Introduction

Note: This introduction to Info Source is in large print to assist persons with visual disabilities.

About Info Source

Info Source: Sources of Federal Employee Information, will help you, as a current or former federal employee, to locate your personal information held by the government. It will also help you to exercise your rights under the Privacy Act.

This book is a complementary volume to Info Source: Sources of Federal Government Information which contains information about the Government of Canada, its organization and its information holdings.

Info Source combines and replaces the Access Register and the Index to Personal Information, two publications you might have seen or used before.

The annual edition of Info Source is complemented by bulletins, the Directory of Federal Government Enquiry Points and the Directory of Federal Government Databases.

Inside Info Source

This Info Source book has three main components:

Table of Contents

The Table of Contents is organized alphabetically by the commonly used name of the department or agency, such as Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada or Health Canada, rather than by their legal titles, Department of Agriculture and Agri-Food or Department of Health.

Introduction

The Introduction includes:

- information about the terms used in this book, some essential points about the Privacy Act, and directions on how to locate information by using Info Source or by making a formal request under the Privacy Act;
- a list of Privacy Coordinators, which is organized in the same order as the Table of Contents; and
- the description of the contents of Standard Banks see definition below.

Chapters

There is one chapter for each federal government department or agency subject to the Privacy Act. Each chapter contains a list or a description of personal information banks relating to current and former employees of the institution.

This book contains three types of personal information banks, as follows:

Standard Banks Standard Banks consist of administrative information which many government institutions maintain about their employees. Types of information include "Employee Personal Records", "Pay and Benefits" and "Training and Development". Not all government institutions require for each employee all the records described in the Standard Banks.

Central Banks These banks include information about employees from all or several government institutions. They are maintained by central agencies such as the Public Service Commission, the Treasury Board Secretariat and Public Works and Government Services Canada.

Particular Banks Particular Banks contain personal information about employees that is specific to the requirements of each department or agency.

Privacy Act

In its day-to-day operations, federal government departments and agencies collect personal information from almost all Canadians. The Privacy Act gives Canadian citizens and people present in Canada the right to have access to information that is held about them by the federal government. It also protects against unauthorized disclosure of personal information. In addition, it strictly controls how the government will collect, use, store, disclose and dispose of any personal information.

Most information available when you ask In many cases, you, as a federal employee, may be able to obtain your personal information from a government institution without applying under the Privacy Act. You should seek information about gaining access to your records by contacting a personnel officer at your employing institution at headquarters, or in the regions, as appropriate.

Some personal information is confidential The federal government must keep some personal information confidential under the Privacy Act, much of which relates to other people, national security or law enforcement.

How to apply

When you have decided to make a formal request under the Privacy Act there are certain procedures to follow.

Obtain a Personal Information Request Form at any location where Info Source is available.

- Fill out the form and identify yourself in such a way that the government institution can verify who you are, i.e. that it is you, and not someone else, asking for your information. The more precise the information you provide, the faster your request can be answered.
- If you are currently a federal employee, send the form to the Privacy Coordinator in your department or agency.
- If you are a former federal employee, you should contact the National Personnel Records Centre, National Archives of Canada, Tunney's Pasture, Ottawa, Canada K1A 0N3.

There is no charge to apply for information under the Privacy Act.

To change the information If you believe the information which a federal institution has on file about you is untrue or misleading, you can ask to have it corrected. Even if the department or agency does not agree to change this information, it must make a note that you have asked for the change and attach it to the file.

Safeguarding personal information The protection of your personal information and privacy is also a very important purpose of the Privacy Act. The Act states how and when the government can collect, store and dispose of personal information. It also covers specifically why and how the information can be used or given out, as well as who can use or receive it.

Giving out information The government can only disclose your information to someone else with your consent or when one or more of the criteria in the Privacy Act are met, such as to comply with a subpoena.

Turnaround time Under the law, all or most of the information you ask for should be disclosed within 30 days of receiving the request. If a time extension is required, you will be notified within the first 30 days and told why up to another 30 days may be needed.

Privacy Commissioner

The Privacy Commissioner is a representative of the people with the power to look into complaints of improper collection, use, storage, disclosure or disposal of personal information. The Privacy Commissioner can also help if you are dissatisfied with the results of your formal application or the time it has taken to see your personal information.

When the Privacy Commissioner's investigation is complete, an individual who is of the opinion that they have not been given access to all of their personal information which they are entitled has the right to apply to the Federal Court — Trial Division for a review of the matter.

You can write or call the Privacy Commissioner's office at:

Place de Ville, Tower B

112 Kent Street, 3rd Floor Ottawa, Ontario K1A 1H3

Telephone: 995-2410 in Ottawa-Hull

1-800-267-0441 (national toll free number)

Using Info Source quickly and effectively

Determine the correct chapter Turn to the chapter of the department or agency you think has the information, and check the Personal Information Banks.

If you are unsure about the correct department or agency, a telephone call or letter to any Privacy Coordinator's office should provide the answer.

For persons with disabilities Individuals who are unable to exercise their rights using regular procedures may obtain further assistance from any Privacy Coordinator's office.

Employment Equity Target Group Data Bank

Description: This survey of the federal public service (PSSRA Schedule 1, Part 1 population) permits those individuals who are Métis, Inuit or Indian, disabled persons and/or members of visible minorities, to identify themselves as such. A service-wide census was conducted in April 1985 in order to initiate this central data bank (TBS PCE 706). Various methods for keeping the data bank up to date are being considered, such as voluntary self-identification of newly-hired personnel, mandatory self-identification of personnel who access special programs and services for the above-mentioned groups, and small-scale surveys which would ensure that all public servants are resurveyed every four or five years. This information relates to employees of that portion of the federal public service covered by the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Schedule 1, Part 1. The bank will be used to identify those members of the public service who are Métis, Inuit or Indian, disabled persons, and/or members of visible minorities for analysis purposes. The bank facilitates comparison of their representation in the Public Service to their presence in the population. The bank will also be used to analyze and monitor the situation and progress of the survey target populations, as compared to the rest of the public service, in terms of regional and occupational distribution, training, mobility, etc. These comparisons will be made on a regular basis in order to determine the effectiveness of affirmative action and special programs and to identify areas of possible improvement. Self-identification status and personal identification from the survey are matched, using the provided personal identification, to other files, such as the Incumbent File, other appropriate files of the Personnel Management Information System (PMIS), the Training and Development System (TDIS), the Official Languages System (OLIS), all from the Treasury Board Secretariat, and human resource data files of the Public Service Commission, such as the Quarterly Statistics File and the Appointment Information Management System. The bank contains data extracted from the survey form, such as the social insurance number and status of the particular individual. The bank will be matched by common identifier (the social insurance number) to the above-mentioned files in order to obtain information relating to age, sex, occupational group, subgroup and level, years of service, salary, etc., so that tabulations can be produced in support of analysis as described above. If a respondent has not reported his/her social insurance number, it is entered for statistical purposes only. The bank acquires information from other banks, such as the standard departmental Affirmative Action bank (PSE 918), but no disclosure of personal information is made from this bank that could reasonably be expected to identify the individual to whom it relates. An individual requesting to access his/her registered special groups identification status should provide the social insurance number in order to guarantee response to the request. Retention period for this information is to be established. Class of Individuals: All current employees for whom Treasury Board is classed as the employer under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Schedule 1, Part 1. Purpose: Personnel management information is collected under the authorities and obligations described in the financial Administration Act (FAA) and the Public Service Staff Relations Act (PSSRA).
