THE CONTROL AND SALE OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES IN CANADA

Historical Summary

The use of alcoholic beverages goes back to antiquity. The dedication of wine to special deities - the god Osiris of the Egyptians, Dionysus of the Greeks, Bacchus of the Romans - indicates its importance to these peoples. Ancient Babylonian records depict the brewing of beer from cereals and indicate its use as a household beverage. The distillation of liquids was known to the ancient Chinese, Hindus, and other Eastern peoples. Arrack, a strong spirit distilled from the fermented juice of the palm tree was made in India as early as 800 B.C.

Of ancient origin, too, are laws to regulate the use of alcoholic beverages. The Code of Hammurabi, c. 2100 B.C., contains decrees regulating the activities of tavern keepers. From early times, Governments have used the taxation of alcoholic beverages as a means of raising revenue. The social motive in control, too, has been strong. It has been sought to control the evils of intemperance in the interests of health and social welfare. These evils have varied greatly according to differences in climate, diet, economic conditions, habits, social customs and standards.

In general, the methods of legislative control of the liquor traffic have commonly comprised - (a) licensing, the oldest and most widely adopted method; (b) prohibition, either total or limited, the latter usually associated with local option or veto; and (c) monopoly of sale, usually by the State which retains control of the wholesale or retail sale, or both, and takes the profits as public revenue.

The first legislative restriction regarding intoxicating liquor in what is now the Dominion of Canada concerned its sale to the Indians. The spirits given in exchange for furs produced such devastating effects upon the native population that restriction of the traffic became necessary. In New France, an "arret" of 1663 declared that, "since the foundation of the Colony, the sale of liquor had always been prohibited on account of the fury of these people when in a state of intoxication", and imposed penalties on those continuing the traffic.

In the English colonies, too, laws were enacted imposing heavy fines or imprisonment for selling or giving liquor to the Indians. Its sale to the white population was also restricted. The usual method of regulation was the issuing by the local authorities of licences to manufacture or sell alcoholic beverages with more or less strict conditions imposed, the non-observance of which resulted in cancellation of the licence.

In the middle of the nineteenth century, a considerable agitation for the total prohibition of the liquor traffic developed both in the United States and in the British North American provinces. This found expression in various enactments designed to lessen the evils of intemperance. In 1853, the Municipal Councils of Upper Canada were authorized to pass by-laws to regulate licences and to limit their number, or to prohibit the retail sale of liquor within the municipality. These provisions were modified from time to time and, in 1866, the various Acts were revised and consolidated. In 1855, the Municipal Councils of Lower Canada had conferred upon them powers of regulation of the traffic in liquor and prohibition of its sale. In 1856, the County Councils were authorized to pass such by-laws for the whole county; if they failed to do so by a stipulated time, the local councils might act. In 1860 and in 1866, amendments were passed extending the powers of the local councils. New Brunswick, in 1855, passed a law prohibiting the importation, manufacture, and traffic in intoxicating liquors. Provision was made for the annual appointment in each parish of an agent to import, buy, and sell liquors for medicinal, mechanical, or sacramental purposes. The provisions for the enforcement of this Act were so defective, however, that much friction resulted and it was repealed the following year. In 1864, the Dunkin Act, passed by the Legislature of the United Province of Canada, provided that any municipal council could prohibit the retail sale of intoxicating liquors in townships and smaller localities if the majority of the electors within the municipality declared in favour of the law.

The distribution of legislative powers, as set forth in sections 91-95 of the British North America Act, 1867, left some doubt as to the respective jurisdictions of the Dominion and Provincial Governments in respect of liquor control. Control over the importation of liquor was generally conceded to belong to the Dominion. As to regulation of the sale of liquor, it was claimed that the provinces had jurisdiction because to them had been assigned "shop, saloon, tavern, auctioneer, and other licences in order to the raising of a revenue for provincial, local, and municipal purposes", (92-9); "municipal institutions in the province", (92-8); "property and civil rights in the province", (92-13); and, "generally, all matters of a merely local or private nature in the province", (92-16). On the other hand, it was argued that the licences were given to the provinces solely for the purpose of raising a revenue and that, apart from this, the Dominion had jurisdiction as part of "the regulation of trade and commerce", (91-2); or, as coming within the scope of "criminal law" (91-27); or, "of customs and excise", since, it was argued, the right to import and manufacture liquor implied the right to sell. Moreover, the Dominion had the right "to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada", in relation to all matters not coming within the classes of subjects assigned exclusively to the legislatures of the provinces.

The uncertainty as to the rights of the Dominion and Provincial Governments in respect of liquor legislation caused much confusion for several years after Confederation. In Ontario, when the Licence Law was separated from the Municipal Act and passed as a separate statute in 1869, the provisions as to prohibition by municipalities were not embodied in it, nor were they inserted in the Municipal Act when it was revised in 1873. In Quebec, the Municipal Code of 1870 retained the provisions of the old law authorizing municipal councils to pass prohibitory by-laws. In 1869, the Nova Scotia Legislature passed a law providing that no licence for the sale of intoxicating liquor should be granted unless the application was accompanied by a petition from two-thirds of the rate-payers of the polling district in which the tavern was to be established. The constitutionality of this law was upheld by the courts. On the other hand, a New Brunswick statute of 1871, providing that no licence should be granted in a municipality where the majority of the rate-payers petitioned against it, was declared ultra vires, chiefly on the ground that it was a regulation of trade and commerce, which belonged exclusively to the Dominion.

In 1876, the Ontario Legislature passed a new licence law, known as the Crooks Act, which took from the municipal councils the power of granting licences and placed it in the hands of three commissioners, appointed by the Government, in each city or electoral district. The Act also imposed further restrictions in respect of tavern licences, hours of closing, etc.

In response to appeals made, from time to time, for prohibitory legislation that would be applicable to the whole of Canada, the Dominion Government, in 1878, passed the Canada Temperance Act, more commonly known as the Scott Act, which provided that, on a petition from one-fourth of the electors in any county or city, an election was to be held and, if a majority of the votes polled favoured the Act, a proclamation would be issued bringing it into force after the date of expiration of the existing licences. From the date of the adoption of the Act, the sale of intoxicating liquors, except as expressly stated in the Act, was prohibited. Provision was made for sales for medicinal, sacramental, and mechanical purposes, by druggists and other licensed vendors. Distillers, brewers, and wholesalers might sell in quantities of 10 gallons and upwards, (8 gallons and upwards in the case of wine and beer), at one time, to druggists and other licensed persons, or to such persons "as they had good reason to believe would carry it forthwith beyond the limits of the county or city, or of any adjoining county or city where the Act was in force". Penalties of $50 for a first offence, $100 for a second offence, and two months' imprisonment for a third and every subsequent offence, were imposed. The Act might be repealed on a similar petition to the above followed by a favourable vote. Decisions either for or against the Act, as decided by a majority vote, were to remain in force for three years. It was further provided that the Dunkin Act should not be brought into force in any new locality and that the bringing into force of the Scott Act should have the effect of superseding any by-law passed under the Dunkin Act.

The constitutionality of the Canada Temperance Act was soon disputed. It was, however, sustained by the Privy Council in 1882 (Russell v. the Queen), for the reason that it did not fall within any of the powers assigned to the provinces and was valid as "maintaining the peace, order, and good government of Canada". From this decision the inference was drawn that the Dominion had supreme authority over liquor licences, and that the rights of the provinces were confined to raising revenue therefrom. In the session of 1883, the Dominion Parliament passed the Dominion Licence Act, popularly known as the McCarthy Act, establishing a Dominion system of hotel, shop, vessel, and wholesale licences. This Act, made applicable to all parts of Canada where the Scott Act was not in force, followed largely the lines of the Crooks Act and was, in many respects, more stringent than the liquor licence laws of several of the provinces.

In 1883, the Privy Council, in a test case from Ontario (Hodge v. the Queen), upheld the provincial legislation and regulations on the grounds that they properly came under the head of municipal institutions, the enforcement of provincial laws, and matters of a local or private nature, that they did not interfere with the regulation of trade and commerce, and did not conflict with the Canada Temperance Act. This decision validated the provincial law but there was still doubt as to whether it voided the Dominion Licence Act. Most of the provinces adhered to their own licence laws and, in some, two sets of licences were issued.

The question of the constitutionality of the Dominion law was finally carried to the Privy Council which decided that both the McCarthy Act and an amending Act of 1884 were ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament.

By the turn of the century, the constitutional dispute had been settled by successive decisions of the Privy Council which established that the provinces have complete control of the retail trade in liquor, the Dominion of its manufacture and importation. The licensing of shops and taverns is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the provinces. The Canada Temperance Act, which provides for local option in counties or districts of the provinces, is within the jurisdiction of the Dominion and the licensing of brewers and distillers, although duly licensed by the Dominion, is also within the competence of provincial legislation. The Canada Temperance Act still stands and under its authority a number of communities prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages.

The question of the prohibition or regulation of the liquor traffic has figured largely in Canadian politics. Space limitations make it impossible to follow in detail the historical record of each province in dealing with the liquor problem but a few of the salient features are indicated below.

The Scott Act was adopted in a large portion of the Maritime Provinces shortly after its enactment and proved generally acceptable. The other provinces made, on the whole, little use of the Act, preferring to develop local option through provincial legislation. During the years 1884 and 1885, the Scott Act was adopted in many counties throughout Ontario. Difficulties soon arose, due mostly to controversy as to whether the Dominion or Provincial officers were bound to enforce the Act. This was settled, in 1887, by legislation which provided that the officers and machinery of the Licence Act should be available for the enforcement of the Scott Act. Dissatisfaction had grown so strong, however, that the latter was repealed, in 1888 and 1889, in county after county, by decisive majorities. An agitation was begun for the re-enactment of the prohibitory clauses of the Municipal Act which had been omitted when the municipal and licence laws were separated (see page 2). In 1890, local option provisions were introduced in the Ontario Liquor Licence Act. A municipal council might pass a by-law that no licences to sell liquor might be issued in the municipality. Approval of the by-law by a three-fifths majority of the electors was necessary and it might not be repealed for three years, and then only on a three-fifths majority of the electors approving. Quebec always retained the clauses of the Municipal Code authorizing local councils to pass prohibitory by-laws and refuse licences. Manitoba's licence and local option laws were based on those of Ontario and, in 1892, similar laws were applied to the Northwest Territories. British Columbia, where the number of licences was large in proportion to the population, tightened its licence regulations in 1891. The tendency in all provinces was, in general, towards restrictive legislation and more stringent regulation. In the two decades before World War I, considerable numbers of rural and the smaller urban municipalities throughout Canada adopted local option under provincial statutes. These did not, however, entirely stop the consumption of liquor because they could not prohibit manufacture in one province for export into another.

Agitation for national prohibition had continued. Resolutions in favour of a Dominion prohibitory law were, from time to time, introduced in the Dominion Parliament. During the session of 1884, a resolution declaring "that the right and most effectual legislative remedy for the evils of intemperance is to be found in the enactment and enforcement of a law prohibiting the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes", was adopted by a vote of 122 to 40. However, an amendment declaring that the public sentiment of Canada was then ripe for such legislation was defeated by a vote of 107 to 55. In 1887, a resolution in favour of immediate prohibition was defeated by a vote of 112 to 70, and, in 1889, by 99 to 59. A Royal Commission was appointed in 1892 to inquire into the working of the liquor traffic and prohibitory legislation. It took evidence and conducted inquiries throughout Canada and in several of the United States. Four of the Commissioners reported adversely to prohibition while a fifth presented a minority report strongly in its favour.

Manitoba was the first Canadian province to submit the question of prohibition to a plebiscite. During 1892, a Bill was introduced in the Manitoba Legislature "to enable the electors of Manitoba to vote upon the advisability of introducing a law totally prohibiting the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage into or in the province of Manitoba". The result of the vote in an electoral list of 46,669 was:- For, 18,637; Against, 7,115. In 1893, the New Brunswick Legislature adopted a resolution in favour of Dominion-wide prohibition "of the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage". In Ontario, in the municipal elections of 1894, a vote was taken on the question of "the prohibition by competent authority of the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage in the province". This vote resulted in a majority for prohibition of 31,769, the total vote polled being 303,209 of a voters' list of 549,202. Similar resolutions were adopted in other provinces and votes on the question taken at different times during the next few years.

A Dominion-wide plebiscite, taken in 1898, showed a majority of 13,886 in favour of a Dominion prohibitory law. The number of votes polled, however, was only 44 per cent of the names on the voters' list. The decision of the Government, as summarized by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was that "the expression of public opinion as recorded at the polls in favour of prohibition did not represent such a proportion of the electorate as would justify the introduction of a prohibitory measure". The results of the provincial plebiscites, likewise, were not considered decisive enough to warrant the enactment of provincial prohibition laws. It was not until after the outbreak of World War I, in fact, that there was any real departure from the local option system as developed under the Scott Act and the provincial Licence Acts.

During the years 1916 and 1917, as a war policy, legislation prohibiting the sale of alcoholic liquors, except for medicinal and scientific purposes, was passed in all the provinces except Quebec, where similar legislation was passed in 1919. The prohibition extended to the sale of beer and wine except in Quebec. Native wine could be sold, however, in Ontario.

In aid of provincial legislation prohibiting or restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors, the Dominion Government, in May, 1916, passed a law (6-7 Geo. V. c. 19), making it an offence to send intoxicating liquors into any province to be dealt in, contrary to the law of that province. In November 1919, this Act was amended to include manufacture for illegal sale, and the Canada Temperance Act was amended by 10 Geo. V. c. 9, to prohibit importation and manufacture for illegal importation in any province, by Order in Council, after an approving referendum had been taken by the Dominion Government, at the request of the Provincial Legislature. A later amendment empowered the Federal Government to forbid export liquor operations, except by brewers and distillers, in provinces which barred liquor imports, provided a request for such action was made by a local legislature.

After World War I, the provinces continued under prohibition for varying periods. Plebiscites were taken, from time to time, to ascertain the will of the electorate as to whether the policy of prohibition, adopted as an emergency measure, should be continued. During 1921, Quebec, British Columbia, and Yukon Territory discarded the existing prohibition laws and adopted policies of liquor sale under government control. The same course was followed by Manitoba in 1923, Alberta in 1924, Saskatchewan in 1925, Ontario and New Brunswick in 1927, and Nova Scotia in 1930. Prince Edward Island adhered to a policy of prohibition until 1948, but in the plebiscite of June 28, Government control of liquor sales won over prohibition by a more than 2 to 1 majority.

In 1928, the Dominion Government passed "The Importation of Intoxicating Liquors Act", (18-19 George V. c. 31), prohibiting the importation into any province of intoxicating liquor, unless consigned to His Majesty, the Executive Government, or government agency vested with the right of selling intoxicating liquor. The provisions of the Act do not apply to the transportation of intoxicating liquor through a province by a common carrier by water or railway, if in unbroken packages; the importation by licensed distillers or brewers for blending purposes only; transfer between distilleries; the importation of intoxicating liquor for sacramental or medicinal purposes; or for manufacturing or commercial purposes other than for the manufacture or use thereof as a beverage.

World War II brought additional controls designed to further restrict the use of alcoholic beverages in time of war and release manpower and material resources for the requirements of the armed forces, war industry, and essential civilian activity.

War Order No. C.C. 14 prohibited the production of distilled spirits for beverage purposes in Canada, on and after Nov. 1, 1942. The distilling of spirits was placed under the Chemicals Controller, the distilleries, in effect, being commandeered by the Government for the production of alcohol for war purposes, chiefly in the manufacture of munitions and synthetic rubber. From time to time, depending on war exigencies, the production of small quantities of beverage spirits was permitted. War Order C.C. 14 was rescinded by C.C. 14A, of August 30, 1945.

The Wartime Alcoholic Beverages Order (P.C. 11374, Dec. 16, 1942) prohibited the advertising of spirits, wine, and beer, and limited their importation and sale. Manufacturers' sales of proof spirits were limited to 70 p.c., domestic wine to 80 p.c., and beer to 90 p.c. of the respective amounts sold in the base period (year ended October 31, 1942). Imports of spirits, wine, and beer, were similarly restricted. The sale of alcoholic spirits of strength greater than 70 p.c. proof spirit (except that taken out of bond or bottled prior to the date of the order), and the distilling of spirits for use in fortifying wines, were also prohibited. Advertisements respecting spirits, wine, or beer, also the advertisement of any person as a distiller, manufacturer, or brewer of spirits, wine, or beer, or of a person who sells spirits, wine, or beer, was prohibited, with the exception of labels or information on the containers, or of an advertisement which, in the opinion of the Minister, is in the public interest, or the legal, financial, or other reasonable needs of the distiller, manufacturer, brewer, or seller, required to be published.

The restrictions of the Wartime Alcoholic Beverages Order were gradually relaxed and by August 3, 1945 all except the prohibition of advertising had been removed. However, on March 18, 1948, so that additional grain might be exported to areas where food shortages were acute, the Wartime Alcoholic Beverages Order was further amended (by authority of The National Emergency Transitional Powers Act, 1945) by P.C. 991, which limited the quantity of spirits which any distiller might produce from grain or malt during the year ending March 31, 1947, to 50 p.c. of the quantity so produced during the year ending March 31, 1946. Production in any one month was not to exceed 50 p.c. of the quantity produced in the corresponding month of the preceding year. The advertising prohibition lapsed with the lapsing of the wartime controls on March 31, 1947.

The Liquor Boards adopted various wartime restrictive measures designed to conserve stocks and to ensure a more even distribution of the available supplies. These included the discontinuance of special permits, reduced selling hours in retail outlets, establishment of quotas, etc. With the removal of the restrictions of the Wartime Alcoholic Beverages Order on sales by manufacturers, the Liquor Boards increased the ration allowance to consumers. Supplies continued to be limited by shortages of materials and manpower but, as the situation eased, restrictions were relaxed.

The Provincial Liquor Control Acts have been framed to conform to conditions peculiar to the localities where they are in force and there is considerable variation in the regulations. The salient feature of all is the establishment of a provincial monopoly of the retail sale of alcoholic beverages, with the practical elimination of private profit therefrom. Partial exception is made in the retail sale of beer by brewers or others which certain provinces permit while reserving regulative rights and taxing such sales heavily. One province permits local producers to sell wine at retail, under certain restrictions. Most provinces permit only "institutional" or "goodwill" advertising.

The original Liquor Control Acts have been modified, from time to time, as deemed advisable. Brief summaries of the legislation under these Acts are given below.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Under the Prohibition Act, liquor is dispensed by Government vendors to holders of prescriptions given by practising physicians for medicinal use only.

From 1918 to 1935, the enforcement of the Prohibition Act was in the hands of a Commission appointed by the Government. In 1935, the Commission was abolished and the enforcement of the Act placed on the same footing as all other law enforcement in the Province, by transferring it to the Department of the Attorney General. The existing legislation was confirmed by a plebiscite taken in June, 1940.

In 1945, an amendment to the Prohibition Act provided that, where a physician prescribes alcoholic liquors for a period of six months, such prescription may be surrendered and a warrant obtained providing for the sale weekly of spirits, wine, and ale in quantities not exceeding one 26-oz. bottle of spirits, one bottle of wine, or one case of ale. Warrants are cancelled upon conviction for any offence involving alcoholic liquors.

NOVA SCOTIA

Act

The Nova Scotia Liquor Control Act, passed April 30, 1930.

Administration

The Nova Scotia Liquor Commission has authority to control the possession, sale, transportation, and delivery of liquor; to control, manage, and supervise all government liquor stores and shops and, in all other ways to administer the provisions of the Act. All moneys received from the sale of liquor at government stores, or otherwise arising in the administration of the Act, other than from licence and permit fees, are paid to the Commission. Fees for licences and permits for the purchase and sale of liquor are paid to the Commission through stores and at head office and the moneys received are transmitted by the Commission to the Provincial Treasurer to be accounted for as part of the general revenue of the province and do not form part of the profit and loss account of the Commission. The Commission must make an annual report to the Legislature covering operations for the year ending November 30.

Disposition of Profits

From the profits arising under the Act, such sums as may be determined by the Governor in Council are to be set aside for the creation of a reserve fund to meet any losses that may be incurred by the Government in connection with the administration of the Act, also such sums as are necessary to cover the expenditures incurred in connection with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Expenditures incurred in carrying out and enforcing the provisions of the Act are charged against profits. The remaining net profits are paid into the Consolidated Revenue Fund at the direction of the Provincial Treasurer.

1/ It may be noted that in the plebiscite of June 23, 1940, Government control of liquor sales won over prohibition by a more than 2 to 1 majority, with about 60 per cent of the eligible voters in Prince Edward Island casting ballots.

Regulation of Sale

Where Sold. - Liquor may be sold by the Commission in such manner, and at such places and prices as the Commission prescribes. No liquor is to be sold, however, in any municipality in which, under the Plebiscite Act of 1929, a majority of votes was cast against the sale of liquor under a Government Control Act. In consequence of this Act, the sale of liquor is not permitted in the counties of Shelburne and Hants. An amendment of April 18, 1946 to the Nova Scotia Liquor Control Act provided for the appointment of a "Tavern Licensing Committee", which would be authorized to issue, suspend, revoke, or cancel licences for the sale of beer and wine by the glass or open bottle in hotel dining rooms and taverns. This committee is now carrying out this duty following plebiscites which must be held in towns and municipalities which request them and, without which plebiscites, sales cannot be permitted.

How Sold. - (1) In sealed packages from government liquor stores. Individual permits are required for the purchase of spirits, beer, and wine. Alcohol can be obtained only under a prescription or special permit specifying it.

(2) Limited quantities may be sold by vendors on a doctor's prescription.

To Whom Sold. - (1) Individual permits may be granted to individuals of 21 years of age or over who have resided in the province at least one month previous to the application.

(2) Individual permits for a period of one month may be granted to individuals of the age of 21 years or over temporarily resident or sojourning in the province.

(3) Special permits may be granted to druggists, to persons engaged in manufacturing or scientific pursuits requiring liquor for use therein, or for other stated purposes.

(4) Special permits may be granted to physicians, dentists, veterinaries, persons in charge of hospitals, homes for the aged, etc.

(5) Liquor may not be sold to minors, interdicted persons (except on a doctor's prescription) nor to any other persons disqualified by the Commission, or by Act of the Dominion of Canada.

NEW BRUNSWICK

Act

The Intoxicating Liquor Act, 1927, assented to April 20, 1927; main provisions brought into force September 6, 1927.

Administration

The New Brunswick Liquor Control Board has authority "to control all dealings in liquor in the province, to control, manage, and supervise all government liquor stores, and in all other ways to administer the Act". The Board must make to the Government an annual report covering the nature and amount of business transacted during the year ended October 31. All moneys received under the Act are paid to the Board which pays all expenses of administration.

Disposition of Profits

From the profits of the Board there may be set aside such sums as may be specified by the Governor in Council for a reserve fund to meet any loss which the province may incur in the administration of the Act. The net profits of the Board are paid into the Consolidated Revenue Fund of the province.

Regulation of Sale

Where Sold. - At government liquor stores; beer from beer warehouses or from licensed brewers on order of the Board.

How Sold. - (1) In sealed packages, (a) at government liquor stores; (b) by express or mail from head office mail order department; (c) delivered directly by brewers on order of the Board. In such cases the brewers act as agents of the Board and must make to it a monthly report of gross sales.

(2) Six ounces may be sold by government liquor stores on a physician's prescription.

To Whom Sold. - Liquor may not be sold to minors, interdicted persons, etc., (except on a doctor's prescription), nor to any other persons disqualified by the Board. All other persons may purchase liquor in accordance with the provisions of the Act and Regulations.

QUEBEC

Act

The Alcoholic Liquor Act, assented to February 25, 1921.

Administration

The Quebec Liquor Commission has authority to control liquor sales, to grant permits, to regulate the establishments to which permits are granted, and in other ways to administer the provisions of the Act. All revenue collected under the Act is paid to the Commission, which pays all costs of administration. In 1936, the five Commissioners were dismissed and their powers transferred to a General Manager.

Disposition of Profits

Profits of the Commission are paid to the Provincial Treasurer on demand to become a part of the Consolidated Revenue of the Province.

Regulation of Sale

Where Sold. - Spirituous liquors and wines from government liquor stores; beer from brewers or brewers' warehouses to permittees authorized to sell to consumers; in hotels, inns, cafés, boats, dining cars, grocery stores, taverns, clubs, trading posts, at banquets, etc. (See under "How Sold", below).

However, the Commission must refuse to grant any permit for the sale of alcoholic liquor in any municipality where a prohibition by-law is in force. Such a by-law may be revoked as to beer and wine, or beer only, by submission to the electors.

The Commission must refuse to grant any permit for the sale of alcoholic liquor in any city or town whose population exceeds 5,000 (and where a prohibition by-law is not in force) whenever the municipal council has, by a by-law, requested the Commission to refuse to grant any permit.

In addition, the Commission must refuse to grant a permit in a town whose population does not exceed 5,000, or a village or municipality, unless such municipality requests it by by-law approved by a majority of voters.

- How Sold. -
- (1) Spirituous liquors and wines from government liquor stores.
 - (2) Beer by brewers to permittees authorized to sell beer to consumers. In such cases the brewers act as agents of the Commission and must make to the Commission a monthly report of sales. Those who purchase from brewers must pay, through the brewers to the Commission, a tax equal to 5 cents per gallon of draught beer; 7 cents per dozen of large bottles, and 4 cents per dozen of small bottles.
 - (3) Spirits, beer or wine by the glass or open bottle in hotels having special licences, in steamboats, dining cars or clubs, with or without meals; in other hotels and in cafés with meals only; beer and wine only in inns having special licences, with or without meals; in other inns and in cafés, with meals only.
- In the case of a steamboat, permit is granted only if such boat performs regular service between points in the province at least fifty miles apart.
- (4) Beer in quantities of not less than one bottle from licensed grocery stores, such beer not to be consumed on the premises. In villages or rural municipalities, such licence may be granted only to hotels licensed under the Quebec Licence Act and which, at the same time, hold permits for sale with meals.
 - (5) Beer by the glass in licensed taverns in cities or towns for consumption on the premises.
 - (6) Beer and wine at banquets for consumption on the premises.
 - (7) Trading posts or industrial or mining establishments in New Quebec, or other territory in the northern part of the province, designated from time to time by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, may sell alcoholic liquor at such posts or establishments to their employees and to people living in such territory.

In every case, the alcohol, spirits or wine must have been purchased direct from the Commission by the holder of the permit, and beer from a brewer who is also a holder of a permit. Hospitals, universities, laboratories for industrial and scientific research, retail druggists, and doctors may purchase either from the Commission or direct from distilleries under permit, thus procuring alcohol at a lower price.

To Whom Sold. - It is forbidden to sell to persons under twenty years of age, or to interdicted persons, or other persons disqualified by the Commission. All other persons may purchase from government stores or licensed establishments.

ONTARIO

Act

- (1) - The Liquor Control Act (Ontario, assented to April 5, 1927).
- (2) - The Liquor Licence Act, 1946.

Administration and Distribution of Profits

The Liquor Control Board of Ontario has authority to control, manage, and supervise the government liquor stores, to grant, refuse, suspend, or cancel individual permits for the purchase of liquor; to make necessary regulations, and in other ways carry out the administration of the Act. The Board must make to the Lieutenant-Governor an annual report covering its activities during the year ending March 31. All moneys arising from the application of the Act are paid to the Liquor Board, which pays all expenses of administration. The Board may remit to a municipality which has entered into an agreement with the Liquor Licence Board, such portion of fees payable by licence holders as may be fixed from time to time by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. From the profits of the Board there may be taken such sums as are determined by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council for the creation of a reserve fund to meet any loss which the province may incur in the administration of the Act. The remaining profits are paid into the Consolidated Revenue Fund of the province at the direction of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

By the Liquor Licence Act, 1946, "The Liquor Licence Board of Ontario", consisting of three members, was created. The net profits from the liquor stores, and the proceeds of fines under the Territorial Liquor Ordinance are placed in a special account in the Consolidated Revenue Fund. The proceeds of fines under the Northwest Territories Act are credited to ordinary revenue.

The Commissioner of the Northwest Territories, with the advice and consent of the Northwest Territories Council, directs the activities of the Territorial Agent in the operation of the Territorial Liquor Stores and makes all necessary regulations to meet the conditions which arise.

Distribution of Profits

SALE OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES IN CANADA

The gross sales, other revenue, and net profits of the Provincial Liquor Control Boards or Commissions, as shown in their annual published reports, are tabulated in Table I.

In addition to the sales of alcoholic beverages made by the Liquor Boards, certain provinces permit brewers to sell beer directly to the public. In Ontario, native wine may be sold in sealed containers from the retail premises of licensed native wine manufacturers. Wherever possible, extra Liquor Board sales are shown separately.

It should be noted that the sales values as shown in Table I. do not, in all cases, represent sales to the final consumer since some provinces permit licensed persons to resell certain alcoholic beverages to the public by the glass. The available information indicates that the mark-up on such sales before reaching the final consumer would be approximately $98 million. Adding this to the total sales as set out on pages 16-21 ($427 million) it is estimated that the total retail sales of alcoholic beverages in Canada during the fiscal year 1947 amounted to approximately $525 million. It must be remembered that this figure includes the expenditures on alcoholic beverages not only of Canadians but of tourists and other visitors to Canada who number many millions annually. The basic data for a reliable estimate of the proportion which such expenditures (i.e. of non-Canadians) constitute of the total are not available. It should be remembered, also, that a substantial proportion of the above amount (more than 50 per cent) was returned to the Dominion and Provincial Governments as duties, taxes, and other revenue.

In comparing the figures of dollar sales over a series of years, the influence of price variations, changes in tax rates, etc., should be kept in mind.

Further breakdowns of the sales in each province, by type of beverage, are shown in footnotes a-j of Table I. Wherever possible, quantities as well as values are shown. It will be noted that information as to the quantities of the various beverages sold is not available for all provinces.^{1/}

^{1/} For an estimate of the apparent consumption, in gallons, of spirits, beer, and wine in Canada, see Tables 11-13, pages 40-41.

PRODUCTION AND STOCKS

Production figures on spirits and beer, as given in Table 3, are from the Department of National Revenue, to which the distillers, brewers and liquor warehouses are required to make regular reports. Data on the output of wine, Table 4, are from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics Industrial Census. As the bulk of the spirits and part of the malt liquor go into warehouses it has been considered necessary to show warehouse statistics in detail; these data, Tables 5, 6, and 7, are also from the Department of National Revenue.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

Data on imports and exports, as shown in Tables 8 to 10, have been taken from the Bureau's reports on the Trade of Canada. It will be noted that the figures on exports of spirits do not agree with the warehouse exports given in Table 6; the latter cover only exports in bond. It is not possible to estimate smuggling or illegal traffic in liquor, nor to estimate the quantities carried across the border by tourists leaving the country.

^{1/} The excise duty which was included in the value of distilled spirits, chiefly whisky, imported into Canada from countries entitled to the British Preferential Tariff since the fiscal year 1920-21, is excluded as from April 1, 1935. This lowers the import values and renders them not strictly comparable with those of previous years.

Apparent Consumption of Alcoholic Beverages in Canada

Accurate measurement of the consumption of alcoholic beverages by Canadians is extremely difficult, if not impossible. Temporary additions to Canada's population through tourist travel are, at certain seasons, extremely large. In 1947, for instance, more than 22 million visitors crossed the international boundary into Canada. Sales of alcoholic beverages to certain of these visitors undoubtedly reach considerable proportions. Precise measurement is impossible, however, since no separate record is kept by the Liquor Boards of sales to non-residents of Canada.

In Tables 11, 12, and 13, an attempt has been made to indicate the apparent consumption in Canada of spirits, beer, and wine, respectively, on the basis of the quantities produced, imported, exported, etc. It should be noted that these figures take no account of increases or decreases in the quantities held in stock by the Boards or by licensees. For instance, the Boards may, in certain years, buy heavily to replenish stocks or create reserves; such purchases would unduly weight the consumption figures for these years. The method of estimation is explained in detail below.

Spirits. - Practically the total production of spirits is placed in bonded warehouses, from where it is released for various purposes, as indicated in "Warehouse Transactions". (See Table 6). The quantities shown as "Entered for Consumption" are released from warehouse, duty paid, presumably for consumption for beverage purposes in Canada. In certain years, however, particularly in the late 1920's, the total domestic exports were considerably greater than the exports in bond. (See Table 11). The difference, presumably, was made up from exports out of the quantities "Entered for Consumption". The apparent consumption of spirits in the years 1920-42 was estimated by assuming that the total supply of spirits available for home consumption or for export was the sum of the quantities shown under "Entered for Consumption"; "Imports"; and "Exports in Bond". From this total available supply the total "Domestic Exports" and "Re-exports of Imported Goods", were deducted, the remainder indicating the "Apparent Consumption of Spirits" in Canada.

World War II introduced a new factor, namely, the export of large quantities of non-potable spirits for war use. For instance, spirits exported in bond were 3.4 million proof gallons in the fiscal year 1943; 17.4 million proof gallons in 1944; 15.9 million proof gallons in 1945; and 11.9 million proof gallons in 1946; while exports of beverage spirits were 2.5 million proof gallons; 2.2 million proof gallons; 3.2 million proof gallons; and 4.8 million proof gallons, respectively, in those years. Hence, for 1943 and subsequent years the addition of the quantities "Entered for Consumption", and "Imports", less "Re-exports of Imported Spirits", is believed to provide the most accurate estimate of the consumption of beverage spirits in Canada.

Beer. - Only a small part of the output of beer is placed in warehouses. The available supply is, therefore, made up of, "Production"; changes in "Warehouse Stocks"; and "Imports"; and by deducting the "Domestic Exports" and "Re-exports of Imported Goods" from this total supply, the "Apparent Consumption of Beer" in Canada is obtained.

Wine. - The "Apparent Consumption of Domestic Wine" is obtained by dividing the rates of excise tax into the total tax collections. This is believed to furnish a better measure of consumption than subtracting exports from production, since part of each year's production is not consumed in that year but placed in storage for maturing. The "Apparent Consumption of Imported Wine" is arrived at by deducting, from the "Imports" into Canada, the "Re-exports" of foreign supplies.

ALCOHOLISM AND CRIME

In the popular mind there is the belief that crime is associated with the consumption of liquor. In examining statistics to support this assumption it should be kept in mind that accurate interpretation of criminal statistics is exceedingly difficult. Crime by its very nature is unevenly distributed in various population classes and accurate interpretation of criminal statistics would necessitate allowance for such criminologically important population variables as age and sex distribution, urban-rural, regional, and other classifications, according to education, social and economic status, and so on. Such detailed breakdowns are seldom available.

While statistics of convictions are generally used as an index of crime they are, at best, merely indicative of apparent criminality. A conviction rate reflects not only criminal behaviour but the attitude towards criminal behaviour of the public and of the administrative and judicial personnel. These vary from time to time and from place to place. Conduct formerly legal may, by a change in law, become criminal; offences may be changed from a less to a more serious category, or the reverse. For instance, driving a car while drunk, formerly a non-indictable offence in Canada, was, in 1937, changed to an indictable crime. In wartime, statistics of crime are less reliable for comparative purposes because of special restrictions and new laws, shortage of personnel in law enforcement departments, shifting of population for overseas service and war industries, and the substitution of military for civil courts.

It should be remembered that non-indictable offences are affected more than indictable offences by extraneous circumstances and varying methods of law enforcement in different areas and in different years. Differences of this nature, apart from any changes in the drinking habits of the average Canadian may affect the statistics of convictions.

Considerations such as the above illustrate the difficulty of obtaining adequate statistical proof of any direct relation between increases or decreases in crime and methods of liquor control. The reader is, therefore, cautioned against superficial comparisons of statistics and hasty generalizations without taking into consideration differences in the age and sex distribution of the population and other factors, extraneous to changes in drinking habits, which may affect the crime rate.

Table 14 shows, for the period 1937-1947, convictions for offences related to the use of liquor, both indictable (serious breaches of the law) and non-indictable (offences of a minor nature, which are dealt with by Police Magistrates and Justices of the Peace), as compared with convictions for all offences.

It is reasonable to suppose that wartime restrictions on the sale of cars, tires, and gasoline accounted to some extent for the decrease in the years 1942, 1943, 1944, and 1945, in the number of cases of "driving a car while drunk". With the lifting of these regulations, the figure reached pre-war proportions and, in 1946, was 49.6 per cent higher than in 1945. In 1947, convictions for this offence were 3.8 per cent below those of the previous year.

Table 15 shows total convictions for drunkenness and rates per 10,000 adult population, by provinces, 1937-47, based on the 1931 and 1941 censuses and as estimated for intercensal years.

The number of convictions for drunkenness among men, which declined slightly in 1943 and 1944, increased in 1945 by 12.4 per cent, in 1946 by 38.2 per cent, and in 1947 by 10.8 per cent. This upward trend may, to some extent, be due to the return of men from overseas and to readily available money. Between 1938 and 1947, convictions of men for drunkenness increased 89.8 per cent, while convictions of women increased 131.7 per cent. As will be seen from Table 15, the number of convictions of women for drunkenness is relatively small.

Table 16 shows offences against the Liquor Acts and the number per 10,000 adult population, by provinces, 1937-47. Offences against the Liquor Acts usually represent a breach of the conditions of sale. Such conditions have varied greatly under different methods of control. (See pages 1-15). In 1946, the number of convictions for offences against the Liquor Acts reached the highest figure on record, an increase of 50 per cent over 1945. In 1947, convictions for these offences declined by 14.6 per cent.

Table 17 shows the age and sex of persons committed for driving while drunk and for operating illicit stills from 1937 to 1947.

Table 18 shows the number and sex of juveniles convicted of drunkenness and breaches of the Liquor Acts, by provinces, for the period 1937 to 1947.
