

"IP is Your Property"

The Canadian Intellectual Property Office (CIPO) is a special operating agency of Industry Canada. CIPO manages Canada's intellectual property (IP) system, disseminates IP information and grants or registers ownership rights for the following types of IP:

- patents cover new inventions (process, machine, manufacture, composition of matter), or any new and useful improvement of an existing invention;
- trade-marks are words, symbols or designs (or a combination of these), used to distinguish the wares or services of one person or organization from those of others in the marketplace;
- copyrights provide protection for artistic, dramatic, musical or literary works (including computer programs), and three other subject-matter known as: performance, sound recording and communication signal;
- industrial designs are the visual features of shape, configuration, pattern or ornament (or any combination of these features), applied to a finished article of manufacture;
- integrated circuit topographies refer to the three-dimensional configuration of the electronic circuits embodied in integrated circuit products or layout designs.

CIPO makes accessible to the public details of new innovations registered in Canada, specifically to promote the sharing of knowledge. As such, IP is a vital resource for businesses, researchers, inventors, academics and others who need to keep up with developments in their fields.
