Service Area One covers the entire southern half of the province from a line drawn roughly across the province at Red Deer. More than half the population in this Area live in Census Division 6 which includes Calgary. The 17 selective depositories appear to be well distributed according to the main concentrations of population.

This area includes the sparsely populated extreme north of the province, so is larger in terms of land area, but equivalent in population to Service Area One. It is also similar in that more than half its population lives in the one Census Division (11) in which Edmonton is located. The University of Alberta, located there. Seventeen (17) of the 32 selectives, and the other full depositories (Edmonton Public Library and Legislature Library) are located in Census Division 11. Census Divisions 17 (54,709) and 18 (15,022) have a population of 69,731 and no selectives, but the population in these Divisions is scattered. There are numerous small communities.

Although Service Area One has a small population it covers a large land area - the entire north of the province which consists of widely dispersed communities and a minimal road system. Air transport is of prime importance for the inhabitants here. The principal concentration of population (98,974) is in Census Division 53 in which Prince George is located. Prince George is also the site of the Northern University of British Columbia. Fifteen (15) selective depositories are scattered throughout this Area with the exception of Census Divisions 57 (1,391) and 59 (5,856) which are not heavily populated enough to justify a depository collection.

This Area takes in the southern part of the province including the heavily populated area of the Okanagan Valley and excluding the urban area of Vancouver. It falls quite naturally into the area covered by two provincial regional library systems. The distribution of the selective depositories in Service Area Two could be made more equitable by discouraging more selectives in Census Division 1 (56,366) and inviting applications from Census Division 39 (48,116).

The urban area of Vancouver has been designated as one Service Area because of the population concentration and its well defined boundary on the southwest corner of the province. It should be noted that compared with Montreal (43) and Toronto (74), the urban area of Vancouver (26) has much fewer selective depositories per person - one for every 70,448 persons as compared with Montreal (41,298) and Toronto (32,235). While it may appear that the distribution of selectives within the area is equitable, there may not be a sufficient number.

This Area includes Vancouver Island and the west coast running from North Vancouver up to just south of the Queen Charlotte Islands. It is a geographically cohesive area with the majority of the population living on Vancouver Island. However, it is also an area with only 7 selective depositories and a number of Census Agglomerations without them. In order to address this, a minimum of 4 new local depositories should be established to cover requirements within the Census Agglomerations.

Manitoba's demographic pattern is unique in that 93.1% of its population live within 13% of the total land area. This concentration of population (1,036,585) in the southern portion of the province does not justify designating more than one Service Area for Manitoba. The northern part of the province has very small communities often separated by hundreds of miles, some only accessible by water or air. The long range plan in Manitoba is to link all the libraries in the province electronically.

The current distribution of the 31 selective depositories could be improved. Census Division 11 (Winnipeg and area) has the only 2 full depositories and 11 selectives. Census Division 17, with a population 23,975, has no selective depository, nor do the census agglomerations in which Portage la Prairie (Census District 9) (population - 23,195) and Thompson (Census District 22) (population - 35,584) are each located.

New Brunswick is unique in that it is officially a bilingual province with a 40% francophone population. Taking this fact into account, this province should be divided into two service areas according to language rather than according to a geographical division. The size and composition of the population, the compact land mass of the province and the current location of the full and selective depositories facilitate a division based on language.

Internet service is available throughout New Brunswick. Hook up of the various libraries is progressing. An Internet hook up would allow public and community college libraries to access the library catalogues of U.N.B., Université de Moncton, and Mount Allison. Université de Moncton also has a campus-wide electronic network serving campuses at Edmundston in the northwest of the province and Shippagan in the northeast.

The current distribution of selective depositories in the province could be improved. The number of selective depositories in Census Division 13 (Edmunston) should be taken into account. It should be noted that Census District 9 (Northumberland County) (population - 52,153) does not have a local depository.

Newfoundland and Labrador with a population of 551,792 lends itself easily to one Service Area with one Resource Centre. Approximately one half of the population is located in and around St. John's, Census District (1) (population - 251,523) with the remainder scattered around the coast. St. John's is considered by Newfoundlanders as the centre of their province and is therefore accessible by road from the majority of communities. The current selective libraries are well distributed throughout the province with the exception of Census Divisions 7, 8, 9 and 10, which have no selectives and which have a population of 141,826 persons.

The concept of Newfoundland as one service area meshes well with the initiative of the provincial government to build an electronic library network in the province, incorporating public, community college and university libraries. The Provincial Library Service is responsible for coordinating this initiative, which envisions the province divided into 17 economic zones, each with a full service library. These libraries will also act as community information centres and depositories of provincial government documents.

The population of NWT (64,402), although twice that of the Yukon (30,766), is still quite small compared to the land area it occupies which is six times that of the Yukon. Slightly more than one-third of the population is concentrated around the three communities of Yellowknife, Inuvik and Iqaluit (24,791). Satellite communication is being used to link the 17 regional libraries which have a centralized union catalogue. Arctic College which has three campuses has a different library system from that of the public libraries, but they also have a union catalogue on CD-ROM which is sent to remote sites. Yellowknife Public Library is considered as the depository for public information in NWT.

One service area is recommended for Nova Scotia (population - 909,282) in which 37.7% of the population lives in Halifax and area (342,966). This distribution of the population plus the fact that the current selective depositories are fairly well distributed throughout the province guarantees physical access to those government publications which the local libraries consider essential for their clientele. In addition, the province as a whole is well networked electronically. The seven universities in the province have all their holdings accessible on a union catalogue (NOVANET) which is on Internet. Currently the headquarters of each regional library system is on Internet. All public libraries, even the small ones, as well as the community college libraries, will be able to use Internet.

It should be noted that Census Division 9 (Halifax and area) has a preponderance of selective depositories, the majority (6) of which are in the universities. Those census divisions where there are currently no selectives appear to be well served by selective depositories in adjoining divisions.

The northern part of Ontario has a widely dispersed total population of approximately 582,159 (Census Districts 48, 49, 51 to 54, 56, 57). The burden of serving such a vast and remote area is challenging enough that we are recommending the entire area be divided into two with the population concentrations at Sudbury and the Lakehead as the core of each Service Area. Service Area One serves the larger population in a smaller land area. There are currently 28 selective depositories in service area 1.

Service Area Two (244,117) has half the population of Service Area One (582,159), but more than twice the land area. The vastness of the region suggests that special care should be exercised to ensure that a sufficient number of depositories is available. There are significant agglomerations of population in both the census agglomerations of Kenora and Elliott Lake.

Service Area Three takes in the area known provincially as Eastern Ontario. This is a political and economic designation, with Ottawa as its centre, which lends itself to being a natural Service Area. Slightly more than half the population (65%) and more than half the selective depositories are in the Ottawa-Carleton Region. There are 24 selective depositories in Ottawa-Carleton, and 16 selectives serving the rest of the Service Area. The National Library and the many federal government libraries are also located in the area.

Service Area Six has the largest population of any service in Ontario with 2,706,616 people living in the bedroom communities of Metropolitan Toronto. It is very similar in population and situation to Service Area Five in Quebec, which serves the suburbs of Montreal.

There are 59 selective depositories in the area. Seventeen (17) of these depositories are located in Census Division 21 (the Mississauga-Brampton area). This area contains about one-third of the total population of this Service Area. Consideration may be warranted of designating a Regional Library to support the Resource Centre for this area.

Service Area Seven (population - 1,730,952) consists of a narrow vertical section in the western part of the province which extends from the southern part of the Golden Horseshoe right up to the tip of the Bruce Peninsula. This area is heavily populated and contains several Census Municipalities with a population over 100,000. There are no less than 49 depository libraries in this area. This should be taken into account when entertaining requests for depository designation from the region.

This southwestern part of the province is compact, heavily populated (1,287,197) and has an excellent road system between all communities. The 32 selective depositories are well distributed throughout the Area. It should be noted that Census Division 39 (London and area) has 13 selectives and one full depository.

Prince Edward Island's geographical configuration - an island of 134,557 persons depending on ferry, bridge, or air service to reach the mainland - is best served by being considered as one Service Area. More than half the population live in and around Charlottetown which is geographically located in the centre of the province, is easily accessible by road and currently has one full depository and four of the five selective depositories on the Island. This should be taken into account when considering applications from Census Division 2.

This area, although it only has a population of 458,721 covers a vast territory which includes northern Quebec. It appears to be a natural geographic division bounded on the north by Hudson's Bay and on the south by the St. Lawrence River with the municipalities of Chicoutimi and Jonquière as the principal urban areas. The population in the northern part of this area lives in widely dispersed small communities, most of which consist of no more than 300 people. Close to three-quarters of the population live in four of the eleven census divisions (15, 16 and 91 to 99). Those four census divisions all have selective depository libraries. Census Division 94 currently has 5 selective depositories.

Service Area Two includes the Gaspé Peninsula and the north shore of the St. Lawrence from Quebec City to Trois-Rivières. Most of the settlement and the main roads run along both banks of the St. Lawrence River. Approximately one-third of the population in this Service Area live in Census Division 23 which includes Quebec City. The only other centre containing over 100,000 people is Trois-Rivières in Census Division 37.

The 35 selective depositories in this area are located in 13 of the 33 census divisions. This would appear to be an inequitable distribution of selectives, but there is only one area where the population (56,331 - Census Districts 5, 6 and 7) requires the addition of another selective depository. That is in census divisions 5, 6, and 7 (Bonaventure, Avignon and La Matapédia) in the Gaspé. The other divisions without selectives are either sparsely populated or are in close proximity to a census division which does have a selective. Census Divisions 23 and 37 appear to be well served by depositories.

Service Area Three is a compact geographical area extending from the St. Lawrence River in the north to the U.S. border in the south and from the Richelieu River in the west to a line just east of Sherbrooke. Population is fairly evenly distributed with Sherbrooke (population - 132,430) as the major centre. The road network in the Area appears to be excellent. Internet service is available in the Sherbrooke area.

The 24 selective depositories in this area are equitably distributed. It should be noted that there are 5 selectives and a full in Census Division 43 (Sherbrooke), and 6 selectives in Divisions 53 and 54 combined.

The Island of Montreal (Census Division 66) will be one Service Area. Its geographic configuration, population density, and transportation and communication network are all factors in considering it as one Area. It is an area well served with depository libraries, having 6 full depositories and 43 selective depositories. This translates into a selective depository for approximately every 41,298 people.

Service Area Five covers a vast area, and contains a large population (census districts - 58 to 60 and 64, 65, 67 and 70 to 72, the majority of which (1,311,932) are concentrated around Montreal Island. The Island actually segments Service Area Five. The other significant concentration of population in Service Area Five is in the Outaouais area (217,609). The remaining 560,659 persons are scattered throughout the northern portion of the Service Area.

The population which is concentrated around Montreal Island use Montreal as their urban centre for working, shopping and entertainment. Thus it would seem logical to place a Resource Centre for this Service Area on the Island. A new Regional Library might be advisable to support the Resource Centre, especially off the island.

The heavily populated areas in this Service Area appear well served by selective depositories. Seventeen depositories are located within a radius of approximately 50 kilometres or less from Montreal Island. Six depositories are located in the Outaouais.

Census Division 82, 83, 84, and 85 have no selective depositories, but neither do they have enough concentrated settlement. Census agglomerations in Divisions 68 and 69 do not have depositories. They are close to other census divisions which are well served. The number of depositories in Census Divisions 58 and 81 should be taken into account when considering new applications for depository status from these Divisions.

The demographics of the province of Saskatchewan are not unlike that of Manitoba, with the population living in the southern half of the province. In the north, Census Division 18, for example, which appears to be half the land area, contains only 2.5% of the total population. Approximately half the population live in the Census Divisions in which Saskatoon and Regina are each located. These two major urban centres in the centre of the province are well connected to the surrounding area by road, rail and air. The size and distribution of the population justify making Saskatchewan one Service Area. The Saskatchewan Provincial Library system will link all libraries in Saskatchewan electronically.

The 28 selective depositories are well distributed throughout the populated part of the province. Although Census Divisions 12 and 13 have 49,312 widely dispersed persons, they border North Battleford which is the location of the headquarters of the Lakeland Regional Library System. Census Division 17 with a population of 38,528 does not have a selective depository.

The Yukon, because of its small population and vast area most of which can only be reached by air, will be considered as one Service Area. The Yukon has 9 community libraries in centres with populations ranging from 300 to 1800. In communities of less than 300 people there are about 18 volunteer libraries with paperback collections. Although the Yukon will be considered as a Service Area, there may not be enough demand at this time to warrant either a Resource or Regional Library to be designated for the area. Satellite communication will doubtless change how information is accessed in the north. The DSP should continue to monitor the situation in this area closely, and explore matters further before finalizing any decisions regarding this Service Area.
