Juggling School and Work

1980 and 1990

An article entitled "Juggling school and work," appears in the Spring 1992 edition of Perspectives on Labour and Income (released March 3). The study examines the rate of student employment during the school year and the type of work that students do. The rate of student employment rose for men and women and for all age groups over the decade (1980-1990), but the largest increase, from 29% to 43%, was among women aged 20 to 24 years.

Highlights

- Despite an 18% decrease in the population of 15 to 24 year-olds, the number of full-time students increased by 3% between 1980 and 1990.

- Over the decade, the proportion of full-time students who were employed rose from 31% to 39%.
- During the 1990 school year, almost half of secondary school students aged 17 to 19 combined work with full-time studies.
- Nearly one-third of employed students worked less than 10 hours per week, while about one-half put in between 10 and 19 hours.
- Student employment is concentrated in the service (47%) and retail trade (35%) industries.

The Spring 1992 issue of Perspectives on Labour and Income (75-001E, $13.25/$53) is now available. See "How to Order Publications".

International Scheduled Air Passenger Statistics

1990 (Preliminary Estimates)

In 1990, international scheduled air passenger traffic reached its highest level since 1980. In 1990, the estimated number of passengers that travelled between Canada and a foreign country on a scheduled flight totalled 14.8 million, up 7.8% over a year earlier.

Three of the six regions (i.e., Asia, South and the United States) exhibited an increase in their passenger volumes from and to Canada. The largest increase originated from the transborder (Canada-United States) market with the number of passengers rising by nearly 794,000 (9.6%). The Canada-Asia market also experienced a noticeable growth in the number of passengers with an increase of 239,000 passengers (22.1%) in 1990 compared to 1989.

During this period, Africa recorded a decline of 0.8% (-1,500 passengers), while the Pacific posted a decrease of 0.6% (-1,200 passengers).

In 1990, Canada's prime international market continued to be the United States with 61.4% of all international scheduled passengers. Europe was the second largest international market with 20.4% of international traffic, while Asia accounted for 8.9% of all international services.
