Imports, Total Exports, and Trade Balance, All Countries, Seasonally Adjusted Balance of Payments Basis

(1) The short-term trend gives a clearer picture of the direction and rate of change of trade by averaging the substantial monthly fluctuations which frequently occur in trade. The trend for the last month is not shown in the charts above since it frequently changes significantly with the addition of succeeding months of data.

Preliminary Statement of Canadian International Trade

May 1985

Month-to-Month (Table 1)

On a seasonally adjusted balance of payments basis, preliminary estimates indicate that Canada's total exports declined slightly in May to $10.0 billion. The drop of 1.4% or $146 million was the second decline in a row, but the value of total exports remained at record levels and the short-term trend continued to rise.

Imports rose 2.5% or $200 million in May to $8.2 billion, a continuation of the largely offsetting monthly fluctuations experienced since January. As a result, the merchandise trade surplus fell to $1.8 billion from $2.1 billion in April.

Short-Term Trend

The strongest growth in the short-term trend for exports continued to come from the energy sector, with more moderate growth in machinery and consumer goods. Exports of forestry products continued at the same level. The trend for agriculture and fishing products, having fallen from record levels in 1984, has stabilized in the current period. The short-term trend for exports of automotive products and for industrial goods and materials turned marginally negative.

The short-term trend for imports remained flat. Growth in the short-term trend for imports of machinery and industrial goods and materials was offset by declines in the trend for the automotive sector. The trend for imports of agricultural goods and of consumer goods showed no significant movement.

Commodity Analysis

Total Exports (Seasonally Adjusted), Balance of Payments Basis (Table 3)

Much of the $146 million dollar decline in exports was due to a drop of $124 million in crude materials. Within this group, crude petroleum and iron ores dropped $87 million and $48 million respectively after correspondingly large increases the previous month. Within fabricated materials, declines of $51 million in organic chemicals and $42 million in newsprint were partially offset by an increase of $59 million in lumber products. Exports of cars and trucks posted small increases of $28 million and $22 million, while automotive parts fell $35 million.

Imports (Seasonally Adjusted), Balance of Payments Basis

The upward movement of $200 million in imports was largely due to increases in the energy sector. Crude petroleum, coal, and refined petroleum and coal products collectively moved up $148 million in May, recovering from a drop of over $100 million in April. Imports of office machinery and equipment grew by $65 million, after an equivalent decline in April. Imports of cars remained unchanged, but trucks rose $36 million and automotive parts fell $72 million.

Trading Partner Analysis (Table 2)

Total Exports (Seasonally Adjusted), Balance of Payments Basis

Exports to the United States dropped by $139 million to $8.0 billion, but still represented more than 80% of total exports. Exports to Japan rose $37 million to $378 million, but for a second month, remained well below the 1984 average monthly value of $461 million. Exports to the United Kingdom and other E.E.C. countries fell slightly ($13 million and $18 million respectively). Exports to other OECD countries declined by $78 million in May but were largely offset by increased exports to other countries ($65 million).

Imports (Seasonally Adjusted), Balance of Payments Basis

Imports from the United States dropped in May by $101 million to $5.8 billion, continuing a gradual downward trend from the January value of $6.0 billion. Imports from Japan largely offset this drop, increasing by $99 million. About half of this increase was due to car imports. Imports from the rest of the world rose $202 million.
