yes, sir, I have never known him to stay over night except once in my life I think; he used to come in in the morning and go out on the late train. Our cash book does not show that he paid us anything on that date. On the European plan he would pay as he got his meal, the cheque would be handed him after he had his meal and he would pay the cashier and it would not appear in the cash book.

Q. I thought you had a system under which you could sign a cheque there? A. Yes, in that case that check is brought to the office and charged up to his account.

Q. Look and see what his account shows? A. I can tell you what his account shows; it does not show in this book; I will have that brought up for you.

Q. What book is that you have? A. This is the cash book; it is merely transferred in our transfer ledger with European plan marked after it with no room attached to it.

Q. What book is this you have got? A. This is my cash book; I have sent for the other book.

Q. Will you send for the ledger? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, let me look at the cash book? A. Yes; his name would not appear there if he paid for his meal in the restaurant unless he signed a check which the transfer ledger shows he did not do.

Q. Do you find him on the 29th or 30th or did you look? A. I did not look.

Q. Your hotel is, and was at the time, a resort was it not for almost everybody that comes down? A. Well, we had up to the present time—

Q. A great meeting place? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember what Mr. Ryan was doing that day at your hotel? A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. Did you see him at all? A. Of course I have seen him quite often, but I would not remember that particular date.

Q. You have no recollection whether he was there for a day or two days? A. None in the world except just what the book shows.

Q. Would you know when Mr. Hunter who is registered the same day, went up—do your books show? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This one or the ledger? A. The ledger will show.

Q. The same with regard to Travers? A. Yes.

Q. Could Mr. Ryan have the use of a room of he wanted it? A. I suppose he could, but it would be assigned to him on the book.

Q. He was well known? A. Yes.

Q. If he wanted a room without your charging for it he could have had it? A. We would charge him for it.

Q. Just for the temporary use during the day? A. Surely, he might throw some person out of a room that day; all hotels charge.

Q. I am speaking of your hotel? A. Yes, of course if he wanted it for five minutes or so to wash he might get it; if he occupied it for any length of time he would have to pay for it, and it would show on our cash book.

Q. Had you any guests on that day who had rooms who were not registered? A. I prefer your asking that question of Mr. O'Brien, because he would know better than I do.

Q. What is your knowledge of it? A. I could not say, I do not know, they did not get them through myself.

Q. It is possible there may have been some, if so O'Brien will know? A. O'Brien will know if they had.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Who is F. W. Grant, of Midland? A. I do not know him.

Q. Who is J. T. Johnston, of Toronto? A. I think he is a travelling man; my room clerk looks after that book and he will know.

Q. George Anderson, don't you know him? A. No.

Q. What does room mean in pencil here? A. Sample room.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. That would indicate he was a commercial traveller? A. Yes. Those figures were made by Mr. O'Brien. I guess I do not know Anderson. I think Anderson was afterwards connected with the Rea Co. over here, I think that was the man.
Q. Is he a tall black haired man? A. No, he is a red haired man.
Q. Who is George Ross, of Toronto? A. That might be the Hon. Mr. Ross.
Q. No, he is George W., room 135; probably Mr. O’Brien may be able to tell. There was George Ross, the Post Office Inspector, would it be he? A. I do not know.
Q. What does that tick mean in red ink? A. That means likely he did not want a room when he came in, and they just ticked it off.
Q. What do these figures 30 and 25 mean? A. That means rate.
Q. The rates vary? A. It is a private mark of our own.

MR. HODGINS: Do you ever have auction sales of timber limits? A. Yes.
Q. Is that of frequent occurrence? A. It was a few years ago, more so than to-day; because any limits that are sold around here as a rule are sold in our place.
Q. Where do they sell them? A. From the stairs as a rule, or just from the lobby.
Q. Just outside the office of the hotel? A. Years ago when we had big stairs in the office there in the lobby they used to sell them from the stairs; the last couple of years they stand on a table in the lobby.
Q. Did you make any charge for selling in there? A. No, sir.
Q. You let some one come in and not even pay for a room and use your hotel to sell limits and not charge them? A. Yes, it is an attraction, it brings a lot of people there.

WILLIAM S. CALVERT, Recalled:

MR. HODGINS: I do not think when you were examined before I asked you whether you knew Mr. Peter Ryan? A. I do.
Q. Have you known him for a long time? A. For a number of years; I do not remember when I met him first.
Q. He is registrar of East Toronto? A. Yes.
Q. A well known politician I am told? A. Well, I do not know in regard to a well known politician, I do not know that he has ever run as a member.
Q. You live in the west of Ontario and we had a gentleman from there who said he did not know Mr. Ryan and never heard of him? A. I read that in the paper the other day.
Q. You would not go that far? A. No, I know Mr. Ryan very well as a friend.
Q. He was a politician although he did not occupy a seat in Parliament? A. I understood he used occasionally to speak on the stump.
Q. I think you could safely go that far? A. Yes, while I never heard him.
Q. Did Travers know him before he met him in Ottawa? A. I have not the slightest idea whether he knew him or not.
Q. He says you introduced him? A. I saw by the papers that he had asked me to introduce him to Mr. Ryan, whether I did or whether I did not, I have not the slightest idea, because I have introduced many a man and I do not know whether I introduced him or not, I have no recollection of it whatever.
Q. What Travers says at page 1660 is this:
Q. Mr. Calvert says he only met you when he presented the letter of introduction to him? A. He is mistaken about that, because we were in the Russell House together and he introduced me to several people.

Q. Introduced you to Mr. Ryan? A. Yes, that is my recollection.

Witness: My recollection of that would be that that would be after the introduction. I do not remember of ever seeing or hearing of Mr. Travers, I may have heard of him, because he says he wrote to me—but I do not remember anything of the man at all until he brought the letter of introduction; I had nothing in common with him, and consequently I knew nothing of him in particular.

Q. You think if you introduced him to anybody it would be after he presented his letter of introduction? A. I would think so, because I have no recollection of ever meeting the man before, and if I did introduce him I would simply introduce him in a casual way.

Q. That was at the Russell House; he also says he was in No. 16 Committee Room with Mr. Calvert after that, and was introduced to fifteen or twenty? A. I do not know what he would be doing in 16; I do not remember him in connection with the charter at all.

Q. What do people do in 16? A. Simply as people would come in here and chat with their friends.

Q. What is room 16? A. Right off the House of Commons. It is the Government Members room. No. 6 is the Conservative room; nothing in that any more than friends stepping in and chatting with other people.

Q. I am only getting your recollection as contrasted with Travers; would he be right in saying that he was in that room and he was introduced then by you to fifteen or twenty? A. I do not suppose for one moment I would take the trouble to introduce Mr. Travers to fifteen or twenty members; he may have come in there and I may have introduced him; at that time I suppose Mr. Travers was looked upon as the coming man in connection with the Farmers Bank; he had been in Hamilton a good many years and I suppose had a fair reputation, and I knew nothing of him; naturally you would say "This is Mr. Travers."

Q. You had charge of the bill? A. I had charge for Mr. Urquhart and the provisional directors. I did that in many cases.

Q. You say he would be looked upon as the coming man? A. I presume if he came down representing the Farmers Bank as being introduced by Mr. Urquhart and probably—I do not remember what the letter said, but I presume it was giving me to understand that he was likely to be the manager of the bank, I suppose we would look upon him as a man of some standing.

Q. You had a room at the Russell House? A. I was at the Russell House probably in the neighborhood of 14 years on and off.

Q. You had a room there at the Russell House at this date? A. Yes.

Q. What was the number of it? A. I have had different rooms; I fancy at that time I had room 80, I am not just sure. I occupied room 80 for quite a while, and I fancy it would be at that time.

Q. Did he present his letter of introduction to you early in the day? A. In the morning a boy came to my room.

Q. With the letter? A. No, with his card I fancy, or told me a gentleman wanted to see me, I cannot remember exactly, and I said "All right, I will see him shortly". I was getting ready to come up to the House of Commons and I said "I will come down and see him when I am ready". And I came down to the rotunda and met the gentleman and he gave me the letter of introduction; that is my recollection of it.

Q. The letter did not accompany his card? A. I do not think so; I cannot just remember but my impression is he handed me the letter. I said "All right, Mr. Travers I am going up to the House," and on the way up Mr. Fielding the Finance Minister was in the building, and we walked across here and the messenger was at the door and he said Mr. Fielding was not in, but he will be in shortly. We stood there perhaps three or four minutes, there were one or two other gentlemen standing there at the time and Mr. Fielding came in and I introduced him the ordinary way as I would anybody else.

Q. Just as Mr. Fielding came in? A. Mr. Fielding came in, we just met him at the door and I told him, I fancy we stepped into the door, and I introduced Mr. Fielding to Mr. Travers, and my recollection is I came up here to the House.

Q. Travers arrived on the morning of the 28th that would be the day? A. I do not remember the day.

Q. When was it you introduced him to people in the Russell House, later on in the day? A. I do not recollect of introducing him to any person in the Russell House; if I did, it was in the most casual way.

Q. Did you meet him after you had left him with Mr. Fielding, did you meet him again? A. I have no recollection of meeting him because I had no interest in it, I was not interested at all further than to please Mr. Urquhart and the gentlemen connected with it.

Q. Did you have any communication from Travers after you left him at the door of the Finance Minister's room? A. Not that I remember of.

Q. Possibly you may have seen him? A. I may have seen him, but it was simply a matter of routine business with me, and whatever I did, I did it in the ordinary way, and of course I do not recollect of having seen him.

Q. You have told us that? A. I do not recollect of having seen him at all.

Q. Did you hear from him afterwards? A. I do not remember hearing from him; I might have but I do not remember.

Q. Did you meet W. H. Hunter? A. I do not think I know Mr. Hunter; I cannot place Mr. Hunter.

Q. Did you see Mr. Fielding afterwards and ask him what he had done for Travers? A. I don't think I did. I do not remember of having done so.

Q. Mr. Travers I suppose had explained what he wanted to you? A. The letter said he came down for that purpose to get the certificate for the Farmers Bank I presume.

Q. He was in a hurry to get it? A. I suppose he was.

Q. Having introduced him? A. He had only a limited time to get it, we only gave him six months, and I do not remember when the six months would be up.

Q. In January? A. Well, he got the certificate in November.

Q. Did you never have curiosity enough to ask Mr. Fielding afterwards? A. I never asked Mr. Fielding as I did hundreds of things and hundreds of times, various things; I was not interested in it particularly further than a public man to give them the legislation that I presumed was correct. It was a bill called the Farmers Bank, and I was a little interested that it would not be turned down, because I would not want it to be said that we turned down a bill of farmers and we gave it to somebody else.

Q. I suppose that motive would operate in the face of opposition to the granting of a certificate? A. It would what?

Q. It would operate, if there was opposition to the granting of the certificate? A. Operate to give it to them?

Q. Yes? A. If it was correct they were entitled to it.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Fielding that? A. I told Mr. Fielding that; my recollection of it is if it is correct then they are entitled to it, and not if it is not.

Q. Had it been a matter of discussion whether or not it would be advisable or inadvisable? A. Not with me.

Q. To turn down the farmers' application? A. No, no discussion with me.

Q. Mr. Travers represented the farming element in seeking a bank? A. I do not know that Mr. Travers was taken into consideration particularly at all.

Q. It was the farming element? A. No, it was the gentlemen promoting the bill in the first place, and they seemed to be good men.
Q. Who were they? A. The provisional directors, and Mr. Urquhart as their solicitor.

Q. Who were they? A. Mr. Fraser, Dr. Ferguson and the other gentlemen; I presume they were all good men.

Q. Did you get a note from Mr. Travers after his interview with the Finance Minister? A. I do not remember any note.

Q. Did you get any envelope from him? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see any envelope addressed to Peter Ryan? A. No, directly or indirectly in any shape or form, or anybody else in connection with anything of the kind, and such a suggestion was never mentioned to me or by me.

Q. What suggestion? A. About giving an envelope or a cheque or anything of the kind.

Q. Was any contribution made by Travers to the party funds? A. Never that I knew of, never known to give a nickel.

Q. Would you know if he had? A. I might not know.

Q. Did you introduce him to Mr. Emmerson? A. Not that I know of; do not remember introducing him to anybody but Mr. Fielding; if I did it was a most casual thing.

Q. Were you advised by Mr. Fielding when the certificate had been issued? A. I do not think so, no.

Q. Or by Mr. Boville? A. No; do not remember of them ever advising me in connection with it at all. Why should they?

Q. I did not know whether you had interest enough to ask? A. I do not think I ever asked.

Q. Were you consulted after Sir Edward Clouston's letter was received by the Department? A. No.

Q. Were you advised of it? A. No, knew nothing of it until I saw the evidence.

Q. Were you ever advised that Mr. Leighton McCarthy had protested against the issue of a certificate? A. No, not advised.

Q. Never heard of it? A. Saw it in the papers.

Q. Did you discuss that phase of it with the Finance Minister? A. No; Mr. Fielding did not discuss those things; he generally dealt with them himself.

Q. Or Mr. Boville? A. No.

Q. Or any one in the Department? A. No one that I remember of.

Mr. George E. Mulligan produced the register of the Russell House, beginning the 29th November, 1906, and also the ledger.

JOHN O'BRIEN, Sworn, Examined by—

MR. HODGINS: You are the room clerk? A. Yes.

Q. You were also room clerk in 1906? A. Yes.

Q. We find on the 28th November Mr. Ryan's name there? A. Yes.

Q. Who did he come with? A. I could not say.

Q. I suppose you know him? A. Yes.

Q. He is a frequenter? A. Yes.

Q. Always comes there when he is down? A. Yes.

Q. You knew him pretty well? A. Yes.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. What time does that indicate that he arrived? A. I could not say that; it is somewhere in the morning, but I could not say what time.

Q. You see “L” stands for lunch opposite his name? A. That is for lunch.

Q. And it would look as if he had not come in early to breakfast? A. No.

Q. Why did he register if he was not taking a room? A. The majority of people do that in case anybody should inquire for them or any telegrams come for them we would know they are there. There are a lot of people registered who did not have rooms.

Q. Did he have a room? A. No, sir.

Q. How can you tell? A. There is no room marked off.

Q. He might have had a room and not be marked down? A. Not as a rule, we do not do that.

Q. He was auctioning off some limits and you did not charge him for the use of the hotel rotunda, would not they give him the use of a room? A. No, the ledger shows too he did not have a room; here it is here.

Q. Under what date? A. The 28th November.

Q. Why is his name entered in this ledger? A. We always put them through because we have to copy the names off there.

Q. What do the entries indicate? A. This is the room and this is the arrival and this is the departure.

Q. What is the departure? A. He did not have anything, we marked him off.

Q. You do not put down any date, you just put a couple of strokes? A. Yes; that stands for European.

Q. Look him up on the 29th and 30th? A. He is not registered on the 29th or 30th in this book.

Q. What do these marks indicate in that register opposite his name? A. “E. P.” European; we marked him off as not staying over night.

Q. You do not find him there on the 29th or 30th, according to the ledger? A. No.

Q. What was Mr. Calvert’s room at that time? A. He had several rooms there; I cannot just tell you offhand what room he has had.

Q. Look on the 28th? A. It would not show in here because he has been a regular boarder.

Q. Do not you keep a list of the regular boarders in any book? A. Yes.

Q. If he thinks it was 80? A. He has had 80 and 146 for years.

Q. Would you look at W. R. Travers on the 28th or 30th; tell me when he arrived? A. He arrived on the 28th.

Q. Tell me when he left? A. He left on the 1st December.

Q. Would that be the evening of the 1st? A. It might be the evening of the 1st; on the European plan we charge for the night only; we have him marked out on the morning of the 1st December after breakfast.

Q. Would that indicate he left by the morning train for Toronto, having slept the night, November 30th? A. He slept the night of the 30th.

Q. Do you find W. H. Hunter registered and what date did he leave? A. He did not stay over night; he did not have a room either.

Q. He was there on the 28th, apparently left that night? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was Mr. Emmerson a guest at that time? A. I could not say, sir.

Q. Would the ledger show? A. No, they would not show the permanent people.

Q. If he was a transient guest? A. No, sir.

Q. I suppose you recall Travers, you know him? A. No, I do not.

Q. Was he not there more than once after that? A. He might have been, but it is so long ago that I do not remember.
Q. Do you know Mr. Hunter? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Quite sure you do not know and did not know Mr. Travers at that time? A. No.
Q. He stayed three days in the hotel? A. We had quite a few people there, and unless he was coming back and forth all the time we would not know him very well.
Q. He has said this, that he got from somebody at the desk in the hotel the room number of what he was told was Mr. Peter Ryan's room, and that he handed in a letter with that room number on it addressed to Peter Ryan, Esq.; have you any knowledge of that? A. No, sir.
Q. Supposing that took place, what would you do with the letter? A. If he sent it in a letter addressed to Mr. Ryan and Mr. Ryan had not a room we would give it to him as soon as we saw him; that is the reason they register.
Q. If he had not a room and a letter was handed into you addressed to Peter Ryan you would keep it and endeavor to get him as soon as you could? A. Yes.
Q. If it had a room number on it, say Peter Ryan, room 300, and you being room clerk knew he had not a room what would you do with it, send it up to the room? A. No, we would keep it at the office because we would know he had not a room.
Q. You know Mr. Calvert? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did Mr. Ryan say anything to you about him? A. No.
Q. Make any inquiries about him? A. I do not remember.
Q. Mr. Calvert says Mr. Travers' card was sent up to his room in the morning of that date, and he came down and was presented with a letter? A. I do not remember that.
Q. Had any people at that time rooms who were not registered? A. Not to my knowledge; we always make them register before we give them a room.
Q. Sometimes it is inconvenient for some people to be on the register, is it not? A. They have to register for a room.
Q. A man coming there to stay there permanently? A. They do not register, people like that who have the rooms by the month they do not register.
Q. So that there may have been people there who are not on the register who had rooms? A. Yes.
Mr. Commissioner: Who is George Anderson? A. He is a traveller from Toronto.
Q. Did he come with him? A. He came in at the same time.
Q. By the same train probably? A. Yes.

THOMAS C. BOVILLE, Recalled by—

MR. HODGINS: You were examined before? A. Yes.
Q. And owing to something that Travers has stated I want a little further information from you; he says the actual subscriptions for these shares were sent down to him in Ottawa; you know what I mean, the subscriptions signed by the individual shareholders agreeing to take shares, which would be signed throughout the country and collected in the office of the Farmers Bank? A. Yes.
Q. And he said those were sent down to him while he was in Ottawa, and he went over those, as I recollect his evidence, or some of those, with the Minister; now I want to know whether you ever saw them? A. No.
Q. What he says is this, page 505: "Q. Did he ask you—that is speaking of Mr. Fielding—to see any of the subscriptions which you had sent down A. No, he did not, because I am under the impression that Mr. Boville or Mr. Boville's assistant looked at some of them; I remember taking them over.
“Q. They are all here, a pretty large bundle? A. Yes, but they were not in that shape; we had them all in condensed form.

“Q. So that is was possible to carry them about? A. Yes.

“Q. What is your recollection of any one in the Finance Department looking at them? A. My recollection is I think it was Mr. Boville”.

WITNESS: No, I never saw them; the only document with regard to the subscriptions which I have at all any recollection of seeing was the list of subscriptions attached to the affidavit, not the original subscriptions but the list as attached to the affidavit.

Q. He put the date at which he thinks you saw them the second day after Hunter left, which would be the 30th, that would be the day on which the certificate issued. On page 506:

“Q. And as you got your certificate on the 30th, I suppose if Mr. Boville saw those subscriptions he would have seen them on the 30th? A. On the morning the first time I went over.

“Q. Is that the morning you went over and just saw Mr. Fielding for a moment and was put off till the afternoon? A. Yes.

“Q. You took over your subscriptions with you? A. Yes, that is my recollection.

“Q. Who asked you to show them to Mr. Boville? A. I do not think anybody asked me. I was speaking to him as I passed in and laid them down.

“Q. You said you laid the subscriptions down when you were speaking to Mr. Boville; what did you do that for? A. I just invited him to look at them”.

Then later on: “A. When we went in the first time we showed everything to Mr. Boville, all our notices and affidavits and everything”.

Then on page 507 he says: “I am positive that we looked at two or three of those subscriptions”.

WITNESS: I have no recollection whatever of any of those original subscriptions having been submitted to me.

Q. Would Mr. Ross by any chance have seen those subscriptions if they were down there? A. What date was this, 1906?

Q. Yes? A. I do not think Mr. Ross was appointed at that time.

Q. He said that in his conversation with the Finance Minister there were specific discussions with regard to some of the subscriptions, and that he made an explanation that certain subscriptions of the list should really have been taken off, and that there was no provision in the Bank Act to take them off, that he had to put on Lindsay's subscription to make a larger amount? A. I have no recollection of anything of that kind.

Q. The Lindsay subscription was a $50,000 subscription? A. Was a large one, yes.

Q. And he thinks that was discussed? A. Yes.

Q. At page 508 he puts it this way: he speaks of Mr. Fielding's interview, then he says, “Mr. Boville's was very different altogether. I saw Mr. Boville as I passed through in the first place; I had no discussion whatever with Mr. Boville regarding any subscription, that list, or anything about the subscriptions, but I had the second day when I went in; he looked at them but did not pay very much attention to them, that is my recollection of it.

“Q. In order to make it quite clear you went into Mr. Boville's office with the subscriptions? A. The second day.

“Q. The day you got the certificate? A. The day I got it, yes.

“Q. Did you discuss any subscriptions with him? A. No”.

Then a little later on, he said: “We deposited the list and the papers in the first place, and the second day I went there I laid the subscriptions down. I thought they would look at them while I was away.

“Q. Did you tell him what they were? A. Yes”.

Then he says you could not help seeing them?
WITNESS: I have no recollection of the original subscriptions whatever.

Q. Did the Finance Minister, Mr. Fielding, discuss with you any individual subscription? A. I think our discussion was rather on general lines, that the subscription list was a large one and seemed fairly well distributed, but I have no recollection of the discussion of any particular subscriptions.

Q. He says he discussed specifically with Mr. Fielding the $50,000 subscription of Lindsay; did Mr. Fielding discuss that with you? A. I have no recollection whatever of a discussion of that kind.

Q. Travers further says that he had three interviews with the Finance Minister; are you able to say whether that is in your knowledge or not? A. I could not definitely state as to the number of interviews; I knew there were some interviews.

Q. Did Mr. Travers mention to you the Laidlaw subscriptions which were the subject of a suit? A. No.

Q. Did you discuss them with him at all? A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Fielding mention it to you? A. No.

Q. Or any other individual subscription? A. No.

Q. He says there is no doubt that Mr. Fielding had been communicated with and spoken to by numerous people about the list, were you one of those who had informed Mr. Fielding at all? A. No.

Q. How did it come that that letter was written asking for the individual amounts paid on the various subscriptions? A. On account of these floating rumors which have been referred to before that it was possible that the directors may have been endeavoring to obtain advances from the banks to make up their $250,000 we wanted to make certain whatever money came to us in the shape of a deposit came legitimately from the subscribers.

Q. Very shortly before Travers came down that letter was written? A. Yes.

Q. That was written anticipating an application? A. Yes.

Q. He brings you down the list showing you the subscriptions, the individual amounts paid apparently? A. Yes.

Q. And then it is that he says Mr. Fielding, and it seems natural although Mr. Fielding denies it, that inquiry would be made as to the individual subscriptions; did you make any inquiry? A. No, we relied on the affidavit.

Q. If Mr. Travers is right in saying he spoke to the Minister—the Minister denies it of course—at all events as you know you were not communicated with by either Travers or Mr. Fielding? A. No.

Q. He said that in discussing the Laidlaw subscription he pointed out that there was nothing to permit him to take them off the stock list once they were put on there; that is a peculiar question, and if it came up I fancy you would remember it? A. I fancy it would stay in my mind.

Q. Do you remember it at all? A. No.

Q. Had you discussed that with Mr. Fielding in a general way apart from any specific reference to the Laidlaw subscriptions? A. No.

Q. Did any telephone message come on the 30th before the certificate was issued from any one regarding the issue of the certificate? A. Any telephone message?

Q. Yes? A. Of what nature?

Q. Objecting to it being issued or saying that the letter was on the way? A. No.

Q. No telephone from the Bankers' Association? A. No.

Q. None from Sir Edward Clouston? A. No.

Q. Or Mr. Knight? A. No.

Q. Did you discuss at all with Mr. Fielding what he and Mr. Calvert have mentioned, the fact that this application was made on behalf of the farmers practically, and that they did not want it said that they had turned down the application? A. There may have been some conversation of that kind, but not a discussion.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Were you present at any of the discussions between Travers and Mr. Fielding? A. I may have been called in by Mr. Fielding for a few minutes, it is quite possible.

Q. Have you any definite recollection? A. No definite recollection.

Q. Could not say what occurred? A. No.

Q. The Ministers Budget speech had been delivered as far as I can make out on the 29th November? A. Yes.

Q. And the 28th was the day Mr. Hunter and Mr. Travers were in Ottawa? A. Yes.

Q. And if they came in apparently they did not see Mr. Fielding? A. No, I do not think they would because he would be very busy in his preparation, see nobody.

Q. Mr. Calvert’s recollection is that he introduced Travers to Mr. Fielding on the 28th? A. It may be, but it is not likely Mr. Fielding would be interrupted in the preparation of his Budget.

Q. You think he would be busy? A. Yes, rather.

Q. Then you would be the one that he would naturally communicate with? A. Probably left his papers with me on the 28th.

Q. Was he conscious of any hitch on the 28th? A. No other hitch than any hitch that would arise out of my letter to him with regard to the subscriptions from each individual shareholder.

Q. Did he deliver those to you on the 28th? A. Yes.

Q. After looking at it as you did, did you say anything to him about it to lead him to think there was a hitch? A. No, I do not think so.

Q. Was there a hitch? A. There was not any hitch; the papers seemed to be in order; the list of subscriptions seemed to be fairly large and widely distributed, and on the face of it there apparently was not any hitch.

Q. You sent it over to the Deputy Minister of Justice the same day according to the letter? A. Yes.

Q. That would not have been done if you had not been satisfied with the list? A. No, we would have held that for discussion.

Q. Did any one speak to you on the 28th and urge you to help it through? A. Urge me?

Q. Yes? A. No.

Q. Or say to you, help it through? A. I have no recollection of any one having said anything to me of that nature with regard to putting through the certificate.

Q. I am not suggesting there was anything improper in that; did any one in a friendly way say to you “Now, here is this man down, help it through”? A. I have no recollection of anything of that kind.

Q. Did you have any talk with Mr. Calvert on the subject? A. I have no recollection of a conversation with Mr. Calvert; I may have met him on the street casually; I have no recollection of him coming to the office specially.

Q. Or any of the Ministers? A. No, no recollection of any Minister having spoken to me with regard to it.

Q. Nor any one else? A. No; I think the negotiations were between Mr. Fielding and myself altogether.

Q. You say the 28th and 29th and 30th were the three days and only the three? A. Yes.

Q. You do not recollect any one at all speaking to you? A. No recollection.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What day was the 28th? A. The Budget speech would probably be delivered on a Thursday; it was delivered on the 29th.

MR. THOMPSON: Wednesday was the 28th November, 1906.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Have any regulations been passed as to what is to be done in order to obtain a certificate? A. No regulations have been passed.

Q. None have been passed up to this date? A. No.
Q. You simply act upon the provisions of the Bank Act? A. Yes.
Q. How far is that a matter of routine before it reaches the Treasury Board or the Minister, departmentally, if I may use that expression? A. The various clauses of the Bank Act—what would probably be done, the various clauses of the Bank Act leading up to the granting of the charter would be taken, the notice in the Canada Gazette would be checked to see those were correct; the deposit would be examined to see that that was correct; the various steps, the election of directors and so on would be verified in whatever manner seemed best to us by affidavit or otherwise, but we satisfy ourselves that the various steps required by the Bank Act are taken; the duty is sometimes subdivided.
Q. That is primarily your responsibility? A. Yes.
Q. If the papers appear in order what is the next step? A. Then I would advise the Minister of Finance that the Department had gone through the papers and that they seemed to be in order, were apparently to us in order, and await his further instructions.
Q. Is there any certificate given by you or by any officer that the papers are in order? A. Not always; sometimes an officer will certify he has gone through the papers, and sometimes he will report verbally.
Q. Does the officer assume any responsibility for examining the list in order to determine whether it is a good list of shareholders? A. No; I myself would look through it and gather generally whether it is a good list.
Q. For what purpose? A. Simply for advising the Minister that the list was widely spread.
Q. Do you assume if it was not a satisfactory list the Treasury Board might refuse to grant the certificate? A. By all means.
Q. That you understand to be in the discretion of the Board? A. Yes.
Q. The letter that Mr. McCarthy had written had been withdrawn? A. Yes.
Q. You treated it as if it had never existed? A. Yes.
Q. Do you not now see that that was probably a mistake? A. Oh, yes.
Q. The letter contained two branches, one of which contained information as to the discounting of the notes, and the other the complaints of his clients? A. Yes.
Q. So that as far as the discounting of the notes was concerned that remained, although the documents were withdrawn? A. Yes.
Q. But I suppose that escaped observation? A. That was off-set, sir, by the very clear and distinct affidavit.
Q. You had the affidavit? A. Yes.
Q. You spoke about a letter you wrote to Travers? A. Yes.
Q. I do not see it among the papers; what date was that? A. It should be there; it would be a week or two before that.
Mr. Hodgins: November 21st is the date.
Mr. Commissioner: Is that this letter of November 21st, 1906; "Referring to your letter of the 23rd October, making a deposit under section 13 of the Bank Act of the sum of $250,000, I have no doubt that you will be applying very shortly for a certificate under section 14 to commence business. In the papers to be submitted to the Board in support of the application there is a list of bona fide subscribers"—I suppose that meant there is to be a list? A. Yes.
Q. "There is a list of bona fide subscribers of capital stock of the bank showing subscriptions to the extent of $500,000. Would you be so good as to have added to this list for submission to the Board a statement showing the actual amount of cash paid up by each subscriber". That last paragraph, what led to that? A. These statements that were spread abroad.
Q. I see in a letter you wrote to Mr. Clouston on the 3rd December you say: "I previously had some conversation with Mr. Fielding, who was very busy in the preparation of the Budget speech, with regard to this application. But on Friday last, the day after the delivery of the Budget Speech, Mr. Travers, the General Manager had an interview with him. In the course of this interview that gentleman gave a most positive assurance that "Not a dollar" of the amount deposited had been borrowed. For the purpose of record Mr. Fielding wrote Mr. Travers a letter, of which I enclose a copy, asking for the assurance that the amounts set forth in the application as having been paid in were in every case bona fide cash payments. I enclose a copy of Mr. Travers' reply."

Were you present when the assurance was given by Travers or was that upon information? A. Probably upon the information of the Minister.

Q. Who dictated the letter of the 30th November, the one that is referred to in that letter to Sir Edward Clouston, the letter to Travers; was that Mr. Fielding's letter or your letter? A. Mr. Fielding dictated it, dictated by Mr. Fielding himself.

Q. I want to call your attention to the language of that letter and the language of the reply. After the early part of the letter which is not important: "There is a phase of the matter which I should like to bring to your notice so that you may consider it at once. It has been represented to us that in some previous instances where an application was in all respects apparently regular, there was actually an evasion of the intention of the Bank Act in relation to the paid up capital. We have been told that in some cases the subscribers did not actually pay in cash, but gave notes to the provisional directors which were used to raise the money. On account of information of this kind, which has reached us in relation to a previous case, we deem it proper to scan very closely every application for a certificate which comes to us."

Was not this in regard to this very application? A. That is Mr. Fielding's dictation.

Q. Mr. Fielding apparently was in error about that, because it was in regard to that very application? A. He may have had information of some previous case.

Q. But surely you know that what he would call his attention to would be the information about this particular case he was dealing with? A. I do not know.

Q. Then he says: "I shall be glad to have an assurance that nothing of the kind has taken place"—perhaps that was a polite way of letting Mr. Travers know—"I shall be glad to have an assurance that nothing of the kind has taken place in relation to the subscriptions for the Farmers Bank, but that the amounts set forth in the application as having been paid up have in every case been bona fide cash payments." That letter looks to me like a letter of a gentleman who did not know that any complaint had been made with regard to this particular one, because such things had occurred in other cases he was desirous of guarding against a similar thing happening? A. I would not like to interpret Mr. Fielding's dictation, but I have no doubt he had in mind that application.

Q. Are you sure that Mr. Fielding knew or had present to his mind when he wrote that letter, Mr. McCarthy's letter? A. I think so, yes.

Perhaps I may qualify it,—not so much Mr. McCarthy's letter as the general idea.

Q. Notice what Travers answer was and see it was no answer at all to the request; "In reply to your letter of the 30th November I have to say that in the case of the Farmers Bank of Canada the provisional directors did not raise the money in the way mentioned by you. You will find the statement put in by me absolutely correct as to the amount of the stock subscribed and the amount paid up." He did not answer the question at all? A. Not quite.

Q. The fact was, as we have found, that the money was raised upon the notes, the provisional directors did not raise it all, he raised it; that I suppose escaped notice? A. You must bear in mind that between the previous to the writing of that letter of Travers Mr. Fielding had a conversation with Travers.
Q. Would not that naturally make a man suspect? A. In view of the previous unconditional statement made by Travers in regard to the correctness of the method of raising the money I presume that was lost sight of in the case of that letter.

Q. I fancy if it had gone to the Minister of Justice’s Department they would probably have noticed the difference. They are not lawyers in the Finance Department; and it was a very carefully prepared reply, as specious as it was brief? A. Specious, yes.

Q. How did it occur to you or to the Minister that he would be likely to get anything better to reply upon in the form of a letter when he had the sworn statement of the man whose assurance he was asking for, one was under oath and the other was not? A. I presume Mr. Fielding something to show he had taken—

Q. To put him on honor? A. Yes.

Q. Don’t you think a thing of this kind indicates that some examination should be made by the Department at the source? A. That is what we do now; we have had cases since and we have.

Q. You do not rely upon any affidavit? A. No.

Q. You see at this time we really had no reason to suspect the bona fides of Mr. Travers other than any other general manager of a bank.

Q. Supposing he had frankly told you, “The provisional directors had notes of good farmers, $100,000 odd, they endorsed them without recourse to me, I was managing the whole thing, and they were handing it over to me, and I borrowed upon my personal security, hypothecating these notes I borrowed $80,000 which I applied to the credit of these men whose notes I held”, what would have been the action of the Department. A. It would have been a question then whether that could have been regarded as a payment in cash, and probably we would have taken legal advice as to it.

Q. Apparently there is no information sought as to what the preliminary expenses of floating a bank are? A. No, it had not been usual to ask for that.

Q. It apparently cost about $41,000 to get this bank up to that stage? A. Yes.

Q. If you had been told that either ten or fifteen per cent of a premium had been paid to Travers and his agents for securing subscriptions for the stock and that that had been paid out of money of the subscribers, would that have made any difference? A. The cost of collecting subscriptions?

Q. Not collecting them but of getting them? A. The agents commission?

Q. Yes? A. If the commission were fair and reasonable if we had the information we would not regard it as a very serious obstacle; of course if the expense of organization is excessive it is a question to bring before the Board, the Government; it is something they should know.

Q. I suppose if this were to be done over again it would probably be in writing what the objections were so that it could be in writing how they were disposed of? A. Yes.

Mr. Hodgin: I am asking this question at your own request? A. Yes.

Q. Owing to what Mr. Travers has said, it appears that a sum of $3,000 was received by somebody, Mr. Travers being under the impression that the receipt of that was going to help his getting the certificate through, did you get any part of that? A. Absolutely and unreservedly no.

Q. Do you know anything about any such sum of money or any sum of money having been used? A. Absolutely and unreservedly I have no knowledge of any such sum of money having been used in that way or any other way.

Mr. Commissioner: Travers himself said not. A. I would like to have it confirmed by better evidence.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

JAMES BROUGH of the Timber Branch of the Department of the Interior was present, but was not sworn. The following discussion took place between Mr. Brough and Mr. Hodgins:

Mr. Hodgins: I would like to know the amount that Peter Ryan offered by tender for these limits which he has mentioned on the 22nd January.

Mr. Brough: One cheque was $350 and the other $2,050.

Mr. Hodgins: My recollection is there were four tenders by him that day copied in his letter book or it may have been three.

Mr. Brough: No, there were only two that day.

Mr. Hodgins: Were any tenders put in Mr. Scott’s name or Mr. Pearson’s name?

Mr. Brough: These were on behalf of J. G. Scott.

Mr. Hodgins: Were there no others, only the two?

Mr. Brough: Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: On the 22nd January?

Mr. Brough: The 23rd January.

Mr. Hodgins: That is the date they would be received here.

Mr. Brough: Yes; that was the date of the opening of the tenders.

Mr. Hodgins: Those were the only two, Ryan, Scott or Pearson.

Mr. Brough: Yes.

Mr. Hodgins: Mr. Ryan asked me to examine the Members of the Treasury Board; I have made some inquiries. I think if they had been convenient in Ottawa, I would have examined them to satisfy him, but I think at the present while he has not withdrawn the request, I do not think he is insisting upon it. Mr. Fielding has been examined and of course has covered the ground, and I do not think either Sir Richard Cartwright’s or Mr. Brodeur’s denial probably is necessary unless something more is said than has already been said.

Mr. Commissioner: In reference to this $3,000?

Mr. Hodgins Yes. I think I can fairly take the responsibility of not calling them. So that at present I have no further evidence to offer here.

The Commission adjourned sine die.

Toronto, December 12th, 1912.

The Commission met at 11 a.m. at Osgoode Hall.

PRESENT:

HONOURABLE SIR WILLIAM MEREDITH, Commissioner.

JOHN THOMPSON, K.C., representing the Dominion Government.

WILLIAM LAIDLAW, K.C., representing the shareholders.

W. C. MIKEL, representing depositors.

The Commissioner: Is there any further testimony?

Mr. Thompson: There is no further testimony; but there has come to my notice a letter written by the Deputy Minister of Finance dated May 2nd, 1907, which perhaps ought to be filed as an Exhibit.

Mr. Commissioner: Very well; I suppose a copy of it is in the Return?

Mr. Thompson: Yes.
Mr. Commissioner: The Returns that were made in answer to this request are on file.

Mr. Thompson: Yes. A copy of a letter in reply to that, written by the general manager to the Finance Minister, was attached to it.

Mr. Commissioner: Let them both go in together.

Exhibit 91: Letter from T. C. Boville, Deputy Minister of Finance, to W. R. Travers dated May 2nd, 1907, and letter in reply from Travers to Minister of Finance, dated May 11th, 1907.

Mr. Thompson: I have no further testimony to offer.

Mr. Commissioner: Has anybody else any evidence to offer? Mr. Clarkson, is there any information you can give that will be of any importance that we have not got from you?

Mr. G. T. Clarkson: No, sir.

Mr. Commissioner: No further light about that $3,000 cheque?

Mr. Thompson: You remember, sir, we adjourned to Ottawa and the clerks in the Russell House were examined, and they were unable to throw any light upon it. No new evidence has come to light since then. The chief clerk at the Russell House was to prepare a statement for me in connection with the people who had registered at the Russell House during certain days. I looked over that and there was nothing in that to throw any light upon the matter at all.

Mr. Commissioner: The cheque has not turned up.

Mr. Thompson: No.

Mr. Commissioner: There was no stub for any cheque of that kind.

Mr. Thompson: No, sir.

Mr. Commissioner: Nor any entry.

Mr. Thompson: There is a cheque of $3,000, but that is already on file.

Mr. Commissioner: Let me see that one. (Exhibit 60). This is January, some time after.

Mr. Thompson: Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: Was this charged to commissions?

Mr. G. T. Clarkson: No sir, charged to fixtures and furniture.

Mr. Commissioner: Have we learned what the actual destination of the money was?

Mr. G. T. Clarkson: Mr. Travers, I understood said he got the money and cashed the cheque. I do not remember what evidence he gave as to the disposition of the money.

Mr. Commissioner: I think Mr. Travers might be called and asked about this.

W. R. TRAVERS, Recalled:

Mr. Thompson: One of the exhibits (Exhibit 60) is a cheque for $3,000 on the Union Bank of Canada, dated January 7th, 1907; was that the cheque that you deposited in Ottawa to some unknown person? A. No.

Q. Look at that cheque, exhibit 60? A. I was unable to say what that was used for in my examination, and I cannot say. What I did say was this. that after this cheque was shown to me and I saw the moneys on the back of it I said it might have some connection with the other money but I could not say without seeing the date of payment of the other cheque.

Q. You told us you were expecting that $3,000 from Ottawa and had made provision for it? A. Yes.

Q. I think your testimony was that when the cheque came in you collected the funds and cashed it? A. I cashed it. This cheque was shown to me, I think you will see in my evidence I said I was puzzled because the appearance of this money looked to me like the money I paid for that cheque; if I had the other cheque and I paid it on this date, I would almost be able to swear positively that was the money.

Q. Your impression is you may have issued that cheque on the Union Bank to provide funds for the cheque which you gave in Ottawa?  A. No, I did not say that; I do not know what this was used for; I think in all probability, at least it is possible, I changed the money I had in my desk, in my box, for that money; that is why I said if I had the cheque that we might see where that was deposited and what bank, which would clear up the whole thing.

Q. You are referring now to the proceeds of this Union Bank cheque?  A. I do not know what that $3,000 was used for, the books do not show, paid to me.

Q. Would the date of this Union Bank cheque be about the date on which you were expecting the $3,000 cheque from Ottawa?  A. I could not say that; it seems to me too early; I think it was later than this.

Q. You think the cheque from Ottawa came in after the Union Bank cheque?  A. Yes, I think it came in later than this.

Q. Did you give the cheque in Ottawa in October?  A. I gave it on November 28th.

Q. I thought your testimony was to the effect that the Ottawa cheque came in about a month or six weeks after?  A. Yes, that is what I said, about a month or shortly after the bank opened.

Q. Would not that correspond with the date of the Union Bank cheque?  A. Very nearly so.

Q. What is the date of the Union Bank cheque?  A. This was January 7th, 19

Q. If you were expecting a cheque from Ottawa in would not you likely make provision for it some time before?  A. I did make provision for it some time before; I commenced making provision for it at once.

Q. If the cheque from Ottawa came in about six weeks after you had issued it, that would be about one week after the date of the Union Bank cheque, would not it?  A. I should say so, about that time; I cannot say exactly what the date was; I cannot positively swear to that.

Q. My impression is you said the cheque came in about six weeks after?  A. Yes, about a month or six weeks I think I said.

Q. And the Union Bank cheque is dated about five weeks after?  A. Yes. I cannot say that that cheque was issued for the purpose of taking up the other cheque that I left in Ottawa, but in seeing that money on the back, as I said before, it gives me the impression that that is the money I used. If I had the other cheque to fix the date of the payment, and it was the date, then I would be quite sure of it.

Q. Did you meet Mr. Peter Ryan in Ottawa the first day you arrived?  A. I did.

Q. Was it the day or the following day you placed the cheque for $3,000 in an envelope?  A. It was on that day.

Q. The same day?  A. Yes, that is my recollection, that it was that very day, that very night.

Q. Do you remember on what bank the cheque was drawn?  A. On the Traders Bank.

Q. Was it one of the three cheques sent you by Fitzgibbon?  A. No, it could not have been; I did not get those for two or three days afterwards. I had cheques in the office in my possession on every bank, so that if shareholders came in to make their payments on their stock I always had a blank form. I took a blank form of the Traders Bank down with me, and then after settling with Smith, Hunter said to me, "you may want something else, I will have some more cheques sent down", that is the way those cheques came to be sent down.

Q. In what other banks than the Traders Bank did you have money which would meet any $3,000 cheque?  A. At what time?
Q. At the time you went to Ottawa?  A. I had not money in any other bank.

Q. Was the Traders Bank the only bank?  A. Yes, that is the only bank.

Q. So that if you issued that cheque for $3,000 it must have been on the Traders Bank?  A. It was on the Traders Bank, I am quite sure of that.

Q. And probably a Traders Bank cheque?  A. I am quite sure of that too, it was a Traders Bank cheque.

Q. And you are quite sure it was not one of the three cheques which Fitzgibbon sent to you?  A. I am clear on that because I did not get them, let me see, it would be the 30th they came down to me.

Mr. Commissioner: You paid Guthrie & Pringle apparently on the 4th December, according to this stub (in exhibit 90)?  A. I think I post-dated that cheque so as to be able to get home before it would be presented.

Mr. Thompson: You paid their account when in Ottawa?  A. That is my recollection of that, that I did; if that is one of the cheques it is certainly paid while I was there.

Q. When you were in Ottawa you used two of the three cheques, did you not, that were sent down to you by Fitzgibbon?  A. I don’t think I did; I think I only used one for Guthrie & Pringle; I am not sure whether—

Q. Did you not issue a post-dated cheque to cover Smith’s account at the same time?  A. No, I gave Smith an I.O.U.

Q. How was the I.O.U. subsequently paid?  A. Paid by cash. Mr. Shaver proved that for you; he said he drew it on the Traders Bank and paid it to him; the cheque is on file.

Q. There was a cheque issued subsequently to Smith?  A. Yes; I am quite sure it is not one of those cheques.

Q. Do you recollect what became of the remaining cheques which were sent to you at Ottawa?  A. I could not say; the stubs should speak for themselves I should think; I very seldom saw the cheque book at all. The cheques were always made out and brought to me to sign; I did not see that cheque book all the time the business went on as much as I did while I was here at this investigation.

Q. What was the date the money was drawn from the Traders Bank?

Mr. G. T. Clarkson: That the money was withdrawn from the Traders Bank in entirety?

Mr. Commissioner: Yes.

Mr. G. T. Clarkson: 21st December, 1906, $53,000 was drawn out then.

Mr. Thompson: Do you remember the name of the clerk in the Russell House who gave you Peter Ryan’s room number?  A. No, I could not say what his name was.

Q. Was it one of the clerks in the hotel?  A. It was.

Q. Are you quite sure?  A. I am satisfied of that.

Q. Was it from one of the clerks that you got your information?  A. Yes, my recollection is that he told me the number of the room and that I put on the back of the cheque.

Q. You thought he was giving you Mr. Peter Ryan’s room number?  A. I did think so.

Q. I might say that Mr. Peter Ryan was not registered in Ottawa at the Russell House?  A. That may be true; that may be the reason I asked for the number. I do not remember looking at the register, but that may be the very reason I asked where I could find him.

Q. What you state is the clerk in the hotel gave you the number when he was applied to by you for Mr. Peter Ryan’s room number?  A. Yes.

Q. Is there any further light you wish to throw upon this?  A. I wish I could; I cannot throw any further light in the absence of that cheque; I think if we had the cheque it would unravel itself. I cannot do it.
Mr. Commissioner: Why did you not anticipate this cheque would be presented to the bank? A. Because I intended to move my money, as soon as I got back, from the Traders Bank.

Q. It might have been presented any day between the day you issued it and the day you withdrew? A. That was the reason I left my card stating that I would pay it in cash, because I was afraid perhaps it might be sent in and the Traders Bank would refuse it, had I withdrawn the money.

Q. Why would the Traders Bank refuse it? A. If I had not the money.

Q. If it came in after you withdrew? A. Yes.

Q. When do you say you have seen that cheque since the failure of the bank? A. My recollection was that I saw the cheque at the time that you were to preside at the Assize Court; that would be in May, 1911, if my memory is correct.

Q. Where did you see it then? A. I thought I saw it in the County Crown Attorney's Office while Mr. Lynch-Staunton was there, but he said it was not so and I do not wish to contradict him.

Q. What is your memory as to whom that cheque was payable? A. That cheque was payable to myself and endorsed by myself.

Q. In Blank? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And marked with the letter "C"? A. It was marked with the letter "C."

Q. What would "C" signify? A. I am not quite sure whether I put "Charter" on it, I do not remember whether I marked it at the time or whether I marked it afterwards.

Q. What do you mean by afterwards? A. After I had paid it.

Q. What did you do with the cheque when you paid it? A. I put it in a private drawer in my desk with some other papers.

Mr. Thompson: Was the cheque the same colored paper as those which are produced of the Traders Bank? A. Yes, about that color; of course the shade varies; I don't know what printing it was; I think it was exactly the same color as that one.

Q. Did you notify the Traders Bank you expected a cheque in for $3,000 and request them to send it over to you if presented? A. The Traders Bank were notified if any cheques were presented after the money was withdrawn to send them over to the Farmers Bank.

Mr. Commissioner: You did not know but what that cheque might be presented the next day? A. If it had been presented then it would have been paid by the Traders Bank and gone through in the ordinary course.

Q. Then why did you put in a memorandum and say to present it to you? A. Because I intended to transfer my account immediately I got home; I had difficulty with the Traders Bank, and I did not intend to leave the money with them a moment longer than possible.

Mr. Thompson: How was it you did not make provision at an earlier date than about six weeks after the issue of the cheque—did not you expect the cheque to come in immediately? A. I expected the cheque to come in any day, and I commenced making provision for it at once.

Q. If you commenced to make provision for it at once that Union Bank cheque which has been produced would hardly have reference to the Ottawa cheque? A. Yes, I think that the money for this Union Bank cheque was used for some other purpose, I cannot remember just now; I think I traded the money for this, because that looks to me like the money I paid for that cheque, and I thought you could trace that into some bank if it was necessary.

Mr. Commissioner: In that way you would have $6,000? A. No, this $3,000 must have been used for some other purpose.

Q. You got money on that $3,000 cheque, Union Bank, then if that $3,000 was in your possession awaiting the presentation of this cheque, you would have had $6,000? A. Yes; $3,000 of this was used for my own purpose.
Q. I thought your suggestion was to change the money you had into bills of this bank? A. What I say is this, that after seeing that I think I changed the money I had to pay the cheque and use this, and I think this went to another party, but I am not positive now; I cannot swear positively on that; when the Telegram comes out and says I committed perjury I want to see the facts and the cheque before me, and I will give you the particulars; I think this went to another party, $3,000 to one and $3,000 to another; that is why I cannot say that.
Q. Who did you expect would lose this $3,000? A. The $3,000 that I left in Ottawa was to come out of my commissions.

Mr. Thompson: When you say you made provision for the $3,000, did you have the money in your own account? A. I did not.

Q. Where did you keep it? A. The money that I drew on my commissions I kept in my desk in a box that I put in the vaults every night.

Q. Was the money which you provided to meet the $3,000 cheque, kept in the vault or in a box? A. Yes, passed in and out every night, kept there waiting for it to come in.

Q. And if you took that money to pay the $3,000 cheque from Ottawa, is it possible you drew the money from the Union Bank to replace that $3,000? A.
No, I am quite sure this went to another party altogether.

Q. To whom did that money go? A. I cannot say positively; I have an idea that $3,000 went to one and $3,000 went to another.

Q. In the same interest, for the same purpose? A. I cannot say that, not for this $3,000. (Exhibit 60.)

Mr. Commissioner: As I understand you nothing passed at all between you and Ryan about any payment or in reference to the cheque? A. No sir.

Q. No reference to it afterwards by Ryan? A. No, Ryan never mentioned it to me afterwards by words. Of course I always felt that there was something between us.

Mr. Thompson: I understand Ryan was in the Farmers Bank very fre-frequently after that? A. Yes.

Q. Almost up to the time of the failure? A. Yes, he was in and out very frequently.

Q. And yet no reference either directly or indirectly made to that payment?
A. No, I don’t remember ever speaking to him about it.

Mr. Commissioner: What particular service was the payment to provide for? A. I could not say that; I understood that there were necessary expenses down at Ottawa to get matters through there; I supposed it was in connection with that.

Q. How long was it after you left the cheque till the certificate was issued?
A. Two days, I think.

Mr. Commissioner: Anything else?

Mr. Thompson: No. I have a telegram from Mr. Weldon, stating his train is delayed, but he has nothing special to suggest.

Mr. Commissioner: Anybody else anything, because this will be the last meeting probably? You do not desire to say anything, Mr. Thompson, as to the points upon which you would like a finding, or to which you would like to direct my attention?

Mr. Thompson: No, sir; I have nothing to offer in that line. The Commission was to ascertain what evidence could be offered on the various points, but neither my former colleague nor myself held any brief for any particular interests or individuals and it occurred to me that your report would cover anything that might be said. We did not hold a brief for anybody in particular, and we did not think it was necessary to emphasize any particular part of the evidence.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 158a

The Commission adjourned.

Toronto, Dec. 6th, 1912.

The Commission resumed at 12 noon, at Osgoode Hall.

PRESENT:—

HONOURABLE SIR WILLIAM MEREDITH, Commissioner.
J. THOMPSON, K.C., representing the Dominion Government.
There were also present, WILLIAM LAIDLAW, K.C., representing the shareholders, I. E. WELDON, representing depositors, and SAMUEL SHARPE, M.P. and H. B. MORPHY, K.C., M.P., representing a committee of Members of Parliament whose constituencies, it was alleged, had been effected by serious losses resulting from the failure of the Farmers Bank.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Mr. Sharpe, are all those you expected present?
MR. SHARPE: We expected a considerable number, but they are not here just yet.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Is Mr. Thornton coming?
MR. SHARPE: Yes; we expected him here. He was Chairman of the Committee.

MR. COMMISSIONER: We will wait a while, and in the meantime I will ask Mr. Fitzgibbon a few question. I see he has just come in.

JAMES G. FITZGIBBON, Recalled:

MR. COMMISSIONER: I want to ask you a couple of questions; I have forgotten when you said that you entered the service of the bank? A. About the 19th of November, 1906.
Q. You ought to know about the minutes of the provisional directors? A. No, sir. I knew nothing about the provisional directors meetings or anything in connection with them.
Q. Why not, you were an officer of the provisional directors? A. No, sir.
Q. There was nobody else but the provisional directors at that time? A. I was engaged by Travers, and I had nothing to do with the provisional directors. All I did when I first went in was to get up the stock list until the organization meeting.
Q. If you got up the stock list you were responsible for the entry that certain stock was allotted on the 24th November, where did you get that information? A. Got that from the books that were entered up before I went in.
Q. Not in the books at all, there is no trace of any meeting later than the 9th November I think it is; where did you get that? A. Mr. Shaver attended to all the stock subscriptions and the allotment.
Q. Who looked after the minutes of the meeting? A. I never saw the minutes when—
Q. Don't you know who looked after them?  A. Mr. Travers is the only one I knew had anything to do with them.

Q. The report of the provisional directors (exhibit 15) shows that the expenses of the organization up to date "as far as has been paid by the Board amounts to the sum of $44,403.65". In what purports to be a copy of the report in the minute book, instead of the words in the report it says that the expenses of the organization up to date "as far as has been paid by the Board amounts to the sum of $41,291"—that means the substitution of the figures $41,291 for the figures $44,403.65; how did that come about?  A. I don't know anything about that.

Q. You were accountant, were you not?  A. Yes.

Q. How did it come about when you opened the books these expenses were entered at thirty-two thousand dollars odd?  A. I could not say, except Mr. Travers gave the figures to Mr. Shaver, who wrote up the books. I may say if my memory serves me rightly, I made some sort of an analysis in pencil of the disbursements. I think the first entries of the new bank were made in the old provisional directors' cash book by Mr. Shaver as he went along; and subsequently I made an analysis of the disbursements and everything else in pencil and handed it to Mr. Travers and upon the basis of that he made out the figures for Shaver to enter upon the first books of the bank.

Q. What was the purpose in falsifying this report?  A. I can assure you I had nothing to do with it.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Was that cash book ever put in?

MR. G. T. CLARKSON: I don't think so.

WITNESS: I am pretty sure the first cash book of the bank was re-written from the old provisional directors' book, that is from the 26th of November up to the 1st of January when we opened.

MR. COMMISSIONER: This report is dated the 22nd of November?  A. Yes, that was just a day or so after I went in.

Q. They did not do anything after the 22nd?  A. I had nothing whatever to do with the provisional directors in any shape or form.

Q. Those shares were apparently allotted on the 24th, two days after the date of this report; you cannot throw any light on this?  A. No, sir; beyond that, if Mr. Clarkson has that bundle of pencil memoranda that were in my desk there might be something there that would throw light on it.

MR. COMMISSIONER: You had better let him see those and see if he can find that.

MR. G. T. CLARKSON: Yes; we have some memoranda there.

MR. COMMISSIONER: It looks as if the minutes of the provisional directors were kept on sheets?  A. Yes.

Q. And then they appear to have been written up in typewriting?  A. Yes.

Q. And pasted in the books generally?  A. Yes.

Q. That was latterly; earlier they were transcribed.  A. That was before they had a stenographer; when they got a stenographer in Mr. Travers dictated the minutes to her and they were put on sheets and just pasted into the book.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Mr. Sharpe, shall we wait any longer?

MR. SHARPE: I hardly think it is advisable. They have missed the train or connections, or something.

MR. COMMISSIONER: If you wish, in order to give them an opportunity, I will adjourn until 2 o'clock. I suppose if they are coming they will be rather disappointed if they have not the opportunity of being here.
MR. SHARPE: Mr. Weldon and Mr. Morphy do not think it is advisable to wait. If they intended to come they would have come. I have no objection whatever; although I have some other work to do this afternoon I will come here at 2 o'clock if you think it is advisable.

MR. COMMISSIONER: I am only suggesting it to you. You are one of a party of gentlemen I understand that wanted to be here.

MR. SHARPE: Yes. I may say I am one of the Members of Parliament representing a constituency that has been very vitally and injuriously affected by the failure of the Farmers Bank. We are quite conscious of our responsibility in the matter, and we presume to offer a list of questions to you with the idea of asking you to find specifically upon these questions. It is not necessary to take up your time by any lengthy remarks in regard to the extreme suffering that prevails in consequence of this failure. We are close to the sufferers, we hear their wailings and their heart-beat, because the suffering is very intense. We believe that this is a special case differentiating it from any other bank failure in the history of the country; we do not think there is another case where the certificate to do business had been obtained under such circumstances, and we especially press upon your attention and consideration certain facts relative to the issuing of the certificate. We submit on the evidence that the certificate was obtained from the Department of Finance by the perjury of Travers and by bribery, not necessarily in respect of any member of the Department of Finance, but certainly money was freely spent by somebody that was presumed to have influence with the Department, and on the evidence, we submit strongly that the Department of Finance has been guilty of negligence to say the least of it. We respectfully urge upon your attention and your consideration that the Department of Finance, the officials of the Department of Finance have been guilty of negligence, and, while technically they are not on trial, they at least have been very prominent in connection with the issue of the certificate, and we submit the evidence would justify your finding that the Department of Finance has been guilty of negligence in issuing the certificate. Of course Travers' subsequent mismanagement had a good deal to do with the failure of the bank, but we feel that Travers' management was made possible only by the negligence of the Department of Finance. Fraud was practised upon the Department, but we submit had ordinary diligence been exercised the fraud would have been discovered by the Department. We think the Department of Finance acted wrongly in failing to take proceedings to recall the certificate and to punish Travers for perjury upon discovering it. Had the Department exercised due diligence after the discovery of the perjury all the subsequent losses would not have occurred, could not possibly have occurred. The bank might possibly have failed through somebody else's mismanagement, but certainly it would not have been through Travers' mismanagement. Travers should have been prosecuted by the Department of Finance, the certificate should have been recalled, proceedings should have been taken to warn the public that the certificate had been obtained by fraud or perjury, or both, and not to deal with the bank; and then all the losses would not have occurred.

We are appearing here, Mr. Commissioner, off our own bat, so to speak; we are rather busy men in different parts of the province; we have not been able to follow the proceedings from day to day, we have not been able to attend daily, and we do not know what presentation counsel made, and we do not want in any way to have our action taken as a reflection on the counsel that have been engaged in the case. As I said before, we are close to the losers, and we hear their complaints and their heart-beats over these losses, and for fear some of the matters may have been possibly overlooked we have presumed to press on your attention the matters that we think are of prime importance in connection with this inquiry, and if these matters have not been overlooked then we desire to emphasize them, and to repeat and reiterate their importance. We hope we are not too late in presenting these matters. It was suggested we might be too late, but I see all the evidence is not yet in, and you have not yet formulated your report, consequently I presume we are in plenty of time in presenting our case. I may say twenty or thirty members of Parliament met several times at Ottawa and conferred over this matter, and appointed a committee, of which Mr. C. J. Thornton was chairman, Mr. Morphy was a member, Colonel Hugh Clark and Mr. Richard Blain were members, and I myself acted as secretary of the committee. We formulated certain questions which I am going to submit to you and ask you to find upon them. This committee formulated these questions and submitted them to the members of Parliament, and they all signed a memorandum asking Hon. Mr. White, the Minister of Finance, to forward them with the request that there be specific findings in reference to them, but for reasons of his own he did not think perhaps it would be well to do that, but thought it more advisable if we would present them in person, and we are here for that purpose. We believe if these questions are not answered specifically the whole investigation would miss fire; the whole object and purpose of the investigation is with a view of obtaining, as I understand it, and my actions from the beginning to the end in this matter have been with a view of finding some justification, some foot-hold upon which the Government could grant relief. We are pressing the Government to grant relief; we think they should; we think it is a special case, and we think the facts brought out in the investigation, supplemented by the facts that were brought down to Parliament, the official Return brought down to Parliament, justify the country in doing something for these unfortunate sufferers, and for that reason we submit to your Lordship the following questions:

1. On the evidence adduced, does your Lordship find that the Department of Finance issued the certificate to Mr. Travers after having received notice that fraud was being practised on the Department?

2. Were $3,000, or any sum or sums paid to anyone by Mr. Travers to induce the issuance of the certificate?

3. After having received notice of the fraud being practised by Mr. Travers to obtain the certificate, could not the Finance Department have recalled, or taken proceedings restraining the use of, the certificate or given notice to the public that fraud had been practised and warning the people not to deal with the bank?

We think that is the manifest duty, that having received notice of fraud either before or after issuing the certificate, they should have exercised due diligence to protect the public in connection with the matter. If you find that Travers has been guilty of perjury in getting the certificate, was there some duty devolving upon the Department to warn the public?

4. After having received Mr. Leighton McCarthy's letter pointing out the fraud that was being perpetrated by Mr. Travers on the Department of Finance, did the Department take necessary and sufficient steps to protect the stock subscribers? If so, what were taken and by whom?

5. In the opinion of your Lordship, did the fact that the amount of capital, required by the Bank Act, was not fully paid up when the certificate was issued by the Department of Finance, cripple or hamper the operations of the Farmers' Bank from the date of the issue of the said certificate and thus encourage reckless speculation?

Mr. Commissioner: I do not understand that question.

Mr. Sharpe: That is more or less a speculative question.

Mr. Commissioner: You said capital paid up; of course, it was not all paid up, it was not intended to be paid up.

Mr. Sharpe: But the minimum amount required by the Bank Act.

Mr. Commissioner: You had better make it read that way.

Mr. Sharpe: We mean the minimum amount of capital required was not paid up when they started business.
MR. COMMISSIONER: However, I understand what you mean.

MR. SHARPE: As I say we are conveying the sentiments of twenty or thirty members of Parliament who feel their responsibility in this matter, who are quite anxious to see some relief granted to those they represent, and consequently we are moved to presume upon you and ask you to consider these questions and answer them as the evidence may justify. Mr. Morphy is here, and perhaps he has something to say.

MR. MORPHY: Nothing at all; I am quite content with the statement Mr. Sharpe has made. It seems to cover the ground.

MR. COMMISSIONER: You might let Mr. Thornton know. It was he that notified me that you would be here. I will be here till 3 o'clock anyway, and if he comes to town you might let him know that I will hear anything he has to say.

MR. SHARPE: Thank you very much.

Toronto, December 26th, 1912.

At 3 p.m., Mr. C. J. Thornton having arrived, the Commission resumed.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Will you say what you have to say, and explain what you think necessary, Mr. Thornton?

MR. C. J. THORNTON: We had arranged to meet your Lordship at noon, that was your telegram, and I expected to be here at 11 o'clock to-day, but my train was three hours late, and the other members of the delegation waited on your Lordship, and of course I was not there. The train being late explains my absence.

Being Chairman of the special committee appointed by the members to see what we could do to help our people, I was in possession of the letter to the Finance Minister in which we requested that certain questions should be answered by the Commissioner if he should see fit to answer them, and we are here to-day because Mr. White advised us to put the questions ourselves to the Commissioner.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Are these the questions which Mr. Sharpe has placed before me?

MR. THORNTON: I presume so.

MR. SHARPE: Yes, sir.

MR. COMMISSIONER: There is no use repeating that.

MR. THORNTON: While I have the letter which we addressed to the Finance Minister, I do not think it is important to file it.

MR. COMMISSIONER: I do not think it is important.

MR. SHARPE: Should you mention the name?

MR. COMMISSIONER: I do not think it is important, if you say between twenty and thirty.

MR. THORNTON: I think, to be exact, twenty-five; every member who was directly interested and was asked to sign this letter. There are eighteen names to it. We did not ask the members of the Government who were interested, for the reason that we thought it was not wise to do so, because of the fact of their being members of the Government.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Then I have the questions; Mr. Sharpe has stated what they are, and left a copy of them here with the Clerk of the Commission.

MR. SHARPE: Yes, sir.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Very well, Mr. Thornton.

The Commission adjourned.
The Commission resumed at 11 a.m. at Osgoode Hall.

PRESENT:

The Commissioner, Hon. Sir William R. Meredith.

WILLIAM R. TRAVERS, Recalled:

By Mr. Commissioner: Q. Who prepared the declaration made by you on the 27th November, 1906, that was forwarded to the Department of Finance when the application was made for the issue of the Treasury certificate? A. Mr. W. H. Hunter.

Q. He knew, I understand, when he prepared it the way in which part of the $250,000 had been provided, that is by the borrowing from the Trusts & Guarantee Company, and the spreading, as it has been called, of the payment on certain of the shares? A. Yes, it was all explained to him.

Q. You seem to have desired to evade answering, while appearing to answer, the questions that Mr. Fielding put to you. Mr. Fielding wrote: "We have been told that in some cases the subscribers did not actually pay in cash, but gave notes to the provisional directors, which were used to raise the money." Now, if you qualify that, "which were used to raise part of the money", was that information not accurate, had not subscribers not actually paid in cash but had given notes to the provisional directors, is not that the fact? A. In fact, that is the case.

Q. And is it not a fact that these notes, or some of them, were used to raise part of the money which was deposited? A. Undoubtedly, those notes were used.

Q. That is the question he asked you. Your answer was, "The provisional directors did not raise the money in the way mentioned by you", was not that put in that form for the deliberate purpose of making it appear you were giving him the assurance that he was asking for, when in fact you were not? A. Well, that is an evasive answer.

Q. And intended to be evasive? A. I considered at that time, as I had put the transaction through personally on the advice of my solicitor, that I was not, while in fact I was evading it, that I was not doing so.

Q. What he wanted to know was whether the subscribers' notes had been used to raise the money; you did not answer that question, but you evaded it by telling him that the provisional directors did not raise the money? A. Yes, sir; that is the fact.

Q. Do you know who prepared the report of the provisional directors of the 22nd November, 1906 (Exhibit 15)? A. Mr. Lown, I think.

Q. Was it true to state, "That the Board have to report in the first place that they have a sum of $579,300 bona fide subscribed"—the bona fide being underlined—"and out of the subscriptions thereon they have paid into the Treasury Department of the Dominion Government the sum of $250,000"—was that true? A. Well, in form it is true; in fact—

Q. Out of the subscriptions had they paid that, all that? A. Not out of the actual money paid on the subscriptions, but by the borrowing of the money.

Q. Did the provisional directors know the way in which the money had been raised? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All of them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I see that the expenses of organization up to the date of the report so far as paid by the Board are stated to amount to $44,403.65; were those figures in the report when it was signed and when adopted by the provisional board? A. I could not swear to that positively; there was some discussion about leaving the space blank until it was taken up by the permanent board.
Q. It looks as if those figures had been filled in by the same hand; perhaps you can tell me in whose handwriting they are? A. The figures $579,200 are in my handwriting; and the figures $44,408.65 are in my handwriting.

Q. What conclusion does that lead to as to the form in which this report was when it was adopted by the provisional board? A. I would be inclined to think that they left that blank for me to put in the correct figures.

Q. Or was it the fact that you filled them in before the report was signed? A. I could not swear to that positively; I am not sure about it.

Q. That 5,790 practically is in accordance with the list of shareholders that you furnished to the Department? A. I believe so, yes.

Q. And includes the Laidlaw shares and the shares? A. Every share that stood on the book at that time.

Q. Although some of them were conditional, and the condition was never complied with, and they never became operative? A. Quite so.

Q. Just look at this minute book (provisional directors' minute book, Exhibit 9); did you ever see that before, minutes of meeting of the provisional board of the 24th November, 1906 (showing to Mr. Travers a typewritten sheet which was afterwards filed as Exhibit 92)? A. I cannot say whether I saw this exact sheet before; that appears to be a copy of the original minutes.

Q. That looks as if it were in the same typewriting? A. It is the typewriting machine that was used by us at that time, I recognize that.

Q. How would it come that that was not entered in the minute book of the provisional board? A. Well, my recollection is that the original one was signed by Mr. Lown, as chairman, and it was pasted in that book.

Q. There is no sign of it? A. Would you permit me to look at the book, please?

Q. You see the last one there is in November some time? A. My memory serves me it was pasted in the wrong place, and when Mr. Lindsay was suing me and I was under examination for discovery, this was detached and was not put back in its proper place, and I am sure I have seen the original minute.

Q. Where were you examined for discovery? A. I was examined before Mr. Bruce.

Q. In the action of Lindsay against you? A. Yes.

Q. Or against the Farmers Bank? A. Against both of us.

Q. Whose name was first? A. I think I was examined first, personally.

Q. Which name in the writ, was it Lindsay vs. The Farmers Bank and Travers, or Lindsay vs. Travers and The Farmers Bank? A. I think it was Travers and The Farmers Bank.

Q. What year would that be in? A. That would be in 1909.

Q. Before the suspension of the bank? A. Yes, sir; some months before.

Q. What became of that suit? A. It never came to trial.

Q. It was not settled? A. No, sir.

Q. That you think is a copy of that minute? A. I am satisfied that is a copy of the minute as far as I can remember.

Q. Because all those shares that appear in that list are included in the list you sent down, I think? A. Yes, sir; they are all on the list; I am sure of that.

Q. Did you include in that list shares that had not been allotted until the 24th November? A. If I remember right there were $500,000 without those shares on the books.

Q. But still there was the statement—I suppose your declaration was made on the 27th; perhaps that may be the explanation? A. It strikes me there was a post-script put to the list that was sent to the Government explaining that.

Q. There is a small post-script saying that certain ones were added afterwards; they do not include the whole of these, they include only 35 shares; this contains 193 shares, and all you returned as subscribed after the 22nd October, 1906, were 35; you did not include Nesbitt's? A. I can explain that. Nesbitt's subscription was ante-dated, although apparently it was not allotted till that time.

Q. What do you mean by ante-dated? A. It dated back to the 22nd October.

Q. Although, in fact, signed—when? A. It was signed, I could not say exactly, but a few days before the meeting.

Q. As I understand it, the subscription of Lindsay for the $50,000 stock was signed in blank in the first place? A. No, sir; I do not think so.

Q. When was Lindsay's? A. Lindsay's was signed shortly before the meeting, I do not remember just what date it was, but shortly before; whether it was a week or two weeks I don't know exactly.

Q. How did you come to make a declaration stating that of the foregoing the following were received subsequent to the 22nd October, 1906, and omit Lindsay's and the ones in this statement that are omitted; was not that a misstatement? A. Here is Lindsay's allotted on the 26th October.

Q. This is the 22nd, your date; do you think Lindsay's subscription was signed before the 26th October? A. I would say so after seeing this minute.

Q. I observe in this report the expenses of organization are said to have been $44,403.65, in what purports to be a copy of that report submitted at the first meeting of the shareholders those figures are inserted at $41,291, how did that come about (comparing the $41,403.65 in the provisional directors' report, Exhibit 15, with a copy of that report in the director's minute book, Exhibit 10)? A. My recollection of that was that when Mr. Fitzgibbon was superintending the entering up the minutes by Mr. Shaver, that he called Shaver's attention to the fact that the $44,403.65 did not agree with the figures that were sent to Ottawa, and there must be some mistake, and I think that they were entered up then to correspond with the figures on the original statement.

Q. As sent to Ottawa; in whose handwriting are those figures. (In Exhibit 10)? A. Those are Mr. Shaver's.

Q. When you came to open the books they were entered at neither of those figures, but entered at $32,197? A. Well, I cannot explain the exact figures in that case. Mr. Fitzgibbon had to make some adjustments there to make the books balance in some way, and in discussing the expenses with the Permanent Board, my recollection is that the $10,000 that was paid to the provincial directors, they thought it should not go in the expenses, that we should charge it up to something else.

Q. To what? A. And as we had a lease for 20 years of the premises, we consider that that was a valuable asset and if I remember right the $10,000 was charged up to that.

Q. Is it not a fact that cheques that you had received from persons who had subscribed for shares to the amount of $9,000 were treated as representing $9,000 of that amount? A. I could not swear to that positively, but having seen that memorandum there in Mr. Fitzgibbon's handwriting which I am satisfied I never saw before in my life till Mr. Clarkson showed it to me (referring to what was afterwards filed as Exhibit 93) I would think that that was exactly what was done.

Q. What possible justification, was there of not crediting the account of the shareholder with that amount, how could you excuse that? A. Because those amounts had been spread out of the borrowed money.

Mr. Commissioner: (To Mr. Clarkson): Is that so?

Mr. G. T. Clarkson: Yes, that is correct.

Mr. Commissioner: It would follow when the money of the bank was taken to pay the borrowed money, there ought to have been entries made to readjust that. A. Then there were notes given by those people which readjusted it later on; one case I remember distinctly, in Mr. Gilchrist's case there was a note of $3,000 taken and the cheque was surrendered—a note for $2,700, less $300 he paid.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Is there anything further; this I hope will be the very last meeting of the Commission, is there anything further you can tell me that will help to answer the questions I have put?  A. I cannot think of anything I can say now.

J. G. FITZGIBBON, Recalled:

MR. COMMISSIONER: You are already sworn?  A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the report of the Provisional Board of the 22nd November, 1906 (Exhibit 15), the expenses of organization are stated at $14,403.65; in what purports to be a copy of the report which appears in the minute of the first shareholders meeting the figures are $41,291 (in Exhibit 10); why were those figures or one set of them at all events not brought into the bank's books?  A. I could not say.

Q. Did you prepare that statement (Exhibit 93)?  A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does not that show that they were put in at $32,000?  A. If they were put in at $32,000 it was under Mr. Travers' instructions.

Q. But you made up that account?  A. Yes.

Q. You were readjusting all the figures?  A. Yes.

Q. How did you get at your $32,000?  A. That is more than I can say.

Q. You must remember how you got at it, because I think we all know?  A. Unless Mr. Travers told me to take off that $9,000, or whatever the amount was.

Q. What $9,000?  A. These cheques that were held in the cash.

Q. That would not account for the $3,000 difference between the figures in the Minute Book and the figures in the Report?  A. I cannot say anything about that; I had nothing to do with the minutes nor with the report.

Q. Do those figures not indicate that what you were trying to do was to arrange the figures so that that balance of $32,000 would be justified?  A. No sir; this statement was taken out from the books of the bank to show what the figures actually were so far as I could make them out.

Q. But that was not true, the figures show that much more than $32,000 had been expended by the Provisional Board in preliminary expenses?  A. I could not give a definite answer without going over those figures.

Q. Did not Mr. Clarkson show them to you?  A. No, sir, I have not seen them since I drew them up.

MR. CLARKSON: That is an exact copy of the bank cash book of the first month?  A. I took this off from the cash book to find out how the figures were, and they were apparently the figures according to the book.

Q. Into whose possession did the Minute Book of the Provisional Board come?  A. Mr. Travers took possession of that and gave me a receipt for it, at least gave me a receipt to the bank, because I never had anything to do with the Provisional Board.

Q. There are your figures?  A. Yes, sir.

Q. This is at the commencement of the business of the bank?  A. No, it is before the bank opened for business, after the interim between the granting of the license and the opening of the business.

Q. Preparing to open?  A. Yes.

MR. CLARKSON: The interim directors' books were carried along, and their cash book was carried along till the 31st December, and then that book was entirely put aside and the permanent books written up entirely differing from the interim directors' cash book.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Not entirely differing, I suppose?

MR. G. T. CLARKSON: Absolutely.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What do you mean by that?
MR. G. T. CLARKSON: Not entirely, but the entries in the permanent books are different from the entries in the provisional book which was written up part of the distance by Mr. Shaver.

MR. COMMISSIONER: Were they re-adjusted; do you mean re-arranged, or were they different figures?

MR. G. T. CLARKSON: The interim book was dropped and the permanent books re-cast on this basis. There are a great many entries that are similar, and there are entries which are dissimilar.

MR. COMMISSIONER: What kind of entries dissimilar.

MR. G. T. CLARKSON: These entries do not appear; those are the summary of the spread amounts of the capital stock and interest (referring to a statement prepared for the use of the Commission.)

MR. COMMISSIONER: That would probably be explained by being in this item.

MR. CLARKSON: Yes.

MR. COMMISSIONER: It does not appear in the same form?

MR. CLARKSON: No, sir.

EXHIBIT 92: Copy of what purports to be the minutes of a meeting of the provisional directors of the 24th November, 1906.

EXHIBIT 93: Copy in Mr. Fitzgibbon’s figures (in pencil) of the cash book of the Bank for the first month after organization.

ALEXANDER S. LOWN, Recalled:

MR. COMMISSIONER: You are already sworn; I see that you became Chairman of the provisional board at a meeting held on the 13th February, 1905, replacing Dr. Ferguson? A. Yes.

Q. Who had charge of the minute book of the Provisional Board (Exhibit 9)? A. Mr. Smith was secretary; I think Mr. Fraser was in the first place, and afterwards Mr. Smith.

Q. What became of it eventually? A. I do not know anything about the minute book after I—

Q. I mean when the provisional board finished its labors what was done with their minute book? A. The minute book was left in the bank.

Q. That report (Exhibit 15, report of the provisional directors) bears your signature; who drafted it? A. I drafted it.

Q. Were the figures shown in paragraph 4 in it when it was signed by you? A. Rather think they were; to the best of my recollection they were.

Q. How did you come to sign or to be a party to that report which stated that $579,200 had been bona fide subscribed? A. Those figures were furnished me from the books of the bank.

Q. Do you mean to say you did not take any pains to verify them? A. No, I did not check those figures, I simply asked the amount of the subscriptions.

Q. Did you know that several gentlemen’s subscriptions were conditional? A. I did not.

Q. Never heard that Mr. Forget’s was? A. Well. I do not think it was conditional.

Q. Where did you get the figures for the expenses of organization? A. Apparently they were furnished by Mr. Travers.

Q. Was this your creation (in Exhibit 15): “Said Board also desire to submit to the shareholders that as a result of their labors they have secured for the subscribers to the capital stock of the said bank a franchise extremely valuable in their opinion from the fact that in the future such franchises will be extremely difficult to obtain, and in the second place from the enormous increase which is equally sure to obtain from the increasing trade, wealth and prosperity of the county"—that should be country," should it not?  A. Yes.

Q. "And which must yield to the said subscribers both good dividends and increase in the value of their stock provided they are only loyal to the institution." Do you think you were a very good prophet?  A. I do not appear to have been.

Q. Where did you get that idea from, or the ideas involved in that paragraph?  A. I certainly thought that the bank, and I think so still, that if the bank had been properly managed it would have been successful.

Q. Were you present at the first meeting of the subscribers?  A. Yes.

Q. I see at that meeting the report was read and the figures you had reported for the expenses of organization were reduced from $44,103.65 to $41,291; how was it you did not call attention to that?  A. I certainly did not know; it would be impossible in a report being read and not having them before you to detect the difference.

Q. Do you mean to say you did not carry in your mind the amount that had been expended, that you had written into this on the 22nd November?  A. Not the exact amount; I knew in round figures it was somewhere about forty thousand dollars.

Q. It appears from the books of the provisional directors that a number of shares, I think they amount to nearly 200, were allotted on the 24th November, 1906, there is nothing in the minute book to indicate that any such meeting was held on that day?  A. I know nothing about—

Q. What is the last meeting according to that book (Exhibit 9)?  A. There was a meeting on November 6th, 1906, and that seems to be the last meeting here.

Q. How did you come to allot shares on the 24th November?  A. There may have been the meeting on the 24th November.

Q. Is that the way the business was carried on?  A. The minutes would be signed by me, and I think Mr. Shaver was acting as secretary, and they would be afterwards entered up by him.

Q. Is that minute of November, the last minute, signed?  A. No, this one is not apparently signed; that certainly is not the original minute, because all the original minutes were signed by me.

Q. You appear to have signed the copies in the book. they are all copies apparently?  A. They are simply pasted in, typewritten copies.

Q. There is what purports to be a minute of the meeting of the 24th November?  A. I have no recollection even of this meeting myself.

Q. You know nothing about that?  A. I know nothing about this; we may have had a meeting there.

Q. This stock subscription book, the alphabetical one, shows that three McCorquodale shares were allotted on the 24th November; do you think that Mr. Shaver was acting—?  A. Mr. Shaver was clerk I think; I think there is something in the minute here; after Smith resigned I think there is something appointing somebody. I notice on October 26th, 1906, the minutes of the Board are written apparently in Mr. Shaver's handwriting.

Q. I understand that you knew of the way in which the $100,000 which formed part of the $250,000 was raised?  A. I knew it was raised on the strength of the shareholders' notes, but the way in which it was raised I do not know.

Q. What is that?  A. I say the exact manner in which the money was raised I did not know.

Q. I see there were two resolutions passed which in terms say that the notes were to be used for the purpose of raising money to make the deposit. I see on July 4th, the minutes say: "It was moved by Dr. John Ferguson, seconded by John Watson: that the Chairman of the Board, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Board, and W. R. Travers, General Manager, be authorized to endorse all notes made in favor of the Bank for the purpose of raising money to make deposit with the Treasury Board of the Dominion Government"—do you recollect that resolution? A. No, I do not recollect it apart from the minutes.

Q. Is there any doubt that that resolution was passed? A. I do not think there is any doubt that that resolution was passed.

Q. On the 8th October, 1906, it was moved by James Gallagher, seconded by John Ferguson: "That the provisional directors execute a Power of Attorney to W. R. Travers for the purpose of endorsing all notes in their names as provisional directors, and of signing their names to a note or notes for the purpose of raising funds to put up the deposit with the Government, and we authorize the secretary to hand over all notes to W. R. Travers for the said purpose"; how did you come to decide to raise the money by using these notes, either discounting or borrowing on them; what warrant was there for that? A. Mr. Travers was acting under advice at the time and we were assured—

Q. Under whose advice? A. I think at that last resolution he was acting under Mr. Hunter's advice.

Q. Do you mean to say you did not find out—did you get advice as to whether what you were doing was a proper thing to do, a lawful thing to do? A. I was under the impression it was a lawful thing to do myself at the time.

Q. Having done that did you not take the trouble to find out what Travers had done, and how the money had been applied? A. No.

Q. Why? A. This much I did, I knew that the money was actually at the credit of the Bank, that was the only thing I was careful to find out; the money was not used for any other purposes than the Bank purposes.

Q. Did you think this was an accurate statement (in Exhibit 15): "The Board have to report in the first place that they have the sum of $579,200 bona fide subscribed, and out of the subscriptions thereon they have paid in to the Treasury Department of the Dominion Government the sum of $250,000"—Was that true? A. I knew that $100,000 of that had been raised—

Q. I am not asking you that; please follow the question: The statement that out of the $579,200 bona fide subscribed the directors had paid in, that is the provisional directors, had paid in, to the Treasury Department of the Dominion Government $250,000, is that true? A. In the sense that that was the proceeds of the money for the subscriptions and negotiable securities for the subscriptions I thought it was.

Q. Whose credit was to be pledged for the loan? A. I suppose the notes of the subscribers.

Q. You authorized Travers to pledge the credit of the provisional directors? A. Which was never done.

Q. You authorized him to do that? A. Yes, but as a matter of fact it was not done.

Q. Why was not it done? A. I do not know, Mr. Travers was doing the negotiating, and I suppose he gave that security the parties who were advancing asked.

Q. Was not that done for the express purpose of enabling Travers to say that the provisional directors had not borrowed any money? A. We were never consulted about the matter.

Q. Was not that done in that way for the express purpose of putting it in the power of Mr. Travers to say that the provisional directors had not borrowed any money? A. I don't know.

Q. You do not know why it was put in the shape it was? A. In the shape in which the money was ultimately borrowed?

Q. Yes? A. No, I do not know because I knew nothing about what was in Mr. Travers' mind, or in the minds of the Trusts & Guarantee Company.

Q. But the plan according to the provisional directors was as far as these minutes show that they were to raise the money on these notes; do you want it to go without any further explanation that you never took the trouble to find out how it had been borrowed, the terms?  A. I don't know how we could have; if we had asked Mr. Travers I am certain he would not have told us.

Q. What is that?  A. I say I do not know how we could have found out; the matter was carried on by Mr. Travers, and if I had asked him I do not think he would have told me.

Q. Why not?  A. Because I do not think he would have.

Q. Why do you think he would not have?  A. Simply because I think so.

Q. What was the reason, have you any reason?  A. I have no reason excepting my knowledge of Mr. Travers.

Q. What does that mean?  A. Mr. Travers would simply say it was none of your business; that is the answer I would simply expect to have got from him.

Q. The proposition is, knowing that was the attitude he would take, that you deliberately put all these notes in his hands and gave him a power of attorney to borrow money on your credit?  A. The only one thing which I did know or cared to know was the money was placed to the credit of the Bank.

Q. But you give the impression that Travers was a man that would not give you any satisfaction, and yet you were a party to authorizing him to use the notes of the subscribers and to pledge your credit for the money that he was borrowing; do you think that sounds reasonable?  A. Mr. Travers and Mr. Hunter at that time were negotiating with the securities to raise that money.

Q. Mr. Hunter says he was not?  A. Well, he was with Mr. Travers: I did not know any further than that.

Q. That is the way you desire to leave it?  A. Yes.

DR. JOHN FERGUSON, Recalled:

MR. COMMISSIONER: You are already sworn; what do you know of a meeting of the 24th November, 1906?  A. I could not say anything definitely as to date of any of the meetings, but I was always under the impression that the allotment of stock was performed at some ordinary regular meeting. There might have been a meeting on that date, although I would not at all remember it now as to having occurred at that date.

Q. Would you recollect?  A. There might be no minute of it.

Q. Why not?  A. There might not; you see not keeping the minute book and knowing nothing of that, there might be a meeting at which we would allot stock and probably no formal record made in the minute book.

Q. Were not these minutes kept?  A. Yes, but this was so very close and probably the last meeting held, and I would not afterwards know of its being recorded.

Q. The last recorded one is the 6th November, and this minute of the meeting of the 24th November was two days before the meeting of the subscribers; will not your memory permit you to say how late?  A. I have the impression from memory that there was some meeting close to the date at which we gave up our final connection with the organization work, but the date I could not give you.

Q. You knew that a considerable part of the $250,000 that was sent to Ottawa to make a deposit had been borrowed on notes that the subscribers had given for shares?  A. Yes; certainly, I knew of that.

Q. How did you come to be a party to the two resolutions, one authorizing Travers to use the notes for that purpose, and the other appointing him attorney to pledge your credit for the loans?  A. The first one in July would be for the purpose of raising money upon those notes; later on, as advised by Mr. Travers, and I presumed he was acting under legal advice and I relied upon him; he was an experienced banker; in that matter, he stated to me that those notes should be made to the provisional directors, and by the provisional directors endorsed over for the purpose of securing the money.

Q. The money borrowed? A. Yes, and that would lead of course to the subsequent resolution of the provisional directors appointing him attorney to endorse those notes made by the shareholders to the provisional directors, and to be endorsed in that way over for the purpose of securing the loan.

Q. Where did you find your authority for using these notes for any such purpose? A. My authority was Mr. Travers' own statement that as a banking transaction it was quite proper, and in addition to that I had my own judgment to guide me, and I believe that it was a perfectly correct transaction, these notes were made by shareholders to the provisional directors, the provisional directors endorsed them over and secured money on them when the shareholders did not have any ready cash, and consequently used them for making the deposit for them without implicating the Bank.

Q. That is not what was done; what was done was to borrow the lump sum upon all the notes; used Mr. A's note to borrow money to pay what B. ought to pay? A. As to the specific detail of using the notes I did not know.

Q. Was it not all wrong to do anything more, even assuming your view of the law was correct, than to authorize these notes to be discounted in order to raise money for each subscriber? A. I thought that was done; I did not know of the bulk transaction.

Q. That is not the form of your resolution; your resolution is not that he was to discount these notes—July 4th: "Be authorized to endorse all notes made in favor of the bank for the purpose of raising money to make deposit"—? A. What would be in my mind would be what I am telling you now, that each note would be used as an individual transaction for each individual subscriber.

Q. Can you tell me why it was that the later resolution authorizing him to pledge the credit of the provisional directors was not carried out? A. No, I did not know that was the form of the resolution, but the purpose under that resolution recited that Mr. Travers—

Q. Well, it was a very serious matter for you to be personally answerable for an hundred thousand dollars, did not you take the trouble to find out whether you were or not? A. The trouble was this that I was advised at the time that the money had been secured and placed to the credit of the bank, so that it could not be improperly used.

Q. You were present when this report of the 22nd November was adopted by the Board, I suppose? A. I do not remember what the record of the minutes would say, whether I was present or not, but I knew of the contents of the report.

Q. That report is dated the 22nd November? A. Yes.

Q. And in that the figures that are given are as they existed according to the Bank’s books after the 24th November, because if there was a meeting on the 24th at which shares were allotted those shares ought to have been included in this amount, because your report was two days earlier? A. Just in there I could not give you any information; my memory does not connect that transaction with those individual shares or allotment.

Q. That purports to be the minute of the special meeting held on the 24th November at which it is said to have been moved by Mr. Fraser, and seconded by you, that the following stock be allotted, look at that and see (Exhibit 92)? A. Oh well, if I seconded the resolution I would be present.

Q. You say you have no memory; that is a copy? A. That may be a copy, and might or might not be correct; I say I cannot remember.

Q. Look at the list of shareholders and see if you can tell; there is one prominent one at the top? A. I do not remember the names of the shareholders as given there; I cannot remember, certainly I do not remember the one that you refer to there as being on the list.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. Did you appreciate what paragraph 4 of this report says (Exhibit 15): “The Board have to report in the first place that they have the sum of $577,300 bona fide subscribed, and out of the subscriptions thereon they have paid in to the Treasury Department of the Dominion Government the sum of $250,000”? A. I fully believed that there was that much subscribed, because that was the information advanced by those that were keeping the record, and I believed and believe still that the securing of the money in the way it was secured was quite bona fide and quite a proper transaction.

Q. Was it true that out of the subscriptions, on the stock subscribed, the provisional directors had paid in to the Treasury Department $250,000? A. Yes, I think so, using the funds secured in all these ways that it enabled them—

Q. If you had to do this thing over again do you think you would put it in that shape? A. I don’t know; I certainly would not object to the same arrangement of facts, that is taking a personal note from a subscriber and discounting it and using the money to his credit, as I understood the transaction to be done.

Q. Do you know where the figures for the organization expenses that are mentioned in this report were got? A. They were taken from the books, as I presumed, and entered up there.

Q. Do you mean to say that this Board did not take the trouble to verify any of the things that they were certifying to the shareholders? A. You see we had Mr. Smith as Secretary for a time, followed by Mr. Shaver, Mr. Lown was acting as chairman of the provisional board during that period; Mr. Travers was acting organizer, and I would accept without auditing the books myself personally the statements submitted.

Q. Did you look at the book to see if it agreed with the book? A. I don’t know that I did; I know I many a time looked through the books in verifying other statements made, whether I did that here or not I cannot say, but I know many many times I went through the columns of the books, verifying other features, but I cannot say as to that.

Q. Were you present at the first meeting of shareholders? A. No.

ALEXANDER FRASER, Recalled:

MR. COMMISSIONER: You have heard what has been going on here this morning, what do you say as to there having been a meeting on the 24th November at which that resolution was passed? A. Is that the resolution of allotment?

Q. Yes; moved by you; it says—A. I have no recollection; I have no doubt this would be correct if I moved it, I would think so, but I have no recollection; if I moved it I would be there, but I have no recollection of the dates of any of the meetings at all.

Q. Can you recollect how long before the first meeting of the subscribers the last meeting of the Provisional Directors was held? A. I should think it would be within two weeks.

Q. That is two days according to that? A. I have been trying to recollect while the others were giving their evidence; I have a recollection of a meeting at which we spoke of the coming meetings of the shareholders pretty close to the time of their meeting.

Q. I should have thought there was one name on that that would have probably fixed the thing in your mind: look at the first name, a large subscription (on Exhibit 92)? A. I have no knowledge of that, nor did I have any knowledge that he had any connection with the organization till I learned from the newspapers after the meeting.
Q. If you were at that meeting you must have known that he was taking that, you moved it according to that minute? A. I have no recollection at all of that.

Q. And that does not bring it to your mind? A. No, and I think it would.

Q. Is the inclination of your mind that such a meeting was not held? A. No, I think there was a meeting held, but I did not know that that would be returned that way.

Q. That was a correct minute of what took place? A. I should not think the first entry was dealt with at that meeting, that would be my recollection distinctly; because immediately after the meeting, the very day after the shareholders' meeting when I learned from the newspapers what took place, not being present at the meeting myself I was very much astonished, and I remember that astonishment to the present day, and I would not be astonished if I had seen this subscription.

Q. You were present when this report was adopted by the Provisional Board? I suppose (Exhibit 15)? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Lown tells us he drafted it, was it drafted in consultation with the other members of the Board, or was it his own production? A. My recollection is not distinct on that, but my impression is it was read to us; the business was generally prepared in advance of our meetings.

Q. You had not much to do to earn the fee you were getting if that was so? A. We discussed, of course, what was brought before us.

Q. According to the report that was sent in to the Government, as I understand it, and according to the figures sent down as to the amount of stock subscribed, these shares in what purports to be the minutes of the meeting of the 24th November as being allotted on that day, are included; how could that be in a report dated the 22nd November, two days before the meeting? A. I cannot enter into that; I have no explanation whatever of that.

Q. Would you suggest that it was an error in the date? A. It might be so.

Q. You knew the directors had deliberately determined to raise what money was short to make up the $250,000 on the subscribers notes, and had authorized Travers to procure the money, you knew that? A. That is putting it not exactly as we would put it.

Q. Put it the way you would put it? A. In the first place, and this may explain our position, some of the provisional directors were not sure that notes should be taken at all from subscribers, but at that time Mr. Travers assured us that we were wrong and he was right. We took legal advice on that point and had advice from Mr. Urquhart, who was retained by us some time previously and subsequently to advise us as to our actions. That advice was that Mr. Travers' view was correct. We, therefore, took the notes, and considered that they were the equivalent of cash; we were so informed and understood that all that was regular and correct; the realizing on the notes in a proper way, as we thought would have been done, did not seem to us as far as I can remember anything of our discussions to have been anything but regular and correct.

Q. But your resolution was not that he was to discount these notes, but he was to endorse all the notes for the purpose of raising money to make deposit with the Treasury Board? A. Does that mean that they could not be discounted?

Q. No; what I am calling your attention to is did not tie him down to discounting them? A. As to the manner of raising the money I think we all felt that Mr. Travers was in the position not merely of the responsible coming General Manager, but our adviser as to the correct way in which it should be done.

Q. Surely it did not require any adviser to make it clear to you that you had no right to use Mr. Smith's note to raise money to pay Mr. Jones' subscription? A. Certainly not, but we never imagined that that would be done, nor did we
But Why Let I I Where Yes. Supposing Is Was $579,200 that thing pledged, the Department reported that it had been done, and the money was to the credit of the bank and had been sent to Ottawa.

Q. Supposing he had endorsed your name under this authority, and the note had not been paid, did not you appreciate you would be personally liable to make good to the lender? A. Well, Mr. Travers had the handling of the transactions and I think that all of us had confidence in Mr. Travers’ integrity; I do not suppose it ever occurred to any of us, in the circumstances it would be a most unusual thing for a man to do wrong at the beginning of an institution to which he expected he would give his life work.

Q. Let me ask you the same question I have asked the other two members of the Board who have been called: Was this a frank and accurate statement of fact, “The Board have to report in the first place that they have the sum of $579,200 bona fide subscribed”—particularly I am asking your attention to what follows—“And out of the subscriptions thereon they have paid in to the Treasury Department of the Dominion Government the sum of $250,000”? A. I believed that to be correct, because it is so stated to us.

Q. Out of the subscriptions? A. Yes. We regarded subscriptions by note bona fide subscriptions; we regarded money raised properly on those notes to be bona fide subscriptions.

Q. But surely it was not true that out of the subscriptions you paid $250,000? A. Why should not it, if the amount subscribed was correct why should not out of that amount the proper amount be sent?

Q. Was not the proper thing to have said, “The Provisional Directors have used these notes for the purpose of raising so much money, whatever it was, to make up the deposit”? A. That would have been easily done if we had for one moment doubted the regularity of the transaction and the legality of it too, because you must remember that at that time the point was never raised or dreamt of that these notes were not proper subscriptions so far as the provisional men were concerned.

Q. Do you say raised, because you took advice? A. That was within our own meeting, and it was settled by Mr. Urquhart’s letter.

Q. Is there anything lurking in this expression—you probably recollect the eloquent terms in which the draughtsman of this report spoke of the prospects and the future of the bank—the proviso is what I call attention to: “Provided they are only loyal to the institution”. Where was the fly in the ointment that led to that? A. Well, sir, I am not prepared to say, but if I were guessing at the thing, if it were permissible to guess, I would say that is a very common expression at the annual meetings of such institutions.

Q. I should hope not; you do not at the beginning suggest a doubt as to the loyalty of your subscribers? A. The co-operation of subscribers and friends and shareholders is always asked for and solicited at these meetings; I think it is a very common street expression.

Q. May I suggest what might possibly have been the reason; I suppose you knew, at all events it was the fact, that certain of the subscribers had taken the ground that they had been induced to subscribe by false pretences, and had taken steps to have their subscriptions cancelled and the bank prevented from going on; was not that what was done leading to the expression? A. I think not, sir.
think on that point this might be said, I think the provisional directors understood or believed they understood what was behind those proceedings and they certainly had the idea, rightly or wrongly, that these proceedings were purposely with the intention of embarrassing the organization, and the removal had brought expressions of regret—

Q. From whom?  A. From some of the subscribers that withdrew.
Q. I do not quite understand what that means; that you had been foolish enough to settle it?  A. No, no, but we were told that the subscribers that had moved in the Laidlaw suit were sorry they had done it, and would not have done it had they understood the true inwardness of that effort.
Q. Did they show their faith by their works, by giving back the money and being reinstated as shareholders?  A. Speaking from what happened afterwards a carload from that section came down to endorse the bank and took part in endorsing the provisional Board’s action at a meeting of the shareholders, or two carloads, and did it unanimously.
Q. I thought it had been said that the meeting was held very promptly before these people could get there?  A. No, the report given to us and I think the record will show the meeting took place at the hour advertised, and on the arrival of these later a second meeting was held where everything was explained to their satisfaction.
Q. What do you mean by saying what was behind this suit by the shareholders?  A. The provisional directors felt that that suit was not a genuine suit, that is to say that it was to some extent invited; we may have been wrong in that idea.
Q. What do you mean by invited?  A. That it never would have taken place if these subscribers had not been approached and the actions suggested to them by outsiders.
Q. Actuated by what motive?  A. Actuated by probably personal motives, and probably wider motives than personal ones, put personal motives it was explained to us that way. We firmly held that opinion, and I think we hold it to the present day.
Q. You apparently were not of the same opinion as some people that the powers of the provisional directors were very much limited, and that they had no right to deal with any of the assets of the bank?  A. On the legal aspect of that of course I could say nothing.
Q. You were not advised as to that?  A. Yes, we were advised.
Q. By whom?  A. We were advised by Urquhart.
Q. No, no, I mean of using the notes to raise money?  A. Well, so far as that is concerned we understood and I believe we understood it on a definite statement, because we were frank in our discussion, that Mr. Travers had legal opinion behind his position.
Q. Do you mean to say that you were content with Mr. Travers’ statement and did not ask who it was that gave that opinion?  A. I would not say so; my recollection is that Mr. Travers told us. For instance, Mr. Travers told us that he did not wish to continue with Mr. Urquhart as counsel, and we had no objection to the counsel that he named to advise him from day to day.
Q. At all events you did not take any advice as to whether what you were doing was legal, lawful?  A. That is in giving the power of attorney?
Q. In using these notes for any purpose?  A. Well, I do not know of any legal advice we got directly as a Board on that, I mean to say written, but I have no doubt and my recollection is, we had that explained to us as being proper and legal by Mr. Travers.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

A. S. LOWN, Recalled:

MR. COMMISSIONER: In the subscribers list I see Nesbitt 100 shares, and Gilchrist 30 shares. You see there is nothing in the minutes to show that the shares that are mentioned in this document, which purports to be the minute of the 24th November, were ever allotted; and, therefore, if this minute is correct, they were allotted only on the 24th of November; your report is dated the 22nd November, and all these shares which purport to have been allotted, amounting to nearly 200, on the 24th November, are included in this figure you have there (in Exhibit 15); what do you say about the date of that report? A. The date of that report may have been the date on which I drew it; it should possibly have been dated the 24th.

Q. I do not see anywhere any minute of any meeting at which this report was approved or submitted except this meeting; look at that, and assuming that it is a minute of a meeting of the 24th, what do you say as to the date of the report? A. If this is a correct minute of the 24th (Exhibit 92), then the date of the report (Exhibit 15), should have been the 24th.

Q. I want to see if your memory can be refreshed at all about this meeting; I see "A. W. Lown"—A. That is not my initial.

Q. Perhaps that is a mistake in the copy—one share allotted; would not you know when that was allotted to you? A. I would not remember the exact date of course.

Q. Would not you know whether it was at the last meeting? A. It would be allotted to me at the last meeting, of course.

Q. I see the same day Mr. Hunter was allotted one share—looking at that are you able to say whether that meeting was held as the minute purports? A. I cannot say whether it was held on the 24th or not, because that would be impossible for me to remember what took place on the 24th of November, 1906.

Q. Except by knowing that that was two days before the meeting of subscribers; you were very much interested in this thing, you were to become a manager of one of the branches, and you had been Chairman? A. I could not recollect.

GEORGE T. CLARKSON, Recalled:

MR. COMMISSIONER: Where does that document come from (Exhibit 92)? A. I obtained this document personally in going over the files of the bank about three weeks or two weeks prior to the commencement of these sittings.

Q. Was that the only copy you found? A. If my memory is right there were three copies, or perhaps the original and two copies.

Q. Is that minute book of the provisional board (Exhibit 9) in the same condition as it was when it came into your hands? A. Absolutely.

Q. There is nothing to indicate in that book that any meeting was held on the 24th of November? A. There is not.

Q. You heard what Mr. Travers said about a signed minute having been produced on the examination for discovery; have you any knowledge of that? A. I was particularly interested in getting hold of this minute, because I had reason to believe when this bank first came into my hands that a lot of these stock subscriptions had been ante-dated, and beyond that I had come across some correspondence between Macarquodale and Luxton which showed that some of the subscriptions had been ante-dated as a matter of fact according to the date of the letters, and so I was looking for this minute and I could not find it, but prior to the sittings here I went over every file of correspondence in the bank personally, and I came across two or three of these copies, and I remember drawing the condition of the minute to the attention of Mr. Thompson and Mr. Hodgins. I believe the other copies differ from this somewhat in that there are one or two names left off which we had on this list, or perhaps inserted in writing; that is my memory.

Q. Was that signed? A. No, sir, not to my memory.

Q. If Travers is right what he speaks of would have taken place before the books came into your hands? A. Yes, long before they came into my hands.

Q. Where did you find Exhibit 93? A. That Exhibit came out of Mr. Fitzgibbon's private desk in the head office of the bank. What happened was at the inception of these proceedings we were looking for some papers that could not be found, and Inspector Duncan insisted that they must have been present in the bank by reason of information given to him; so we made a search in Mr. Fitzgibbon's desk and we found a lot of the papers, including those we were looking for amongst them. So I had them all taken out—I don't know whether the Inspector had them intact himself, I think he took them away intact, but anyway when they came back to them they came back in a separate parcel, and they have been kept in a separate parcel ever since, and that was amongst them.

Q. What is this Exhibit 93? A. To my mind it looks to me as though—there are figures relating to the accounts of the bank drawn up by Mr. Fitzgibbon—to my mind it looks to me like a statement drawn up for writing up the cash book and not as a copy for writing up the permanent cash book so as to strike a balance.

Q. As shown where? A. As shown in the permanent books.

Q. And had it any bearing on the representation that had been made to the Department of Finance? A. It has this connection, sir, that the representation made to the Department of Finance was that they had received $291,310 of capital stock subscriptions, and the first item starts out with collections of $291,310; the first two or three pages of those are later accounts apparently. That was taken off that report to the Government.

Q. And they started with that as the basis? A. As the basis of the account.

Q. And the account, I judge from what you were saying, was made out to make it agree with that? A. It is common sense that account was made for the purpose of casting up the books that way, not the books made up and the account copied from it.

Q. The preliminary expenses were entered, as we have already heard, the organization expenses, at $311,127.71? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is some $12,000 less than the actual sum expended? A. Yes.

Q. What was the purpose of that as far as your knowledge as an accountant enables you to say? A. It means they were trying to hide $12,000 of expenses, and the way they did it was this, I think the accounts showed it to me when I went over them, and the evidence given proves it; they had $9,000 of cheques in the drawers which they carried in cash.

Q. Cheques on account of shares? A. Yes, on account of shares.

Q. Not debited to the bank? A. No, they had credited these men with the same amounts as the cheques as having been paid on their stock out of the money borrowed on the notes, so they disregarded these cheques entirely; the cheques as cheques were not entered in the bank books at all; they carried them in their till as cash; then there was $3,700 left over out of borrowing from the Trusts & Guarantee Company, that made some $12,728.

Q. How left over? A. Out of the $100,000 they had spent all but about $3,728.

Q. Spent how? A. Spread it, spread $75,995, and they had used $20,000 to cover securities which existed as securities and not as cash, and the balance it left them $3,700; that with the $9,000 of cheques made $12,700 odd, and it is the exact difference between.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Q. What did they do with that? A. Later on when they repaid the borrowings of the Trusts & Guarantee Company, they charged up that $12,000 as against organization expenses, bringing it again into the account.

Q. You heard what Travers said? A. Yes.

Q. Is he mistaken about that? A. No, there is a charge of $12,000 made to the bank premises account, but if Mr. Travers is right that that $10,000 applies to this, then the $12,000 charged against the Guarantee Company took up some other expenditures by a similar amount. He is right that there was a charge of $10,000. You were asking me the other day about the prospectus. That is the only copy we have been able to find. It appears to be the one used in England. (This prospectus was subsequently filed as Exhibit 95). There is a statement in there (in Exhibit 63) showing the exact dealings with that $9,000 of cheques.

F. C. CLARKSON, Recalled:

MR. COMMISSIONER: What is that? A. That is an alphabetical list prepared from the Return Exhibit 5, stock subscriptions as represented in the documents furnished as a list of shareholders when application for the certificate of the Treasury Board was made, and payments thereon to the 27th of November, 1906.

Q. That shows in the first column the name of the subscriber? A. Yes, his address, the date of his application, the number of his shares, the amount, the date of the allotment and payments in cash to the 27th of November; the next column, payment by transfer of security, payment by note, and payment received on account of note to the 27th of November.

Q. That is another column? A. Yes. The next column shows the Trusts & Guarantee loan, how it was spread.

Q. How was that applied? A. Yes, and how it was applied towards shareholders. Next column is shares cancelled, giving the number of shares and the date of the cancellation. The next column is the Laidlaw accounts.

Q. That is the shareholders that brought suit and were represented by Mr. Laidlaw? A. Yes.

Q. Is that an accurate statement from the books? A. Yes, sir.

EXHIBIT 94: Alphabetical list prepared from the Return exhibit 5, stock subscriptions as represented in the documents furnished as a list of shareholders when application for certificate of the Treasury Board was made, and payments thereon to the 27th November, 1906.

Q. You have prepared a copy of the minute book of the provisional directors? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The original you will require for the purpose of the liquidation? A. Yes, sir.

This copy of minute book of provisional directors to be substituted for the original minute book, Exhibit 9.

Q. What is this? A. This is a copy of the minutes of the permanent board.

This copy of minute book permanent directors to be substituted for the original minute book, Exhibit 10.

Q. I understand you will require for the purpose of the liquidation, these two stock subscription books and the transfer books? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it practicable to get on with the liquidation without them? A. No, it is not.

Q. You will require the original records? A. Yes.
Q. If they are given out I suppose the liquidator will undertake to produce them at any time when they are required? A. We will undertake that.

Mr. G. T. Clarkson: Yes.

Mr. Commissioner: Then it can be noted that those books, after I have examined them as far as I require to do so, may be handed out to Mr. Clarkson upon that undertaking.

DR. JOHN FERGUSON, Recalled:

Mr. Commissioner: I see from the minutes of the provisional board that a prospectus was approved in order to be printed at a somewhat early date, do you remember that? A. Yes, there was a prospectus issued.

Mr. Travers: March 21st or 22nd, 1906, I think is the date.

Mr. Commissioner: There was one earlier than that.

Mr. G. T. Clarkson: In the very first report of the acting Secretary in the meeting of the 26th August, 1904, that "Mr. Lown and he would likewise report progress as to the prospectus".

Mr. Commissioner: At a meeting that was held before this minute book one of the conclusions arrived at was that it seemed desirable, (D) that Mr. Fraser and Mr. Lown be requested to prepare material for prospectus, "and to enquire the cost of printing form". I think further on the prospectus was approved. I see November 28th, 1904: "The Secretary submitted a draft prospectus, which with certain amendments was adopted, and on motion of A. S. Lown, seconded by Mr. James Gallagher, 1,500 copies were ordered to be printed". Where is that prospectus? A. I do not know; there were some of them printed, how many I could not say, and I suppose perhaps some distribution of those was made at the time by some of the agents under Mr. Smith.

Q. You cannot say where they are to be found? A. No, I have not a copy.

Q. I should think the keeper of the Archives would have one of them. Look at that, was it that prospectus? (In the Return Exhibit 5)? A. No, that was the one that was arranged after Mr. Travers came in.

Q. I would like to see that prospectus to see how far it compares with the later one, whether it reflected the modesty of those who were looking after the business at that time. Then in March 22nd, 1906, I think Mr. Travers told us? A. Yes, March, 1906.

Q. It is on the 21st March, 1906: "Moved by Dr. Ferguson; seconded by J. Watson: That the Prospectus as presented be approved of". Is that the prospectus (in the Return Exhibit 5)? A. I suppose that might be the one that Mr. Travers had; I think that is the one that Mr. Travers formulated.

Q. The one commencing on page 10 of Exhibit 5? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know anything of that one? A. No, I never saw that one to my knowledge.

ALEXANDER FRASER, Recalled:

Mr. Commissioner: Do you know anything about the prospectus that was approved on the 28th November, 1904? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know where that prospectus is? A. No; they were given to Mr. Smith for distribution by his agents.

Q. You did not keep one? A. Well, I think there were some of them in the office of the bank all the time the provisional men were there; what became of them I don’t know, that is beyond those that were distributed. They were for Mr. Smith’s use and for his agents in offering stock.

Q. Did you ever see that one (afterwards filed as Exhibit 95)? A. I have no doubt I have. I have no clear recollection of having seen it before it was printed.

Q. This is evidently one after the bank was organized and the Board had been elected? A. Oh, I do not recognize that; but there was one issued before the bank was organized.

Q. That is the one that appears in Exhibit 5 with the name of Mr. Forget? A. Yes; I have never seen that other one then.

Q. In the light of present events it is somewhat interesting reading: “Instead of incurring the heavy expenditure and investing large amounts in office premises, advertising, in cities and large towns, branches have been opened . . . . at minimum cost”—I do not suppose you know much about that; I should have thought the office premises account was a pretty extravagant account. The next proposition is—it is in italics—after speaking of avoiding the competition of older established banks, by opening these branches; “This is clearly demonstrated by the fact that in less than four months after commencing business and accrued profit has been shown equal to over 6% per annum on the average paid up capital during that time”—what do you think of that? A. Well, sir, I had no connection whatever with the bank after the permanent directors were appointed, I knew nothing of its affairs, absolutely nothing.

Q. Then it is stated that judging by this and the fact that this result had been obtained during the worst months for banking during the year, from every indication the bank should be earning 10% per annum on the paid up capital by the end of this year. In all probabilities when that prospectus was issued the bank had lost every dollar of its capital? A. Of course that is a matter we could not possibly know.

Q. I suppose you are not at all responsible; you were not an officer of the bank after the first meeting of the shareholders? A. No, sir.

Q. Can you tell me: When you and Dr. Ferguson put forward, one proposing and the other seconding, the resolution to give up the business of attempting to organize the bank, and to divide the expenses among you—do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. That was lost? A. Yes.

Q. Two voting for? A. And three against.

Q. Who were the three who voted against? A. They were the other members; there were five on the Board.

Q. That would be Gallagher, Watson? A. And Lown.

Q. That was before Mr. Travers came upon the scene? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were the reasons that led the majority to disapprove of what you proposed? A. They evidently were more hopeful in bringing the organization to a successful conclusion than we were. When we took up the matter, these were the three who were at the beginning of the organization and asked us to join them. We always considered that they were the leading three among the provisional men. When we took it up we thought there would not be very much difficulty in securing subscriptions; as our experience grew as to that difficulty, I distinctly remember that we made this proposition, while we believed that we personally could pay back from ourselves the moneys expended—

Q. Have you any idea what the amount expended was at that time? A. I cannot recollect just now, but I remember that in making a division of what each man’s share would be of the five that we thought we could stand it.

Q. What was the measure of your strength? A. It was not very large.

Q. Would it be less than $5,000 that was spent then? A. Oh no.

Q. It would be more than that? A. Yes.
Q. You cannot give even approximately the figures at this time? A. Well, I cannot recollect. The motion was defeated, and we were pretty much convinced ourselves that the hope the others then had, and the ways they saw before them would succeed.

Q. When was it they turned you and Ferguson out of your positions of honor? A. We never took up the positions at any time with the intention of being more than helping our friends.

Q. Did it at all synchronize with the rejection of your motion? A. Oh no; we had abandoned the positions before then.

Q. Evidently you did not approve of what was done when Mr. Lown deposed, or when the Board deposed Dr. Ferguson and put Mr. Lown in his place, you voted nay? A. That was not our point of view. Our point of view was this, that when we took the matter up we did not expect it would be as onerous or as hard as it proved to be, and we had not the time to give to it. We desired relief as quickly as possible from the duties, and then Mr. Smith and Mr. Lown took them up.

Q. I do not know why, if that was so, you voted nay according to this? A. That is perhaps another question altogether; I understood you were still speaking of the abandonment.

Q. Oh no, no; I am talking about when they decided that Mr. Lown should be the Chairman? A. I remember that point also.

Q. What was the reason for that change that took place on the 13th of February, 1905, when Watson moved, seconded by Gallagher, that the motion appointing Dr. Ferguson Chairman of the provisional board, and so on, be and is hereby rescinded, and that Mr. A. S. Lown is hereby appointed Chairman of the provisional board, and so on. You voted nay; the Chairman, apparently being in the chair, did not vote? A. We had reached the stage then when a man having a practical knowledge of banking was necessary, because moneys were being received and had to be properly handled, moneys on subscriptions. We discussed two or three men, one of whom we thought might be suitable, and one had been practically decided upon to take over the work of organization after Smith. Then we were unanimous as to that man, but between meetings we heard that his habits were not such that we could trust him, and the others did not think that Dr. Ferguson and I were right in opposing him. It was a mere matter of detail and it brought about that.

Q. You are a little in error I think, judging from these minutes, because that motion that I just read to you having been carried, Mr. Lown took the chair; then Dr. Ferguson moved, seconded by you: "That whereas it is manifested that the promotion expenses will be heavy, it is deemed unwise for the provisional directors to accept any remuneration for their services other than their necessary travelling expenses and legitimate disbursements, and whereas the provisional directors of the Farmers Bank of Canada have received certain sums for attending upon meetings, be it resolved that the same at once be refunded". Another resolution, moved by Dr. Ferguson, seconded by Alexander Fraser, "That in view of the fact that the charter of the Farmers Bank will lapse at an early date and it is evident there are going to be grave difficulties in the way of disposing of the capital stock of the bank, it be resolved that all moneys paid in shares now placed be returned, and the expenses up to date be defrayed equally by the provisional directors". Does that look as if you were trying to get back at the majority for having deposed the Chairman? A. No, the real thing there, Dr. Ferguson and I had not confidence in the man that the majority thought was suitable to do the office work and relieved myself particularly of what I was up to then doing in my spare time; then when the majority differed from us in that, the Chairman had to be changed in that because he would come in practically daily contact with the new man.
Q. There is nothing to show any conflict? A. I do not suppose these things would be minuted.

Dr. Ferguson: If I may be allowed to give you my impression, I had expressed the opinion previously that perhaps the wise course to take, would be to desist from further efforts at organization. Some of the others did not coincide with that view, and that friendly division took place; there was nothing acrimonious at all occurred; it was in the best of feeling, and the arrangement was made by which Mr. Lown became Chairman, and then after that I wished formally to put myself on record with regard to the view that I had expressed previously to ceasing to be Chairman.

Mr. Commissioner: Why did Mr. Fraser dissent? A. Dissent signified the non-approval of the main reason why, that is regarding the man; the man was decided upon, and a gentleman called on me and told me he understood that this man was to be entrusted with the office work and to lead in the organization of the bank; and he told me his habits were not very good. I reported that to my colleagues and the three of them thought there was not much in that, they did not agree with me.

Q. But you see what a malicious man, looking at the order in which these resolutions appear, might say it was plain what the object was—I am glad you have given that explanation—that having deposed the Chairman the deposed gentleman moved and Mr. Fraser seconded that they should lose all their fees? A. As a matter of fact the getting of the man, they pinned their hope on that to pull them out of their trouble.

The Commission adjourned.

CANADIAN BANKERS’ ASSOCIATION.

MONTREAL, Nov. 30th, 1906.

T. C. Boville, Esq.,
Deputy Minister of Finance,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:—

In connection with the application of the Farmers Bank of Canada for the usual certificate from the Treasury Board, I have reason to believe that the money lodged, or to be lodged, at Ottawa as stock subscription, cannot be regarded as paid-up capital, and that a large proportion of the amount necessary to the obtaining of a certificate is a loan upon the promise of its payment when returned by your Department.

Permit me to request that, if only for the protection of the public, the Treasury Board will exercise its right to refuse to issue a certificate if it thinks best so to do, until a thorough investigation has been made into the circumstances stated herein.

Yours faithfully,

(Sd.) E. S. Clouston,
President.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT,
Ottawa, Canada.

December 3rd, 1906.

E. S. Clouston, Esq.,
President Canadian Bankers’ Association,
Montreal, P.Q.

Dear Mr. Clouston:—

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th ultimo, respecting the Farmers Bank of Canada. I note what you state with regard to the money paid in under section 13 of the Bank Act.

In view of the published reports in the newspapers of some litigation in connection with the subscriptions to the capital of this Bank, the matter has had the careful attention of the Department, and sometime ago the General Manager of the Bank was communicated with to the effect that when applying for the certificate to commence business, in addition to the list of subscriptions to the extent of a half million required by the Bank Act, the statement should contain also the actual amount of cash paid up by each subscriber on his subscription. On the 29th ultimo application, in due form, was made by the Bank for the certificate permitting it to commence the business of banking. The application was accompanied by the usual documents and also by a list of the subscriptions of cash paid in by each subscriber. The list itself covers over 500 names and nothing therein appeared calling for any particular comment. From the statutory declaration of the General Manager I quote the following paragraphs:

"4. On the Twenty-third day of October, 1906, there had been actually "bona fide" subscribed five thousand seven hundred and fifty-seven shares of the "Capital Stock of the Farmers Bank of Canada, and I have had personal knowledge of the applications and the subscriptions and each and all of the said subscriptions is and are on the printed form of application—a copy of which is now produced and marked Exhibit 'C' to this my declaration, and that the said subscription appeared on the Stock books of the said Bank, and that a sum beyond $250,000 thereof in cash has been actually paid in by the subscribers of the same.

"5. Now shown to me and marked Exhibit 'D' to this my declaration is a list of the subscribers to the capital stock of the said Bank correctly setting forth as to each subscription the name of the subscriber, his address, the number of shares subscribed for by him, the amount of such shares and the amount paid in thereon. Each of the said subscriptions is a "bona fide" subscription to the capital stock of the said Bank."

I previously had some conversation with Mr. Fielding, who was very busy in connection with the preparation of the Budget Speech, with regard to this application. But on Friday last, the day after the delivery of the Budget Speech, Mr. Travers, the General Manager, had an interview with him. In the course of this interview that gentleman gave a most positive assurance that "not a dollar" of the amount deposited had been borrowed. For the purpose of record, Mr. Fielding wrote Mr. Travers a letter, of which I enclose a copy, asking for the assurance that the amounts set forth in the application as having been paid in were in every case "bona fide" cash payments. I enclose a copy of Mr. Travers' reply.

Under these circumstances there did not seem to be any warrant for the withholding of a certificate under section 14 of the Act, and, accordingly, a certificate was issued on the 30th ultimo.

Yours very truly,
(Sd.) T. C. BOVILLE,
Deputy Minister of Finance.

This action is brought by the plaintiffs on their own behalf and on behalf of all other alleged shareholders of The Farmers Bank of Canada who may desire to be joined as plaintiffs. And the Plaintiffs’ Claim is: (1) For the rescission of alleged contracts to take shares of the capital stock of The Farmers Bank of Canada; (2) For an accounting for the money and promissory notes received—or alleged to have been received—in the name and on behalf of the provisional directors of the Bank; (3) For an injunction; (4) For a Receiver.

And the following are particulars of the plaintiffs’ claim:
1. The Farmers Bank of Canada was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada passed on the 18th day of July, 1904.
2. The defendants, James Gallagher, John Watson, John Ferguson, Alexander Fraser, and Alexander Shepherd Lown, were appointed by the said Act to be the Provisional Directors of the Bank.
3. Amendments of the Act of Incorporation were passed on the 20th day of July, 1905, and on the 26th day of June, 1906.
4. The amendment passed on the 20th day of July, 1905, is alleged to have been passed on the petition of The Farmers Bank of Canada, and the amendment passed on the 26th day of June, 1906, is alleged to have been passed on the petition of the provisional directors of the Bank; and the petition is subscribed as follows:

“The Farmers Bank of Canada,”
By—John Ferguson,
Alexander Fraser,
James Gallagher,
Provisional Directors.

5. A prospectus of the Bank was issued, and contains, amongst others, the following statements, namely, that the following gentlemen have consented to act as directors if elected—

His Honour A. E. Forget; Major Thomas Beattie; Lieutenant Colonel R. R. McLennan; John D. Ivey; Thomas Charlton; H. W. Anthes; W. S. Calvert; G. Plunkett Magann; D. P. McKinnon; Colonel James Munn; Honourable A. G. McKay; George W. Neely; Thomas Urquhart; D. N. McLeod; John Ferguson; Robert Noble—and the name of the defendant W. R. Travers is printed thereon “General Manager”; the name of the defendant C. H. Smith is printed thereon “The Secretary of the Provisional Board of Directors”, and the name “The Traders Bank of Canada” is printed thereon as “Bankers”.

6. Stock books were opened in pursuance of the prospectus for the purpose of entering subscriptions of persons who might be induced to subscribe for shares of the capital stock of the Bank.
7. The applications for subscriptions for shares and proxies appointing the Secretary of the Provisional Board, and forms for receiving subscriptions for shares, were printed and put in circulation.
8. Forms of bank notes in the name of The Farmers Bank of Canada were also either printed, lithographed or engraved for the purpose of inducing persons to subscribe for shares.
9. The printed prospectus, the applications for stock, the forms for subscriptions, and the said forms of bank notes in the name of The Farmers Bank of Canada, were delivered to agents and solicitors to procure subscriptions for shares.
10. The agents and solicitors produced and used the prospectus, the applications and the forms in their canvass for subscriptions for shares.
11. The plaintiffs and others subscribed for shares, and the plaintiffs allege (1) That the provisional directors who professed to act for and in the name of the Bank, had no lawful power or authority to receive subscriptions for shares or to accept them; and (2) That the subscriptions for shares which were procured from the plaintiffs and others were procured through fraud and misrepresentation and the plaintiffs allege, amongst others, the following particulars of fraud namely:

(1) That the agent in procuring the subscriptions for shares falsely represented that persons had subscribed for a larger number of shares than they had in fact subscribed for, and the following are examples of such false representations, namely—(a) That Robert Noble, whose name is entered in the prospectus as one of those who had consented to be a director, had subscribed for shares to the amount of $10,000, whereas he had in fact only subscribed for shares to the amount of $3,000; (b) That John Sproat had subscribed for shares to the amount of $10,000, whereas he had in fact only intended to subscribe for shares to the amount of $1,000, and that he was induced to sign an application in the belief that it was filled up for $1,000, and that the General Manager afterwards claimed that it was a subscription for $10,000, that the said John Sproat then repudiated the entire subscription; (d) That James Murray has subscribed for shares to the amount of $10,000, whereas he had in fact only subscribed for shares to the amount of $1,000; (e) That Dr. Stewart was subscribing for shares to the amount of $10,000, whereas he was not in fact subscribing for any shares; and other false representations of a similar character were made by the solicitors and agents in reference to alleged subscriptions of other persons.

(2) That Major Thomas Beattie, represented by the prospectus to have consented to act as a director, had not subscribed for any shares, and refused to be a director, and refused to allow his name to be used in any way in connection with the Bank, and the plaintiffs allege that the names of other persons were represented by the prospectus to have consented to act as directors had not subscribed for any shares or given any authority for any such publication.

(3) That the first block of shares to the amount of $500,000 would be issued at par, and that the next block of shares would be issued at a premium of 25% and that the first block of shares subscribed for at par would therefore soon have a market value of 25% over the amount subscribed for.

(4) That the solicitors and agents who were procuring subscriptions for shares would buy the shares from the subscribers at the alleged premium of 25%.

(5) That the bank notes, of which a specimen was produced, would soon be in circulation, and that the profits to the subscribers would be very large.

(6) And the said prospectus contains other false and fraudulent inducements and representations.

12. And the plaintiffs allege that the acts and proceedings of the provisional directors were illegal and irregular, and that the provisional directors appointed by the Act of Incorporation did not continue to act as directors, and did not receive notices of meetings, and did not attend meetings, and did not consent to the renewal of the charter or to the acts and proceedings of other provisional directors, or other persons who were acting or professing to act for provisional directors, and that there was trading in the charter and proceedings in pursuance thereof.

13. And the plaintiffs further allege that the agents and solicitors who were procuring subscriptions for shares had no lawful power or authority to solicit applications or subscriptions, and there was no lawful authority for the acceptance of any such subscriptions.

14. And the plaintiffs allege that the agents and solicitors professing to act under the name and authority of the provisional directors have procured a large number of subscriptions for shares, and have received the sum of One hundred and Seventy-five thousand dollars more or less on account thereof, and have also procured promissory notes to be signed by persons who were subscribing for shares, payable to the provisional directors of the Bank, and the persons acting in the name and under the professed authority of the Act of Incorporation and amendments thereto, are endeavouring to discount or procure a loan by the transfer of the said notes.

15. And the plaintiffs further allege that the persons professing to act as aforesaid under the alleged authority of the provisional directors, have unlawfully deducted large sums of money for alleged services and commissions, and other purposes, out of the money received by them, and the plaintiffs are apprehensive that the money and notes under the control of such persons may be illegally appropriated unless the said persons are restrained by order and injunction of this Honourable Court from drawing upon or using the same without the order of the Court.

16. A very large proportion of the subscriptions for shares, and of the money, and of the promissory notes, have been procured from farmers through the said fraud and misrepresentation in part alleged as aforesaid; and they were not at the time the subscriptions were procured from them, and are not now, able to pay the sums subscribed for, and the solicitors and agents represented to them that they would not be called upon to pay the money, and that the Bank would carry the obligations until they were able to sell their shares at a profit.

17. The plaintiffs deny that any legal liability can be established against a large number of such subscribers, and if such subscribers are in law liable to pay the sums subscribed for the enforcement thereof by legal process would bring great loss and damage to a large number of farmers who can meet their own obligations but cannot pay for subscriptions for shares of a Bank.

18. The Plaintiffs demand the production by the provisional Directors of the Bank, and each of them, and by the Secretary of the Provisional Board, and by the General Manager, and by all other persons who may have possession or control thereof—(1) Of all documents alleged to be signed by subscribers for shares; (2) Of the minutes of the meetings of the Provisional Directors; (3) Of the alleged subscribers' agreements, or alleged subscriptions for shares; (4) Of the Cash Books, Ledgers, Bank Books, Cheque Books, Letter Books, and all other books, documents and papers showing the alleged subscriptions for shares—the payments on account thereof—the application of the money received—the promissory notes and other obligations received; and all acts or proceedings of the Provisional Board of Directors, or any of the members thereof, or of the Secretary, or of the General Manager, and all other persons whomsoever professing to act in the name and on behalf of the Bank or of the Provisional Board of Directors, or any of them, or of the subscribers for shares, or any of them.

19. The plaintiffs hereby formally withdraw all applications for shares which may be signed by them, and they have added the principal persons who were concerned in the alleged irregularity, fraud and misrepresentation, as defendants in this action.

20. The plaintiffs allege that all moneys, promissory notes and other obligations received as aforesaid by all persons acting, or professing to act, in the name and on behalf of The Farmers Bank of Canada, or of the Provisional Directors, or any of them, are impressed with a trust in favour of all the subscribers for shares who may desire to come in and become parties to this action, and the plaintiffs allege that there is no lawful power or authority for the appropriation of any part of the said moneys for any other purpose than the regular procuring of the Act of Incorporation and amendments thereto, and the regular opening of the stock books and giving public notice thereof, and usual clerical work incidental to the incorporation and organization of the Bank under the provisions of the Bank Act; and the plaintiffs claim that the money now on hand, which is believed to be deposited in the Traders Bank of Canada, and the promissory notes or other obligations, should be protected and preserved as trust money and trust notes and obligations under the order, direction and injunction of this Honourable Court; and that all persons who may have received any payments out of the said moneys, except as aforesaid, shall be ordered to repay the same.

21. The defendants, James Gallagher, John Watson, John Ferguson, Alexander Fraser and Alexander S. Lown, are named as Provisional Directors in the Act of Incorporation; the defendant W. R. Travers is named as General Manager in the prospectus and the defendants W. J. Lindsay and Luxton were canvassing solicitors and agents for subscriptions for shares.

AND THE PLAINTIFFS THEREFORE CLAIM AND PRAY FOR:

1.—An account and enquiry into all the matters hereinbefore alleged.
2.—An account and enquiry into all acts and proceedings of all the members of the Provisional Board of Directors, and each of them.
3.—The rescission of all alleged contracts to take shares which have been entered into without lawful authority.
4.—An account of all moneys received and the application thereof.
5.—The rescission of all obligations or subscriptions for shares which have been procured by fraud or misrepresentation.
6.—A declaration of the rights of the plaintiffs and of the obligations of the defendants, and consequential relief.
7.—An injunction to restrain the Bank, the Provisional Directors, the General Manager, the Secretary, and all officers, servants and agents acting for or in the name of the Bank, or of the Provisional Directors, from using, drawing upon, paying or transferring, any of the said money and notes, and from entering into any further dealings and transactions in respect thereof until further order of the Court.
8.—The appointment of a Receiver to take possession of all the alleged property of the Bank, and to hold the same under the order and direction of this Honourable Court.
9.—The amendments of this action by adding all parties who may desire to come in as plaintiffs, and the adding of all necessary defendants as occasion may arise.
10.—All such further and other relief as to this Honourable Court may seem meet, or as the nature or circumstances of the enquiry may require.
11.—The costs of this action.

The Plaintiffs propose that this action shall be tried at the Town of Milton.

Amendment to be added to the Special Endorsement.

The prospectus states that the money received from deposits is loaned at a high rate of interest, that the authorized capital of the Bank is $1,000,000; that if this were fully paid up the Bank could issue $1,000,000 in bills, thus earning for its stockholders dividends on $2,000,000, giving the Bank double earning power on its capital.

The prospectus makes no reference whatever to the provisions of the Bank Act, namely (1) That a Bank cannot issue any notes less than $5.00; (2) The percentage to be held by the Minister of Finance against circulation; (3) The necessity of the Bank establishing agencies everywhere in Canada to redeem its circulation; (4) The obligation of the Bank to hold not less than 40% of its cash reserves in Dominion notes; (5) The obligation to pay for the Dominion notes in specie; (6) The obligation to make payments up to given amounts in Dominion notes when requested; (7) The necessity for the maintenance of a reserve to meet deposits when demanded and to redeem circulation, etc.

THE FARMERS’ BANK OF CANADA.

MEMORANDUM of Report to Meetings of Shareholders and Creditors, held on the 17th day of January, 1911.

The notice calling the meeting, which notice was issued by the High Court of Justice, was read, and, upon motion, Mr. Tyson was appointed secretary, Mr. G. T. Clarkson being chairman by virtue of the order of the Honourable Mr. Justice Riddell.
The chairman read the interim statement of affairs as attached, and, in connection therewith, said:—

The liabilities first shown upon the statement of affairs are those due to depositors in, and holders of drafts issued by, the various branches of the bank. As you will see, the total amount of deposits and drafts is $1,281,774.00, which includes interest up to the 19th December on interest bearing accounts; of this $1,281,774.00, the amount of the savings was $992,490.00, and current accounts $289,284.00. The amount of deposits allocated to Toronto branch includes a deposit of J. S. Saunders, of this city, who withdrew $45,000.00 of it from the bank on the date of suspension. Acting on the advice of counsel suit was commenced against Saunders for the return of this money, and it now rests with the courts to determine whether he is entitled to hold it or not. The money was paid to him in Farmers' Bank bills, which are now in the hands of a bank of this city, pending determination by the court. Included in the Haileybury returns is a claim for $2,000.00, withdrawn under similar circumstances by one Robins, and against him action has also been taken. Further action will be taken in regard to another amount of $600.00 withdrawn on the same date, and question has arisen with regard to certain withdrawals at one of the branches. These matters will all require to be carefully looked into.

There are a number of questions to be considered in respect to deposits and claims on drafts. In instances where deposits were made on the day of the suspension, and a few days prior thereto, cheques and drafts, and which were in transmission for collection at the time of the suspension, have been stopped payment of. I have been advised that the bank is entitled to collect on these cheques, but as there is contention on the point, a writ has been issued in one instance where $6,400.00 is involved, so that the question may be determined by the court. If the court holds that the bank is not entitled to the moneys, the cheques will have to be returned to the maker, and, on the other hand, if judgment is given in favour of the bank, the amount of these cheques will have to be paid by the depositors and makers.

In instances where deposits were made on the date of suspension, questions have arisen as to whether the same were made before or after the suspension, and, as the exact hour of the suspension is somewhat in doubt, the court will have to determine the question; all depositors who made deposits on the 19th instant are, therefore, requested to give full particulars of the same to the bank, so that their claims may be looked into when the question has been decided.

Depositors whose deposits bore interest are entitled to have the interest added to their accounts up to the 19th December. In order to facilitate the filing of claims, a statement will be sent out from the bank naming the amounts at the credit of each depositor, inclusive of interest, so as to obviate the expense and trouble to which depositors would be put if required to file sworn claims. Of necessity, this will take a little time to do.

Questions are arising as to the rights of depositors to offset the amounts of their deposits against overdrafts and notes held by the bank, and this matter will be brought before the court in the winding-up proceedings at the earliest possible moment. In the meantime, any depositor having a note or overdraft due to the bank is advised to pay the difference between the amount to his credit and the amount of such note or overdraft, so as to facilitate the collection of assets. The payment of the balance can rest until the question of the right to offset has been determined.

Payments due on capital stock are in the same position, but depositors are not legally entitled to offset the amounts which may become due by them on double liability against their deposits and overdrafts.

With reference to the claims of those who held drafts issued by the bank, would say that the bank held a note on collection for any person or firm, and such collection was held by the bank, in trust, and not for value given, the owner of the bill may be entitled to recover the amount collected by the bank if the payment received by the bank was on hand at the time of suspension in its original form, so as to distinguish it from the other assets of the bank. Where, however, drafts were purchased from the bank for the purpose of remitting money the holders of such drafts are merely ordinary creditors against the estate.

I draw your attention to the last item on the first page, 'Reserve to cover sundry claims,' such amount has been added to the liability of the bank to cover contingent liabilities such as law costs, advertising, supplies purchased, etc., and claims have already been filed to an extent which would seem to indicate that the reserve will be largely, if not wholly, used up.

Preferred claims.—With respect to preferred claims, would say that according to section 131 of the Bank Act, the notes issued by the bank constitute a first charge upon its assets; according to the books of the bank the bank has obtained from the Bank Note Printing Co. $825,000 bank notes, and the amount of the same on hand at the time of suspension was $886,635, leaving outstanding $538,365, and this amount, together with interest from 19th December, is a first lien upon the assets.

The second lien upon the assets is the amount of the deposit with the Ontario Government $26,533.16, and it is a lien by virtue of clause C, section 131, of the Bank Act, which makes it a preferred claim.

No particular comment need be made on the item for branch salaries and charge account, as it states the amounts owing to the officers of the Bank at the time of suspension.

The preferred claims will all have to be paid in full before any dividend can be paid to other creditors.

Secured claims.—The secured claims consist of a claim of the Trust and Guarantee Company secured by hypothecations of Keeley Mine bonds, other industrial bonds and customers' paper. The Trust and Guarantee Company appeared to have advanced to the Bank in February, 1910, the sum of $75,000, at which time it took as security $120,000 stock in the American Piano Company, which stock was subsequently sold for $85,000. The stock had been hypothecated to the Bank as collateral to a call loan and under the terms of agreement the Bank may be able to claim on the maker of the call loan for the deficiency. Whether it will recover anything or not is another question. On June 30, 1910, the Trusts and Guarantee Company appear to have loaned to the Bank another amount of $100,000, at which time it is said that the Bank hypothecated to the Trust Company Keeley Mine bonds amounting to $1,000,000, which had been left with the Bank by the Mining Company as security for the debt due by the Mining Company to the Bank. These two advances were used by the Bank in meeting obligations and it is also said principally in meeting its clearing house balances.

The Trust and Guarantee Company was also depositing in the Bank to an extent and in a re-adjustment of the accounts between the Bank and the Trust Company had obtained a deposit receipt for $120,000. It claims to be entitled to hold the securities which it obtained on the other two advances as security also in connection with the deposit receipt under the terms of agreement with it. Nevertheless, it began to press the Bank for further security with the result that on November 3 last a transaction was put through by which the Trusts and Guarantee Company purported to advance to the Bank $295,000, for which it claims it was given as security $300,000 of customers' paper, $1,000,000 Keeley Mine bonds and $75,000 industrial bonds. Out of this advance of $295,000, it then purported to pay its two loans of $75,000 and $100,000, also its deposit receipt of $120,000. Inasmuch as the transaction involves a large amount of money and had the practical effect of preferring those creditors who received payment as the results of the advances being made, the validity of the transaction with the Trust Company has not been admitted, but steps are being taken to insure that the rights of the creditors of the Bank are protected until such time as the transaction can be more effectually gone into. The transaction will be gone into in the course of the liquidation proceedings.
Capital stock.—The subscribed capital stock of the Bank appears according to its books to be $584,000 and upon it $16,921 would appear to be unpaid at this date. I am of the opinion that examination will show further stock unpaid.

When discussing the matter of capital stock I think it right to inform you as to what I have learned regarding the incorporation and formation of the Bank, including the obtaining of its certificate from the Treasury Board. According to the Bank Act it is necessary for any bank seeking incorporation to have the sum of $500,000 capital stock subscribed in a bona fide manner and, at least, $250,000 cash paid upon such bona fide subscription. The charter of this bank had been obtained about two years before it held its organization meeting and there was danger of it expiring. The organization meeting was called for the 26th November, 1906, and it is said that shortly before the meeting some of those persons who were to have been actively identified with the Bank, withdrew, and their withdrawal made the subscription list deficient. To overcome this, it is said that certain subscriptions were added to the list particularly one of $50,000, and antedated, so as to make the subscription list regular, and permit the obtaining of the certificate to do business. At the time of the organization meeting on November 26, 1906, the stock subscription book of the Bank shows that it had subscriptions for $579,000 worth of stock, including the subscriptions previously spoken of. Of these subscriptions it is said that between $50,000 and $75,000 were worthless and uncollectable, being subsequently cancelled, and, in addition, there was a further amount of stock cancelled, and it would appear that of the $579,000 stock, between $125,000 and $150,000 was in all cancelled after the certificate had been obtained.

In addition to having the subscriptions to the amount mentioned, it was necessary for the bank to have received in payment thereupon the sum of $250,000. The subscription books show that the provisional board had $291,310, and amounts are allocated as payments on each subscription sufficient to produce the total. It is conceded that in very many cases such payments had not been made by subscribers, and that what really happened would seem to be as follows: The directors had collected about $211,000 from subscribers in cash, but out of it they had paid $41,000 for expenses, leaving in their hands $170,000. They then turned over subscribers’ notes to W. R. Travers, who was in control of the provisional board, and he in his own name borrowed on these notes $80,000, which amount, with the $170,000 mentioned, made up the $250,000 necessary for the government deposit. The money was then transferred to the Receiver General, and when he returned $245,000 to the bank, the amount was deposited with the Traders’ Bank, and out of it $80,000 was checked out to the Trust and Guarantee Company, who held it apparently on deposit for the benefit of the bank. Checks were issued out of this amount to the Trust and Guarantee Company for the full amount in three payments, and they released the subscribers’ notes left with them by Travers. The bank, therefore, was left with but $170,000 of actual paid up capital and the subscribers’ notes; it is apparent, therefore, that the certificate was obtained by an evasion of the Bank Act, if nothing worse.

In as much as the stock of the bank was at that time sold at par, it will be apparent that when the bank commenced business its liabilities were greater than its assets by the $41,000 paid out for organization expenses. To cover this up, certain entries were put through the books and a note given by the general manager, which note was afterwards charged up to the Keeley Mines Stocks and Bonds Account. Under these conditions it is apparent that the returns to the government were misleading from the start.

It is apparent that several transactions have taken place in connection with the capital stock of the bank, which will need to be very closely examined into. At one time the subscribed capital of the bank was returned as $1,000,000, being afterwards reduced to the figures it now rests at. It would appear that the increase was due to a certain transaction which was entered into with a concern known as the Continental Security Company of Winnipeg, which company it is said had no responsibility under the terms of which it subscribed for $510,000 of stock of the bank, and was allowed an overdraft to the amount of $538,000 by the bank in order to permit it to pay for the stock; the securities company were also allowed a further overdraft to the extent of $150,000, and out of the same it paid certain notes held by the bank for stock subscribed for by other people, took up notes given to the bank in order to hide expenditure on organization account and covered a large amount transferred to the credit of the general manager for his personal account; this latter forms part of the claim against him for theft.

The total amount of the overdraft allowed in the Toronto office books was $687,000, including a large amount for interest which the bank took the benefit of as a profit when it in reality was not earned or paid.

When it became apparent that the Continental Securities Company could not carry the transaction through, some $50,000 or $60,000 of the stock subscribed for by it was sold to other parties and paid for; the balance was cancelled and written off the books, and a large amount charged up to the Keeley Mine Stocks and Bonds Account in order to clear up the transaction; the stock was in this manner reduced. I regard the whole transaction as most irregular and improper, and there certainly will be a liability to the bank on the part of various persons in connection therewith; how much the bank will benefit out of the same is a question—I am afraid it cannot look for any substantial recovery; the whole matter, however, is one that will have to be gone into to the fullest detail in the proceedings before the court.

ASSETS.

The first five items of the Assets constitute what are called Cash Assets, and represent either cash or liquid securities. These assets should be expected to yield par value, but in some instances Creditors of the Bank who hold drafts and notes for collection claim to be entitled to retain the same in satisfaction of their claims, which are included in the liabilities. In instances, also, payment has been refused upon cheques in the hands of the bank, and suit has been undertaken against some of the makers for the purpose of determining whether they have any right to do so.

The deposit with the Dominion Government will be held by it to secure the note circulation, and when the notes have been paid, returned to the bank for the benefit of creditors generally.

The stocks and bonds consist of industrial bonds which were believed to be worth the amount stated at the time the statement was made. The undertakings they cover, however, are subject to vicissitudes of business, and it is possible that the bank may not be able to realize its entire investment therein, but it is hoped that it will do so to a very large extent.

The surplus in customers' paper held by the Trusts and Guarantee Company is the amount which is expected will be realized from the same. Since the statement was prepared, it has been apparent that on some of this paper there will be a loss, and therefore, the item will probably not be realized in full.

The current loans, discounts and past due bills held at the Toronto office, and branches, amount to $684,130.04, and I have valued the same, to the best of my ability, with the information which the bank's officers are able to give me, at $241,434. The discounts include a number of accounts upon which it is certain that the bank will make heavy losses, and I hardly hope to procure more than the amount of the valuation from the same. It is not in order to discuss the details of these loans as it would be prejudicial to the interests of the creditors to do so, but I think I am doing no wrong in saying to you that there is one instance in which the bank will lose $100,000 on a single account.

Claims for withdrawals after suspension are those in connection with suits which have been brought for the return of money taken out of the bank on the day of suspension. As matters are now before the court I am not in a position to say more to you than that the bank claims to be entitled to a refund of these funds, for the general benefit of the creditors, on the ground that the withdrawers received unjust preference.

Bank Premises.—The cost of the bank premises has been put into the statement at the amount charged in the books, but this amount is undoubtedly in excess of the cash expenditure of the bank in that behalf, and I do not look to the estate recovering more than between $60,000 and $70,000 for the whole of the item. There have been irregularities in connection with this account, and items of very considerable amount have been charged to it in order to cover expenditures in other directions. The whole of the transactions in connection with this item call for the closest scrutiny, and it is one of the matters which will have to be gone into carefully in the examination which will be held before the court.

Stationery on Hand.—This item appears in the books of the bank as $30,000, nothing having been written off it since the date of its purchase, although it was constantly being used, and the supply thereby diminished. I have therefore placed it at $2,500, which is merely a rough estimate. The amount due upon capital stock, $16,921 represents the amount due upon subscription.

The other assets consist of claims under guarantee bond and deposit for $500.

Re Keeley Mine.—Discussing the item of the Keeley Mine account, I think it right to inform you rather at length as to the history of this company and its connection with the bank, so far as I am able. It would appear that Beattie Nesbitt, on the 18th April, 1908, obtained an option on the property at the price of $300,000, payable $50,000 on the 18th May, and the balance in instalments spread over a period of time. On the 18th May, Nesbitt entered into an agreement under the terms of which Wishart, Travers, and the Farmers’ Bank were to participate in all benefits received by him from the option, and on the same day, he executed an additional agreement to the effect that he was not to deal with the option without the consent of the Farmers’ Bank of Canada. In May, 1906, the Keeley Jowsey Wood Mine Limited was formed, and, at a meeting of the Provincial Directors held in May, a resolution was passed by the Board to purchase the option mentioned from Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, and to issue to him $999,975 stock, out of a total of $1,000,000 in payment therefor; and on the same day, George Wishart was elected President, Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, Vice-President, the third Director being W. R. Travers.

On the 20th May, the bank made an advance to George Wishart of $25,397, and also to the Keeley Jowsay Wood Mine of $25,000, apparently to take care of a payment to be made under the terms of the option agreement. From this time forward, the bank continued to advance to the mine, and, so far as I can ascertain, no other money, except the bank’s money, ever went into the mine.

According to the by-laws of the bank, the Managing Director was prohibited from lending more than $10,000 to any person, firm or corporation, without specific authority of the Board. In June, 1908, a credit of some amount of four figures was given to the Keeley Jowsay Wood Mine Limited, and approved of by the Board of Directors; subsequently, the minute authorizing this advance, was changed, so that, in its changed form, it permitted the General Manager of the bank to advance to the mine in his discretion. It is claimed that the change in this minute constitutes a forgery, and a claim has been laid against the late manager of the bank in connection therewith.

The bank continued to advance to the mine in large amounts until December 4, 1908, when, at a meeting of the shareholders, at which were present Wishart, Nesbitt and Travers, authority was given to sell the assets of the Keeley Jowsay Wood Mine Limited to the Keeley Mine Limited, on condition that the stock in the latter company be issued one-fifth to Travers, one-fifth to Wishart, one-fifth to Beattie Nesbitt, one-fifth to the Farmers’ Bank of Canada and the remainder to remain in the treasury.

On June 10, 1905, the shareholders of the Keeley Jowsay Wood Limited confirmed this, and appointed the Chief Accountant of the Bank, liquidator of the company.
The Keeley Mine then took over the property and W. R. Travers as secretary thereof obtained moneys from the bank until the obligation of the mining company for cash advanced now appears to amount to $621,000. Included therein are two items amounting to $35,000, the proceeds of which did not go to the benefit of the mining company, but to Travers personally. Transactions connected with the procuring of this money are now under consideration by the Crown authorities.

The accounts of the mining company would seem to indicate that, with the exception of the $35,000 above mentioned, and three hundred thousand dollars paid for the property, the advances made by the bank to it was expended on the property. Considering, however, the large amount of money advanced by the bank to the mining company, creditors and shareholders will not be content to accept the auditor’s statements, but it will be necessary to investigate expenditures of the mining company in order to ascertain whether any diversion of money for other purposes was made.

In considering advances made by the bank to the mining company by way of loans, you will notice from what I have said that there was a distinct by-law of the bank prohibiting the general manager of the bank from making advances to any persons, firm or corporation over $10,000 without the approval of the board at a regular meeting. Advances were made by the general manager to the extent of $50,000 in this connection before the matter was drawn to the attention of the board, when a credit for some minor amount was obtained, and the minutes afterward falsified, so as to permit him to do what he saw fit. The original company having liquidated there is no authority upon the books of the bank permitting any advance to be made to the Keeley Mine Limited, neither is there any record whatsoever of the transaction having come before the board, excepting in one instance, where the bank is compelled to take over the Beattie Nesbitt stock in the hope of saving the advances made upon his credit. The board of directors deny absolutely, and completely, any knowledge whatsoever of the fact that the bank was advancing to the mine, and if they are able to convince the court that, individually, or severally, they had no such knowledge, it will then be apparent that the general manager carried these transactions through upon his own responsibility.

The propriety of the whole transaction is open to question, particularly when, as you will observe, the bank was expected to, and did put up the whole of the money for the purchase and operation of the mining company, when, at the most, it was to receive one-fourth of the profits, which might have been made from the undertaking, and stand the whole of the loss. There can be no doubt that the general manager of the bank was in a position of trust and it was his abuse of his position which allowed this condition of affairs to obtain.

We now come to the last item on the statement, Keeley Mines stocks and bonds account, $535,000. It is in regard to this item in particular that action was taken against the general manager of the bank on the ground that he rendered false returns to the government; but $75,000 of that amount represents actual cash expenditures by the bank in purchase of stock of the Keeley mine, and this $75,000 represents $60,000 credited to Beattie Nesbitt in liquidation of debts which he owed to the bank in consideration of his passing over to the bank $250,000 Keeley Mine stock, $10,000 to F. Crompton for $100,000 stock in Keeley Mine Company, and $5,000 to F. C. Whitney for $50,000 stock in Keeley Mine Company.

The remainder of the account has been used to cover up losses made by the bank, and excepting to the extent of about $156,000, which amount it is claimed the general manager of the bank obtained for his own personal purposes, transferring $150,000 of Keeley Mine stock on account thereof.

It was partly in regard to part of this latter item that the Crown took criminal action against him.

So far as I can make out, the position assumed by the manager of the bank was that, as the bank had obtained $500,000 of stock in the Keeley Mine, as a bonus for financing it, he had the right to allocate to this stock such value as he should see fit, and to charge up against that value any amounts which the bank might lose, or that he might think necessary in order to present a profit sufficient to allow him to pay dividends. To this contention, I am utterly unable to agree.

The board of directors claim to have had absolutely no knowledge of what was being done in this connection, and there is nothing in the minutes of the bank to show that the matter came to their attention. It will, however, be necessary for the directors to prove to the court that they had no knowledge of it, for as members of the board will no doubt appreciate, it was quite possible for them to have thoroughly canvassed the situation from time to time, and deliberately left the particulars of the discussion out of the minutes of the bank.

The item was carried in the government returns under the heading of 'Stocks and Bonds Account' and the question must surely arise as to why the directors did not obtain particulars of what the stocks and bonds were when they were considering the statements of the bank from time to time. It is possible, but it would seem almost improbable that they did not do so. In my opinion, however, and without casting reflection upon the directors personally, it would seem to me that the board was one particularly unfitted to be a board of a financial institution, in as much as many of the members were not familiar with financial matters.

The statement of affairs discloses a nominal deficiency of $436,000. This does not cover all the losses made by the bank by a considerable amount, as you will realize from what I have just told you. So far as I can ascertain the bank has lost at least $780,000 in its four years in business. The amount disbursed in organization expenses and stock subscriptions was not less than $55,000, and very probably it will be found to have been considerably more. The business of the bank has been conducted at a loss from the beginning. In 1907 its expenses were greater than its profits by $66,666; in 1908 its expenses were greater than its profits by $44,975, and in addition that year paid a dividend aggregating $19,844; in 1909 its expenses were greater than its profits by $30,422, and in addition to that paid dividends of $22,410; in 1910 it lost $46,255 and in addition paid a dividend of $11,324. In the four years of its existence, therefore, its losses in business (a part from bad debts) amounted to not less than $171,319, while it paid dividends to the extent of $53,078 out of capital.

Beyond these losses on operation, the bank stands to lose at least $440,000 on bad debts (in addition to $30,000 or $40,000 which is lost by reason of defalcations) —the total amount of these items aggregate about $780,000, and they were charged $234,000 against Keeley mines stock and bonds account, $110,000 against other accounts and left the deficiency of $436,000 as shown by the statement of affairs. That there will be other losses is undoubted, but it will mean carefully going over the books before they can be ascertained.

The Keeley mine stock account of $535,000 includes $75,000 paid for stock in the Keeley mine, $234,000 of losses, $156,000 money taken by the manager and the balance of $70,000 charged up for other items. I carried this account in the statement of affairs at its face value by reason of the bank owning $1,025,000 stock in the mining company, which stock may, or may not have a value according to the disposition which it may be found possible to make of the mine in future. I have not had the mine valued for the reason that any valuation made would be criticised, and I deem it distinctly against your interests and the interests of the bank that any statement should be made which would have an effect either of creating too much optimism in your minds or else of depreciating the price and perhaps compelling the bank thereby to take a lesser price than it might be able to obtain under other circumstances. Already a number of inquiries have been made for the mine, and it is probable that these inquiries would not be made unless the mining property had a substantial value, either speculative or in fact.

Considering the whole position of affairs of the bank, therefore, you will see that the prospect is not at all bright; shareholders can look for no return, but, on the other hand, I see little chance of their escaping a double liability. I do not advise creditors to look for more than a partial return of their claims, but I am not prepared at this time to make any estimate as to what this return will be.

It is apparent that the bank commenced business when it should not have done so; there was an impairment in its capital from the very start; the class of business which it took, excepting in the country branches, was not good, and in too many instances the bank supported undertakings to which it was lending money. Under these conditions the bank would have had a hard enough road to hoe anyway, but, when undertakings were entered into and the bank's money loaned to corporations in which an executive officer of the bank had a personal interest, it is apparent that its chances of success were not increased, and when the general manager of the bank undertook to abuse his trust and to use the moneys of the bank for his own personal benefit, violating the criminal laws and the by-laws of the bank and the confidence of everybody concerned, there could be but one end to it. As I have before stated, the personnel of your board of directors was not a means of strength so far as looking after the interests of the bank, under these circumstances, was concerned, in as much as they were hardly capable of discovering a number of the transactions entered into had they been alive to the necessity of investigating them, although I cannot see how they should have overlooked inquiring into the quality of the assets disclosed by the annual statements. If they are able to show to the courts that they were innocent of the condition of affairs, then I think you can attribute the failure of this bank to the dishonesty of the general manager.

RE KEELEY MINES.

On the 18th April, 1908, Dr. Beattie Nesbitt obtained an option on the property for $300,000, payable $50,000 on the 18th May, and the balance in instalments spread over a period of time.

On the 18th May, 1908, Dr. Beattie Nesbitt entered into an agreement under the terms on which Wishart, Travers and the Farmers' Bank were to participate in all benefits received by him from the option, and on the same day, he executed an additional agreement to the effect that he was not to deal with the option without the consent of the Farmers' Bank.

In May, 1908, the Keeley Jowsey Wood Mine Limited was formed, and, at a meeting of the Provincial Directors held in May, a resolution was passed by the Board to purchase the option from Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, and to issue to him the whole of the capital stock except $25, the capital stock to be $1,000,000 in payment for the option. On the same day, Wishart was elected President of the company, Nesbitt Vice-President and Travers was the third Director.

On the 20th May, the bank made an advance to Wishart of $25,397, and to the Keeley Jowsey Wood Mine of $25,000, apparently to take care of a payment of $50,000 to be made under the terms of the option agreement on or about 18th to 20th May. There was no authority at this time given to Travers to advance the money of the bank; such authority was not obtained until June 17 following. The by-laws of the bank prohibited the Managing Director from lending more than $10,000 of the bank's funds to any person, firm or corporation without specific authority of the Board.

On June 17th, 1908, a credit to some amount in four figures was given to the Keeley Jowsey Wood Mine Limited, and approved of by the Board of Directors, subsequently, the minutes authorizing this advance was changed, so that in its changed form it permitted the General Manager of the bank to advance to the mine in his discretion. It is claimed that the change in these minutes constituted a forgery, and the Crown are taking action in connection therewith.

The bank continued to advance money to the mining company, in large amounts, until December, 1908, when the shareholders of the Keeley Jowsey Wood Mine agreed to sell its assets, subject to its liabilities, the liability to the bank then being about $150,000 to the Keeley Mine Limited, on condition that the stock in the latter, which amounted to two and a half million dollars was to be issued, one-fifth to Travers, one-fifth to Nesbitt, one-fifth to Wishart, and one-fifth to the Farmers' Bank, and the balance to remain in the treasury. This transaction was put through and the Keeley Jowsey Wood Mine was wound-up, Fitzgibbon, the chief accountant of the bank, being the liquidator.

No authority appears on the books of the bank authorizing any advance to the Keeley Mine Limited, the Keeley Mine, however, assumed the liability of $150,000 of the Keeley Jowsey Wood Mine, and from that time forward, the bank loaned to the company another $471,000 so that at this date, the mining company is indebted to the bank in $621,000 for actual cash advanced. Of this $621,000 advanced to the mine, the general manager of the bank, Travers, took for his own benefit, $35,000 in two amounts of $15,000 and $20,000. The $15,000 obtained on October 6th, 1909, from the bank, when he discounted a note of the Keeley Mine in the bank for $15,000, and had the proceeds put to his own credit, subsequently using the same.

The mining company books show this advance of $15,000 from the bank, and they also show the Manager Travers, indebted to the company in the same amount, but, in the statements of the mining company rendered to its shareholders, both of these items are eliminated and not shown, showing that Travers was deceiving the shareholders of the mining company.

With regard to the $20,000, it covers an amount obtained from the bank by Travers on November 3, 1910, when he discounted a note of the Keeley Mine in the bank and had the sum put to his credit. This note is still in the bank, but the mining company has never received any of the money nor did it get any benefit. This means that out of the $621,000 advanced to the mine, $35,000 went to Travers for his personal use, and $585,000 apparently to the company.

My Dear Mr. Fielding,—I have been consulted on behalf of a number of subscribers to the shares of the Farmers' Bank, and from the instructions I have received a number of the subscribers will dispute the bona fide character of the subscriptions. I have not time tonight to give a full statement of the grounds of this request to you, but I beg to assure you that grave conditions have arisen which will require careful consideration before the Treasury Board would grant any certificate for the organization of this bank.

I therefore ask you to be good enough to stay any action which might be taken until I have had an opportunity of discussing this with you. If it is not asking you to hold it too long, I would prefer not having to go to Ottawa this week, but will go any day next week which would suit your convenience. Of course if there is no immediate prospect of your granting such a certificate my seeing you at an early date will not be necessary.

Re The Farmers' Bank of Canada.

My dear Mr. Fielding,—I beg to inclose the special endorsement upon a writ of summons in the High Court of Justice for Ontario, which will be issued by: William A. Saxon, John Sproat, George Castle, William McLean, Finlay McCallum, Robert Hume, James Murray, George Denoon, John McLeod, Jane Shuert, William Harris, on behalf of themselves and all other persons alleged to be subscribers for shares of the capital stock of the Farmers' Bank of Canada who may desire to come in and be parties to this action, against The Farmers' Bank of Canada, James Gallagher, John Watson, John Ferguson, Alexander Fraser, Alexander Shepherd, Lown, W. R. Travers, C. H. Smith, A. G. H. Luxton, and the Traders' Bank of Canada, and W. J. Lindsay, and I respectfully request that the Treasury Board will stay any action upon the application of persons professing to act in the name of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, or in the name of the provisional directors of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, for a certificate under section 15 of the Bank Act on the grounds alleged in the inclosed special endorsement, and other grounds which may be disclosed upon the examination of the alleged subscribers for shares.
I have received information that the alleged subscribers for shares paid a large sum of money in cash and have signed notes for other large sums of money, and that the persons professing to act in the name of the bank have transferred notes and received the proceeds, and that a deposit either has been made or will be made of the cash received and the proceeds of these notes, or sufficient amount to make up $250,000.

I wish you to have the kindness to acknowledge the receipt of this protest against the granting of a certificate so that I may advise the shareholders who are disputing their liability, and I would be pleased to go to Ottawa upon any appointment you may make for the further consideration of this matter.

A

In the matter of the Bank Act and amendments and of the Farmers’ Bank of Canada. This is Exhibit ‘A’ to the declaration of W. R. Travers declared before me this 27th day of November, 1906.

W. H. HUNTER,
A Comm. &c.

PROSPECTUS.

THE FARMERS’ BANK OF CANADA. INCORPORATED BY SPECIAL ACT OF THE PARLIAMENT OF THE DOMINION OF CANADA, 1904.

HEAD OFFICE: TORONTO. CAPITAL, $1,000,000, IN 10,000 SHARES OF $100 EACH.

THE FARMERS’ BANK OF CANADA.

General Manager.—W. R. Travers, formerly Manager of the Merchants’ Bank of Canada, Hamilton.

Solicitors.—Urquhart, Urquhart & McGregor.

Bankers.—The Traders’ Bank of Canada.

MORE BANKING FACILITIES REQUIRED.

The Farmers’ Bank of Canada is being formed to meet the increased banking facilities required by the natural and steady expansion of business coincident with the rapid development of the country, particularly its agricultural industries, to whose interests, whilst conducting a general banking business, it will aim to give special consideration.

No other safe business has been as profitable as banking.

No other profitable business has been as safe as banking.
EARNING POWER OF BANKS.

The profits of a bank are due to the fact that every business enterprise requires the assistance of a bank. The surplus money, large or small, of individuals is deposited in the bank and loaned by them at a higher rate of interest to business enterprises all over the country.

According to the latest bank report, chartered banks had—

| Total Deposits | $578,750,561 |
| Total Loans   | $514,943,121 |

Under the banking laws of Canada a chartered bank has also this additional earning power—that for every dollar of paid-up capital, it can issue its bills to that amount, thus doubling the earning power of its stockholders' money. For instance, the authorized capital of the Farmers' Bank of Canada is $1,000,000; if this were fully paid up the bank could issue $1,000,000 in bills, thus earning for its stockholders dividends on $2,000,000, giving the bank a double earning power on its capital.

The profits on bank stocks are distributed to the shareholders in two ways:
1st. Dividends paid direct to stockholders.
2nd. Profits over and above paying dividends placed to Rest account, which increase the value of their stock.

WHAT BANKS HAVE DONE—CANADIAN BANKS.

The following table shows what Canadian banks have done in the past for their stockholders:

The stockholders in these banks have thus received their dividends, and in addition their stock has more than doubled in value except in two or three cases.

This splendid showing has been made during a period when the trade of the country was stationary. At the present time, with our trade increasing very fast, the earning power of the banks will be greater than ever, as, for example, is shown by the following list of American banks under like conditions:

Bank stocks, therefore, offer to the investor—

1. A profitable investment.
2. A safe investment.
3. An investment increasing in value.
4. An investment easily realizable.

INVESTMENTS IN BANKS RARE.

The opportunity for investment in stock in a new bank in Canada is rare. It is impossible to get stock in a chartered bank at other than market prices. The stock of a chartered bank which has been going on for some time sells so readily, that it must be purchased at the large premiums at which such shares sell in the open market.

Banks have the power of easily increasing the amount of their capital stock, but whenever they do so the new stock must be first offered pro rata to existing shareholders. In every case in which such has been done the existing shareholders have taken up the whole of the issue, and the general public has been unable to obtain any of it. Should the Farmers' Bank of Canada increase its capital stock in the future, shareholders would also have this privilege, which is considered one of the advantages of being a shareholder.

CAPITAL STOCK.

The capital of the Farmers' Bank of Canada is $1,000,000, divided into 10,000 shares of $100 each.

The first block of $500,000 is offered at par, and will be payable as follows:—
On subscription, $10 per share; a further $20 per share upon allotment; and seven equal payments of $10 each per share; the first of such payments to be made 30 days after allotment and the succeeding payments at intervals of 30 days each.

On payments made in advance of monthly instalments interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum will be allowed.

MANAGEMENT.

The gentlemen who have consented to act as directors have been successful in their own business affairs, and are men in whom the public have the highest confidence.

Their selection will have to be ratified at the first meeting of the shareholders. Additional directors will also be selected from amongst the shareholders at the said meeting by the shareholders themselves, so that the shareholders will have a direct opportunity of seeing that the affairs of the bank shall be entrusted to careful and competent management.

Arrangements have been made whereby the office of General Manager will be filled by a well-known, experienced and successful banker, who has held very responsible positions in one of the largest Canadian banks.

The Stock books are now open for subscription at the Provisional Office, 118 King street west, Toronto.

The Provisional Directors reserve the right to allot or reject any subscription in whole or in part.

Cheques, drafts, money orders, and other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to 'The Farmers' Bank of Canada'; any payments made otherwise entirely at the subscriber's risk.

Applications for stock can be made in person or by Power of Attorney, form of which is inclosed.

Any further particulars will be furnished on application to C. H. Smith, The Secretary of the Provisional Board of Directors of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, 118 King street west, Toronto, Ont.
To the Farmers' Bank of Canada:

We, the undersigned, do hereby severally apply for, and subscribe for, the respective number of shares of the capital stock of the Farmers' Bank of Canada set opposite our respective signatures hereto, and we hereby respectively offer and agree to pay for the said stock, $100 for each $100 share as follows: $10 per share upon the signing hereof, a further $20 per share upon allotment by the provisional board of directors or the directors of the said bank to the undersigned respectively, and the balance in seven equal monthly payments of $10 each per share, the first of such payments to be made thirty days after allotment, and the succeeding payments at intervals of thirty days, making in all $100 per share.

And we respectively agree to accept and pay for, as above mentioned, whatever number of shares of our said respective subscriptions may be allotted, notwithstanding that the whole number of shares applied for be not allotted.

We further respectively agree that, if default be made in the payment of any of the instalments or percentages above mentioned, the board of provisional directors, or the directors of the said bank, may at their option enforce payment by action in the usual way, or may proceed under the provisions of the Bank Act and the by-laws of the bank, for the forfeiture of the said shares.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE OF CANADA,

OTTAWA, 28th November, 1906.

The Deputy Minister of Finance,
OTTAWA.

SIR,—I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 28th instant, and of the inclosed papers, being the application from the Farmers' Bank of Canada for a certificate to commence business, under section 13-17 of the Bank Act, and papers in support thereof.

You ask me to advise you if on the papers submitted such certificate may legally issue.

In reply, I beg to state that the statements in the statutory declaration of Mr. Walter R. Travers are sufficient, if they are accepted, to show compliance with the statutory provisions, and that the evidence thus afforded is such as the Treasury Board may lawfully accept under the Act, and thereupon issue to the bank a certificate under section 14 of the Act.

Papers returned herewith.

E. L. NEWCOMBE,
Deputy Minister of Justice.

MINISTER OF FINANCE, CANADA,

OTTAWA, November 30th, 1906.

W. R. TRAVERS, Esq.,
General Manager of the Farmers' Bank of Canada,
Russell House, Ottawa.

DEAR SIR,—I regret that owing to pressing engagements yesterday, arising out of the Budget, I was unable to meet you to consider your application for the issue of a certificate to authorize the Farmers' Bank of Canada to commence business. I shall be glad to see you to-day, at my office, at any time before one o'clock if you can call. Or I might be able to see you later, between four and five, at the House of Commons, if that will be more convenient.

There is a phase of the matter which I should like to bring to your notice so that you may consider it at once. It has been represented to us that in some previous instances where an application was in all respects apparently regular, there was actually an evasion of the intention of the Bank Act in relation to the paid-up capital. We have been told that in some cases the subscribers did not actually pay in cash but gave notes to the provisional directors which were used to raise the money. On account of information of this kind, which has reached us in relation to a previous case, we deem it proper to scan very closely every application for a certificate which comes to us. I shall be glad to have an assurance that nothing of the kind has taken place in relation to the subscriptions for the Farmers' Bank, but that the amounts set forth in the application as having been paid up have in every case been bona fide cash payments.

W. S. FIELDING,
Minister of Finance.

OTTAWA, November 30, 1906.

The Hon. W. S. Fielding,
Minister of Finance, Ottawa, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—In reply to your letter of the 30th of November, I have to say that in the case of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, the provisional directors did not raise the money in the way mentioned by you. You will find the statement put in by me absolutely correct as to the amount of stock subscribed and the amount paid up.

W. R. TRAVERS,
General Manager, Farmers' Bank of Canada.

Farmers' Bank of Canada.

Dear Sir,—In connection with the application of the Farmers' Bank of Canada for the usual certificate from the Treasury Board, I have reason to believe that the money lodged, or to be lodged, at Ottawa as stock subscriptions, cannot be regarded as paid-up capital, and that a large proportion of the amount necessary to the obtaining of a certificate is a loan made upon the promise of its payment when returned by your Department.

Permit me to request that, if only for the protection of the public, the Treasury Board will exercise its right to refuse to issue a certificate if it thinks best so to do, until a thorough investigation has been made into the circumstances stated herein.

E. S. CLOUSTON,
President.

Finance Department, Ottawa, Canada,

December 3, 1906.

E. S. CLOUSTON, ESQ.,
President Canadian Bankers' Association,
Montreal, P.Q.

Dear Mr. CLOUSTON,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th ultimo, respecting the Farmers' Bank of Canada. I note what you state with regard to the money paid in under section 13 of the Bank Act.

In view of the published reports in the newspapers, of some litigation in connection with the subscriptions to the capital of this bank, the matter has had the careful attention of the Department, and some time ago the general manager of the bank was communicated with to the effect that when applying for the certificate to commence business, in addition to the list of subscriptions to the extent of a half million required by the Bank Act, the statement should contain also the actual amount of cash paid up by each subscriber on his subscription. On the 29th ultimo application, in due form, was made by the bank for the certificate permitting it to commence the business of banking. The application was accompanied by the usual documents and also by a list of the subscriptions of cash paid in by each subscriber. The list itself covers over 500 names and nothing therein appeared calling for any particular comment. From the statutory declaration of the general manager I quote the following paragraphs:—

4. On the twenty-third day of October, 1906, there had been actually bona fide subscribed five thousand seven hundred and fifty-seven shares of the capital stock of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, and I have had personal knowledge of the applications and subscriptions, and each and all of the said subscriptions is and are on the printed form of application—a copy of which is now produced and marked Exhibit 'C,' to this my declaration, and that the said subscription appeared on the stock books of the said bank, and that a sum beyond $250,000 thereof in cash has been actually paid in by the subscribers of the same.

5. Now shown to me and marked Exhibit 'D' to this my declaration is a list of the subscribers of the capital stock of the said bank correctly setting forth as to each subscription the name of the subscriber, his address, the number of shares subscribed for by him, the amount of such shares and the amount paid in thereon. Each of the said subscriptions is a bona fide subscription to the capital stock of the said bank.

I previously had some conversation with Mr. Fielding, who was very busy in connection with the preparation of the Budget speech, with regard to this application. But on Friday last, the day after the delivery of the Budget speech, Mr. Travers, the general manager, had an interview with him. In the course of this interview that gentleman gave a most positive assurance that 'not a dollar' of the amount deposited had been borrowed. For the purpose of record Mr. Fielding wrote Mr. Travers a letter, of which I inclose a copy, asking for the assurance that the amounts set forth in the application as having been paid in were in every case bona fide cash payments. I inclose a copy of Mr. Travers' reply.

Under these circumstances there did not seem to be any warrant for the withholding of a certificate under section 14 of the Act, accordingly, a certificate was issued on the 30th ultimo.

DEAR SIR,—Will you kindly give me your opinion as to the following: Our general manager sends to the different branches lists of notes given in payment of our capital stock. These notes he makes the managers put through as discounts, crediting the amount to H.O. This is figured in the government return as paid up capital and circulation issued to that amount. If I read the Bank Act correctly, section 76, he is asking us to do what is not right. As I do not wish to do anything contrary to the law I should be much obliged if you give me the ruling on it. With many apologies for troubling you.

Parliamentary business at this time in the session takes precedence over other duties. Sir Edward Clouston,
President Canadian Bankers' Association,
Montreal, P.Q.

DEAR SIR EDWARD Clouston,—Mr. Knight telephoned me to-day with regard to the Farmers' Bank and a reported proposed transaction in connection with the sale of a large amount of stock. I have examined the bank's returns for some months past and I find in March last that the subscribed capital of the Farmers' Bank increased from $638,700 in February to $1,000,000 in March. The paid up capital from that time until the present has increased, but not very materially.

In view of Mr. Knight's message I thought it well, under section 113 of the Bank Act, to call for a special return showing the names and addresses of the new subscribers, the amounts subscribed and the amounts paid in on account thereof to date; also information with regard to any transfers which have taken place between that time and the present. This information may be of interest and of use to the department, and, so far as I can ascertain from the Bank Act, is as far as I have any authority to go.

Dear Sir,—I received your telegram of to-day and wired as follows: ‘Subscribed Capital $1,000,000, Paid-up Capital $541,881.

This request strikes me as being rather strange considering that our statement to the 30th of November would be mailed in a few days. It must really be that some enemies of this bank are bringing some influence to bear upon the Department to try to injure this bank. Permit me to say that our affairs are in as good shape, or perhaps better for the size of the bank, than any other in Canada.

Should the public become aware that the department was asking for special statements from time to time, there being no earthly reason for them, serious trouble could not but ensue to this bank, and those to blame would have to accept the responsibility.

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

FINANCE DEPARTMENT,

OTTAWA, CANADA, December 23, 1909.

W. R. TRAVERS, ESQ.,
General Manager, Farmers’ Bank of Canada,
Toronto, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—I have been examining the Bank returns for November last, especially with regard to the reserve held by the Banks against immediate liabilities. The amount of cash reserve held by the whole of the Chartered Banks is reported on that date as $103,808,457, of which $31,797,856 is specie and $71,510,601 Dominion notes, or a little over 12 per cent against the amount of notes in circulation, and the deposits by the public payable on demand and the deposits by the public payable after notice. The total amount of the liabilities of all the Banks is reported as $968,603,603. The total amount of specie and Dominion Notes held on the 30th November represents something over 10 per cent.

In analysing these figures in the case of individual banks I find that in your case the proportion of cash reserve to immediate liabilities to the public and also to the total liabilities is something over 2 per cent.

It seems to the department that a cash reserve of between 2 and 3 per cent to immediate liabilities totalling over $2,000,000 seems very small compared with what is usually held. The Bank Act establishes no fixed proportion of cash reserve to be held; That is left to be governed by the particular circumstances of each bank. In the case of your institution there may be conditions of which this department is unaware which might enable the holding of an exceptionally small reserve.

I am directed by the Minister of Finance to ask you to be good enough to advise me of the nature of the special circumstances which you may regard as justifying you in holding such a small proportion of cash reserve against such a large amount of liabilities, the payment of which might be immediately demanded.

THE FARMERS’ BANK OF CANADA,

GENERAL MANAGER’S OFFICE,

TORONTO, December 27, 1909.

T. C. BOVILLE, ESQ.,
Deputy Minister of Finance,
Ottawa, Ontario.

DEAR SIR,—I have your favour of the 23rd, and in reply beg to say that under the heading of ‘Other Assets not included under the foregoing heads’ is a deposit with the Trusts & Guaranty Co. of $147,380, which we have been placing under that head as per your instructions of February, 1907. By some oversight the usual notation was not made at the foot of our return as you will find on previous ones.

In addition to this, under the heading of “Deposits made and Balances due from other Banks in Canada” you will find $96,154, both of which amounts are subject to our cheque on call and, therefore can be converted into legals any day we wish.

In addition to this, the legals and specie on hand, and it will make a total of over $300,000, which equals 15 per cent upon our total liabilities, which is a better showing than the general average you speak of.

In the absence of a rest fund, we cannot afford to keep much idle money.

W. R. TRAVERS,
General Manager.
State of New York,
Insurance Department,
Albany, January 11, 1910.

Honourable William S. Fielding,
Minister of Finance,
Parliamentary Building, Ottawa,
Dominion of Canada.

My Dear Sir,—Since December 25, 1909, this department has been investigating a transaction whereby, as now appears, the control of the People’s Mutual Life Insurance Association and League, a fraternal beneficiary society organized under the laws of New York and doing business from a principal office at Syracuse, was by its then directors transferred to one John Tevis, of Louisville, Ky., and his associates, for what now seems to be a very substantial consideration. This company, being a fraternal society, under the decisions of the courts of this State, the moneys paid by Mr. Tevis and his associates to certain directors of the People’s Mutual Life Insurance Association and League belong to that society and not to them. At present advised, the amount of such payment was $110,000.

The moneys to accomplish this transfer were, so this department is informed, raised by Mr. Tevis on his obligation, or the obligation of himself and his associates, given to the Farmers’ Bank of Canada, located at Toronto. The statement is made that Mr. Tevis, or he and his associates, secured such loan on collaterals furnished by him or them. The facts thus far developed seem to indicate that, as a part of the transaction, the new management at once disposed of about $180,000 of the securities of the insurance company and transferred $150,000, which was the amount loaned by the Farmers’ Bank to Mr. Tevis, or to him and his associates, to such Farmers’ Bank, receiving therefrom a pen-written certificate of deposit dated December 20, 1909, the same having been issued by W. R. Travers, the general manager of such bank, who was at that time in Syracuse.

On learning the facts this Department required the insurance company to give notice to the Farmers’ Bank that it elected to withdraw such deposit, the certificate issued seeming to require such notice, the following words having been used therein: ‘Ninety days’ notice to be given of withdrawal.’ Were this bank in this state it would be easily possible under our insurance law for me to ascertain the facts as to this transaction, so far as such bank is concerned. It being an institution which, as I understand, it is under your jurisdiction, may I not request that if consistent with your duty you ascertain for this department:—

1. What was the arrangement between John Tevis, or John Tevis and his associates, whereby the Farmers’ Bank of Canada advanced to him, or to him and them, $150,000 shortly prior to December 20, 1909; the information desired to include, if you think proper, the names of any other persons associated with Mr. Tevis in borrowing this money from such bank, and the collateral or collaterals deposited by him or them in that connection.

2. What arrangement there was between Mr. Tevis and this bank which led its general manager to proceed to Syracuse with the currency, instead of delivering to Mr. Tevis a draft or check, to which if he was a borrower in due course he should have been entitled.

3. Whether as a part of the arrangement it was understood and agreed between Mr. Tevis, or Mr. Tevis and associates, and the Farmers’ Bank of Canada, that the insurance company should deposit with such bank said sum of $150,000, that being the sum also loaned.

4. Whether or not The Farmers’ Bank of Canada has any lien or claim upon the deposit of $150,000, seeming to have been made with it on or about December 20, 1909, and evidenced by the certificate of deposit above mentioned. In this connection I have you herewith a photographic copy of such certificate of deposit, which, in the opinion of this department, indicates that the transaction was not in due course of business.

I shall also be grateful to you for any other information which you care to furnish concerning this transaction.

DEAR SIR,—I beg to inclose copy of a letter received by the Minister of Finance from Mr. William H. Hotchkiss, Superintendent of Insurance, Albany, New York State. The Minister did not feel that under the circumstances he would be justified in taking the particular step desired by Mr. Hotchkiss. WM. H. HOTCHKISS, Supt.

STATE OF NEW YORK INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

ALBANY, JANUARY 14, 1910.

Hon. WILLIAM S. FIELDING,
Minister of Finance,
Ottawa, Canada.

DEAR SIR,—In explanation of my telegram as follows:

Before receipt your telegraph yesterday afternoon had instructed Arthur F. Saxton, examiner this department, to proceed to Toronto, interview Farmers' Bank and get facts. Should you desire you can reach him care King Edward Hotel to-day.

permit me to say, the New York World of the 12th contained a telegram from Toronto, which stated in substance that W. R. Travers, the general manager of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, was willing to come to Albany at any time for examination touching his connection with the People's Mutual Life Insurance Association and League. On such matter being brought to my attention, I immediately wired Mr. Travers asking him to appear before me to-day, Friday. In reply thereto I received a telegram from him yesterday which stated in substance that he could not say at present when he could get away, but would advise me later. The facts surrounding the whole transaction with this bank being such, and there being a possibility that it might claim a lien upon the $150,000 deposited with it by the People's Mutual on December 20, seemed to make it imperative that I send an examiner to Toronto immediately. Hence, I instructed Examiner Saxton, whose name is given you in the telegram, to start for that city and to gather such facts as he could there to-day. Information which has reached this department indicates that John Tevis, who purports to be the borrower of the $150,000 from the Farmers' Bank of Canada, is a man without financial responsibility. Two creditors of his have already attached some of the funds still undistributed in this People's Mutual matter at Syracuse.

I wanted you to have these facts in explanation of the other fact that Mr. Saxton is in Toronto to-day, you having in your telegram yesterday—received after he was sent—indicated that you expected to bring the matter directly to the attention of the Farmers' Bank. Mr. Saxton will return to Syracuse to-night, but if needed for a further investigation in Toronto will be ordered back. He is thoroughly familiar with all of the facts surrounding this unfortunate transaction.

WILLIAM H. HOTCHKISS,

THE FARMERS' BANK OF CANADA,
GENERAL MANAGER'S OFFICE,
TORONTO, January 21, 1910.

T. C. BOVILLE, Esq.,
Deputy Minister of Minister of Finance,
Ottawa, Ontario.

DEAR Sir,—I have yours of the 14th with inclosure, and regret that my actions have caused you trouble.

To understand this matter properly, I will require to go back a few months. Messrs. Knabe, of the American Piano Company, New York and Baltimore, hold $112,000 stock in this bank in the name of their representative, Mr. John Tevis. They and their friends were anxious to obtain control of a Canadian Life Insurance Company and approached me to assist them with influence in the matter, which resulted in their obtaining control of a good company and their paying $100,000 on account of the option.

They heard that the People's Mutual of Syracuse could be purchased, as it appeared to be a dying concern, although having large assets, and that the risks could be reinsured with profit with some of their other companies. They asked me to give them financial aid in acquiring this company and wanted a loan of $150,000, secured by first-class collateral, and they were, after obtaining control of the company, to deposit $150,000 in this bank.

I had not the New York exchange, and they said our circulation would be sufficient to make a tender, and if the deal went through the First National Bank would accept the same and pay it out by degrees.

I an't my chief inspector took the circulation over there, but matters did not turn out just as we expected and we brought it back; therefore, it was never issued.

I did, however, take a demand note for $150,000, secured by collateral, for which I issued an informal deposit receipt on obtaining from the majority of the directors an agreement to convert the said deposit into paid up stock in this bank. The agreement read, and the whole understanding was, that the entire deal was to be consummated on the 15th of January. Therefore I did not nor have not as yet made any entries, no loan having been made, nor no cash received.

In the meantime the State Department stepped in through some political influence and stirred up trouble, which has thrown everything into confusion in the meantime, but I have every reason to believe that a legitimate and favourable settlement will soon be made.
I regret that you consider this an unusual banking transaction, but my sole and only object was with a view of placing more of my stock and the obtaining of large deposits.

W. R. TRAVERS,
General Manager.

The Honourable
Deputy Minister of Finance,

Sir,—Since seeing you this afternoon I have communicated with Superintendent Hotchkiss on the telephone and ascertained that all the testimony in this case is in the hands of the grand jury and the district attorney of Syracuse, N.Y., from whom you will doubtless be able to obtain copies to use as you may desire.

If you or the Finance Minister desire to borrow the copies I have with me we shall be very glad to loan them to you for two or three days, in which case please communicate with me at the Russell House before 10.30 p.m., as, unless I can be of assistance to you by staying here, I shall leave for Toronto on the 11.10 p.m. train. To-morrow and Friday I can be reached at the office of Blake, Lash and Cassels, Canadian Bank of Commerce Building, Toronto.

As I said this afternoon, I am prepared to stay here, or go anywhere, if in your judgment there is any chance of my presence being advisable.

My conversation with Superintendent Hotchkiss over the ’phone was necessarily hurried, but he expressed his gratification at the interest you have shown in the matter.

OTTAWA, Canada, January 26, 1910.

Wm. W. S. FIELDING,
Minister of Finance,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—Following up the interview with you this morning, I write to ask that in the event of any further representation being made to you by the parties who now have possession of what is called a deposit receipt of the Farmers' Bank of Canada for $150,000, or in the event of any application being made to you for departmental action against the bank or its manager, that you would be good enough to give us notice so that we may have an opportunity to attend again before you in the presence of these parties or otherwise, and then to present all the documents and correspondence and books to satisfy you that no liabilities exists on the part of the bank to pay the amount claimed.

I wish to repeat that my own inquiry has led me to the conclusion that no such liability exists and I have so advised the board of directors of the bank. Under the circumstances disclosed to me I think it would not be possible for the parties to recover against the bank in any proceedings they might be advised to institute, and, further, it would be a matter of surprise to me if under the circumstances they commence such an action in our courts.

I should add that I do not think the commencement of such an action would now lead to any crisis in the affairs of the bank or that it would cause very much embarrassment to the bank unless persons maliciously disposed should misrepresent the conditions or suppress material circumstances—and I do not think there should be reason to apprehend that. I will be here during to-morrow and I will be pleased to attend you further as you may request.

I will be glad also to make production to you from the bank of all documents and books that you may call for. It is, of course, very important to avoid publicity of any official inquiry by you, although, as stated, I do not apprehend any serious results of any action to recover the amount claimed.

I beg again to ask your consideration and that I should be notified of any further requests or claims made to you in the premises.

The New Russell,
OTTAWA.

DEAR SIR,—At the request of Mr. Fielding I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 28th instant respecting the Farmers' Bank of Canada.

T. C. BOVILLE,
Deputy Minister of Finance.

TORONTO, January 27, 1910.

Hon. The Deputy Minister of Finance,
OTTAWA, Ont.

SIR,—It has occurred to me since seeing you yesterday that it might be well for me to explain in a letter the proceedings of the bank with reference to the repudiation of the deposit of the Insurance Company.

On Wednesday, the 19th inst., Mr. Hadley, the representative of this department, called at the office of the bank, and presenting the certificate of deposit applied for return of the amount of the deposit. After interviewing the General Manager, the Chief Accountant and Manager of the Toronto branch, the last stated that the receipt was informal and not on the bank’s regular form, and that he could not recognize it without specific instructions from the General Manager. The General Manager told our representative to return about three o’clock in the afternoon. At a few minutes to three our representative knocked at the door of the General Manager’s room, whereupon the General Manager opened the door a few inches, and stated that his Board of Directors had refused to accept the waiver of notice. This statement seemed to imply that the directors accepted the validity of the deposit receipt. The directors’ meeting was, of course, held on that day in addition to the general meeting of the stockholders of the bank.

On the afternoon of January 24, Mr. A. W. Anglin, our legal representative and I had an interview with Mr. Watson, who represents the bank in this matter. Mr. Watson stated that there had been a meeting of the bank’s directors that day at which Mr. Travers and Mr. Hunter, the legal representatives of the bank were present. At this meeting it had been decided that any liability upon the deposit receipt should be absolutely repudiated, and that the loan to Tevis should also be absolutely repudiated, and that a letter should be written to Tevis notifying him that the stock he had deposited with the bank and which was then in Toronto, was held subject to his order. Mr. Watson further stated that these decisions were entered in the minutes of the meeting of that date (January the 24th). Mr. Watson further stated that this had been the determination arrived at at the board meeting, held Wednesday the 19th of January, although no record of that fact had been made in the minutes of the meeting held on that date.

CHARLES HUGHES,

Chief Inspector of Casualty and Miscellaneous Insurance Companies for the Insurance Dept. of the State of New York.

Finance Department,

Ottawa, Canada, January 28, 1910.

William H. Hotchkiss, Esq.,

Superintendent of Insurance,

Albany, N.Y., U.S.A.

Dear Sir,—At the request of Mr. Fielding I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 14th instant on the subject of your inquiries into certain transactions of the Farmers' Bank of Canada.

At the same time I send you herewith a copy of the reply received from the general manager of that institution, to whom a copy of your letter of the 11th instant was sent for such explanation as could be offered. In connection with the above matter I may say that Mr. Hughes, your examiner, visited the department on the 26th instant.

T. C. BOVILLE,

Deputy Minister of Finance.

State of New York, Insurance Department,

Albany, January 31, 1910.

Honourable T. C. Boville,

Deputy Minister of Finance,

Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, Canada.

My Dear Sir,—This acknowledges yours of January 28, inclosing copy of letter addressed to you by W. R. Travers, general manager of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, which letter is dated January 21, 1910. I note that Mr. Travers takes the position that the certificate of deposit was informal merely. You will doubtless recall that when sworn and examined before me at Syracuse on January 17, 1910, Mr. Travers not only admitted that such certificate of deposit was a liability of his bank, but stated that the same would be paid. You will doubtless recall further a letter written by Mr. Travers to one M. G. Hunt on December 21, 1909, a copy of which was, I think, shown you by Chief Examiner Hughes when he was in Ottawa.

In view of the facts as they have been submitted to you since the receipt of the letter which you inclose, I trust that your department will feel it proper to continue its investigation to the end that justice may be done both in the Dominion and in the State of New York.

WILLIAM H. HOTCHKISS,

Superintendent.
DEAR SIR,—About two months ago, I spoke to you in connection with a matter in which the Farmers' Bank was interested. The First National Bank of Syracuse and the People's Life Insurance Company of same place, claimed to have a deposit receipt of the Farmers' Bank for the sum of $150,000. It was deemed a matter of some importance, and you may recall that I then explained to you that the difficulty arose in relation to a proposed transaction never carried out and afterward entirely abandoned. I also then stated to you the circumstances under which the possession of the document was obtained.

I was at the time quite satisfied that there was no liability on the part of the Farmers' Bank in connection with the matter, and it was always quite certain that the bank had not received any money on deposit for which such a receipt could regularly or properly be issued.

On behalf of the bank, I am glad now to be able to state you that the document has been handed back to us by the First National Bank of Syracuse. We were informed that the parties who had obtained the moneys from that bank on the credit of this document made full refund of such moneys, and the document has, therefore, quite recently been delivered to us for the bank.

The result is a full confirmation of the instructions received by me from the Farmers' Bank and which I communicated to you on the occasion of.

I make this further communication to you so that you may be informed of the facts and in the interest of the Farmers' Bank.

GEORGE H. WATSON.

MINISTER OF FINANCE, CANADA,

May 12, 1910.

DEAR SIR,—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 10th instant. I am obliged to you for the information you have given me concerning the Farmers' Bank.

FARMERS BANK OF CANADA

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Report of Informal Meeting:

The Secretary then read the following statement of the Proceedings at an informal meeting of the petitioners for the incorporation of the Bank, viz:—

"Following a number of informal meetings and conferences during the previous, and this month, and in expectation that the Royal Assent would have been given on the previous day to the Act incorporating THE FARMERS' BANK OF CANADA, the promoters of said Bank met on the 14th day of July, 1904, pursuant to regular call, in the parlour of the Iroquois Hotel, Toronto, for the purpose of organization and the transaction of Business.

There were present:—

A. S. LOWN, Esq., Drayton, Ont.
DR. FERGUSON, Toronto.
JAMES GALLAGHER, Esq., Teeswater, Ont. and ALEXANDER FRASER, Esq., Toronto.

A telegram from John Watson, Esq., Listowel, was read, regretting his inabiity to be present.

Dr. Ferguson was called upon to preside and Mr. Alexander Fraser, was asked to act as Secretary to the meeting.

Mr. Lown reported that the Royal Assent had not been given to their Bill on account of the absence from Ottawa of His Excellency the Governor General, and therefore, that their meeting was not a formal one, according to statute, but that matters of interest could be discussed and suggestions made which would be helpful at a later charge of the process of organization. The conclusions arrived at were that it seemed desirable;

(a) That the first $500,000.00 of capital stock should be offered at par, and the remainder at a premium to be fixed according to conditions existing at the time;

(b) That certain gentlemen should be approached with the view to obtaining subscriptions for stock from them on the opening of the stock books of the Bank;

(c) That Dr. Ferguson and Mr. Fraser be a Committee to select and rent a suitable office in which the business of the Bank may be conducted temporarily, and to purchase a few necessary articles of furniture and stationery for the same;

(d) That Mr. Fraser and Mr. Lown be requested to prepare material for a prospectus and to enquire re cost of printing forms, etc.

(e) That Mr. Fraser procure 2000 blank forms for the subscription of stock; and make enquiry re: a design for letter headings and bank notes.

The methods to be followed in the sale of stock and in the launching of the Bank were discussed at length, and the Meeting adjourned until a date after the Act of Incorporation had been obtained.

Signed: "ALEXANDER FRASER",
Acting Secretary.

This Statement was received and the conclusions therein set forth, and the several requests therein contained were concurred in by the Meeting.

The Secretary read the following reports:—

(4) That Mr. Lown and he would likewise report progress as to the Prospectus, at the next meeting of the Board.

Signed, "ALEXANDER FRASER",

Acting Secretary.

Minutes of the regular meeting of the Provisional Board of

There were present:

DR. FERGUSON, Chairman,
A. S. LOWN,

JOHN WATSON,
ALEXANDER FRASER, Secretary, and
C. H. SMITH.

The Secretary explained that since the last Meeting of the Provisional Board, it had been suggested to him that the gentlemen who had consented to act on the Permanent Board should be invited to meet the Provisional Board at a luncheon at the Queen's Hotel to-day, so that an opportunity should thereby be afforded for conference as to the affairs of the Bank;

That he had communicated this desire to all the members of the Board and had received their cordial concurrence in the idea. The meeting had, therefore, been postponed from the 19th inst., until to-day, in order to avoid two meetings on the same week.

The meeting endorsed the Secretary's action, and as Messrs. Gallagher and Watson required to return home that afternoon, it was agreed that a meeting of the Board to be attended by a quorum should be held on the next day to allot stock and transact routine business.

The luncheon was attended by Hon. Thomas Ballantyne, W. Harland Smith, Robert Beith, Dr. Coghlan, Mr. C. H. Smith and members of the Provisional Board, and after it was over, a complete statement of what had been done was made by the Secretary, supplemented by Dr. Ferguson and Mr. A. S. Lown.

Mr. Ballantyne, Mr. Harland Smith, Dr. Coghlan and Mr. Robert Beith expressed satisfaction with the statement, and confidence in the success of the organization and of the future of the Bank.

It was agreed that when property suitable for headquarters had been prospected by the Provisional Board the advice of the proposed Permanent Directors would be solicited, as also in any important step taken in connection with the opening of the Bank.

The conference then adjourned.

And I make this Declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true and Knowing it to be of the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of the Canada Evidence Act, 1903.

Declared before me, in the City of Toronto, in the County of York, this 26th day of November, 1906.

Commissioner.

The Chairman read provision of Section 13 of the Bank Act and said the first business before the Meeting would be to determine the day upon which the Annual General Meeting of the Bank is to be held.

Upon motion of R. R. McLennan, Seconded by W. J. Lindsay, it was resolved that the Annual General Meeting of the Bank be held this day, the 26th of November, 1906, and annually thereafter on the 4th Monday in November in each year.

The Chairman stated that the next business before the meeting would be to determine the number of Directors of the Bank and upon motion of N. M. Devean, seconded by W. L. Symons, it was resolved that the number of Directors of the Bank be fixed at twelve until further order of the shareholders expressed at a General Meeting of the Bank.

The Chairman appointed the following to be scrutineers for the election of Directors of the Bank, namely: J. G. Fitzgibbon, A. R. Shaver and D. S. Macquodale.

The Chairman then announced that he was open to receive nominations in writing for Directors of the Bank for the ensuing year, when the following nominations were handed in:

Col. R. R. McLennan, Cornwall, Ont.
Col. James Munro, Embro, Ont.
Robert Noble, Esq., Norval, Ont.
Allan Eaton, Esq., Mount Nemo, Ont.
W. G. Sinclair, Zimmerman, Ont.
Dr. W. Beattie Nesbitt, Toronto, Ont.
N. M. Devean, Esq., Toronto, Ont.
John Gilchrist, Toronto, Ont.

The Chairman declared the nominations closed.

The Number of Directors nominated not exceeding the required number, the Chairman directed the scrutineers to cast ballot for the gentlemen so nominated, and the scrutineers having reported that the following have received all the votes cast, the Chairman declared them to be elected Directors of the Bank until the next Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the Bank.
The said Directors are as follows:—

Col. R. R. McLennan, Cornwall, Ont.
Col. James Munro, Embro, Ont.
Robert Noble, Esq., Norval, Ont.
Allan Eaton, Esq., Mount Nemo, Ont.
W. G. Sinclair, Esq., Zimmernah, Ont.
Dr. W. Beattie Nesbitt, Toronto, Ont.
N. M. Devean, Toronto, Ont.
John Gilchrist, Toronto, Ont.

The Chairman called upon the Secretary to read the report of the Provisional Directors of the Bank; which report is as follows:—

Toronto, November 20th, 1906.

The Provisional Board of the Farmers Bank of Canada desire to make the following report:—

1. This Bank was duly incorporated by Act of Parliament of The Dominion of Canada, duly assented to on the 18th day of July, 1904, was renewed for one year from that date, and was afterwards renewed for six months.

2. Owing to certain circumstances over which the Board had no control, arrangements which the Board had made from time to time to have the Stock of the Bank duly subscribed and the organization completed proved abortive: but on the 22nd day of March, 1906, the Board entered into an arrangement with Mr. W. R. Travers by which the sale of the stock and the organization of the Bank was practically placed in his hands, and the Board are now happy to report that they are in a position to comply with all the Government requirements, and to ask the Treasury Board for a license to do business on behalf of The Farmers Bank of Canada: and the Board desire earnestly to report that since the Organization of the Bank and the subscription of the stock was placed in Mr. Travers' hands, it has progressed in the most satisfactory way, and to express their sincere appreciation of the energy and ability with which he has conducted his duties.

3. Owing to the long time in which the organization of the Bank has been in progress, the labors of the Board and the expenses of the organization have been more difficult and higher than they would have been under ordinary circumstances.

4. The Board have no report in the first place, that they have the sum of $579,200 bona fide subscribed, and out of the subscriptions thereon, they have paid into the Treasury Department of The Dominion Government, the sum of $250,000 and that the expenses of the organization up to date as far as has been paid by the Board amounts to the sum of $41,291.

The said Board also desire to submit to the shareholders that as a result of their labors, they have secured for the subscribers of the Capital stock of the said Bank, a franchise extremely valuable in their opinion from the facts that in the future such franchises will be extremely difficult to obtain, and in the second place from the enormous increase which is equally sure to obtain from the increasing trade, wealth and prosperity of the Country and which must yield to said subscribers both good dividends and increase in the value of their stock provided they are only loyal to the institution.

All of which the Board desire to respectfully submit to this meeting.

After discussion, it was moved by A. S. Lown, seconded by John Gilchrist, that the said report be received and adopted and that all the acts of the Provisional Directors be hereby confirmed, ratified and approved.

The Chairman said the next order of business was to adopt the Shareholders' By-laws for the Bank, whereupon the following By-laws were adopted as the By-laws of The Farmers Bank of Canada.

1. The number of the Directors of the Bank shall be twelve, and three shall constitute a quorum.
No Director shall be entitled to continue in office unless he holds in his own name and right, and not as a Trustee, or in other representative capacity, at least $3,000 in the paid up Capital stock of the Bank.

In the event of a Director making a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, or if his estate is placed in bankruptcy or liquidation under the provisions of any statute relating to bankruptcy or insolvency, such Director shall forthwith cease to be a Director.

2. The Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders shall be held on the fourth Monday in November in each year, beginning with the year 1906.

3. If the day fixed for the Annual General Meeting, or for any special General Meeting of the Shareholders shall fall on a legal holiday, the Meeting shall be held on the first day thereafter which is not a legal holiday.

4. If in any year an election of Directors is not made on the day appointed by this By-law for that purpose by reason of no Meeting of Shareholders having been called for such day, or for any other reason, such election may take place on any day thereafter at a Special General Meeting of the Shareholders to be called for that purpose.

5. Vacancies in the office of Directors from any cause during the year of office, may be filled by the remaining Directors from among the qualified Shareholders of the Bank, at any Meeting of Directors; and Directors so appointed shall hold office until the next General Meeting of Shareholders.

6. All proxies of Shareholders intended to be available for voting at Meetings of the Shareholders shall be in such form as the Directors prescribe, and shall be deposited with the Head Office of the Bank and recorded ten days prior to the first Meeting of Shareholders at which it is intended to make use of some. Otherwise the constituent shall not be entitled to use the same at such Meeting.

7. The President, Vice-President and other Directors of the Bank shall receive such remuneration for their services as may be determined from time to time by the Board of Directors.

8. The amount of discounts or loans which may be made to Directors of the Bank either jointly or severally or to any firm in which any of the Directors is interested shall not exceed at any one time 5% of the said paid up capital of the Bank; and the amount of discounts or loans which may be made to any firm or person, or any shareholder or corporation, shall not exceed in the case of any such firm, person or corporation, the sum of $10,000 until otherwise ordered by the Board of Directors.

9. The Head Office of the Bank, as well as each Branch of the Bank shall be inspected at least once in each year by the Officer of the Bank appointed for such purpose, and it shall be the duty of the General Manager, after receiving each and every report of the said Inspector, to lay such report before the Directors at the first Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bank that may take place thereafter, and the action of the Board of Directors upon such report shall be duly entered in the Minutes of the Board.

10. The Board of Directors may at any time establish in connection with the Bank and its officers and Servants and upon such terms and conditions as the said Board may see proper, a Guarantee Fund for the Bank, and a Pension Fund and an Insurance Fund in connection with the said Bank, and they may appropriate to such funds or any of them, such portion of the undivided profits of the Bank in any year, as the said Board may see proper.

11. The Stock Book for Subscription to the capital stock of the Bank at par shall be opened and kept open until the sum of $500,000 has been paid into the Capital of the Bank or until closed by order of the Board of Directors.

Upon motion of J. S. Ellis, seconded by A. S. Lown, the Meeting then adjourned.

“W. R. TRAVERS”,

General Manager.
ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT.

The President said:—

Ladies and Gentlemen:—

We have presented the Report of the Directors for the past year, and before moving its adoption I might say a few words to you in connection with the affairs of the Bank. I am quite satisfied that, considering the difficulties in the organization of the Bank, and all we have had to contend with, the shareholders should be well satisfied with its condition to-day. We have not made a large amount of profits, it is true, but we have placed the Bank in an absolutely safe condition, and it has been kept that way all through the year. When you look at the statement you see that we have there some $647,000 of deposits. We could have made our available assets larger than deposits by adding the $15,000 now at our credit with the Government as security for our note circulation, but as this is only an available asset under certain conditions, we thought it more proper not to include it under that heading. How many Banks were in that position at the end of the year? The number of Branches, as you have been informed by the Board, is 27, and 11 sub-branches. These Branches, as you are aware, are all practically in rural districts, with one or two exceptions. We did not come into competition with any of the other Banks, and in every case we have shareholders in and around the districts. Our different Branches have been very successful for the time they have been in the field. Business is done with the farmers rather than with the manufacturers, and in establishing our Branches, we have done, all through the rural districts, we reach practically the class of people that we endeavored to.

The expenses of organizing and opening a new Bank are, of course, very heavy. It does not matter what class of business you engage in, you have first to secure the premises and put them in shape. It is the same with a bank. That expense has all got to be gone into, and it has all occurred during the past year. Your Directors do not expect during the coming year to open any more new Branches at all, unless one or two places may present themselves in which the opportunities of doing business are so large that they would feel that it was in the interests of the Bank to include them. When you take into consideration the fact, as I said before, of the difficulties of the organization of your Bank and the organization expenses, there can be no doubt whatever that we have made a very satisfactory showing. Our profits were such that we could have paid a small dividend, but your Directors considered that in the organization of the Bank for the first year it was better to go safely, and for that reason they passed the dividend for the first year. However, with the Branches we have opened during the year and the prospects for business ahead, there is a feeling on the part of the Board that they will be able to commence payment of a dividend in the coming April, which would be the first quarter of the current year.

The business of the country generally this year has been very backward. You know that the spring opened very late and very cold; the dairies did very little business in consequence; the summer was dry and hot, with very poor pasturage, to such an extent that many of the farmers had to sacrifice their cattle, owing to the scarcity of feed, for any price they could get. This, followed by the advance in the prices of grain, kept them from marketing in the expectation of further increases. The Banks suffered on account of this by not accumulating the same amount of deposits that they would in ordinary years. Owing to the shrinkage in business, falling off of circulation naturally followed, and, as you know, one of the chief opportunities a Bank has of making money is by the use of its circulation. If you take up the Government Reports you will find that nearly all the Banks that have been doing business during the past year were up to their limit in circulation during the early part of the year, and as the circulation is equivalent to the paid-up capital, it amounts to a large sum of money upon which no interest is paid but which is carried.

The Directors of your Bank have been very careful and attentive to their duties. They have attended all meetings, and have looked carefully after the interests of the Bank and shareholders. The cost of conducting the business of the Bank is very small, compared with other similar institutions, and I am sure that the Directors should be complimented upon the work they have done. It was only by safe, conservative methods that a Bank could be opened and kept open in a sound condition, and I am satisfied it could not be done better by any other Bank Manager in Canada. Every Bank in business for a number of years must of necessity accumulate bad debts. A new Bank has none of these, and you have a report of the condition of your affairs on the first of the year, which tells you exactly what the position of the Bank is. That condition, as I said before, is due to the efforts of your General Manager and your Directors.

I beg, therefore, ladies and gentlemen, to move the adoption of the report.

NEW PRESIDENT ELECTED.

The President said:—

I may say, ladies and gentlemen, that I came into the organization of The Farmers Bank at the time The Ontario Bank failed, and when an action was taken by some shareholders which threatened the complete disorganization of the Bank. At the request of Mr. Travers, I took the Presidency on that occasion, because I felt then, as I have felt ever since, that for a winding-up proceeding to be instituted against the Bank meant in the first place that the shareholders would have to pay the amount of their stock into court, and, in the second place, a large amount of money would be eaten up by lawyers and others in costs, to the very great detriment and injury to all those who had subscribed for stock, including myself. That being the case, I told Mr. Travers at the time that I was satisfied to take the Presidency of the Bank for a year. I have kept the position of President for a year; the Bank has been successful, and you are now in good shape to go ahead. I have personally other interests which I have got to consider, and therefore, I may say to you that I will not stand for re-election.

GENERAL MANAGER’S STATEMENT.

The General Manager, Mr. W. R. Travers, in answer to some questions, and for the general information of the Shareholders, spoke as follows:—

Mr. President and Shareholders:—

You have seen the Report presented of the position of the Bank, and I have no doubt that you feel fully satisfied that, considering the business conditions, the affairs of the Bank have been carried on in a way that will meet with your approbation. There are some details, however, that I might call to your attention. The deposits of the Bank are well scattered, and are composed of no less than 516 business accounts and 2,754 Savings Bank accounts, the former avering $195 each, and the latter $164 each. This seems to be a far more satisfactory state of affairs than to have a few accounts with larger balances. Our deposits show a steady growth. We closed the first month of our existence on January, 1907, with $57,000 on deposit, and the deposits increased month by month at the rate of $22,000 to $70,000, or an average monthly increase of $51,600. Had the usual average condition of affairs existed with an early spring, good pasturage, plenty of milk moving to the dairies and cheese factories, a favorable summer for stock raising, and the usual delivery of grain in the fall, the circulation of money would have been greater and our deposits would have shown larger figures. Under the circumstances which have prevailed, I believe that the Bank has done remarkably well, and that there is no cause for complaint. We have 6,336 shares of stock subscribed, represented by 852 shareholders, of which 374, or 40 per cent., are farmers.
It is of the greatest assistance to the Bank in the obtaining of business to have numerous shareholders among the farmers in the vicinity of our Branches.

About a year ago the Bank complied with the conditions of The Canadian Bankers' Association and The Toronto Clearing House, and became a member of both. We find the latter a convenient and speedy method of receiving our obligations and depositing notes, cheques, etc., of other Banks, settling the balances every day. The Bank is clearing over $5,000,000 yearly, which seems a good beginning for a young institution.

Owing to the uneasy conditions in the financial world, in common with other banks and financial institutions and manufacturing concerns, we have taken the conservative view that we should strengthen our reserves so as to place the Bank in a position of absolute security. This has, to some extent, prevented us from making the larger profits that, with a more liberal policy, might have been done, but I feel that, under present business conditions, the policy of caution will in the end tend to the strengthening of the Bank, and my aim shall be always to have the money of our depositors and shareholders absolutely safe. It is not my intention to open many new Branches this year, yet, where I can see that there is a rural district without reasonable banking facilities, and that business is there awaiting us, I shall be always ready to accommodate that section with a Branch.

Before closing my remarks, I would like to make some reference to the business conditions in Canada. That there is a time of depression on cannot be denied. As the shareholders know, The Farmers Bank is essentially an institution dealing with the rural community. In Ontario last year, as well as in the other Provinces, crops were not all as good as we expected, but I would like to point out one thing, particularly where the farmers of this Province have benefited, that there never was a year, possibly, in which the prices of everything produced on the farm have been higher than during the past year. The result has been that Ontario farmers have received financial results practically equal to what they had realized in previous years. There is a falling off this year, I note in the exports of butter and cheese. In the previous year these exports combined reached $26,000,000, while in 1907 they totalled only $20,000,000. The loss appears to have been mainly in butter, but in explanation of this, it must be noted that there was a shortage in the make due to bad pasturage, and in the export because of a larger consumption at home.

Referring to the general business situation, I can see no reason why conditions should not improve. Money is getting cheaper, there seems to be more disposition on the part of capitalists to utilize their funds, and for my part I feel very optimistic as to the future. There are development works going on in Can-dada at the present time that cannot but carry this country on for years to come.
There is capital available for legitimate enterprises. English capitalists are seeking investments in this country, and the opportunity offered by recent extensions in electrical railways running through the Province are bound to attract investors. It is my opinion that the Province of Ontario is going to be what I might call gridironed with electrical railways. With the policy of the Government,
I have nothing to do, but, it is evident that with the electrical development going on in this Province there will be new Branches of business opened, and that The Farmers Bank, dealing with the rural community, will be in a splendid position to handle the new and expanding business that is undoubtedly going to be created.

Report of Provisional Board of Farmers Bank, November 22nd, 1906:

Toronto, November 22nd, 1906.

The Provisional Board of The Farmers' Bank of Canada desire to make the following report:—

(1) This Bank was duly incorporated by Act of Parliament of The Dominion of Canada, duly assented to on the 18th day of July, 1904, was renewed for one year from that date and was afterwards renewed for six months.

(2) Owing to certain circumstances over which the Board had no control, arrangements which the Board had made from time to time to have the stock of the Bank duly subscribed and the organization completed proved abortive, but on the 22nd day of March, 1906, the Board entered into an arrangement with Mr. W. R. Travers by which the sale of the stock and the organization of the Bank was practically placed in his hands and the Board are now happy to report that they are in a position to comply with all the Government requirements and to ask the Treasury Board for a license to do business on behalf of The Farmers' Bank of Canada, and the Board desire earnestly to report that since the organization of the Bank and the subscription of the stock was placed in Mr. Traver's hands, it has progressed in the most satisfactory way and to express their sincere appreciation of the energy and ability with which he has conducted duties.
Owing to the long time in which the organization of the Bank has been in progress, the labors of the Board and the expenses of the organization have been more difficult and higher than they would have been under ordinary circumstances.

The Board have to report in the first place that they have the sum of $579,300 bona fide subscribed, and out of the subscriptions thereon they have paid in to the Treasury Department of The Dominion Government the sum of $250,000, and that the expenses of the organization up to date, as far as has been paid by the Board, amounts to the sum of $44,403.65.

The said Board also desire to submit to the shareholders that as a result of their labors they have secured for the subscribers to the capital stock of the said Bank, a franchise extremely valuable in their opinion from the facts that in the future such franchises will be extremely difficult to obtain and in the second place from the enormous increase which is equally sure to obtain from the increasing trade, wealth and prosperity of the country and which must yield to said subscribers both good dividends and increase in the value of their stock, provided they are only loyal to the institution.

All of which the Board desire to respectfully submit to this meeting.

A. S. Lown, Chairman.

Care of Farmers' Bank of Canada, Toronto.

Dear Sir:

We have considered the questions submitted by you to us regarding the power of the Provisional Directors of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, to accept stock subscriptions where the parties have given notes in payment of the stock in place of, or in addition to giving their subscriptions in the usual manner, the notes maturing at a time different from the payments in the subscriptions. We have not gone into the question of whether there would be any liability under the subscription without reference to the notes or whether both would be read together, but we are of opinion that the Provisional Directors have the power to accept stock subscriptions which are made in this way, it being a matter that would come within the reasonable discretion of the Directors.

The Provisional Directors are, of course, simply trustees, and any money or promissory notes they may receive in connection with the organization of the bank are held by them in trust for the Bank. If these subscriptions are not paid the allotment could and no doubt, under the by-laws, would be cancelled by the directors, to be elected, and the stock could then be resold. We consider the question one in which the Directors should use their reasonable discretion.

It would appear to us that the Promissory Notes might be of advantage to the Bank, in the event of any subscriber seeking to dispute his subscription, but this scarcely comes within the question submitted to us.

Yours truly,

URQUHART, URQUHART & MACGREGOR,
Per (Sgd.) THOS. URQUHART.

THE FARMERS BANK OF CANADA.

Toronto, September 24th, 1906.

W. J. Lindsay, Esq.,
Milton, Ontario.

Dear Sir:

There is now registered and allotted stock to the amount of $489,500 on our books, therefore, there is only $10,500 that we can now sell at par, so if any of your friends out there would like to obtain a few shares of the stock, they will have to do so quickly.

We are making a great effort to put up our Government Deposit next week, and a little generosity on the part of our subscribers will enable us to do so. If you can induce some of the people out there to pay up to the extent of $15,000 to $20,000, I will guarantee that the Government Deposit will be made next week and we will have an office of the Farmers' Bank open and doing business in Milton 30 days thereafter.

Kindly see what you can do in this matter, and oblige.

W. R. Travers,
General Manager.

Nov. 13th, '07.

Dear Mr. Travers:

I find on looking over Bank Blue Book, that you have included therein several names that are not or should not be on the list as shareholders. Is this not a most serious violation? You have to sign such I would say as being correct it looks and listens like as though you are taking a chance. Pardon me for making any reference to this as you can rightly say it none of my business so therefore I apologize.

Yours truly,

W. J. Lindsay.

Toronto, December 7th, 1906.

W. J. Lindsay, Esq.,

Dear Sir:—

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of this bank, held on the 26th of November last, a resolution was passed placing the balance of the stock of this bank up to a million dollars in your hands for sale at a premium of 25%.

It was understood, of course, that a certain amount of stock now on our books which has to be replaced could be done so by you at par.

You are to be allowed $10.00 per share for selling it, payable on payment of the 25% premium.

Yours truly,

W. R. Travers,
General Manager.

W. R. Travers, Esq.,

Farmers' Bank,

Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

I am somewhat surprised at your letter.

It is fully one month since I wrote Mr. Lindsay that I could not see my way clear to accept seat on the Board; and some ten days ago he was in London, when I repeated the same to him in person.

Yours truly,

Thomas Beattie.

The Farmers Bank of Canada.

*W. J. Lindsay, Esq.,
Windsor, Ontario.*

Dear Sir:—

When you left me to-day you spoke of wiring. I do not think it is at all necessary. You have shown by your actions and refusal to sign a just, honorable, honest and righteous document, exactly what is in your heart. It will be useless for you to wire me because I could not respond and I do not think that you had better approach anybody as representing this Bank up there.

All the commissions that you are justly entitled to have been paid and there will be nothing due upon the notes until they are paid and I fancy a great many of the subscriptions will have to be cancelled. At all events I will likely have made new arrangements before you have returned as you have revealed a few thoughts to me that have been revolving around your heart.

Hoping you and Mrs. Lindsay will have a nice trip, I am,

Yours truly,

W. R. Travers.

The Farmers Bank of Canada.

*J. H. Spence, Esq.,
Toronto, Ontario.*

Dear Sir:—

Referring to our conversation over the phone yesterday, Mr. Lindsay got a statement at the time I paid him all the commissions that were then supposed to be due in accordance with the honest agreement between us and he never had the decency to acknowledge the same. I do not feel disposed at present to give any further statements until Mr. Lindsay shows a disposition to act fairly and honestly in the matter. The stock that Mr. Lindsay was supposed to have obtained was allotted by the Board conditionally upon his handing in the original applications and the notes that he had taken being legal. The first condition has not been fulfilled and according to your own opinion, the notes are illegal, therefore, it is the intention of the Board to meet in the course of a day or two and rescind the motion of allotment and return all the notes to the makers.

My solicitor says the payment of commissions is illegal. I believe that is your own opinion and he thinks the proper course for me to take is to force Mr. Lindsay to refund the amount that has been paid under a misapprehension. He is considering the matter and will advise me in a day or two.

If you feel disposed to issue a writ, I will not be at all sorry as the Bank has very little likehood of going through now and such an action on Mr. Lindsay's part will shift the responsibility of the failure to organize from my shoulders.

Yours truly,

W. R. Travers.

J. H. Spence, Esq.,
Toronto, Ontario.

Dear Sir:—

I have your letter of the 24th and you must change your mind very quickly for you certainly gave me such a verbal opinion when talking to you, and it corresponded with what Mr. Starr said.

If you will kindly refer to draft of agreement which I handed Mr. Starr which represents the honest understanding between Lindsay and myself, you will see that I am laying down something that is quite definite. I will not consent to anything else or pay another dollar of commissions until Mr. Lindsay keeps his word with me, write or no writ. If he will agree to this or something nearly like it, there will be no trouble about an amicable settlement.

I enclose you a letter from Mr. Smith, my secretary, which will likely prove to you that Mr. Lindsay is quite mistaken in what he says. If he feels disposed to retire from the selling of the stock, all well and good. I have had endless correspondence and much trouble with numerous people representing thousands of dollars of the supposed subscriptions through his peculiar ways of doing business. I will likely have to cancel thousands of dollars of the supposed subscriptions.

The Provisional Board have never had any dealings whatever with Mr. Lindsay and repudiate any responsibility whatever in the matter.

Yours truly,

W. R. Travers.

P.S.—Please note that my name is W. R. Travers.

Agreement between Travers and Lindsay, dated (blank) day of August, 1906:

MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT made in duplicate this day of August, 1906,

Between,—

W. R. TRAVERS, General Manager of the Farmer's Bank of Canada, of the City of Toronto, of the First Part.

AND—

March 3rd.

W. J. Lindsay, Esq.,

276 Jarvis St., Toronto.

Dear Sir:—

As all but three or four of the shareholders at Beachville refuse to settle on the usual grounds of misrepresentation by you, Col. Munro, the President, insists on the cancellation of the whole 19 shares of stock taken there and the Sub-Branch closed.

Before taking this step, I would like to hear from you.

Yours truly,

General Manager.

Agent for Subscriptions of the Stock of
The Farmers Bank of Canada.

W. R. Travers, Esq.,

Dear Sir:—I have rec'd your letter of Mar. 3rd. In regard to the Beachville Shareholders and closing of Branch you, of course, will have to take what steps you deem wise. As for me, I utterly repudiate any misrepresentations of any kind whatever and will hold the Bank responsible for my commission. If the Bank is able to place before me any misrepresentations made at any time, I am ready to meet it.

Yours truly,

W. J. LINDSAY.

Dear Sir:—

In reply to your extraordinary letter of March 10th, I beg to state that the arrangement with you is that you get your commission when the premium is paid. Now, for every share of stock that you can arrange to have the premium paid thereon, we will pay you your commission, but we certainly will never pay you a dollar on subscriptions that people will not pay anything on, so it is up to you if you wish the commission to get these arranged.

I have been over in Beachville and interviewed the people, and they make some extraordinary statements. I do not for one moment say they are true, but I think for your own honor that you should have these arranged; otherwise, we are forced to strike them off our books. I have eight or ten letters from people at Arden, Verona and other places around Sharbot Lake positively refusing to pay a dollar on their subscriptions, saying they will resist it at law; and all come with about the same story, that you made promises that we certainly, if they were made, are not prepared to fulfill.

The Board will not permit any action to be taken against these people who have not paid anything, but will proceed to cancel the said shares, which they have the right, under the Bank Act, to do; in which case, I think we have overpaid you and it will be necessary for you to refund.

Yours truly,

General Manager.

W. J. Lindsay, Esq.,
276 Jarvis St., Toronto.

Dear Sir:—

Enclosed you will find statement of account re commissions, which will show that you have overdrawn $2,629, against which there are 248 shares, as per list enclosed, on which no commissions have been paid and on which you are not entitled to any commission until the premium has been paid. These people have been canvassed and they all have pretty near the same story—that the subscriptions were obtained by misrepresentation, trickery and dishonesty, and they will not pay the same.

If you wish to act honestly with the Bank you will see to it at once that all these subscriptions are made good; otherwise, the Directors will desire them cancelled and you to refund what you obtained from us under a misconception.

If you wish to continue in the stock-selling line, or in any other business, take a tip from me to straighten this out yourself and not force us to take action and bring in all these people as witnesses to your strange way of transacting such kind of business.

Yours truly,

General Manager.

W. R. Travers, Esq.,
General Manager, Farmers Bank,
Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

I beg leave to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 24th inst., also of your letter of March 11th. Your statement only covers from the time of the organization of the Bank. You will recollect that I placed a large amount before the organization of the Bank, and would like a full statement of that, as well as the statement you have just sent me. Let me say that it is very easy for any person to say that their subscription was obtained by "trickery, misrepresentation and dishonesty." I do not believe that you can produce any subscriber who will make any such statement, and if subscriptions are not being paid it is because of the odor connected with the Bank and not because of anything done by me. Consequently, if the Bank does not put these people to proof of what they say, I will certainly have to claim my commission. No institution that I can think of would dream of allowing a subscriber to escape paying his subscription merely because he said that things had been misrepresented to him. I should like to know the names of all those who are refusing payments on the ground that I have misrepresented matters to them. I am convinced that if the Bank makes an honest effort to collect these subscriptions there will be no trouble. But if the Bank does not do its part, I am certainly not going to contribute anything to the Bank by way of giving up any part of my commission. Kindly let me have statement in full.

Yours truly,

W. J. LINDSAY.

W. J. Lindsay, Esq.,

Dear Sir:—

Yours of the 26th received. You had no contract with this Bank before the organization, but you had one personally with we, which I have more than EXHIBITS RE EVIDENCE IN MATTER OF

carried out as about half the subscriptions you took had to be cancelled on account of no payments being made thereon, and you should refund several thousand dollars' commission improperly paid on the same.

The arrangement made between you and the Board required the premium of $25 to be paid on every share before you were entitled to any commission. I sent you a list the other day of those who had paid nothing, and unless you can make these subscriptions good by which we can credit your account now overdrawn $2,029, through my generosity, and because of the belief that I had that you had honest and proper subscriptions the commissions on which would produce this amount, the Board will cancel this stock at their meeting on the 15th and we will enter suit against you for payment of the overdraft.

It is strange that we have had no difficulty with any of the stock subscribed by other agents. Nearly every subscriber you got says their subscription was obtained by fraud. Mind you, I am not accusing you of wrong doing, but to show you the difficult task I had ahead of me to find ways and means to relieve subscribers to the extent of a couple of hundred thousand dollars to avoid similar actions to that of Mrs. Meyers, where your own evidence would have defeated us. Here is what John Kennedy, Pontypool, says (just received): "He claims that he did not subscribe for this share of stock, but only told the agent that he could put down his name to help get other subscribers, and that we could take what action we liked, he would not pay it; that the agent told him he would never be called upon for the payment." Enclosed is a copy of a letter from Oscar M. Wilson, Springford, which speaks for itself, and we have many, many more like it.

On further consideration, you must come to the conclusion that you have an honest duty to perform.

Yours truly,

General Manager.

W. R. Travers, Esq.,
General Manager, Farmers Bank,
Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

I beg leave to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 8th, and also all others dealing with similar matters. In reply thereto, I now warn you formally, and you will please bring this matter to the attention of the Bank, that if the Bank cancels any of the stock subscriptions procured by me at this meeting, to be held on the 15th, or any other meeting, that I will look to the Bank for my commission on such cancelled stock and expect the Bank to pay. I take this stand because in the first place I am positive that all the stock subscription are genuine and were taken without any misrepresentations on my part, and, secondly, because I know if the Bank makes an honest effort to collect these subscriptions there will be no trouble in having the subscribers live up to their signatures. As I take when I hand you a stock subscription my duty is over, and it is then the duty of the Bank to collect the subscriptions. Referring especially to the letter of John Kennedy, of Pontypool, I should think that on the statement you sent that he could be made to pay up his stock; as to the letter of Wilson, I do not believe that any court would believe such a nonsensical statement as he seems to have written, and if these are the best that your Bank can produce as to my misrepresentations I certainly think it is your duty to compel such people to pay up. The contract which you claim to be personal with you, as to my commission, I certainly must have a full statement of, as well as a statement of the other. I do not wish to get into a tangle with you or the Bank over the commission due me, but I certainly intend to have all that is coming to me. You have evidently forgotten that the so-called personal contract was confirmed by you after you became General Manager of the Bank. I beg to call your attention to the written contracts between myself and the Bank; if you will read this carefully you will find that I am entitled to a very large amount of commission still to be paid by the Bank.
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Yours truly,

W. J. LINDSAY.

P.S.—I am in receipt of a letter this day from a London gentleman, making inquiry about the balance of the Bank shares; wishing to take on the balance of the issue for London account. You will please let me know what amount is now unsubscribed. I may go to London to complete about 18th May or before.

Yours truly,

W. J. LINDSAY.

W. J. Lindsay, Esq.,
276 Jarvis St., Toronto.

April 14th, 1908.

Dear Sir:—

In reply to yours of the 13th, the position between you and this Bank is exactly as stated in my last letter. You know your bargain with our Directors and you know very well you are not entitled to any commission until the premium is paid upon the shares.

We have gone out of our way to see all the subscribers of the 248 shares, a list of which I sent you, and it is the same old story all around. It is not and never was any part of our business to collect those subscriptions until you had collected the premium on the same. You do not think you are competent to tell us what our business is—surely not.

Section No. 37 of the Bank Act gives the Directors power to cancel any subscription upon which 10% has not been paid up. If you have any claim against me, render your account. According to the way I figure it, I have overpaid you many thousands.

All the stock of this Bank is now subscribed for, and the only way the English people can get any stock, if they want it, is to get it from the Winnipeg people. Even if it were not all taken, the Directors would not allot any subscription obtained by you unless there was a marked cheque attached to it for payment in full.

Yours truly.

W. R. Travers, Esq.,
Farmers Bank, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

I am in receipt of your letter of the 14th inst. I do not see that any advantage is to be gained by further correspondence. I simply reiterate my position taken in my letter of the 16th inst., and will certainly look to the Bank for my full commission. As you say in your letter of the 15th that you have over paid me many thousands, I would suggest that you make a full report to the Directors of the Bank in the matter. The sooner everything is brought to a head the better from my standpoint.

Yours truly,
W. J. LINDSAY.

Dear Sir:

I am in receipt of your letter of the 23rd inst., enclosing a letter received from D. Frank Ford. When I canvassed Mr. Ford I canvassed him with Mr. Luxton, of Milton. I enclose a copy of Mr. Luxton's reply. Need anything further be said as to this matter? Please note that Mr. Luxton hints at the repudiation of the subscription to the Farmers Bank as not due to anything said by him in canvassing, but to the estimation in which the general public apparently now hold the Bank.

Yours truly,
W. J. LINDSAY.

W. J. Lindsay, Esq.,

May 5th, 1908.

Dear Sir:

Yours of the 27th and 30th received, the latter enclosing a copy of a letter of Luxton's which my solicitor will deal with.

If the Bank is in bad odor, it is entirely due to the ways and methods that you took to obtain stock. I can hardly imagine that when practically everybody that you approached tells the same story that they can all be lies. The general public must take a different view of the Management from that of yours and Luxton's, two such able men to judge of such a matter. Our deposits are steadily going up, they having increased over $100,000 in the last month or two, while all other Banks' are going down, and a larger, more agreeable and satisfied meeting of shareholders was never held by any bank as was held by this Bank on the 19th day of February last.

I am not anxious for any correspondence with you, but would like you to straighten out the apparent bogus subscriptions upon which I was good enough to advance you $2,629, thinking you were honest, and unless you see fit to make these subscriptions good I shall be obliged under the order of my Board to place the matter in the solicitor's hands.

I do not require your advice as to what I shall or shall not put before my Directors. My past experience has been that I get on better with them when I do not mention your name at all. You have all the statements that we intend to furnish you, as we have no time to go over the ground every few days. You are well aware of the position of affairs. We also hold your receipt in full as against the Bank and myself up to the 30th of September, 1907. We would much prefer to have these subscriptions made good than have them cancelled and you refund. We have written to every one and have had our Managers approach each and every man in their Section, and I do not think there is a possible chance of getting anything paid on them unless you take the matter up yourself.

Yours truly,
General Manager.

Dear Sir:—

Mr. Justice Anglin to-day dismissed the action brought by William Laidlaw, K.C., against this Bank and as your application and notes were filed in Court, I am unable to return them until after Wednesday next but will then send your notes back to you.

You will understand, however, that you are relieved from all responsibility under your application for fifty shares of stock in this Bank and while we regret that you are not now one of our subscribers, we are pleased that you are entirely satisfied.

Referring to our conversation of yesterday, I remember well being in your office, then up stairs, on December 6th, 1906, and W. J. This was in accordance with a private arrangement I had with him.

Issued from the Central Office of the High Court of Justice, at Toronto, in the County of York.

E. Hailey.

This action is brought by the plaintiffs on their own behalf and on behalf of all other alleged shareholders of The Farmers' Bank of Canada, who dispute the validity of alleged contracts to take shares of the capital stock of the Bank, and who allege that they were induced to subscribe for shares through fraud and misrepresentation, and who may request to be joined as plaintiffs.

And the Plaintiffs' claim is: (1) For a declaration that the alleged contracts are void; (2) For the rescission of alleged contracts to take shares of the capital stock of The Farmers' Bank of Canada; (3) For an accounting for the money and promissory notes received—or alleged to have been received—in the name and on behalf of the provisional directors of the Bank; (4) For an injunction; (5) For a Receiver; and (6) For administration.

And the following are particulars of the Plaintiffs' Claim:

1. The Farmers' Bank of Canada was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada passed on the 18th day of July, 1904.

2. The defendants James Gallagher, John Watson, John Ferguson, Alexander Fraser, and Alexander Shepherd Lown, were appointed by the said Act to be the Provisional Directors of the Bank.

3. Amendments of the Act of Incorporation were passed on the 20th day of July, 1905, and on the 26th day of June, 1906.

4. The amendment passed on the 20th day of July, 1905, is alleged to have been passed on the petition of The Farmers' Bank of Canada; and the amendment passed on the 26th day of June, 1906, is alleged to have been passed on the petition of three of the provisional directors of the Bank.

5. A prospectus of the Bank was issued, and contains amongst others, the following statements, namely, that the following gentlemen have consented to act as directors if elected:

His Honor A. E. Forget; Major Thomas Beattie; Lieutenant-Colonel R. R. McLennan; John D. Ivey; Thomas Charlton; H. W. Anthes; W. S. Calvert; G. Plunkett Mangan; D. P. McKinnon; Colonel James Munn; Honorable A. G. Mc-
SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Kay; George W. Neely; Thomas Urquhart; D. N. McLeod; John Ferguson; Robert Noble; and the name of the defendant W. R. Travers is printed thereon "General Manager"; the name of the defendant C. H. Smith is printed thereon "The Secretary of the Provisional Board of Directors", and the name of The Traders' Bank of Canada is printed thereon as "Bankers."

6. Stock books were opened in pursuance of the prospectus for the purpose of entering subscriptions of persons who might be induced to subscribe for shares of the capital stock of the Bank.

7. The applications for subscriptions for shares and proxies appointing the Secretary of the Provisional Board, and forms for receiving subscriptions for shares were printed and put in circulation.

8. Forms of bank notes in the name of The Farmers' Bank of Canada were also either printed, lithographed or engraved for the purpose of inducing persons to subscribe for shares.

9. The printed prospectus, the application for stock, the forms for subscriptions, and the said forms of bank notes in the name of The Farmers Bank of Canada, were delivered to agents and solicitors to procure subscriptions for shares.

10. The agents and solicitors produced and used the prospectus, the applications and the forms, in their canvass for subscriptions for shares.

11. The Plaintiffs and other subscribed for shares, and the plaintiffs allege—(1) That the Provisional Directors who professed to act for and in the name of the Bank, had no lawful power or authority to receive subscriptions for shares or to accept them; and (2) That the subscriptions for shares which were procured from the plaintiffs and others were procured through fraud and misrepresentation, and the plaintiffs allege amongst others, the following particulars of fraud, namely—

(1) That the agents in procuring the subscriptions for shares falsely represented that persons had subscribed for a larger number of shares than they had in fact subscribed for, and the following are examples of such false representations, namely—(a) That Robert Noble whose name is entered in the prospectus as one of those who had consented to be a director, had subscribed for shares to the amount of $10,000, whereas he had in fact only subscribed for shares to the amount of $3,000; (b) That John Sproat had subscribed for shares to the amount of $10,000, whereas he had in fact only intended to subscribe for shares to the amount of $1,000, and that he was induced to sign an application in the belief that it was filled up for $1,000, and that the General Manager afterwards claimed that it was a subscription for $10,000, and the said John Sproat then repudiated the entire subscription; (d) That James Murray had subscribed for shares to the amount of $10,000, whereas he had in fact only subscribed for shares to the amount of $1,000; (e) That Dr. Stewart was subscribing for shares to the amount of $10,000, whereas he was not in fact subscribing for any shares; and other false representations of a similar character were made by the solicitors and agents in reference to alleged subscriptions of other persons.

(2) That Major Thomas Beattie, represented by the prospectus to have consented to act as a director, had not subscribed for any shares, and refused to be a director, and refused to allow his name to be used in any way in connection with the Bank; and the plaintiffs allege that the names of other persons were represented by the prospectus to have consented to act as directors had not subscribed for any shares or given any authority for any such publication.
(3) That the first block of shares to the amount of $500,000 would be issued at par, and that the next block of shares would be issued at a premium of 25%, and that the first block of shares subscribed for at par would therefore soon have a market value of 25% over the amount subscribed for.

(4) That the solicitors and agents who were procuring subscriptions for shares would buy the shares from the subscribers at the alleged premium of 25%.

(5) That the bank notes, of which a specimen was produced, would soon be in circulation, and that the profits to the subscribers would be very large.

(6) The prospectus states that the money received from deposits is loaned at a high rate of interest; that the authorized capital of the Bank is $1,000,000; that if this were fully paid up the Bank could issue $1,000,000 in bills, thus earning for its stockholders dividends on $2,000,000, giving the Bank double earning power on its capital.

(7) The prospectus makes no reference whatever to the provisions of The Bank Act, namely,—(1) That a Bank cannot issue any notes less than $5.00; (2) The percentage to be held by the Minister of Finance against circulation; (3) The necessity of the Bank establishing agencies everywhere in Canada to redeem its circulation; (4) The obligation of the Bank to hold not less than 40% of its cash reserves in Dominion notes; (5) The obligation to pay for the Dominion notes in specie; (6) The obligation to make payments up to given amounts in Dominion notes when requested; (7) The necessity for the maintenance of a reserve to meet deposits when demanded, and to redeem circulation, etc.

12. And the plaintiffs allege that the acts and proceedings of the provisional directors were illegal and irregular, and that the provisional directors appointed by the Act of Incorporation did not continue to act as directors, and did not receive notices of meetings, and did not attend meetings, and did not consent to the renewal of the charter or to the acts and proceedings of other provisional directors, or other persons who were acting or professing to act for provisional directors, and that there was trading in the charter.

13. And the plaintiffs further allege that the agents and solicitors who were procuring subscriptions for shares had not lawful power or authority to solicit or accept applications for shares or subscriptions for shares.

14. And the plaintiffs allege that the agents and solicitors professing to act under the name and authority of the provisional directors have procured a large number of subscriptions for shares, and have received the sum of One Hundred and Seventy-five Thousand Dollars more or less, on account thereof, and have also procured promissory notes to be signed by persons who were subscribing for shares, payable to the provisional directors of the Bank, and the persons acting in the name and under the professed authority of the Act of Incorporation and amendments thereto, are endeavoring to discount or procure a loan by the transfer of the said notes.

15. And the plaintiffs further allege that the persons professing to act as aforesaid under the alleged authority of the provisional directors, have unlawfully deducted large sums of money for alleged services and commissions, and other purposes, out of the money received by them.
16. The plaintiffs allege that the shares and the money and the promissory notes procured from them have been procured through fraud, deceit and misrepresentation.

17. The plaintiffs demand the production by the provisional directors of the Bank, and each of them, and by the Secretary of the Provisional Board, and by the General Manager, and by all other persons who may have possession or control thereof—(1) Of all documents alleged to be signed by the said plaintiffs and other alleged subscribers for shares; (2) Of the minutes of the meetings of provisional directors; (3) Of the alleged subscribers’ agreements, or alleged subscriptions for shares; (4) Of the cash books, ledgers, bank books, cheque books, letter books, and all other books, documents and papers showing the alleged subscriptions for shares—the payments on account thereof—the aplication of the money received—the promissory notes or other obligations received; and all acts or proceedings of the Provisional Board of Directors, or any of the members thereof, or of the Secretary, or of the General Manager, and all other persons whomsoever professing to act in the name and on behalf of the Bank or of the Provisional Board of Directors, or any of them, or of the subscribers for shares, or any of them.

18. The plaintiffs allege that all money, promissory notes, and other obligations received as aforesaid by all persons acting, or professing to act, in the name and on behalf of The Farmers Bank of Canada, or of the provisional directors, or any of them, are impressed with a trust in favor of all the subscribers for shares who may desire to come in and become parties to this action:

19. The plaintiffs claim that the money received from them on account of alleged subscriptions for shares, and the promissory notes or other obligations, should be protected and preserved as trust money and trust notes and obligations under the order and direction of this Honorable Court.

20. The defendants James Gallagher, John Watson, John Ferguson, Alexander Fraser and Alexander S. Lown, are named as provisional directors in the Act of Incorporation; and the said John Ferguson, Alexander Fraser and James Gallagher are named as the three provisional directors who procured the amendment of the charter. The defendant W. R. Travers is named as General Manager in the prospectus; the defendant C. H. Smith is named as Secretary of the Provisional Board of Directors; and the defendants W. J. Lindsay and A. G. H. Luxton were canvassing solicitors and agents for subscriptions for shares.

AND THE PLAINTIFFS CLAIM AND PRAY FOR:

(1) An account of and enquiry into all the acts and proceedings of all the members of the Provisional Board of Directors, and each of them, and into any illegal transfer of the charter by one to the other, or to any other person or persons.

(2) A declaration that the alleged contracts for shares are void in law.

(3) The rescission of all alleged contracts to take shares and all applications or subscriptions for shares which have been procured by fraud or misrepresentation.

(4) An account of all money, notes and other obligations received, and the application thereof.
(5) A declaration of the rights of the plaintiffs and of the obligations of the defendants, and consequential relief.

(6) An Injunction to restrain the Bank, the Provisional Directors, the General Manager, the Secretary, and all their officers, servants or agents, acting for or in the name of the Bank, or of the Provisional Directors, from using, drawing upon, paying or transferring, any money, notes or other obligations received from the plaintiffs and other persons who may be added as plaintiffs in the action, and from entering into any further dealings or transactions in respect thereof without the permissions of the Court.

(7) An Injunction to restrain the Bank, and the Provisional Directors, and the General Manager, and their officers, servants or agents, from the publication of a notice to call a meeting of the alleged subscribers of the shares of the capital stock of the Bank, and from making application to the Treasury Board for a certificate under sections 14 and 15 of The Bank Act.

(8) The appointment of a Receiver to act under the order and direction of this Honorable Court.

(9) An order for the administration of the affairs of the Bank.

(10) All such further and other relief as to this Honorable Court may seem meet, or as the nature and circumstances of the case may require.

(11) The costs of this action.

The Plaintiffs propose that this action shall be tried at Toronto.

BETWEEN:

JOHN SPROAT, GEORGE CASTLE, WILLIAM A. DIXON, WILLIAM McLEAN, FINLAY McCALLUM, ROBERT HUME, JAMES MURRAY, GEORGE DENOON, JOHN McLEOD, JANE SHUERT, WILLIAM HARRIS, on behalf of themselves and all other persons alleged to be subscribers for shares of the capital stock of the Farmers Bank of Canada who may desire to come in and be parties to this action, Plaintiffs.

AND

THE FARMERS BANK OF CANADA, JAMES GALLAGHER, JOHN WATSON, JOHN FERGUSON, ALEXANDER FRASER, ALEXANDER SHEPHERD LOWN, W. R. TRAVERS, C. H. SMITH, A. G. LUXTON and W. J. LINDSAY.

Defendants.

I, WILLIAM RICHARD TRAVERS, of the City of Toronto, in the County of York, Bank Manager, make oath and say:

1. I am the Acting General Manager of the defendants The Farmers' Bank of Canada duly engaged and appointed by the Provisional Directors of the said Farmers' Bank of Canada, and I am also one of the defendants above named in this action.

2. At about the hour of half past one o'clock of Tuesday the 23rd day of October instant, I was served with a copy of the writ of summons herein now shewn to me and marked as Exhibit "A" to this my affidavit and at the same time I was served with the notice of motion herein now shewn to me marked Exhibit "B" to this my affidavit and about half an hour thereafter on the same day I was served with the copy of subpoena and copy of appointment thereto attached now shewn to me marked Exhibit "C" to this my affidavit.

3. The said copies of subpoena and appointment bear the date 22nd October, 1906, and I am informed and believe by my solicitors that the said appointment was issued at about the hour of two o'clock on Monday the 22nd day of October, and I am advised and believe that the said appointment was not properly or regularly issued or the copy thereof regularly served, the same having been so issued before service of the copy of the notice of motion.

4. I am informed by my solicitors and believe the fact to be that no affidavits or material have so far been filed in support of the motion herein, notice of which was served as before stated and no copies of any such material have been served upon me or upon my solicitors.

5. I am advised and verily believe that the plaintiffs have no good cause of action on the merits and that this action has been commenced, and the said motion has been launched for the purpose of prejudicing and embarrassing the defendants The Farmers' Bank of Canada, and that the said examinations are proposed to be taken and made for the purpose of prejudicing and embarrassing the said Bank and if possible to prevent the complete organization thereof, and reasons for so believing are that I am entirely satisfied that the subscriptions made by the plaintiffs for shares in the said Bank were and are bona fide and were fully understood at the time and that the said plaintiffs have no good or proper cause of action on the merits; and further because Mr. William Laidlaw of the City of Toronto, the solicitor acting for the plaintiffs saw me personally at the Queen's Hotel in or about the middle of the month of July last past, and then stated to me that he thought his brother Robert Laidlaw would be willing to become a member of the Board of Directors of the Bank and to subscribe for $5,000 of stock, and he very urgently pressed me that his brother should be taken on the Board with such subscription and urged that he would be a valuable addition to the Board. He stated at the same time that he had been consulted by some persons as to the Bank and its condition and prospects, and that if he was appointed solicitor for the Bank and given a share of agent's commissions in procuring subscriptions in the County of Halton, that he would give his assistance, and that his brother would go upon the Board and make the subscriptions above mentioned, and that everything would be all right and satisfactory with his clients, and that there would be no trouble or difficulty.

6. And on two occasions afterwards and before the commencement of these proceedings I met Mr. Laidlaw on the street, and he informed me that there were some uneasy people who had been talking to or consulting with him, and it was in his power to have them make trouble or to keep quiet, and I therefore believe that these proceedings have to a large extent, if not entirely, been actuated and promoted by Mr. William Laidlaw.

7. The plaintiff, John Sproat, became a subscriber for one hundred shares of the capital stock of the Bank, and the original subscription and application for such stock is now shewn to me marked exhibit "D" to this my affidavit. Mr. Sproat has not since then made any payment on account of such subscription and has not given any promissory note; such subscription is dated on the 12th day of May, 1906.

8. The plaintiff, George Castle, signed an application for stock and became a subscriber for ten shares of the capital stock of the Bank, as shewn on the paper now shewn to me marked Exhibit "E" to this my affidavit; such subscription is dated the 15th May, 1906, and on same date paid in $100.00, and thereafter on or about the Seventh day of July, 1906, he paid in cash the sum of $900.00 in satisfaction of the said subscription.

9. The plaintiff, William A. Dixon, signed an application for stock and became a subscriber for fifty shares of the capital stock of the Bank, as shewn by the paper now shewn to me marked as Exhibit "F" to this my affidavit, such subscription being dated the 17th of May, 1906, and at the same time the said William A. Dixon signed the two promissory notes—one for $500.00 and the other for $4,500.00—now shewn to me marked as Exhibit "G & H" to this my affidavit.

10. The plaintiff, William McLean, signed an application for stock and became a subscriber for five shares of the capital stock of the Bank as shewn by the paper now shewn to me, marked as Exhibit "I" to this my affidavit, such subscription being dated the 6th of June, 1906, and on the same date paid the sum of $50 in cash and gave a promissory note for the sum of $450.00, which promissory note is now shewn to me marked as Exhibit "J" to this my affidavit.

11. The Plaintiff, Finlay McCallum, made an application for stock and became a subscriber for ten shares of the capital stock of the Bank, as shewn by the paper now shewn to me marked as Exhibit "K" to this my affidavit, such subscription being dated the 16th of May, 1906, and at the same time paid $100.00 and on the 24th day of September, 1906, thereafter, gave his cheque for the balance, $900.00.
12. The plaintiff, Robert Hume, made an application for ten shares of the capital stock of the Bank, as shewn by the paper now shewn to me marked as Exhibit “L” to this my affidavit, such subscription being dated the 6th of June, 1906, and at the same time gave his note for the sum of $1,000.00, the amount thereof, which said note is marked as Exhibit “M” to this my affidavit.

13. The plaintiff, James Murray, made an application for stock and subscribed for twenty-five shares on the 19th May, 1906, as shewn to me by the paper now produced and marked as Exhibit “N” to this my affidavit, and within a few days thereafter the said plaintiff, James Murray, stated that he wished to make a change and to lessen the amount and thereupon signed the further application for stock for ten shares now produced and shewn to me marked as Exhibit “O” to this my affidavit, such subscription being dated the 22nd of May, 1906, and the first subscription above mentioned was intended to be cancelled and the second taken in substitution therefor, and on the 22nd of May the said James Murray paid $100.00 in cash and on the 6th day of September paid the further sum of $200.00 on account thereof and no further payment has been made and no promissory note has been given for the balance.

14. The plaintiff, George Denoon, made an application for twenty shares of stock, as shewn by the paper now produced and marked as Exhibit “P” to this my affidavit, such subscription being dated the 2nd of June, 1906, and at the same made his promissory note payable to the order of the Farmers Bank of Canada for the sum of $2,000.00, and on or about the 4th day of October I saw the said George Denoon personally and returned to him the said promissory note and took in substitution therefor the promissory note for $2,000.00 now produced and marked as Exhibit “Q” to this my affidavit.

15. The plaintiff, John McLeod, made an application for stock and became and subscribed one share of capital stock of the said Bank, as shewn by the paper now produced and marked as Exhibit “R” to this my affidavit, such subscription being dated the 9th of May, 1906, and at the same time gave his promissory note for the sum of $100.00, which is now produced and marked as Exhibit “S” to this my affidavit.

16. The plaintiff, Jane Shuert, made an application for stock and became and subscribed for three shares thereof, as shewn by the paper now produced and marked as Exhibit “T” to this my affidavit, such subscription being dated the 29th of May, 1906, and at the same time paid the sum of $30.00 in cash on account thereof and gave the promissory note for $270.00 now produced and marked as Exhibit “U” to this my affidavit.

17. The plaintiff, William Harris, made an application for stock and subscribed for five shares thereof, as shewn by the paper marked as exhibit “V” to this my affidavit, such subscription being dated the 31st of July, 1906, and at the same time gave his promissory note, payable to the Farmers Bank of Canada, for the sum of $500.00, and thereafter and on or about the 5th day of October I saw said William Harris personally and returned to him the said note and took in substitution therefore the promissory note for the sum of $500.00 signed by him now produced and marked as Exhibit “W” to this my affidavit.

18. On or about the 22nd day of October the total subscriptions for stock of the Farmers Bank of Canada, as duly entered in the books of the Company, amounted to the sum of $566,700.00.
19. On or about the 17th day of October instant I duly deposited with the Bank of Montreal the sum of $230,000.00 on account of the necessary deposit required by the Banking Act of Canada, and at or about the hour of twelve o'clock noon of the 23rd day of October instant I made the further deposit on behalf of the Farmers Bank of Canada of the sum of $20,000.00, such deposit also being made with the Bank of Montreal, making a total deposit of $250,000.00, for which sum I then received the original deposit receipt now shown to me marked as exhibit "X" to this my affidavit, and I on the same day, namely: the 23rd of October, duly forwarded to the Minister of Finance at Ottawa a draft of the Bank of Montreal for the sum of $250,000.00, payable to the order of the Receiver General of Canada, and the paper now shown to me marked as exhibit "Y" to this my affidavit is the Post Office receipt for the said letter which was duly registered at that time. That the deposits before referred to were made and the receipt from the Bank obtained before I had any notice of the proceedings in this action by the plaintiffs and the draft before referred to payable to the order of the Receiver General was also duly obtained and was posted before I was served with a copy of the said writ and notice of motion hereinbefore mentioned.

20. On the 19th of October, before service of process upon me, I sent to the Canada Gazette a notice to be inserted calling a meeting of the shareholders of the said Farmers Bank of Canada for the 26th of November, 1906, and on the 23rd day of October and before service upon me as aforesaid I gave to the Toronto Globe a copy of the notice of the said meeting of shareholders for publication, and afterwards on the same day gave similar notice to the Mail & Empire for publication. The said notice appears in the issue of the Globe now shown to me marked as exhibit "Z" to this my affidavit.

21. The continuation of the motion, notice of which has been served by the plaintiffs, and the publicity through the papers and otherwise which I believe may be given thereto by and on behalf of the plaintiffs, will be exceedingly injurious and prejudicial to the Farmers Bank of Canada, and such proceedings are I believe calculated to most seriously injure and prejudice if not destroy the said Bank, and in order to avoid the continuation of the same and to fully protect the plaintiffs herein, although as I am advised and verily believe they have no good cause of action on the merits as before stated. The defendants are willing to deposit with this Honourable Court all the said applications for stock hereinbefore referred to and all the said promissory notes hereinbefore referred to and further deposit and file with the Court a marked cheque representing the total amount of cash paid by the said plaintiffs, as before set forth, and the said defendants are content that the said application and promissory notes and cheque should remain on deposit in this Court to abide the final judgment of the Court in this action, and subject to further order of the Court.

22. This application to set aside the said appointment for examination and copy and service thereof and to stay proceedings on the said pending motion is made bona fide and for the purpose absolutely and only of protecting the rights and interests of the Farmers Bank of Canada and shareholders and subscribers for stock therein, and not otherwise.

SWORN before me at the City of Toronto, in the County of York, this 26th day of October, 1906.

RE THE FARMERS BANK OF CANADA.

The Farmers Bank of Canada was incorporated by Act of Parliament of Canada being Chapter 77. Statutes 1904, the incorporators being:

JAMES GALLAGHER, Teeswater.
JOHN WATSON, Listowel.
JOHN FERGUSON, Toronto.
ALEX. FRASER, Toronto.
A. S. LOWN, Dratyon (Now of Toronto).

By Act being Chapter 92, Statutes 1905, an amendment was procured extending the time for obtaining a Certificate to do business from the Treasury Board to the 18th July, 1906; and by further Act being Chapter 94, Statutes 1906, a further extension of six months was obtained until 18th Dec., 1906, in which the Certificate to commence business could be obtained. Such Act required that in event of the Bank not obtaining the Certificate within the time allowed, the rights and powers conferred by Act of Corporation should cease.

The first meeting of the Provisional Directors was held on the 26th Aug., 1904, Dr. John Ferguson being appointed Chairman and Alex. Fraser as Acting Secretary. On the 8th Feb., 1905, Wm. Beath was appointed Secretary and Treasurer, and on the 13th Feb., A. S. Lown appointed Chairman in the place of Dr. Ferguson. On the 10th April, 1905, Wm. Beath resigned and C. H. Smith was appointed Secretary and Treasurer.

On the 10th Mar., 1906, an Agreement was entered into between the Provisional Directors and W. R. Travers as to his acting as General Manager, a Minute was also passed making provision for Lown and Smith in event of the Bank starting business and the granting of $3,000 to Dr. Ferguson and Alex. Fraser for their services as Provisional Directors and Organizers was approved of.

On the 21st Mar., 1906, a Resolution was passed granting relief to Travers in respect to $100,000 subscriptions to the Bank Stock, which he had undertaken to obtain. A resolution was passed approving of a prospectus.

On the 19th Apr., 1906, the Board approved of the progress made by Travers, confirmed him in his position, provided the organization of the Bank was completed within six months, or such time as the Board might determine. At the same time Smith was continued in his position as Secretary and Treasurer, and all matters connected with the organization of the Bank were stated to be under the control of the General Manager and the Provisional Directors.

On the 23rd June, 1906, the opinion of Urquhart & MacGregor was obtained as to the legality of the Provisional Board accepting notes in settlement of subscriptions for stock, and it was resolved that instructions be given to Travers that no notes be accepted but that the terms of the subscription blanks were to be adhered to unless varied by the Board.

On the 4th July, 1906, the Resolution passed on the 23rd June, 1906, was revoked in view of a letter obtained from Messrs. Urquhart & Page, and an Agreement entered into between Travers, Smith and the Members of the Board was confirmed and signed, such Agreement providing for the payment to the Members of the Provisional Board of the sum of $20,000 for their services. On the same day a payment of $10,000 was authorized to be made to Travers on account of commissions on the sale of Capital Stock and this amount was immediately paid over to the Provisional Directors, apparently in part satisfaction of the $20,000 to be paid under the Agreement mentioned. A Resolution was also passed authorizing Smith and Travers to endorse all notes made in favor of the Bank for the purpose of raising money to make the deposit with the Treasury Board of the Dominion Government.

On the 5th Sept., 1906, the Chairman of the Board was authorized to give authority to Travers to insert the notice required by the Bank Act for the purpose of organization as soon as the Government deposit had been made and other necessary acts done.

On the 8th Oct., 1906, a Resolution was passed authorizing the Provisional Directors to execute a Power of Attorney for the purpose of empowering W. R. Travers to endorse all notes in their names as Provisional Directors and to sign their names to notes for the purpose of raising funds for the deposit with the Dominion Government. The Secretary was authorized to hand over all notes to W. R. Travers for that purpose.

On the 10th Oct., 1906, Travers arranged a loan of $81,000 from the Trusts & Guarantee Company, hypothecating with it notes to the amount of $100,955.

Under date of 22nd Oct., 1906, subscriptions for Bank stock to the amount of $69,400 were apparently obtained—these with the Laidlaw subscriptions amounting to $21,900 in dispute made a total subscription of $579,200.

On the 23rd Oct., 1906, Travers obtained a further loan of $20,500 from the Trusts & Guarantee Company, pledging securities and more promissory notes thereagainst.

By notices date Oct. 23rd, 1906, a meeting of Subscribers for the purpose of organizing the Bank was called for Nov. 26th, 1906.

On the 23rd Oct., 1906, Travers deposited the sum of $250,000 in the Bank of Montreal. At this time the amount of cash in the hands of the Provisional Directors was approximately $150,861, such an amount being sufficient with the $100,000 from the Trusts & Guarantee Company to make the deposit.

Difference having arisen with several Shareholders, represented by Wm. Laidlaw, K.C., with respect to their subscriptions and a writ having been threatened or issued, Travers on the 26th Oct., 1906, procured a loan of $2,380 from the Trusts & Guarantee Company upon certain life insurance policies and with the proceeds repaid to such Shareholders the amounts paid by them on account of their subscriptions.

On the 30th Oct., 1906, Smith resigned as Secretary and Treasurer of the Provisional Board. Travers being appointed in his place and the Resolution authorizing Lown. Smith and Travers to sign cheques and endorse notes was rescinded and in substitution thereof Lown and Travers were given authority to do so.

On the 26th Nov., 1906, the Organization Meeting of Subscribers to Stock in the Farmers Bank of Canada was held when the Provisional Board reported bona fide subscriptions of $579,200, that it had paid to the Dominion Government the sum of $250,000, and further that Organization Expenses as far as had been paid amounted to the sum of $41,291.

Upon Resolution all the acts of the Provisional Directors were ratified and confirmed, by-laws were passed and the permanent Directors appointed.

As to whether the $579,200 subscriptions were bona fide or not must rest upon a find of facts in regard thereto. It will be noted that the amount shown as paid up upon these subscriptions in the Return to the Government mentioned in the next paragraph was $291,310, equal to within $19 the amount of the payment made to the Government $250,000 and the expenses said to have been discharged to the extent of $41,291 (as reported by the Board of the Provisional Directors). Inasmuch as the amount actually expended by the Provisional Directors up to that time was $45,139.49, it is apparent that the amounts stated in their report were made to fit the figures shown in the Government Return, which was false, rather than to agree with their books.

Under date of 27th Nov., 1906, an affidavit was made by Travers as to the deposit, and a list of Shareholders was forwarded to the Department showing $579,200 stock subscribed for with $291,310 paid thereupon. Included in this latter amount were sums aggregating $75,995 as per list, which were set opposite the name of Shareholders as sums having been paid by them when as an actual fact they had not made payment—these have hitherto been designated as "spread amounts."
With respect to the subscriptions amounting to $579,200, shown upon said list, $143,400 of them appear to have been afterwards cancelled, the sum of $15,435 appears to be still owing upon them, $13,800 is shown as having been paid upon them when as an actual fact the Bank received no benefit or payment in connection therewith, and with regard to subscriptions aggregating $8,100 shares representing the same were afterwards re-purchased out of funds borrowed from the Bank and not repaid at the time of its failure. This would seem to indicate that out of subscriptions totalling $579,200, as shown on the list returned to the Government, the Bank has received payment at this time to the amount of $398,465 only.

The permanent books of the Bank were opened under date of 27th Nov., 1906, the amount shown as paid on Capital Stock being that stated in the Government Return, $291,310. In order to strike a balance it became necessary to "fix" the accounts as shown on page which made the organization expenses $9,163 less than stated by the Provisional Directors in their report. To cover this up there was carried as cash in the book of the Bank three obligations amounting to $9,000, which did not represent obligations obtained for value which were afterwards disposed of by returning them to the makers or otherwise. The effect of the method of opening the permanent books of the Bank was also to drop or hide an excess expenditure of $12,978, and this was afterwards taken care of by charging against Organization Account the sum of $25,344.80 paid to the Trusts & Guarantee Company, in final liquidation of its loans, in March, 1907.

In order not to disclose the liability to the Trusts & Guarantee Company, on the permanent books of the Bank, or in the Monthly Government Returns, which commenced with December, 1906, the amount paid to the Trusts & Guarantee Company in partial liquidation of their debt was shown by way of deposit of $80,605.81 and the accounts so composed that the difference between the actual receipts on account of the Capital Stock and that shown by the books of the Bank was offset by the apparent deposit with the Trusts & Guarantee Company of $80,605, and the lessening of amounts shown as having been expended on organization and other accounts. The receipt of $20,027 of securities on account of payment of stock was not shown upon the permanent books at all, but, on the other hand, the Government Return showed $19,000 of securities in possession of the Bank. At this time, therefore, the permanent books of the Bank did not state the correct condition of affairs, while the Return to the Government differed from both.

From this time forward the books of the Bank were falsified from time to time to meet exigencies, defalcations and bad debts, and at the time of the failure of the Bank they did not represent the true condition of its affairs.

The memoranda which follow have been divided as shown in the index.

The condition of the Bank from a financial standpoint at the time of obtaining the certificate may be more particularly ascertained from a perusal of the information contained under the headings pages 30 to 44. The total amount of money received from the sale of the Capital Stock is set out on page 18 attached hereto. Provisional Directors' and other expense Accounts follow showing a disposition of the moneys of the Bank and accounting for its losses to all but a negligible extent. The trial balance and the balance sheets, as at the time of the failure, is included and one of Oct. 31st, 1911, when the last valuation of assets was made. The receipts and payments since that time will have little effect on the accounts as all moneys collected were, except to a minor extent, entirely applied in redemption of circulation.

To obtain the value of the assets reference may be had to a detailed list of all bills receivable at all the Branches, as at the time of the failure, showing receipts and setoffs up to 31st Oct., 1911, and also to a memorandum of valuations of said assets and losses as of that date.

With regard to Branch Premises and Real Estate, if desired, information with regard to the premises and detailed inventories of furniture and fixtures can be produced.

With respect to Capital Stock, a Statement will be produced giving a list of contributories and showing in detail all payments made in respect to each and every share therein included, the same having been checked up from the original cash and Branch Returns irrespective of the Capital Account as shown in the Head Office of the Bank.

CAPITAL STOCK SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Memoranda hereinafter following show that at the time of the application for the Certificate, the Bank apparently had subscriptions to Capital Stock to the amount of $579,200.

Before a meeting of the subscribers could be called it was necessary that the Bank should have bona fide subscriptions to the amount of $500,000. The meeting of subscribers was called on October 23rd, 1906, and therefore it was necessary that subscriptions to $500,000 of stock should have been obtained prior to that date. The Stock Subscription book of the Bank shows that on October 22nd, 1906, subscriptions to the amount of $69,400 were apparently obtained. A memorandum as to what happened to these subscriptions is set out on page hereto.

Included in the subscription list of $579,200 were also subscriptions to the amount of $31,900 made by clients of William Laidlaw, K.C., which subscriptions were in dispute. As a matter of fact Travers was arranging to take them over, and did take them over, by way of repayment on October 26th, 1906.

At the time of the Suspension of the Bank it was stated to me by J. G. Fitzgibbon that the subscriptions dated October 22nd were in reality taken about November 26th and antedated but this will probably be denied. As to whether the subscriptions were bona fide or not must rest upon a finding of fact. It has been sworn that they were, but the Bank received very little benefit from them. Most of them were made by agents, who were selling stock, and promotors of the Bank.

If it should be found that the subscriptions of October 22nd were not bona fide and that the subscriptions of the clients of William Laidlaw should not have been included in the return to the Government, it will be apparent that the amounts of subscriptions remaining aggregate $487,900 or insufficient to permit an application for the Certificate.

Assuming that the $579,200 of subscriptions were all bona fide, the facts as set out on page — hereto would indicate that shares were cancelled to the amount of $143,400, leaving a balance of $435,800 of abiding subscriptions. In connection with such there still remains unpaid $15,436 from which it is hardly to be hoped that the Bank will recover more than a minor portion. Subscriptions to the amount of $13,800 are shown by the books of the Bank to be fully paid for when as a matter of fact the Bank has not received any benefit whatsoever therefrom except to the extent of a few hundred dollars collected on the Kelly subscription since the Suspension. In addition Travers borrowed the sum of $8,100 from the funds of the Bank which he used to purchase shares included in the subscription list, so that the ultimate result is that the Bank so far has received from the original list of subscriptions $398,465 in addition to $200 or $300 from P. J. Kelly, and it may recover anywhere up to $5,000 or $6,000 from the unpaid proportions, but it will probably recover less than those amounts.

Examinations of individual subscriptions, ignoring entirely the Capital Account in the Head Office books of the Bank, indicate that the Bank has received $532,599 from Capital Stock and if the loss of $20,000 in connection with the Tevis loan, the proceeds of which were used to pay his Capital Stock subscription, is charged against bad debts and not Capital Account, the amount will be increased $552,599. In addition to these sums the Bank received in premiums $13,555, but I think this should be set against Commission charges of $71,800 withdrawn from the funds of the Bank apparently in connection with sales of stock.
Particulars of the amounts shown to have been paid on stock in the Government return of November 27th, 1906, when as a fact the actual cash payments had not been received from subscribers credited, are set out on page 40 to 41 hereto.

Detailed list of contributories together with particulars of payments in respect to all shares and in respect to each and every subscription has been made but is not combined with this memorandum.

Attention is drawn to the Devean, Menzie, Continental Securities, Tevis, Chapman and Travers stock transaction, particulars of which are set out on page 25 hereto. The memorandum omits to state that the Menzie transaction had its inception in his taking over stock subscribed and paid for by Devean, whose money was returned to him.

Original list filed with the Minister of Finance shewed subscriptions on November 27th, 1906, for 5,792 shares. Prior to the filing of list litigation had arisen in regard to the subscriptions below mentioned, through William Laidlaw, K.C.—

Travers borrowed money upon life insurance policies and repaid payments made on same and under date of 26th October, 1906, the subscriptions were transferred to W. J. Lindsay who on 22nd December, 1906, as attorney for the subscribers transferred the subscriptions to the following—

SESSIONAL PAPER No. 153a

Early in March, 1907, N. M. Devean, the holder of 200 shares of stock in payment for which he had transferred to the Bank

Cash..................................... $100.00
Promissory Note........................ 900.00 had a disagreement with Travers which resulted in his stock being transferred to R. E. Menzie, of Toronto, who gave the Bank a promissory note in payment, secured by Capital Stock in The Menzie Wall Paper Company—no interest was payable on this note. It is said that certain disabilities attached to it and that it was improperly endorsed by The Menzie Wall Paper Company, Limited, Menzie’s personal responsibility was doubtful and the Capital Stock of the Company also of uncertain value. On the completion of the transaction the Bank returned to Devean his cash, note and securities. The Bank made no collection from Menzie and on March, 31st, 1908, the stock, with 200 shares more he had subscribed for, was transferred to The Continental Securities Company which had subscribed for 5,100 shares conditionally and Menzie’s note and securities were returned to him. Of the Continental Securities Company’s subscription 1,150 shares were transferred to one, J. Tevis, who hypothecated securities with the Bank which later realized $95,000—100 shares to W. R. Travers and 3,850 shares to M. D. Chapman in trust, the latter subscription being cancelled on October 19th, 1910.

These cancellations of subscriptions shown upon list filed with the Government were made—

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE BANK.

Sections 6 and 13 of the Bank Act permit (as soon as the sum of $250,000 obtained from bona fide subscriptions has been paid to the Minister), the Provisional Directors of a Bank to call an Organization Meeting of the Subscribers to the Bank. The Organization Meeting of the Farmers Bank was called by notice dated October 23rd, 1906. A statement of Receipts and Payments as of that date has been prepared. This statement had to be compiled for the reason that the books of the Provisional Directors came to me in a damaged condition. The statement indicates that on October 23rd, 1906, the Bank would have had on hand in cash the sum of $150,883.60 had it not borrowed from the Trusts & Guarantee Company the sum of $101,500, pledging there against subscribers' notes and securities. Outside of the loan it had not sufficient cash to make the deposit.

On November 26th, 1906, when the Organization meeting was held, the Bank had on hand the sum of $150,934.85, which with $100,000 received from the Trusts Company, made a total of $250,934.85. All of this, excepting $934.85 was deposited in the Bank of Montreal to the credit of the Receiver General.

Inasmuch as the return to the Government of November 27th, 1906, showed that the Bank had received all told from subscriptions, the sum of $291,310, of which $250,000 was on deposit to the credit of the Receiver General, the Provisional Directors were compelled to show the expenditures which they had made on Organization account as $41,310, or less; they reported them at $41,291, when as a matter of fact the records of the Provisional Directors show that they had expended up to that time, the sum of $45,159.49. It is therefore apparent that the amount reported to the Shareholders Meeting was stated so as to conform with the Government Return and not the facts.

The permanent books of the Bank were opened under date of November 27th, 1906, upon the basis of the Government Return and were therefore incorrect from the start as will be seen from the Balance Sheet set out on page 37 of the Report. The effect of the difference between the permanent books and the Provisional Directors' as set out on page 38 is shown.

The Provisional Directors records were carried on during December, 1906, and a statement of December 31st, 1906, prepared, shows that the Permanent books still further varied from the facts and that the Government Return made at the end of December agreed with neither the Provisional Directors' or the Permanent books of the Bank.

The books of the Bank continued to be incorrect and at the time of the failure, did not show the correct condition of affairs.

BAD DEBTS AND LOSSES ON STOCKS AND BONDS.

In arriving at the amount of the bad debts of the Bank, investments shown in the Head Office books under the heading of "Stocks and Bonds" and being Buckingham Graphite Bonds $30,000 and Ontario Leather Company Bonds $75,000, are not treated as bonds held but as debts owed. The obligations of these companies to the Bank were excessive—the bonds cannot be looked upon as any other than securities taken in connection with bad debts. The Bank owned the Ontario Leather Company practically outright and stands to lose over $100,000 in connection therewith. The obligation of the Buckingham Graphite Company is so great that it is doubtful whether a recovery equal to the face amount of the bonds will be made from it.

THE KEELEY MINE, LIMITED.

The Keeley Mine account divides itself into two parts,—Direct Cash Advances and Amounts charged against the Stock & Bond Account of the Mine. The Advance Account had its inception in advances made in 1908 to the Keeley, Jowsey, Wood Mine, when the Directors of the Bank, having authorized a small advance, Travers changed the Minutes so as to indicate that he had the right to advance at will. In connection with this change he pleaded guilty and was sentenced for forgery.

The statement following shows the advances made by the Bank to the Mine, the net amount of which, exclusive of interest, aggreges $142,679. If "time" interest be added to this amount it will be increased by $73,370, making a total of $516,049.95. It is a question if the interest charges are correct in that they appear to be excessive.

The Keeley Mine Stocks & Bond Account was written up to cover all kinds of losses, expenses and defalcations, and outside of $15,000 paid in purchase of Capital Stock ($10,000 of which has since been refunded to the Bank), and $60,000 charged to the Account in connection with the liability of W. Beattie Nesbitt (in liquidation of which his stock in the Keeley Mine was taken) there are no other bona fide entries. The Bank has not admitted and does not admit the validity of the transaction with W. Beattie Nesbitt, and if it be correct in its contention it is a fact that of the $535,000 charged to the Account, but $15,000 (of which $10,000 has since been refunded) represents bona fide charges.

DEFICIENCY STATEMENT.

The Deficiency Statement, in my opinion, correctly accounts for the disposition of the assets of the Bank, except to a negligible extent. No actual audit of the accounts has been made for, to do so would take a long time and cost a lot of money, for no compensating benefit from the standpoint of the liquidation, but in unravelling various matters connected with the liquidation the facts in regard to all of the accounts have become very largely known. The accounts are much involved, apparently from deliberate intent, and if any differences should be found they will be largely of the nature of book entries without any practical difference in effect.

In compiling the statement the book entries have been disregarded in favor of the facts relative to each account.

Memorandum re Devean and Menzie transaction:

MEMO RE DEVEAN—MENZIE'S TRANS.

Devean purchased $20,000 of Bank Capital Stock, paying therefor:

Cash .......................... $ 100
Notes .......................... 900
Securities ...................... 10,000

$20,000

When list went to Government, $20,000 of second loan from Trusts Company was allocated as in payment of Devean stock, and such stock was shewn as paid up—see p. re spread payments.

When second loan was paid off by Bank check to Trust Company for $25,344.80 on March 12, 1907, amount was charged to organization account instead of to Capital.

Return having been made of moneys allocated in place of Devean Securities, the latter were released by Trust Company, and were available to be used as in payment of Bank capital stock.

But—

Organization account and not Capital Account having been charged with payment of $25,344.80 it follows that the Securities should be credited to Organization account, and not Capital Account.

This was not done however until Menzie’s transaction was put into effect, when the proceeds of a $40,000 note given by him and discounted in Toronto Branch were split, and $20,000 allocated against new subscription to Bank Stock for equal amount.

$20,000 allocated to take the place of Devean securities and credited to Organization Account.

the original credit to Capital Stock, from spread payments, included in item of $291,310 under date of Nov. 27, 1906, not having been disturbed.

William Beattie Nesbitt shall contribute ..................................................... 25,000.00

$100,000.00

And the three last named parties covenant and agree that they have in themselves full power and authority to transfer to said party of the second part such stock in said Keeley Mine, Limited, freed and cleared from every obligation and charge created by them, if any.

4. Provided further and it is hereby agreed and declared that in case default should be made in payment to the said party of the second part of such deposits or any of them when properly demanded and thirty days shall have elapsed thereafter, the said party of the second part upon ten days' notice to the said Bank and the other parties of the first part, which notice shall be sufficient if addressed to them at the address of said Bank or left thereat, shall thereafter be at liberty to proceed and offer for sale the said $500,000.00 stock he holds as collateral security, or so much thereof as may be necessary, by public or private contract, by tender or otherwise, as he shall see fit, and out of the proceeds of such sale recoup himself the amount that may be then owing to him on such deposit receipts, together with any costs, charges or expenses he may be put to in and about such sale, and after payment to him thereof together with his said claim, the balance of such stock or the moneys resulting from such sale, shall go and is to be paid to the said William Richard Travers, his executors, administrators or assigns.

Copy of letter of James J. Warren to W. R. Travers, September 20th, 1910:

Personal and confidential. Merrit, B.C., Sept. 20, 1910.

Dear Travers:—

Mr. Stratton spoke to me before I left in reference to some shares of the Keely Mine you were transferring to him. He said he proposed giving me one-half. Since I came out I have a letter from him that you have made the transfer—and that he has executed a declaration of trust in my favor.

I did not think it in anybody’s interest to have another row over this, but I have thought it all over—and I have decided to write you, as I am doing, that my alleged share will be handed back to you—if I ever get it—subject to our agreeing on its being applied in part or whole for further compensation to the Trust Company. You don’t owe me anything—and you paid the Trust Company what I thought was a sufficient bonus—when you transferred to Stockdale in trust the 25,000 shares of Kelly. If we agree that the Trust Company should have something more for further assistance—well and good.

I am much pleased to learn too that your matters are improving—but don’t take a chance—be on the watch all the time.

Sincerely,

"James J. Warren".

Toronto, November 17, 1910.

W. R. Travers, Esq.,
General Manager, Farmers Bank of Canada,
Toronto.

Dear Sir:—

I acknowledge receipt of your two favors of today, the first enclosing notes amounting to $16,406.86, and the second enclosing notes to the amount of $12,324.65, as per lists enclosed.

I beg to remind you of the fact that it was arranged with you on the 15th instant, as stated in our letter of that day, that we would receive notes to cover the advance of $7,000 made on that day. Today you requested a further advance of $13,000, and as no notes had been received since our letter of the 15th instant, I had to point out to you that we would require at least $40,000 worth of notes to cover these advances, and I understand the notes sent are in part compliance with this.

We do not think you should ask us to return the notes referred to in your second letter today, aggregating about $15,000, until provision is made for notes to take their place. We do not want to be placed in a position where it is necessary to scrutinize and make enquiries as to each individual note. For this reason, we think the notes should be of sufficient quantity to obviate the necessity of our having to do this. Kindly let us have the further notes required to make up the $40,000.

Yours truly,
“W. S. Morden”

Assistant General Manager.

The Farmers Bank of Canada,
Toronto, Ont.

Dear sir:—

I called you up on the phone just now and they told me you were in, but after I gave them my name, they told me you were out. I am not surprised.

You have not kept your word about the $100 cheque, and I think it is rather a mean way of treating a friend. Do not think I am doing this because I fear any blackmail. I have given my own personal cheque for it and beg to enclose the cheque herewith which you can do as you please with.

Now if this is not forthcoming without further delay, our friends are going to bring it up in the House of Parliament and find out if the Bankers Association was incorporated for the purpose of giving a few of the larger banks the opportunity of playing the Standard Oil Company's trick in Canada.

Montreal, January 24th, 1907.

W. R. Travers, Esq.,
General Manager, The Farmers Bank of Canada, Toronto.

Dear Sir:—

I am in receipt of your letter of the 22nd inst. By virtue of section 2, clause B, of the Act of Incorporation of the Canadian Bankers' Association, every new bank upon obtaining a certificate from the Treasury Board at Ottawa entitling it to carry on business is a member, nolens volens, of the Association. If you are not in possession of a copy of the Bank Act with its appendix—our Act of Incorporation—I will furnish you with one. Enclosed, please find a copy of By-laws, also account for annual subscription of your bank (see page 10 of By-laws), which kindly remit. The plate for Bank Money Orders is in possession of Messrs. Rolph & Clark, Ltd., Toronto, to whom the banks apply direct for such supplies as they may wish to obtain.

Your admission to the Toronto Clearing House is, I think, dependent upon the will of a majority of the members present when your application to that body is considered. Your supposition that the Canadian Bankers' Association can enable you to enter the Clearing House is erroneous. You will have to pardon me if I refrain from comment upon the final paragraph of your letter, except to say that the majority of the members of the Association are courteous in their correspondence with me as its representative.

Yours faithfully,

John Knight,
Secretary.
JOHN KNIGHT, Esq.,
Sec'y, The Canadian Bankers' Association,
Montreal, Que.

Dear Sir:—

I thank you for yours of the 24th and the enclosures therewith.
I think you mean to refer me to Section 2, Clause "A" of the Act of Incorporation of the C. B. Association.
You omitted to close an account for the annual subscription, but under By-Law 12, I suppose $50.00 is the amount that is due, and I, therefore, enclose you a cheque for it.
Believe me, I had not the slightest intention of being discourteous to you so far as you personally are concerned, I always have had and hope I always will have a very kindly feeling.

Yours truly,
General Manager.

Private and confidential.

Ottawa, June 27th, 190 .

W. R. TRAVERS, Esq.,
General Manager, Farmers Bank,
Toronto.

Dear Mr. Travers,—

In reply to your favour of the 26th inst., I may say it will be impossible to get Sir Wilfrid Laurier's consent to this suggestion, but I think you are perfectly safe in placing Sir Wilfrid Laurier's picture on the bills, as in consultation with his private secretary I was informed I might safely take the risk of advising you to do so, though the Premier would not personally consent, as he has refused many applications of a similar character; but if any fault is found Sir Wilfrid does not know anything about it.
You will kindly consider this as confidential.

Yours faithfully,

W. S. CALVERT.

November 19th, 6.

G. E. Valleau, Esq.,
Sec'y, British-American Bank Note Co.,
Ottawa, Ontario.

Dear Sir:—

We beg to enclose the samples of the $5 and $25 bills which you left with us, which are very satisfactory, and herewith I enclose you the signature of W. Beattie Nesbitt, who will be the President of the Bank.

In addition to the limited supply of $5 and $10's which you propose to give us in time to have signed for issue after the 2nd of January next, I hope you will be able to get us out a few of the $25 notes, as they certainly are going to be very attractive and a big advertisement for us.

Yours truly,

General Manager.

Copy of letter, December 4th, 1906, from the President to R. Noble, Norval, Ont.:

December 4th, 6.

Robert Noble, Esq.,
Norval, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Noble:—

I am in receipt of yours in reply to telegram sent announcing that Mr. Travers had received our certificate.

You are quite right about the other institutions and their feeling towards us. This, of course, is only natural. However, our papers and everything were in such excellent shape owing to the care taken by Mr. Travers and Mr. Hunter, our solicitor, that it was merely a matter of presenting them to the Treasury Board and receiving our certificate. We have, judging from all inquiries I have made among my banking friends before becoming connected with The Farmers, a most capable man in our General Manager, and I am sure that you will find your suggestions to me will be just in line with the manner in which he will conduct our business.

We are in good shape now and I am satisfied will go along very rapidly indeed.

I am,

Yours truly,

President.

Statement of Affairs as on December 31, 1906-07-08-09-10. Government Returns as compared with the approximate actual conditions.

IN THE MATTER OF THE FARMERS BANK OF CANADA.

MEMORANDUM RE ACCOUNTS.

Attached hereto are statements showing the condition of The Farmers Bank of Canada on 30th November, 1906, and at the end of the years 1906-07-08-09, and on December 19, 1910, the date of the suspension.

The Statements submitted include:

(A) Those compiled from the Bank's books, and Government Returns made on the various dates.

(B) Statements showing what the approximate actual conditions were at such times.

The statements showing approximate actual conditions must be accepted as approximate only, although, as a matter of fact, upon a complete audit, I have little doubt but what they would be found to vary but little from absolutely correct accounts.

It is difficult to get at exact figures in many instances by reason of the failure of the Bank to keep reports in such form as would give what is immediately required, without having to search the books as I have had to do. The accounts are involved by reason of entries put through to cover losses and defalcations.

With regard to the statement of approximate condition as on December 19, 1910, would say that I have made no allowance so as to show the depreciated value of the Bank Premises, consequent upon liquidation, but have entered in the statement the amount of exact expenditures upon the same. I estimate that there will be a loss upon investment in Bank Premises of $108,801. I have made no valuation of the advances to the Keeley Mine, for it is impossible to say to what extent the same may be recovered. It is not impossible that the whole may be recovered, but, on the other hand, there is an equal chance that very little may be realized from the property.

In dealing with the accounts relative to the operating losses, would say that I have not given any credit for the interest charges upon the Keeley Mine advances, for the reason that while interest was payable by the Mining Company to the Bank, such interest has yet to be received. The amount of such interest to December 19, 1909, was approximately $73,371.00.

Toronto, June 19th, 1912.

G. C. CLARKSON.

THE FARMERS BANK OF CANADA

Canadian Prosperity.

Canada is fast justifying its title of the “Granary of the Empire”; and the enormous immigration, the consequent rapid opening up of its rich agricultural lands, the wonderful crops of grain produced, and the building of railways to move these crops, all mean the circulation of a large amount of money.

The Farmer is the backbone of Canada and produces its wealth; and as most of the Shareholders of The Farmers Bank of Canada are farmers, the methods adopted are such as appeal to them, while at the same time these economical and careful methods will also result in larger profits for the Shareholders.
