ENVIROTIPS—Series

(EC) The Environmental and Technical Information for Problem Spills (EnviroTIPS) Manuals were initiated in 1981 to provide comprehensive information on chemicals that are spilled frequently in Canada. The manuals were intended to be used by spill specialists for designing counter measures for spills and to assess their effects on the environment. The major focus of the EnviroTIPS manuals is environmental. The manuals are not intended to be used by first-response personnel because of the length and technical content: a number of manuals intended for first response use are available. The information presented in these manuals was largely obtained from literature review.

The Non-domestic Substances List (NDSL) specifies substances, other than those on the DSL (Domestic Substances List), that exist in world commerce but not in Canada. The NDSL is based on the United States Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) 1985 inventory of commercial substances compiled for the Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA). Substances not on the DSL will require notification and assessment before they can be manufactured in or imported into Canada. The notification information required from importers and manufacturers is prescribed in the New Substances Notification Regulations and includes physical, chemical and toxicological data. Substances on the NSDL have less demanding notification requirements than other new substances. 2 volumes. Bilingual.

(F&O) Edited by Douglas P. Dodge. The International Large River Symposium (LARS) held at Honey Harbour, Ontario, Canada, September 14-21, 1986, was organized to increase our understanding of large river management for fish production. Intended to address fish production and management in large rivers, in the face of steadily increasing world demand for protein and conflicting demands for water supplies, flood control, transportation, irrigation and energy production. LARS, in response to a request from the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources initiated to: provide reliable estimators of fish yield;
publish case studies and synthesis papers; identify areas requiring further study; improve river resource management, and improve communication among scientists.

PROJECT QUINTE: Point-Source Phosphorus Control and Ecosystem Response in the Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario

FS41-31-86E Paperbound C$19.99
ISBN 0-660-12059-3 Other countries US$25.95 (F&O) Edited by C.K. Minns, D.A. Hurley and K.H. Nicholls. Canadian Special Publication of Fisheries and Aquatic Sciences No. 86. Reports the findings of Project Quinte scientists over the period 1972-84 when phosphorus inputs from sewage treatment plants on the Bay of Quinte were dramatically high (1972-77) and when they were reduced (1978-84).
Dramatic changes were found in the lower and higher trophic levels when phosphorus inputs were reduced, but changes in the intermediate trophic levels were minimal.
Papers presented here, document these results and offer interpretations of the data that fit the author's model. The Project Quinte group believes that their findings will have applications in other areas of the Great Lakes Basin. The results of other rehabilitation programs in the Great Lakes will provide a useful comparison to these.

QUALITY ASSURANCE IN WATER QUALITY MONITORING

(EC) Ecosystem Sciences and Evaluation Directorate. By James E. Gaskin. Issued by the Water Quality Branch, Inland Waters Directorate. A quality assurance program is vital to managing the three major stages in water quality monitoring. The first stage, sampling, outlines the quality assurance management plan and how to comply with it. Secondly, laboratory analytical measurements describes how to ensure that all measurement and data processing activities affecting the quality of the data conform to established standards. The focus on the interlaboratory study, provides insight into how such studies relate to quality management, their design, preparation, distribution and interpretation. This collection of papers is authored by leading experts in the field.
Data Collection is the last stage dealing with how to handle and manage water quality data. General glossary providing definitions for a number of terms associated with water quality monitoring. Figures. Graphs. References. Tables.

TO ACIDIFICATION IN EASTERN CANADA

EN40-447-1993 Paperbound C$44.95
ISBN 0-660-58895-1 Other countries US$58.45

(EC) Reference document addressing specific questions concerning surface water in eastern Canada. Study area coincides with that portion of exposed areas to the acidifying effects of airborne pollutants. Includes regions where the terrain is not able to buffer surface water from acidification. Computerized digital image analysis extracted information from 129 Landsat Thematic Mapper scenes. Using state-of-the-art GIS techniques, information was then merged with provincial drainage basin and ecological frameworks to calculate the number and distribution of surface water bodies in eastern Canada. Identified, located, and measured 891,451 water bodies. Drainage basin and provincial statistics are presented. In digital format, the data can be used in DBMS and GIS for a variety of applications such as modelling, research and monitoring.

(EC) Extract from Canada Gazette, Part I, January 26, 1991. The Domestic Substances List (DSL) identifies substances, for the purposes of CEPA (Canadian Environmental Protection Act), which are not subject to the New Substances Notification Regulations. The DSL defines existing substances for the purposes of the Act and is the sole basis for determining whether a substance is "existing" or "new" to Canada. Because toxicity is not a criterion for inclusion on the List, the DSL should not be viewed as a listing of toxic substances.

LAW REFORM COMMISSION OF CANADA — PUBLICATIONS ON ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES

(LRC) For 20 years the Law Reform Commission of Canada undertook a vast amount of research in a variety of areas related to law. Over the years, this research culminated in the publication of 34 Reports to Parliament, 66 Working Papers and 78 Study Papers. The Commission's legal research helped shape Canada's justice system. The recommendations contained in its publications have been embodied in various amendments to the Criminal Code. The Commission has made an impressive contribution to Canadian case law and has been instrumental in the changing of attitudes. Lawyers, students and laypersons alike have used these documents for presentation of legal arguments, as learning tools and for the lucid and well-written explanations of complex legal concepts they contain. The Commission's work has been recognized for its excellence throughout Canada and abroad. Recognizing the value of the research the Canada Communication Group - Publishing is pleased to continue to make the Commission's work available. Publications concerning environmental issues are listed below.

(SS) Terminology Bulletin 215. By H el ene Jacob. This vocabulary covers 3,275 concepts in almost 10,000 entries. It is the second in a series of vocabularies on the environment. It offers the reader all the terminology of the Workplace Hazardous Materials Information System (WHMIS), information which aims to reduce the incidence of illness and injury resulting from the use of hazardous substances. The range of fields studied is extensive: chemical analysis (physical characteristics and properties of hazardous products), occupational health and medicine, handling, emergency and safety measures, pollution, individual protection, legislation, etc. A bibliography and many appendices were added, in particular the Ingredient Disclosure List, a document which gives the names of 1,736 chemicals that must be identified on material data safety sheets under the Controlled Products Regulations. This work is intended for translators and writers, as well as everyone who, directly or indirectly, is affected by regulations governing those materials: manufacturers, importers and users.

(SS) Terminology Bulletin 214. By Denis Rivard. This publication is the first in a series of vocabularies on the environment. Containing nearly 7,000 entries, it offers the reader all the new terminology used to describe the recent phenomenon of global warming, including a complete typology of the various categories of major greenhouse gases (NH₄, N₂O, O₃, CFCs). Special emphasis has been given to CFCs or chlorofluorocarbons. The Vocabulary also focuses on the terminology of atmospheric particles (aerosols) and air humidity (clouds), two greenhouse contributors whose behaviour is of vital interest to modelers. The terminology used in connection with the protection of the ozone layer, a related problem of equal importance to the greenhouse effect, has also been carefully researched and included here.
