INTRODUCTION

The major telephone companies of Canada, operating together as the Trans-Canada Telephone System (TCTS) are no longer purveyors of POTS (plain old telephone service) nor is Canadian National/Canadian Pacific Telecommunications (CNCP) in the telegraph and telex business only. Both are firmly entrenched in the data communications field, having responded to the increasing data communications demand with innovative and sophisticated data offerings.

For example, in 1973 the carriers introduced, coast-to-coast, private line, digital networks. The TCTS offering, Dataroute, now serves 26 centres including all major metropolitan areas, with the CNCP's competitive offering, Infodat, serving the same locations. These offerings signified a major leap forward by complying with the federal government's Green Paper on Computer/Communications Policy, Statement 5 of which reads:

"The Government considers it important that policies for data communications in Canada should be directed to the provision of services that are more responsive to the present and foreseeable needs of the computer service industry and of users, and particularly to the reduction of data communications costs by relating charges more directly to effective use."¹

At a press conference² announcing the introduction of Dataroute, J.C. Carlile, president of TCTS, estimated that the use of the Dataroute service could result in a reduction of telecommunications costs in the order of 25 per cent or more for most of the computer communications systems then in operation.

The fact of providing digital services was even more dramatic. For example, a 300 bps analogue circuit from Toronto to Vancouver which previously cost about $3,500 a month can now be obtained digitally for just over $350 a month. Such savings accrue from sharing or multiplexing many individual circuits on one Dataroute channel.

¹ Computer/Communications Policy, A Position Statement by the Government of Canada, April 1973, p.10.

² Remarks of J.C. Carlile, 21 February, 1973.

Both carrier systems have also announced the next phase of data communications development, that of packet switching, which will deliver even greater economies and versatility to the data user.

In a second Green Paper,¹ the federal government also recognized that the trend to new carrier offerings was likely to be intensified in the future, especially in the field of computer communications. It went on to caution that as the carriers introduced more offerings there would be pressure for stronger regulation, with a possible resulting decrease in competition, and certainly additional regulatory costs, and further suggested that the regulatory body might be empowered to prescribe the terms and conditions on which any new service may be offered to the public.

If the terms and conditions are to be prescribed, the characteristics and determinants of data communications tariff design need to be explored. Such an exercise would better equip the Department of Communications to evaluate new data service offerings.

This paper will briefly discuss the history of regulation and the regulatory procedure with respect to the filing of tariffs for new service offerings and the mechanism, if any, for intervention before describing and analyzing the various tariffs.

The focus will be strictly on the filing of new data tariff applications rather than on the filing of general rate increase applications. The distinction here is important, because general rate increase applications, such as the recent Schedule I and Schedule II of Bell Canada, filed 30 May 1975 for consideration by the Canadian Transport Commission (CTC) are always subject to close scrutiny through public hearings. However, new tariff applications receive limited scrutiny.

I CANADIAN DATA COMMUNICATIONS BACKGROUND

1) Growth of Data Communications

Data communication is of great importance to the economy of Canada and the carriers have responded, as mentioned in the introduction, to the growth and potential of this market.

To illustrate this, Branching Out¹ projected that by 1980 the over-all growth of communications oriented computers will be 21 per cent a year in contrast to a growth rate of 15 per cent for all other computer systems. Quantum Science Corporation, a United States based research firm, arrived at a similar growth pattern but from a different perspective in its Network Information Services* study:

"The compound growth rate of this segment of the computer industry will be maintained at 25% to 30% per year throughout the 1970's."²

The approach taken by Quantum Science Corporation is different from that stated in Branching Out, since it measures the growth of data processing firms rather than communications oriented computers. But this factor does not jeopardize the basic premise that data communications forms an important and expanding segment of aggregate EDP growth.

Data processing firms, outside of the government, constitute one of the largest user groups of data communications facilities and products. They are making extensive use of TCTS and CNCP cross-country networks and in part, through the utilization of these computer communications networks, time share sales have grown spectacularly. Table 1 illustrates the sales growth of two Canadian data processing firms.

* Network Information Services (NIS) were defined as those provided to independent users through a central data processing facility over a communication network using either simple or complex terminals.

What the previously quoted growth forecasts and statistics show is that there is a derived demand for carrier communications facilities both from business users and data processing firms. The carriers themselves are also instrumental in increasing demand with the introduction of new plateaus of equipment sophistication resulting in communications facility cost reductions. All these factors emphasize the central position of the carriers in sustaining data communications growth.

2) Unregulated Services

Prior to 1970 data communications services were unregulated. It is interesting to note that it was through arguments raised by the Ontario government that these services became regulated, thereby augmenting the scope of federal regulatory power. The irony of the situation is that today the provinces, especially Ontario, are trying to manoeuvre into the position of regulating the carriers. This occurred in September 1969 when the Canadian Transport Commission began investigating the following argument raised by the Counsel for the Minister of Justice of Ontario:

"Bell should be required to allocate its investments in plant, its expenses and revenues between its regulated and unregulated services in such a way as to permit the Committee to determine the rate of return earned by regulated and unregulated services in terms of the telephone plant investments devoted to each such category of service."¹

The Commission acknowledged the Counsel's concern over unregulated services, and even though Bell Canada declared that unregulated services were not being subsidized by the revenues from regulated services, the CTC recognized the inability of Bell Canada to provide investment allocation figures for the separate services. The Commission therefore decided:

"...that it would be in the public interest for the Commission to investigate the feasibility of carrying out cost and revenue separations between regulated and unregulated services, and the methods and procedures appropriate for determining such separations and accordingly, Bell is hereby directed to undertake forthwith a study of such methods and procedures, and report thereon to the Commission within twelve months."¹

On 8 September 1970 Bell Canada filed the required report but by then, as will be seen in the following quotation, the unregulated services had already become regulated. This whole problem was summed up at a hearing on December 1970 before the Railway Transport Committee:

"...effective August 1, 1970, the provisions of the Railway Act relating to telegraph and telephone tolls were amended by 18-19 Eliz. II, c.20 and tolls charged for private wire services - the so-called unregulated services - were made subject to approval and revision by the Commission. As a result, cost and revenue separations between regulated and unregulated services became largely meaningless, and the Committee is now proceeding to examine the feasibility of separation of a different order for all telegraph and telephone companies under the legislative jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada."²

With the preceding amendment to the Railway Act the unregulated services of Bell Canada as well as those of CNCP and The British Columbia Telephone Company were brought under regulatory control.

II CANADIAN TRANSPORT COMMISSION: ACTS, RULES, AND REGULATIONS

1) Canadian Transport Commission

Since 1967, the CTC has been the regulatory agency for all forms of transportation under federal jurisdiction. Prior to that time, the regulatory agency was the Board of Transport Commissioners of Canada, and its jurisdiction was conferred by Special Acts of the regulated companies, by the National Transportation Act and by the Railway Act. The Board was a court of record, a superior court whose ruling on questions of law could be appealed only to the Supreme Court of Canada, but if other than questions of law, to the Governor-in-Council.

In 1967 under a major revision to the National Transportation Act, all previous powers of the Board, including various new powers, were delegated to a new regulatory body called the Canadian Transport Commission. In effect, it was merely a change in name.

Telecommunications Committee

Although all transportation was now regulated by the CTC, telecommunications and rail transportation still remained the dual responsibility of the Railway Transport Committee. It was only in 1972, in an amendment to the National Transportation Act, that telecommunications acquired its own Committee. The Telecommunications Committee performs all the functions of the Commission under various sections of the National Transportation Act, the Railway Act and the Telegraphs Act, in respect of matters pertaining to telecommunications. In addition, the committee is empowered under certain sections of the acts of incorporation of federally regulated companies, e.g. Bell Canada, and the British Columbia Telephone Company.

2) The Railway Act*

Of all the legislation pertaining to telecommunications, the Railway Act of 1903 (amended) is the most important, since it contains sections defining

* Appendix A contains the sections of all the acts in respect of telecommunications the Commission's power to regulate all common carriers. By definition, communications common carriers are included. Sections 320 and 321 of the act are the most pertinent regarding tariffs.

A paraphrase of the most important subsections of sections 320 follows:

- Tariffs must be filed with the Commission and are subject to its approval.
- Tariffs are to be submitted in the manner prescribed by the Commission.
- The Commission is empowered to determine the justness and reasonableness of tariffs and it has the power to accept or suspend them.
- The Commission can prescribe in what manner tariffs are to be published or subject to public scrutiny.

Section 321 is the heart of the Railway Act pertaining to telecommunications and rather than paraphrase this section, due to its importance, the entire section is reproduced below.

321. (1) All tolls shall be just and reasonable and shall always, under substantially similar circumstances and conditions with respect to all traffic of the same description carried over the same route, be charged equally to all persons at the same rate.

(2) A company shall not in respect of tolls

- (a) make any unjust discrimination against any person or company;
- (b) make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to or in favour of any particular description of traffic, in any respect whatever; or
- (c) subject any particular person or company or any particular description of traffic to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage, in any respect whatever;

and where it is shown that the company makes any discrimination or gives any preference or advantage, the burden of proving that the discrimination is not unjust or that the preference is not undue or unreasonable lies upon the company.

(3) The Commission may determine, as question of fact, whether or not traffic is or has been carried under substantially similar circumstances and conditions, and whether there has, in any case, been unjust discrimination, or undue or unreasonable preference or advantage, or prejudice or disadvantage, within the meaning of this section, or whether in any case the company has or has not complied with the provisions of this section or section 320.

(4) The Commission may

- (a) suspend or postpone any tariff of tolls or any portion thereof that in its opinion may be contrary to section 320 or this section; and
- (b) disallow any tariff of tolls or any portion thereof that it considers to be contrary to section 320 or this section and require the company to substitute a tariff satisfactory to the Commission in lieu thereof or prescribe other tolls in lieu of any tolls so disallowed.

(5) In all other matters not expressly provided for in this section the Commission may make orders with respect to all matters relating to traffic, tolls and tariffs or any of them.

(6) In this section and section 322, the expressions "company", "Special Act", "toll" and "traffic" have the meanings assigned to them by section 320. 1966-67 C.69, S.68.¹

Section 321, often quoted as the "just and reasonable" section, has rarely been applied by the Committee, since, for the most part, the work of the Telecommunications Committee has been its involvement in general rate increase applications and the Telecommunications Cost Inquiry, and little time if any has been devoted to evaluating new tariffs.

3) CTC Rules and Regulations

Up to this point we have discussed only those sections of the Railway Act under which the CTC has authority to regulate tariffs, however, they are not adequate to comprehensively direct the carriers in tariff filing procedures. Pursuant to section 26 of the National Transportation Act, the CTC was directed to draw up rules to govern its activities which read as follows:

"Without affecting its powers under any other Act to make regulation, the Commission may make rules and regulations for the attainment of the objects of this Act and in particular, but without limiting the generality of the foregoing, may make rules and regulations

- a) respecting the manner in which any committees of the Commission shall perform their functions and the duties and functions to be performed by the committees of the Commission;
- b) respecting the manner in which the various functions of the committees of the Commission are to be coordinated;
- c) respecting the proceedings of the Commission and its committees in the performance of duties under this Act; and
- d) respecting the assignment of duties to officers of the Commission and the delegation of functions thereto."

Expanding on the broad powers prescribed in Section 26 of the National Transportation Act the CTC drew up the Canadian Transport Commission General Rules* effective 20 September 1967.

In regard to tariff determination, Rule 305 section (b)² is important since it directs the applicant to submit all information required by the appropriate committee.

The information required by the Telecommunications Committee is of a supportive, economic and cost data nature. These data are always supplied at the time of a general rate increase application and usually with new data communications tariff applications.

² Canadian Transport Commission General Rules, 20 September 1967, Section 305.

* See Appendix B.

The reasonableness of new tariffs should be carefully researched by the regulatory body using these and other data provided. This was recognized in Instant World:

*"On balance, it would appear that, whatever the criteria adopted, effective regulation of rates in the public interest is difficult without a knowledge of costs that is sufficient to identify, at least as a close approximation, the true cost of any particular service."*¹

The CTC has not directed any specific research towards individual tariff determination, but has been reviewing cost determinations of another kind, raised in the recent Cost Inquiry.

The inherent danger in bureaucratic economic research, however, is aptly summed up in the following quotation from Instant World:

*"It should be stressed, nonetheless, that the dangers of micro-regulation are twofold. First, it may entail a volume of administrative cost, both in the company and in the regulatory body, that will in itself cause an increase in the price of service. Second, a regulatory body may be lured by a passion for excessive detail into a position of interfering with legitimate management decisions without accepting any responsibility to the shareholders for the results."*²

On the other hand, it is becoming apparent that the federal government does not bear sole responsibility for a general trend towards micro-regulation. In fact, it can be argued that the management of the regulated carriers is making decisions in response to CTC tariff decisions, which is precipitating a public demand for closer regulation. A case in point was Bell Canada's recent cut back (for legitimate reasons or otherwise) in new telephone installations following a CTC decision to allow only 50 per cent of an emergency interim rate increase. Up to now, carrier initiatives have been taken only in response to general rate increase decisions, since new data communications applications have been routinely tariffed by the Commission without comment.

In addition, Rule 325 directs that the application shall not be dealt with until the expiration of thirty days unless this period is enlarged or abridged. The implication here is that the norm for any application should be thirty days before the tariff becomes effective. Referring to Table 2, it is readily apparent that Bell Canada virtually ignores the thirty day waiting period. One explanation might be that the CTC and Bell Canada pre-arrange an abridgement of the effective date, or, that Bell Canada has tacit approval of the Commission to ignore Rule 325.

The reasons for this situation, although important, are not as serious as the fact that an abridged tariff could deny any chance for intervention by interested parties. The subject of intervention and its importance is discussed in the next sub-section.

* Dataroute was originally scheduled to be effective 24 February, but was delayed by the CTC until 26 March, 1973 to allow CNCP to tariff its own competitive service. See Sub-Section 4.

4) Intervention Process

One characteristic of the provision of telecommunications in Canada is that the two traditional carrier systems, TCTS and CNCP, hold monopoly positions in telephone and telegraph services. The carriers' tariffs have been regulated since the early 1900s in order to protect the public from the potential abuse of their monopolistic powers. Therefore, it is necessary for the carriers to seek CTC approval for any tariff initiative such as a general rate increase or the offer of a new service.

Under CTC rules and regulations intervention is permitted under Section 360 to support, oppose or modify an application. Moreover, under Section 435, the Commission is authorized, if it so desires, to convene a hearing on the application to provide an opportunity for intervention.

The Commission also has the power to require the carrier to give public notice of an application under Section 320 presumably in order to allow prospective interveners sufficient time to prepare support or opposition briefs. The carriers have complied with this rule for all general rate increases, however, in the case of new Bell Canada data tariff applications, Section 320 has not been invoked and therefore, public notices have been in the form of press releases at the discretion of the carrier. For example, in Table 2 terminal offerings such as Datacom 300, Vucom I and Faxcom were announced after date of filing the tariff with the CTC. Bell Canada might argue that the fact of filing the application on a specific date is reasonable public notice and satisfies the spirit of Section 320. However, this does not explain the abridgement of the interval between the file date and the effective date. Moreover, the CTC file date is not generally known to the public. The advantage to Bell Canada in delaying the press announcement date, almost up to the eve of the effective date of the tariff, can be seen as part of a marketing strategy. The terminal market is extremely competitive and the Company may not wish to disclose a new rate initiative prematurely; otherwise, rival terminal suppliers would be able to counter the new carrier offering before the product is actually available. In other words, in the case of terminal offerings the requirement for tariff filing and the interval before the new rates become effective, can limit the market flexibility of the carrier. Nevertheless, these practices in regard to data tariff filing reduces the opportunity for legitimate intervention. Hence, the reasonableness of the carrier's rates are left unexamined, especially since, as noted before, the CTC does not appear to scrutinize data communications tariffs.

Referring to Table 2, it can be seen that Datapac, a facility service, was announced by Bell Canada approximately one year ahead of the tariff effective date. The advantage here is of a tactical nature, since there is no unregulated competition to contend with and the market rivalry between Bell Canada and CNCP takes a different form. For instance, Bell Canada gained two important advantages in announcing Datapac prior to filing. First, was the prestige of being the pioneer and the second, the opportunity to gain user acceptance of their proposed network language SNAP (Standard Network Access Protocol) with the aim of promoting it as a universal language, which even CNCP would be forced to adopt.

Therefore, Bell Canada appears to be able to partially control reactions to a new tariff by timing the announcement dates. Also, the CTC has negated any chance for intervention by not upholding reasonable intervals between the announcement dates, the file dates and the effective dates.

One possible argument why there is no intervention may be the CTC's interpretation of Section 315 which states:

"Where the application is directed against any person in adverse interest, herein designated the "respondent", the applicant shall have a copy of the application served upon each such person."¹

¹ Canadian Transport Commission General Rules, amendment 2, 31 October 1968, Section 315.

On the one hand, the carriers comply with Section 315 in the case of general rate applications, but their procedure in the case of new data communications tariffs differs.

An example of the latter situation was the announcement of Dataroute by TCTS on 21 February, 1973. Dataroute was the world's first digital network and CNCP was caught completely by surprise. The Financial Post wrote:

"Hard hit, too, will be TCTS major competitor in data communications, CNCP Telecommunications Ltd. Presumably, though, it has sufficient long-term business contracted to plan some type of competitive offering."¹

The situation was perceived in much the same manner in a briefing letter from the Deputy Minister to the Minister of Communications:

"It could, however, be the subject of complaint to the CTC by CNCP and possibly Ontario and Quebec if there is any suspicion that the new offering is being cross-subsidized by the normal telephone services."²

Finally, on 23 February, 1973 CNCP, in a message to the Deputy Minister acknowledging its precarious situation, stated:

"The TCTS announcement require CNCP to revise its thinking. Certainly, we stand prepared to meet competition but there is a strong possibility that such action will cause substantial economic harm at the outset which will affect our ability to attract capital.

For these and other public interest concerns suggest the desirability of having your department review in detail the total implications of the new TCTS tariff filing prior to CTC approval which would otherwise take place within three days."³

² Letter from the Deputy Minister, A.E. Gotlieb, to the Minister. 20 February 1973.

³ CN/CPT Telex from D.N. MacLeod, General Manager CP Telecommunications and H. J. Clarke, Vice-President CN Telecommunications to A.E. Gotlieb Deputy Minister 23 February 1973.

Clearly, CNCP was disadvantaged, but it still chose not to file an intervention as was anticipated by the Deputy Minister.

Moreover, Section 335 which states that such intent to intervene must be made known at least ten days before the effective date of the tariff precluded any CNCP intervention because the Dataroute filing in its original form allowed for only three days between the file date and the effective tariff date. It is worth noting that the effective tariff date was ultimately deferred by the CTC until 26 March, 1973 and the potential intervention by CNCP may have been a factor in this decision.

To summarize, the following points can be made. All parties adhere to the rules and regulations for general rate increases and intervention is clearly defined and utilized. In contrast, when data communications tariffs are filed the same parties do not adhere to the rules and regulations in any rigorous or consistent fashion and, as a result, the intervention process is rendered ineffective.

III THE UNITED STATES FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

1) Introduction

The objective of this section is to compare the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) tariff filing and intervention process with that of the CTC.

Research indicates that FCC rules and regulations are virtually identical to those of the CTC, but the United States Commission has been willing to exercise its authority for detailed tariff review and to shape the market structure. Another important difference between the FCC and CTC regulatory processes is that intervention in the United States is commonplace for most carrier initiatives including new data tariff applications. The effect of intervention is highlighted in two FCC decisions in sub-section 4 of this paper.

2) Background to the FCC

The FCC is equivalent to a combination of the CTC and the CRTC in Canada. The FCC came into being by the Communications Act of 1934, which consolidated under a single body the telecommunications powers of the Radio Commission, the Department of Commerce and the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Commission has the following powers over telecommunication carriers:

"The FCC is given the power, with regard to interstate telephone and telegraph companies, to fix rates, to prohibit improper practices such as unjust discrimination, to issue licenses for the establishment of new lines, and to control accounting practices."¹

As noted in the preceding quotation, the FCC, unlike the CTC, has jurisdiction over the interstate (long lines) portion only, of the carriers' networks, and authority is delegated to the states for local services. The counterpart of the CTC Telecommunications Committee is the FCC Common Carrier Bureau.

¹ The Economic Regulation of Business and Industry. The Statutory History of the United States, Book IV, Communications Act 1934, p.2373.

3) Rules and Regulations

The FCC tariff regulations, as previously mentioned, are similar to those of the CTC; however, there are a few differences.

Fundamentally, FCC Rules and Regulations Part 61/Tariffs is considerably more detailed and direct than those of the CTC. For example, Section 61.38, Material to be Submitted with Letters of Transmittal by Filing Carriers, describes in detail the economic supportive data required by the Commission, whereas the CTC asks only for information required by the appropriate committee.

In addition, intervention is virtually guaranteed in every tariff application because of carrier competition and because the FCC requires notice of a new tariff to be publicized concurrently with filing.

"Concurrently with the filing of the publication with the Commission, the filing carrier shall transmit a copy of the transmittal letter to the commercial firm or firms with whom the Commission annually awards a contract to make copies of Commission records and offer them for sale to the public."¹

Long lines competition for AT&T and Western Union, the established carriers is relatively new and was precipitated by Datran* in a November 1969 application for authority to operate a data transmission network. The name given to this and subsequent competitors was Specialized Common Carrier (SCC). The name reflects the service and route selectivity of the competing carriers.

The Commission deliberated on this issue of competition until 3 June 1971 when it ruled that all carriers *shall have an opportunity to compete fairly and fully in the sale of specialized services.*² With this ruling the established carriers lost their monopoly hold on long lines services.

² 29 FCC 2d 870.915 (1971)

* Data Transmission Company, a Specialized Common Carrier.

Along with Datran, MCI Telecommunications Corporation (MCI) also operates nation-wide microwave networks. The Datran service is digital point-to-point with switched network capability and the MCI service is conventional data and voice.

In addition to SCCs the competition ruling encouraged the entry of Value Added Network Carriers (VAN), such as Telenet Communication Corporation. A VAN is a communications broker which leases existing common carrier facilities and re-sells customized service as a supplement to a data processing service.

4) Intervention: Some Examples

With each new data offering or rate increase the FCC is virtually guaranteed to receive intervention petitions from competitors who are protecting threatened markets. Hearings are held to allow the parties to submit comments and for the Commission to decide the just and reasonable aspect of the application.

a) AT&T Docket No. 20288

On 16 December 1974 the FCC granted AT&T authorization for tariff No. 267 to operate Dataphone Digital Service (DDS) between five cities. Pleadings and comments were received from 23 interveners and letters from 20 companies.* The strongest opposition came from other common carriers, in particular Datran and MCI. The petitions alleged technical and economic deficiencies in the AT&T filing, and that rates were set at an unjustly low point.

This strong opposition to AT&T was instrumental in gaining a victory of sorts. AT&T, already operating DDS between five cities at a previously granted low tariff, was allowed to begin construction on an additional 19 city network, but to be offered at regular analogue rates for a period of at least one year.

* Appendix C contains a complete list of interveners including International Business Machines, the U.S. Department of Defence, Western Union Telegraph Company, McGraw Hill Inc., Braniff International, General Electric Company, Philco Ford Corporation.

The FCC decided that AT&T did not clearly demonstrate that DDS was a just and reasonable separate class of service, and questioned the costing procedures determining the new low rate. The Commission decided that these and other questions, such as the possibility that the tariffs were anti-competitive, should be explored more fully at a new hearing.

However, this decision set AT&T back temporarily and the user was denied the opportunity of the lower rate. A concurring statement follows as to the FCC decision by Commissioner Charlotte T. Reid:

*"I am wholly aware of the problems which have been raised by the Specialized Common Carriers (SCC), but we must remember that the public interest is paramount to that of the participants."*¹

b) FCC Hearing 53 FCC, 2d 616-1975

This intervention by Western Union, an established common carrier, and McGraw-Hill a publishing company was against MCI, a SCC. Although the hearing was convened to rule on a tariff increase and not on a new tariff application, it is of interest to this study to show the extent of intervention in the U.S.

The revisions MCI applied for were:

- Voice Grade Long Haul service rates to be increased by 8.5%
- increased monthly late payments from 1% to 1½% and the introduction of a 1¼% prepayment credit
- previous part-time service, applicable to all users, limited to users of 10 circuits or less

Western Union claimed that the rates charged by MCI were not compensatory, that the cost support data was insufficient and that these facts warranted a further hearing. Western Union also contended that the prepayment credit plan was discriminating to users in a less liquid position than others.

McGraw-Hill opposed the rate increase for the same reasons as Western Union, but especially the proposed tariff revision limiting part-time service.

The Commission agreed with Western Union that the rates filed did not appear to be compensatory, at least until 1977-78, but ruled that the rates should not be rejected on the grounds that if they were raised further MCI would no longer be in a competitive position. The Commission defended this action due to MCI's emerging carrier position and that the Company was moving toward a profit-making position.

The Commission also ruled against Western Union's contention that the prepayment credit plan was discriminatory on the basis that all users could take advantage of it.

The Commission, however, agreed with McGraw-Hill that the proposed part-time service was discriminatory.

5) Effects and Results of the United States Experience

In summing up this section on the FCC the following brief points can be made:

- a) The FCC unlike the CTC requires the carriers to fully support all their applications with economic data and the Commission does not discriminate between general rate increases and new data communications applications.
- b) The time intervals for applications and intervention are identical for both Commissions, but the FCC in contrast with the CTC applies the intervals uniformly and consistently, denying the applicants any unfair advantages.
- c) The market structure in the U.S. unlike that of Canada lends itself to competition and intervention. This situation is due to the volatile mix of large corporations, carriers, suppliers and users who can afford to launch intervention petitions to protect their market positions.

As shown in the two case examples, intervention was instrumental in checking discriminatory carrier initiatives.

- d) The FCC decision to allow for competition in long lines services decelerated the previously unchecked growth of the established carriers and was instrumental in providing users with greater flexibility in rates and service. Evidence of this is found in recent AT&T moves to lower long lines rates by introducing Hi-Lo and DDS services.

IV DISCUSSION OF SPECIAL FACILITY TARIFFS

Up to this point this study has been concerned with generally tariffed items. For example, items offered universally without supply or installation interval restrictions. In contrast, there are lesser known items offered by both Canadian carriers which do not fall under this universal heading and due to various inherent characteristics are included within the Special Facility Tariff (SFT). The SFTs are items designed by the carrier or purchased from outside suppliers to meet a special need, and are limited in supply and subject to irregular installation intervals. Items in the SFT are tariffed in the same manner as offerings included in the general tariff, but our research has shown that the Commission ignores SFTs and processes the applications without any particular scrutiny. This situation is related to the seemingly innocuous existence of SFTs, however, there is considerable evidence that they are no less important than other carrier products. Indeed, preliminary study has indicated that the carriers might be engaging in real price competition with SFTs. The following quotation highlights this assumption:

"In many cases the services involved are new and at least one major alternative source of supply exists. We have been unable to obtain any significant amount of data on "special assemblies," so all we have to go on is the carriers' assertion that full additional costs are recovered. This is an unsatisfactory procedure for reaching conclusions in areas where administrative discretion on the part of carriers may have significant anti-competitive and discriminatory effects."¹

To better appreciate the type of data communications products included as SFTs the following are but a few of Bell Canada's many items:*

¹ Telecommunications for Canada, edited by H. Edward English. An Economic Framework for Policy Action in Canadian Telecommunications by Carl E. Beigie, Part IV, Pricing of Telecommunications Services in Canada, p.132.

* As a point of interest, Bell Canada's recent application for a general increase filed 30 May 1975 contained 128 pages of SFTs out of 146 in Schedule 2 of the application.

Codex multiplexors - a data set capable of multiplexing a combination of high speed lines to a maximum of 9600 bps.

Gandalf limited distance data set - used as a type of local Dataroute service (digital rather than analogue operation) for speed dependent distances up to 15 cable miles Analogue data sets - various types, marketed mainly to fill more sophisticated needs than regularly offered data sets.

Terminals - private line terminals such as Extel, Teletype Corp. models 33 and 35, stand-alone Datacom 300 and facsimile devices.

The preceding items were originally included in the SFT due to limited and special customer needs, however, their present importance should no longer be minimized. For example, Codex multiplexors are extensively marketed by Bell Canada to data processing firms to provide them with the capability to expand their services into the lucrative American market. Also, industry and especially federal government departments use Gandalf data sets for RJE (remote job entry) and communication network service. These two items are no longer in the realm of limited use, in fact, Gandalf data sets in service number in the hundreds. These arrangements need further exploration and analysis and for this reason any study of data communications tariffs is not complete if these items are ignored. For this reason a separate Section of this study has been dedicated to an analysis of the characteristics and determinants of SFTs.

V CONCLUSIONS

Tariff filing is the official culmination of a carrier's internal activity to offer a new product or service. The carrier's stake in a new tariff is often enormous because of the potential loss in opportunity capital and time, should market acceptance be negligible. The carrier places no less importance on the filing process than any other previous activity because the regulatory body could be instrumental in denying the new tariff. How the carrier perceives the role of the regulatory body for tariff acceptance could mold the tariff application. Rigid scrutiny or lack of scrutiny, hearing or no hearing, public filing or private filing, all could have an effect on the outcome of an application.

Certainly, if a carrier expects to be under fire for a new tariff application by industry, the competition, and the regulator, it will have taken prior action to ensure that the tariff is proper and compensatory within limits; or, if, indeed, the new tariff is restrictive or predatory, some strategic decisions as to the reaction of the interveners and the ruling of the Commission would have been made.

The first conclusion of this study is that the CTC, for whatever reason, is used essentially as a rubber stamp on new tariffs, and the carriers see the process as perfunctory as well. No real concerted effort has been made to determine whether data communications tariffs are "just and reasonable". Certainly, the Cost Inquiry will be helpful in determining costing formulas and methodology but will not determine if, for example, all data communications tariffs are at an unnaturally high level.

One other conclusion is that the lack of industry and competitive intervention or regulatory scrutiny denies a necessary check on carrier activity. It can be argued that intervention can be costly both to the public and to the carrier (whose energy and capital is diverted from other projects) and that the market structure in Canada, due to a duopoly situation and a less active electronic data processing industry, is not conducive to such activity. However, only through some conflict which would force a synthesis of ideas, could one say that the carriers are fully responsive and creative in meeting the needs of the data communications users. Inter-carrier competition does exist, but the breadth of market rivalry is open to question since neither carrier has intervened at the other's general rate hearings or at the time of new data communications applications.

One last conclusion to be drawn is that further economic research on SFTs is necessary since it appears that the CTC approves these items without any particular evaluation. This is critical because services tariffed as SFTs usually compete in a more open market environment than do those services within the general tariff framework, and the potential for competitive tariff strategy is greater. A future phase of this study will concentrate solely on SFTs to determine and to ascertain if they provide a shelter from tariff scrutiny.

Tolls subject to approval

(2) Notwithstanding anything in any Act passed before the 7th day of July 1919, all telegraph and telephone tolls to be charged by the company, and all charges for leasing or using the telegraphs or telephones of the company, are subject to the approval of the Commission, and may be revised by the Commission from time to time; this subsection does not apply to the use of telegraph or telephone wires where no toll is charged to the public.

(2) Nonobstant les dispositions de toute loi rendue avant le 7 juillet 1919, toutes les taxes de télégraphe et de téléphone que peut exiger la compagnie, et toute rémunération pour la location ou l'usage des télégraphes ou des téléphones de la compagnie, sont subordonnées à l'agrément de la Commission qui peut les reviser à sa discréion; mais le présent paragraphe ne s'applique pas à l'usage des lignes de télégraphe ou de téléphone dont le public peut se servir sans payer.

Filing of tariffs

(3) The company shall file with the Commission tariffs of any telegraph or telephone tolls to be charged, and such tariffs shall be in such form, size and style, and give such information, particulars and details, as the Commission, from time to time, by regulation, or in any particular case, prescribes, and unless with the approval of the Commission, the company shall not charge and is not entitled to charge any telegraph or telephone toll in respect of which there is default in such filing, or which is disallowed by the Commission; but any company, prior to the 1st day of May 1908, charging telegraph or telephone tolls, may, without such filing and approval, for such period as the Commission allows, charge such telegraph or telephone tolls as such company was immediately prior to the said date authorized by law to charge, unless where the Commission has disallowed or disallows such tolls.

(3) La compagnie doit déposer au bureau de la Commission les tarifs des taxes de télégraphe ou de téléphone à exiger, et ces tarifs doivent être, sous le rapport de la forme, du format et du modèle, ainsi que des renseignements et des détails qu'ils doivent contenir, tels qu'à toute époque la Commission prescrit par voie de règlement ou dans un cas particulier; et, à moins d'avoir obtenu le consentement de la Commission, la compagnie ne doit pas exiger, et n'a pas le droit d'exiger, de taxe de télégraphe ou de téléphone lorsque le tarif n'en a pas été ainsi déposé ou que la Commission l'a rejeté. Toutefois, une compagnie qui, avant le 1er mai 1908, percevait des taxes de télégraphe ou de téléphone, peut, sans ce dépôt et cet agrément, pendant une période que permet la Commission, exiger les taxes de télégraphe ou de téléphone qu'elle était, immédiatement avant ladite date, autorisée par la loi à exiger, à moins que la Commission n'ait rejeté ou ne rejette ces taxes.

(5) The Commission may, from time to time upon application, deal with all questions of unreasonableness or unjust discrimination in respect of telephone tolls resulting from the establishment, redivision and readjustment of the boundaries of any base rate area or telephone exchange area and, where it considers such tolls to be unreasonable or unjust or contrary to any of the provisions of this Act, may require the company to substitute tolls satisfactory to the Commission in lieu thereof, or may prescribe other tolls in lieu of the tolls published by the company.

(5) Sur demande, la Commission peut, à l'occasion, connaître de toutes questions où sont alléguées des exigences déraisonnables ou une disparité injuste en matière de taxes téléphoniques, par suite de l'établissement, de la nouvelle division et du rajustement des limites de toute zone à tarif de base ou à bureau central, et, si elle considère ces taxes comme déraisonnables ou injustes, ou contraires à l'une quelconque des dispositions de la présente loi, elle peut enjoindre à la compagnie d'y substituer des taxes donnant satisfaction à la Commission, ou peut prescrire d'autres taxes en remplacement de celles qu'a publiées la compagnie.

Publication of tariffs

(6) The Commission may, by regulation or otherwise, determine and prescribe the manner and form in which any tariff or tariffs of telegraph or telephone tolls shall be published or kept open for public inspection.

Special appeal and investigation

(2) Where a person has reason to believe
 (a) that any act or omission of a carrier or of any two or more carriers, or
 (b) that the effect of any rate established by a carrier or carriers pursuant to this Act or the Railway Act after the 19th day of September 1967, may prejudicially affect the public interest in respect of tolls for, or conditions of, the carriage of traffic within, into or from Canada, such person may apply to the Commission for leave to appeal the act, omission or rate, and the Commission shall, if it is satisfied that a prima facie case has been made, make such investigation of the act, omission or rate and the effect thereof, as in its opinion is warranted.

Matters to be considered

(3) In conducting an investigation under this section, the Commission shall have regard to all considerations that appear to it to be relevant, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing,

(a) whether the tolls or conditions specified for the carriage of traffic under the rate so established are such as to create

(i) an unfair disadvantage beyond any disadvantage that may be deemed to be inherent in the location or volume of the traffic, the scale of operation connected therewith or the type of traffic or service involved, or

(ii) an undue obstacle to the interchange of commodities between points in Canada or an unreasonable discouragement to the development of primary or secondary sur les chemins de fer* après le 19 septembre 1967,

peut nuire à l'intérêt public en ce qui concerne les taxes ou les conditions du transport à l'intérieur, à destination ou en provenance de Canada, cette personne peut demander à la Commission l'autorisation d'interjeter appel de l'action, de l'omission ou du taux et la Commission, si elle est convaincue que la demande est, de prime abord, bien fondée, doit faire l'enquête qu'elle estime justifiée sur l'action, l'omission, le taux ou son effet.

(3) Lorsqu'elle fait une enquête en vertu du présent article, la Commission doit tenir compte de tous les facteurs qui lui semblent pertinents et notamment, sans limiter la portée générale de ce qui précède, voir

a) si les taxes ou conditions spécifiées pour le transport de marchandises au taux ainsi établi sont telles qu'elles entraînent

(i) un désavantage injuste excédant celui

(ii) un obstacle excessif à l'échange des denrées entre des points au Canada ou genre de service de transport ou si les intérêts détenus par ces dernières dans l'entreprise d'un transporteur, peuvent être en cause.

enacts as follows:

Abbreviated

1. (1) The Company may, from time to time as it sees fit, use, and it may be legally designated by any one of the following names, "The Bell Telephone Company of Canada", "La Compagnie de Téléphone Bell du Canada", or "Bell Canada".

(2) The Company may sue or be sued in any of such names and any transaction, contract or obligation hereafter entered into or incurred by the Company in any of such names shall be valid and binding on the Company.

(3) Nothing contained in subsection (1) shall in any way impair, alter or affect the rights or liabilities of the Company, except as therein expressly provided, nor in any way affect any suit or proceeding now pending or judgment existing, either by or in favour of or against the Company, which, notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (1) may be prosecuted, continued, completed and enforced as if this Act had not been passed.

2. Section 1 of chapter 39 of the statutes of 1957 is repealed and the following substituted therefor:

Power to increase capital

1. The capital stock of the Company may be increased from time to time by such amounts as the shareholders may deem necessary for the purposes,

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

Clause 1: The purpose of this amendment is to permit the use by the Company of the abbreviated bilingual form of its name "Bell Canada".

Clause 2: This proposed amendment dealing with the capital stock of the Company has two objects:

- A—To increase the authorized capital from $1,000,000,000 to $1,750,000,000; and
- B—To authorize the Company to issue preferred shares.

Proviso

objects and undertaking of the Company, such increases to be effected by resolution of the Directors duly confirmed by a majority of the votes cast at any annual or special general meeting of the shareholders called for considering the resolution: Provided that the total capital stock of the Company, including the present authorized capital stock, shall not exceed one thousand seven hundred and fifty million dollars and shall be divided into common shares of the par value of twenty-five dollars each, and into preferred shares. 10

shares

3. (1) The Directors of the Company may by by-law create and issue part of the capital stock as preferred shares and may by such by-law provide for the creation of classes of preferred shares with such preferences, privileges or other special rights, restrictions, conditions or limitations, whether with regard to dividends, capital or otherwise 15

A—Increase of authorized capital

Of the $1,000,000,000 presently authorized the Company has now issued or committed, based on the par value of $25.00 per share, approximately $875,000,000. The construction programme of 1967 and 1968 is estimated to cost $683,000,000. This sum will be provided by internal resources (depreciation and retained earnings), debt and equity financing. This indicates that before the end of 1968 the presently authorized capital will be virtually exhausted.

The Canadian public continues to demand better and broader services. The cost of the construction programme of the next decade will exceed $4,000,000,000. The magnitude of this capital expenditure may be compared with the $2,026,000,000 spent on the construction programme for the period 1956-1965.

Increases in authorized capital have been petitioned for and granted from time to time by Parliament as the demands for services augmented. Parliament increased the authorized capital from $150,000,000 to $500,000,000 in 1948. In 1957 authorization was received from Parliament to increase the capital to $1,000,000,000.

These increases were adequate for approximately ten years.

Present forecasts indicate that the requested increase of $750,000,000 will be sufficient for another decade on the assumption that the same capital structure is maintained.

B—Preferred stock

The Company's capital stock is now exclusively composed of common shares of the par value of $25.00 each. The conditions of the money markets change very rapidly. There are times when the issue of preferred stock might be advantageous for the subscribers and the shareholders alike.

The Company has no immediate plan to modify its present capital structure. It feels, however, that its capital structure should be more flexible to meet the challenges of the future.

Clause 3: Section 162 of the Canada Corporations Act provides three methods to create preference shares:

- (a) unanimous sanction by a vote of the shareholders present in person or by proxy at a general meeting of the Company duly called for considering the same and representing $\frac{2}{3}$ of the issued capital stock; or

of by-law

as in the by-law may be declared; Provided that no such by-law shall be valid or acted upon until it has been sanctioned by at least two-thirds of the votes cast at a special general meeting of the common shareholders of the Company duly called for considering the same.

(2) The Directors may by resolution prescribe within the limits set forth in any by-law passed under subsection (1) the terms of issue and the precise preferences, privileges, rights, restrictions, conditions or limitations whether with regard to dividends, capital or otherwise, of 10 any class of preferred shares.

Preferred
shares
voting when their rights
affected

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 17 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880, the voting rights of the holders of any class of preferred shares, as such, including the right to receive notice of and to attend meetings of shareholders, shall be determined by by-law passed under subsection (1); but, the holders of a class of preferred shares shall in any event be entitled to receive notice of, to attend and to vote on the basis of one vote per share at general or special meetings at which any question, directly affecting the rights and privileges attached to such class of preferred shares, shall be discussed and submitted to the meetings and no change adversely affecting the rights and privileges of any class of preferred shares shall be valid unless sanctioned by at least two-thirds of the votes cast at a special general meeting of the holders of such class of issued and outstanding preferred shares duly called for considering the same.

4. Section 10 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880 is repealed and the following substituted therefor:

"10. The Directors of the Company may, from time to time, open or cause to be opened stock books or registers for the subscription for shares by parties desiring to become shareholders or to increase their share holdings in the capital stock of the Company, in such places as they shall think fit, and all parties so subscribing shall pay the subscription price, either as a whole, or in instalments in such amounts, at such time or times, at such place or places, and in such manner as the Directors shall determine. When the subscription price for any such shares is not required to be paid in full at the time of subscription

- (b) unanimous sanction in writing by all shareholders of the Company; or
- (c) by the sanction of $\frac{1}{3}$ in value of the shareholders and subsequent approval of the Governor-in-Council.

The Company has now more than 240,000 shareholders and no one shareholder holds more than 2.5% of the shares. Any one of these methods appears quite impracticable for a company having such a wide distribution of shares. Authority to create such preferred shares given to the Company by Parliament appears to be the only answer.

The proposed amendment also outlines the procedure to create such preferred shares. The rights and privileges of any class of preferred shares would be determined by the bylaw sanctioned by the holders of common shares.

Clause 4: This clause is to replace section 10 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880. The present enactment is as follows:—

"10. The Directors of the said Company for the time being may open or cause to be opened stock-books for the subscription of parties desiring to become shareholders in the capital stock of the said Company in such places as they shall think fit, and all parties so subscribing shall pay ten per cent on allotment; and the Directors may, from time to time, make calls on such shares payable at such times, in such amounts, at such places, and in such manner as they shall, from time to time, determine; but no call shall exceed ten per cent, and an interval of at least thirty days shall intervene between the time fixed for the payment of any one call and that fixed for the payment of the succeeding call."

The purpose of this clause is to clarify the powers of the Company to offer its shares upon terms whereby the subscription price is to be paid in full at the time of subscription or on allotment or in specified instalments and that the Company is not required to issue its shares subject to call. The directors would determine the terms and conditions of any such call. The amendment would make clear that the existing shareholders can also subscribe for new stock.

- (b) unanimous sanction in writing by all shareholders of the Company; or
- (c) by the sanction of $\frac{1}{3}$ in value of the shareholders and subsequent approval of the Governor-in-Council.

The Company has now more than 240,000 shareholders and no one shareholder holds more than 2.5% of the shares. Any one of these methods appears quite impracticable for a company having such a wide distribution of shares. Authority to create such preferred shares given to the Company by Parliament appears to be the only answer.

The proposed amendment also outlines the procedure to create such preferred shares. The rights and privileges of any class of preferred shares would be determined by the bylaw sanctioned by the holders of common shares.

Clause 4: This clause is to replace section 10 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880. The present enactment is as follows:—

"10. The Directors of the said Company for the time being may open or cause to be opened stock-books for the subscription of parties desiring to become shareholders in the capital stock of the said Company in such places as they shall think fit, and all parties so subscribing shall pay ten per cent on allotment; and the Directors may, from time to time, make calls on such shares payable at such times, in such amounts, at such places, and in such manner as they shall, from time to time, determine; but no call shall exceed ten per cent, and an interval of at least thirty days shall intervene between the time fixed for the payment of any one call and that fixed for the payment of the succeeding call."

The purpose of this clause is to clarify the powers of the Company to offer its shares upon terms whereby the subscription price is to be paid in full at the time of subscription or on allotment or in specified instalments and that the Company is not required to issue its shares subject to call. The directors would determine the terms and conditions of any such call. The amendment would make clear that the existing shareholders can also subscribe for new stock.

or allotment, or is not to be paid in full in specified instalments, the Directors may from time to time call in and demand from the subscribers thereof respectively all sums of money by them subscribed, at such times, in such amounts, at such places and in such manner 5 as they shall from time to time determine."

5. Section 1 of chapter 100 of the statutes of 1920 is repealed and the following substituted therefor:

Bonds issue
authorization

"1. (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880, incorporating the Company, 10 and of the Acts in amendment thereof, the Directors of the Company, when authorized by by-law for that purpose passed and approved by not less than two-thirds of the votes cast at a special general meeting of the shareholders duly called for the purpose of 15 considering the same, may issue bonds, debentures or debenture stock from time to time for such amounts as may be approved by the shareholders, and secure the same by one or more deeds of trust creating such mortgages, charges or encumbrances upon the whole 20 or any part of the property of the Company, present and future, as may be described therein.

(2) Nothing herein contained shall authorize the issue of any such bonds, debentures or debenture stock ranking in priority to any of the bonds of the 25 Company heretofore issued."

6. Section 5 of chapter 81 of the statutes of 1948 is hereby repealed and the following substituted therefor:

Power to operate communication system.
R.S., c. 233;
1952-53, c. 43;
1953-54, c. 31;
1955, c. 57

"5. (1) It is hereby declared that subject to the provisions of the Radio Act and of the Broadcasting Act 30 and of any other statutes of Canada relating to telecommunications or broadcasting, and to regulations or orders made thereunder, the Company has the power to transmit, emit or receive and to provide services and facilities for the transmission, emission or reception of 35 signs, signals, writing, images or sounds or intelligence of any nature by wire, radio, visual or other electromagnetic systems and in connection therewith to build, establish, maintain and operate, in Canada or elsewhere, alone or in conjunction with others, either 40 on its own behalf or as agents for others, all services and facilities expedient or useful for such purposes, using and adapting any improvement or invention or any other means of communicating.

Clause 5: This clause re-enacts section 1 of chapter 100 of the statutes of 1920. The present section is as follows:—

"1. (1) Notwithstanding the provisions of chapter sixty-seven of the statutes of 1880, incorporating The Bell Telephone Company of Canada, hereinafter called "the Company", and of the Acts in amendment thereof, the directors of the Company, when authorized by by-law for that purpose passed and approved by the votes of not less than two-thirds in value of the subscribed stock of the Company represented at a special general meeting duly called for the purpose of considering the same, may issue bonds, debentures or debenture stock from time to time for such amounts as may be approved by the shareholders, and secure the same by one or more deeds of trust creating such mortgages, charges or encumbrances upon the whole or any part of the property of the Company, present and future, as may be described therein.

The wording is identical except as indicated by the underlining. The purpose of the changes in wording in sub-clause (1) is to make it clear that it is the vote of two-thirds of the shares represented at the meeting and not the votes of two-thirds of the total outstanding stock that is required to authorize such borrowing.

The omission of the words "or pari passu with" from sub-clause 2 is to give effect to the principal Trust Indenture and Mortgage securing the Company's bonds. This Trust Indenture provides for the issue of bonds thereunder from time to time in series and that all bonds so issued shall rank pari passu with all other bonds issued thereunder.

Clause 6: The purpose of this clause is to clarify section 5 of chapter 81 of the statutes of Canada 1948.

The revolution in communication techniques has demonstrated that the Company can no longer be considered exclusively as a telephone company. In order to remain strong and competitive and thus be an asset to the Canadian economy, it is compelled to meet the demands of Canadians and to supply them with the widest possible range of telecommunication services. Thus the need to update its powers.

The Criminal Code enacted in 1955 has recognized the evolution of the industry. Section 273 which used to refer to theft of telephone service now refers to theft of telecommunication service.

The word "telecommunication" has been repeatedly defined by Parliament in various statutes such as the Radio Act (1952 R.S.C. chapter 233), the Canadian Overseas

apply for or be holder of broadcasting licence

(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1), the Company and its subsidiaries do not, however, directly or indirectly or by any other means, have the power to apply for or to be the holder of a broadcasting licence as defined in the Broadcasting Act or of a licence to operate a commercial Community Antenna Television Service. 5

Company to act solely as carrier

(3) The Company shall, in the exercise of its power under subsection (1), act solely as a common carrier, and shall neither control the contents nor influence the meaning or purpose of the message emitted, transmitted or received as aforesaid. 10

Attachments

(4) For the protection of the subscribers of the Company and of the public, any equipment, apparatus, line, circuit or device not provided by the company 15 shall only be attached to, connected or interconnected with, or used in connection with the facilities of the Company in conformity with such reasonable requirements as may be prescribed by the Company.

*Transport
Commission

ments reasonable*

(5) The Canadian Transport Commission may 20 determine, as questions of fact, whether or not any requirements prescribed by the Company under subsection (4) are reasonable and may disallow any such requirements as it considers unreasonable or contrary to the public interest and may require the 25 company to substitute requirements satisfactory to the Canadian Transport Commission in lieu thereof or prescribe other requirements in lieu of any requirements so disallowed.

*Application to Commission
to determine reasonableness of requirement*

(6) Any person who is affected by any requirements prescribed by the Company under subsection (4) of this section may apply to the Canadian Transport Commission to determine the reasonableness of such requirement having regard to the public interest and the effect such attachment, connection or inter- 35 connection is likely to have on the cost and value of the service to the subscribers.

Review

The decision of the Commission is subject to review and appeal pursuant to the Railway Act."

invest*

7. For the purpose of carrying out its corporate 40 powers the Company is empowered to purchase or otherwise acquire, and to hold shares, bonds, debentures or other securities in any other company engaged in research and development work in areas of inquiry that relate to the objects of this Company and to sell or otherwise deal with 45 the same, provided that such other company, not being a subsidiary of the Company on the date on which this Act comes into force, does not manufacture products for sale to the Company or to other customers.

Telecommunication Corporation Act (1952 R.S.C. chapter 42), the Criminal Code, as:

"Any transmission, emission or reception of signs, signals, writing, images or sounds or intelligence of any nature by wire, radio, visual or other electro-magnetic system". (C.O.T.C. Act)

These words have been adapted and incorporated into the proposed clause.

The Company, being unable to forecast all possible technological changes, proposes an amendment which would permit the Company to use and adapt any improvement or invention for communicating with others and any other means for communicating that may, in the opinion of the Board of the Directors of the Company, be deemed to be in the interest of the Company.

Finally, the proposed amendment would permit the Company to enjoy these powers in Canada or elsewhere, alone or in conjunction with others, either on its own behalf or as agent for others.

Clause 7: This clause is new.

The proposed amendment is designed:

To broaden the Company's power to invest in other companies having objects in whole or in part similar to those of the Company and calculated to advance the objects of the Company; and

To enable the Company to invest in organizations carrying on research and development work related to the Company's objects.

At the present time the Company may purchase shares in other companies only when such companies possess as proprietor a line of telegraphic or telephonic communication or when such companies have a power or right to use

Executive Committee of Directors

8. The Board of Directors of the Company, may, if authorized by by-law duly passed by the Directors and confirmed by at least two-thirds of the votes cast at any annual or special general meeting of the shareholders called for considering the by-law, elect from its number an executive committee of not less than five, which executive committee may exercise such powers of the Board as are delegated to it by by-law, subject to any restrictions contained in any such by-law and to any regulations imposed from time to time by the Directors. Three members of the 10 executive committee shall constitute a quorum.

communication by means of the telephone. This situation is governed by section 4 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880 which reads as follows:—

"4. The said Company shall have power and authority to purchase or lease for any term of years any telephone line established or to be established, either in Canada or elsewhere, connecting or hereafter to be connected with the lines which the Company is authorized to construct, or to purchase or lease for any term of years the right of any company to construct any such telephone line; and shall also have power and authority to amalgamate with or to lease their line, or any portion or portions thereof, from time to time, to any company or person possessing as proprietor any line of telegraphic or telephonic communication connecting or to be connected with the Company's line, in Canada; and the Company shall also have power to enter into any arrangements with any person or company possessing, as proprietor, any line of telegraphic or telephonic communication, or any power or right to use communication by means of the telephone upon such terms and in such manner as the Board of Directors may, from time to time, deem expedient or advisable, or to become a shareholder in any such corporation."

By section 2 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880 as re-enacted by section 1 of chapter 95 of the statutes of 1882 the Company is given the "power to manufacture telephone and other apparatus connected therewith, and their appurtenances and other instruments, used in connection with the business of a telegraph or telephone company, and also such other electrical instruments and plant as the said Company may deem advisable... and to aid or advance money to build or work any such line to be used for telephone purposes."

The present high standards of telecommunications enjoyed by Canadians are the fruit, in no small measure, of foreign research and development. For many reasons these sources could be no longer available.

The most effective way to preserve the enviable position enjoyed by the Canadian telecommunication industry is to develop and support a strong research and development sector fully integrated with operations and manufacturing.

Clause 8: This clause is new.

Companies incorporated by Letters Patent have the power in their Boards of Directors to appoint an executive committee of the Board. This power is given to those companies by section 94 of the Canada Corporations Act which reads as follows:—

"94. The board of directors of the company whenever it consists of more than six, may if authorized by by-law duly passed by the directors, and sanctioned by at least two-thirds of the votes cast at a special general meeting of shareholders duly called for considering the by-law, elect from its number an executive committee consisting of not less than three, which executive committee shall have power to fix its quorum at not less than a majority of its members and may exercise such powers of the board as are delegated by such by-law, subject to any restrictions contained in any such by-law and to any regulations imposed from time to time by the directors."

Since Bell Telephone has a Board of Directors of 18 members and is empowered to have twenty members, it requests the convenience of appointing an executive committee.

Clause 9: This clause is new.

Section 91 of the Canada Corporations Act reads:

"91. Every director of the company, and his heirs, executors and administrators, and estate and effects, respectively, may, with the consent of the company, given at any meeting of the shareholders thereof, from time to time and at all times, be indemnified and saved harmless out of the funds of the company from and against,

- (a) all costs, charges and expenses whatsoever that such director sustains or incurs in or about any action, suit or proceeding that is brought, commenced or prosecuted against him, for or in respect of any act, deed, matter or thing whatsoever, made, done or permitted by him, in or about the execution of the duties of his office, and
- (b) all other costs, charges and expenses that he sustains, or incurs, in or about or in relation to the affairs thereof, except such costs, charges or expenses as are occasioned by his own wilful neglect or default."

(1934, chapter 33, section 91)

The new section is identical to section 91 of the Canada Corporations Act and gives to Company directors the same protection that exists for all Letters Patent Companies directors. It is noted that indemnification is not included when loss is occasioned by a director's wilful neglect or default.

Clause 10: This clause amends section 3 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880 by:

- (a) Substituting the word "telecommunication" for the word "telephone" wherever it appears.

Inasmuch as section 7 of this Bill shows the need to refer to the Company as a telecommunication company and not to a telephone company, for the sake of consistency, the proposed substitution appears necessary.

- (b) Giving to the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada jurisdiction to establish the height of the Company's wires.

Several rules and regulations make it impossible for the Company to establish and maintain its wires at the height of 22 feet specified in the incorporating provisions. By complying with these existing rules and regulations the Company is now forced to violate the provisions of its charter. The proposed amendment will eliminate this difficulty.

Clause 11: This clause is new.

Sections 193 and 190 of the Canada Corporations Act referred to are as follows:

"193. No company shall loan any of its funds to any shareholder.

190. Where any loan is made by the company to any shareholder in violation of the provisions of this Part, all directors and other officers of the company who make the same or assent thereto are jointly and severally liable to the amount of such loan with interest to the company and also to creditors of the company, for all debts of the company then existing or contracted from the time of the making of such loan to that of the repayment thereof."

The Company has a Pension Plan and an Employees' Stock Savings Plan which in conjunction are designed to provide adequate post-retirement income to employees. The non-contributory pension plan in itself is not always adequate for this purpose. This clause is designed to prevent a temporary financial storm in an employee's affairs from forcing sale of his holdings of Company stock resulting in post-retirement income problems. Temporary loans to employee-shareholders to tide them over periods of illness or adversity would in many cases permit retention of savings held in the form of Company stock.

Clause 12: This clause is new.

Its purpose is to enable the Company to adequately man the organization. The nature of the business is such that maximum efficiency requires transfers of employees from place to place. This clause permits maintenance of a housing assistance plan so that such moves can be made without undue financial loss to employees. It will permit the Company to purchase or otherwise acquire residences from employees who have been transferred and have not otherwise disposed of their homes.

9. Every Director of the Company, and his heirs, executors and administrators, and estate and effects, respectively, may, with the consent of the Company, given at any meeting of the shareholders thereof, from time to time and at all times, be indemnified and saved harmless 5 out of the funds of the Company, from and against:

- (a) all costs, charges and expenses whatsoever that such Director sustains or incurs in or about any action, suit or proceeding that is brought, commenced or prosecuted against him, for or in 10 respect of any act, deed, matter or thing whatsoever, made, done or permitted by him, in or about the execution of the duties of his office; and
- (b) all other costs, charges and expenses that he 15 sustains or incurs, in or about or in relation to the affairs thereof: except such costs, charges or expenses as are occasioned by his own wilful neglect or default.

10. Section 3 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880 20 as amended by section 2 of chapter 95 of the statutes of 1882 is hereby repealed and the following substituted therefor:

constructed, no poles shall be erected by the Company in any city, town or incorporated village along the same side of the street where such poles are already erected unless with the consent of the council having jurisdiction over the streets of such city, town or incorporated village; provided also, that in so doing the said Company shall not cut down or mutilate any tree, and provided that in cities, towns and incorporated villages, the location of the line or lines and the opening up of the street for the erection of poles or for carrying the wires under ground shall be done under the direction and supervision of the engineer or such other officer as the council may appoint, and in such manner as the council may direct, and that the surface of the street shall, in all cases, be restored to its former condition by and at the expense of the Company: Provided also, that no Act of Parliament requiring the Company (in case efficient means are devised for carrying telecommunication wires under ground) to adopt such means, and abrogating the right given by this section, to continue carrying lines on poles through cities, town or incorporated villages, shall be deemed an infringement of the privileges granted by this Act; and provided further that whenever in case of fire it becomes necessary for its extinction or the preservation of property that the telecommunication wires should be cut, the cutting under such circumstances of any of the wires of the Company under the direction of the chief engineer or other officer in charge of the fire brigade, shall not entitle the Company to demand or claim compensation for any damages that might be so incurred; and section 378 (except subsection (1)) of the Railway Act shall apply to the Company insofar as line or lines of telecommunication are concerned.

13. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 17 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880 and of section 181 of the Canada Corporations Act, the Directors may fix in advance a date preceding by not more than fifteen days the date of the holding of any meeting of shareholders as a record date for the determination of the shareholders entitled to attend and vote at such meeting, but any such record date shall be referred to in the notice calling such meeting of shareholders. 5

Repeal

14. Chapter 88 of the statutes of 1884; chapter 67 10 of the statutes of 1892; chapter 108 of the statutes of 1894; sections 1, 3 and 4 of chapter 41 of the statutes of 1902 and chapter 61 of the statutes of 1906 are hereby repealed, but such repeal shall not affect increases in the Company's authorized capital stock effected under any such enactments. 15

Clause 13: This clause is new.

As the law stands at this time all shareholders of the Company, even those who would become so on the day before a general or special meeting, are entitled to attend and vote at such meeting.

With more than 240,000 shareholders, it is extremely difficult if not impossible for the Company to advise those late shareholders of the meeting to be held, to receive their proxy and to try and figure out the number in value of the shareholders present or represented at such meeting. This clause permits a cutoff date to be set up to 15 days before a meeting. Persons becoming shareholders in the period between the cutoff date and the meeting will not have the right to attend and vote.

Clause 14: The chapters and sections repealed are:

(a) Chapter 88 of the statutes of 1884 which is as follows:

"1. The capital stock of the said Company may be increased to an amount not exceeding one million five hundred thousand dollars, in addition to the original capital stock, amounting to five hundred thousand dollars, authorized by section five of the Act passed in the forty-third year of the reign of Her Majesty, chapter sixty-seven; and such increase may be effected in the manner and shall be subject to the provisions contained in the said section."

This section has been superseded by subsequent Acts increasing the Company's capital.

(b) Chapter 67 of the statutes of 1892 which is as follows:

"1. The capital stock of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada may be increased to an amount not exceeding five million dollars, including the present authorized stock; and such increase may be effected in the manner provided by, and shall be subject to the provisions contained in section five of chapter sixty-seven of the statutes of 1880.

2. Notwithstanding the provisions of the Act incorporating the Company and of the Acts amending the same, the power of the Company to issue bonds or debentures from time to time shall be limited to a sum not exceeding in the whole five hundred thousand dollars.

3. The existing rates shall not be increased without the consent of the Governor in Council."

Section 1 has been superseded by subsequent Acts increasing the Company's capital.

Section 2 was superseded by chapter 100 of the statutes of 1920 which removed all limitations as to the amount of money that the Company may borrow.

Section 3 was superseded by the provisions of the Railway Act empowering the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada to regulate the Company's rates. Under the Railway Act, an appeal lies to the Governor in Council.

(c) Chapter 103 of the statutes of 1894 which is as follows:

"1. Notwithstanding the provisions of the Act incorporating the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, and of the Acts in amendment thereof, the directors of the Company may when authorized by a by-law for that purpose, passed and approved of by the votes of shareholders representing at least two-thirds in value of the subscribed stock of the Company, present or represented at a special general meeting duly called for the purpose of considering such by-law, issue bonds or debentures from time to time to the amount of seventy-five per cent of its actual paid-up capital stock."

This section was superseded by chapter 100 of the statutes of 1920 which removed all limitations as to the amount of money that the Company may borrow.

(d) Chapter 41 of the statutes of 1902, sections 1, 3 and 4 which are as follows:

"1. The capital stock of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada may be increased to an amount not exceeding ten million dollars, including the present authorized stock; and such increase may be effected in the manner provided by, and shall be subject to the provisions contained in, section 5 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1880.

3. The rates for telephone service in any municipality may be increased or diminished by order of the Governor in Council upon the application of the Company or of any interested municipality, and thereafter the rates so ordered shall be the rates under this Act until again similarly adjusted by the Governor in Council.

(2) In increasing or diminishing said rates due regard shall be had to the principle embodied in section 3 of chapter 67 of the statutes of 1892 and to new conditions which have obtained since.

(3) In the case of any such application the Governor in Council may commission or empower any judge of the Supreme Court or Exchequer Court of Canada, or of any superior court in any province of Canada, to inquire in a summary way into, and report to the Governor in Council whether such increase or diminution should be made, and as to the expenses incurred in and about the application and inquiry.

(4) The Governor in Council may order the whole or any part of such expenses to be borne by the municipality or by the Company.

(5) The judge may compel the attendance of witnesses and examine them under oath and require the production of books and papers, and shall have such other necessary powers as are conferred upon him by the Governor in Council for the purposes of such inquiry.

(6) Any order made under this Act by the Governor in Council may be made an order of the Exchequer Court of Canada or of any superior court of any province of Canada, and shall be enforced in like manner as any rule or order of such court.

4. The word "rates" in this Act shall apply to all rates charged for the rental or use of telephones and telephone service, and also to charges for messages from any person in one municipality to any other person in another municipality, commonly known as long distance messages."

Section 1 has been superseded by subsequent Acts increasing the Company's capital.

Sections 3 and 4 were superseded by the provisions of the Railway Act empowering the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada to regulate the Company's rates. Under the Railway Act, an appeal lies to the Governor in Council.

(e) Chapter 61 of the statutes of 1906. The only unrepealed provision of this Act is:

"2. This Act and the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and the exercise of the powers hereby conferred shall be subject to the provisions of the Railway Act, 1903, and amendments thereto."

This section is no longer necessary as the relevant provisions of the Railway Act are expressly made applicable to the Company by section 380 thereof.

- 305 An application shall be in the form prescribed by the Commission and, if no form is prescribed, shall 310 The applicant shall mail or deliver to the Secretary the application and any document required to be submitted to the Commission or which may be useful in explaining or supporting the application.

315 Where the application is for a licence or certificate or an amendment thereto or cancellation thereof, or for an order approving the issue, or other disposition of capital stock or the acquisition of an interest in the business or undertaking of a person whose principal business is transportation, the applicant shall, after the application has been mailed or delivered as required by rule 310, publish such notice as the Commission may direct and file proof of such publication with the Secretary.

- 320 The Commission may, in cases where public notice is not required by statute and appears unnecessary, dispense with the publication of any notice. When so ordering, the Commission shall require the applicant to serve a notice of the application upon such persons, if any, as appear to have an interest in opposing the application.

Intervention

- 360 Any person interested in an application to which he is not a party may intervene in order to support, oppose or modify the application.

Service

390 Service of any notice or document may be effected by mail.

Declarations under Oath

400 A proof of service by declaration under oath shall forthwith after service be filed with the Secretary in respect of any document required to be served, except when notice is given or served by the Secretary, in which event no proof of service shall be necessary.

405 All persons authorized to administer oaths to be used in any of the superior courts of any province may administer oaths in such province to be used in applications, matters or proceedings before the Commission. (64.2)

410 Declarations under oath in proceedings before the Commission shall be filed with the Secretary.

415 Where a declaration under oath is made as to belief, the grounds upon which the same is based shall be set forth.

Verification

- 420 The Commission may at any time require the whole or any part of an application, answer, intervention or reply to be verified by declaration under oath, by giving a notice to that effect to the party from whom such declaration is required.
- If the notice is not complied with, the Commission may set aside the application, answer, intervention or reply or strike out any part not verified according to the notice.

Suspension of Proceedings

- 430 The Commission may require further information, particulars or documents from any party, and may stay all formal proceedings until satisfied in that respect.
- 435 Whenever the Commission directs that an inquiry be made, it shall give notice thereof to the parties interested, and may stay proceedings or any part of the proceedings as it thinks fit.

Interim Ex Parte Orders

- 440 The Commission may, if the special circumstances of any case so require, make an interim ex parte order authorizing, requiring or forbidding anything to be done that the Commission would be empowered, on application, notice and hearing, to authorize, require or forbid; but no such interim order shall be made for any longer time than the Commission may deem necessary to enable the matter to be heard and determined. (48)

Notice

450 If the Commission enlarges or abridges the period for putting in the answer or reply, the period so enlarged or abridged shall be specified in the notice endorsed on the application, answer or intervention, as the case may be, or otherwise as the Commission may direct.

460 Except as otherwise provided by statute, when the Commission is authorized to hear an application, complaint or dispute, or make any order, upon notice to the parties interested, it may, upon the ground of urgency, or for other reason appearing to the Commission to be sufficient, notwithstanding any want of or insufficiency in such notice, make the like order or decision in the matter as if due notice had been given to all parties; and such order or decision is valid and takes effect in all respects as if made on due notice.

Any company or person entitled to notice and not sufficiently notified may, at any time within ten days after becoming aware of such order or decision, or within such further time as the Commission may allow, apply to the Commission to vary, amend or rescind such order or decision, and the Commission shall thereupon, on such notice to other parties interested as it may in its discretion think desirable, hear such application, and either amend, alter or rescind such order or decision, or dismiss the application, as may seem to it just and right. (60)

- 470 When an application is ready for hearing, the Secretary shall set it down for hearing at such time and place as the Commission may direct.
- 475 Any party to an application may request the Commission to have it set down for hearing.
- 480 When an application is set down for hearing, the Secretary shall give fifteen days' notice, or such longer or shorter notice as the Commission shall direct, to all parties interested.

Dispense

- 490 In any proceedings the Commission may dispense with the form of proceedings herein mentioned, or some portion thereof.

Power to Direct and Settle Issues

- 500 If it appears to the Commission at any time that the statements in the application, answer, intervention or reply do not sufficiently raise or disclose the issues of fact in dispute between the parties, it may direct them to prepare issues, and such issues shall, if the parties differ, be settled by the Commission.

Preliminary Questions of Law

- 510 If it appears to the Commission at any time that there is a question of law which it would be convenient to have decided before further proceeding with the case, it may direct such question to be raised for its information, either by special case or in such other manner, as it may deem expedient, and the Commission may, pending such decision, order the whole or any portion of the proceedings before the Commission, in such matter, to be stayed.

Appearances

520 When a representative or agent of any provincial or municipal government or any association or other body representing the interests of shippers or consignees in Canada wishes to be heard by the Commission under subsection 5 of section 17 of the Act he shall file an appearance in writing with the Secretary.

Conference

530 The Commission may direct, orally or in writing, parties or their solicitors to appear before a member or an officer of the Commission at a specified time and place for a conference prior to or during the course of a hearing or, in lieu of personally appearing, to submit suggestions in writing, for the purpose of formulating issues and considering:

- (a) the simplification of issues;
- (b) the necessity or desirability of amending the application, answer, intervention or reply for the purpose of clarification, amplification or limitation;

- (c) the making of admissions of certain facts or the proof of them by declaration under oath, or the use by any party of matters of public record, for example, annual reports;
- (d) the procedure at the hearing;
- (e) the mutual exchange among the parties of documents and exhibits proposed to be submitted at the hearing; and
- (f) such other matters as may aid in the simplification of the evidence and disposition of the proceedings.

Production and Inspection of Documents

550 Any party is entitled, at any time, before the hearing of the case, to give notice in writing to any other party whose application, answer, intervention or reply reference was made to any document, to produce the document for the inspection of the party giving such notice, or his solicitor, and to permit him to take copies thereof. Any party who does not comply with such notice within ten days from the receipt thereof shall not afterwards be at liberty to put such documents in evidence on his behalf in the proceedings, unless he satisfies the Commission that he had sufficient cause for not complying with the notice.

Notice to Produce

560 Any party may give to any other party a notice in writing to produce such documents, specifying them, as relate to any matter in difference which are in the possession or control of such other party, and, if the notice is not complied with, secondary evidence of the contents of the documents may be given by or on behalf of the party who gave the notice.

570 Any party may give to any other party a notice in writing to admit any document, saving all just exceptions, and in case of neglect or refusal to admit, after such notice, the cost of proving the document shall be paid by the party so neglecting or refusing, whatever the result of the application may be, unless on the hearing the Commission certifies that the refusal to admit was reasonable; and no costs of proving any document shall be allowed unless such notice be given, except where the omission to give the notice is, in the opinion of the Commission, a saving of expense.

Witnesses

590 Subpoenas shall be sealed by the Secretary with the Commission's seal and may be served in any part of Canada; they may be issued in blank and may be completed by the solicitor or party, and any number of names may be inserted in one subpoena.

The Hearing

600 Except as otherwise provided, witnesses at a hearing shall be examined viva voce upon oath.

- 610 The Commission may, at any time, for sufficient reason, order that any particular facts may be proved by declaration under oath or that the declaration under oath of any witness may be read at the hearing, on such conditions as it may think reasonable, or that any witness be examined before the Commissioner, officer of the Commission or another person appointed by it for that purpose.
- 615 A person appointed for the examination of a witness shall have authority to administer oaths and all parties shall attend before him. The evidence taken shall be confined to the subject matter in question, and any objection to the admission of evidence shall be noted and dealt with by the Commission at the hearing.
- 620 Such notice of the time and place of examination as is prescribed in the order shall be given to the parties.
- 625 All examinations shall be returned to the Commission and the depositions certified under the hand of the person taking them may without further proof be used in evidence saving all just exceptions.
- 630 The Commission may require further evidence to be given viva voce or by depositions taken before a Commissioner or other person appointed by it for that purpose.
- 640 The Commission may, whenever it deems it advisable to do so, order written briefs to be submitted by the parties in addition to or in lieu of oral argument.

50 The hearing, when once commenced, shall proceed, so far as in the opinion of the Commission may be practicable, from day to day.

Formal Objections

660 No proceedings shall be defeated by any objections based upon defects in form merely.

Amendment

670 The Commission may, upon terms or otherwise, allow any of the proceedings to be amended, or may order to be amended or struck out any matters which, in the opinion of the Commission, may tend to prejudice, embarrass, or delay a fair hearing of the case upon its merits; and all such amendments shall be made as may, in the opinion of the Commission, be necessary for the purpose of hearing and determining the real question in issue between the parties.

Sittings

680 The Commission may hold more than one sitting at the same time, and, whenever circumstances render it expedient to hold a sitting elsewhere than in Ottawa, may hold such sitting in any part of Canada. (18)

Adjournment

90 The Commission may, at any time, adjourn any proceedings before it.

Judgment of the Commission

- 700 Upon any application made to the Commission, the Commission may make an order granting the whole or part only of such application, or may grant such further or other relief, in addition to or in substitution for that applied for, as to the Commission may seem just and proper, as fully in all respects as if such application had been for such partial, other, or further relief. (47)
- 710 The Commission may give orally or in writing the reasons for its orders or decisions.
- 720 It shall not be necessary to hold a sitting merely for the purpose of giving orders or decisions.

Costs

- 730 The costs of and incidental to any proceedings before the Commission, except as otherwise provided by statute, are in the discretion of the Commission, and may be fixed in any case at a sum certain, or may be taxed. (62.1)
- 740 The Commission may order by whom and to whom any costs are to be paid, and by whom the same are to be taxed and allowed. (62.2)

Enforcement of Judgments

- 750 Any decision or order made by the Commission may be made a rule, order or decree of the Exchequer Court, or of any superior court of any province of Canada, and shall be enforced in like manner as any rule, order or decree of such court. (50.1)

760 To make a decision or order of the Commission a rule, order or decree of a court, the usual practice and procedure of the court in such matters may be followed; or, in lieu thereof, the Secretary may make a certified copy of such decision or order, upon which shall be made an endorsement in the form given in Schedule No. 3 signed by the President and sealed with the official seal of the Commission. (50.2)

- 770 Save in the case contemplated in rule 780, any application to review, rescind, change, alter or vary any order or decision shall be made to the appropriate committee of the Commission within thirty days after the order or decision is communicated to the parties, unless such committee enlarges the time for making the application, or otherwise orders.
- 780 Any objection to an order, rule or direction made by a committee of the Commission in respect of a matter related to a particular mode of transport, not being a matter of a specific rate, licence or certificate, on the ground that the order, rule or direction discriminates against the operator of another mode of transport or is otherwise unfair to his operations shall be made by application for review giving particulars of such discrimination or unfairness.

785 Any application for review under rule 780 shall be referred immediately to the Review Committee.

Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada

790 (NOTE) Appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada upon a question of law or a question of jurisdiction by leave of a judge of that Court are governed by the provisions of subsection (2) et seq of section 53 of the Railway Act.

APPEALS TO THE MINISTER

800 An appeal to the Minister shall be instituted by serving the Minister, the Secretary and, where applicable, the applicant, respondent and interveners by registered mail with a notice of appeal.

810 A notice of appeal to the Minister shall set out
(a) the matter appealed against;
(b) the grounds of appeal; and
(c) the relief sought.

820 Concurrently with the institution of an appeal, an appellant may apply ex parte to the Commission for an order staying the Commission's decision, ruling or order pending the outcome of the appeal.

830 The Commission shall not make an order staying the Commission's decision, ruling or order pending the outcome of an appeal unless the appellant files with the Secretary an undertaking, under seal, to save harmless all other parties from damages resulting from the operation of such an order.

- 840 Within fifteen days from completion of the service of the notice of appeal, an appellant shall serve by registered mail the Minister, the Secretary and, where applicable, the applicant, respondent and interveners with complete documentary evidence supported by a declaration that sets out the reasons for which and the grounds upon which relief is sought.
- 850 Within fourteen days from receipt of the documentary evidence required, any party who intends to oppose the appeal shall file with the Minister and serve by registered mail the appellant, the Secretary and any other party with an answer setting out full particulars of the grounds upon which the appeal is opposed.
- 860 Where an appellant desires to reply to an answer, he shall, within seven days of receipt, serve with a reply by registered mail the Minister, the Secretary, the person who served the notice and any other party.
- 870 The Commission may provide the Minister with a statement of
(a) its reasons or additional reasons for the decision, ruling or order appealed from; and
(b) any reasons for opposing the relief sought in the appeal.
- Such statement shall be served upon all parties.
- 880 There shall be no oral argument on an appeal to the Minister unless he otherwise directs.
