Infomat: The paper alternative

On April 1, The Daily will stop being a paper-based publication and become an electronic information service. For several months now, a growing number of The Daily's readers have been making the switch to the electronic edition, which is available free of charge every business day at 8:30 a.m., official release time, via the Internet. Many readers, however, prefer a paper version.

If you would like to go on receiving a printed publication, then Infomat is the answer. Printed every Friday, Infomat is a concise, crisp bulletin, which summarizes the week's economic and social releases. Like The Daily, it will keep you up-to-date on consumer prices, manufacturing, imports and exports, employment and unemployment figures, and dozens of other key indicators. To begin your weekly subscription to Infomat (11-002-XPE, $140 annually in Canada), see "How to order publications". For further information about the publication, contact the Editor, Anna Kemeny (613-951-1197), Communications Division.

If your choice is the electronic Daily, you will find it in many formats on the Internet. On the World Wide Web, The Daily is located at <http://www.statcan.ca>. It can also be accessed from Statistics Canada's gopher service, TALON at gopher.gopher.statcan.ca. Best of all, e-mail subscriptions are free. To have The Daily delivered directly to your computer every business day, just request a subscription by sending an e-mail to lstproc@statcan.ca. Leave the subject line blank, and in the body of the message type subscribe daily Firstname Lastname. For further information about the Internet connections, contact Michael Thoen (613-951-1208), Dissemination Division.
