Colour is claimed as a feature of the trademark. The outline and the interior of the circle design are brown as the traditional handmade Mexican clay plate. The outline of the circle contains a pattern of flowers going around it; each flower with seven white circles (each circle representing a petal) and one green circle inside the white circles. The word CATRINA has different shades of orange and yellow to represent the marigold flower of the Mexican holiday "Day of the Dead". The word CASA is white. The face is white colour to represent "La Catrina": La Catrina is the tall female skeleton wearing a fancy hat with feathers, a Mexican festive symbol of Day of the Dead. To the right of the face, inside the brown circle plate, there is a white knife outline. To the left of the face, inside the brown circle plate, there is a white fork outline. The eyes' outlines are black surrounded by a half-circular pattern all around that is orange with a yellow outline for each halfcircle. The iris of the eyes (eye colour) are brown with a black pupil and a white circle inside the pupil. The eyebrows are green. The nose is black. The lips are a pink colour variation and the inside of the top lip is brown. Each cheek has a 'P' shaped line with an orange circle with a black outline at the end of the curvature of the line. The chin has a half-flower with an orange half-circle at the base and has a green outline. The flower at the chin has five petals in the shape of an oval with a pointy side and the other side attached to the green outline of the orange base; the petals are yellow with an orange outline and have two size variations. At the end of the smaller size variation of petals on the chin, there are two small flowers that are orange with a black outline and are only slightly separated from the petals. In the middle of the forehead, there is a blue heart. Above the blue heart there is a red oval. There is an orange oval to the right and to the left of the middle red oval. In between the red oval and both the orange ovals and slightly above the orange ovals, there is a green swirl on each side. Above the green swirls, there is a small pink swirl on each side. To the side of each of the orange ovals opposite from the red oval, there is a smaller oval that is orange with a lighter shade of orange on each side (at about a 45 and a 135 degree angle respectively). To the side of the smaller orange ovals that are lighter shaded and above the heart, there is a red swirl that is hook-shaped on each side. To the side of the red swirls that are hook-shaped and above the eye outline pattern, there is a purple swirl on each side. To the side of the purple swirls and closer to the end of the face and above the eye outline pattern, there is a horizontal orange oval with a pointy end on each side.
