ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

As one part of "A Study of Rape in Canada", the compilation of this Bibliography owes debts to many persons, only some of whom are directly connected with the Bibliography itself. Many others have helped through the contributions they have made to other phases of the project. Among the former, special thanks must be extended to Charlotte R. Mudge, Irene Sheppard and Pearl Hsing, Library Staff at the Centre of Criminology, University of Toronto. Without their help, it would have been impossible to coordinate the many sources on which the Bibliography is based, and to organize these in the ways best calculated to make the Bibliography of maximum use to those working and interested in the field. Special thanks are also due to York University, Toronto, for having permitted us access to their computer facilities. The Federal Ministry of the Solicitor General of Canada is also to be thanked for funding this phase of the research and for the support that they have given to other phases of the project.

Without funding from the Law Reform Commission of Canada and the Donner Canadian Foundation, however, none of the present research would have been possible because there would have been no project. And a very special debt must be acknowledged to the Administrative Staff of the Centre of Criminology, University of Toronto, and in particular to Ms. Rita Donelan and Ms. Elizabeth Burgess, who have handled all the complicated business and financial aspects of this research and of the entire project with superb skill and finesse.

It must also be acknowledged that this particular phase of the project was greatly facilitated by the fact that a thorough bibliography had already been prepared under the directorship of Duncan Chappell. A major debt is owed to him and to his staff for having paved the ground so well, and we extend our generous thanks to him.

REMERCIEMENTS

S'inscrivant dans le cadre de "Étude du viol au Canada", cette bibliographie a été établie grâce à la participation de nombreuses personnes. Si seulement quelques unes d'entre elles se sont consacrées au travail de compilation même, beaucoup y ont contribué par leur rapport aux autres étapes du projet. Parmi les premières, nous remercions particulièrement Charlotte R. Mudge, Irene Sheppard et Pearl Hsing, membres du personnel de la bibliothèque au Centre de criminologie de l'Université de Toronto. Sans leur concours, il aurait été impossible de coordonner les nombreuses sources et de les organiser pour faire de la bibliographie l'instrument le plus utile possible aux personnes qui travaillent dans le domaine ou qui s'y intéressent. Nous adressons aussi nos remerciements à l'Université York de Toronto, pour nous avoir permis d'utiliser leur matériel informatique, et au ministère du Solliciteur général du Canada qui a financé cette étape des recherches et soutenu les autres étapes du projet.

Sans l'appui financier de la Commission de réforme du droit du Canada et de la Donner Canadian Foundation, aucune recherche n'aurait été possible. En fait, ce projet n'aurait pas vu le jour. Nous sommes également très reconnaissants au personnel administratif du Centre de criminologie de l'Université de Toronto, particulièrement à Mmes Rita Donelan et Elizabeth Burgess, qui ont démêlé de main de maître les difficiles aspects financiers et commerciaux de la recherche et du projet tout entier.

Il convient aussi de souligner que cette étape du projet a été rendue beaucoup plus facile du fait qu'une bibliographie exhaustive avait déjà été établie aux États-Unis sous la direction de Duncan Chappell. Nous sommes redevables à M. Chappell, de même qu'à son équipe, du terrain ainsi préparé et nous tenons à lui exprimer nos très sincères remerciements.

INTRODUCTION

In the fall of 1973, work was begun on an analysis of all rape complaints reported to the Metropolitan Toronto Police Department in the year 1970. The object of this project was to ascertain basic data surrounding the offence of rape, the victims and the offenders.¹ Subsequent to the completion of this project, further phases of A Rape Bibliography were begun in Ontario, and plans were made to extend the research into another jurisdiction. The phases of the project carried out in Ontario consisted of an analysis of all cases of rape reaching the level of Preliminary Hearing in the Judicial District of York (Metropolitan Toronto), 1970-1973, and in-depth interviewing of rape victims whose cases had proceeded at least as far as Preliminary Hearing in this same geographical area during this same period.² Phases of the research now completed in British Columbia, City of Vancouver, exactly parallel the research completed in Ontario, including an analysis of all cases of rape reported to the Vancouver Police Department, 1970-1974, an analysis of cases reaching the level of Preliminary Hearing, City of Vancouver, 1970-1974, and interviewing of rape victims involved in the criminal justice system at least to this level during this same time period.³

It became clear during the course of this research that little research in this field had been done in Canada and that there was no systematic guide to what had already been done. For these reasons, it was felt that a thorough review of the existing literature was required. It was decided to work from "Forcible Rape: Bibliography", compiled by Chappell, Geis and Fogarty,⁴ supplementing this to bring it up to date, and introducing a new section entitled "Rape Research in Canada".

INTRODUCTION

À l'automne de 1973, on entreprit l'analyse de toutes les plaintes de viol qui avaient été signalées, en 1970, au Service de police du Grand Toronto. Ce projet avait pour but de vérifier les données de base relatives au délit même, aux victimes et aux criminels.¹ L'analyse terminée, on aborda, en Ontario, les parties suivantes de Une bibliographie sur le viol, tout en prévoyant en étendre l'application dans une autre province. Les parties du projet réalisées en Ontario comprenaient une analyse de tous les cas de viol ayant atteint le palier des audiences préliminaires dans le district judiciaire de York (Grand Toronto) de 1970 à 1973, et des entrevues poussées avec les victimes de viol qui avaient comparu en audiences préliminaires dans le même district et pendant la même période.² Les recherches qui se sont déroulées en Colombie-Britannique, à Vancouver, suivent exactement le même cheminement qu'en Ontario: d'abord, une analyse de tous les cas de viol signalés au Service de police de Vancouver de 1970 à 1974, ensuite une analyse des cas présentés aux audiences préliminaires de la Ville de Vancouver de 1970 à 1974, et, enfin, des entrevues avec les victimes qui ont eu affaire au système de justice pénale, au moins à ce palier pendant la même période.³

Nous nous sommes rendu compte, au fil des recherches, que peu d'études avait été menées au Canada dans ce domaine et qu'il n'existait aucun guide systématique sur ce qui avait déjà été fait. Pour ces raisons, nous avons jugé qu'une étude approfondie des ouvrages disponibles s'imposait. Nous avons alors décidé de prendre comme document de base Forcible Rape: Bibliography, établi par Chappell, Geis et Fogarty⁴, en le complétant de mises à jour et en l'augmentant d'un nouveau chapitre intitulé "La recherche sur le viol au Canada".

METHODOLOGY

In order to supplement Chappell, Geis, and Fogarty, a complete library search of the existing literature was conducted as follows. First, all Canadian periodicals subscribed to by the Centre of Criminology, University of Toronto, were searched for the years 1950-1975. A list of all Canadian periodicals searched is included as Appendix A. Second, the Index to Canadian Periodicals, 1950-1975, and the Index to Canadian Legal Periodical Literature, 1950-1975, were also searched. Third, utilizing the computer facilities of York University, Toronto, a computer search of American and Canadian social science periodicals, 1950-1975, was carried out.

In addition, when compiling the revisions to the existing rape bibliography, major bibliographies other than this were also searched in order to ensure that the revisions were as up-to-date and thorough as possible. These other bibliographies included the Bibliography of Rape compiled by the Toronto Rape Crisis Centre, the Bibliography included in the Report to the Justice Committee by the Advisory Committee on the Status of Women, bibliographies provided by other Canadian researchers in the field, and those emerging from other phases of "A Study of Rape in Canada".

HOW TO USE THE BIBLIOGRAPHY

The Bibliography is broken down into three major sections. The first is the Subject List, which is divided into eight subsections, many of which are divided into further smaller sections to facilitate location of relevant works in a specific area. The major subsections include Sociology, the Victim, the Offender, the Law, Medical and Medico-Legal, Police Investigation, Rape in Non-Common Law Jurisdictions, and Rape Research in Canada. With the exception of the last of these, these are the subject headings utilized in Chappell, Geis, and Fogarty. We have, however, dropped the device of the citation numbers, as this made the bibliography difficult to revise. Entries are, thus, alphabetically arranged under each sub- or sub-sub heading.

The second major section is the Author List, alphabetically arranged, with all authors being given a separate entry whether or not their names appeared first in the citation for the entry in which they are listed as co-authors. This follows the practice utilized in Chappell, Geis, and Fogarty, but lists all articles by each author rather than including the citation numbers only, as was the practice in "Forcible Rape: Bibliography".

The third major section is a Title List, listing alphabetically each title cited in the Subject List, according to the first word of the entry title. Chappell, Geis, and Fogarty did not include a title list, but we felt that this would provide a useful revision of the bibliography in order to facilitate location of an entry when the author or particular subject matter is unknown.

MÉTHODOLOGIE

Pour compléter le document de Chappell, Geis et Fogarty, on a effectué une recherche bibliographique exhaustive des ouvrages parus dans le domaine. On a d'abord dépouillé tous les périodiques canadiens de 1950 à 1975 auxquels est abonné le Centre de criminologie de l'Université de Toronto. (On trouvera une liste de tous les périodiques étudiés à l'appendice A.) On a ensuite examiné attentivement l'index des périodiques canadiens de 1950 à 1975 et l'index des périodiques canadiens du domaine juridique de 1950 à 1975. Enfin, à l'aide des ordinateurs de l'Université York de Toronto, on a fait un tour d'horizon de tous les périodiques américains et canadiens de sciences sociales, de 1950 à 1975.

De plus, en compilant les révisions des bibliographies sur le viol, on a examiné les principales bibliographies traitant de sujets connexes pour s'assurer que les révisions étaient aussi à jour et complètes que possible. Il s'agissait notamment de la Bibliography of Rape, établie par le "Toronto Rape Crisis Centre", de la bibliographie contenue dans le Rapport au Comité de la Justice par le Comité consultatif de la situation de la femme, de bibliographies fournies par d'autres chercheurs canadiens dans le domaine et de celles auxquelles ont donné lieu les autres étapes de l'Étude du viol au Canada.

COMMENT SE SERVIR DE LA BIBLIOGRAPHIE

La Bibliographie comprend trois parties. La première, la liste des sujets, comporte huit sections, elles-mêmes subdivisées pour la plupart en sous-sections, de façon à pouvoir repérer facilement les travaux qui se rapportent à un domaine précis. Les sections portent sur la sociologie, la victime, le délinquant, la loi, la médecine et la médecine légale, l'enquête de la police, le viol dans les juridictions autres que de droit commun et la recherche sur le viol au Canada. À l'exception de ce dernier sujet, nous avons utilisé les mêmes titres que Chappell, Geis et Fogarty. Cependant, nous n'avons pas conservé les numéros de citation, qui rendaient la bibliographie difficile à réviser. Par conséquent, les titres paraissent en ordre alphabétique dans chaque section ou sous-section.

La deuxième partie est la Liste des auteurs, où tous les auteurs font l'objet d'une rubrique distincte même si leur nom ne figure pas en premier dans la liste des co-auteurs. Cette méthode est celle de Chappell, Geis et Fogarty, sauf que l'énumération se fait par auteur plutôt que par numéro de citation seulement, comme c'était le cas dans "Forcible Rape: Bibliography."

Finalement, la Liste des titres énumère, par ordre alphabétique elle aussi, chaque titre cité dans la liste des sujets selon le premier mot du titre. Bien que Chappell, Geis et Fogarty n'en avaient pas établi, nous avons jugé qu'une liste des titres augmenterait l'utilité de la bibliographie en permettant de trouver facilement un titre lorsque l'auteur ou le domaine précis ne sont pas connus.
