Overview

This report provides a statistical overview of the vegetable industry including the number of farms, total farm area, production, farm gate¹ value (FGV), trade, and innovation in the sector. It focuses on field vegetables, greenhouse vegetables and mushrooms. A separate report for potatoes is prepared annually.

Overall, Canada's field vegetable production volume decreased by 3.2% from 2017 to 2,123,985 metric tonnes in 2018. Field tomatoes topped the production of field vegetables with 492,835 metric tonnes (23%), followed by carrots with 347,340 metric tonnes (16%), and dry onions with 228,460 metric tonnes (11%). Ontario remained the largest producing province accounting for 43% of Canada's total production of field vegetables, followed by Quebec with 38%.

Despite the decline in production volume, the value of field vegetables rose 2.5% in 2018 to $1.2 billion. Together, carrots, tomatoes, dry onions, lettuce, sweet corn, broccoli and peppers represented more than half of the total value of field vegetables grown in Canada. Carrots recorded the highest value ($129.9 million), followed by tomatoes ($105.5 million), dry onions ($94.6 million), lettuce ($82.9 million), sweet corn ($76.4 million), broccoli ($74.4 million) and peppers ($68.8 million). Kale is an emerging commodity in Canada. According to data from the Census of Agriculture, the cultivated area for kale increased 389.9% from 2011 to 2016. In 2018, farmers cultivated 252.0 hectares of kale, with a farm-gate value of $5.5 million.

Canadian mushroom growers produced 125,565 metric tons of mushrooms, up 4.4% compared with 2017, marking the third year-over-year increase. The total value of Canadian mushrooms rose 4.9% from 2017 to $552.3 million, mainly due to the production increase. Prices were relatively stable compared with the previous year. Ontario and British Columbia are the leading producing provinces of mushrooms in Canada, together accounting for over 90% of total production.

Farm gate value for the greenhouse vegetable sector totaled over $1.5 billion in 2018, an increase of 5.2% from 2017, largely due to an increase in the value of cucumbers. In 2018, Ontario continued to lead the greenhouse vegetable sector representing 63.2% of total farm gate value, British Columbia and Quebec followed with 19.3% and 9.4%, respectively. Tomatoes were the largest contributor to greenhouse farm gate value, accounting for 37.4% ($565 million) of the total; cucumbers and peppers followed at 29.7% ($449 million) and 28.3% ($428 million) respectively.

Total Canadian vegetable exports, comprising field vegetables, greenhouse vegetables, and mushrooms, grew by 7.9% to $1.9 billion in 2018. The United States remained Canada's largest purchaser, importing 97.8% of Canada's total vegetable exports.

The greenhouse sector is a significant contributor to the Canadian value of exported vegetables. In 2018, greenhouse products accounted for 51.2% of total vegetable exports.

Due to the seasonal nature of field vegetable production in Canada, imports are an integral component of the Canadian fresh vegetable market and often necessary to fulfill Canadian demand year-round. In 2018, Canada imported approximately $3.6 billion in vegetables (field vegetables, greenhouse vegetables and mushrooms), with approximately $2.2 billion (60.1%) coming from the United States; Mexico was the second largest source of Canadian imports, with approximately $1.0 billion import value. The top vegetables in terms of quantity (including field and greenhouse) imported were lettuce, cabbages, tomatoes, and peppers. The top U.S. imports were lettuce, cabbages, and broccoli/cauliflower whereas imports from Mexico consisted primarily of tomatoes, peppers, and cucumber/gherkins.

The vegetable industry is continually introducing innovative varieties and products to meet changing consumer preferences. In 2018, approximately 274 new products were launched in Canada ranging from new varieties to new packaging. The top claims of new products included kosher, microwaveable, ease of use, organic, and ethical/ecological (i.e. environmentally friendly packaging).
