1. Executive Summary

Leger is pleased to present to Global Affairs Canada this report on the results of qualitative and quantitative surveys on the French's perceptions of Canada and CETA.

This report was prepared by Leger, which was mandated by Global Affairs Canada (contract No. 08324-180470/001/CY, granted on January 14, 2019), in partnership with its counterpart: BVA.

1.1 Background and Objectives

The Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement (CETA) is an international free-trade agreement signed on October 30, 2016 between the European Union and Canada, which provisionally entered into force on September 21, 2017. This agreement, which significantly reduces tariff and non-tariff barriers, also addresses several aspects related to the export of goods and services and the establishment of a stable and favourable investment environment for both European and Canadian companies. Although the ratification process has been completed in Canada, it is still in progress in some EU Member States, notably France.

It is in this context that Global Affairs Canada commissioned Leger to conduct a study to understand the general perception that the French have of Canada and Canadians, and more specifically CETA.

Goals:

- Determine the level of knowledge of the French regarding Canada, beyond stereotypical images of the cold climate, lumberjacks, etc.
- Identify the values that the French perceive as inherent to Canada (multilateralism, multiculturalism, economic liberalism, social equity, tolerance, etc.)
- Identify what the French think of Canada's approach to environmental protection and the standards in place to ensure the safety and nutritional value of food sold in Canada
- Determine whether or not the general French population is willing to increase its trade relations with Canada
- Determine whether the French see Canada as a powerful ally for France and Europe in the fight against populism in the world
- Measure the impact of key messages, especially those on the CETA (economic development, environment, health/food safety, progressive trade activities, geopolitics, etc.)

1.2 Methodology – Hybrid Research

To achieve the goals of the study, a research plan based on a hybrid method (i.e. qualitative and quantitative) was developed. First, a qualitative methodology based on focus groups with Parisians and Lyoneses was implemented, followed by a quantitative methodology consisting of a telephone survey of the general population of France. The two methodologies were used to explore and assess the perceptions and image of Canada and Canadians in France as well as the French's knowledge and opinions about the CETA.

1.2.1 Quantitative Methodology

The quantitative research was conducted by means of telephone surveys using computer-assisted telephone interviewing (CATI) technology. Data collection for this survey took place between March 8, 2019 and March 11, 2019. A total sample of 1,005 French aged 18 and over living in all regions of France were surveyed.

Particular attention was paid to ensure that the distribution of respondents was representative of the general population, while ensuring that a minimum number of respondents from each region of the country was surveyed. Using data from the most recent French census, the results were weighted according to age, gender, region, occupation, and the size of the city of residence.

Since the survey respondents were randomly selected, the sample collected has the characteristics of a probability sample. The results of this survey are representative of the state of opinion of the French population. The margin of error for a probability sample of this size is  $\pm 3.1\%$ , and that is, 19 times out of 20 (confidence interval of 95%).

Details of the methodology and questionnaires have been appended to this document.

Note for the reader

This report deals only with the quantitative portion of the study. For more information on the qualitative portion of the study, please refer to the report “Perception of Canada and CETA in France – Qualitative Research.”

1.3 Overview of the Study Findings

General Perception of Canada

The French seem to be increasingly connected to Canada. The results show that a vast majority of French (two-thirds) have friends or family members who have gone to school, worked or settled in Canada. Canada has never seemed so close to France as it is now. Beyond the traditional and clichéd perceptions of Canada, namely large open spaces and beautiful landscapes, the French have identified some of the core values of the Canadian identity, such as respecting differences, tolerance, equality and multiculturalism, which are all closely associated with Canada's image.

Without a doubt, Canada has a power of attraction among the French. Only a minority of them stated that they have never had any interaction with Canada. More than half of French have already felt like travelling to Canada and slightly more than one out of ten have wanted to settle in Canada in the past.

In general, Canada enjoys an excellent reputation in France. It is perceived as a very reliable economic partner, right behind Germany, but ahead of Australia, Japan, England, the United States and China.

Canada's economic image has its strengths and weaknesses. The economy is not dominant in the country's general image. Companies and brands remain largely unknown in France. Overall perception of the products, however, is generally positive. Products are perceived as meeting standards that are as high as those in Europe and are therefore of high quality.

In the minds of French, Canada truly stands out on the quality of its education and its high-level university research. This perception is very strong, particularly with respect to engineering.

Canada's economy is mainly associated with the renewable and green energy sectors, as well as forestry and mining. Other long-standing industrial sectors are not very closely associated with Canada's image. This is the case for the aerospace, oil and gas industries.

Canada also manages to distinguish itself through its cultural presence and offer. After all, it is quite well known that Canada has achieved global distinction thanks to its artists.

CETA

French's opinion of CETA is not set and seems to continue to develop. It rests primarily on a foundation of 20% of French who seem very convinced of its positive effects: consolidating the France-Canada partnership, access to Canadian products, business opportunities for French companies, labour mobility, access to the North American market. This foundation is reinforced by 50% to 58% of the French population who "somewhat agree" with these effects.

With respect to compliance with standards, 80% of French feel that Canada respects high health standards, just like Europe's, and 76% of them feel that Canada has quality food products.

The most popular Canadian product – maple syrup – is also the one that interests them the most, far ahead of clothing, cosmetics and food. In terms of food, fish and seafood are the products that could generate the most interest. Canadian meat interests French the least.

In addition to discovering Canadian products, other aspects of CETA generate a high level of favourable opinion: consolidating the partnership between France and Canada, facilitating labour mobility, offering new business opportunities to French companies, increasing investments, etc.

Finally, the study shows quantitatively that objective data on CETA and its provisional implementation would improve the general perception that French have of CETA: labour mobility, protection of about forty French AOP/AOC, increase in French exports, no private arbitration tribunals to protect investments, inadequacy of Canadian farms to export beef to Europe.

Finally, this quantitative study revealed an appetite for more information on CETA, particularly regarding: the environment, temporary job opportunities, standards and health questions.

1.4 Use of Results

The results of this research will enable Global Affairs Canada to update and adjust its messages to ensure that its awareness and communication strategies will have a positive impact on the target audience upon ratification of the CETA.

1.5 Notes on the Interpretation of Research Findings

The opinions and observations expressed in this document do not reflect those of Global Affairs Canada. This report was drawn up by Leger based on research conducted specifically for this project. The results of the qualitative portion of the study cannot be generalized to the entire French population. These results should be interpreted as a collection of opinions existing among the French population. The results of the quantitative portion are of a probabilistic nature and can be generalized to the entire French population.

Appendix A – Detailed Research Methodology

To achieve the goals of the study, a research plan based on a hybrid method (i.e. qualitative and quantitative) was developed. First, a qualitative methodology based on focus groups with Parisians and Lyoneses was implemented, followed by a quantitative methodology consisting of a telephone survey of the general population of France. The two methodologies were used to explore and assess the perceptions and image of Canada and Canadians in France as well as the French's knowledge and opinions about the CETA.

This report deals only with the quantitative portion of the study. For more information on the qualitative portion of the study, please refer to the report “Perception of Canada and CETA in France – Qualitative Research.”

Quantitative Methodology

The quantitative research was conducted by means of telephone surveys using computer-assisted telephone interviewing (CATI) technology. The survey questionnaire was developed by Leger in collaboration with Global Affairs Canada. Data collection was carried out by BVA, Leger's partner in France.

Data collection for this survey took place between March 8, 2019 and March 11, 2019.

A total sample of 1,005 French 18 and over living in all regions of France was surveyed.

Particular attention was paid to ensure that the distribution of respondents was representative of the general population, while ensuring that a minimum number of respondents from each region of the country was surveyed. The following table presents the target distribution of respondents in the regions, and the representative sample collected by BVA:

Table A2. Regional distribution of respondents

Regions	Sample
Île-de-France	204
Centre-Val de Loire	30
Bourgogne-Franche-Comté	46
Normandie	50
Nord-Pas-de-Calais-Picardie	93
Alsace-Champagne-Ardenne-Lorraine	79
Pays de la Loire	65
Bretagne	44
Aquitaine-Limousin-Poitou-Charentes	85
Languedoc-Roussillon-Midi-Pyrénées	99

Regions	Sample
Auvergne-Rhône-Alpes	130
Provence-Alpes-Côte d'Azur	80
TOTAL	1,005

Using data from the most recent French census, the results were weighted according to age, gender, region, occupation, and the size of the city of residence.

Since the survey respondents were randomly selected, the sample thus collected has the characteristics of a probability sample. It can therefore be said that the results of this survey are representative of the state of opinion of the French population. The margin of error for a probability sample of this size is  $\pm 3.1\%$ , and that is, 19 times out of 20 (confidence interval of 95%).

The quantitative research was conducted by means of telephone surveys, using computer-assisted telephone interviewing (CATI) technology.

Leger respects the strictest guidelines for quantitative research. The survey was drawn up in accordance with the Government of Canada's standards for conducting public opinion research – Series E – Qualitative and Quantitative Research.

Respondents were assured that this research was voluntary, confidential, and anonymous. As with all research conducted by Leger, any information that could identify respondents was deleted from the data, in accordance with the Privacy Act.

The questionnaire is provided in Appendix B.

Unweighted and weighted samples

The table below shows the distribution of respondents according to the main demographic variables used to weight the final sample. The size of the city of residence, the region of residence, as well as the gender, age, and occupations are the variables that were used to weight the final sample. In the following tables, the observed numbers, weighted numbers, and weighting factors are presented for all these variables. The weighting process mainly helped to adjust the weight of certain regions (Centre-Val de Loire) and certain age groups (18–24 years old and 25–34 years old) that were slightly under-represented in the sample.

Table A3. Distribution of the unweighted and weighted sample by city size

CITIES	n frequency	n weighted	Weighting factor

Table A6. Distribution of the unweighted and weighted sample by age

AGE	n frequency	n weighted	Weighting factor
18–24 YEARS OLD	86	104	1.21
25–34 YEARS OLD	128	159	1.24
35–49 YEARS OLD	226	261	1.16
50–64 YEARS OLD	278	253	0.91
65+ YEARS OLD	288	229	0.79
Total	1006	1006

Table A7. Distribution of the unweighted and weighted sample by occupation

PROFESSIONS	n frequency	n weighted	Weighting factor
Self-employed business managers	53	68	1.29
Executives and higher intellectual professions	132	124	0.94
Intermediate professions	149	150	1
Employees	88	111	1.26
Labourers	160	184	1.15
Retired people	380	315	0.83

PROFESSIONS	n frequency	n weighted	Weighting factor
Other non-working people	44	54	1.22
Total	1006	1006

There is no evidence in these data that a different distribution by region or age before weighting would have significantly changed the results for this survey. The relatively small size of the weighting factors and of the differences between the responses of the various subgroups suggest that the quality of the data was not affected. The weighting applied corrected the original imbalance for data analysis purposes; no further manipulation was required.

As with all research conducted by Leger, contact information was kept completely confidential, and any information that could identify respondents was deleted from the data, in accordance with the Privacy Act of Canada.

Participation Rate Calculation

The overall response rate for this study is 6.19%. The response rate is calculated using the following formula: (Completed interviews + Out of sample) / (Total sample - Invalid sample). This is the standard calculation method for the response rate of a telephone survey. The table below provides details of the calculation.

TOTAL SAMPLE	23127
Invalid sample	2212
No service	95
Non-residential	0
Fax / modem / Pager	2117
Numbers outside of sample	290
Language Barrier	0
Unqualified	283
Quota attained	7
EFFECTIVE SAMPLE	20625
Non-completed interviews	19620
Refusal	1912
No answer	11727
Answering machine	5372
Line busy	491
Incompleted	30

Appointment	88
COMPLETED INTERVIEWS	1005

Response rate: 6,19%

Although the participation rate of 6.19% seems low, this is a normal participation rate for consumer telephone studies in France. The participation rate in telephone surveys rarely exceeds 10% for a national French survey of the general public. A high response rate reduces the risk of non-response bias in the survey by reducing the probability that the sample is not representative.

A baseline comparison of weighted and unweighted samples was conducted to identify potential non-response biases that could be introduced by lower response rates in some demographic subgroups (see Tables A3 to A7 on previous pages).

There is almost no imbalance in the distribution of the unweighted sample relative to the weighted sample. The weighting process mainly adjusted for small distribution discrepancies.

The relatively small size of the weighting factors (factor of 1.34 being the highest) and differences between the responses of the various subgroups suggest that the quality of the data was not affected. The weighting that was applied, corrected the original discrepancy for data analysis purposes; no further manipulation was required.

As with all research conducted by Léger, contact information was kept completely confidential and any information that could identify respondents was deleted from the data, in accordance with Canada's Privacy Act.
