QUEBEC : WORLD-CLASS AEROSPACE CAPABILITIES

The Quebec aerospace manufacturing industry has an outstanding range of capabilities, from research, design and development to testing and production of sophisticated hardware and systems. It also excels in after-sales support, field service and in-plant repair and overhaul of aircraft, engines and components. From manipulator arms used in orbital operations to air and ground-based avionic systems, there is little that the Quebec aerospace industry cannot do.

It is a dynamic and technologically advanced industry which, through specialization, has developed products that fly on hundreds of different aircraft worldwide.

Quebec is home to over 100 manufacturers of aircraft components, systems, sub-assemblies and accessories. They supply items such as electronic sub-systems, fuel control systems, wiring, structural elements, landing gear, communications systems, safety systems, navigation equipment, temperature control systems, aircraft interior finishing, hydraulic systems and control systems.

What these companies have in common is their ability to meet on time the exacting quality standards associated with aerospace products.

They employ over 27,000 people and in just four years, from 1979 to 1983, their sales more than doubled. Actual sales of more than $ 1.9 billion in 1983 are forecast to climb to over $ 3.0 billion (1982 dollars) in four years. The industry is an important Canadian exporter of advanced technology products and services : fully 70 percent of its total sales in 1983 were exported.

A golden opportunity for procurement specialists

Nowhere is the old slogan "Purchasing Makes Money" more appropriate than in the aerospace sector.

The successful buyer is always looking for new qualified sources capable of delivering quality products on time and at the best possible price.

Quebec Aerospace 1985 will introduce you to a remarkable group of such suppliers, about one hundred in fact, who offer the complete spectrum of aerospace products and services. Several of them will be familiar to you ; others may not. Therein lies an opportunity for the astute buyer to build up his or her pool of qualified sources.

For ease of reference, this book is divided into five separate sections tailormade for specialty procurement.

Volume 1 is an alphabetical listing of companies with a short description of each.

Volumes 2 to 5 group companies by specialization and contain more specific data, such as capabilities, equipment and quality standards as well as a list of major customers. The specializations are :

Vol. 2 Systems and Subsystems

Vol. 3 Precision Machining and Finishing

Vol. 4 Precision Investment Castings

Vol. 5 Specialty Products and Repair and Overhaul Services

Some companies appear more than once ; the table on page 4 shows which company is found in which volume. Finally, at the back of Volume 1 is a reply coupon for ordering extra copies of Quebec Aerospace 1985.

Quebec Aerospace 1985 will be periodically updated. To ensure that you receive the amendments as well as to order additional copies just fill in the reply coupon or write to :
