Executive Summary

The Law Commission of Canada is an independent body that provides impartial advice to the federal government on matters related to the improvement, modernization, and reform of Canada's laws. Preceded by the Law Reform Commission of Canada (1971-), the Law Commission of Canada was established in 1997, functioned until 2006, and became operational again on June 6, 2023.

As it deploys its future operations, the Commission will aspire to achieve the most ambitious sustainable development goals in its operations, stewardship of resources, governance practices and outreach to communities.

The Law Commission of Canada refers to the Sustainable Development Goals of the Federal Sustainable Development Strategy as a contributing backdrop to its governance, directions and strategies.

SECTION 1

Introduction to the Departmental Sustainable Development Strategy

The 2022 to 2026 Federal Sustainable Development Strategy \(FSDS\) presents the Government of Canada's sustainable development goals and targets, as required by the Federal Sustainable Development Act. This is the first FSDS to be framed using the 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) of the United Nations 2030 Agenda and provides a balanced view of the environmental, social and economic dimensions of sustainable development.

In keeping with the purpose of the Act, to make decision-making related to sustainable development more transparent and accountable to Parliament, Law Commission of Canada supports the goals laid out in the FSDS through the activities described in this Departmental Sustainable Development Strategy (DSDS).

The Federal Sustainable Development Act also sets out 7 principles that must be considered in the development of the FSDS as well as DSDSs. These basic principles have been considered and incorporated in Law Commission of Canada's DSDS.

In order to promote coordinated action on sustainable development across the Government of Canada, this departmental strategy integrates efforts to advance Canada's implementation of the 2030 Agenda National Strategy, supported by the Global Indicator Framework (GIF) and Canadian Indicator Framework (CIF) targets and indicators. The strategy also now captures SDG initiatives that fall outside the scope of the FSDS to inform the development of the Canada's Annual Report on the 2030 Agenda and the SDGs.

Law Commission of Canada's Sustainable Development Vision

The Law Commission of Canada is to study and keep under systematic review, the law of Canada and its effects with a view to providing independent advice on improvements, modernization and reform that will ensure a just legal system that meets the changing needs of Canadian society and of individuals in that society.

The preamble to the Law Commission of Canada Act states that its work shall be conducted with an approach that demonstrates openness and inclusion and that the results of this work shall be accessible and understandable. The Act also states that the Commission will take a multidisciplinary approach by considering the law and the legal system in a broad social and economic context and demonstrating the importance of partnerships with a wide range of interested groups and individuals, including the academic community.

To achieve this vision, the Law Commission of Canada will strive to create an environment of legal excellence that situates the law and the judicial system in their socio-economic context and integrates principles of innovation and collaboration. From an efficiency perspective, it will strive to use state-of-the-art technology and will innovate in its research and management methods, consultation process and means of communication.

The Law Commission of Canada's Sustainable Development Strategy 2023 to 2027 sets out the organization's commitments in support of the government's FSDS Goals 10, 12 and 13 and outlines additional activities that contribute to the achievement of the government's overall sustainable development goals.

SECTION 3

Listening to Canadians

As required by the Federal Sustainable Development Act, Law Commission of Canada has taken into account comments on the draft 2022-2026 FSDS made during the public consultation held from March 11 to July 9, 2022.

During the public consultation, more than 700 comments were received from a broad range of stakeholders, including governments, Indigenous organizations, non-governmental organizations, academics, businesses, and individual Canadians in different age groups and of various backgrounds. The draft FSDS was also shared with the appropriate committee of each House of Parliament, the Commissioner of the Environment and Sustainable Development, and the Sustainable Development Advisory Council for their review and comment.

What We Heard

Across the submissions received, the Law Commission of Canada identified sustainable development priorities and issues that affect us. These priorities include:

- Reducing inequalities through continuous engagement with Indigenous communities
- Reducing waste and transition to zero-emission vehicles
- A call to action on climate change and its impacts

Please find more information on the FSDS public consultation and its results in the FSDS Consultation Report

What We Did

While the Law Commission of Canada is not a lead organization identified in the Federal Implementation Plan for the 2030ⁱ Agenda for Sustainable Development and the UN Sustainable Development Goals, the Commission's sustainable development strategy takes into account the Government of Canada's commitment to achieving Goals 10, 12 and 13 in its strategic initiatives and activities.

Additionally, reviving the Law Commission of Canada contributes to the implementation of the United Nations Sustainable Development Goal 16, to promote peaceful and inclusive societies, provide access to justice for all, and build accountable and inclusive institutions at all levels.

The Law Commission of Canada's Commitments

GOAL 10:

The re-establishment of the Law Commission of Canada is an important initiative in the context of reducing inequality and advancing reconciliation with First Nations, Inuit, and Métis communities.

The Commission will also support whole-of-government efforts to align laws, policies, programs and initiatives with the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and the implementation of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples Act.

As provided by the LCC Act, the Law Commission of Canada is to study and keep under systematic review, the law of Canada and its effects, with a view to providing independent advice on improvements, modernization and reform that will ensure a just legal system that meets the changing needs of Canadian society and of individuals in that society, including those directly linked to SDG 10.

Integrating Sustainable Development

The Law Commission of Canada will continue to ensure that its decision-making process includes consideration of FSDS goals and targets through its Strategic Environmental Assessment (SEA) process. A SEA for a policy, plan or program proposal includes an analysis of the impacts of the given proposal on the environment, including on relevant FSDS goals and targets.

Public statements on the results of the Law Commission’s assessments are made public when an initiative that has undergone a detailed SEA (see here). The purpose of the public statement is to demonstrate that the environmental effects, including the impacts on achieving the FSDS goals and targets, of the approved policy, plan or program have been considered during proposal development and decision making.
