

Registered or Treaty Indians in Canada

Projections to 2041

The Registered Indian¹ population was estimated at 910,000 in 2016. Depending on the projection scenario, it could reach between 1.1 million and 1.4 million in 2041.²

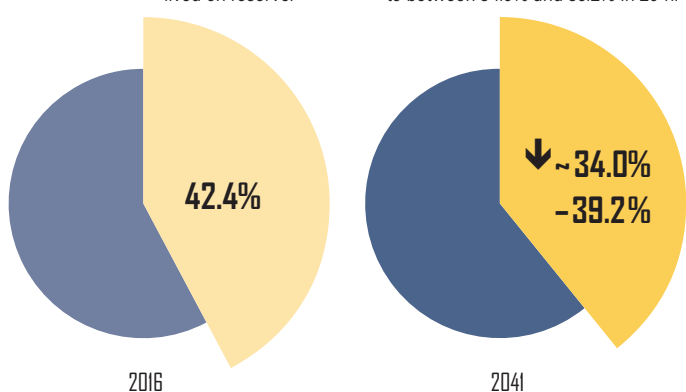

² The range of results presented comes from the results of the three projection scenarios developed: the low-, medium- and high-growth scenarios for Indigenous populations. For the non-Indigenous population, only a medium-growth scenario is used.

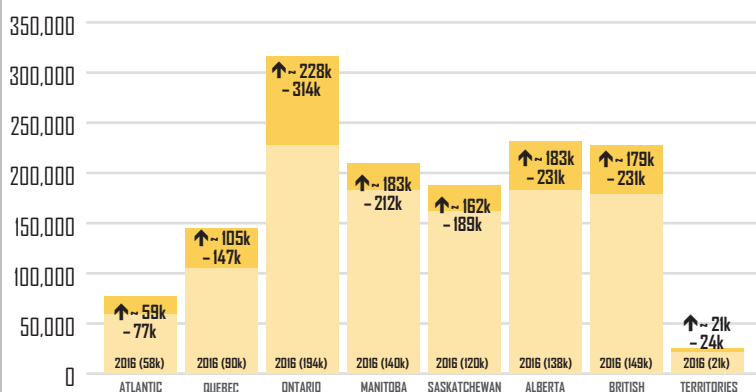

Proportion of Registered Indians living on reserve

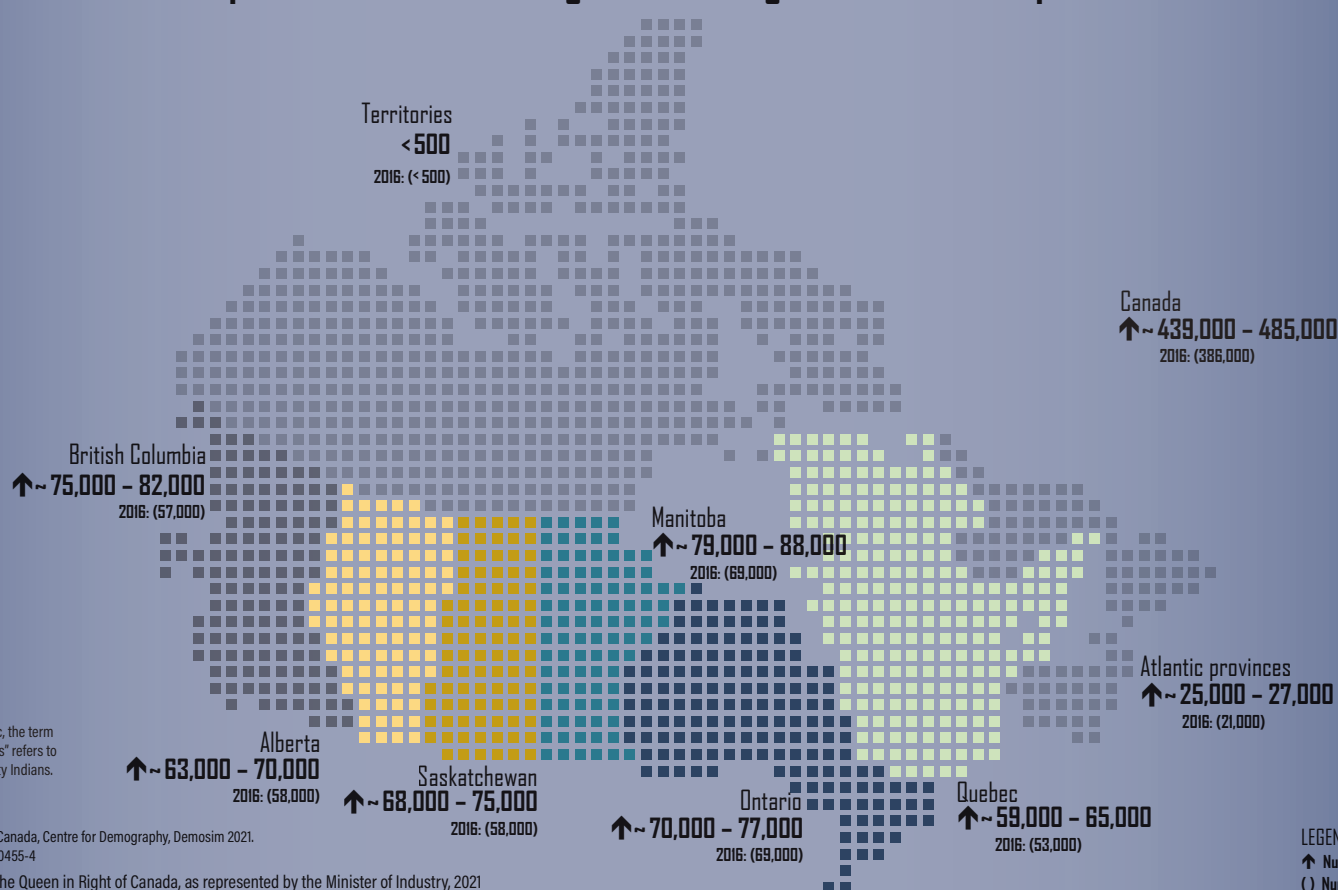

In 2016, 42.4% of Registered Indians lived on reserve. This proportion is projected to decrease to between 34.0% and 39.2% in 2041.

By 2041, the Registered Indian population would increase in all Canadian provinces and regions.

By 2041, the Registered Indian population living on reserve would increase in all provinces and in the region combining the four Atlantic provinces.
