Technology Transfer for Innovation in Forestry Operations

The Canadian Woodlands Forum (CWF), based in Atlantic Canada, is a national not-for-profit organization. It provides a network for forestry contractors, forest product companies, suppliers and on-the-ground forestry personnel to share knowledge and learn alongside their peers. Its main mission is to improve the efficiency and profitability of woodlands operations in Canada. The organization prides itself on an ongoing commitment to facilitate communication, foster knowledge exchange and promote forestry interests.

The Canadian Woodlands Forum held a range of virtual events and activities for professionals in the wood fibre supply chain to exchange knowledge and further their education. The program content for events such as the CWF's spring meeting and webinar series spotlighted current research results, climate-conscious forestry practices and new planning tools. A cross-section of over 280 fibre supply chain professionals participated in the CWF's activities.
